Winter uniforms for letter carriers

Manchester Post Office letter carriers have lost their shorts for the winter, but Postmaster Alden Victoria says it's just procedure.

Victoria today downplayed a published report about letter carrier Robert Judd, who reportedly has been fighting the U.S. Postal Service since last year over a uniform-change policy that requires letter carriers to wear pants during winter.

Victoria said Judd had made a wager with other letter carriers that he could work all winter in his shorts, but, as of Wednesday, he and other letter carriers were required to wear pants because of the winter-uniform policy. Judd was not the only letter carrier still wearing shorts up until Wednesday, Victoria added.

Victoria said local postal officials met with representatives from the letter carriers' union earlier this week and agreed on a date that the policy would take effect.

"Nothing was said or directed to Bob Judd," Victoria said. "We have a winter policy about changing uniforms, that's all it is. It goes for everyone else."

Judd could not be reached for comment today.

Man charged after being hit by car

A Manchester man was intoxicated before he walked in front of a car on North Main Street last Friday, police said.

Police issued a $40 pedestrian hazard infraction to George Bingham, 78, of 44 North St., who was struck by a car at around 7 p.m. Dec. 4 near the intersection of Main and North Main streets and thrown 25 feet, police said. Bingham, who had been in critical condition after the accident, was listed in satisfactory condition today at Manchester Memorial Hospital, a hospital spokesman said.

Police said blood tests taken at the hospital showed that Bingham has a blood alcohol level of 0.132. The legal limit for drivers is 0.10.

Bingham was struck by a car driven by Tina M. Parlato, 19, of 60 Henry St., who was traveling within the 25 mph speed limit, police said. In a statement to police Parlato said she didn't see Bingham until just before she hit him. Parlato has not been charged.

Coventry couple win condo appeal

A Coventry couple will be allowed to build 25 condominium units at the corner of Park and St. James streets after a two-year wait.

Herman and Annette Fréchet of 77 Ripley Hill Road recently won an appeal in Hartford Superior Court of a 1985 Planning and Zoning Commission decision that only 15 units be permitted for the project.

Planning Director Mark Pellegrini said Thursday that the judge ruled in favor of the Fréchetes, saying the PZC's decision was arbitrary and did not give sufficient reason for reducing the number of units at the hearing. The PZC had cited heavy traffic in the area as the reason for its decision.

Coventry approve rescue truck

COVENTRY — In a vote of 164-38, voters here Thursday approved the purchase of a new rescue truck for the North Coventry Volunteer Fire Department. The truck will cost of $130,000.

Only 202 of 4,561 registered voters turned out for the referendum, which cost the town about $1,500.

"It's lack of interest and lack of awareness," Town Clerk Ruth Benoit said following the paper ballot vote. She said it was the lowest turnout in more than five years.

The new 18-foot truck, a 1987 International, will replace a smaller 12-year-old truck. Its primary use is to carry rescue equipment.

Girl hit by car said 'stable'

A Manchester girl who was struck by a car Monday morning on Broad Street was in stable condition at Hartford Hospital today, a hospital spokesman said.

Kelly C. Wrobel, 12, of 87 Essex St., was examined by Manchester paramedics and taken by her mother to Hartford Hospital after she was struck by a car driven by Michael S. Wong, 24, of Manfield, police said. The accident occurred on Broad Street, near the Green Manor Boulevard intersection.

Wong was traveling south on Broad Street when Wrobel stepped out from in front of a stopped vehicle, attempting to cross Broad Street, police said. She was struck by Wong's right fender and outside mirror, police said.

Wong's speed at the time of the collision was estimated at 30 mph.

Wrobel said she didn't see Wong when she was struck. She said she saw Kimberly Wrobel cross the street, but did not see Kelly Wrobel, according to the report. Police could not identify Kimberly's relationship to Kelly.

Police determined that the accident was the fault of the pedestrian.

In another incident, a woman who hit her husband in front of police was arrested along with him on assault and breach of peace charges Tuesday, police said.

Monty Dale Pruden, 25, of 316 Center St., will face the charges in Manchester Superior Court on March 9 while Carol A. Pruden, 26, also of 316 Center St. will face the charges on Feb. 4. The two were arrested after police came to investigate a domestic disturbance.

District contest looms for Democrats

A reduction from nine to eight in the number of Democratic Town Committee members in Voting District 6 could lead to a battle during the January party caucuses over which present members should remain to represent that district.

Paul Phillips, the Democratic Party treasurer, announced at the town committee meeting Thursday night in the Lincoln Center hearing room that District 6 has lost 76 registered Democrats since 1985 and now ranks sixth among the 12 districts.

At the same time, District 9, which has gained 24 voters, will increase its membership on the town committee from nine to 10.

The Democrats are to hold caucuses in each voting district on Jan. 14 to elect a new town committee. Party chairman Theodore Cummings has said that he knows of no challengers to the present committee members, who will probably seek re-election to two-year terms.

Cummings said Thursday night that members from District 6 would decide among themselves who should remain on the committee. But what could become a complication is the fact that three present members from that district were part of a slate of candidates in 1985 who challenged the longtime sixth-district committee members.

William Sweet, the chairman of District 6, said in a telephone interview Thursday night that if there is any fight over who should stay on the town committee from District 6, it will be between individuals and not any groups. He said someone might be willing to step down.

"Honestly, I don't have any problem with these people," he said of the challengers.

Robin C. Tracey, who was a member of the challenge slate said that she didn't know whether there would be a fight to force her or other members of the challenge slate off District 6. Asked whether there was any lingering animosity in the district between party regulars and the challengers, she said, "Everybody said that it isn't, and I guess this is the test."

She said district members would have to sit down with Cummings and decide how to proceed.

Both Tracey and Sweet did not attend Thursday's town committee meeting.

Besides Tracey, members of the challenge slate on District 6 are Tammy Greston and Mark Kuszik. Timothy Gaffney, another challenger, has since resigned from the town committee.

Apartment security concerns

Dougan said, "The pellets pierced my window," he said. "It was nerve-racking. But I may have tended to bring out the worst in everything."

The letter also points out a number of other incidents that Dougan says have occurred at the apartment complex. Dougan states in his letter that the pool area has been vandalized, gates and doors are not secure, and there was no one to patrol the area or answer the complex' emergency phone number after the shooting.

He added that he has contacted his lawyer to check into what his legal rights are in case someone gets hurt because of an incident.

Clocktower Mill officials declined comment on the letter as did officials from the Konoer Residential Corp. of West Hartford, which owns the complex.

Jamie Fritch, another tenant at the complex, said she also has questions about the security at Clocktower Mill. While she said she did not know about the incidents addressed in Dougan's letter, she said she was upset about other incidents of security.

She said that many of the doorways are not secure because residents of the neighboring Velvet Mill Apartments have keys to the athletic facilities at Clocktower.

"Let's put it this way," she said. "There have been incidents that put into question how safe the building is. There is a potential for a major problem."

Important battle

The Battle of Queenston Heights, an important engagement on the Niagara Frontier, was fought Oct. 13, 1812. Sir Isaac Brock, leading a British force from Fort George, met an American force from Lewiston, N.Y., and defeated them. Brock was killed in the action.

Bennet performances

Amey Durato plays the piano and Erica Ringbloom sings "Sleigh Ride" during the 7th grade choir Winter Concert Thursday night at Bennet Junior High School. Above, Kim Waites sings "Nuttin for Christmas." The program, under the supervision of choir director Walter Grzyb, included Christmas and Hanukkah music.

S. Windsor swimmers approved

Beau Borrero and Steven Melocowsky of South Windsor High School will get to swim with the Manchester High School boys' team under an agreement reached between the Manchester and South Windsor boards of education.

South Windsor High School does not have its own swim team.

The South Windsor Board of Education voted Tuesday to allow the two South Windsor High School Juniors to swim with Manchester during the regular season, said Phyllis Cahill, secretary to Joseph L. Woods, South Windsor school superintendent. Manchester will start the season against Platt High School of Meriden on Jan. 5.

On Monday, the Manchester Board of Education voted to allow the two students to compete with Manchester. Under the agreement, the swimmers only will be able to swim if there is an open lane and no local student wants to compete.

The agreement also releases Manchester from any liability that may be incurred by Borrero and Melocowsky.

The agreement reached is similar to the one signed by Manchester and the Vernon Board of Education in September. That agreement was reached to allow Rockville High School freshman Amy Ferranti to swim with the Manchester High School girls' team.

Manchester School Superintendent James P. Kennedy said he thought Manchester received the request from South Windsor because of the publicity surrounding the Ferranti case.

Napoleon Bonaparte defeated Austrian forces at the Battle of Marengo in 1800 to reconquer Italy.

Snow, wind in West; rain in the Midwest

By The Associated Press

High winds churned snow in the Rockies today after gusting to 97 mph, while rain damped broad sections of the Midwest and East.

Rain spread from northeast Nebraska across northwest Iowa and southern Minnesota. Snow was widely scattered across central Wisconsin.

Thunderstorms ranged along the central Atlantic Coast and rain extended from the Virginia coast into southern New England.

Rain was scattered across the Northwest and snow fell in the region's high country.

Snow advisories were posted for the Cascades and Olympics while a gale warning continued for the northern Pacific Coast.

Advisories for strong winds, snow and blowing snow were posted for the Colorado Rockies. Advisories for strong winds were issued for northern and northwest Utah. High winds settled in Wyoming and wind warnings there were canceled.

A 97 mph gust was reported Thursday in Colorado at Mines Peak, near Berthoud Pass, 17 miles west of Idaho Springs in the central mountains. Winds gusted to 94 mph at Wendover, in the foothills not far from Boulder; hit 75 mph in Boulder and Fort Morgan; and 66 mph in Fort Collins, the National Weather Service said. No damage was reported from the winds.

Forecasters said strong, high winds and a huge difference between a high pressure system west of the Continental Divide and a low pressure system developing to the east created a classic high wind situation.

CONNECTICUT WEATHER

Lawyer accused of embezzlement

STAMFORD — A Westport lawyer faces a court appearance on charges that he allegedly embezzled more than $500,000 he was holding in escrow for a Brookfield woman.
Warren K. Rosen was scheduled to appear for accelerated rehabilitation in Superior Court today on a first-degree larceny charge, according to Eugene Callahan, state's attorney for the Stamford-Norwalk judicial district.
Rosen represented Doreen Fispach in a dispute over her late father's estate and the woman was eventually awarded about $320,000 dollars, according to Alan R. Weiner, one of Rosen's former partners.

Trial delay may free murderer

HARTFORD — A convicted murderer may be freed because he was forced to spend 18 months in jail before getting a trial.
U.S. District Judge Peter C. Dorsey indicated Thursday that he is considering granting a request to dismiss William F. Flowers' murder conviction.
Flowers, 54, of New Britain has been serving a 25-year-to-life sentence for murdering a friend during an argument in 1981. He was accused of shooting his friend, Lee P. Jones, in the mouth and watching him bleed to death when Jones was later returning his car.

Convicts previously have been released after showing that delays hampered their abilities to defend themselves or that prosecutors illegally delayed their trials.

Widow doesn't know where cash is

DANBURY — The widow of a probate judge who committed suicide last month says she doesn't know where the at least $2.4 million missing from escrow accounts kept by her husband is, but she has promised to cooperate with investigators, a lawyer says.
Albert H. Hornig, an attorney appointed by the Danbury Bar Association to sort out the case of the late Richard L. Nahley, said the lawyer for the judge's widow, Mary Nahley, relayed the news Thursday for the two attorneys met to discuss the case.
"I'm satisfied. I have to assume they're telling me what the facts are," Hornig said.
Michael R. Seri, Danbury town clerk, said today that liens totaling $2.4 million have been filed against Nahley's home and office in Danbury. The liens have been filed chiefly by people who alleged that Nahley embezzled money from escrow accounts he kept as part of his private law practice.

Kasner's case to resume Dec. 17

HARTFORD — The bribery case against state Liquor Control Commission Director Charles W. Kasner will resume in Hartford Superior Court on Dec. 17.
Defense attorneys are still waiting for videotapes made by the state police that allegedly show Kasner accepting bribes in exchange for liquor licenses. Prosecutors have agreed to provide the defense with the tapes.

SCSU students charged in shooting

NEW HAVEN — Three students of Southern Connecticut State University have been arrested and a total of five suspended while authorities sort out events that resulted in the shooting of another student.
The shooting occurred early Thursday morning during a fight that erupted as patrons left a New Haven bar.
The shooting victim, Lawrence McNellis Jr., 20, of New Haven, was listed in fair condition Thursday night at the Hospital of St. Raphael. His father said the bullet was lodged close to his son's left lung.
Michael Daluz, 22, of North Haven was charged with second-degree assault and criminal attempt to commit first-degree assault in the shooting, police said.
Guy Barber, 20, of New Haven was charged with third-degree assault and breach of peace, and Luon Kica, 18, who lives in an SCSU dormitory in New Haven, was charged with breach of peace.

Duffy named deputy commissioner

HARTFORD — Michael T. Duffy, a 20-year veteran of state service and most recently director of the Department of Housing's management division, has been named deputy commissioner of the department by Commissioner John F. Papandrea.
Papandrea said the deputy commissioner slot was a new job in the House Department created "to better respond to the increasing demands and challenges facing all of us."
Duffy, a West Hartford resident, was sworn in Thursday by Gov. William A. O'Neill.

Stamford park investigation widens

STAMFORD — An investigation of the Stamford Parks Department has expanded to include allegations of payoffs, kickbacks, and missing cash, police say.
The investigation, which began in October, originally centered on alleged irregularities in bidding procedures at city parks and beach concessions, police said.
Deputy Chief George Mayer said Wednesday that police are focusing on allegations that former and recent parks department employees took money from the Terry Connors rink, accepted payoffs for use of the rink and took kickbacks involving a tram servicing Cove Island Park.

IRS agents at Bradley with advice

Richard Fiorillo, former police commander in New Haven, leaves U.S. District Court after being sentenced to one year in prison for concealment of a cocaine transaction.

Judge says police rank had role in sentencing

NEW HAVEN (AP) — A federal judge says the high rank of a former member of the New Haven police department influenced her decision to sentence him to a year in prison on a drug-related charge.
The public relations officer of the police department, Richard Fiorillo, 40, admitted failing to report the distribution and use of a gram of cocaine among three members of his family and himself at his nephew's August 1986 wedding. Capone, 30, acknowledged concealing and assisting sales of small amounts of cocaine by his wife in August 1985 and afterward. Burns said it would be a disservice to the police "to not hold an officer of (Fiorillo's) rank to a higher standard of performance."
The judge said Fiorillo's actions were "self-abusive behavior" and that his judgment had been clouded with personal problems. Other police had substance abuse problems, she said.
Fiorillo lost his job and his pension and seen his life twisted by extensive local publicity of the case, Grudberg said.

Legislative budget officials predict huge state deficits

HARTFORD (AP) — The legislative Office of Fiscal Analysis, in its preliminary projections, says the gap between state revenues and spending could lead to massive budget deficits in the next two years.
Ralph J. Caruso, director of the budget office, said Wednesday that the preliminary budget outlook for the 1988-89 fiscal year indicates a potential shortfall of $229.5 million followed by a $313.3 million deficit in the 1989-90 fiscal year.
Caruso said the outlook was based on the current year budget and did not reflect new expanded programs. He said the projections take into account spending required by current law, inflation and other assumptions.
The figures reflect an 11.4 percent increase in spending the first year and an increase of more than 8 percent the year after.

Pit bull owner, though bitten, pleads with state for mercy

HARTFORD (AP) — The No. 2 man in the state Department of Agriculture says he'll visit a pit bull before deciding whether to let it out, which hit three people including its owner, should be destroyed.
Deputy Agriculture Commissioner Vincent R. Majchler received two hours of testimony Thursday in the case of Bandit, a 5-year-old pit bull owned by Lamson Redd, 75, of Stamford.
Redd pleaded for mercy and promised to pay for training if the dog is spared.
A rooming house owner from Stamford, Redd told Majchler that he had a problem with a dog named Bandit. "I don't know why they don't like my dog," Redd said. "Pit bulls have a bad name. He's trained good. He's not hot-headed, he'll do anything I tell him."
Redd said he had already spent $1,000 on training for Bandit and that two of his biting incidents occurred because the dog was protecting the property. He also said he had spent $2,000 on fence around his property that the Stamford dog ward had ordered erected after the first two incidents.
Redd's attorney Robert S. Bello, said Redd would pay for training for Bandit if Majchler stays his destruction.

OPINION

Ambitious ideas about Cheney Hall

It seems that Cheney Hall continues to inspire ambitious ideas and that many people in the community are eager to see it opened for public use.

There have been requests to use the hall for weddings and for Christmas parties and for a variety of other purposes. All of the requests have been turned down because there is no sure way to know when the hall will be in condition for public use.

But the interest bodes well for the future use of the hall and, presumably, for interest the public will show when money is sought to help pay for the rest of the renovation project.

The latest inspiration came about spontaneously this week when Fred Blish, a member of the Cheney Hall Foundation and a leader in the Little Theatre of Manchester, suggested that LTM produce some kind of Christmas festival next year with a Victorian theme to match the origin of the hall.

Fellow members of LTM who heard Blish's burst of enthusiasm were taken back a bit by the ambitiousness of his idea, which is tentative of course, but they didn't object. LTM is not committed, but it's almost certain the idea will catch fire. LTM has demonstrated its capacity to carry out ambitious undertakings.

New interest in the GOP?

When the Republican Party in Manchester elects a new town committee Jan. 11, it will be authorized to elect 99 members.

It would be pleasant to think that on that day, when the election caucuses are held in each of the town's 12 voting districts, there will be a heavy turnout of Republican voters. It would also be pleasant to think that there will be far more than 99 Republicans eager to be elected and eager to serve.

More likely the turnout will be light. Possibly, there will not be 99 candidates and vacancies will exist after the caucuses.

The recent history of the Republican Party in town does not give much cause for hope. The party's work has been left pretty much to a few people.

In the Nov. 3 election the Republicans made a modest advance in voter strength. Two of the party's candidates for the Board of Directors got more votes than one of the Democratic candidates, and one of the GOP's candidates for the Board of Education outpolled two Democratic candidates. Maybe those small gains will stimulate more interest Jan. 11.

The president was right and I was wrong

WASHINGTON — Like most Americans, I found the agreement "to eliminate, for the first time, a whole class of nuclear weapons," as President Reagan put it, thrilling.

But I have to confess that I've been critical of the president's tactics and strategy from the beginning. And I was wrong. I predicted that the agreement would be a preposterous bluff. He said, "I have made an important offer to forego, entirely, deployment of new American missiles in Europe if the Soviet Union is prepared to respond on an equal footing."

But the Soviet Union signed an agreement almost as detrimental in its viewpoint — destroying more than 1,500 warheads as we destroy 400.

I opposed the doubling of our defense budget, and still wonder why we need so many duplicate systems — B-1 bombers that can be seen on Soviet radar and the Stealth bomber that is invisible.

"Why continue building MX missiles, when 50 are in place with 10 warheads each?" I wrote recently. "Of the 157 more the Pentagon wants for $4 billion, 107 are only for testing. And why are Midgetman missiles needed at all?"

One answer implicit in the final positive Soviet response, of not only wiping out the INF category of missiles, but in pushing hard to slash long-range, strategic missiles in half — is that by building everything we could build, we convinced the U.S.S.R. that we could outspend it.

In effect, the Soviet Union is crying "uncle!" Does that mean America needs two more

"No, no, you misunderstood. You guys are staying here — it's the toy factory that's moving to Mexico."

After euphoria, reality

By Bryan Brumley

WASHINGTON — President Reagan and Mikhail S. Gorbachev put arms control back on a businesslike footing during the summit, signing one treaty, reporting progress on another and agreeing to meet next year come what may.

The mood was closer to that of their first meeting in Geneva two years ago than that of their second, the Iceland summit last year, at which for a few dizzy hours they discussed eliminating all nuclear arms.

The Iceland summit ended in rancor over Reagan's Star Wars anti-missile defenses, a subject that they skirted at this summit but will haunt preparations to meet again in Moscow next summer.

In judging summit meetings, it is said, one should wait one week for the euphoria to pass and another week for the depression to come and go.

Optimism prevailed as the leaders parted company. Reagan called the summit "a clear success," Gorbachev said, "A good deal has been accomplished."

The euphoria from the Washington summit stems from the treaty signed, the prospect of a Moscow summit next year, and the general aura of good will.

The depression will come when people remember that no progress was reported toward the withdrawal of the estimated 115,000 Soviet soldiers from Afghanistan, or that the eight-page joint communique contained only one sentence on human rights.

And time is running out for Reagan to cut a deal to reduce long-range arsenals.

Northern Perspective Michael J. McManus

aircraft carriers and accompanying ships at a cost of $35 billion per group — when the Soviets have only about a fifth of U.S. aircraft carrier groups at present?

But I must confess that one reason we saw Mikhail Gorbachev signing a treaty is that Reagan and the United States have been unremitting in pushing every possible means of expanding our armaments.

One other area in which I disagreed with Reagan was whether there should be a freeze in the construction of nuclear weapons. I reasoned, if we are pressing for a 50 percent reduction in strategic weapons, why not at least stop building missiles and warheads?

By ignoring critics like me, I believe Reagan has got the Russians in a remarkably cooperative mood. I believe there will be progress on other areas of concern: Afghanistan, reducing conventional forces, human rights.

If that comes to pass, it was certainly worth building a few thousand more nuclear warheads that really are not needed.

On the other hand, Reagan must now live with and answer his conservative critics — like four of the Republican presidential candidates who oppose it flatly, and Sen. Dole who is equivocating.

CIA's report looks at AIDS

WASHINGTON — In just a few years, heterosexuals will outnumber homosexuals as victims of the fatal Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome.

This is only one of several conclusions reached in a recent internal Central Intelligence Agency medical report that we have obtained. The CIA report predicts that in the 1990s, the growing numbers of heterosexual AIDS victims will surpass the declining incidence of AIDS in the homosexual population. The reason? Homosexuals will change their high-risk sexual patterns.

The CIA experts grimly explain why the numbers of homosexual AIDS cases will decline as safe sex practices become more prevalent: Many who are already infected will die.

Interestingly, the CIA notes that "AIDS probably originated as a heterosexual disease and it was only by chance that the homosexual community bore the brunt of the initial impact." Today, AIDS victims are spread throughout the population in a statistical pattern that has not changed much since the disease first surfaced — 73 percent are homosexual and bisexual men, 17 percent are heterosexual intravenous drug users, 4 percent are Haitians living in the United States and about 1 percent are hemophiliacs.

The CIA report also lists the "disturbing but constant percentage of heterosexuals that cannot be classified as belonging to any high-risk group (1 to 3 percent)."

Recent reports that mosquitoes might be carrying AIDS were dismissed by the CIA. It would take 2,800 bites by a mosquito infected by the AIDS Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV) "to deliver a sufficient virus load to pose even a theoretical threat," the report says. "In fact, there is no evidence that mosquitoes are able to transmit living virus."

The CIA passed on its employees information from the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta that other insects, especially African bedbugs, cannot transmit AIDS to humans, either.

Mosquitoes and other bugs were rejected as an AIDS threat in part because "there are virtually no unexplained cases of AIDS in the 10- to 14-year-old age group, a group commonly exposed to mosquitoes and bugs. Of 26 cases of AIDS in this age group, all contracted their disease from blood or blood-product transfusions or were assaulted by an AIDS carrier," according to the CIA report.

In another study of 62 children, ages 5 to 15, 61 fit into "established risk categories" and the remaining one case was still being investigated.

The CIA predicted, in effect, that AIDS will inevitably drive up insurance rates as the medical costs of caring for its victims goes through the ceiling.

"By 1991 the cost of AIDS care will surpass the medical costs of either breast cancer or lung cancer, and the time lost and money spent will exceed the present Medicaid budget by 100 percent, over $6 billion," the CIA observed.

In its eight-page report to its spies and employees, the CIA attempted to dispel some fears. "AIDS does not appear to be spread through the air. You will not contract it in a crowded subway, though you may catch tuberculosis there."

"You will not get it from shaking hands with an AIDS victim, or eating food prepared by him. You will not get it from sharing cigarettes, unless a substantial amount of virus-containing saliva is exchanged."

No way out The United States could withdraw from the Persian Gulf if one of three conditions were met, former Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger told a committee before he announced his resignation. They are three big "ifs":

(1) "If we could get a cease-fire in the Iran-Iraq war observed"; (2) "If we could get arms embargoes that can diminish the capability of Iran to conduct the war"; (3) "If we can get the Iran-Iraq war over."

Weinberger admitted in private that the three conditions seem improbable. "It's a little bit like asking when terrorism is going to end," Weinberger said. "We really don't know."

Banks in trouble Examiners' reports we have obtained on the nation's biggest banks show some of them are in dire straits. A memo on three large Texas banks describes their condition as "quite frightening."

One top-10 bank is described as being in "unsatisfactory" condition, with almost $5 billion in bad loans that haven't been written off. Another top-10 bank, according to the examiner's report, has "inadequate" cash flow, "vulnerable" interest rates and "excessive" funding needs. We won't name the banks, but we think you should know that the regulators themselves believe the banking system is in terrible shape.

Catholic bishops accept condom-AIDS education

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Roman Catholic bishops for the first time will tolerate educational programs that describe how condoms may be used to prevent the spread of AIDS.

Church doctrine considers condoms unacceptable as a form of birth control. Mary Hunt, a Catholic theologian who is co-director of the Women's Alliance for Theology, Ethics and Ritual in Silver Spring, Md., said: "I am not sure that the fact that the bishops have realized that AIDS is a major medical crisis in our time."

Senate debates next deficit-cut phase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate will begin its second part of its deficit-reduction plan after passing a major component early today, a blend of taxes, benefit cuts and other steps designed to save $52 billion over two years.

Senate leaders scheduled debate today on legislation that would provide $60.9 billion for domestic and military spending for the 1989 fiscal year, which began Oct. 1.

Sen. James Abdnor, R-S.C., said he would support the bill. "The important thing here is deficit reduction," Byrd said.

Sen. Charles Stennis, D-Miss., said he would support the bill. "I think most members want to finish this bill and demonstrate we can govern," said Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan.

Senators praise summit but say more is needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators of both parties say Soviet deeds are needed to back up the sweet talk that marked the three-day summit meeting of President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., said: "Certainly, in the history of the world, the three days were well spent. But it was more transitional than specific."

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., previously a critic of Reagan's arms control policies, said the treaty is important because it came from an administration which had criticized previous treaties.

Summit was 'etiquette disaster'

KEWANEE, Ill. (AP) — Mikhail Gorbachev's sidewalk diplomacy may have charmed some passers-by in Washington, but it drew a shudder of distaste from manners maven Marjabelle Young Stewart.

The three-day summit seemed worldwide as a sign that the rift between the superpowers is healing was an "etiquette disaster" to the author, who licked off one faux pas after another.

The social blunders included unanswered invitations, plastic blue suits at the table, and champagne glasses held by the goblets, she said.

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., said: "It was a really positive step, even with all the hype. But I think we need to look at it in perspective. There's been a cold war going on for years. This is a thaw, but there's still ice between us."

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, on left side of picture, waves to a crowd of bystanders on a downtown Washington street Thursday after his motorcade stopped on the way to the White House.

Prospective pact may allow work on 'Star Wars'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. and Soviet leaders are ordering their aides to draft an agreement that a senior American official says will allow broad testing and development of anti-missile defenses.

President Reagan said the apparent understanding on Star Wars, or the Strategic Defense Initiative, would not hamper negotiations on a treaty to cut long-range nuclear weapons by up to 50 percent.

Kremlin leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev called the step "significant," but was less enthusiastic than Reagan, suggesting that the Soviets have not yet spoken their final piece against Star Wars.

The understanding marks at least a temporary victory for Reagan, who balked at Gorbachev's demand in Iceland last year to keep Star Wars research under a more narrow interpretation of the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty.

In a speech from the Oval Office, Reagan said: "I believe deep reduction in these offensive weapons — along with the development of SDI — would do much to make the world safer."

"For that reason, I made it clear that our SDI program will continue, and that when we have a defense ready to deploy — we will do so."

Gorbachev may be counting on diminished congressional enthusiasm to sink Star Wars. Congress has constrained Reagan, for most of the rest of his term, from conducting Star Wars tests that would go beyond the narrow interpretation of the treaty.

Gorbachev restated his view that the United States should comply with the traditional interpretation of the treaty, which restricts Star Wars research.

"We will not build up an SDI in our own country, and that is what we are urging the United States to do," he said in a news conference.

If Americans want to build such a system, he said, "let them squander their money away."

The president and I, with due regard for preparing the treaty on strategic offensive arms, have instructed the delegations in Geneva to elaborate an agreement which would make it incumbent upon both the Soviet and the American sides to comply with the ABM treaty in the form in which it was signed in 1972," Gorbachev said.

Nothing done at the summit restricts Washington to the narrow ABM interpretation, said a Reagan aide, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Series H, HH bonds are the same

QUESTION: I purchased Series H U.S. Savings Bonds... Why? Will they be available later on?

Investors' Guide

William A. Doyle

ANSWER: H bonds were sold to the public from June 1932 through December 1979... Beginning in November 1982, the U.S. Treasury stopped selling HHs and made them available only in exchange for Series E and EE bonds and U.S. Savings Notes.

There's no real difference between Hs and HHs. Both are "current income" bonds and pay interest by check twice a year... ANSWEER: My father bought Series H bonds in April 1967... ANSWEER: Thirty years, H bonds were given two extended maturity periods of 10 years each.

What is the procedure to follow when the time comes to cash in Series H bonds? Do you go to a bank? ANSWER: Having a bank or a savings and loan association do the paperwork is the easy way to do it... WASHINGTON (AP) - Retail sales, in the first full month after the stock crash, rose 0.2 percent in November as the Christmas shopping season picked up steam.

The Commerce Department said that retail establishments sold $125.9 billion worth of goods in November, up $210 million from October.

But the modestly strong November report was balanced by a sharp downward revision from earlier estimates for the two previous months.

Hardware and building supplies rose 2.8 percent on top of a 0.5 percent increase a month earlier... Furniture and home furnishings fell 0.5 percent after a 1.1 percent drop in October.

Excluding automobiles, which declined 0.5 percent last month compared with a sharp 3.5 percent drop in October, sales rose 0.4 percent... Sales excluding autos had edged down 0.1 percent in October.

For November, sales of durable goods - big ticket items expected to last three years or more - rose 0.4 percent, compared with a 2.6 percent drop in October.

The Commerce Department offered these details of sales for November: Hardware and building supplies rose 2.8 percent on top of a 0.5 percent increase a month earlier.

Restaurant and bar purchases rose 0.5 percent after an earlier 0.8 percent rise... Grocery and other food goods were unchanged after a 0.3 percent increase.

Violinist Heifetz dies at 86

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jascha Heifetz, a Russian child prodigy who became the world's highest paid violinist by age 18 and continued to grow in stature as he toured the world and taught his "perishable art," has died at age 86.

Heifetz died late Thursday at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, where he underwent neurosurgery, hospital spokesman Ron Wise said today. He had entered the hospital on Oct. 16 to be treated for complications arising from a fall, Wise said.

Isaac Stern, himself a renowned violinist, said today in London: "Since his (Heifetz's) debut in the United States, he was the most powerful force in violin playing in the world. He has been in the inner circle of every violinist since at least 1930."

"Few people would disagree that he was probably the greatest violinist of our age," Sir Yehudi Menuhin, a London conductor and violinist, said today. "I would like to say that he was my greatest inspiration. I used to have all his recordings and tried to emulate him."

Heifetz had his American debut at New York's Carnegie Hall in 1917. Reviewer Sigmund Spaeth wrote in the Evening Mail: "...a tall Russian being with a mop of curly hair walked out on the stage at Carnegie and he was my greatest inspiration. I used to have all his recordings and tried to emulate him."

Heifetz quickly became famous and began a series of world tours that took him to virtually every major city. Within two years of his American debut, he was the highest paid violinist in history, getting $2,250 for a concert.

His honors included the Commander of the Legion of Honor from France in 1937 and a Grammy Award.

Asked once why he had no autobiography, he said, "Here is my biography. I played the violin at 3 and gave my first concert at 7. I have been playing ever since."

His last solo concert came in 1972 when he performed at the Los Angeles Music Center in which his final words to the audience were, "I am sooped." His last public performance was in 1974.

Born in Vilna, Russia, on Feb. 2, 1891, Heifetz took lessons with his father as a child. By age 7 he was playing in public, and at age 9 he was accepted by Leopold Auer at the St. Petersburg Conservatory and had his first recital.

'Doomsday Clock' to be turned back

CHICAGO (AP) — A magazine for nuclear scientists decided to adjust its 40-year-old "Doomsday Clock" to reflect progress made at the U.S.-Soviet summit, editors said.

The decision to set the clock back from the final midnight of nuclear destruction stems from this week's signing of an arms reduction treaty and "the great improvement in the Soviet-U.S. relationship overall," Nancy Myers, managing editor of the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, said Thursday.

The most recent adjustment of the symbolic wooden clock in the University of Chicago-based magazine's office came in December 1983, when it was moved up one minute to read three minutes before holocaust.

How much the clock's hands are to be moved this time will be announced next Thursday, magazine editor Len Ackland said.

The time on the clock, which has been pictured in a logo on the cover of the magazine since 1947, changes when the overseers of the publication agree the threat of nuclear war has increased or decreased.

missile defense system, but "we'll see what will happen in the next several months" on a Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan.

Max Kampelman, chief U.S. arms control negotiator in Geneva, said on NBC-TV's "Today" show that "we really accomplished a great deal" this week in laying the groundwork for serious bargaining on a long-range missile treaty.

"We have now agreement on a number of the controversial issues that divided us a week ago," including Soviet agreement on a sublimit of 4,900 ballistic missiles and on technical rules for counting missiles.

Reagan and Gorbachev both hailed the importance of the landmark in post-war history. Reagan said in a nationally broadcast address Thursday night a few hours after winding up his talks with Gorbachev.

Both its abolition of an entire category of nuclear weapons — those with a range of 15 miles to 3,125 miles — and intrusive inspection arrangements are unprecedented.

Legal NFLPA actions are cited by the NLRB

NFL roundup

WASHINGTON — The NFL Players Association illegally used violence, threats of violence and coercion during its 24-day football strike, according to a federal complaint approved by the nation's top labor law enforcer.

The complaint was authorized Thursday by Rosemary M. Collyer, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, following a two-month investigation into incidents on NFLPA picket lines during the 1987-88 season.

Collyer said the NFLPA picket lines were "unlawful" because they used force and threats to force players to return to work. She also said the NFLPA picket lines were "unlawful" because they used force and threats to force players to return to work.

Hesburgh calls Brown 'perfect' college athlete

By Herschel Nissenon
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Citing Notre Dame and Heisman Trophy winner Tim Brown as perfect examples of what college athletics are all about, Notre Dame President Emeritus Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh says that "time is running out" on attempts to clean up the "current mess" in college sports.

Speaking at the annual Heisman banquet Thursday night, Hesburgh's decried instances where "amateur athletes have been taught and used by educational institutions — not educated."

He said such unless such procedures are stopped now, "it can well lead to the demise of amateur intercollegiate athletics, especially in football and basketball."

Hesburgh endorsed a proposal made last spring at the College Football Association's annual meeting by the Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, its long-time associate and former executive vice president of Notre Dame, to set up an internal monitoring procedure among the nation's colleges.

Hesburgh's remarks lent a serious note to the official presentation of the Heisman Trophy to Brown at a dinner attended by 15 former Heisman winners, including all six of Notre Dame's previous winners.

Okla. State's Steve Owens, the 1969 winner, said that "every time I come back, it's like winning it all over again."

He said he paid the $160-plate dinner he was attracted to Notre Dame because of its basketball program and academic reputation. He joked to his parents, "Mom, I know you wanted me to be in the band. Dad, I know you wanted me to play football. I wanted to do both, but I had to make a choice. Mom, I hope you're not disappointed."

Under Joyce's proposal, monitors would be trained under the aegis of the NCAA but under the administrative control of a national director. They would be given confidential access to all pertinent documentation pertaining to a school's athletic program.

"By spending considerable time on the campus, or campuses, the monitor will quickly perceive potential problems," Hesburgh said. "He or she should not be looked upon as a spy, but as one committed to the integrity of the institution. Their role would be analogous to that of an inspector-general in federal service."

"Needless to say, the monitor should have free access to the president and enjoy his enthusiastic support when corrective action is indicated."

Hesburgh said the CFA's presidential committee is considering having the plan adopted unilaterally by the organization's 65 member schools.

Kelley brings to a close 31-year officiating career

By Len Auster
Manchester Herald

There will be one less veteran baseball official in 1987-88 as Tom Kelley of Manchester will hang up his whistle after 31 years of whistle tooting.

The years of pointing up and down the court took their toll on Kelley last February in a game in Avon. Carilage in his right knee snapped and he had to undergo arthroscopic surgery.

The knee is fine now after extensive rehabilitation, but arthritis under the kneecap was discovered. "I can do the job in the gym but I'm not 100 percent when I try to referee," said the 56-year-old Kelley, the director of athletics at Hill Junior High where he teaches physical education.

"I always said I was going to go out on top and I am. I was still getting a top schedule. I just want to stay with the memories," Kelley said.

Kelley officiated scholastic games for 31 years, college affairs for 18. He handled games in places like the Hartford Civic Center, New Haven Coliseum and Yale's Payne Whitney gym in New Haven. "I had some great games," Kelley said.

Kelley kept a journal of all the games he's worked. It showed a total of 1,784 games over the years, including a high of 87 one years. He was out 25 nights out of 31-year career. He officiated high school games for 31 years and college games for 18 years.

"I think I'm the only official in the state with a boys' final and a girls' final," Kelley said. "I made a promise to myself and my family that I wouldn't do it for the sake of the money. I want to go out on top."

28 on February, Kelley recalls 65 boys' tournament games, including four championship games — three on statewide television and seven girls' tournament games including one final.

Big names still available as baseball meetings end

By Alton Robinson
The Associated Press

DALLAS — The name of the game at baseball's winter meetings is trades, and some of the game's biggest names — Dave Parker, Lee Smith, Floyd Bannister, Phil Bradley — traded teams.

The meetings ended Thursday, but the trading deadline is coming to an abrupt end.

"I think the American public is ready for this effective action," Under Joyce's proposal, monitors would be trained under the aegis of the NCAA but under the administrative control of a national director. They would be given confidential access to all pertinent documentation pertaining to a school's athletic program.

"By spending considerable time on the campus, or campuses, the monitor will quickly perceive potential problems," Hesburgh said. The Yankees were so desperate to make a deal they even talked with the cross-town Mets, with whom they've never traded. Impatient owner George Steinbrenner was pressing new GM Lou Piniella to make a move.

If the Yankees don't make a deal soon, they may sign some free agents. The Yankees are talking to outfielder Mike Davis and pitcher Mike Witt.

The Mets didn't have much more success, failing to acquire right-hander Bob Welch from the Dodgers despite offering various packages that included Mickey Wilson, Rafael Santana, Rick Aguilera and Jesse Orosco.

The Dodgers' Tim Lincecum couldn't work out a straight-up swap of power hitters, Gibson for Guerrero. Pittsburgh also wanted power, but couldn't pry infielder Brock Jacoby loose from Cleveland.

The Pirates also tried to deal for power-hitting catcher Bill Schroeder from Milwaukee, and the Indians, desperate for pitching (remember Steve Carlton? Phil Niekro? made a bid for White Sox right-hander Joe DeLoon.

Those that didn't trade were left to analyze the impact of the deals that were made. Boston, for example, had a major-league low 16 wins in 1987, but got a reliever, Smith, who has had four consecutive 30-plus save seasons.

"I'll be glad to see Lee Smith go," Pirates Manager Jim Leyland said. "He's come in just as the showings made it tough to see at Wrigley Field and he'd throw that 95 mph fastball at your knees ... whew!"

Dick Balderson, the Mariners' general manager, said he wouldn't trade the winter meetings for anything — except maybe another player.

The Yankees, Mets and Dodgers pressed unsuccessfully to make deals. The Yankees, who also wanted Parker, offered Winfield to Detroit for Gibson, but the Tigers said no when they saw all the zeros on the end of Winfield's $1.9 million-a-year paycheck.

South Carolina's decision to drop Miami from the schedule stems from a bench-clearing brawl that erupted after Miami's Daniel Stubbs sacked South Carolina quarterback Todd Ellis, throwing him to the ground. Offending unorthodox-manlike penalties were called on the play.

Ellis was just standing there after the referee had blown the whistle and No. 9 (Brian Blades) hit him in the back of the head," Marcum said. "After that No. 45 (Randy Bethea) came and hit him in the back of the head. That's just not the type of team we want to associate with."

"I don't want to get into that," Johnson said. "My statement is that it was an emotional ball game on both sides and that I think the decision not to play us again is our grapes."

Miami did not have any future games scheduled with the Gamecocks, but Jankovich said the two schools were in the process of negotiating more games.

"We had discussed the possibility of scheduling future games with the University of Miami," Marcum said. "But they've all broken off since the game."

South Carolina says it won't play Miami; second team to sever ties

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — South Carolina's decision to no longer play Miami in football because of a fourth-quarter brawl in last weekend's game is "sour grapes," Miami coach Jimmy Johnson says.

Johnson on Thursday called it a "rough game on both sides."

Miami coach Jimmy Johnson said he would not discuss the matter until after he talked with Miami coaches and South Carolina Athletic Director Bob Marcum, who said Wednesday the Gamecocks would not play the Hurricanes again.

Eric Dickerson (29) and his Indianapolis Colts teammates will face the Buffalo Bills Sunday with the lead in the AFC East Division at stake.

Bills' Bennett hoping to haunt Indianapolis

By Borry Wilner
The Associated Press

Buffalo's Cornelius Bennett, expected to play a key role in the Bills' battle for AFC East supremacy, doesn't look at Sunday's showdown with Indianapolis as anything other than a football game that needs to be won.

Bennett and his fellow Bills journey to the Hoosier Dome to play the Colts, who hold a one-game lead in the division. A victory by the Colts would just about wrap up the division title.

Bennett, who joined the Bills last month as part of the three-team Eric Dickerson trade, has been instrumental in Buffalo's defensive resurgence. He was the second player picked in this year's draft, but the Colts couldn't sign the Alabama linebacker from Alabama.

Now, he's hoping to haunt them and lift the Bills into a tie for the division lead. But he isn't seeking revenge.

"I'd like to beat them only because they're the team we've had to face in the playoffs," Bennett said. "I never played for them. I don't worry about them especially."

But the Colts certainly will pay special attention to Bennett. Coach Ron Meyer has the same ability as Lawrence Taylor or Andre Tippett to jar the ball out of your hands. The thing about Cornelius is that he gets you in space and then he destroys you.

"He can be devastating," Meyer said. "He has the same ability as Lawrence Taylor or Andre Tippett to jar the ball out of your hands. The thing about Cornelius is that he gets you in space and then he destroys you."

"It's very difficult to block with a back when charging in on a quarterback. His performance in recent weeks accentuates the fact we made the right decision when picking him second (overall) in the draft."

Bennett has 37 tackles and 3 1/2 sacks in five games. His acquisition also allowed a switch of fellow rookie Shane Conlan from outside to inside linebacker. Conlan, the eighth overall selection out of Penn State, leads the Bills with 66 tackles.

"That's quite a pair," Meyer said. "They make it very difficult to prepare for the Bills."

The Colts, 7-5, are 5-2 in the AFC East under the first tiebreaker for setting the division championship, and beat Buffalo in a game during the NFL players strike. Buffalo, 6-6, and the Patriots, 5-7, have each been weakened by injuries.

Miami, also 6-6 in the division, is at Philadelphia.

Minnesota, which is at Green Bay, can secure a wild-card spot with a victory if St. Louis loses at home to the New York Giants and the Los Angeles Rams are beaten by Atlanta.

San Francisco, which holds a one-game lead over New Orleans in the NFC West, has clinched playoff berths - hosts Chicago, the NFC Central champ, on Monday night. The Saints are at home to Houston on Sunday.

The Oilers are in a three-way tie atop the AFC Central with Cleveland and Pittsburgh, which visits San Diego. The Chargers also 6-4 and a half game in back of first-place Denver in the AFC West.

The Broncos play at Seattle in a key division game Sunday night.

Also on Sunday, Washington, winner of the NFC East, entertains Dallas, while the Los Angeles Raiders are at Kansas City and Detroit plays at Tampa Bay.

The Patriots will be out of the AFC East unless they lose to the Jets, who need help in Indianapolis and a victory at Foxboro to climb back into a tie for the top spot. New England will have Steve Grogan back at quarterback and he always gives the Jets problems.

"I think he got his fastball back," Patriots Coach Raymond Berry said of Grogan, who missed the first meeting with New York because of a pinched nerve in his neck. The Jets won that game 43-24.

"I wasn't interested in him going around with a crooked neck. He was restricted and he was stiff and he didn't throw consistently."

The Jets probably will win without halfback Freeman McNeil, who pulled a hamstring in last Monday night's loss at Miami. They've also lost linebacker Lance Mehl and cornerback Russell Carter for the season after injuries against the Dolphins.

"It's time for us to just forget about everything that has happened this season and just go out and play good football," linebacker Bob Crable said. "We have to start playing consistently, play the way we know we can."

Complimentary season tickets will be given to senior citizens at their Christmas party. Any other senior citizens wanting tickets should contact Maureen Morin at 647-9558.

Dave Rightetti gets staggering offer

NEW YORK — Free agent relief pitcher Dave Rightetti, calling himself "confused," says he doesn't know if he will accept what he termed a "mind-boggling" offer from a Japanese baseball team.

"It's a tough thing to do, to pick up and leave the country, and I'm rather confused," The New York Times quoted Rightetti as saying in today's editions. "I know it would be a huge adjustment, but I think I can handle it."

Rightetti has saved 138 games for the New York Yankees, including a major league record 46 in 1986, over the last four seasons.

The left-hander's agent, Bill Goodstein, said Wednesday night that the 28-year-old pitcher has been offered a contract by a Japanese club that would make him the highest paid player in the history of team sports.

Neither Goodstein nor Rightetti would divulge terms of the offer, which has been reported as $20 million over three years. Nor would they identify the Japanese team making the proposal. Rightetti reportedly is asking the Yankees for about $1.5 million a year for three years.

Hoch, Hallberg tie for golf lead

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — Defending champions Scott Hoch and Gary Hallberg tied for the first-round lead in the Chrysler PGA team championships with Bob Tway and Mike Hulbert, who finished second a year ago.

Three teams were a shot behind the leaders at 62. They were Fred Couples and Mike Donald, Clarence Rose and Tim Simpson and Jeff Sluman and Robert Wrenn.

Seedings for 1990 World Cup set

ZURICH, Switzerland — FIFA, the International Federation of Association Football, announced the seedings for Saturday's draw of the 1990 World Cup qualifying tournament.

West Germany, Spain, England, the Soviet Union, Denmark, Belgium and France were seeded among the 32 European countries. Brazil, Paraguay and Uruguay were seeded in South America, which has nine nations competing.

The ratings, based heavily on each nation's performance in the 1986 World Cup, are designed to prevent top teams among the 112 entries from facing each other in the preliminary competition. This is to guarantee as many top attractions as possible for the 24-nation finals in Italy in 1990. Italy, as host, and Argentina, as defending champion, have gained automatic berths for the finals.

Chellos out at least two weeks

MONTREAL — Defenseman Chris Chellos is expected to miss at least two weeks after breaking a bone in his left hand.

Chellos, who has become the anchor of the team's defense, has a broken bone near the knuckle of his little finger. The length of his absence probably won't be determined until the swelling subsides, but Chellos said that he won't miss more than two weeks.

Chellos, who has 32 points to tie Chicago's Doug Wilson for the NHL scoring lead among defensemen, suffered the injury in the first period of a game against the New York Rangers Wednesday night, when he jammed his hand against the boards.

76ers' Welp out rest of season

PHILADELPHIA — Chris Welp, the Philadelphia 76ers' first-round draft choice, will miss the rest of this season and the early part of the next because of ligament and cartilage tears in his left knee, the club announced Thursday.

Doctors discovered the damage during arthroscopic surgery Thursday.

The 7-foot Welp, from the University of Washington, collapsed twice Tuesday night during the 76ers' victory in Chicago over the Bulls. He felt only a twinge the first time and continued playing.

As late as Wednesday, Welp said the knee felt fine and questioned the need for the arthroscopic procedure. But the knee swelled and Dr. Roy Moyer decided to go ahead with the exploratory operation.

Moyer said he would wait about two weeks before performing reconstructive surgery on the knee.

Cardinals may end run in St. Louis

By R.B. Follstrom
The Associated Press

Only twice have the Cardinals drawn more than 30,000 fans to a game, and that was in St. Louis, more, one of the cities angling to get the franchise, said Thursday he had been looking for a stadium to talk may end a 28-year run in this city.

Busch Stadium could be one-third empty Sunday when the Cardinals play the New York Giants in their final game in St. Louis this season — and possibly forever.

"There haven't been too many sales today," Cardinals ticket manager Steve Walsh said Thursday. "Not much is happening."

The Cardinals, who have a 5-7 record after winning nine games total over the last two seasons, have improved their on-field performance. But with owner William V. Bidwill entertaining offers from several cities to move the NFL franchise and advising his players not to buy homes in St. Louis, fan falout has been significant.

Only 11,795 showed up Oct. 11 for the replacement game against the New Orleans Saints, and many of them hooted at the hometown team.

Flach and Segoso are double trouble

By Robert Millward
The Associated Press

LONDON — American doubles partners Ken Flach and Robert Segoso are so close they could almost be twin brothers.

Both were born in May 1963, live in Sebring, Fla., and both are due to become fathers within two weeks of each other next March.

Both have won 19 doubles tournaments and, on Sunday, they hope to reach the 20 mark at the $200,000 Masters Doubles tennis tournament.

The Americans have breezed through their first two matches in the round-robin tournament at the Albert Hall without dropping a set.

Tonight, they were aiming for a semifinal place by beating countryman Gary Donnelly and Peter Fleming.

In other third-day matches, defending champions Stefan Edberg and Anders Jarryd of Sweden faced winless Australians Laurie Warder and Peter Doohan, unbeaten Miloslav Mezir and Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia met American Paul Ammons and South African Christo Van Renburg and Americans Scott Davis and David Pate, also without a victory, faced Spaniards Sergio Casal and Emilio Sanchez.

In their 2-3, 6-3, 6-4 victory over Davis and Pate on Thursday, Flach and Segoso hit back emphatically after losing the opening two games.

They won the next eight to take a stranglehold on the match with their serves and firm, well placed follow-up volleys.

Segoso's opening lapse was the only time the Wimbledon titlists lost serve in the match, whereas Davis was broken four times and Pate twice.

Although Flach and Segoso are level on tournament victories, not all have been together.

Flach won the Japan and Asean Open at Tokyo last year with countryman Matt Anger, while Segoso teamed up with Jarryd to win this year's French title in Bordeaux and South African Christo Van Renburg and Americans Scott Davis and David Pate, also without a victory, faced Spaniards Sergio Casal and Emilio Sanchez.

"He's so keyed up on court, very intense. That's the sort of thing you need when you've got to give 100 percent," the American said.

Coincidentally, the Swede is looking for a partner in major events, because his regular ally, Edberg, plans to cut his doubles play to concentrate on his singles.

Edberg and Jarryd recovered from an opening-round defeat by Mezir and Smid to post a 7-6, 6-3, 6-2 victory over Ammons and Van Renburg.

Mezir and Smid scored their second victory of the tournament when he beat Warder and Doohan 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 7-5, while Casal and Sanchez posted their first by beating Donnelly and Fleming 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Paul McGowan winner of the Butkus Award

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Florida State's Paul McGowan, who some said wasn't big enough or fast enough to play college football, was named winner of the 1987 Butkus Award on Thursday.

The award goes each year to the player voted the nation's best college linebacker.

McGowan, anchor of a defense that helped compile a 10-1 record and No. 3 national ranking, won by a single vote over Ohio State senior Chris Spielman.

Ballooning was by an 11-member panel of sportswriters, broadcasters and others.

"It's a great honor for me and my university to be selected," said the 6-1, 230-pound McGowan, who was named earlier to the Associated Press All-America team.

McGowan, who Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden calls "the best blood-and-guts linebacker in college football," recorded 134 tackles, 11 tackles for losses and recovered 2 fumbles over the regular season.

Bowden said he has "never had a better linebacker."

McGowan shrugged off scouting reports that he was too light and too slow for college football after graduating from Winter Park High School.

"It was a matter of me having confidence in myself... and going out and proving it to other people," he said while posing with the award named for the former Chicago Bear linebacker and presented by the Downtown Athletic Club of Orlando.

"I don't think it will bother me in the pros," he said about the too-light, too-slow tag.

Florida State linebacker coach Wally Burnham said professional scouts "are real high on him and he's got the top three choices and ballooning was on a 3-2-1 point basis. McGowan got four first-place votes and tallied 25 points."

Butkus, now a broadcaster and McGowan at a dinner Dec. 14 in actor, will present the award to Orlando.

WEEKEND

Up in the air

Lt. Col. Kenneth D. Cameron, an astronaut and experienced pilot, will be the guest of honor at the New England Air Museum in Windsor Locks this weekend. At 1:30 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, he will speak on astronaut training, as part of a Space Travel theme weekend. A Pratt and Whitney rocket engine and a space suit developed by Hamilton Standard will be displayed. The museum, at Bradley International Airport, is open daily, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is $5 for adults, $2 for children.

Something old

If you like antiques, don't miss the Manchester Historical Society's annual December Antique Show at Wadell School, Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. More than 45 dealers from several states will display antiques and collectibles. Proceeds from this show go to the various activities of the historical society.

See the 'Nutcracker'

Connecticut Concert Ballet's ninth annual production of "The Nutcracker" will be presented at Manchester High School on Saturday and Sunday at 2:30 p.m. This performance will feature a Christmas tree which grows to be 22 feet tall, and students dancing as snow falls. Tickets are $6 general, $4 for children and senior citizens.

Of art and music

Collist Harry Clark and pianist Sandra Schulmann, a well-known classical duo, will present a free concert tonight at 8 in the Newspaper Gallery of Manchester Community College. This concert is offered in conjunction with the opening of the Mid-Year Student Art Exhibit. The exhibition will remain in the gallery through Jan. 29, 1988. The gallery is open, free, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. weekdays and from 9 a.m. to noon Saturdays. The gallery is in MCC's Lowe Building.

Alleluia to be sung

First Baptist Church will present the cantata "Sing Glory Alleluia" on Sunday at 7 p.m. The work, composed by Janet McMahon and Greg Sewell, will be performed by the Children's Graded Choirs and the Adult Choir. Mary Dorris is music director and Karen Crowson is drama director. Refreshments will be served following the presentation.

A visit with Santa

To restore your belief in Santa, visit his workshop at Wickham Park, on West Middle Turnpike at the East Hartford-Manchester border. Santa, his wife and their elves greet children in their log cabin, and the kids receive an apple and a cup of hot chocolate. Admission is $1 per carload. It's open Saturday through Dec. 23, weekends from 1 to 5 p.m., weekdays from 3 to 6 p.m.

Picky, picky!

Leo Kretzner, master picker of the mountain dulcimer, will present a concert Saturday evening at 8 at the Sounding Board Coffeehouse, First Church of Christ Congregational, 12 S. Main St., West Hartford. He plays everything from old-time numbers to original, contemporary tunes. Reservations are suggested. Call 563-3263. Tickets are $6 each.

Evening with the master

Spend an evening with Chekhov, master of combining the humorous with the tragic. Three of his one-act plays will be presented tonight and Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Austin Arts Center on the campus of Trinity College, Summit Street, Hartford. General admission is $8 for this performance, starring Mohammad B. Ghaffari, this year's Trinity theater artist-in-residence.

Bold and brassy

You'll certainly be in the Christmas spirit after Sunday's concert by the Nutmeg Brass Quintet. It will be at 7 p.m. at First Church of Christ, 2183 Main St., Glastonbury. The donation is $3 for adults, and admission is free for children, who will be invited to a special party during the second half of the concert. For more information, call 633-4641.

Going carolling

Brimming with the sights and sounds of old England, Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" will be presented tonight at 8 by The Nebraska Theatre Caravan. It will be onstage at the Jorgensen Auditorium, at the Storrs campus of the University of Connecticut. Tickets, which range from $3 to $10, are available at the door.

Taking it lightly

Tony Brescia's Christmas tree, "Troon," lights up a corner of the Wadsworth Athenaeum's Festival of Trees. The tree fest, featuring more than 170 seasonal displays, is open through Sunday. Bring a favorite teddy bear to the Beary Best Bear Contest on Saturday, and $1 will be deducted from your admission price. Entertainment Saturday includes a magician, puppet workshops and the Suzuki violins from Hart School of Music.

Saturday, there are concerts by the Hartford Choral and the Governor's Foot Guard Band. And don't miss the tree covered with hundreds of tiny bears, each dressed in a different fantasy costume by employees of the Costume Shop of Manchester. The festival is open Saturday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Here's the beef

The First Congregational Church of Coventry will have a roast beef supper Saturday from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. in the fellowship hall on Main Street. Meals cost $4.50 general; $4 senior citizens; $2 for children 7 to 12; and children 6 and under will be served free.

They're back

An Old State House holiday tradition, David Szyrak's National Marionette Theatre will return to Hartford this year, with performances of "A Christmas Cream, today through Dec. 24. It is the tale of a poor mouse who awakens one morning to find his home has been visited by Christmas fairies. Performances are at 10:30 and 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, and at 12:30, 1:30 and 2:30 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. Performances are free, but reservations are necessary for groups larger than 10. Call 522-6766.

Sing noel!

If you enjoy singing Christmas tunes, then head for the Old State House in Hartford this evening for the Channel 3 Carol Sing. There you'll join thousands of people, who will enjoy music led by the Chamber Singers and Vocal Arts Ensemble of the Hart School of Music, Hartford's Salt and Pepper Gospel Singers, and members of the National Theatre of the Deaf. There will also be special appearances by Frosty the Snowman and Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer, and free cookies and pastries from Freihofer Baking Company. Discount parking, at $2 per car, will be offered in the Constitution Plaza parking garage.

On Old Main Street

"Holiday Afternoon on Old Main Street" is the title of the Christmas concert being presented by the choir of Christ Church Cathedral, at First Congregational Church on Main Street in South Windsor. The concert will be at 2 p.m. Sunday, and a reception will follow at Wood Memorial Library, 783 Main St., South Windsor. There is no charge.

Far out!

Each of us is surrounded by a field of electrical energy, which many people call the human aura. On Sunday afternoon, Anadele Schnip, a Connecticut photographer, will demonstrate Kirlean photography, an innovative process which can capture these auras on paper. Her talk will be at 1 p.m. at the Pump House Gallery in Hartford's Bushnell Park. It is sponsored by Hartford's Office of Cultural Affairs.

In good company

The Savoyard Players, the traveling troupe of the Manchester Gilbert & Sullivan Association, will present the musical comedy "Company" tonight and Saturday evenings at 8 at the Bentley School, 87 Hollister St. Tickets at $5 are available at the door.

In perfect harmony

The Manchester Symphony Choral will present its Christmas concert Saturday evening at 8 in St. Mary's Episcopal Church. Tickets are $6 general; $4 for students over age 18 and senior citizens; free to students under 18.

Otis Redding still gets R-E-S-P-E-C-T

By Mary Campbell
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Twenty years after legendary rhythm and blues artist Otis Redding died, his biggest hit, "Sittin' on the Dock of the Bay," still whistles through the airwaves. Redding recorded the song slightly more than a year before he was killed in a plane crash on Dec. 7, 1967, three days before he died at age 26. Stax Records released it after his death and it became his first No. 1 hit on pop charts. Singer-songwriter Michael Bolton has the tune on his new LP.

OTIS REDDING died in 1967

Maker voted him the world's best male vocalist, the first time during the 1980s they had not chosen Elvis Presley. The same year, Redding was the only soul performer asked to appear at the Monterey Pop Festival. His intense performance was captured in the film "Monterey Pop" and on the LP "Otis Redding Is Here." — Jim Hendrix.

Redding went to a Sausalito, Calif., houseboat to relax afterward, and there he wrote "Sittin' on the Dock of the Bay," which ends with a long, meandering whistle solo. Guitarist Steve Cropper of Booker T and the MGs, the backup band on many of his early records for Stax in Memphis, Tenn., was the co-writer. Cropper said Redding had been "King of soul, king of Stax, king of everything that evolved around it."

His influence reverberates through contemporary music. Disco's roots can be seen in his danceable numbers. K.C. and the Sunshine Band picked up on his styling. Al Green, in the 1970s, was called a cross between Redding and Sam Cooke.

Fourteen years after Redding's death, two of his sons and a nephew formed a group, the Reddings. On their first album they included "Sittin' on the Dock of the Bay." The Alvin Alley American Dance Theater has a dance titled "Suite Otis" based on six Redding recordings: "Just One More Day," "I Can't Turn You Loose," "Lovers Prayer," "Satisfaction," "I've Been Loving You Too Long" and "Try a Little Tenderness."

Redding, who was born Sept. 9, 1941, in Dawson, Ga., and grew up in Macon, came to Stax in an unusual way — as a chauffeur. Working as general assistant and occasional vocalist for Johnny Jenkins and the Pinetoppers, he drove Jenkins in 1963 to a session at the Stax studio in Memphis.

Jenkins finished with 40 minutes of studio time remaining, and Redding jumped in with two songs he had written. The Stax president liked one tune, "These Arms of Mine," and released it. It went to No. 20 on the rhythm 'n' blues chart, 85 on the pop charts and launched Redding's career.

Over time, Redding's staging became melodic and emotional, but kept a hint of grit and explosiveness. He could temper his vocal force with sweet, wounded vulnerability. He let power and pain be heard in his "Mr. Pitiful" and "Pain in My Heart."

Redding was acclaimed for his ability to get to the heart of ballads. And he could whip up excitement in his tempo numbers. The sound that came out of Memphis has been called "Mississippi mud and country blues." Redding's type of earthy soul wasn't readily crossing over from rhythm 'n' blues to pop but he stuck to it.

By 1969, Redding was considered dated. In the psychedelic and heavy metal eras, he was scorned. Today, however, he is revered as one of the soul greats, a marvelous singer, dynamic live performer, considerable writer and a major influence in contemporary music.

Theaters, studio feud over 'Last Emperor'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The studio that produced "The Last Emperor" is halting distribution of the movie during the holiday season because too big a hit would bring credit to a fired executive, according to a published report.

The Los Angeles Daily News said Thursday that the plans by Columbia Pictures to halt distribution of director Bernardo Bertolucci's epic had triggered a feud with North America's second-largest theater chain and could eventually involve the Coca-Cola Co., Columbia's parent company. Quoting unidentified industry sources, the newspaper said the decision to halt distribution of the movie about the last emperor of China was an effort to minimize its success because it was produced during the tenure of former Columbia Chairman David Puttnam. He was fired in September.

"After you fire David Puttnam publicly, it makes you look really bad if his films do well," the newspaper quoted one unidentified executive as saying.

"The Last Emperor" opened in five theaters in five cities Nov. 20 and drew large crowds and good reviews. It was scheduled to open on 270 additional screens during the Christmas season, but those plans have been halted, the newspaper quoted sources as saying.

Cineplex, Odem Corp., a 1,513-theater chain based in Toronto, Canada, countered with a threat to ban Columbia and Tri-Star Pictures releases at its theaters. Columbia and Tri-Star were merged this year.

Garth Drabinsky, chairman of Cineplex, declined to comment on the feud, as did spokesmen for Columbia and Tri-Star. Puttnam did not respond to queries.

The feud could eventually affect Coca-Cola, because Cineplex is a leading sales outlet for the soft drink company's products, the newspaper said.

Last year, Cineplex had said it expected to sell the equivalent of about a million gallons of Coca-Cola syrup and about 400 million worth of tickets to films produced by Columbia and Tri-Star.

Vestron can't sell 'Platoon'

STAMFORD (AP) — Vestron Inc. says negotiations with Home Box Office Inc. and Home Video Film Corp. over home-video rights to the films "Platoon" and "Hoosiers" have broken down.

As a result, Vestron will be unable to distribute "Platoon," as planned, during the holiday season, the company announced Thursday in a prepared statement.

A federal court injunction prohibiting HBO from distributing the movies, for which Vestron claims exclusive rights, remains in effect.

The Stamford-based company said Vestron said it intends to "vigorously pursue its rights to both films through the courts" and regrets further delay in the availability of the films to consumers and the video industry.
