Thunderstorms persist; dense fog widespread

By The Associated Press
Showers and thunderstorms persisted today in parts of California, Arizona and Florida. Tuesday night, one thunderstorm brought gusts of 42 mph to Phoenix, according to the National Weather Service. And in California, thunderstorms knocked out electricity to about 200,000 businesses and homes in San Diego and southern Orange counties. By late Tuesday night, most of the service had been restored.

Patches of dense fog developed today across the upper Ohio Valley. Elsewhere, Hurricane Emily slammed into the southern coast of the Dominican Republic with 110 mph winds and heavy rains. Fifteen-foot waves were reported to have crashed onto shore at the town of Nizao near Ocoa Bay, and many streets were flooded with trees and telephone poles toppled. Emily was weakening over land. The winds had dropped to 75 mph. Around the United States today, the forecast called for scattered showers and thunderstorms in southern California, Arizona and southern Florida. High temperatures in the 60s were predicted in northern New England, the northern Appalachians, the upper Ohio Valley and the lower Great Lakes regions. Highs in the 70s extended from central New England across the Carolinas to the remainder of the Ohio Valley and into much of the Mississippi Valley. Readings in the 90s were forecast for southern Florida and in the Southwest.

Today's weather picture was drawn by Tamara Visco, 10, who lives on Birch Street and attends Nathan Hale School.

All In A Day

It happens every fall. The days seem to get "shorter" as less sunlight reaches the northern hemisphere during Earth's 24-hour rotation period. Of all the planets, Jupiter has the shortest "day." The planet completes a rotation in only ten hours. But because it is so far from the Sun, Jupiter's years are very long. It takes 4,333 days for Jupiter to complete its orbit. Mercury, on the other hand, has only 88 Earth days in a "year." Plutonian years last 90,700 days.

Constitution gala on Friday starts events in town

By Nancy Pappas Herald Reporter
The rest of the nation did most of its celebrating last week. But the town of Manchester will start toasting the 200th anniversary of the Constitution on Friday. The kickoff is to be a huge, free birthday party, complete with cake, candles and singing, on Friday evening at 7 in the Love Program Center at Manchester Community College.
A professional production of "The Other Boston Tea Party," about the backstage arguments among the Constitution's authors, will be the highlight of the evening. After the play, a professor of history from Trinity College, Dr. Jack Chatfield, will lead a discussion of the issues raised in the play. In addition, there will be exhibits in the lobby of the Love Program Center, at the Manchester Museum of Local History, and at the Lutz Children's Museum. Special teachers' kits on the Constitution have been prepared by the Lutz staff, and retired teachers have been recruited to help school children who tour the history museum, which is at 126 Cedar St.
The celebration events, which will continue for more than a month, have been planned by a committee whose chairman is Sara K. Robinson, a former history teacher who is a guidance counselor at Manchester High School.
Robinson, who is the new exhibit chairwoman at the Manchester Museum of Local History, is a member of the Connecticut Society of Independent Historians. In the course of her travels, she has attended a production of "The Other Boston Tea Party," a show about the arguments between Harrison Grey Otis, an aristocratic, Harvard-educated attorney, and Samuel Adams, one of the leading Revolutionary leaders.
The birthday party for the Constitution will begin at 7 p.m. Friday, with cake and coffee served in the lobby of the Love Program Center by the Order of the Daughters of the American Revolution. In the lobby will be "The Blessings of Liberty," a series of 12 panels presenting the major issues and events leading to the framing of the Constitution.
The show, written by Jack Carroll, will be introduced by Malcolm F. Barlow, president of the Manchester Historical Society. Chatfield will lead a discussion afterward. Admission is free, but those planning to attend are asked to call 649-2502 to make reservations.
On Monday, Dr. Hugh MacGill, a law professor and associate dean of academic affairs at the University of Connecticut, will speak on "Rules, Dreams and the Constitution." The talk will be at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium on the lower campus at Manchester Community College.
At the beginning of October, "The Blessings of Liberty" will move to the Museum of Local History, where it will hang through Oct. 31. The other major exhibit there during October will be "Vignettes of Manchester — 1787," including a typical parlor scene, a tableau from the Woodbridge Tavern, an exhibit of the original Constitution, Works and a collection of period farm implements.
During October, "Connecticut and the Constitution," another exhibit, will move into the Love Program Center lobby. It was produced by the Connecticut State Museum, and is sponsored by the Institute of Local History.
Dr. Christopher Collier, the Connecticut state historian, will speak Oct. 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the Love Program Center on "Connecticut and the Constitution."
"Blessings of Liberty" will move to the Lutz Children's Museum in November. The Connecticut Humanities Council has paid for the exhibit, which will include copies of the loan kits. "The U.S. Constitution and Other Documents in U.S. History," which educational materials include books, reproduced documents, artifacts and teacher materials, are and are intended for children in grades 4 through 6.

MCC enrollment is up 1%, reversing a one-year decline

Manchester Community College's student enrollment is up 1 percent over last year, said Andrew Pateras, MCC's admissions director. This fall's full and part-time student population is 5,507.
The rise reverses a one-year drop in full-time and part-time combined student attendance at MCC. In 1986, attendance dropped to 5,261 students compared to 5,352 the year before.
"It dropped slightly but we're seeing an increase again," he said. "This year, we're seeing a turnaround."
The total student population of the state's 12 community colleges also is up, with eight community colleges showing increases. Mohawk Community College in Norwich showed the greatest increase, state officials said.
There are many reasons for the upturn at MCC, Pateras said, including the college admissions office's expanded hours. The school had walk-in registration four days and one evening this year, with an adviser available during office hours.
"Our hours were more convenient," he said. "Last year, we were open fewer days during the week, and people weren't able to get to us. If they can't get to you, they look at other places."
Last year, the admissions office was open one day and one evening each week, he said.
The college also has a new computerized registration system, which cut down on the paperwork and time needed to register students, Pateras said.
Harry A. Meisel, MCC's dean of student affairs, attributed the increase to the community college's low tuition. MCC charges in-state students $254 per semester or $97.50 per course. Out-of-state students pay $1,017 for a full semester and $306 per course.
"The cost of higher education has increased," he said. "The opportunity to attend college the first two years at home at our cost is very attractive."
Also, a sound economy means a rise in part-time students, Meisel said. In 1985, part-time admissions stood at 3,724 students, but rose by 32 students a year later. In 1987, 3,953 part-time students registered at MCC.
"When the economy is good, unemployment is down," he said. "People get jobs and remain in their own back yard. That gives them an opportunity for part-time college."
And an MCC rebounds from its one-year drop. It is rapidly approaching capacity, Meisel said.
"We're approaching the point where we are at the capacity of utilization of space," he said. "It could be conceivable that we'll outgrow the new space within a few years." If that does happen, the college would have to expand or restrict admissions, Meisel said.

Town officials laud 8th sewer decision

By Alex Grell Associate Editor
Two town directors today praised the decision by the Eight Utilities Board of Directors to postpone bids for construction of a major sewer until after the Nov. 3 town election. Toward Director Geoffrey Burns said he was gratified by Monday's decision. Mayor Barbara B. Weinberg said she feels the district took a wise course.
During the Eighth District's monthly meeting Monday, four of the district directors voted against inviting bids for the installation before the election. That election will include questions to voters on the proposed town and district agreement on sewer and fire service.
Director Ellen Burns, one of the four directors who opposes the agreement, voted against taking bids now, as did District President Walter Joyner, Lorraine Boutin, and Willard Marvin. Directors Samuel Longest, Joseph Tripp, and Thomas Landers voted in favor.
Joyner and John D. LaBelle, Jr., district legal counsel, advised against going forward on the grounds that the district may run into difficulty financing the sewer project. In addition, contractors may be reluctant to bid when there is a question over which government will be the sewer authority, the two contended.
But Longest and Tripp argued that the North Main Street portion of the sewer, the first section that would be built under the district plan, is long overdue. Landers said that bids are invited within a couple of weeks, and bidders are given a month to prepare their bids, the election would be over before any decision on awarding a contract has to be made.
Before the cast what turned out to be the deciding vote, Burns said simply, "I'm against it; we should wait until after the election."
The town and the district disagree about engineering for the project. Behind the disagreement is an unresolved conflict over which government will collect outlet charges from sewer users, charges Joyner maintains the district has to have in order to finance the project.
Naab said today he would like to see the portion of the sewer that will serve new commercial development in Buckland started as soon as possible, but he said the North Main Street section was to have been built first, and the town and district disagree on how it should be built.
Weinberg said she feels contractors might well be concerned that the sewer authority might change while the project is in progress.

In good spirits

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ella Fitzgerald, "the First Lady of Song," is in fair condition and good spirits despite being hospitalized for more than a month by complications from diabetes.
Her doctors haven't said when the 69-year-old jazz singer will be able to return to her Beverly Hills home, but she has been gratified by messages from her friends and fans, said Cedars-Sinai Medical Center spokesman Ron Wise.
"She was pleased people were responding to her illness by sending her cards to show their concern," Wise said Tuesday.
Doctors treated Miss Fitzgerald for pain and swelling in her right foot, but Wise said her condition is not life-threatening.
Miss Fitzgerald, known for her improvisational "scat" singing style, has recorded more than 250 albums and won 11 Grammy awards in a career spanning more than four decades.

NEW YORK (AP) — Singer Dionne Warwick has been honored by the city for raising more than $1 million for AIDS research.
City officials on Tuesday serenaded Miss Warwick at City Hall Plaza with a slightly off-key rendition of "That's What Friends Are For." All royalties from the song were donated to acquired immune deficiency syndrome research.
Miss Warwick was honored in Washington on Monday and named "Ambassador of Health" by Secretary of Health Otis Bowen.
"All of the things I've been able to accomplish, I wouldn't have been able to do without people like you who care," the singer told the crowd Tuesday.

MHS has journalism course

A new journalism course at Manchester High School will give students a chance to learn about newspaper writing and have their work published, said Dr. Gwen E. Brooks, vice principal for programming and instruction at the high school.
Also, two new math courses, a word processing course and an American literature course are offered this semester, she said.
"Though the school has had writing courses in the past, it has not had a journalism course," she said. Students will learn newspaper writing and will produce a High School World, the student newspaper that appears weekly in the Manchester Herald.
"We've always had an extracurricular (newspaper) activity," Brooks said. "Now we have a writing class that will teach students how to write for a newspaper. The kids are extremely active. They're interviewing people all around the school."
Students will still be able to write for the school newspaper without taking the course. The 13 students enrolled in the course will receive credit, she said.
A vocational math course is the first of two new math classes. The class is being offered in cooperation with the math and vocational education departments. The second math course, a portion of the class, students will learn formulas and figure out problems in a formal classroom setting. In the vocational section, students will apply the textbook math they have learned.
"It's really nice," Brooks said. "It's between two departments, so it gives you integrated learning." There are 31 students enrolled in the course, which covers percentages, how to use the calculator, algebra, geometry and statistics.
There are about 30 students enrolled in the course. Students will be able to use computers, Brooks said.
The final two new courses are an introduction to word processing and an American literature class. Using the Word Processor will teach students the basic functions of the machine, she said. There are 16 students enrolled.
The American literature course will give students a background on the works of the country's most famous writers, she said. The 27 students in the class will read the works of American writers such as John Steinbeck, Samuel Clemens and Robert Frost.
There are about 180 courses offered at the high school, Brooks said.

Man admits tax evasion, fraud

HARTFORD — A 54-year-old Bristol man has pleaded guilty to income tax evasion and Social Security fraud in U.S. District Court.

George S. Sitka entered the guilty plea Tuesday, the day jury selection was to begin in his case. Sitka admitted to using more than 70 fictitious names to conceal his business income and other income, which included dividends, stock profits, rental income and real estate sales, said U.S. Attorney Stanley Twardy.

Sitka, who operated a chemical cleaner manufacturing company, also admitted to not filing personal income tax forms, nor paying federal income taxes since 1967, Twardy said.

Sitka, who will be sentenced Nov. 2, faces up to 10 years in prison and a $15,000 fine.

L'Amblance report is finished

BRIDGEPORT — The National Bureau of Standards' report on the L'Amblance Plaza collapse is completed and will be sent to the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration this week or early next week, the chief bureau investigator said.

"My guess is it will be released to the public by OSHA in early October," Charles G. Culver said Tuesday.

Culver, an engineer in the bureau's Center for Building Technology in Gaithersburg, Md., said the 314-page report identifies "the most probable" cause of the collapse. He would not go into detail.

Culver said the report lists various factors that contributed to the collapse of the building on April 23, which killed 28 men. He said the report deals with just the technical aspects and does not address the question of who was responsible for the disaster.

Language gap stalls murder case

STAMFORD — The arraignment of Leon Valencia, 26, of Norwalk, who is charged with murdering a homeless man in a wheelchair, has been postponed.

The arraignment in Stamford Superior court was postponed Tuesday after Valencia requested an interpreter and the court could not immediately provide one. The arraignment has been rescheduled for Thursday.

Valencia, who first told police he was from Rome but later said he was from Medellin, Colombia, is charged with murder in the death of Richard Elliot, 76, who was severely beaten Sept. 14. Elliot died on Sept. 15 in Norwalk Hospital.

Valencia was arrested the night of the beating and is being held on $500,000 bond at the Community Correctional Center in Bridgeport.

Elliot was apparently a homeless man who lived on the streets of Westport. Elliot refused to stay in the town's homeless shelter.

AIDS threatens New Haven men

NEW HAVEN — One in 10 black men in New Haven from 20 to 49 years old may carry AIDS antibodies, according to estimates by epidemiologists at the state Department of Health Services.

"That means they have been infected by the disease and may eventually come down with it," said Dr. Frederick Adams, commissioner of health services, in a worst-case situation, one in every 10 (black) males in New Haven could die of AIDS. That is a generation decimated.

"Two in every 100 white male New Haven residents in the 20-49 age category may be AIDS carriers," according to Dr. James Hadler, chief of epidemiology in the state health agency.

The estimates emerged from a statewide tracking of acquired immune deficiency syndrome in the general population. Adams said earlier this week. He said the situation in New Haven is high because of the prevalence of intravenous drug abuse and the practice of sharing needles.

Wethersfield vote bans pit bulls

WETHERSFIELD — The City Council has adopted the first ordinance in the state banning pit bulls.

The ordinance, adopted Monday, prohibits anyone from owning or possessing "any such dog known as the American Pit Bull" after Oct. 1, 1987.

Two licensees of pit bulls in town would be able to remain in town as long as they don't change owners.

About 40 communities across the country have passed or are considering pit bull bans or restrictions.

Elizabeth Bailey, a Clinton resident and vice president of the American Pit Bull Terrier Club in New England, said she would challenge the Wethersfield ordinance in court.

Yale nurses get 14 percent raise

NEW HAVEN — Registered nurses working on in-patient floors at Yale-New Haven Hospital will receive a 14 percent raise starting Oct. 5, a hospital administrator said.

Employees in the allied health fields, such as medical technology and physical therapists, will receive pay increases from 4 percent to 14 percent, said Edward J. Dowling, vice president for human resources.

After the increase, starting pay for nurses will be $26,000, probably the highest in the area, Dowling said Tuesday.

A nationwide nursing shortage has hurt staffing levels at state hospitals.

Dowling said the pay increases are "intended to recognize the type of people we need to recruit and maintain."

The hospital employs about 1,200 nurses.

State SAT scores dip from 1986

HARTFORD — The average Connecticut student's score on the Scholastic Aptitude Test was down by one point this year compared with 1986, according to state Education Commissioner Gerald N. Trozzi.

But the commissioner said there was some encouraging news, that 74 percent of the 1987 Connecticut graduates — the highest percentage in the nation — had taken the exam. The national average is 40 percent, he said.

He said that was "an encouraging sign since it means that more students are considering going to college." He said it was the sixth consecutive year that Connecticut had the highest participation rate in the country.

The tests, which measure mathematical and verbal skills, are one criterion used in applying to college.

On the verbal test, the average Connecticut score was 439, compared with 440 in 1986. The math average also dipped one point: 473, compared with 474 last year.

Teen sentenced in fatal auto crash

VERNON — An 18-year-old Windham High School student convicted in an auto accident that killed three people has been sentenced to 2 1/2 years in prison by a Superior Court judge.

Judge Michael A. Mack could have sentenced Constantino Loukas to 15 years in prison in connection with the October 1986 accident.

Loukas, of Willimantic, was driving his Chevrolet Camaro at about 80 mph while racing with another vehicle on Route 6 in Columbia, when his vehicle collided with a car driven by Roy J. Hagan, 60, of Willimantic.

Two passengers in Hagan's car, David B. Blackburn, 35, of Windham, and Barbara Marley, 49, of Willimantic, were killed instantly. Loukas's cousin, Maria Antonaras, a 16-year-old South Windsor High School student, died shortly after the 11:30 p.m. accident, police said.

'Armpit' feud leads to Bridgeport contest

BRIDGEPORT (AP) — There are contests that promote family vacations to Hawaii, Paris and now, believe it not, Bridgeport.

The Bridgeport Fantasy contest was born because a newspaper columnist in Middletown, N.Y., called Connecticut's largest city, "the armpit of New England" after Money magazine ranked Bridgeport as the 37th best place to live in the country — directly ahead of Middletown, N.Y., which was ranked 38th.

Leonard Grimaldi, an aide to Bridgeport Mayor Thomas W. Bucal, fired off a letter to the columnist saying one reason Bridgeport was a great city was because the columnist didn't live there. Grimaldi said columnist Mike Levine was like Paul Newman, who was accused of once calling Bridgeport an armpit.

"We, in Bridgeport, aren't mad at you, Mike," Grimaldi's letter said. "In fact, we invite you to visit so we can show you a city you'd never see. But we ask that you don't stay permanently. We suspect that Bridgeport is such a great place to live because Mike Levine and Paul Newman don't live here."

The two agreed to the Bridgeport Fantasy contest where readers would write a 50-word essay either on why they want to visit Bridgeport, or on what else Mike Levine and Paul Newman have in common.

"Readers of this column get to vie for the crown jewel of all giveaways during the Hungarian uprising three decades ago. He was severely wounded but reached the West through Austria as the revolution was crushed by Soviet forces.

Following a presentation by two noted defense experts — Paul Warnke, arms control adviser to President Carter, and Brent Scowcroft, national security adviser to President Ford — Decoy said he was "wholeheartedly" supporting the new U.S.-Soviet agreement to eliminate medium- and shorter-range nuclear weapons.

Warnke and Scowcroft also support the treaty, while saying its value is seriously limited because of the huge arsenal of intercontinental missiles on both sides could still hit all the targets now threatened by the shorter-range weapons.

"All other nuclear weapons should also be brought into focus now," Janos, 59, said in an interview. "The biggest threat comes from the possibility that a terrorist could start a nuclear war today. So the nuclear weapons of other countries also should be brought into the process."

Janos, who has two sons and two daughters, also was interested in educational issues discussed during the seminar. The president of the Equitable Financial Cos., John Carter, for example, said by the turn of the century 23 million jobs could be left unfilled because of Americans lacking the skills to do them.

Carter said that this summer four New York banks offered 230 jobs to high school graduates. "The only requirement was that they had to pass an eighth-grade math test," he said. "Three hundred kids applied for the jobs but only 100 passed the math test and were hired. The other 150 jobs went unfilled."

Grimaldi and Levine agreed that the winner will visit the city, give his impressions to Levine, and Levine will write a column on it.

Meanwhile, the city is busy preparing a weekend for the lucky winner. The winners will stay at the Bridgeport Hilton, see a show at the city's Cabaret Theater and take a ferry to Port Jefferson, which is on Long Island.

"I think the greatest part of this thing is that they're coming on a ferry and getting him out of the city," Levine said in a telephone interview on Tuesday.

Levine, who has only passed through Bridgeport, said he agreed to the contest because it would be fun. He said his column was originally meant to pick surveys that rank the best places to live.

"Middletown has good neighborhoods, but if you're talking about the 38th best place — that's kind of ridiculous," he said.

He also said Middletown and Bridgeport have some things in common although Bridgeport is more than five times larger. He said Middletown has a lack of affordable housing, as does Bridgeport.

Bolton prof joins in Dodd's seminar

Scraps League Newspapers

WASHINGTON — A two-day seminar sponsored by Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., ended Tuesday afternoon for about 100 Connecticut contributors and other supporters of the senator.

The seminar, held for the third time by Dodd, gave his constituents an opportunity to hear and exchange views with such figures as Alan Greenspan, new Federal Reserve Board chairman; Republican and Democratic leadership members of the House; Powell, former presidential press secretary; and top arms control experts.

This has been very useful and well attended, with really heavy guns involved," said Janos Decoy of Bolton, a professor of Soviet and European history at Greater Hartford Community College.

Decoy, a native of Hungary, was a professor there before becoming chief of staff to the commander in charge of revolutionary forces during the Hungarian uprising three decades ago. He was severely wounded but reached the West through Austria as the revolution was crushed by Soviet forces.

Following a presentation by two noted defense experts — Paul Warnke, arms control adviser to President Carter, and Brent Scowcroft, national security adviser to President Ford — Decoy said he was "wholeheartedly" supporting the new U.S.-Soviet agreement to eliminate medium- and shorter-range nuclear weapons.

Warnke and Scowcroft also support the treaty, while saying its value is seriously limited because of the huge arsenal of intercontinental missiles on both sides could still hit all the targets now threatened by the shorter-range weapons.

Bills aim to protect marine life

WASHINGTON (AP) — Worried about ocean pollution that kills thousands of fish, seabirds and marine mammals each year, the House committee unanimously passed two bills to protect marine life.

The House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee on Tuesday approved and sent to the floor a measure to ban the dumping of plastic garbage at sea and another to severely restrict tin-based paints used by boat owners to keep hulls free of barnacles.

Scientists testified at a series of congressional hearings this summer that both the paint and plastic trash problems have proven lethal for a wide range of marine life.

The plastic dumping bill, written by Rep. Gerry E. Studds, D-Mass., would implement domestically an international agreement barring the practice, which is common on many commercial, recreational and military vessels. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee is expected to vote on the treaty itself Wednesday.

"This past summer was a disaster for coastal regions like ours," said Rep. William J. Hughes, a Democrat who represents resort towns along the New Jersey shore. "People left their seashore 'in droves' because of plastic throwaways and other garbage that polluted the sea and shoreline.

The Studds measure would ban the disposal of plastic trash by U.S. commercial and recreational vessels and the dumping by foreign vessels within 200 miles of the U.S. coast.

The disposal of most other garbage is banned within 12 miles of shore, expanding the current three-mile limit. Finely ground garbage could be dumped three miles from shore.

L.I. Sound study funded

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate subcommittee has agreed to spend $1 million to continue the federal government's environmental study of the Long Island Sound.

The provision, drafted by Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., and approved Tuesday by the Senate Appropriations committee subcommittee, would continue funding for a year-old study of toxic chemicals in the sound.

HOW MUCH CAN YOU AFFORD?

Before you start to look for a home, it's important to be able to know how much you can afford to spend. First, consider the amount you can pay for housing each month. Then you can weigh the pros and cons of the many mortgage options available, such as fixed rate and adjustable rate loans.

As a general rule, monthly housing costs should be no more than 28% of your monthly pre-tax income. This includes the mortgage payment, real estate taxes, and insurance. If you do have long term debts (student loans, car payments, or anything else that will take more than 10% of your monthly income, debt service plus housing costs should be less than 36% of your pre-tax monthly income.

Your monthly payments can vary with amounts of loan, depending upon which mortgage option you select. Usually an adjustable rate mortgage plan will enable you to qualify for a higher loan amount. Your Realtor can make some of the basic calculations or refer you to a lender who will be able to pre-qualify you for a mortgage.

If there's a move in your future, the real estate professionals at Carl A. Zinsner Agency — "Your Home-Real Estate" are ready to serve you. Call us at 646-1511 or drop by our offices at 750 Main Street in Manchester.

U.S./World In Brief

Burger says Bork not extremist

WASHINGTON — Former Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, in an unusual Senate appearance on behalf of a Supreme Court nominee, said today, "If Judge Bork is not in the mainstream that neither am I."

The white-haired Burger, holding a small book with the words of the Constitution in his hands, told the Senate Judiciary Committee over and over that Robert H. Bork is not an extremist.

Speaking off the cuff, Burger said he has never seen a confirmation hearing "with more hype and more disinformation."

He said he initially didn't think it would be necessary to testify for Bork because the nominee was so well qualified. But he added that "when the opposition mounted, I sent a message that I would be available."

Burger didn't say what he was referring to when he mentioned "disinformation" but he gave a robust defense of Bork when Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., noted that opponents insist Bork is not in the mainstream of judicial thought.

House OKs $3.5 million for contras

WASHINGTON — The House voted today to give $3.5 million in "humanitarian" aid to Nicaragua's contra rebels and Speaker Jim Wright said it probably will be the last U.S. aid ever provided to the rebels.

The lawmakers, on a voice vote, approved ground rules for debate on a 41-day stopgap spending measure to keep the government running past the end of the current fiscal year on Sept. 30. The contra aid money was included in the ground rules.

Final passage of the spending measure, which would keep all other government agencies and programs running at current levels through Nov. 10, was expected to come later in the day. The measure then would be sent to the Senate for further action.

The contra aid money had been worked out in a bipartisan agreement between Wright, D-Texas, and House Republican Leader Robert Michel of Illinois.

Fumes spread through U.S. embassy

CANBERRA, Australia — Noxious fumes spread through the U.S. Embassy today when batteries powering an electric generator malfunctioned, and 14 people were hospitalized briefly, an embassy spokesman said.

Richard Teare, deputy head of the embassy mission, denied early reports that there was a fire at the building.

"A couple of batteries took on too much charge and began expelling too much fumes," he told The Associated Press by telephone.

Teare said 14 people were hospitalized for about two hours as a precaution. They included seven staff members, a U.S. Marine who helped evacuate the building and six firefighters.

Emily kills 2 in Dominican Republic

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic — Hurricane Emily hit the southern Dominican Republic early today with 110 mph winds, killing two children and injuring two other people.

The storm, which was downgraded to tropical storm status when its winds weakened to 70 mph, sailed over the northwestern part of the island of Hispaniola, which the Dominican Republic and Haiti share.

Emily toppled trees and telephone poles and drove families from their homes in low-lying areas near Santo Domingo, the capital of the Dominican Republic.

Blaggi refuses to give up seat

NEW YORK — Rep. Mario Blaggi, a former hero cop and 20-year member of Congress, vowed to remain in office while he fights his conviction on charges he illegally accepted free vacations from a Brooklyn political boss.

"The jury convicted me of accepting Blaggi, 69, said after Tuesday's verdict in federal court in Brooklyn: "I'm not a quitter. I'm a congressman. I will continue to be a congressman."

The Bronx Democrat was convicted of illegally accepting gratuities, crossing state lines to do so, and obstructing justice. Former Brooklyn Democratic boss Meade Esposito, 60, was convicted with him of gratuity and interstate travel charges.

The jury found both men innocent of the more serious charges of bribery and conspiracy.

Man kills himself after rampage

CORSICANA, Texas — A man neighbors called "Rambo" stuffed ammunition into his combat fatigues and then went on a shooting rampage, killing four people, including his wife and himself, and two of his pit bull dogs, police said.

The gunman, Frank Stewart, 37, also told acquaintances he killed three people last week in Missouri, police said.

"Everything he said he did is true so far, so this may be, too," Detective Dwayne Hensley said.

Among those gunned down Tuesday afternoon was Stewart's ex-wife and the boyfriend of Stewart's estranged wife, police said.

Migrants demand government aid

YAKIMA, Wash. — The state's record apple crop still on the trees has left thousands of migrant workers in the lurch, and they are demanding government aid for food and shelter until the long-delayed harvest of Oregon, the senior Republican on the panel.

Unseasonably warm weather has stalled the nation's largest apple harvest at least until next week, and migrant workers running out of money and patience blame the state Apple Commission for recruiting too many workers.

"They want work or enough money to eat and go back home," said Tomas Villanueva, president of the United Farmworkers of Washington State, as hundreds of migrant workers demonstrated Tuesday at the Yakima County Courthouse.

Senate weighs Gramm-Rudman law

WASHINGTON — The Senate today began debate on restoring the muscle of mandatory spending cuts to the Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction law, with supporters saying it was the best plan they could get.

"It's time that the federal government began to live within its means," said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

"This conference report sends a signal that Congress is really serious about reducing the deficit. And that message is long overdue," he said.

"Clearly, it's better than what we've been doing," said Sen. Bob Packwood of Oregon, the senior Republican on the panel.

The House voted Tuesday night to approve strengthening the legislation that lawmakers hope will guide the federal government out of an era of massive budget deficits.

Hahn says Bakker ruined her life

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Jessica Hahn in a Playboy interview says she was told "you're going to do something tremendous for God" before Jim Bakker and another evangelist forced themselves on her sexually and "ruined my life."

"I am not a bimbo. ... I am a human being. I was done in. I was hurt," she declared in the interview, which included topless photos of the 28-year-old former church secretary whose encounter with Bakker led to the PTL evangelist's downfall.

A copy of Playboy's November issue became available Tuesday as Hahn ended two days of testimony before a grand jury investigating alleged financial misconduct at the $172 million evangelical empire, including hush money paid her.

SAT maintains its baffling mystique

By Lee Hinson
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — SAT averages posted a seemingly unmatched ability to confuse the public, baffle educators, and set off gates of criticism even when the test results hardly change, as in the past two years.

The 1987 Scholastic Aptitude Test results released Tuesday by the College Board barely fluctuated from the previous year. Math scores, graded on a scale of 200-800, averaged 476, up a point from 1986. Verbal averages were down a point, at 430.

To fully appreciate why educators from the U.S. secretary of education on down would greet this apparent non-event with torrents of anxious opinion, it might help to imagine how Wall Street would greet the release of the Dow Jones industrial average if it came out only a year.

To Education Secretary William J. Bennett, the scores showed that school reform "has not gone deep enough."

The College Board, which sponsors the college entrance exam taken by 1.1 million youngsters, the 1987 results were a welter of good-news-bad-news.

Good, because the scores could easily have been worse given the slight increase in those taking the test — 80,000 more than 1986.

Good, because blacks and other minorities continued to improve scores at a relatively rapid clip. Average verbal scores among blacks have risen 21 points, to 351, since 1977, and 20 points, to 377, in math.

But not good at all, considering that minorities and women still have far to go in closing the gap with white students who averaged 447 on the verbal section in 1987 and 489 on the math.

Test critics, many of whom would gleefully attempt the SAT's funeral, blame the race and sex disparities primarily on test bias. College Board President Donald M. Stewart terms this criticism "simple-minded," and unleashed a barrage of statistics Tuesday to show that the quality of curriculum, among other things, are to blame.

But statistics showing SAT scores much higher among males than females, and higher among whites than other ethnic groups, and rising consistently with family income, will keep the test bias argument raging for at least another year.

Students with annual family incomes of less than $10,000 averaged 416 math and 364 verbal, the board reported. Students with family incomes of $70,000 or more averaged 523 math, 471 verbal.

Still, for sheer confusion and misrepresentation, nothing quite rivals the annual state-by-state comparisons of SAT averages.

Take the example of South Carolina, once again dead-last among the states with a verbal SAT average of 397 and a math average of 435. That state has spent hundreds of millions since 1984 and passed a myriad of reform measures trying to upgrade schools.

So should South Carolinians have their heads? Maybe not, considering that that combined math-verbal scores in South Carolina went up a relatively sharp 6 points from 1986.

Then again, it probably makes sense to ignore state comparisons entirely, even when such comparisons come from the U.S. Department of Education as they have the past few years. (The College Board counsels against such comparisons, yet dutifully provides the statistics each year.)

Would anyone care to argue, for example, that children in Mississippi, who averaged 487 verbal and 521 math in 1987, are getting better schooling than Connecticut youngsters who averaged 439 verbal and 473 math? The difference, of course, has to do with the fact that 69 percent of Connecticut high school seniors take the SAT, compared with the 3 percent of Mississippians who mostly make up the academic cream of the student population.

The more kids that take the test, the greater the variety of students and the lower the scores. In small states, only about 5 percent of the students take the test and they're the ones applying to Ivy League schools," said Fred Moreno, a College Board spokesman.

Perhaps the only sure byproduct of this annual statistical bonanza is this: the accompanying debate and confusion nourishes the SAT's enduring mystique among students, educators and the general public.

That the SAT is under siege from critics suggests its continued importance, certainly not its imminent demise as an academic measurement tool. Anyone doubting that should talk to the legions of parents willing to spend $500 or more for private SAT coaching firms.

If they are worth all this fuss, they must be important. Mustn't they?

Ortega announces partial cease-fire

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — The leftist government has announced rough details of a partial truce in its war against the U.S.-backed contra rebels, and said a radio station could resume broadcasting.

A top contra leader reacted cautiously to the cease-fire proposal, while Reagan administration officials dismissed it as "meaningless."

The announcements about a truce and Radio Catolica, the Roman Catholic Church's official broadcast voice, were the latest aimed at compliance with a new Central American peace plan. In the past month, Nicaragua has allowed two hundred priests to return and has said it will allow the opposition newspaper La Prensa to reopen without censorship.

Ortega also has appointed a leading critic to head a National Reconciliation Commission and has said his government would begin talks with internal opposition groups.

"We are going to go in a gradual way," Ortega said about the truce proposal at a news conference Tuesday. "It's the first concrete step to move ahead in the cease-fire process."

He did not specify a timetable for the plan but said: "We are working on concrete actions to make known the first zones where the cease-fire will be declared."

He said soldiers would be withdrawn to designated areas as a step toward a total cease-fire with the contra rebels, who have been fighting his government since 1982.

In Washington, White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater said: "A unilateral cease-fire is meaningless without conditions."

He said cease-fire negotiations must involve the contra — a demand the Sandinistas have rejected.

Alfonso Aguilar, a top anti-Sandinista rebel leader, said in Honduras that Ortega's move may be aimed at dividing the contras by sowing confusion in their ranks.

Political opposition leaders in Nicaragua adopted a wait-and-see attitude.

"It's clever," said Enrique Bolaños, head of the private enterprise organization known as Cosep. "But a unilateral cease-fire is difficult to work out because you need the consent of the other side."

"I'm not an anti-Christian Party leader Eric Ramirez said the reopening of Radio Catolica and the opposition newspaper La Prensa represented the restoration of freedoms taken away.

"They were silenced by a totalitarian dictatorship," Ramirez said in a telephone interview.

The government said Radio Catolica could reopen immediately. It was forced off the air Jan. 1, 1986, for failing to broadcast Ortega's year-end address.

The Sandinista government, which came to power in a 1979 revolution, agreed Saturday to allow La Prensa to publish. The paper was closed June 26, 1986, a day after the U.S. Congress approved $100 million in aid for the rebels.

The Sandinistas have pledged to comply fully with the peace plan signed Aug. 7 by the presidents of Nicaragua, El Salvador, Guatemala, Costa Rica and Honduras.

The pact calls for cease-fires, amnesties, democratic reforms and an end to strategic and tactical support of insurgents.

Those and other measures are to take effect simultaneously in the five countries on Nov. 9, 90 days after the plan was signed.

President Reagan has called the peace plan "fatally flawed" and is asking Congress to approve an additional $270 million in aid for the contras.

Costa Rican President Oscar Arias, author of the peace plan, said during a visit to Washington that any cease-fire would have to be negotiated to be effective. "I don't think a unilateral cease-fire will be enough," he said. "Both parties will have to agree."

Nicaragua was the first country to form a National Reconciliation Commission, as required by the peace pact. The commission is charged with verifying compliance with the pact and with the government's strongest critics, Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, of the Roman Catholic Church in Nicaragua.

The Sandinistas also have permitted two hundred priests to return to the country, including the Rev. Bismarck Carballo, the former head of Radio Catolica, who was one of the government's most vocal critics.

Last week, Ortega announced his government would begin a "national dialogue" with representatives of all internal opposition political parties and organizations on Oct. 5.

8th District board makes a good move

The directors of the Eighth Utilities District made a good move Monday night when they acted favorably on a suggestion that they move their meetings out of the district firehouse to a better place.

The primary reason for considering a new location is that handicapped persons, those in wheelchairs, for instance, cannot attend meetings of the directors unless they make arrangements in advance.

The result is less citizen participation than there should be in a political unit that prides itself on being democratic.

But there are other reasons for not meeting in the firehouse. The acoustics are bad. There are frequent interruptions and distractions. The place is, after all, a working firehouse.

When the directors find it necessary to move from the second floor to the garage bays below — something they have done for the benefit of handicapped citizens — the acoustics are worse, and the interruptions are more annoying.

"I could not agree with her more," said Walter Joyner, district president, commenting on the recommendation by Margherita Tripp, secretary of the Commission on the Handicapped, that the district board meet elsewhere.

If the committee Joyner named to find a better place to meet succeeds, the district citizens and its directors will benefit.

And a bad one

The directors of the Eighth Utilities District made a bad move Monday when they voted down a suggestion by Director Thomas Landers to give citizens the right to comment on the matters at hand before the directors deliberate and vote.

Under the present rules, if a citizen wants to express a view before the directors act, that citizen has to ask the directors to waive their meeting rules to permit it.

The result is that there is less citizen participation than there should be in a political unit that prides itself on being democratic.

Landers proposed that the meeting agendas set aside a special time for citizen comment. Although Landers and District President Walter Joyner are political rivals who have been on opposite sides of most issues recently, Joyner backed Landers. So did Director Ellen Burns.

The four directors who voted down the idea seemed to fear that meetings will drag on until the wee hours if there is open public discussion. There is some justification for that concern. Meetings of the town's Board of Directors are sometimes prolonged because of public participation.

But setting time limits for such discussions and limiting them to the policy matters before the directors that night should cure that problem.

In the interest of greater democracy the district directors should reconsider their decision.

Lieberman emerging to challenge Weicker

The Senate race in Connecticut next year — as it appears now — will almost certainly be between Lowell Weicker, the Republican incumbent, and Joe Lieberman, the Democratic attorney general. It shapes up already as a big-bucks, high-road corer. Democrats, mindful that 1988 is a presidential election year with the Republicans dealing from strength, admit that the Senate contest will be tough. But they're going to give it their best shot.

Lieberman will make his formal announcement any week now, and Democratic leaders would be surprised if he doesn't go for it. "I'm definitely moving in that direction," he says. Weicker's declaration won't come until late November, and it is also expected to be positive. His name, Jay Malinowski, a New Britain lawyer, as his campaign manager last week was the strongest signal yet that he is a candidate.

Neither man faces significant opposition, though one or two other Democrats may jump in. Weicker is hardly the darling of the entire GOP, but the recent victory by Chris Shays in the 4th Congressional District demonstrated that its candidate-warrior factions can unite behind a candidate they see as a winner.

U.S. Rep. Barbara Kennelly of Hartford, often mentioned as a likely candidate for the Democratic nomination for the Senate, will not seek it. "If you're a smart predictor, you can say that," Democratic State Chairman John Dronney told me last week. She's moved into the inner circle in Congress, has top committee posts, and is in a safe seat.

So, as one Democratic insider put it this week, "things are beginning to move" on the Senate

I CAN'T IMAGINE EITHER PARTY NOMINATING A MAJOR FOR PRESIDENT SO SOON AFTER THE MONDALE FIASCO OF '84 AND REAGAN'S LOSS OF CREDIBILITY SINCE THE ELECTION.

Cut commissions for realty sales

To the Editor: I believe my critics have their heads in the sand, or worse, they are hypocrites. At the very time they are defending the traditional 6 percent commission on home listings and in-state sales, they cannot provide services with a lower percentage fee, they and their agencies are publicizing far and wide their own listing of lower rates, some even lower than the 4 percent being charged by Golden Oaks. Perhaps some will say, "Oh, these are special listings like newly constructed houses!" Some, perhaps, but the listings of all the agencies in this area has been showing an increasing number of commissions under the 6 percent standard.

Also, the so-called "national resources" that some brag about are merely the well-publicized out-of-state franchises that offer little to Manchester-area people. A few seconds on national TV, a required Mickey Mouse uniform for salespeople. To infer that local residents are so stupid they would pay $10,000 for a house worth $100,000 because of the razzle dazzle provided by a foreign franchise is absolutely ludicrous. The saddest thing of all about the plethora of out-of-state franchises is that good Manchester-area money is being channeled to places like Cincinnati and Houston. The drain is often as much as 8 percent of an agency's income. Perhaps that money can be used to lower commissions when these glorious out-of-state public relations outfits visit and die.

Russians ready with other arms

To the Editor: Many years ago, Russia started to develop chemical and biological war capability. Now, after much research, they have it well developed and very effective. They have even tested it in their invasion of Afghanistan, just enough to prove it works but not enough to gain much publicity. We, being the "nice" people that we are, would never, ever build such "bad" or "dirty" weapons. However, the Russians have found that they do not need atomic weapons to fight with, as their chemical and biological weapons are just as effective and can also be used in much smaller areas when they want. They are much more controllable for the Russians.

Since the Russians don't need atomic weapons, mutual nuclear disarmament is to their advantage. So, the agreement will go through and be adhered to. That's good. I am all for mutual nuclear disarmament. But, tell me, where do we go from here?

Visual pollution infects Parkade

To the Editor: The concern with visual-verbal pollution at the Manchester Parkade should extend to the dump-like conditions at the rear of the Stop & Shop block. The long-term accumulation of unsightly litter resembles the fringes of a poorly maintained waste area.

Evidently the merchants adjacent to this area are not assuming cleanup responsibility as I, in my frequent fitness walks, have never seen a maintenance crew. In contrast, the Sears block, routinely maintained, is spotless.

Why has this type of negligence been allowed to exist for such a prolonged period (at least a year)? Isn't there a town agency that seeks such eyesores and has the authority to demand immediate correction?

Fortunately, visually polluted areas are rare in Manchester and thus not reflective of the general town environment. However, the situation demands immediate attention. Decoy, if ignored, eventually permeates the total.

U.S. Customs was on trail of arms deal

WASHINGTON — A year before the Iran-contra scandal rocked the Reagan administration, the U.S. Customs Service developed information on one of the early secret arms shipments to Iran by the White House. But Customs did not pursue the matter after it was assured by the CIA that the United States was not involved.

The near-exposure of the secret Iranian arms operation in the fall of 1985 was touched off by an occurrence as trivial as the taped door latch of Watergate. The plane that carried the weapons to Iran overflew Turkish territory on its way back to Israel — and peeved Turkish officials publicly identified the DC-8 and its secret route. But the press never picked up on the Turks' disclosure.

This bizarre might-have-been element in the Iran-contra scandal was gleaned from two confidential Customs documents we have seen.

The first document was written on Sept. 20, 1985, by the chief of the Customs Service's office of intelligence, George D. Heavely. It reported that two days earlier "the Office of Intelligence received fragmentary information... that a U.S.-registered DC-8 aircraft (with a crew of three) had landed for emergency repairs in Israel directly from Iran and was en route to an unknown destination."

The internal memo went on to say that even though Customs had the tail number of the DC-8, the Israeli defense ministry maintained a "blackout on information on the aircraft." As a result, the memo added, the U.S. ambassador to Bahrain could say little when the Israeli ambassador there "made discreet inquiries about (this and other) flights and arms smuggling to Iran." The stated U.S. policy at the time was to discourage arms sales to Iraq's enemy in the Persian Gulf war.

Based on his sketchy information, the Customs intelligence chief came to this conclusion: "Israelis have been caught 'red-handed' supplying Iran with war material, even though they tried to hide the operation by using aircraft owned by a Nigerian airline, based in Brussels and registered in the United States." In fact, of course, the secret sale of arms to Iran was a White House operation with Israeli cooperation.

Customs had no way of knowing it, but its puzzling intelligence information involved the U.S.-approved Israeli shipment of 408 TOW anti-tank missiles to Iran on Sept. 14, 1985, as part of an arms-for-hostages deal. The same day, Rev. Benjamin Weir was released after 16 months' captivity in Lebanon.

Customs intelligence analysts were able to provide more details on the mystery flight in a memo to Commissioner William Von Raab written on Oct. 30, 1985. The U.S.-registered DC-8 had "departed Tabriz, Iran, with a crew of three" on Sept. 16, the memo noted, adding: "The plane disappeared over Turkish air space, then arrived at Tel Aviv Ben Gurion Airport for an 'emergency landing (due to an equipment malfunction.)' The plane remained in Tel Aviv for about 48 hours."

The memo said the incident first broke when "Turkish authorities broadcast information concerning the DC-8, its origin and landing in Israel." The memo added that the information "probably was made public by the Turkish government as officials were displeased by the failure of the DC-8's owners to pay the overflight fees."

Noting that despite the Turks' disclosure, "U.S. press coverage was minimal," the Customs analyst suggested: "The lack of press coverage may possibly be attributed to pressure by the State Department. Officials... have advised the Federal Aviation Administration and Customs personnel to 'forget the whole incident.'" Then, in a remarkably prescient observation, the analyst added: "It appears the State Department may have been suppressing this information in order to keep a controversial incident from causing the U.S. and Israeli governments major embarrassment."

Finally, the memo stated, "a check with CIA officials on U.S. involvement was negative." Customs' dangerously suspicious intelligence analysts were lied to.

In fact, Commissioner Von Raab was never let in on the secret operation his intelligence people had almost figured out. On July 11, 1986, Dale van Atta told Von Raab the White House was smuggling arms to Iran. Von Raab replied that Van Atta's information was wrong.

Dan Rowan of 'Laugh-In' dies at 65

ENGLEWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Dan Rowan, who as the "square, indignant" straight man to daffy Dick Martin on the '60s show "Laugh-In" kept his head while those around him lost theirs in a tumult of psychedelic shock, is dead at 65.

The mustachioed comedian died of cancer Tuesday at his home in Manassas Key. "Dan was the best straight man — but I don't think he appreciated that until later in our careers," Martin said of his partner of 35 years. "We stayed close. I talked to him last week, fortunately."

Their Emmy-winning "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In" was an overnight sensation that brought stardom to Goldie Hawn, Lily Tomlin and Arte Johnson, and gave America the catch phrases "Sock it to me" and "Here come the judges."

"There's never been anything on television like it," Rowan said on the eve of "Laugh-In's" debut. "Martin played the vague, inept lecher. Rowan was the straight man."

In the authority, settled, steady, sober, reasonable, square, indignant at the life he leads," Rowan said.

Their routines were dialogues that built to uproarious climaxes, usually based on Martin's dim-witted misunderstanding of what Rowan was trying to explain.

Survivors include his wife, Joanna; a daughter and a son.

Arthur D. Cashman Sr., of West Hartford, formerly of Hartford, died Monday at the University of Connecticut Health Center in Farmington. He was the husband of the late Grace (Mayette) Cashman and father of Arthur Cashman Jr. of Andover and Alan Cashman of Manchester.

Besides his sons, he is survived by another son, Gilbert Cashman of Plattsburg, N.Y.; three daughters, Nancy Niedzwiedzki of Farmington, Carol Axwiler of Gloucester and Janet Pichette of Westport, Mass.; two brothers, Frank Cashman in Florida and Fred Cashman of Point Pleasant Beach, N.J.; two sisters, Mary Hemschoot and Edna Stikeleather, both in Florida; 17 grandchildren; a great-grandchild; and several nieces and nephews.

A memorial mass will be held Saturday at 9:30 a.m. in St. Peter Claver Church, 47 Pleasant St., West Hartford. Cremation will take place in Cedar Hill Cemetery, Hartford. There are no calling hours. Farley-Sullivan Funeral Home, 96 Webster St., Hartford, has charge of arrangements.

Burial will follow in Linwood Cemetery, Colchester. Calling hours are today from 7 to 9 p.m. Memorial donations may be made to the American Heart Fund.

Robert A. Stavnitsky Robert A. Stavnitsky, 58, of 100 Gardner St., died Tuesday at his home after a long illness. He was the husband of Marilyn (Johnson) Stavnitsky.

He was born in Manchester, Feb. 23, 1929, and was a lifelong resident. Before retiring in 1981 because of ill health, he was employed as an automobile salesman for Carter Chevrolet of Manchester. He was a member of the Emanuel Lutheran Church of Manchester.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a daughter and son-in-law, Kathleen and Mark Drummond of North Haven; a daughter and son-in-law, Nancy and Richard Austin of East Windsor; a brother, Milton Stavnitsky of Manchester; three sisters, Dorothea E. Stavnitsky and Mrs. Henry (Grace) Agnew, both of Manchester, and Mrs. Harold (Carolyn) Sweeney of Indiana, Pa.; and four grandchildren. A private funeral will be held at the Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St., with burial in East Cemetery. A public memorial service is scheduled Tuesday at 4 p.m. at Emmanuel Lutheran Church on Church Street.

Memorial donations may be made to Medical Oncology, Yale School of Medicine, 333 Cedar St., New Haven 06510.

Karl M. VonBerg Karl M. VonBerg, 18, of East Hartford, died Monday at Hartford Hospital. He was the son of James B. VonBerg of Coventry and Jacqueline A. Needham of Bristol.

Besides his parents, he is survived by a brother, Richard J. VonBerg of East Hartford; a sister, Amy E. VonBerg of East Hartford; his maternal grandmother, Jeanette Smith of Battle Creek, Mich.; and his paternal grandmother, Martha VonBerg of Quincy, Mass.

The funeral is Friday with a mass of Christian burial at 11 a.m. in St. Mary's Church, East Hartford. Burial will be in Hillside Cemetery, East Hartford. Calling hours are Thursday from 3 to 5 and 7 to 9 p.m. at the Callahan Funeral Home, 1002 Main St., East Hartford.

Panel votes 4-2 for commission fair-rent proponents. Bettye Kramer, a homeowner on the committee, said that there is a need for a fair-rent commission to handle some tenant complaints. She agreed with Strano, however, that the apathy of many tenants and landlords almost made the question a non-issue.

Florentino, who owns rental property in town, said that other methods of dealing with tenant complaints would be less effective than a fair-rent panel. He said it would be more costly to hire an ombudsman to the town's zoning and health departments, as Bell-ore had suggested. Florentino said the majority of Manchester landlords would not be affected by a commission because they deal fairly with their tenants.

Rich, one of the landlords who argued against a fair-rent panel, said before committee members voted that he believed fair-rent panels had led to reduced property values in the towns where they had been established. He said he had sold his properties in these towns because of concern about dropping values.

"Based on my ownership and dealings with property throughout New England, it is my consensus that fair rent or rent control does not do anybody any good," he said.

Reale said tenants speaking at last month's hearing had been concerned about apartment conditions and not about rent. He said that reflected on the work of the town's Health Department and zoning officials.

"If you recommend to the Board of Directors a fair-rent commission, you haven't heard what the tenants have said," he said.

Proponents pleased, landlords critical mission, on the other hand, praised the study's panel's decision. Robert Faucher, the chairman of the town's Human Relations Commission, said, "I know damn well the Board of Directors aren't going to do a damn thing, but I want to commend the members of this committee, both those who voted for and against it."

The Rev. Robert W. "Kaiser" Hershberger said this morning he wasn't surprised by the decision, noting it was dictated by a hearing last month in which tenants spoke on the need for a commission.

Robin Tracey, another fair-rent advocate, said a commission would mean more dignity for tenants.

on his Wetherell Street apartment went up earlier this year, was not optimistic that the Board of Directors will act on the recommendation.

"They're going to try to stall it until after the election, that's what I would say," he said.

Tracey said that even if the directors don't vote on the recommendation, candidates for the board should take a stand on one way or the other.

FOCUS/Food

Exciting salads offer a sound balance of nutrients and an appealing variety of texture and flavor. Whether it's potato salad or a tomato-bulgur toss, salads can sprout culinary creativity. Quick to prepare, main dish salads add something special to any menu. There's nothing like a homemade salad for taste ... and economy! Whole-grain salads, for example, offer fiber, complex carbohydrates and protein. And now — with microwave ovens in more than half of America's kitchens — they are easy to prepare. Whether barley, bulgur, orzo or rice, the best salads use the best ingredients. Flavors should blend delicately and the components should be moist, yet firm. Island Barley Salad combines bay scallops and shrimp with pearl barley. Carrots and celery are added with corn and broccoli. Pearl barley is partially hulled barley with some — but not all — of the bran removed. Spicy Bulgur and Tofu Salad features the mildly nutty taste of bulgur with zucchini and green onions. Tofu complements the textures and flavors, adding low-calorie, low-fat protein. Bulgur (also known as cracked wheat) is available in fine, medium or coarse grades. Oriental Black Bean and Orzo Salad is a well-seasoned dish that combines orzo pasta, black beans with hot pepper sauce, and grated fresh ginger. Snow peas and red and yellow pepper strips provide appealing and nutritious color. Orzo is often called "Italian barley" because of its small, pearl-like appearance.

Island Barley Salad

- 1 can (14 1/2 ounces) clear ready-to-serve chicken broth
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 small clove garlic, minced
4 ounces medium shrimp, shelled and deveined
4 ounces bay scallops

1/2 teaspoon curry powder
1/8 teaspoon grated lime peel
1 whole chicken breast (about 1/2 pound), split, skinned and boned
3/4 cup regular rice, uncooked
1/2 cup frozen peas, thawed
1/4 cup toasted pecan pieces*
Pecan halves for garnish (6 to 10, your option)

Oriental Black Bean And Orzo Salad

- 1 can (14 1/2 ounces) clear ready-to-serve chicken broth
2 tablespoons salad oil
2 tablespoons rice wine vinegar
1/4 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
1/8 teaspoon sesame oil
3/4 cup orzo (rice-shaped pasta)
1 cup cooked black beans
1/2 cup red or yellow peppers, cut in thin 1-inch-long strips
1/4 cup snow peas diagonally cut in half
2 tablespoons chopped onion

Chicken-Chutney Rice Salad

- 1 can (14 1/2 ounces) clear ready-to-serve chicken broth
1/3 cup chutney
1 tablespoon mayonnaise
1/2 teaspoon curry powder
1/8 teaspoon grated lime peel
1 whole chicken breast (about 1/2 pound), split, skinned and boned
3/4 cup regular rice, uncooked
1/2 cup frozen peas, thawed
1/4 cup toasted pecan pieces*
Pecan halves for garnish (6 to 10, your option)

Prepare dressing: In small bowl, stir 1/4 cup of the broth, chutney, mayonnaise, curry powder and lime peel. Set aside.

Place chicken in a 3-quart Corning Ware casserole, cover and microwave on HIGH 4 minutes or until chicken is fork-tender; rearrange chicken once during cooking. Remove chicken from casserole and set aside to cool.

In the casserole, combine remaining broth and rice. Cover and microwave on HIGH 4 minutes or until boiling. Stir and cook 10 more minutes on MEDIUM. Stir in peas, cover and let stand 5 minutes or until liquid is absorbed.

Meanwhile, cut chicken into bite size pieces. Add chicken and dressing to rice mixture and toss to well. Cover and refrigerate at least 4 hours. Before serving, stir in the toasted pecan pieces; garnish attractively with pecan halves.

Makes 4 cups or 6 servings.

Grilled blackened fish

- 4 fresh or frozen catfish, cod, pollock, pompano or haddock fillets (1 pound)
- 1/2 teaspoon onion powder
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground red pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon dried basil, crushed
- 1/2 teaspoon ground white pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon dried thyme, crushed
- 1/2 teaspoon black pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon ground sage
- 1/2 cup margarine or butter, melted

Thaw fish. If frozen, in a small mixing bowl combine onion powder, garlic salt, red pepper, basil, white pepper, thyme, black pepper and sage. Brush both sides of fish with melted margarine; coat with seasonings.

If using a charcoal grill, remove grill rack and place an unlined 12-inch cast-iron skillet directly on hot coals. If using a gas grill, turn to high and place skillet on the grill rack.

Preheat the skillet 5 minutes or until a drop of water sizzles. Add coated fillets to skillet. Carefully drizzle about 2 teaspoons of melted margarine over the fish. Grill fish 2 1/2 to 3 minutes or until blackened. Turn fish and drizzle with 2 teaspoons of the melted margarine. Grill 2 1/2 to 3 minutes more until blackened and fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Transfer to serving plates. Drizzle with any remaining melted margarine. Makes 4 servings.

Pasta & mozzarella salad

- 8 ounces corkscrew macaroni
- 10 ounces fresh spinach, torn
- 8 ounces mozzarella cheese, cubed
- 8 ounces thinly sliced mild pepper ham or fully cooked ham, chopped
- 1/2-cup onion sliced green chili peppers, drained
- 1/2-cup Parmesan dressing
- Grated Parmesan cheese

Cook macaroni according to package directions. Drain. Toss macaroni with dressing; add spinach, mozzarella, ham and chili peppers. Cover and chill. At serving time, top each serving with 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan. Makes 8 to 9 servings.

Parmesan Dressing: Place 1 egg in blender container. Cover; blend 5 seconds. With blender running, slowly add 1 cup salad oil until thick. Add 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese, 1/4 cup white wine vinegar, 1/4 to 1 teaspoon pepper, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon ground cloves and 1 to 2 cloves garlic, minced. Blend until smooth.

Greens & berry vinaigrette

- 1 cup fresh or frozen blueberries, thawed
- 1/2 cup white wine vinegar
- 3 to 4 teaspoons sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1 tablespoon finely snipped fresh basil or 1 teaspoon dried basil, crushed
- 1/2 cup salad oil
- 4 cups torn mixed greens
- 1 apple, cored and sliced
- 1/2 cup sliced fresh mushrooms

In a blender container or food processor bowl combine blueberries, vinegar, sugar, salt and pepper; cover and blend about 30 seconds or until blueberries are pureed. Sieve mixture; discard skins. Add basil to blueberry mixture. Transfer to a screw-top jar; add oil. Cover and shake well. Chill. Shake again just before serving.

To serve, arrange greens in a large salad bowl. Top with apple slices and mushrooms. Drizzle 1/2 cup of the vinaigrette over each. Store remaining dressing in refrigerator. Makes 4 servings.

Dilly summer squash

- 1 pound zucchini or yellow crookneck squash
- 2 tablespoons margarine or butter
- 1 tablespoon snipped parsley
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon dried dillweed
- Dash pepper

Slice unpeeled squash to make 3 cups. In a medium skillet melt margarine. Add squash; sprinkle with parsley, salt, dillweed and pepper. Cover and cook over medium-low heat 5 to 10 minutes or till tender, stirring frequently. Makes 3 or 4 servings.

Peach macaroon cups

- 8-ounce package cream cheese, softened
- 1/3 cup sifted powdered sugar
- 1/2 cup dairy sour cream
- 1 to 2 tablespoons milk
- 1/2 teaspoon almond extract
- 8 sheets frozen phyllo dough (18-by-14-inch rectangles), thawed
- 1/2 cup margarine or butter, melted
- 1 cup finely crumbled soft macaroons (about 8 cookies)
- 1 or 2 peaches, sliced

For filling, in a small mixer bowl beat cream cheese, sugar, sour cream, milk and extract with an electric mixer on low speed until smooth. Cover and chill.

Meanwhile, brush 1 sheet of phyllo dough with some melted margarine; sprinkle with about 3 tablespoons crumbled macaroons. Repeat layering 4 more times, brushing each sheet of phyllo with margarine and sprinkling with crumbs. Top with the last sheet of phyllo dough; brush with remaining margarine. Cut phyllo stack lengthwise into 3 strips; cut strips crosswise into 4 squares. Press squares into 12-greased muffin cups. Bake in a 350-degree oven 12 to 15 minutes or until golden. Remove to wire rack; cool completely.

Just before serving, spoon a rounded tablespoon of filling into each cup. Top with peach slices. Makes 12 servings.

Nutrition information per serving: 109 cal., 3 g. pro., 15 g. carb., 14 g. fat, 32 mg. chol., 163 mg. sodium.

Festive dinner begins holy days

By Anita M. Caldwell
Herald Reporter

When 3-year-old Diana Brodie came home from nursery school at Temple Beth Shalom one day, she said to her mother, "Guess what, mommy, do you know what we say after every prayer? Lo mein."

An honest mistake for a youngster, considering the Hebrew pronunciation for Amen is Ah-men, and Bea Brodie, Diana's mother, admits the family frequents Chinese restaurants.

Diana soon learned the proper closing to her prayers. Since then, the 7-year-old and her 18-year-old brother, Isaac, have participated in many Jewish services.

Bea and Gordon Brodie of Manchester are getting ready for the Jewish high holy and autumn night of Rosh Hashana, the Jewish New Year, begins tonight with a festive dinner.

At the Brodie house, the Rosh Hashana meal begins with chicken soup with rice, noodles or matzah balls made from matzo meal. The main entree consists of roast turkey, roast chicken or brisket of beef, with sweet accompaniments, usually apples, prunes or honey.

A potato dish, also is served. A prayer service welcoming the holidays is celebrated with wine and a candle-lighting ceremony as well as a prayer over the challah bread.

The 10 days between Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur, the culmination of the holidays, is "a time to contemplate the years past and the year to come."

On the last day, Yom Kippur, it is traditional to fast. "The significance of fasting," Brodie said, "is atonement and to think about issues facing you over the year without the distraction of eating."

Brodie prepares the meal used for breaking the fast ahead of time. "I don't do any cooking that day," she said. "You really can't. All of this is prepared in advance."

The meal at the conclusion of Yom Kippur is celebratory with wine and less one. A traditional dinner for the Brodies is bagels, lox, white fish, noodle kugel, sour cream, cottage cheese, herring, nut and potato, and several desserts.

"And a big pot of coffee and tea—it's a wonderful time to visit with friends and family," she said. "You really can't miss out."

Topping: Melt margarine and add 1/2 cup crushed corn flakes. Mix well and cover top of kugel. Bake 1 to 1 1/4 hours at 350 degrees.

Rugelach
1/2 pound butter at room temperature
1 cup sour cream
Sugar and cinnamon for sprinkling
2 1/2 cups flour
Pinch baking powder

Combine all ingredients and mix by hand. Cover the bowl and refrigerate overnight. Divide into four sections. Roll out each section one at a time on a floured surface. Sprinkle with the sugar and cinnamon mixture and cut into pie-shaped wedges. Roll up the wedges, beginning at the wide end. Mix one egg yolk with water, and brush top of each crescent and then dip in sugar-cinnamon mixture. Place on greased or oiled cookie sheet and bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes.

Variation: Substitute sugar and unsweetened baking cocoa for the sugar-cinnamon mixture.

Apple cake
5 medium apples
4 teaspoons sugar
2 teaspoons cinnamon
4 eggs
1 1/2 cups sugar
1 cup and 1 tablespoon oil
3 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup orange juice
1 teaspoon vanilla

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease and flour 8-inch tube pan. Peel, core, quarter and slice the apples. In a separate bowl, mix 4 teaspoons sugar and 2 teaspoons cinnamon.

Beat eggs, then beat in sugar and oil for the batter. Stir in flour and baking powder and salt, then add to the beaten eggs alternately with the orange juice. Beat in vanilla.

Four one-quarter of the batter into the tube pan and arrange one-third of the sliced apples on top. Sprinkle with one-third of the sugar and cinnamon mixture. Add another quarter of the batter spread over the apples. Add half of the remaining cinnamon mixture. Layer over with half of the apples and half of the dough. Repeat with layers of apples, cinnamon and dough with the last of the dough. Bake for one hour at 350 degrees.

MR. AND MRS. CATALDI ... married Sept. 6, 1937

Cataldis mark 50th anniversary

A surprise 50th wedding anniversary party for Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cataldi of 28 McKinley St. took place Sept. 13 at Jesters Court. The party was given by their daughter, Mrs. Kenneth L. Burnett; their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cataldi Jr., and the couple's grandchildren.

The Cataldis were married on Sept. 6, 1937, in Lowell, Mass. More than 111 guests attended the celebration, including relatives from Lowell, Mass., New Hampshire, and the couple's two sons.

The couple toasted with the same glasses they used 50 years ago. The dancing was provided by the Duple band, and songs were performed by Ed Pavlack.

Advice

Does mother know best on matters of marriage?

DEAR ABBY: As a 78-year-old male, I protest your advising that 22-year-old girl to marry Sammy against her mother's wishes. Who else is more interested in the girl's future happiness than her own mother?

And who is better qualified to advise in this matter? Sammy has informed us that it is happiness with another man. She should consider the risks involved, and let her head rule her heart this time.

CHARLES J. BURCH, VERO BEACH, FLA.

DEAR CHARLES: What risks? The man she loves with all her heart happens to be short, poor and Jewish. The girl says he's a good person from a dirt-poor family, and he's working two jobs to put himself through college. What risks?

I don't question the mother's interest in her daughter's future happiness, but she is far from qualified to advise her in the choice of a husband if she "hates" a man because he's poor, short and Jewish. It appears that Sammy is the one taking the risk. He'll have a mother-in-law who's bigoted, snobbish and ignorant.

DEAR ABBY: We are losing our minds, or has "Eileen," our 39-year-old daughter, lost hers? I have never married, and has lived at home for 21 years. She has just grandchild.

'Comfortable' Gibson swats down Red Sox

By Dove O'Hara
The Associated Press

BOSTON — Veteran slugger Kirk Gibson "felt comfortable" at bat again, spelling good news for the Detroit Tigers.

"You have to feel comfortable at the plate and I'm finally comfortable again," Gibson said Tuesday night after leading the Tigers to an 8-5 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Gibson had four hits in a row, including a triple and two doubles, scored three runs and drove in one.

"I suspect that most of them the way it should be," he said.

The Tigers struck for four runs in League East race.

"This whole year I haven't been swinging the bat well," said Gibson, who has been plagued by injuries since spring training. "My whole approach has been to sacrifice myself to move the runner over for Alan (Trammell). Tonight I felt good. I was swinging well."

"This was a big one for us, especially after seeing Toronto winning (8-4) in Baltimore," Evans said. "But this is what you play for. It looks like it's going to come down to the way the clubs do against each other, and I guess that's the way it should be."

The Tigers struck for four runs in the first three innings against rookie Bob Woodward, 1-1, and Walt Terrell survived home runs by Willie Hernandez and newcomer Dickie Noles before Dwight Gooden ended the game by grounding back to the mound with the bases loaded.

"I suspect that most of them the rest of the way will be like this," Detroit manager Sparky Anderson said after sweating out the ninth.

"This wasn't an easy victory," Gibson said. "It wasn't like to win that. But we hung in there to win it."

"If we had lost three games here, it still wouldn't have mattered. My feeling is that it's all going to come down to the last three games of the year (with Toronto), no matter what."

Gibson said the Tigers were "fortunate to be in the race," then added:

"I don't think we're going to lose it. I think it's in the cards who is going to win it."

The Detroit victory dimmed accomplishments by Burks and Boggs. Burks became the first Boston rookie to hit 20 homers and steal 20 bases. He has 25 homers and 19 steals.

The three others who are in the record books are Charlie Gehringer of the Tigers, 1933-37, and Chuck Klein of the Philadelphia Phillies and Al Simmons of the Philadelphia Athletics, both 1923-33. Wee Willie Keeler had 200 hits for eight consecutive years, starting in 1884.

The Tigers, who lead the season series with Boston 11-1, send right-hander Doyle Alexander, 7-4, to the mound tonight. Alexander is due to be opposed by southpaw Bruce Hurst, 15-11.

"Enfield played a real good game," Indian Coach Bill McCarthy said. "We didn't take advantage of some of the nice chances that we had."

Enfield, which had only two shots on goal in the first half, scored on one at the 25-minute mark. An unmarked midfielder, Pat Stinson, banged one home from 20 yards for the 1-0 lead.

"We controlled the first half," McCarthy said. "We worked the ball pretty well."

Twelve minutes into the second half, Enfield scored its final goal off a direct kick. Eric Bossal got the ball back of the net with a 20-yarder.

"I must give them (Enfield) credit," McCarthy said. "They did what they do best, get the ball down to their forwards."

Mo Moriarty and Glen Jensen had the Indians' best chances of the match. Others playing well for Manchester were Joe LaRosa, Jonas McCray, Craig Smith, and Hank Stephenson. Manchester outshot Enfield, 19-11.

Twins make good use of 'Homerdom' in victory

By Ken Rappoport
The Associated Press

Whether going long or short, the Minnesota Twins made good use of their "Homerdom" to beat the Texas Rangers.

"You can't take anything for granted in this part of the season," Minnesota's Gary Gaetti after the Twins scored runs in vintage "Domeball" style to beat the Rangers 6-4 Tuesday night and cut their deficit to one game from winning the American League West to eight games.

The Twins produced three home runs and also got an insurance run when the Ranger infielders lost a pop fly in the light of the dome's white-gray roof something that is a common occurrence at the Metrodome.

The Twins also got outstanding relief pitching to close out the Rangers.

"We gave them three runs (on errors) and we managed to come out on top because of some good pitching," Twins Manager Tom Kelly said. "We were a little sloppy in the field, but our pitching picked us up tonight."

The second-place Oakland Athletics remained in the lead as the hind the Twins with a 10-2 rout of the Cleveland Indians.

In the AL East, the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Baltimore Orioles 8-4 to remain a half-game in front of the Detroit Tigers, 8-5 winners over the Boston Red Sox.

Elsewhere, California beat Chicago 5-3, Kansas City defeated Seattle 4-3 in 10 innings, and Milwaukee beat New York 7-2 in the first game of a doubleheader before the Yankees won the nightcap 10-8.

Kirby Puckett, Greg Gagne and Tom Brunanmy hit home runs for Minnesota. Gaetti's RBI single in the third inning broke a 3-3 tie and Gaetti was later involved in a freak run for the Twins that gave them some insurance. Gaetti scored all the way from first with two outs after Tom Brunanmy's high pop fly behind second fell between Texas and shortstop Scott Fletcher and second baseman Jerry Browne, both of whom apparently lost the ball.

Jeff Reardon, the fourth Twins pitcher, gained his 29th save.

"He's not Superman," Kelly said of Reardon. "He's had his good days and his bad days. Fortunately, he's had more good than bad for us."

Angels Dodgers on Aug. 29, Blue Jays 8, Orioles 4

George Bell drove in the winning run for the second consecutive game, singling in the eighth inning to touch off a five-run rally, as Toronto defeated Baltimore.

Bell's blooper to right came off reliever Mark Williamson and increased his major league-leading RBI total to 108. The Orioles used five pitchers in the inning and Juan Beniquez, who earlier had a three-run homer, contributed a run-scoring double.

Toronto improved its season record against the Orioles to 11-1. The Orioles have four of 22 games lost 4-7 against the five teams ahead of them in the AL East.

Rookie Jeff Ballard, 2-7, took the loss, while David Wells, 4-3, who pitched the final 3-13 innings, was the winner.

Angels 5, White Sox 3

Bill Buckner's two-run pinch hit with two outs in the eighth inning paced California over Chicago. With the victory, the defending AL West champions started off elimination from the pennant.

Mike Witt, 16-12, went eight innings to earn his first victory since Aug. 17, with relief help from DeWayne Bruce, who picked up his 17th save.

Royals 4, Mariners 3

Kevin Seitzer's RBI double with three runs in the 10th inning led Kansas City over Seattle. Seitzer snuck a personal 13-game home run streak and Mark Davis, Mark McGwire and Jose Canseco each had three of Oakland's 10 hits as the Athletics routed Cleveland.

In gaining their fourth victory in five games, the Athletics scored seven runs in the seventh inning, featuring a solo home run by Terry Steinbach and Carney Lansford's three-run homer, to extend a 2-1 lead to 9-1.

East toppled

HEBRON — The East Catholic High boys' soccer team ran into a hot RHAM High squad and the visiting Eagles were shut out 6-0 Tuesday afternoon. East is 0-2 while RHAM remains perfect 3-0.

The Eagles' next game is a make-up contest Thursday at South Windsor High School at 3:30 p.m.

"RHAM is a very opportunistic team and have two excellent skilled players (Nielsen and Burger) that will take advantage of your mental and physical mistakes," East Coach Tom Mallin said. "We as a team must cut down on those mistakes and create some for

H.S. Roundup

Enfield — One problem that the Manchester High boys' soccer team has encountered thus far in the season is a vital one: scoring.

The Indians, who are scoreless through three games, came up on the short end of a 2-0 decision to Enfield High Tuesday night in C.C. East Division action. Manchester is 0-2-1 while Enfield is 1-1-1. The Indians are back in action Friday at 3:30 p.m. at Memorial Field against Hartford Public.

"Enfield played a real good game," Indian Coach Bill McCarthy said. "We didn't take advantage of some of the nice chances that we had."

Coventry downed

ROCKY HILL — It was a down season for Rocky Hill High School. Any year in which the Terriers don't win the Charter Oak Conference title is a down season for Coach John McVicar's club and that's what happened in 1987.

The Terriers gave every indication they are back with a 2-0 win over defending COC champ Coventry High, 2-0, Tuesday in non-conference play. The clubs met again in six days in Coventry that will count toward the COC crown.

"It may be one of his better clubs," Steve Ambrogi said. "They did what they do best, get the ball down to their forwards."

Mo Moriarty and Glen Jensen had the Indians' best chances of the match. Others playing well for Manchester were Joe LaRosa, Jonas McCray, Craig Smith, and Hank Stephenson. Manchester outshot Enfield, 19-11.

Bolton triumphs

CHAPLIN — Bolton High girls' soccer team matched its win total of a year ago Tuesday with a 1-0 shutout of host Parish Hill in non-conference action.

Midfielder Meg Malyia converted a corner kick by Jen Manegia at the 8-minute mark of the first half for the game's lone score. Bolton is now 2-0, matching last year's figure when the Bulldogs went 2-1-4. The loss drops Parish Hill to 0-2.

Bolton outshot Parish Hill, 21-9. Manegia at midfield along with Lauren Clark and Leah Dinocenzo on defense had strong outings for Bolton. "She (Manegia) started off striker but moved to center half," Coach Tom Mallin said. "We kept the ball under control," Bolton Coach Mike Landolph said.

Coventry victorious

COVENTRY — It was an early season test for the Coventry High girls' soccer team and the Patriots came out of it in flying colors with a 2-1 win over defending state Class S co-champion Farmington High Tuesday.

"I knew we were a good team and this shows we can play outside our league," said Coventry first-year Coach Chris D'Ambrosio. "This could springboard us for the rest of the season."

Senior Leslie Daney accounted for both goals for the Patriots, giving her five for the season and 162 for her career. She scored at 24:55 and 34:40 of the first half, her second goal assisted by Monica Houston.

"The first half was fairly equal but we obviously got the best of it," D'Ambrosio said.

Scoring: — Malyia 1, 2; 20:07 of the second half with Heather Werner scoring on a breakaway. The visitors had the upper hand in the second half. "I think they were in better shape," D'Ambrosio admitted. "The last 30 minutes were just fighting for our lives."

Daney, Hodina and defender Katarina Gitis, who shadowed the dangerous Werner, played well for Coventry. The Patriots' begin Charter Oak Conference play Tuesday at Portland High School, 2-0-2.

Coventry: 2-0-2
Farmington: 0-1-1
Scoring: — Daney 2, — Heather Werner 1, — Monica Houston 1, — Anne Werfel 1, — Judy Jendett 2.

Herzogog's strange move pays off for Cardinals

By Ronald Blum
The Associated Press

Putting pitchers in the outfield seems to be a requirement for winning the National League East.

Last season, Davey Johnson alternated Jesse Orosco and Roger McDowell between the mound and the outfield to help the Mets win a 14-inning game in Cincinnati.

The rare move happened again when Whitley Herzog alternated Todd Worrell and Ken Dayley Tuesday night as the St. Louis Cardinals hung on for a 3-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies, 11-9.

Herzog had been a good outfielder. Herzog said, "He hangs the ball every day."

After Dayley struck out Hayes, Worrell retired to the mound, getting Rick Schu to ground out to third and Darren Daulton to line out.

In other NL games Tuesday, Chicago beat New York 4-3. Los Angeles beat San Francisco 4-3. Cincinnati beat San Diego 5-3. Montreal beat Pittsburgh 4-3 and Atlanta beat Houston 6-2.

Last season, McDowell and Orosco alternated several times between the mound and the outfield as the Mets beat the Cincinnati Reds 6-3. It was the first time in their history the Mets put a pitcher in the outfield.

It was not unprecedented, though, for St. Louis. Herzog did it on June 27 of Todd Worrell to start the ninth, pulling Philadelphia within a run.

Herzog then moved Worrell into right field and brought in Ken Dayley, a left-hander, to pitch to "Todd's been a good outfielder," Herzog said. "He hangs the ball

Castoffs entering NFL camps

NEW YORK — When the NFL sent out a call for players, they answered. They came from Canada and arena football and the near-forgotten United States Football League. They were castoffs and cuts, earning minimum wage as cab drivers or night watchmen. Semi-pro players took up the call, and a few high school players applied. They answered even though they faced the taunts of "casts." They came to play football in the NFL.

"It's a special kind of strike," said John Hynes, once cut and now re-signed by the Los Angeles Raiders. "It's not like a blue collar job where you're taking food off someone's table."

"If they've got to eat, they can sell their Porches."

With the NFL strike in its second day, and Hynes and perhaps 1,000 other non-union players were to begin practice today for the league's second season. If a settlement cannot be reached in time for this weekend's games, NFL owners plan to resume their regular schedule on Oct. 4 with any players they can find.

STORRS — The University of Connecticut men's soccer team was ranked No. 16 in the latest ISAA weekly top 20 poll. UConn, 5-2-1, had 18 points in the voting.

UConn and Harvard, 2-0 and the No. 8 ranked team, collide today at 3 p.m. at the Connecticut Soccer Stadium in a battle between the top two teams in New England. Harvard holds the No. 1 seedling in the region.

Whalers cut roster

HARTFORD (AP) — The Hartford Whalers have cut 14 players to reduce the roster to 45 players.

The National Hockey League team said Tuesday night that George Beauchamp, defenseman Kevin Lovick and goaltender Ross McKay will return to the University of Saskatchewan.

The team reassigned left wing Ally Cook and defenseman Gary Stewart to Milwaukee in the International League.

Four players returned to Junior Hockey. They are defenseman Brian Chapman, right wing Kelly Chase, defenseman Mark LaForge and Terry Yake. Chapman goes to the Belleville Bulls in the Ontario League. Chase will play for the Saginaw Blades of the Western Hockey League. LaForge will play for the Sudbury Wolves in the OHL and Yake will play for the Brandon Wheat Kings in the WHL.

Five other players cut but not reassigned went to the Belleville Bulls in the Ontario League. They are right wing George Perperidis, right wing Jeff Tracy and left wing Mickey Krampovich.

UConn and Yale out to end generosity

HARTFORD — While the University of Connecticut and Yale were generous to a fault last weekend on the gridiron, each will attempt to mend their ways when the college Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the Yale Bowl in the annual tussle.

The Huskies fell to Northeastern, 20-12, with a faulty kicking game and 121 yards in penalties contributing to the termination of Connecticut's six-game home winning streak. Yale, meanwhile, turned the ball over six times in its 17-7 season-opening loss to Brown in Ivy League play.

"There were some parallels between our game and Yale's in that both clubs beat themselves," said Husky Coach Tom Jackson. "Tuesday's pregame luncheon at Yale's."

This is the 38th meeting between the intrastate rivals with Yale holding a commanding 30-7 advantage. Connecticut, though, has won the last four in a row including last year's 17-12 verdict with Jackson a player.

UConn has been hit over 100 yards in penalties in splitting its first two games. "We hope to get things cleared up," Jackson said. "We have to play better defense. Our offense can't turn the ball over. And our kicking game has to become an ally, not an enemy."

PHILADELPHIA — Day 1 of the NFL strike found players and owners alike reluctant at best to follow their leaders. Day 1 finds the leaders ready to meet again in efforts to cut the walkout short.

"It depends on how far the process goes, what we accomplish and if the players and owners feel satisfied at the progress we've made. That decision will be made probably later in the week," Donlan and Ushaw met for 90 minutes Tuesday after Ushaw met privately with Rozelle in the commissioner's office.

Nearly all of the NFL's 1,585 players honored Ushaw's call to strike cleaned out their lockers and hoisted their picket signs and professed their solidarity.

As all 28 teams intensified preparations to continue the season with free agents, retirees and other prospects or near-prospects, there were just a few defections among players.

Two quarterbacks, Gary Hogeboom of the Colts and Marc Wilson of the Raiders, crossed the picket line Tuesday and two Pro Bowlers, Randy White of the Cowboys and Leonard Smith of the Cardinals were among those who did not join the strike in Washington. "We have a format set up where we have the owners in one room, the players in another room, Jack and I in the middle and we're going to try to hammer this thing out."

NFL seeks way to end strike

PHILADELPHIA — Day 1 of the NFL strike found players and owners alike reluctant at best to follow their leaders. Day 1 finds the leaders ready to meet again in efforts to cut the walkout short.

"It depends on how far the process goes, what we accomplish and if the players and owners feel satisfied at the progress we've made. That decision will be made probably later in the week," Donlan and Ushaw met for 90 minutes Tuesday after Ushaw met privately with Rozelle in the commissioner's office.

Nearly all of the NFL's 1,585 players honored Ushaw's call to strike cleaned out their lockers and hoisted their picket signs and professed their solidarity.

As all 28 teams intensified preparations to continue the season with free agents, retirees and other prospects or near-prospects, there were just a few defections among players.

Two quarterbacks, Gary Hogeboom of the Colts and Marc Wilson of the Raiders, crossed the picket line Tuesday and two Pro Bowlers, Randy White of the Cowboys and Leonard Smith of the Cardinals were among those who did not join the strike in Washington. "We have a format set up where we have the owners in one room, the players in another room, Jack and I in the middle and we're going to try to hammer this thing out."
