U.S. ships sweep gulf for mines

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — American warships and helicopters swept the central Persian Gulf today for mines planted by an Iranian ship, and there was a report that a research vessel sank after hitting a mine off the Saudi Arabian coast.

Beginning today, Product Show exhibitors will move booths into the 35,000-square-foot hangar that will house part of this year's 10th annual show.

morning, Spurgeon Stokes, left, Pratt & Whitney liaison, discusses the placement of signs with Anne Flint, president of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

Product Show prepares for crowds

By Nancy Conzelmann Herald Reporter EAST HARTFORD — In the calm before the storm, red-and-white curtains billowed in the breeze this morning coming into a 35,000-square-foot hangar at Bentschler Field, of Pratt & Whitney, the site of this year's Product Show.

For Anne Flint, president of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce and the show's coordinator, these past few days have been anything but calm.

Hartford and Manchester chambers of commerce and more than 150 volunteers. "The detail work is just amazing for it," Flint said. "There's a whole lot of guesswork."

SAT averages at MHS drop 10 points

By Andrew J. Davis Herald Reporter Average scores on the Scholastic Aptitude Test fell considerably in 1987 at Manchester High School, but it was a drop the school administration expected.

Ludes said the school administration expected the lower averages because results from the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test, taken a year before the SAT test, indicated that scores would be lower.

Senior U.S. naval officers have maintained for weeks the Iranians were sowing mines in international waters in the gulf, but they said the U.S. capture of the Iran Ajr provided the first proof. Iran denied the ship was planting mines.

Pollace give up their blackjacks

The teacher shortage doesn't just affect local schools. It has even been brought home to the Manchester Police Department.

Collapse of Biden's campaign is a 'shot in the arm' for Bork

By Laura King The Associated Press WASHINGTON (AP) — Some supporters of Supreme Court nominee Robert Bork reacted gleefully to the collapse of Sen. Joseph Biden's presidential bid.

Computers are 'in' at Bolton High

By Bruce Matzkin Herald Reporter

BOLTON — Bolton High School is moving into the Computer Age. The school has added 44 IBM personal computers.

The computers in the typing classroom were financed through a state Department of Education program. Tino Bertolini, a guidance counselor who works on grants for the school, said Bolton was eligible for this aid last year.

"The typewriters were very old — about 20 years old," said Pat Forner, a business teacher who is a typing and word-processing instructor.

Bertolini said $4,500 was spent on the typing computers. In addition, he purchased a Rob-Cad, a computer for drafting students.

FORKNER is pleased with the more modern typing classroom. "I'm enjoying it, and the classes have adapted very well. The students' motivation is much higher," she said.

Forner said she chose that system after looking into what software would best prepare students for the business world.

Connie Daly, a senior, works on one of Bolton High School's new computers.

school now has only one programming class. "But with our new computers we expect that to grow," said Bertolini.

According to Bertolini, the computers will be used to teach computer programming. The

"I expect the new lab to make the kids in my class more enthusiastic," said Bertolini. "They were

State pulls Escadrille's bakery license

The bakery license of the Lafayette Escadrille on West Middle Turnpike has been revoked by the state Department of Consumer Protection, a department official said today.

The revocation, effective Sept. 14, was made after the owner of the restaurant, C & P Corp. of 300 W. Middle Turnpike, admitted to 400 inspections uncovered during four inspections made this year and in 1986, said Joseph Lembo, a legal officer with the department of consumer protection.

A man who said he was the owner but refused to give his name said today that the restaurant is open for business. "We're still working on some of the violations, most of which were minor," he said. A bakery license is required for any baking activities, including the making of bread and pizza.

Lembo said the restaurant admitted to the violations during a hearing in March, but the license was not revoked until this month because of negotiations between the department and the restaurant owner.

stemming from the first arrest, but a second indictment may be needed for prosecutors in New York to pursue additional charges.

According to Bronco, cases in Rochester that can result in a sentence of more than one year must be presented to a grand jury before proceeding in Superior Court. The purpose of this, said Bronco, is to present evidence to a neutral body to determine if there is sufficient evidence to bring the case to trial. In Connecticut, a case can proceed in Superior Court with first being presented before a grand jury.

Manchester police have been holding a warrant for Vasquez's arrest since March, but Vasquez has sought extradition to Connecticut since he was taken into custody

A warrant that would allow the extradition to take place was signed by New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, but officials do not want to act on it until they have a chance to prosecute Vasquez on the drug charges.

Manchester police have said that their warrant will remain active no matter how long Vasquez remains in New York. Police have said that there is no time limit on when the warrant must be served in order for Vasquez to face the murder charges.

Connecticut In Brief

Expert helps city fight school guns

BRIDGEPORT — Solving the problem of guns in schools is going to take a combined effort from students, the community and the experts, says a consultant hired to help the city combat the issue.

"Our purpose is to work with the task force to investigate the issue," said Florin Parisky, a consultant with the Hartford firm of Parisky & Daniels. "If there was a magical solution, they'd have it solved by now. It's going to take the kids, the community and the experts."

Parisky was at the third meeting of the new Task Force on a Weapon-Free Environment for Youth on Wednesday. The group was formed by Mayor Thomas W. Bucell last spring after a rash of incidents in which students brought guns to school.

No plea deal in drug-money case

NEW HAVEN — Negotiations for a plea in federal court from a main defendant in a drug money laundering case did not produce any immediate results.

U.S. Attorney Stanley A. Twardy said Juan Guillermo Restrepo, of Medellín, Colombia, was expected to enter a plea before U.S. District Judge Jose Cabranes on Wednesday.

But three hours after the scheduled appearance, Twardy said the court hearing would not go forward. He would not elaborate.

An indictment charged Restrepo with one count each of racketeering and racketeering conspiracy, 33 counts of wrongful interstate travel, 16 counts of money laundering and one count of narcotics conspiracy.

OSHA chief blames understaffing

HARTFORD — The new chief of the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration in Connecticut said the lack of Spanish-speaking employees at the agency reflects general understaffing and that the power to hire more staff rests with OSHA's Washington headquarters.

"I could come up with a figure, but decisions about personnel are out of my hands," said John J. Stanton, who was named area director of the Hartford office on July 6.

On Tuesday Stanton met with about 25 members of the union-supported Connecticut Council on Occupational Safety and Health, or ConnecticutOSHA, who gathered to question him at the Greater Hartford Labor Council office. Stanton acknowledged that none of OSHA's 28 Connecticut employees speaks Spanish, the primary language of workers at state companies recently fined for violating health and safety rules.

Woman charged in Danbury arson

DANBURY — A 19-year-old homeless woman has been arrested and charged with setting a fire at a lumberyard last month that caused more than $3 million in damages, police report.

Loretta Hughes was charged with third-degree arson and was being held on $50,000 bond for a court appearance today, police said.

Police Detective Lt. James McNamara said more than one arrest is expected in connection with the Aug. 30 fire.

The three-alarm blaze razed the Danbury Building and Lumber Supply Co. and severely damaged the adjacent American Family Crafts. No one was injured in the fire.

Group pushes for new Route 7

NORWALK — A coalition of businessmen, labor representatives and municipal officials has decided to push for the construction of a new Route 7 despite objections by environmental groups.

Coalition member John Emery, chairman of Emery Air Freight Corp., said Wednesday that if the so-called "Super 7" highway is not built by 1995, his business will vacate its Wilton headquarters. Emery did not say where his company would move.

The 12-member corporate and municipal coalition, Citizens for a New Route 7 Now, announced Wednesday that it has filed a motion asking for legal intervenor status in hearings scheduled next month by the Connecticut Department of Environmental Protection in Hartford.

Carmel says 'no thanks, brother'

EAST HAVEN — Clint Eastwood just didn't make Bob Norman's day.

"The movie-star mayor of Carmel-by-the-Sea, Calif., and his staff gave Norman, mayor of East Haven, a 'No, thank you' to a suggestion that the towns become sister cities.

"I just thought it would be neat," said Norman. "Both towns are on the coast of the United States, and both have Republican mayors that had other careers in the entertainment-music field before they got into politics."

Norman, 52, spent 18 years as an anchorman and reporter for WTNH-TV in New Haven. Two years ago he was elected mayor of East Haven, a blue-collar town on Long Island Sound.

Valve failure shuts Millstone 3

WATERFORD — The Millstone 3 nuclear power plant shut down automatically after a valve failure caused a low water level in the steam generator, Northeast Utilities reported.

There was no release of radiation and no danger to the public or the environment after the shutdown Wednesday. NU spokesman Clifford Hill said.

Hill said the 1,150-megawatt pressure-water reactor unit should be back on line before the weekend.

After call, politician pays taxes

BRIDGEPORT — The city's development director and his wife, a city school principal, paid more than $4,500 in delinquent property taxes hours after a reporter inquired about the matter.

A check for $4,549.85 was received by the tax collector's office Friday afternoon. Collections Supervisor Salvatore Calderaro said Wednesday.

Earlier Friday, a Hartford Courant reporter had asked about overdue taxes owed by Charles B. Tisdale and Lettie S. Tisdale, principal of the McKinley Logan Elementary School.

Charles Tisdale, a mayoral candidate in 1981, 1985 and 1985, oversees the department of housing and plays a role in the city's purchase and sale of property.

Scores protest lack of access to buses

HARTFORD (AP) — State lawmakers are promising to do something about making buses in the state transit system more accessible to the handicapped.

Wednesday, scores of disabled Connecticut citizens, many of them in wheelchairs, staged a protest at the state Capitol.

"We will not be denied, we will ride!" they shouted. "We demand our civil rights. Our forefathers fought for our rights too."

"We are frustrated, we are tired, we want to see something happen," said Shelley Teed-Wargo, leader of the Citizens for Accessible Transportation.

They told members of the General Assembly's Transportation Committee that the state Department of Transportation has not shown a commitment to the handicapped that their rights are being denied. They said that of the state-run buses that are equipped with wheelchair lifts, many don't work.

Transportation Committee Chairman Howard T. Owens, D-Stamford, said that the state Department of Transportation has not shown a commitment to the handicapped that their rights are being denied. They said that of the state-run buses that are equipped with wheelchair lifts, many don't work.

Rep. Elinor F. Wilber, R-Fairfield, ranking Republican on the committee, who walks with the aid of crutches, said that in her years in the General Assembly, "the department has never really had a commitment to this. We have been over this ground hundreds of times."

The protesters also criticized DOT for its plan to implement a May 1988 federal mandate that at least 3 percent of the money spent on public transportation be spent making the system accessible to the handicapped.

CAT believes the mandate should be viewed as a minimum and that the state can afford to do much more.

No more cheap rent for state employees

HARTFORD (AP) — For years, a handful of state employees have lived on state property paying very low rent, in many cases less than $100 a month.

All that is about to change. The state Department of Administrative Services has completed appraisals of the homes and is moving to bring the rental rates closer to fair-market value and to tighten controls on who gets such housing.

"The increases are very dramatic," DAS Commissioner Stephen J. Negri said Wednesday evening.

The new rates will be phased in over 27 months in three steps, starting Jan. 1, Negri said. At the end of the phase-in period on Jan. 1, 1990, the rents will represent 70 percent of the fair-market value.

For example, he said, one state employee living on the grounds of Connecticut Valley Hospital in Middletown now pays $135.35 every two weeks, or about $271 a month. The new appraisal puts the fair-market value of a similar home on private property at $1,100 a month, Negri said.

On Jan. 1, the bi-weekly rate that home will go to $208.24. On Jan. 1, 1989, it will go to $281.13 and on Jan. 1, 1990, it will jump to $54.02, or about $778 a month.

Negri estimated there were 50 state employees, who are supervisors not covered by rent controls, who enjoy the housing benefits. There are another 765 living on state property who are covered by union agreements and who are not subject to the new plan. Their housing will be the subject of future bargaining, Negri said.

The commissioner said that in most cases, the state was paying 70 percent of fair-market value, rather than 100 percent, to recognize the fact that the employees are living in "non-traditional neighborhoods, on institutional grounds."

In the case of those living at the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment in New Haven and at the Connecticut Historical Commission in Hartford, the new rates will reflect 100 percent of fair-market value.

"I think there will be some concerns by our employees about the way we've applied the new rates," Negri said.

Nearly 200 handicapped people march to the state Capitol Wednesday to ask legislators to push for improvements in access to public transportation.

Cancer victim's plea brings help and hope

TORRINGTON (AP) — The wife of a destitute cancer patient says she entertained thoughts of suicide until her husband's call to the mayor's radio talk show brought the couple new hope.

Donations have poured in from as far away as Seattle, while local officials have cut through bureaucratic red tape to help the couple obtain public assistance since Angelo Ferrante placed the widely publicized call last week.

Before then "it was one defeat after another," Mrs. Ferrante said Wednesday, tears in her eyes. "Faith and hope really faded at times. We were going without groceries to pay our bills."

Her husband says the response has restored his faith in humanity.

"At one time I thought that Joe thought of Jack and the bell with the other guy," Ferrante said, sitting in the kitchen of the three-room apartment he shares with his wife, Magdalene.

"But there are people out there who think of somebody besides themselves."

Among those who came forward to help was a Boston lawyer, called Mayor Della Donne with a promise to provide Ferrante with $100 a month for the rest of his life. Two local businessmen gave the mayor a blank check to help pay Ferrante's $500 pharmacy debt.

A woman in nearby Windset sent a check for $50, along with a note recalling the kindness Ferrante showed her 20 years ago when she was down on her luck.

"It's time for me to return the good deed," wrote the woman, who asked to remain anonymous. "Do not use the enclosed check for medicine or doctor bills or any other bills. Do something wild. Take your wife out to dinner or buy her a new dress."

Meals started being delivered this week and the city's social services director is helping Ferrante apply for a federal program that helps pay for medical bills, including prescriptions and nursing care.

It's unclear how all the donations will affect Ferrante's eligibility for public assistance, the mayor said.

Ferrante worked for a caterer for 17 years before being stricken with prostate cancer five years ago. The cancer spread to his bones. He has been through four operations to

Homeland prime minister ousted

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The armed forces of Transkei today ousted the prime minister and placed Cabinet members under house arrest in the first military coup in one of South Africa's black homelands, state radio said.

The South African Broadcasting Corp. report said Prime Minister George Matanzima was not in Transkei at the time of the overthrow. No violence was reported, and the report didn't indicate where Matanzima was.

Transkei is one of four black homelands declared independent by the South African government. No other countries, however, recognize them as separate nations.

The South African government, which officially maintains that it has no control over Transkei's affairs, said it was "acquainted" with the events.

Emily loses punch after killing three

MIAMI — The governments of the Bahamas and the Turks and Caicos Islands lifted hurricane warnings today as Tropical Storm Emily weakened and headed out to sea after leaving three people dead in the Dominican Republic.

The forecast track of the storm does bring it fairly close to Bermuda. However, Bermuda is a very small target and it's far too early to tell if it will come anywhere near it, forecasters Miles Lawrence said today.

An Air Force reconnaissance plane this morning clocked the former hurricane's top sustained winds at 60 mph, Lawrence said. Emily was moving north at 15 mph and was expected to track to the northeast, into the Atlantic.

Satellite pictures of the 150-mile diameter storm this morning showed it reorganizing, which means it could strengthen, Lawrence said.

Contra aid faces little opposition

WASHINGTON — No major opposition is expected when the Senate next week takes up a stopgap spending measure that includes $3.5 billion in new "humanitarian" aid to the rebels fighting Nicaragua's leftist government.

The House on Wednesday approved the spending bill, which is backed by the Reagan administration. The vote was 270 to 138.

A leading Senate opponent of the contra rebels, Connecticut Democrat Christopher Dodd, said the additional aid is at odds with a five-nation peace agreement signed in Guatemala on Aug. 7, and is not needed because the contras still have spent money from the current year's $100 million allocation.

"But I'm not going to make a fight over it," Dodd said through a spokesman.

Nicaragua frees foreign prisoners

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — The Sandinista government freed 17 Central Americans who had been held in Nicaraguan prisons on charges that included helping the U.S.-supported contra rebels.

The government said the prisoner release was carried out Wednesday as part of its efforts to comply with the Central American peace plan signed last month by the region's five presidents.

The Nicaraguan National Assembly on Tuesday approved a presidential decree pardoning the Central American prisoners.

President Daniel Ortega had announced Sept. 13 that some foreign prisoners would be released as "a gesture of good will" toward the peace agreement.

Study triggers debate over exercise

BOSTON — A report today that military recruits who carry the sickle cell gene risk sudden death during extreme exertion has triggered debate over whether they should avoid other heavy exercise, including some school sports.

The study, based on the records of 3.1 million recruits, found that those with a common condition called sickle cell trait faced about 40 times the usual risk of dropping dead suddenly during basic training.

The military has eased some of the rigors of basic training because of the findings. The changes include making sure that recruits get enough to drink, become gradually conditioned for each kind of physical activity and are not pushed too hard during extreme heat or humidity.

Democrats get warning about Bork

WASHINGTON — A prominent lawyer is warning fellow Democrats that if they defeat the nomination of Robert H. Bork to the Supreme Court the decision may come back to haunt them.

Lloyd Cutler, former counsel to President Carter, told the Senate Judiciary Committee on Wednesday that somebody a liberal Democratic appointee to the high court could be blocked by a Republican-controlled Senate using the Bork nomination fight as a precedent.

"The time is going to come, and it can't come too soon for me, when there is going to be a Democratic president," Cutler said.

"It's necessary for Democrats who vote against a moderate conservative nominee to the court to remember they are giving a hostage to the time when a Democratic president will be appointing a moderate liberal or perhaps a very liberal liberal to the court who will be judged by the same standard in reverse that you would be applying in my view if you rejected Judge Bork today," Cutler said.

Baker: Bill 'plays with dynamite'

WASHINGTON — Treasury Secretary James Baker said today Congress has put a gun to President Reagan's head with a new Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction bill the president opposes but can't easily veto because it is part of a larger measure to extend the debt limit.

"To play around with the debt limit this way means really that you're playing with dynamite," Baker said in a television interview. "I think it's a serious mistake."

The Senate, by a 64-36 vote, approved the legislation Wednesday, with supporters saying it is the best mechanism for shrinking huge federal deficits. The House had approved the measure Tuesday.

"Congress is trying to force him (Reagan) to either gut his defense budget or agree to increase taxes on the American people, so it's going to be a very difficult decision," Baker said in an interview on NBC's "Today" show. "There is a gun at his head, if you will."

Soviets say summit site undecided

MOSCOW — A Soviet government spokesman said today that no site has been chosen for this fall's summit between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Boris D. Pyadyshov was asked at a briefing on foreign affairs whether the meeting announced last week would take place in Washington.

A joint statement issued last week after meetings between Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze and Secretary of State George Shultz said a summit would be held this fall, but it gave no venue or exact dates.

India bomb kills eight and hurts 29

NEW DELHI, India — A bomb exploded in a crowded market area in a west Indian town, killing at least eight people and injuring 29 others, police said today.

"It was a terrible sight," police spokesman N.S. Pawar said of the scene around the market area. "The police are on high alert across the state."

The explosion happened late Wednesday at Morvi in Gujarat state, about 590 miles southwest of New Delhi.

Children welcome AIDS brothers

Parents threaten 'another Arcadia'

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Three AIDS-exposed brothers, ostracized by their hometown of Arcadia, got a warm welcome from new schoolmates here, but up to 150 others were kept home by fearful parents threatening "another Arcadia."

Ricky, 10, Robert, 8, and Randy Ray, 4, were treated like any other students during their first day Wednesday at Goco Elementary School, said Clifford Ray, the boy's father. He said Ricky found welcome cards on his desk.

"Everything was positive," said the boy's mother, Louise. "One of the boys said they had to assign seats in the lunchroom because everyone wanted to sit next to them."

School authorities said 150 of the 618 pupils stayed home and up to a dozen were withdrawn. The usual absentee rate is about 3 percent.

Later in the day, parents clashed at a protest rally that had to be moved because of a bomb threat.

The Ray boys had attended an Arcadia elementary school under court order last month when they were 2 years old. They had lived in left after an Aug. 26 fire gutted their home, a boycott emptied their classes, and threats were made against the school and family.

The DeSoto County sheriff's department said Tuesday that the fire, which was "definitely not related" to the furor.

Doctors believe the Ray boys were infected with the AIDS virus from the blood plasma products they take to control their hemophilia, but the brothers show no sign of having developed AIDS itself.

Angry parents Wednesday questioned why the boys had to choose their community.

"The Rays are holding out about their civil rights," said Tim Whitworth, who kept his daughter home. "But they are violating our civil rights by shoving their children down our throats. People will turn violent."

"They'll end up with another Arcadia if they're not careful."

A sports arena where a rally against the Ray boys was about to begin was evacuated and the protest was moved next door after police received a bomb threat, said police spokesman

Eight-year-old Randy Ray sticks his tongue out at photographers while waiting for sheriff's deputies to escort him and his two brothers home from school in Sarasota, Fla., Wednesday. The three boys, exposed to AIDS, moved to Sarasota after arsonists burned their family home in Arcadia, Fla., last month.

Fred Schmidt.

Melody Patton, an organizer of the Arcadia group Citizens Against AIDS in Schools, said she came with seven other members after being invited by 60 parents from Sarasota and Bradenton for the rally, which was attended by about 300.

"We're going to be starting a branch here just as soon as we can," Mrs. Patton said after the meeting. She said she had a sign that read "Sarasota Doesn't Have a Problem. Don't Create One" and "Fight AIDS — Not Kids."

"They're offering information that is only adding to the hysteria which is already running rampant," said an organizer, Paul Hawkins. "I think there is a paranoia about the disease, and that stems from ignorance."

Outside, about 30 members of the newly formed Sarasota-based Citizens Against Discrimination picketed the Arcadia group. Placards read "Sarasota Doesn't Have a Problem. Don't Create One" and "Fight AIDS — Not Kids."

"They're offering information that is only adding to the hysteria which is already running rampant," said an organizer, Paul Hawkins. "I think there is a paranoia about the disease, and that stems from ignorance."

Fair-rent commission worth a try

If the town's Board of Directors follows the recommendation it is about to get from a study committee it appointed, Manchester will have a fair-rent commission to mediate disputes between landlords and tenants.

Anyone who expects such a commission to perform miracles, however, is in for a disappointment. In all likelihood, the commission, if it is established, will not resolve many of the problems faced by tenants nor will it cause landlords to divest themselves of residential rental property in fear of facing rent control in the future.

One thing a commission with limited authority can achieve is to get a landlord and tenant together and bring pressure on them to resolve simple disputes that they could have resolved without a commission if they had not taken polar positions in the first place.

And after a fair-rent commission has been functioning a while, tenants and landlords in dispute might be discouraged by the mere existence of a mediator, and move toward more reasonable positions.

But a fair-rent commission cannot change the basic economics of the residential rentals. The cost of renting will still be a financial strain on some renters, and some landlords will have to keep their maintenance costs down in order to get a reasonable return on their investment.

Problems will be most likely to arise at the lower scale of rentals. Those who rent luxury apartments and those who own them probably will not find themselves debating before a fair-rent commission.

Critics of establishing a fair-rent commission have argued that the commission can do nothing to increase the stock of moderate-cost rental housing, which is true.

Some critics have also argued that enforcement of the town's housing code, not a mediating commission, is the key to making sure housing in Manchester meets living and safety standards.

But a fair-rent commission may be able to help in that effort by giving both tenants and landlords a place to bring complaints about code violations and who causes them.

Despite its limitations, a fair-rent commission should be given a try. If it can solve only a few of the kinds of housing problems complained of, it will be worthwhile.

A frenzy over foibles

By Jonathan Wolman

WASHINGTON — Sen. Joseph Biden's retreat from the 1988 presidential race, not on the demise of Gort Hart, raises a new round of questions about the media frenzy that follows any disclosure of a candidate's personal foibles.

Biden quit his Democratic campaign Wednesday, victim of an unrelenting string of mistakes that included law school plagiarism in 1965 and campaign misstatements in 1987.

He was victim not only of his personal failings, but of the intense campaign process that has focused on difficult questions of personal integrity rather than comfortable questions of policy and leadership.

First Gary Hart, now Biden. "It had all the earmarks of a feeding frenzy," said Eric Woolson, a former Waterloo Courier reporter who recently became Biden's Iowa spokesman.

"(Biden) made some mistakes too. But are you permitted to be a human being and still run for president?" Biden, in his departure statement, said he was angry for robbing himself of his 1988 White House ambitions, and "frustrated at the environment of presidential politics that makes it so difficult to let the American people measure the whole Joe Biden and not just misstatements that I have made."

Like Hart last spring, Biden was forced from the race before he could wrestle with questions of economic prosperity or national security. "Now the exaggerated shadow of those mistakes has begun to obscure the essence of my candidacy and the essence of Joe Biden."

It's a painful way of saying no one wanted to talk about anything except his personal troubles — or

VA's drug experiment goes awry

WASHINGTON — Vietnam veteran Mike Rego has been trying for five years to learn more about an experimental drug he was treated with at a Veterans Administration hospital. He wonders if it may have been a factor in his contraction of Lou Gehrig's Disease.

But no one will give him much information about the drug, 6-aminocapronamide, or 6-AN. For one reason or another, neither the doctor who treated Rego with 6-AN, the manufacturer, the distributor nor the Food and Drug Administration, which approved the drug for experimental use, will share their knowledge of 6-AN and its possible side effects.

Rego's medical nightmare began in 1967, when he was exposed to a chemical fire in Vietnam. The burning chemicals included the herbicide Agent Orange. Years later, Rego's skin began to peel; by 1982, he had lost the entire top layer of his skin.

At the VA hospital in San Francisco, 6-AN was spread over Rego's body daily. But the treatment was discontinued after six months when Rego broke out in chloracne, with pustules spreading over his body.

Early this year, Rego was diagnosed as having amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, or Lou Gehrig's disease, a form of paralysis that attacks the central nervous system. It is fatal and incurable.

"I cannot respond to your request for information on the investigational uses of 6-aminocapronamide," associate FDA commissioner Jack Martin wrote to Rego, "since any acknowledgment would constitute disclosure of confidential commercial information."

"I would hope the debate would take place in a different environment. This frenzy has disallowed the opportunity to debate the major issues," he said. "The press has gone crazy."

Mini-editorial It started it. When asked to specify any important decisions his vice president, Richard Nixon, had helped make, President Eisenhower asked for a week to think of one. Now President Reagan has revived the tradition with his hapless stand-in, George Bush, who has "actively engaged," Reagan said, "and not just at funerals."

But when asked for an example of pivotal policy decisions in which Bush had participated, Reagan couldn't come up with one. He also said he thought the best preparation for the presidency is being a governor — something Bush has never been. Maybe George can get the sympathy vote; it seems to go with the vice presidency.

U.S. calls meeting with Soviets on sanctions against Iran

Poll: Most approve U.S. action

-NEW YORK (AP) — A majority of Americans support using U.S. Navy ships to protect foreign-owned oil tankers in the Persian Gulf, even though they also believe the action is likely to get the United States involved in a war, according to a CBS News-New York Times poll.

direct American attack on Iran in the two months since the United States began protecting shipping in the Gulf. The United States agreed to protect the tankers of Kuwait as the seven-year war between Iran and Iraq spread to all commercial shipping in the gulf.

Reagan has restated invoking the War Powers Act, which requires that a president inform Congress within 48 hours when introducing troops into a situation of "imminent hostilities." The troops must be withdrawn within 60 days unless Congress authorizes their deployment, although the president can ask for a 30-day extension.

Hoping to learn whether other patients treated with 6-AN subsequently got the disease, Rego asked the FDA for information. It was then, he claims, that he learned 6-AN was approved only for experimental use — and that, to protect the manufacturer's trade secrets, the FDA cannot release information on the drug.

"I cannot respond to your request for information on the investigational uses of 6-aminocapronamide," associate FDA commissioner Jack Martin wrote to Rego, "since any acknowledgment would constitute disclosure of confidential commercial information."

Rego had no more success with the Canadian manufacturer, Pharmaglobe Laboratories. Marketing manager Leslie Abbott wrote: "We are authorized to sell this product as a research chemical only. It is not intended for food and drug use, and we therefore make no claims as to its safety or usefulness in this capacity."

The drug distributor, Sigma Chemical of St. Louis, also declined to divulge any information.

Dr. Herschel Zackheim, who treated Rego at the VA hospital in 1982, declined to discuss specifics of the case with us. Zackheim told our reporter Gary Clouser that he is among the researchers authorized to use 6-AN as an investigational tool, and he added that a few patients are still being treated with it.

Zackheim, who is on the faculty of the University of California Medical School, has written about 6-AN, which he described in 1985 as effective in the treatment of psoriasis. He wrote that it should be used only in difficult cases that haven't responded to other medications. Nearly 350 patients in the United States had been treated with the drug, he said.

"6-AN causes severe central nervous system damage" to laboratory animals, Zackheim wrote, adding: "This is manifested by motor weakness, hind limb paralysis, blindness, coma and other neurological abnormalities."

A 1988 study at Columbia University reported that 6-AN markedly lowers the levels of two vital muscle enzymes.

Rep. Fortney "Pete" Stark, D-Calif., asked the VA this year for an update on its use of 6-AN. VA Administrator Thomas Turnage said it had been used in an attempt to induce schizophrenia in rats and to determine if it could promote growth of spinal cord cells. It is also a possible anti-cancer compound, Turnage wrote, adding: "However, its severe side effects have thus far prevented treatment applications."

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States called a meeting with the Soviet foreign minister today after he expressed differences with an American-British call for a worldwide arms embargo against Iran.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze told the U.N. General Assembly Wednesday that the body should seek a cease-fire in the Iran-Iraq war and establish a panel to judge who started the conflict. Another Soviet official questioned the effectiveness of an embargo.

Iranian President Ali Khamenei said Wednesday that Iran had not rejected the Security Council cease-fire resolution, which demands a troop withdrawal from internationally recognized borders and a prisoner exchange, as well as formation of the investigation committee.

The Iranian president also disapproved a U.S. report that an Iranian vessel was planting mines in the Persian Gulf Monday. U.S. helicopters opened fire on the Iran Ajr, killing five crewmen.

Cheating is a natural part of baseball

The other day the president of the National Baseball League suspended a player on the Houston Astros team because he was caught with a "cooked" bat. A cooked bat is one that has been hollowed out and the wood replaced with cork. The cooked bat, for reasons never given, is thought to be able to hit a baseball farther than an uncooked model. It is against the rules to use such a bat.

It is also against the rules for a pitcher to use a ring, or a belt buckle, or an emery board to scuff a baseball before throwing it. In like manner no "foreign" substances may be applied to the ball by the pitcher. Although in normal parlance it is hard to think of anything less foreign than spit, it also may not be applied to the old horsehide. In the past few weeks, two pitchers have been caught abrading or spitting on balls and have also been suspended. This is right and just as long as the penalties aren't too harsh. The perfect penalty for these infractions, as the sportswriters say, is one that is just tough enough to give the offender incentive not to get caught but lenient enough to make him want to try again. Cheating is one of the things that gives baseball its charm, and it would be a sad moment if the crazy people running the country and spouting off about tradition were to stamp out the sly breaking of the rules that is as much a part of the national pastime as the home run.

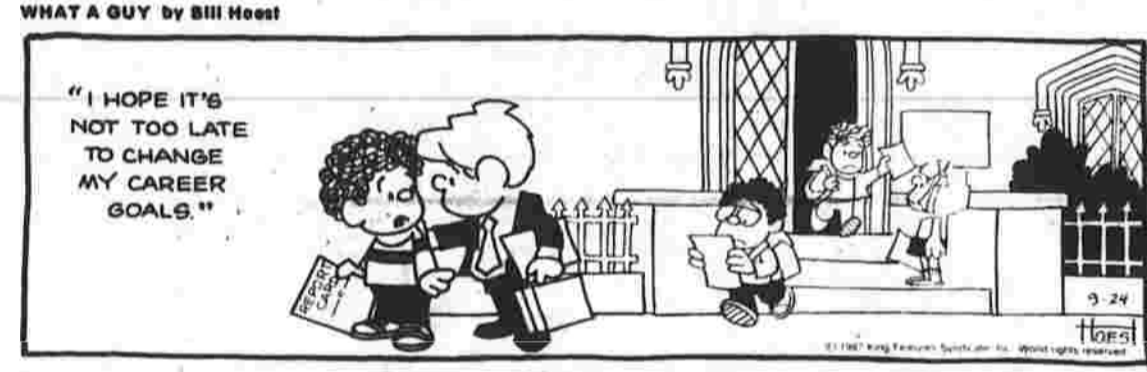

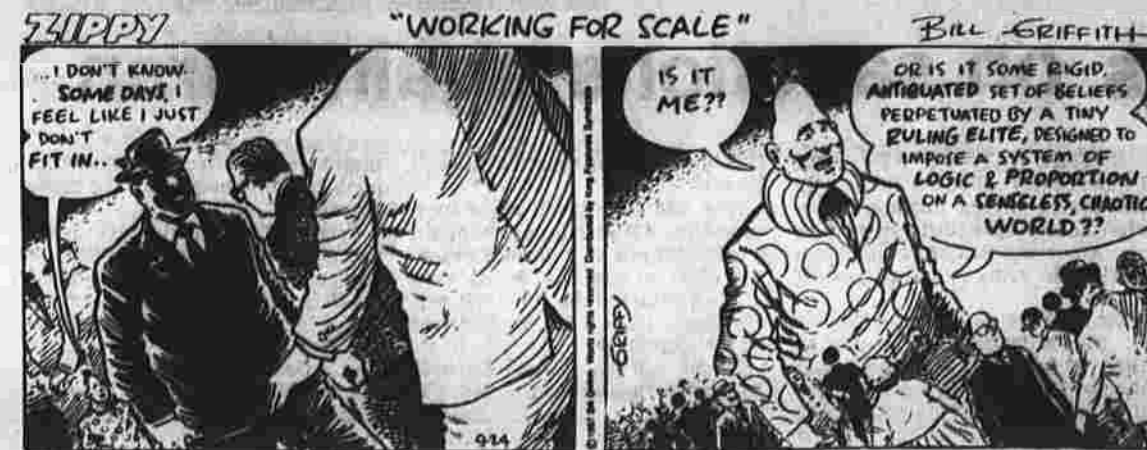

In fact, cheating is so much a part of the game that it's not even breaking the rules to do it in at least one instance. You are not only allowed, you are encouraged to "steal" bases, and that's not the only thing you can steal. Baseball coaches and managers send secret signals to the players on the field by straggling, entertaining little movements, such as touching the peak of their caps, expectorating a mouthful of tobacco juice, pawing the ground with their cleated feet or pulling on their earlobes, all of which must be done in a certain secret order. Because it is a slow game, the players have time to study these gyrations, interpret the "signals," as they are called, and, if they are smart enough to remember them, act accordingly. There are managers and coaches who are admired because they are good at "stealing signs."

Baseball has a whole lore and history about its crazy rule-breakers, players who kept extra baseballs in the high outfield grass to be picked up and used when the one in play had been hit too far to catch, stories of men concealed with spy glasses in the scoreboard to peek at the signs being given by the opposing catcher to his pitcher.

3 accused in scrap theft

Two men and a woman were arrested Tuesday in connection with the theft of $50,000 worth of scrap metal from Delaval Turbine Co.

David Paul Amadeo, 32, of Rocky Hill, David H. Duncan, 24, of Wetherfield, and Lynn Kallilan, 41, of Hartford, were charged with first-degree larceny. Amadeo and Duncan were also charged with third-degree criminal trespassing.

Police said a Delaval employee reported that 4,300 pounds of metal alloy were missing from the company's yard. Police said Sandy Otriniski, owner of Otriniski Scrap Dealer on Parker Street, told police he believed he had brought some of the stolen metal.

When they arrived at Otriniski's, two detectives noticed the three suspects unloading metal from a car, police said. Otriniski told detectives that the three were the same people who had been there the week before, selling other metal products, police said.

Duncan and Kallilan were held overnight on $25,000 cash bonds. Amadeo was released on a $25,000 surety bond and scheduled to appear in court Monday.

Two arrested at the Parkade

Two men were arrested on drug charges at the Manchester Parkade Wednesday night after an officer saw a group of young people huddled around what turned out to be two bags of marijuana, police said.

Gilbert Sylvestre, 24, of 44 Fenner Drive, Coventry, was charged with possession of more than an ounce of marijuana. George A. Sterling, 27, of 149 Spruce St., was charged with possession with the intent to sell marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Police said that Sterling fed into a wooded area but later surrendered to police. He admitted to being the owner of the marijuana. Sylvestre was released on a $1,000 non-surety bond pending an appearance Wednesday in Manchester Superior Court. Sterling was held on a $1,000 cash bond and was to appear in court this morning.

Two are facing drug charges

A Tolland man and a South Windsor man were arrested Saturday night after police found marijuana and hallucinogens in their car at the Broad Street Parkade, police said.

David J. Grue, 23, of Tolland, and Edward William Jordan, 24, of South Windsor, were charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia, operating a drug factory, and possession of hallucinogens and intent to sell.

Police said a police officer on private duty in the Parkade spotted empty beer bottles in their car as the two men drove by. After charging Grue with driving while intoxicated, the officer found a bag of marijuana in Grue's pocket while searching him, police said.

Both men were released on $5,000 non-surety bonds and are scheduled to appear Wednesday in Manchester Superior Court.

Two are injured in car accident

A Vernon man and an East Hartford man were injured Monday afternoon in an accident at West Middle Turnpike and New State Road.

According to police, Stephen E. Epler, 20, of Vernon was traveling west on New State Road when Brian J. Mahoney, 18, of East Hartford tried to turn in front of his car into Cheney Regional Vocational Technical School. Epler skidded and hit Mahoney broadside, causing Mahoney's car to spin and hit a curb before flipping over onto the driver's side, police said.

Both Mahoney, who had to be extricated from his car, and Epler were transported to Manchester Memorial Hospital, where they were treated for minor injuries and released.

Mahoney was issued a summons for failure to yield right of way and for misrepresentation on his license, which contained his picture but his brother's name and birth date, police said.

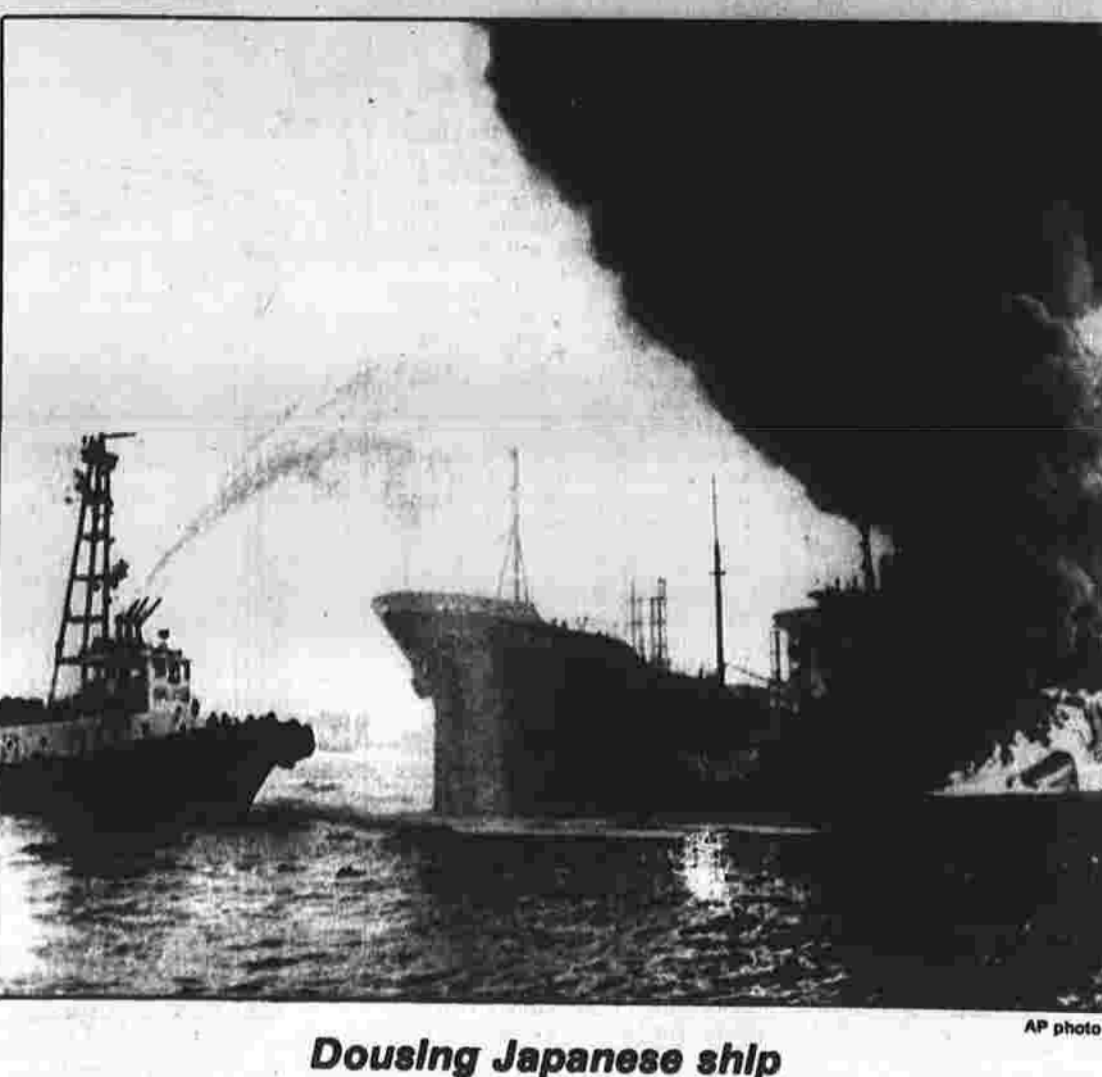

Pedestrian hurt in parking lot

A Manchester woman was injured Monday morning after a car backed into her in a West Center Street parking lot.

Police said the operator of the car, Helen C. Listro, 41, of Newington, did not see Mary Rolaua, 76, of 385 W. Center St., walking behind her car. Listro's car struck Rolaua, knocking her to the ground, police said.

Rolaua was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released.

Broadway's Bob Fosse dies at 60
WASHINGTON (AP) — Bob Fosse, the choreographer and director whose genius spawned such Broadway musicals as "Sweet Charity" and "Dancin'" as well as the film version of "Cabaret," is dead at age 60.

Fosse, who won every major entertainment award, collapsed and died of a heart attack Wednesday on a sidewalk outside his hotel just before the opening of the revival of "Sweet Charity" at the National Theatre.

The cast went on with the show not knowing that their director had died, toasting him later at a somber evening party, a theater spokesman said.

Cy Coleman, who composed the music for "Sweet Charity," said he had learned midway through the performance that Fosse was dead. "It's devastating," Coleman said after the show. "Bobby was just too alive to be dead... Everybody who has been in contact with Bobby will feel that he lives within all of us. I got something in my life that will stay with me until I go."

The hard-driving, fiercely competitive Fosse prided himself on being a showman, refusing to curtail his pace despite past heart problems and a five-to-six-puck-cay cigarette habit.

He showed no sign of illness in an upbeat rehearsal earlier in the day, said Alma Viator, a theater spokesman. He was stricken after he left the theater at 6:30 p.m. for a break with Gwen Verdon, his former wife and a dancer who starred in many of his works over the years.

Fosse collapsed on busy Pennsylvania Avenue at the corner of 14th street, only yards from the theater across the street from his car.

With Verdon kneeling at his side, firemen pounded his chest while waiting for an ambulance to arrive. Scores of ticketgoers, trying to make the 7 p.m. opening night curtain, were forced to walk around the dramatic rescue effort as they headed toward the theater.

"They rushed him to George Washington University Hospital, where they tried to revive him and could not," Viator said.

"The cast knew nothing of this until the end of the show. He never made it to opening night," she said.

Fosse was long a mainstay of the Broadway musical theater, and he was one of the most widely acclaimed choreographers of recent decades.

"Sweet Charity," one of Fosse's most enduring creations, first opened on Broadway in 1966, with Verdon in the original Charity. It was revived in 1972 and later in 1986, when it was acclaimed for his choreography.

BOB FOSSE dies of heart attack
With one critic writing, "postures, stances, gestures and weary co-ed-up dancing girls are brilliantly, tenderly and bawdily visualized."

It was Fosse who gave the show its distinctive stamp, as he did in much of his choreography.

In the 1950s and '60s, he won Tony awards for his Broadway musicals and his "The Pajama Game" and "Dama Yankees"; "Redhead"; "Sweet Charity"; and two Tony awards each for "Pippin" in 1972 and for "Dancin'" in 1978. His film work included "Cabaret," "All That Jazz" and "Lenny."

In one year, Fosse garnered awards in every major entertainment medium — movies, television and the stage. He captured an Oscar in 1972 for his film of "Cabaret," the escapades of a British cabaret singer adrift in the depraved bohemianism of Berlin in the 1930s, plus a Tony for his Broadway show "Pippin," an Emmy for his television special starring Lisa Minnelli, "Lisa With a Z."

In "All That Jazz," Fosse presented the autobiographical story of an equally brilliant director and choreographer, obsessed with work and women, whose smoking, drinking and frenetic lifestyle finally delivered him to open heart surgery. The choreographer, played by Roy Scheider, had a heart attack, just as Fosse did while editing "Lenny."

Many reviewers dismissed the extravaganzas as a self-indulgent ego trip, attacks that Fosse said confused him. The movie was a box office success, however, and took home four Oscars.

"I took such a rap from some critics over that movie," Fosse told an interviewer in 1964. "I ran it again in a couple of weeks and for the first 10 minutes I thought, 'They were right. This isn't good.' But then I began to like it and decided it was all right."

Treasury again stops sale of savings bonds
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury Department announced today it has suspended the sale of U.S. savings bonds for the third time this year because President Reagan has not signed a bill raising the national debt limit.

The department said it had notified banks and other financial institutions to stop selling the bonds until further notice.

Sales had been suspended for brief periods beginning on July 18 and on Aug. 7 because of congressional inaction over approving a measure to increase the government's borrowing authority.

The Senate gave final approval Wednesday and sent to Reagan a measure to raise the debt ceiling to $2.4 trillion. However, the president has not decided whether he will sign the bill into law because of a separate provision that provides a new enforcement mechanism for the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law.

Teen pleads innocent in Glastonbury murder
HARTFORD (AP) — A 19-year-old Glastonbury man has pleaded innocent in Hartford Superior Court to charges that he killed his girlfriend's mother last month.

Dennis Coleman, charged with slaying 47-year-old Joyce Aparo, pleaded innocent Wednesday to charges of murder and conspiracy to commit murder.

Coleman had been charged with felony murder because investigators originally believed he forcefully entered the victim's Glastonbury home Aug. 5, the day he is accused of strangling her and dumping her body in Bernardston, Mass.

But the felony murder charge against Coleman was changed to murder and conspiracy to commit murder because authorities now believe Coleman had a key to the house and permission to go in, Hartford-New Britain State's Attorney John M. Bailley said.

Coleman's 16-year-old girlfriend, Karin Aparo, has been accused of planning the slaying with Coleman for more than a year. She has been charged with being an accessory to murder and conspiracy to commit murder.

In Coleman's arrest affidavit, police said a motive for the slaying may have been that Joyce Aparo was trying to steer her daughter's affections away from Coleman and toward 26-year-old Alexander Markov, an acclaimed violinist.

Karin Aparo had been taking violin lessons from Markov's father, Albert Markov, who teaches at the Manhattan School of Music in New York City. She had become a close friend of Alexander Markov, friends and family members said.

Coleman, who was released on $190,000 bond shortly after his arrest, asked for a jury trial. A pretrial hearing was scheduled for Oct. 28.

Two others in the case, Christopher Wheatley, 19, and Kim Lintner, 16, were scheduled to appear in Superior Court in Manchester Oct. 2 on charges of hindering prosecution. Police said Wheatley and Lintner drove Coleman back from Massachusetts after he disposed of Joyce Aparo's body.

Guards face discipline for TV, radio in tower
SOMERS (AP) — State correction officials have recommended that two Somers state prison officers be disciplined for having a television set and a radio in the maximum-security facility's guard towers while on duty, a Correction Dept. spokesman said Wednesday.

Spokeswoman Connie Wilks said the officers were discovered Aug. 31, nine days after an inmate escaped from the prison by sneaking past guard towers.

The disciplinary action, Frederick Merrill, was at the prison pending his trial on charges of first-degree sexual assault and burglary.

Wilks said the discovery of a TV in a tower was only the second of its kind at the 25-year-old prison. She said the discovery of a radio in the tower was the first. A Correction Dept. spokesman said the discovery of the radio and a television set in a tower "was found to be contrary to regulations."

Donald Sevas, of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Council 4, said he wanted to speak with the officers involved before commenting.

Meanwhile, state police have said they've broadened their hunt for Merrill, a 40-year-old Tolland man, with a history of prison escapes, nationwide. State police spokesman Sgt. Robert Slattery said the department has contacted law-enforcement authorities in New Jersey, South Carolina and Florida.

Those are places where Merrill has been at other times, Slattery said.

Woman gets $250 airfare to visit her dying son

DEAR MR. ROSS: I wrote you awhile back and told you about my dying son. I've tried every way to get the money to go and see him. He lives in California. Most likely I will be my last time because his doctor says he has only three to six months left to live.

In my other letter I told you he had cancer. I wasn't meaning to lie, but thought it was best to say I can't. He has AIDS.

My son is 34, I'm 33. The company my husband was working for said out, which left him without a job. It's hard to find someone who will hire you at 59.

I haven't seen my son for 7 years. I'm asking you, Mr. Ross, to pay my airfare of $250 so I can see my son one last time. Please respond to my need.

MRS. M.A. COLUMBUS, OHIO

Thanks A Million

DEAR MR. ROSS: I am a 47-year-old, single male and live with my parents. I've been working for the same company for 19 years. At present, I make about $38,000 a year. This is enough to support myself and my parents if I had to. But they are pretty comfortable with my father's pension and Social Security.

Nevertheless, I would like to retire and just hang around. Could you find it in your heart to send me $2,000,000 tax free? This would take care of me for the rest of my life.

Even if this letter isn't printed in your column, I would like some kind of response from your office.

MR. D.P. ASBURY PARK, N.J.

DEAR MR. ROSS: My mom needs some steel toe boots for work or else she'll get fired. Could you send $50 or possibly more? It would be a nice thing for you to do. It means she could keep her job.

MR. D.M. NORTHFIELD, MINN.

DEAR D: And people used to laugh at grandmas who wore green army boots. Times are certainly changing!

So your mom won't lose her job... $100 is on the way.

DEAR MR. ROSS: Let's cut themalarkey and

Trinity prof tracks AIDS trends

David Ahlgren's computer model came about through an accident
By John Gustavson The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Dr. David Ahlgren of Trinity College is gaining a reputation as the man to consult about trends in the AIDS epidemic, but when Ahlgren has a question, he turns to Stella.

The problem-solver Ahlgren uses is a year-old reincarnation of a renewed computer language developed years ago at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

But Stella is much more powerful and, combined with advances in microprocessing technology, it "lets you describe the causes and effects" in a situation like the AIDS epidemic almost instantaneously, says Ahlgren, associate professor of engineering and computer science.

Ahlgren and two students used Stella to create a model of the AIDS epidemic. The model won't find a treatment or a cure for AIDS, but it simulates the spread of the epidemic and show how it responds to policy and behavioral changes, such as modification of sexual behavior, use of sterile needles, and implementation of testing programs.

TRINITY GOT a $150,000 grant from the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation to develop courses and lecture series about technology, and one result was the course titled "Understanding Systems."

Initially, the course was intended to show students how computer technology can be applied to modern problems like pollution control and energy supply and demand.

But the emphasis soon turned to AIDS — "the obvious one," says Ahlgren, "because there's so much misunderstanding about AIDS."

And the health world is watching Trinity: The computer model received rave reviews in June at the Third International Conference on AIDS in Washington, D.C.

"We came down there as this hick town, people who aren't epidemiologists and showing them something that was good," Ahlgren says.

Tracking the epidemic through the sample population's 4,000 men-homosexuals from 1986 to 1996, the model evaluates the effects of two hypothetical policies: the first, intensified use of safe sex practices, greater monogamy and more testing; and the second, implementation of a 100 percent testing rate by 1988.

THE FIRST POLICY would reduce the number of AIDS-infected male homosexual carriers by 16 percent and deaths in that group by 12 percent by 1996.

The second policy of 100 percent testing would reduce the number of carriers by 5.8 percent and deaths in the male homosexual population by only 3 percent by 1996, because testing cannot check the spread of AIDS virus within a population that already contains a large number of carriers.

But the model does predict that a 100 percent testing program would significantly decrease the death toll among homosexuals where there are still relatively few carriers.

The model contains all the relationships involved in the AIDS phenomenon, and because of its flexibility and power it presents opportunities to confront in advance the serious moral questions posed by the epidemic.

For example, people who are exposed to the AIDS virus but haven't yet developed the disease can take measures to prolong their health. The average time someone stays in that category is four years, Ahlgren says.

THE MODEL CAN predict whether a new health program would prolong that time to 10 years, but the consequence of such a step is a higher likelihood that the carrier would expose more people to the virus.

"So, if you keep your carriers healthy, you will have to make more carriers," Ahlgren says. "That's a moral decision: do you keep your carriers healthy, or sick?"

Alex Stein of Middletown, a member of the Trinity project who graduated last spring, said members of Ahlgren's course developed the model through heated debate, argumentation and compromise.

Sophomore Peter Lyons of New York City gathered much of the real-world data used to construct the model.

"It was the strangest class I've ever been in... Somebody would yell at me about somebody who would yell at him (Ahlgren), and that went on for four weeks until we got something we liked," Stein said.

STEIN SHOWED the model to Hartford Hospital's director of AIDS research who suggested the project be presented to the Washington conference.

"The presentation was supposed to be from 12 to 1:30, and we had not finished setting up when we were mobbed by people," Stein said.

He said health ministers from France and Spain and health officers from the Army and U.S. government "were just floored."

"We've gotten a lot of enthusiastic response," he said. "People wanting to know if we can work with them, wanting to know more about our model. We make predictions for them."

YORK DEVELOPED a model program for predicting how the AIDS epidemic will respond to changes in government policy or personal behavior.

AN UPDATED VERSION of the model, now being developed, will simulate the spread of AIDS through prison populations, the mortality rate among children, and the consequences of prostitution on exposure to the disease.

"The results clearly demonstrate the power of the model," says Ahlgren, who is seeking grant funding sources for further development of the program. "It just knocks the socks off of all other modeling tools available."

Director Bob Fosse holds his Tony Award for his play, 'Big Deal,' in New York on June 1, 1966. Fosse, the famous director and choreographer, died Wednesday at the National Theatre in Washington at a performance of 'Sweet Charity.'

A critic looks back at Fosse's incredible career

By Michael Kuchwara
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Nobody made a Broadway musical movie like Bob Fosse.

From "The Pajama Game" in 1957 to "Big Deal" more than three decades later, each one of Fosse's 12 Broadway shows was stamped with his special, sexy style.

That style was first noticed by New York audiences in "Steam Heat" and "Hernando's Hideaway" — two show-stopping numbers from "The Pajama Game." Those dances contained the seeds of what later would be called Fosse trademarks — snappy fingers, thrust pelvises, and angular, almost jerky arm and leg movements.

Fosse's choreography had its roots in the nightclub and burlesque houses of Chicago, where he worked as a teen-age hooper. Those memories later made it to the screen in Fosse's autobiographical film "All That Jazz." In Chicago, he learned how to dazzle audiences. He gave them entertainment.

In dancer Gwen Verdon, Fosse met the woman who could do that better than anyone else. Their professional partnership began in 1955 with "Damn Yankees" and continued through three more musicals — "New Girl in Town," "Redhead" and "Sweet Charity."

"Damn Yankees" cemented Miss Verdon's career, and it was Fosse who gave her the dance numbers — a gyrating mambo called "Who's Got The Pain?" and the sensuous "Whatever Lola Wants" — that helped her reach stardom.

It was with Miss Verdon, whom he later married, that Fosse made the important transition from choreographer to director, in charge of everything that went into a Broadway musical.

Fosse was a practical, no-nonsense director. If a dance number damaged a show or slowed it down, out it went. He never tried consciously to make a statement. Entertainment won out over art, especially in such later shows as "Pippin" and "Dancin'."

"Pippin" proved to be an innovator in another way. The show, which received mediocre reviews, was saved by a stylish television commercial directed by Fosse. It was the first time television had been used to extensively advertise a show and it was a rousing success.

Fosse's Broadway track record was astonishing. Only his last musical, "Big Deal" in 1986, flopped out after a short run. Every other Fosse production was a commercial hit. Fosse knew that his audiences wanted show-stopping entertainment, and he gave it to them in a dozen glorious shows.

Supermarket Shopper

That 'great deal' may be no deal

By Martin Stone
United Features Syndicate

DEAR MARTIN: I recently saw Charmin toilet tissue on sale. It looked like a good deal until I noticed that the manufacturer has made the roll 192 square feet instead of 220. This means the new roll has 86 fewer sheets per roll.

Who is squeezing the Charmin roll? Not Mr. Whipple!

You've been doing a great job keeping consumers aware of problems like this one. Keep up the good work!

CLAIRE PYLER,
NEPTUNE, N.J.

DEAR MARTIN: One of our readers wondered why manufacturers ask for cash-register tapes from refunders who are already sending in proofs of purchase. I believe it's because of the high losses supermarkets experience due to thefts. Whether thefts are by customers, employees or shoplifters, the manufacturers don't want to offer refunds that encourage people to steal their products.

J.E.L.,
SENIOR SALES MANAGER,
SOUTH BEND, IND.

DEAR J.E.L.: Manufacturers can't do much to prevent the theft of their products in supermarkets. And this is far from their minds when they decide whether or not to require that cash-register tapes be sent in to receive a refund.

What the companies are thinking about is "aliphage."

Sliphage is the term used by manufacturers to denote the number of people who originally intended to send for a refund but eventually didn't for one reason or another. Manufacturers like to

NFL strike gets tense and violent

By The Associated Press

Dallas offensive tackle Kevin Gogan was in a light-hearted mood as he paraded his cocker spaniel while walking a picket line in front of the Dallas Cowboys training camp.

"Lacey is our guard dog," Gogan joked.

It was, however, one of the rare good-natured moments Wednesday at NFL training camps as tension, and in some cases, violence was the order of the day in the wake of the players' strike.

At more than a few locations, angry striking players voiced displeasure and in others abroad the anger in action as free agents crossed the picket lines to fill their shoes.

At the Houston Oilers' training camp, the strikers pelted a bus carrying substitute players with eggs and threw a rock. At the Washington Redskins' camp, angry strikers cracked the windows of another bus.

At the Cincinnati and Seattle training camps, pickets used their bodies to try to block buses carrying the new players. At the Atlanta camp, striking players shook a van carrying players.

And in Kansas City, a non-striking player left Arrowhead Stadium with a slashed tire and a Chiefs scout got into a shoving match with a striking player.

The free agents were recruited by NFL teams seeking replacements for regular players who went on strike Tuesday. Owners say they plan to use the new players to field teams that will begin competing Oct. 4 if the players' strike isn't settled by then.

Shortly after the bus incident at their training camp in Herndon, Va., Redskins management obtained a temporary injunction which prohibits the striking players from impeding the entry or exit of the new players, and from committing any violent acts against them. A hearing on the injunction was to be held today.

As the bus entered the team's training facility, Redskins defensive tackle Barry Grant, running back Reggie Branch and tight end Cliff Benson tried to block it.

A police officer persuaded the three to let the bus pass, but Grant joined others banging on the side of the vehicle and slammed his hand against the windows, according to a Fairfax County police spokesman.

"If I have to pay for it, I have to pay for it," Grant said, acknowledging he broke one of the windows.

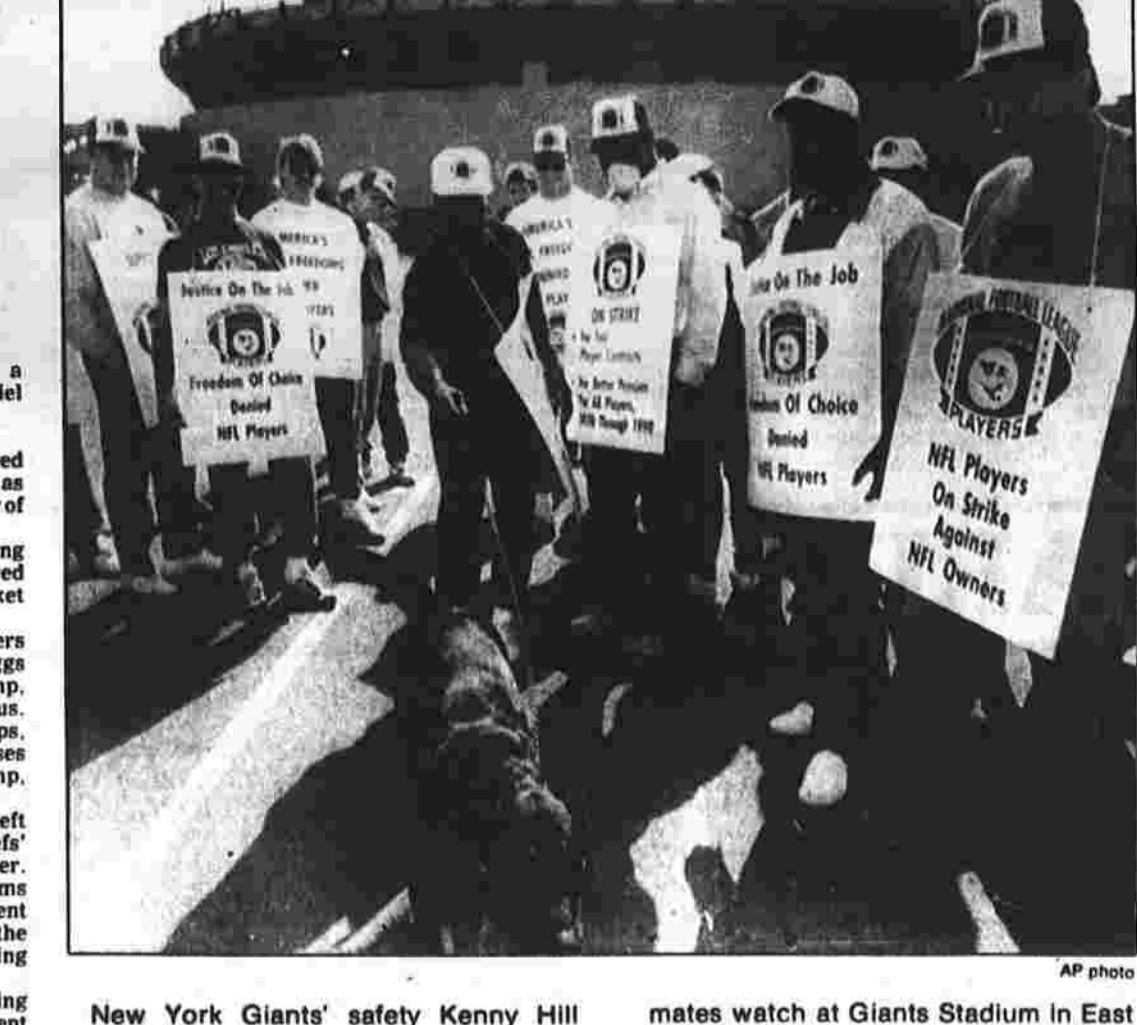

"My emotions definitely got the best of me, but I don't regret it," he said. "I was sure they would take shoes off dead men."

About 44 men were on the bus, but Coach Joe Gibbs said later a few decided against practicing with the team after going through the experience at the gate.

A window also was cracked on a bus carrying free agents past an Oilers' picket line at their Houston practice facility. The bus was hit with eggs and a rock as it brought the substitutes to practice.

"This doesn't surprise me," Oilers' player representative Warren Moon said. "The guys have been calm to this point. It was just a little show of emotion."

In Cincinnati, the picketing was also emotional

Millar powers Whalers over Nordiques, 7-2

HARTFORD (AP) — Rookie forward Mike Millar scored twice and assisted Paul Lawless who scored his third goal in as many games to power the Hartford Whalers past Adams Division rival Quebec Nordiques 7-2 in an NHL preseason game.

Millar, who scored 45 goals in the minors last season, tallied at 18:08 of the second period and again at 10:00 of the third period to secure the Hartford victory Wednesday. He also assisted on the game-winning goal at 12:53 of the second period.

The victory improved the Whalers to 2-0-1 in Quebec. They dropped to 2-1. It was their first meeting since last spring when the Nordiques eliminated the Whalers in the playoffs.

Hartford outshot Quebec 34-16 in the game and also received goals from Dave Gabych, Ulf Samuelsson, Paul MacDermid and Jody Hull. Its No. 1 pick back in the June amateur draft, Marc Fortier and Lane Lambert scored for the Nordiques.

Samuelsson's goal at 8:14 of the second period broke a 1-1 tie and Millar collected a helper on Lawless' goal 3:28 later. Though Lambert closed the Nordiques within 3-2 at 17:28 during a goalmouth scramble, Millar restored Hartford with a two-goal lead 40 seconds later. The Whalers play in New Jersey Thursday. Quebec plays at Hershey, Pa., Friday against Philadelphia.

Bogli paves way for Indians' win

Scoring hasn't been a problem in the early going for the Manchester High School girls' soccer team. Manchester High senior Heather Bogli had a field day as she tallied a three-goal hat-trick to pave the way to an easy 6-0 win over Housatonic Valley Wednesday afternoon at Memorial Field.

Sophomore Karen Rattankon and Bogli each scored two goals in the first half to give the Indians a half-time lead. Bogli and freshman Kathy Cumberland added scores in the second half.

"Heather Bogli had an exceptional day," Indian Coach Charles Lankford said. "She scored four goals in three games while the team has 15. Jodi Widmer, playing in her first varsity game, played well."

Senior Amy Barrera and sophomore Meg Berte had the Indian assists. The Indians had a total of 37 shots while Housatonic had none. Manchester's next game is Friday at Hartford Public.

Bolton boys rally, tie in COC action

PORTLAND — The Bolton High School boys' soccer team rallied to tie the Portland High School boys' soccer team in the second half of a soccer game on Wednesday afternoon in the first round of the Connecticut Open Cup. Bolton's record is now 1-0-1, while Portland is 0-0-2.

Trailing, 1-0, Bolton knocked the affair at 34:22 when Bulldog junior Mike Myrman scored at 34:22 in the second half. Portland's John Turksbury had tallied at 9:15 in the first half.

"The kids showed a lot of heart," Bolton Coach Ray Boyd said. "Dave Titus played exceptionally well and gave us an opportunity to come back and tie it." This record is 15-11-1. Bolton's next game is Friday at Bolton Academy.

Enfield tops MHS in volleyball match

ENFIELD — The Manchester High School volleyball team dropped a match to Enfield Tuesday afternoon in straight sets. The scores were 15-4, 15-12 and 15-11. Manchester is 0-2 and its next match is Friday at home against Hartford Public High School.

Cherie Noroy served well for the Indians. Manchester took the junior varsity match, 15-5 and 15-8. Ken Twible was the standout for the JVs.

UConn, Harvard play to scoreless tie

Actually, two of the Huskies' best scoring chances came in each of the 10-minute extra sessions. With 17 seconds left in the first overtime, Junior Dan Donigan made a nice move down the left sideline and carried the ball in toward the goal. Donigan flipped a pass on the fringe of the penalty area to senior Steve Rammel, who mis-fired. Sophomore Steve Rammel carried the ball and left-footed a shot which caromed off the left post.

During the second overtime, senior Kanto Lulaja's free kick was perfectly headed by free wicket wicket wicket.

The ball, however, squarely struck the crossbar and Lulaja drilled an attempt into the rebound which was saved by Harvard goalie Stephen Hall.

"I think they (UConn) came a little bit closer, especially in the overtime, than we did," Harvard Coach Mike Getman said. "I don't think it (a tie) helps us a whole lot. I don't think it hurts a lot. Both teams played well. I think it was a little bit more defensive than either of us expected it to be."

The Huskies' first solid scoring opportunity came at 7:30 of the first half when sophomore Fred Carlos floated a pass to the right of the box, which Donigan collected. Donigan's shot was knocked away by a diving kick save by Hall. Hall made another fine kick save for the second time when sophomore Matt Tunsion, at 33 minutes, Crimson midfielder Rami Rajaballe delivered a strong run on the left side and his shot which caromed off the left post.

Hall, a native of Liverpool, England, led the series with Harvard, 6-5. "You have to give him (Hall) credit because he was great," Morrone said. Getman agreed with Morrone. "I was very happy with Stephen Hall for us," he said. "Both keepers played well."

Foley, who has been playing exceptionally well in goal for UConn, has a strong tie with the tie but he knows his club will improve from it. "Both defenses played very well," Foley said. "I would have liked to see Stephen Hall get a couple of goals, but that's the way the game went."

The match of Harvard and UConn, the No. 1 and No. 2 teams in New England, had been a highly anticipated battle with offensive fireworks expected from both sides.

Reality, however, saw the defense and several blown opportunities by the Huskies take precedence. The end result was a 0-overtime tie. UConn's record is now 5-2-2 while Harvard is 2-0-1. The Huskies will host 10th-ranked UCLA Sunday at 1 p.m.

Keyly makes the system work at East

The system. An overview of the East Catholic High School football program under the direction of Jude Kelly always takes you back to the system. It's the system that works. And it's the system that has produced winning teams — championship teams — in the 1980s.

When a successful Jude Kelly took over as East's head coach in March 1979, he inherited a program that had only one winning season in the decade — that coming in John LaFontana's final year in '78.

Kelly inherited a squad that featured quarterback Tony Pacheco and wide receiver Mike Freiheit. Yet, Kelly wanted a ball-control type of team and he steered it to a more ground-oriented attack. Mike Gilbert roared for a school-record 1,438 yards on the ground and the team did win a share of the Hartford County Conference that first year.

At the time, Kelly was highly criticized from some corners for altering East's scheme. There were several who said the 6-4 campaign could have been successful if the wishbone. It's a disciplined offense, and I felt we had the disciplined kids here to make it work," he explained.

The rest is history. East took off that year, compiling a 6-3-1 mark in which Doug Post rushed for 1,000 yards and fullback Jim DePersia rushed for 760 more. In his senior campaign, Post rushed for 1,358 yards. He and Buddy Zachery formed an awesome backfield with John Gilbert at the controls. The '83 team went 10-1 and won the state Class MM championship, the school's first but not last state title.

A year ago East won its second state Class MM championship with a 42-3 thrashing of Masuk. Ten starters graduated from that squad, down from the 16 in the year before. But if the first game is any indication of things to come, then East Catholic's football program is in good hands.

How do Kelly and the Eagles do it? "The system," Kelly said. "We emphasize the system."

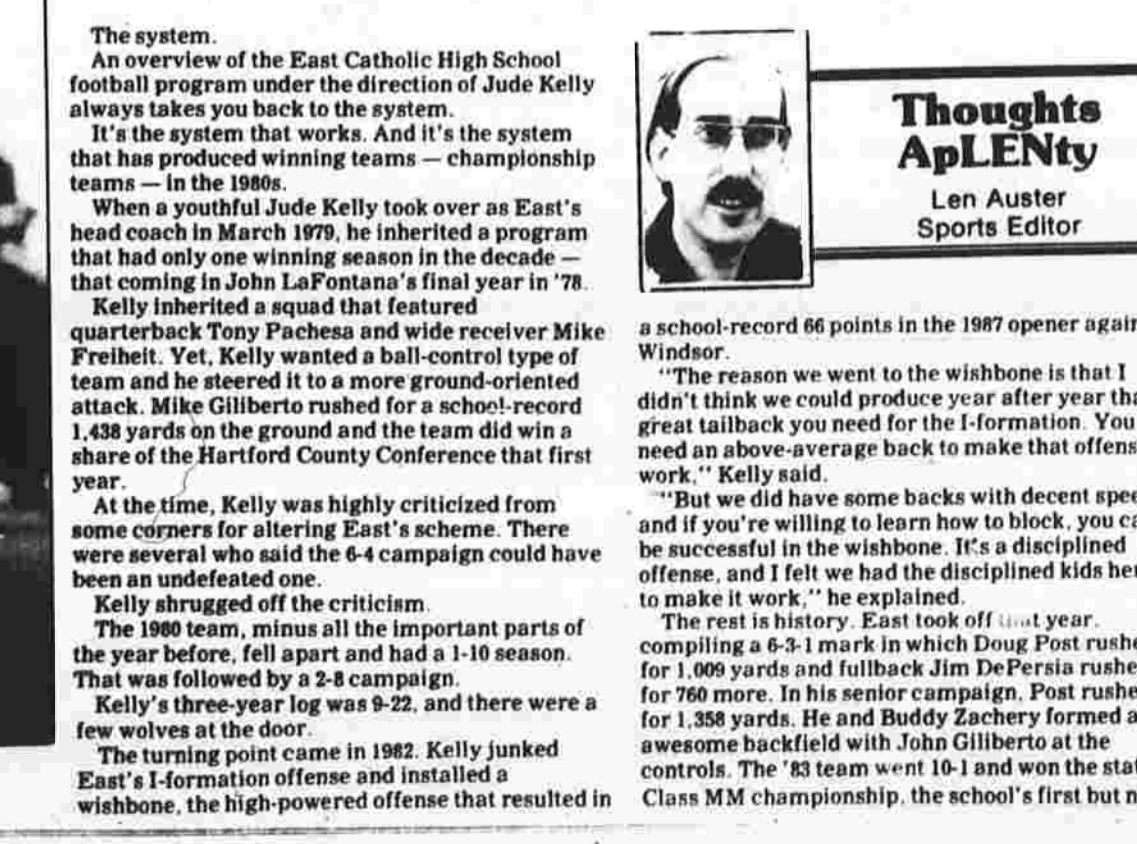

The system includes teaching the wishbone at the freshman level. The one constant since the beginning has been the freshman coaching staff of Mike Lafferty and Rick Botticello. They've been joined by Martin Lee and Chris Darby as assistant coaches, the latter part of the '83 championship team. "Those four guys are committed and enthused. They run the same plays and drills as the varsity," Kelly said.

The players learn on the freshmen level, and if you're willing to learn how to block, you can be successful in the wishbone. It's a disciplined offense, and I felt we had the disciplined kids here to make it work," he explained.

STORRS — Ties can be looked upon as positive outcomes many times, but University of Connecticut Coach Joe Morrone found nothing profitable from the Huskies' soccer match with eighth-ranked Harvard at Storrs Wednesday.

- Special Exhibit "Connecticut by Air"
- Continuous Entertainment

Advertising Supplement to the Manchester Herald
 Thursday, Sept. 24, 1987

Cooperative effort creates show as regional showcase

The 10th anniversary edition of the Product Show is a cooperative effort of the Greater Manchester, East Hartford and South Windsor chambers of commerce.

The Product Show is a regional showcase of goods and services available in the East-of-the-River region. Spectators coming to Connecticut's second largest airport, Rentschler Field at Pratt and Whitney, will enjoy everything from personal and business financial advice to state-of-the-art computers and aviation.

The entire spectrum of goods and services available to the modern consumer will be available for public sampling Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 26 and 27.

The Product Show, the only major regional event of its type in the area, will showcase 150 exhibits in the hangar. Spectators are invited to view the exhibits, enjoy the continuous musical entertainment at the Showmobile and sample international food under the dining tent. Door prizes and merchandise gifts will be awarded to lucky attendees every 10 minutes.

Show hours are Saturday from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Advance-sale tickets are available at all local banks for $2.50. Admission at the gate is $3. For more information contact the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce at 646-2223.

The site of the Product Show, Rentschler Field at Pratt & Whitney in East Hartford can be reached from Interstate 84, Roberts Street and Main and Willow streets in East Hartford. Entrance to the Pratt & Whitney complex is either at Silver Lane or at Main and Willow streets.

After entering the complex, directional signs will clearly detail the acres of parking. Shuttle buses at marked stops will run continuously for the convenience of those attending.

An airplane takes up much of the hangar at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Rentschler Field in this May file photo, but the plane will be gone Saturday for the start of the 1987 Product Show. From left are Anne Flint, president of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce; Bernard F.

Cramer, president of the East Hartford Chamber of Commerce; Elaine Anderson of United Technologies; and Carol Bissell, executive director of the East Hartford Chamber of Commerce. Show hours are Saturday from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

2 - MANCHESTER HERALD, Thursday, Sept. 24, 1987 - 3

Come see 'Connecticut by Air'

"Connecticut by Air" a salute to Pratt & Whitney and United Technologies Corp. for the major role they have played in our aviation history and the diversified economy of Connecticut, is a special feature of the 10th anniversary Product Show.

The exhibit opens with a continuous showing of "Connecticut Is..." — a 30-minute film developed by Norden Systems as a part of Connecticut's 350th birthday celebration. This film celebrates Connecticut as never seen before, rich in history, scenery, recreational and cultural attractions without parallel. Much of the film presents Connecticut's panorama from the air. Gov. William A. O'Neill, after viewing the film, said, "This is indeed a celebration of the classic look and feel of our state. Of the great pride we have in the tangible and intangible qualities for which we are famous."

The birthday film was developed over a full year and includes a four-season view of the state. From film master John Barnard, to writers Ralph Lillers of East Hartford and Joe Boic of Westport, and on to narrator Peter Thomas of Greenwich, this film is truly a Connecticut project.

On display will be a number of artifacts chronicling the development of aviation from places such as the New England Air Museum, Pratt & Whitney, Hamilton Standard and the Connecticut Antique Airplane Club.

The world's latest commercial jet engine, the 25,000-pound-thrust V2500, will also be showcased. Developed by International Aero Engines, in which Pratt & Whitney has a 30 percent shareholding, the V2500 has already won orders worth more than $1 billion from four international airlines.

The short- and medium-range airliners flying today are, by and large, a decade or more old in design. Nearly 3,000 are scheduled for retirement within the next 10 years. Aircraft manufacturers have been hard at work developing new equipment to enable the airlines to continue providing comfortable and efficient service, particularly in the 120- to 180-passenger class, requiring 18,000- to 30,000-pound thrust engines. The V2500 is the product of an international consortium to meet this need.

A cut-away rotating quarter-scale model of the JT8D engine will be on display. This engine, the most widely used in history, is now in such aircraft as the DC9's and 737's. It is estimated that every five seconds an aircraft takes off somewhere in the world with this engine.

In addition to the most modern technology, antique airplanes will also be displayed. With the cooperation of the Connecticut Antique Airplane Club, a 1941 Boeing Stearman Primary Trainer (PT17) will be on display.

The Antique Airplane Club, with more than 100 members dealing to promote and develop interest in antique aircraft, was a good resource for a display of this nature. The club meets on the second Sunday of the month at Simsbury Airport, with 10 to 15 planes flying when the weather cooperates.

Earl Hasselmark, a member of the club, will be displaying the 1941 Boeing trainer. Although hundreds of different types of airplanes have been developed in the last 70 years, only a few have become classics as has the Stearman Trainer. During World War II the Stearman was produced in greater numbers than any other biplane.

Probably more military pilots learned to fly in it than any other airplane. The propeller on the model on display in "Connecticut by Air" was developed by Hamilton Standard. The Stearman Aircraft Co. became part of United Aircraft and Transportation Co., later United Technologies, in 1929. As with other parts of this exhibit, not only was aircraft history made with the plane, much of it originated from Connecticut.

The entertainment will be continuous

From rhythm and blues to jazz, from folk to rock, the East Hartford Showmobile will be rockin' and rollin' all through Product Show Weekend.

Realizing the music and talent of local professional groups is a product of this region. The Hartford Courant is sponsoring the continuous entertainment program.

Bring the kids, and those young at heart, to sing along, dance and laugh with the antics of Peanutbutterjam. The group is well known for its puppetry, music and artful entertainment for every age group.

Masa-Conn-Fusion is a high-energy rhythm and blues-Motown band. The seven members are entertainment with a capital "E." Their performance is exciting and energetic. The audience as well as the performers enjoy the electricity created on stage.

Folk music fans will enjoy the music of Glen Fuge and Oakes and Howey. Glen is a singer and guitarist who is returning to the Product Show stage for the second time. He recently performed at Manchester's Feast Fest and is seen at a variety of local clubs. Oakes and Howey will remind audiences of the New Christy Minstrel sounds of the '80s. They are performing for the first time at the show.

Continuous entertainment and enjoyment is a guarantee. For those more in tune with Michael Jackson and Huey Lewis than with local performers, the Coca Cola-WKSS Video Van will also be on site throughout the weekend. This mobile video screen, with top-40 music and accompanying videos, will be playing all the favorites.

The Product Show entertainment schedule:

Saturday, Sept. 26

1:30 to 2 p.m. — Teresa.

3 to 4 p.m. — Peanutbutterjam.

5 to 7 p.m. — Masa-Conn-Fusion.

7:30 to 9 p.m. — Oakes & Howey.

Sunday, Sept. 27

11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. — Glen Fuge.

2 to 4 p.m. — Jeff Wieselberg.

4:30 to 6:30 p.m. — To be announced.

Be a winner at the show

With ideas for home and self improvement, financial and career advice, energy-saving and decorating experts in every aisle of the Product Show, everyone will go home feeling like a winner.

In addition, prizes and gifts will be given away throughout the weekend. Chances for trips, free TVs, new appliances and free car rentals will be offered by the participating companies.

Connecticut Travel Services is offering tickets for two on USAir to any destination that USAir serves. The lucky winners have a chance to dream about their destination and live their dream from September through April 1988.

For a dream weekend closer to home, Thrifty

Car Rental has accommodations for two at the East Hartford Ramada, weekend use of the Thrifty Car Rental limo and two tickets to a Whalers' game courtesy of the Hartford Civic Center.

And that's not all. Plants from Park Hill Joyce in Manchester will brighten your home. Courtesy of the J.C. Penney Co., a 19-inch color TV will be raffled off. Realty World is offering a radio and cassette player and a portable 5-inch TV. Kits for weatherizing, taking blood pressure or testing pool chemicals will be offered periodically throughout the weekend. Cuddly teddy bears add to the list of prizes. Come be a winner.

Product Show takes a lot of work

The Greater Manchester, East Hartford and South Windsor chambers of commerce extend their sincere appreciation to Pratt & Whitney Field, and also to the many employees within the corporation that assisted in the production.

Special thanks to Bernard Cramer, Robert Lenczycki and Geraldine Shaw.

An event of this magnitude would not be possible without the dedicated efforts of a dynamic steering committee, and the assistance of many local businesses and corporations.

The steering committee members are Joe McCavanagh, Charles Mahan, Spurgeon Stokes, Steven Thornton, Kenneth Braithwaite, Elizabeth Osborne, Donald Martin, Patricia McLaughlin, Steve Leibin and Tom O'Marra.

The following businesses made it possible for civic and non-profit organizations to display at the Product Show: American Cancer Society; Manchester Area Conference of Churches; Cheney Brothers National Historic Landmark District, sponsored by the Manchester Herald; Lutz Children's Museum, sponsored by the Savings Bank of Manchester; Manchester's Eighth District Fire Department, sponsored by Dynamic Metal Products Co.; Town of Manchester Fire Department, sponsored by Al Siefert Appliances & TV; Manchester Memorial Hospital, sponsored by Wolff-Zackin Insurance; Manchester Police Department, sponsored by J.D. Real Estate; South Windsor Ambulance, sponsored by CT Valley Machine, Inc. and South Windsor Garage; and YMCA, sponsored by First Federal Savings.

Rentschler founded Pratt & Whitney in 1925

The man who founded Pratt & Whitney in 1925 and made its name synonymous with "dependable engines" was Frederick Brant Rentschler.

Having first become involved with aviation during World War I, Rentschler believed that the best aircraft could only be built around the best engine. He was convinced that advanced aircraft would require engines of far greater power and reliability, with less weight, than any that were on the horizon in the early 1920s.

For Rentschler and his small band of carefully chosen associates, Christmas of 1925 was an especially joyous occasion. The day before, less than five months after starting work, they had assembled the first prototype of their new engine, which they named the Wasp.

A radial engine with 1,340-cubic inch displacement, the Wasp weighed less than 650 pounds and developed 425 horsepower, an unheard-of power-to-weight ratio at the time. The fledgling Pratt & Whitney soon had its first contract — from the U.S. Navy for 200 Wasps.

The engine was an immediate hit with both the U.S. military and the emerging commercial air transport industry. But Pratt & Whitney did not rest on its laurels. Rentschler soon had his designers working on a second, more powerful engine called the Hornet.

Rentschler's company, which had started with 33 employees, quickly outgrew its Hartford plant, and in 1930 moved to a specially selected and developed site in East Hartford. Today, Pratt & Whitney, with a total of 45,000 employees, also has facilities in Florida, Maine, Georgia and Canada, as well as Middletown, North Haven, Rocky Hill and Southington in Connecticut.

The East Hartford facility is the largest, employing about 18,000 people in about 6.4 million square feet of floor space on 1,000 acres. In a recent year, Pratt & Whitney's East Hartford plant distributed payroll checks totaling $650 million, paid local property taxes of $7.9 million, and spent $57 million in capital additions and improvements.

During World War II, Pratt & Whitney built more than 130,000 aircraft engines for Allied forces. Half of all the horsepower used by American forces was delivered by Pratt & Whitney.

Following the war, the company began development of its first jet engine, the J57, which powered the first U.S. supersonic fighter, the F-100. The commercial version, the JT3, powered the Boeing 707 on its maiden flight in 1958, introducing commercial jet aviation to the U.S.

On Aug. 12, 1987, the company delivered its 25,000th commercial jet engine. No other engine manufacturer is close to that figure, which represents two-thirds of all the commercial jet engines ever delivered. Pratt & Whitney engines power three-fourths of all the commercial jetliners in the world.

The company's engines power about half of all U.S. military planes. These aircraft hold numerous records, including the highest altitude performance, fastest climb to altitude, longest range of unrefueled flight and highest aircraft speed.

Rentschler headed the company until his death in 1956. His name is memorialized on the airport facility which opened in East Hartford in 1931.

Expanded and modernized several times, Rentschler is the second largest airport in Connecticut, exceeded only by Bradley International, and is among the most superbly equipped and maintained private airports in the United States.

While keeping its original purpose as a test field, Rentschler now also serves as a base for United Technologies' corporate jet fleet. It also was a maintenance center for customers' aircraft engines, until that operation was moved to Southington in 1951.

Famous figures in aviation who have touched down at Rentschler include Charles Lindbergh, Amelia Earhart and Howard Hughes. The field formerly accommodated commercial and tenant aircraft, and has been used by many luminaries, including Presidents Dwight Eisenhower, John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson.

Its high ground made Rentschler a haven for aircraft and a base for Coast Guard rescue operations during the 1936 flood.

Thousands of spectators have jammed Rentschler and surrounding observation points for mammoth air shows staged for its dedication in 1931 and for celebration of Pratt & Whitney anniversaries, the most recent being the company's 60th in 1985.

Since Rentschler Airport has served the company and the community so well over the years, it is fitting that it plays host to the 1987 Product Show sponsored by the chambers of commerce of East Hartford, Manchester and South Windsor.

This is but one example of many contributions Pratt & Whitney makes to the community in partnership with other local organizations. These include sponsorship of the July 4th River Festival, Dance in the Park, Community Volunteer Festival and Manchester Road Race, various educational and career-training programs in the public schools, and donations of equipment and services to non-profit organizations and town government.

In addition, hundreds of Pratt & Whitney employees and retirees do volunteer work with civic organizations. For example, Bernard F. Cramer, the company's manager of customer relations, is serving this year as president of the East Hartford Chamber of Commerce.

By cooperating with other area businesses in support of chamber activities, Pratt & Whitney hopes to foster the same kind of entrepreneurial spirit that Frederick Rentschler demonstrated when he founded the company in 1925.
