Park-rec official says lake arrest was coincidence

By Bruce Matzkin Herald Reporter

COVENTRY - There was no connection between the arrest Saturday of a resident on a boating violation and his outspokenness on the crowded condition of Coventry Lake, the man said Tuesday.

Harvey R. Barrette Jr. of Avery Shores, who was arrested Saturday for driving his motorboat into a marked swimming area, said that he was not being picked on by police following a meeting last week that Barrette requested to discuss ways to limit dangerous activities on the lake.

"I've had a few calls from people telling me, 'You open your mouth on one end, and get arrested on the other,'" Barrette said. "That wasn't it. It just happened to be a coincidence."

Barrette said that because he is the only one of the town's seven Parks and Recreation Commission members who lives on the lake, he is the first one to be called when there are problems concerning the lake. He said that on Saturday, he drove his boat from his house to the state boat-launch area, about one-quarter of a mile away, to clean up litter and debris, a task he performs regularly.

While there, Barrette said a neighbor who lives near Patriot's Park, which includes a public beach on the lake, told him that there had been vandalism to a lifeguard chair on the beach.

Barrette then drove his boat to the swimming area, about 300 yards away. He said when he reached the buoys that mark off the swimming area, he shut off his motor and paddled in to shore. A lifeguard asked him what he was doing with a boat on shore, and he told her he was investigating the damage to the lifeguard chair.

Barrette said he then drove his boat home, and he returned in his truck to repair the chair. Later that day, his wife informed him that the lake patrol officer was looking for him. He went down to the lake, and the officer said she had received a complaint and would have to issue him a summons.

"I was wrong," said Barrette. "The officer was just doing her job."

According to police, Barrette was warned in the past about bringing his boat into the swimming area. Police said the infraction carries a mandatory court appearance, at which time the judge will decide the amount of a fine. Barrette will appear in Rockville Superior Court on Aug. 6. He said he expects the fine to be about $40.

Barrette was concerned that people who had read an article about the meeting he requested would think he was being picked on. He has repeatedly complained of the number of high-powered boats traveling at high speeds on the lake, especially on windy days. He has also criticized the Department of Environmental Protection for inadequate supervision of the state boat-launch area on the lake.

At the meeting, Rep. Edith Prague, D-Columbia, mentioned mandatory licensing as a possible way to solve the problems. But Randolph Dill of the Department of Environmental Protection said that towns all over the state, experiencing similar problems, and that mandatory licensing legislation would have to take a back seat to a law against drinking while operating a boat.

Working weather

The next few days will bring continued good weather for working and Bill Mehl of Tolland is thankful. Mehl, who is building a fence at 218 Spruce St., said he prays for this kind of weather. "Last week you just couldn't really work up to speed because of the rain on your body with the heat," Mehl said.

Saudis find more mines

U.S. lacks OK to use anti-mine helicopters

WASHINGTON (AP) - Saudi Arabia says more mines have been found in a Persian Gulf channel where a reflagged Kuwaiti tanker hit one of the mines last week, but the United States still lacks permission from the allies in the area to base anti-mine equipment there.

The Saudis have located seven mines in the area near where the Bridgeton was struck last Friday, according to Pentagon officials who spoke Tuesday on condition they not be named.

In Kuwait, officials said the Bridgeton docked at a Kuwaiti terminal today to take on a partial load of oil before returning through the Persian Gulf with its U.S. warship escorts.

A government shipping source said the Bridgeton would take on about 240,000 tons of crude oil, or two-thirds the tanker's capacity. Officials did not say when the loading would begin, but a shipping source said it could occur today.

The Bridgeton and another Kuwaiti tanker were on their first trip up the gulf since being reflagged when the incident occurred. The two tankers proceeded to Kuwait without further incident, with three U.S. warships escorting them.

It was the first test of President Reagan's plan to protect 11 Kuwaiti tankers from Iranian attacks and protecting them with U.S. Navy escorts.

The Pentagon officials said it was too early to say how many mines may have been placed in the channel west of Farsi Island, which has been a base for activity by Iranian Revolutionary Guards. Iran has threatened to attack the Kuwaiti tankers because Kuwait has aided Iraq during the Iran-Iraq war.

Meanwhile, the executive officer of the USS Stark was disciplined for dereliction of duty, the Navy announced Tuesday. Lt. Cmdr. Raymond J. Gajan, 35, of Rockville, Md., was found derelict in his duties as executive officer for failing to ensure the readiness of all available systems to defend the Stark from the Iraqi air attack that killed 37 sailors in the gulf May 17, 1987.

Gajan was given a "letter of admonition," a lesser discipline than the "letter of reprimand" that forced Stark Capt. Glenn R. Brindel and tactical action officer Lt. Basil E. Moncrief to end their Navy careers.

Last Friday, after the Bridgeton hit the mine, U.S. warships maneuvered to leave the channel, on the assumption that there were more mines. At the time, Navy officials about the three ships estimated that up to a dozen mines may have been laid in the channel.

Pentagon officials offered conflicting accounts at the time. Navy plans to deal with the new mines. One source said U.S. Navy demolition experts might try to explode them, while other sources said the Saudis might try to do the job or U.S. allies such as Britain or the Netherlands could be asked for help.

The United States has no minesweeping ships in the region and it would take more than two weeks to send them there. The Pentagon wants to move minesweeping helicopters to the region, but neither Kuwait nor Saudi Arabia has agreed to allow the helicopters to be based in their nations.

"We're in the middle of discussions" with Kuwait, Richard Murphy, assistant secretary of State for the Middle East, told a House subcommittee on Tuesday.

But Rep. Robert Torricelli, D-N.J., angrily told Murphy, "It is absolutely intolerable" for the U.S. to have no minesweeping ships in the region.

Soviets say U.S. offer no arms compromise

GENEVA (AP) - The Soviet Union said today that newly presented U.S. disarmament proposals made no progress toward resolving differences that block a long intermediate-range missile treaty.

"I didn't find any compromises in what we were told yesterday, unfortunately. I will have to study the statement of the American side perhaps more deeply in seeking these compromises," said Alexei Obukhov, deputy head of the Soviet delegation. He described the U.S. proposals as "not constructive."

The Americans and Soviets differ over verification measures, the time period for destroying the missiles to be removed and measures to ensure that the missiles are not converted to other weapons categories.

In addition, the United States opposes a Soviet demand for elimination of U.S. nuclear warheads on 72 West German Perishing IA missiles.

"As far as I know the position of the American side, on this issue it is not constructive," Obukhov said.

Deputy Foreign Minister Alexander Besmertnykh and Col. Gen. Nikolai Chervov, in a joint interview in Moscow, rejected the idea that an American pledge not to modernize the aging warheads could prepare the way for an arms agreement and a U.S.-Soviet summit later this year, The Washington Post reported today.

"Non-modernization of these warheads cannot resolve this issue," Besmertnykh said. "It is such a half-hearted measure that it would not be satisfactory."

Obukhov spoke to reporters at the Soviet mission in Geneva just before a meeting of both full delegations, which the Soviets called.

He said the Soviets called the meeting to present a draft agreement on ballistic missiles and on preventing "the arms race in outer space."

Wind blows balloon into cemetery

By Bruce Matzkin Herald Reporter

Boland said that he spotted the cemetery as a possible landing area from more than 2 miles away.

"You've got to land it somewhere, and it looked like the cemetery had enough space," said Boland. He added that the trees in the cemetery were strategically situated to enable him to slow the balloon down by running the bottom of the balloon through the foliage.

"It looked like it was going to land on one of the buildings," said Anita Verlotto, who was in a car on Main Street when she spotted the balloon. Verlotto happens to be a clerk for the town's parks and cemetery department.

Riding in the balloon with Boland were Russell Parisi, who was taking a flying lesson, and Todd and Anne Pollack, all of Farmington.

A police cruiser was dispatched to the scene, according to a police report. Boland said it was unusual for the police to have showed up.

"In Farmington, if the police get a call of a balloon landing, they just say, 'It must be Boland again,'" he said.

Boland expressed surprise that his chase crew, which followed the balloon by van, was able to keep up.

"When we landed, they were already there waiting for us."

After landing, Boland and the others just packed up his gear and left.

Meese faces congressional critics

WASHINGTON (AP) - Attorney General Edwin Meese III, after testifying he could not have known of the depth of the Iran-contra affair when he began looking into it eight months ago, must face tough questions about why he went into his inquiry, a member of the Senate investigative panel said today.

Meese, returning for a second day of testimony, "can expect some questioning about ... what steps he took ... whether or not because of his relationship with the administration he perhaps went a bit slower in his inquiry, a member of the investigation in terms of skepticism and sealing off evidence," said Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine.

"I think basically we're going to look at his judgment," added Cohen, speaking on NBC's "Today" program.

On Tuesday, after Meese completed nearly seven hours at the witness table, Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, a member of the House Iran-contra panel, said, "He's not going to upset the apple cart at all. It looks to me like he's following the same pattern of cover up, protect the president."

Despite such comments, Meese had a relatively easy day Tuesday recounting his actions last November after President Reagan asked him to launch an investigation into the Iran-contra affair.

Today's session was delayed until the afternoon so Meese and committee members could attend a memorial service for Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige.

Is there life after the hearings for Inouye?

When questioning of Meese resumed today, Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, said he planned to ask Meese why he failed to immediately require that records of Lt. Col. Oliver L. North be sealed to preserve them for investigators, a failure he said allowed potentially key documents to be shredded.

And he said he wanted to know why Meese recruited a team of political appointees to carry out the inquiry rather than seasoned criminal attorneys with better investigative instincts.

"It seems to me that at least in retrospect, the records should have been sealed earlier and the criminal people should have been brought in earlier," Mitchell said.

Other questions remained, as well.

How could Meese fail to ask then-CIA director William J. Casey, a close friend, about the diversion of Iran arms sale profits to aid the contra? Why was that people should have been then-National Security Adviser John M. Poindexter not questioned more thoroughly about his role? Why did Meese tip off other administration officials about his inquiry? And why did he not pump North for details about the private corporation running the Iran arms deal and contra aid operations?

Cold front causes record lows in East

By The Associated Press

A cold front lowered temperatures across much of the nation's Eastern half today and pushed the mercury to record lows in the Northeast.

Heavy thunderstorms were scattered across Wyoming and New Mexico while showers and thunderstorms were widespread across southeast Georgia and scattered across Minnesota, Missouri, Illinois, North Dakota and the Carolinas.

Dense fog was widespread across southwest Indiana, southern Illinois and northwest Kentucky early today.

The cold front lowered temperatures from the Northeast and mid-Atlantic states into the upper Mississippi Valley. Temperatures were quite a bit lower in northern New England, where some readings in the low 40s were recorded.

Syracuse, N.Y., was 52 degrees, breaking a 1965 record by a degree, and Burlington, Vt., was 49, breaking a 1952 record also by one degree.

Early-morning temperatures were generally in the 70s across the Plains, Mississippi Valley and Deep South.

Today's forecast called for showers and thunderstorms from the coast of the Carolinas across Florida and the eastern Gulf Coast through the Mississippi Delta; and showers and thunderstorms scattered from northern Illinois across eastern Minnesota; across the central Rockies; and through southern Nevada and northern Arizona.

Today's weather picture was drawn by Sarah Willbour, 9, of Bramblebush Road, who attends the Keeney Street School.

CONNECTICUT WEATHER

Central, eastern interior, southwest interior: Today, sunny. High 75 to 80. Light north wind. Tonight, mostly clear. Low in the 50s. Light variable wind. Thursday, partly sunny. High around 80.

West coastal, east coastal: Today, sunny. High 75 to 80. Wind becoming southeast around 10 mph. Tonight, mostly clear. Low 60 to 65. Light variable wind. Thursday, partly sunny. High 75 to 80.

Northwest hills: Today, sunny. High in the mid 70s. Light variable wind. Tonight, partly cloudy. Low 50 to 55. Light variable wind. Thursday, partly sunny. High 75 to 80.

Astrograph

Things that you think are important today could turn out to be of little value, while your prize of real worth might be lost for granted.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're a quick study today, and you'll grasp facts instantly. Don't squander this attribute. Converse with people from whom you can learn.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Friends will view you as a valuable ally today. You'll be able to solve their problems as well as see pitfalls they may be overlooking.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In joint ventures today, your second thoughts may prove to be your wisest. Before committing yourself, re-examine your initial perceptions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Make a concerted effort to upgrade your productivity today, but, by the same token, don't assume more than you can comfortably handle.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone may present you with an interesting investment proposal today. Regardless of this person's credentials, take time to investigate it yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A delicate matter that has caused you a degree of anxiety can be wrapped up today, but you still may not get all you've hoped for.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) If things have been a trifle tense lately, give your mind a rest today and do something light, carefree or perhaps even frivolous.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22) Don't be dismayed if things don't work out too well for you early in the day. Your luck is a late bloomer and won't come into play until later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Something good will happen for you today of which you will not be apprised. You'll learn of it a few days from now when you place things in perspective.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't accept situations at face value today. Something that at all of the earmarks of being a losing proposition could turn out the opposite.

Water problems plague North Coventry residents

By Jacqueline Bennett
Herald Correspondent

COVENTRY — After weeks of not having enough water, and at times being without it, North Coventry area residents have called in the state for action.

"It hasn't been easy. It hasn't been comfortable and it's a little disheartened," said resident Tony Mancuso of Fieldstone Lane, in a phone interview Tuesday morning.

Mancuso has been acting as a spokesman for the 112 families with homes that have been affected by the lack of water. Their water supply comes from a private company, General Water Inc. Ac-ording to Mancuso, the company did not properly repair a break in a pipe in the system over Memorial Day weekend. Since then, it's been difficult to get water. He added, however, water supply had been inadequate for years.

"This is not new. It's ongoing," said Mancuso. "But this is an emergency situation. At first, the company tried to stroke us. Then they blamed it on people filling up their pools."

TOWN MANAGER Harold Hodge said Tuesday the system is old and needs repair. The company has two wells and a reservoir that are low.

"The reservoir is not recovering properly, and no one is quite sure why," said Hodge. He added that many of the affected families have children and babies. "They need water," he said.

Hodge has visited the site several times, but said the matter is out of the town's hands. As a public utility, it is under the jurisdiction of the state, he said. Hodge said he contacted state Rep. Edith Prague (D-Columbia). Town Council Chairman Joan Lewis has called for a hearing on the matter, to be held Aug. 10 in Coventry.

In the meantime, Mancuso submitted a petition with more than 100 residents' signatures to the state health department.

"The health department has been great. They contacted the water company immediately and were able to investigate the site last Wednesday," said Mancuso.

HARRY HERSH, manager of General Water Inc., which is based in Fairfield, said Tuesday the state health department has determined that an additional well has to be drilled, and his company is seeking state aid to do the work.

"The well driller has been out to the site and he knows it's an emergency situation," said Hersh. He said he doesn't know how soon the work can be done. He also blamed problems on the age of the system. He said the pipes may have leaks, which are hampering the reservoir's ability to refill, especially in the hot weather, when usage is high. Pipe replacement would be too costly, he said.

"You don't replace a water system, you abandon it," Hersh said.

Hersh noted that when water flow gets very low, all the pipes have to be shut down or the entire system could break.

"People just don't understand," he said.

FOR RESIDENTS, though, it's not that simple. The North Coventry

Volunteer Fire Department has had to pump water into the well's four times since May, and some residents have had to go to family and friends to use water.

Mancuso criticized Hersh for not putting money into maintaining the system, saying Hersh was more interested in profit than the well-being of the residents.

According to Hersh, the new well will cost $2,400. He said the water that was pumped in by the fire department cost the company $750. Although residents will not pay the cost immediately, it is likely his company will request next year the state stop an increase in the current $37.20 per quarter rate.

Negotiators say town-8th accord is up to voters

By Alex Girelli
Associate Editor

Negotiations between the town and Eighth District will continue along the lines of a broad agreement that has been worked out between the two sides, town officials say.

Two members of the town negotiating team said Tuesday that the district's negotiators should live up to the agreement's terms despite the criticism leveled at them by district directors Monday night.

"We have an agreement in principle worked up in good faith and we expect both sides to live up to it," said Town Director Geoffrey Naab, one of the town negotiators.

Naab declined further comment on objections raised in some district directors to the proposed agreement.

Former Town Attorney Kevin O'Brien, another town negotiator, said "I think that both teams have reached an agreement and have agreed that we will do all in our power to get the agreement approved by our respective constituencies."

"I have faith in the 8th district electors to decide," O'Brien said. He said district directors often say the district is an example of direct democracy, so the directors should also have confidence in the district electors.

Mayor Barbara B. Weinberg and Town Director Stephen T. Penny, the town's other two negotiators, also were reached for comment.

At a district meeting Monday night, three district directors, Thomas Landers, Joseph Tripp and Samuel Longest, said they would like to see the town and district negotiators to go back to the negotiating table with limited authority. Landers said the negotiators should be instructed to reject any proposal under which the district would relinquish its sewage collection system.

A fourth district director, Ellen Burns, made it clear she is not in favor of the agreement under the terms worked out by district and town negotiators, but said the accord should go to the district voters for action.

Gordon Lassow, one of the four district negotiators, said today, "It's time now for the thing to get on to the district ballot."

Lassow was not at the district meeting Monday at which the negotiator came in for heavy criticism for making what some district directors said was making too many concessions to the town.

Lassow, a former district president and a former district director, said of the negotiations, "Both sides did the best they could. There's always a chance someone could get away a little more or a less at the table."

"It's easy to criticize; we can always tell how the game should have been won on Monday morning," he said.

But Lassow said he would be willing to go back to negotiations and "start from square one" if the presently proposed agreement is rejected by voters of the Eighth District.

"We keep saying we are people-oriented, so we should let the people decide," he said.

As for the agreement over exchange of fire protection and sewer facilities between the town and the district under the agreement being worked out, Lassow said, "I think we've got a pretty good thing. I'm not happy with it all."

The negotiators are scheduled to meet again Aug. 3.

In months of negotiation, the two teams have arrived at a tentative proposal under which:

• The district would get the town-owned fire station in Buckland and the town would take over the district's sewers.

• Boundaries of the town and district for fire protection would be fixed so that they could be changed only by mutual consent of the two governments.

• The General Assembly would pass a special act that would prevent future consolidation of the town and district by any means that would not require consent by the district.

Man is facing drug charge

A man was arrested Monday on a warrant obtained by an undercover police officer who had twice bought marijuana from the man.

George Sterling, 27, of 149 Spruce St., was charged with two counts of sale of marijuana.

According to police, an officer went to Sterling's home on May 8 and paid Sterling $20 for two plastic bags of marijuana. Before the officer left the apartment, he saw a young teen-age boy entering.

The officer returned to Sterling's apartment on May 14, and bought two more bags of marijuana, police said. According to police, Sterling told the officer then that he was not a dealer, but that he only sells to some friends.

Poly said a witness had reported that he had often seen people park on an adjacent street, walk to Spruce Street and return a few minutes later. The witness said they seemed to be examining something when they returned to their cars, police said.

Sterling was being held on a $5,000 surety bond. He was scheduled to appear in Manchester Superior Court on Tuesday.

Mary, daughter of James V. born in 1942, became queen of England when she was one week old.

A blanket hangs from the attic of the home of Thomas and Catherine Toomey, 500 E. Center St. An early Tuesday evening fire in the home caused moderate damage but no injuries were reported.

Fire damages Center St. home

A fire caused moderate damage to the third floor of a house at 500 E. Center St. early Monday evening.

Nobody was in the home of Thomas E. and Catherine H. Toomey at 6:43 p.m., when the fire department received a call from a neighbor that there was smoke coming from the house. The first firefighters arrived two minutes later, said Deputy Chief Robert Bycholski.

The Toomeys refused comment, but Bycholski said that there was moderate fire damage to the third floor, and some smoke and water damage to the first and second floors. He said the house is still habitable.

This morning a large blanket was hanging from the attic window in the front of the house, and a pile of destroyed household goods sat on the front lawn.

The fire is under investigation, but it is believed to have started from a fan that was left running by a son, Thomas F. Toomey, 25.

There were no injuries reported.

8th directors look at new accounting system

The basis for an encumbrance accounting system, a way of earmarking funds to be spent before a purchase order is made, was explained Monday night to the Board of Directors of the Eighth Utilities District, which is considering such a system to get better budget control.

Representatives of the district's auditors, the accounting firm of Young, Lefurge and Pont of Vernon, explained the system in response to a request from the directors.

The key to the system, the representatives explained, is issuing purchase orders, whenever possible, for goods and services, and showing the amounts of the purchase orders as commitments against line items in the district budget.

The pre-numbered purchase orders, coded to link them to budget line items, would be initiated by department heads, who would send one copy to the district treasurer so the treasurer could determine that there is money left in the line item account to pay for the purchase involved.

If the line item does not have enough money in it, the treasurer would have to reject the purchase order, and some other authority, such as the district Board of Directors, would have to take other action, like transferring funds or making a budget amendment appropriation.

As the system exists now, funds are paid out when invoices are received.

The recording of purchase orders shows at any time in the budget year how much money is left in a line item.

When invoices are received from vendors, they would be checked against the purchase orders by the treasurer before the bill was paid.

Raymond Lefurge and John Mott, who gave the explanation, stressed repeatedly that district officials would have to decide the particulars of how the new system would work.

Lefurge suggested that if the district is interested in installing an encumbrance accounting system, it plan to do so by next July 1, the start of a new fiscal year.

Huston in hospital

Oscar-winning director John Huston was in stable condition today after an ambulance transported him to a Fall River, Mass., hospital for treatment of emphysema, a hospital spokesman said.

Huston, who turns 81 next week, was taken to Chariton Memorial Hospital on Tuesday while en route to a filming session at a Newport, R.I., mansion for the movie "Mr. North."

He was admitted for complications of his emphysema and was in stable condition today, hospital spokeswoman Dorothy Allen said.

Huston spokesman Ernie Anderson told the Boston Herald, "His condition is grave but there are hopeful signs, since he hasn't contracted pneumonia."

Huston, who was to act in the film co-written by the screenplay and by the movie's executive producer.

His 25-year-old son, Danny, is director, and Huston's daughter, Anjelica Huston, has a starring role.

Marriage on 'Vice'

Don Johnson's "Miami Vice" character Sonny Crockett will become involved with a rock singer and get married on the series next season, says executive producer Michael Mann.

NBC publicist Brian Robins confirmed Tuesday that Crockett will marry but said the details were only speculation as the series began filming in Miami last week.

"Miami Vice," going into its fourth year, took a beating last season from the CBS competition,

JOHN HUSTON ... condition grave

NBC Entertainment President Brandon Tartikoff had said he wanted the show to lighten up, and Mann said he agreed. "You know, I want funnier stories. I want more emotionally moving stories. I want to involve our characters' emotional lives more," he said.

Actor attack

TV tough guy Edward Woodward was being treated today for a suspected heart attack, and hospital officials in Warwick, England, said the actor's condition was improving.

Woodward, 57, who plays the title role in the American series "The Equalizer," was admitted to Warwick Hospital in central England on Tuesday with breathing problems and chest pains.

Hospital administrator Malcolm Norton said Woodward was in comfortable condition today after "a general, slight improvement overnight."

The British actor was taken ill at his home in nearby Edgelyth, where he was taking a break from "The Equalizer" to film "Kyril," a British-made TV thriller in which he plays a spy.

Blind date

Movie director William Friedkin's wife, television newswoman Kelly Lange, says she met Friedkin on a blind date and found that "We were made for each other."

Lange, a news anchor at KNBC in Los Angeles, and Friedkin were married June 7 in a ceremony presided over by California Supreme Court Justice Stanley Mosk, who worked with Friedkin as a consultant on his latest movie, "Rampage." The movie is due out in October.

Friedkin, whose films include "The Exorcist" and "The French Connection," and Lange were introduced by the station's film critic, David Sheehan. "It was my only blind date that worked out," she said Tuesday.

GETTING READY FOR THE "OPEN HOUSE"
An "Open House" is a popular way to expose your home to prospective buyers. Your agent arranges an ad in the local newspaper inviting customers, and perhaps other Realtors, to come see your house between specific hours - usually on weekend afternoons. At the appointed time sign will sprout up, directing customers to your property.

How do you get ready for the big event? First, make sure your house is clean and uncluttered. Go through a room at a time. Vacuum, make the beds, wash the dishes, and make the kitchen and baths sparkle. Mow and manure the yard. Then leave. Go to a movie or visit some friends. You may think you're needed to point out all of those special features your agent might forget. Leave anyway. Prospective buyers will be a lot more comfortable if you aren't around, and it will be easier for your agent to help them fall in love with your home if you're away for the afternoon.

Businessman avoids death at hands of terrorist

By Dean Golombek
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — A Connecticut businessman says the time he spent in the mercy of an armed terrorist aboard a hijacked airliner were minutes of unbelievable helplessness.

The hijacking in Switzerland on Friday came on Peter W. Schroth's 41st birthday. He spent part of the day with the terrorist's gun held to his head as he bargained for his life.

"There's nothing you can do," he said.

Schroth was the first person questioned by the 21-year-old Lebanese terrorist who forced an Air Afrique airliner, bound from the Congo to Paris, to land in Geneva.

He succeeded twice in convincing the hijacker, who was hunting for French passengers and later killed a Frenchman, that he was American.

"I was basically much calmer and more collected than I thought I could be in that situation," Schroth said Tuesday. It wasn't until after the ordeal that he cried.

Authorities identified the hijacker as Hussein Ali Mohamed Hariri, reportedly a member of the Hezbollah, a pro-Iranian group with links to Shiite Moslem factions holding hostages in Lebanon.

Schroth, vice president and deputy general counsel of Equator Holdings Ltd. of Hartford, had been in the Congo on business and was returning to his home in Granby, Conn., in a first-class seat when the hijacking occurred.

The terrorist cleared out the first-class section of the DC-10 and used it as a command post. But when the jet landed in Geneva, the hijacker ordered Schroth back to the first-class area and questioned him about his nationality.

"I was looking for French, apparently, and I was in the area of the cockpit," Schroth said. "I was the only white face, so he took me first." Schroth said. "I told him I was American, and he seem temporarily satisfied."

Schroth was then allowed to return to the coach section with other passengers and the hijacker took a Frenchman forward for questioning.

"We heard a gunshot. Then he had me go up there again. I saw the body," Schroth said.

Speaking in French to the gunman, who spoke the language poorly, Schroth was again able to convince the gunman that he was American, this time by showing his U.S. passport.

"He had a gun to my head. I think being an American protected me. I thought being an American was a dangerous thing. I thought I was in grave danger," Schroth said.

The hijacking ended later after a flight attendant overpowered the gunman and police took him into custody. The terrorist was being held in a Swiss prison on murder and hostage-taking charges.

Schroth said the terrorist never fully discussed the reasons for his action during the roughly 10 minutes they were together. He said the hijacker mentioned he was seeking the release of a comrade accused in a 1983 hijacking.

Schroth speculated the gunman hunted for French passengers because France recently severed diplomatic ties with Iran. He said there were many French aboard the plane, most of whom took refuge at the rear of the jet.

"When the action heated up they were out of harm's way," Schroth said.

Before the hijacking, no one had noticed anything unusual about the gunman or noticed when he had boarded the plane, Schroth said. The gunman made his presence known after the jet left Rome en route to Paris when he ran up the aisle, waving and shooting his gun while giving orders, he said.

On his return home to the United States on Saturday, Schroth said he started writing down his thoughts about the incident and found that was good therapy. He also was questioned extensively by the FBI.

"I found it really helps to talk about it with people," he said.

He offered some advice based on his experience and training given by his company. He said it paid for him to be deferential, follow orders and keep his hands in the open at all times.

Connecticut In Brief

Ruling could add to Pequot tribe

NORTH STONINGTON — Up to 350 more people could be recognized as members of the Pequot Eastern Pequot Indian tribe under an expanded definition of tribal members affirmed by a Superior Court judge.

The ruling could clear the way for a federal housing grant application stalled by tribal membership disputes and raise the standard of living at the 22-acre Lantern Hill Road reservation, where people now live in mobile homes, said William Sebastian, a spokesman for the 350-member group.

For more than 12 years, members of the Sebastian family have sought to be recognized as members of the tribe. The claim was resisted by former Tribal Chairman Raymond Geer, who led a group of 100 recognized Pequot members.

On July 17, Superior Court Judge Joseph B. Clark denied Geer's appeal.

Cops erase drug-bust evidence

LITCHFIELD — What police don't know can't hurt Richard Johnstone.

The New Hartford man was spared any possibility of a jail sentence this week after Torrington police erased a tape recording that would have been used as evidence in a drug case in Litchfield Superior Court.

Johnstone, 26, pleaded guilty Tuesday to a reduced charge of possession of marijuana and got a one-year suspended sentence, a year's probation and a fine of $1,000.

According to police, Johnstone was one of 10 people arrested after a detective bought drugs and tape recorded the transactions. State's Attorney Dennis Santore says police claimed they erased the tape because the recording was of poor quality.

FBI probes Danbury corruption

DANBURY — The mayor's financial records have been subpoenaed by the town clerk's office as part of an FBI investigation into alleged corruption involving city planning and zoning projects, according to a published report.

Town Clerk Michael Seri was served with a subpoena Monday to turn over documents to the FBI for a federal grand jury to review. The News-Times of Danbury reported today.

A federal grand jury will begin hearing testimony stemming from the FBI probe in federal court Sept. 1, state and federal sources told the newspaper.

The News-Times said that some of the items federal officials want include the land documents to Mayor James E. Dyer's house, a copy of the mayor's oath of office and Dyer's disclosure of net worth that he voluntarily places on record in Seri's office. All of the documents are public information.

Cops fear AIDS from woman

STAMFORD — Two Stamford police officers have filed injury reports because they fear a bleeding woman they drove to Stamford Hospital might have AIDS, according to a published report.

"We allow the officers to give notice of possible exposure" to AIDS, said Deputy Chief Walter Young. "In the event that there is a problem later on... it's on the record."

The officers do not take any time off from duty when they file "injured on the job" reports, Young told the Advocate of Stamford.

Police have been unable to confirm whether the woman has AIDS, according to Young. Even if the woman does have AIDS, Young said it is unlikely that the officers were infected.

NEW LONDON — A 50-year-old Avon woman has won $1 million in a special drawing held by the Connecticut state lottery.

Bertha Lacombe took home the top prize Tuesday during the so-called Double Cash drawing.

Taking the second-place prize of $20,000 was Raymond Pierson of Jewett City. Winning $15,000 was Anthony Chambers of Coatesville, Pa. The final winner was Ramona Morse of New Hartford who took home $10,000.

DPUC to examine electricity supply

NEW ENGLAND POWER POOL

HARTFORD (AP) — State power company officials have been summoned by utility regulators to a hearing Thursday on the availability of electricity for the rest of the summer.

Consumer Counsel James F. Meehan, who represents power companies' customers before the Department of Public Utility Control, says he also wants to know more about last week's intentional voltage reduction and whether customers' complaints were made.

As a result of the combination of near record-high temperatures, the planned shutdown of two Connecticut's nuclear power plants and other fossil-fuel plants in the region and the unexpected shutdown of a third Connecticut nuclear plant, the are officials from CLAP and United Illuminating Co., the state's two largest power producers, and officials from the energy division in the state Office of Policy and Management.

Forde said CLAP favored improving "the working relationship we have inside New England," rather than joining a different power pool. But he said Connecticut already works closely with power pools in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Canada.

Another area to be explored Thursday is "interruptible service rates," in which large power customers voluntarily reduce their electricity consumption during times of peak usage.

Hospice needs donations to cover its costs

BRANFORD (AP) — Connecticut Hospice, an organization that cares for the dying, has depended on grants and donations to bring its budget into the black each year since it opened in 1980 hospice offices.

"Our operating deficit — not being able to get enough money from insurance companies to cover costs of our program... is historic," said Rosemary J. Zierler, president and chief executive officer of Connecticut Hospice Inc.

"I don't personally see the time when philanthropic giving won't be necessary to support all of the special elements which make Hospice (a) hospice," she said.

Since at least 1982, Hospice, which has a 44-bed facility and also offers home care, has run an operating deficit of more than $150,000 each year. However, when grants, contributions and other revenues are considered, Hospice has run on a surplus of at least $300,000 for all of those years except 1985, when its overall deficit was about $56,000.

Hospice's operating costs between 1982 and 1985 ranged between $4.8 million and $6.2 million.

National and local hospice officials say operating losses are common in an industry in which insurance companies often refuse to reimburse hospice care because they do not recognize it as a medical expense.

NEPOOL officials are expected to testify at Thursday's hearing at DPUC headquarters in New Britain.

Suit stalls revamp of UB school

NEW HAVEN (AP) — The University of Bridgeport cannot reorganize its business school until it resolves a dispute with a professor who contends the plan is an attempt to retaliate against him and other union activists, a federal judge has ruled.

Judge Ellen B. Burns ruled in favor of Norman S. Douglas, chairman of the economics and finance department within the university's School of Business and Public Policy, who filed a lawsuit trying to stop the department's reorganization.

Douglas is a union activist who has had a confrontational relationship with the university over a number of matters.

Attorney William Laviano of Ridgefield, who is representing Douglas, said Monday that Burns' ruling may prompt the university to settle the dispute out of court.

The university's lawyer, George Mihalacos, said he will meet this week with incoming president Janet Greenwood to discuss alternatives. He did not rule out the possibility of abandoning the reorganization.

The plan, proposed by former university President Leland Miles, calls for the creation of a graduate School of Management and a splitting of the department of economics and finance. The economics department, along with its faculty, would be transferred to the College of Arts and Humanities. Douglas would be removed as chairman.

University officials contend the reorganization is needed to ensure accreditation of the Business and Public Policy School by the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business.

Under the plan, Douglas, a tenured professor who has taught at UB for 18 years, was to be transferred from teaching graduate-level finance to teaching undergraduate economics courses.

Douglas has contended that his professional reputation would be "irreparably harmed" if he were removed from his position and forced to teach undergraduate courses.

Burns ruled that the reorganization should not proceed because a union grievance action Douglas brought against UB is pending. She also denied a motion by the university that sought to dismiss the suit.

If the matter is not settled, further hearings will be scheduled in September.

Reagan pushes Bork confirmation

WASHINGTON — President Reagan called on the Senate today to confirm Robert Bork to the Supreme Court before its fall term history "have been as qualified to serve on the high court."

In remarks to the National Law Enforcement Center, Reagan likened Bork's intellect to that of Justices Oliver Wendell Holmes, Louis D. Brandeis, Felix Frankfurter and Potter Stewart.

"If I could appoint a whole Supreme Court of Felix Frankfurters, I would," he said. "And I've taken a step with Robert Bork."

On his return home to the United States on Saturday, Schroth said he started writing down his thoughts about the incident and found that was good therapy. He also was questioned extensively by the FBI.

Peru's leader wants bank takeover

LIMA, Peru — President Alan Garcia called on Congress to nationalize all banks and financial institutions in a dramatic effort to protect dollar reserves and gain control over the financial system.

Garcia, in his annual state of the nation address Tuesday, ordered the government to seize the banks until Congress acted, and he shut down private money exchange houses.

He also announced the lifting of a nightly curfew imposed in Lima 17 months ago and the 5-year-old state of emergency in southern Ayacucho state. The measures had been imposed because of the Maoist rebel insurgency. Emergency laws remain in effect in several other states.

FAA insists flight delays down

WASHINGTON — Thousands of air travelers are steaming about flight delays, but the Federal Aviation Administration says the delays it monitors actually declined during the first half of the year at nearly two-thirds of the country's busiest airports.

The overall number of delays was still slightly higher, however, because of big increases at some of the remaining airports. The FAA said delays more than doubled at airports in Atlanta, Los Angeles and Philadelphia.

The FAA comparisons are between the first six months of 1986 and the same period in 1987. The figures released Tuesday show that delays per 1,000 flights declined at 13 of the country's 22 leading airports and remained constant at three others.

Peace declared as riots breaks out

COLOMBO Sri Lanka — India and Sri Lanka today signed an accord intended to end Sri Lanka's 4-year ethnic civil war, but opponents to the pact rioted across the nation. Two people were reported killed.

Indian Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi and Sri Lankan President Junius R. Jayewardene signed the agreement in a ceremony at the Presidential Palace in the center of the capital.

The accord was not signed, however, by any representative of the Tamil rebels who have been fighting the Sinhalese-dominated government to gain a Tamil homeland in the island's northern and eastern provinces.

Police today fired on demonstrators at several sites who violated a nationwide curfew imposed Tuesday after riots that left at least 19 dead.

GM recalls 11,200 cars, 170 buses

DETROIT — General Motors Corp. is recalling 11,200 cars equipped with anti-lock brake systems and foglamps and about 170 buses with a possible brake problem.

GM announced Tuesday that about 6,000 cars' anti-lock brake systems may malfunction and cause rear brakes to stop working due to brake fluid seeping from a pressure switch.

The system is installed in certain 1986 model Buick Electras, 1987 Buick LeSabres, 1986 and 1987 Cadillac Fleetwoods and Devilles, 1986 and 1987 Oldsmobile Ninety-Eights, and 1986 and 1987 Pontiac 6000 STE models.

The device in some Pontiac 6000 STEs may also fail because of possible water contamination during assembly, the automaker said.

Leahy regrets leaking secret report

WASHINGTON — While Sen. Patrick Leahy says he regrets leaking a Senate Intelligence Committee draft staff report, the panel's vice chairman says Leahy's resignation from the committee should be a warning against similar disclosures.

He was just 'angry at the world'

Judge, two others killed in Florida courtroom rampage

PORT ST. JOE, Fla. (AP) — A man charged with fatally shooting a judge and two other people during a courtroom rampage had written numerous letters to newspapers that showed he was "angry at the world," an editor says.

Clyde Melvin, who authorities said opened fire with two guns Tuesday during a court conference about alimony payments, had written in his letters about "warmongers in Washington," and Zionist and communist conspiracies.

The 62-year-old security guard from Appalachicola also shot his ex-wife, Eleanor Inez Huckleba, whom he accused of infidelity, before he was shot by a sheriff, authorities said.

Melvin was treated at Gulf Pines Hospital and was ordered held without bail at the Gulf County Jail on the count of murder in the slayings of Ms. Huckleba's lawyer, his ex-wife's sister and Circuit Judge Wilson Lamar Bailey, 64.

Ms. Huckleba, 58, was in stable condition with a head wound described as minor by State Attorney James Appelman.

The shootings began in Bailey's conference room. Appelman said Melvin, a 30-year employee of St. Joe Forests Products' paper mill, fired seven or eight shots from two handguns, first killing Ms. Huckleba's attorney, Thomas E. Ingles, 43, of Panama City.

Melvin may have tried to disarm Melvin in the conference room, authorities said.

Melvin then chased down the judge and killed him with a blast through a bathroom door; gunned down Ms. Huckleba's sister, Peggy White Paulk, 35, of Sumatra, on a stairway, and shot his wife as she fled to a roof, authorities said.

"It was horrific," said Sheriff Al Harrison, who ended the rampage by shooting Melvin on the roof. He said he found Melvin and his former wife, both shot, bleeding and arguing.

"I've showed you for running around on me," the sheriff quoted Melvin as saying. The sheriff said Ms. Huckleba responded, "I've never run around on you in my life."

Authorities said Melvin had never been in trouble with the law. He was a grandfather of two, said Public Defender Virgil Q. Mayo, who was assigned to represent Melvin. "And whether you call that temporary insanity, that's up to the experts in the field."

The Melvins, who were divorced in November, were in court for a hearing on a complaint that he was behind on his $356-a-month alimony payments. Authorities said.

Rock 'n' roll piracy stops with arrests, boat seizure

LONG BEACH, N.Y. (AP) — It lasted less than a week, but a rock 'n' roll radio station that thumbed its nose at the FCC from a rusty tin shack in Long Beach, N.Y., was shut out of the air for good.

The end of Radio New York International came after five days on the air during which its AM signal, broadcast as far as Michigan, Canada and Florida. The unlicensed station also broadcast in FM and by long- and short-wave radio.

The Coast Guard, which delivered a warning from the Federal Communications Commission on Saturday, boarded the vessel at 5 a.m. Tuesday and arrested three men, later freeing one who was a journalist, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Matthew Fishbein.

The remaining two were charged with operating a station aboard a ship outside the United States and conspiring to impede the functions of the FCC. The charges carry up to five years in prison and $250,000 in fines.

Alan Weiner, 34, of Monticello, Maine, and Ivan Rothstein, 25, of New York, were released on their own recognizance after their arraignment in federal court.

"It's not going to cause me to give up, but obviously this is a major setback," said Randi Steele, operations manager for the pirate station.

The station was the product of two years' planning by about 20 radio enthusiasts, and was operated to protest FCC regulations as an alternative to New York City's rock stations, Steele said.

Steele had said the 200-foot boat, flying the Honduran flag, was not subject to FCC jurisdiction because it was a mile outside the United States' three-mile territorial limit, off Long Island.

Before their release, Weiner and Rothstein promised Magistrate John Caden they would no longer broadcast without FCC permission.

"We are looking for assurances they will not continue to operate," Fishbein said beforehand. "That's more important than the prosecution of these two individuals."

But, he added, "These people have thrown down the gauntlet and challenged the FCC's authority. I want the public to be aware that the FCC has the power to enforce these regulations and the intention to do so."

CLYDE MELVIN IN COURT held in fatal shootings

Authorities said Melvin had never been in trouble with the law. He was a grandfather of two, said Public Defender Virgil Q. Mayo, who was assigned to represent Melvin. "And whether you call that temporary insanity, that's up to the experts in the field."

Chernobyl officials sent to labor camp

CHERNOBYL, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Six former officials and technicians at the Chernobyl power plant were charged under Article 220 of the Ukrainian criminal code with violations of security measures in enterprises where explosions may result.

That charge carries a maximum 10-year prison sentence to ensure safety at their installations.

Chernobyl, 11 miles south of the power station, remains evacuated.

Also accused were Yuri A. Laushkin, a senior engineer and atomic energy inspector at reactor No. 4, shift director Boris V. Rogozhkin, and the chief of reactor No. 4, Alexander P. Kovalevko.

All the defendants but Laushkin were charged under Article 220 of the Ukrainian criminal code with violations of security measures in enterprises where explosions may result.

Harrison said he saw Melvin shoot his former wife. The sheriff said he then fired two shots and yelled at Melvin to drop his gun, and fired when Melvin turned and aimed at him.

The courthouse in this city of about 4,000 on the Gulf of Mexico 125 miles southwest of Tallahassee has no metal detector at the entrance, Appelman said.

Melvin had a permit to carry a gun during working hours, according to St. Joe personnel director John Howard, who said that Melvin's work record was good and that he had never shown any violent behavior.

He was "not violent, just kind of different — the kind of person who always has an opinion," said Shirley Ramsey, a typesetter at the local weekly newspaper, The Star.

Conspiracies and criticism of the U.S. government and Israel were common themes of Melvin's letters to The Panama City News-Herald.

"The warmongers in Washington claim that all this terrorism has (Moammar) Gadhafi's fingerprints all over it," Melvin wrote in a letter published Feb. 23, 1986. "But they haven't proven anything."

"He was kind of on the fringe area," said Bill Mansfield, editorial page editor of the Tallahassee Democrat, where Melvin also sent letters.

Mansfield said Melvin called Franklin D. Roosevelt "a communist traitor" and blamed criticism of President Reagan's visit to West Germany's Bitburg cemetery on the "Zionist press."

"They were kind of confused," Mansfield said. "He put a lot of things together, but he obviously was angry at the world."

Bailey, a grandfather of two who had earlier announced plans to retire next July was remembered by townspeople as a firm but fair jurist with a ready smile.

"He was like an Andy of Mayberry," said bookkeeper Elma Adams, a business associate of Bailey's, referring to the folksy sheriff in television's "The Andy Griffith Show." "His eyes actually sparkled when he smiled at you."

Implement suggestions in Coventry

Thompson Associates of Manchester has made some recommendations to the Coventry Town Council for restructuring its building inspection and sanitary inspection procedures. The council would do well to implement them as soon as practical to eliminate the backlog of building inspection work.

Specifically, the Thompson firm recommended staffing the building inspection department with an inspector and an assistant inspector. He also recommended removing from the department the responsibilities for sanitary inspections of wells and septic systems and turning them over to a sanitarian.

The firm recommended changes in office procedure that should be easy to carry out. But what the council needs to concern itself about most is the observation by Thompson that its study showed morale in the department was poor and that "Articles about problems within the department were posted on the door and in the office. We were concerned we were becoming involved in personnel problems."

Between the lines of that report is an implication that a problem more subtle than structure and procedure lies beneath the ongoing troubles over the building inspection workload. Frank Conti, retired chief building inspector for Manchester, has taken over the operation of the department temporarily. Town Manager Harold Hodge says that since Conti came on the scene, the number of inspections has increased from about 15 a week to 50 a week.

Conti obviously has a great deal of experience and expertise. But the real reason for his apparent success may be that he is not affected by whatever internal tensions have aggravated the building inspection problems. When the departmental changes have been made and Coventry returns to permanent personnel in the department, the council should also do whatever is necessary to see that internal problems do not interfere with the vital work that has to be done.

"Hi, there! They tell me you're shallow and superficial. SO am I!"

The first major test of the open primary

No one in all of Connecticut was more riveted on last week's Republican primary in the 4th Congressional District than Democratic State Chairman John Dronoy of West Hartford. Dronoy wasn't biting his nails over who was winning, though he was curious, of course, in who his candidate would be facing in the special election Aug. 18. The information Dronoy wanted was how many unaffiliated voters were taking part in this, their first opportunity on such a scale to accept the GOP invitation to join in a party primary.

So while everyone else was preoccupied with the returns on the Democratic primary as they came in by phone, Dronoy instructed Toni Robinson of Enfield, his administrative aide at party headquarters in Hartford, to canvass the registrars of voters in the Fourth's nine towns the next day. Dronoy, like most ranking Democrats, thinks that opening primaries is a lousy idea — one that can damage the two-party system. Republicans embraced the open primary a couple of years ago at the prodding of U.S. Sen. Lowell Weicker of Greenwich and they were upheld, legally, by the U.S. Supreme Court. Dronoy and other wheels in his party have been taking a lot of heat ever since to have the Democratic party go along with a similar change in its rules.

THE FIRST MAJOR TEST of the open primary was in the Republican primary last week. Dronoy, suspecting that it wouldn't amount to much, could not wait until results of that aspect were in. On the basis of the few scores available at this writing, Dronoy had reason to glory in what appeared to be a Republican bomb. In Westport, only 8 percent of the unaffiliated voters bothered to

Little boys fight big sister

By Evans Witt

WASHINGTON — The fight over who will sponsor presidential debates in 1988 sounds a bit like a children's spat. The little boys say it's just that big sister doesn't have to do their homework anymore. Big sister retorts it is just "bully talk" from the boys as they try to steal her special project.

But this doesn't involve children. It's the League of Women Voters defending its position during the last three elections as sponsors of the debates against the national parties, the television networks and assorted others who say they will put on debates this time around.

AS DEMOCRATIC National Committee Chairman Paul Kirk talked about putting the dates and the candidates together, he said the parties have grown up and surpassed the league. He said it is like "a little boy whose older sister did his homework for some time. It doesn't mean that that can go on forever. At some point, we've got to take up our own responsibilities."

But league president Nancy M. Neuman called that patronizing. "It sort of sounds like bully talk." The league and the parties have been looking for a way for both to play in the general election debates. But those discussions failed, and now the league says there was never any question of joint sponsorship.

"The integrity of league sponsorship is something we hold dear," league executive director Grant Thompson said. "And the parties' gracious invitation for the league to help out was turned down."

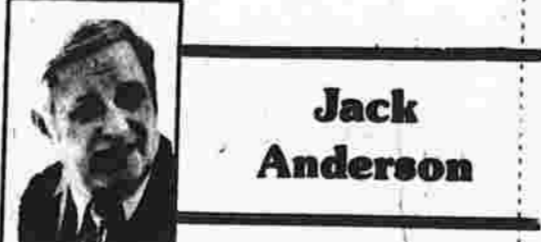

IN ADDITION to the battle to keep its role in the general election, the league is fighting the war on another front — trying to retain a role in sponsoring primary debates among the presidential candidates.

THE LEAGUE maintains publicly that this surge in debates won't have any impact on their plans. But privately, league officials are angry, particularly at CBS. CBS scheduled its debates for March 3-4, just before the league's planned debates on March 5-6.

AS FOR THE FEEBLE TURNOUT of independents in the 4th District Republican primary last week, Dronoy said, "I wonder what Weicker's excuse will be this time."

Quite apart from the unaffiliated voter issue, John Dronoy has another matter on his mind these days that also addresses the Democratic future: The party's choice to run for president next year. And while the chairman tries to remain neutral, he is at least a closet admirer of Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore.

How Reagan spilled the Iran beans

WASHINGTON — Adm. John Poindexter, President Reagan's former national security adviser, testified last week that he was "very nervous" and even "alarmed" when he learned that Reagan had confidentially confirmed the existence of the secret Iran initiative for us more than a year ago.

Poindexter's first admission came during a questioning by Rep. James Courter, R-N.J. The 45-year-old former prosecutor and Peace Corps volunteer, now in his fifth term, has become an influential member of the Iran-contra committee and the House as a whole.

WITH A FLOURISH, Courter then displayed the transcript and read excerpts from our tape-recorded interview, which took place in the Oval Office on Feb. 24, 1986. Courter called the date "quite significant" — it is between the first two shipments (of weapons directly) from the United States to Iran.

AS DEMOCRATIC National Committee Chairman Paul Kirk talked about putting the dates and the candidates together, he said the parties have grown up and surpassed the league. He said it is like "a little boy whose older sister did his homework for some time. It doesn't mean that that can go on forever. At some point, we've got to take up our own responsibilities."

Inouye thinks about life after hearings are over

By Lawrence L. Knutson
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Iran-Contra hearings are drawing to a close after 11 weeks in the national spotlight, and Sen. Daniel K. Inouye says he may be facing a period of unsettling decompression.

One day soon there will be no further witnesses, no wrangling lawyers, no more questions, no more answers and no more fuzzy memories with which to contend. It will be over.

"Then I think that for a moment there'll be a period of withdrawal," the Hawaii Democrat said Tuesday, musing about it all from his perspective as chairman of the Senate Iran-Contra investigating committee.

"We'll come to work and there will be no one trailing us, he said, pointing at the reporters surrounding him. "There will be no TV lights. No interviews."

"And I think in the beginning we are going to miss it, to be honest, even as much as we crave our privacy."

"But I don't think the withdrawal will be too long," he said. "It will take about 24 hours, but then I'll be back in appropriations hearings and it will all become history."

Inouye was a member of the Senate Watergate committee and he said he believes the Iran-Contra hearings will have a similar half-life. Vivid at first, then only a receding memory.

On the 10th anniversary of Watergate, Inouye said, people called up and told him: "This is the 10th anniversary of Watergate. Got any words of wisdom?"

"I said, 'No,'" the senator recalled, and grinned. "Ten years from now someone will call up and ask the same thing about these hearings," Inouye said.

Still grinning, he added, "I'll take a lead from Brendan Sullivan," the lawyer for Lt. Col. Oliver L. North. "I'll tell them, 'Why don't you get off my back.'"

Sullivan demanded that committee lawyers questioning his client "get off his back."

Inouye commented after a day spent in questioning Attorney General Edwin Meese III about the investigation Meese conducted late last year that uncovered a memo from North outlining plans to divert the proceeds of secret arms sales to Iran to the Contras rebels battling Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

North's six days of testimony gripped the nation and crowned the most and impassioned Marine officer as "an American hero."

Inouye said that if letters, telephone calls and telegrams are any gauge, some of the glitter may be wearing off.

He said thousands of phone calls to his Senate office ran five-to-one in North's favor in the first days of his testimony but then switched to about five-to-one against.

And he said that in recent days the positions of people coming to the House and Senate panels have been "about 60-40 in favor of the committees."

On North's last day of testimony, Inouye said those committees had participated in the creation of an American hero.

He also said he suspected North would find the status of a hero to be a heavy burden.

"If it weren't for the hearings, Oliver North would be a relative unknown," Inouye said. "So, therefore, it would be logical to say that we participated in the hero-making process."

"As far as the burdens of a hero, it's like any person who lives in a gold fish bowl: It's not easy to smile when you don't want to, dress when you don't want to, contain your anger when you're angry."

"He will have to watch what he says, because he's going to be quoted from now on," Inouye said. "It's not an easy life," he said. "It's sometimes very difficult to behave. Believe me."

"And I think most of us love our privacy. I know I do."

"Then, beginning to chuckle, he ended with a thought about his own life. "I would love to go barefoot and romp around on the beach."

"But you people would be after me. 'You'd say, 'Look at him, he's not working.'"

Reagan praises cowboy's spirit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan eulogized the late Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige today as the architect of his administration's trade policy and a straight-talking and honest cowboy who "embodied the best of the American spirit."

"The day I called Mac Baldrige to ask him to join the Cabinet, I was told I'd have to call back because he was out on his horse. ... right then, I knew he was the man I wanted," Reagan said at the memorial service for Baldrige at Washington's National Cathedral.

The president, accompanied by his wife Nancy, praised Baldrige as a successful businessman who never forgot his early days roping calves.

"He treated everyone with the same courtesy and respect, from his driver to the president," Reagan said. "Despite his many remarkable successes, worldly success was not the way he measured people. ... honesty, courage, industry and humility, these were his yardsticks."

The 64-year-old Baldrige, whose passion for rodeo was a colorful sidelight to his successful business and political careers, died Saturday of injuries suffered when his horse reared and fell on him as he was practicing for a rodeo steering roping contest at a Northern California ranch.

Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., an ordained Episcopal priest, conducted the service at the request of Baldrige's wife, Midge Baldrige.

The president noted that Baldrige had campaigned to get government bureaucrats to write in plain English.

"The thing he liked about cowboys was that they didn't talk unless they had something to say, and when they said something, they meant it," Reagan said. "To him, simple language did not mark a simple mind, but a strong and fearless one."

Reagan, the only speaker at the 36-minute ceremony, said he could always count on Baldrige to give him "the truth as he saw it, no matter how unpleasant or unpopular."

"There were times when the Cabinet would come down on an issue I'd be on the short end. But I knew if he believed something that others didn't, he wouldn't rein himself in and follow the herd, he would step forward and be clear," Reagan said.

The president lauded Baldrige for forging his administration's international economic policy during its early years, and shaping its East-West trade relationships, as well as securing solid trade ties with China.

He said Baldrige was the quintessential American cowboy — "in his directness, in his honesty, in his independence, in his disregard for rank, in his courage, he embodied the best of the American spirit."

Reagan said it was appropriate that Baldrige had been selected for the Cowboy Hall of Fame. "He belonged there, it was in his blood, it was in his heart and soul," Reagan said.

In addition to the president and his wife, mourners included Vice President George Bush and his wife Barbara, close family friends, Cabinet members, officials from the diplomatic corps and members of Congress.

Many of Baldrige's cowboy friends, with whom he would often compete in weekend roping contests, served as official speakers.

Following the ceremony, Reagan and Bush and their wives offered their condolences to members of the Baldrige family, seated in the front row at the cathedral.

Baldrige, a former rodeo champion who was installed in the Cowboy Hall of Fame in 1984, died 2½ hours after the freak accident when doctors were unable to stop internal bleeding during emergency surgery.

White House officials have said Reagan will make no decision on a replacement for Baldrige until sometime after funeral services, which are scheduled for 11 a.m. Thursday at North Congregational Church in Woodbury, Conn.

United States to protect U.S. ships if Kuwait won't help protect the American naval escorts.

The Bridgeton hit the mine about 120 miles south of Kuwait, in an area where no mines had previously been placed. Although no country has formally claimed responsibility, U.S. officials believe it was set by Iran.

Iran, shortly after the Bridgeton was struck, said the attack was a warning to the United States to cease its operations in the Persian Gulf, adding the mine had been planted by "invisible hands."

At the Pentagon, spokesman Robert Sims said the United States was convinced the mine was laid shortly before the convoy arrived and he said news reports about the convoy's movement may have contributed to the success of the mine-sowing efforts.

"The assumption is that the mine — that location, a heavily trafficked ship channel — might have been placed shortly before the ship came through," Sims said.

Pitching will still be a key to AL race

Willie Wilson of the Royals gets under New York third baseman Mike Pagliarulo safely on a Jim Eisenreich fly out to right field in the third inning Tuesday night at Yankee Stadium. The Yanks won, 2-1.

By Ben Walker The Associated Press

In a division where hitting dominates, veteran Rick Rhoden and rookie Jeff Robinson put pitching into the American League East race.

Rhoden scattered eight hits Tuesday night and led the New York Yankees past the Kansas City Royals 2-1.

"If you're a good pitcher, you win games like that," said Rhoden, 15-6. Robinson threw a five-hitter as the Detroit Tigers beat the Chicago White Sox 3-1 for their fifth straight victory.

"I've been getting the reputation as a five-inning pitcher and that spurred me on a little," Robinson said. Robinson, 7-4, struck out 10 in his first major-league complete game.

The Yankees remained a half-game ahead of Detroit in the AL East, while Toronto beat Boston 5-4 and stayed one game behind New York.

In other games, Seattle defeated Minnesota 6-1, California dented Oakland 8-2, Milwaukee beat Texas 9-2 and Cleveland got past Baltimore 4-3 in 10 innings.

Rhoden pitched his first complete game at Yankee Stadium. He struck out three, walked two and retired the last nine batters.

"Every time I go out to pitch, I don't worry about how many runs our team scores. I worry about the other team," he said. "I figure if I pitch a good game we have a chance to win," he said.

AL Roundup

Tigers 3, White Sox 1
In Detroit, Darrell Evans' 21st home run helped Robinson defeat Chicago. The Tigers, who have won 10 of their last 12 games, beat the White Sox despite a three-hitter by Bill Loo 3-4.

Angels 9, Athletics 2
Bill Buckner went 3-for-5 in his California debut and Mike Witt pitched a strong six-hitter to lead the Angels in Oakland.

Mariners 6, Twins 1
Mike Morgan pitched a four-hitter, Gary Matthews hit a two-run homer and Phil Bradley went 4-for-4 as Seattle beat Minnesota.

Yankees 2, Royals 1
Jan Bonilla led off New York's third with a single, moved up on Wayne Tolleson's sacrifice and took third on Ward's single. With Mattingly at the plate, Gubicza threw a wild pitch and Bonilla scored for a 2-1 lead.

"When you have (Don) Mattingly up there, he's a great RBI man and I wanted to go after him as hard as I could," said Gubicza, 8-10. Gubicza then struck out Mattingly and Winfield.

Brewers 9, Rangers 2
Paul Molitor and Robin Yount homered as Milwaukee won at Texas.

Indians 4, Orioles 3
Pat Tabler singled home the winning run in the 10th inning to lift Cleveland over Baltimore.

Red Sox bullpen blows another one
TORONTO (AP) — Reliever Tom Henke may have lost a hot bat, but his bullpen has recorded saves in his last five outings and 10 of his last 11, in addition to holding opponents scoreless in 11 of his last 14 outings.

Henke, who along with some teammates lost a charity gourmet challenge Tuesday to a crew from the CFL's Toronto Argonauts, combined Tuesday night with relievers Mark Eichhorn and Jeff Musselman to serve up 2.3 innings of shutout relief as the Blue Jays edged the Red Sox 5-4.

The victory, before 38,122 fans at Exhibition Stadium, was the Jays' third straight and kept them a half-game behind Detroit and one behind New York in the American League East.

While the relief bullpen blanketed Boston, Jesse Barfield provided the game-winning hit with an RBI single with two outs in the eighth inning.

"Their bullpen did a job for them and ours didn't come through," Red Sox Manager John McNamara said.

Tied 4-4 in the eighth, Boston reliever Joe Samitro walked Lloyd Moseby to open the inning. Pinch-hitter Charlie Moore then sacrificed Moseby to second.

George Bell received an intentional walk before pinch-hitter Juan Beniquez struck out, setting the stage for Barfield's single to left.

Musselman, 9-4, who gave up one hit in 1 1/3 innings, earned the victory for the second night in a row.

Henke, who needed just five pitches to get Boston in the eighth, collected his 23rd save and second in as many nights.

With the exception of Barfield's RBI single in the eighth, all the scoring all came in the first three innings.

"But I created the problem by walking the batter," Samitro said. "It was my fault."

Boston's Wes Gardner, making his first major-league start, yielded four runs on five hits in seven innings.

With the exception of Barfield's RBI single in the eighth, all the scoring all came in the first three innings.

He then declared no champion in the league for this year. "The coaches knew our policy but refused to have a playoff game because they didn't agree with us," he said.

The coaches' action could be called admirable in that they saw it one way and wanted to reward the players on both teams. But the tactics employed to prevent a playoff game weren't proper.

"They're telling us we're disappointing 18 kids," Silver said. "But this is a learning process. Not everyone is a champion," he added.

There are no co-champs in the Little League tournament if two teams are all tied up. A winner is not a co-champ.

One solution, which we recommended years ago, would be to stop worrying about declaring champs. Just let the kids play.

Carl Silver, Manchester's assistant rec director who is charge of the soccer program, said policy is established before the season. "We met with the coach 3-1 with his third-inning homer. He is batting .394 with two homers and eight RBI in nine games since being acquired in a trade with the Chicago Cubs. Bradley scored two runs and drove in two.

Molitor's three-run homer, his seventh, gave the Brewers a 5-1 lead in the fifth. Yount hit a two-run homer, his 14th, in the seventh. Yount also had an RBI single.

Chris Bosio, 7-2, won his fourth straight decision. He allowed one run on five hits in six innings and Mark Clear got his fourth save.

Jose Guzman, 8-10, took the loss as the Rangers had their four-game winning streak halted.

Pat Tabler singled home the winning run in the 10th inning to lift Cleveland over Baltimore.

Tommy Hainz singled with two outs in the 10th, stole second base and scored on Tabler's hit off Tom Nidefferer, 2-3. The Indians tied it in the ninth against Nidefferer on Brock Jacoby's triple and a sacrifice fly by Carmen Castillo.

Sammy Stewart, 3-1, pitched two innings for the victory. Baltimore had seven straight on the road.

Castillo hit a solo homer in the second and Jim Dwyer tied it in the home run in the third. Cal Ripken Jr. hit a two-run homer, his 19th, in the fifth to put Baltimore ahead 3-2.

Davies — for real — wins Open

By Tom Canovan The Associated Press

EDISON TOWNSHIP, N.J. — Long before winning the U.S. Women's Open, Laura Davies practiced doing just that.

It was back in England with her brother, Tony, the man who caddied for her Tuesday when Davies won a three-way playoff to become the fourth foreigner to win the American golf championship.

"As kids we used to simulate (championship) conditions," Davies, 25, said. "I was always JoAnne Carner or Nancy Lopez standing on the 18th green putting to win the U.S. Women's Open."

Tuesday, the dream came true as Davies rolled in three long birdie putts en route to a 1-under-par 71 in the 18th hole.

"When I looked over the putt at 18 I said to myself, 'My God, it's actually happening,'" said Davies, who finished two shots ahead of Okamoto and three in front of Carner. "To walk up it was a marvelous feeling. It's everything I've dreamed of. I hope it happens again, but nothing will beat the first time."

The victory continued a recent British streak in Open tournaments. Nick Faldo won the British Open on July 19 and Neil Coles won the British Senior Open on Sunday. Davies defended her British Open title this weekend.

The 42nd Women's Open began last Thursday, was extended an extra day when Sunday's round was rained out and was forecast into the playoff when the 48-year-old Carner bogeyed the 18th hole.

Okamoto and Carner finished at 3-under-par 65, the only competitors in the field of 153 to break par over 72 holes at the 6,294-yard Plainfield Country Club course.

"I would have to say my putting was it for me this week," Davies said. "This week has been my best for holding out putts."

The three parred the first three holes then Davies hit a 9-iron within 20 feet and sank the putt to take the lead at No. 4 and she never trailed although Carner managed to tie when Davies bogeyed the par-4 10th hole.

When Carner, who had problems with her driver all day, bogeyed the

'Ugly Americans' weren't in Civic Center audience

To cheer or not to cheer, that is the question. There was plenty of flag waving — both ways — and there were outbursts of screams from the fans who gathered at the Hartford Civic Center last weekend to take in the Davis Cup tennis match between the U.S. and West Germany.

That's not the way it happens in Davis Cup matches, and it certainly wasn't the way it was at the Civic Center. The crowd, urged on by the gyrations of John McEnroe and Tim Mayotte, broke into applause after any and all service faults by Eric Jelen and Boris Becker, the 19-year-old strawberry-blond boy wonder and two-time Wimbledon men's champion.

Becker, for one, thought the fans had exceeded the limit of good taste. "I don't think the Americans should complain about South America (ever again). I don't think they're much better here," he said after outlasting Mayotte in the fifth and final set.

Becker also found fault with his counterparts across the net. "I feel sorry for the players. Their standing and waving the flag disappointed me. They know what it's like (out on the court)," he remarked.

The ugly American? Not if you look at the total picture. The fans at the Civic Center did get noisy between points, but they were silent when it came time for a second serve by a West German. And there were West Germans in the stands who waved their colors, too. And there were just plain old tennis fans who wanted to see good tennis. There was one lady in Section 107 who cheered for both Mayotte and Becker.

"Come on, Boris," came from her lips repeatedly. Pretty ugly, isn't it?

Boris should get a taste of South American hospitality first-hand. He needs to play under a death threat — as the Americans did in Mexico — and under tight security where machine guns are openly on display. He should have been in Anuncion, Paraguay, where the host country's team doctor had coughing fits every time a U.S. player was about to serve.

Thoughts Aplenty

cheering for the U.S. side, not openly anyway. That would have suicidal. And flag waving? Surely you jest, Boris. What the U.S. faced in March in Anuncion was a 100 percent hate the U.S. crowd which didn't quiet down at any time during the three days of the Davis Cup match.

The Civic Center crowd did get into the match. But why the heck were they doing so in the spirit of the Davis Cup. Nationalism plays a part.

The ugly American? Hardly. Boris, you're out of bounds on that point.

No co-champions
Contrary to reports from other sources, there are no co-champions in the middle-aged 8-9 age bracket league at Kennedy Road. If you call the Manchester Recreation Department and ask for the names of the "co-champs," the response will be, "There weren't any, not in that league."

That's because two coaches decided to do an Oliver North imitation and do what they wanted to do. They didn't adhere to the policies set by those above them. While there are those who are trying to make North out of these coaches be condoned.

If they pulled such a stunt at their places of employment, they'd probably get fired.

Carl Silver, Manchester's assistant rec director who is charge of the soccer program, said policy is established before the season. "We met with the coaches at the beginning of the year and explained our policy. And our policy is to always have a playoff (in case of a tie) at the end, no matter what the sport is," he said.

Two midget soccer teams tied for the top spot, and that's when the fun began. "We were calling the kids and telling them there was a playoff, and they (the coaches) were calling them at the same time telling them there wasn't," Silver said.

Silver tried to schedule the game twice, and was foiled twice.

He then declared no champion in the league for this year. "The coaches knew our policy but refused to have a playoff game because they didn't agree with us," he said.

The coaches' action could be called admirable in that they saw it one way and wanted to reward the players on both teams. But the tactics employed to prevent a playoff game weren't proper.

Montana looks fully recovered

By The Associated Press

Quarterback Joe Montana, who appears fully recovered from last season's injuries, will start for the San Francisco 49ers in their Aug. 8 preseason opener against Kansas City, Coach Bill Walsh says.

Montana, whose last pass of the 1986 season was intercepted by New York Giants linebacker Lawrence Taylor in a 48-3 playoff victory over the 49ers, appears to have been completely recovered from the concussion he suffered in that game and from his back surgery last fall. Montana said he feels more fit this year after undergoing a rigorous rehabilitation program.

"I heard that they wanted me to gain about 10 pounds and I've only gained two or three," Montana, who weighed in at 193 pounds, said Tuesday. "But I'm definitely stronger."

Montana, 31, said he hopes to play for another five years before he gives way to newly acquired Steve Young. Montana said Young is "a great addition to the ballclub" but is "a backup now."

Happy camper

The sometimes battered Steve Grogan still loves training camp, even after 12 years.

"It can get to be a little boring to be real honest with you," the New England Patriots quarterback said. "But I was thinking to myself as I was standing out there, hearing the counts and watching the guys go through it, how, after all these years, I still love it. That's what it's all about, being out there and being a part of it."

Grogan, coming off elbow surgery for tendonitis in his throwing arm, didn't have to report until Friday, but is in camp this week along with the rookies and free

Sports In Brief

Clemens AL player of the week

NEW YORK — Roger Clemens of the Boston Red Sox, who pitched a pair of complete-game victories last week, was named American League Player of the Week. The hard-throwing right-hander, the league's Most Valuable Player and Cy Young Award winner in 1986, posted one shutout and did not allow an earned run in 18 innings.

Hall of Famer Jackson dies

WALDO, Ark. — Travis Jackson, who played shortstop on John McGraw's great New York Giants teams of the 1920s and 1930s and was elected to the Baseball Hall of Fame in 1982 by the Veterans Committee, died at his home. Jackson, 84, played for the Giants from 1922 through 1936 and compiled a lifetime batting average of .291. He was also an excellent defensive player with a strong throwing arm. He hit .339 in 1930, one of six years he averaged more than .300. He led National League shortstops in fielding percentage with .970 in 1931.

Louganis has top qualifying score

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. — Greg Louganis weathered the warm temperatures and long waits to turn in the top qualifying score in the 3-meter springboard competition of the U.S. Diving Outdoor Championship. Cokey Smith, 22, of Ann Arbor, Mich., finished first in the women's 10-meter platform competition with a score of 356.49.

Connors, Arias gain third round

WASHINGTON — Third-seeded Jimmy Connors routed Kelly Jones 6-3, 6-4 and No. 7 seed Jimmy Arias eliminated Michael Kures 7-5, 6-2 to move into the third round of the $232,000 D.C. Tennis Classic.

Todd Witken, seeded 12th, routed Ken Flach in straight sets while Bill Scanlon continued a string of early upsets by ousting 11th-seeded Jaime Yzaaga in first round play.

Cade draws two-year sentence

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Both the prosecutor and the victim have decreed the two-year prison term that Green Bay Packers defensive back Mossy Cade received for sexual assault. "What is two years out of a 24-year-old's life," said the woman Cade was accused of attacking. "I have to live with this the rest of my life."

In addition to the prison term handed down Tuesday by Judge Richard Greenwood, Cade was fined $15,000 on the two counts of second-degree sexual assault.

Cade, who is 25, will be eligible for parole in six months and will be taken to the Dodge County reception center before being assigned to a prison institution. Prosecutor Royce Finne called the sentence "woefully inadequate."

"With that sentence, he'll probably be sent to some camp," Finne said. "He won't do any hard time."

Kelley's name is added to sports hall of fame

By Earl Yost Sports Editor Emeritus

Tom Kelley

Twenty-four years ago in Yankee Stadium, Tom Kelley made his first pitching start for the Cleveland Indians and out-dueled veteran Whitey Ford in gaining a 4-3 decision against the New York Yankees.

That was, without question, one of the highlights of Kelley's 14 years in professional baseball, five years, plus, which were spent in the major leagues with the Indians and Atlanta Braves.

The 43-year-old right-handed hurler with the one-time blazing fastball was today announced as one of five local figures scheduled to be inducted into the Manchester Sports Hall of Fame. The annual dinner is scheduled Friday night, September 25, at the Army and Navy Club.

Kelley thus joins previously announced Jim O'Leary and Maurice Corrent as honorees at the eighth annual program.

To say Kelley's career in pro baseball was like an elevator would be an understatement. The ups and downs included a pair of stints in the big leagues, all or parts of four seasons with Cleveland, and two seasons, plus, with the Braves in the National League.

Kelley's name appeared in boxscores of no less than nine leagues in the United States — American, National, Midwest, Eastern, Pacific Coast, Western, Carolina, Texas and International — plus winter stints in Venezuela and Puerto Rico.

San Diego Chargers Coach Al Saunders said Tuesday that defensive end Leslie O'Neal, who led the team in tackles and sacks last year, will be out for the year after undergoing arthroscopic surgery last week to remove scar tissue from his injured right knee.

O'Neal, the NFL defensive rookie of the year in 1986, had 81 tackles and 12½ sacks when he suffered torn knee ligaments in a game against Indianapolis last Nov. 30.

Avoiding the Dotted Line
Missing from the Atlanta Falcons' camp is No. 1 draft pick Chris Miller, a quarterback from Oregon, who is holding out for a $2.35 million contract.

Leigh Steinberg, agent for holdout quarterback Ken O'Brien, discussed contract talks with the New York Jets. "There has been a series of discussions with (Jets Secretary-Treasurer) Steve Gutman through the weekend," Steinberg said. "Both sides are attempting to correct the situation as quickly as possible."

Steinberg said the Jets made a new offer Monday, but that it did not represent a significant shift from the $750,000, one-year contract they proposed last Thursday.

Cornerback Rod Woodson of Purdue, the Pittsburgh Steelers' top draft pick, will return to the European track circuit next month if a better contract offer isn't on the table soon, the player's agent, Eugene Parker, said.

Evert, 32, played both as the 1986 women's world team tennis champions opened their defense with a 3-0 victory over Japan.

"I'm glad I played in the doubles," Evert said. "It was a good, respectable day for the American team."

Navratilova and Evert played the singles matches last year in Prague when the U.S. upended the three-time champions from Czechoslovakia in the final. The doubles designation went to Navratilova, the top-ranked player in the world, and Pam Shriver.

Now it appears Evert and Shriver will carry the load for the Americans when the matches become tougher later in the week.

Evert defeated Etsuko Inoue 6-2, 6-4 in the singles after Shriver, playing her first Cup singles match, opened with a 7-6, 6-1 victory over Aiko Kijimuta.

Then, Evert combined with Zina Garrison to defeat the Japanese pair 6-2, 7-5.

"When it comes down to the crunch, I'm sure it will be Pam and I in the double," Evert said. "I hope we can hold our end of it."

Navratilova and Shriver are the top-ranked doubles partnership in the world, followed by the Soviet team of Larissa Savchenko and Svetlana Parkhomenko.

Also advancing to today's second round were France, which will play the U.S. today; England, eighth-seeded; Italy, No. 4; Bulgaria, Indonesia; Spain and fifth-seeded Australia.

Today's matches have added significance for all nations because quarterfinal berths will give those eight countries automatic two-player berths in the 1988 Olympic Games at Seoul.

On Tuesday, France beat Austria 3-0, England downed Chile 3-0, Italy blanked Belgium 3-0, Bulgaria won both singles to beat Greece 2-1, Indonesia defeated Ireland 3-0, Spain shut out Jamaica 3-0 and Australia blanked Denmark 3-0.

Shriver also is looking forward to her partnership with Evert, although Riessen remained uncommitted on the assignment of the doubles team.

Cordero glad chase is over

By Michael Fleeman The Associated Press

OCEANPORT, N.J. — Angel Cordero Jr. captured a place in horse racing history with his 6,000th victory, but the jockey said he was more relieved than excited.

"I'm finally glad it's over with. It's taken a long time," Cordero said Tuesday after riding Lost Kitty to a nose victory in a three-way stretch duel at Monmouth Park.

Cordero, 44, joins Bill Shoemaker, Johnny Longden and Laffit Pincay Jr. as the only jockeys to win 6,000 races. Shoemaker, who is still riding, leads the all-time list with nearly 8,700 victories.

Cordero's victory in the ninth race was his second of the day, both coming in divisions of the $40,000-added Colleen Stakes for 2-year-old fillies. In the seventh race, he rode favorite Blue Jean Baby to an eight-length victory.

But before Tuesday, he had ridden just five winners in his last 54 races. Monday at all six of his mounts Monday at Belmont, including five favorites, he was booed by the crowd.

He was 0-for-3 at Belmont on Sunday, but his bad luck wasn't confined to the track. While eating at a New York restaurant that night, Cordero choked on a baked clam. His dinner companion, Marjorie Clayton, saved him by using the Heimlich maneuver to dislodge the food.

In the winner's circle, Cordero waved his yellow helmet to acknowledge the cheers of the crowd of 8,000. Fans shouted praise in English and Spanish, including "Angel, you're the greatest."

As he posed for photographers, Cordero held up his 14-year-old daughter, Julie, who was wearing a pair of her father's blue racing goggles around her neck.

Cordero had hoped to reach the 6,000-victory plateau last year, but a spill at Aqueduct in March 1986 sidelined him for more than four months. He suffered a broken leg and a lacerated liver, but bounced back to win an 11th straight riding title at Saratoga.

Cordero, whose first victory came at Puerto Rico's El Comandante race track in 1960, has won more than $15 million in purses during his career, second on the all-time list behind Pincay. Shoemaker is third.

He has won three Kentucky Derbys, two Preaknesses and one Belmont.

FRESH & FABULOUS

from New Zealand

GRANNY SMITH APPLE & KIWIFRUIT DESSERTS

Indulge in a fluffy white chocolate kiwifruit mousse, slip into a zesty sorbet or splurge with a spirited apple tart.

Fresh fruit desserts are a great way to round off an elegant dinner party or simple country feast—especially if the ingredients have just ripened. Bursting with flavor, New Zealand Granny Smith apples and New Zealand kiwifruit are two of the freshest fruits available in the summer months, thanks to New Zealand's upside-down growing season.

Available May through August, New Zealand Granny Smith apples add snap to an array of recipes, especially the fabulous desserts pictured here. The elegant Chocolate Apple Roll, a rich and luscious blend of creamy Neufchatel cheese and shredded Granny Smith apples rolled in a layer of chocolatey cake, is a perfect finale for a special gathering.

The alluring tart-sweet flavor of New Zealand kiwifruit can be enjoyed from May to October. Always luscious by itself—simply cut in half and scooped with a spoon, New Zealand kiwifruit blends beautifully into a refreshing sorbet and adds an exotic twist to a fresh fruit Romanoff.

These two decidedly different fruits with distinctive textures and flavors are also rich in nutrition. Alone, one regular-sized apple or two average kiwifruit provide more dietary fiber than two-thirds of a cup of bran flakes. The same two kiwifruit have nearly twice as much vitamin C as an orange and more potassium than a six-inch banana. Both fruits have negligible amounts of sodium.

Designed for today's dessert lover, all recipes can be prepared in advance, without compromising taste for convenience. Storing these down-under fruits is also simple: New Zealand kiwifruit will keep two to three weeks when stored in a plastic bag in the refrigerator; at room temperature, they ripen soft to the touch in three to five days. To obtain optimal freshness, keep New Zealand Granny Smith apples refrigerated in a plastic bag perforated with holes.

The distinctive flavors of fresh New Zealand Granny Smith apples and New Zealand kiwifruit are showcased in an array of luscious desserts.

New Zealand Fruit Tart

The best of summer's fruits from New Zealand come together in this beautiful, yet easy-to-make, tangy-sweet fruit tart.

- 3/4 cup flour
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup plus 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 cup old-fashioned oats
- 1/2 cup fresh lemon juice
- 2 Granny Smith apples, cored and thinly sliced
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 2 teaspoons water
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 2 New Zealand kiwifruit, peeled and sliced
- 1/2 cup fresh raspberries
- 1/3 cup apple jelly

In food processor, combine flour, 1/4 cup sugar, salt and 1/2 cup butter. Process just until evenly mixed. Stir in oats. Pat into 10-inch tart pan. Bake at 400°F, 15 minutes or until lightly browned; cool. In 10-inch skillet, combine remaining 1/2 cup sugar and lemon juice; bring to boil. Stir in apple slices; turn gently to coat evenly. Heat 30 seconds; remove from skillet; place on cookie sheet in single layer to cool quickly. Blend cornstarch with water until smooth. Stir into skillet; cook until thickened. Blend slowly into egg; stir in remaining 2 tablespoons butter and lemon peel. Return to skillet; stir until butter melts and mixture thickens. Remove from skillet; cool to room temperature. Spread lemon mixture in baked tart shell. Arrange apple slices around outer edge of tart shell. Arrange kiwifruit in center of tart with raspberries. Heat apple jelly; drizzle over tart. Refrigerate until serving time. Makes 1 (10-inch) tart, 12 servings.

Fresh Fruit Romanoff

If you like Strawberries Romanoff, you'll love this fresh, bright fruit combination with the creamy fluff of Romanoff sauce.

- 1 cup whipping cream
- 1/2 cup powdered sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup sour cream
- 2 Granny Smith apples
- 1/4 cup orange-flavored liqueur
- 3 New Zealand kiwifruit
- 1/4 watermelon, cut into wedges
- 1/4 fresh pineapple, rind removed and sliced
- 2 nectarines, cut into wedges
- 2 plums, cut into wedges
- 1 cup orange honeydew or cantaloupe melon balls
- 1 cup strawberries, stems removed (optional)
- Sprig fresh mint

Beat whipping cream with powdered sugar and vanilla until stiff. Fold in sour cream; refrigerate until serving time. Core apples and cut into wedges. Drizzle apples with orange-flavored liqueur; set aside. Peel kiwifruit and slice. Prepare remaining fruit. Remove apples from orange-flavored liqueur, reserving liqueur. Arrange fruit on serving platter; drizzle with reserved liqueur. Serve with chilled cream. Garnish with mint. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Cinnamon Apple Granita

Crunchy, icy bits of tart-fresh Granny Smith apples, lightly flavored with cinnamon, make a cool, refreshing dessert.

- 1 cup water
- 1 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 cinnamon stick
- 2 Granny Smith apples
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

In small saucepan, combine water, sugar and cinnamon stick. Bring to boil; boil 5 minutes; cool. Core apples and place in food processor bowl with metal blade and sprinkle with lemon juice. Process until finely chopped. Remove cinnamon stick from water. Stir water-sugar mixture into apples with vanilla. Pour into 8-inch metal pan. Cover with foil and place in freezer. Freeze firm. Remove from freezer and let stand 20 to 30 minutes, until slightly softened. Scrape with fork and place in chilled mixing bowl. Beat with mixer until smooth consistency and return to freezer. Scoop to serve. Makes 6 servings.

White Chocolate Kiwifruit Mousse Tart

Delicate, rich and elegantly smooth, this White Chocolate Kiwifruit Mousse rests on a rich shortbread crust, making it a heavenly summer dessert.

- 3/4 cup flour
- 3/4 cup powdered sugar
- 1/2 cup butter
- 1 cup whipping cream
- 1 package (8 oz.) white chocolate or vanilla chips
- 3 New Zealand kiwifruit
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- 3 egg yolks
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- White chocolate bar curls

In food processor, combine flour, 1/2 cup powdered sugar and butter. Process just until evenly mixed. Pat into bottom of 8-inch springform pan. Bake at 400°F, 15 minutes or until lightly browned; cool. Whip cream in food processor using metal blade until very thick, about 1 minute. Transfer cream to large bowl. Place white chocolate chips into food processor bowl; process 15 to 20 seconds or until finely chopped. Peel and slice 2 kiwifruit. Place in small skillet with 1/4 cup water. Boil 5 minutes, turning fruit to cook evenly. In separate saucepan, sprinkle gelatin over remaining 1/4 cup water. Let stand 5 minutes to soften. Heat to dissolve. Pour kiwifruit and water into food processor; blend until chips are melted. Stir in egg yolks, gelatin mixture, remaining 1/4 cup powdered sugar and vanilla; mix well. Fold into whipped cream. Spoon into cooled crust and chill several hours or overnight until firm. Run knife around edge of pan and release mousse from pan. Garnish with remaining kiwifruit and white chocolate curls. Makes 16 servings.

Chocolate Apple Roll

Creamy chocolate apple filling in a chocolate roll that is sure to satisfy the most ardent chocolate lover.

- 1 package (8 oz.) Neufchatel cheese, softened
- 2/3 cup plus 1 tablespoon cocoa powder
- 1/2 cup plus 1 tablespoon powdered sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
- 2 Granny Smith apples
- 1/2 cup whipping cream
- 4 eggs
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons cold coffee
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Chocolate-dipped apple slices

Blend Neufchatel cheese with 1/3 cup cocoa, powdered sugar and cinnamon until smooth. Core and shred apples; press out excess moisture. Stir into cheese mixture. Beat whipping cream until stiff. Fold into apple mixture; chill. In large bowl beat eggs with sugar until thick and light, about 10 minutes. Combine flour, remaining 1/3 cup cocoa, baking powder, soda and salt. Stir into creamed mixture alternately with coffee and vanilla. Line a 10 x 15 x 1-inch jellyroll pan with foil. Lightly grease and flour pan. Spoon batter into pan, smoothing top with a spatula. Bake at 375°F, 20 minutes. Stir together 1 tablespoon each powdered sugar and cocoa; sift over cake and cover with cloth towel. Turn upside-down and remove foil carefully from cake. Roll up jelly-roll fashion in the towel, starting from short side; cool. Unroll cake when cooled and spread with apple filling and re-roll. Dust with additional powdered sugar and cocoa mixture, if desired. Garnish with chocolate dipped-apple slices to serve, if desired.

Kiwifruit Sorbet

Smooth, rich and piquant with the zest of orange, this tart-sweet New Zealand Kiwifruit Sorbet bursts with flavor.

- 6 New Zealand kiwifruit
- 1/2 cup fresh orange juice
- 1/3 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon grated orange peel

Peel kiwifruit and place in food processor bowl with metal blade. Process smooth. Stir in orange juice, sugar and orange peel. Pour into 8-inch metal pan. Cover with foil and place in freezer. Freeze firm. Remove from freezer; let stand 20 to 30 minutes, until slightly softened. Scrape with fork and place in chilled mixing bowl. Beat with mixer until smooth consistency and return to freezer. Scoop to serve. Makes 6 servings.

Blueberry shortcake

- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon finely shredded lemon peel
- 1 cup fresh blueberries
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- Sweetened whipped cream (optional)

In a large mixing bowl stir together the flour, 2 tablespoons sugar and baking powder. Cut in margarine until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. In a small mixing bowl stir together egg, milk and lemon peel. Stir egg mixture into flour mixture just until moistened. Spread half the dough on a greased 8 by 1 1/2-inch round baking pan. Top the dough with the blueberries. Sprinkle blueberries with 1 tablespoon of the sugar. Dot remaining dough over blueberries; sprinkle with remaining sugar. Bake in a 400-degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes or until shortcake is light golden brown. While shortcake is still slightly warm, cut into 6 wedges. Serve warm topped with whipped cream. Sprinkle with additional fresh blueberries, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

Microwave peppers & onion

- 1/2 of a medium green pepper, cut into strips
- 1/2 of a medium sweet red pepper, cut into strips
- 1 small onion, sliced and separated into rings
- 1 tablespoon margarine or butter
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cumin

In a microwave-safe 1-quart casserole combine pepper strips, onion, margarine and cumin. Cook, covered, on 100 percent power (high) 3 to 5 minutes or until vegetables are crisp-tender, stirring once. Serve with beef, pork or poultry. Makes 3 servings. Nutrition information per serving: 52 cal., 1 g pro., 4 g carbo., 4 g fat, 47 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 94 percent vit. C.

Sweet-sour plum salad

- 1/2 cup salad oil
- 1/2 cup vinegar
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon dry sherry
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 8 ounces fresh pea pods or one 8-ounce package frozen pea pods
- 12 fresh plums, pitted and sliced
- 1/2 cup broken walnuts
- Bok choy leaves (optional)

For dressing, in a screw-top jar combine oil, vinegar, soy, sherry and sugar. Cover and shake well. Chill. Remove strings and tips from fresh pea pods. Or, run cold water over frozen pea pods to thaw slightly. In a large bowl combine pea pods, plums and walnuts. Shake dressing well. Add to plum mixture and toss to coat. If desired, serve in bok choy-lined bowl. Makes 6 to 8 servings. Nutrition analysis per serving: 237 cal., 4 g pro., 23 g carbo., 16 g fat, 175 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 26 percent vit. ### Peach glaze pie

- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1/2 teaspoon finely shredded orange peel
- 1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1/2 cup peach nectar
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- 4 cups sliced peeled peaches
- 1 baked 9-inch pie shell
- Whipped cream or whipped dessert topping (optional)

In a small saucepan combine sugar, cornstarch, orange peel and nutmeg. Stir in peach nectar. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture is thickened and bubbly; cook and stir 2 minutes more. Remove from heat; add vanilla. Cool 5 to 10 minutes. Meanwhile, arrange fruit in cooled pastry shell. Pour nectar mixture evenly over fruit. Chill for 2 hours. Dollop with whipped cream, if desired. Makes 8 servings. Nutrition information per serving: 241 cal., 2 g pro., 39 g carbo., 9 g fat, 71 mg sodium.

Kids' homemade soda pop

- 6-ounce can frozen lemonade concentrate, or orange, apple, grape or pineapple juice concentrate, thawed
- Carbonated water

In a medium mixing bowl stir together fruit juice concentrate and 3 juice cans filled with carbonated water. (If using lemonade concentrate, increase carbonated water to 4 cans.) Gently stir until combined. Using a funnel, pour mixture into a 4-cup bottle or jar; seal. Chill up to 8 hours. Makes 4 (8-ounce) servings. Nutrition analysis per serving: 107 cal., 28 g carbo., 1 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 27 percent vit. C.

Sizzling summer chili

- 1 pound boneless pork, cut into 1/2-inch cubes
- 1 small onion, chopped (1/2 cup)
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons cooking oil
- 2 fresh ears of corn
- 1/2-ounce can tomato sauce
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 cup raisins
- 2 fresh Anaheim or 3 fresh serrano chili peppers, seeded and finely chopped
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1/2 teaspoon ground coriander
- 1 small zucchini, halved lengthwise and sliced

In a 10-inch skillet cook pork, onion and garlic in hot oil until pork is brown. Use a sharp knife to cut corn from cob. Add corn, tomato sauce, water, raisins, peppers, salt, cumin and coriander to pork mixture. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Cover; simmer for 30 minutes. Add zucchini; cover and cook about 10 minutes more or until pork is tender. Makes 4 servings.

Nutrition analysis per serving: 311 cal., 21 g pro., 24 g carbo., 16 g fat, 56 mg chol., 780 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 43 percent vit. A, 30 percent vit. C, 49 percent thiamine, 15 percent riboflavin, 27 percent niacin, 12 percent iron, 23 percent phosphorus.

Supermarket Shopper

POP collections hard to value

By Martin Sloane
United Feature Syndicate

DEAR MARTIN: I have collected proof of purchase from the national brands for 10 years. At this time, I have accumulated 20 cartons full of proofs of purchase, one neatly filed and labeled. Now I find my time taken up with other things, and they are no longer of any value to me. I thought my proof-of-purchase collection must have some value to another refunder, so I placed a classified advertisement in the local paper with the words "make me rich." I received several calls but all the callers wanted to know how much I wanted for the collection, and I was at a loss to give them a price.

In the "get" price I can ask for years' worth of work?

SOUTH JERSEY, N.J.
DEAR I.M.: I have been asked to value collections of box tops and labels and other proofs of purchase, and found it no more trouble than it was worth. First, you have to sort out the old proofs of purchase that were never asked for, but that most consumers collect anyway on the chance that the manufacturer might ask for them. Next, you have to sort out the proofs that were asked for at one time, but are no longer required, such as the part of the cheese package with the word "Natural," which is now "100 Percent Natural."

The current proofs of purchase that are left probably make up a small fraction of your present collection, but it is still difficult to set a value on them, unless they are current offers for which these box tops and labels can be used.

My advice is to tell anyone interested, "Just come and look. I will take any reasonable offer." And then, take it.

DEAR MARTIN: When I read a letter in your column from a man in Calumet City, Ill., complaining about coupons, I thought it was a joke. The difference was, I often take a friend shopping with me, and we share expenses. Sure it takes time to clip, sort and file coupons, and then to find them again when I make up my shopping list. But when the cashier hands me a long register tape that is half again as long because of credits for my coupons, I say "hooray for coupons!" ALICE PEREPE, PORTERS CORNERS, N.Y.

Notes & Nibbles

Savor summer specialties
The people at Reynolds Aluminum have put together a booklet of new recipes for summer barbecuing that includes things like Mexican fajitas, potatoes with dill and hot ham and cheese pockets. For your own copy, write to The Reynolds Kitchen, "Savor the Summer," P.O. Box C-32003, Dept. FE-70, Richmond, Va. 23261-2003.

While you're waiting for your copy to arrive, here's a recipe to try.

Szechwan shrimp and chicken kabobs
MARINADE:
2 tablespoons rice wine vinegar
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon chili paste with garlic
1 teaspoon sesame oil
1 teaspoon minced fresh garlic

KABOBS:
1/2 pound jumbo raw shrimp, shells removed, tails on
1/2 pound boneless chicken breast halves, in 1/4-inch cubes
1 red and green sweet pepper, cut in 1/4-inch squares
1/2-ounce can whole water chestnuts
2 green onions, in 3-inch lengths

Combine marinade ingredients in a medium bowl. Mix well. Add shrimp and chicken and toss to coat evenly. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate at least an hour, stirring occasionally. Remove shrimp and chicken from marinade, but reserve the liquid.

On each of four 10-inch skewers, alternate shrimp, chicken, pepper squares, water chestnuts, green onions. Brush with marinade. Place kabobs on grill over medium-hot coals. Grill 8 to 10 minutes, turning and basting occasionally with reserved marinade. Wrap cooked kabobs in aluminum foil to keep warm after grilling. Serves four.

Note: Omit the chili paste with garlic for a milder flavor.

Fabulous finales
Have you got a simply spectacular dessert which uses marshmallow fluff as one of its ingredients? You may submit it to the Kraft Marshmallow Creme Easy Secret Ingredient contest, in one of three categories: frozen desserts, desserts which are baked or refrigerated, and sweet eaters, which includes beverages, candies, sauces, etc. Fudge recipes, however, are not eligible. Prizes will be given in each of the three categories. For a complete set of contest rules, send your name and address to Marshmallow Creme Recipe Contest, P.O. Box 11192, Chicago, Ill., 60611.

Here is a scrumptious, yet easy recipe, which may get you started:

Mocha almond torte
1/2 cup cocoa
2 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon instant coffee granules
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
1/2 ounce jar marshmallow creme
1 cup whipping cream, whipped
1 angel food cake (bought or home-baked)

Combine cocoa, water, coffee and extract. Mix well. Gradually add cocoa mixture to marshmallow creme, mixing at medium speed on an electric mixer until well-blended. Fold in whipping cream. Split cake into two layers. Spread one of the layers with the mocha mixture. Top with the second layer.

Prose cake with the remaining mocha cream. Chill for 1 to 2 hours before serving. Serves eight.

Life's a bowl of cherries
Versatile maraschino cherries are good for much more than garnishing beverages. "Award Winning Recipes With Oregon Maraschino Cherries" features recipes for cool, creamy breads and other goodies which took prizes at Oregon fairs. ## Enjoy the luxury of fresh muffins for breakfast

Microwave Kitchen
Marge Churchill

What could be more enjoyable than enjoying a freshly baked muffin for breakfast? Who has the time for such luxury? You Do! If you use your microwave to bake your muffins, it will be ready before you've even had time to pour your first cup of coffee.

A single muffin can be baked in the microwave in just 45 seconds to one minute. If the batter you use is the make ahead refrigerator variety, having a freshly baked muffin is no trouble at all.

Microwave muffins in either the microwave-safe muffin maker or makers are available in various shapes. We prefer the wreath-shaped muffin maker that has space for six or seven muffins.

Some muffin makers have holes in the bottom of the compartments for steam to escape. For these, we use a single paper baking liner. For the six ounce standard cups, using two paper liners in each cup gives best results. The build up of the muffin tends to make the bottom of the muffin soggy if only one paper liner is used.

Conventional muffin recipes work well in the microwave oven. The amounts of the ingredients is the same for both baking methods. A package of muffin mix can also be prepared according to conventional directions. The difference is in the "finishing touches." Microwave baked muffins need something to enhance their appearance because of a lack of browning. This can easily be accomplished by using a topping.

The type of topping selected will depend upon the flavor or variety of muffin being prepared. For example, bacon bits may be sprinkled on corn muffins to give an attractive appearance, and to enhance the flavor. Sweeter muffins, like nut-crusted granola, a cinnamon and sugar mixture, or toasted coconut. Use high power to bake muffins, rotating the dish once or twice during baking to ensure the evenness of heat. If you are using individual custard cups, arrange them in a circular pattern on the floor of the microwave. Remove muffins to cooling rack immediately after the end of the cooking time so that the steam does not make the bottom of the muffins become soggy.

Many muffin batters can be quickly reheated in the microwave. Wrap muffins in a paper towel or cloth napkin to hold in heat and moisture and microwave on high power for 12 to 15 seconds. Do not overheat, or the result will be a very hard and dry muffin.

Leftover muffins can be quickly reheated in the microwave. Wrap muffins in a paper towel or cloth napkin to hold in heat and moisture and microwave on high power for 12 to 15 seconds. Do not overheat, or the result will be a very hard and dry muffin.

2 cups applesauce
Cream butter with an electric mixer. Blend in sugar and eggs. Add nuts, cinnamon, soda, allspice and salt. Mix well. Add flour and applesauce, mix thoroughly.

Crunchy orange muffins
2 cups all-purpose flour
1/3 cup sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup orange juice
1 cup crunchy granola type cereal
1/2 cup seedless raisins
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup orange juice
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1/3 cup salad oil

Breakfast muffins
2 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 cup sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 egg, well beaten
1/2 cup salad oil
1/2 cup milk
1/4 cup dark molasses

Garnish: cinnamon and sugar mixture or chopped nuts as desired
1 cup orange juice
1/2 cup orange marmalade
Sift together flour, sugar, baking powder, and salt into a mixing bowl. Stir in cereal and raisins. Combine egg, orange rind and salad oil. Add liquids all at once to dry ingredients. Stir just until all ingredients are moistened.

Fill paper-lined microwave muffin cups 3/4 full of batter. Microwave 6 muffins at a time on high for 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 minutes. Repeat with additional batter. Spread orange marmalade on muffins as a glaze. Serve warm. Yields 15 to 18 muffins.

Strawberry muffins
1 1/2 cup flour
1/3 cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt

Spiced corn muffins
2/3 cup all-purpose flour

1/3 cup oil
1 egg
1 package (10 ounces) frozen strawberries, thawed and divided
If using a microwave muffin pan with a solid bottom, line each cup with paper liners. For microwave with a steam vent, line each cup with a single paper liner.

In a medium mixing bowl, combine flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Blend together oil, egg and 1 cup strawberries and juice. Stir into dry ingredients, just until moistened. Reserve remaining strawberries and juice to make strawberry butter (recipe to follow).

Fill each compartment of muffin baker one-half full of batter; for 6 to 7 muffins, microwave on high for 2 1/2 to 3 minutes. Rotate or rearrange muffins after approximately 1 1/2 minutes. Repeat for remaining muffins. Yields 14 muffins.

Combine 1/2 cup softened margarine and remaining strawberries and juice from strawberry muffins (approximately 1/4 cup) in a blender or food processor. Process until well-blended. Refrigerate. Yields 3/4 cup. Use as a spread on strawberry muffins.

Rotate or rearrange muffins in microwave after approximately 1 1/2 minutes of the baking time. Remove muffins immediately to wire rack of muffins to prevent the bottom of the muffins from being soggy. Repeat with remaining batter. Yield approximately 18 to 24 muffins.

If you need luck, play for it

By James Jacoby

The second volume of the New York Times Bridge Series is titled "Doubles and Redoubles." The author, Alan Truscott, has called appropriate card games involving this aspect of the game from his many years of bridge reporting. Today's deal, played by our fellow writer Eddie Kantar, demonstrates that important declarer skill of playing for a particular distribution of the cards if that is the only logical way to make the contract. Incidentally, the eventual business double of the slam contract suggests that the favorable layout may just be occurring.

Kantar readily admits that he was hoping to cajole the opponents into taking a save when he bid his vulnerable slam. Instead, he was doubled. With a diamond led, he took his only chance. He ruffed and drew trumps ending in dummy. Then he played the spade jack, intending to pass it, but East covered. Declarer won the ace, ruffed a low spade and ruffed a diamond back to his hand. Then he led the spade 10. When West had to play the nine, Kantar shed a heart from dummy. Although East could win with his remaining high honor, the eight in Eddie's hand was now good for another heart discard, and the doubled slam was made.

Yes, sharp-eyed readers are right. An opening heart lead would have beaten the contract.

A new book by James Jacoby and his father, the late Oswald Jacoby, is now available at bookstores. It is "Jacoby on Card Games," published by Pharos Books.

Tips to measure whole-wheat flour

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY - When substituting whole wheat flour for all-purpose flour in baking recipes, it is necessary to adjust the quantity of flour. - A.H.

DEAR A.H. - Generally, so, I usually substitute an equal amount of whole-wheat flour for all-purpose flour. Sometimes, depending on the type of whole-wheat flour you have, the result can be heavier than desired, in which case a slight reduction would be advisable. However, I've found that there's no standard rule and it depends very much on the recipe and the types of flour involved, so you'll have to experiment.

Better, lighter results are usually possible by substituting whole wheat flour for only part of the all-purpose flour called for in the recipe. This is also a good way to gradually introduce a small quantity and gradually increase the proportion of whole-wheat flour. They'll get used to it this way.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Whole-wheat Quickbreads and Cookies," which has a variety of delicious recipes for whole-wheat baked goods, including cookies made with zucchini (which should be of interest to many gardeners this time of year), whole-wheat banana bread, whole-wheat brownies and more. Others who would like a copy of this issue should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY - Save money on instant coffee by mixing your favorite, expensive brand with a lower priced store brand. You can experiment to see how much you can mix and still retain the good flavor. This also can be done with coffee creamers, powdered milk, bubble bath and hand lotion. Sometimes you may even invent something we like better while saving money. - BETTY

Peter Scolari, an accomplished stage actor, was added to the cast of "Newhart" in 1984, playing preppy Michael Harris. With the addition, the cast jelled after two seasons of juggling supporting characters, and now is one of CBS' most successful series.

Peter Scolari: 'cerebral stogie'

By Kathryn Baker
 The Associated Press

NEW YORK - Peter Scolari and Tom Hanks had a surprise reunion when they crossed paths at a publicist's office recently.

There was some fast catching up and a promise to get together later. Then the two actors went off to respective interviews.

Scolari, sitting down with a reporter a few minutes later, said the two formed a powerful bond as rookie co-stars of the ABC sitcom "Boozie Buddies" in the early 1980s. They were near tears, having not seen each other for six months, he said.

"Tom and I had a real genuine, personal friendship that I think we took for granted," he said. "We feel like what we did on that show was based on secrets that he and I shared as friends, things we were going through at that time in our lives in the television industry - but as people, not as these slick professionals - and I'll never forget it."

"So that's what the bond was and remains. So, yeah, we were just fighting back tears, believe it or not, seeing each other."

After "Boozie Buddies" was canceled - it had a brief summer run on NBC - Hanks went on to movie stardom in "Splash." He was in town plugging his new movie, "Dragnet."

Scolari, an accomplished stage actor, tried an ABC sitcom of his own, "And Baby Makes Five," that lasted only a month. He did small television roles and honed his juggling and acrobatic talents on "Circus of the Stars," a network special he calls "Circus of the Unemployed Actors."

In 1984, he was added to the cast of the CBS sitcom "Newhart," playing preppy Michael Harris, worshipful boyfriend of overprivileged Stephanie Vanderkellen, played by Julia Duffy.

With the addition of Scolari, the cast jelled after two seasons of juggling supporting characters, and "Newhart" is now one of CBS' most successful series.

A facile comedian, Scolari is also thoughtful and articulate in conversation. He said he had just come from North Carolina where he delivered the commencement address at the high school graduation of a cousin's son. "It was a duty he took quite seriously."

Farm wife begs compassion for pets city people abandon

DEAR ABBY: Please print this as a service to all abandoned pets. Two days ago a mother beagle and her pup arrived on our doorstep in 96-degree weather, starved and almost dead from thirst. We had heard that these two dogs were in the neighborhood. My husband got his gun and quickly put them both out of their misery. This isn't the first time he's had to do this sort of thing.

Dear Abby

should have gone immediately to a store employee and reported the incident. Then the matter would be in the hands of the proper officials where it belongs.

DEAR MR. HOP: Thanks for writing. Your answer was better than mine.

DEAR ABBY: We have a wealthy friend who didn't have any luck getting his book published, so he is now in the process of publishing it himself. He announced that he is going to give each of his friends an autographed copy as a gift, and at the same time each friend to purchase five copies to give away as gifts!

Some of us think it's tacky of him to impose such a purchase on his friends, and when the time comes, I feel that for his sake, I should let him so. Some of our mutual friends do not want to embarrass him, and think it's best to go along with the scheme. We are in a dilemma and will abide by your judgement.

DEAR PUT: I agree, it is indeed tacky, but I think each of your "friends" should act independently. If this self-published author were a close friend of mine, I would tell him candidly what I thought of his "sales promotion."

Many people think we farmers are thrilled to take in all the dogs and cats people don't want, and that you city people don't want. We have as many pets as we can care for and do not need yours. So, please take them to the Humane Society rather than condemn them to a miserable death from starvation and/or thirst. Use your heads, and have compassion for the helpless!

DEAR SYMPATHIZER: You, who allowed your husband to kill the mother and pup without even trying to save them, call yourself "Pet Sympathizer"? Starving, thirsty animals have been turned back to health, you know. A truly "compassionate" person would have made some effort to save them. Please call your local Humane Society, or a veterinarian in your area for a pet rescue group referral, should an abandoned animal again find its way to your door. DEAR ABBY: About the couple who saw a woman put a package of cigarettes in her purse. This shoplifting pro did not "forget" to pay for them. To suggest that a reminder from a bystander is a solution to this type of petty crime is like spitting on a potential forest fire. There are security personnel in the store to handle such situations. It is naive to suggest that petty theft on the grand style practice in this day and age will be deterred in the slightest by a very unobtrusive "reminder" from a bystander in a supermarket. Such a solution only produces a more proficient thief of the next time around. The person who saw the woman slip the cigarettes in her purse

How vitamins are measured

DEAR DR. GOTT: In writing about vitamins and minerals, you express some in milligrams and others in units. I understand milligrams, but what is a unit?

Dr. Gott
Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR READER: Crohn's disease is an inflammatory bowel disease that usually affects the lower small intestine (ileum). If the inflammation is severe and does not respond to medication, part of the inflamed bowel may have to be surgically removed. Unfortunately, this is rarely curative because other adjacent portions of intestine tend to become inflamed and the process repeats itself.

DEAR READER: Traditionally, the unit of measurement of vitamins A, D and E has been the international unit (IU). Other vitamins and minerals are measured in grams, milligrams or micrograms. The international unit is a reflection of activity, not quantity; this has been found to be a useful shorthand when comparing the active components of vitamins. For example, retinoids acid and beta carotene, like 30 other compounds, can be turned into vitamin A. Technically, vitamin A is retinol; 1 microgram of retinol is biologically equivalent to 6 micrograms of beta carotene. To complicate matters further, 3.3 IU of retinol is equal to 10 IU of beta carotene.

switched health insurance companies. When doing strep-throat cultures, our old company sent us to the hospital, which kept the culture for 48 hours. Our new company sends us to a clinic, where the culture is kept only 24 hours. Is this adequate? DEAR READER: Probably. Strep cultures used to be kept for 48 hours, and many hospitals still use this tried-and-true system. However, newer and quicker strep cultures can be read at 24 hours. I think that your insurance company is just keeping up with new advances in the field of bacteriology.

Take my word for it; you and I will be less confused if we simply allow tradition on this one. Nutrition handbooks and food packages usually list vitamins A, D and E in international units.

As your doctor has properly suggested, your potential B-12 deficiency can be corrected by vitamin shots. This way, B-12 is delivered directly into the body without the necessity of it being absorbed through the intestine. A shot a month will supply the vitamin B-12 that your body requires.

DEAR DR. GOTT: We recently

DEAR DR. GOTT: When medication and diet failed to relieve the pain from Crohn's disease, I had major surgery. My doctor told me I would need a vitamin B-12 injection every month for the rest of my life. Why?

Thoughts

A friend not a stranger
There was once a godless seaman who was in a boat fishing with his godless companions when a storm came up which threatened to sink the ship. His companions begged him to offer a prayer; but he demurred, saying it was years since he prayed or entered a church. Finally, upon their insistence, he made this prayer: "O Lord, I have not asked You for anything for fifteen years, and if you deliver us out of this storm and bring us safe to land again, I promise that I will not bother You again for another fifteen years." - Signs of the Times, Paul Lee Tan

The Apostle Paul says, "Pray in the Spirit on all occasions with all kinds of prayers and requests. With this in mind be alert and always keep on praying for all the saints." - Ephesians 6:18.
Prayer is not something we are to do only when we are in trouble. We are to keep current accounts with God. Long periods of silence make us strangers to each other. When friends are on a current basis with each other the conversation just never ends.

Let me encourage you today to "always keep on praying" in the Spirit on all occasions with all kinds of prayers and requests."
Rev. Norman E. Swensen, Pastor
Trinity Covenant Church

Why can't women make 'em?

By Sol R. Cohen

Why is it that women, the excellent and exciting cooks that they are, can't make a decent peanut-butter-and-jelly-sandwich? They make it like it's a chore — like something that has to be done as quickly as possible.

They'll take a slice of bread, slap some peanut butter on it in lumpy slabs, add a thin, almost indiscernible layer of jelly, cover the whole gooey mess with a second, and dry slice of bread, cut the two in half, and there you are — a woman's version of a peanut-butter-and-jelly-sandwich.

Ask a man about it and he'll say, "No way!" Now, a man, he takes great pride and great pains in making a peanut-butter-and-jelly-sandwich. He treats it like a work of art and a thing of beauty.

He, too, takes a slice of bread, but there is where the resemblance ends. He doesn't slap peanut butter on it. He spreads it on — ever so gently, ever so neatly and evenly, ever so completely.

Every corner, every edge must be covered with peanut butter, and not in lumps or slabs. Oh, no! Never! The layer must have consistency and must have a definite degree of thickness.

Next comes the jelly. That, too, is spread gently and neatly and evenly and completely — but, not on the same slice of bread as the peanut butter. Oh, no! Never! The jelly goes on the second slice of bread — all by itself.

That's the secret of making a good peanut-butter-and-jelly-sandwich — the peanut butter on one slice, the jelly on the other.

It's not that women don't make good sandwiches. They make excellent sandwiches. You can't beat them when it comes to cheese sandwiches, or egg-salad sandwiches, or chicken sandwiches, or meatloaf sandwiches, and so on and so on.

It's just that they seem to exhibit an unexplainable resentment at peanut-butter-and-jelly-sandwiches, and that's why they slap them together — hit or miss.

Every so often, some food distributor comes up with a concoction guaranteed to save time and effort in making peanut-butter-and-jelly-sandwiches — a combination of peanut-butter and jelly, mixed to the desired consistency of the mixer.

That, to me, is not the answer, because the whole concoction is spread on one slice of bread — and that's no way to make a decent peanut-butter-and-jelly-sandwich. The peanut-butter MUST go on one slice and the JELLY must go on the other.

Sol R. Cohen of Manchester has been making a lot of peanut-butter-and-jelly sandwiches since he retired from the Manchester Herald.

New rules on company cars among tax law's heartaches

Among the biggest of the big tax heartaches in the new law hitting employers and employees is one concerning company cars. For simplicity, let's name one employer, KT Co., and assume that employer has a salesman named Ed Winston, KT Co. supplies the auto that Winston uses. The company, after looking at the complex and convoluted rules on employee use of company cars, decides to take the "easy" way out. It wants to avoid doing what appears to be a major paper headache.

What is the "easy" way out here? To start, what's easy for the employer could be a lot of trouble for the employee.

The company may treat the car as being used 100 percent for personal driving regardless of the actual miles of business and personal travel. If it chooses this option, the company must use the table value method or the fair market value method. It cannot use the mileage allowance method.

Example: Employee Ed Winston earns $45,000 a year and is equipped with a $12,500 car. His personal use is 40 percent of total use. With this easy out, his employer treats the car as if it were used by Winston exclusively for personal driving. If it uses the IRS-approval table, the company will charge him with $3,600 in non-cash compensation for the year. To make things even simpler, the company can treat the amount as paid at the end of the year. In the following January, the company shows $3,600 of fringe benefit income on Winston's Form W-2.

Generally, the 100 percent-personal use option will be used where an employee's regular compensation is expected to equal or exceed the Social Security wage base.

QUESTION: Does this "easy way out" cause any additional complications for employees?

Answer: Indeed it does. Employees are charged with more income in this event. And the record-keeping that employees now must go through will be much more rigorous. As a matter of fact, it could spell double trouble: The employee, Ed Winston, may be forced to account to Uncle Sam for his business use of the company car.

As an illustration, the company decides to charge Winston with $3,600 of income for personal use of the car. Winston can show that he uses the car 60 percent for business. The company really doesn't care; it just hits Winston with the "phantom" compensation, puts it on the W-2, and Winston then is on his own. And that means very much on his own.

Sure, he takes the 60 percent deduction on his new Form 2106. For the car use only, 60 percent or $2,160 would be business use and therefore deductible. The other $1,440 falls into the taxable fringe benefit area.

How about that other tax cruncher, the 2 percent of adjusted gross rule? (Employee business expenses that are not reimbursed are deductible only to the extent that they exceed 2 percent of adjusted gross income.) Does Winston get his with that? Apparently not. However, and this can't be stressed enough, while Winston may not have to account to his employer for use of the car, he may well have to prove his mileage for the IRS. And that means precise record keeping — and a higher percentage shot at being audited.

Now let's look at the next step in the parlay. Ed Winston is reimbursed for his gas and other expenses — dollar for dollar. In this event, let's say he runs up $2,200 a year for gas, oil, repairs and the like. His company reimburses him for the $2,200 plus some $200 in parking fees and tolls. He is repaid for these BUT he must account for them.

BUSINESS

President Reagan views an experiment conducted by Alan Schriesheim, director of the Argonne National Laboratory in Illinois, as he visits a conference on superconductivity Tuesday.

Experts say studies needed on use of superconductors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the ability to transmit electricity without resistance offers many potential benefits, people should not expect too much, too soon from the often-stated promises of superconductivity, experts say.

Scientists and business executives attending a federal conference on commercial applications of superconductivity said Tuesday that benefits of the new technology may not be as dramatic as many people think.

And much more research is needed, perhaps taking years, before substantial payoffs can be expected, they added.

The efficiency of superconductivity offers the hope of dramatically improved electronics, better computers, magnetically levitated trains, smaller electric motors and better generation and transmission of electrical power.

Professor Paul C.W. Chu of the University of Houston, one of the leaders in this research, said recent advances show that superconductivity can be made more practical and cheaper to exploit.

However, he said, scientists still don't know the ideal formula for superconducting materials, how stable the compounds will be over the long term or how to fashion the brittle materials into useful shapes for putting in electrical devices.

"There are still many unknowns," Chu said.

Uretek faces $480,000 in OSHA fines

NEW HAVEN (AP) — A fabric-coating company faces more than $480,000 in fines on allegations of failing to protect workers from dangerous solvents and violating other federal rules for handling and storing toxins, the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration said.

The penalties — the maximum allowed by law — were proposed Tuesday against Uretek Inc. for 34 alleged willful violations and 145 alleged serious violations of federal health and safety standards.

The severity of the penalties stems from the company's refusal to comply with health requirements for employees exposed to chemical solvents including dimethylformamide, a potent liver toxin that can be readily absorbed through the skin, said John A. Pendergrass, assistant secretary of labor who heads OSHA.

"The company's continued failure to ensure the use of personal protective equipment for employees exposed to dimethylformamide... demonstrates a serious disregard for the health of those workers," Pendergrass said.

A man answering the telephone at Uretek said company officials had no comment. He refused to give his name.

The plant, which employs about 85 workers, coats synthetic fabrics for such applications as parachutes. In February, an investigation was started because of a complaint that workers exposed to dimethylformamide were developing liver damage.

The liver problems were first detected by physicians at Yale-New Haven Hospital's occupational health clinic in November 1986 after a Uretek worker complained of illness. The clinic later told the company how to protect the workers but many of the suggestions were never implemented, OSHA said.

Uretek's accident and illness records for 1985 and 1986 showed six reported cases of liver abnormalities. But additional inspections boosted to 34 the number of workers showing signs of overexposure to the liver toxin.

Company officials were aware of the dangers associated with dimethylformamide, and Uretek also had a detailed written hazard communication program, OSHA said. But little effort was made to train the employees in proper methods of personal protection from exposure to that and other chemicals used in the plant, OSHA said.

OSHA's citations allege that Uretek failed to ensure the use of appropriate protective gloves, aprons and foot coverings for 34 workers, for which a total of $340,000 in fines has been proposed.

A total of $136,000 in fines was proposed for 136 alleged serious violations regarding the company's practice of allowing employees to consume and store food and beverages in contaminated areas. They also are for failure to inform and train employees to work with dangerous chemicals.

Other fines totaling $4,840 were proposed for lesser violations.

Other penalties were proposed for 23 other serious violations including improper pressurization of a chemical drum, ignition sources around flammable materials, lack of eye flushing facilities, improper use of industrial trucks around flammable materials, lack of machine guarding, and exposed drive belts.

Uretek has 15 working days to contest the citations and proposed penalties.

Business In Brief

Dow Jones sets 44th record of '87
NEW YORK — Wall Street, shrugging off economic worries, propelled the Dow Jones industrial average to its 44th record this year.

The closely watched barometer rose 25.83 points on Tuesday to close at 2,519.77.

The stock market began the day on a strong note, picking up more than 10 points in the first hour. But its rally slowed as traders worried about the economy, tensions in the Persian Gulf and the fact that the government could run out of money because Congress has not approved a new limit on the national debt.

But as Tuesday's session continued, the concerns dissipated. Analysts said institutions decided to ignore the potential for bad news and began to buy heavily, particularly in the blue-chip issues, whose performance the Dow Jones industrial average measures.

Primerica income down slightly

GREENWICH — Primerica Corp. today reported a net income of $47.5 million, or 80 cents a share in the second quarter, compared to $47.8 million, or 78 cents a share during the same period in 1986.

Revenues from continuing operations in the second quarter rose 9 percent, from $684 million last year to $748 million. For the first six months, net income was $119 million, or $2.04 a share, compared to $115 million, or $1.93 a share during the same period last year.

Revenues from continuing operations in the first half rose 16 percent, to $1.55 billion compared to $1.33 billion in 1986.

U.S. Surgical earnings increase

NORWALK — United States Surgical Co. has reported that its earnings for the quarter ending June 30 increased 7 percent to $5.1 million from $5.1 million in the same quarter of 1986.

U.S. Surgical's earnings for the six-month period were up 6 percent to $9.86 million from $9.3 million in the year-ago half, the Norwalk-based company said in a statement on Monday.
