Voter registration is Saturday

The Registrars of Voters are holding a voter-registration session today from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Super Stop & Shop at the Parkade. If it rains, the session will be held in Marshall's in the Parkade.

In addition to voter registrations for all Connecticut residents, changes of address and political party will be taken for Manchester residents.

Bolton athletic committee to meet

Bolton Town and School Athletic Study Committee will hold its first strategy meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at Herrick Memorial Park. The committee, named by the Board of Selectmen, is made up of school and town officials and citizens.

It is charged with examining problems facing Bolton athletics, concentrating on programs, facilities and personnel. It will report to the Board of Selectmen and the Board of Education by Dec. 1.

Authority meeting delayed

The Housing Authority of Manchester has postponed its Aug. 19 meeting until Aug. 26 at 7:30 p.m. at the authority's offices at 24 Bluefield Drive.

Water pressure tests scheduled

The town's Water Department will conduct tests Aug. 19 to determine whether the water pressure is adequate for fire protection at Broad Street and in the Haynes Street area. The two-hour test at Broad Street will begin at 10 a.m.

The test on Haynes Street is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. The tests could reduce water pressures or affect water quality in nearby areas.

MMH names new director

Lynda M. Valerie of Manchester has been named administrative director of pulmonary services at Manchester Memorial Hospital, announced Peter A. Kuzmickas, vice president.

A graduate of the Respiratory Therapy School at Hartford Hospital, Valerie has worked at Manchester Memorial Hospital since 1977.

MHS students need to register

Any student who has moved to Manchester and will be entering Grades 10 through 12 at Manchester High School must call 647-3539 to register.

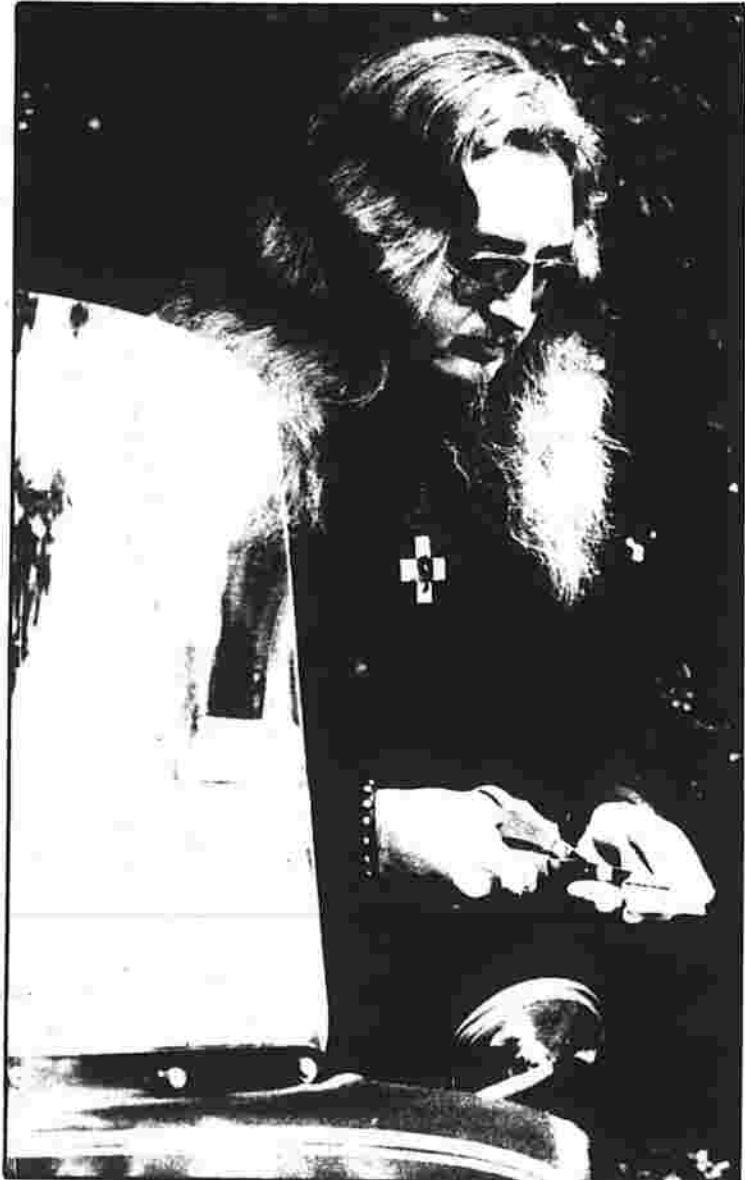

Also, students who have left school but plan to return also must call.

Students must provide a transcript from their previous high schools as well as proof of immunization.

RHAM needs night school staff

Bond is reduced for teen-ager charged in Glastonbury murder

By The Associated Press

A man charged with murder in the death of a Glastonbury woman was ordered held on reduced bond of $150,000 Friday and was scheduled for pleading Sept. 1 in Hartford Superior Court.

After reducing bond from $200,000, Manchester Superior Court Judge Raymond Norko refused a defense motion to unseal the state's file on its case against Dennis Coleman Jr., 19, of Glastonbury.

Coleman was arrested Thursday and charged with felony murder in the death of Joyce Aparo, 47, of Glastonbury. Aparo was apparently killed in Glastonbury last

Man charged after fight

A Hartford man was arrested Thursday morning after keeping his ex-girlfriend from leaving her apartment with their baby and then taking her keys, police said.

Kevin L. Green, 21, was charged with second-degree unlawful restraint and breach of peace.

According to police, Green was visiting his baby at his ex-girlfriend's apartment on Center Street when she asked him to leave. Green became enraged, pushed the woman, who was holding the baby, into the bathroom and wouldn't let them out, police said. After she forced her way out, Green choked her, and demanded the keys to the apartment, police said.

Last Catholic monarch

James II was the last Roman Catholic monarch of England. He died in 1701 after 13 years in exile and abortive attempts to regain the throne from which he had been deposed.

Card cut a success, biker says

The Rev. Robert W. "Kaiser" Hershberger is already receiving support in his campaign against American Express.

Hershberger said Friday he's received "close to a dozen" phone calls after his appearance on local television Thursday when he cut up his American Express card. He took the action in order to protest a commercial for American Express travelers' checks in which a couple is robbed by a group of bikers.

A spokeswoman for American Express said earlier this week that the company would not take the commercial off the air, as Hershberger had requested. The pastor of the Manchester Mission Church of Bikers has said that the commercial perpetuates negative stereotypes about motorcyclists.

Hershberger plans to make an appeal to bikers in a column he writes for Motorcyclist's Post. "I'm going to advise everyone to divorce all ties with American Express."

Meanwhile, Hershberger said, he is continuing his investigation into who stole Town Manager Robert B. Weiss's birthday cake. The cake was stolen in June from a kitchen in Lincoln Center during a meeting of the Board of Directors.

Hershberger has said that he had been accused of stealing the cake. In July he sought to have the directors exonerate him publicly. Mayor Weinberg told Hershberger that no one accused him of stealing the cake.

Robert Brannick, left, and Stephen McAdam stand outside the Sportsman's Cafe, 208 Spruce St., which they recently bought. The bar reopens Monday.

Sportsman's Cafe has a set of new owners

The Sportsman's Cafe at 208 Spruce St. will reopen Monday under new ownership, after being closed for seven weeks.

According to new owners Robert F. Brannick Jr. of East Hartford and Stephen McAdam of Manchester, who bought the bar on Aug. 6 from Thomas Wall and Thomas Hartl, both of East Hartford, Sportsman's will still be a neighborhood bar. But the two say it will be more of a sports bar than before.

Brannick has been in and out of the restaurant business as a bartender and cook. McAdam is a former claims adjuster for National Grange Mutual. He was a frequent guest in 1986 on WKHT's "Sports Country," a talk show broadcast before Mets games.

Brannick and McAdam have spent the past weeks getting ready for the reopening.

"It will be pretty much the same," said McAdam. "We'll have a couple more TVs, and it will still be a neighborhood bar, with softball teams coming after games."

"All the guys from the ballfields used to come up, drink beer, and watch games," said Brannick. "We've hung around here for 20 years."

Weicker: Contras no solution

HARTFORD (AP) — U.S. Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. said Friday that the United States should be pouring millions into the Peace Corps, not rebel troops, to fight communism in Central America.

The Connecticut Republican, who is frequently at odds with President Reagan, also said he doubts Reagan could win a fight with Congress for more aid to the Nicaraguan contras, who are fighting that country's communist-backed government.

"If the president wants to combat communism, I'm all for it," Weicker said in an interview with Connecticut Public Television, to be broadcast Sunday. "But not the way he's doing it, the way it ought to be done."

"We have, at present, a structure already set up, known as the Peace Corps. Everything they do — medicine, education, science, farming — is exactly what is needed in that part of the world to keep communism out."

"Communism is there because it is a textbook case of misery and poverty unattended by Democratic neighbors to the north," Weicker said. "I'd be perfectly satisfied to raise the Peace Corps back to its 1960 levels and take $100 million and appropriate it to the Peace Corps."

Weicker said he's still convinced that Reagan knew that profits from arms sales to Iran were being diverted to the contras. Reagan has insisted his aides kept him in the dark on the diversion.

"I have no doubt exactly what Reagan said to his staff: 'Look, this policy is sailing very close to the wind. I want to see it fulfilled. You guys go ahead and take care of it. Don't tell me about it,'" Weicker said.

He said Democrats in Congress "don't have any guts" and are afraid to take issue with Reagan because they're worried about the 1988 presidential election.

"The Democrats are trying to play cute, trying to lie in the weeds hoping Reagan will stumble," Weicker said. "I think that's the reason why they really haven't busted out in the polls with any of their candidates."

Edgar Rosenberg, 62, Joan Rivers' husband, dies of pill overdose

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Producer Edgar Rosenberg, the husband of comedian Joan Rivers and occasional target of her jokes, was found dead in his hotel room Friday, apparently of a Valium overdose, police said. He was 62.

Rosenberg, whose body was found on the floor next to the bed, probably fell out of bed and hit his head on the dresser, said Detective Gerald Whartenby.

Officials were alerted when Rosenberg's business manager called him at the Four Seasons Hotel on Friday morning and received no answer, Whartenby said.

Hotel security officers who entered Rosenberg's room found Rosenberg, pills, and a note. The pills were being analyzed, but police said they believed them to be Valium. Police would not divulge the contents of the note.

Police also found three cassette tapes at the scene which contained information recorded for various members of the family, according to Whartenby.

"Rosenberg, who suffered a major heart attack in November 1984 and underwent quadruple bypass surgery, has been in poor health recently and greatly depressed," said Richard Grant, a spokesman for Miss Rivers in Los Angeles.

Grant said Rosenberg was in Philadelphia for meetings.

Dr. Robert L. Catherman, of the medical examiner's office in Philadelphia, was performing an autopsy and was expected to release his report later Friday.

Grant said Rosenberg was hospitalized in Ireland last week for gastrointestinal bleeding. He was to return to Los Angeles on Friday and entered Cedars-Sinai Medical Center on Saturday, he said.

Grant said there would be no immediate statement from Miss Rivers. "It's just a little bit too much for her right now," he said.

Rosenberg in January was hospitalized at UCLA Medical Center after a mild heart attack. In 1984, he had quadruple heart bypass surgery, and said afterward he had quit his five-pack-a-day cigarette habit.

Wallingford man killed when train strikes car

WALLINGFORD (AP) — A motorist was killed Friday when an Amtrak passenger train struck his car, which was stopped on the railroad tracks at the Toelles Road crossing, police said.

An off-duty police officer who happened to drive by tried to pull the man from his car but had to give up when the northbound train got to close, said Detective Thomas J. Curran. Giro Esposito, 27, of Wallingford was pronounced dead at the scene of the 7:06 p.m. accident, Curran said. He was the only person in the car.

The accident occurred at the same crossing where a 28-year-old Wallingford woman was killed July 19 when her car was struck by a train.

Four people in a second car suffered cuts when a tire from the victim's car flew out of his trunk and struck the windshield of their car, which was stopped at the crossing, police said.

The two parents and their children were taken to the Hospital of St. Raphael in New Haven, where they were being examined, a hospital spokeswoman said.

The train, bound for Springfield, Mass., from Washington, was delayed about an hour. No one aboard was injured, Curran said.

Crossing gates proposed a decade ago because of numerous accidents have not yet been installed, Curran said. Work to improve the crossing began this week.

Rachel Grant Blish

Rachel Grant Blish, 84, formerly of Willimantic and Hebron, died Thursday at Manchester Memorial Hospital after a long illness.

With a degree in education, she taught in Windsor Locks, (primary grades) and at Natchaug Grammar School in Willimantic. She was active in the Blish Insurance Agency during her husband's illness in the 1950's. She was a 50-year member of the First Congregational Church in Willimantic.

As a summer resident at Andover Lake, she was active in the Andover Lake Property Owners Association. A member of the Connecticut Society of Genealogists, she also belonged to the Connecticut Historical Society, and the Windsor, Stonington and Glastonbury historical societies, the Park Society and the General Society of Mayflower Descendants.

She is survived by a son, Lester Henry Blish Jr. of Manchester; two daughters, Dorcas B. Friedrich of Hebron and Sarah (Sally) Palmer of Lebanon; a brother, Lloyd S. Grant of Sebastian, Fla.; three sisters, Miriam G. Mutschler of Irving, Texas, Helen G. Kenneth of Westerly, R.I., and Faith G. L. Brown of Winter Park Fla., and East Gramby; 10 grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren; several nieces and nephews.

The funeral is Tuesday at 11 a.m. at Potter Funeral Home, 456 Jackson St., Willimantic. Burial will follow in the Old Willimantic Cemetery. Calling hours are Monday from 7 to 9 p.m.

Memorial donations may be made to the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association, 705A New Britain Ave., Hartford, 06106.

Dermet P. Candon

Dermet P. Candon, 51, of 10 Tanner St., husband of Sarah (McIntyre) Candon, died Friday at Rockville General Hospital.

Born in County Sligo, Ireland, he had been a Manchester resident since 1963, when he moved here from Chicopee, Mass. He was a self-employed installer of floor covering. He was a member of the Campbell Council Knights of Columbus of Manchester, the Irish-American Home in Glastonbury and the British-American Club in Manchester. He was a veteran of the Korean Conflict, serving with the U.S. Army.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a son, Thomas M. Candon; a brother, Patrick B. Candon of Chicopee, Mass.; a sister, Bridie Foley of Staten Island, N.Y.; and other brothers and sisters in Ireland and England.

The funeral will be Monday at a time to be announced from the John F. Tierney Funeral Home, 219 W. Center St., followed by a mass of Christian burial at St. Bridget Church. Burial will be in St. Bridget Cemetery. Calling hours are Sunday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Memorial donations may be made to the Passionist Monastery Retreat, 303 Tunxis Road, West Hartford.

Hikers find skeleton in woods

DANBURY (AP) — A human skeleton was found under a pile of brush in a muddy area Friday by a man walking in the woods with his two sons, police said.

The state medical examiner's office will attempt to identify the remains, but police suspect the bones are those of a Danbury man who disappeared four years ago. The New-Times of Danbury reported in Saturday's editions, quoting unnamed police sources.

A blue running shoe and what appeared to be a sheepskin jacket were found in the mud near the bones, police said.

"All we wanted to do was go fishing," said Richard Ruffles, who was walking with his sons Andrew, 10, and Matthew, 9, to Corner Pond from their home nearby. "That's what you get for walking in the woods."

Ruffles picked up the skull and returned with his sons to their log cabin house to call the police.

A 1954 earthquake in Algeria took 1,460 lives.

Church. Burial will be in St. Bridget Cemetery. Calling hours are Sunday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. Memorial donations may be made to the Passionist Monastery Retreat, 303 Tunxis Road, West Hartford.

Bard Thompson, scholar

MADISON, N.J. (AP) — Bard Thompson, a church scholar and former dean of Drew University's graduate school, died Wednesday of a heart attack. He was 62.

Thompson was graduated from Haverford College in Haverford, Pa., in 1946. He earned a divinity degree in 1949 from the Union Theological Seminary in New York City. He also earned a doctorate in church history from Columbia University four years later. Thompson was a member of the Drew faculty from 1965, when he was hired as a professor of church history. He was named dean of the graduate school in 1969. Thompson was the author of eight books and numerous articles on liturgical and church history.

Connecticut in Brief

Drug raids net nine arrests

NEW LONDON — State and federal authorities said they cracked two major drug trafficking operations in southeastern Connecticut Friday with the arrests of nine people, including a prominent member of the city's Hispanic community.

The suspects were to be arraigned in federal court on possession of cocaine and conspiracy to distribute cocaine charges, U.S. Attorney Stanley A. Twardy said.

Twardy said each suspect, six of whom are from New London, faces up to 40 years in jail if convicted on the drug charges. He also said the investigation is continuing and additional charges were likely.

Twardy didn't reveal whether authorities seized any drugs during the bust.

Among those arrested was Luz Z. Gonzalez, 45, of New London, Twardy said. She is executive director of Centro de la Comunidad, a social service agency in New London, and a member of the city's Police Community Relations Committee.

Rocky Neck safe for swimming

EAST LYME — The entire eastern third of the beach at Rocky Neck State Park, closed in late July because of high bacteria levels, has been reopened, state officials said Friday.

Richard Clifford, the state's director of Parks and Recreation, said bacteria tests on the final 200 feet of closed beach where Bride Brook enters Long Island Sound showed the water was safe for swimming.

One thousand feet of the shoreline had been closed to swimmers because of high bacteria levels. State health officials blamed an overburdened sewage treatment plant at Niantic State Prison for women.

Health officials had said the contaminated water could cause nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, and ear and nose infections.

An 800-foot section of the beach was reopened Wednesday.

Tax-evasion charges lodged

NEW HAVEN — A Hamden couple have been indicted by a federal grand jury and charged with four counts of income tax evasion, the U.S. attorney's office said Friday.

The indictment alleged that Alfred Cavuoti, 51, and his wife, Grace Cavuoti, 49, evaded paying $160,250 in income taxes between 1981 and 1984 by underreporting their income by more than $360,000.

If convicted, each could be sentenced to a maximum of 20 years in prison and fined $360,000.

U.S. Attorney Stanley Twardy said the arrests stemmed from an investigation by the Internal Revenue Service.

Cop cleared in fatal accident

HARTFORD — A city police officer whose cruiser struck and killed a 2-year-old boy was not at fault in the Aug. 2 accident, police Chief Bernard Sullivan said Friday following an internal investigation.

The child, Noel Flores, was struck on Park Street as Officer Jorge Oresto was responding to another officer's call for assistance, police said after the accident.

"The unfortunate incident could not have been avoided by Officer Oresto and was caused by the unattended child running directly into the path of the cruiser from between two parked cars," Sullivan said.

Oresto had been involved in seven other traffic accidents in his cruiser during the past five years.

Millstone workers spill oil

WATERFORD — Workers spilled 50 gallons of oil into Long Island Sound during a restart of the Millstone 1 nuclear power plant, a spokesman for Northeast Utilities said Friday.

The spokesman, Rich Gallagher, said the oil, which was not radioactive, was being used to lubricate the plant's turbine when it overflowed a containment area and poured into Niantic Bay. He said workers erected a boom to contain the oil in the bay and an outside company was called in to clean up the spill.

"It's largely contained and being cleaned," Gallagher said.

Another 'bloom' in L.I. Sound could worsen oxygen problems

MILFORD (AP) — A second proliferation of phytoplankton in western Long Island Sound is possible this season and would aggravate the low oxygen levels of the waters there, a University of Connecticut oceanographer said Friday.

Another rapid expansion of phytoplankton is likely if hot weather conditions persist, said Barbara Welsh, a researcher for the University of Connecticut Marine Sciences Institute.

Phytoplankton is microscopic plant life that drifts in the water.

A bloom — or rapid growth — the week of July 21 ate up dissolved oxygen in the waters off Throgs Neck and Port Chester, N.Y. The phytoplankton turned the water a red-brown color and gave it the consistency of watery pudding.

The lack of dissolved oxygen drove fish and lobsters from the area and killed slower-moving organisms such as starfish, scientists said. About 400 lobsters, caught in traps, died, they said.

Only one bloom per hot-weather season could occur in the sound naturally, Welsh said. The first bloom would deplete the sound of naturally occurring nutrients for phytoplankton, she said.

However, successive blooms can occur because sewage effluent channeled into the sound probably is supplying more nutrients for the phytoplankton, she said. Additionally, a season's initial bloom could be more severe because of sewage effluent, she said.

Welsh was speaking Friday at a press briefing at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration laboratory in Milford. Her work in studying the dissolved oxygen levels is part of a state, federal and local study of Long Island Sound.

Welsh reported that oxygen levels in some of the waters in the Hempstead, N.Y., harbor area were rising slowly, but that the whole area probably would not see dissolved oxygen levels return to normal until the fall.

Oxygen levels in the Hempstead area dropped from a level of 7 parts per million in June to zero ppm in late July and have risen to about 1 ppm in the shallower regions since then, she said.

Dole stumps in 4th for Shays

STAMFORD (AP) — Republican Christopher Shays hasn't endorsed presidential hopeful Robert Dole, but Dole came here Friday to support Shays' bid for the 4th District congressional seat, saying the party is what's important.

"Chris Shays is the kind of representative we need to replace Stewart McKinney," the Dole, a Kansas Republican and Senate minority leader.

"He is a young man — 41 — with 13 years of legislative experience already," Dole said. "He has a good record in the legislature ... we have an outstanding candidate."

Shays, a state representative from Stamford and realtor, faces former Democratic state Rep. Christine M. Niedermeier, a Fairfield attorney, in Tuesday's special election.

The 4th District seat was left vacant by the May death of Stewart B. McKinney, who held the seat for 17 years.

When asked if he has problems supporting Shays because Shays has indicated his support for Vice President George Bush in the 1988 presidential race, Dole said, "This is George Bush's home state."

"The point is we're all Republicans and we're going to strengthen this party," Dole said. "We can't play a game."

"We need to broaden the Republican Party," Dole said. "We need a Dole's wife, Secretary of Transportation Elizabeth Dole, was scheduled to campaign in Stamford, but Dole said she had to go to Washington, D.C. He did not elaborate.

Parishioners agree not to protest

NEW BRITAIN (AP) — There will be no protest this weekend at the Sacred Heart Church where protesters clashed with police last week, according to a published report.

Leaders of the Polish-American Council met with protesters Thursday and agreed to hold no further demonstrations at masses, the New Britain Herald reported Friday.

Sunday, about 1,000 protesters gathered for six hours outside the Roman Catholic church to demand the resignation of their pastor, the Rev. Paul P. Wysocki.

Some protesters scuffled with police and a priest as emotions rose over what the protesters say is the dictatorial leadership of Wysocki. Six police officers were injured and two people were arrested.

Protest leaders were scheduled to meet Saturday with Archbishop John F. Whealon to discuss the situation.

The Polish-American Council backed the concerns of the protesters but criticized their methods in a statement Friday.

"We support the idea that there is a need for better communication between the church and the people," the statement said. "But we condemn the method of actions taken by some of the members of the Polish community."

The council is a coalition of 15 Polish-American groups in the city. Its members include a representative of Sacred Heart Church and Zenon Chmielewski, a leader of the protest.

The protest was triggered by the recent dismissal of a popular Polish priest, the Rev. Jan Murzyn. Also at issue was the moving of classes of the Polish Language School from Sacred Heart School to Pułaski Middle School and the dismissal of three other assistant priests.

Wysocki defended himself at a news conference Wednesday, saying he does consult parishioners on important topics.

Handwriting expert Charles Hamilton holds a love poem written by Elvis Presley in 1974. Hamilton authenticated the poem and estimated its value at $100,000.

Elvis poem is authentic

NEW YORK (AP) — A love poem that Elvis Presley allegedly wrote for a woman who says she bore him a daughter is authentic, a handwriting expert said Friday.

"When I looked at it, I saw instantly it was Elvis' writing," said Charles Hamilton, the handwriting analyst who in 1983 found that the purported diaries of Adolf Hitler were fake. He set the value of the untitled poem, written on a piece of ordinary typing paper, at $100,000.

"The importance of this poem is not just that it's an astonishing, unusual and truly great relic of his," Hamilton said, "but that it disclosed for the first time that Elvis had a lifelong sweetheart whom he visited whenever he could."

Hamilton was hired to analyze the poem by Dary Matera, author of a recent book about Lucy de Barbin called, "Are You Lonesome Tonight?"

In the book, de Barbin contends that Presley was the father of her 28-year-old daughter, Desiree. Matera said the two met when Presley was 18 and de Barbin was 16 and had "an infrequent but long-term" affair.

Matera said de Barbin, 50, is a clothing designer in Dallas, and that her daughter, who uses the name Desiree Presley, models in Los Angeles.

Thousands 'gather' for cosmic pause

New age weekend: Is it 'harmonic convergence' or 'sheer poppycock'?

By The Associated Press

According to one reading of the Mayan calendar, this weekend heralds a "harmonic convergence," a cosmic pause to adjust your vibrational rate for the age to come.

And there are those cynical souls who think it's all purest poppycock. Believers have already staked out "power points" where they'll be celebrating on Sunday and Monday.

Several thousand people are expected at Chaco Culture National Historical Park in New Mexico, campgrounds were booked up at Mount Shasta in California and Enchanted Rock in Texas, and National Parks Service officials expected 10 people — maybe more — to show up at Mesa Verde in Colorado.

The big question was whether various observances would attract the minimum 144,000 people which harmonic theorist Jose Arguelles says are needed "to create a field of trust, to ground the new vibrational frequencies coming in at that time."

Arguelles, an art historian who lives in Boulder, Colo., concludes from Mayan and other native American prophecies that a 5,125-year cycle will climax in 2012, at which time Earthlings will be in contact with alien beings.

To prepare, a period of cleansing will begin Sunday and continue at least through 1992, he says.

Michael Coe of Yale University, an authority on Mayan culture, said Arguelles' predictions are "totally crackpot."

"It's based on a hodgepodge of astrology, UFOlogy, the Mayan calendar, Aztec gods and a dash of the so-called New-Age philosophy," said Paul Kurtz, a philosopher at the State University of New York at Buffalo and chairman of the Committee for the Scientific Investigation of Claims of the Paranormal.

The convergence is reminiscent of the "Jupiter effect" which was supposed to get rid of California once and for all back in 1982, when all the planets were lined up on one side of the sun. Arguelles' theory is much more upbeat and, unlike the Jupiter effect, it doesn't call for anything in particular to happen this weekend.

"It's like taking off a jar lid, opening the planet up," said Laura Moore of Austin, Texas, who is organizing one celebration in Texas. "The earth will be like wet clay upon which we'll imprint our vision of a new world order. On the 17th, we'll dance clockwise, symbolically putting the jar lid back on."

The Park Service expects up to 5,000 people at Chaco Canyon, but Julie vonErffa, a harmonic organizer in Santa Fe, N.M., predicted 20,000.

"There are 36 power centers on the planet and 12 major power centers. Chaco Canyon is the only major power center in North America," said Maria Morrissey of Austin, Texas, who arranged a bus trip to the New Mexico site. "It's also the site of an ancient mystery school."

Record rain: 9.2 inches in Chicago area

CHICAGO (AP) — A record 9.2 inches of rain soaked the Chicago area Friday, flooding homes and expressways, isolating O'Hare International Airport and knocking out power and telephone service to thousands of people.

At least one person died during the storm, which hit hardest in northern Cook County, which encompasses Chicago, and Du Page County to the northwest. Some 300 people fled their homes, and at least one hospital, in suburban Des Plaines, had to evacuate patients.

Gov. James R. Thompson declared the two counties disaster areas, authorizing state aid for residents.

The governor also activated 200 National Guard troops to provide security and aid in evacuation efforts.

Flooding closed the Kennedy Expressway leading out of Chicago to O'Hare, making it all but impossible to reach the airport from the nation's third-largest city, said Marilyn Katz of the city's Department of Aviation.

American Airlines spokesman Steve McGregor said as many as 75 percent of the airline's flights would be canceled; United Airlines also suspended most operations until 8 p.m.

Even the weather service couldn't escape the storm. "We're stranded," said meteorologist Bob Collins, noting 3 feet of water surrounded the National Weather Service building near the airport and 6 inches of water had crept inside.

The same system dumped heavy rains on parts of Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Wisconsin and Michigan, where another traffic death was reported.

Record rainfall Thursday night and Friday in the Chicago area forces this motorist to abandon her car and wade toward her destination Friday. High water closed many streets while residents pumped out flooded basements.

Man finds three of his sisters 58 years after they separated

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A man separated from 10 siblings since the Great Depression has learned the fate of five of them in the last week and said Friday that the discoveries had filled "a great big empty space" in his life.

Ed Maddox spoke by phone with his sister, Marie Peterson, in Minneapolis on Thursday night and has learned another sister, Lillian, is in a convalescent hospital in the San Francisco Bay area.

Earlier this week, he located a sister living near Sacramento, Calif., and discovered that two brothers had died.

Maddox was one of 11 siblings who were put up for adoption by their destitute parents who came to the San Francisco area during the Depression.

He started his search after his adoptive parents died. Maddox said Friday that the discoveries have been heartwarming, but imperfect.

The 62-year-old Christian missionary who receives no salary said he cannot afford to fly to Minnesota to see Marie, and he's been told Lillian is very ill.

"Lillian will not be able to talk to anybody," he said. "She's in the final stages of Alzheimer's disease. So, it's kind of a bittersweet deal."

He may be getting together with the sister near Sacramento next week, but noted, "she is a very private person" and has not welcomed the publicity attached to his successful search.

Maddox said he learned one of his brothers — he's not sure if it was Ernest or Lloyd — died from appendicitis in an orphanage. Another, Harry, died in 1972.

That leaves five siblings still unaccounted for: Viola, Walter, Leonard, Harold and either Ernest or Lloyd.

He said the search would go on. Maddox was adopted 58 years ago at age 4 by an Oakland, Calif., streetcar motorman and his wife. At the request of his adoptive mother, he waited until her death to look into his roots. It was then that he discovered a tragic Depression-era story.

Reeling through microfilm files at The Tribune in Oakland, Maddox came across a front-page story about his family. The story said his natural parents, Harry and Agnes Bunan, had run out of money and had been refused assistance.

In desperation, the Bunans reluctantly gave their children away to strangers. "I want them to have homes, and I have no home to give them," the mother told reporters then.

Maddox, born Edmund Birdsel Bunan, was stunned and tried to find out more information from old news accounts. The Associated Press heard about his search and ran a national story about it on Monday that led him to his sister in Sacramento.

El Salvador rebels agree to talk peace

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist rebels on Friday accepted President Jose Napoleon Duarte's offer to meet Sept. 15 to discuss a cease-fire and how to end to the nation's 8-year-old civil war.

The announcement, a day after Duarte's offer, was the latest move in efforts to advance a regional Central American peace plan.

"He changes from one day to another, so we are answering very quickly in case he changes again," Ruben Zamora, a rebel leader, said in a telephone interview from his home in Nicaragua.

Two meetings between rebels and the government in 1984 ended in deadlock. A third meeting in September 1986 was canceled by the rebels when Salvadoran soldiers refused to leave the area where the conference was to be held.

In another development, El Salvador's Foreign Minister Ricardo Acevedo Peralta announced Friday that the foreign ministers of the five signatories of the peace plan — El Salvador, Nicaragua, Guatemala, Honduras and Costa Rica — will meet in San Salvador Aug. 19-20 to organize working groups and begin working on its details. The Salvadoran rebels, an alliance of the Democratic Revolutionary Front and the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, suggested in a communique accepting the talks that both they and Duarte's government be represented "at the highest level" in the negotiations.

They suggested the talks be over two days at the Roman Catholic Archdiocese in San Salvador and that Archbishop Arturo Rivera Damas act as a go-between in arranging them.

Duarte, in an address to the National Assembly Thursday, called on both the Salvadoran rebels and the U.S.-backed contra rebels in Nicaragua to accept by Aug. 30 the conditions of the regional peace plan and open simultaneous talks on Sept. 15 with the governments they have been fighting.

The president did not suggest that talks between his government and Salvadoran rebels be contingent on talks between the contras and Nicaragua' leftist Sandinista government.

White House insists no aid-plan changes

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Friday that no decision had been made on seeking renewed aid to the Nicaraguan rebels but contended there was no conflict with a senior official's comment that "our current plan is still to go in September."

Fitzwater, briefing reporters in Santa Barbara on the first full day of President Reagan's 25-day vacation, was bombarded with questions on whether the Reagan administration was reneging on a commitment — set out in the peace plan that Reagan offered last week in cooperation with House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas — that it would hold off on any move toward new aid for the contra rebels until Sept. 30.

That date was selected because it marks the end of the fiscal 1987 budget year, and because it allows six to seven weeks for the Sandinista government in Managua to accept a series of democratic reforms that could lead to a cease-fire with the contras.

A senior administration official, discussing Central American peace strategy with reporters Thursday on grounds he not be identified publicly, talked of the contras as an "insurance policy" against any move by President Daniel Ortega's Nicaragua government to drag out the peace process and get the contras' financial lifeline cut off.

Questions arose about the official's statements since it raised the possibility the administration had prejudged the prospects for success of the peace plan, and, in fact, had decided to ignore its own waiting period for deciding to seek new contra aid.

"I have looked over all the comments that were made yesterday (Thursday), and they are very clear that what we said was that we are pursuing the peace initiative, want to give it every opportunity we can, but that we will not desert the contras," Fitzwater said, "and we will be reviewing the progress that is made in achieving peace there with a decision in mind about funding after Sept. 30."

But Fitzwater insisted that "we have made no decisions on that funding at this time."

The village of Shawmut, Mass., changed its name to Boston in 1630.

Anchorage safe, but lonely

MANAMA, Bahrain — Fujairah declared its anchorage south of the Persian Gulf free of mines, but wary ship captains shunned it Friday. Reports that remote-guided "boat bombs" were the next threat prompted official warnings.

Iran said it had sent naval units to search for mines, which the United States and others accuse it of sowing, in international waters near Fujairah, a sheikdom on the Gulf of Oman.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini said in a televised speech, his first public appearance in weeks, that Iran's "Islamic holy warriors will punish" the Americans. The 87-year-old revolutionary patriarch blames the United States for nearly all Iran's problems, including the 7-year-old war with Iraq.

Fujairah closed part of its busy anchorage for about 12 hours Thursday because a supertanker hit a mine there Monday and six more of the "spiked globe" type were reported found since.

AFL-CIO fights Bork nomination

WASHINGTON — The AFL-CIO is preparing a massive campaign against President Reagan's choice of Robert H. Bork to fill a vacancy on the Supreme Court, labor leaders said Friday.

The labor federation's executive council is scheduled to vote Monday on a resolution opposing Bork's nomination. With its three largest unions already on the record against him, the council's action is merely a formality, said one source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The board of directors of the 1.2 million-member American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees voted unanimously this week to fight Bork's confirmation by the Senate, joining a chorus of other unions already in opposition.

Austria fights Waldheim charges

VIENNA, Austria — Austria has sent its embassies abroad a document intended to rebut allegations President Kurt Waldheim was involved in Nazi war crimes, but a Swiss historian said the long-awaited material is one-sided.

The 500-page document, called the "White Book," was compiled by a Foreign Ministry task force that included Waldheim's son, Gerhard.

It maintains that several documents purporting to show Waldheim's involvement in war crimes "were mischaracterized in such a way as to mislead the public. ... Thereby, an obvious effort was made to put in question the moral integrity of (Waldheim)."

Waldheim was secretary-general of the United Nations from 1972-82.

The World Jewish Congress claimed last year, during Waldheim's campaign for the Austrian presidency, that he was involved in persecuting civilians in the Balkans and deporting Jews from Greece while serving in the region with the German army in World War II.

Korean strikers get campus vote

SEOUL, South Korea — About 3,000 protesters at a campus rally chanted support Friday for strikes at major industries that have forced closure of smaller plants and threaten the vital export economy.

Riot police watched but did not interfere. Students, who often are in the vanguard of protest in South Korea, led weeks of anti-government demonstrations that caused President Chun Doo-hwan to agree June 30 to opposition demands for democratic reforms.

Strikes by tens of thousands of workers for higher pay, better working conditions and removal of government control of unions have closed or crippled major operations of such conglomerates as Hyundai, Daewoo and Lucky-Goldstar.

Four die in crash of chopper

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. — A Florida-based Air Force helicopter crashed and burned shortly after leaving Pope Air Force Base on Friday, killing all four crew members, authorities said.

The UH-60 Blackhawk went down at 5:10 p.m. about four miles north of Pope while on a routine flight from the base to Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland, officials said.

The exact nature of the mission was not immediately known, said Capt. Pat Englehardt, a public affairs officer at Eglin Air Force Base in Pensacola, Fla., where the craft was based.

Arab growth reshapes thinking on future of West Bank, Gaza

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Arab population in Israeli-held territory is growing rapidly, and this is beginning to reshape the thinking of Jews and Arabs about the future of the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Israeli leftists say the population statistics mean Israel has no choice but to return a large part of the land it seized in the 1967 Middle East war to preserve the Jewish character of the state.

But prominent Israeli right-wingers have begun to suggest that Israel could solve the problem by expelling the Palestinian population to neighboring Arab states.

Some Palestinian intellectuals predict that if Israel remains in the occupied territories or annexes them, it may prompt the Arabs to alter their strategy and seek to take over Israel from within rather than push for a separate Palestinian state.

"The demographic picture for the year 2000 means that in this year, there'll be a binational state within the land of Israel with the population ratio of 55 percent Jews to 45 percent Arabs," said Aharon Sofer, dean of the faculties of mathematics and geography at Haifa University.

Sofer, whose figures touched off the debate, said in an interview the trend could already be seen in the number of Arab and Jewish children in Israel under the age of 4 — 114,000 Arabs and 365,000 Jews.

Arabs now make up 17 percent, or 700,000 of the 4.2 million people living inside Israel's 1967 borders. There are an additional 1.4 million Arabs in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

By the year 2000, there could be 4.3 million Jews and 1.17 million Arabs inside Israel's 1967 borders, Sofer said, citing the Central Bureau of Statistics. In addition, 1.5 million Arabs will live in the West Bank and 1 million in Gaza.

Sofer attributed the growth of the Arab population to a sharp decline in the Arab death rate in the West Bank and Gaza since 1967. At the same time, he said, a trend toward Moslem fundamentalism helped maintain a high birth rate.

Sofer said unless Israel gave back the territories there would be a decline in the quality of life in Israel, more emigration of non-religious Jews, increased oppression of the Arabs and a subsequent loss of support for Israel in the West.

"There is a growing feeling of depression and fear because of the Arab demographic devil. This feeling pushes parts of the population toward becoming more radical, and this will result in more extremism on the other side, and so on," he said.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's right-wing Likud bloc opposes territorial concession. His followers argue the land should be saved for waves of immigrants who may yet arrive from the Soviet Union or the United States, where a total of more than 7 million Jews live.

Appalachian Trail fans mark 50

PORTLAND, Maine — Friends of the Appalachian Trail celebrated its 50th anniversary Friday by dedicating a trailside plaque honoring the Depression-era work crews that forged the final link in the famous footpath between Maine and Georgia.

A half-dozen former Civilian Conservation Corps members who helped cut the trail through the rugged Maine wilderness joined about 75 government officials and trail volunteers at the dedication ceremony near the base of the Sugarloaf ski area.

Part of the group rode the gondola to the summit of Sugarloaf, 150 miles north of here, and hiked a mile and a half along the trail to watch the installation of a brass plaque on a boulder near Spaulding Mountain, the last section to be completed.

Envoy Phillip Habib resigns

WASHINGTON — Phillip Habib, the U.S. special envoy for Central America, has resigned his post to return to private life, the State Department said Friday.

Spokesman Charles Redman said Habib decided to resign following the adoption of a Central America peace agreement in Guatemala City last week and the steps toward creating a bipartisan approach toward that issue between the administration and the Congress.

Habib, 67, became special envoy in early 1986 after a brief stint in which he served as diplomatic trouble-shooter in the Philippines during the transition to democratic rule there 18 months ago.

For more than a year, Habib made numerous trips to Central America, sounding out officials on the opportunities for a peaceful settlement.

Navy retiree convicted as spy

SAN DIEGO — A retired Navy radioman was convicted Friday by a military jury of committing espionage while he worked as a civilian in a U.S. naval communications center in the Philippines.

Michael H. Allen, who was in the Navy for 22 years, was sentenced to eight years at hard labor and ordered him to pay a $10,000 fine.

The six-member jury deliberated for a day before returning guilty verdicts on 10 of 12 counts. A 13th count was withdrawn early in the case.

Allen, 54, was convicted of giving Philippine intelligence officers during a six-month period in 1984 classified information he knew "could be used to the injury of the United States or to the advantage of the Philippines."

Cuban fighters rush Indy stands

INDIANAPOLIS — Nearly a dozen Cuban fighters, angered when anti-Castro demonstrators began tearing up a Cuban flag, rushed into the stands and punched at least two people during boxing competition Friday night at the Pan Am Games.

One demonstrator was cut badly around the eye and another had a bloody nose.

The boxers rushed the stands where about 3,000 fans were watching the Pan Am Games matches, when five people were taunting the Cubans and began destroying the flag.

Cuban light heavyweight Pablo Romero, a two-time world champion, was seen landing blows on the demonstrators.

Security guards and Indianapolis police pulled the Cubans off the demonstrators and took the two who appeared to be injured away.

"It was definitely a provoked incident," said Jim Fox, executive director of the U.S. Boxing Federation.

Mild quake shakes Aleutians

WASHINGTON — A moderate earthquake shook the Fox Islands in the Aleutian chain off the coast of Alaska early Friday, the U.S. Geological Survey reported.

The Survey's Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., measured the quake at 5.3 on the Richter Scale, Survey officials said.

They said that it was not felt in any inhabited area and caused no reported damage.

The center of the quake was about 870 miles southwest of Anchorage, the Survey said, and occurred at 7:40 a.m. Alaska time (1:40 p.m. EDT).

The Richter scale is a gauge of the energy released in an earthquake as measured by the ground motion recorded on instruments.

Personnel from the Philadelphia medical examiner's office remove body parts from a house near the trash-strewn apartment where the remains of seven people were found earlier this week.

New skeleton found; suspect still at large

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Police found a partial skeleton wrapped in a blanket Friday in a house three doors from a drug haven where the remains of seven people were discovered earlier this week.

The newest remains were unearthed from a shallow grave in the basement of a house near the north Philadelphia row house apartment of Harrison "Marty" Graham, who has been the target of a manhunt since Sunday.

A search of the grave revealed few clues to the victim's identity, but authorities said it was possible the remains were those of the same person whose leg and foot bones were found Monday on the rear roof of Graham's building.

"We don't know whether it's a full skeleton or only part, and at this point we don't know if this is an eighth victim or an unrelated incident," said detective Gerald Whartenby.

A resident voluntarily submitted to police questioning after the newest remains were discovered in what was called a routine search of his house. Detective William Kelhower declined to release his name or say what information he divulged.

The medical examiner was examining the remains, but no results were released Friday. Authorities continued investigating the grave and a second depression in the dirt floor of the basement, which was cluttered with debris, Kelhower said.

The house, in the center of a slum known for its drug activity, was recently inspected and found to have many housing and fire code violations, he said. A syringe was lying in the street in front of it and more syringes and a large kitchen knife were in a nearby lot.

Police also investigated more than 40 reported sightings of Graham, but none led to his arrest Friday, said Kelhower.

Blind sailor rides out the storm

ST. GEORGE, Bermuda (AP) — A man attempting to become the first blind sailor to cross the Atlantic alone docked in this port Friday, his sloop guided through rough seas and Bermuda's treacherous reefs by its designer.

Jim Dickson, 41, left Portsmouth, R.I. on Aug. 4, bound for Plymouth, England. But he had to head for this tiny British colony, 200 miles out of his way, when his talking computer and autopilot broke down.

The tide trip was lengthened by tropical storm Ariene, which Dickson had to ride out at sea Thursday, about 60 miles north of Bermuda.

Paul Petronello, whose Rhode Island company designed Dickson's 36-foot sloop Eye Opener, boarded the vessel shortly after noon Friday and guided it to St. George, a port at the north end of Bermuda, said Timothy Winkelmann of Bermuda's Rescue Coordination Center.

Petronello, who had arrived in Bermuda Wednesday, sailed north Friday morning in a lifeboat to meet the Eye Opener outside the reef line.

In 10-foot waves and high winds left by the storm, Petronello leaped from the lifeboat onto the Eye Opener's pitching deck.

Ayatollah: Islam will punish U.S.

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini said Friday that Islamic "holy warriors" will punish the United States, which he blamed for the deaths of Iranian pilgrims in Saudi Arabia.

"When we fight for justice, they fight against us," Khomeini said of the United States. "The whole world, including the United States, can do what it likes. They are only creating problems for themselves."

The 87-year-old patriarch, appearing in public for the first time since hundreds of Iranian pilgrims died July 31 in rioting in Saudi Arabia, blamed America for the "action in Mecca," Islam's holiest city.

The Saudis said 402 people were killed in Mecca, 275 of them Iranian pilgrims, in rioting instigated by the Iranians. Most Iranians belong to the Moslem Shiite sect, which has been at odds for centuries with much of the rest of Islam, which is dominated by the Sunni sect.

"What the Americans are doing is nonsense," said Khomeini. "Islamic holy warriors will punish them."

Khomeini had already blamed Washington for the deaths in a written message read over Tehran radio the day after the riots.

His speech Friday was delivered from the balcony of his home in north Tehran and broadcast on Iranian television, monitored in Nicosia.

The United States is massing warships in the region in a bid to protect Kuwait tankers from Iranian attack, but Khomeini did not mention the Persian Gulf, where the U.S. Navy has been escorting Kuwait tankers.

Iran accuses Kuwait of transshipping goods to Iraq, its foe in a nearly 7-year-old war.

Khomeini, whose speech marked the Shiite feast of Ghadir, devoted most of his remarks to theological points. He looked fit and spoke in a strong, unwavering voice.

He said countries that separate religion from politics are bound to have "tyrannical and despotic" rulers, but he mentioned no nation by name.

When Khomeini concluded his speech, the audience chanted "God, Until the Return of the Mahdi (prophet), Keep Khomeini Alive" and "War, War Until Victory."

"It was a very difficult transfer, but Paul managed to do it," said Winkelmann, who estimated seas in the area were as high as 10 feet and winds were gusting up to 35 mph.

As the worst of Ariene tossed the Eye Opener about Thursday afternoon, Petronello spoke to Dickson on a ship-to-shore radio and described the Washington, D.C. sailor as being in good spirits.

At noon EDT Friday, Ariene's center was near latitude 33.0 degrees north and longitude 61.5 degrees west, or about 200 miles east-northeast of Bermuda,

Highlights of the week

By The Associated Press

- The Commerce Department reported that the country's merchandise trade deficit widened to $15.71 billion in June, up from a revised $14.04 billion gap in May.
- Output at the nation's factories, mines and utilities rose 0.8 percent in July, the biggest increase in 15 months, the Federal Reserve reported.
- Wholesale prices rose a modest 0.2 percent in July, with lower food prices offsetting large jumps in the cost of energy, the Labor Department said.
- Total business sales climbed 1.5 percent in June while business inventories grew by a much smaller 0.4 percent, the Commerce Department reported.
- Retail sales rose 0.8 percent in July as consumers returned to auto showrooms and department and furniture stores, the Commerce Department said.
- Car sales were up 12.1 percent from Aug. 1-10, one of the best sales periods this year, the seven major U.S. automakers said.
- A record 125.8 million Americans, or roughly 69 percent of the nation's working-age population, held jobs during all or part of 1986, the Labor Department said.
- Sales of existing homes overcame rising mortgage rates during the spring to post double-digit increases, a real estate group said.
- President Reagan signed legislation into law that will pump $10.8 billion into the troubled Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp.
- Jim Walter Corp., a major homebuilder, agreed to go private in a sweetened $2.43 billion leveraged buyout by the New York investment firm Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co.
- BCI Holdings, parent of Beatrice Companies, said it will sell its international foods business in a $965 million leveraged buyout led by TLC, a closely held investment firm that would become the nation's biggest black-owned business.
- Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. agreed to sell its Celeron Oil & Gas Co. to Exxon Corp. for about $650 million.
- Utah Power & Light Co.'s agreed to merge with Portland, Ore.-based PacifiCorp to create an $8.7 billion utility.
- A partnership led by T. Boone Pickens said it has acquired a 9.1 percent stake in Newmont Mining Corp. and may launch a takeover for the company.
- New Jersey gaming regulators blocked a proposed $1.1 billion recapitalization plan that Caesars World Inc. used to fend off unwanted suitor Martin Sosnoff.
- United Airlines pilots, who are bidding to acquire the carrier, named former Piedmont Aviation Chairman William Howard as their top executive.
- TRW Inc. will design and supply airbags and seatbelts for Ford Motor Co. and will create a new subsidiary to handle the contract, which could be worth up to $1 billion a year by 1990.
- The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration is investigating complaints of sudden acceleration in three models of 1986-87 General Motors Corp. cars.

Wall Street: What's next?

Stock market breaking records and the rules

By Chet Currier
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — After a week in which the great bull market celebrated its fifth anniversary with the biggest point gain ever in the Dow Jones industrial average and setting a new volume record, what can Wall Street do for an encore?

Many analysts confess they don't have a ready answer. The market's runaway rise has reached a point where most of the standard rules don't seem to apply.

Price-earnings ratios are extraordinarily high, and dividend yields are near their lowest point in modern market history? Stock buyers don't care.

Interest rates are holding at stubbornly high levels relative to inflation? Stock buyers were undeterred.

A very edgy situation in the Middle East? Disappointing news on the trade deficit? At the slightest dip in the stock market, new buyers jump in for a ride on the marvelous money machine.

"I wish I were enjoying this more," said Greg Smith, analyst at Prudential-Bache Securities, in his latest commentary on the investment scene.

"But I find I can't comfortably toss aside what has been an extended and sometimes rewarding commitment to fundamental analysis and just yell 'Go for it!'"

"Except in the case of a mania, the power of any market move is limited because at some price, something else becomes more attractive. The exception is when the returns on other investments are considered to be so poor by comparison as to be irrelevant."

Since the start of 1987, Smith noted, the stock market has produced a return on the order of 40 percent. Money market investments, by contrast, hover in the range of 6 percent a year.

In the bond market, there have been some recent months where total returns were negative because prices fell faster than interest accrued.

"So it is possible," Smith concluded, "that interest rates and other investment alternatives will become irrelevant to investors, and that we are witnessing a true mania."

Manias in any market are regarded as dangerous, because they prompt reckless decisions and attract so many people that they exhaust investors' buying power.

"But they are not all bad—at least not while they last," Smith observed.

Mania or not, the market put on quite a show in the past week. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed above 2,600 for the first time on Monday. By Thursday afternoon, it had made its first foray past 2,700.

The average closed Friday at 2,685.43, up 93.43 points from the week before. That topped the previous largest weekly point gain of 92.91 points set March 10-14, 1986.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index climbed 5.81 to 186.68, and the market value index at the American Stock Exchange was up 2.55 at 363.61.

Volume on the Big Board averaged 222.94 million shares a day on a record weekly total of 1.11 billion.

While the reported July rise matched that of June, the monthly annualized rate—calculated from a more precise compilation of price changes than the overall rate released by the department—dropped from 2.9 percent to 2 percent.

The Commerce Department said prices to raise its producer price index for finished goods 0.2 percent over June.

While the reported July rise matched that of June, the monthly annualized rate—calculated from a more precise compilation of price changes than the overall rate released by the department—dropped from 2.9 percent to 2 percent.

Including the July figures, inflation at the wholesale level for the first seven months of 1987 is running about 4.2 percent, down from 4.5 percent for the first six months.

White House spokesman Marijn Fitzwater, reacting to the producer price figures, said in Santa Barbara, Calif., where President Reagan is on vacation: "This is good news on the inflation front."

Austrian firm to pay penalty

WASHINGTON — The Commerce Department said Friday that an Austrian firm has agreed to pay a $200,000 fine for re-exporting U.S. computer equipment to Communist countries without approval from the United States.

The agreed penalty was levied against Datapoint International of Austria. From Dec. 1, 1981, through Jan. 31, 1984, the company made 37 shipments of U.S. computer equipment to Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Poland, the department said.

The total penalty was put at $275,000, but $75,000 of the fine was suspended as long as the firm commits no further violations of U.S. law over the next three years.

The department said Datapoint cooperated in the investigation and that certain of the violations involved transactions for which licenses would probably have been approved if the company had applied.

CNG's profits down 75 percent

HARTFORD — Connecticut Natural Gas Corp. Friday reported a profit of $267,000 for this year's second quarter, a decrease of 75 percent from the profit of $1.06 million in the same period of 1986.

Revenues for the three months ended June 30 rose to $38.2 million compared with $37.8 million a year earlier, the company said in a statement.

The company also said its profit for the first six months of 1987 declined to $9.3 million from $9.9 million a year earlier. For the 1987 period, revenues were $117.7 million compared with $126.5 million a year ago.

CNG attributed the performance declines to warmer weather and a drop in the price of natural gas.

State car costs above average

HARTFORD — The average Connecticut motorist pays more than the national average to own and operate a car in the state, according to figures compiled by the Automobile Association of America.

AAA statistics show that Connecticut drivers paid an average of 25.9 cents per mile to own and operate their cars in the second quarter of this year. The figure is an increase of less than a penny from the first quarter and is higher than the 25.1 cents paid nationwide, according to AAA.

Another reason for the higher cost is reflected in the state's 19-cent per gallon gasoline tax, which is the third highest in the nation, the AAA said.

The figures mean that a motorist who drove 15,000 miles a year would pay $1,049 in operating costs, which include fuel, oil and maintenance.

Mutual funds with 12b-1 plans may use assets for marketing

QUESTION:

You have consistently advised your readers to steer clear of mutual funds with 12b-1 plans. I paid little attention to your warnings, because none of the funds in which I own shares has such a plan. However, I now am being solicited to invest in a fund with a 12b-1 plan.

Please explain 12b-1 plans. In particular, where did that unusual name "12b-1 plan" originate?

Investors' Guide

William A. Doyle

ANSWER: The name comes from Rule 12b-1, adopted by the Securities and Exchange Commission in 1980. That rule allows the management of a mutual fund with such a plan to use part of the fund's asset to pay marketing expenses on the sale of new shares.

At some mutual funds with 12b-1 plans, up to 1.25 percent of the funds' assets are spent annually on marketing expenses. Those expenses include commissions to brokers who sell fund shares, sales literature and that all encompassing term "public relations."

The important point to keep in mind is that a mutual fund's assets belong to the fund's shareholders—not its management. The SEC seemed to ignore that point when it caved in to fund management types and adopted Rule 12b-1.

If a fund's management uses a 12b-1 plan to dip into the fund's assets, existing shareholders are forced to pay the cost of bringing new shareholders into the fund.

That cost can be substantial. If you own $10,000 worth of shares in a mutual fund and 1.25 percent of the fund's assets are spent annually on marketing through the 12b-1 plan, $125 will disappear from the value of your investment each and every year.

Those 12b-1 expenses are in addition to the fund's other operating expenses. Although many mutual funds do not have 12b-1 plans, all have operating expenses.

For the typical mutual fund, the biggest operating expenses is the "advisory" or "management" fee paid to people who run the fund and pick the securities in which the fund invests. That fee usually runs about one-half of 1 percent of fund assets.

Other costs for such things as shareholder services, custodian, accounting, legal, auditing and prospectus printing increase a fund's operating expenses. When a fund's management does a good job holding costs down, it should be able to keep total annual expenses below three-quarters of 1 percent—certainly no higher than 1 percent.

A 12b-1 plan can more than double a mutual fund's annual operating expenses.

QUESTION: If a mutual fund has a 12b-1 plan, must it be clearly identified in the fund's prospectus, or is it hidden?

ANSWER: It must be mentioned in the prospectus, which is a "disclosure document." Clearly identified? That depends on how good you are at studying legalese.

You'll find the term 12b-1 in the prospectus of some funds. But other funds with those plans attempt to hide them by identifying them with words such as "distribution plan."

You often have to do a hard study of a prospectus to learn if any of the fund's assets are being spent for marketing.

QUESTION: How are distribution and marketing costs paid, in the case of a mutual fund which has no 12b-1 plan?

ANSWER: If it's a "load" fund, those expenses are paid out of the commissions investors are charged when they purchase the fund's shares.

Some funds levy "redemption fees" or "contingent deferred sales charges" when investors cash in their shares. The money from those rear-end loads often is used to pay distribution and marketing costs.

If it's a true "no-load" fund, with no front load, no rear-end load and no 12b-1 plan, management pays the distribution and marketing costs out of the advisory fee it collects from the fund.

After all, the advisory fee collected by the management of a sizeable mutual fund can amount to many millions of dollars annually.

Selling stocks harder than buying

By John Cunniff
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Selling stocks is always more difficult than buying them, and this year the decision is especially so.

First, the market has so much momentum, with some blue chips running up $2 a share in a matter of hours, that a one-day delay in selling can mean big bucks—more than some people are likely to earn for working an eight-hour day.

Then there is the reality of capital gains taxes, which this year can take a very big bite from profits. If you don't sell you don't pay those taxes, and so remain free to luxuriate in musing about the great size of your assets.

Adding to the tension is the uncertainty of future tax policy. What if sometime in the future Congress cuts the capital gains tax from its present 28 percent of net profit to, say, 15 percent? Many people think it will do so.

For understandable reasons, some psychological, the sell decision gets short shrift from a great many investors and investment advisers. To sell, for instance, is to retire from the game and the attendant activity and excitement.

To sell also means to give up for the time being the notion that your portfolio and your dreams will get bigger and better. To buy is to expect better times; very often, to sell means a return to humdrum reality.

Selling is also viewed as aggressive, and to aggressively pursue a better life is so ingrained in the American psyche that it cannot be separated from such lofty notions as truth, patriotism, liberty and love.

The attitude that well-directed action of almost any sort bears great rewards is also fed by success stories, by tales of immigrants who rose from poverty to wealth, by risk-takers who built great companies and fortunes.

Most stock market advisories also seem to concentrate on buying, for very obvious reasons: they are selling opportunity and hope; they are in the business of finding new investments, not closing out old dreams.

Society also seems to have little admiration for the passive accumulator, the individual who earns little but spends less, who regularly saves a bit here and there until compounding and the years make of it a wondrous golden pile.

The tendency to buy rather than save is especially prevalent in the past year, with the savings rate falling to all-time lows and the use of credit rising to near all-time highs. Getting is considered good; waiting is passe.

With such attitudes prevailing, it is no wonder that buying stocks is easier than selling them. And when selling involves a big tax bite, thanks to last year's tax "cut," it is understandable why sellers procrastinate.

For many of them a 28 percent capital gains tax on the full profits is double what they would have paid last year, when only a portion of profits were taxed. For those in a 35 percent bracket, last year's tax liability might have been just 14 percent.

With this year's rate set at 28 percent of all profits, and with many investors enjoying once-in-a-generation gains, the sell decision becomes almost impossible for some.

Many of them feel locked in, for better or worse, if not by their own minds then by Uncle Sam's tax collector.

OPINION

IRS crack bites hard

It seems almost everybody has something bad to say about the pit bullterrier, but U.S. Rep. Ron Marlenee, R-Mont., has taken the hype a step too far.

While addressing his colleagues in the House, Marlenee compared the headline-making pit bull to the people who run the Internal Revenue Service.

"Both are violent, vicious creatures who prey on the unfortunate," he said. "But in the case of the IRS, the unfortunate are taxpayers."

Marlenee was making the comparison in an effort to have his colleagues support a taxpayers' bill of rights, which, in his words, would stop the IRS from its propensity for seizing the property of the poor and helpless.

While the measure may have some merit, it is sad that Marlenee has to stoop to superlative comparisons to make his point. The pit bullterrier and the IRS are both infamous for their attacks on humans, but to be coy in the face of such a serious issue only clouds the matter further.

Instead of trying to impress the public with his cute comparisons, Marlenee should try to impress the public by working on his legislation.

D.C. hot and slow

It's no wonder the House of Representatives has a reputation for being excessively slow and methodical.

Case in point: Florida Republican E. Clay Shaw recently had the audacity to waste the House's time by making a speech on how sick he is of having to correct colleagues who compare the weather in Washington to that in his home state.

"Mr. Speaker," he said. "Something has been bothering me for some time and I would like to bring it to the attention of the House. As the temperature reaches the high 90s ... members increasingly come up to me and say, 'How do you like this Florida weather?' This is Washington weather. Anyone who thinks this is Florida weather, I invite them to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to enjoy our cool surf and cooling breezes."

But what does Shaw know about Washington weather? He made his speech in an air-conditioned chamber, which is connected by air-conditioned tunnels to air-conditioned office buildings, restaurants and barber shops.

It appears that Shaw wouldn't know the difference between the surf of Florida and the sweat of Washington if he didn't have to leave his air-conditioned paradise to return to Florida to get re-elected every two years.

As the life expectancy lengthens, will the presidency be affected?

What effect will the lengthening life span have, if any, on presidential races?

I have no crystal ball, but the increasing life expectancy could have some effect.

My latest clipping tells me that women outlive men by about seven years.

Specifically, the Department of Health and Human Services said the 74.7-year average expectation of life at birth is a record that has been maintained since 1984.

The study said life expectancy for females in 1984 was 78.2 years, compared with 71.2 years for males, both increased from levels for the previous years.

The life expectancy differences between the sexes had been widening from 1900 to 1972, but has narrowed since 1979.

President Reagan is our current prime example of a senior citizen in the White House. Reagan is the oldest man ever elected president — and since then he has broken a record for White House tenure every day.

He won't be running again, but he could have an influence on who gets the Republican nomination. Possibly we will see more seniors announce their candidacy following his years.

Before Reagan became the 40th president, the age record belonged to ninth president William

N. La Verl Christensen

Henry Harrison, who was 68 at his inauguration on March 4, 1841. He died a month later when a cold turned to pneumonia.

Harrison, you will remember from history, served the shortest time of any president.

A few more presidents: Dwight Eisenhower was 66 to start his second term, James Buchanan was elected at 65, and Zachary Taylor, 65.

Vice President Theodore Roosevelt was installed at 42. He was the youngest to become president, succeeding to the office on the assassination and death of President William McKinley in 1901. Later he was elected president for a term of his own.

John F. Kennedy was 43 when he became the youngest elected president.

On the other end of the spectrum, John Adams and Herbert Hoover lived the longest — 90 years old.

Franklin D. Roosevelt had the longest tenure of any president — 12 years, 1 month and 8 days.

We look backward to the oldest and youngest presidents. But by far, the largest number have been in their 50s.

George Washington was 57; Abraham Lincoln was 52. Besides Kennedy and Theodore Roosevelt, only a certain few have been in their 40s — Ulysses S. Grant, 46; Grover Cleveland, 47; Franklin Pierce, 48; James A. Garfield and James Polk, 49.

An Associated Press account on Reagan's most recent birthday party, Feb. 7, said the slogan for the day was "Happy Birthday Mr. President. Here's the Spirit of '76!'"

The quiet John Glenn takes on the CIA

WASHINGTON — Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, has been a quiet and relatively uncontroversial member of the Senate since his arrival in 1975. But now, at 66 and in his third term, the much-decorated Marine combat veteran and first American to orbit the Earth is plunging into several potentially hot issues.

Jack Anderson

Glenn is chairman of the Government Affairs Committee, a post once held by the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy, R-Wis. It may now lack the glamour of some higher-profile chairmanships, but Glenn correctly notes that the committee has the "broadest jurisdiction" of any in Congress.

Under the slogan, "Money traced, less waste," Glenn has put forth a number of specific proposals intended to make federal agencies accountable to Congress. Most likely to ignite controversy is his plan to give the General Accounting Office — Congress's auditing arm — the right to look at the books of the Central Intelligence Agency. The CIA is the only federal agency that bars GAO investigators from auditing its operations.

The country needs "a strong, independent, but accountable CIA," Glenn told our reporter Gary Clouser. Though the spy agency has its own inspector general, Glenn said the Iran-contra scandal is "proof that we cannot be content with internal reviews alone."

The CIA won't comment on Glenn's pending legislation to authorize specific GAO oversight, but sources say the agency is afraid the proposal would jeopardize the CIA's ability to conduct covert operations.

Glenn does not dispute the need for covert activities. But he pointed out that the CIA's successful efforts have been those conducted in support of "established public policy and without exposure in either the target country or domestically." Problems arise, he said, when the covert operation is inconsistent with public policy. He noted that his plan includes safeguards to ensure that particular sensitive activities are not jeopardized.

Another touchy agency Glenn is concerned about is the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. He believes the relationship between the commission and the nuclear power industry is "too cozy." It was Glenn who urged the resignation of NRC commissioner Thomas Roberts after a sensitive memo was leaked to a Louisiana utility, tipping it off that an investigation was under consideration.

The nuclear commission is one of four agencies that Glenn wants to require to have inspectors general.

The others are the Treasury, the Office of Personnel Management and the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

The senator has also proposed creation of a Treasury undersecretary for financial management, to deal with federal agencies' senior officials and "end the current policy of ad hoc, agency-by-agency improvements" in financial management. The government, he noted, is spending "close to $2 billion in a series of financial management projects without proper coordination."

While determined to go after weaknesses in federal agencies' top management, Glenn is equally determined to defend career civil servants, whom he calls the "institutional memory" of the government. He deplored the Reagan administration's treatment of such employees as adversaries and targets for "bureaucrat bashing." He noted with concern a recent study he requested that showed a decline in the number of career employees and an increase in political appointees.

Glenn, who ran unsuccessfully for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1984, still has a touch of White House fever. He hasn't ruled out a late entry into the 1988 race. But he won't run unless he can get his $2.1 million 1984 debt "better under control." Glenn believes he has better name recognition than the other Democrats and has "centrist" views that the party seems increasingly willing to accept.

Chastened dictator

The CIA concluded that the U.S. raid on Libya in April 1986 played a major role in Moammar Gadhafi's subsequent restraint in support of international terrorism. This isn't just knee-jerk CIA support for the White House; there's solid evidence to buttress the agency's conclusion. Most persuasive were some supposedly secret communications between Tripoli and Libyan embassies in key countries. The messages, which were intercepted by the National Security Agency, included orders from Gadhafi to stop terrorist planning and operations.

In addition, several dozen terrorist-training instructors from Middle Eastern and Soviet bloc countries were told to pack their bags and leave Libya. The CIA doesn't think Gadhafi has withdrawn from terrorism completely, however. The agency has uncovered traces of Libyan financial support for some terrorist groups that Gadhafi figured the CIA would never find out about. Still, the Libyans' terror network has shrunk appreciably from the days when Gadhafi bragged about his anti-American depredations to anyone who'd listen.

Inka dinka doo

The Yankee dollar is part Swiss. The ink for U.S. greenbacks is manufactured in the United States by a Swiss firm called Sicpa. It was determined four years ago that the Bureau of Engraving and Printing could no longer afford to make its own ink, and the Swiss firm was the most qualified ink-maker to offer a bid. The bureau can't use just any old ink; printing mistakes are quickly spotted by collectors and remain a permanent source of embarrassment.

"Hi, hon'! How was the bullet situation on the freeway today?"

Teaching minority journalists

By Chuck Stone

My mail is as American as a map of the United States.

I don't want to mislead you with the impression that letters flood my desk with the Niagara-like flood abundance enjoyed by a sob-sister columnist.

But letters do arrive from places like Alton, Ill.; Anchorage, Alaska; Augusta, Ga.; Blytheville, Ark.; Goldsboro, N.C.; Flint, Mich.; Key West, Fla.; Lynn, Mass.; and Yakima, Wash. From them, "I hear America singing."

For the past two weeks, I taught a group of 20 high school students whose parents were black, Chinese, Colombian-Palestinian, Costa Rican, Dominican-Cuban, East Indian, Peruvian and Salvadoran. Aspiring journalists, they were members of a two-week New Jersey Minorities Journalism Workshop, one of 24 similar workshops around the country.

Because minorities make up a dismal 6 percent in the nation's newsrooms, these workshops hope to raise that percentage.

"We were an ethnic college as diverse as a scrambled Rubik's cube," wrote one student.

In their slogan-splashed christened Oprah Winfrey for her startling resemblance. Another comely Chinese teen-ager was dubbed "Ollie North's campaign manager" for her T-shirt urging North's presidential candidacy. And most of the girls developed a crush on a handsome East Indian teen-ager. But they all were as American as apple pie, pizza and hot dogs.

For two weeks, we argued, polled people and reported on the workshop's theme, "How free should free speech be?" It was singularly appropriate for the 200th anniversary of the Constitution. I doubt, however, that the founding fathers expected to contend with dirty words, sexist, racist and pornographic pictures and literature as an everyday occurrence.

But these were exceptional students, as proud of their multi-ethnicity as of their all-American heritage.

Did they learn this sense of pride in school? Probably.

Yet, some educators are critical of high school texts for not teaching the development of the democratic institutions that have shaped American society.

A just-released national study evaluating five world history texts used in the Washington, D.C., area concluded the books generally neglect this mission.

The texts "leave the story of democracy largely untold," observed one social studies coordinator.

Is there a point at which education becomes indoctrination?

Are high school textbooks shunning their rightful role of teaching democratic values because of some misguided fear of ethnocentrism?

Such questions are, finally, hair-splitting.

In an increasingly tense world of conflicting ideologies, the one moral anchor we must give our children is an understanding, a respect and an affection for the values of their society.

Teach its shortcomings? Yes. But first teach American kids an appreciation of their nation's splendid role in the history of civilization.

Church Bulletin Board

Faith Baptist Church

The Puppet Prospectors of Nashville, Mich., will lead the vacation Bible school this week at Faith Baptist Church on Lake Street. The "company" includes the Rhinestone Cowboy, comic clowns, Grandpa Wisely and other humorous puppet characters.

These puppets have traveled from Washington, D.C., to Alaska, teaching Christian stories. They are accompanied by a multi-media slide show. The Bible school, for all ages, will meet at 7 p.m. Monday through Friday. For more information, call Jeff Benner, 646-5316.

Jewish populations growing

NEW YORK (AP) — The two American communities with the fastest growing Jewish populations are Palm Springs, Calif., and Howard County, Maryland. The 1987 American Jewish Yearbook says the two nearly doubled their Jewish population in the last decade, topping a list of 10 communities with leading Jewish population gains in that period, including these increases:

Houston, Texas, 50 percent; Honolulu, 40 percent; Boston metropolitan region, 34 percent; Orange County, Calif., 33 percent; Atlantic City, N.J., 32 percent; Sacramento, Calif., 17 percent; Birmingham, Ala., 13 percent; and Palm Beach, Fla., 11 percent.

The U.S. Jewish population was estimated at 5.8 million, about 2.5 percent of the population and about the same as before.

Lutheran youths organize

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — In naming a new Lutheran youth organization linked to the merged Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, a national meeting of high school and college students shunned the familiar "Luther League."

Opposing that name, Emily Leuba of Phoenix, Ariz., said it sounded like a "baseball team made up of men who are all at least 30." Instead, the youths decided on Lutheran Youth Organization, also adopting its constitution.

Thoughts

There is a verse in John's Gospel that says, "They loved the approval of men rather than the approval of God." Jn. 12:43.

The subject is peer pressure. We associate that with teenagers but all of us are subject to our dominate social group. We conform to be accepted lest someone suggest we are not up to date.

Vance Packard in his book "The Status Seekers" showed how we are concerned about choosing the right address, shopping for status (we look for the right labels), choose the right clubs, etc. He noted that as people climb the social ladder, Democrats become Republicans and Pentecostals become Episcopalians. All seems quite innocent until an issue comes that tests our character. Nazi's pretended to be good Lutherans and all Lutherans had to decide if the two were compatible.

We are called to decide what is God's will and then stand with him whether it's popular or not. Grave moral issues cannot be resolved by taking a vote. God does not conform to a referendum.

Issues that will affect us all are being decided every day. Can we permit the continual destruction of the rain forests. The issue is jobs versus the world's oxygen supply. It is easy to vote for a job now for it's a future generation that may face extinction. Or are we willing to reduce our standard of living to share with the world's hungry. All these issues demand a searching of God's will and willingness to sacrifice.

Sacrifice is the key word. God is interested in the peaceful accomplishment of personal fulfillment. (Salvation.) This always calls for willingness to sacrifice for others. God declared this on a cross. We must decide if we desire the approval of men more than the approval of God.

Here today! Here tomorrow!

Editor's note: This column is prepared by the staff of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches.

By Nancy Carr Executive Director

Headlines about MACC these days are reading "Hire Today! Gone Tomorrow!" and I must say it really feels that way to me (and to an overworked personnel committee).

However, in spite of the staff turnovers the real story is "Here Today! Here Tomorrow!" The shelter is open night after night through foul weather and fair, the soup kitchen serves meals every weekday at noon through staff illness and vacation. The Fuel Bank, Emergency Pantry, and Human Needs crisis intervention fund all continue. None of the MACC emergency services have ever shut their doors (once we had a door to keep open) in 14 years of service, thanks to our most dedicated volunteers and to staff who put in extra hours to fill in the gaps.

Since staffing seems to be news-worthy, I thought it best to provide you with an update as of Aug. 15.

SAMARITAN SHELTER: The resignation of Connie Scott effective Aug. 7 was received with considerable regret by everyone in the conference since she is an exceptionally competent and caring lady. In the short six months she was with MACC, Connie worked wonders. Staffing patterns were changed to incorporate all-night coverage, new staff hired and trained, new forms developed both to expedite the preparation of the endless reports to funders and to facilitate the new case-management system to help shelter clients find appropriate employment, housing, training and/or treatment. New health measures and operational procedures were instituted and the whole shelter spiffed up from top to bottom. Connie came in the midst of chaos, left us with an orderly, well-functioning shelter and soup kitchen, and gave us enough notice so that we were able to hire interim administrator, Pat Burt, who started right in on Aug. 5.

Connie has taken a position with an international adoption agency and will be traveling to exotic countries as well as transforming the lives of children and prospective parents. Having Connie for six months was a tremendous boon in the development of a smoothly operating shelter program. Blessings, Connie, and thanks and good wishes from us all.

We've worked with Pat Burt before and are delighted she could step in to take over the administrative tasks. Priscilla "Pat" Burt has a B.A. degree from Anderson-Broadus and has completed courses in supervision and ministry with the elderly. She started her career in a Christian center in Boston where part of her responsibilities included working with the homeless. Many of you already know Pat, as she has been active in religious education throughout Connecticut. Working with Pat at the shelter are our very able case manager, Debbie Rutledge, who covers from 2 p.m. to 10 p.m., and night supervisor, Mark Melley, who supervises the shelter from 9 p.m. to 7 a.m. weekdays and provides backup to the volunteers who staff from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. nightly.

Charlie Cone and Bill Schultz cover weekends and we've just welcomed Tim Thibedeau on staff. Tim is a Yale divinity student who will be filling in for staff at the shelter and soup kitchen during vacations, holidays and illness. To top off our good fortune, Sally Albert has taken over as volunteer bookkeeper for the shelter/soup kitchen (what a relief) joining Doreen Spano, our volunteer bookkeeper of in-kind gifts and donations. Good news? Yes, indeed.

PROJECT RE-ENTRY: Our Department of Corrections-funded program to help ex-offenders make a successful adjustment back into the community, has seen some hard days this year. First, when Jim Foley, who had been with us for three and one-half years and was doing a great job, left for a better paying position, we had difficulty finding an adequate replacement and the office was closed to new clients for six weeks. Johnson Omokey was hired in mid-March and though Johnson had an extensive educational background in corrections and was finishing work on his master's degree in criminal justice, he was still involved in case management and counseling for substance-abuse training when he resigned June 30 to take another position.

However, we were able to hire Peter Ward, drug alcohol counselor, and Deborah Rutledge, shelter case manager, on a part-time basis. Since Peter and Debbie were already familiar with many of the Re-Entry clients, working with them has been a real plus to the program. A full-time Re-Entry director, Jeff Cox, will begin Sept. 7. You may remember Jeff, who has worked with MACC previously as the shelter case manager. Jeff has finished his master's degree and we're delighted to have him rejoin the conference staff.

DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN NEEDS: We're losing Jane Sherman, our energetic and cheerful coordinator of the Emergency Pantry, Feed-a-Friend and other programs. Jane is returning to Southern Connecticut State University to finish her master's in social work. Jane has done a super job for us and is leaving the programs well organized and running smoothly. She even gave us three months' notice so she could train her replacement before she left. Unfortunately, a 40-hour-a-week position that pays $11,500 a year is not easy to fill. At this point, the position has been offered to a qualified candidate (who has not yet returned from a trip to Europe).

AS A RESULT of the staffing shortages in the past two years, the board of directors will be reviewing all the work of MACC and staff positions to determine if paid and volunteer staff might be utilized more effectively.

One up-front difficulty is salary levels. In a competitive work market where the salary range is so much higher than ours, it is difficult to attract and keep competent staff. Social workers for the town, for example, begin at $20,190 a year (effective July 1986), higher than that of the directors of our programs. We're hoping to significantly increase staff salaries in 1988. In the meantime we are fortunate in having kept such well-qualified and productive staff as Beth Harlow, our Human Needs director, who is finishing her master's in social work and has extensive experience in the field of human services, and Joanne Coykendall, whose degree is in education but brings those organizational skills to operating the Clothing Bank, Furniture Bank and the Farmer's Market. And supporting all the programs and staff are the volunteers, who are the heart and core of all that we do.

A 1938 hurricane that swept over parts of New York, New Jersey and New England killed nearly 700 people.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
 by Eugene Brower

Of all human relationships probably none is less prepared for, more presumed upon, and more abused and perverted than marriage. Consequently the carnage wrought in the lives of this institution's participants in Western culture is of increasing concern to behavioral scientists from various disciplines.

The fading of societal taboos has made (acceptable) certain behavior patterns which undermine marriage. Even some ideologists who opposed those social restraints are beginning to have second thoughts.

Considering the emotional and physical chaos resulting from the marital disarray around us, surely it is time for us to look again to the Judeo-Christian principles long undergirding Western civilization. Victorian excesses aside, self-restraint and concern for others in human conduct are surely needed, Phil. 2:3-4.

Any philosophy that makes man master of his fate, the sovereign ruler of his life, misses the mark.

Uninvited bear joins picnic for pets

LAKE ALPINE, Calif. (AP) — Forest Rosengren wanted to share some time with her pet pig Daisy and her German shepherd dog in the Sierras, so she took them camping here.

All was quiet as woman, dog and pig rested in their tent Sunday afternoon, until a 200-pound bear named Blondie decided to join them.

Alan Johnson, manager of the Pine Martin campground, about 60 miles south of Lake Tahoe, said Rosengren, who is from Berkeley, made a speedy exit when the bear eyed Daisy and charged into the tent last weekend.

Johnson described the three animals grunting, squealing and barking together in the tent as "pretty chaotic."

"I know bears will go after fresh

Deaf team cleans up, wins Golden Broom

BOSTON (AP) — Trashing competitors from 20 cities, the all-deaf Minnesota team won the 4-Way Bag Fill and the 5-Way Hand Pick to clinch first prize in the fourth annual National Grime Fighter Games.

More than 250 teen-agers from across the country met Thursday for the finals, competing for the coveted Golden Broom.

"We never thought we'd win," said team supervisor Steve Hoffman, 28. "We saw that we did well and that was good enough." He coached his four-member team using sign language.

Volunteers are needed for 'friendly visiting'

Editor's note: This column is prepared by the staff of the Manchester Senior Citizens' Center.

By Joe Diminico
Activities Director

Greetings. The Manchester Elderly Outreach program is in the process of recruiting volunteers for its "Friendly Visiting Program." The program provides companionship to homebound individuals. Volunteers would be assigned one individual whom they would visit once a week. Interested individuals should contact Joan Valeski or Anna Turner at 647-3093.

Please make note of the following trip schedule:

Aug. 21 — Dinosaur State Park — free — filled — leave senior center at 9:30 a.m.

Aug. 26 — Ocean Beach — filled — taking waiting list.

Aug. 27 — Northfield Mountain — filled.

Sept. 15 — Rockingham Race Track — filled.

Sept. 24-26 — Lake George, N.Y. — fall foliage — $179.50 per person (double occupancy) — Includes transportation, accommodations, taxes and gratuities, two breakfasts, one dinner and show, one dinner and admission to Saratoga Raceway, boat cruise, admission and tour of Fort Ticonderoga, sightseeing, and services of tour escort. Call Daniels at 846-3012.

Oct. 5 — Bear Mountain Inn — $32 per person — Includes transportation, luncheon at Bear Mountain Inn, sightseeing — sign up Sept. 4 at 9:30.

Oct. 7-9 — Rocking Horse Resort — $164 per person (double occupancy) — Includes transportation, accommodations and six meals, complimentary cocktail party, live entertainment and dancing each night, indoor and outdoor recreational activities including horseback riding, buggy rides, hay rides, square dancing, indoor pool and saunas and more. Fliers available at the center. Call Senior Travel of Connecticut at 875-0538.

Individuals attending the Newport trip this Tuesday are reminded that the bus will leave the senior center at 8:30 a.m. sharp and return at approximately 7 p.m.

The senior center, in conjunction with the AARP, will sponsor a driver's education program Sept. 29 and 30 from 12:30 to 4:00 p.m. Individuals completing both days of the course will receive a minimum of a 5 percent reduction on their insurance premiums as mandated by state law. The class is limited to 28 and applications can be picked up at the senior center. The fee for the course is $7, payable by check only made payable to AARP and dated the first day of the class. Payment is required at time of registration.

Men golfers are reminded that there will be an Arizona Scramble-cookout at the Twin Hills Golf Course on Aug. 24. Interested individuals are asked to make a payment of $3 to the league officer this Monday. The fee is for prizes and the cost of the picnic.

Leona Juras, Dried Flower Instructor, has asked that individuals gather goldenrod for the class and bring them to the center for drying. Goldenrod is free and a worthwhile everlasting flower for dried flower arrangements.

Senior Citizens

Big thanks to Manchester's Silk City Chorus for an outstanding barbershop performance last week at our evening picnic. The chorus is the current state champ.

The senior center will be closed for activities from Aug. 17 to Sept. 1 for cleanup.

Just a reminder: The meals program has ended and will resume Sept. 8.

Best wishes to Jim Gleeson, who is in Manchester Memorial Hospital, and Bob Schubert, who is ill at the Riverside Health Care Center in East Hartford.

Our condolences to the McKay family over the recent loss of Art, a longtime member of the center and the drummer in our orchestra.

Schedule for the week

Open mind, courtesy are keys that will unlock travel treasures

DEAR ABBY: Since this is the peak of the international travel season, I thought your readers might enjoy some travel tips. Armed with these, I guarantee they will get more than their money's worth:

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

THE ART OF TRAVELING

1. Travel lightly. Remember, you are not traveling for people to see you. Take only what you need, and leave your fancy clothes at home.
2. Travel expectantly. Every place you visit is a surprise package waiting to be opened. Untie the strings with an expectation of high adventure.
3. Travel hopefully. "To travel hopefully," wrote Robert Louis Stevenson, "is better than to arrive."
4. Travel humbly. Visit people and places with respect for their traditions and ways of life, as different as they may be from your own.

5. Travel courteously. Consideration for your fellow travelers and for all you meet along the way will enhance your pleasure.

6. Travel gratefully. Show appreciation for the many things done by others for your enjoyment and comfort.

7. Travel with an open mind. Leave all your prejudices at home.

8. Travel with curiosity. It's not how far you go, but how deeply you go that mines the gold of the experience.

9. Travel patiently. Take the time

Please don't downplay the dangers of mono

DEAR DR. GOTT: You do your readers a disservice to downplay the seriousness of mono. Our 15-year-old daughter died from a ruptured spleen because the doctors told us mono was nothing to worry about.

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR READER: Although mononucleosis is usually a benign and self-limited disease among adolescents, I would never wish to give the impression that it is not dangerous in some people. A ruptured spleen is a rare but serious complication of this virus infection.

In my experience, the dangers of mono are directly related to delayed or mistaken diagnosis. Patients with mononucleosis must be prohibited from engaging in any activity during which the spleen could be struck or otherwise injured. Sometimes, during the early stages of the disease, this prohibition is ignored — with disastrous consequences.

However, a ruptured spleen need not be fatal if it is recognized early, transfusions given and the spleen promptly removed before massive hemorrhage occurs. Your daughter's death was a tragic, and highly unusual, consequence of mono. The disease is usually benign, but it does require monitoring, accurate diagnosis and prompt treatment of complications.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is it possible for a person's hair to turn white instantly after a severe shock or fright?

DEAR READER: I have read of people's hair turning white within minutes after a shock. However, I can see no sound scientific rationale for this medical curiosity, because pigment is bound in the hair shaft and cannot be removed except by chemical means. The hair may grow out white after shock: Under these circumstances, compounds that circulate in the body can affect the pigment cells in the scalp, so new hair may be devoid of color. However, I think that it would be impossible for your whole thatch to turn white instantly, unless you have paid a beauty-parlor operator to do it for you.

What are the benefits of Vitamin E? Dr. Gott's new Health Report tells what's true — and what isn't. Send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to ask for the Health Report on Vitamin E.

JOSEPH C. GRZYMOWSKI,
FORT LAUDERDALE, FLA.

DEAR MR. GRZYMOWSKI: Thank you for your helpful tips for those traveling abroad. They could be adapted for everyday living as we go through life — not just through customs.

DEAR ABBY: Your column reminding people to write the names and dates on the back of all photographs reminded me of the three best pieces of advice I ever got from my wonderful Italian parents, now both deceased.

Mama said, "Never work in the kitchen with the counter drawers open. Always keep a cup of the pasta water in case the pasta is too dry." And Papa said, "Always put a date on everything you write and on every piece of paper that's not going into the trash basket."

All wise advice indeed. Had I only heeded it, I would have been spared many a cleanup job, my pasta al pesto would always have been magnifico, and my tangled affairs would now be in order.

HIGH LIVING

Hardening of the arteries is the result of high living, says Dr. John Houston, Dir. of Cardiology, Milwaukee Cty. Hospital. Other civilizations are less susceptible to the disease because they burn up more energy thru exercise and physical work. Dr. Houston blamed animal fats, smoking and alcohol, along with lack of proper exercise. The natural effect of cigarette nicotine is to contract the arteries. Alcohol increases the appetite, encouraging overeating, a direct cause of cardio-vascular diseases, he said.

Between the Lines

The story behind the story

By Josie

Peter Riegert

Q. Would you please tell me about Peter Riegert, who was so good in the TV movie "Ellis Island"? L.R., Dunmore, Pa.

A. He's 38, from the Bronx and, unlike many other actors, didn't spend his childhood dreaming of becoming an actor. Instead, he went to the University of Buffalo as an English major and upon graduation became a teacher, a social worker and a political advance man for Bella Abzug, a New York politician.

On New Year's Day, 1971, though, while weighing his options for the coming year, he decided to try acting. His first paying job came two years later in a summer-stock production of the musical "Minnie's Boys" (he hadn't sung before, a requirement for the role, but he decided to just forge ahead and try anyway, a tenet that has stayed with him through the years). By 1975, he had made his Broadway debut in a show called "Dance With Me"; the next year, he was off-Broadway in the play "Sexual Perversity in Chicago," when a friend of his co-star F. Murray Abraham came backstage to see him. She was Bette Midler, and a romance started that lasted several years.

In the meantime, his career was picking up: He was cast in the movies "Animal House" (as the frat intellectual), "Americathon" and "Chilly Scenes of Winter," followed by the PBS special "Concealed Enemies" (in which he played the young Richard Nixon) and the movie "Local Hero." Currently, he's on Broadway in "The Nerd" has a film that he shot in Europe, "A Man in Love," in limited release.

Mary Hart

Q. Where is Mary Hart from and what is she doing now? Is she going to leave "Entertainment Tonight"?

A.J., Southington, Conn.
A. She's from South Dakota (Madison and Sioux Falls) and is, in fact, a former Miss South Dakota. Regarding "E.T.," she's made no secret of her desire to star in her own sitcom and has been developing one for quite a while. She seems to have one ready to go now and is planning to shoot a pilot soon for CBS. She has no plans at the moment to leave "E.T.," though; and if the pilot goes to series, could conceivably do both.

John Savage

Q. Could you give me some information about John Savage? He's made some excellent films but it's difficult to find anything about him. Beth Ciguere, Manchester, Conn.

A. John Savage is 37, from Old Bethpage, Long Island, in the suburbs of New York, the son of an insurance salesman and his wife. He was a shy, sickly child — he was afflicted with but successfully overcame polio — but also an independent one. At 14, he left home with his parents' consent. At first, he thought of becoming a minister in the Dutch Reformed Church, where he had sung during his childhood, or a dairy farmer, the result of a stay with his aunt and uncle in Vermont.

He decided instead to become a folksinger, however, and was soon performing in various Greenwich Village clubs. He also took up acting, landed a few off-Broadway roles and as a result of those appearances, was awarded a full scholarship to the American Academy of Dramatic Arts. He declined it to keep on working — making his Broadway debut in "Fiddler on the Roof," starring as Romeo in an offbeat rock version of "Romeo and Juliet" and then flying out to Hollywood for a forgettable Jane Fonda film called "Steelyard Blues."

After a few more movie flops and a short-lived TV series, "Gibbsville," he edged back to the stage in Chicago and Los Angeles in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" (he also auditioned for the film of that play but was rejected) and then in New York, co-starred in the play "American Buffalo," which turned out to be his break. Michael Cimino saw the play and cast him in "The Deer Hunter"; Milos Forman also saw it and cast him in his film version of "Hair."

He hasn't stopped working since, in, among others, the movies "Bad Company," "The Onion Field," "Inside Moves," "The Amateur," "Maria's Lovers," "Salvador," the as-yet-unreleased "Hotel Colonial" (co-starring his brother-in-law Robert Duvall) and "War Shepherds," currently in production in Israel. TV projects include the Hallmark Hall of Fame production "Eric," "Coming Out of the Ice," "The Little Sister" and "The Nairobi Affair" with Charlton Heston.

Guy Stockwell

Q. Does Guy Stockwell have any new projects coming up? Also, has he gained weight? He seems awfully heavy. Patty Heidt, South Bend, Ind.

A. According to his agent, he's up for a couple of projects, movie and TV, but his only definite plan is to teach at Burt Reynolds' theater in Jupiter, Fla. And yes, he has gained weight; according to the agent, he's gotten "very heavy."

Cover Story

Ned Beatty plays nerds and villains with ease

Ned Beatty and Charles Grodin appear together.

By Fred Robbins

Once when "talkies" were new, Hollywood boasted scores of character actors who, being stage-trained and able to "speak the language," proceeded to outact the stars they supported. Etched in golden memory are the names, faces and talents of men like Edward Arnold, Charles Coburn, Barry Fitzgerald, Edward Everett Horton, Charles Winninger and so many more, all popular favorites with moviegoers.

Today this tradition is carried on by only a handful of major character actors. And right at the top is roly-poly Ned Beatty, 49, who plays nerds and nabobs with equal ease, has been seen in some 30 films since making his debut 14 years ago, rates a well-deserved co-star billing, earns a princely wage, and grabbed off an Academy Award nomination as best supporting actor in "Network," playing a pompous, hard-nosed TV bigwig.

Looking back on his character in "Network," the relaxed, amiable Ned Beatty says, "If I'd been casting that role, I'm the last person I'd have thought of. Basically I look like a used-car salesman. Left to my own devices, I'd probably be a Walt Disney actor. I'm very sentimental and romantic. But that's what is so satisfying about being a character actor — the surprises. And the fact that, if you're lucky, you can go on forever."

"A leading man gets to showing some age and sometimes things don't work out so well for him. But age is no big deal for someone like me. Why, onstage at 21, I was already playing Big Daddy in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof." So I know I'm always going to play the older guy, or the villain, or the guy who runs things, the bad boss."

Currently, Ned Beatty is co-starring with Ben ("Chariots of Fire") Cross in a thriller titled "The Unholy." Like so many of his movies, it is being shot on location, in Miami and New Orleans. Other films, for the big-screen or television, have taken him to England ("Superman"), Italy ("Alambriata" a.k.a. "The Illegal"), Finland and Scotland ("Restless Natives") and Israel ("A Woman Called Golda," the TV miniseries that contained Ingrid Bergman's farewell performance), which afforded Beatty, a onetime aspirant to the ministry, a tour of the Holy Land that he still recalls with reverence and awe.

In his global travels, Beatty says he has found that television — "an incredible medium" — has a greater impact than movies when it comes to an actor's being recognized. And he is one actor who has always acknowledged the importance of working in TV as well as motion pictures.

Most recently he was seen as the guest star in an episode of "Highway to Heaven." And no one who saw it has ever forgotten his towering performance in "Friendly Fire." In this award-winning, searing drama, opposite Carol Burnett as his wife, Beatty portrayed a real-life Iowa working man whose son was killed in Vietnam by a round of "friendly" (meaning his own side's) artillery fire. From being members of America's Silent Majority, the parents then became vigorous anti-war activists.

The actor modestly says he was "really proud" of "Friendly Fire," which was "a real high point in my career." "Film," he observes, "has got a magic. On the level of how our myths get created and what we feel emotionally, film is very powerful. But occasionally you can do good work on television, and TV has got a huge audience. American television, I've discovered, goes everywhere."

"One thing always tickles me," he continues. "That is the reaction you get when you're not a household name but just somebody that someone has seen before on TV or in a film. People know you from somewhere but just cannot remember your name."

Since he has an inquiring mind and gregarious nature, always eager to meet and mingle with people of differing cultures, it is surprising to hear the actor confess, "Quite frankly, I'm kind of a lazy person, a little bit of a stay-at-home. Except for the work, I'm sure I wouldn't travel as much. So the whole business of traveling for film is a gift not only for me, but also for my family, because I often try to take them along."

Speaking fondly of "Restless Natives," in which he starred for a small British company, Beatty chuckles as he says he accepted the offer "because the money was fair, which is always the prime consideration as far as I'm concerned." The bonus, he adds, was getting to do the job amidst the glorious scenery of the Scottish Highlands and in Edinburgh, "a beautiful city, with wonderful old buildings and grand vistas."

Ned Beatty's obvious delight in nature's wonders is evidence that he is, as he says, contrary to certain frosty characters he's played, "kind of a romantic guy in real life."

Still other proof exists as well.

As he volunteered at one point during a recent visit, "I've been married three times and have children by all three marriages." Eight children in all, in fact.

His first marriage, to an actress who lives in Virginia, ended in divorce after eight years and four children: Douglas, now 25, boy-and-girl twins, Charlie and Lennis, 24, and Wally, 19. He was later married to Belinha Rowley, a young actress he met while working at the Arena Stage in Washington, D.C., by whom he has two children: John, 15, and Blossom, 12. And by his present wife, who is called Tinker by everyone, though her name is Dorothy, he also has two youngsters: Thomas, 5, and Dorothy, 3.

At any mention of wife Tinker, 33, Ned Beatty's ruddy face beams. "I've got a wonderful marriage," he says simply.

The wheels leading up to this marriage were set into motion in 1972, years before he and Tinker ever met, and may be one of the reasons the actor still cites "Deliverance," the first of his many which was released then, as "my favorite film."

The star of "Deliverance" was Burt Reynolds and, as Beatty says now, "I love Burt very much. Among actors, he's the most loyal friend I've ever made. He's fun, a show-off — he loves attention — and I love working with him, love just being with him."

Through Reynolds, Ned Beatty discovered and became passionately interested in transcendental meditation, which he practices twice daily. And through his study, he met and fell in love with Tinker Lindsay, a transcendental meditation teacher.

Asked about the lifestyle he and his family enjoy in California, the actor says, "It's pretty normal. We live in an interesting neighborhood in Hollywood, called Beachwood Village, which was built in the '20s, so the architecture is kind of fun. And we have nice neighbors, mostly show folks — a lot of young people who are working their way into the business as well as people who are already established. We tend not to take each other too seriously."

"Since we've got a lot of friends and neighbors, it's a little bit of an open-house kind of situation. We're real involved in our church, too. And my mom lives with us." Margaret, his 78-year-old mother, has been a widow since Ned was 15 and his traveling-salesman father died. "Family, friends and church — that's what we center out lives around."

Exercise

Yes, you can turn yourself onto exercise

By Robert Brody

Richard McKinney pulled the bowstring taut and eyed the target 30 meters away. He knew that a shot worth 10 points would win him a spot on the United States World Archery Team. But the pressure proved overwhelming.

"My mind went blank," he recalls. "My vision got blurry, and my arms had a tremor. I took twice as long as usual to fire. The arrow landed in the blue ring — a six. I missed making the team by that one last shot. It was a massive choke."

For eight years, McKinney had practiced archery at least four hours a day. He had developed strength, stamina and a sharp eye. Yet he had still never placed higher in a tournament than second. Fed up with himself for blowing a chance to compete on the world team, he quit the sport for eight months.

"I suddenly realized that I was competing only physically," he says. "My brain was practically shut off. I had a lot to learn about dealing emotionally with pressure."

Deciding that the only answer was to discipline his mind as rigorously as he had his body, the archer began to practice a kind of self-hypnosis, cut physical training down to an hour a day and returned to competition.

"Before a tournament," he says, "I would go into a trance, imagining myself executing the perfect shot. All my attention was fixed on that four-and-a-half-inch-wide bull's-eye. I saw myself at full draw — the smooth release, the shot in flight. I saw the arrow hit dead center.

"I discovered," he says, "that mental conditioning is often the final touch for an athlete. It can spell the difference between being an average archer or one of the best."

McKinney should know. After that "massive choke," he became an eight-time national champion, three-time world champion and a 1984 Olympic silver medalist.

Let's say you hit the tennis court all alone to practice your serve until your blisters pop, jog regularly, lift some weights, eat smart and sleep plenty — in short, you've pulled yourself together physically. But your serve is still erratic in a Sunday-morning game against your broker, Marvin. No sooner do you rocket an ace down the middle than you double-fault two, three times in a row. Reason: Your mind is officially out to lunch.

Almost every weekend jocks occasionally come unraveled in the heat of competition. Tension and anxiety, impatience and frustration, anger and disappointment all can conspire to hamper your physical skills. The more your emotions interfere with your performance, the more you miss three-foot putts, lunge for bad pitches, double-fault.

The problem here is that you tend to see yourself as all muscle and bone, tendon and ligament. You focus on the mechanics — such as tossing your serve the right height — without recognizing that behind every move you make lies Mission Control, your brain. And it must be trained.

"You want to teach your brain to control your body," says sports-psychology pioneer Bruce Ogilvie, Ph.D., who is currently a consultant to such teams as the Portland Trail Blazers, the Golden State Warriors and the Milwaukee Bucks.

"You want to engage in the right thinking to enhance performance, to unify mind and body. Mental conditioning can determine whether you succeed or fail." As with most tasks we aren't born knowing how to do, such conditioning takes practice.

Why bother? Well, your body is a slave to your mind. As you serve to your broker, Marvin, electrochemical impulses wash into your cerebral cortex. Your cortex then relays instructions to your muscles on how to move. When you practice physically, your muscles can encode your athletic skills, but only the mind can summon forth those skills.

"Your body is an idiot," says Ogilvie. "It will do whatever your mind tells it to do."

Only by contracting can your muscles provide movement and power. But tensed muscles are already somewhat contracted and must first relax before contracting fully. Relaxed muscles contract swiftly and smoothly, collaborating with, rather than contradicting, each other to generate fluid movement. By relaxing, you keep reflexes sharp, forestall fatigue and fully express your power.

The Philadelphia Flyers overcome such tension with progressive muscle relaxation. It seems that muscles relax better after being tensed. All you do is take time to tense each of your major muscles for at least five seconds, then relax, going in sequence from ankles, thighs and buttocks to abdomen, chest, shoulders and neck.

As many athletes have discovered, the very best safeguard against frazzled nerves is breathing regularly at all times. Breathe deeply and evenly, through the diaphragm, not the chest. Alternate deep breaths with shallow ones to avoid dizziness and hyperventilation. Steady breathing pumps oxygen into blood cells and body tissues and sends revitalized blood to the brain.

If you relax, you can concentrate. "Most people think concentration means bearing down ferociously," says Scott Pengelly, Ph.D., a sports psychologist with the Athletics West Track and Field Club in Portland, Ore. "The idea is that the harder you try, the better you do. That's why most people try too hard."

Concentration is partly the elimination of distraction. If you avoid jamming your airwaves with static — say, how jinxed you feel on court six — your body will be free to do its stuff. You will feel more spontaneous, more perceptive, as if time had slowed down.

Just ask former discus thrower, Mac Wilkins, 1976 Olympic gold medalist, 1984 silver medalist, former world-record holder: "Early in my career, my concentration fluctuated because I got so excited in competition. I had no idea how to relax enough to develop consistency. So I began to practice imagery.

Ask Dick Kleiner

Dear Dick: Could you please tell my husband and me where the church is located that's shown in the beginning of "Amen" with Sherman Hemsley. It's quite charming and beautiful. — Mr. and Mrs. R.M., Houston, Texas.

Dear R.M.: That is the Mount Pisgah Church, which is located at the corner of 41st and Spring Garden, in Philadelphia.

Dear Dick: Could you please tell me who the guy is who plays John on "The Outlaws"? Also, is Cliff Robertson the announcer for AT&T? — K.B., Saginaw, Mich.

Dear K.B.: I have checked several weeks worth of cast lists of "The Outlaws," and find no John. If there was a John, it must have been a character on only one week. Yes, that is Cliff Robertson who does the commercials for AT&T.

Dear Dick: Please settle a $200 bet I have going with my dad. I say Kelly McGillis from "Top Gun" plays a school teacher on the series, "The Bronx Zoo." He says it's not her. Help! — M.J., Anna, Texas.

Dear M.J.: You're going to need more help, raising that $200. Kelly isn't in "The Bronx Zoo." You must have her confused with Kathryn Harrold or Kathleen Beller, who are in it.

Dear Dick: Are Pat Sajak and Vanna White, of "Wheel Of Fortune," man and wife? Sometimes I think they are but I am not sure. — R.H., Warsaw, Ind.

Dear R.H.: One more time: no, Pat and Vanna are not married or even romantically involved in any way.

Dear Dick: Some time ago, you had a question about the origin of the nickname, "The Big Apple," for New York. I have also read a theory that it was derived from some New Yorker who thought New York was the Garden of Eden, and therefore called it The Big Apple. Just thought you should know. — L.P., Boston, Mass.

Dear L.P.: Thanks, but I'll stick with what my research dug up, that it is a musician's term for the most important gig. But I have also read an article by Alex Constantino in The New York Hotel Magazine that has several other possible explanations for the term: (1) years ago, "apple" was a term for any big city, and New York was the biggest city, hence "The Big Apple"; (2) there was a very popular dance called "The Big Apple" and the name for the city comes from that; (3) it's a corrupt translation of the Spanish term, "manzana principal," which refers to a city block and was used to designate a downtown area (the literal translation would be "main apple").

Dear Dick: Did Lionel or Ethel Barrymore have any children? — H.E., Racine, Wis.

Dear H.E.: Yes, both of them did. Lionel named his daughter Ethel Barrymore II. Ethel, married to Russell Colt, had three children — Samuel, Ethel and John Drew Colt, known as Jackie.

Dear Dick: Could you tell me if the book, "Tallulah Darling," is based on Bette Davis' life? It is a biography of Tallulah Bankhead by Denis Brian, published in 1972. — B.O.M., Cordele, Ga.

Dear B.O.M.: Why would you think a biography of Tallulah would be based on Bette's life? If it is a biography of Tallulah, it is based on her life, not somebody else's.

Dear Dick: A friend of mine claims that Katherine Helmond of "Who's the Boss?" is 82 years old. I claim she is not. How old is she? — A.C., Ventura, Calif.

Dear A.C.: Phooey on your friend. Katherine turned 53 on July 5.

Dear Dick: Back in the '50s, I remember "The Untouchables." Are the players who were on "Hill Street Blues" the same ones? — P.F., Mingo Junction, Ohio.

Dear P.F.: Not one of the regulars on "The Untouchables" was a regular on "Hill Street." It is remotely possible that some actor might have appeared on both in a supporting role, although I doubt it.

Astrograph

Your Birthday
Sunday, Aug. 16, 1987

The year ahead will be an exciting one for you because you'll be more enterprising and fearless. The results of your efforts will be favorable, provided you don't let your boldness exceed your better judgment.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If your way of doing things conflicts with your mate's today, be prepared to bend a bit and make adjustments. You'll be asking for trouble if you're too self-serving. Major changes are ahead for Leos in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

VRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's best to keep your opinion to yourself today regarding something that does not directly involve you, but does have an effect upon a sensitive friend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Someone who doesn't operate completely in the open may try to put obstacles in your path. However, don't let this individual know you're on to him.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There's a chance you may ignore your better judgment today and yield to the wishes of a clever manipulator. However, if you're on guard, you won't be used.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't take something you want repaired or serviced today back to an individual who previously did a poor job. Find someone more reliable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The aspects indicate you might be a trifle too possessive today with someone you're emotionally involved with. This could create complications.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try to appreciate your mate's point of view today pertaining to a vital family issue. If you don't, you could set up conditions for a lingering battle.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Unless you have something nice to say about another today, it's best not to say anything. Your listeners will reveal your critical comments to the object of your disdain.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Avoid risky ventures today, especially those which are of a financial nature. Your enthusiasm could override your objectivity, and cause you to make a bad choice.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Both courtesy and common sense are required today in your involvements with others. Don't treat anyone in a manner that you'd resent if the roles were reversed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't stay silent today if an arrogant acquaintance makes deprecatory comments. Let this person know immediately you are not a candidate for put-downs.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today, you and a close friend might take opposing positions over an issue about which you both feel strongly. Don't let it get out of hand.

Sexuality

Wife worries she's not desirable

Studies show up to 70 percent of all married men masturbate

DEAR DR. REINISCH: I'm 48, very attractive, and my husband (51) and I have a good sex life, but he also masturbates regularly as well. Does that mean I'm not a good enough wife to him?

The Kinsey Report

DEAR READER: Many married men continue to masturbate. Surveys have found that approximately 70 percent of husbands and nearly as many wives report regular masturbation during marriage.

Because many people assume that marital intercourse will replace masturbation, it is not unusual for one partner to think that the other's masturbation indicates dissatisfaction with their marital sex life. However, this is not usually the case.

Masturbation by a married person is usually just another pleasurable form of sexual release, and it does not indicate that the partner is unloved, undesirable or an inadequate lover.

This is because the respiration rate is greater and the lungs take in more oxygen. Some chemicals in the fumes can cross the placental barrier and affect fetal development.

During pregnancy, it's prudent to avoid all substances that are not essential for the mother's and baby's health. It is not sufficient to avoid only those things that have already been proven harmful; you also should avoid those that are only suspected of causing harm.

I would suggest delaying your anatomy class until after the baby is born. If this is impossible, nearly all colleges and universities have an office or staff member in charge of environmental health. Ask that the classroom be checked for safety; if there are high levels of fumes, perhaps the ventilation of the room could be altered so that your exposure, and that of your classmates, would be reduced as much as possible.

Fumes may be bad

DEAR DR. REINISCH: Can formaldehyde fumes affect prenatal development? If so, at what stage of pregnancy would such exposure be most dangerous?

I am a student and am four months pregnant. After two days in anatomy class (where cadavers are preserved in tanks of dilute formaldehyde), I developed headaches and then recalled reading that fumes from formaldehyde insulation in houses could harm the inhabitants.

DEAR READER: Formaldehyde may pose a hazard to a mother and her developing fetus. As with many other environmental substances, not much is known about what level of exposure (or the timing of exposure during the nine months of gestation) causes harm. As with many hazards, some babies may be affected, while others whose mothers received similar exposure remain unaffected.

During pregnancy, most women are more susceptible to the effects of fumes of all types.

Is Pill safe?

DEAR DR. REINISCH: How safe is the Pill if there is a family history of high blood pressure and strokes? How do I go about getting a prescription for the Pill from a doctor who is not the family doctor? If I choose to have sex without taking the Pill, how do I know which are the safe days?

DEAR READER: Go to a family-planning clinic. These centers provide the information you need to make an informed decision about which contraceptive method is best for you.

Learning which days in your monthly cycle may be safer than others requires personalized instruction and training beyond the scope of a newspaper column. In general family-planning clinics are more able to provide the time and support it takes to teach these methods than are busy physicians in private practice.

When you see the clinic physician, be sure to tell him or her about your family history of high blood pressure and strokes. These are important risk factors to be considered in evaluating the safe use of oral contraceptives. An evaluation of your own health and any other risk factors will determine whether it is safe for you to take the Pill.

In the meantime, do not have unprotected intercourse unless you are fully prepared to raise a child. Use mutual masturbation for sexual release (taking care that ejaculate does not come near the vaginal opening) or use condoms and spermicidal foam if you decide to have intercourse.

No contraceptive method is perfect (there are even a few pregnancies after a vasectomy or a tubal ligation) and no cycle days are absolutely safe. Deciding to have sex is a major decision; to make this decision, you should have adequate information and should evaluate whether having sex is a good idea at this point in your life.

The staff members at family-planning clinics are often very helpful in helping a woman evaluate her feelings about her life, future and the relationship she is in.

DEAR DR. REINISCH: I decided to try to use a diaphragm for birth control because my doctor said they are fairly reliable and have no side effects. However, I'm not sure I'm getting it in right. How can I be sure the diaphragm is correctly in place?

DEAR READER: The effectiveness rate of diaphragm use varies considerably from one study to the next. One important factor in successful use is the type of education program and careful fitting given each woman.

An effectiveness rate of 98 percent (two pregnancies per 100 users per year) was found when each woman was fitted with a diaphragm, practiced insertion of the diaphragm in the office and then returned to the office a week later with the diaphragm in place. This procedure allowed the medical staff to verify that each woman was inserting the diaphragm correctly and the proper size and style of diaphragm had been prescribed. This research was conducted by

Perfect fit

DEAR DR. REINISCH: I am a 92-year-old lady in wonderful health. I have never had to take medication, do my own work and walk several miles a day. My only trouble is an itchy vagina. Help me if you can.

DEAR READER: Make an appointment to see a gynecologist. It may take laboratory tests to determine what is causing the itch, and it may take oral or the Sanger Bureau.

"Because many people assume that marital intercourse will replace masturbation, it is not unusual for one partner to think that the other's masturbation indicates dissatisfaction with their marital sex life. However, this is not usually the case."

Failure rates in other studies range from around 10 to 19 pregnancies per 100 women per year. Because fit and proper insertion of the diaphragm appear to be important, ask your physician or a family-planning clinic to double-check this for you.

Diaphragms come in four styles and in a range of sizes, some of which use a plastic inserter to aid in getting the diaphragm in place. Proper fit depends on vaginal muscle tone, the shape of the pubic-bone arch (which holds it in place) and comfort in addition to vaginal diameter. Because sexual arousal increases vaginal depth, a diaphragm that is too small may fail to cover the cervix when it is most needed, while one that is too large may cause pain or other problems.

Make sure that you also get complete information about the possible side effects of using a diaphragm. These do exist and include toxic shock syndrome (TSS), urinary tract infection, if the rim presses on the urethra, and allergic reactions to rubber or the spermicide used with the diaphragm.

Until you are certain that you have the proper size and type of diaphragm, that you are inserting it correctly and that it is staying in place over the cervix, use some other method of contraception, such as condoms and spermicidal foam.

Many older women have this problem because the drop in hormone levels around menopause can result in thinning of the vaginal lining and changes in the external genitals and urinary tract. These areas can then become more easily irritated and subject to infection.

Send questions to Dr. Reinisch in care of The Kinsey Report, P.O. Box 48, Bloomington, Ind. 47402. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest may be discussed in future columns.

Who's watching the kids tonight?

Accidents can happen while you're out, even to a good sitter

By Charles H. Sparrenberger

Almost anyone with children is going to need a babysitter sometime, and with more than 40 million children (infants to 12-year-olds) in the United States today, it is not surprising to learn that in excess of 3 million of them are cared for daily by babysitters, not all of whom are Mary Poppins.

Tonight, for the first time in many months, you have engaged a highly recommended babysitter, explained to her everything she needs to know and are going out on the town to celebrate and enjoy yourselves.

Everything is fine when you leave. But once you are out of the house, Murphy's Law comes into play: If anything can go wrong, it will. And it does! Your babysitter is seated on the floor watching little Archibald play when he goes into the closet behind her, gets his baseball bat and slugs her across the back of the head.

Ridiculous? Not at all. Such were the facts in a lawsuit in New York City where a babysitter, Lucy Zuckerberg, was struck by her employer's 8-year-old son with whom she was sitting. Recovery was allowed, the court finding the father, Maurice H. Munzer, knew the child had a tendency to commit assaults, had permitted the child to possess the bat and failed to warn Lucy of this tendency.

What if little Archie only roughs her up a bit? There's a San Francisco case reported in which Betty Ellis was violently attacked by her 4-year-old charge, the son of Salvatore D'Angelo, seriously injuring her, and a Seattle case in which a 6-year-old boy jumped upon his 78-year-old babysitter, Ada Preston, knocking her to the floor and seriously injuring her.

In each case the respective courts found evidence that the parents were fully aware of the child's behavior and dangerous disposition, but had failed to warn the babysitter of the danger involved.

Yet, in a New Orleans case where a 3-year-old son of Bruce Butterworth, in a fit of temper bit his babysitter, Addie Johnson, the court ruled that she had failed to prove the child was affected with a dangerous disposition of which the parents had knowledge.

Foreseeability apparently is also the test as to your liability in cases in which your babysitter is attacked by a third person. Here again you have a duty to warn your babysitter of any known perils attending her employment, especially where such perils consist of a danger from a criminal attack by a third person.

Thus in another Seattle case in which a 14-year-old babysitter, Lucy Sitarek, was injured when she went next door to talk with her employer, Leroy Ladely, who was visiting a neighbor there and was shot by the neighbor, a divorcee, who mistook her for a rejected suitor who had been threatening the neighbor, recovery against Ladely was denied, the court finding that Lucy's injury was too remote to have been anticipated by him.

So also in a Chicago case where a babysitter, Isoura Madyren, was injured from a criminal attack on the premises by gang members who allegedly had previously threatened the lives of her employer's sons, the court held that such injuries were not reasonably foreseeable.

What if your pet injures your babysitter? In the only reported case on the subject, a Minneapolis court decided the evidence introduced at the trial disclosed that the cat owned by her employer, Keith M. Brings, which bit the babysitter, Jeanette Clark, had previously bitten other babysitters, that the cat had scratched the employer and his children on several occasions and that the employer kept the cat confined to the basement. The court held the facts insufficient to warrant submission of the case to the jury on the question of the employer's knowledge of the cat's nature.

In a Boston court case, Bettie Snead, babysitter, sustained injuries in a fall on the stairs of her employer, Maria Ledman, and even though before descending the stairs she had seen golf balls, blocks and roller skates lining the stairs, she descended, tripping and falling when her heel became caught in a tear in the stair runner (she even admitted to having noticed the tear previously), yet the court submitted the case to a jury which returned a verdict awarding her damages.

Mary Weimert, a babysitter, recovered damages in a Lafayette, Ind., court from her employer, Cliff Lloyd, when she tripped over a tarpaulin left by a painter on a stairway. She was preoccupied about caring for a crying child and didn't see the obstruction.

A recent Chicago decision held that employer Norbert

Today, even the babysitters may sue

Not all stair cases have resulted in recoveries for the babysitter. A Virginia case reversed a judgment in favor of a babysitter, Eleanor Pendleton, finding that the employer, Phillip Nelson, while showing the babysitter around the house, had instructed her to keep the basement door latched "at all times."

Later, hearing the child call from the basement stairs, she went to get her, but the little girl grabbed her and they fell into the basement. The court ruled the babysitter was negligent in failing to discharge her affirmative duty to make certain that the door was kept latched at all times.

In the case of Fahey vs. Sayer, a Wilmington, Del., decision involved an elderly babysitter, injured when, while looking for a downstairs powder room, opened a door to the basement and fell down the stairs. The court reasoned there was no proof her employer had ever told her of the existence of bathroom facilities on the first floor and having baby-sat there before, she knew of the upstairs bathroom which she could have used.

A recent Chicago decision held that employer Norbert babysitter, fell over a single step marking a change in floor level near the top of the stairs on the second floor. The court reasoned that different floor levels were so common in private homes that the possibility of their presence was to be anticipated by persons of ordinary care and prudence.

Is your home fully carpeted or could you be faced with a charge of negligence by your babysitter if she should be injured as a result of slipping on a small rug on a waxed floor? Although here again there is no unanimity in the decisions of the various courts, a majority of the reported cases have favored the employer.

In Nelson vs. Smeltzer arising in Fort Dodge, Iowa, in which an adult babysitter fell on a loose rug which was placed on a highly waxed floor, the court denied liability on the grounds that the use of small rugs on waxed hardwood floors was common and not an inherently dangerous practice which would support a charge of negligence.

In like manner, a court in Bridgeport, Conn., denied recovery to a babysitter who stepped out of bed onto a small rug on a hardwood floor and slipped, resulting in a fall, for the rug had no skid-resistant bottom, the court holding that the babysitter had assumed the ordinary risks and hazards of her employment.

Nissen had no duty to put a gate or barricade at the top of a steep stairway to prevent his child from falling. Thus the babysitter, Patricia McGinty, was denied recovery for injuries she sustained in a fall when she attempted to rescue his 2-year-old son as he ran toward the stairway.

In a Baltimore, Md., case, Carolini Joestlein, an elderly

By Philomena Corradeno

Weren't all those barbecued ribs finger-licking and the mayonnaise-rich salads delicious? And the lush ice creams, gelatos and drinks that made summer bearable.

Now the multitude of enjoyable diet indiscretions have added a few of the pounds you struggled to shed in the spring. Who can bear another diet session? Not to worry. A quick attack is the answer. You can cut calories without depriving yourself of the pleasures of eating.

Nutritionists agree that the most effective diet, when you want to shed only a few pounds, is one that allows you the foods you like, in limited portions, keeping nutrition in mind.

Structure meals that revolve around good-to-eat dishes, with ingredients and cooking methods that help cut calories. Use herbs, spices and citrus juices instead of fats, dressings and sauces.

But you know all that. You just don't know how to start?

Spices and herbs inject flavor without significant calories, sodium, fat or sugar. They are so low in these undesirable that you may use them freely. Spanish Fish and Rice is an adaptation of a dish which traditionally uses saffron to color the rice. In this version we use turmeric instead. Much less expensive, it gives the rice the same golden color that saffron provides.

Serve it with a salad tossed with herb dressing. We suggest fresh, lively spinach and sliced radishes. For dessert, have grapes, apples and pears poached in cranberry juice spiced with cinnamon.

SPANISH FISH AND RICE

- 12 ounces fish fillets
- 3 cups water
- 8 ounces peeled and deveined shrimp
- 1 cup long-grain rice (uncooked)
- 1/2 cup instant minced onion
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt, optional
- 1 teaspoon thyme leaves, crushed
- 1/2 teaspoon instant minced garlic
- 1/2 teaspoon ground turmeric
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 1/2 cups diced tomatoes
- 1 cup green pepper squares

simmer, covered, until fish is almost tender, about 4 minutes. Add shrimp; simmer, covered, until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork and shrimp is opaque, about 1 minute.

With slotted spoon remove fish and shrimp; set aside. Add rice, onion, salt, thyme, garlic, turmeric and bay leaf. Simmer, covered, until rice is almost tender, about 15 minutes. Add tomatoes and green peppers. Simmer, covered, until rice and vegetables are tender, about 5 minutes, adding reserved fish and shrimp the last 2 minutes of cooking. Remove bay leaf before serving.

Yield: 4 servings; calories per portion: 330.

HERBED LEMON DRESSING

- 1/2 cup carrot juice
- 1/4 cup safflower oil
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons non-fat dry milk
- 1 teaspoon onion powder
- 1/2 teaspoon powdered mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon thyme leaves, crushed
- 1/2 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1/2 teaspoon salt, optional
- 1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper

Combine all ingredients; shake thoroughly. Let stand 1 hour.

FRUIT COMPOTE

- 2 cups cranberry juice
- 2 1/2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
- 2 cups sliced unpeeled apples
- 2 cups sliced unpeeled pears
- 2 cups seedless grape clusters

In a large saucepan combine cranberry juice and cinnamon. Bring to a boil. Add apples, pears and grape clusters. Return to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, until fruits are tender, about 5 minutes. Serve at room temperature.

Yield: 6 servings (5 cups), calories per portion: 145.

You couldn't ask for a more balanced main-dish salad than this. For a cost of a mere 200 calories per serving, it gives you the protein of tuna, carbohydrate of pasta, plus vitamins C, B-1 and B-2, calcium, phosphorus and iron in the sauerkraut.

Spanish fish and rice can be served in a casserole.

The dessert is a superb "jelly roll" with a low-sugar strawberry spread. Garnish it with a sparse sprinkle of confectioners' sugar to keep calories down. Serve with spiced apple tea.

KRAUT-PICKLE-PASTA SALAD

- 8 ounces bow ties
- 1 cup drained sauerkraut
- 1/2 cup sliced dill pickles
- 1/4 cup sliced scallion
- 3 tablespoons pimiento strips
- dash pepper
- 1 (6 1/2 ounce) can tuna packed in water, drained and flaked
- 1/4 cup reduced-calorie creamy French dressing

In large bowl, combine bow

ORANGE-STRAWBERRY CAKE ROLL

- 4 large eggs, separated and left at room temperature
- 8 tablespoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon grated orange peel
- 1/4 cup fresh orange juice
- 1/4 cup cake flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon orange extract
- 1 1/4 cups low-sugar strawberry spread

Preheat oven to 350F. Spray inside of a 15 1/2 x 10 1/2 x 1-inch baking pan with no-stick cooking spray according to directions. Line bottom with waxed paper; spray paper. In a medium bowl with mixer, beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually beat in 4 tablespoons sugar until stiff peaks form. In a small bowl with same beaters, beat yolks with remaining sugar until thick and pale yellow.

At low speed, beat in orange peel and juice, flour, baking powder and extract. Fold yolk mixture into beaten egg whites. Spread batter evenly in pan. Bake 12 to 14 minutes or until cake springs back when lightly touched in center.

Spray a clean cloth towel with no-stick cooking spray. Loosen edges of cake then invert onto towel. Remove pan and carefully peel off paper. Trim off and dry crisp edges. Roll cake in towel, starting from a short edge. Place cake on wire rack to cool completely. Unroll cake; remove towel. Spread with strawberry spread. Roll. Place on serving plate. Refrigerate until serving time.

Yield: 12 servings; calories per serving: 130.

SPICED APPLE TEA

- 3 cups water
- 5 tea bags
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 6 cloves
- 2-inch piece cinnamon stick
- 2 cups apple juice
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 6 apple wedges

Heat water to boiling. Add tea bags and let stand 3 minutes. Remove tea bags and discard. Stir sugar, cloves and cinnamon into tea. Let stand at room temperature until cool. Remove cinnamon and cloves. Stir in apple and lemon juices. Serve over ice garnished with apple wedges.

Yield: 6 servings; calories per serving 70.

Nadine (PG) Kim Basinger is no pale Hollywood ice princess. She projects an enigmatic blend of dreamer and spitfire — a woman who seems most herself when her hair's a little messy.

Basinger's roles to date have been somewhat wearying variations on the same wet-lipped femme fatale, but she has remained a promising presence on screen. She seemed about to find a comic style in the recent "Blind Date," and didn't even disgrace herself while having food-smearing sex in "9½ Weeks."

"Nadine" is the first movie in which Basinger seems completely alive. Playing a '50s Texas beautician who is still in love with her estranged husband (Jeff Bridges), a charming schemer, the actress is spirited and very real — and yet still somehow enigmatic.

If only Robert Benton's ("Kramer vs. Kramer," "Places in the Heart") film were as good as the hold Basinger has on her character. But after presenting a richly imagined, nostalgic milieu, and settling up the conflicted relationship between Basinger and Bridges, "Nadine" turns innocuous.

There's an anecdotal doodle of a plot in which Nadine inadvertently witnesses a murder and retrieves some incriminating photographs wanted by a con man (Rip Torn) intent on defrauding the state of Texas. Meanwhile Bridges and Basinger are made to play too much lame on-the-lam slapstick when one wants pithy scenes about their characters' push-pull relationship.

Along the way, Benton treats us to a few oddball characters of the sort that populated his earlier, better comedy-thriller, "The Late Show." Glenn Headly (a bright spot in the recent "Making Mr. Right") brings some comic zest to the thankless role of Bridges' girlfriend. Gwen Verdon is a briefly welcome sight as Nadine's boss, and Rip Torn makes his cowboy-hatted villain the very essence of goatish corruption. Grade: ★★½

A Man in Love (R) French film-maker Diane Kurys won a sizable arthouse audience for her last movie, "Entre Nous." With her new picture, her first in English, she seems unlikely to add more fans — unless they're aficionados of goopy romance fiction. This study of the affair between an American movie star (Peter Coyote) and an English-Italian ingenue (Greta Scacchi) during the filming of a movie in Rome is moist, swoony stuff — high-toned adultery with pretty people in picturesque settings.

Kurys belabors her simple tale as if it were far more unusual than it is. Even the falling-in-love-on-a-movie-set theme, with its emphasis on the way that acting and life can get blurred, is trite, having been handled with more ingenuity and scope in "The French Lieutenant's Woman."

It's easy to fault Peter Coyote's performance as the supposedly world-famous movie star, since Coyote lacks the kind of magnetism that one would expect. But at least Coyote doesn't let his character get soggy: He brings an edgy intelligence to this self-centered fellow. Greta Scacchi, meanwhile, is so lively that it doesn't much matter that her acting isn't very compelling. That gloriously vivid beauty Claudia Cardinale turns up briefly and memorably as Scacchi's dying mother. Grade: ★★

New home video

Billy Galvin (PG) Lightning, $79.95. Hammy Karl Malden stars as an ironworker who oppses his son's desire to take up the same trade, in this attempt to portray a contemporary working-class American father-son relationship in all its macho thorniness. Alas, the movie succumbs to sentimentality and overstatement; Malden's character is full of coyly observed blather. Grade: ★★

Huston takes role in movie from hospital

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP) — He's still hospitalized, on oxygen and in a wheelchair, but John Huston is restless.

The 81-year-old director of such classics as "The Maltese Falcon" and "The African Queen" is taking an active role in the production of "Mr. North," a film being directed by his son Danny, his press agent said Friday.

"Every time when his son comes up he goes over every detail of the picture," said Ernie Anderson, Huston's press agent.

Even so, Anderson said, Huston complained Thursday of going "stir-crazy" in his room. He was taken with his oxygen, by wheelchair, to the hospital courtyard, where he was allowed to sit outdoors.

Huston is executive director of the movie, being filmed in Newport, R.I. He was hospitalized after he collapsed in late July.

He continues to recover from the bronchopneumonia that complicated his ongoing battle with emphysema, Caroline McCurry, spokeswoman for Charlton Memorial Hospital, said Friday. There is no word yet on a release date.

Following a hunch

By James Jacoby

Today's splinter bid led to a precarious slam. After four clubs showed a singleton club and a good supporting hand for spades, there were cue-bids to show the heart A-K and the diamond ace, followed by an aggressive bid of six spades. The contract would have been easy with any lead other than a spade, but West wanted to cut down on the crossruffing potential of the deal. It seems best for declarer to duck the spade and hope either that West has led away from the spade king or that the diamond suit is splitting 3-3. However, South's intuition told him that West did not have the spade king, and he based his play on that hunch. He rose with dummy's trump ace, played the diamond ace and ruffed a diamond in his hand. Next came A-K of hearts and a heart ruff, followed by another diamond ruff. Then ace of clubs, club ruff, another diamond ruff and the ruff in dummy of declarer's last club. That was 11 tricks in, with the lead being in dummy. Although down to the lone trump queen, declarer was able to score it for the 12th trick by playing a diamond from dummy, East having the unpleasant task of playing in front of our astute declarer. An unusual deal — West got off to the winning defense, but declarer's good decision made the right lead all for naught.

A new book by James Jacoby and his father, the late Oswald Jacoby, is now available at bookstores. It is "Jacoby on Card Games," published by Pharos Books.

For the 23rd football season in a row, all 59,075 seats at the home games of the University of Notre Dame have been sold.

KEEPING YOUR CAR ALIVE

Peter Bohr

Learning to be cool

By Peter Bohr
Contributing Editor, Road & Track

American automakers have taken it on the chin in recent years. From handling to styling, from workmanship to reliability, Detroit's cars have frequently been trounced by both European and Japanese competitors.

But by golly, there's still one aspect of car building where we haven't been beaten — air conditioning. A Cadillac can go from 125 to 60 (degrees Fahrenheit, that is) in about 15 minutes, which means the car has just about the best air conditioner in the world. That's the opinion of my friend Alan Stocum, a wizard at servicing car air conditioners. Alan sees plenty of them, too, at his shop in semi-arid Riverside, Calif.

General Motors' Delco air conditioners are so good that several prestigious European automakers, including Mercedes-Benz and Rolls-Royce, also use Delco air-conditioner components in their cars.

Of course, American air-conditioning expertise was born of necessity. "The factory engineers can't believe the high temperatures in the U.S.," said a spokesman for one West German automaker. "But a one-day drive in the Mojave Desert makes them believers."

And boy, does it get hot. The interior of a car parked in our summer sun can reach 150 degrees. To cool down a car quickly from such lemme-out-there temperatures, an automobile air conditioner needs to have a ton of cooling capacity (12,000 British thermal units, actually). That's enough to chill two rooms of a house.

Contrary to what it may seem when you aim the air-conditioner vent at your perspiring brow, the machines don't really create cold air. Instead, they take heat from inside the car and put it outside.

That probably doesn't make much sense unless you also know that heat flows from a warm place to a cooler one. It's a law of physics — thermodynamics, I think they call it. An automobile air conditioner (or a Maytag kitchen refrigerator, for that matter) uses a fluid called Freon to make the heat transfer.

The Freon travels around the car in a pressurized, sealed system. As it passes through an evaporator, usually located under the dashboard, heat in the car's interior is absorbed by the Freon. The heated Freon then goes to a condenser, usually mounted in front of the car's radiator. In fact, the condenser looks and acts like a small radiator. It sits in the air stream as the car moves, transferring the heat in the Freon to the atmosphere. Then the cooled-down Freon is ready to make another pass through the evaporator.

The Freon is pushed through the evaporator and condenser by the heart of the air-conditioning system, the compressor. It's attached to the engine and operated by a belt.

Other parts of the air conditioner include various valves, electric fans, temperature and pressure sensors, and a compressor clutch that cycles the system on and off. Altogether, it's quite a complex system.

Naturally, some automakers do a better job of getting this stuff to work than others. Alan says that in general, larger cars with Delco compressors have the most effective and reliable air conditioners.

Which cars aren't so hot at getting cool? Alan doesn't think much of air conditioners in many small Japanese cars. It seems their components just aren't big enough to adequately cool down a car on a hot American day.

"Suzuki's Samurai, for instance, is a cute little car," says Alan. "It has a cute little compressor and a cute little condenser." But, he says, people who "seem so fond of driving Samurais are always coming into our shop and saying, 'Whew, isn't it hot?'"

GENUINE PARTS & AUTHORIZED SERVICE GUIDE...

CONSUMER REPORTS

Sporty cars perform well

By the Editors of Consumer Reports

If you want a car that offers driving fun in a small package, take a good look at both the Acura Integra and the Toyota Corolla FX16. They're not sports cars, but they have some of the same characteristics — peppy performance, a stiff, noisy ride and rear seats that won't win any awards for comfort.

The auto engineers at Consumer Reports recently tested the Integra and FX16. The Integra and FX16 each have a 1.6-liter four-cylinder engine, with double overhead camshafts, four-valve cylinders and fuel injection. These engines produce more power at higher engine speeds than do standard four-cylinder engines. Chassis design emphasizes handling, not comfort. Springs are stiffer and shock absorbers tighter.

The Integra, a smaller companion to the mid-sized Legend, is a slick, sporty car that combines nimble performance with a ride that is comfortable for a car of this type. It is available in a four-door as well as a two-door version.

Standard equipment on the Integra includes a five-speed manual transmission, power steering, four-wheel power disc brakes, rear-window wiper and washer, tinted glass, tilt-steering column, interval wipers and performance tires. Adding air conditioning and a stereo radio with cassette player brought the price to more than $11,700, including destination charge.

The Integra's powerful engine started and ran flawlessly. Expect about 29 miles per gallon overall — typical of a small, high-performance car. Handling, braking and acceleration were superb. The ride is less noisy and more comfortable than one might expect in a sporty car. The Integra's firm but fairly resilient suspension takes the edge off sharp, busy motions and eases over large bumps. A seat-height adjustment and more leg room to the accelerator would help improve driver comfort. The rear seats, with limited head, shoulder and leg room, are no place for adults.

Acura, a division of Honda, has its own dealer network. Like other Honda products, the Integra's reliability should be very good.

Most small, sporty cars are peppy, but not very comfortable. The Toyota FX16 is an exception. Its seating accommodations were much better than one might expect.

The Corolla FX16 is a product of GM's joint venture with Toyota and is built in California on the same assembly line as the Chevy Nova. Standard equipment includes a 1.8-liter, 16-valve four cylinder, five-speed manual transmission; power steering; four-wheel power disc brakes; power exterior mirrors; tilt-steering column; tinted glass; rear-window defroster; interval wipers; performance tires; and exterior-trim package.

Adding air conditioning, rear-window wiper and washer, and stereo radio with cassette player raised the price to more than $12,300, including destination charge.

The car's engine performed flawlessly. Its acceleration was lively and quick. Expect about 29 mpg overall. The car's braking was excellent, although its handling under simulated emergency conditions was not as crisp as it should have been.

If you want an FX16, the auto engineers recommend that you choose the basic model rather than the higher-line GTS. The basic car has the same powerful engine and comfortable seats as the GTS. It lacks only those styling excesses that add nothing to performance but add $1,000 to the price. The FX16 should be as reliable as other Toyotas — and as the Chevy Nova.

Forgotten Filter

One automotive filter that is not being changed as often as it should be is in the automatic transmission, according to the Car Care Council.

Repair shop owners reported overhauling 2.5 million automatic transmissions in 1984, nearly equalling the 2.75 million new and rebuilt engines they installed. Repairmen say most overhauls (costing $500 to $1,000 or more) could be avoided through periodic replacement of the transmission fluid and filter.

This inexpensive ($25 to $50) service, they report, is the most neglected item of car care.

Milone candidate for starting job at UConn

By Len Auster
Sports Editor

STORRS — When the University of Connecticut men's soccer team takes the field this fall, there may be a Manchester connection in the lineup. Brian Milone, a 1986 Manchester High School graduate, will be one of the candidates trying to fill the vital fullback position with the '87 Huskies.

Three starters in the backline, Matt Mosher, Tony Rizza and Chris Heath, have graduated off the 12-7-2 '86 club leaving the door open for Milone, or anyone else who makes the most of the opportunity.

"It's going to be a battle for the fullback positions with everyone who is there and the incoming freshmen," said Milone.

UConn has scheduled a preseason exhibition with defending Big East Conference champ Seton Hall on Sept. 29. It opens the regular season at the Connecticut Soccer Stadium in Storrs on Tuesday, Sept. 1, against Adelphi.

The 5-10, 170-pound Milone was a stalwart defender with Coach Bill McCarthy's Manchester High School Indians for three years. He received all-league honors in his sophomore and junior years and an All-State notice in his senior campaign. Milone's teams in high school won two Central Connecticut Conference East Division championships. His team was Class LL runner-up in 1983, and a Class LL semifinalist in '84.

Milone, a sophomore who plans to major in business, played sparingly on the varsity level as a freshman. He saw service in four games. Milone sat on the varsity bench much of the time, but did see full-time service in eight or nine sub-varsity games, he recalls. "Practices were hard so you do get a lot out of that," Milone said, "but playing experience in the long run will help you," he added.

Milone put himself into the UConn picture with a fine spring campaign. "Physically he matured," said Eric Swallow, assistant to head coach Joe Morrone for eight years. "Technically he improved his ability. And he also improved his understanding of the way we want to play. That's tough to learn when you come out of high school to a recognized Division I program," Swallow said.

"He had a good spring and his development put him in a situation where he is in a position to vie for a starting position," Swallow continued. "It's not to say he will start. But if he performs well in the preseason he could be in a starting role. And if not, he should expect to see a lot more playing time."

Milone, who played either stopper-back or sweeperback in high school, put himself through an extensive workout schedule this summer. He's been playing with two Manchester Soccer Club teams, the 19-and-under team in the McGuire Cup competition and the 23-and-under squad in the Hartford League. He's been playing center midfield most of the time.

He also developed a regimen of running four to five miles a day. That schedule caught up with him Tuesday when he felt a twinge in a hamstring area. "I may have been pushing too hard," he admitted. He was bedridden Wednesday, but he was hopeful of being ready for the start of training camp yesterday in Storrs where he was going to have to complete a two-mile run.

Milone knows he'll get a fair shake from Morrone.

"He doesn't say much because everyone has a fair chance," Milone said. "It (selection for the team) is an unbiased thing. I'm not sure what he is going to do, but just getting invited back to camp is a big thing."

That invitation, Milone hopes, will translate into more playing time with the nationally recognized UConn soccer program.

Bosworth signs lucrative pact with the Seahawks

By Jim Cour
The Associated Press

SEATTLE — Brian Bosworth signed an $11 million, 10-year contract package with the Seattle Seahawks Friday, joining a team he once said he wouldn't play for and giving them an added boost into the upper rank of NFL contenders.

"I'm ecstatic about being in Seattle," Bosworth told a packed news conference after the signing Friday. "I'm excited about this opportunity. A childhood dream has come true today. Now it's time to get down to work."

The signing, announced by Seahawks spokesman Gary Wright, capped negotiations that began June 12, when the Seahawks won the rights to draft the All-America linebacker from Oklahoma in the NFL's supplemental draft.

He brings to the Seahawks, who missed the playoffs last season despite finishing with five straight wins and a 10-6 record, the potential to be a dominating force inside. Bosworth joins a linebacking corps that already includes Pro Bowler Fred Young and two promising rookies — Tony Woods and Dave Wyman, the first two picks in the regular draft.

But Bosworth downplayed any immediate contribution he might make.

"I have a lot of catching up to do before I make any kind of bold statements," he said. "It'll take a while to get in football shape. I'm way behind. I'm in shape running-wise and lifting-wise, but I'm not in football shape."

Bosworth's deal, a series of 10 one-year contracts, reportedly includes a $2.5 million signing bonus that would pay him $500,000 immediately and distribute $500,000 payments each year from 1997 to 2000. His yearly salaries start at $300,000 and go up yearly to $400,000, $500,000, $600,000, $700,000, $1 million, $1.1 million, $1.2 million, $1.3 million and finally to $1.4 million in 1996, the New Tribune of Tacoma, Wash., reported.

The package makes Bosworth the highest-paid defensive player in the NFL.

Curt Warner, who signed a $5.21, five-year deal in the off-season, is currently the highest-paid Seahawk.

Sources also said the agreement would be fully insured and guaranteed in case of injury.

"The deal was on the burner for a long time," Bosworth said. "It was done in a very businesslike manner. There was no bad blood between anyone."

He wouldn't confirm details of the pact except to say, "It's big. I'm extremely happy with it. I'm glad I'm going to be here for 10 years."

Bosworth, known for his multicolored hairdos, earrings and outspoken ways, said he doesn't think his image will be a problem.

"I'm here to play football and win football games. What people read and hear about me are two different things. Coach (Chuck) Knox has already told me he's not going to muzzle me, but I'm not going to put my foot in my mouth, either. I'm going to be careful about what I say about opponents."

Bosworth had a year of football eligibility remaining at Oklahoma but completed work for his degree, making him eligible for the NFL draft.

He would have been chosen in the first five of the regular draft but bypassed it because he didn't want to be taken by Buffalo, which had the third pick, or Green Bay which had the fourth. He then opted for a special supplemental draft, but said he would sign with one of only six teams — the two in New York and Los Angeles along with Philadelphia and Tampa Bay.

However, he opened negotiations soon after he was taken by Seattle, which picked 18th of the 28 teams and had 11 capsules in the weighted draft compared to 28 for Tampa Bay, which picked first, 27 for Indianapolis, 26 for Buffalo and so on.

The 6-foot-2, 248-pound Bosworth was a unanimous first-team, All-America choice in both 1985 and 1986, and a second-team pick in 1984.

Raiders look to Hilger to restore prestige

By The Associated Press

It's time for Rusty Hilger to demonstrate that he can return the Los Angeles Raiders to their customary place among the NFL's elite.

The third-year quarterback from Oklahoma State, who has been designated by Al Davis and the Raiders' hierarchy as the man to restore a passing attack to the team, will start for Los Angeles against the San Francisco 49ers Saturday night. Coach Tom Flores says Hilger will play at least a half.

"I've been aware of this since Day One in training camp. I don't think anything's going to change except that now the performance is going to speak for itself," says Hilger, who has played in just six regular-season NFL games, completing 23 of 51 passes, one for a touchdown.

"Practice is one thing, but taking it on the field is another."

The renewal at the Los Angeles Coliseum of the one-time San Francisco Bay Area rivalry is one of nine games Saturday night as the first full weekend of the NFL exhibition season gets into full swing. But most fans are likely to see a lot of unfamiliar faces as coaches try to find out who among the 100 or so players on most rosters are NFL material.

"You'll see a lot of numbers and a lot of faces, so make sure you don't lose your scorecard," says New York Jets Coach Joe Walton in a comment that could stand for most coaches.

The weekend began Thursday night with Kansas City defeating Houston 32-20 and the Los Angeles Rams beating Seattle 23-14.

Pittsburgh was at Washington Friday night. In other Saturday games, Cincinnati is at Tampa Bay; St. Louis at Cleveland; Buffalo at Atlanta; Indianapolis at Detroit; Minnesota at New Orleans; Philadelphia at the Jets; Dallas at San Diego and Denver against Green Bay in Tempe, Arizona.

On Sunday, Chicago is at Miami in the first NFL game to be telecast by ESPN and the Super Bowl champion New York Giants are at New England in a game to be telecast nationally by ABC.

In Los Angeles, the focus will definitely be on Hilger as Marc Wilson, who shared the job with Jim Plunkett in last year's disappointing 8-8 season, seems to be fading into oblivion.

Raider Head Coach Tom Flores will look to third-year quarterback Rusty Hilger in hopes of returning the team to its previous level of excellence. Hilger will see plenty of time when the Raiders open their exhibition season this weekend.

"Because of his need for game experience, we'll probably give Rusty a full half in each game, and maybe even let him play further in the final game," Flores says.

The game will also mark the debut of three new wide receivers — Mervyn Fernandez and Chris Woods, signed by the Raiders from the Canadian Football League during the offseason, and James Lofton, a seven-time Pro Bowler acquired from Green Bay.

The 49ers, who beat Kansas City 20-7 in the Hall of Fame game last Saturday, will probably go without starting quarterback Joe Montana, who aggravated a strained chest ligament in practice Wednesday. Coach Bill Walsh, who says Montana would play if it were a regular season game would be replaced by Steve Young and Bob Gagliano.

The Dallas-San Diego game, which will be televised nationally by CBS, is notable for the long list of players who won't play.

"The only problem we have is that our injuries are about as long as your arm. We've never had this many injuries in camp," says Dallas Coach Tom Landry, who has lost wide receiver Mike Sherrard for the season with a broken leg and will be without running back Herschel Walker, out for two to three weeks with strained knee ligaments.

Dallas will have Danny White at quarterback, although he still is bothered by pain in the wrist of his throwing arm, which was broken last year. White will start and play about a quarter. Teammate Tony Dorsett may see some action, although he still is recovering from arthroscopic surgery on both knees.

The Chargers will be without quarterback Dan Fouts, linebacker Chip Banks, running back Gary Anderson, tight ends Kellen Winslow and Pete Holoan and defensive backs John Hendy and Jeff Dale.

Coach Al Saunders will start Mark Herrmann at quarterback and play him most of the first half. Free agent Rick Neuheisel will be followed by rookie Mark Visac who will finish.

In Cleveland, St. Louis Coach Gene Stallings will be more concerned with the problems of his team, which finished 4-11-1 last year, than concentrating on the Browns, who finished 12-4 in the regular season and lost the AFC title game to Denver in overtime.

"Our situation's a little different from Cleveland's," says Stallings.

"I've looked at them just very little, to be very honest. We've got to decide who's going to make our 45-man squad. I know winning is important. We're going to try to win, but not to the extent that we're going to play our veterans all the time."

Fired-up Skinner tops LPGA field

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Valerie Skinner got "fired up and excited" when she eagled the 17th hole, then finished with a birdie to cap a round of 5-under-par 67 Friday at the Westchester Hills Country Club to take the first-round lead in the $225,000 LPGA MasterCard International.

The 27-year-old Skinner, regarded as one of the longer hitters on the LPGA Tour, drove 235 yards on the par-5, 465-yard 17th hole, then stroked a one-iron approach 210 yards, with the ball coming to rest pin high, 25 feet away from the cup. She ran in the putt for the eagle to get to 4-under on the day.

"I got fired up and excited," Skinner, a two-time winner since joining the tour in 1983, said. "The very next hole I got another birdie."

"The course plays into my game. The par-fives are very reachable and I was consistent the whole round. All year, I've been struggling because of different systems."

The 54-hole tournament, also being contested on the par-72, 6,187-yard Ridgeway Country Club, matches each of the 144 players with with four amateurs for the first two rounds.

Sunday's final round, restricted to the low 70 scorers and ties, will be played over the 6,013-yard Westchester Hills course.

Shelley Hamlin, who gained her lone tour victory in the 1978 Patty Berg Classic, trailed Skinner with a 69, also shot at Westchester Hills.

Barbara Thomas, who has missed the cut in 16 of 21 tournaments this year, had a 70 for the best score at Ridgeway. Rookie Kelley Markette, who hasn't made the cut in 13 events this season, had a 70 at Westchester.

Sherri Turner and Mindy Moore, both playing at Westchester Hills, were at 71 while 16 others were at par 72, including Betsy King, the second-leading money winner this season with $343,210.

'Stupid mistakes' oust Nicklaus

By Bob Green
The Associated Press

CASTLE ROCK, Colo. — Jack Nicklaus and Greg Norman each fell victim to what Nicklaus called "stupid mistakes" and were among the two dozen players eliminated Friday in the second round of the unique International golf tournament.

"I didn't play very smart golf and that's unusual for me," Nicklaus said. He also had some extremely high numbers, including a 44 over his first nine holes on the Castle Pines Golf Club, a course he designed.

Nicklaus, 47, holder of a record 18 major professional titles, also said he got caught up in the unusual format and scoring system used in this tournament.

"Under this format, a birdie and a bogey is better than two pars. I was trying to play to that format and it cost me two double bogeys," he said.

But, Nicklaus added, "It's nobody's fault but mine. You feel pretty silly when you makes mistakes like I did."

Nicklaus finished with minus-4 points under the modified Stableford scoring system in which points are awarded or subtracted according to performance on each hole. An eagle is worth five points, a birdie two, par zero, bogey minus-1 and double bogey or higher minus-3. Nicklaus had a medal score of 77.

season, also made a mistake he couldn't afford.

Needing only a par on the 18th hole to reach a playoff for the final qualifying places, Norman drove into the water and made double bogey. Norman finished with a medal score of 78, six over par, and a minus-5 point total.

Tom Watson and Ben Crenshaw also were deep into negative figures at one time or another, but each rallied and qualified for Saturday's third round, when 84 players will compete for 18 places in Sunday's final round.

Watson got back to zero and had a medal score of 75. Crenshaw also shot 75 but had two points.

Steve Jones, taking medication for a heart condition and playing a hilly course at 6,300-foot altitude, pitched in from 70 yards for an eagle-3 that propelled him to the best score of the day.

He had a 67 medal score and 13 points. It was worth $10,000 from the "day" money that is being awarded this year for the player with the most points.

John Inman was next with 10 points, followed by Brad Faxon and Curt Byrum, each with nine.

Nicklaus said his attempt to play to the points format rather than a medal score cost him double bogeys on both the 14th and 15th holes.

"I would have laid up on the 14th" where he put his second shot into a creek bed "and I would have played to the left" and avoided the water that claimed his second shot on the 15th.

"Just stupid. Nobody's fault but my own," he said.

After playing the back nine first, he reached the turn with minus-11 points and trailed the field.

Yanks activate Willie Randolph

NEW YORK — The New York Yankees activated second baseman Willie Randolph from the 21-day disabled list Friday — exactly four weeks after he underwent knee surgery. To make room on the roster, the club optioned outfielder Roberto Kelly to the Class AAA Columbus Clippers of the International League.

Randolph, this year's American League starting second baseman in the All-Star game, was placed on the disabled list July 15 with torn cartilage in his left knee and underwent arthroscopic surgery two days later. The procedure was performed by team physician Dr. John Bonomo.

Randolph last played on July 12. "I knew if I worked hard, I'd get back quickly," he said. "I feel like I'm ready to make a contribution. I'm not going to come back and play nine innings every day. But I'll go as long as I can." Kelly was recalled from Columbus on July 29 and made his debut that afternoon against the Kansas City Royals. In 10 games, he batted .300 with one homer and five RBIs.

The Yankees also sent outfielder Ron Kittle to Columbus under the major-league rehabilitation program. It was the second time that Kittle, who is suffering from neck problems, has been assigned to the club for rehabilitation. He had a three-day stint previously with the Clippers that started on July 28. Kittle was placed on the 15-day disabled list on July 7 with an inflamed muscle in his neck.

Fishing

Inland fishing advisory

Trout fishing is on the slow side in most of the state, according to DEP field personnel. Conditions have been good at West Hill Pond, Highland Lake and Tyler Pond at night, and on the Farmington River from Hogback Dam to New Hartford. Fair trout fishing is reported at East Twin Lake, Beach Pond, Crystal Lake, Quannong Lake, Long Pond, the Willimantic, Scantic, Blackledge and Jeremys Rivers, and Bigelow Brook. Largemouth bass fishing has been excellent at Lake Wononscopomic, where several three to five pound bass were taken. Good largemouth bass fishing is reported at West Twin Lake, Winchester Lake, Mudge Pond, Candlewood Lake, Lake Lilliana, Hatch Pond, Burr Pond, Mansfield Hollow Reservoir, Lake Saltanfall, Eagleville Lake, Beachdale Pond and Moodus Reservoir. Smallmouth bass fishing has been excellent on the Housatonic River from Route 4 to Kent; good at Coventry, the Sheluckett River and on the Connecticut River and in its coves. Pickerel fishing has been good at Gardner Lake, Amos Lake, Rogers Lake and Lake of Isles. Pike fishing has been excellent at Bantam Lake, where several eight to 14 pound pike have been reported; fair on the Connecticut River and in its coves. Fair kokanee fishing is reported at West Hill Pond.

Fishing for panfish has been excellent in all warm water ponds in western Connecticut, particularly West Twin Lake, Bantam Lake, Hatch Pond, Wononscopomic Lake, North Farms Reservoir and Silver Lake, late evenings and early mornings. Good fishing for panfish is reported throughout eastern Connecticut with Lower Bolton Lake and Boshan Lake providing especially good results. Collico bass provide good fishing at Columbia Lake and Pachaug Pond; bullheads and catfish provide excellent results at Bantam Lake and Candlewood Lake, while crutch are plentiful on the Connecticut River and its coves.

Sports in Brief

Baylor trade put on hold

BOSTON — Veteran designated hitter Don Baylor's days with the Boston Red Sox are numbered, but a proposed deal to the California Angels reportedly has been put on hold.

"I have nothing new to report," Boston General Manager Lou Gorman said Friday night. "I haven't heard from California since we talked the other day. Apparently they feel they can't make the deal at this time."

The Red Sox have offered Baylor, a 16-year veteran, to California for a minor league pitcher. However, the Angels reportedly are having trouble trying to find a place on the roster for the right-handed slugger.

California signed left-handed hitting veteran Bill Buckner last month after he was waived by the Red Sox.

Collins leads Senior event

RANCHO MURIETA, Calif. — Bill Collins shot a 5-under-par 67 Friday to take the first-round lead at the $300,000 Rancho Murieta Senior Gold Rush golf tournament.

Collins, despite a bogey on the first hole and a double-bogey on the fourth, when he hit three trees, played the front nine in 2-under-par 34.

Dale Douglass and Bob Bruce are one shot back at 4-under-par 68. Orville Moody, Roberto DeVicenzo and Ken Still are two off the pace at 69.

Chi Chi Rodriguez, the leading money-winner on the Senior Tour, was tied with Butch Baird and Lee Elder at 70.

Charles Coody, Bob Charles and Harold Henning were tied at 71, and Don January and Bruce Crampton were tied with six others at even-par 72. Arnold Palmer and Doug Sanders each had 2-over 74.

Torrance, Longmuir share lead

YORK, England — Scotland's Sam Torrance and Bill Longmuir shared the lead after Friday's second round of the $300,000 Benson and Hedges International Golf Tournament.

Longmuir had a 3-under-par 69 and Torrance had a 70. Both were at 9 under-par 135 after 36 holes. West Germany's Bernhard Langer shot a 67 to tie Barry Lane at 136, one shot behind the leaders.

Moses, Reynolds win comfortably

LONDON — Americans Edwin Moses and Butch Reynolds continued their preparations for the World Track and Field Championships Friday with comfortable victories at the International Athletes Club IAAF-Mobil Grand Prix meet.

Moses, 31, won the 400-meter hurdles, the event he has dominated for a decade, in 48.07 seconds. Kris Akabusi of Britain was second in 49.34.

Reynolds, who has set the three fastest 400-meter dash times in the world this year, also won easily. Reynolds took the lead with 50 meters to go and won in 44.42 seconds. Innocent Egbunike of Nigeria, the only man to beat Reynolds this season, was second in 44.80, with Britain's Derek Redmond third in 44.89.

Reynolds said he may run one more race, in West Berlin on Aug. 21, before the Aug. 29-Sept. 6 World Championships in Rome.

Wharton takes second off mark

BRISBANE, Australia — Dave Wharton took more than a second off the 400 meter individual medley world record Friday at the Pan Pacific swimming championships, eclipsing Canadian Alex Baumann's 3-year-old mark.

Wharton, 18, from Warminster, Pa., finished in four minutes 16.12 seconds, well ahead of Baumann's mark of 4:17.41 set at the Los Angeles Olympics in 1984.

Wharton became the second American to set a world record at the meet. Tom Jager set a 50 meter freestyle mark of 22.32 seconds on Thursday night.

The United States, which won six of eight gold medals Thursday night, won another six golds Friday.

The other individual American victors were Matt Biondi in the men's 100 meter freestyle, Dara Torres in the women's 100 meter freestyle and dual world record holder Janet Evans in the women's 400 meter individual medley.

Canada's Gilbert absolved of guilt

By Doug Richardson
The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — A medal-winning Canadian swimmer whose drug test showed traces of a banned substance contained in a cold medication will not be punished, the head of the governing body of the Pan American Games said Friday.

Mario Vazquez Rana, president of the Pan American Sports Organization, said no action is planned against 17-year-old Sally Gilbert, who helped Canada win a bronze medal in the 800-meter freestyle relay Sunday.

"The case of the Canadian girl is over. It is finished," said Vazquez Rana, speaking through a translator. "Very late last night, the word came that there is no problem."

"When a girl says voluntarily that she's going to take medication for a cold, a very light reading will come out in the test," said Vazquez Rana. Even an aspirin can show positive, he said.

He said the Canadian's test showed "a minimal positive reading."

"There is really nothing there," he said.

GILBERT, FROM VANCOUVER, HAD taken the medication for a cold the Friday before her Sunday relay event, Canadian officials said. A second part of her urine sample was also analyzed in the presence of Canadian officials.

"I'm relieved that the situation has apparently been resolved," said Gilbert.

"Now I can concentrate on swimming, and only swimming, for the rest of the meet and I can put this behind me," she said.

If an athlete is to be punished, the PASO executive committee has to accept the recommendation of its medical commission that there was a doping violation. The executive committee then would announce the positive result and punishment, PASO officials said.

"There has been no announcement because there has been no doping infraction," said Dr. Andrew Pipe, chief medical officer for the Canadian team. "I have been assured there is no decision forthcoming."

Vazquez Rana said "there's no reason to say something" officially when an athlete is not going to be punished.

The delegation was notified Tuesday that an athlete had tested positive for the presence of pseudoephedrine, a banned substance contained in cold medicine, Pipe said.

He said the substance is present in the over-the-counter medicine Chlorotripolon Decongestant, which Gilbert took, believing it to be Chlorotripolon. The decongestant contains the banned substance, the other medicine does not, Pipe said.

A small amount of the substance does not enhance performance, he said.

GILBERT GOT THE MEDICATION from Anne-Marie Andersen, a teammate who purchased the tablets at an airport on her way to Indianapolis, Pipe said.

Andersen asked the Canadian medical staff if Chlorotripolon was all right to take and was told that it was, Pipe said. He said he has not been able to determine which member of the medical staff gave the advice to the swimmer.

"In a sense, she asked the wrong question and got the right answer," said Pipe.

"It is unreasonable to expect a young swimmer to make the pharmaceutical distinction" between the two types of tablets, Pipe said.

He said he believed the Canadian medical staff acted appropriately.

Canadian swim coach Tom Johnson allowed Gilbert to swim Thursday. He had pulled her off the 400-meter freestyle relay team that won a silver medal on Tuesday because of the uncertainty over her status on the drug test.

Gilbert was fourth Thursday in the 100-meter butterfly.

"It would have been an honor to win a (silver) medal for Canada, but I came to the Pan Am Games with the goal of improving my times and swimming to the best of my ability, and I'm happy that I have been able to do that," said Gilbert.

Pennant races are shaping up in all divisions

By Ben Walker
The Associated Press

Last season, baseball suffered without a single pennant race. This season, the fever is catching all over.

"Everybody's still in it," Cincinnati Manager Pete Rose said, scouring the National League West standings where his Reds entered the weekend tied with San Francisco for first place. But Rose could have been assessing the major leagues in general, where several newcomers are brightening up the pennant scramble. Chases are shaping up in all four divisions, almost as if to make up for last year's September drudgery.

Going into this weekend, 12 teams are within 4½ games of the top and some, such as Detroit, California and the Giants are charging fast.

At this point last season, there were only six clubs within 4½ games and soon thereafter there were no races for the first time since division play began in 1969. The New York Mets, Houston, Boston and California were all in first place by July 21 and stayed there.

Steve Carlton and Phil Niekro, a pair of 300-game winners, have been dealt in the last three weeks as late-season maneuvering has started early. Doyle Alexander and Jim Morrison have also traded uniforms and rumors abound.

"It'll still go right down to the end, I think," Minnesota Manager Tom Kelly said after the Twins — who have not won the AL West since 1970 — had their lead cut to 2½ games by California.

The AL West, often called a mish-mash of mediocrity, is the most tightly bunched division. Kansas City and Oakland are four games behind, Seattle is five back and Texas trails by six.

Pitching usually decides pennant races and Bret Saberhagen (16-7) helps Kansas City have the best starting rotation in the AL. But the Royals' bullpen is weak. Carlton, acquired by the Twins from Cleveland on July 31, has gone 1-2 since joining the Twins and has not bolstered their staff as much as hoped.

In the AL East, Toronto took over last week as New York faded when pitching problems turned into a Lou Piniella-George Steinbrenner feud. Detroit, playing the best ball in the majors since mid-May, is one-half game behind and the Yankees are two games back.

"It's still too early to start worrying that if we lose and the Yankees win, they'll be in first place," said Toronto's

Dave Stieb, who seemingly has overcome elbow trouble and regained his stature as staff ace by winning six straight decisions.

Toronto and Detroit both made deals in the last week to enhance their chances.

The Blue Jays got Niekro from Cleveland last week as a fifth starter and he lost his debut with Toronto. Niekro, 48, has never been in a World Series. The Tigers acquired Alexander from Atlanta as a fifth starter and got Morrison from Pittsburgh to fill a shaky spot at third base.

The Yankees are also looking for pitching, but are still coming up empty. They are said to be after David Palmer of the Braves and Floyd Bannister of the Chicago White Sox.

Cincinnati, which has not reached the playoffs since 1979, and San Francisco, out of postseason play since 1971, are four games ahead of Houston. Even Los Angeles, at eight back, and Atlanta, nine behind, are not out of it.

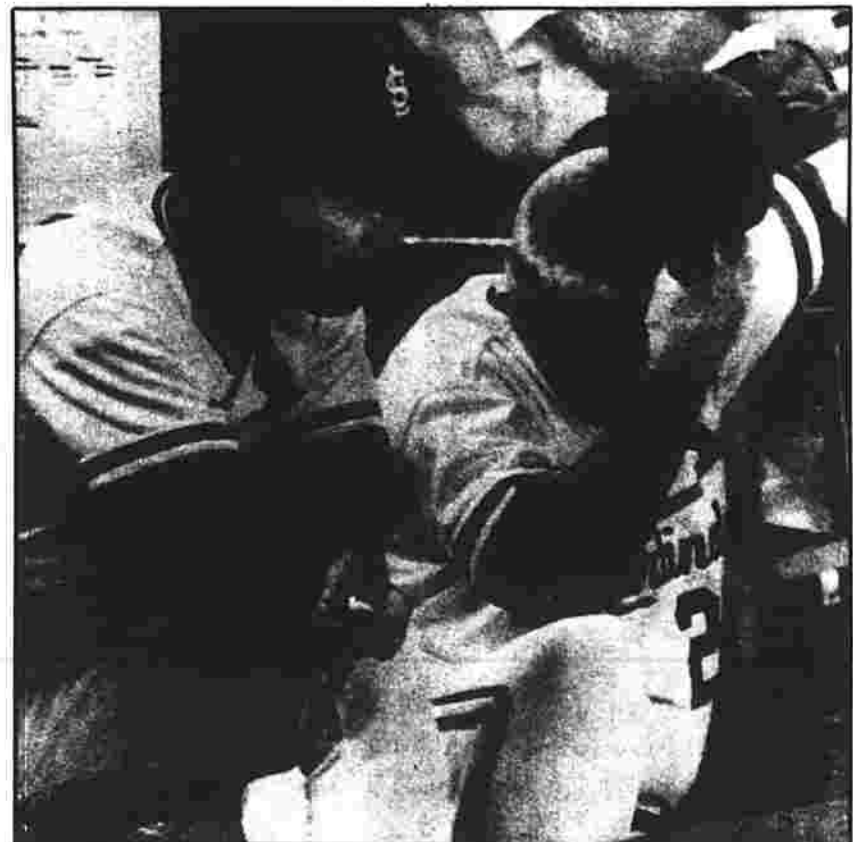

"I can't figure this team out," Rose said after the Reds lost six of eight on a West Coast trip.

St. Louis holds the biggest lead, 4½ games ahead of the defending World Series champion New York Mets. The Cardinals have been in first place since May 20 but recently been inconsistent with Jack Clark hurt, allowing the Mets and hang-tough Montreal (six back) to remain in contention.

After this weekend, the schedule will put head-to-head matchups on hold for awhile. Not until Labor Day will teams again play primarily against clubs in their own division.

Not that games in the next month mean anything less.

"I'm watching the scoreboard. But I watch it every day," Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog said. "From opening day to the last day of the season, they all matter."

Yankees looking for pitching help

By Ben Walker
The Associated Press

Toronto and Detroit have already bolstered their pitching staffs for their American League East stretch run, and the New York Yankees are trying to do the same. They are interested in Atlanta's David Palmer, who had also attracted interest from Detroit before it got Doyle Alexander and the Blue Jays prior to getting Phil Niekro. Several scouts have been following Leon Durham of the Chicago Cubs, who seem willing to trade him and make a full-scale commitment to youth. The Giants are among those who have watched Durham.

Before San Francisco acquired pitcher Don Robinson from Pittsburgh, the New York Mets were interested. The Mets backed off when the Pirates asked for shortstop Kevin Elster. The Giants now has two right-handed relievers named Robinson, Jeff and Don. San Francisco Manager Roger Craig likes both of them, although they are causing him some confusion. He recently called down to the bullpen and said "Get Robinson warm." Coach Norm Sherry asked "Which one?" and Craig answered, "I don't care which one."

Tony Gwynn likes to make his

own tapes of San Diego games so he can watch them to review his batting stroke. Gwynn's home is well-equipped — he's got a satellite dish, seven television sets and seven video recorders. The Kansas City Royals had been waiting for George Brett to get hot, and he now may be on one of those late-season streaks that can carry them in the stretch. He hit in 16 straight games (.377) with six homers and 11 RBI.

In his last 14 starts, Dan Petry has gotten an average of 8.9 runs per game. The Tigers won 12 of those games and Petry went 6-2 during that time despite a 6.08 ERA. The best way to slow down Howard Johnson? Make him hit against non-pitchers. This year, Johnson struck out against Philadelphia outfielder Glenn Wilson and flied out against Montreal infielder Vance Law. Last season, Johnson struck out against Houston infielder Craig Reynolds.

Dwight Gooden has a lifetime record of 49-10 in night games, 18-13 by daylight. Since June 1, the Padres had the best record in the NL West at 33-28. The next best in the division belonged to Cincinnati at 31-32. The St. Louis Cardinals' outfield set a major-league record by not getting a single chance in a 13-inning loss to Philadelphia Thursday night.

Ellis Burks' 20 stolen bases are the most by a Red Sox rookie since Tris Speaker in 1909. Bo Jackson's teammates say he has become much more relaxed and outgoing since Kansas City Manager Billy Gardner put Lonnie Smith in left field and Bo on the bench. The benching came after Jackson became much less productive since announcing on July 11 his decision to play in the NFL. Before his announcement, Jackson was hitting .288 with 18 homers and 46 RBI in 285 at-bats. In 83 at-bats since then, he is hitting .205 with two homers and three RBI.

Elsewhere: Dale Berra is batting .270 with nine home runs and 59 RBI for Houston's Class AAA Tucson club. Jack Perconte is hitting .275 for Los Angeles' Triple-A team in Albuquerque. Juan Eichelberger is 7-4 with a 3.70 ERA for Atlanta's Class AAA Richmond team. Brad Komminsk is hitting .284 with 24 homers and 72 RBI in Denver, Milwaukee's Triple-A affiliate.

Moriarty's wins

It was a wild and woolly affair at Moriarty Field Friday night as host Moriarty Brothers outlasted Marco Polo, 12-11, in a first-round game in the Greater Hartford Twilight Baseball League playoffs.

Moriarty's, the No. 3 seed, advances to a winners' bracket game tonight at 7:30 at Moriarty Field against the Newington Capitols-Society for Savings winner. The Capitols were leading, 10-5, when that game was suspended. It will be completed this morning.

Moriarty's erased deficits of 6-0 and 8-3 to pull out the win. A big six-run sixth inning was a key for the MB's. Jeff Johnson had a two-run single. Ray Gilha an RBI safety and Chris Petersen his second homer of the game, a two-run shot, to give the MB's a 11-10 lead. Brian Crowley followed with a solo shot for Moriarty's final run.

Petersen slammed a three-run homer in the fourth inning with Moriarty's scoring three times in the fifth. Jeff Johnson knocked in one run and Crowley a pair in that inning.

Jim O'Connor homered in the final inning for Marco Polo before reliever Ken Hill got the final out, striking out Kevin Hickey to end the game. Sullivan at shortstop and second baseman Mike Johnson turned a crucial double play in the final frame for the locals.

Petersen had two homers and five RBIs, Jeff Johnson two hits and three RBIs. Gilha three hits and Steve Chotiner two for Moriarty's. Dave Bidwell was the winning pitcher.

NL Roundup

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Keith Moreland hit a three-run homer and Scott Sanderson defeated the New York Mets for the second time this week as the Chicago Cubs beat the Mets 6-1 Friday.

Andre Dawson and Jerry Mumphrey hit homers on consecutive pitches in the seventh off reliever Jeff Innis. Dawson's homer increased his league-leading total to 36 and tied him with Montreal's Tim Wallach for the RBI lead with 99.

Sanderson, 6-6, was lifted after five innings because of a pulled groin muscle. He allowed three hits, struck out four and walked two. The right-hander defeated the Mets last Sunday, 5-3.

The Mets took a 1-0 lead in the third when Keith Hernandez doubled home Lenny Dykstra, who had opened the inning with a single.

But the Cubs rallied for four runs in the fifth. Dave Martinez led off with a double, was sacrificed to third by Ryne Sandberg, and scored on Leon Durham's sacrifice fly.

Moreland capped the rally with a homer off loser John Mitchell, 3-5, following a double by Dawson and an intentional walk to Mumphrey. It was Moreland's 22nd home of the season.

Cardinals 8, Phillies 4

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Willie McGee's three-run homer snapped a fifth-inning tie and the St. Louis Cardinals broke Philadelphia's five-game winning streak with an 8-4 victory over the Phillies Friday night.

The win gave first-place St. Louis a 5½-game lead over New York in the National League East, and snapped a two-game losing streak.

McGee's home run, his ninth of the season, came off starter Bruce Ruffin, 9-9, in the fifth with Tommy Herr and Jack Clark on base to give St. Louis a 7-4 lead. The homer gave McGee a career-high 84 runs batted in.

Herr started the rally with two outs, reaching base when shortstop Steve Jeltz bobbled a slow grounder for an error, and Clark walked.

The Cardinals made it 8-4 in the eighth when John Morris scored on reliever Fred Toliver's balk.

Expos 4, Pirates 3

MONTREAL (AP) — Pinch-hitters Reid Nichols and Mike Fitzgerald hit consecutive run-scoring singles in the eighth inning to give the Montreal Expos a 4-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Friday night.

With the Pirates leading 3-2, Tom Foley hit a two-out double in the eighth off reliever John Smiley, 3-3. Nichols followed with a single to left to score Foley and took second on the throw home. Fitzgerald then singled to right to score the winning run.

Reds 2, Padres 0

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Ted Power pitched three-hit ball over eight-plus innings and Kal Daniels hit a two-run double in the fourth inning as the Cincinnati Reds beat the San Diego Padres 2-0 in the first game of a two-night doubleheader Friday.

Power, 9-7, walked two and struck out six. He was relieved by John Franco when Carmelo Martinez reached first leading off the ninth on shortstop Barry Larkin's fielding error. Franco got the final three outs for his 22nd save.

Astros 8, Braves 4

HOUSTON (AP) — Alan Ashby hit a two-run homer and Bill Doran had a two-run double, highlighting a five-run Houston first inning and leading the Astros to an 8-4 victory over Atlanta Friday night.

Gerald Young reached base to start Houston's first on a fielding error by first baseman Gerald Perry and Charlie Puleo, 5-5, walked Billy Hatcher.

Doran then drove home both runners with a double off the right-field fence that eluded Dale Murphy.

the game snapped an eighth-inning tie Friday night and the Cleveland Indians beat New York 6-5 for the Yankees' season-high fifth straight loss.

New York has dropped seven of its last eight games. Jacoby and Brett Butler each had three of Cleveland's 13 hits as the Indians won their third in a row.

Jacoby tied the score 5-5 with a home run in the sixth. He connected in the eighth for his 23rd homer off reliever Brad Arnsberg, 1-2. The two home runs, Jacoby's first since July 30, were the only hits allowed in 4 2/3 innings by Arnsberg.

Tom Candiotti, 6-11, gave up nine hits in 7 2/3 innings.

Dan Pasqua hit a solo home run, his 12th, and Don Mattingly, who homered earlier, had an RBI single in the fifth that put the Yankees ahead 5-4.

four-hitter Friday night as the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Chicago White Sox 3-2.

Cerutti, 9-2, gave up four hits, three of them in the third inning, in eight innings. He struck out seven and walked one. Henke finished for his 26th save.

Brewers 6, Orioles 2

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dale Sveum hit two homers and drove in four runs Friday night, leading the Milwaukee Brewers over the Baltimore Orioles 6-2 as Paul Molitor extended his hitting streak to 29 games.

Sveum's three-run homer capped a five-run rally off Eric Bell, 9-9, in the third inning and he led off the sixth with his 17th home run. Molitor kept the longest hitting streak in the majors this season going with a leadoff single in the seventh.

Juan Nieves, who pitched a no-hitter at Memorial Stadium on April 15, allowed eight hits before being lifted with two on and two outs in the seventh. Nieves, 9-6, got the victory and Chuck Crim recorded his fourth save.

Twins 6, Mariners 3

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Kent Hrbek and Tim Laudner hit home runs and Bert Blyleven pitched six-hit ball for eight innings Friday night as the Minnesota Twins beat the Seattle Mariners 6-3.

Royals 7, Tigers 5

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Steve Balboni and Danny Tartabull hit home runs Friday night, carrying the Kansas City Royals past the Detroit Tigers 7-5.

Rookie Kevin Seitzer went 2-for-3 with two walks and raised his average to .333, second-best in the American League to Wade Boggs. Tartabull drove in three runs as the Royals stopped Detroit's three-game winning streak.

Piniella, Henderson clear the air

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees Manager Lou Piniella and injured outfielder Rickey Henderson talked for 25 minutes in a clear-the-air, closed-door meeting before Friday night's game against Cleveland.

The meeting was in response to a written statement released by Yankees owner George Steinbrenner last weekend in Detroit that said Piniella wanted Henderson traded for "jacking it" during his recovery from a pulled hamstring.

Henderson, who has not played since July 25, was not with the Yankees during their 2-8 road trip. Immediately after Steinbrenner's remarks, Piniella phoned Henderson and told him he wanted to meet when the team returned to New York.

"I think what was said was said out of frustration of what was going on," Henderson said. "I understand what was happening. Everything is fine with me. He just said what was on his mind and I listened."

Piniella said he felt "better" after the meeting, but did not elaborate.

"I just talked to Rickey and explained the situation," Piniella said.

Henderson was placed the 15-day disabled list on Aug. 1, retroactive to July 26, with a sore right hamstring. This is the second time Henderson has been on the disabled list this season.

Henderson, who started in the All-Star Game, is batting .298 with 11 home runs and 25 run batted in through 67 games.

BOSTON — Knuckleballer Charlie Hough pitched a five-hitter and Geno Petralli homered and drove in two runs Friday night as the Texas Rangers beat the Boston Red Sox 9-4 Friday night for a split of their doubleheader.

Boston won the opener 9-3 with Mike Greenwell's tie-breaking triple sparking a six-run rally in the seventh inning.

Hough, 12-8, struck out three and walked one in his seventh complete game. He had lost four of his previous five decisions. Al Nipper, 7-10, lost in his return from the disabled list and remained winless since June 28.

The Rangers scored five runs in the second inning aided by Nipper's throwing error. Larry Parrish doubled, Oddibe McDowell walked and Petralli hit an RBI single for a 1-0 lead.

After Scott Fletcher's sacrifice fly, Jerry Browne hit a grounder back to Nipper, whose wild throw allowed Petralli to score and Browne to reach second. Tom O'Malley and Pete O'Brien followed with RBI singles.

Parrish, O'Malley and O'Brien each had three of Texas' 16 hits.

Wade Boggs and Sam Horn homered for the Red Sox. Boggs hit his 20th homer in the sixth and Horn's seventh homer pulled Boston within 5-4 in the seventh.

In the opener, Bruce Hurst won his career-high 14th game. Hurst, 14-6 overall and 11-1 in Fenway Park, gave up nine hits in his 13th complete game. He struck out eight and walked two.

After Bob Brower's sacrifice fly put Texas ahead 3-2 in the top of the seventh, the Red Sox rallied against starter Bobby Witt and three relievers.

Wade Boggs doubled off Steve Howe, 0-1, and Jim Rice had a run-scoring grounder that made it 3-3. Greenwell's 420-foot triple and an intentional walk finished Howe.

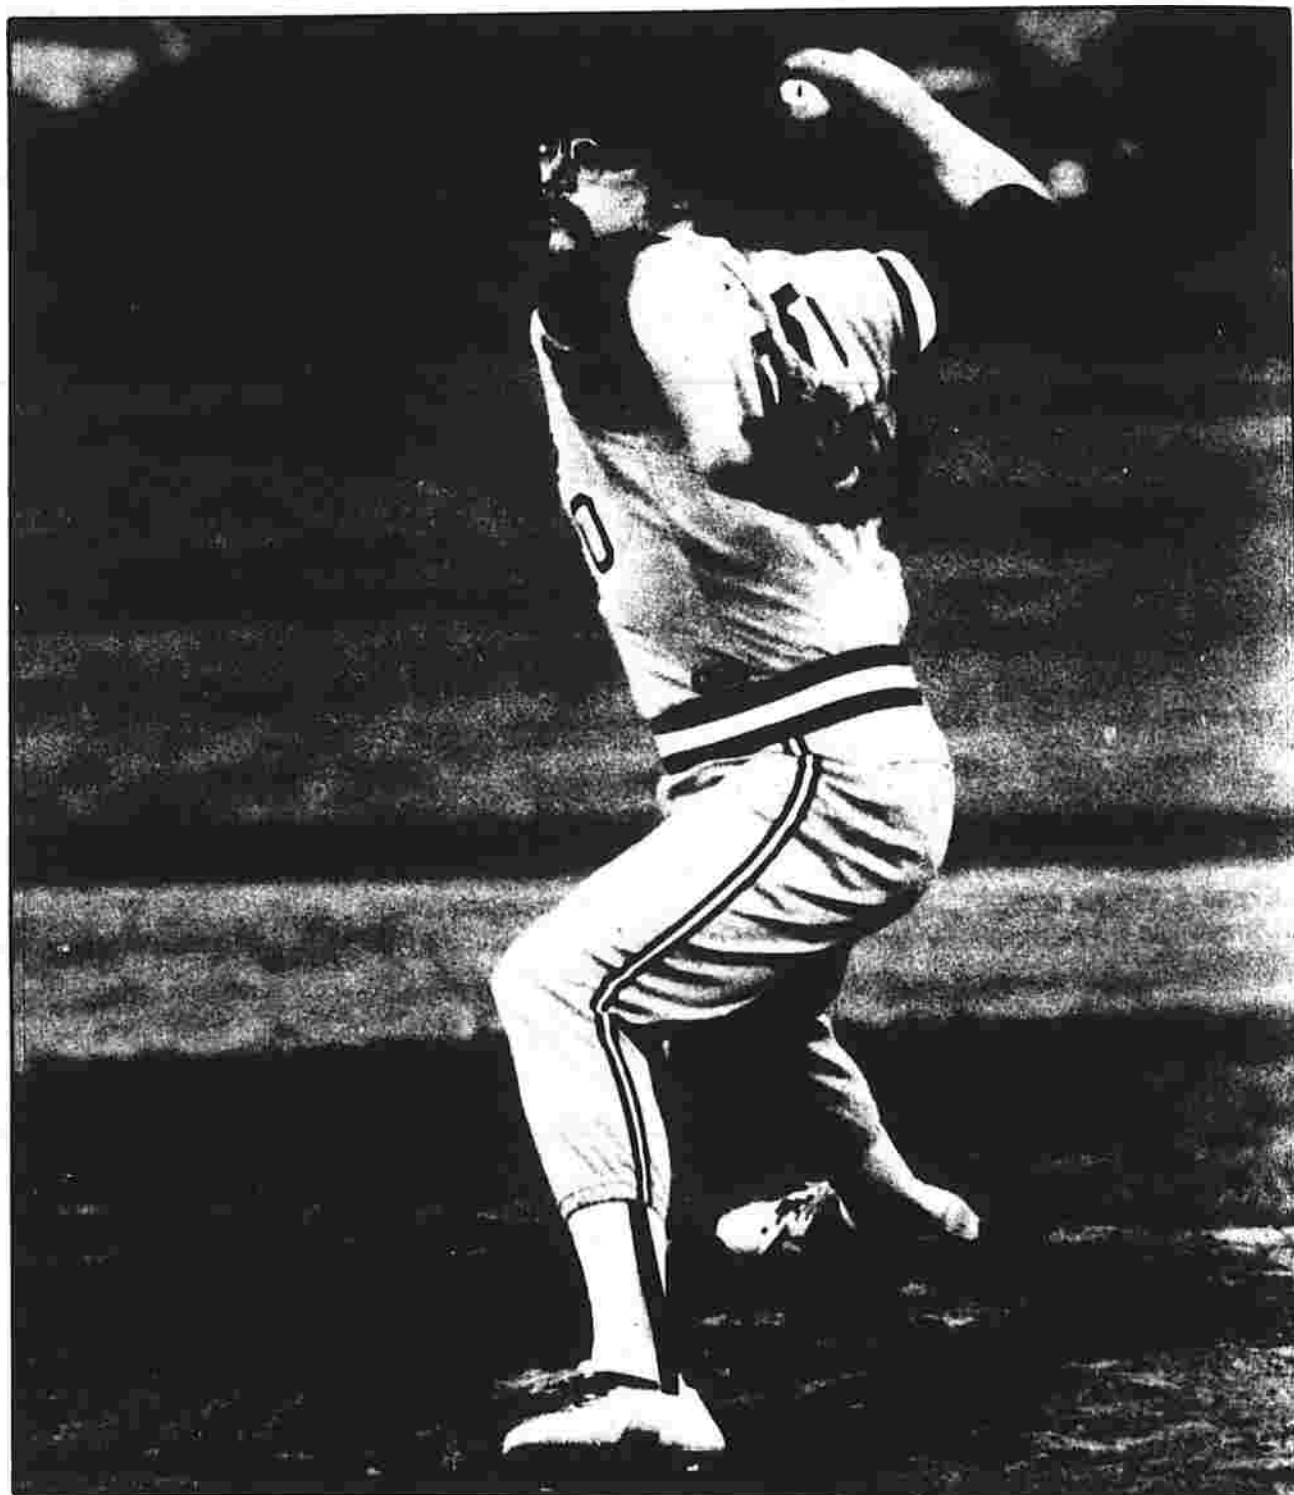

Don Baylor single home a run off Jeff Russell, another scored on a balk, John Marzano had an RBI double and Marty Barrett drew a bases-loaded walk before reliever Mitch Williams ended the inning.

Dwight Evans hit his 27th homer in the ninth off reliever Mike Loynd.
