NAVY SCUTTLES IRAN SHIP

U.S. won't tolerate any more mining

By Richard Pyle
The Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain — The U.S. Navy early Saturday scuttled an Iranian ship that was caught sowing mines in the Persian Gulf, and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said the United States would tolerate no more mining.

U.S. sailors on Friday placed explosives aboard the 180-foot, 1,662-ton Iran Ajr, towed it to deep waters off Bahrain, and detonated the charges, sinking the vessel, the Pentagon announced in Washington.

"The ship was sunk in a location where it will pose no hazard to shipping," said Col. Marvin Braman, a spokesman for the Pentagon.

The sinking took place at 12:51 a.m. Saturday (6:51 p.m. EDT Friday).

"We're very hopeful that this one episode will be a sufficient warning so that they will stop it, but we are not going to go on the basis of hopes," Weinberger said during a tour of U.S. warships in the gulf.

Asked earlier whether Iranian officials were advised that the Iran Ajr was being destroyed, he replied, "They'll see it when she goes up, or down, I should say ... it certainly will not be handed back so that it can engage in further activities."

Weinberger's announcement aboard the command vessel USS LaSalle that the Iran Ajr would be blown up was greeted by applause and cheers from about 200 sailors, according to reporters traveling in the Defense Department pool.

Weinberger, wearing khaki pants and a blue shirt, looked at nine mines taken from the Iran Ajr and then spoke of the Iranian claims the ship was carrying food and not mines.

"As you can see, that's the heaviest load of groceries anybody has ever seen," he said.

States backed away from a call for an arms embargo against Iran, and instead reaffirmed its willingness to work with the U.N. Security Council to achieve a cease-fire in the Iran-Iraq war.

"We're not seeking sanctions, we're seeking that this (U.N. peace) resolution be accepted and that a cease-fire come about," U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz said after a meeting with foreign ministers of China, France, Great Britain and the Soviet Union — the four other permanent members of the Security Council.

The five nations said in a statement that they would give full support to the U.N. secretary-general's efforts to implement the Security Council resolution calling for a cease-fire and expressed "determination to continue to work with each other within the Security Council."

The official Iraqi News Agency, monitored in Cyprus, said Iranian artillery kept shelling Basra and killed seven civilians Friday. It said Iraqi warplanes hit a tanker off the Iranian coast and targets deep inside Iran.

INA did not identify the vessel attacked and shipping executives in the region could not confirm the raid.

The agency said other targets included a war plant in Ahvaz, southwestern Iran, and military installations

"How bad is the mess? Honey, I don't know whether to call the cleaning lady or our insurance company."

Mourners pay their respects at the auto dealership he loved

MIDDLEBORO, Mass. (AP) — Leonard Hayes Chace loved every minute of the 41 years he spent going from a country garage mechanic to the glowing light of a high-volume car dealership. So when he died, his family decided to move the new Chevrolts aside and hold the wake in his showroom.

"When it's first presented to you, holding a wake in the showroom, it kind of rocks you back a little bit," said Bruce LaFleur, general manager of L.H. Chace and Sons. "But you had to know the man. He spent his entire life here, and we could think of no more fitting tribute to give the man."

"There is no question about it, it is a very unique situation. If you were running a hot dog stand or something, you certainly wouldn't do it."

Len Chace Jr. said his father began working as a mechanic in 1939 in a garage in East Freetown. In 1953, he purchased a Chevrolet franchise, which was moved to Middleboro in 1963. He retired in 1976, but was involved in business decisions until his death, Len Chace said.

"He had automobiles in his blood," LaFleur said.

A blaze of lights on a highway near the showroom pointed the way to the wake. Portable partitions and floral displays concealed the casket from passing motorists.

Chace, 81, died Wednesday. His body was placed in a casket at a funeral home, then moved to the showroom Thursday evening for the first day of the wake, which was attended by more than 200 people, LaFleur said.

Mourner David Maloney, a former dealership employee, said he thought the wake was strange, "but when I came in the door, it seemed just like a funeral home."

The body was returned to the funeral home, then taken back to the showroom Friday for continuation of the wake.

Cars were moved from the casket, chairs and the abundance of flowers, LaFleur said. A sign on the dealership's front door said the business was closed in Chace's honor and listed hours to view Chace's body.

A coffin bearing the body of Leonard H. Chace is removed from a hearse at the L.H. Chace & Sons car dealership in Middleboro, Mass., to prepare for his wake. The business was Chace's life's work.

Chace's granddaughter, Kathryn McNeil, said Chace's main concern was that the business make enough money to adequately support his family.

"He worked 24 hours a day, eight days a week," McNeil said. "He was always at the dealership."

"It's most unusual, but everyone we've talked to thought it was a fabulous idea," said Len Chace Jr. "Mainly, we felt he was at home in the dealership and this was where he would've liked to have been."

Chace's grandnephew, Jeff Wenzelberg, said he hoped Iran would heed the multinational military presence in the gulf and the threat of an arms embargo it ignores. A U.N. resolution demanding a cease-fire.

"I know the Iraqis feel that way, and I would just hope that some degree of sanity would return to the Iranian government so we could get the same result," he said.

Asked how U.S. citizens would react if U.S. forces suffered reversals, Weinberger said, "I would hope that the political will of the United States is as strong as the men out here defending us."

Asked if he thought the U.S. action would raise tensions in the gulf, Weinberger said, "You've got to bear in mind that the pot's been stirred up pretty thoroughly since 1979, and nothing has happened to give any hope of getting it over."

He viewed nine mines found intact aboard the Iran Ajr and said several more mines were located around the area. Navy demolition experts blew up one mine when Weinberger was aboard the nearby U.S.S. LaSalle.

The Navy began in July to escort 11 reflagged Kuwaiti tankers to protect them from Iran, which considers Kuwait an ally of Iraq. Both Iran and Iraq have attacked foreign ships in their seven-year war.

The Times of London reported that Navy commandos stormed the ship after the initial attack and fired at Iranian crewmen to stop them from sliding the rest of the ship's mines into the gulf.

The newspaper said the Navy used new and secret models of a new, ultra-quiet helicopter codenamed Sea Bat that flew just above sea level at 120 mph.

The Reagan administration has vowed to keep the Persian Gulf open to navigation. About 20 percent of the non-communist world's oil passes through the gulf.

Weinberger, beginning a five-day tour of the region, visited three of the 11 ships assigned to the Middle East Force, the Navy's gulf-based escort squadron.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, also monitored in Cyprus, reported no air raids, but said an Iraqi warplane was shot down over southwestern Iran. Iraq said all its jets returned safely.

IRNA said President Ali Khamenei returned to Iran from the United Nations on Friday and told reporters that Iran's "rigor toward the United States" grew after the Navy attacked and captured the Iran Ajr on Monday.

Other Iranian officials, vowing vengeance, have said the vessel was carrying non-military cargo and was not sowing mines.

Five Iranians were killed when the ship was captured and 26, including four wounded, were taken into U.S. custody. The survivors are to be repatriated to Iran on Saturday in Oman under the supervision of the Red Crescent, the Moslem equivalent of the Red Cross.

Persian Gulf Update

Teen-ager dies in scuffle after death rampage

MARSHFIELD, Mo. (AP) — A 14-year-old son of a farm family described as financially troubled apparently went on a shooting spree Friday that left his parents, three young brothers and an aunt dead before he was killed in a scuffle with an uncle, authorities said.

Police said apparently to have been carried out by Kirk Buckner, a high school freshman described by a school administrator as quiet and non-violent.

Authorities didn't speculate on a motive, but neighbors described the family as financially strained. "They all worked extremely hard," said a neighbor, Jim Murphy. "The boy worked harder than a 14-year-old should, I think. Dollars are real tight. They didn't have a phone, and hadn't had one for years."

Murphy said the boy did "a man's work all the time" and often asked him if he had any odd jobs that needed to be done. The boy was out working in the field past 8 p.m. Thursday "when most boys are at home watching television," Murphy said.

A schoolmate of the youth's, Brad Carr, agreed that the boy did a lot of work at home but said he couldn't explain what happened. "He'd done all the work around his farm," said Carr, 16. "He had a lot of pressure on his back. I didn't hear him complain."

Weber County Sheriff Eugene Fraker said a .22-caliber pistol believed to have been used in the slayings was found in the dead boy's hand. Investigators at the scene said Buckner apparently fired the shot.

Fraker said a coroner's jury was impaneled to investigate the shootings and an inquest was planned Monday. An autopsy was planned on Buckner.

"Well, I would hate to say what appears to be... We have not determined why he is over there," Fraker said of the discovery of Buckner at his aunt and uncle's house.

The first of the shootings apparently occurred near dawn at the farm of Jan and Steve Buckner, Buckner's parents, near Elkland, a small community near Marshfield and about 20 miles northeast of Springfield in southern Missouri.

Fraker said authorities were first alerted to the slayings when Jim Schnick, 36, Buckner's uncle, called and "said he needed help at his farm. Paramedics found he had been wounded."

Fraker said he and his deputies found Buckner shot or stabbed to death and Julie Schnick, in her 30s, shot to death in a bedroom.

Authorities said Kirk Buckner apparently was killed while he scuffled with Schnick. The Schnicks' two children were not harmed, the sheriff said.

Fraker said a relative who was called to the Schnick residence "said we should check on the Steve Buckners because that was where the boy was from."

Deputies sent to the Buckner farm, about five miles away, found Mrs. Buckner, in her 30s, shot to death near a barn and the other three Buckner children — Michael, 2, Timmy, 6, and Dennis, 8 — shot to death inside the house.

The boys' father, also in his 30s, was found several hours later shot to death in a cemetery about a mile from the Buckner home, authorities said.

Schnick was listed in fair and stable condition with abdominal wounds Friday afternoon at a Springfield hospital.

Kirk Buckner started his freshman year about three weeks ago at Marshfield High School, where Principal Bill Walker said he had "no problems whatsoever."

Audie DeHart, principal at Marshfield Junior High which Buckner attended the past two years, described Buckner as reasonably quiet, "but not one of those who never talks to people," and no troublemaker. "He was not an extrovert. He was very cooperative to work with."

"Nothing in his school background would indicate this type of violence... He didn't have a violent temper. He didn't have a tendency to want to hurt people with his fists or even with words. He didn't talk bad about other people," DeHart said.

DeHart described Buckner as below-average in academics but would not elaborate.

DeHart said counseling sessions would be held at the junior high for youngsters who went to school there with Buckner.

You'll find it all at Product Show

From fantastically rich brownies to ceramic tiles, from antique airplanes to high-tech computers, you'll find it all at this weekend's 10th Anniversary Product Show, at Restacker Field in the Pratt & Whitney complex in East Hartford.

More than 200 exhibitors are expected, showing their home apes, financial planning assistance, ideas for home improvement, billiard tables and more. It is a cooperative venture of the Greater Manchester, East Hartford and South Windsor chambers of commerce.

This year, a special feature will be "Connecticut by Air," a salute to Pratt & Whitney and other United Technologies companies, for the significant roles they have played in the history of aviation. There will be a 20-minute film about Connecticut, including more than 20 minutes of aerial footage. The world's most advanced commercial jet engine will be on display, in addition to antique airplanes, offered in cooperation with the Connecticut Antique Airplane Club.

Entertainment on Saturday includes Teresa, Pomegranate, Mass-Conn-Fusion and Oaks & Howey. On Sunday, featured performers include folk singer Glen Fuge and pop performer Jeff Wenzelberg.

Winners are invited to view the exhibits, enjoy continuous musical entertainment at the showmobile and sample interesting food under the dining tent.

Even if you're not making a purchase, you may go home loaded with goodies. There will be drawings for all sorts of things, including free vacations, color televisions, sets of luggage and tape cassettes. Many booths offer helium balloons, raters, key chains and other souvenirs.

The show is open Saturday from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Admission is $3, and children under 6 will be admitted free.

To get there, go through the Silver Lane entrance to Pratt & Whitney or the entrance at Main and Willow streets. Signs will direct you to the parking areas. Shuttle buses will run continuously from the parking lots to the Restacker hangar.

State police have a busy day at 2,500 feet

By Bruce Matzkin
Herald Reporter

Hey, speeders. Look. Up in the sky. It's a bird, it's a plane, it's... it's... why, it IS a plane. And in it is a state trooper who has just caught you driving much faster than you should be.

So when you pass a guy in uniform standing on the side of the highway, waving for you to pull over, don't say to yourself, "How could he have clocked me? I slowed down as soon as my radar detector sounded." You see, the guy waving you over is not the one who clocked you.

On Wednesday, I had the opportunity to go up in a single-engine Cessna 182 with a state trooper and a pilot from the state police's aviation crew. I went along to watch how state police catch speeders at 2,500 feet. The pilot, Sgt. Pat St. John, in one of five trooper-pilots in the aviation section crew. The trooper, James Cash, is one of several spotters who go up to clock the speeders.

AFTER TAKING OFF, our first destination was Route 6 in Andover. The aviation crew has been assigned to monitor Route 6 periodically by the state police's Eastern District Traffic Section, which is engaged in a program to make major secondary roads, such as Routes 6, 86, and 44, safer.

"I didn't realize Connecticut had so many trees," I said to myself as we flew toward Andover. The foliage must cover about two-thirds of the area we were over, and it was so thick, I could actually see the shadow of the plane moving along the tree tops.

Traffic was slow on Route 6 Wednesday. After locating the state trooper below in his unmarked Buick Grand National, we spent about a half-hour in the area, but caught only one van passing in a no-passing zone. Cash radioed to the trooper, known to me only as Henry, and the van was pulled over as soon as it passed the spot where Henry was waiting. Then we left and flew off to I-94 over Willington, where Cash and St. John expected business to be a little better.

WHEN WE ARRIVED over I-94, we had about 20 minutes to kill before Henry got there. After all, it's a lot quicker to travel in a straight line, and without stopping. While waiting for Henry, Cash demonstrated how he clocks a car.

Cash held a timer box in front of him. He pointed out a car, and as soon as it got to a white X painted on the side of the highway, Cash pushed the start button. "So that's what those X's are," you say to yourself.

When the car got to the next X, which is exactly one-quarter of a mile away, Cash hit the stop button. Two numbers appeared on the box: 12.2, which is the number of seconds it took the car to get from the first X to the second X; and 74, the car's speed.

Not trusting the timer, I did some quick math with my pen and pad.

Seventy-four miles in one hour, or 3,600 seconds, equals one mile every 48.65 seconds, or one-quarter mile every 12.16 seconds, which rounded is 12.2 seconds. Pretty impressive, huh?

CASH CLOCKED several speeders while we waited, but we had no way to stop them. Then, when one blue car was clocked in Union at 99 mph — that's right, 99 — St. John followed the car for about 15 miles until Henry got into position.

Henry radioed that he had now arrived at Exit 67 in Rockville, and the speeder was just passing Exit 68, heading west. As the speeder got closer, Cash instructed Henry to flash a radar beam to see if the speeder had a detector. Sure enough, the speeder slowed way down. But it was all over for him, because as soon as he passed Exit 67, Henry was waiting for him. The speeder faced a $184 fine and a court appearance.

As a speeder approached Henry, Cash radioed the car's color, size, lane location, and a description of cars nearby, helping Henry nab the correct car.

The next victim was clocked at 90 mph.

"We're hitting 'em good today. We've got some high rollers," said Cash after clocking this car.

A few minutes later, two cars were spotted in the left lane, zipping past other cars as if they were standing still. The front car was going 96 mph, and the back one was going 100 mph. Henry nabbed both of them.

THIS STREAK ENDED, though, when a speeder being waved over by Henry was blocked by a tractor-trailer in the right lane, making him unable to see Henry waving him over. The truck thought Henry meant him, and he pulled over. But Henry, who didn't have the time to stop and tell the trucker he wasn't the culprit, jumped into his cruiser, turned on the flashers, and chased down the speeder.

While ticketing this car, two more speeders approached, and Henry waved them over. Then came another, and there were now four drivers waiting for their tickets.

"Gee, he's got to get them sorted out down there," said St. John.

Henry soon moved up the highway between Exits 71 and 70, and was joined by another trooper. Together, they pulled over another eight or nine speeders without getting in their Buicks, and at one point, they had six cars pulled over. The total that day was 15 speeders. And it looked pretty easy, just like another of the pilots, Sgt. David Bastedo, had told me it was before we took off.

"It's like watching a line of ants," Bastedo said. "And then you see this beetle passing all the ants on the left."

MCC's Bavier is happy to go

By Andrew J. Davis
Herald Reporter

The end is approaching for Thomas N. Bavier, and he could not be happier about it.

Next week, Bavier will go back to being Manchester Community College's dean of administrative affairs, giving up his role as acting chief administrative officer, a position he took on with the resignation of Dr. William E. Vincent. Bavier will relinquish the title when Dr. Jonathan M. Daube assumes his new duties Thursday.

Daube is the former president of Berkshire Community College in Pittsfield, Mass., where he served for nine years.

"I'll be happy to return to my old position," Bavier said, smiling. "In this position, I'm neither a dean nor a president. It's a nebulous title to begin with."

Bavier, 40, said he was happy to have had a chance to become acting chief. He received that chance when Vincent left in June to become president of Bucks County Community College in Newton, Pa. "It's good experience," Bavier said. "It made me look at the college in a way I haven't done before."

An East Hartford native and a graduate of East Catholic High School, Bavier said his interim position did not fuel thoughts of seeking a college presidency elsewhere.

"At the present time, I have no aspirations for becoming a president," he said. "I've only been a full dean since 1984. My goal is to become the best dean I can. It's too early to speculate. In the future, it may be a temptation."

Bavier was promoted from assistant dean to dean of administrative affairs three years ago. He has been at the college since 1973, where he started as a part-time counselor in the community service program, which is now known as continuing education. He graduated from the College of the Holy Cross in Worcester, Mass., and received his graduate degree in counseling from the University of Connecticut.

And until he returns to that post, he will continue to make sure MCC stays on a straight path. He said that getting the college prepared for the start of Daube's tenure is his main responsibility.

"It's a short period of time," he said, "but my role has been to prepare a smooth transition from one president to another. Any new president would like to know that the people reporting to him work as a team."

To get his staff to work "as a team," Bavier said he expects a lot from them.

"I'm a hard-nosed manager. I'm demanding of the people who work for me," he said. "But the people who work for me are so good... it's rare an expectation is not met."

Bavier expects a lot from himself as well.

"In my job, it's very important to be a good listener," he said. "I'm honest and open. I expect people to tell me when I'm going in the wrong direction. It's important for someone in my position to get as much advice within reason before making a decision."

"I try not to surprise people. And I rarely make promises. If I make a promise, it's rare that I won't hold to it. I try not to raise people's expectations unnecessarily. The last thing I want to do is disappoint people."

Attention: house sellers

The Town of Manchester water and sewer division has issued procedures for those selling properties receiving town water or sewer service or both.

Those who are selling the property should phone the division's billing office three days before the closing date with the following information:

The closing date, the account number, the address, the name and phone number of the seller's attorney, and the water-meter reading.

Both an inside and outside reading are needed if the meter is equipped with a visual outside register.

The town does not provide a final bill to the seller and must provide figures to the seller's lawyer so an adjustment can be made at the closing.

Teacher from Buckley is tops

By Andrew J. Davis
Herald Reporter

Vicki J. Torsiello has joined the ranks of Joan Taylor, Dr. Leroy E. Hay, Laura P. Boutillier, Arthur E. Glaeser Jr., and Donna Fitzgerald.

Torsiello, a second-grade teacher at Buckley School, is the sixth person to be named Manchester Teacher of the Year.

The announcement was made Friday at the Manchester Board of Education offices by James P. Kennedy, school superintendent. Edward H. Timbrell, Buckley's principal, and Torsiello were also on hand.

She is the first elementary school teacher to win such an honor. She will compete in the state competition later this year.

"It's quite an honor," Torsiello said. "It's a privilege to represent the staff and other elementary school teachers."

Torsiello and her husband, Richard, a teacher at Iling Junior High School, live at 231 N. Elm St. She said working with small children is a challenge.

"When you work with young children, you have to discover what a child's needs are," she said. "Each child is an individual."

Along with her teaching duties, Torsiello is the school math coordinator and is the school's representative to the Manchester Education Association. She also serves on several school committees.

Torsiello started her Manchester teaching career 14 years ago as a kindergarten teacher at Washington School, and moved to a similar position at Buckley 10 years ago. She has been teaching second grade for nine years.

Kennedy said Torsiello was chosen over four Manchester teachers. They are: Jean L. Lambert, a social studies teacher at Bennet Junior High School; June C. Walch, a language arts teacher at Iling Junior High School; Mona Cunningham, a second-grade teacher at Nathan Hale School, and D. Susan Hardy, an alternate education teacher at Manchester High School.

come from Buckley.

"She's an excellent teacher," he said. "She has a good rapport with staff members, students and parents. She's had many glowing responses from parents."

Torsiello said she received the news Wednesday from Timbrell. She said she feared she was going to hear bad news from her principal.

"I thought he was going to give me my rejection papers," she said.

On Friday, she told her class, and Timbrell announced the award over the school loudspeaker. She received a round of applause from her class, as well as hand-made cards and special congratulations from other classes at the school, she said.

BHS gets an aide for its butt ban

By Andrew J. Davis
Herald Reporter

BOLTON — The Board of Education has agreed to hire one full-time aide to help Bolton High School enforce its new smoking ban.

The unanimous decision came at the school board's Thursday night meeting in Bolton Center School.

The board was acting on a request by Principal Joseph V. Fleming, who asked for an aide to catch potential violators.

Two new state anti-smoking laws go into effect Oct. 1, when the school ban will start. One bans the sale of any tobacco products to those under 18. The other bans smoking in school and during school functions. Students at the school now are allowed to smoke in designated smoking areas.

"This is an outgrowth of the new laws," Fleming told board members at the meeting. "The intent is to keep cigarette and tobacco products out of schools."

Fleming said the school will soon begin advertising for the aide. The position will pay $5,000 to $6,000, said Richard E. Packman, school superintendent.

An aide is needed because students have many places to grab a "quick smoke," Fleming said. The school has 10 entrances and exits, and four lavatories to police, he said.

"It only takes less than a minute to light a cigarette and have four to five drags," Fleming said. "We'll police the area as best as we can, but we have to guarantee that someone will be around the grounds."

Even though school officials will do the best they can to control smoking at the school, Fleming said he is not naive enough to think that the ban will end smoking.

"We're going to have kids that smoke," he said. "Some are not going to stop."

About 10 percent of the students smoke, Fleming said.

In other matters, the board reviewed a letter by James H. Marshall, Board of Education chairman, advertising for more school bus drivers.

"The Bolton School System is approaching a crisis situation in attracting qualified bus drivers," Marshall said in the letter. "At this point our after-school activities and athletic programs are seriously being threatened by this shortage of drivers."

The problem became so serious that recently one bus had to handle two runs for three days, Packman said. Students on the later run did not get home until 4:45 p.m., he said.

To alleviate the problem, the board has asked team coaches to drive buses to sporting events. However, no coach has agreed to drive so far.

Obituaries

C. Edward Hanna Jr., 62, vice president at UConn

C. Edward Hanna Jr., 62, of 25 Fernwood Drive, Bolton, died Friday at Manchester Memorial Hospital. He was the husband of Vivian (Stoehr) Hanna.

Born in Manchester on Oct. 3, 1924, he lived in Manchester until moving to Bolton 27 years ago. He was a veteran of World War II, serving in the U. S. Army, where he received the Purple Heart twice. He was a graduate of Manchester High School, Class of 1943, and Bryant College in Rhode Island, Class of 1948, with a major in accounting. In 1978, he received his master's degree in business administration from the Hartford Graduate Center.

He started his career with the state in 1955 in the audit-control office, and transferred to the University of Connecticut to become chief accountant. He then advanced to controller, and was most recently appointed to the position of vice president of finance. He was an active member of North United Methodist Church of Manchester, and served in many church capacities.

Besides his wife, he is survived by one daughter, Karen Hanna, at home.

The funeral will be Monday at 11 a.m. at North United Methodist Church, 300 Parker St. Burial will be in East Cemetery, calling hours are at the Watkins Funeral Home, 142 E. Center St., Sunday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Actress Mary Astor's best-known role was the dark-eyed temptress of "The Maltese Falcon," opposite Humphrey Bogart, shown with her in the 1941 film. Astor died Friday at 81.

Actress Mary Astor, film legend, dies at 81

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mary Astor, who survived a steamy Hollywood scandal and went on to play the treacherous temptress Brigid O'Shaughnessy in "The Maltese Falcon" and star in dozens of other films, died Friday. She was 81.

She died of respiratory failure due to pulmonary emphysema, said Motion Picture and Television Country House and Hospital spokeswoman Jean Ferris. The actress had been a longtime resident of the actors' retirement complex.

Astor made her screen debut in the silent era at age 14, and was almost a casualty of the transition to talkies. She also fell victim to drink and drugs. But both times she found the strength to make a new start.

"People like that don't grow old in spirit. She was always like a young woman; she laughed like a girl," recalled actor-director Jose Ferrer, who appeared with Astor in one of her last films, 1961's "Return to Peyton Place."

Ruby Keeler, who was an actress with Astor during the 1930s at Warner Bros., said, "She was a fine actress and a beautiful lady. I say 'lady,' and I mean it. I'm very sorry to hear of her death."

Keeler, who lives in Palm Desert, never worked with Astor in a movie but was a neighbor in the Toluca Lake area in the late 1930s.

Astor's films included "Dodsworth" with Walter Huston; "Prisoner of Zenda" with Ronald Colman; and "The Great Lie," with Bette Davis, which won her a supporting actress Oscar.

But she was best known as the scheming adventuress who killed Sam Spade's partner amid intrigue over the treasure of "The Maltese Falcon." The 1941 John Huston film, co-starring Humphrey Bogart, Sydney Greenstreet and Peter Lorre, became a classic.

"You're good — you're very good," Bogart, as Spade, tells O'Shaughnessy. He falls for her, but won't "play the sap" to keep her out of prison.

"The chances are you'll get off with life. That means if you're a good girl, you'll be out in 20 years. I'll be waiting for you. If they hang you, I'll always remember you."

Astor was born Lucile Vasconcelos Langhanke in Quincy, Ill., on May 3, 1906, an only child. Her father, a German immigrant who worked as a poultry farmer, window decorator and teacher, was quick to realize the money-making potential of his beautiful daughter. He moved the family to Chicago, where Lucile took drama lessons, and then to New York and Hollywood. She got a contract and a new name in 1920.

The first of her more than 100 films was "Sentimental Tommy," but her part was cut. Her second film, a one-reeler called "Bullets or Ballots," was never released.

Critical recognition came with the third film, a two-reeler called "The Beggar Maid." More action two-reelers lay ahead before she was cast in her first feature-length movie, "John Smith."

John Barrymore then spotted a picture of the pretty teen-ager in a magazine and cast her opposite him in "Beau Brummel." But a series of generally unmemorable films followed, enlivened by "Two Arabian Knights" and "Dressed to Kill."

As the industry made the transition to sound in 1929, Astor found herself out of work for 10 months.

Emlyn Williams, actor-playwright, dies at age 81

LONDON (AP) — Versatile actor-playwright Emlyn Williams, whose 1938 hit play "The Corn Is Green" described something like his own rise from working class Welshman to international artist, died Friday. He was 81.

Williams directed his friend, actor Richard Burton, in Burton's first movie role.

Williams' son, Alan, said the playwright died at his London home after recent cancer surgery.

Peter Walker, the Cabinet minister responsible for Wales, said Williams' death "is a great loss to Wales and to the whole world of entertainment."

Born the Welsh-speaking son of a factory worker, Williams became one of Britain's leading playwrights between the two world wars. He wrote more than 20 plays, a two-volume autobiography and one novel.

As an actor, he appeared in several movies and spent 25 years on the road bringing the works of Dylan Thomas and Charles Dickens to life through his one-man shows.

When asked which gave him greater pleasure, writing or performing, he once told an interviewer:

"It's like saying which child of yours that you like best... I think the writing really in the end because the books are always there."

Williams spent his last years in semi-retirement, appearing occasionally in several television films. At the age of 75, he published his only novel, "Headlong."

Thoughts

Acts 1:11, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as you have seen him go into heaven: My friends, Gods word says that Jesus is coming back. Will you be ready to meet him? Shall he be your saviour? Or will he be your judge? Matthew 13:41-43, The Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity: And shall cast them into a furnace of fire: there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth. Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. Who hath ears to hear, let him hear. Luke 13:5, I tell you, Nay; but except you repent, you shall all likewise perish. Friends, God tells us to repent and turn from our sins, to follow Jesus is to live and not be condemned. He that follows Jesus shall not walk in darkness but have the light of life.

Bridgeport police fail to get accreditation

BRIDGEPORT (AP) — The 151-year-old Bridgeport Police Department, plagued by political strife for years, has failed in its bid to become just the second department in the state to meet accreditation standards.

The department failed to meet 99 of the 944 standards set by the Commission on Accreditation on Law Enforcement Inc., Police Superintendent Joseph A. Walsh said Thursday after an accreditation team spent most of the week here.

The Glastonbury Police Department was accredited last year.

The commission, located in Virginia, has accredited only 51 law enforcement agencies out of about 15,000 in the nation, said Beth Deniston, a spokeswoman for the Fairfax, Va., commission.

The commission is a 4-year-old private non-profit corporation whose goal is to improve or maintain the quality of law enforcement agencies nationwide.

The accreditation team, comprised of retired and active deputy chiefs from across the country, arrived in Bridgeport Monday. Walsh said they told him the department's primary weakness was a lack of manpower in the nine-member Traffic Division.

The team also suggested that civilians should be hired to do some of the clerical duties now done by police officers, which would put more officers on the street.

Walsh and other city officials said the department will keep trying for accreditation.

"I'm very happy and pleased," Walsh said. "No city was ever accredited in a big hurry."

Bridgeport officials spent 17 months reviewing the department and preparing for the examination by the accreditation team. The project cost the city about $9,400.

The team will write a full report, which will be submitted to the commission within 30 days.

Some police chiefs do not believe accreditation is necessary. Cromwell Police Chief Michael Green, who is vice president of the Connecticut Police Chiefs Association, said the association does not agree with imposing a national standard on individual police departments.

"The bottom line is what's good for Jacksonville, Fla., may not be a good standard for Hartford, Conn.," Green said.

Walsh, who has been superintendent since 1961, has fought with mayors and police boards for control of the department. Some minorities have claimed Walsh's department discriminated against minorities.

Weicker treated for kidney stones

HARTFORD — U.S. Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. was undergoing treatment for kidney stones Friday at the Naval Medical Center in Bethesda, Md., a spokesman for the Connecticut Republican reported.

Weicker complained of "discomfort" and was driven to the hospital at 6:30 a.m. Friday by his wife, said spokesman Steve Snider.

Weicker, 56, was "receiving some kind of fluid treatment," Snider said. The spokesman added that Weicker has never experienced a similar condition. Snider said he didn't know how long Weicker would remain hospitalized with the condition.

Pipe bomb blamed for explosion

MIDDLEFIELD — State police said Friday they believe a pipe bomb was responsible for an explosion that damaged a concessions stand in a town ballpark.

The 9:45 p.m. Thursday explosion at Peckham Field destroyed 20 of the building's cinderblocks, state police spokeswoman Marcy Stamm said. No one was in the building and no injuries were reported, state police said.

Bomb technicians will help reconstruct the device, which exploded outside the building, she said.

No arrests have been made and no motive determined, Stamm said.

Man adds new twist to politics

SIMSBURY — In politics, where mudslinging is common, Richard C. Martink has added a new twist — can slinging.

Martink, a town maintenance worker, is asking people to throw cans and bottles on his front lawn to support his write-in campaign for selectman.

He plans to use the 5-cent deposits he receives from cashing in the containers to fund his campaign organization: The Committee to Recycle Simsbury Government.

Martink figures he needs 6,000 cans and bottles to raise the $300 he expects to spend. He has set aside space on his front lawn for contributions.

"People who have known me for a long time don't think it's unusual," Martink said. So far, only family members have pitched in to the can campaign.

His tongue-in-cheek scheme prompted Selectman James P. Fenton, a Democrat seeking re-election in November, to ask whether Martink is "a real can-didate."

Groton suspends deputy chief

GROTON — The city's deputy police chief has been suspended for five days and four other police officers are suspects in "irregularities" in a department-sponsored bicycle auction, the police chief says.

Deputy Chief Richard T. Horan, an 18-year veteran, was suspended without pay Wednesday. Chief Robert D. Laurie said Thursday.

Laurie said an internal investigation was completed Thursday and turned over to the New London County state's attorney's office. The chief declined to comment on the likelihood of criminal charges.

He called the alleged irregularities "a stupid mistake" that's "going to reflect on the whole department."

Laurie refused to identify by name or rank the four other officers being investigated.

Coast Guard chief fears budget crisis

NEW LONDON (AP) — The Coast Guard commandant said Friday that a "budget crisis" could force the service to trim 2,500 personnel and close numerous air and search and rescue stations.

But Adm. Paul A. Yost Jr. said he is optimistic of Senate action next week to restore $150 million the House trimmed from President Reagan's $2.73 billion request for the Coast Guard in the 1988 fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

Yost, speaking at a news conference at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, also made a plea for placing the Coast Guard under a new budget category he said would improve its chances for adequate funding.

Currently the service, which is funded through the Department of Transportation, competes with grant programs for mass transit and "Congress finds it necessary to go to the Coast Guard budget for the money," Yost said.

"It's like getting in the ring with Joe Louis every year," he said. "You know you're going to get hurt, you just don't know how badly until it's over."

The House authorization bill passed in July trimmed the Reagan request by some $150 million, and the Senate is expected to act, possibly next week, on the $2.58 billion figure for 1988.

The Coast Guard budget for the current fiscal year ending Oct. 1 is $2.54 billion.

Some of the difference is likely to be made up with $100 million to the Coast Guard from the Pentagon's Defense Readiness Fund, however, leaving the actual possible shortfall at nearly $50 million.

If all $150 million were trimmed from the Coast Guard's operating and capital accounts, some 2,500 of the branch's 35,000 personnel would be trimmed, 90 of its 186 ships would be tied up, six of its 28 air stations and 17 search and rescue stations closed, and many aircraft moth-balled, Yost said.

"If there's a way to waste taxpayers' money, that's it," he said. "Build a new patrol boat and leave it tied up."

He did not specify which stations would be affected, but said that Long Island, where the Coast Guard patrols heavily, would be affected heavily.

The last serious budget cuts the Coast Guard suffered were in 1982,

State offers reward for Merrill

HARTFORD — Gov. William A. O'Neill on Friday authorized a $10,000 reward for information leading to the capture of Frederick Merrill, a convicted rapist who escaped from the maximum security state prison in Somers on Aug. 23.

Lt. William E. Sydenham, who requested the reward, said Merrill is "a convicted felon with serious additional felony charges pending and it considered a threat to the community."

No overtime pay for appointees

HARTFORD — The state has adopted a policy that forbids appointed officials, such as heads of state agencies, from being paid for time they work beyond the standard 40-hour week.

Administrative Services Commissioner Stephen J. Negri, acting at the request of the governor, made the new policy public on Friday.

"We recognize your need to work extended hours to carry out your responsibilities," Negri said in a letter to appointed officials dated Friday. "However, these hours should not be recorded."

The policy does allow, however, the "judicious and occasional use of daytime hours for personal business," Negri said.

The issue came to a head last summer when state auditors discovered that former Mental Health Commissioner Audrey M. Worrell had used 62 days of compensatory time in lieu of vacation time and had been paid for 38 unused vacation days when she left her job, costing the state $12,200.

Activists to protest animal pulls

HARTFORD — Animal welfare activists opposed to ox, horse and pony pulls at country fairs plan to stage a protest this weekend across from the entrance to the Durham fair, one of the state's largest autumn fairs.

Joining the protest will be members of the Fund for Animals and the Connecticut Humane Society, who say the pulls can result in cruel treatment, such as face whipping and the withholding of water before a pull to allow an animal to qualify for a lower weight class.

Julie E. Lewin of the Fund for Animals said the groups also oppose the use of state funds being used for some prize money in animal pulls. She said the state Department of Agriculture contributed $40,000 to state fairs this year, part of which goes for prizes.

State Agriculture Commissioner Kenneth B. Andersen said the matter was under review.

Enfield loses zoning insurance

ENFIELD — The town of Enfield has been forced to switch insurance carriers after its former carrier refused to include zoning officials in a new liability policy.

The town's former carrier, International Surplus Lines Insurance Co. of Chicago, cited two recent U.S. Supreme Court rulings regarding zoning ordinances as factors in its decision.

The high court ruled that property owners are entitled to compensation if zoning regulations illegally deprive them of the reasonable use of their land. Some say the rulings could make it easier for landowners to file lawsuits against zoning officials.

"As policies expire, a lot of other towns could find themselves in the same situation," said Enfield Mayor Richard E. LeBorcius.

Problems plague I-84 project

WATERBURY — The contractor awarded the largest single highway contract in Connecticut history has been the target of repeated complaints for its work on Interstate 84, according to a published report.

The White Oak Corp. of Plainville has been criticized in its efforts to level the medians and shoulders on I-84 between Waterbury and Newtown.

The project has been impeded by belated design changes, the use of inferior material and insufficient provisions to protect the environment, and appears to be running well over its $5.8 million budget, the the Waterbury Republican reported in Thursday's editions.

Last month, White Oak and its subsidiary, Connecticut Sand and Stone Corp., were awarded an $88.5 million contract to build a connector between interstates 84 and 91 in Hartford. The project is the largest ever awarded by the Department of Transportation.

Congratulations, Judge

T. Clark Hull, right, is congratulated by Chief Justice Ellen A. Peters after being sworn in by Gov. William A. O'Neill Friday as the newest member of the Connecticut Supreme Court. As he thanked O'Neill for nominating him, Hull told a packed courtroom that when O'Neill picked him, "his leadership qualities have never shone brighter."

O'Neill rejects Republican call for special session to cut tax

HARTFORD (AP) — Republican legislative leaders called Friday for a special General Assembly session to cut the 7.5 percent sales tax by one percentage point — half a point now and half a point July 1, 1988.

The idea was immediately rejected as premature by Democratic Gov. William A. O'Neill, who said the GOP was simply trying to make political points.

House Minority Leader Robert Jaekle, R-Stratford, and Senate Minority Leader Reginald Smith, R-New Hartford, estimated the reduction would save taxpayers $270 million a year.

"The most unfair tax we have in the state is our sales tax," said Smith. "It's not only burdensome, it's extortionate and should be reduced as soon as possible."

Jaekle said a half-point reduction in the sales tax now would be a boon to Christmas shoppers.

The GOP leaders said they were mounting a petition drive to force a special session. They need the signatures of a majority of the 187 state lawmakers.

O'Neill said it was too early to talk about tax cuts because the budget for 1988-89 was still being worked on. That budget will be taken up by the 1988 General Assembly, which convenes in February.

Further, he said, his preference is to give more state aid to cities and towns to help them hold the line on property taxes.

He said, however, that he had not ruled out cuts in state taxes in his 1988-89 budget. The governor suggested that Jaekle and Smith talk to mayors and first selectmen about taxes and predicted that they'd find out that local officials prefer more state aid.

O'Neill also rejected Republican claims that his budget office and the state comptroller deliberately underestimate tax revenue in order to ensure annual surpluses.

He said that it's impossible to predict revenues down to the penny when budgets are drafted months in advance of the start of the fiscal year.

Said O'Neill: "It's all by guess and by golly."

Army commander stages 2nd coup in Fiji

SUVA, Fiji (AP) — Army commander Sitiveni Rabuka on Friday staged his second coup in five months, vowing to put into effect his original plan to restore political power to ethnic Fijians over the larger Indian population.

Rabuka, a 39-year-old ethnic Fijian, declared over national radio that he reassumed authority over the interim government led by Governor-General Ratu Sir Penaia Ganilau.

He imposed an immediate 5 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew throughout Fiji, a South Pacific island nation about 2,000 miles northeast of Sydney, Australia. There were no reports of injuries.

"I wish to assure all citizens, irrespective of race or creed, that the rule of law will be maintained," Rabuka said. "I appeal to everyone to remain calm and not to cause any disturbance."

Australian Broadcasting Corp. reported some shops in Suva were shuttered and armed troops patrolled the streets Saturday, although the main central market was open. It also said that while there were military roadblocks on the island's main highway, communications were being restored.

The Australian Associated Press news agency said Saturday that Judge Michael Rooney, one of a number of officials seized Friday, had been released.

It said Rooney was arrested at his home, held for four hours and then released, but in jail he met Timoci Bavadra, leader of the Indian-majority coalition government ousted in Rabuka's first coup on May 14.

"We agreed that we were sorry to have met under such dismal circumstances," Rooney said.

AAP said other detainees included former Foreign Minister Krishna Datt, Trade Minister Navin Maharaj, Labor and Immigration Minister Joell Kalau, Trade Union Congress secretary James Raman and Suva Mayor Bob Kumar.

According to the AAP report, Bavadra was arrested after troops ransacked his home. It said more than 50 soldiers went to Bavadra's home, fired shots in the ceiling and terrorized Bavadra's wife and nine children, but that nobody was injured.

In Washington, the State Department denounced the coup and cautioned American tourists to stay out of remote areas. It said $1.3 million in U.S. foreign assistance, withheld in May after Rabuka's first coup, remains on hold.

The coup came after a week of ethnic violence and two days after Ganilau and Fiji's rival political parties agreed to form a bipartisan caretaker government.

Rabuka did not mention the agreement. But he said Ganilau, who represents Queen Elizabeth II in the former British colony, failed to guarantee ethnic Fijian control of the government.

Fijians make up 47 percent of the nation's 715,000 people. Indians, descendants of sugar plantation labor indentured during British rule, make up 49 percent. Fiji gained independence in 1970.

Sessions confirmed as FBI head

WASHINGTON — The Senate on Friday overwhelmingly approved the nomination of William S. Sessions, a moderate federal judge from San Antonio, to a statutory 10-year term as director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The Senate voted 90-0 to approve President Reagan's nomination, with both Democrats and Republicans praising the credentials of Sessions who replaces William H. Webster, now head of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Democratic Sen. Lloyd Bensten and Republican Sen. Phil Gramm, both of Texas, led the praise for Sessions during the few minutes the nomination was on the Senate floor.

Gramm called Sessions "a sound jurist and a committed lawyer who will bring tremendous knowledge and integrity to the task of the FBI."

Guardianship abuses detailed

WASHINGTON — Elderly Americans told a House panel Friday of their terror and humiliation as wards of a troubled guardianship system that stripped them of their rights under the guise of protection.

"What began as a plan to protect myself and my affairs while I recovered from my stroke ended up a nightmare," said Minnie Monoff, 81, of Greeley, Kan.

"All you have to do is to have a stroke or be in a coma and they can take away all your rights," added Marguerite Van Eiten, 68, of Plantation, Fla.

The two women and others told tales of forcible removal from their homes, forced admission to nursing homes, theft committed by their guardians and loss of basic rights such as getting mail, telephone calls and money from the bank.

"I felt so helpless. It really hurt that I was branded incompetent and no one would listen to me," said Tod Porterfield, 83, of Albion, Ind., at the end of a tearful presentation. "How can a man step in and just take over another man's life, and no one even questions it?"

Aspirin triggers plant's urges

WASHINGTON — When a voodoo lily gets into a reproductive mood, it takes some aspirin and calls up a beetle in the morning.

That's the finding of a group of scientists who investigated the chemical basis for a rise in temperature detected in the flowering organ of the voodoo lily.

In research conducted at Modesto, Calif., the researchers found that salicylic acid, the chemical in common aspirin, will trigger a temperature increase in an organ called the appendix, a part of the voodoo lily flower.

Pope is gone, but not forgotten

NEW YORK (AP) — Pope John Paul II is gone but he's not forgotten, not in the hearts of Catholics who live in the cities he visited on his U.S. tour and certainly not in their pocketbooks.

Local church officials say they have seen increased church attendance, heightened interest in the priesthood and an energized flock in the wake of the pope's visit. But they also face the prospect of raising hundreds of thousands of dollars to pay for his tour.

In San Francisco, Archbishop John Quinn has asked parishes to take up a special collection to help pay the $3.3 million cost of John Paul's 29-hour visit to that city. More than $1 million remains to be raised.

In Columbia, S.C., where the cost of the five-hour visit was about $500,000 and the debt stands at about $150,000 — the church is mailing a plea for money to donors suggested by local priests, and has received small, unsolicited checks from around the country.

The money comes from people who saw the pope on television and are still on "a spiritual high," said Bishop Ernest L. Unterkoefler.

In San Antonio, Texas, officials believe they spent less than the $2.5 million they budgeted; as of Sept. 11, they had collected about $2 million.

In Monterey, Calif., just over two-thirds of the $2 million budget was raised before the visit. In New Orleans, the cost is estimated at $2 million, and the latest figures, tabulated a month before the pope's arrival, indicated that the archdiocese had raised between $1 million and $1.5 million.

Officials in Detroit, where $1.5 million was budgeted, said they're still computing.

Miami officials said they expect to meet their $1.8 million budget, and the same goes for Los Angeles, where the cost was $2.5 million.

And in Phoenix, Ariz., where costs are estimated at $1.5 million, they may have a profit, once parish collections and video sales are counted.

LA closes homeless campground

LOS ANGELES — Workers dismantled the city's camp for the homeless Friday while transients stuffed possessions into plastic bags and shopping carts and abandoned the dusty cots and canopies that had been their summer homes.

Most of the estimated 200 homeless lingering at the camp Friday would end up back on Skid Row streets, said the project director, Salvation Army Lt. Col. David P. Riley, who joined others in a negative assessment of the experiment.

"It's been a tough operation for us because this is more like a refugee camp than a proper home," Riley said. "At least 200 who stayed here during the summer have gotten some kind of work, but those here now will likely return to the streets or some other inadequate housing."

Hurricane races across Bermuda

HAMILTON, Bermuda — Hurricane Emily blew boats out of the water, flipped cars and tore off roofs Friday, injuring at least 16 people with its gusts of up to 112 mph as it raced across Bermuda and into the Atlantic.

Forecasters were stunned that Emily gained strength even as it picked up forward speed.

No deaths or serious injuries were reported, said Bryan Darby, Bermuda government spokesman.

"We've been very lucky," Darby said. "It was a swift, sharp punch."

Power was cut off over about 90 percent of the island but by early afternoon workers had restored electricity to Hamilton. Darby said he expected the entire island to be back on full power by Saturday.

Bill averts government shutdown

WASHINGTON — The Senate on Friday approved a stopgap spending bill to keep the government running into November while lawmakers complete their much-delayed money agenda for fiscal 1988. The bill was sent to President Reagan, who was expected to swiftly sign it into law.

But Reagan still had not decided whether to sign a bill Congress sent to him earlier which would increase the national debt limit and restore the teeth of the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law.

The Gramm-Rudman measure, with its threat of across-the-board spending cuts, could push Congress and the president to reach a long-delayed budget compromise. And the legislation's debt-limit increase is needed by next Thursday or the Treasury will run out of cash and default on its obligations.

Remains of MIAs come home

HONOLULU — Remains believed to be those of three American soldiers killed during the Vietnam War were returned to the United States on Friday, the military said.

The flag-draped caskets were carried by a joint honors team representing all U.S. military forces after a C-141 landed at Honolulu's Hickam Air Force Base, said base spokesman Dennis Fujii.

The remains, which Vietnam turned over Thursday to a team from the U.S. Joint Casualty Resolution Center, were taken to the Army's Central Identification Laboratory for positive identification, Fujii said.

The spokesman said that although next-of-kin have already been notified, the names of the soldiers will not be made public until the identification process is finished.

No hazard, energy agency says

SALT LAKE CITY — A congressional subcommittee looking into possible health problems from underground nuclear testing was assured Friday by Energy Department officials that radiation released poses no significant threat to people living downwind.

But Rep. Wayne Owens, D-Utah, said the public should maintain a healthy skepticism toward the government's contention that blasts at the Nevada Test Site are conducted safely.

"It has long caused special concern for the people of Utah because we are downwind," he said. "Many have developed cancers and leukemias while trusting the government's assurances. Now we must decide whether to believe when the government tells us this poses no danger."

Book says Casey knew all along

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former CIA Director William Casey, on his sickbed, told investigative reporter Bob Woodward of the Washington Post he knew all along about diversion of money to the Nicaraguan Contras, according to galley's of Woodward's forthcoming book obtained by U.S. News & World Report.

Woodward's book, "Veil: The Secret Wars of the CIA," seems to shed light on a mystery that has stumped investigators for almost a year. Former White House aide Oliver North is the only other person to have said that Casey knew about the diversion of funds from arms sales to the Iranians. Investigators have been unable to reach a firm conclusion on what Casey knew about the affair, despite interrogations of top-level officials in the Reagan administration.

Casey died May 6 of pneumonia after being hospitalized for months because of brain cancer.

Woodward visited Casey in the hospital "and asked, almost rhetorically, whether he knew all along about the Contra diversion," the U.S. News & World Report article says.

"Casey nodded a frail yes," the report says.

When Woodward asked why, according to the magazine account of Woodward's book, Casey replied twice, "I believed." Casey nodded off to sleep before Woodward could complete his questioning.

"I didn't get to ask another question," Woodward is quoted as writing.

The article does not specify when Woodward's hospital visit occurred.

U.S. News released its article on the book late Friday. It will be in the magazine's issue on newsstands Monday.

The book, published by Simon & Schuster, is to be released this fall.

Poindexter will retire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rear Adm. John M. Poindexter, President Reagan's embattled former national security adviser, will be permitted to retire from the Navy next week, but not at the higher rank of vice admiral pending the completion of the Iran-contra investigation, the service announced Friday.

The Navy, in a brief statement, said Navy Secretary James H. Webb "has approved the request by Rear Adm. Poindexter to be transferred to the retirement list on Oct. 1."

Secretary Webb has deferred action on Rear Adm. Poindexter's request to be retired in the grade of vice admiral pending resolution of the investigation now being conducted by the independent counsel.

Efforts to reach Poindexter for comment were not immediately successful. His attorney, Richard W. Beckler, was said to be out of town and unavailable.

Poindexter, 51, asked to retire from active duty late last month.

New lumber VP plans fall start for new facility

By Nancy Conzelman
Herald Reporter

Construction of Manchester Lumber Co.'s new 4.5-acre facility at 401 New State Road should begin this fall with the laying of foundation, according to the company's new vice president and chief operating officer, appointed Sept. 14.

Floyd Blair, appointed by company president Marilyn "Lynn" Tyler, replaces the late Ken Hartwell

Floyd Blair

Tyler, the former owner and president of Manchester Lumber, who died of cancer July 19. Blair, who has 32 years' experience in the building materials and construction industries, said he was "talked out of retirement" to take the position. "It's a great challenge," he said.

Before accepting the Manchester Lumber post, Blair worked as national sales manager of a building firm in Akron, Ohio, and started a retail lumberyard in upstate New York. He also owned National Remodelers Inc. in Chicago.

Blair holds a bachelor's degree in marketing from the University of Notre Dame and a master's degree in business administration from Marquette University.

Also appointed Sept. 14 will be Jack Vois, appointed vice president and director of the company Sept. 14. Vois, who has lived in Manchester all his life, has been with the company 34 years and has held various positions, including mill worker and office manager.

Vois will work with Blair on the new facility, which Blair hopes will be finished in the spring of 1988.

The company has wanted to move from its current location at 255 Center St. for about 15 years. "Business has had a very steady and methodical growth rate," Blair said.

Building a larger facility will allow Manchester Lumber to increase inventories by about one third, Blair said. The new facility also gives the company the capacity to expand.

The new site will consist of a main building with 24,000 square feet of warehouse space and 15,000 square feet of retail space. The site will also include a 3,000-square-foot mill for woodwork and 15,000 square feet of storage space. Half of the facility's 4.5 acres will be under cover.

The new location is more accessible and has a larger area for entrance and exit, Blair said. He described the current site's entrance on Center Street as a "bottleneck" that gets constricted easily. "The size of the company is really governed by where we are at," Blair said.

"One of our primary goals is to get our new facility so we can better serve our customers," he said.

Scott Paper faces OSHA charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department charged that Scott Paper Co. "willfully" failed to report more than 200 on-the-job injuries among workers at its Winslow, Maine paper mill and on Friday fined the company $913,000.

The Winslow plant employs about 650 and manufactures sanitary paper products such as bathroom tissue.

Economy Electric opens HQ

Economy Electric Supply Inc. celebrated the opening of its new corporate headquarters at 428 Tolland Turnpike Friday without the usual ribbon-cutting ceremony.

The idea was the same, but at Economy, an electrical supply distributor, company officials, including founder Abraham Weinberg, snipped yellow wires with ceremonial wire cutters.

The opening of the 17-acre facility is accompanied by a two-day vendor trade show, which ran from 1 to 10 p.m. Friday and continues today from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Between 2,000 and 3,000 of Economy's trade customers from throughout New England are expected to attend the show, held under a 26,000-square-foot exhibition tent. Although the tent and booths were set up this week, planning for the event began 10 weeks ago.

The trade show features product seminars, tours of the facility and 100 booths from electrical products manufacturers, including General Electric, Westinghouse, American Phillips and Bryant.

Economy Electric distributes electrical products such as lamps, lighting fixtures, power cable and switch equipment to industrial and commercial contractors in New England. The company, founded by Weinberg in 1938, is now owned and operated by his son, Robert, who joined the business in 1964.

The original store was located on Spruce Street in Hartford. In 1954, the business moved to Oak Street in Manchester, and four years later moved to a 24,000-square-foot building on Main Street. Continued growth forced Economy to move to larger quarters at 440 Oakland St. and open branches in Groton, Bristol and Framingham, Mass.

The newest facility on Tolland Turnpike contains 48,000 square feet of warehouse space and a retail lighting showroom, scheduled to open in October.

Loan verdict may affect industry

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — A jury's verdict in favor of two brothers who claimed an insurance company acted in bad faith by loaning them money it knew they could not repay should have an impact on the banking and insurance industries, according to Wyoming's insurance commissioner.

Gordon Taylor said Friday the jury's verdict Thursday in the lawsuit filed by Albert and John Meyers against the Travelers Insurance Co. could make lending institutions look more closely at borrowers.

"In general it's going to have some real impact not only on the insurance industry, but on the banking industry as a whole," said Taylor, who stressed his reaction was based only on media reports of the trial's outcome. "I think they're going to have to take a good hard look at loans that they're making and how they're being made."

The state district court jury in Converse County awarded the brothers $3.2 million in actual damages and an amount in punitive damages to be determined during an Oct. 8 hearing.

The lawsuit alleged that Travelers forced the brothers into bankruptcy to obtain the Natural Bridge Ranch in Wyoming, which they purchased with a $1.1 million loan from the company.

The jury agreed that Travelers did not act in good faith when it made the loan because it knew the brothers could not repay the debt. Travelers officials maintained the brothers simply did not know what they were getting into when they purchased the land and counted on the sale of their Colorado land, which eventually fell through, for repayment of the loan.

Taylor said he believes the case may be appealed by Travelers. Travelers officials at the company's headquarters in Hartford, Conn., declined to comment on the verdict Friday.

Lenders in Wyoming, such as officials with the First Wyoming Bancorp. and Affiliated Bank Corp., also declined to comment on the case, saying they had not studied the issue.

Carolyn Paseneaux, Wyoming Wool Growers executive director, said it is too early to comment on the case.

"My reaction would be that it would be premature to have a reaction," she said. "That would be a very narrow ruling on one case."

Highlights of the week

By The Associated Press

Consumer spending posted its biggest gain in six months by soaring 1.5 percent in August. But the Commerce Department report showed most of the growth was in auto sales.

Orders to U.S. factories for "big ticket" durable goods fell 3.1 percent in August, the first decline in seven months, the Commerce Department said.

Sales of domestic cars and trucks fell 36.2 percent in mid-September from the year-ago period when buyer incentives were new and making a splash in showrooms, automakers reported.

Rising mortgage rates depressed sales of existing single-family homes in August to a seasonally adjusted 3.4 million units, the lowest level in nearly a year and a half, the National Association of Realtors said.

Bank of New York Co. launched a takeover bid for Irving Bank Corp. in an offer valued at about $1 billion and which would create the nation's 11th largest bank holding company if successful.

G. Heileman Brewing Co. and Australian beer-making giant Bond Corp. Holdings Ltd. agreed to merge in a sweetened $1.22 billion buyout that creates one of the world's largest brewers.

NV Phillips sweetened its takeover bid for North American Phillips Corp. for a second time, and a lawyer for minority shareholders said the $680 million offer was acceptable.

Santa Fe Southern Pacific Corp. said it would buy 60 million shares of its common stock as part of a previously announced restructuring plan, a move that could cost the company more than $3 billion.

A judge recommended that USAir's proposed takeover of Piedmont Airlines be rejected because the merger would result in a decline in service in the communities the carriers serve.

The Federal Aviation Administration, citing public concern about air safety, said it will conduct a special review of the U.S. aircraft manufacturing industry.

Tiny amounts of dioxin are found in many paper products bleached with chlorine, including coffee filters, napkins and tampons, but the Environmental Protection Agency believes there is no health hazard from using those products.

Libby-Owens-Ford Co. will pay up to $10 million for lost wages and make 342 jobs available to women over five years under a settlement with the federal government of a sex discrimination lawsuit.

Home Shopping Network said it was seeking $1.5 billion in damages in a lawsuit filed against General Telephone Co. and two subsidiaries, claiming poor GTE equipment cost the company sales.

A federal judge refused to dismiss two multimillion-dollar lawsuits against convicted Wall Street bankers Dennis B. Levine and Martin A. Siegel by investors in a partnership controlled by former Wall Street speculator Ivan F. Boesky.

Food and cigarette giant R.J.R. Nabisco Inc. and Biotechnica International Inc., a genetic engineering company, announced a partnership to develop improved food products through biotechnology.

Fructer & Gamble Co. held its top ranking among the leading national advertisers in 1986 even though it cut ad spending by more than 10 percent to nearly $1.44 billion.

Stocks face stumbling block

By Chet Currier
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — In the two weeks since the Federal Reserve raised its discount rate, the stock market has apparently absorbed the jolt of the news without much lasting damage.

But if the Fed under its new chairman, Alan Greenspan, takes further steps to raise the key rate in the months ahead, the market's response could be more severe, some analysts say.

Under the "three steps and a stumble" principle formulated years ago by the prominent technical analyst Edson Gould, a series of three overt credit-tightening steps by the Fed is a likely harbinger of a bear market for stocks.

When the central bank raised the rate it charges on short-term loans to private financial institutions from 5.5 percent to 6 percent on Sept. 4, its stated intent was to "deal effectively and in a timely way with potential inflationary pressures."

Many Fed-watchers translated that to mean the Fed wanted to keep the dollar from falling much further in foreign exchange.

In the view of some observers, a half-point increase wasn't enough to accomplish that mission, and they predicted at least one more increase would follow before too long.

Greenspan seemed to counter that speculation in the past week, when he declared he saw scant evidence that inflation was accelerating.

But a day after he spoke, the government reported that the Consumer Price Index increased 0.5 percent in August, for its sharpest rise since January.

Unfortunately for those who would plan their financial strategies based on what the Fed does or doesn't do from here on out, market analysts have some trouble agreeing on how to read the historical relationship between the discount rate and stock prices.

"Discount rate increases are not necessarily bearish," argues Norman Fosback, editor of the advisory letter Market Logic. "That is particularly true when the increase, as now, is but the first after a string of decreases."

"Even the second discount rate increase in a row is not necessarily a harbinger of doom for a bull market. Three consecutive discount rate increases, however, trigger an ominous sell signal."

But Martin Zweig, a New York investment adviser, contends such views ignore some glaring exceptions.

"In January 1973, almost to the day that the worst post-war bear market began, the discount rate was raised. Several more followed, but prices had fallen about 10 percent before the next hike came."

"The point is, you don't need three hikes to start a bear market." In this debate, stock traders sided with the optimists in the past week. Thanks to a record single-day rise of 75.23 points on Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrial average put together a net advance of 45.53 to 2,570.17.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index rose 2.78 to 178.14; the American Stock Exchange market value index edged up .84 to

MARKET REPORT

Activity over the past 30 trading days

AP graphic

354.58, and the NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market increased 1.02 to 441.88.

Volume on the Big Board averaged 179.99 million shares a day, against 165.05 million the week before.

Optimists on the market outlook can bolster their case by pointing to the last increase in the discount rate, in 1984, at a time when many Wall Streeters were worried that the economy might be "overheating."

Not long afterward, the Fed was able to reverse course and begin lowering the rate again. As events subsequently proved, there was a lot of life left in the bull market.

No rest for the weary?

Members of Congress slowly are getting back in the swing of things. After a monthlong August recess, lawmakers are once again putting their noses to the grindstone.

But what did they do during the long break? The not-so-honest ones say they returned to a full schedule of stumping their districts... constituent meetings... scheduled functions.

Those who are more honest admit they took some time for themselves.

Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W. Va., returned to the hill particularly inspired. "I got a little rest during the August break," he told his colleagues during a floor speech, "making several trips back to West Virginia. I enjoyed going to the mountains, the land of my heart's desire where one may hear the wind laugh and murmur and sing of a land where even the old are fair and even the wise are merry of tongue."

Rep. John Rhodes, R-Ariz., said he went to Alaska and then to the beach in San Diego, where he just sat and watched the water.

"Wasn't he bored?"
"I got marvelously bored," Rhodes admitted, "and I loved it."

Rep. Barbara Kennelly, D-Conn., "took some time off" herself, spending eight days on Martha's Vineyard and Fire Island.

"I swam and swam and swam," she said, looking fit and content.

Rep. Tom Bliley, R-Va., said he and his wife spent four days at a Blue Ridge resort playing tennis.

Who's the better player?
"Depends who you ask," he laughed.

Happy fiscal new year

The International Association of Professional Bureaucrats (Inataprobu) is planning a celebration for the new fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1.

James H. Boren, president of Inataprobu, says he's launching a drive to provide the growing number of "wayward politicians and moneyvangelists with a chastity zipper (chazipper). Each chazipper will bear a locking device that will force those on the brink of waywardness to pause before implementing that fateful plunge.

"Today, as never before, the fabric of American society is being divided into disruptive shreds by the mounting forces of unzipped zippers," Boren continues in a letter he addressed to "My Fellow Americans."

Boren says "bureaucrats — government, corporate, academic and clerical — who have borne the brunt of public scorn, but who have kept the nation going during the times of national crisis, may clunkate once again to preserve our way of life. Chastate America with a chastity zipper."

Appropriately, the Inataprobu's motto is "When in doubt, mumble," according to the organization's official letterhead. Inataprobu's executive offices are located in the National Press Building, and each of its letters is embossed with an official organization stamp.

A new cause for Gary Hart

By Sarah Overstreet

I've followed the Gary Hart dive into doom with awed fascination.

Fascination, because I've never watched, step-by-step, someone with so much to lose lose it with such gusto; and because he blamed his fall on journalists, utterly incredulous that we would have the gall to watch him do it. He didn't once seem to consider that he might be the engineer of his own downfall.

Hart did not appear to blame himself on the "Nightline" interview where he apologized, once again, for "putting myself in a situation that could be misconstrued." But without even stopping to suck in new air, he once again shot the messenger.

"Never ask another candidate that question!" he admonished Ted Koppel and the rest of the press, instructing us to never again ask whether a politician committed adultery. We, the press, are his new cause, a new justification to keep himself before the public, a fresh reason why we all need the genius only he can offer us.

He told us the greatest sin is to "waste talent," and that he plans to make "candidates' privacy" his new banner, thereby securing his place in the limelight.

Well, sin, schmin. Sin isn't the issue. Judgment is.

Hart handled himself as deftly as a well-coached, well-practiced politician could under the circumstances. He was charming, char-tened and humble under Koppel's brilliant questioning. Except for a brief look of horror when Koppel told him that people in living rooms all over America must be snorting and slapping their thighs to hear him couch his behavior in terms of "treating men and women equally," he'd have made any political consultant proud.

But he is wrong, dead wrong. Hart wants us to believe we have no right to delve into a candidate's private life. We would "seriously undermine national governance," he told us, as if "national governance" cannot be done if we learn about a candidate's private life and decisions. Wrong, wrong, wrong.

A person's private life shows us character, and character shows us the measure of a person. We have as much right to know that a person takes trips with party girls as we do that he likes to sit ringside at championship wrestling and spit tobacco juice into a cup. It might not make any difference as to how that person will react in a national crisis, but then again, it just might. We voters deserve to judge whether we think it will or won't. We vote for a person based on how we believe he or she will make decisions and take action. It's called picking the best person for the job, and it's worked pretty well so far.

To journalists, the issue is the "right to know," and we believe it is as important as any freedom we possess. How can we protect that freedom, if we agree to leave some areas of a person's life inviolate, something that a candidate can declare as off the record.

If you, the voter, decide that decisions a candidate makes in some areas are unimportant, then dandy. That's your choice and your right. You can say, "I don't care how many young women Gary Hart parties with. I only want to know if he is hawkish on defense." Fine. But if you think the decision to take off on a yacht call the "Monkey Business" and be photographed with a young woman on his lap says something about his decision-making abilities, that's your right, too.

Gary Hart may still have something important to say to America. More power to him. We still deserve to know the man before we go into a voting booth and punch a hole beside his name.

Our least likely allies help patrol gulf

WASHINGTON

Critics of the Reagan administration's naval intervention in the Persian Gulf have sourly pointed out that America's allies are being timorous and niggardly in their support of the escort service U.S. warships are supplying to Kuwaiti oil tankers. In fact, the equation of the Persian Gulf situation seems to be that the more a country needs Arab oil, the less it is willing to do to ensure its continuing supply.

Italy, for example, imports 100 percent of its oil, and 51 percent of it comes from Persian Gulf countries. Yet Italy has contributed virtually nothing to the U.S.-spearheaded effort to protect the flow of oil from the gulf.

West Germany, which is also totally dependent on imported oil but gets only 10 percent from the gulf region, has also done little. The most the Germans have done is to promise privately that they will fill in with troops and military chores in NATO commands if American resources are diverted for duty in the Middle East. In their defense, it should be pointed out that the Germans have some constitutional provisions — enacted under Allied pressure — that would prohibit them from sending military ships to the gulf.

Japan, likewise, is constitutionally barred from sending military ships on distant missions. Under prodding by the State Department and in response to congressional criticism, Japan is studying how much of a financial contribution it can make to the effort that protects its vital supply of Persian Gulf oil.

On the other end of the equation, both Britain and France are supporting the United States more than their direct self-interests would dictate, according to private White House briefings on Capitol Hill.

The British level of cooperation is particularly surprising, considering that Great Britain is a net exporter of petroleum and gets nary a drop from the Persian Gulf.

According to intelligence sources, Britain has at least one frigate and one destroyer in the gulf itself at all times, with another warship standing by off Oman. Usually there are six British warships on their way to or from stations in the gulf. This represents 18 percent of the Royal Navy's frigates and destroyers.

Britain has reason to be cautious in the gulf region: There are perhaps 100,000 British nationals — not counting diplomats — who earn their living permanently stationed in the countries on the gulf. This is why British maintains strict neutrality in the Iran-Iraq war.

On any given day, there are probably 400 ships in the Persian

Jack Anderson

Gulf; fewer than a dozen are registered to Britain or British Commonwealth nations. And of roughly 300 attacks on merchant ships during more than seven years of war, fewer than a dozen British ships were hit and less than a dozen British seamen were killed (none on a British vessel).

If British support is pleasantly surprising, France's helpfulness is downright astounding. The French are notoriously independent in their foreign policy, and aren't even members of NATO's military alliance. So nothing was expected from them, even though France imports 94 percent of its oil, one-third of it from the Persian Gulf.

But French Defense Minister Andre Giraud quietly assured U.S. officials on a visit to Washington last July that France would increase its military presence in the gulf and coordinate activities with U.S. patrols.

The French have a large military force in Djibouti, the tiny former French colony strategically located at the juncture of the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden. The French port facility there can service as many as 20 large warships, and the French garrison includes some 4,000 troops, plus Mirage jets and Alouette helicopters.

Probing the probers

When Nuclear Regulatory Commission official Victor Stello was accused of impropriety for giving advice to the Tennessee Valley Authority on its troubled Watts Bar nuclear power plant, an internal NRC investigation cleared him of wrongdoing. There the matter might have ended, but staff aides of Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, did a little digging for themselves. They retracted the NRC investigators' steps and discovered that key officials of the TVA had never been interviewed.

Glenn's aides stop short of accusing Stello of impropriety, but they have this to say about the failure to interview TVA officials: "At worst, this hole in the investigation could leave the impression that the NRC did not adequately investigate because the results might embarrass Stello."

Amorous Marines

Intelligence sources tell us the sexual escapades of U.S. Marine embassy guards weren't confined to Moscow. There have been reports, which the State Department is investigating, that Marines stationed in Poland were consorting with women suspected of being espionage agents. And in the unlikely outpost of Mogadishu, capital of Somalia, a Marine guard reportedly became so enamored of a Russian woman that he scaled the wall of the Soviet embassy compound to visit her. She turned out to be a KGB agent, according to the reports. A secret investigation is under way.

One nation, divisible by Bork

By Chuck Stone

If I were Jimmy the Greek, instead of Chuck the American, I'd lay 3-to-2 odds that Robert H. Bork will be confirmed as Supreme Court justice. And I predict this as surely as Carl Lewis was predicted to win the long jump in the recent World Championships of Track and Field.

The wager doesn't surrender to wishful thinking, however, as much as it genuflects to political reality. And right now, political reality is epitomized by a national mood of serious concern about the next appointee to Reagan's Supreme Court.

The unresolved Iran-contra hearings left everybody twisting in the wind. And Americans aren't about to get worked up over some nappy-haired, judicial scholar whose straggly gray beard is a Dutch uncle counterpart of a Der Fuehrer-like arrogance.

In the waning weeks of summer, they've already mothballed that clean-cut, close-shaved, Marine-uniformed kid-next-door. And an Ollie North hero, Robert Bork ain't. Even the propaganda battleground is different.

Last time, it was us against international communism. This time, the war of words has been preempted by right-wing zealots allied with treadmill conservatives vs. a coalition of blacks, women, liberals and union leaders, who have been on the losing end of two consecutive presidential elections.

Yet 62 percent of the American people have no opinion on Bork. So no matter what the Senate decides, the nation won't be shattered.

If Bork is confirmed, the right wing, which has been rocking the national boat in an effort to convince everybody that there's a storm at sea, will be relieved. And the opposing coalition will hunker down and prepare for Armageddon.

If you watched Bork on television, you didn't change your mind. If you were for him, you're still for him; if you were against him, you're still convinced that it's a dangerous nomination. And nothing I write in this column will make a dent in the armor of your predetermination.

That Bork has written positions upholding a restaurant owner's right to refuse service to blacks, homeowners' restrictive covenants to keep neighborhoods lily white, and states' rights to legalize poll taxes doesn't make the slightest ripple in the seas of the average American's serenity.

During the hearings, Bork had two explanations. "You can search my writings beginning to end," this pudgy little bigot snapped at Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, one of the best friends black American ever had, "and you'll never find a mark of racial or ethnic hostility."

True, indeed. Many of the slave owners loved their slaves so much, they even went to bed with them. You can't get any more affectionate than that.

In the past, Bork has supported the "separate but equal" doctrine, a doctrine that was used to justify a host of injustices. When Bork is challenged about his earlier affinity for the "separate but equal" doctrine, he shrugs it off as "my libertarian phase."

I call it the "Waldheim shift." Kurt Waldheim acknowledges he may have had some tangential tippy-toe contact with the Nazis, but that was his "youthful phase." Even Pope John Paul II forgave him.

From the Bork hearings, two tragic conclusions emerged:

First, he has changed with such devious frequency that he could revert one day to urging concentration camps for blacks and second-class kitchens for women. Second, his nomination and philosophy have made America one nation, divisible by Bork.

Even worse, President Reagan doesn't have the slightest idea why.

Domestic abuse common

DEAR READER:

Every day more than 2 million women in this country are abused physically and emotionally in their homes by someone they live with. Domestic abuse is the most common violent crime in this country.

Every 16 seconds a woman is battered. Any woman can be a victim of abuse: any age, race, culture, sexual preference or class. It can be your mother, sister, daughter or friend. It can be you.

Abuse takes many forms. It ranges from insults, put-downs and threats, to slaps, punches, choking, rape, stabbing and, all too often, death.

Why does a woman stay in an abusive situation? Because of...

- Fear: If she leaves he will find her and kill her.
- Guilt: Somehow the abuse was her fault; she asked for it or deserved it.
- Shame, embarrassment: She doesn't want friends or family to know, can't admit that the marriage-relationship isn't working.
- Low self-esteem, helplessness: She feels she can't make it on her own, can't support her children, will never find someone else to "love" her.

Tests of breath-alcohol are certainly reliable

DEAR DR. GOTT:

What medicines and/or foods may cause a false reading on a Breathalyzer test?

DEAR READER:

Tests that analyze the amount of alcohol in the breath are quite reliable. In fact, they're so reliable that they will measure alcohol in the mouth, as well as alcohol that is exhaled from the lungs.

Specifically, a person who has just taken alcohol-based liquid cough medicine or has just used an inhaler for asthma (if the propellant contains alcohol) will show up positive on a breath analysis test.

According to Dr. Charles Reading of the Connecticut Department of Health, most police officers will wait about 15 minutes before administering a breath test. This allows the officer to observe the suspect for visible signs of intoxication. It also permits the dissipation of medicinal alcohol compounds that otherwise would cause false positive readings. In Reading's opinion, false negatives do not occur; an improperly functioning machine is designed to shut itself off.

DEAR DR. GOTT: How toxic is newsprint? I had a habit of rubbing my eyes in the morning while

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

SHE MAY have no money, no place to go, no help or support from friends or family. She may be physically ill. She might still be hoping he will change and wishing for a "happily ever after" that doesn't exist.

Any or all of these factors make it difficult for a battered woman to escape the violence that rules her life.

Men who abuse come from every class, race, culture, age and occupation. They can be poor and unemployed or rich and powerful. Many were abused as children or witnessed abuse. Their anger, insecurity and low self-esteem are expressed through violence and abuse.

Domestic violence exists in every culture and society all over the world. It is a shameful part of our history hidden and ignored until the 1970s. It exists because of centuries of sexist attitudes and beliefs that condone and excuse the abuse of women by husbands, lovers, fathers, all men.

SOME FACTS:

- Over 50 percent of sexual assaults take place in a residence of some kind.
- 50 to 60 percent are "acquaintance rapes" — the assailants know or are "friends" or relatives of the victims.
- 71 percent of all types of sexual assaults are planned.
- The FBI estimates that only one out of 10 sexual assaults are reported.
- In 93 percent of sexual assaults, the victim and assailant are of the same race and socioeconomic class.
- Victims range in age from infancy to their 90s, and every race, class and culture.

ANY TIME a woman is coerced or forced into sexual relations against her will and without complete and voluntary consent, she has been sexually assaulted.

No woman asks to be raped. No woman deserves to be sexually assaulted.

What to do if you are sexually assaulted:

- Call the police. They will take you for medical treatment if you need or want it. They will ask for a description of the assailant and the attack. (You do not have to report the assault or press charges, but I recommend it.)
- Get medical treatment immediately at an emergency room, clinic or from your personal physician. You may have received internal injuries or been exposed to venereal disease, and there is the possibility of pregnancy.
- Remember: Do not bathe or shower. Valuable evidence will be destroyed.

Save the clothes you were wearing at the time of the assault. As soon as you are able, write down as many of the details of the attack as you can remember.

CLEAN AIR

How can you minimize indoor air pollution?

1. Change filters regularly on hot air furnaces and air conditioners.
2. Don't smoke — it adds to the problem.
3. Use aerosols sparingly and only in well ventilated rooms.
4. Never mix cleaners and bleach (it can produce lethal chlorine gas).
5. Clothes dryers and vacuum cleaners should be vented to the outside.

Between the Lines

The story behind the story

By Josie

Bronson Pinchot

Q. Tell me about Bronson Pinchot. Where is he from and what else has he been in? I think he's fantastic. E. Beery, South Bend, Ind.

A. He's from South Pasadena, Calif. He was a closet Easterner; he says he felt comfortable in the New England environment of Yale, where he majored in English and theater and performed in anything he could get into. After Yale, he did some stage work in New York, had a few small roles in the films "Risky Business," "The Flamingo Kid" and "After Hours" and co-starred in the short-lived series "Sara." After appearing in a sexy, low budget film called "Hot Resort" he was cast in "Beverly Hills Cop," and the rest is Hollywood history.

Already known as a wildly inventive actor and an uncanny mimic, but only to his friends, he wrapped those talents around an accent stolen from an Israeli makeup woman on "Hot Resort" and as the flamboyant Serge stole his scenes from Eddie Murphy. Now, as you know, he steals his scenes from Mark Linn-Baker every week on "Perfect Strangers."

Q. Please answer this. Does Judith Light have a sister in show business? I was watching a rerun of "Who's the Boss?" and I thought one of the actresses looked enough like her to be her twin. Edna M. Sporko, Scranton, Pa.

A. No actress sister; Judith Light was her parents' only child. There are, as you probably know, many pretty blond actresses in Hollywood, some of whom look alike.

Q. Whatever happened to Bonita Granville, the child star? Is she still performing? Helen C. Reines, Green Bay, Wis.

A. No, she pulled back from acting when she married business executive Jack Wrather 40 years ago. She's made only the occasional TV or movie appearance since. (She did get back into the business actively as a producer, however, of the old "Lassie" series.)

Over the years she became more involved in her husband's business, the Wrather Corporation, which has gas, oil and real estate holdings, and became Chairman after her husband's death in 1984. These days she splits her time between the company and the American Film Institute, of which she was recently elected Chairman of the Board.

Olivia Newton-John

Q. What has Olivia Newton-John been doing lately? I haven't heard anything about her in a while. J. Thomas, Northfield, N.J.

A. She's been busy with her daughter Chloe and Koola Blue, her stores specializing in Australian goods, including clothing, which she's been designing. She is working on a new album now, though, and has plans to shoot an HBO special in Australia.

Ann-Margret

Q. I think Ann-Margret is a fantastic actress. Please tell me all about her. P.N., Chicago, Ill.

A. Ann-Margret Olsson is 46, from Valsjobyn, Sweden, the only child of an electrician and his wife. Her father left Sweden just after her birth to get work in the U.S., and settled in your area. She and her mother joined him there, in Wilmette, several years later. Ann-Margret was a shy child but she loved performing-singing and dancing. And once in the U.S., her mother was determined to provide her with lessons, even going to work specifically for that purpose. It obviously paid off. She began performing at weddings and church functions, then in school productions at New Trier High School in Winnetka, and at 16, on "Ted Mack's Original Amateur Hour." She made her professional debut a year later, singing with a band in Kansas City, and then sang with a jazz combo, the Suttletones, during her freshman (and only) year at Northwestern University.

The Suttletones headed west during the following summer and performed in California and Nevada. She liked it there, decided not to go back to school and began to perform solo. Soon afterward, while performing at The Dunes hotel in Las Vegas, she was spotted by George Burns and hired for his show. Her association with Burns led to a recording contract, a TV appearance on Jack Benny's show and most important, a screen test with Twentieth Century Fox.

Her screen career got off to a fast start in "State Fair," "Pocketful of Miracles" and "Bye, Bye Birdie." These followed with a string of silly, terrible films that made her something of a joke: "The Pleasure Seekers," "Viva Las Vegas," and the infamous "Kitten With a Whip" among them. A few years later, in 1967, however, she married former actor Roger Smith and he took over managing her career.

He turned it completely around: She began to star in high profile variety TV specials, became a top headliner on the Las Vegas-Reno-Lake Tahoe circuit (it was during one of these performances, in 1972, that she fell 22 feet from a platform. Despite major injuries, she was back onstage in three months.) and most important, co-starred in the film "Carnal Knowledge." It brought her surprised critical raves and an Oscar nomination.

Over the last decade, she's confirmed that success again and again, in the films "Tommy" (for which she got another Oscar nomination), "Magic," "Twice in a Lifetime," "Return of the Soldier," "A Tiger's Tale," and on TV: "A Streetcar Named Desire," "Who Will Love My Children?" and "The Two Mrs. Grenvilles." As we go to press, she's wrapping up a year's sabbatical and is close to signing for a new film.

Cover Story

Dolly Parton is giving TV her all

By Jane Ardmore

This is not an entertainer who is given a song and sings it, or is handed a script and goes into wardrobe and makeup. She writes the songs, the words and music, designs the clothes, invents the look. She went door to door to get those songs on records in the beginning and has been planning for three years the television show "Dolly," which will air this week on ABC. She even reshaped her figure during those three years and brought it down to 100 from 145 pounds.

"I feel good about that," smiles Dolly Parton. "I'm only five feet two and I was tiny most of my life. It was just between 30 and 40 I filled out and it was hard to lose because I just love food, love cookin' and eatin' and going to restaurants. But I feel better now and feel better about myself and I have now the energy I'm gonna need for this show."

This new variety show is a genre supposedly old hat. "Oh I know that," Parton says. "But this is going to be my idea of a variety show, and because of me and my personality it's bound to be a little different than what was done in the past. I think that for a while, there were just so many of them and they were all basically the same and all on the air at the same time. The guests you'd see on one show would be on another the next week; you saw the same things over and over. There were great shows like Carol Burnett's that were funny and good and original and successful. Others were repetitious.

"But there aren't that many variety shows on now. I'll use some of the great old acts. I want to get the best people. There are also a lot of new people. We'll have the same format but hopefully with my kind of humor and comedy, the way I'll dress and present things and the fact that I sing and write and play different instruments, it'll work.

"I've got all this energy and I grew up on television. I started when I was 10-years-old. I love to communicate with lots of people and on 'Dolly' I want to get out on location and really work with the American public. I want to talk with men and women on the street, guys in fire departments and police stations and kids in dancing schools.

"I started writing songs when I was five. I'd sing the songs and my mama'd write down the notes, serious songs when I was a little child, because I was so impressed with what my people talked about. The war. Relatives had been killed in the war. Tales of woe and heartbreak and sorrow — all the most morbid songs about love and broken vows. That was natural in the Smoky Mountains of Tennessee. And about nature and animals. I made up these songs and when I was real little, my mother wrote them down. I'd sing them to the family, to the dogs and chickens and to anybody who'd listen. I'd get up on the hill back of our house and sing to the barn animals, pretending they were my audience.

"When I was seven, I started playing guitar, and at 10 I was on radio and TV out of Knoxville, on the Cass Walker Show. That was when I really got the bug, when I heard people applauding. Cass Walker owned a chain of supermarkets in Tennessee and Kentucky. He had a radio show every day. Monday through Saturday at noon, on which he advertised his groceries. The Farm and Home

Come Again," "Heartbreaker," "Great Balls of Fire," "Best of Dolly Parton" and "Dolly Parton's Greatest Hits."

These LP's blazed a trail of crossover acceptance, continuing with the platinum singles, "9 to 5" and "Here You Come Again" zooming to #1 on the national pop and AOR charts as well as the country charts. Parton's duet with Kenny Rogers, "Islands in the Stream" was one of the only two singles certified platinum that year. The record also won her another Grammy nomination, in addition to one for her LP "Burlap and Satin."

She has starred in three major films: "9 to 5," "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas" and "Rhinestone."

She spends time in Los Angeles. "He doesn't fly, this husband of mine, so he drives out, stops in Texas to buy his cowboy boots. He's tall and has long feet, Texas is about the only place he can find the classy boots he fancies. And he likes L.A. all right. For about a month," explains Parton.

"And I love to go home to Nashville to our beautiful house. Carl and my Uncle Doc Watson built it and all my brothers put their shoulders to the wheel. My Uncle Doc and his wife, Estelle, are the ones who kept me when I worked in Knoxville during the summer and sang on the Cass Walker Show. That was a wonderful thing they did for me. I've had a lot of great people supporting me through the years. A great support system.

"There's my brothers, sisters, aunts and uncles. And of course, above all, Carl. "Marriage becomes more meaningful as it goes along. Companionship is a wonderful thing. You just mellow out. You become friends and you become companions as well as lovers. And you have to keep the romance. It's not the sex so much as the romance: eating by candlelight, going on picnics, having me try on my old red hip huggers. I love things like that. Excitement is a part of my life. That's why I'm such a flirt. I create my own excitement. I flirt with Carl too, but if he gets boring, I go flirt with someone else. He does the same thing. That's no threat to either of us.

That's just healthy. "Like I say, we tell each other everything. I'm a big flirt, a big tease and I love that. I love sharing back and forth. But I don't ever want to be married to anybody but Carl Dean, and I will be with him until one of us dies. I can't imagine what life would be like without him. He knows that. He's been real good for me and I've been real good for him. It's like the movie "On Golden Pond." We just love that movie. And that one line where she says to him, 'You're the greatest person in the world. It's just too bad nobody knows that but me, you old poop.' That's what I tell Carl.

Dolly Parton's about to give television everything she's got. "When I was a kid doing my own first TV show, it was on a shoestring," she flashes her dimple. "This time, I've got the whole shoe."

Painted ponies are riding again

By Phyllis Zauner

They're all over the country, these people who don't want to grow up if it means they can't ride a carousel any more. Caught in the throes of a love affair with the carousel's mirrored flashes, whirling colors, vibrant organ strains and magnificent flying horses, they collect rides the way others collect coins, stamps and classic cars. "Just one more ride," they cry, always on the trail of an older, a bigger, a more extravagant machine.

But riding these prancing, snorting ponies is only one facet of their obsession. What really gets their blood pumping is a chance to crawl into grubby jeans spend 100 hours or so bringing a near-dead, dilapidated wooden horse back to glorious, full-color life. It's the restoration that gets them. Unfazed by hard physical labor and exhilarated by the romance of it all, they set to the task at hand, caught up in the contagious zeal of their fellow carousel addicts.

Scraping down through some 50 coats of paint, they at last uncover the original finely carved, exquisite details that were once the pride of a master woodworker. Then it's putty-and-sand, putty-and-sand, until the wood feels like silk. But the real beauty part is watching raw wood come to glowing life when brilliant color accentuates the ponies' coats and elaborate trimmings.

Of late, there's been a sharp revival of interest in the gentle pleasures of merry-go-rounds. Today, according to estimates of the 800-member National Carousel Association, there are probably no more than 250 complete carousels in the country.

But Americans have a penchant for nostalgia, and during the 1970s the carousel began to whirl back into popularity. Preservation groups began to spring up, filled with dedication and energy.

It's all grass-roots stuff. Often some enormous carousel restoration project is launched by the purchase of one single wooden horse by one person who simply likes the looks of it. Carol and Duane Perron now have one of the nation's largest collections — 350 carved wooden figures, two operating carousels and five complete carousels currently in storage. They are also the driving force behind a carousel renaissance now going on in Portland and have involved hundreds of others in their efforts to restore carousels in that city. Portland now has more operating carousels than any other city, plus the largest carousel museum in the nation.

"We want to preserve every carousel remaining in the country," says Duane. "We can buy them, bring them to Portland and restore them, or we can help others restore and operate them profitably. Carousels are one of our great art forms, old and valuable."

Carousels have been around for a very long time — since days of the Crusaders, when they were a sort of war game tournament called "garosella," an archaic Italian word meaning "little war." The brass ring was important then. While servants propelled the garosella into motion, riders attempted to spear brass rings suspended from ribbons.

It wasn't until 1870, though, when steam power was added to give the horses a galloping motion, that the Golden Age of carousels arrived.

The best carousel carvers in America were men like Gustav Dentsel, founder of the American carousel industry. In 1863, at the age of 20, Dentsel came to this country from Germany and settled in Philadelphia, where he started his own carousel carving company. For 40 years he crafted graceful and realistic animals of the finest quality.

Charles Loeff, a furniture maker by trade, carved animals in his spare time. In 1876 in his Brooklyn studio, Loeff crafted one of the world's most famous carousels, the one that stood at Coney Island. His animals did not have Dentsel's realism but instead were flamboyant, brightly colored and jeweled. Loeff animals are the odds-on favorite of Carol Perron. "They make me want to hug them. Loeff never carved a mean-looking horse — they are spirited or even a bit feisty, but never mean."

In the East, lovers of carousels will be dazzled by the possibilities for memorable rides. In Martha's Vineyard they'll find the oldest carousel in existence, an 1884 creation of a carver named Dare. In Paragon Park, just outside Boston, they can ride one of the immense Philadelphia Toboggan Company machines recently purchased at a cost of $600,000. Bridgeport, Conn., has a Dentsel, and Hartford can boast a Stein & Goldstein at Bushnell Park. In Heritage Park at Sandwich, Mass., there's a Loeff carousel. Gail Hall, secretary of the National Carousel Association, feels that keeping the carousel tradition alive is a matter of restoration, because there are no emigrant carvers today willing to do an entire carousel.

Luckily, it appears there are enough volunteers who believe it's worthwhile to save this old and valuable art form. ■

Max celebrated his birthday at a fabulous place.

Chances are, Max won't remember what a great time he had at The Family Birthing Center at Manchester Memorial Hospital. But his parents will never forget the wonderful experience. From the moment they arrived, they enjoyed the special attention and personal care that are so hard to come by in some of the bigger hospitals. Throughout labor and delivery, Max's parents had the support of their own nurse in the privacy of their own birthing room, using the prepared child-birth methods they learned at the Center. After Max's arrival they celebrated with photo-taking, a champagne toast and hugs all around. All with the security and confidence that Max and Mom were getting the expert medical attention of Manchester Memorial's top-notch doctors and nursing staff.

After delivery, Mom was settled into her comfortable room where Max was welcomed to "room-in" anytime. Dad even spent the night! The next day, Mom and Dad shared a special "Stork Club" gourmet dinner and got instructions on how to care for their little birthday boy.

If you see a "birth day" celebration in your future, The Family Birthing Center would be delighted to show you their facilities and offer you more information. After all, doesn't your baby deserve as warm a welcome as little Max?

For more information on The Family Birthing Center or a free tour please call 643-1223.

Astrograph

Your Birthday

Sunday, Sept. 27, 1987

In the year ahead, a successful, well-established friend may involve you in a venture that is already reckoned as a success. It could be the opportunity of a lifetime.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't be a daydreamer today when you are moving about. If your attention starts wandering, you might bump into a closed door. Major changes are ahead for Libras in the coming year. Send your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Unless they are bona fide financial experts, don't let anyone advise you on investments or how to utilize your resources today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today, it's best not to get involved socially with a group that has members who make you feel uncomfortable. Instead, go where you're warmly received.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Any actions you take out of anger or spite today are apt to boomerang. In order to have a pleasant day, be forgiving and turn the other cheek.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Be realistic regarding your worldly aspirations today. Things may not develop as quickly as you like, nor be as rewarding as you hope.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Mistakes you make early in the day can be rectified, so don't toss in the towel. Instead, when things go wrong, dedicate yourself to righting them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Early in the day your judgment may be questionable. If you have an important decision to make, try to put it off until evening.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today, be neither a borrower nor a lender. The former could weaken your image, and the latter could invite an unretrievable loss.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your opinions may not reflect the views of the majority today. You'll discover this for yourself if you try to impose them on people.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A breakdown in production is likely today if your methods are shoddy, especially if you attempt a task with which you are unfamiliar.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Stick to the modest and prudent line today where your finances are concerned. If you do otherwise, you'll have spender's remorse tomorrow.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you have an important matter to attend to today, try to do it unencumbered by inept assistants. Helpers can be a hindrance.

Sexuality

Woman feels uncertain about sex

Many people still troubled with freely enjoying sex

By Dr. June Reinisch

The Kinse Report

DEAR DR. REINISCH: How can I become more lovable? To me, sex is dirty. My boyfriend can't understand me.

DEAR READER: Unfortunately, you are not alone. You need to find someone besides your boyfriend to help you sort out your feelings about sex. Most communities have a mental-health center; call and ask for an appointment with the person most experienced in treating sexual aversion or sexual inhibition. Fees are often flexible, based on a client's income.

You don't give your age or any information about your personal situation, so it is impossible to suggest what might be involved in your feelings about sex. However, the types of problems that can be related to such feelings can range from parental teachings that sex is bad to prior physical abuse by a partner (rape).

Do you enjoy physical closeness at all, such as hugging and kissing? Do you remember ever feeling sexually aroused? The answers to these and similar questions will permit a skilled counselor to determine the extent of your aversion to sex and how best to help you become more comfortable with the idea of sexual behavior.

Notice that I did not say that the goal of counseling was to make you have sex. The goal is to help you to discover why you feel the way you do and then decide how best to manage sexuality within the context of your personal situation and values.

For example, it may be that having a sexual relationship with this particular boyfriend at this particular time doesn't contribute to deeply held hopes about your future; or perhaps just receiving accurate information about sexual functioning will reassure you that having sexual feelings is part of a normal, physical process.

If you do want to have sexual activity, behavior therapy has proven helpful at gradually decreasing a person's negative reactions in cases of sexual aversion. Whatever is involved in your particular case, I urge you to see the quality of the relationship and a partner's lovemaking techniques are of much greater importance to most women than is the size of his equipment.

Lucky, so far

DEAR DR. REINISCH: Since I use no birth control, please tell me an exact method for determining ovulation each month. So far I have been very lucky — no kids.

DEAR READER: Learning to predict the day of ovulation (release of a mature egg from the ovaries) requires individualized instruction, because women's reproductive cycles and signals can vary enormously — both from one woman to the next and even sometimes for the same woman from one cycle to the next.

Go to a family-planning clinic and ask them to explain this and other contraception methods. Listen carefully when they explain the various failure rates. Then choose the method most suited to your health, lifestyle and personal values.

The success of any method depends on receiving adequate training about the method and following instructions carefully and consistently. Out of every 100 women who depend on luck alone for one year, 90 women become pregnant. If you are not yet ready to begin raising a family, don't depend on luck for contraception.

Nipples a worry

DEAR DR. REINISCH: I am very self-conscious about my breasts. I can accept the fact that they are small, but the real problem is that I have inverted nipples. They do not become erect when I'm excited, and I'm really embarrassed.

Is there anything I can do to make them come out? Is there any possibility that when I become pregnant they will come out permanently?

DEAR READER: Nipple structure varies greatly, from prominent to inverted (the center of the nipple pulls inward and is folded inside the breast skin). Some women have very flat nipples, but these are different from being truly inverted.

Most women with inverted nipples can successfully breast-feed their babies, but I am not aware of any research indicating that pregnancy alters inverted nipples temporarily or permanently. Inverted nipples are caused because the milk ducts inside the breast are too short, pulling the nipples inward. Although present from birth, this condition usually isn't noticeable until the breasts begin to grow during puberty. Inverted nipples also occur in men, although men usually do not become self-conscious about having them.

"The use of donor sperm does present some degree of risk for STDs (sexually transmitted diseases), including AIDS. The Centers for Disease Control have recently urged careful screening of sperm donors, but experts disagree on the exact procedures to use."

There is a special exercise, called Hoffman's Exercise, suggested by some physicians to help women with inverted nipples prepare for breastfeeding. This involves stretching the skin around the areola with your fingers. Because breast tissue is so sensitive, I suggest you ask your personal physician about this exercise and to teach you how to do it properly if he or she thinks it is both safe and appropriate to your case.

Several surgical procedures have been proposed to correct inverted nipples, but to date none appear widely effective. In some cases, the nipples have inverted again after surgery; and in others, surgery severed the milk ducts, preventing breastfeeding.

If you find that the appearance of your nipples is interfering with your view of yourself, you should consult a counselor who has experience in helping women work through problems of body image.

In addition to the other serious health effects of prolonged consumption of alcohol (such as liver damage), sexual side effects include loss of desire, loss of erectile ability, ejaculatory problems and reduction of testicular size.

Foam unpleasant

DEAR DR. REINISCH: I'm considering using condoms and spermicidal foam for birth control. Does the foam "drip"? Would a partner notice it if he were to kiss my genital area?

DEAR READER: Couples who engage in oral-genital contact after a spermicide has been applied inside the vagina do complain that spermicides have an unpleasant taste.

Because the protectiveness of spermicidal foams is reduced if intercourse is delayed (the bubbles start going flat within 30 minutes), experts recommend inserting the foam just before intercourse. During foreplay, make certain that any emissions from the penis do not come near the vaginal opening until after the foam is in place.

DEAR READER: Alcohol most definitely can cause breast development in males, but I've not seen this change described in reports of females. In men, it has been established that alcohol decreases the rate of production of testosterone (a hormone found in higher

Give yourself an alertness boost

By Stephen A. Franzmeier

Wouldn't it be great to feel sharp as a tack all the time? A person could get rich in that condition. The reality of life, though, is that alertness ebbs and flows throughout the day... and from day to day.

But the range of this swing in alertness can be limited: We can be more alert more of the time if we know how.

Let's assume that you eat nutritious food — that you don't make a dinner of Twinkies and Classic Coke and that you don't inhale corn chips on the run for breakfast. Let's also assume that you get the amount of sleep that you need — an amount that varies from six to nine hours for the majority of people, say health authorities.

With these basic health habits in hand, let's get into the options open to anyone interested in being "smarter" more often.

Here's something you can do right now, as you read, to increase your brain-power: Straighten up. (Skip this part if your posture is perfect.)

Stretching and deep breathing alone can give you a shot of alertness. Stand up, stretch your arms over your head, draw as much air as you can into your diaphragm area (not into your chest) and hold it. Stretching and deep-breathing exercises also get your blood flowing, carrying more oxygen to your brain and enhancing alertness.

Poor posture causes "fuzzy thinking and forgetfulness," says Dr. Fritz Schmerl, of Chabot College in Hayward, Calif. That's true, he says, because "kinks in the spine... squeeze two arteries passing through the spinal column to the brain, causing an inadequate blood supply."

"The brain," says Dr. Schmerl, "needs up to 30 times more blood than other organs."

So straighten up and make yourself smarter by giving your brain more blood to work with.

Even work environment can affect your mental performance. Studies reported in Applied Ergonomics magazine prove that performance improves with brighter light (up to a point); with blue, yellow, green and pastel colors; with office spaces that occupants do not perceive as cramped; and with more negative ions in the air you breathe.

When enough negative ions are attached to oxygen molecules in the air we breathe, we feel exhilarated and alert. The air smells like it does after a summer rainstorm or deep in a pine forest.

This is the basic sales pitch given by companies that market negative ion generators — besides their capacity to remove smoke, bacteria, pollen and airborne particles that cause odors.

You can feel as if you've been drugged when the store of negative ions in the air is depleted by pollutants and by lack of adequate ventilation. Then the atmosphere seems to grow stuffy. (Heating and air-conditioning systems compound the problem because they actually remove negative ions from the air.)

One possibility for a person intent upon enhancing mental performance is exercising in the office — at your desk, if you wish. Exercise accelerates heartbeat, moving more blood and essential oxygen to your brain and making you more alert.

Dr. David G. Scott and Dr. James H. Ewing of Crozer-Chester Medical Center in Chester, Pa., proved in a research project that "mild exercise," the kind that can be done at a desk, improves concentration and problem-solving ability.

According to their report, "low levels of physical activity exert dramatic effects upon perceptual and cognitive functioning."

Much of the medical community now subscribes to the notion that body functions peak on schedule.

According to Dr. Halberg's research:

- Math ability peaks from about 3 p.m. to dinnertime.
- Memory is at peak efficiency from about 12:30 to 2:30 p.m.

- Attention ebbs and flows in periods of roughly one-and-one-half hours.

- Optimal time for learning for the majority of people is midafternoon.

This last learning peak was confirmed by Dr. David LaSalle to Talcott Mountain Science Center in Avon, Conn. He plotted circadian rhythms for the various mental skills required in learning.

By the way, people generally are in the best moods from about 12:30 to 5:30 p.m. You don't have to accept the body rhythm idea, though, to believe that people's moods improve as the end of a work-day approaches.

We predict that a software entrepreneur soon will introduce a computer program that guides people in the process of mapping their own body rhythms.

Sports psychologists have concluded that peak mental performance by athletes occurs when they concentrate while feeling self-confident. The same applies to performers whose output is a new business plan or a solution to a technical problem faced by any organization, psychologists say.

This feeling of confidence — feeling competent and good about your ability to function well mentally — is one of the first subjects tackled by each student at Mankind Research Unlimited, Silver Springs, Md., a so-called super-learning center.

"We tell people who don't think they can learn, that... they can learn to use more of their brains than they ever thought possible," says Carl Schleicher, Ph.D., director.

Think you can and you probably can, says, Dr. Schleicher.

Professor Marion Diamond, Ph.D., feels that a good mood boosts mental performance and that leading "a varied and stimulating life" improves one's level of intelligence, actually enhancing brain cell growth. Professor Diamond is with the Department of Physiology and Anatomy at the University of California, Berkeley.

The term "stimulating life," in Dr. Diamond's lexicon, refers to an environment that requires you to use your brain. He says that evidence indicates that one's brain increases its capacity and facility when it's regularly stretched.

To put it another way, the greater one's exposure to tough challenges, says Dr. Diamond, the more adaptable one is likely to be in solving other problems.

So if there are no challenges left in your present job or in any job likely to open for you in your company, you owe it to your future to move on to a challenging, mind-bending position.

None of the techniques mentioned here will do much good, though, if you're terribly unhealthy — whether as a result of dissolute living or some other cause. You're probably incapable, physically, of responding to tips for improving mental performance.

It makes sense to keep your body fit by avoiding sweet rolls washed down with Mountain Dew and by eating, instead, foods like liver, fish and eggs. These foods really do help preserve the brain's ability to reason, learn and remember, judging by findings of the Ohio State University Brain Aging and Neuronal Plasticity Research Group.

Other good foods for a person interested in being "smarter" are fruits, vegetables and food made from whole grains. Eat them at lunch. They'll give you an afternoon alertness boost. They kick in energy in as little as 20 minutes.

Any iron-heavy food also will actually improve your alertness and memory — if your body lacks iron. That's because iron-packed red blood cells carry more oxygen to the brain, says Dr. Don M. Tucker, associate professor of psychology at the University of Oregon at Eugene.

Applying all these ideas, many of which are not generally known or appreciated, will keep you alert more of the time. The alertness boost alone probably will be enough to make you a spectacular success in life. ■

Cookbooks from master cooks

By Sandra Scott Klink

Those enterprising souls who have made a store or restaurant work have a lot to teach the rest of us if we're willing to listen. Usually, success is deserved. In the food world, it generally is a function of excellent recipes, good preparation, a few specialties, fresh ingredients and the best use of the collective knowledge of those running the operation.

The public should consider itself particularly fortunate when some of this expertise is passed on. A recent accumulation of cookbooks falls into this category — with varying degrees of success, style and presentation they all contain valuable information. Some do so dazzlingly, some are folksy, others blessedly straightforward. Choose your area of interest from the following:

The best general cookbook in the lot, The Hay Day Cookbook by Maggie Stearns and Sallie Y. Williams (Atheneum, $19.95), is based on the successful Hay Day markets, upscale farm markets (with a not inconsiderable dash of chic) in Fairfield County, Conn.

The authors have put together an extremely well-crafted product. The approach is seasonal, and the recipes are geared to what is available. They have included, along with the expected seasonal produce, many unusual items like jicama, chayote and vidalia onions that may not be available to everyone but are certainly becoming more and more prevalent throughout the country.

Each section contains helpful charts with exhaustive information about the seasonal produce, imaginative menus and a potpourri of recipes reflecting the authors' knowledge — with a nice splash of the South from Virginian Sallie Williams. They lace the text with anecdotes and amusing stories about running the store — for example, one day when they had pieces of cheesecake offered as samples, they found some people spreading the cheesecake on crackers, thinking it was Brie.

I have tasted the results of many of these recipes — I live near two of the markets — and they are indeed excellent. Just trendy enough to be interesting but traditional enough to appeal to nearly everyone, this book makes it hard to go wrong.

Far trendier — and also in the coffee-table, not kitchen-counter, category — is American Bistro by Irena Chalmers and Friends (Contemporary Books, $35). A celebration of New American Cooking, the book pays homage to the inventive restaurants across the country, "some awesomely grand and some just the reverse," and intersperses recipes and photos from many of them so that the chef to reproduce them. Ann Seranne, a well-known cookbook author in her own right, has tested each one. If the finished product doesn't taste like what you had in the restaurant, it's probably your fault. (My Lutece apple tart was pretty good, but not in the same rarefied realm as the one I ate at the restaurant. Mea culpa. Or was it mediocre apples?)

What you'll find here are many of the obvious dazzling favorites like spaghetti primavera from Le Cirque, the above-mentioned apple tart from The Coach House — all dishes anyone who has sampled would love to try again at home. The degree of difficulty, however, varies wildly. Some are reasonably simple and straightforward; others downright intimidating. Selections from every course of the meal are there for the taking, as are selections from nearly every cuisine.

Heading South, Patout's Cajun Home Cooking by Alex Patout (Random House, $19.95) offers an inside glimpse at how the Cajuns cook — and their cuisine has become the most recent darling of the food world.

Probably the best value in sheer number and general brilliance of recipes of interest to the restaurant aficionado is The Four-Star Kitchen: Classic Recipes From New York's Great Restaurants by Arthur Hetsich with Ann Seranne (Times Books, $22.50). I think of this book more as a dining-out guide, something to read to get an idea of what various restaurants do best.

Luckily for those who want to try their hand at these recipes, they have been accumulated with the home kitchen in mind. You don't have to be a professional

Owner of three restaurants (two in Louisiana, one in Los Angeles), Patout has been dubbed one of the hot young chefs, and he sets out to prove that blackened redfish is not the beginning and end of Cajun cooking.

A large part of this cooking style is making the most of what is available. As he says, "The difference between a Creole and a Cajun is that a Creole takes three chickens to feed one family, while a Cajun takes one chicken and feeds three families."

First to be mentioned is the roux — the core of Louisiana cooking. But then you'll find a microwave roux! Maybe it works, but I wonder what the real purists would say. Patout covers the gamut: grilling, smoking and smothering, seafood, meat and poultry dishes, vegetables, super-sweet desserts. A good introduction to an interesting cuisine.

Anyone who knows Provincetown, Mass., knows Ciro & Sal's restaurant. A favorite of artists — and lots of others — since 1956, good Italian fare prevails here, and Ciro & Sal's Cookbook by Ciro Cozzi with Althea Cozzi (Donald J. Fine, $18.95) offers over 200 of chef Cozzi's most popular recipes. Homey in its approach, the book spins tales about the restaurant's early days, offers up some celebrity stories, has photos of some of the old regulars from way back when.

And it has some great recipes from all over Italy. You'll find many traditional favorites, and many imaginative variations done with his unique touch. For the trendy: Yes, you'll even encounter some goat cheese.

Preparation is generally quite simple and straightforward, ingredients can be easily found, and the folksy touch makes the book a lot of fun to read. But best of all, the pasta recipes shine brilliantly. Mouthwatering!

From 1936-1974 Jack Ubaldi owned The Florence Prime Meat Market in New York's Greenwich Village. He says that he was amazed at how little most shoppers knew about the meat they had set out to purchase. In Jack Ubaldi's Meat Book: A Butcher's Guide to Buying, Cutting, and Cooking Meat by Jack Ubaldi and Elizabeth Crossman he sets us straight. Helpful tips on buying, storing, freezing, techniques for boning and cutting, some recipes with a Northern Italian twist and a chapter on small game all add up to a helpful aid to the cook.

For cheese lovers, Edward Edelman (of the Ideal Cheese Store in New York) and Susan Grodnick have put together The Ideal Cheese Book (Harper & Row, $11.95), a stylish paperback that's half reference volume, half cookbook. Sprinkled with attractive drawings, the book presents cheese recipes from kingpins like Seppi Renggli, Paul Kovi and Jeremiah Tower but doesn't neglect the simple stuff — like the fine art of the grilled cheese sandwich. ■

Insurance rules are wacky

By Peter Bohr
Contributing Editor, Road & Track

What do actors, garbage collectors, bartenders, audio engineers and nurses have in common? They're all human beings, but it's hard to think of much else.

Well, to at least one automobile insurance company all these folks are engaged in "unacceptable" occupations. That is, the company doesn't want to write auto insurance for them because of the way they earn a living. Should the company provide insurance for these people, chances are they'll be placed in a high-risk or non-standard policy category and will be charged higher premiums, no matter what their driving records are like.

Welcome to the wacky world of auto insurance. It's logical and fair for insurance companies to base the availability and price of insurance on an individual's driving record and to some extent on the type of car he or she drives. (After all, a Mercedes is more expensive to repair than a Mercury, and Porsche is more apt to be stolen than a Pinto.)

But if you think that's all an insurance company considers when deciding whether or not to underwrite your auto insurance, then you probably also believe that the Pentagon pinches pennies and the Tooth Fairy really exists. No, most companies will want to know much more about you, including perhaps your age, marital status, health (mental and physical), ethnic background, where you live and whether or not you have profitable supporting insurance business (such as a home owner's policy with the same company).

Every insurance company has guidelines it requires agents to follow when binding policies. An agent for one major auto underwriter shared a few of that company's guidelines: The company is wary of anyone with diabetes or cardiovascular problems. It won't insure people collecting disability payments. It doesn't like single people in the Army or Navy, but for some reason an unmarried person in the Air Force or Coast Guard is OK.

The same company tells its agents to decline people from the Middle East and Vietnam, people in communal living arrangements and, most intriguing of all, a man married to a woman who is more than six years older. There's no problem with an insurance car owner is guilty until proven innocent. It's tough luck for the person who is guilty merely by association, even if he or she has a spotless driving record.

Nevertheless, in the world of auto insurance a car owner is guilty until proven innocent. It's tough luck for the person who is guilty merely by association, even if he or she has a spotless driving record.

Of course, the insurance companies will rarely tell you that you've been declined coverage because of your marital status, ethnic background or even occupation; in many states they'd lay themselves wide open for a lawsuit if they did. Instead, they'll simply find another reason. For instance, to exclude a foreigner now living in the United States, they'll require that the applicant be an American citizen for a certain number of years. Sneaky devils.

Certainly not all insurance companies require their agents to follow such flagrantly discriminatory and unfair guidelines. And those that do, don't necessarily have heartless, bigoted executives. Instead, the companies undoubtedly have mounds of statistics to show that bartenders, for instance, often toss back a few drinks while they work, and that audio engineers typically carry expensive equipment in their cars that might be stolen.

Nevertheless, in the world of auto insurance a car owner is guilty until proven innocent. It's tough luck for the person who is guilty merely by association, even if he or she has a spotless driving record.

GENUINE PARTS & AUTHORIZED SERVICE GUIDE...

KEEPING YOUR CAR ALIVE

Peter Bohr

Authors pen auto biographies

By Peter Bohr
Contributing Editor, Road & Track

On the occasion of Road & Track magazine's 40th birthday, we automotive scribes relinquished several pages in the June issue to illustrious American authors — to people whose books frequently appear on The New York Times best-seller list. We asked eight authors to write about their most-forgettable cars. Here are snippets from three of the authors' responses.

Tom Robbins ("Even Cowgirls Get the Blues"): When I bought my Cadillac, I felt like I'd finally grown up. I mean, that car had "subit" written all over it. Unfortunately, I only kept it 30 days.

A maroon '76 DeVille sedan, its plush interior was the color of the cranberry sauce at a Republican fund-raising dinner. Into it, I could fit my entire volleyball team, our equipment, a couple of girlfriends and a case of beer. It was quiet on church and so smooth it was like riding on Turkish cream.

Problem was, it made me feel like a middle-aged Jewish dentist. There's nothing wrong with middle-aged Jewish dentists. They dig impeccable root canals and make fine fathers and neighbors. Yes, but the image it me like tight shoes.

When it got to the point that I was hitting my face while driving, I took the Cadillac in to have it tricked out: wire wheels, pinstripes, Landau top. The dealer loaned me a new Camaro Z28 overnight. Wow! The next day I returned and traded in the Caddy.

I've been happily Z-ing ever since. The Camaro only holds half a volleyball team and is like riding on peanut M&M's. But nobody asks me to cap their teeth.

Richard Bach ("Jonathan Livingston Seagull"): The mysterious power of the '83 (MG) TD, the humming kinetic fascination of it, was a puzzle for me. If I reached for it in the sweep of a feeder, there was only metal to touch. If I listened for it in the sound of the engine, all I heard was intonation. The young woman driver as a matter of course, gives me the satisfaction of knowing I have asserted my sacred rights.

One fine day, I know I will be struck down by a yuppie in a BMW, but I will suffer my broken leg with the satisfaction of knowing I have asserted my sacred rights.

Incidentally, my favorite automobile is an Edsel.

Top Twenty may see some changes Saturday

By Herschel Nissenon
The Associated Press

Barring a major upset Saturday, Oklahoma, a 40-point favorite at Tulsa, figures to retain its No. 1 college football ranking for the fifth week in a row. But there could be a whole lot of shakin' going on elsewhere in The Associated Press Top Ten.

Oklahoma's four closest pursuers all face potential disaster against other members of the Top Twenty.

McEnroe's appeal has been denied

NEW YORK (AP) — John McEnroe's appeal of a two-month suspension has been denied and the 28-year-old tennis bad boy will have to pay an automatic $10,000 fine as well.

Marshall Happer, administrator of the Men's International Professional Tennis Council, said Friday the appeal filed by McEnroe was rejected and that the suspension will begin Monday and end Nov. 27. It will apply to all Nabisco Grand Prix tournaments and others events sanctioned by the MIPTC.

The suspension and fine resulted from McEnroe's accumulation of fines exceeding $7,500 for the second time this year after he was levied a total of $7,850 in fines for four violations at the U.S. Open championships.

McEnroe, who was in seclusion with his wife Tatum O'Neal after the birth of their second son this week, was not reachable for comment.

Because of the suspension, the resident of Glen Cove, N.Y., more than likely will miss the Masters in New York, which McEnroe said recently was one of his favorite tournaments "because I was brought up in New York, and not to get the opportunity to play at Madison Square Garden, where I went quite often as a child is disappointing."

The Masters will be played the week of Nov. 30 after his suspension ends.

Second-ranked Nebraska visits No. 12 Arizona State, third-ranked Auburn is at No. 11 Tennessee for an important Southeastern Conference game, No. 4 Louisiana State entertains seventh-ranked Ohio State, and fifth-ranked Miami of Florida meets No. 10 Arkansas at Little Rock.

The national championship picture may become a little clearer by sundown, even though LSU Coach Mike Archer promises that "the sun will come up Sunday morning regardless," and Ohio

NCAA Football

State's Earle Bruce says, "You don't know the really good teams until November when the pretenders are gone and the contenders are around."

Rounding out the Top Ten, sixth-ranked Florida State visits Michigan State, No. 8 Notre Dame plays at Purdue and No. 9 Clemson entertains Georgia Tech.

In the Second Ten, Arizona is at No. 13 UCLA, Long Beach State at No. 14 Michigan, No. 15 Penn State plays Boston College in a night game at Foxboro, Mass., No. 16 Texas A&M meets Southern Mississippi at Jackson, No. 17 Alabama is at Vanderbilt at night, Pacific is at No. 18 Washington, Kansas State at No. 19 Iowa, and South Carolina at No. 20 Georgia.

Nebraska's last outing was a 42-33 whipping of Pac-10 favorite UCLA two weeks ago. Now, the Cornhuskers get a shot at the 1988 Pac-10 and Rose Bowl champion.

"Sometimes with an off week, your team can go downhill, but I think we have kept up the intensity level," Coach Tom Osborne said. "An off week has been good for us at this particular time in terms of injuries."

"I think Steve Taylor (who threw a school record five touchdown passes against UCLA) would have been able to play, but an off week has been good for him and for the others with injuries."

"And it lets us go back to the drawing board. After getting 117 rushing yards and losing four fumbles against UCLA, we knew we had a few problems to work out and we needed to work on the fundamentals. I'm not saying we have all our problems solved, but an extra week to prepare for Arizona State has been beneficial."

Nebraska and Arizona State have met only once, the Sun Devils winning 17-14 in the 1975 Fiesta Bowl. That is one of Arizona State's 154 victories — against 39 losses and two ties — in Sun Devil Stadium since 1958.

Auburn and Tennessee come into their annual showdown with perfect records for the first time since 1979. Neither team ever has won the SEC title after losing this game.

"We've played Texas and Kansas, and Tennessee has played Iowa, Colorado State and Mississippi State, but the game we have both been waiting for is this week," Auburn Coach Pat Dye said. "I compare this Tennessee team with the 1985 team that won the conference championship, but this one is better in some areas."

"They are a good, solid defensive team and probably should be better against us than they've been earlier in the season with the return of (tackle) Mark Hovanic and (nose guard) Brian Hunt from injuries. Offensively, they are by far the best team we have played this season. They're a solid football team without a weakness."

The fans take this game very seriously and Tennessee Coach Johnny Majors warns that "the invasion of Pat Dye's Tigers will have Tennessee fans in a lather. You won't find a team more physical, stronger and more talented than Auburn year after year, but especially this season."

Two years ago, Auburn visited Knoxville as the nation's top-ranked team and was decisively beaten, dropping to 14th in the ratings.

"We were thinking too much about our ranking the last time we played in Knoxville," defensive tackle Tracy Rucker said.

The first-ever meeting between Ohio State and LSU matches the nation's sixth-best offense (LSU, led by quarterback Tom Hodson and tailback Harvey Williams, is averaging 475.3 yards and 40.7 points per game) against the No. 14 defense (Ohio State is keyed by linebackers Chris Spielman, a 1986 All-American, and Eric Kumerow).

Of the Buckeyes' 48 points this season, 24 have resulted from turnovers forced by the defense.

The Miami-Arkansas game matches two former teammates in coaches Jimmy Johnson and Ken Hatfield, who played at Arkansas in 1962-3-4.

Jays nip Tigers to widen lead

AL Roundup

TORONTO (AP) — Manny Lee, subbing for injured Tony Fernandez, hit a two-run triple in the ninth inning and scored on second baseman Lou Whitaker's throwing error Friday night as the Toronto Blue Jays rallied past Detroit 3-2 and increased their American League East lead to 2½ games over the second-place Tigers.

Toronto won its sixth straight game and stunned the Tigers before 46,233 fans, the third-largest crowd ever at Exhibition Stadium. The Blue Jays have won the first two games in the four-game series.

Lee was the hero in his first start for Fernandez, Toronto's All-Star shortstop who was lost for the season Thursday night when he fractured his right elbow after a hard slide by Detroit's Bill Madlock.

The Blue Jays, shut out on five hits through eight innings, began their ninth-inning comeback on Jesse Barfield's one-out single off reliever Dickie Noles. Pinch-hitter Rick Leach met Willie Hernandez, 3-4, with a double and Lee followed with a triple into the right-field corner that made it 2-2.

Reliever Mike Henneman walked pinch-hitter Willie Upshaw and Nelson Liriano to load the bases. Lloyd Moseby then grounded to Whitaker, whose throw to the plate beat Lee but skipped under catcher Mike Heath's glove. Jeff Musselman, 12-4, got the victory. He relieved Jimmy Key in the ninth and retired Kirk Gibson on a line drive with the bases loaded to end the inning.

Yankees 8, Orioles 4

BALTIMORE (AP) — Don Mattingly tied a major-league record with his fifth grand slam of the season and drove in five runs Friday night as the New York Yankees beat Baltimore 8-4, the Orioles' seventh straight loss.

Mattingly's slam, his 28th home run of the year, followed rookie Jose Mesa's fourth walk of the second inning. Mattingly connected with two outs against Mesa, 0-3.

Mattingly tied the record of five slams in a season set by Ernie Banks in 1955 and matched by Jim Gentile in 1961. It was the ninth slam of the season for the Yankees, one off the major league mark set by Detroit in 1938.

Red Sox 9, Brewers 2

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Roger Clemens pitched a five-hitter and rookie Sam Horn homered twice Friday night and the Boston Red Sox routed the Milwaukee Brewers 9-2.

Clemens, 18-9, struck out 10 and did not allow a hit until Paul Molitor doubled with one out in the sixth inning. Robin Yount followed with an RBI single and later scored on Greg Brock's single.

Clemens, 5-1 in his last six starts, walked two in his major league-leading 16th complete game. He is second in the American League with 231 strikeouts.

Royals 6, Twins 4

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — George Brett, Danny Tartabull and Jamie Quirk homered during a five-run fifth inning Friday night and the Kansas City Royals kept their slim American League West playoff hopes alive by beating Minnesota 6-4 and ending the Twins' six-game winning streak. The Royals moved within six games of the division-leading Twins.

Indians 7, Angels 5

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mel Hall homered and drove in five runs and Junior Noboa hit a tiebreaking single during a bizarre seventh inning Friday night as the Cleveland Indians beat the California Angels 7-5.

Hall hit an RBI single in the first, a three-run double in the third and a solo home run, his 17th, that made it 5-5 in the sixth.

Mets win as Cardinals bow

NL Roundup

NEW YORK (AP) — Kevin McReynolds hit two home runs and Dave Magadan drove in three runs with a bases-loaded double as the New York Mets routed the Pittsburgh Pirates, 10-2, Friday night to move to within 2½ games of first-place St. Louis in the NL East Division.

St. Louis lost 2-1 to Chicago and the Cardinals' magic number remained at seven.

Sid Fernandez, 12-8, pitched five innings, and allowed two runs on three hits. David Cone, Randy Myers and Doug Sisk finished, with Sisk allowing the only hit.

The Pirates took a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Jose Lind drew a one-out walk and Andy Van Slyke followed with a double, advancing Lind to third. Bobby Bonilla singled to score Lind and Van Slyke went to third. Mike Diaz scored Van Slyke with a sacrifice fly.

The Mets came right back with three runs against Mike Bielecki, 2-3, in the bottom of the first.

Len Dykstra opened the Mets' first with a bunt single. Magadan drew a one-out walk and both runners moved up on Bielecki's wild pitch. Darryl Strawberry's sacrifice fly scored Dykstra and McReynolds homered to put the Mets ahead 3-2.

Strawberry's sacrifice fly gave him 100 RBI for the season. He is only the third Met to reach that mark. Rusty Staub in 1975 and Gary Carter in 1986 hold the club record of 105. Carter also had 100 in 1985.

New York added two runs in the second on an RBI double by Dykstra and a single by Tim Teufel.

Magadan doubled to center in the fourth inning to lead the bases to increase the Mets' lead to 6-2. In the fifth, McReynolds hit his second homer of the game and 28th of the season and rookie Gregg Jefferies had pinch RBI double.

Cubs 2, Cardinals 1

CHICAGO (AP) — Andre Dawson's two-run homer in the first inning gave the Chicago Cubs a 2-1 victory Friday over the NL East Division-leading St. Louis Cardinals.

Cubs starter Scott Sanderson, 8-8, earned his first win of the season against the Cardinals, giving up five hits and striking out five as he went 7 2/3 innings. Frank DiPino finished up to gain his fourth save of the year.

St. Louis starter Bob Forsch, 11-6, allowed five hits in six innings while striking out seven to take the loss.

The two-run homer by Dawson, one out after a Ryne Sandberg double, was his 46th of the season and raised his RBI total to 130. Both are tops in the National League. Dawson now has the most RBI by a Cub since Ernie Banks' 143 in 1959.

Ozzie Smith of the Cardinals jumps over Chicago's Rafael Palmeiro and fires to first base to complete a double play in Friday's game at Wrigley Field. The Cubs won, 2-1.

The Cardinals scored their run in the sixth when first baseman Dan Driessen singled in Vince Coleman, who had singled, stole second and moved to third on a groundout.

Jack Clark, making his first appearance since Sept. 9 when he suffered an ankle injury, came in as a pinch-hitter in the top of the ninth inning. On a 1-0 pitch, he swung hard at a pitch down and in. He fell on his back and took himself out of the game. Tony Pena then replaced him at the plate and grounded out to end the game.

Phillies 4, Expos 2

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Schmidt hit his 528th career home run and Don Carman pitched five-hit ball for 7 2/3 innings as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Montreal Expos 4-2 Friday night.

The defeat kept the third-place Expos four games behind first-place St. Louis in the three-team race for the NL East Division title with nine games remaining. The Cardinals lost 2-1 to Chicago.

Carman, 12-11, struck out a season-high eight and walked one. Steve Bedrosian got the final three outs for his 40th save. It's only the sixth time a pitcher has reached 40 saves in a season.

Neal Heaton, trying for the 10th time to get his 18th victory dropped to 12-10. Heaton gave up three runs in four innings.

Reds 4, Astros 1

CINCINNATI (AP) — Barry Larkin hit a two-run homer as the Cincinnati Reds beat Houston 4-1 Friday night to send the Astros' to their fourth straight defeat.

Tom Browning, 8-13, allowed one run and six hits in 7 1/3 innings and Frank Williams finished for his second save.

The Reds took a 2-0 lead against Mike Scott, 16-13, in the second inning when Nick Esasky singled and Larkin hit his 11th home run. It marked the 10th consecutive game in which the Reds have homered.

It was the one-year anniversary of Scott's no-hit victory over the San Francisco Giants that clinched the NL West title.

In the Reds' fourth, Esasky and Terry McGriff singled and Esasky scored on third baseman Ken Caminiti's throwing error. McGriff advanced to third on the error and scored on Browning's squeeze bunt for a 4-0 lead.

The Astros loaded the bases to chase Browning in the eighth and Glenn Davis' drove in a run with a grounder to shortstop.

Giants 9, Braves 2

ATLANTA (AP) — Pitcher Mike Krukow snapped a sixth-inning tie with a run-scoring single and the San Francisco Giants went on to beat the Atlanta Braves 9-2 Friday night, reducing their magic number to three for winning the NL West title.

Any combination of three San Francisco victories or Cincinnati defeats totalling three, will give the Giants their first divisional title since 1971.

Krukow, 4-6, allowed 10 hits over eight innings and Kelly Downs got the last three outs.

The Manchester Sports Hall of Fame conducted its eighth annual induction dinner Friday night at the Army and Navy Club with five more names added to the list of honorees. Those honored included (from left) Tom Kelley, Jim O'Leary, Brunig Moske (Mrs. Mal Varley, Moske's daughter, accepted for him) and Earl Yost. Also honored was Maurice "Hippo" Correnti.

Five more join hall of fame

Five more names were added to the Manchester Sports Hall of Fame as the eighth annual induction dinner was held Friday night at the Army and Navy Club. Earl Yost, retired Manchester Herald sports editor, headed the list of inductees that included former major league pitcher Tom Kelly, student-athlete Jim O'Leary, duckpin bowling standout Maurice "Hippo" Correnti and the late Brunig Moske, who starred on the football gridiron. He died in 1977 at the age of 70. Yost served as Herald sports editor until retirement in 1963. He was a top-rated college baseball and basketball official. Kelley pitched for the Cleveland Indians and Atlanta Braves. He had a major and minor league career that spanned 14 years. He was a three-sport star at Manchester High School. O'Leary won 14 varsity letters at Manchester High and nine more at Wesleyan University. He is a nationally recognized economist. Correnti established several world records in the duckpin bowling ranks in which he was nationally ranked for several years. He is co-owner of Holiday Lanes. Moske was a star halfback with the North End Cloverleafs and Majors and was a star two-way player. He was a triple threat in running, passing and kicking. The instructors of the Handicap group was recipient of the Unsung Award while the host Army and Navy Club, for its many years of service to sports, won the Friend of Sports Award. Bob Digan served as master of ceremonies.

East subdues Fairfield Prep

FAIRFIELD — Falling behind early, East Catholic scored the last two touchdowns of the game as it downed Fairfield Prep, 14-7, in an early season battle between All Connecticut Conference titans Friday night at Fairfield University. "They (Fairfield Prep) are a real good football team," said East Coach Jude Kelly, who acknowledged the struggle his team had to face. The Eagles are 2-0 on the young season while the Jesuits are 1-1. It was the ACC opener for both clubs. East and Prep battled to a 21-21 deadlock a year ago. The Jesuits took the early lead midway through the first quarter as quarterback Rob Rotundo scored on a 17-yard run. Dave Loglicci added the PAT for a quick 7-0 bulge. East, though, was just ready to get started as it came back on Jason Talbot's 24-yard touchdown run. It was Talbot's fourth touchdown of the season. The conversion attempt failed leaving Prep in front, 7-6.

Prep held onto its slender lead until the third quarter when Talbot broke off a 85-yard run from scrimmage. Aaron Alibrio added the two-point conversion for the final points. Alibrio led East's vaunted wishbone ground attack with 156 yards on 21 carries while Talbot chipped in 102 yards on 13 carries. East's wishbone accounted for all 293 yards of its total offense as quarterback Marc Mangiafico attempted just three passes, completing none. Kelly gave credit to the Jesuit defense for shutting his Eagles down early. "They were good and did some things to stop our option early," he said. The ninth-year coach noted, however, that East was able to get its offense in gear in the second half. "The key was the offensive line allowed us to run with some consistency in the second half. They rose to the occasion and played well," he said. East was able to hang onto the football for the final 5:44, running out the clock as the line of center Dave DiGiacomo and Bader, John Egazarian, Chabot, Scalora and Doug Rizuto at tight end gave East control. East's defense limited Prep to 177 yards in total offense. Rotundo was just 3-for-7 in the air for a paltry 12 yards. "The pass rush we received from the defensive line was a big factor," Kelly said. The line included Josh Scalora, Larry Depula, Paul Chabot and Erik Bader. The pressure enabled linebacker Rocco Desimone to latch onto a key interception right before halftime for the Eagles. "It was a hard-hitting game. It was a heckuva game," Kelly said. East's next game is next Saturday, a non-conference affair, against Wilbur Cross at Mount Neb. East Catholic 7 0 7 0-14 Fairfield Prep 7 0 0 0-7

Central butts MHS, 31-8

By Jim Tierney
Herald Sports Writer

BRISTOL — Similar to opening day, the Manchester High football team experienced the same problems it faced a week ago. Unable to contain the fine running attack of Bristol Central, particularly tailback Kieran Thurston and quarterback John Dauphinee, the visiting Indians succumbed to the Rams, 31-8, Friday night at Muzzy Field. Manchester falls to 0-2 while Central moves to 2-0. The Indians will begin a string of seven consecutive CCC East games next Saturday when they visit South Windsor High. "It was a repeat of last week's performance," Manchester Coach Ron Cournoyer said. "It (turnovers) made the difference. Our offense didn't put it in." Manchester moved the ball well in the early going but Indian senior quarterback Kelly Dubois was intercepted three times during promising drives. Thurston and Dauphinee combined for 255 of the Rams' 334 rushing yards and tallied three and two touchdowns, respectively. All of Central's yardage came on the ground. Dauphinee was 0-for-8 in the passing department. On the opening drive, Dubois led the Indians to Central's 22-yard line. A 12-yard run by senior running back Ron Smith was the key play. On a first down play, Dubois' pitch to Smith went astray and Manchester lost 14 yards to the 42. Two plays later, Keith Rafanello picked off a Dubois pass. Beginning at its own 41-yard line, Bristol put together a 14-play drive — in which Thurston rushed for 48 yards — culminating with a Thurston one-yard plunge with 3:58 left in the first quarter. Thurston kicked the extra point and Central led, 7-0. Still trailing, 7-0, the Indians' first possession of the second quarter was its best until the ill-favored turnover. Manchester began on its own 30 and crossed midfield on two consecutive first-down passes from Dubois, one each to senior Eric Rasmus and junior tight end Chip Driggs. On a 4th-and-3 from the Ram 35, Dubois hit Driggs over the middle for a 13-yard gain and a first down at the Bristol 23. Three plays later, Dauphinee exhibited his defensive prowess by intercepting a Dubois pass and returning it to his own 28. Bristol proceeded to march 72 yards, with a 26-yard Dauphinee keeper the pivotal play, and scored on a 7-yard run by Dauphinee with 2:24 left in the half. Central led, 19-0, at halftime. The Manchester porous defense was exploited by the Rams in the third quarter as Thurston scored two touchdowns and Dauphinee began to gain huge amounts on the ground. Dauphinee rushed for 76 yards in the second half. Bristol opened the second half with a fine nine-play, 73-yard scoring drive. Thurston scored from three yards out with 8:11 left to give Bristol a 19-0 bulge. Gaping holes up the middle opened up every time Dauphinee dropped back to pass and he took advantage of them. "He (Dauphinee) is an excellent quarterback," Cournoyer said. "We worked hard to defend the option. We were making poor tackles. They ran very well off tackle. Their quarterback just made some tremendous decisions." Manchester managed just one first-down in the third quarter. Thurston added a 22-yard touchdown run Bristol's lead to 25-0. The two-point conversion failed. Before the Ram starters came out in the fourth quarter, Dauphinee tallied one more Bristol TD on a five-yard keeper with 5:40 left in the game. Manchester averted the shutout when Dubois, after scrambling from the right to the left side of the field, hit junior Brian Pelletier for a 44-yard TD. Dubois hit senior David Russell for the two-point conversion. Smith carried 13 times for 68 yards while Dubois was 8-for-16 in the passing department for 104 yards. Pelletier and senior Rob McLaughlin had interceptions for the Indians. Chris Garrepp as the defensive standout for Manchester.

Coventry explodes to whip Cheney Tech

H.S. Roundup

COVENTRY — Three goals in the first half proved to be more than enough as Coventry High overpowered Cheney Tech, 7-1, in Charter Oak Conference boys' soccer action Friday afternoon. It was the COC opener for both schools with the Patriots 2-1-1 overall and the Beavers 0-2-1. Coventry, the defending COC champs, has a stern test in its next game Tuesday as the Patriots host perennial conference power Rocky Hill. The Terriers beat the Patriots in an earlier meeting this year, 2-0. Cheney, meanwhile, is back in action Tuesday at Bolton High School. David Poulin had two goals and Nathan Krider, Pat Bradley, Bob Berkowitz, Jack Ayer and John Vincent one apiece for Coventry. Ba Pho, with his second goal of the campaign, overrode the shutout for the Techmen. "We moved the ball well today," said Coventry Coach Bob Finster. "We had been doing a lot of individual stuff and we concentrated in practice on working well together." Poulin up front and Berkowitz in the midfield played well for Coventry. Scott House and Steve Infante, who marked Berkowitz, played well for Cheney. Coventry had a 25-6 edge in the shots department. "They dominated," Cheney Coach Paul Soucy said. "They're a much better team and it showed. You go into a game like this hoping for some breaks but..." Finster noted that stopper Jason Smith will miss the Rocky Hill game. He's out for 2-3 weeks with a neck injury.

Bolton unbeaten

BOLTON — Scoring was in short commodity for the Bolton High boys' soccer team in 1987. Well, that problem seems a hundred miles away as the Bulldogs topped their total in '87 to 14 with a 5-2 triumph over Bacon Academy in the Charter Oak Conference opener for both schools Friday. The Bulldogs are now 2-0-1 overall while the loss was the Beavers' three-game winning streak. The teams traded two-goal first halves before Bolton settled down defensively. "The first half we were maybe a little lax," said Bolton Coach Ray Boyd. "We made some mental mistakes and they cost us goals." Vance Frennan had both Bacon goals in the first half, sandwiched between goals by Bolton's Andy Massey. Both of Massey's goals were assisted by Mikko Myrskanen, a foreign exchange student from Finland. "He's my Christmas present come early," said Boyd of Myrskanen. "He has decent speed and the ball always on his foot. He's a threat to do a lot of things. He has good vision and makes nice passes." Jon Wiedle had goals at 12:02 and 12:49 of the second half and Myrskanen capped the scoring at 25:02. Bolton outshot Bacon, 16-2. Bolton's next game is Tuesday at 2:30 p.m. at home against Cheney Tech.

Bolton 5 2 0 0-2
Bacon Academy 2 0 0 0-2
Scoring: B—Massey (2), Wiedle (2), Myrskanen; BA—Frennan (2); Saves: B—Conny Titus 4, BA—Petry 14.

MHS in deadlock

After three games of frustration, the Manchester High boys' soccer team logged its first goal of the 1987 season. It, however, wasn't enough as the Indians had to settle for a 1-1 deadlock with Hartford Public in CCC East Division action at Memorial Field. The Indians are now 0-1-2 in the CCC East, 0-2-2 overall, while the Owls are 0-2-1, 1-2-1. Public's home goal at 22:54 of the first half came after a miscommunication on the defensive end for Manchester. Goalie Jeff Bernier mishandled a pass back in the Manchester zone and Hartford's Hosi Lee put home the loose ball. Manchester finally put its first goal into the scoreboard at 33:27. Public goalie Wojanjan Colon pushed it out to Manchester's Jeremy Dieterle just outside the penalty box. With Colon out, Dieterle lofted a shot home from 25 yards out. Manchester Coach Bill McCarthy still doesn't have the answer for getting his club going. "We work real hard in practices. I think it's nervousness," he said of game situations. "I wish we could carry our practices over into the games." Manchester outshot the Owls, 14-7. Midfielders Craig Smith and Dave Stephenson, stopper Joe LaRosa, outside fullback Doug Harvey and forward Chris Lyder, with his best game, played well for Manchester. Sophomore Cory Craft also had a good outing for Manchester. "We had the wind against us the first overtime and we dominated play because of Craft," McCarthy said. "He did a super job on the right wing."

Manchester will look for its first win of the '87 campaign Tuesday at 2:30 p.m. when it hosts South Windsor High in another CCC East test.

Manchester 14 7 0 0-1
Hartford Public 7 0 0 0-1
Scoring: M—Dieterle, HP—Lee; Saves: M—Jeff Bernier 4, HP—Colon 14.

HARTFORD — The Manchester High girls' soccer team continued its torrid play in '87 with an 8-0 romp over Hartford Public in CCC East Division play Friday afternoon. The Indians, who've scored 23 goals and yielded just one to date, are now 4-0 for the season. The Owls dip to 1-3 for the campaign. Shelley Dieterle had two goals and Terry Scott, Michelle Callahan, Meg Berte, Kathy Cumberbatch, Jen Atwell and Judy Langer one apiece for the Indians. "The Manchester High girls' soccer family atmosphere continued as every player on the team played," said Indian Assistant Coach Steve Menchell. Pauls Hollis in goal and Karen Rattanshous also

Volleyball

MHS wins first

The Manchester High girls' volleyball team notched its first win of the '87 season with a three-set 15-4, 15-9 and 15-11 victory over Hartford Public at Clarke Arena. The Indian netters are now 1-2 for the season. Eric Twidde served 11 points and Truc Nguyen took the Indians from a 13-19 deficit to victory in the third set. Sue Garretts spiked well, senior co-captain Hauglin Luangpraseuth and senior Andrea Billey served well for the Indians. Seniors Tina Zorger and Michelle Maxner also played well for the locals. Manchester also won the junior varsity match, 15-0, 15-15 and 15-11. Manchester's next match is Wednesday at Clarke Arena against South Windsor High School. East Catholic High girls' volleyball team suffered its third straight loss, a three-set 15-0, 15-1 and 15-4 verdict to Bristol Central Friday afternoon at the Eagles' Nest. East's next match is Wednesday against Mercy High School in Middletown.

NFL TALKS BROKEN OFF

PHILADELPHIA — Talks that began with high hopes of ending the NFL strike broke off Friday and no new negotiations were planned after both sides refused to budge on free agency.

In Denver and Dallas, meanwhile, union solidarity appeared to be cracking on the on the fourth day of the walkout.

Broncos didn't report for picket duty even though 57 substitute players were practicing and some of the striking Cowboys "may be ready to cross the picket line."

With this weekend's games canceled, owners were preparing for play on Oct. 4-5 with replacement teams of free agents and anyone else they could sign.

The two chief negotiators, management boss Jack Donlan and union head Gene Upshaw, met for three hours Friday morning before calling off the talks, which began Wednesday.

"I thought we could better further the process by reevaluating our own positions," Donlan said. "When we left, it was on a nice note and we indicated to each other that we will be in touch."

"I believe to meet just for the simple purpose of meeting makes no sense. In fact, it can make it worse because people can become more entrenched in their positions," he said.

No date for resuming the talks was scheduled. Donlan said there were no positions "etched in stone," except the union's demand for unrestricted free agency for players with four years' experience or more. Management wants only to liberalize the existing system of compensation.

Upshaw said free agency was only issue where the union was "etched" in its position, "whether it's stone or butter or whatever it is."

He also said Donlan wanted to end bargaining to test the players' resolve.

"We came to bargain, they actually came to leave," he said. "This is actually a test for the players to see if they will stick together."

Donlan said breaking off talks may bring more pressure on both sides to reach a settlement.

"If you're meeting, people think maybe a settlement's around a corner," he said. "If you don't have meetings it brings pressure. I've got 28 owners. Gene has all his players. We both have the fans and the media."

Upshaw, however, said Donlan just wanted to pressure players.

"This is no more than a test for the players to see if they'll stick together over the next few days or next couple of weeks if that's what it takes," he said. "We'll be bringing more scabs out than they take in."

Donlan said only one new item had been put on the table, the owners' willingness to give the union $18 million in pension payments from the 1982 agreement that has been in dispute. The union, however, claims the money is owed players anyway.

Talks began Wednesday, the day after the strike began, and followed a meeting between Commissioner Pete Rozelle and Upshaw in New York City.
