Local officials warned AIDS discrimination illegal

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

NEW HAVEN — Connecticut mayors and first selectmen are getting a stern warning about hiring municipal employees: It's illegal to discriminate against an employee or applicant with AIDS. That message came Tuesday from lawyer Jay E. Bovilsky during the annual convention of the Connecticut Conference of Municipalities.

"AIDS should be treated as a handicap," Bovilsky said, and discrimination against the handicapped is illegal.

He said the U.S. Supreme Court had recently ruled that those with contagious diseases are protected from discrimination under federal law. He noted, however, that the ruling concerned tuberculosis, not AIDS.

Questions concerning such protection turn on the risk of contagion, how the disease is transmitted. He said that AIDS, acquired immune deficiency syndrome, is "a fairly tough disease to catch."

Laurie Andrews, AIDS coordinator at Hartford Hospital, urged local officials to concentrate more on educating the public and school children on the disease, for which no cure has been found.

Also at the conference, state Housing Commissioner John F. Papandrea said that millions of dollars in state money are available for local housing projects in getting affordable housing is a fine-sounding, lofty principal that we embrace enthusiastically... but by making equality a reality."

The commissioner said that the last program, setting aside $35 million the first year, $20 million the second year and $15 million the third, has not been taken advantage of by cities and towns. Of the $55 million now available, only $12 million has been spent.

He said part of the problem may lie with his agency and a lack of aggressive promotion of the program. He said that should change under a reorganization of his department that he is planning.

At the opening session of the convention, O'Neill reminded the local officials that over the last four years, the state has dramatically increased aid to municipalities: $14 million in 1983, to $1.3 billion in 1987.

Although O'Neill has consistently said he wants to increase state aid to cities and towns next year to help municipal officials hold the line on local property taxes, he could not make a firm commitment on an amount because a task force is still studying the issue.

That task force created during a special legislative session this summer, is looking at how the burden can be eased on residential property owners when towns undergo reevaluation.

Joe Grabarz, executive assistant to Bridgeport Mayor Thomas W. Bucci, said his city would oppose any move by the legislature to limit the aid to those towns undergoing reevaluation, because Bridgeport is in the final year of phasing in higher taxes and recommends that the legislature not reduce the aid.

Further, he said, preliminary indications are that economic conditions for the next year "may not be as rosy as they are now and that tax relief might not be the most propitious thing to do."

"That scares us," Grabarz said. CCM President Stephen Cassano of Manchester applauded the tone of O'Neill's speech and said 1988-89 "should be a positive year for us."

"We always would like more relief and he realizes that," Cassano said.

Local professor edits journal

Manchester resident Richard S. Peterson, a University of Connecticut associate professor of English and an author on 16th- and 17th-century English literature, has edited a special double issue of the "John Donne Journal, Studies in the Age of Donne."

The issue, "Essays in Literature and the Visual Arts," contains 10 essays written by British and American authorities. Peterson wrote one of the essays, entitled "Icon and Mystery in Jonson's Masque of Beauty." This essay focuses on a work by Ben Jonson, a 17th-century writer whom Peterson has studied extensively.

The meeting will be Oct. 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the Tolland County Agricultural Center, Route 30.

Larson names Stave to task force

State Senate President Pro Tempore John B. Larson, D-East Hartford, has appointed Coventry resident Sondra Stave to a task force to study an alternative correctional program for youthful offenders.

The task force will study the feasibility of placing certain youths, between the ages of 18 and 21, in a 90-day special program, instead of sending them to prison. The task force will report its findings to the General Assembly by February.

Connecticut In Brief

Commissioner takes oath today

HARTFORD — Connecticut's new correction commissioner, Larry Meachum, inherits a severely overcrowded prison system that may be helped by two new facilities set to open in five years.

Meachum was scheduled to take the oath of office this afternoon in Gov. William A. O'Neill's office, officials said.

Meachum, 48, comes from Oklahoma where he has served for the past eight years as director of its department of corrections. He succeeds Raymond M. Lopes, a career correction employee whom O'Neill decided not to reappoint this year.

To alleviate prison overcrowding, a major building program under way, including plans for a 400-bed jail in Newtown and an 800-bed prison in Suffield, those, however, will not be completed until 1992.

Schmidt optimistic about contract

NEW HAVEN — Yale University President Benno C. Schmidt Jr. said he was optimistic the school could reach contract agreements with its two unions by early next year without a strike.

Negotiations with Locals 34 and 35 of the Federation of University Employees will be conducted on "a business-like footing" rather than as an exercise in crisis management, Schmidt said at a news conference Tuesday.

Contracts with both locals run out Jan. 16, 1988. The unions represent 1,000 blue-collar workers and 2,400 technical and clerical workers at Yale.

Local 34, the clerical workers' union, staged a bitter 10-week strike in 1984, and Local 35, the blue-collar workers' union, refused to cross the picket lines.

Schmidt said negotiations would begin in the next few weeks and said an advisory committee comprised of university administrators and faculty would take part in the talks.

Insurers asked to help workers

HARTFORD — With negotiations going down to the wire at the city's three largest hotels, workers have called on insurance companies to exert their considerable clout to help reach contract agreements.

On Tuesday, a delegation from Local 217, Hotel and Restaurant Employees Union, presented "unity pledges" signed by more than 80 percent of the 350 workers from the Summit, Parkview Hilton and Sheraton hotels to representatives of Aetna and The Hartford Insurance Group.

In making the pledge, maids, bartenders, waitresses and clerks agree to donate $10 and four hours per week to support a strike if there is a settlement at any, but not all, of the hotels.

"We hope to get the message across very clearly that the Hartford hotel workers are not only prepared to strike but prepared to fully back up workers from other hotels that are forced to strike," organizer Connie Holt said.

Teen Fathers Program big hit

By Linda Stowell
The Associated Press

BRIDGEPORT — Nearly 30 years have passed since Manuel Cardona learned he was about to become a father, but he remembers the day clearly because he was only 17, a high-school dropout and scared.

"I want to help teen-age fathers because I was one of them," said Cardona, who is director of the Bridgeport YMCA Teen Fathers Program. "I remember what it was like to be dating a girl who said she was pregnant and I thought, 'What am I going to do now?'"

Cardona helped organize the Bridgeport YMCA Teen Fathers Program four years ago and although it's the only one like it in the state, other cities are looking to start similar programs.

Cardona, 44, said that so far, the program has helped nearly 150 teen-age fathers. The key, he said, is getting the youths into the program.

Cardona's clients are teen-age boys who are about to become fathers, and who need jobs, places to live, and just somebody to care. Since the boys are often scared and troubled, Cardona goes to them.

"I hang out where they do — bars, pool halls, courts, I put flyers in bathrooms," he said on Tuesday. "And, I'm well-known in the community."

Cardona says the toughest battle is to gain a young man's trust. Once he has done that, he works with the young man helping with everything from teaching parental skills to finding a job or a place to live. He counsels them on sexually transmitted diseases, helps them go back to school if that's necessary, talks to them about medical care for the mother and baby.

"In a way, they don't want to be fathers, but they take the responsibility," Cardona said. "You have to explain to them, you're a father, my friend, what are you going to do now?"

The teen-age Cardona became the father of a girl. He helped support the child and still keeps in touch with his daughter, who lives out of state.

Cardona says the worst part of his job is when a teen-ager goes through the program, but then has a unique case because he wanted a wife and children. But now he wants to work with teen fathers who need the same support he did.

"The point is helping these fathers get their lives straight," Taylor said. "We're not saying having a baby at age 40 is wrong or right, or having one sooner is wrong or right. The right way is the way you can do it and make it."

The Bridgeport program was started when the Greater Bridgeport Adolescent Pregnancy Programs Inc. accepted a challenge by the Ford Foundation to organize such a program, according to Edward C. Keane, professor of psychology and human services at the Housatonic Community College in Bridgeport, and chairman of the governor's Council on Prevention of Adolescent Pregnancy.

The Ford Foundation gave Bridgeport and several other cities a 2½-year grant to organize a program. After the grant ran out, the state Department of Human Resources picked up the funding and currently gives it a $45,000 annual budget.

"I just think the issue of teen fathers is now just being recognized as a very, very significant and critical part of the whole complex problem," Keane said. "But the research we have done shows that teen fathers are generally a little older than 19, and if given the tools and capacity to help, teen fathers will help the moms."

Keane said more programs are needed to help these young men complete their education and find jobs.

"Manny's program tries to do all of these things," Keane said. "Manny is a pioneer and a pious pier — he is one of the first men to get involved in this field. He struggles in the difficult areas of the community to get these men to follow the tune he plays, which is 'let's get (you) into schools and jobs.'"

Mary Ann Freeman, director of the Greater Bridgeport Adolescent Pregnancy Program, said the program has made a "significant difference" in the lives of the men who participated.

second child.

"They don't want to use condoms," Cardona said. "They listen to me talk about AIDS and other diseases, but they really don't follow it."

"The scariest part is when one of them goes through the program comes back, and they're in trouble again," he said.

Cardona, who said more programs are needed for teen fathers, says, "Teen dads are the forgotten victims. Everyone worries about the mothers, but what about the fathers?"

Kirt Taylor, 21, went into the program after he got married and learned his wife was expecting a baby three years ago. He says he is

NEW HAVEN — A city parking authority employee was fired after officials determined that between $200,000 and $400,000 in parking fees were not billed to 44 local merchants, officials said.

The merchants were not billed by the city for complimentary parking they had authorized for customers by validating parking tickets. Timothy L. Phillips, executive director of the New Haven Parking Authority, said Tuesday.

The billing lapse occurred for six to 11 years, Phillips said. Officials have not found any evidence of illegality, but have said the accounting firm had noted in its reports that it could not guarantee the authority was financially sound.

Phillips said.

Management problems with the authority began to surface after a 1983-84 audit by Arthur Andersen & Co., Mayor Blaglo Diletto said. A subsequent audit showed problems remained, Diletto said at a news conference.

After a task force investigation, the city moved in October last year to restructure the authority, which manages 10,000 parking spaces and brings in about $6 million annually in revenues, Phillips said.

Diletto and other city officials said the city was meeting with the accounting firm to discuss the funds shortage, which was not uncovered by the audit.

GETTING PREQUALIFIED FOR A LOAN

Many lenders help prospective buyers get prequalified for a mortgage loan before they begin a serious house-hunting effort. You sit down with a loan officer, give them all of the information about your assets, income, and debts so they can tell you how much of a mortgage you will be able to get a credit check. If there are any problems with your credit rating, you and the lender can work together to straighten things out.

If your lender prequalifies you, it makes you much more attractive to the seller when you do find a home. Occasionally multiple offers come in on a house. This may occur with the property that you are interested in. If you are competing with other buyers, it will be helpful if you have included with your offer a letter from your lender showing you've already begun the loan application process and appear to be qualified to buy the house. It will also save you and your Realtor a lot of time by eliminating from consideration homes you would not be able to afford.

Bill would create panel to revamp ocean policy

By Christopher Catohon
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A special commission to study problems of the oceans and recommend major changes in federal policies would be created under a measure approved by the House.

Lawmakers, who passed the bill Tuesday on a 311-93 vote, cited the waves of pollution that forced some East Coast beaches to shut down this summer.

"We do need a master plan to protect our oceans," said Rep. Jim Saxton, R-N.J. "The time is now for a new look at our oceans."

The National Oceans Policy Commission would be charged with looking at problems like pollution, coastal zone management, fisheries conservation and acid rain in the oceans and Great Lakes and recommending policy changes within two years. The 17-member panel would cost about $2 million.

"Our oceans and Great Lakes are susceptible to a vast array of environmental, economic and political problems. Too often we find ourselves dealing with these problems on an individual basis without a clear-cut national policy or strategy," said Rep. William J. Hughes, D-N.J.

House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Chairman Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., chief sponsor of the bill to create the blue-ribbon commission, said the panel would "develop a vision for the future" in much the same way the Stratton Commission recommended policies that shaped ocean policy through the 1970s and into the 1980s.

That commission issued recommendations in 1969 that led to the establishment of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, the Coastal Zone Management Act of 1972 and the Marine Protection, Research and Sanc-

Board asks 23% more for colleges

HARTFORD (AP) — The state Board of Governors for Higher Education has asked for a $440 million budget for 1988-89, a 23 percent, or $111 million increase over the current year.

The board also proposed $60.7 million in expenditures from the tuition fund, raised from student payments, for a combined total of just over $500 million for the budget year beginning July 1.

Tuition for Connecticut residents at state-run colleges would increase by an average 8.5 percent, under the board's proposal.

Of the total, the board seeks $38 million in new money toward what it called its key priorities: restoring college libraries, expanding student aid, replacing outdated equipment and strengthening minority access.

"Preparing students to succeed in the workplace demands the best in basic resources, including current books in libraries and modern equipment in laboratories," said Jeremiah J. Lowney, chairman of the higher education board.

Board officials said that two-thirds of the requested increase in spending would go for union contracts, added jobs, student aid programs passed this year by the General Assembly, and continuing pay increases.

The proposed tuition for in-state undergraduate students at the University of Connecticut would go from $1,350 a year to $1,430, a 5.9 percent increase.

The tuition at the four campuses of the Connecticut State University for in-state undergraduate students would go from $800 a year to $890, an 11.3 percent increase.

For regional community colleges, the in-state undergraduate annual tuition would go from $580 to $660, a 12.2 percent increase, under the board's proposal.

Feds cite scientific misconduct

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal agency has disciplined a distinguished cardiologist for exaggerations and misstatements in published research and has criticized his university for failing to investigate the matter properly.

Dr. Jeffrey Borer of the Cornell University Medical College in New York City was asked to issue an immediate clarification of one scientific paper dealing with methods of diagnosing heart ailments, according to a report released Monday of an investigation by the National Institutes of Health.

The agency's investigators recommended that for a period of three years a copy of their report be given to anyone at the institutes who is considering appointing Borer to a research committee or providing him with research funds.

The report said that the Cornell medical college's initial investigation of Borer "created understandable doubts about the institution's willingness to deal with a potential problem."

The Bethesda, Md.-based agency is the federal government's principal source of funding for biomedical research. Borer is chief of Cornell's cardiac catheterization laboratory.

"The institutes did not bar Borer from receiving federal research grants. It expressed concern about his 'unacceptable standard of record-keeping, of collecting and recording data.'"

"But, the report's summary said, 'There is no evidence of intentional misconduct on the part of Dr. Borer.'"

The research papers reviewed "included exaggerations that ranged from the inconsequential... to the more consequential... to those that are misstatements," the summary said. In several instances, it said, "it appears that the authors knew the facts and could have presented the research more accurately."

Myrna Manners, Cornell's assistant director of public affairs, said Tuesday that Borer would not speak to the press. "The report is out. The story is out, and it's been reported. There's nothing left to be said," she said.

She released a statement from the medical college's dean, Dr. Thomas Melick, who said: "We concur with the NIH conclusion that there was no evidence of deliberate misconduct, and we accept their recommendations. ... Cornell should have probed the errors more completely after they were discovered, and procedures are now in place to prevent a future recurrence."

Six years have passed since Dr. Jerome Jacobstein, a former colleague of Borer's at Cornell, raised concerns about Borer's research with medical college officials in 1981. In 1982, Jacobstein took his concerns to the NIH.

In a telephone interview Tuesday from Graduate Hospital in Philadelphia, where he is director of nuclear medicine, Jacobstein said, "In my opinion, there was much more involved than carelessness, and the evidence speaks loudly and clearly for itself."

Political ad unclear and misleading

In election campaigns, the political parties sometimes get carried away a bit and commit breaches of election etiquette if not violations of election law.

This year it appears that the Democrats have made the first small error. An advertisement that appeared Tuesday on behalf of the Democratic candidates in the Nov. 3 election carries pictures of the candidates for major office with their names underneath the pictures. In addition to the name of each candidate there is the name of an office.

But it is not clear whether the office named is the office held now by the candidate or the office for which that candidate is running or if it is supposed to be both.

Under the picture of Barbara Weinberg, for instance, it says "Mayor," and under the picture of Peter DiRosa it says "Deputy Mayor." Those are the positions those two incumbents now hold by virtue of having been named to them by their fellow directors.

Under the picture of Director Steven Cassano, however, it does not say "Secretary," the position to which he has been elected by fellow directors. Instead, it says "Board of Directors." It says the same thing under the pictures of incumbent Directors James Fogarty and Kenneth Tedford. But it also says "Board of Directors" under the picture of Mary Ann Handley, who is not an incumbent, thus giving the impression that the title is the title of the office sought, not the office held.

The ad says "Board of Education" under the pictures of three incumbent members of the board and under the picture of one candidate who is not incumbent, thus providing further support for the "office sought" interpretation of the advertisement suggested by the titles under the Weinberg and DiRosa pictures. Granted, most of the town's voters are sophisticated enough to know that six of the Democratic candidates, five of them incumbents, are running for the Board of Directors and that the voters do not elect a mayor or a deputy mayor any more than they elect the secretary of the board. But the Democratic Party should not contribute to any possible confusion on that score. After all, some relative newcomer to town might want to feel informed.

Money certainly isn't everything to Dole

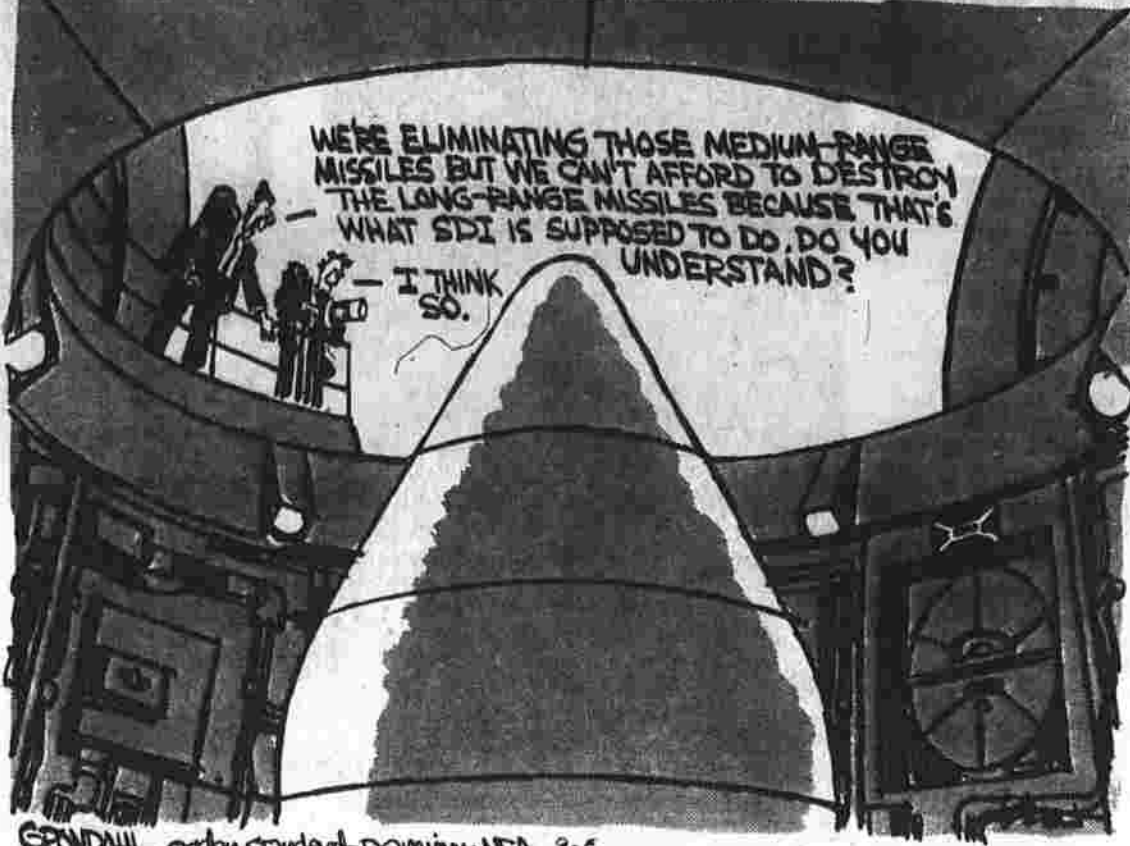

Bob Dole will be in Connecticut on Oct. 12 to tell Republicans that while money helps, it isn't everything to a fellow who wants to be president of the United States, as he does.

On the way to the nomination, Dole is expected to give a check of delegates to the GOP national convention in New Orleans next August no matter how flush his treasury is. This will confirm what some of us have been saying for weeks — that Dole's campaign here has been charged sharply from little more than scratching for money in this green pasture to an all-out hunt for delegates.

That means Dole isn't conceding Connecticut to George Bush, a sort of favorite son because he grew up in Greenwich. Right now — and Dole knows this — Bush leads in support by many ranking Republicans and in money he has raised here. But if Bush hears footsteps, they're Dole's. And Dole isn't alone in his resolve to challenge Bush for inroads into the bloc of 35 delegates this state will send to New Orleans. Jack Kemp is also prodding his organization to do the same. "We're very enthusiastic about his chances," says Paul Manafort of New Britain, a Kemp committee man. Earlier, as with the Dole people, Kemp forces were thinking of Connecticut mostly as a fertile financial territory.

Kemp, a former pro football quarterback, is being helped in this state by at least a couple other former grid stars — Andy Robustelli of Stamford, a great defensive end with the New York Giants, and Pete Gogolak of Darien, a place kicker with that team who will now try to put points on the board for Kemp.

Dole's team is headed by Peter Michel of Darien, a business executive who was a White House staffer 15 years ago. The only paid member so far is Jim McCarthy of Milford, who worked for Julie Belaga of Westport in her run for governor last

Politics and housing costs

By Vincent Carroll

The next time a national politician bemoans the lack of affordable housing, direct his attention to the lowly sprinkler. It offers a clue to the true causes of high housing prices.

As The Wall Street Journal noted in a recent article on real estate, "About 130 communities either have approved or have under consideration sprinkler ordinances covering apartment, condominium and single-family homes, compared with just six cities with ordinances on the books in 1981."

The cost per home of this admittedly useful equipment: hundreds, and sometimes thousands, of dollars.

Sprinklers are only the latest symbol of our urge to price housing beyond the means of young families. Consider the lament of one Robert C. Bell, whose letter to The New York Times described the difficulties of subdividing his property outside New York.

"If you subdivide," he writes, "a subdivision fee of $5,000 is now imposed for each lot they give you. Limitations multiply for 'wetlands,' 'slopes,' 'trees,' 'hilltops,' 'hillsides,' 'green areas.' More than $300,000 has been spent in development costs — every penny of which no doubt will be passed on to buyers in the form of higher housing prices."

One of the silliest of current political myths is that government hasn't done enough to support low-cost housing. It is a myth unfortunately shared by most presidential candidates. Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis last year proudly launched what he termed the "largest public program ever initiated in the state to build private-market housing." Now he'd apparently like to spearhead similar initiatives at the federal level.

Yet when Dan Dukakis, or most other politicians, lamented government imposed costs on construction? When have they tried to streamline the increasingly burdensome process by which developers obtain permission to build? When have they chided communities for rent control, which stangles construction, or for requiring ridiculously large lots, which bar neighborhood access to all but the most prosperous, or for consigning mobile home parks to the most unappealing locales?

Even when a proposed project conforms to zoning, the developer is often encumbered with a mountain of paperwork, including tricky environmental reviews. In many cities, he's forced to contribute up front to a fund for parks or schools (or even to build a school), and to provide on-site recreation.

These demands have an understandable purpose: To preserve the quality of neighborhoods and to ensure that growth pays its way. The net effect, however, is to stifle housing construction, and, inevitably, the price of housing.

For decades economic growth permitted housing quality to improve even a home ownership spread. (The portion of families owning their own dwelling rose from 43 percent in 1940 to 64 percent in 1980.) Unfortunately, growth in home ownership finally stalled as mortgage payments began to require an ever larger share of household income. Rents have also risen faster than income during the past 15 years.

Memos raising questions about Bush, contras

WASHINGTON — Recently released memos and depositions by the staff of Vice President George Bush raise more questions than they answer about his role in the Iran-contra scandal. And there is still more evidence that hasn't been released yet by the Senate-House committees that investigated the affair.

As we reported previously, there was more to Bush's role than the public hearings brought out. On June 8 we wrote that a "still-secret internal memo implicates (Bush's national security adviser Donald Gregg) — and by extrapolation Bush — to a much greater degree in the secret contra aid program." On June 21 we described the documents as "a revealing memo that was placed in Bush's briefing book before a crucial meeting on his schedule."

New the memo has been released, confirming our reports. The memo, dated April 30, 1986, was released by the Iran-contra committees along with an April 16 "Schedule Proposal." Both describe the purpose of a Bush appointment with CIA agent Felix Rodriguez as being to brief the vice president on the status of the war in El Salvador and resupply of the contras.

Rodriguez and Gregg have been buddies since they both worked in the CIA. At the time he was meeting with Bush, Gregg and other aides, Rodriguez was making frequent visits to El Salvador as a "counterinsurgency expert." He was also working with National Security Council aide Oliver North on the clandestine White House effort to resupply the Nicaraguan contras.

Bush has steadfastly maintained that, in three different meetings, he and Rodriguez never discussed the contra supply efforts. As for Bush's aides, they have had to amend their recollections of meetings with Rodriguez as more information has come to light that supplying the contras was discussed far earlier than any of them acknowledged when the scandal first broke.

In an 88-page deposition Gregg made last May, he admitted knowing by August 1985 that Rodriguez was working with North on the secret contra aid operation. Gregg also says he knew that North and Rodriguez had fallen out over North's use of former associates of Edwin Wilson, the renegade CIA agent now in prison for arms smuggling. Gregg's handwritten notes of one conversation with Rodriguez state that the CIA agent told him North was "using Ed Wilson group for supplies."

Gregg said he had no idea that money for the contras had come from arms sales to Iran. He said he thought it came from North's "informal private network." Gregg also swore he had never discussed any of that with Bush. "I spend a great deal of my time trying to send things to the vice president that I think are really very presidential," he explained, "in his deposition. 'I try to keep him focused, help him permit the death penalty.'"

The Nobel Prize-winning group said it had received reports of human rights abuses in 129 nations last year. "Although it learned of fewer political arrests, Amnesty International was disturbed that Soviet authorities continued to imprison many citizens whose conscience had led them to dissent peacefully from official policies, and to apply compulsory psychiatric measures to others," the survey said.

Mecham halts fund-raising letter
PHOENIX, Ariz. — Gov. Evan Mecham has ordered a halt to a nationwide fund-raising letter that urged conservatives to pack up and move to Arizona. The letter, which urged "militant liberals" and homosexuals were trying to destroy him.

The governor said Tuesday he ordered that the remaining 20,000 letters not be mailed because they "isn't like I'd say it." He said it had been signed by a signature machine without his authorization.

12 die in Milwaukee house fire
MILWAUKEE — A fire early today swept through a two-story house where 15 people lived, killing 10 children and two adults who were trapped on the second floor by the soaring flames. The fire broke out only hours before a woman who lived in the house was to go to court to fight an eviction notice, according to the woman's mother. The woman survived the fire, along with two other adults.

The wood and brick house on the city's North Side was gutted by the flames, which also spread to an adjacent building. The dead youngsters were 11 months to 8 years old, according to Fire Battalion Chief James Rechlitz, but he did not know the relationship among them.

Bakkers say Falwell snatched PTL
NEW YORK — Jim and Tammy Bakker today claimed that the Rev. Jerry Falwell snatched their PTL ministry away after warning them about a hostile takeover by rival televangelist Jimmy Swaggart and promised pay callers in a recorded message that "we'll talk more about it tomorrow."

The Bakkers, in the second day of their for-pay phone service, again denied asking Falwell to take over PTL last March after Jim Bakker was forced to resign because of his sexual encounter with church secretary Jessica Hahn. Falwell and his associates "actually came to our home I believe with the plan in their hearts and minds to take over PTL... even though they came to say that they were saving PTL for us," Bakker says.

Duarte denies being CIA informer
SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — President Jose Napoleon Duarte has dismissed as laughable an allegation that he served as a secret informer for the CIA.

The charge was attributed to the late CIA director William J. Casey and published in a book written by Bob Woodward, an investigative reporter and assistant managing editor of the Washington Post.

Senate urges curb on Viet trade
WASHINGTON — The Senate is urging Japan to impose official limits on trade with Vietnam following Honda Motor Corp.'s voluntary decision to abandon reported plans for a plant in that communist nation.

Sen. Robert Kasten, R-Wis., said Tuesday that Honda's decision stemmed from U.S. opposition and the company's $2 billion investment in automotive production facilities in the United States. He said that in addition to halting plans for a motorcycle factory in Vietnam, it has agreed not to undertake similar ventures in Laos or Cambodia.

However, a Honda official in Tokyo today denied the company ever had plans to build a motorcycle plant in Vietnam. The official, who declined to be identified by name, did say Honda has cancelled a contract to sell unassembled motorcycle parts to a trading company that resold them to Vietnam.

U.S./World In Brief

Copper coin may replace $1 bill
WASHINGTON — A move is afoot to replace the $1 bill with a coin, despite the failure of the Susan B. Anthony dollar coin that was introduced in 1979.

Advocates of the changeover say it would reduce government spending, hold down the cost of vending-machine products, aid the visually handicapped and remove hidden costs of what they call the outmoded dollar bill.

Sens. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., and John W. Warner, R-Va., and Reps. Jim Kolbe, R-Ariz., and Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., introduced legislation Tuesday to begin minting a new coin dollar which would be "gold in color" but made of 90 percent copper.

Some fat suctioning called risky
CHICAGO — Fat suctioning, America's most popular form of cosmetic surgery, is largely safe and effective, though some variations are riskier than others and some practitioners are poorly trained, a medical group said today.

The American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons said in a report that it had documented 11 deaths and 100,000 non-fatal cases of serious complications in an analysis of 199,000 U.S. liposuction procedures over five years.

Most of the complications were caused by clots of blood or fat blocking vessels to the heart, brain or lungs, the Chicago-based society said.

Testimony: Wedtech offered bribes
WASHINGTON — A former Small Business Administration official says Wedtech Corp. offered him a $12,000 payoff while another SBA official says a Wedtech competitor alleged that the scandal-plagued company was paying bribes to obtain $135 million in Navy contracts.

The statements Tuesday before a Senate subcommittee followed testimony from two Pentagon officials who said that Navy contracts turned out by the now-bankrupt South Bronx, N.Y., defense contractor displayed shoddy workmanship and were never delivered on schedule. But the military officers said the criticism of Wedtech was disregarded by their Pentagon superiors.

Wedtech is now the focus of five federal, state and local investigations into allegations that it bribed officials and fraudulently depleted assets as a minority-owned business long after it was not. SBA's so-called SBA program gave minority-owned companies preference in obtaining government contracts.

Ford Motor Co. plants go silent
DETROIT — Ford Motor Co. operations worldwide will go silent for three minutes in memory of Henry Ford II, who rescued the company from near ruin by his doddering grandfather and ran it for four decades in autocratic fashion.

Ford, who wrested control of company at age 28 in a boardroom power-play carried out with help from his mother, died Tuesday at age 70.

Ford, who suffered from heart and kidney problems complicated by pneumonia, fell ill in London on Sept. 1. Dr. Louis Saravolatz, who helped treat Ford at Henry Ford Hospital, said Legionnaires' disease contributed to the death.

Unrest continues in Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Hundreds of troops backed by armored personnel carriers were deployed at entrances to Manila for several hours today to alert reports that rebel soldiers might attempt to overthrow President Corason Aquino.

Troops were recalled to their barracks at midday when no uprising occurred, said Col. Emilio Templo, chief of staff of the Capital Regional Command.

Templo said the troops detained 37 soldiers at the southeastern edge of the city but the men denied plans to join any mutiny. Military sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said a civilian bus rammed through a checkpoint north of the city early today, but the driver claimed his brakes failed.

The flurry of military activity began hours after a funeral march Tuesday for slain leftist leader Lant Alejandro. More than 60 people joined the funeral procession, which turned into the largest protest rally in the city this year.

Military sources said commanders had received reports that four renegade officers had joined forces in Bulacan province, north of Manila. The reports said the four were gathering followers for a new strike against the Aquino government.

About 2,000 mutineers attacked the presidential palace, broadcast stations and military garrisons on Aug. 28 in the most serious threat yet to Mrs. Aquino's rule. At least 53 people were killed and hundreds wounded in the failed coup attempt.

Mutiny leader Col. Gregorio "Gringo" Honasan escaped with about half his force and has vowed to continue his struggle against Mrs. Aquino.

Templo said Brig. Gen. Ramon Montano, commander of a new anti-coup force, deployed a 300-man army battalion at the Malinta intersection at the northern edge of the city and dispatched constabulary and army troops to Muntinlupa and Antipolo southeast of Manila. The troops stopped and searched vehicles entering and leaving the city.

To avoid what happened on Aug. 28, General Montano took immediate security measures so that if there really was any movement, they would not be able to enter Manila and the confrontation would be outside," Templo said.

He said the 27 soldiers, members of an army platoon based in Laguna province, were detained at a checkpoint in Taytay on the southeastern edge of Manila and taken to provincial headquarters.

Constabulary sources said the platoon leader claimed the men were going to Manila to demand the removal of their company commander. They were disarmed and detained without incident, the sources said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Intelligence reports said Honasan had joined forces with three other renegade officers — Brig. Gen. Jose Zumar, Lt. Col. Reynaldo Cabanatan and Lt. Col. Reynaldo Berroya — for a "last-ditch attempt" to topple the government, sources said.

Cabanatan and Zumar, the former superintendent of the Philippine Military Academy, are being sought in connection with a January coup attempt. They also took part in the July 1986 mutiny at the Manila Hotel.

Templo said the 27 soldiers, members of an army platoon based in Laguna province, were detained at a checkpoint in Taytay on the southeastern edge of Manila and taken to provincial headquarters.

Bush meeting West German leaders

By David Espo
The Associated Press

BONN, West Germany — Vice President George Bush met today with West German Foreign Minister Helmut Kohl and other political leaders to discuss the issue with the prospective arms control treaty with the Soviet Union.

Bush arranged to meet later in the day with West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and other political leaders to receive their views on the treaty outline that would ban intermediate-range nuclear weapons.

Bush also planned stops in France, England and Belgium before returning home to Washington Saturday from his nine-day trip to Europe.

The vice president was expected to hear from most Western European officials that they want any further treaty talks to deal with Soviet-bloc superiority in conventional forces in Europe.

Bush flew to Bonn Tuesday night after spending four days in Poland, where he met with government and church officials and leaders of the outlawed Solidarity union movement in the highest-level visit by an American official in 10 years.

Bush visited Rome briefly last week to discuss the issue with government leaders there.

marked an effort to forge better relations with the communist-controlled country, in what he described as an effort to promote "national reconciliation."

The vice president said before he departed Poland on Tuesday that progress has been made in improving relations but it is not clear that Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, the Polish premier, has refused to make major concessions on economic reform or human rights.

"Our two governments, let's be frank, have some differences which cannot and must not be glossed over," Bush said. "I hope this visit helps narrow them somewhat."

On his final emotionally draining day in Poland, Bush visited a hospital and met children dying of cancer. The vice president and his wife, Barbara, had a 3-year-old daughter who died of leukemia 25 years ago.

Bush also spent two hours in a grim tour of Nazi death camps at Auschwitz and Birkenau where 4 million people were murdered in World War II.

Templo said Brig. Gen. Ramon Montano, commander of a new anti-coup force, deployed a 300-man army battalion at the Malinta intersection at the northern edge of the city and dispatched constabulary and army troops to Muntinlupa and Antipolo southeast of Manila. The troops stopped and searched vehicles entering and leaving the city.

To avoid what happened on Aug. 28, General Montano took immediate security measures so that if there really was any movement, they would not be able to enter Manila and the confrontation would be outside," Templo said.

DOWNTOWN MANCHESTER HAS IT ALL!!!

Speedy car hits sign, utility pole

A Manchester woman was injured early Monday morning when she drove her car onto a sidewalk. The automobile struck a street sign and a utility pole, rolled over and came to rest upright.

Police said Cheryl L. Kearnes, 24, of 178 W. Middle Turnpike, was traveling at a high rate of speed on Main Street at about 12:45 a.m. when she failed to negotiate a curve.

Kearnes was transported to Manchester Memorial Hospital, where she was treated for multiple abrasions and released, police said. Police issued Kearnes a summons for driving under the influence of alcohol.

Coventry teen hurt in accident

A Coventry teen-ager was injured Saturday night after an accident on Center Street.

According to police, Thomas M. Gamache, 16, of 272 Boston Turnpike, Coventry, was traveling east on Center Street at about 8:30 p.m. when Tami M. Niederwerfer, 25, of 14 Jefferson St., Manchester, tried to turn left into a Subway Grill parking lot. Police said that Niederwerfer turned into Gamache's path, causing a collision.

Gamache was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released, according to a hospital spokesman. Niederwerfer was cited for an improper left turn.

Three-car crash causes injuries

Several people sustained injuries Tuesday evening after one car struck another car that was stopped in traffic. The impact from behind forced the stopped car into a third car.

According to police, Kristen M. Akeley, 19, of East Hartford, was traveling west on Spencer Street near the I-84 ramp when she struck the car driven by Douglas E. Roberts, 25, of East Hartford, forcing Roberts into the car stopped in front of him, which was driven by Manchester resident Deborah Lynn Pakalnis, 32, of 215 Bidwell St.

Police said that Akeley told them she was driving behind a van, and when the van suddenly swerved into the right lane, she saw the stopped cars but did not have time to stop her vehicle.

All three drivers were taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital. Pakalnis was treated for a neck sprain, Roberts was treated for a neck and back sprain, and Akeley was treated for contusions. Akeley was issued a citation for following too closely.

In 1864, the Dutch surrendered New Amsterdam to the British, who renamed it New York.

She was a member of the Colonial Dames of America and was active in the restoration of the Marlborough Tavern, in Marlborough.

She attended St. Mary's Episcopal Church, and served as a member of the building committee when the present structure was being constructed. She also retained her membership for over 60 years in the Church of the New Jerusalem, Swedenborgian, in New York.

In 1882, the Wadsworth Athenaeum in Hartford exhibited "Portrait of Ruthie," painted by John Singer Sargent in 1887, when Ruth Cheney was 3 years old. According to a memo in file at the Athenaeum, the portrait was a gift of Mrs. Cheney to the museum on Dec. 16, 1975.

According to Peter Marlow, a curator at the Athenaeum in 1975.

Sargent was struck with how charming she looked when she was brought in for her final sitting for the painting.

Another person who was taken by Mrs. Cheney's charisma was Dr. John F. Sutherland, professor of history at Manchester Community College and director of the Institute of Local History.

"Charming would dominate all other adjectives," he said. "I was struck by how attentive she was to me," said Sutherland. He spoke with her several years ago while researching the history of the Cheney mills, he said.

"She wanted to know all about me and the college. It impressed me. She was very excited about the college and what it was doing," Sutherland said. She was a great help to him on his research and was thoroughly interested, even though she was well into her 80s. She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. G. Douglas (Ruth) Krumbhaar of Bedford, Mass., Mrs. Quinley A. (Marjory) Shaw Jr. of Brookline, Mass., Mrs. Thomas C.T. (Elizabeth) Buckley of Geneva, N.Y., and Mrs. Nathaniel W. (Mabel) Smith in Rhode Island; 12 grandchildren; 33 great-grandchildren; and eight great-great-grandchildren.

The funeral is Saturday at noon at St. Mary's Episcopal Church, 41 Park St. Burial will be in the Cheney section of the East Cemetery. The family will be at her home, 161 Grandview St., to receive friends on Thursday and Friday from 4 to 6 p.m. Watkins Funeral Home, 142 E. Center St., has charge of arrangements.

Donations in her name may be made to the American Bible Society in care of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, the church itself, the Lutz Children's Museum, 207 S. Main St., or to a charity of the donor's choice.

Iran attacks tanker as convoy proceeds

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — An Iranian gunboat attacked a Greek tanker in the southern Persian Gulf early today, as a convoy of U.S. warships and a Kuwaiti tanker headed out through the waterway, marine salvage executives said.

The 63,738-ton Koriana sent a distress signal shortly after midnight saying it had been "attacked by missiles" about 50 miles north of Abu Dhabi, the executives said.

There were no casualties, the executives said, speaking on condition of anonymity. It was not clear how close the U.S.-escorted convoy was to the site of the attack. The convoy was in the central gulf Tuesday, the Pentagon said, declining to give an exact location.

Journalists in a helicopter meanwhile reported that another apparent "convoy" made up of five warships and three tankers was moving northward. They said they could not identify the warships, but one appeared to be the assault carrier USS Guadalcanal, which carries mine-sweeping helicopters.

British mine sweepers were searching waters off Dubai for explosives believed planted by Iran, but had found nothing by this morning, said a Royal Navy spokesman in London. U.S. helicopter mine sweepers worked farther to the north.

Shipping executives reported that an Iranian speedboat raked the Koriana with machine-gun fire and a rocket-propelled grenade, causing minor damage to the crew quarters.

They said the Koriana captain radioed an appeal to American warships for help when his vessel was attacked. He got no response and it was not known whether any U.S. Navy ships were in the area.

The raid was the first ship attack by Iranian gunboats since the U.S. Navy fired on an Iranian ship, the Iran Ajr, nine days ago. The United States said the ship was planning mines, which Iran denied.

Iran attacks ships in the gulf to curtail Iranian oil exports. Iran retaliates with raids on neutral shipping, saying that if its commerce is in safe harbor shipping will not be either. The forces have attacked scores of ships since the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war spilled into the gulf in 1984.

The 10th U.S.-escorted convoy, made up of the guided-missile frigate USS Hawes and the 46,723-ton tanker Gas Fin, left Kuwait in the northern gulf Monday and was in the central gulf Tuesday, said Pentagon spokesman Fred Hoffman in Washington.

The convoy's trip, which normally lasts two to three days, could take longer because of the discovery of the suspected mine field off Dubai, said a U.S. source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The United States agreed last summer to refuel and provide U.S. Navy escorts to 11 Kuwaiti tankers to protect them from attack by Iran, which considers Kuwait an ally of Iraq.

Traffic was being diverted or was at a standstill in the shipping channel north of Dubai as capitalis headed warnings of the mine threat issued by the Navy, the Dubai Port Authority and Lloyd's Shipping Intelligence Unit.

Hoffman said tankers were being warned away from the area as a precaution, but the threat of mines may have been exaggerated. Iraq said its warplanes attacked a ship off Iran Tuesday and bombed a weapons factory near Tehran, a power plant near the Iran-Soviet border and an oil pumping station in the south.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said a number of people were killed in air strikes on cities, and in Iraq shelling of the southern cities of Kharramshahr and Abadan.

An Iraqi war communiqué released in Baghdad said Iraq jets attacked a "large maritime target," which usually means a vessel trading with Iran, off Iraq coast at 5:20 p.m.

Shipping sources did not confirm that attack, but said an Iranian supertanker, the 231,715-ton Khark, was on fire.

Bolton boys' soccer is finding success

By Jim Tierney Herald Sports Writer

BOLTON — Success isn't something that comes naturally for Bolton High School athletes. The boys' soccer team, however, continued its winning ways Tuesday afternoon.

The homecoming Bulldogs, behind two goals from junior Mike Myrman, shut out Chester Tech, 5-0, in Charter Oak Conference action to remain unbeaten in the young season. Bolton's record moved to 5-0-1 overall and 2-0 in the COC. The visiting Beavers are still winless at 0-3-1 and 0-2 in the conference.

Cheney, which was overwhelming outshot for the match, 24-4, actually had the first solid scoring chance 10 minutes into the contest. Senior Bo Pho blasted a 25-yard direct kick which handcuffed Bolton goalie Dan Titus.

"We might have had a psychological advantage if we had scored first," Cheney Coach Paul Soucy said.

Bolton dominated play from the start, but didn't get on the board until the waning moments of the first half.

Five minutes after Pho's direct kick missed, Myrman just missed on a 15-yard attempt and Andy Massey barely missed the right intermission. Mike Depold hit through pass on the right side to Myrman who placed a bad-angle 15-yarder past House.

"The kids had patience," Bolton Coach Roy Boyd said. "We had some real close ones. He (Myrman) passes real well and the ball is on his foot all the time."

The second half belonged to the Bulldogs. Bolton didn't waste much time adding its lead as Cheney's Jim Krone was called for a hand ball in the penalty area at 2:57. Jon Wiedie rifled the penalty shot past House for the 3-0 lead. Pho once again had the Beavers' best chance midway in the second half. Pho nailed a 30-yard direct kick which forced Titus to make a diving save. Cheney's next game is Friday at home against Portland High School.

Mets lose while Cards win two; 3 1/2 games back

By Ralph Bernstein The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Phillies pitcher Don Carman was almost perfect in dealing a major blow to the division championship hopes of the New York Mets, but claimed he had to fight himself to make the pitches.

Carman came within a base-runner of pitching a perfect game Tuesday night, limiting the Mets to just one hit in a 3-0 victory. In losing the Mets fell 3 1/2 games behind the St. Louis Cardinals in the National League East.

"I wasn't locked in mentally," Carman said. "I had to fight to make the pitches. (Catcher) Darren Daulton called all the pitches and I just threw the ball."

The only hit off the left-hander was an infield single to start the fourth inning by Mookie Wilson. Mike Schmidt drove in two runs as the Phillies dealt the Mets a loss that all-but removed them from contention. Any combination of St. Louis victories and New York defeats totaling two would eliminate the defending World Series champion from the race.

The Cardinals swept Montreal in a two-night doubleheader Tuesday night. "We've had our backs to the wall for a few weeks," New York Manager Davey Johnson said. "There still is a lot of baseball left to be played."

Johnson called Carman's performance "the best anybody pitched against us in a long time. He moved the ball around extremely well all night."

night. He didn't get behind in the count.

"Early, I didn't make mistakes," the 28-year-old Carman said. "I pounded them inside pretty hard. Later, I went inside with breaking balls."

Carman had retired the first nine batters when Wilson opened the fourth with a hard grounder just to the left of second base.

Shortstop Steve Jeltz raced to his left, batted the ball and threw to first baseman Von Hayes. Umpire Jerry Crawford called Wilson safe on a very close play.

"No question I was safe," Wilson said. "Jeltz made a good play. The first baseman made it look closer than it was."

"He was safe," the 28-year-old Carman said. "I thought the ball was a bit the minute he hit it. Especially knowing it was Wilson with his speed."

Carman said the pitch to Wilson was a mistake.

"I know that Mookie swings at breaking balls in the dirt," Carman said. "I wanted to bounce it up there and I didn't. I got it knee-high and he chopped it."

Carman said it felt good to perform as well as he had against the Mets.

"And obviously, everybody is rooting for the Cardinals. I'm one of them, too," he said. "I don't like the Mets (the Mets) approach; the

Mattingly sets grand slam record

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Don Mattingly changed his batting order and left before the start of the season.

"I used to have it in my mind, 'Sac fly,'" he said. "Now, I'm thinking, 'I'm going to hit and drive it somewhere.' It made a difference."

Mattingly, who did not hit a grand slam in his first five seasons, set a major league single-season record Tuesday night by hitting his sixth grand slam to power the New York Yankees to a 6-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox. Starter Charlie

Boston Red Sox Starter Charlie Johnson, 11-6, pitched a four-hit shutout and Rickey Henderson, 28, became the youngest player to steal 700 bases.

Breaking a scoreless tie in the third inning, Mattingly sent a 1-2 changeup from starter Bruce Hurst into Yankee Stadium's right field upper deck. It was his 29th homer and broke the record of five grand slams by Ernie Banks in 1955 and Jim Gentile in 1961.

"I'm not big on records," Mattingly said. "But it feels good to do this. When you think of all the guys that have played this game, it's hard to believe that no one else has bitting 300 or less if I knocked in 150 runs. To me, runs batted in are the key to the game. That's the most important part of the game. That's my job. That's where I failed most this year."

The Yankees sent 10 men to the plate in the third of the first game and Tom Bolton, Roberto Kelly and Henderson each singled with one out, and Henderson stole his way to second base on the first of two times in the inning.

After Mattingly made it 4-0, Hurst sandwiched walks to Dave Winfield and Jerry Roster under a single to Gary Ward, and Bobby Mattingly's grand slam also gave the Yankees 10 for the season.

Boggs needs surgery

NEW YORK — American League slugger Wade Boggs, suspended for a bruised left knee for over a week, will miss the remainder of the season, the Boston Red Sox announced Tuesday.

Boggs met with team physician Dr. Arthur Pappas early Tuesday and an arthrogram was taken, revealing a torn cartilage in the knee. Boggs will have surgery but no date has yet been set.

Boggs led the American League with a .363 batting average before games Tuesday, leading Paul Molitor of the Milwaukee Brewers by seven percentage points. He also leads in walks (103), on-base percentage (.441) and doubles (46). He has hit 24 homers and driven home 89 runs, both career highs.

Not bad. Scoring over a high school soccer. Isn't it amazing that local teams are having so much trouble scoring? The Manchester High School boys had only one goal, that from Jeremy Dieterle in game No. 4, through four games. Neighboring East Catholic has never carried the pigskin in varsity competition.

Jackson, obviously, has a lot of fixes to make. And they have to be made in a hurry before a promising season goes like many before it — as losing ones.

Husky gridders find difficulties in the defense

When the University of Connecticut kicked off its 1987 football campaign, the hopes in the Husky camp were extremely buoyant. UConn was coming off a five-8-3 campaign and the biggest hole to fill was at quarterback, where two-year starter Peter Lane had graduated.

All the pieces seemed to be in place for UConn's first back-to-back winning effort since 1967.

Now it's three games into the new year. It's not time to panic, but it seems that some of the wheels have fallen off the Husky juggernaut. Connecticut has dropped two straight. In each, the defense falters.

The defense couldn't stop the ground power of the Northeastern wishbone in Storrs, ending UConn's six-game home winning streak, and the same unit failed to thwart Yale by either land or air. Yale pummeled the Connecticut defense for 470 yards, 274 in the air and another 196 by land.

Husky Coach Tom Jackson refused to lay the blame on the defense, instead citing Yale's execution on offense. One of the members of the unit, though, wasn't as kind. He is well aware the Husky defensive effort better be turned around Saturday or the Huskies are going to be in for a long afternoon in spiderland when they visit Richmond.

The Spiders, whom the Huskies upset a year ago, seem to have their program back on track and are 3-1 after an opening-day loss.

What are the Huskies' biggest needs defensively? They appear to be bottomless. The secondary was burned for four TD passes by Yale's Kelly Ryan and appeared helpless at times. Rusty Neal started at cornerback and his poor play resulted in Ryan's benching in favor of Kevin Johnson. The latter almost came up with a game-saving interception, but that, too, came up short.

The defensive line has been anything but solid. The absence of middle guard Nate Cotton has not Checking back, the picks on April 1 of this year were the San Francisco Giants, Minnesota Twins, Toronto Blue Jays and New York Mets in the four division races. So far the picks of the Giants and Twins are accurate. The Blue Jays are up 14 games and the Mets trail the St. Louis Cardinals by now 3 1/2 after Tuesday's loss and the Cards sweep of the Expos.

That puts too much pressure on the defense. You can't expect that aspect to be perfect each time out.

NFL fans are streaming in for ticket refunds

By Bob Greene
The Associated Press

With the first NFL replacement games scheduled for Sunday, a number of football fans have decided to join the regular players who are on strike.

"We don't want to see a second-team play," said Mildred Longo of Hampton, N.J. "We paid $20 for a first-rate team."

Longo and her husband, who had 10 tickets, joined fans in Philadelphia who were returning tickets for Sunday's scheduled game between the Eagles and Chicago Bears. Also in the group was Kevin McKelvey of Philadelphia.

"I don't want to see a bunch of nobodies play," McNally said after he returned four tickets.

Ron Howard, an Eagles spokesman, said he expected at least 10,000 tickets to be returned. Ticket holders had until Tuesday night to return their tickets to the stadium.

Paul Bazik of Drexel Hill, Pa., said he probably will watch Sunday's game on television out of curiosity. But he said he will not watch the replacement teams in person until the price drops.

"If people think we are going to pay $20 a ticket to see players like that, no way," Bazik said. "It's not a real-caliber game."

Several thousand season ticket-holders in Denver have traded their tickets for cash or credit toward next season's season.

"It's been about 50 percent wanting cash and about 50 percent wanting credit," said Lynette Jones, who was working in the Browns' ticket office.

About 10,000 tickets have been returned in Cleveland and more than 3,000 ticket-holders have separate refunds in Minneapolis.

In New Orleans, John Keller obtained a restraining order to restrict the Saints from taking action against two ticket holders. But state District Judge Reavis O. Orourke said the order applies only to Keller.

Keller contended the Saints had no right to make him stand in line to get a refund for his tickets. He sued, saying since the team was not showing the "real" Saints, he had a right to get a refund on his ticket.

The Saints had established Tuesday before home games as the cutoff date for refunds. Since then, however, they have rolled back the deadline to the close of business on Thursday.

John Rawls of New Orleans, Keller's attorney, said he plans a separate suit against the Saints.

"In my opinion, the New Orleans Saints are in violation of a Louisiana criminal statute that makes it illegal to advertise an exhibit or show when the advertiser knows that the thing to be exhibited will not or cannot be shown at the time advertised," Rawls said. "The Saints are advertising an NFL game against the Los Angeles Rams Sunday, and I do not feel that what they are planning to show is really an NFL game."

While Klerman got back the $21 he paid for each of his four tickets, he was unable to recover the $5 per ticket service charge he paid to a ticket agency.

The NFL requires fans to return tickets prior to each game for either a refund or a credit against next year's season tickets. For that reason, teams who are not scheduled to play at home this weekend have not yet begun processing returned tickets.

The teams also are receiving returned tickets by mail. Most teams refused to divulge or did not know how many tickets have been returned.

"The mail we haven't even touched yet because we've been so busy handling the phones," said Harry Randolph, ticket manager for the Minnesota Vikings. While people can't get refunds by telephone, Randolph said the phones have been very busy with fans asking how to obtain refunds.

H.S. Roundup

Picking up three victories, the Manchester High School boys' cross country team had an easy time of it Tuesday afternoon in a quadrangular meet at Wickham Park.

The Indians defeated Rockville High, 20-43; Simsbury High, 18-43; and Fernald High of Enfield, 15-50. Manchester 18-30 and its next meet is Friday against Newtown at Wickham Park.

The Indians placed its seven runners in the top 11 in the individual race. Rockville's Tom Cary and Manchester's Shaun Brophy had a head-to-head duel over the 3.0 mile course. Cary edged Brophy and set a course record of 15:26 while Brophy set a school record of 15:30. The old mark of 15:34 was set by Paul Toland.

Junior Todd Liscomb and senior Sean Toland placed third and fourth, respectively, for Manchester. Junior Craig Hempstead finished sixth while seniors Dana Dieterle and Mike Sears took eighth and ninth, respectively. Junior Rick Eaton took 11th.

"I'm real happy with all the boys," said Coach George Saitor. "Todd Liscomb and Sean Toland were the school record for just second and Sean Toland ran his best race of the season."

Manchester's Shaun Brophy dued Rockville's Tom Cary to the finish at Tuesday's cross country meet before settling for second place, setting a school record in the process.

Girls win three

In the girls' race, the day belonged to Manchester High School senior Kim Jarvis as she tied the course record and broke her own school record for the 2.4 mile course at Wickham Park. Jarvis' winning time was 12:30 which tied the mark previously set by South Windsor's Heather Cayward last year.

The Indians defeated Fernald, 25-25, and lost to Rockville High, 20-45. Manchester's next meet is Friday against Newtown at Wickham Park.

"Kim ran one of the best races of her career," Manchester Coach Phil Blanchette said. "I think the rest of the team did a great job also."

Christine Nielsen, Merry Chodlewicz, and Jennifer Tepley placed 15th, 14th, and 13th, respectively, for Manchester.

Tigers doing their best of keeping race alive

By Ken Rappoport
The Associated Press

There's one race left in the American League, and the Detroit Tigers are doing their best to make it interesting.

"We've got to do this the rest of the way," Bill Madlock said after his home run triggered the Tigers to a 10-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Tuesday night and back into the thick of the American League East race.

Coupled with Toronto's 5-3 loss to Milwaukee, the Tigers' victory moved them within 1 1/2 games of the front-running Blue Jays. Detroit and Toronto close out the season with a three-game series this weekend in Tiger Stadium.

"If the Blue Jays lose one more, they'll be sure to have to beat us here," Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson said. "I think everybody will feel the heat if it gets down to the last three, which will be wonderful."

In other games Tuesday night, the Texas beat the AL West champion Minnesota 7-6. New York defeated Boston 6-0. Chicago stopped California 1-0. Kansas City trimmed Seattle 6-3 and Oakland edged Cleveland 5-4.

Along with Madlock's first-inning solo homer, the Tigers also got a three-run shot from Chet Lemon in the fourth and a splendid pitching performance from Frank Tanana, who hurled three-hit ball over eight innings.

Lloyd Moseby hit two homers to account for all three Toronto runs.

The only run off Tanana came on Lee Lacy's seventh home run, in the fifth.

"My problems were mechanical," Tanana said. "Pitching coach Billy Muffet wanted me to flatten out my delivery. It took a while for that to sink into my head."

"Now, it helps my curveball, it helps my delivery, it helps my deception."

Eric Bell, 8-13, the first of five Baltimore pitchers, gave up five runs on five hits before leaving in the fourth inning.

"I'll be glad to see the first time the team has lost more than two games in a row since an eight-game slide that ended July 7."

The Brewers, who have lost just once in their last seven outings, now have won eight of 12 games against the Blue Jays this season.

Milwaukee starter Chris Bosho earned the win with a seven-inning performance to improve his record to 11-7. Toronto starter Jimmy Key, 17-7, lasted 5 1/3 innings and lost for the first time since July 11. He gave up 12 hits and four earned runs, marking only the second time in his last 24 starts that he has yielded more than three earned runs.

wild pitch. Lyons doubled him home.

Royals 6, Mariners 3
Bo Jackson hit a two-run homer and Kansas City took advantage of three Seattle errors to score six runs off Mark Langston.

Langston hit his 22nd home run in the second inning as Bud Black raised his record to 8-4. Langston, 18-12, had two of the errors but had eight strikeouts to raise his American League-leading total to 233 and erase his own club record of 245.

Athletics 5, Indians 4
Mike Davis hit a two-out single off Cleveland reliever Doug Jones to break an eighth-inning tie and Mark McGwire hit his 40th homer for Oakland.

Steve Ontiveros, 10-8, survived early-inning problems to get the victory, allowing nine hits in eight innings. Dennis Eckerly pitched the final inning for his 15th save.

Terry Steinbach led off the Oakland eighth with a single off Jones, 6-5, who started the inning in relief of John Farrell. After Tony Phillips' failed sacrifice bunt forced pinch-runner Alfredo Griffin in, Steve Ontiveros pitched the final two outs to pad the lead to 5-3.

first American Leaguer to hit 40 home runs since Minnesota's Harmon Killebrew in 1969. The rookie first baseman drove in his 116th run with the homer, one short of the Oakland record.

Santiago's two-run homer off Giants reliever Scott Garretts also extended his all-time record for catchers hitting in consecutive games.

Kelly Downs, 11-9, was the winner with six innings of five-hit pitching.

Dodgers 6, Astros 1
Los Angeles got a two-run homer from Franklin Stubbs in the first inning and rookie Shawn Hillegas held Houston to three hits in six innings.

Hillegas, 3-3, outduelled Nolan Ryan, 8-15, who pitched seven innings and gave up four runs on six hits. Ryan struck out nine as he retained the major-league lead with 260, eight more than Seattle's Mark Langston.

Reds 5, Braves 4
Cincinnati defeated Atlanta in a rain-delayed afternoon game on Buddy Bell's RBI single in the ninth inning.

Paul O'Neill drew a one-out walk from Jim Acker, 4-7, and went to second on Dave Parker's single. Bell then pulled a single down the third base line for the tiebreaking run.

Pat Perry, 5-4, got the final out in the top of the ninth after the Braves had rallied to tie the game 4-4 on a fielding error by Parker.

Cardinals make most of opportunities

By Bill Bernard
The Associated Press

The St. Louis Cardinals' strong pitching and opportunistic offense were never more in evidence.

The Cardinals took full advantage of a total of six hits in the doubleheader and held Montreal to seven as they swept the Expos 1-0 and 3-0 Tuesday night.

The sweep, combined with Philadelphia's 3-0 victory over New York, gave the Cardinals a 3 1/2-game lead over the second-place Mets in the National League East race.

The Cardinals have five games remaining and the Mets have four, including three at St. Louis to close the season.

"It's not always how many (hits) you total, it's when you hit them," said Ozzie Smith, whose hit-and-run single through a vacant shortstop hole set up Tommy Herr's sacrifice fly in the sixth inning of the opener.

"It hasn't been easy. We are short our big hitter (Jack Clark). The ballclub's just responded," Joe Magrane, 9-7, pitched a three-hitter in the opener and Greg Matthews, 11-11, and Todd Worrell combined on a four-hitter in the second game.

Worrell, who allowed one hit in the last three innings, earned his 33rd save after taking over for more to this game than just hitting.

With the two victories, combined with the Mets' loss, St. Louis reduced its magic number to two for the divisional crown. Any combination of two Cardinals victories or New York defeats will win for St. Louis.

"We win two more games and we're in," Manager Whitey Herzog said. "Our pitching tonight was just outstanding — it really was."

"We couldn't get anything started. Everyone was trying to hit a home run," Montreal Manager Buck Rodgers said. "We weren't moving runners along with the few chances we had. In that second game, we looked like a bunch of high schoolers."

Montreal fell five games off the pace with the two defeats and can do no better than tie for the title.

Giants 5, Padres 3
San Francisco, which has clinched the West Division title, handed San Diego its sixth consecutive loss although Benito Santos extended his rookie record hitting streak to 31 with an eighth-inning homer.

Francisco Melendez went 4-for-4 and Jesse Reid hit a home run in his first major league at-bat for the Giants.

Sanderson details horrors of steroids

By Kimberley Shearin
The Associated Press

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Former Boston Bruin Derek Sanderson told a steroid abuse conference that he was not given steroids to build muscle bulk, but to treat a medical ailment.

Nevertheless, he experienced bad results from the drug.

Sanderson said his sudden fame and use of certain steroids led to chronic colitis, an inflammation of the large intestine, led to hemorrhoids and cellulite.

"My dedication, my love of hockey was pure, clean, straight," he said Tuesday at a conference on anabolic steroids.

Doctors have warned that anabolic steroids have serious side effects, including bone deterioration, liver cancer and heart and kidney disease.

Sanderson did not use anabolic steroids, but said their effects can be similar to the type of drug he did use and he said his hips had to be replaced two years ago as a result of steroid use.

"If you do not have the ability to be a great athlete, you can be great at something else," he said. "Straight, clean kids think it's OK to take steroids. They don't know they're not supposed to be bulked up that big. What happens 20 years from now?"

In 1987, a year after he was signed by the Bruins, Sanderson was NHL Rookie of the Year, scoring 28 goals and adding 25 assists. It was then he became afraid of rejection.

"I remember (that year) I began to get a little attention, and I really wasn't prepared to handle it," he said. So he began to drink a couple of beers, becoming what he called "a buck-fifty drunk."

His doctors also began prescribing a type of steroid called prednisone for his colitis. Suddenly, he began to have extreme mood swings, on the ice and off.

"I could never figure out why I was so excited about the Stanley Cup, and so depressed when it was all over," he said of the Bruins' title in 1970 and 1971.

One night, he'd be aggressive, eager and ready to play. The next night, he'd feel guilty over acting so mean the evening before.

The same thing happened outside the hockey rink. One day, he said, he followed a driver for two miles who cut him off on the expressway and stuck a gun to the man's mouth.

Sanderson said he tried to balance his moods with alcohol. As his career improved, his physical health began to plummet, which he blamed on the steroids.

After several stays at 13 hospital detoxification centers, he finally started praying. "It just felt like I would turn my life over to a higher power."

Now, he's a member of Alcoholics Anonymous and he said his colitis hasn't bothered him for about three years.

Let's Party!

From a wide-eyed preschooler to the contemporary teen, everyone loves a party!

Much of the sentiment connected to a party really comes from the food itself. Whether a birthday bash or a holiday celebration, these selected party treats can be the highlight of the day.

Consider ice cream watermelon wedges, a striking tabletop treat appealing to all ages. The watermelon "rind" is green plain chocolate candies and green tinted coconut. The edible seeds are brown peanut chocolate candies.

Cookies are always welcome at a party. These chocolate-and-vanilla checkerboard tac toe cookies resemble the actual game square. Or try cookie pops, a quick and easy choice made from a yellow or chocolate cookie mix. Both cookies are enhanced with colorful decoration of plain or peanut chocolate candies.

The youngest set will love the clown cones, a novel ice cream and candy idea. With its multi-colored chocolate candies used for the clown face, the cones are simple to make and so much fun to eat.

The easy-to-make happy huggy bear cake requires only two 9-inch cake pans for its special shape. A definite winner with kids, this distinctive cake takes on creative flair with the chocolate candy trim. Let's party balloon pops double as a centerpiece at that next party. The chewy snack-on-a-stick is made with crisp rice cereal, marshmallows and plain or peanut chocolate candies.

No matter what the age group, the universal excitement of a party always prevails. Why? It's simple — a party is for fun and for memories.

Your party will be full of fun with these ideas!

- Serve a sandwich or pizza buffet before the party treats.
- Keep games simple and non-competitive. Place Plain or Peanut Chocolate Candies in a clear container. Everyone guesses the number of candies and the winner receives the candy-filled jar.
- Go on a treasure hunt. Players can look for clues (perhaps individual bags of the chocolate candies with a message attached). Each person follows a different path to the same destination. The first one to the treasure wins.
- Try a cookie decorating party. With adult supervision, youngsters can decorate the cookies and tell a story to go with the design.
- Let the guests stock their own gummy bags. Give the children a paper sack to decorate and then, let them fill the bag with a variety of munchies and party favors.
- Make the party planning a joint effort — from invitations to cleanup.

- Plain and Peanut Chocolate Candies
- 2 sugar or other cookies

Prepare cake according to package directions for two 9 OR 9-inch round layers; cool. On serving board (or cookie sheet covered with foil), place the two layers side by side, one for the head, the second for the body (do not stack). Cover layers with frosting. Decorate the bear with candies. Place the cookies in the side for the ears. Makes about 12 servings.

Tic Tac Toe Cookies

- 2 eggs
- 3/4 cup butter or margarine, softened
- 2/3 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 square (1 oz.) semi-sweet chocolate, melted
- Plain and Peanut Chocolate Candies

Separate one egg; set aside. Beat together butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in egg, egg yolk, and vanilla. Stir in flour combined with baking powder until dough is formed. Remove a scant half of the dough to waxed paper; press into a 4 x 4 x 1-inch square. Into remaining dough, blend chocolate. On separate waxed paper, shape into 4 x 5 x 1-inch square. Place dough in freezer for 30 minutes. Cut chocolate dough into 5 (1-inch) strips; cut plain dough into 4 (1-inch) strips. On waxed paper, place side by side one chocolate, one plain and another chocolate dough strip. Brush with egg white and press firmly together. On top of this layer, place one plain strip, one chocolate strip and another plain strip. Brush with egg white and press firmly together. Repeat first layer to form the top layer. Wrap in waxed paper, pressing firmly together. Place in freezer for at least 30 minutes. Cut into 1/4-inch slices; place on cookie sheet and bake at 350° for 12 minutes or until edges are lightly browned. Remove to wire rack to cool. To decorate, pipe frosting on some squares, add plain and peanut candies for the "X's" and "O's". Let stand to set the frosting. Makes about 16 tic-tac-toe cookies.

Clown Cones

- 12 sugar ice cream cones
- Chocolate frosting or melted semi-sweet chocolate
- Plain Chocolate Candies, halved
- 1/2 gallon favorite ice cream

On the outside on the open end of each cone, thinly spread frosting 3 inches up toward the tip. Decorate with candies. Let stand to set the frosting. Meanwhile, place a jelly roll pan in the freezer. Scoop ice cream into balls and place on cold pan. Loosely cover with plastic wrap or foil and freeze. To serve, place each ice cream ball on a cupcake paper. Top with decorated sugar cone. Quickly press additional candies into ice cream for clown's face (the ice cream and cone are served "inverted"). Serve immediately. Makes 12 servings.

Cookie Pals

- 1 package (about 18 oz.) yellow or chocolate cake mix
- 3/4 cup butter or margarine, melted and slightly cooled
- 1 egg
- 2 tablespoons milk
- Plain or Peanut Chocolate Candies

Combine cake mix, butter, egg and milk in bowl, beating until dough is formed. Shape dough into two rounds, wrap in plastic wrap and chill 2 hours or until firm. Roll dough to 1/4-inch thickness with floured rolling pin on floured surface. Cut into desired shapes with 3-inch cookie cutters. Place on baking sheet. Re-roll dough scraps for additional cookies. Bake at 350° for 8 minutes or until done. Press in candies to decorate. Cool on baking sheet for 2 minutes, then remove cookies to wire rack to cool completely. Makes about 18 cookies.

Ice Cream Watermelon Wedges

- 3/4 cup Plain Chocolate Candies
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
- Green food coloring
- 1 package (7 oz.) coconut
- 1/2 gallon strawberry, pink peppermint or other pink ice cream

Separate the dark brown and the green candies. Cut these in half, stir aside. Chop remaining candies and place in freezer. Combine butter and food coloring in a large bowl. Toss in 2 cups coconut, stirring until uniformly colored. Line a 10-inch baking pan with foil. Press green coconut around the edges of the pan about 1 inch up. Spoon half the ice cream into bottom of pan. Sprinkle with the chopped candies, then top with the remaining ice cream. Press the green candies around the edge of the ice cream, then sprinkle the remaining coconut around the edge. Press the brown candies in the center. Cover and freeze until firm. To serve, lift from pan by the foil; cut into wedges. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Party Balloon Pops

- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1 bag (10 oz.) marshmallows
- 6 cups crisp rice cereal
- 1 cup Plain or Peanut Chocolate Candies

In large saucepan, melt butter over low heat. Stir in marshmallows, cooking until marshmallows are melted. Remove from heat and stir in cereal, then candies. Let stand to cool slightly. With greased hands, shape mixture into balls, insert lollipop or wooden stick into center of each. Let stand until firm. Wrap each with plastic wrap and tie with ribbon. Makes about 12 servings.

Hint: For Peanut Butter Pops: reduce butter to 1 tablespoon and add 1/4 cup peanut butter with the marshmallows.

Gussak prefers novel, trendy dishes in kosher catering

By Nancy Pappas Herald Reporter

When they're being considered for a job, most caterers are accustomed to questions about menus, presentation and costs.

But when Margery Gussak is being interviewed, she is frequently asked about her religious beliefs and customs, as well.

Gussak is one of the few kosher caterers in the greater Hartford area. She is one of only a handful who cook novel, trendy or high-style kosher dishes, rather than traditional dishes such as noodle pudding and brisket.

And she may well be the only kosher caterer who does not choose to follow the Jewish dietary laws in her own home, on Winding Hill Road.

"People want to know about what I believe, they want to find out if I'm really religious enough to cook for their daughter's wedding or their son's bar mitzvah," Gussak said last month. "Since I don't keep a kosher home, they say, 'how can I really know how to keep kosher here' (at the catering kitchen)?"

Gussak said she isn't offended by these questions, which pry into what might be considered private areas of her life. "It comes with the territory," she said. "But I tell them that if I were a strictly practicing Jew myself, I would not be permitted to work at or serve at their parties."

Most prospective clients are relieved that Gussak follows the Jewish dietary restrictions very strictly at her catering firm, 540 N. Main St., and that her work is supervised by Rabbi Hatim Kessler of East Hartford.

"Those who don't want to use me, I understand. I'm a very odd duck. I know I'm not the right caterer for everyone," Gussak said.

Being "an odd duck," in this case, means preparing Chinese banquets, antipasto buffet tables, arrays of pastes, lavish holiday dessert displays and more, all following the kosher dietary rules. "No brisket or stuffed chicken breast for me," said Gussak. "I'd like to think that I do more of a fine French restaurant kind of a dinner, rather than the traditional kosher."

On one recent weekend, for example, she served Chinese meat tidbits rolled in lettuce leaves, rack of lamb on a bed of spinach, sautéed angel hair pasta with sun-dried tomatoes and imported black olives, and chocolate-raspberry dressings with chocolate leaves and fresh raspberries.

Such unusual dinners do not come cheap. Dinners for between $38 and $42, plus gratuity, sales tax, bartenders, the rental of linens and the cost of the hall.

But there are more than enough customers who are willing to hire Gussak. There's scarcely a weekend when she and her employees

Margery Gussak and her daughter, Andrea, discuss the consistency of a veal pate. Andrea has a degree in computer finance, but is working with her mother's catering firm.

"We did everything right from my home, and it was really hard. I was carrying everything up to the home by myself."

Shortly thereafter, Gussak decided to formally start a catering firm. She chose to do kosher catering because, she said, "there was a lot less competition in the kosher field. There is just too much competition among the non-kosher caterers."

In addition, she said, "the time had come for a change in kosher catering. I had been exposed to enough really good food by this time, in New York and in my other travels, so I knew there had to be an alternative to chicken breast and boiled carrots."

Starting a kosher catering firm is more complicated than opening another food business. She had to find a rabbi who would supervise her work, and she had to purchase all of the pots and serving dishes she would use. "You can't rent anything if you're going to keep kosher," she said. "Each dish must be kept in a particular fashion. Meat is kept separate from dairy food. So you've got to have all of your own things."

For her very first party, she recruited everyone she could think of, said Gussak. "I called on everyone, my aunts, cousins, and 18 raw servers, people I'd never worked with before," she said. "I got them together and I said, 'My life is in your hands. I can only prep and cook the food. What they'll remember about this party is how you served it. So remember, this is my debut.'"

That debut was four years ago, and there has been no shortage of work since. She has parties booked through January 1990. The firm has outgrown the 1,600-square-foot kitchen, which seemed enormous when she purchased it. "Now I wish I'd bought twice as much space," she said.

She has six permanent employees, and will take on as many as 25 in part-time staff on weekends and holidays. But Gussak is still in the kitchen, chopping, weighing and — most of all — tasting the elements which will be combined to form a party.

"A party should be a real experience, and everything about it should be spectacular," said Gussak. "People will call me a few years after they've been to one of my parties. They'll say, 'I've been thinking about you ever since I went to you-and-so's wedding. I've always wanted to have you do something for me, and now I finally have the appropriate occasion.'" the melted chocolate slowly. Try not to stir too violently, or the mixture will lose its volume. Pour into three 8-by-4-inch loaf pans which have been sprayed with non-stick vegetable spray. Place each of the filled pans into a shallow pan of water, bake 1 1/2 hours in a 300-degree oven.

When you remove the pans from the oven, the "cake" will have risen quite a bit. Let the pans sit on the counter, so that the dessert will deflate again. Chill. Slice into fairly thin pieces. Serve alone, or with a tiny bit of whipped cream. Gussak also puts this dessert on a pool of pureed raspberries.

Note: The chocolate which comes closest to the bitter-sweet chocolate available to professional cooks is either Lindt dark or Hershey's Special chocolate bars. These chocolates are not entirely unsweetened, but have much less sugar than most chocolates.

Spicy aroma of apples cooking promises good things

Marge Churchill

When fall arrives, all of our senses seem to sharpen and become more acute. There is a crispness in the air; we begin to hear the call of birds flying south. We see the glorious red and gold of turning leaves, and we smell the pungent spicy odor of apples cooking.

Fall brings a fresh crop of juicy apples — apples of many varieties. Their color may be red, or gold or green, or show the colorful blush of sun-ripened skin. We are fortunate to have so many different types of apples from which to choose, and everyone seems to have a favorite. There are apples such as the McIntosh which is suitable for many uses.

The spicy aroma of apples cooking fills a home with comfort and cheer, and the promise of many good things to come. There are so many wonderful ways to prepare apples, that the choices seem endless. Today's column will feature several suggestions for cooking apples in your microwave. One of my favorite apple recipes is Cranberry Apple Crisp. This tart and colorful combination offers a real treat to the taste buds, and can be prepared and baked in just 15 minutes. Served warm and topped with whipped cream or a scoop of vanilla ice cream, this dessert is sure to bring rave reviews.

apple will determine the length of the cooking time. Baked apples should retain some crispness, and not be cooked until they are mushy and lose their shape.

Other suggestions for using the fall's fresh apple crop include applesauce, gingerbread, apple-bran cake, and fresh apple cake.

Basic baked apples
4 baking apples
1/2 cup raisins
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1/2 cup packed brown sugar

Mound brown sugar on apples. Sprinkle with cinnamon and nutmeg. Cover with brown or apple juice. Microwave on high power for 7 to 8 minutes, or until apples are just tender, giving dish a half-turn once during baking. Let stand covered for 10 minutes. Spoon juices over apples. Serve with vanilla ice cream or heavy cream.

To make 2 servings, cut the amounts given in half, bake in a 9x5 inch loaf pan for 5 to 6 minutes.

To make 1 serving, cut the amounts given in 1/4 and bake in a large custard cup for 2 to 2 1/2 minutes.

Early dental visits urged for children
CHICAGO (AP) — The ideal time to take a child for the first dental visit is when the child is an infant, reports a study on the Infant Oral Health Program at the University of Iowa, which was started in 1984.

The study, published in the Journal of Pediatric Dentistry, strongly supports the recommendation from the American Academy of Pediatric Dentistry that the child should see a dentist by the age of 1 and that even children as young as 6 months can benefit from dental care.

A major finding of the program, directed by pediatric dentist Dr. Stephen J. Geepferd, was that about half of the children seen at risk for developing nursing bottle caries caused by using bottles filled with milk, juice or soda as pacifiers or for bedtime or naps. Decay of the primary teeth can lead to problems in permanent teeth, the report notes.

Double meaning

I'm sure most of you have heard about the Lighter slam doubles, and it sounded as if North was bidding six to make a diamond. The result - the doubled slam was made, declarer pitching a crosserf, losing only the ace of hearts.

Polly's Pointers

A low-cal version of creme fraiche
By Polly Fisher
DEAR POLLY - Can yogurt be used as a low-cal substitute for creme fraiche in recipes? - NANCY
DEAR NANCY - Sure, but it won't impart the same richness or thick texture that real creme fraiche has. You can make a reduced-calorie version of creme fraiche that does give more of the character of the real thing, with yogurt and half-and-half. Here's the formula:

hours to thicken. Stir, then refrigerate at least 24 hours. The creme fraiche may be stored for up to a week in the refrigerator. This version has only 60 calories per quarter cup.
I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter 'Make It Yourself: Easy Recipes for Foods You Usually Buy,' which has a formula for making a richer heavy-cream-based creme fraiche, as well as your own yogurt, sweetened condensed milk and other pantry staples. Others who would like a copy of this issue should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 92863, Cleveland, OH 44109-8683. Be sure to include the title. - POLLY
DEAR POLLY - I have a tip about glass candle holders. They can be dangerous, cracking when the candle is lit. I bought some tinted glass candle holders for Christmas last year and several broke with lit candles in them. Please warn your readers. - R.B.
DEAR POLLY - I used to have a problem with microwaving vegetables. They often turned out tough and unappetizing. Finally, I discovered the secret: Don't add salt before cooking vegetables in the microwave. Since I started salting after cooking, my fresh vegetables are tender, tasty and delicious! - J.V.N.

Whitney schedules Demuth exhibition
NEW YORK (AP) - A survey of the work of Charles Demuth (1883-1983) will open at the Whitney Museum of American Art Oct. 15. The retrospective, consisting of more than 120 paintings and watercolors, will close Jan. 17, 1988. The museum says, "Demuth was a masterful colorist whose watercolors range from delicate nature studies of fruit, flowers and vegetables to striking portrayals of bohemian life in New York's night clubs and jazz halls. A pivotal figure in the avant garde circuit that introduced modern art and literature to America, he pioneered the distinctly American style of Precisionism, which fused European modernism with industrial subject matter."

President Reagan and Secretary of State George Shultz recently announced agreement "in principle" with the Soviet Union to dismantle all of their land-based (CHOSE ONE: tactical, intermediate-range) nuclear missiles. Most of these missiles are deployed in Europe.

2 The U.S. will spend $92 million to tear down and rebuild its new embassy in Moscow because of (CHOSE ONE: structural defects, hidden listening devices) in the building.
3 The Soviets recently surprised many people by letting some Congressmen inspect a top-secret (CHOSE ONE: tactical, intermediate-range) nuclear missile. Most of these missiles are deployed in Europe.

4 American agents working overseas recently lured and arrested a suspected Lebanese terrorist. TRUE OR FALSE: Officials say they plan to swap the suspect for Americans being held hostage in the Midwest.
5 Several nations recently signed an agreement to limit production of chlorofluorocarbons. Experts say these chemicals may be destroying the earth's (CHOSE ONE: ozone, ground water) supply.

6 Walter Payton of the Chicago Bears set another record recently when he scored his 107th rushing touchdown. That broke the old mark held by Cleveland's (CHOSE ONE: ...).
7 Most analysts said the tight race in baseball's (CHOSE ONE: American League, National League) East division would come down to the final meetings between the Detroit Tigers and the Toronto Blue Jays.

Advice

Elderly mother carries on a family tradition of abuse

DEAR ABBY: Have you ever heard of a mother being sued for mental cruelty? Mom has carried tales back and forth among her seven children for years. She has twisted stories and created dissension among all members of this family and deliberately turned brothers and sisters against each other. She is now 84.

Dear Abby Abigail Van Buren

She now mails out copies of her will to her children and grandchildren — all grown — listing who is to get how much, and who will be cut off without a dollar!

Abby, we're talking about an estate that is less than $100,000. She had better save her money because she will need it for a nursing home, as there is not one among us who can stand to be around her for any length of time.

Sad, isn't it? We were all abused as children, and she still abuses us. Every time I hear the plight of some old folks who are ignored, I can't help but wonder if some of them earned it — like my mother.

BEEN THERE IN SAN BERNARDINO DEAR BEEN THERE: There is nothing you can do to change your mother, but abusing her in retaliation will not improve the quality of life for anyone. Abused children usually abuse their own children. Just make sure you don't perpetuate the sins of your mother.

DEAR ABBY: Here's my problem: I have been living with "Fred" for 12 years without benefit of clergy. Until recently, he has resisted the idea of marriage, and I haven't pushed it.

Fred is Canadian, and a year ago when I took a job in Worcester, Mass., I sponsored him for a "green card" so he could work in the USA (I'm a U.S. citizen). In the process of getting a green card, the courts affirmed our "marriage" on the basis of long cohabitation.

Now, Fred wants to get married, but honestly, Abby, I feel the time is past. I think, Abby, I feel the time is past. I think, Abby, I feel the time is past. I think, Abby, I feel the time is past.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Why would I have a different blood pressure in my arms? The right arm is 50 to 100 points higher than my left arm.

Dr. Gott Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR READER: The blood pressure is normally the same throughout the body. Because the circulatory system is a free-flowing hydraulic system, the pressure within it does not vary from arm to arm, arm to leg, or leg to leg.

Small differences between blood pressure readings in the extremities are usually due to fluctuating pressure or to technical differences in how the blood pressure is recorded. For example, a person with a thin arm will seem to have lower blood pressure than a thick-armed individual. This is because the large arm requires a pressure cuff that is wider than normal in order to record an accurate figure.

In your case, the difference between the arms is significant and suggests a medical condition called subclavian stenosis. Occasionally, patients will show a higher right arm pressure because of a narrowing of a portion of the subclavian artery that feeds the left arm. This narrowing causes an elevated blood pressure in the right arm but not in the left. It is a dangerous condition and can lead to stroke unless the constriction is surgically corrected. Most doctors are alert to the possibility of stenosis; this is why we take blood-pressure recordings in each arm during the initial examination of hypertensive patients.

DEAR MOTHER: No. The process of clearing the table should not begin until everyone has finished eating. Perhaps the busboy did not know better, or he may have been instructed to clear the table in order to hurry the party out of the place. In any case, when that occurs, it's perfectly proper to politely tell whoever starts to clear the table to kindly wait until everyone has finished eating.

Every teen-ager should know the truth about sex, drugs and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (30 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is livedo reticularis? Is there a cure for it?

DEAR READER: Livedo reticularis is a reddish-blue mottling of the skin, produced by exposure to cold, that is caused by a spasmodic constriction of small arteries. It is made worse by smoking. Livedo is more common in the arms and hands than in the legs and feet. It can indicate a circulatory disturbance and can lead to tissue damage if the constriction is not relieved by warming or by medications called vasodilators.

If you have questions about livedo reticularis, you can get answers in Dr. Gott's new Health Report on the subject. Send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91969, Cleveland, Ohio 44191-3899. Be sure to ask for the Health Report on Livedo Reticularis.

1/2 teaspoon finely shredded lemon peel
2 cups hot cooked rice or bulgur

Wrap turkey slices in foil; place in a shallow baking pan. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 25 minutes or until turkey is no longer pink.

Meanwhile, for sauce, in a small saucepan melt margarine. Stir in flour and curry powder until blended. Add broth and milk. Cook and stir over medium heat until thickened and bubbly. Cook and stir 1 minute more. Stir in banana, dates or raisins, cashews and lemon peel. Arrange turkey over rice or bulgur. Pour sauce over turkey. Makes 6 servings.

How to organize all those coupons

By Martin Sloane

DEAR MARTIN: Notice that the refund offers in your column have file numbers. Can you tell me how to best use them?
M.J. SANGSTER, WINTER PARK, FLA.

DEAR M.J.: Every coupon clipper needs a system to organize all those coupons and refund forms. Without a system, the hundreds of coupons that you accumulate turn into a mess, and you will waste valuable time trying to find the coupons you need.

Some clippers organize their coupons alphabetically, by product name. Others organize them according to the aisles of the supermarket.

When I first started couponing, I listed the most frequently used supermarket products and divided them into 12 groups — the number of pockets in my expanding check file. This system has always worked and helped organize both my coupons and refund forms.

DEAR MARTIN: I am a single person, and there seems to be a lot of coupon clippers with whom to trade, but my friends are single too, and most of them don't share my interest.

Do you have any ideas? I would also appreciate some couponing tips for singles.
CAROLYN COOK, BURLINGTON, N.C.

DEAR CAROLYN: It would be nice if you could combine coupon-

Resignation in SEC New York office a benefit

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The resignation of the SEC's New York office administrator should help improve morale at its most important regional office, where at least six top people have left this year because of conflicts with her, attorneys familiar with its operations say. The departure of Kathleen A. Warwick is "like a marriage that doesn't work out," said Paul Fischer, a former assistant enforcement director of the SEC and now a securities lawyer in Washington. "It hurts in the short run, but in the long run it works out for everybody."

Ms. Warwick's resignation, announced Tuesday in Washington, followed reports of staff conflicts over her management style, which differed sharply from that of her predecessor, Ira L. Sorkin. Appointed in January, Ms. Warwick reportedly impeded some insider-trading investigations by the New York staff and was said to be inaccessible and aloof. As a result, several senior people in the office left, lawyers familiar with the SEC said. Earlier this month, a special SEC investigation team from Washington was dispatched to review the New York office, the agency's most important regional operation because of its close ties to the financial community and its role in a government campaign against Wall Street corruption. Ms. Warwick told SEC Chairman David Ruder in a resignation letter that her departure was in the best interests of the commission. The exact reason for her resignation wasn't made clear. But in a portion of the letter released to the public, Ms. Warwick repeated assertions that press accounts of dissension in the New York office were erroneous. Ms. Warwick did not return telephone messages left at her office or home, and SEC staff members declined to comment on Ms. Warwick's departure. Rumblings about dissension in the office became public in early August, when the head of its enforcement unit, Anne Flannery, quit to go into private practice after she reportedly had a series of disputes with Ms. Warwick. Ms. Flannery could not be reached for comment about Ms. Warwick's resignation. The law firm that hired her said she wasn't scheduled to start until next month. Some lawyers speculated the SEC's New York staff were resentful that Ms. Flannery was overlooked for the administrator's post after the departure of Sorkin, but had called her the best lawyer in the office. James A. Clarkson III, director of the SEC's regional office operations in Washington, was assigned to replace Ms. Warwick temporarily. "She didn't communicate with the staff. She didn't want or need visibility," Stoppelman said. "I think it was nothing more than the wrong person for the job at the wrong time." William R. McLucas, associate director for enforcement in Washington, was temporarily given responsibility for enforcement operations.

Business indicators note gain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's chief forecasting gauge of future economic activity climbed 1.6 percent in August, the seventh consecutive increase and the longest string of advances since the current economic recovery began in late 1982. The Commerce Department said the August increase followed a revised July advance of 0.3 percent. Analysis said the string of gains in the index was pointing the way to continued moderate economic growth for the rest of this year and through the 1988 presidential election, something bound to cheer Republicans hoping to hold onto the White House. The index last posted a decline in January. The seven-month gains are the longest stretch of consecutive increases in the index since a string of 21 straight advances starting in September 1982, right before the beginning of the current recovery. That long advance in the index signaled rapid economic growth in 1983 and 1984. The current recovery from the 1981-82 recession will be 59 months long next month, making it the longest consecutive expansion in U.S. history. Economists do not expect growth in the coming months to be as strong as in the early years of the recovery, given the advanced stage of the expansion. Instead, they are forecasting a continuation of the moderate advances in economic activity in effect for the last two years. The leading index is composed of 11 forward-looking business statistics and is designed to predict economic activity six to nine months in the future. The biggest positive force in August was a big gain in stock market prices, which pushed the Standard & Poor's 500-stock index up 8.2 percent in August. Four of the available statistics were positive forces on the index. The other strength came from a drop in weekly unemployment claims, a rise in building permits and an increase in the nation's money supply. The largest negative contribution came from a decline in plant and equipment orders by businesses, followed by changes in business delivery times on orders, changes in the prices of raw materials and a drop in manufacturers' orders for consumer goods. One indicator, the length of the average workweek was unchanged, and two others, business inventories and consumer credit, were not available. The various changes left the index at 192.6 percent of its 1967 base of 100.

In later London trading today, the dollar slipped back to 146.05 yen. London's main bullion houses fixed a recommended gold price at midmorning of $459.15 a troy ounce, down from $459.50 late Tuesday. Gold traded at a bid of $458.90 in Zurich, down from $460.

CD handling okay to date

QUESTION: In 1983, I put $20,000 into a six-year certificate of deposit and was fortunate to lock in a 13.35 percent yield. Because of compound interest, the CD's value now is well over the $100,000 Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. coverage limit. At maturity, it will be worth much more. The CD is with one of the largest savings and loan associations in the country. I check the S&L's balance sheet frequently and find that its financial position gets stronger each quarter. I don't need the money now and plan to keep the CD until it matures in order to continue getting the high yield, rather than withdrawing the excess over the $100,000 insurance limit. Do you agree with my handling of this? ANSWER: I'll have to respond with a qualified "yes," since you are not strapped for cash and have been doing your homework to be reasonably sure the S&L is in good financial shape, you probably have no reason to worry that the S&L will go belly up, causing you to lose any money. You're either very smart or lucky to obtain the S&L's extremely high interest rate to date.

Investors' Guide William A. Doyle

statements, it's often extremely difficult to obtain these documents — especially from S&Ls in shaky financial condition. And it must be added that some S&Ls have gone under shortly after "cooking the books" and putting out what appeared to be solid financial reports. Nonetheless, as long as you are confident your S&L will remain solvent, I'll concur with the way you are handling things. There are more than 3,200 S&Ls in this country. By recent estimates, some 440 are insolvent and approximately 500 more are dangerously weak. That's why, except in situations such as yours, this column's standard advice is to stay within FSLIC coverage limits. The same thing applies to Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. coverage at banks.

QUESTION: I inherited a five-year certificate of deposit, opened with $26,236.52 in February 1984. It states, "The simple interest rate to be paid for the initial term, subject to the restrictions set forth herein, is 12 percent." My bank's statement I receive lists the CD's value as $26,236.52. When I phoned about this, I was told simple interest means "no compounding" — not even annually. Could this be correct? I certainly expect to receive annual compounding. ANSWER: Unfortunately, you don't get it. Interest is not compounded on straight simple interest. With compound interest, interest is added to principal at the end of each compounding period and the total then earns more interest. The more frequent the compounding, the higher the effective annual yield. With simple interest, such as on your CD, interest is not added to earn more interest. You don't get that interest until the CD matures. My handy little calculator shows your annual interest to be $3,148.38. At maturity, your CD will be worth $41,976.4. That's the total of the $26,236.52 put in, plus $15,741.90 interest — $3,148.38 times five.

QUESTION: Should a lot of cash be kept in a safe deposit box? ANSWER: Absolutely not! No cash should be kept there. If you study your safe deposit rental contract, you very well may find that you have agreed not to tuck any money away there. Many such contracts contain that clause. It's mandatory in some states. Anyway, it's just plain foolish to put cash into a safe deposit box, where it lies dormant and earns nothing. Money should be put to work to earn more money. If you have a bundle of cash in hand, the least you should do is put it somewhere where it will be safe and accumulate interest, such as in a federally insured bank account or U.S. Savings Bonds.

Century Brass sale given final approval

WATERBURY (AP) — A federal bankruptcy court judge has approved the sale of Century Brass Products Inc.'s real estate assets meaning that the company will dissolve at the end of the business day and become Rostra Engineering Components Inc. Judge Robert Krechevsky Tuesday approved the real estate sales to Trevor C. Roberts, a California businessman, for $18.25 million. Krechevsky two weeks ago, allowed Century to sell its operational assets to Rostra Holdings Inc. of Westport for $9 million. Rostra Holdings is the parent company of Rostra Engineering Components. That sale involved Century's machinery and it saved the jobs of the 500 remaining workers in Century's General Products Division, its only existing operation. These workers will continue working when Rostra Engineering Components takes over on Thursday.

After acquiring Scovill in 1976, Century was Waterbury's largest single employer and biggest single taxpayer. But the company endured hard times and it became ensnared in bankruptcy problems that eventually led to the sales of its assets. All proceeds of the sale will go to Century's 7,000 creditors. General Electric Credit Corp., the company's largest secured creditor, has loaned Century about $32 million during the last six years. Century now owes GE about $9 million. The company also owes about $6 million to employees and retirees in back vacation pay, cost-of-living wage increases and benefits.
