Treaty to ban medium, short nuclear missiles
Reagan and Gorbachev to hold summit this year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Soviet Union have reached an "agreement in principle" to ban medium- and short-range nuclear missiles and have agreed that President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev will hold a summit before the end of the year, Reagan announced today.
The treaty — Reagan's first arms accord with the Soviet Union — would be the first to ever ban an entire class of nuclear weapons.
Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard
Shevardnadze called the agreement
"a common success for all mankind, for all civilization."

MCC minority students have friendly face in their corner

By Andrew J. Davis

Help has arrived for minority students at Manchester Community College.
It has come in the form of Joseph Mesquita, the director of minority student programs at MCC.
Since he joined the staff in May, MCC's only Hispanic administrator has worked to recruit, retain and help minority students.
Mesquita, 36, a New York native, says minority students have special needs, and that's where his office comes in.
If they understand that I understand their problems, then the students feel optimistic and good about coming here," he said. "But they have different needs such as social needs, peer groups, ethnic and academic backgrounds. There are many different things that make them different."

Shooting of airman called 'unacceptable'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz today called the shooting of an American airman in East Germany by Soviet soldiers "unacceptable behavior" and said Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze promised to look into the case promptly.
Shultz, at a White House briefing on three days of negotiations on arms control and other superpower issues, said of the shooting, "We heard about this late yesterday afternoon and immediately took it up with Foreign Minister Shevardnadze and expressed our view that this is just unacceptable behavior."

GNP shows business revival

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S.
economy, bolstered by a reviving manufacturing sector, grew at an annual rate of 2.3 percent in the second quarter, the biggest burst of investment spending in two years.
The Commerce Department said the strength in the gross national product, the broadest measure of economic health, came from a big turn-around in business investment and the best showing for U.S.
exports in seven years.
Exports climbed 17.9 percent, the biggest quarterly improvement since the first quarter of 1980.
Businesses, spurred by higher export sales, boosted their spend-

Eighth District backers of a proposed agreement between the district and the town over fire and sewer jurisdiction have formed a political action committee called
"YES" for "Yes, End Strife."
Its officers, named at a meeting
Thursday night, include two former officers of STEAL, a group that last year successfully fought against adoption of a town charter provision that would have paved the way for consolidation of the district with the town without the consent of district voters.
The former STEAL officers are attorney Robert Blechman, who was chairman of STEAL, and William Shreder, who was its treasurer.
Sheridan is treasurer of YES and
Blechman is its assistant treasurer.
Bernard Niedzielski is chairman of YES. Niedzielski is captain of the Eighth District volunteer fire department.
James Sarles, a deputy chief in the fire department, is vice chairman of the political action committee.
He was one of four district negotiators who worked out the terms of the proposed town-district agreement.
The YES secretary is Darlene
Niedzielski, wife of the chairman.

Rain drenches East; clear skies in West

By The Associated Press

A stationary front extending across the central Appalachians brought showers and thunderstorms to much of the Northeast today, prompting flood watches in New York and Pennsylvania. Rain was common from Pennsylvania and New Jersey southward into Maryland and northern Virginia and over much of southern New York and southern New England.

Heavy rains prompted flood watches through today for the Catskill Mountains and the lower Hudson Valley in eastern New York and in the southwestern part of the state, as well.

An overnight flash flood watch covered much of southwestern Pennsylvania, where 20 homes were evacuated late Thursday due to flooding along Four Mile Run Creek near Darlington.

Thunderstorms dumped over 2 inches of rain Thursday afternoon and evening in Pennsylvania. High winds downed power lines at Homer City and Washington, Pa., and large trees were toppled in Greensburg and Latrobe.

Elsewhere, showers and thunderstorms were scattered from eastern New Mexico and western Texas across western Oklahoma and Kansas into south-central Nebraska. A few thunderstorms lingered over the southern Appalachians. Rain was scattered from Minnesota through Wisconsin and lower Michigan.

Skies were mostly clear over the western third of the nation.

Today's weather picture was drawn by Jamie Wolff, who lives on Timrod Road and attends Martin School.

FOCUS

Inventing Presidents

Image-making has long been a part of presidential politics. In the 1840 campaign, for example, the Whigs tried to portray Democrat Martin Van Buren as the candidate of the wealthy. While Van Buren did have extravagant tastes, he was actually the son of a humble tavernkeeper. Whig opponent William Henry Harrison, who did come from a wealthy Virginia family, adopted the rugged common-man image. His campaign symbols were a log cabin and a jug of hard cider.

Actor's pitch

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Jimmy Stewart returned to his native southwestern Pennsylvania to make a pitch for an anti-drug program headed by Bob Hope.

The actor, who grew up in Indiana, Pa., helped unveil the Hope For A Drug-Free America Foundation on Thursday and said it will collect money from private sources and distribute it to worthy programs.

"Bob wanted a different kind of drug program, something in a class by itself," Stewart said. "I told him I'd be glad to help in any way I can."

Hope also has enlisted such celebrities as Charlton Heston and Walter Cronkite on the program.

Movie star Greer Garson says there were tears in her eyes when she took the oath of American citizenship 26 years ago, but they weren't tears of joy or even sadness.

"I gave my eye a good squirt (from a bottle of eye drops) before I realized that I had filled the bottle with perfume," said the 78-year-old actress, who was born in Northern Ireland. "Well, of course, I almost blinded myself."

Garson, whose films include "Mrs. Miniver," "Pride and Prejudice," "Madame Curie," "The Sign of the Cross," and "The Long Walk Home," was sworn in on Thursday, a day when many took the oath of citizenship to mark the 200th anniversary of the Constitution.

"I thought, well, working here, paying my taxes, I'd like to have a voice in the government," she recalled.

Rock to country

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Rock 'n' roller John Cougar Mellencamp says he plans to play a country singer in his first feature film, "Riding the Cage."

"We're 95 percent certain on the movie (going to production), but that 5 percent is a big percent," he said at home Tuesday.

Mellencamp, a 35-year-old Indiana native with three straight platinum albums, said he will write and perform several country songs for the film. Shooting begins next year.

"I'd play a country singer who comes back to his hometown and falls in love with his brother's wife, who is his old girlfriend, and decides that he hates the music business and doesn't want to leave," he said.

Dump level may reach to the sky

The state's Department of Environmental Protection has invited public comment on a request by the Town of Manchester to keep using the town's sanitary landfill until it is 40 feet higher than its present level.

The town made its first application for vertical expansion of the landfill off Ocott Street in 1985 and updated it a year ago.

George Kandra, director of public works, has estimated that the measure, if approved will add eight years to the life of the landfill, which otherwise might be filled in about 24 years.

He said the expansion would permit disposing of 1.27 million cubic yards of waste and save the town about $60,000 a year over the cost of joining a regional waste facility.

Public comment is being sought by the DEP until Oct. 11. Copies of the plan can be inspected at the DEP's solid waste management office, 122 Washington St., Hartford, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Manchester is one of the few towns in Connecticut that still has space left in a landfill, and the town so far, has resisted efforts to be included in the Mid-Connecticut Project of the Connecticut Resource Recovery Authority. The authority will begin accepting trash next year from 44 participating municipalities for disposal in a regional trash-to-energy recovery plant in the South Meadows section of Hartford.

The plan is being tested now. In July, Edward D. Crosby, a member of the state's Solid Waste Management Advisory Council, said the town should sell its landfill for use by the trash to energy plant and use the money to offset the fees charged by the plant.

But Kandra has said it will cost the town less to continue to use the landfill than will to dispose of trash at the plant.

CPR instructor wants to see lifesaving taught in schools

Since Gloria Langer started the town's CPR program nearly two years ago, about 800 people have been trained to perform cardiopulmonary resuscitation. Langer said she would like to see the program expanded to include the town's three high schools to make training in CPR a requirement for graduation.

She would like local businesses to begin educating employees in CPR and other lifesaving techniques. And she wants the town's three high schools to make training in CPR a requirement for graduation.

The program was started in 1985 under the EMS Council to provide support for the town's paramedics unit. The rationale was that a victim's chances of survival would be better if someone on the scene administered CPR until paramedics arrived.

While paramedics usually can respond to a call within five minutes, someone who has stopped breathing can suffer brain damage if resuscitation has not been started before four minutes have passed, Langer said.

Irene Smith, the emergency medical services coordinator at Manchester Memorial Hospital, recalls one incident in a local grocery store when two customers administered CPR to a heart-attack victim before paramedics arrived. She said the victim's survival could have been the result of the early care that she and another person provided.

Langer said that people sign up for the course for a variety of reasons. Some have relatives with heart conditions, others need the training for their jobs.

The program offers a one-session basic course in CPR and a more comprehensive, two-session course. The basic course is taught at MMH three times a month at a cost of $7. Once a month a more comprehensive two-session course is offered at a cost of $10.

Since last year, the program has been administered by the hospital under the guidance of the EMS Council, but the town, as well as the hospital provides support.

Smith is pleased with the work that Langer has accomplished in the two years she has been the CPR coordinator.

"I think the CPR program has been a steady upward course since its inception, and I think it will continue to rise," she said.

The EMS Council has not yet named someone to take Langer's place, but an instructor in the CPR program is being considered for the post, Smith said. She said she is confident the program will be able to carry on without Langer.

Langer, 43, said she decided to resign her seat on the EMS council because she is considering returning to the nursing profession. She said it is rewarding to bring some new blood to the program.

Dems open headquarters

Accord & bond issue are on the agenda

The Democratic Party opened its headquarters on Main Street Thursday night, offering a preview of what may be the most prominent issues in the November elections.

Members of the Town Council unanimously endorsed the agreement between the town and the Eighth Utilities District. They also unanimously supported the $13 million bond issue for improvements around the proposed Mall at Buckland Hills.

Both the accord and the bond issue will be put to the voters in referendum questions on the November ballot.

Mayor Barbara B. Weinberg told committee members that the Democrats have taken the lead in offering incentives to bring industry to town and to increase the town's tax base. She said the Mall at Buckland Hills is another example of those efforts.

"Do you realize that if we did not have a J.C. Penney, our mill rate would be 1 mill higher for each resident? And that's what this (mall) property could do for Manchester," Weinberg said.

Holding up a map of the Buckland area, Weinberg pointed out that the improvements to be financed by the bonds would benefit an area larger than the mall, although the bonds would be paid back primarily from taxes on the mall development.

She said that if the bonds are not approved, the mall might be built in South Windsor instead.

Someone asked if the referendum would be binding. Kevin O'Brien, an attorney for the town's Economic Development Commission, answered that the Board of Directors would respect the will of the people.

But when asked whether the directors would have a legal obligation to abide by the referendum, O'Brien admitted that the question can only be answered in court.

The town is now appealing the Superior Court decision that required the referendum to be held. While supporting the referendum, town officials have said the court decision must be challenged because of other issues it raises.

Director Stephen T. Paine outlined the terms of the town and Eighth District agreement, which he helped to negotiate. He emphasized that committee members need to educate voters on what the agreement means.

Paine said the issue is especially important for the electorate in the Eighth District because district town officials have said the court decision must be challenged because of other issues it raises.

Shays' D.C. office gets town man's help

David Blackwell got his first taste of politics when he worked for former State Sen. Carl A. Zinsner's 1984 campaign. Now, just three years later, he is helping Shays' D.C. office.

Blackwell resigned in August from his third district seat on the Republican Town Committee to work as a legislative assistant for U.S. Rep. Christopher Shays. He will be doing research and answering letters for the 4th District congressman, who beat his Democratic opponent last month to take the seat held by the late Stewart B. McKinney.

For Blackwell, an East Catholic alumnus and a May graduate of Central Connecticut State University, the new position is a reward for hard work. He was serving in the state Capitol as a legislative intern for Shays, and he may then return to Stamford, when he joined the Republican's campaign for McKinney's seat.

Blackwell was on the campaign trail from the start of Shays' candidacy in May until his victory against Democrat Christine M. Niedermeyer on Aug. 18. As the campaign progressed, Blackwell took on more duties, scheduling events and assisting Shays' press secretary.

He is one of three paid legislative assistants working for Shays and he is the only assistant who is not a holdover from McKinney's staff. Right now he is Shays' legislative director in teaching him the ropes.

The nitty-gritty of campaign work is what got him interested in politics.

"I think initially it was working on Sen. Zinsner's campaign," he said. "When he was running in 1984, I called him up and asked him if I could help out. And that's what sparked my interest."

Blackwell said he is adjusting to life in Washington and will be moving into his own apartment next week. He intends to work for Shays at least until the representative's term ends next year. He may then return to Manchester and go back to school to study law.

Things are just ducky

Geese and ducks and other barnyard creatures are part of the St. James Fair this weekend. Getting things ready are, from left, Elizabeth Dillon, Lorraine Hahn and Agnes Reardon. Besides the crafts, there are rides and games, plants, food and raffles. The fair is open tonight until 11, and Saturday from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Hospital may construct doctors' office condos

A doctors' office condominium at the parking lot across Haynes Street from Manchester Memorial Hospital if tentative plans by the hospital and Hartford developer prove feasible.

Andrew Beck, hospital spokesman, said preliminary plans hinge on whether there is enough interest among physicians on the hospital's medical staff in owning the condominium of units.

If the building is built, it will be connected to the hospital by a bridge over the street, Beck said.

The work would make it easy for doctors to go from their offices to the hospital or to send patients to the hospital for out-patient services.

But Beck stressed that at this point, the plans are tentative.

The hospital has applied to the Zoning Board of Appeals for a variance to permit building the garage to a height of 47 feet. As an accessory building, it could be only 18 feet high under the regulations.

Beck said the request, which will be heard Sept. 28, is being made now to save time later if the project goes forward.

The parking building comes into consideration because if the offices are built on the parking lot, parking space will be lost. The building would provide multi-level parking.

If the office building is not built, a parking building might be built somewhere else.

Beck said a number of hospitals have office buildings attached to the hospital building. Among them are Hartford Hospital and St. Francis Hospital and Medical Center in Hartford, Middlesex Memorial Hospital in Middletown, and Bradley Memorial Hospital and Health Center in Southington.

American poets honor Jacobsen

NEW YORK (AP) — Josephine Jacobsen has been named the 52nd recipient of a $10,000 fellowship for "distinguished poetic achievement" by the Academy of American Poets.

Jacobsen is the author of seven books of poetry, most recently "The Sisters: New and Selected Poems" and "The Chinese Innominate." She is also the author of two volumes of theater criticism.

In another action, the academy announced that Garrett Kaoru Hongo's "The River of Heaven" had been chosen as the 1987 Lamont Poetry Selection.

Hongo has been awarded a $1,000 cash prize and his book is to be published in the spring of 1988. The academy said it would purchase 2,000 copies of the book.

State plans quality seal for produce

HARTFORD — State officials are hoping a new agricultural inspection program will make demands for "Connecticut grown" fruit, vegetables and dairy products roll off grocery shoppers' tongues.

Next week, the new "Connecticut grown" quality seal program will be kicked off by Gov. William A. O'Neill at the Eastern States Exposition in West Springfield, Mass.

Apples are the first product that will be inspected by state officials for compliance with state-set standards that meet or exceed those of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"If the fruit passes inspection, it will be allowed to wear the 'Connecticut grown' quality seal."

SNET offers early retirement plan

NEW HAVEN — Management employees of Southern New England Telephone Co. are being offered an early retirement plan as the company looks for long-term ways to cut costs, a spokeswoman said.

Between 300 and 500 managers could take up the offer by Dec. 30, SNET said Thursday. The company presently employs 14,200 people, including 4,300 managers.

Under the plan, the company is easing by five years pension requirements for both age and years of service, SNET spokeswoman Elissa Jenny said. Eligible managers who decide to retire before Dec. 30 also can either elect to increase their pensions by 5 percent or receive an equivalent one-time payment, SNET said.

Shrink shot; former patient held

BRIDGEPORT — A 51-year-old city man has been charged with attempted murder in the shooting of his former psychiatrist, police said.

Dr. Cirio Venere, 66, of Trumbull, was listed in stable condition in the intensive care unit at St. Vincent's Hospital following surgery Thursday, a spokeswoman said.

He was shot in the lower abdomen and in the leg as he entered the hospital about 9:20 a.m. Thursday to go to work, police said. Police said Gerard Pescatore, 51, of Bridgeport was arrested at his home shortly after the shooting.

Pescatore was held in lieu of $100,000 bail on charges of criminal attempt to commit murder, carrying a pistol without a permit, and criminal use of a firearm, police said.

No booze for vets, panel advises

ROCKY HILL — A panel appointed by Gov. William A. O'Neill has proposed 18 recommendations for improving care at the state Veterans Home and Hospital, including a plan to eliminate alcohol at the facility.

The panel met at the home and hospital Thursday to vote on recommendations and to conduct a public hearing on the recommendations. The panel's final report is due next month.

The panel approved 18 separate recommendations for the future management of the home and hospital, including the closing of the facility's bar and wine pub, the Foxhole.

The panel also recommended discontinuing the practice of giving veterans daily bus rides to the parking lot of a local liquor store, where they buy liquor before drinking it in a nearby vacant lot.

Dozens shower after chemical fire

SHELTON — Dozens of employees, firefighters and police officers were washed down in decontamination showers after a chemical fire at an International Telephone and Telegraph plant, authorities said.

The chemical turned out to be non-toxic and posed no health hazard, but those who came within 500 feet of the fire Thursday evening were washed down in special showers set up at the scene as a precaution, fire Marshal James Tortora said.

Six firefighters were treated for smoke inhalation at Griffin Hospital in Derby and released, a hospital spokeswoman said. About 45 workers were evacuated after the fire broke out about 7:20 p.m. Thursday, authorities said. None were injured.

Ballot-fraud suspect pleads guilty

WATERBURY — Gully pleas on two counts of corrupt practices have been entered for a Waterbury housing official who had been arrested on charges involving absentee-ballot abuse in the city's Democratic gubernatorial primary in May 1986.

William N. Battles, 55, a city community leader and project manager for the housing authority, entered the pleas Thursday.

Battles, the attorney, Mitchell M. Berger, said Battles pleaded guilty under the state's Alford doctrine, under which a defendant declines to admit wrongdoing but acknowledges the state probably has sufficient evidence to convict him.

Man pays for legal-system abuse

GROTON — A former Groton resident has been ordered to pay $59,000 in damages for abusing the legal system in what a Superior Court judge labeled "vexatious use of the courts."

Superior Court Judge D. Michael Hurley Thursday ordered Peter R. Joli to pay the damages which stem from a 12-year-old land compensation dispute with the town.

Joli, who once petitioned unsuccessfully for the U.S. Supreme Court to hear his case, has been seeking the return of 42.2 acres of coastal marsh and woodland the town condemned for public use in 1975. He also claims he never received just compensation for the land.

When the Superior Court denied the original condemnation suit in favor of the town, Joli filed 27 motions to argue the case, according to attorney Joseph E. Moukawsher, who has represented the town.

Middletown to oppose trash plant

MIDDLETOWN — Middletown representatives to a regional waste disposal authority say they vote against a trash-to-energy plant next week, a move that would top the $42.3 million project.

The vote on Monday by Middletown's nine representatives to the Midstate Regional Resource Recovery Authority would be a blow to six other towns that planned to participate in the plant to be built in Middletown.

Middletown officials said Thursday they had questions about the plant's size and recent concerns about its impact on the environment.

Group says DOT ignores the disabled

HARTFORD (AP) — A group calling itself Citizens for Accessible Transportation is angry with the state Department of Transportation for what it says is a lack of accessible buses for those with disabilities.

The group, which claims the DOT is spending too much on buying new buses, has a march on the state Capitol next Wednesday to dramatize its point.

But John J. Spaulding, director of operations in the DOT's bureau of public transportation, says the DOT is doing all it can for now.

At issue is a May 1986 federal mandate that at least 3 percent of money spent on public transportation be spent on making the system accessible to the handicapped.

Spaulding says the DOT has submitted a plan to the federal government that would bring such spending up to the 3 percent level and is waiting for approval. He calls it "a viable plan to get started."

"CAT, however, claims that's not enough."

No pattern of violence by victims

NEW HAVEN (AP) — The widely held notion that most victims of child abuse will repeat the pattern of violence with their own children is a myth, two Yale researchers say.

The belief cannot be supported by scientific evidence and has caused unnecessary suffering, said psychology professor Edward Zigler and graduate student Joan Kaufman.

"Adults who were maltreated have been told so many times that they will abuse their children, that for some, it has become a self-fulfilling prophecy," the two psychologists wrote recently.

"Many who have broken the cycle are left feeling like walking time bombs," fearing that they someday may harm their children, the researchers said.

Although there is some truth to the idea that abuse is cyclical, "there are also many factors that diminish the likelihood of abuse being transmitted across generations," Kaufman said. "Being maltreated as a child puts one at risk for becoming abusive, but the path between these two points is far from direct or inevitable."

Zigler, a respected child development expert, and Kaufman recently reviewed more than 40 articles in professional literature concerning child abuse, and found that with many of the studies' methodologies, for example, some were not based on groups who were representative of the study population or failed to use control groups for comparison, they said.

The studies reported widely differing rates of abused children who became abusive parents from 12 percent to at least 50 percent, the researchers wrote in a recent issue of the "American Journal of Orthopsychiatry."

Using some of the studies as a base, Zigler and Kaufman estimated that between 25 percent and 35 percent of severely abused children maltreat their own offspring.

They relied heavily for their figure on one 1984 study that found that 24 percent of severely abused mothers physically abused their children. Since the sample in that study concerned mothers they considered to be highly at risk for abusing their children, the psychologists said they reasoned "that the intergenerational hypothesis will be confirmed in less than one-third of all cases when more representative populations are samples."

An estimated 5 percent of parents in the general population abuse their children, Kaufman said.

"It is important that we not give the impression that abuse does not have bad effects. It does," she said. "Abuse can be devastating to one's sense of self. In fact, abused children are six times more likely to become abusive parents than parents in the general population."

The researchers also pinpointed several factors that apparently steer abused children away from later harming their own children.

"Parents who did not repeat the cycle of abuse tended to have more extensive support from family and friends and were more openly angry about the abuse they experienced as children," Kaufman said. "Not only could they describe that abuse in great detail, but they were determined not to abuse their own children."

A contributing factor to child abuse is the prevalence of corporal punishment in America, Zigler said.

"Persons with disabilities have been trying to access public transportation in this state for over 30 years," said CAT Chairwoman Shelley Ford-Wargo. But the DOT, she said, "continues to ignore our real transportation needs."

"We have the same rights any other citizen has to use reliable public transportation to get to work, travel from one town to another or for any other reason," she said. "We are tired of talking to DOT."

When marchers arrive at the Capitol, they will meet with legislators, including the chairman of the General Assembly's Transportation Committee, Sen. Howard T. Owens Jr., D-Stamford, and Rep. Moira K. Lyons, D-Stamford.

Said Ted Wargo: "It's time to go past (the DOT) to the state legislature."

The Connecticut Coalition of Citizens with Disabilities says DOT Commissioner J. William Ivins Jr. had agreed to purchase only left-equipped buses for the next four years, and then assess how often the lifts are used compared with other approaches, such as on-demand, door-to-door services.

In addition, according to COCD, Burns promised that groups such as CAT would be part of the development of a marketing plan aimed at increasing bus ridership among people with disabilities.

Spaulding agreed with that idea, saying: "If the handicapped community responds and uses the system more, that will give us the basis to go to the legislature and ask for more money."

He said about 20 percent of the riders on state-run or subsidized buses are either elderly or handicapped. He did not have a further breakdown.

In all, 25 million trips are made each year on buses in the Connecticut Transit system, local transit districts and private bus companies that receive state subsidies, Spaulding said.

Greenwich ready for a royal visit

GREENWICH (AP) — On the eve of the arrival of the Duke and Duchess of York, organizers of the weekend were finalizing last-minute plans, juggling 150 journalists and checking on light security.

The first visit to the United States by Prince Andrew and the former Sarah Ferguson since their wedding was meant to be a quiet family reunion and a polo match between good friends.

"It just wouldn't be wonderful to have a polo match here... I just want it to be a good time," said Geoffrey Kent, captain of the Windsor Park Team and chairman of Abercrombie & Kent Group of Companies, an international travel agency specializing in exotic holidays.

The royal couple were to arrive in Greenwich today. He leaves Sunday and she will return home Tuesday. There are several reasons for the trip — a visit to their good friends, the Kents, a family reunion for the duchess and a fund-raising for charity.

The duchess's mother, Susan, and her stepfather, Hector Barrantes, have a home in Greenwich. Her father, Maj. Ronald Ferguson, is also coming from Illinois and will stay with the Kents.

The afternoon polo ground behind the Kent home begins Saturday with a $250-a-person luncheon followed by the Rolex Challenge Cup polo match between the Greenwich Polo Club Team and Kent's Windsor Park team.

Prince Charles plays on the Windsor Park team, but the duchess's father will substitute for him.

On Saturday night, there is a ball, where ticket prices range from $20 to $1,000. The events are invitation-only and about 1,000 guests have been invited, and more than 100 journalists are expected.

The affair on the polo ground behind the Kent home is all donations go to three charities. The charity luncheon will benefit the World Wildlife Fund and the Friends of the Masai Mara Project, a group working to preserve Kenya's famous game reserves. The proceeds from the ball will benefit the Tate Gallery in London, of which the duchess is a royal patron.

Study seeks quick construction of housing for AIDS victims

HARTFORD (AP) — Housing must be built quickly for the growing AIDS victims in order to avoid their having to spend the last days of their lives in large institutions, a new study says.

"Five years down the road, we're going to have a huge number of persons with AIDS in this state and one residence, two residences or even three residences aren't going to be the answer," said the Rev. Thaddeus Bennett, director of the AIDS Ministries Office.

Bennett acknowledged that an inevitable problem will be community reaction to having AIDS sufferers nearby. He said it would be important in the months before such homes are opened to educate the public.

"We're hoping by starting today that maybe by the time a residence opens in six months or nine months or a year that the response of the wider public will be, 'Oh, that makes sense. I've learned some more, so I'm not quite so afraid.'"

Based on currently available public assistance, the report recommended that housing for needy AIDS patients "should not be budgeted much above $150 per month."

The report recommended trying to avoid the use of "group homes" because it would entail prohibitive costs, licensing procedures and zoning regulations.

Instead, the study suggested the development of single-room occupancies and small apartment buildings in which AIDS sufferers could live with a built-in support system.

"Each residence should charge a modest amount for rent in order to give each person an opportunity to feel they are contributing while not entirely draining their financial resources," it said.

As a follow-up to the study, the AIDS Ministries Office, an ecumenical effort to involve the religious community in the AIDS epidemic, and Center City Churches, Inc., a coalition of 13 churches in the Hartford area, are conducting a survey to determine the extent of housing needs for AIDS sufferers.

patients are typically poverty stricken because they are unable to work and are overburdened by the costs of treatment. She said a pattern of discrimination often follows in which they are not accepted into nursing homes.

"Usually once a person is diagnosed as having AIDS, that's it for them. They're out on the street," she said.

The report noted that there had been 420 confirmed cases of AIDS in Connecticut through mid-June and that although the state is ranked 37th in terms of population, it has the 14th highest number of AIDS cases in the country.

It was also noted in the report that incidences of AIDS in Connecticut differ from national trends in two significant areas: that 33 percent of AIDS victims in the state are intravenous drug users compared to 17 percent nationally, and that 44 percent of the cases in the state are among homosexuals and bisexuals compared to 68 percent nationally.

WEIGHT WATCHERS® ANNOUNCES THE BIGGEST NEWS IN WEIGHT LOSS TODAY: THE SMALL GROUP.

Something special happens when you put eight to twelve like-minded people together. Something wonderful. They motivate each other. They support each other. They talk about meaningful things. And they lose weight.

We call that effect "small group dynamics" and something that just doesn't happen with one person. Or with five. It's what makes Inner Circle so unique. And so effective. It's also the reason we carefully compose each group and limit its size to no more than twelve people.

And because group members have more in common than just extra pounds, our leaders can tailor the material to each group's needs and desires. They also help you individually, like showing you how to fit the food and exercise plans to your own life.

A breakthrough? Yes indeed. But it's backed by proven techniques. Because Inner Circle is offered by Weight Watchers. And no one has helped more people lose more weight. Safely. Effectively. Beautifully.

Quarry doesn't comply, but is it legal?

By Bruce Morzin
Herold Reporter

BOLTON — The Zoning Board of Appeals decided unanimously Thursday that quarrying in the residential zone of the Bolton Notch Quarry does not comply with the zoning regulations. The finding now requires the ZBA to determine whether the quarrying is a legal non-conforming use.

The finding came with passage of a motion during the second session of deliberations on an appeal by the quarry owners of the Zoning Commission's denial of their 1986 permit. The deliberations follow a Sept. 3 public hearing, when lawyers for the quarry and the Zoning Commission presented evidence on the matter.

In their deliberations Thursday night at the Community Hall, the ZBA reasoned that one section of the zoning regulations lists permitted uses, and quarrying is not included. Furthermore, a different section of the regulations says that uses that are permitted do not include uses that are excluded in a later, more specific section of the regulations.

"I don't accept the argument that if something isn't prohibited, then it's allowed," said ZBA member Fred Audette.

ZBA member Robert R. Morra agreed. "Unless it is specifically stated that quarrying is permitted, it simply is not allowed," he said.

Following this decision, the members then moved to the second of three issues that they feel should be the basis of their final decision.

The second issue concerns whether quarrying has been established as a legal non-conforming use at the quarry on Notch Road. To be considered legally non-conforming, it must be proven that quarrying was being done in the residential zone before regulations affecting the quarry were established. Attorney Mark Brasse, representing the quarry's owners, said this took place in 1978, but Mitchell Kallet, the Zoning Commission's attorney, said it took place at least as far back as 1962.

Letters from previous quarry owners Stanley Patnode, who owned the quarry from 1948 to 1970, and Henry Gonder, who owned it from 1970 to 1982, seem to support the claim that quarrying was done in the residential zone while they owned it. However, there is still uncertainty about the extent of quarrying in the residential zone. A new twist to the issue came Thursday, when ZBA members argued over whether quarrying activity, if found to be an established quarrying activity, if found to be an established quarrying activity, if found to be an established quarrying activity, should be limited to the whole system."

Boucharard added that if the appointment is required legally and the town attorney gives the town manager the power to appoint Ineser despite the council's vote, then council members would look foolish.

The council voted unanimously to take action on the appointment until the next regular meeting, Monday, Sept. 21.

Ineser, who was present at a meeting of the Planning and Zoning Commission Monday night, said if he was not appointed manager he would continue as the town zoning agent.

The deliberations will continue Oct. 8 at the Community Hall.

Coventry appointment becomes a struggle

By Jacqueline Bennett
Herold Correspondent

COVENTRY — Members of the Town Council struggled with matters of conscience and legalities this week when they decided to postpone action on the appointment of a town planner.

The issue was a man who works hard but just doesn't have the training," Town Council Chairwoman Joan Lewis said during the special meeting Monday night at the Town Office Building. She was referring to Robert Ineser, the town zoning agent and acting town planner.

After the recent resignation of Town Planner Patricia Gathewicz, Ineser applied for the job. He has been zoning agent for about one year. Although Ineser has no background in planning, Lewis said she council is bound by the terms of a union contract to appoint someone already "on board" who meets the qualifications.

"It is a tight clause in the contract," Lewis said.

Ineser was named acting town planner by Town Manager Harold Hodge last week after being unanimously endorsed by the Planning and Zoning Commission.

"He's well liked by the members of the commission and works well with them," said Lewis. The town's labor lawyer, Sarrin Murray of Shipman and Goodwin of Hartford, advised that Ineser had to be appointed, Lewis said.

Based on that information, the council had not advertised the position, nor had any other candidates been considered, Lewis said. She advised that following Ineser's appointment he be encouraged to take seminars on planning and be evaluated within two years.

But the move to appoint Ineser came to a halt when Democratic Councilwoman Rose Fowler spoke up.

"I have a problem with this. There is a possibility to vote 'no' on this motion," said Fowler. "I have expressed my frustration about this. Coventry is at a crucial point. The clock stops here. Why is this a fait accompli?"

Fowler said many people, including members of various boards and commissions from both parties did not feel it was in the best interest of the town to appoint someone to the position who did not have experience or background in planning.

"I feel strongly this appointment should not take place and I urge you to vote with me," said Fowler.

Council Vice Chairwoman Elizabeth Paterson, a Democrat, along with Republican Phyllis Bouchard, voiced concern that the town could be sued if it did not appoint Ineser. Lewis also said she was dismayed because a failure to appoint Ineser might be misconstrued as a matter of personality or job performance.

"The cold, hard facts are that he doesn't have the background," said Paterson.

"We have accountability to all the people," said Bouchard. "I am also concerned that as a council we are futile, with steadily eroding power... I'm disturbed with the whole system."

Boucharard added that if the appointment is required legally and the town attorney gives the town manager the power to appoint Ineser despite the council's vote, then council members would look foolish.

The council voted unanimously to take action on the appointment until the next regular meeting, Monday, Sept. 21.

Ineser, who was present at a meeting of the Planning and Zoning Commission Monday night, said if he was not appointed manager he would continue as the town zoning agent.

The deliberations will continue Oct. 8 at the Community Hall.

Panel favors transfer unit at dump site

COVENTRY — The Solid Waste Management Committee has agreed that a transfer station for sorting trash should be built soon at the town landfill on Route 31.

Street Superintendent Roger Belard, who supervises the 56-acre dump, recommended the station during a Monday night meeting at the Town Office Building. The intent is to extend the life of the landfill.

Some of the separated trash might be recyclable to private firms, committee members said.

And the transfer station would be less expensive than a town-wide pickup, according to committee Chairwoman Deborah Walsh.

Like many towns in Connecticut, Coventry is facing a dilemma in its planning for waste disposal. To meet a Jan. 1, 1987, state deadline for a long-term plan, town officials set up a proposal to join the Windham Energy Recovery Facility. They sent a letter of interest to WERF in the spring. Use of such a facility would allow the landfill to be used primarily for bulky waste, extending its life another 30 years. Without acting, the dump would run out of space in 10 years.

WERF, now serving 11 towns, can't handle the addition Coventry and other towns that want to use the facility. The state Department of Environmental Protection recently agreed to fund a feasibility study for expansion of the facility.

OPINION

No cause for panic

It is understandable that some town officials are a little concerned that the town might forfeit the land it owns on North Elm Street...

The town has chosen wisely in favor of the Crockett family on condition that it use the site for housing for the elderly or as a developed park.

A 1980 order of the Probate Court sets July 1, 1988, as the date by which the town must "use" the land for elderly housing or a park...

None of the parties involved, including the town and the cancer society, objected to that rather flexible provision that was apparently designed to guarantee that the town would not let the site sit forever without doing anything with it.

It is quite obvious that the Crockett heirs want the land used for housing for the elderly. It is also pretty clear that getting the construction project under way is, in itself, establishing the "use" of the land.

And it is very unlikely that the cancer society would try to take the land away from the town after a housing project has started. That would be bad public relations for a group that relies heavily on public support.

Human, heartening education decision

It may not be the most important thing that has happened in public education recently, but the decision of the Manchester school system to make it possible for a Rockville High School girl to become a one-girl swim team...

Amy Ferranti wants to swim competitively and she wants to do it as a Rockville High School student. But Rockville High School has no pool and no team, so without Manchester's help Ferranti might have had to give it up.

Her request to swim along with the Manchester team is the sort of request it would have been easy to turn down with sympathy and regrets and all kinds of reasons why it would cause confusion and establish a bad precedent.

Instead of doing that, Manchester found a way to accommodate the girl when another school system found it impossible to do.

Whether or not Ferranti turns out to be a top athlete, as it appears she might, is unimportant.

The important thing is that she won't be deprived of the chance, thanks to the generosity of the Manchester school system.

We'd better face the constitutional crisis

It is commonplace, nowadays, to marvel at the many remarkable features of the Constitution that was ratified in Philadelphia 200 years ago. Of them all, perhaps the most ingenious was the way in which the framers devised barriers against dangerous accumulations of power by pitting each of the three branches of the government against the other two.

At the same time, it serves no good purpose to pretend that the Constitution was (or is) perfect. The original provision (in Article II, Section 1) that the person receiving the second-largest number of votes in the electoral college should become vice president was a serious mistake, soon rectified by the adoption of the 12th Amendment in 1804.

The framers clearly intended to involve both the president and the Congress in the passage of laws. Under the Constitution, Congress must pass them, but the president must approve them, and it takes a two-thirds vote in both houses to override his veto. But when it comes to devising foreign policies, the Constitution is much less explicit. Congress is

The wait begins on Biden

By Evans Witt

WASHINGTON — A storm is swirling once again around a presidential candidate. And, once again, the wait is on to see whether the campaign, in this case that of Sen. Joseph Biden, can survive questions about his character.

The political furor this time involves plagiarism at law school 23 years in the past and Biden's failures in speeches to give credit to politicians whose words he used.

Biden says it won't stop his campaign. "I'm in this race to stay," the Delaware Democrat declared Thursday. "I'm in this race to win. And here I come."

But in the 1988 campaign, the rules are different since Gary Hart was forced from the race in May amid a firestorm of criticism over his relationship with a Miami model.

"Anything can be fatal in this day and age," said Rep. Patricia Schroeder, the Colorado Democrat who is thinking of getting into the 1988 race herself. "Anything is relevant."

Biden's candor "is the invention of some very, very talented and clever people. And as is almost always the case, when the candidate is invented by somebody else, the invention comes apart and eventually breaks down."

The revelations about Biden's rhetoric are particularly harmful, for they strike at the heart of his campaign. Biden's soaring speeches were a major reason he was considered a contender for the Democratic nomination, for he can electrify a crowd as few of his opponents can.

Now, some may be listening to his rhetoric more to detect the echoes of politicians past than to heed his clarion calls for the future.

given the power to declare war. The president is given the power to make treaties — which, however, must be ratified by two-thirds of the senators present. The president nominates ambassadors — but a majority of the Senate must approve them. That is all the Constitution says on the subject of foreign policy.

And yet a firm tradition grew up that foreign policy is the prerogative of the executive branch. One imagines that the reason for this was highly practical: Foreign policy often requires confidential negotiations, which a Congress consisting of hundreds of members is simply in no position to conduct. Besides, in the early days of the republic, U.S. foreign policy probably didn't matter all that much.

Bork clear on secrecy of information

WASHINGTON — While Judge Robert Bork has shown himself to be a friend of the press when individuals object to what is published and sue for libel, he does not believe it's the judiciary's role to help journalists when they try to get information or otherwise do battle with the government.

In fact, Bork once issued a barely veiled threat against those in the media who believe it's their duty to be the public's watchdogs against government misbehavior — and especially those who have the effrontery to challenge the courts.

In a 1979 magazine article, Bork wrote: "It seems to be particularly dangerous for the press to attack the judiciary as government, and therefore inherently an adversary, when the press depends upon the judiciary for the protections of the First Amendment."

This could be construed as either a warning or just good, practical advice. But Bork has made it clear in his writings and court opinions that, if he thinks the press would do well to coddle the courts, he doesn't think the courts should coddle the press.

Bork appears to feel that the press is entitled to certain rights — as long as it doesn't get too uppity in its exercise of them. This, he has stated, could lead to anti-press decisions and greater government regulation.

"The press may properly claim great freedom," he has written. "It may not claim — or at least it is not likely to do so successfully — the exclusive or the special possession of it."

This rejection of a special, privileged status for the press comes through loud and clear in Bork's appellate court decisions in Freedom of Information Act cases. Consistently, when a reporter or individual has asked for information under FOIA and a government agency has withheld documents for security reasons, Bork has ruled for the requester. Here are some FOIA cases researched by our associate Corky Johnson that illustrate Bork's viewpoint.

■ When our former associate Donald Goldberg asked to see the results of a State Department questionnaire sent out to U.S. ambassadors on their host countries' diplomatic practices, the department refused to release parts of the responses on grounds that they were "confidential." Our attorney argued that most of the ambassadors had marked their questionnaires "unclassified."

■ But Bork and his appellate court colleagues ruled for the State Department, saying that government agencies have the authority to reclassify documents at will, and it is up to the journalist to produce evidence that would indicate the reclassification was in error.

■ In Meepool vs. Meese, the children of executed Soviet spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg had used FOIA to seek FBI documents on their parents' case. The FBI withheld documents that it claimed were entitled to exemptions by reason of national security, privacy and law enforcement needs. Bork's opinion on "perhaps the most extensive FOIA request ever made" said the FBI's withholding of the documents was proper.

■ In McGehee vs. CIA, the court ruled that the agency had the burden of proving it had made a thorough search of records in an FOIA suit. Bork dissented, saying there was no evidence of bad faith by the CIA, but merely "bureaucratic inefficiency."

■ In Sims vs. CIA, the appeals court ruled that the agency could not withhold the names of persons and institutions used in a research program. Bork dissented, saying that anyone giving information to the CIA should be assured anonymity, and adding that "the CIA will probably lose many future sources of valuable intelligence."

It is doubtful that Bork would have been similarly concerned at the prospect that the press might lose sources of information as the result of a court ruling.

Mini-editorial: An observant reader from South Carolina suggests that the way conservatives are parting their hair has become a "kind of tattoo, brand, secret sign." Our correspondent notes that President Reagan parts his hair on the right, as did many of the participants in the Iran-contra hearings (Ed Meese, Col. Oliver North, several Republican congressmen). Some people obviously haven't gotten the message. Conservatives: Supreme Court nominee Robert Bork parts on the left and his liberal opponent, Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., is a right-partter. But frankly, it matters little to us. Given the direction in which our hair lines are moving, we'll soon have the perfect disguise.

Sandinistas protest Bennett visit

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — U.S. Secretary of Education William J. Bennett said Nicaragua will never enjoy freedom under the Sandinista government and promised continued U.S. aid for Contra rebels despite a regional peace accord.

Bennett, whose visit touched off a diplomatic row, returned home today. A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy accused the leftist Sandinista government of staging a protest during Bennett's visit Thursday that, forced him to miss a meeting with about 30 members of political prisoners in Nicaragua.

Bennett later met with the women at another location. The spokesman said a formal note would be sent to the Nicaraguan Foreign Ministry protesting the treatment of Bennett, a staunch conservative and the first member of President Reagan's Cabinet to visit Nicaragua since 1982.

No stability in the Philippines

MANILA, Philippines — Vice President Salvador Laurel today said President Corason Aquino's Cabinet shakeup will not bring political stability unless the moves decisively against communist rebels and appeases the military.

He said disaffection within the military poses a greater immediate threat to Mrs. Aquino's government than the 18-year-old communist soldiers led an unsuccessful coup against Mrs. Aquinol last month.

Earlier today, about 150 communist rebels ambushed a military convoy as it drove up a steep mountain road about 200 miles southeast of Manila, killing an army battalion commander and four of his men, the military said.

LI. Col. Teodoro Lao and 10 other soldiers in two jeeps were driving on Pansay island when rebels opened fire with M-203 grenade launchers and automatic rifles from an elevated position up the road, the military said.

Top economic adviser to resign

WASHINGTON — Beryl W. Sprinkel, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisors, plans to resign and return to the private sector for personal reasons, Reagan administration officials said today.

The officials, who spoke only on the condition of anonymity, said the announcement would come later today. "There will be an exchange of letters" between Sprinkel and Reagan, said one official.

The sources said Sprinkel would stay in the post until November. Sprinkel, 63, who has maintained a relatively low profile in the job he has held since April 1985, reportedly was unhappy that he had been passed over for the post of Federal Reserve Board chairman, a job President Reagan gave to New York economist Alan Greenspan last June, the sources said.

Soldiers fire on youths in Fiji

SUVA, Fiji — Soldiers today sealed off Suva with roadblocks and fired on Melanesian youths who rampaged through the streets of the capital, looting shops and setting fire to buildings. There was no immediate word on what started the rioting.

At least 18 people were killed and 12 injured when the troops opened fire. Police gave no details of the charges against those arrested.

This South Pacific island nation was the scene of a military coup last May that overthrew Prime Minister Timoci Bavadra. Witnesses told the Australian Associated Press that soldiers shot a 36-year-old man in the leg after he robbed a bank.

Dole campaigns with corporate jets

WASHINGTON — Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole is using corporate jets as the primary means of transportation for his presidential campaign trips, a practice criticized by his rivals as "confidential." Our attorney argued that most of the ambassadors had marked their questionnaires "unclassified."

Iraqis flee shelling in fabled city

BASRA, Iraq — Incessant Iranian shelling has leveled some of the almost daily bombardment and the threat of a new offensive by Iranian Revolutionary Guards at the front only 6 miles to the east. Adel Mansouri, director of Basra's Republic Hospital, said at least half the 1.5 million people who live in the city before the war have fled because of the shelling and threat of attack.

Iraq, Iran say bombs hit oil targets

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraq said its warplanes today blasted Iranian Kharg island oil terminal and two other oil installations. Iran said it bombed oil facilities in northern Iraq and shot down an Iraqi plane over the Persian Gulf.

The official Iraqi News Agency said Iraq shelled the Iraqi city of Basra and two border cities on Thursday. Iraq said it repulsed an Iranian attack in an 18-hour battle along the border.

Iraq said Kurdish guerrillas and Iranian commandos killed or captured more than 1,000 Iraqi troops this week in a new offensive in the mountains of northwest Iraq. Iran also said it began amphibious military maneuvers Thursday to counter a growing Iranian presence off its coastline.

Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati left for New York today to prepare for Iranian President Ali Khamenei's trip to the United Nations next week. U.S. sources who spoke on condition of anonymity said Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar it would consider a cease-fire if an aggressor in the war was identified shortly after.

Iran's Tehran radio, monitored in Cyprus, reported "intense Iranian artillery fire" Thursday on military, oil and industrial targets in Iraq.

The Iraqi News Agency said a woman was killed in the Basra shelling, 10 other civilians were wounded and 20 homes were destroyed. In Khanaqin, one man was killed and another was wounded and two houses were damaged.

The news agency, also monitored in Cyprus, said two formations of Iraqi warplanes today struck the Iranian oil fields of Ardshir and Bahrakan simultaneously, setting them on fire. The report said the warplanes staged another raid two hours later "demolishing what had survived on Kharg island in previous attacks. If an aggressor in the war was identified shortly after."

The Iraqi News Agency said Iran launched an assault just before midnight Wednesday at the center of the 730-mile-long war front. The agency, quoting a military communiqué, said "the bulk of the Iranian force was destroyed," being backed by intense artillery and tank fire and helicopter gunships.

Tehran radio said Iraq "delt crushing blows" to the Iraqi army after punching through frontline positions in hills above the border town of Mandali in the central sector of the war front.

There was no independent confirmation of the reported ground fighting. Observers are rarely allowed into the war zone by either side.

Iran contends Iraq began the war by invading Iran in September 1980. Iraq says the conflict started weeks earlier when Iranian artillery shelled border towns.

Pope cradles AIDS child, faces protest

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — As gay protesters blew whistles, banged drums and screamed slogans outside a church, Pope John Paul II reached into a pew and cradled a 4-year-old AIDS victim.

"God loves you all, without distinction, without limit. He loves those of you who are sick, those of you who are suffering from AIDS and from AIDS-related cancer," he said to 64 AIDS patients who met at the 186-year-old Mission Dolores — just a mile from the Castro District, the center of homosexual life in a city known for its gay community.

In Phoenix, Ariz., on Monday the pope had expressed concern for AIDS victims, and called upon Catholic health-care providers to emulate the Good Samaritan in reaching out to victims.

Demonstrators carried signs saying "Gay, proud and still going to heaven" and "Curby your dogma."

Later, hundreds of Jews demonstrated quietly outside St. Mary's Cathedral, protesting the audience which the pope granted in June to Austrian President Kurt Waldheim.

Inside, at a meeting with 3,000 nuns and brothers, the pope listened as Sister Helen Garvey, president-elect of the Leadership Conference of Women Religious, called for a larger role for women in the church.

"We desire for ourselves, and for all believing women, complete incorporation in the church," she said. "In its critical decision-making responsibility, the church needs the fullest of women's gifts and the strength of women's commitments."

U.S. snatches suspect in anti-terrorism battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — American agents working overseas lured a suspected Lebanese Shiite bomber to a boat, arrested him and brought him back to the United States in what U.S. officials described as a new phase in the battle against terrorism.

"It's our intention to find terrorists and get after them wherever they are," a senior Justice Department official said Thursday in announcing the arrest of Fawaz Younis of Beirut. He is accused of masterminding the 1985 hijacking of a Jordanian jetliner with four Americans aboard.

In an investigation code-named Operation Goldenrod, Younis was spotted several weeks ago by U.S. intelligence agencies while under surveillance and finally, at an unspecified port on the Mediterranean Sea, transferred to a small boat piloted by FBI agents. "Let's say we rented it (the boat) for awhile," one senior Justice Department official told reporters.

After the boat motored into international waters, Younis was arrested and transferred to the U.S. aircraft carrier Saratoga in the Mediterranean near the island of Corsica.

He was flown to Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington on Thursday.

In response to a question at the briefing, the official said "you bet" when asked whether U.S. authorities are actively trying to recruit other terrorists suspected of harming Americans overseas with the intention of arresting them and bringing them back to the United States.

When asked whether Younis might become part of a swap involving U.S. hostages being held in Lebanon, the official, speaking on condition of anonymity, emphasized that the U.S. government's intention is to put Younis on trial in U.S. courts.

But unlike many other terrorist incidents, the one in which Younis is charged wasn't directed at the United States or Israel.

FBI uses libraries for spying

NEW YORK — The FBI said it has asked librarians in New York City to watch for and report on library users who might be recruiting intelligence agents or gathering information for hostile powers. Library officials, however, voiced fears of intrusion into the private and academic freedom of library users, and called the FBI move an effort to turn librarians into informers. The New York Times reported today. The FBI told the Times that its Library Awareness Program is part of a national counterintelligence initiative.

Intensive-care practice wasteful

CHICAGO — Doctors often needlessly put children in hospital intensive-care units or keep them there too long, a new study concludes, suggesting that the practice wastes millions of dollars a year. The researchers, who published the results of a study of eight pediatric intensive-care units in the Journal of the American Medical Association, suggested that doctors' fear of malpractice contributes to the waste. "We're taught from medical school and throughout our training that to make a major disaster... and one of the worst errors is not to admit someone to intensive care who needs intensive care," said Dr. Murray Pollack, one of the report's 11 authors.

By Jim Tierney Herald Sports Writer

WILLAMANTIC - As far as season openers go, the Manchester High and Windham High boys' soccer teams played Thursday afternoon's match like it was for the Central Connecticut Conference East Division championship.

Manchester's Meg Berté (14) has inside position on Windham's Alison Beausoleil as she races for the ball during play Thursday at Memorial Field. Berté held

They (Manchester) have good, overall speed. I thought we had better shots during the first half. "I thought it was a good game," Manchester Coach Bill McCarthy said. "We had some great chances. I thought they (Windham) had more good chances."

Blue Jays strike out against umps, Yanks

By Ben Walker The Associated Press

NEW YORK - The Toronto Blue Jays struck out arguing about strike three and it cost them a share of first place in the American League East.

A strange play, sparked by a reversed call, led to New York's tying run in the eighth inning Thursday night and the election of Toronto Manager Jimmy Williams. Dan Pasqua's RBI single with two outs in the ninth gave the Yankees a 6-5 victory.

Bucs' Steve DeBerg faces test in the Bears

By The Associated Press

Steve DeBerg, who coached up the Atlanta Falcons with his passing in the NFL season opener, will be up against an entirely different type of defensive animal Sunday when he leads Tampa Bay against the Chicago Bears in what could be the last weekend of pro football before the players go on strike.

DeBerg passed for 333 yards and five touchdowns in the Bucs' 48-10 victory over Atlanta. Tampa Bay coach Ray Perkins called the quarterback's performance "one of the best games I've ever been associated with."

But on Sunday, DeBerg will be facing a defense that sacked New York quarterback Phil Simms seven times and his replacement, Tom Brady, five times during the Giants' 34-19 victory over the Bengals.

Chicago quarterback Mike Tomczak, filling in for injured Jim McMahon, added to the Bears' lead for 282 yards and two touchdowns.

The Bears have beaten the Buccaneers eight straight times. They have also beaten Tampa Bay in five of the last six regular-season matchups have Dallas as the Giants, Denver meeting Green Bay at Milwaukee, Pittsburgh Cleveland, Houston at Buffalo, Kansas City at Seattle, St. Louis at San Diego, Minnesota at Los Angeles Rams, Washington at Atlanta, San Francisco at Cincinnati, Detroit at the Los Angeles Raiders and Miami at Indianapolis.

NFL Roundup

Monday night, New England visits the New York Jets in what could be the last game for some time. The NFL Players Association has set Tuesday as its strike date.

While the Bucs prepare for the Bears, the Giants hope to get their offense untraced against Dallas. Two of New York's three touchdowns against the Bears came on a blocked punt and an interception return.

The Giants also will be playing with a revamped secondary after releasing starting cornerback Elvin Patterson.

Herb Welch, usually a safety, probably will start at cornerback, but Glendale Coach Bill Parcells said there is a possibility that Harvey Clayton, a waiver acquisition from Detroit, also would play.

The Giants have serious problems at cornerback.

"Obviously, we have a little bit of a numbers problem and we haven't played that well," Parcells said. "I don't want to single out that position. We haven't played well in a lot of areas. We just thought we needed to get moving in a different area at Los Angeles."

Dallas, which counts heavily on the running and receiving of Herschel Walker and Tony Dorsett, also had last six regular-season games, including a 23-10 loss to St. Louis.

Clemson's Ford unsure of feelings on Georgia

By Barry Winer
The Associated Press

Danny Ford isn't sure beating Georgia this week will be completely beneficial for his Clemson Tigers.

But Ford won't go into a deep depression if the eight-ranked Tigers lose to the 18th-ranked Bulldogs on Saturday.

"It can make you have a great year or a great stepping stone," the Clemson coach said. "Or it can make you sad for the next week. Really and truly, both of them are dangerous."

"If you win, you can get out of sync about what you think you are. If you lose, you can have a mighty hard time getting back to where you are."

Where both teams are now is 2-0. Ford admitted there are plenty of things worse than falling to 2-1. "It's not the end of the world. It's not terminal," he said. "It's not death. I know it will be better for the loser, but there are eight other games to go."

Clemson is a five-point favorite to do what it hasn't done since 1985-86 - beat the Bulldogs in a game. Clemson leads the series, which started in 1897, 36-15-1 and has a 5-4-1 record against Clemson over the past 10 years.

"I think they're a Top 10 team," Georgia Coach Vince Dooley said. "I don't think there's any question about that. But we might play five Top 10 teams before it's over. We may be an expert on who the national champion is by the time we get finished with the season."

The top three teams - Oklahoma, Nebraska and Auburn - are off this week. No. 4 Louisiana State is at home against Rice on Saturday night, while No. 7 Florida State entertains Memphis State, No. 9 Notre Dame is home to play No. 17 Michigan State.

NCAA Football

Pacific visits No. 13 UCLA, and Temple is at No. 18 Pitt in other night contests.

During the day, it's Oregon at No. 5 Ohio State, No. 10 Washington at Texas A&M; Florida at No. 13 Alabama; Tulsa at 18th-ranked Arkansas; Fresno State at No. 13 UCLA; Washington State at No. 19 Michigan; and Cincinnati at No. 20 Penn State, the defending national champion.

The Clemson-Georgia game features the nation's top defensive team - the Tigers have allowed 84.4 yards a game - against Lane Tate, who leads the nation in rushing with 300 yards and has six touchdowns. Overall, the Bulldogs are No. 2 nationally in rushing, averaging 388 yards a game.

"In my opinion, we'll be playing the most explosive offense that Georgia has had since '73," he said. "The main reason is they have one of two stronger individuals than quarterback James Jackson, who pulls the trigger, and Tate. Dooley doesn't expect to run the Clemson defense ragged."

"Some are saying this defense could be Clemson's best. This potentially could be the best defense I've ever coached. They have one great defensive line of scrimmage."

The Texas A&M coach, Jackie Sherrill is worried about Washington's size. He's also concerned since the Aggies lost their opener at home to LSU 17-3, while Washington has beaten Stanford and Purdue.

The home-standing Eagles dropped a 2-1 decision to St. Thomas Aquinas Thursday afternoon. East's next game is today at 2:30 p.m. at South Windsor High School.

Yankees 6, Blue Jays 5

TORONTO (AP) - The Toronto Blue Jays lost to the New York Yankees 5-6 in a game that was a defensive struggle.

Yankees pitcher Dwight Gooden pitched a complete game, allowing only one run on four hits and one walk. He struck out seven batters.

The Blue Jays scored all their runs in the top half of the game. They led 5-0 after two innings but the Yankees rallied to tie the game in the bottom half.

Gooden pitched into the eighth inning, but he was relieved by Tom Seaver in the ninth. Seaver pitched a scoreless ninth and secured the win.

Expos 4, Mets 1

NEW YORK (AP) - The Montreal Expos beat the New York Mets 4-1 in a game that was a defensive struggle.

Expos pitcher Steve Carlton pitched a complete game, allowing only one run on five hits and one walk. He struck out six batters.

The Mets scored all their runs in the top half of the game. They led 1-0 after one inning but the Expos rallied to tie the game in the bottom half.

Carlton pitched into the seventh inning, but he was relieved by Dwight Gooden in the eighth. Gooden pitched a scoreless eighth and secured the win.

Franklin, Wis. (AP) - Scores from the 1987 U.S. Amateur Golf Championship were announced Thursday.

Tommy Nicklaus won the championship with a score of 134. He was followed by Steve Stricker (135), Jim Furyk (136), and John Cook (137).

The tournament was held at the University of Wisconsin Golf Course in Sun Prairie, Wis.

Perez is all smiles after beating Mets

MONTECAL (AP) - Beating the New York Mets in the heat of the pennant race brought a smile to the face of Montreal's Pascual Perez.

"I haven't smiled like this since I was in front of the jury," Perez said. "I was convicted for cocaine possession in his native Dominican Republic in 1984, said after serving a four-hour Thursday night to lead the Expos to a crucial 4-1 victory."

Perez has been smiling a lot of late. In the winning game, he led him from the minors '89, and so far the club. The victory raised his record to 4-0 and gave the Expos victories in all six of the games he started.

Perez struck out eight and walked one in his first start since he was traded to Montreal from the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"He's pitching as well as anyone in the league right now," said Hank Aaron, who pitched the Montreal attack with three hits, including a two-run homer, and three runs batted in.

"He's giving us a lot of confidence when he's on the mound. Because we know we score a few runs for him, we can win."

Perez was masterful after a shaky first inning, limiting New York to just two hits in the rest of the game.

"The big thing is he kept the ball down," New York's Keith Hernandez said. "He's still a power pitcher, but he has better command than when he was with Atlanta."

Reuschel, Dravecky riding high with SF

By The Associated Press

The ride from the basement to the penthouse has been very smooth for Rick Reuschel and Dave Dravecky.

In July, Reuschel and Dravecky were pitching for last-place teams. In less than three weeks, they most likely started the first two games of the National League playoffs.

Reuschel pitched a two-hitter as the San Francisco Giants won their sixth straight game by beating Houston 4-0 Thursday.

Reuschel led the second-place Cincinnati by eight games and Houston, the defending division champion, by 9 1/2 in the N.L. East. The Giants and Reds have 15 games left.

"I'm just happy to be here and part of it has been exciting since I've been here," Reuschel said.

Giants Manager Roger Craig said after the game that Reuschel, who was acquired from Pittsburgh in late August, will start the N.L. playoff opener on Oct. 6.

"He's been an amazing, hasn't he?" Craig said. "He's going to win the Cy Young Award, too. He deserves it."

Reuschel, 37, now has the league's best earned run average, 2.64, and is tied with Fernando Valenzuela in complete games, with 12. Reuschel walked one, struck out five and did not allow an Astro past first base.

"He pitched great for a last-place club, had three shutouts for them, and he's pitched even better for us, a better club," Craig said.

"If you wanted to pick anyone to establish momentum on the mound for us, it would have to be Reuschel," said left-hander Dravecky. Craig's projected starter in the second playoff game.

Dravecky was acquired in a six-player deal with San Diego on July 4. He beat the Astros 7-1 on Wednesday with a four-hitter and it was 7-3 since joining the Giants.

Reuschel was locked in a scoreless game with Danny Darwin, 8-10, until the sixth inning, when Bob Brenly followed two-out walks to Carlos Maldonado and Mike Clark with a two-run double.

The Giants added two runs in the seventh on RBI singles by Mike Aldeare and Maldonado.

"They're doing excellent right. They've been everyting defense, great pitching and timely hitting," Houston Manager Hal Lanier said.

Pirates 1, Cardinals 0

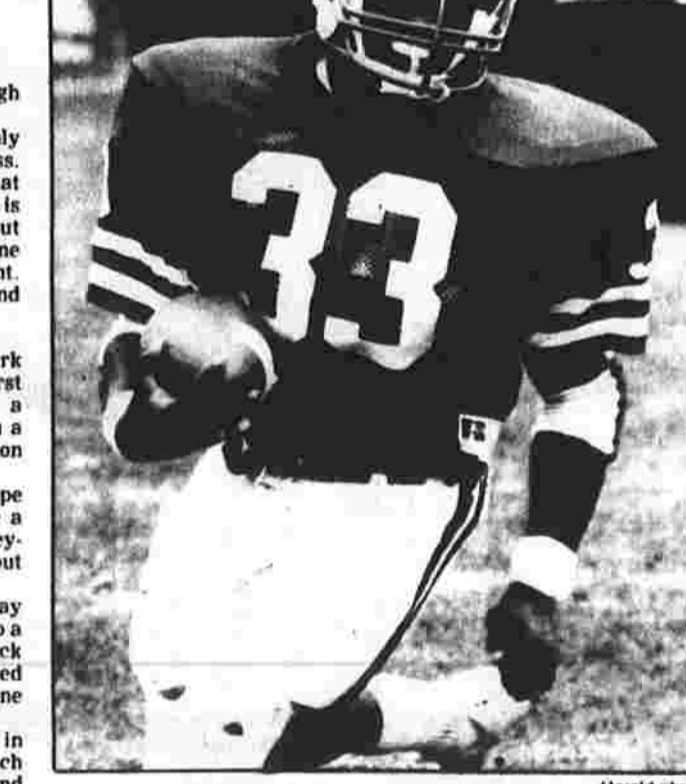

Eric Davis' run-scoring single in the 10th inning gave Cincinnati the victory in the opener, but Los Angeles took advantage of a first-inning wild pitch to come back and earn a split at Dodger Stadium.

In the nightcap, Bob Welch, 12-9, allowed three runs in seven innings and ended a six-game winless streak dating back to Aug. 11.

James Loney pitched a 1-9-3 inning for his fifth save.

The Dodgers took a 2-0 lead in the first inning with starter, Ted Power, 10-12, walked Pedro Guerrero with only his third wild pitch in 114 innings, as Sox scored from second. Shelby, who took third on the play, scored on Ralph Bryant's sacrifice fly.

With one out in the 11th inning of the first game, Tracy Jones hit an infield hit to shortstop and Dave Concepcion's single sent Jones to third. Davis followed with a bloop single to right against Fernando Valenzuela, 12-14.

Homart argues case for bonds and threatens to go elsewhere

If the November referendum on the tax-increment bond issue fails, Homart Development Co. will go elsewhere, a Homart official said at a Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce breakfast forum this morning.

taxes might be required to support the mall and necessary improvements. "The real issue on this mall is not whether it should be built, but who should pay for it," said George Marlow, a chamber member and well-known Main Street merchant.

New York still holds town murder suspect

Prosecutors in Rochester, N.Y., do not want to extradite accused Manchester killer Epifanio Vasquez to Connecticut before they have the chance to prosecute him on drug charges in New York, said Loretta Courtney, an assistant district attorney for Monroe County, N.Y.

with a range of 315 miles to 3,125 miles. The treaty requires the dismantling of 332 U.S. missiles in West Germany, Britain, Italy and Belgium that are aimed at the Soviet Union. In return, the Soviets would destroy 462 missiles targeted on Western Europe and another 221 pointed at China and Japan.

Shultz said the warheads were now part of a cooperative arrangement with the West German government and would be removed under a plan already announced. Shultz said the two sides disagreed on the timetable for the withdrawal of the INF missiles from their two arsenals, but said that "the difference is essentially technical."

'Mandela' is sure to challenge

By Kathryn Baker The Associated Press

NEW YORK — One of the most moving scenes in HBO's "Mandela" embodies the greatest strength of the film — the enthusiasm and sheer talent of its two stars, Danny Glover and Alfre Woodard.

The made-for-cable effort premieres Sunday with additional playdates throughout September. In the scene in question, Winnie Mandela is allowed at last to see her husband, Nelson, jailed for treason in South Africa because of his anti-apartheid activities. Not only has he been in prison for some time, but for months before his capture, the two could meet only rarely, in secret.

Now, in the prison, they can talk, though they are separated by a window and can speak of the most innocuous things, such as the family's health. "How are the children?" Mandela asks. "They're fine," Mrs. Mandela answers. "How are you?" he asks. "I'm fine," she answers, with a big smile.

SUCH NON-DIALOGUE requires the actors to express with inflection and facial expressions the way the Mandelas would have had to — all the emotion in their complex political and personal lives. "So the task was to find a way to say everything you need to say with those same words," said Woodard in an interview. "It's not just an artistic exercise. That's the reality for them."

"THINKING ABOUT pretending to be the woman was overwhelming," Woodard said. "Approaching the character, there is a step-by-step way you just go about working, so you set to work. But before that, I was certainly ecstatic enough to experience, and humbled enough to experience being completely overwhelmed by the prospect of pretending I was her."

Chris Schoeneberger takes a rest against a mirror in the studio of Betty-Jane Turner on Oak Street, where he has taken tap dance lessons since he was 5.

Teen secures Coachlight role

Chris Schoeneberger opens tonight in 'The Sound of Music'

By Nancy Pappas Herald Reporter

EAST WINDSOR — Some might call it beginner's luck. Others say it's his winning smile and pleasant manner. But Chris Schoeneberger of Perkins Street took a chance last month. Though he never had auditioned for a show before, he tried out for a part in "The Sound of Music," which opens tonight at the Coachlight Theatre in East Windsor.

Although he is primarily a dancer, not a singer, the 12-year-old secured the part of Kurt Von Trapp. He'll be in at least seven performances each week, from now through Nov. 29. "I guess I'll have the jitters," he said. "But everyone is so nice to me. I'm sure it will go well."

Schoeneberger. "Then we wanted to get out and see some of the city. One night we went to the top of the World Trade Center. That was really fantastic."

Performances of "The Sound of Music" at Coachlight Diner Theatre are scheduled Wednesday through Sundays, now through Nov. 29. Doors open for dinner at 6:30 p.m., Wednesday through Saturday, and at 5:30 p.m. on Sunday. Doors open for luncheon at 11:30 a.m. For reservations, call 522-1266.

Every dancer's idol, Fred Astaire, inspires a move a shuffling salute from Chris.

This year's Big E is bigger and better than ever

It's hard to travel anywhere in the region without seeing the billboards for The Big E, the region's biggest fair. The event runs until Sept. 27 at the Eastern States Exposition Fairgrounds, 1305 Memorial Ave., West Springfield, Mass.

Weekenders

From the tailgates

Looking for a bargain? Then don't miss the Cheney Homestead tailgate tag sale Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the grounds of the homestead, 106 Hartford Road. Parking, refreshments and facilities will be available. In case of rain, the sale will be Sunday, at the same times.

Next on your itinerary, head for Ye Olde Flea Market on the main campus of Manchester Community College, 90 Bidwell St. From noon to 5 p.m., there will be bargains galore, refreshments and entertainment. It's a fund-raiser for the MCC Student Senate, and you'll be charged 50 cents per car.

Coventry parties again

Not content with its highly successful anniversary celebrations this summer, Coventry is holding its annual Coventryfest on Saturday. There will be a craft fair, a hot-air balloon demonstration, games, food booths and live music. This is a venture of the Coventry Jaycees. It will be held rain or shine from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Capt. Nathan Hale School.

A fair to remember

There are new rides, good food, plants and crafts at the St. James Church Fair, today and tomorrow in the church parking lot. Tonight's featured entertainment is guitarist Carl Henry. Saturday evening, you can hear Johnny Fryko and the Good Times Band.

The fair is open from 6 to 11 tonight and from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday. At the close of the fair on Saturday, there will be a drawing for a 1987 Lynx car, a 26-inch stereo and television, and a Panasonic 10-speed bike.

Ever stomped a grape?

There will be an old-fashioned grape-stomping contest this weekend at the annual Harvest Festival at Hight Vineyard in Litchfield.

Festivities also include demonstrations of more conventional means of grape crushing, continuous winery tours, hay rides, children's games, a marching band and free balloons. Soup, smoked meats and fish, local cheeses and, of course, wine will be served.

Admission is $2.50 for adults, and children under 12 will be admitted free. The vineyard is one mile east of Litchfield Center on Chestnut Hill Road.

The best of the past

Pieces of furniture and fine arts which represent the best of Connecticut work for the past 200 years will be exhibited at the Old State House in Hartford from this weekend through Oct. 5. The exhibition will be held in conjunction with the celebration of the bicentennial of the constitution.

The gallery is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Saturday, Sunday from noon to 5 p.m.

Food for thought

"Intelligent Life," a futuristic comedy about military officers who discover life on the planet Venus, is the first selection offered by Company One. Performances will be tonight and Saturday at 8:15 p.m., at the Hartford Arts Center, at Ann and Allen streets in Hartford.

The ticket price of $10 covers a buffet of after-theater treats catered by The Congress Rotisserie, and a chance to meet the actors, writer and director. For information, call 278-8347.

Find a cozy nook

The eighth annual Nook Farm Fall will be bigger and better than ever, with Victorian games, ethnic entertainment, a cockeyed spelling bee and free tours of the Mark Twain and Harriet Beecher Stowe houses. Farmington Avenue will be closed for two blocks, to accommodate the 6,000 people expected to attend.

Manchester's own St. Patrick's Pipe Band will participate, along with a Laotian children's dance group, gospel singers and contra dancers. There will be free horseback rides and horse-drawn trolley rides. Family members may try their hands at egg bathing, stenciling and other crafts.

One highlight of the day will be a pie-eating contest, sponsored by the Bushnell Theater on behalf of "Big River," a Broadway show which is coming to the Bushnell Sept. 29. At 2:30 p.m., people are asked to assemble on the Twin house porch, to eat as many blueberry pies as possible, in as short a time as possible. If you're interested in indulging, call 827-3123 — and be sure to wear your oldest clothes.

Golden oldies

The Golden Girls of Rock 'n' Soul will be at the Oakdale Musical Theater in Wallingford Sunday at 8:30 p.m. Tickets for the show are $17.50, and are available at the Oakdale box office, 268-1501.

Howie Mandel, whose show was postponed in July, will be at the Oakdale for two shows Saturday, at 6 and 9:30 p.m. Tickets are $21.

Old saw

A man uses a cross-cut saw to cut through an 18-inch diameter log. This will be one of the competitions at the New England Lumberjack Championship Show on Sunday in Warren. The contests start at 1 p.m. Admission is $2.50 for adults. Children are admitted free. A roast beef dinner will be sold.

Take a look

Sarah Jones, 5, takes a look at the magazines that her mother, Rebecca, is planning to sell at the Cheney Homestead tailgate tag sale on Saturday. The sale will be from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the grounds of the homestead, 106 Hartford Road. If it rains, the sale will be Sunday.

Come to the Re-Union

Union Station is reopening as a transportation center this weekend, with a street festival and fireworks, a black-tie party (reservations are sold out) and a model railroad meet. Union Place will be closed so pushcarts, jugglers, mimes and musicians can fill the block from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Train memorabilia will be displayed, and train videos will be screened.

On Saturday at 11:30 p.m., there will be a fireworks display in Bushnell Park. Sunday, when the street fair reopens, there will be a model train display, put together by Bob Bell of the New England Train Exchange. The featured entertainment on Saturday will be a Dixieland band, and on Sunday, will be Last Fair Deal, a bluegrass group.

Remember Hazel?

If you remember the television character Hazel, played by Shirley Booth, then you won't want to miss "The Depot," a play in which she will star this evening at 8 p.m. The show is being presented at the Pomfret School, Routes 44 and 169 in Pomfret. It was directed by Joanne Woodward. Both actresses have volunteered their services to raise money for the Northeast Connecticut Freeze Campaign, Peace Education Inc. and Pomfret School. A discussion of nuclear issues will follow the performance. Tickets are $10.

Through the time tunnel

Imagine that you're far out in the future, looking back at our times. Rubik's cube seems an object of worship, and Max Headroom is a hallowed leader. This is the premise of a new exhibit at the Atria Gallery, 2074 Park St., Hartford. The opening reception is tonight at 7, and the show runs through Oct. 19.

Advice

Life can come from death when organs are donated

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Last month I lost a member of my family. He was involved in an accident and pronounced dead several days later. I had never given much thought to organ donations until that day. I was very much surprised that considering the amount of time the doctors and staff had spent with our family, they never once mentioned organ donations. I was the one who approached them and made the offer.

The next week, I received a letter from the hospital informing me that both kidneys were successfully transplanted — one into a 4-year-old girl.

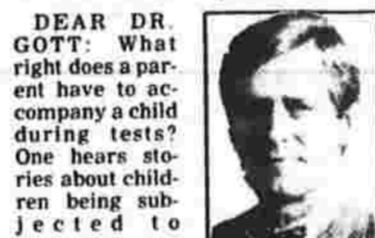

Ironically, last week the newspaper featured a special story about how badly organs were needed. I had no idea that some people had been on a waiting list for years!

My point: I almost decided not to approach the doctors because I assumed that if they thought my loved one could be a possible donor, they would approach me. I was wrong.

In our loss, there is such a comfort knowing that others have benefited, and may have a second chance at life. If you print this, please no name and no city.

Parents have right to know

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What right does a parent have to accompany a child during tests? One hears stories about children being subjected to unnecessary tests while hospitalized, or to excessive X-rays. I know doctors don't want hysterical parents complicating their work, but I would think a calm parent could help soothe a frightened child, while making sure everything being done to the child was needed.

DEAR READER: I agree. I think that the practice of parents accompanying their children for testing is appropriate, and many doctors are encouraging this. Naturally, in certain circumstances — such as during surgery — parents may be prohibited from being present, but they certainly can be nearby.

Thoughts

Dr. Leo Buscaglia, well-known to public TV audiences, is a professor who lectures widely on the need for more love in human relationships. When he gave a class assignment to "go out and do something good for someone," a student with the limited outlook of the wealthy asked, "What is there to do?"

Dr. Buscaglia took him to a nursing home and pointed to an elderly woman in a wheelchair. "Talk to her," he instructed. "Good morning," the student began. "Are you one of my relatives?" snarled the woman. "I hate my relatives!"

Assured that he was not such, she talked with him for an hour, and the young man had a new world opened to him as he learned of the struggles of her life. He returned home to talk with others there and came one day a week for visits the residents looked forward to. When last seen, the student, like the Pied Piper of literature fame, was leading a coterie of limping but joyful elderly women to attend a football game.

If you want to find the true joy of life, try giving yourself away. Jesus put it this way: "He who would save his life (keeping it to himself for safety) will lose it, but he who will lose his life (giving it away) for my sake, will find it."
