HOSPITAL NAMES CHIEF

Former official Michael Gallacher picked for post

BUSY TIME OF YEAR — Postal worker Jim Rivera prepares to sort a pile of packages at the main Post Office at East Center and Main streets on Friday afternoon. The job has become a familiar one this month as Manchester residents keep the U.S. Postal Service busy by mailing gifts to their loved ones during the holiday season.

Michael R. Gallacher, former acting executive director of Manchester Memorial Hospital, has been named the hospital's next president.

The announcement of Gallacher's appointment was made by the hospital Friday.

Gallacher, 47, replaces Warren L. Prelesnik, who resigned in October.

"It's a life-long dream to become a president," Gallacher said in a telephone interview from Greenwich. "It's a great opportunity for us to come back to Manchester." He is currently senior vice president at Greenwich Hospital.

Gallacher, who is expected to join the hospital staff on Feb. 29, rejoins the hospital after a three-year absence. He resigned his position as acting executive director in June 1984.

A former assistant director at MMH, he had been acting executive director for six months after the resignation of Executive Director Edward M. Kenney. Kenney left MMH to become director of Greenwich Hospital.

After leaving MMH, Gallacher became executive vice president of the Anna T. Jeanes Foundation and chief executive officer of the Jeanes Hospital in Philadelphia. In June 1985, he rejoined Kenney as senior vice president at Greenwich Hospital.

However, Gallacher longed to come back to Manchester, a town he had left after being passed over for the position of executive director. Instead, Prelesnik, who could not be reached for comment, was named to the post now known as president.

"Manchester, I was there for 10 years," Gallacher said. "You can't forget that association."

Gallacher to head hospital

Trustees, said the decision to hire Gallacher was finalized on Thursday. He said Gallacher was chosen over nine to 10 applicants.

Dobkin said the search for a president took such a short time because of the quality of the candidate.

"We knew him, his interview was excellent and he knows the town," Dobkin said. "Everything fit into place. He seemed to be the right man for the right time."

Though he did not want to compare Gallacher to past presidents, Dobkin said the selection should benefit the hospital as a whole.

"He expresses the personality that will benefit this hospital. There's no doubt in my mind," he said.

George Roy, interim president and chief financial officer vice president, said he was glad to have Gallacher return even though he is enjoying his term as president.

"I thought it was very good," he said of the selection. "He's been in the hospital field for many years. He had been very good with the patients."

A graduate of Providence College, Gallacher received his master's degree in Health Care Administration from the Hartford Graduate Center. Prior to joining the hospital in 1975, he was an administrative assistant and assistant administrator of the Memorial Hospital of Pawtucket, R.I.

Students report on teachers who flout new smoking rule

STAMFORD (AP) — Some students at Westhill High School have been involved in show-and-tell in a school newspaper expose on teachers who apparently have been ignoring rules about where they can smoke.

In Thursday's edition of The Westword, reporter Eric Grae and photographer Jason Smith published the results of their two-week search for teachers sneaking smokes outside staff smoking areas.

A state law that took effect Oct. 1 banned smoking inside public schools. The Stamford school board, however, voted to allow teachers to light up in certain rooms at each school. A teachers' lounge was chosen at Westhill.

"All teachers know it's a law. They know there's a smoking area and they know where it is," Grae said.

State department asks lease law

HARTFORD (AP) — A law that would give the state public works commissioner the power to lease office space in emergency situations without first obtaining approval from a state watchdog panel has been proposed by the Public Works Department.

The proposal can't be considered until the General Assembly convenes in February, but it's already under attack by those who see it as the student journalists reported that they discovered several teachers and secretaries smoking in the math, science and attendance offices.

The only staff member named was math teacher Dennis Ippolito, who was reported to have been caught puffing on his pipe in his office one day.

Ippolito declined to comment on the school newspaper story.

"Students have mentioned they've seen teachers smoking," said Vice Principal Jack Leydon. "I think it's like any policy change or rule change. It takes a while to catch on."

"We've been telling teachers for 17 years that they can smoke in their offices and now we're saying they can't," said Leydon, a non-smoker. "My hope is that teachers will understand that it's law, that they're supposed to set an example for the students and that they'll fall into line."

Leydon said he did not expect the school administration to take any action as a result of the story, which ran under the banner headline, "Members of Staff Break State Law."

The smoking issue started interesting students in September when the school board began debating whether to bar students from smoking on school grounds as well as inside the buildings. The board has not yet resolved the issue.

School board President Roslyn Nesin said Thursday that the board would take up the subject again in January. In the meantime, she told The Advocate of Stamford, she hoped teachers would keep their smoking inside the designated areas.

away to circumvent the watchdog State Properties Review Board. The department and the board have been feuding over a lease for months.

"The problem with the (proposed) law is that if somebody sneezed in a building, (public works officials) could declare it an unsafe building and go out and lease another building for two years," said Thomas D. Corrigan, public

Tax increases target corporations

By Jim Luther
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Corporations will have to ante up most of the money under a deficit-reduction tax increase awaiting final congressional approval.

But a bit of the sting will be felt by telephone users, wealthy estates and the parents of every child who gets a whooping cough shot.

The measure includes a little relief for individuals who had too little tax withheld or who underpaid their quarterly estimated taxes this year and thus risked a penalty. A requirement that 90 percent of tax liabilities be paid in advance will be delayed until 1988; the old rule of 80 percent will remain in effect for 1987.

The bill, which won tentative approval of congressional negotiators Thursday night, would raise about $23 billion over the next two years. It is likely to pass final votes in the House and Senate on Saturday and be signed into law by President Reagan as early as next week. Most provisions would take effect Jan. 1.

Here are highlights of the tax provisions and, when available, estimates of how much money they would raise over two years. Estimates for some items were still being computed Friday.

—Extend the tax on local and long-distance telephone service through 1990. $3.6 billion.

—Require employers to pay Social Security taxes on all cash tips paid by their customers. $485 million.

—Impose a $4.56-a-dose tax for DPT (diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus) vaccine, $4.44 for measles and mumps shots and 29 cents for polio vaccine. The money would finance compensation under a 1986 law for children who suffer injuries from such vaccines, in most cases relieving vaccine manufacturers of liability except where negligence is involved.

Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III has said this provision could prompt Reagan to veto the bill.

—Extend Social Security taxes to weekend drill pay earned by military reservists, some farm employees, workers employed by their spouses or parents, and to premiums on employer-financed group-term life insurance policies above $50,000. $461 million.

—Increase the payroll tax that finances part of the Railroad Retirement program. $326 million.

—Deny the child-care credit, which benefits parents who have to pay for dependent care so they can work, for expenses of overnight camp. $117 million.

—Require doctors, entertainers and other professionals who form personal service corporations to pay a flat 34 percent rate on all taxable income. $200 million.

—Freeze the maximum estate-tax rate at 55 percent; otherwise, it would drop to 50 percent next year. This rate generally affects only estates of more than $2.5 million. Also, benefits of lower rates would be denied estates above $10 million.

—Extend through next July 1 IRS authority to withhold tax refunds from people who have past-due government loans.

—Require corporations to pay more of their taxes earlier. $1.2 billion.

—Narrow a 1986 provision under which estates of some wealthy corporate executives could avoid the estate tax on stock sold to employees. $2.8 billion.

—Deny the tax-deferring cash method of accounting to family owned farming corporations, such as Tyson Foods, Inc. and Perdue Farms, whose gross receipts exceed $25 million a year. The impact would be lessened by allowing such farms that are required to switch accounting methods to continue avoiding taxes on past deferrals so long as they remain family owned. $69 million.

—Restrict employers' ability to defer taxes on money deposited into a fund for employees' vacation pay.

—Extend through 1990 the 0.2 percent temporary unemployment tax on employers. $1.7 billion.

—Require wholesalers, rather than retailers, to collect taxes on diesel and special motor fuels. $445 million.

—Deny the foreign tax credit and tax-deferral benefits for U.S. companies' income earned in South Africa. $43 million.

—Tax "greenmail" payments received in redemption of stock bought in a takeover attempt. Under $1 million.

—Deny the targeted job tax credit for strikebreakers. $6 million.

—Redefine limits on employer deductions for employee pensions.

—Limit to $1 million the amount of home-mortgage debt on which interest may be deducted, including boats or mobile homes used as a first or second home; prohibit deduction of interest on home-equity loans over $100,000.

—Restrict, except for small companies, the completed-contract method of accounting, which allows defense contractors and big construction companies to delay some taxes until a project is complete.

—Restrict a special tax benefit for automobile manufacturers and others that regularly sell from inventory on the installment plan.

—Tax certain gains arising from disposition of corporate stock during a liquidation.

—Require tax-exempt organizations that are ineligible to receive deductible contributions to state that fact on fund-raising solicitations. Also, tax-exempt groups that solicit donations in return for services available free from the government, such as a summary of Social Security benefits, to disclose that during solicitations.

—Treat judges as employees for Individual Retirement Account purposes, denying deductible IRAs to most.

Judge dismisses War Powers suit

By James Rowley
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A lawsuit to enforce the War Powers Resolution on U.S. Navy operations in the Persian Gulf was dismissed Friday by a judge who said it would be unconstitutional for the court to inject itself into a congressional dispute.

U.S. District Judge George Revercomb ruled that he did not have jurisdiction to rule on the suit filed by 110 members of Congress, saying it was "a byproduct of political disputes within Congress regarding the applicability of the War Powers Resolution to the Persian Gulf situation."

The judge said exercise of jurisdiction would be "both inappropriate and imprudent."

The judge noted that several bills were introduced in Congress to compel President Reagan to invoke the War Powers Resolution in connection with the July 22 start of the Navy's operation to escort reflagged Kuwaiti oil tankers through the Persian Gulf.

"Bills also were introduced to alternately repeal and to strengthen the War Powers Resolution," Revercomb said. "This court declines to accept jurisdiction to render a decision that, regardless of its substance, would impose a consensus on Congress."

"Congress is free to adopt a variety of positions on the War Powers Resolution, depending on its ability to achieve a political consensus," Revercomb said.

But the judge said it would be unconstitutional to inject the court into the political dispute by ruling on the lawsuit filed by Rep. Mike Lowry, D-Wash. and 110 other House members.

The 1973 War Powers Resolution requires that in the absence of a declared war, the president should consult with Congress before engaging U.S. armed forces in hostilities. The resolution also requires a report of such engagements within 48 hours of the start of a military operation.

Once such a report is filed with the House and Senate, the president must withdraw forces in 60 days absent a declaration of war by Congress or ask for an extension of the deadline.

The lawsuit sought an order that Reagan invoke the resolution and report to Congress about the Navy's escort operation and the Sept. 21 naval attack on an Iranian ship laying mines in the Persian Gulf.

"If the court were to decide whether the president is required to submit a report to Congress ... the court also would have to decide whether the United States Armed Forces in the Persian Gulf either are engaged in 'hostilities' or in 'situations where imminent involvement in hostilities is clearly indicated by the circumstances,'" Revercomb said.

She's doing fine

Tabatha Foster, 3, attends a Pittsburgh news conference with her father, Roy, on Friday, after undergoing a multi-organ transplant. The Madisonville, Kentucky girl received a liver, pancreas, small intestines, part of a stomach, and part of a colon in a November operation at Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh.

Public Works Commissioner Donald Cassin denied that the bill is intended to get around the review board, which usually approves leases.

Grace Biallas, color consultant, drapes Emerson's shoulder to choose what different colored materials over Bill would be the best look for his suit and tie. His girlfriend JoAnn Brown, of Coventry, looks on.

Men use color to dress for success

By Anita M. Caldwell
Manchester Herald

If you think you're a man for all seasons, Grace Biallas will disagree.

Biallas, who is an independent color consultant, helps her clients find the colors that look best on them. Biallas said the colors men and women choose for clothing and accessories are grouped into seasons. And according to Biallas, who is serving an increasing number of men, no one is "all-season."

"The most important thing is the skin undertone," the 46-year-old said during a recent demonstration at Regal's Men's Shop on Main Street.

Since October, Regal's has offered Biallas' services to its customers on Saturdays free of charge.

"We wanted to offer the male customer a chance to understand what colors looked good on him," said Bernie Apter, president of the store.

Apter said he believes the service has given the customer more confidence in choosing his clothes. A typical comment he hears about the service is: "I would have bought it anyway, but now I know why it looks good on me."

"We're born with a particular undertone and we respond best to those colors that harmonize with the undertone," Biallas said. She also said eye and hair color is another important consideration.

"It's like putting a picture together," she said.

To get an accurate picture, Biallas works with color charts and squares of material that she drapes over a customer to see which hues look best against the skin.

Spring colors are warm colors that include coral, camel and orange-red. Autumn also includes warm colors such as golden yellow, teal and khaki green.

Cool colors, such as rose, muted blues and purples fall under summer, and winter colors include black, hunter green and royal blue.

She also stresses the importance of correct lighting to avoid errors in judgment.

Biallas said she uses natural light if possible or a special light called full-spectrum lighting. This type of lighting gives the illumination power of noon-day sun, she said.

"I think it was great," said Bill Emerson of Coventry who met with Biallas recently at Regal's. "Some people could look rather sickly in clothes," he said. "It makes you look better."

Emerson believes choosing the right colors enhances your appearance. "You can see the difference in your face and the features it brings out," said Emerson, who is a credit analyst at Connecticut National Bank in Hartford.

Though Emerson was a satisfied customer, he said he questions the accuracy of color analysis because the process is subjective and may vary with each consultant.

Alan Cashman, owner of J. Garman Clothier, agrees. Cashman said many of the color consultants don't educate their customer and consumers lose trust in their own judgement. If it's not on their color chart, he said, they won't buy it.

Though the Main Street clothier doesn't offer the services of a color consultant, he said it's helpful if the customer's best interest is at heart.

"It's a wonderful tool," Cashman said. But customers are often misguided, he said. He urges customers to trust their own judgement and find someone reputable.

"Color analysis is not a simple issue," Cashman said. "It has its place, but it's not the gospel of color."

Morgan Flaherty of Manchester said the service has opened his eyes to new options in wardrobe choice.

"I was pleased," said Flaherty, who is a 'winter.' "People notice it."

Flaherty, who works at Aetna Life & Casualty Insurance Co. in Hartford, said he has received many positive comments about his new look.

David Phillips, also of Manchester, said it has made a difference in his purchases.

"There seems to be something to it," he said. "It's a very interesting process to look at colors in a different way." Phillips, who is a 'summer,' said that he never would have thought a red jacket would look good on him but he now sees that it does.

"Everybody wants to look good," said Sandra Wilbanks, owner of Hair Loft on East Center Street.

Wilbanks, who is a certified color consultant, offers color analysis to women though she said she regrets not having more time to accept male customers.

"Men have just as much vanity as women," she said, adding that her husband was "extremely pleased" when she helped him with his color choices.

"Everybody took a second look at him," she said. "He felt good."

South Windsor resident Gordon Gross said it helped him put together a fuller outfit without depending on salespeople.

"I don't have the ability to put colors together," said Gross, a 'summer.' Though he said he didn't agree with Biallas regarding his color choice in suits and sportjackets, he welcomed her help with accessories. The Hartford educator said that color analysis does have its merit.

Skepticism is not unusual in this line of the clothing business, said Biallas.

"The individual who does come to a consultation wants to better himself, or get acknowledgement that his choices are best for him," Biallas said.

Six years ago when Biallas began training with Beauty For All Seasons in Idaho, only a few men were interested. Now, Biallas said, for every 20 women she sees in a month, eight customers are men.

But Biallas said their reasons for seeking color analysis are quite different.

"For women, it's for the fashion," Biallas said. "For men, it's the impact of color on image and the power look."

Cons to the rescue

SOMERS (AP) — Inmates at the state's maximum-security prison have volunteered to carve a wooden cross to replace one of two crosses recently stolen from the Immaculate Conception Church in Hartford.

"I am very appreciative of their concern," said the Rev. James Aherne, Immaculate's assistant pastor and Catholic chaplain for the Weston Street jail in Hartford.

Aherne said a correction officer at the Somers state prison had told him of the inmates' plan. The inmates are planning to carve a wooden cross with a body of Christ on it to replace a crucifix that had hung in the Immaculate church rectory for many years.

The Rev. Joseph J. Baxter, pastor of the church, said that during the past six weeks the cross and another, which had hung over the main altar, had been stolen. Thefts also included a $5,000 sound system and 200 pounds of hamburger from the church's shelter for the homeless.

Baxter said it would cost more than $3,000 to buy new crosses, but church leaders would rather spend their money on sandwiches, clothes and furniture for the needy.

State woman wins manuscript dispute

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — In the end, it was William Faulkner's words that settled in a Connecticut woman's favor a dispute over the ownership of a handwritten manuscript of "The Sound and The Fury."

The University of Virginia, which has held the 147-page manuscript as part of its Faulkner collection since 1970, agreed Thursday it belongs to Joan Williams of Greenwich.

The school said it will pay her $25,000 for the manuscript, which will remain at the Alderman Library as the prize of the university's Faulkner collection and will be available to scholars. The collection, considered the most extensive in the world, includes the manuscripts of 10 other novels, 50 short stories and other works.

A letter Faulkner wrote on Dec. 9, 1952, to his editor at Random House was strong evidence of Ms. Williams' claim.

"The manuscript of the 'Sound and the Fury,' in my handwriting, now in your custody, is the property of Joan Williams," the letter reads. "Her right to it is not to be challenged. It is my request to you ... that the manuscript may be surrendered to her on demand at any time."

University officials "couldn't get around the letter," Sidney Rossoff, Ms. Williams' lawyer, said Thursday. "She's pleased," Rossoff said. "She simply wanted recognition of the fact it really was hers."

The manuscript had been kept in a safe at Random House until 1962, when Faulkner died and it was distributed as part of his estate to the William Faulkner Foundation, according to the statement. It arrived at the museum from the now-defunct Charlottesville foundation.

Faulkner, who was a Nobel Prize in 1949 and a Pulitzer Prize in 1963, became the university's first writer in residence in 1957.

"The number (of dollars) means nothing," Rossoff said of the settlement. "It could be worth a half-million dollars but what were we going to do, make the university go out and raise the money? That's not a nice thing to do."

Wonderful jogging workout

NEW YORK (AP) — Jogging is a new wonder sport, says the Reebok Aerobic Information Bureau. It says many doctors are recommending it and many aerobic instructors are making it a part of their overall aerobic programs.

Jogging is brisk walking alternated with jogging and combines the best of both activities. Risk of injury is reduced because one is less likely to overdo, and the variety adds interest to the exercise program.

Official pleads innocent to assault

HARTFORD (AP) — A man who heads a presidential commission on child abuse has pleaded innocent to an assault charge in the slapping of a woman.

William W. McConnell Jr., 39, of West Hartford entered the plea Thursday in Superior Court to a charge of third-degree assault, a misdemeanor, stemming from an incident last January.

McConnell, chairman of President Reagan's Child Safety Partnership, is accused of slapping Kimberele Anne Rubenbauer of Hartford during an argument.

An arrest warrant was issued in February, but McConnell did not turn himself in to Hartford police until Nov. 6, the day after he held a news conference in Washington to release the commission's report on ways to combat child abuse.

McConnell's attorney said police did not notify his client of the arrest warrant until shortly before the day he turned himself in.

The court appearance Thursday came one day after McConnell and the woman agreed to drop charges against each other stemming from a shoving incident in front of McConnell's home on Nov. 14.

Superior Court Judge John T. Maloney issued a restraining order prohibiting McConnell from having any contact with Rubenbauer.

Sign prompts suit threat

By Alex Girelli
Manchester Herald

A man who plans to open a business at the West Side Plaza says he plans to file a lawsuit against the town Tuesday unless he gets a certificate of occupancy by the end of the business day Monday.

Ronald Hagenow made the threat on Friday, after he was notified that morning that the certificate, which he needs to open his Italian Grocery and Delicatessen, will not be issued unless he changes or removes the roof sign he has erected for his business.

But Hagenow said he does not plan to remove the sign and will take legal action against the town.

Hagenow said that on Friday, Zoning Enforcement Officer Thomas O'Marra put a note in the door of his business place at the West Side Plaza, 200 West Center St. saying that the sign he has erected does not conform to a Feb. 19, 1986 permit issued by the Planning and Zoning Commission with respect to color and the style of the lettering.

O'Marra could not be contacted Friday afternoon. Mark Pellegrini, director of planning, said the issue involves a roof sign, one mounted on the building above the eaves line.

But, Pellegrini said the permit stipulated that all roof signs on the building be of the same size, have the same background, and the same lettering. Two other signs on the building installed by other tenants have bronze backgrounds with a kind of gold lettering.

Hagenow's sign is a white background with green and red letters. He said he wanted an ethnic sign. Hagenow said the sign has been in place for three months with no complaint from the town before Friday.

"I'm really upset that they should allow a person to go so far," Hagenow said about what he considers the long delay in notifying him that his sign was not acceptable.

MMH staffer faces charges

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Manchester Herald

Charges of sexual assault against a counselor at Manches. Memorial Hospital have been reinstated by the state Supreme Court, but the hospital will allow the man to remain on the job, a hospital spokesman said Friday.

The charges against William H. Evans, now a Manchester resident, were lodged in 1984 in connection with the alleged assault of a 14-year-old boy in a Glastonbury halfway house for alcoholics. Evans lived in the house at the time of the alleged incident.

A Hartford Superior Court judge dismissed the charges against Evans last year on the ground that the prosecutors had failed to specify when exactly the incident occurred. The state Supreme Court, in a 4-1 decision on Monday, ruled that the judge erred and reinstated the charges against Evans, said Michael E. O'Hare, a lawyer in the Chief State's Attorney's Office.

Andrew Beck, a spokesman for MMH, said that Evans, who has been with the hospital for two years, will stay in his position as a counselor for the human services department.

"We anticipate at this point in time no changes in his case load," Beck said.

Neither Evans nor his lawyer, Hartford attorney Hubert Santos, was available for comment on Friday.

Evans was charged in the July 1984 incident with first-degree sexual assault, first-degree attempted sexual assault, second-degree sexual assault, second-degree attempted sexual assault, unlawful restraint and risk of injury to a minor.

The case will now go back to Hartford Superior Court. No trial date has been set yet.

Weicker will try for re-election

Scrrips League News Service

WASHINGTON — Despite a year of "legislative failure" by Congress, Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., said Thursday he will run for re-election in 1988 if his family supports him.

"At this juncture, the progress of the U.S. Senate is not influencing my final decision," Weicker said. "There's only one thing that the jury's still out on — how I would impact on my family."

"I've already made up my mind that I want to run. I've been raising money, my campaign staff is in place. I'm raring to go."

Weicker said the 1987 session of Congress has been a "legislative failure in terms of substance" and blamed the lack of progress on Congress' attempts to comply with the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction amendment.

Weicker said he supports additional taxes, such as a 10-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax, to raise revenue and begin cutting the deficit.

"We have been financing our extravagances with foreign money. There's got to be an end to that."

"It's going to throw the whole economic system into chaos unless we get our own house in order — not on borrowed money, but by our own revenue raising and by our own sacrifices," Weicker said.

Weicker said October's record-setting stock market crash was a indicator something is terribly wrong with the U.S. economy.

"We criticize the Japanese, the Germans, the English and everybody else for creating our trade deficit," he said. "Yet they're the ones loaning us money because we don't have the courage to go ahead and pay for what we consume."

Congress is trying to complete most 1987 legislation in one "continuous resolution" that Weicker said is an "extreme embarrassment. Congress needs to get its house in order. We can't solve our problem with smoke and mirrors. It's got to be done with sacrifice, both in terms of what we spend and the revenue we have to raise."

Weicker expects further deficit reduction efforts and ratification of the recently signed U.S.-Soviet arms treaty to be top priorities for Congress in 1988.

Controversial idea scrapped

TORRINGTON (AP) — The city's has decided to drop his controversial proposal to have police officers patrol the city looking for "suspicious people."

Police Chief Mahlon Sabo, who said the policy was not directed against minorities, cited a lack of community support Thursday in his statement following a closed-door meeting with the Board of Public Safety.

"I publicly apologize to anyone who was offended by this policy or my accompanying statements," Sabo said.

The policy would have required patrol teams to stop individuals who seemed out of place, request identification and question them.

The report by the team would be recorded in a field interrogation notebook for future reference should a crime be committed in the vicinity where the suspicious person was stopped.

West gets snow

The Associated Press

A storm system over the southern Rockies weakened Friday as it dusted higher elevations of Arizona, New Mexico, southeastern Utah and southern Colorado with snowshowers.

Snow advisories were posted over the mountains of New Mexico and southern Colorado. Accumulations of 5 to 10 inches were expected by Saturday morning over the southern Colorado mountains, where a storm one week earlier dropped up to 28 inches.

Four inches of snow fell overnight at Wolf Creek Pass, Colo., with up to 3 inches reported in the higher elevations of the San Luis Valley and 2 inches at Telluride, Colo.

Showers were scattered over the lower elevations of New Mexico, with drizzle and fog across western and northern Texas. Showers and a few thunderstorms reached from southern Kansas across Oklahoma, western Arkansas, and eastern and southern Texas.

A low pressure system over western Ontario produced snow from eastern North Dakota across northern and central Minnesota and northern Wisconsin into Upper Michigan. Three inches of snow fell during the morning at Duluth, Minn., and in the Tomahawk area of Wisconsin's Lincoln County, while 2 inches of snow fell at Marquette and Eau Claire, Wis.

Elsewhere, a little rain and mountain snow extended across parts of Washington state, northern Oregon and the northern Rockies.

Temperatures at 2 p.m. EST ranged from 10 degrees at Caribou and Limestone, Maine, to 74 degrees at Brownsville and Harlingen, Texas, and Fort Myers, Fla. The low for the day was 2 below zero at Butte, Mont., and Truckee, Calif.

Man sentenced for chewing off police lights

CINCINNATI (AP) — A man who bit off more than he could chew when he stole a police car flashing lights to decorate his bedroom was sentenced Friday to six months in prison, and was ordered to wash the township's police cars.

Billy R. Collins Jr., 22, hopped a fence at the Hamilton County Sheriff's patrol headquarters on June 26, 1986, and removed the blue flashers from two Colerain Township police cars, officers said.

Collins, of suburban Mount Healthy, did not have tools so he chewed off the lights' electrical wires, police said.

His landlord spotted the lights in his bedroom and called police. Hamilton County Common Pleas Judge Richard Niehaus sentenced Collins to six months, but indicated he would release him in a couple of months.

Niehaus also ordered him to wash Colerain Township's police cars once a week for two months after he is released.

Contras accept talks and truce

By Richard Cole
The Associated Press

MIAMI — The Contras have accepted a new round of talks and a two-day Christmas truce in Nicaragua, and are willing to extend the peace indefinitely if the Sandinistas halt their attacks and move toward democracy, a rebel leader said Friday.

Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega had said earlier this week he will honor a request by Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, who is mediating talks between the rebels and the Sandinistas, to stop hostilities Dec. 24-25.

Aristides Sanchez, one of the six directors of the Nicaraguan Resistance, said the rebels are formally called, said Friday in Miami that the rebels are willing to extend the truce indefinitely.

"We accept any cease-fire as long as the physical and moral integrity of our combatants is guaranteed, and the democratization process continues" under the Central American peace plan signed in August, Sanchez said.

He noted that the Contras had originally accepted a two-week Christmas truce proposed by Obando y Bravo, but that was refused by the Sandinistas.

"Every year at Christmas for the last five years we have declared a unilateral cease-fire, but the Sandinistas continued to bomb us," said Sanchez.

The Contras also agreed to a new round of talks in the Dominican Republic.

"We have accepted a third round in the Dominican Republic in the interests of peace," said the director. "But we think the only way to achieve peace is to talk in Nicaragua among Nicaraguans."

Sanchez insisted that the Sandinistas must still prove they are honoring the peace plan, called Esquipulas II, signed by the five Central American presidents in August.

Riot police quell student protests

By Barry Renfrew
The Associated Press

SEOUL, South Korea — Police hurling tear-gas grenades dispersed rioters and arrested 1,600 people Friday in a crackdown on students who headed an opposition call to oppose the government election victory in the streets.

Students battled police with firebombs and rocks in scenes reminiscent of the violent summer, except for the lack of support from bystanders. Frightened pedestrians tried to flee the choking gas.

Squads of riot police in green combat fatigues and black helmets fired volleys of tear gas and charged the fleeing students.

Protesters shook clenched fists and screamed "Invalid election!" and "Down with the military dictatorship!"

Wednesday's vote was the first direct presidential election in 16 years. The government agreed to it after weeks of violent demonstrations in June that eventually were joined by hundreds of thousands of people from the working and middle classes.

Opposition leaders refused to accept the victory of Roh Tae-woo, candidate of President Chun Doo-hwan's government, and claimed the government won by fraud. They called for "a pan-national struggle" to keep Roh from assuming power when Chun's term ends Feb. 25.

The National Election Commission issued formal confirmation Friday of Roh's election. He got 36.6 percent of the vote, followed by opposition candidates Kim Young-sam with 28 percent, Kim Dae-jung with 27 percent and Kim Jong-pil with 8 percent.

Kim Young-sam and Kim Dae-jung had pledged last summer to unite with a single candidacy. Their failure to do that split the opposition vote and enabled Roh to win.

They continued denouncing the election Friday despite growing criticism that they created the defeat by refusing to cooperate.

Both Kims called for nationwide protest against the government, but few people showed support for the students in the streets Friday and police had little trouble dispersing most of them.

Soviets issue stamp to commemorate arms treaty

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union on Friday issued a postage stamp commemorating last week's signing of the superpower treaty to scrap intermediate-range nuclear missiles.

According to the Tass news agency, the stamp depicts the U.S. Capitol, the Kremlin's Spassky Tower and the flags of both nations.

An inscription says: "The treaty on eliminating Soviet and American medium- and shorter-range missiles is the first step toward a nuclear-free world."

Mikhail S. Gorbachev and President Reagan signed the pact during their meeting in Washington to ban nuclear missiles with ranges of from 300 to 3,000 miles.

To go into force, the treaty must be ratified by the U.S. Senate and receive formal approval from the Supreme Soviet, the Soviet Union's nominal parliament.

Maureen Reagan in Africa

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) — Maureen Reagan visited the former slave trading center of Goree Island off the coast of Senegal on Friday.

The daughter of U.S. President Reagan also was to meet with Senegalese President Abdou Diouf, a press spokesman said.

From the 15th century until 1848, Goree Island was a transit point for slaves on their way to the Americas. An old slave fort has been turned into a museum and draws thousands of visitors annually. According to research by French historians, 15 million to 20 million slaves passed through Goree Island.

MacLaine charged in lawsuit

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A publishing company and an author have filed a lawsuit claiming actress Shirley MacLaine stole material she used in her 1983 best-seller "Out On a Limb."

Charles Silva, of Madison, Wis., and Living Waters Publishing and Distributing Inc. of West Bloomfield Township in Oakland County filed suit Thursday in federal court.

The suit charges MacLaine with copyright infringement by allegedly taking material from Silva's 1977 book "Date With the Gods."

Silva, who was born in Peru, also says he is the character "David" in MacLaine's book, who met extraterrestrial beings in Peru and guided MacLaine through the area.

Attorney Anthony A. Muraski, who represents Silva and the publisher, said the suit seeks more than $1 million, but he would not specify an amount.

A spokeswoman for Bantam Books, MacLaine's publisher, said the lawsuit has no basis.

Funds for gallery at Ford site

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A businessman has pledged to donate money to build a historical exhibition gallery near the Gerald R. Ford memorial at the former president's birthsite in Omaha.

James Hanson, director of the Nebraska State Historical Society, said money for the Ford Conservation Center will come from James Paxson of Omaha, who financed the Ford Birthsite and Gardens.

Paxson gave $2 million to the society's foundation several years ago. That has since increased to $2.7 million and Paxson has promised to give an additional $1 million, Hanson said.

The Ford Conservation Center would have an exhibition and meeting room where traveling displays from the society could be shown. It would have a permanent exhibit of memorabilia related to Ford, the only Nebraska-born president.

Ford was born Leslie King Jr. in Omaha on July 14, 1913. His mother later divorced and moved to Michigan, where she remarried. Her new husband adopted her son and changed his name to Gerald Rudolph Ford.

Suit dismissed against Jones

TUSCUMBIA, Ala. (AP) — A judge has dismissed a divorce suit filed against country music singer George Jones by a woman who claimed to be his common-law wife.

A lawyer for Linda Welborn Jones, of Tuscumbia, declined to say whether a monetary award was the basis for the parties' agreement to ask for the dismissal. But, attorney Jimmy Hunt said Thursday, "it was an amicable settlement."

According to the suit dismissed Wednesday by Circuit Judge Inge Johnson, the pair lived together from June 1974 until Jones left her on July 15, 1981, between Jones' separation from country singer Tammy Wynette and his marriage to his current wife, Nancy.

Jones, known for country hits such as "He Stopped Loving Her Today" and "The Race is On," lived in northwest Alabama for several years. He currently lives in Texas.

George Jones' booking agent, Jerry Rivers of Nashville, Tenn., said he was unfamiliar with the lawsuit. Jones' tour manager and publicist did not return telephone calls to their Nashville offices Friday.

Ring may use elderly as couriers

ATLANTA (AP) — Federal agents who arrested a 74-year-old woman on heroin smuggling charges are now trying to determine if an international drug ring is using elderly women as couriers.

Adele Akarri, of Lebanon, was arrested at Hartsfield Atlanta International Airport after getting off a flight from Beirut to Atlanta, through Zurich and Amsterdam.

"If you saw this lady, obviously, you wouldn't take her for a heroin courier," Dale Schuitema, assistant agent in charge of the Drug Enforcement Administration's Atlanta office, said Friday.

But DEA officials said she was carrying a brown suitcase in which they found 1.5 pounds of high-quality heroin, stashed in vacuum-packed coffee bags. It was worth an estimated $2.4 million. "We're trying to determine the source and the ultimate destination," Schuitema said.

A 22-year-old Lebanese man from Boston, Michel Elie Dahrouj, was arrested when he met the woman at the airport. Both were indicted this week by a federal grand jury on four charges of conspiring to import and distribute heroin.

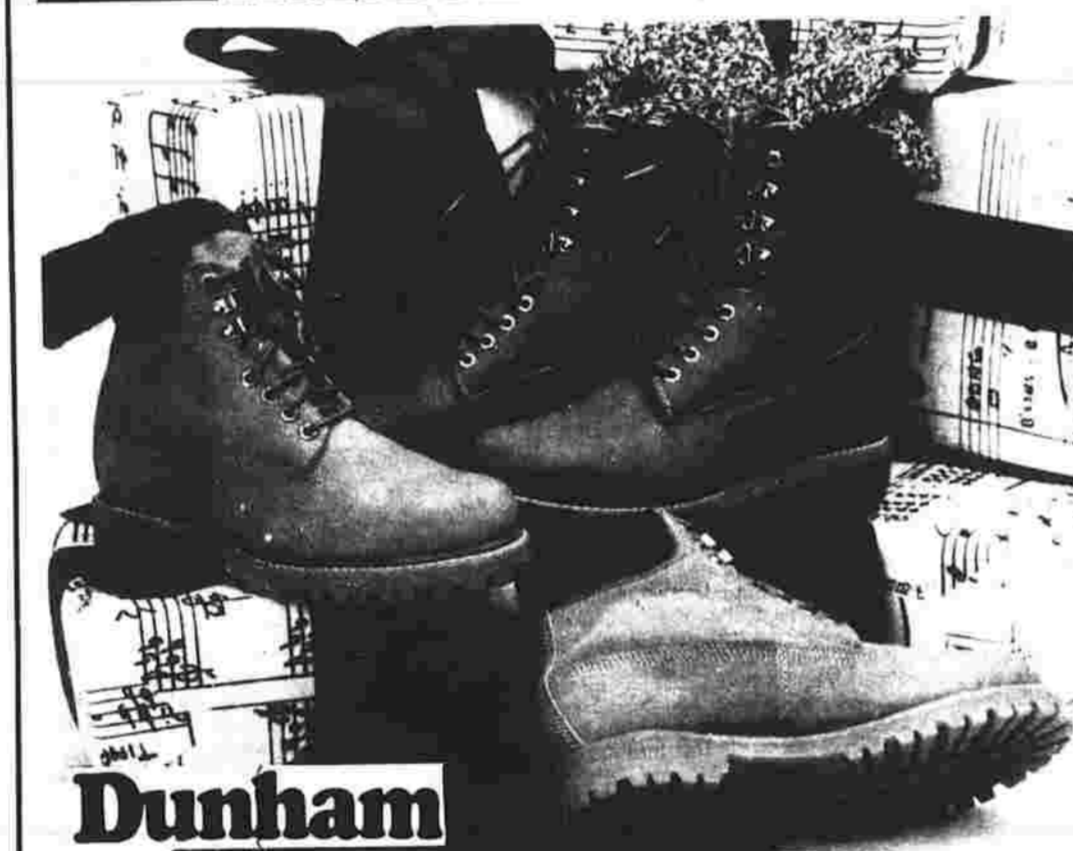

Ms. Akarri's case is "unusual in the age of the lady," Schuitema said. "We do not have an organization identified which is using (just) elderly women. ... This is one of the type couriers they are using."

Schuitema said at least one other elderly woman — although not as old as Ms. Akarri — has been arrested in the United States in a similar case. He declined to elaborate on that case.

Agents with the DEA's federal, state and local drug task force at Hartsfield, acting on a tip from an informant, arrested Ms. Akarri and Dahrouj Dec. 11 as they tried to leave the terminal.

Reprimand voted for Rep. Murphy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted 324-68 today to reprimand Rep. Austin J. Murphy, D-Pa., for four ethics violations, making him the first member to be disciplined in more than three years.

A reprimand was the least severe penalty of the options available to the House. Murphy could have faced censure, loss of seniority or even expulsion.

After the vote, Murphy said, "The fact remains ... that no one has yet come up with how or why two votes were cast for me in 1978," one of the charges against him, or that he had asked someone to vote for him.

Before the vote, Murphy stood defiantly facing his colleagues in the House chamber and, gesturing frequently, presented a count-by-count rebuttal of the charges.

Murphy attacked the process by which the House ethics committee investigated him, determined his guilt and recommended a punishment.

"We have put members of this House in the untenable position of being investigator, of being prosecutor, of being grand juror and then reversing their roles and coming back to be a judge and a jury of the facts," Murphy said.

"No one can change hats that rapidly. No one can change from being an investigator to being a fair juror," he said.

But Rep. James Hansen, R-Utah, termed the evidence "overwhelming," and Rep. John Myers, R-Ind., called on his colleagues to "set aside friendships" and support the reprimand.

Murphy's case stemmed from a report in The Washington Times that said he "flouted" ethics rules. The panel investigated on its own, eventually charging Murphy with one count of placing a "no-show" employee on the payroll of an Education and Labor subcommittee, and one count of diverting House resources such as photocopy equipment and long-distance telephone service to his former law firm.

Murphy was also accused in three counts of having an unidentified colleague vote for him on the House floor while he was out of town, but one count was dropped by the committee for insufficient evidence.

Soviet diplomat will be expelled

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet diplomat being watched by the FBI was caught "red handed" trying to obtain military-usable technology and will be expelled from the country, authorities said Friday.

Mikhail Katkov, a mid-level official at the Soviet mission to the United Nations, was arrested in New York on Thursday and will be deported for "abuse of his privileges of residence," diplomatic jargon for espionage, State Department spokesman Charles E. Redman said.

"It was a red-handed case," said another Reagan administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity. "He was unquestionably involved in espionage and it did not just involve information about the civilian sector. It involved defense-related technology."

Katkov was identified as a second secretary in the mission, which the State Department and Soviet defectors have described in previous years as a haven for spies seeking high technology for Soviet industrial and military operations.

Katkov had been under surveillance and was arrested, but under international rules he cannot be tried because of diplomatic immunity. Instead, he will be expelled from the country, Redman said.

"We take espionage seriously and we pursue these cases whenever they come up; this is another one of them," the spokesman said.

He sought, nonetheless, to minimize the impact the case would have on U.S.-Soviet efforts to move forward on arms control, regional, human rights and bilateral issues after last week's summit between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

"This has nothing to do with the so-called summit spirit," Redman said. "I've tried to make clear that when these cases arise we deal with them firmly and forcefully. That's what we've done in this case. He was apprehended yesterday. He's being expelled."

Jurors ask to review agreement

NEW YORK (AP) — Jurors in the trial of four white youths charged with attacking three black men in predominantly white Howard Beach asked Friday to see again the plea-bargain agreement of the prosecution's chief witness.

In their ninth day of deliberations, the jurors also asked for a reading of testimony by a police officer who interviewed one of the defendants the day of his arrest.

The jury suspended its debate early Friday to allow for Jewish religious observances. It was scheduled to resume Saturday.

As the defendants were hustled from the courthouse by court officers, a half-dozen blacks taunted them with shouts of "murderers." The sisters of defendant Michael Piron swapped obscenities with the spectators.

In the statement from the police officer, defendant Scott Kern was quoted as saying he saw Robert Riley wielding a bat during the attack and another youth striking a black man with a tree limb, but insisted that he never attacked anyone.

Riley, 18, had been charged with murder in the case but agreed to cooperate with prosecutors in exchange for a reduced charge of assault. He took the stand as the star government witness, and testified that Kern had the baseball bat initially, but that Riley snatched it away from him.

Riley's plea bargain agreement was the first piece of evidence that the jurors asked to see after they began deliberation Dec. 10.

On Thursday, jurors had asked to hear a statement by Kern's codefendant, Michael Piron. It was speculated that they may be considering the charges against each defendant one by one and weighing their credibility against Riley's.

—Stock speculator Ivan F. Boesky was sentenced to three years in prison for his guilty plea in the insider trading scandal that stunned the financial world. Despite pleas for leniency and Boesky's cooperation with investigators, U.S. District Judge Morris E. Lasker told Boesky his offense "cannot go unpunished." Earlier in the week, David S. Ruder, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, said further government action on a complex web of insider trading cases was still months away.

—According to economic reports released during the week:

—Consumer prices rose a moderate 0.3 percent in November as energy prices moved upward after two months of declines.

—Consumer spending increased 0.5 percent in November, a healthy gain despite the jolt from the stock market crash. But personal income dropped 0.4 percent during the month.

—In an upward revision of earlier estimates, the U.S. economy expanded at a robust annual rate of 4.3 percent immediately before the October stock market collapse.

—The government's broadest measure of U.S. foreign trade showed the deficit widened to a record $43.4 billion during the summer.

—The output in the industrial sector climbed a healthy 0.4 percent in November, reflecting strong gains by U.S. factories despite the October collapse of the stock market. At the same time, U.S. factories, mines and utilities operated at 81.7 percent of capacity in November, the fastest pace since mid-1984.

—Business inventories climbed 0.8 percent in October, the biggest rise in five months, while sales dropped 0.1 percent.

—Housing construction shot up 7.5 percent in November, the best increase in almost a year, as a sharp decline in mortgage rates overwhelmed jitters about the stock market collapse.

Market near the end of 'mixed' year

By Chet Currier
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Thanks to its rally of the past two weeks, the stock market has a good shot at closing out 1987 with a net gain despite the crash in October.

With eight trading days left before New Year's, both the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials and Standard & Poor's composite index of 500 stocks stand above their levels of last Dec. 31.

Other, broader market measures that include small stocks remain mostly on the minus side, however.

That raises the ironic prospect that a year marked by both a powerful rally and the severest selloff in modern times might someday be recalled as simply "mixed."

The point may seem academic to anyone who has held stocks or mutual fund shares through the wrenching swings of the past few months. Still, it helps provide a longer-term perspective on what has happened.

If the S&P 500 finishes the year on the plus side, it would be the index's sixth consecutive annual gain, setting a record that would mark one last achievement for the bull market that evidently expired last summer.

The presumption is that a new bear market, of unknown duration and ferocity, set in as of last August.

"I do not believe that we have, as yet, adequate grounds to believe the stock market decline is over," John Wright, a Bridgeport, Conn.-based money manager, said in a speech to analysts in New York this past week.

After the market works out whatever problems still face it, however, Wright foresees a new advance starting later in 1988 that would carry the market to new highs by 1990.

"Cyclical declines in equities generally do not bottom until the economy is in recession and U.S. consumption is weakening," said Charles Clough, chief investment strategist at Merrill Lynch.

Even if it was enjoying nothing more than a "bear market rally," the stock market put on an upbeat show in the past week.

The Dow Jones industrial average climbed 108.26 points to 1,975.30, surpassing the previous record weekly jump of 100.30 points the week before.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index rose 7.35 to 139.15; the American Stock Exchange market value index increased 4.92 to 256.10, and the NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market jumped 24.34 to 326.91.

Volume on the Big Board averaged 212.90 million shares a day, up from 189.21 million in the previous week.

Many analysts say it is unreasonable to expect confidence to recover quickly after a harrowing experience like the crash in October.

Resolutions nixed

BRANFORD (AP) — Echlin Inc. has announced its opposition to shareholders' resolutions urging the company to examine its manufacturing of asbestos.

The resolutions were submitted two months ago by the Echlin Independent Shareholders' Committee, formed by two unions that jointly own 80,000 shares of common stock. The company has 55.4 million shares outstanding.

Echlin officials said in a news release mailed to financial analysts and investors that one of the unions—the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union—is trying to coerce the company into recognizing it as a bargaining agent for employees at Echlin subsidiaries in Lawrence, Mass., and Fredericksburg, Va.

In a related move Wednesday, the shareholders' committee filed a complaint against Branford-based Echlin with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington, D.C., charging the company with wrongly distributing materials to shareholders without first submitting them to the SEC for review.

"What the company has done is threaten the integrity of the shareholder process," said William Patterson, a spokesman for the clothing and textile workers union.

Paul R. Ryder, Echlin's director of investor relations, denied the committee's charge.

Consumer spending, prices up slightly

By Tom Raum
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Consumer spending rose a moderate 0.5 percent and consumer prices edged up 0.3 percent in November, the government said Friday in reports suggesting the October stock market collapse had little immediate impact on the marketplace.

The increase in the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index followed a 0.4 percent increase in October. It brought inflation for 1987, with just one month to go, to an annual rate of 4.7 percent.

That's more than four times the minuscule 1.1 percent increase of 1986 but still in the range considered moderate by most economists.

And, the 1987 level is far below the double-digit inflation of 1979-1980. Economists said the recent tumble in oil prices should keep inflation well under control into early 1988 — despite expected higher prices due to declines in the value of the dollar, which makes imported goods more expensive.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department reported that consumer spending increased 0.5 percent in November, the first full month since the Oct. 19 stock market plunge.

The rise followed declines of 0.2 percent in September and October and was the largest increase since a 1.5 percent rise in August.

"I expect consumer spending to be sluggish in December. But, overall, we're looking for a consumer who is a little more cautious but who is not afraid to spend money," said David Wyss, chief financial economist with Data Resources Inc., a private forecasting firm based in Lexington, Mass.

The Commerce Department also reported that personal income fell 0.4 percent in November, its steepest plunge in 15 years. But that decline was due entirely to a drop in farm subsidy payments. Without the swing in farm incomes, personal income would have risen 0.7 percent in November.

The combined data from Friday's reports provided further evidence that the stock market collapse had not yet rippled through the rest of the economy, at least through November, most analysts suggested.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater hailed the report on consumer prices, noting that it followed a report that wholesale prices had remained steady in November.

"These reports demonstrate that the rate of inflation remains under control, despite the increases experienced at the beginning of the year," Fitzwater said. The rise in the Consumer Price Index included a 0.8 percent jump in energy costs.

U.S. OKs joint copter program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon notified Congress on Friday it had approved a joint development program with Israel that will lead to production of a new Night Targeting System for AH-1 Cobra helicopter gunships.

Assuming there are no congressional objections, the Pentagon said Israel would bear one-third of the cost of the program — or $82 million — while the United States would pay for the remaining two-thirds or $124 million.

The contractual agreement calls for joint development and co-production of the new air-to-ground targeting system, with 40 of the devices ultimately to be built for Israel and 80 for the U.S. Marine Corps.

Want to buy a jail?

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — For the man or the woman who has everything: How about a jail?

The 16-acre site in downtown Richmond which has housed the Virginia State Penitentiary since 1797 is for sale. The site is overlooking the James River. The property is being sold "as is," with delivery of possession expected by July 1, 1990. By then, two new state prisons are to have opened in other parts of Virginia.

The prime contractor will be TAMAM Precision Instruments Industries, a division of Israeli Aircraft Industries Ltd. of Yahud, Israel, the Pentagon added. "This Night Targeting System will allow the Israel Air Force AH-1S Cobra helicopters to attack targets at night and in smoke or haze," the Pentagon said in a statement. "Similar benefits will be available for U.S. Marine Corps AH-1W attack helicopters. The Pentagon said the U.S. Navy would have responsibility for overseeing the program.

'Hartbreak Hotel'

Just hours after Gary Hart announced he was re-entering the 1988 race for the Democratic presidential nomination, the Capitol Steps, a musical political satire troupe of current and former congressional staff members who both write and perform their songs, released two new songs.

The first, "Hartbreak Hotel," is sung to the tune of "To All the Girls I Loved Before," and the second, "Hart Stopper," is performed to the tune of the song "Reviewing the Situation" from Oliver.

"Hartbreak Hotel" is sung in parts by different members of the Capitol Steps, but the lyrics go like this:

Gary: "To all the girls I've loved before
 Donna: To act just like Kennedy
 Gary: With girls I have a knack
 Donna: The press will get your back
 Gary: They never picked on Jack before."
 Woman: "Now Gary dear, about last night right after you turned out the light...
 Gary: I never met you in my life
 Woman: But Gary, I'm your wife You've done this once
 Donna: Or twice before."

The press release issued by the Capitol Steps about the new songs says: "This is one small step for Gary, one giant leap for political satire."

The Capitol Steps has five record albums, including a new Christmas release, "Ronald the Red-Faced Reagan."

'Gorby Gorbachev'

It's been a very busy season for the Capitol Steps, what with Christmas, the Reagan-Gorbachev summit, Gary Hart and all.

But the popular Washington musical group had some fun with Gorbachev's visit to the nation's capital. "The Gorbachevs are dangerous to ... to the nation's funnybone," the Capitol Steps said in a press release announcing their Soviet repertoire.

"Gorby Gorbachev," sung to the tune of "Bad, Bad Leroy Brown," tickled more than a few funnybones in Washington. The song goes like this:

"On the south side of the Kremlin
 Down along by Leni's tomb
 There's a guy who's young
 Upwardly mobile
 And so precisely groomed
 He's got a custom razor haircut
 He's got an Izod sweater too
 When he met Maggie Thatcher
 She loved his Gucci shoe
 He is Gorby Gorbachev
 Hottest red since Andropov
 The leader you've been readin' of
 He is the world's first yuppie Slav."

Can you marry the v.p.?

Wives may be playing an active role in presidential campaigns, but it seems that none of them — including former Transportation Secretary Elizabeth H. Dole — could end up with an official position if their husbands were elected.

Congress passed a law barring a president from appointing any family member to a government post in 1967, after John F. Kennedy appointed his brother, Robert, Attorney General.

Someone stole their tree

To the Editor:

This is to the low life that stole my 4-year-old son's Christmas Tree at 30 Edward St. Friday night, Dec. 11.

I am a single parent on a tight budget. The tree you stole from us cost me $35. The replacement tree cost $25 thanks to a nice man at Agway.

My son and I hope you, have A Merry Christmas. And, oh yes; one thing I know for sure, when my son is older, he'll never steal a Christmas Tree!

Special honor for Maureen

To the Editor:

At this time of year when the celebration of Christmas should revolve around our Saviour Jesus Christ, we find so much commercialism. Almost every so-called "Christmas Special" on television promotes only the "spirit" of the season, seldom with the mention of the name Jesus. The shut-ins and lonely only give birth to impatience, anger, and thoughts of loan payments and making ends meet.

Amid all the "rubble" spawned by the Christmas season, we are glad to say there are some who share the real reason behind Christmas. Our church recently received refreshing news concerning one of our Sunday School children, 10-year-old Maureen Sullivan, in whom has been imparted the love, caring, and beauty of Christian, (Christ-like) character by being taught Jesus Christ both at home and church.

Maureen, from South Windsor, received a letter from Orville C. Rowley, principal of Pleasant Valley School, who selected her from approximately 600 students, to answer Sen. John B. Larson's invitation to the State Capitol Building Dec. 8 to be part of a commemorative ceremony marking the 399th anniversary of the hiding of the Connecticut Charter in the Charter Oak and the 350th anniversary of the Connecticut Legislature. Her parents are proud, as they should be, to receive this honor and we at our church feel equally honored that they credit part of this to us.

We would like to share a quote from Principal Orville C. Rowley's letter, to show that during this season, there are those who still believe in and celebrate the reason behind the Christmas "spirit," not only now, but all year long.

"Dear Maureen, I have selected you to represent our school because you display many wonderful traits that make you a very special young lady. You are not only a fine student, but you are a truly caring individual who always has a smile and a kind gesture or word for others. You have established high standards for yourself and live up to them. You would make our founding fathers proud and they can rest peacefully knowing that young people of your caliber are ready and able to lift the light of liberty, learning, and care for others. "I am looking forward to this special day and must again say how proud I am to be able to count you to the State Capitol."

Congratulations Maureen!

The U.S. Navy operates with childlike trust

WASHINGTON

— Imagine if your banker's computer was so messed up that he had to rely on customers to keep track of their own accounts. Fraud would be as easy as balancing a checkbook.

Yet the Navy is doing something as foolish — relying on repair shops to keep track of expensive ship parts it sends out to be fixed. The Navy's naive system scares Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, and congressional investigators who are probing how the Pentagon takes inventory and how a repair shop could take advantage of that.

If you take your car to the shop for repairs, you expect to get it back, fixed. But, what if you managed a company auto fleet with several hundred cars needing tune-ups? Would you deliver the cars to the shop without counting them and ask the mechanic to count them for you?

The Navy operates with that childlike trust even in a time when Congress is unearthing the largest military contractor ripoffs of the century.

A June 1985 letter obtained by our associate Stewart Harris shows just how vulnerable the Navy has become.

The letter, from the Navy Ships Parts Control Center in Mechanicsburg, Pa., asks a contractor to keep tabs on ship parts repairs because Navy computers cannot. It proposes that Navy officials will call the contractor "on a weekly/monthly basis and ask for information concerning movement of our repairable components. Our operators will simply enter this information into the computer."

Glenn lambasted Pentagon officials for their sloppy record-keeping at the first of an ongoing series of hearings on military inventory practices last month. "What if somebody in the receiving department of that company says, 'OK I see an opportunity for a little private entrepreneurship,' and he takes 50 instruments out of a batch of 500 that are coming in?" Glenn asked.

No problem, defense officials replied. They audit the repair shops periodically and the shops would not be trusted if they did not pass the military's strict accounting standards.

But Glenn's investigators believe someone was smitten with the entrepreneurial spirit. The Navy recently compared its own books with the information it was getting from the shops and had to write off a $464 million loss.

No problem. The Navy told us it was just 15 years' worth of accounting errors. A spokesperson said Navy record keepers went back through the books and figured out it wasn't really missing all that equipment. Surprise. The auditors found that the books balanced just as the repair shops had reported.

While the Navy is having trouble keeping track of its broken parts, the Air Force is busy ordering $600 million in excess equipment.

Glenn's investigators found there is no need for the extra aircraft electronic parts, but the Air Force told us it plans to take delivery on the equipment anyway.

Why? Because the Air Force may need the material in the future. It was ordered when the Air Force had rosy predictions about how many aircraft (including B-1B supersonic bomber) it would be toying with. Those projections never panned out and the Air Force was left holding the bag.

The parts are classified as "excess" — the final classification for stockpiled material before it is sold as surplus. But an Air Force spokesman told us the "excess" tag is an exaggeration and that it would be cheaper to honor the contracts now and store the material than to shop for it again in the future.

"That's cutting the bologna pretty thin," says a hardnosed investigator for Glenn.

Shop around

The Farmers Home Administration pays more than $1 million a year to keep its computers in working condition. An audit of the FmHA shows that those maintenance contracts are not routinely analyzed to see if the agency is getting the best price. Auditors from the Department of Agriculture examined 22 maintenance contracts and found that none of them had been reviewed to see if they were cost effective. The FmHA, according to the audit, was planning to extend a $200,000 contract on one computer system without a cost analysis. The auditors showed how the FmHA could have saved nearly $300,000 by shopping around for all of its contracts.

Mandatory insurance

Big business and small business are pitted against each other in the late debate over health insurance. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., has introduced a bill to force employers to provide basic health insurance for their workers. Small businesses say they can't afford it. But big businesses are backing the idea. They already insure their employees and they claim they are indirectly paying for the 37 million Americans who have no health insurance. The big companies say that hospitals charge the paying customers more to cover the debts of uninsured patients.

The feminization of power

By Chuck Stone

Just before Colorado's gift to American politics, Rep. Pat Schroeder, withdrew as a Democratic candidate for president, I toyed with the wicked notion that had she stayed in the race, it could have been dubbed "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

The jest should not obscure a treasured reality. Schroeder still reigns as one of the brainiest and brightest stars in America's political constellation.

But we've been reduced to six candidates in both parties, and voters are cartwheeling with about as much enthusiasm as a North Pole Eskimo buying an air-conditioned igloo with an automatic ice-maker. Maybe the absence of a woman candidate partially explains the televised torpidity of the remaining Tweedledees and Tweedledums.

Whatever the reason, the bipartisan "Dirty Dozen" (who are giving the movie of the same name a bad rap) painfully demonstrate the need for "The Feminization of Power." And that's the name of a new movement that has targeted 14 states in an attempt to increase the number of elected women officials.

"We're fed up with voting for the lesser of two evils," Eleanor Cutiri Smeal declared at the founding convention of the Fund for the Feminist Majority. "We're not going to beg for our rights anymore, but go in there and vote in our rights!"

Maybe I'm a feminist, because as I watched a video of her impassioned eloquence, I wanted to stand up and shout, "Tell it, sister!"

An explanation in the Fund's organizing letter is particularly inspiring: "The Fund is not a membership organization: You can't join the Feminist Majority — you are the feminist majority."

Smeal could have been re-elected easily to a third term as president of the National Organization of Women. But the Reagan administration's "sleeze factor" radicalized her. Citing seven dismal years of Reagan "relentlessly unraveling the gains of the past 60 years of civil rights and women's rights," as well as the Iran-Contra scandal, "a secret government of arms dealers and drug traders," the closing of plants, the busting of unions, the shrinking of the middle class, and the increasing numbers of homeless on our streets, Smeal offers more women in elected office as a moral corrective.

"When the 101st Congress convenes in 1989, we want at least half the new members to the feminist women (my emphasis) double to triple the current number of women in Congress," explains Smeal.

Start with five simple statistics and try to reconcile them as a ratio for justice. Women make up 54 percent of the population. But women comprise only 15.6 percent of the state legislators, 4.9 percent of the House of Representatives, 2 percent of the Senate, and 4 percent of state governors.

At the present rate of growth, congressional parity won't be achieved until the year 2120. A change is long overdue, and America can start by amending Aristotle's 2,000-year-old arrogant error, "Man is by nature a political animal," to read "Man and woman."

Note the Fund's goal to elect feminist women. There is a difference. All women don't embrace the 13-point National Feminist Agenda: Equality; Reproductive freedom; Peace and disarmament; Civil rights; Lesbian and gay rights; Economic justice; Homemakers' rights; Elimination of poverty; Rights of the disabled; Human services; Elimination of violence; Preservation of the environment; Support for the arts and humanities, and fairness in the media.

The Fund for the Feminist Majority is far too modest. There is a national humanitarian agenda. If you want more information about the Fund, write to its headquarters at 8105 W. 3rd St., Los Angeles, CA 90048.

In the meantime, good luck, sisters.

Chess title game adjourned

By David Goodman
The Associated Press

SEVILLE, Spain — Garri Kasparov fought to save his World Chess title on Friday, choosing a less-aggressive opening in the final game of his match with the methodical Anatoly Karpov, who needs only a draw to recapture the championship.

The title contest between two Soviets, who are so different in their styles of play, was adjourned until Saturday when Kasparov, playing white, sealed his 42nd move. Kasparov holds a one-pawn advantage heading into the endgame.

Kasparov surprised chess experts by choosing the quieter Reti opening. Rather than risk an aggressive attack, he aimed for a long war of attrition to build an advantage with the white pieces. He ended up with a queen, a bishop and four pawns to Karpov's queen, knight and three pawns.

Friday's calm opening contrasted sharply with the dramatic way the 23rd game ended Thursday, with Karpov's dazzling victory over a self-destructing Kasparov to take a 12-11 edge in the series. The game left both players in tears following the emotional match.

If Karpov wins or draws the game, he will regain the title he lost to Kasparov in 1985 and hold it for the next three years. If Kasparov wins, the match would be tied at 12 points apiece, and he would retain his title under match rules.

Large crowds showed their appreciation for the players, mobbing them as they arrived at the baroque Lope de Vega theater in separate cars accompanied by police escorts. They pushed their way toward their entrance doors, which were marked, respectively, with a black pawn and a white pawn.

Kasparov, 24, received the louder ovation, punctuated with cheers as he emerged from his car. Before entering the theater, he turned to acknowledge his fans. Karpov arrived several minutes later.

Karpov's wife, Natasha, sat in the audience. Kasparov's mother Kiara was not present.

On Thursday, the 36-year-old Karpov, who held the title for 10 years until he lost to Kasparov in November 1985, was overcome with emotion — jubilation, relief, or a combination of sentiments — after the game ended.

"As he left the hall, his eyes were red. He looked as though he had been crying," said Leontxo Garcia, a commentator for the nightly chess programs on Spanish national television.

The display of emotion was rare for Karpov, who has a reputation of being a cool, methodical and unflappable player.

Kasparov is clearly the more emotional of the two, and he showed his feelings when he buried his face in his hands after the pivotal 51st move in the wild, kamikaze attack on Thursday. He was seen crying onto the shoulder of an assistant after his loss Thursday, according to Spain's leading daily El Pais.

Kasparov's play in the second half of the Seville showdown has been widely criticized by grandmasters.

Following a blunder by Karpov in the 11th game, Kasparov took a 6-5 lead. But he played passively in the next games, allowing Karpov to recover his psychological equilibrium.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
 by Eugene Brewer

For years we have been exposed to fantasies of science-fiction writers dealing with space travel and interstellar wars. Imaginative stories of visits by beings from other planets have proliferated since the arrival of space travel by man.

But of infinitely greater significance is the historical fact that God visited this world nearly two thousand years ago. No visionary dream, this. Rather a fact, subjected to the canons of historical evidence. In the words of C. S. Lewis: "God has landed on this enemy-occupied world in human form. You might say landed in disguise."

Men ignore it at best, scoff at it at worst. Yet in this divine visitation lies man's only hope. When it occurred is of little importance. That in it God overthrew and bound the enemy and so led captivity captive is of tremendous significance. Believe it and live — this is the Good News!

Pets' skin disorders take lot of vets' time

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — A recent survey of 1,000 veterinarians found that a third to a half of a vet's day is devoted solely to diagnosing and treating skin disorders.

In addition, it found that skin disorders have increased 70 percent in dogs and 64 percent in cats over the last five years. Poor grooming practices were cited as a major cause of pet skin care problems.

The survey for Sulfodene-Scatchex Pet Skin Care Center reported the average veterinarian bill for treatment of a canine skin disorder came to $42 a visit.

20-year-old loses custody of 5 brothers

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Terry O'Kelley's effort to keep his six brothers together after the deaths of their mother and grandfather seemed to have failed with a judge ordering the five youngest returned to the custody of social workers.

But 20-year-old O'Kelley said Friday he isn't giving up.

"All I know to do is just take this time now and just try to build a better foundation," he said. "When I do go back to court it'll be to adopt my brothers. I've been in court now about eight or 10 times, and every time it's a different thing."

Hall County Juvenile Court Judge Bill House issued his order Thursday, seven months after he agreed to give O'Kelley custody of all six brothers. House said he sympathized with O'Kelley's feelings, but noted that two of the brothers had moved out on their own in recent months.

"The goal of this court as well as the entire community is to see this family reunited," the judge told O'Kelley. "Unfortunately, this family is not together ..."

"I understand what you've been through and the pressures you've had on you. ... Now it is time for some changes ..."

O'Kelley's attorney, Robert Chandler, said Terry found it difficult to devote his attention to the younger boys and work at the same time. But he said the oldest brother has done a good job of providing for his siblings.

"There's no indication they're not being fed, clothed or sheltered," Chandler said. "The court's actions were very specifically noted as not being an assessment of failure on anybody's part."

The brothers were left on their own in 1985 after the death of their grandfather, with whom they had been living. Their mother died in 1983 and their father had abandoned them.

O'Kelley, then 18, tried to keep the family together, but their mobile home burned and financial problems forced him to put the four youngest boys into foster care.

Residents of Hall County donated money and supplies to help build a four-bedroom home for the boys near rural Gillsville, and Terry went to work to support his brothers.

Their story attracted national attention, including praise from President Reagan, and donations poured in for a trust fund. They even signed a contract for a movie about their lives, but no film has been made.

O'Kelley's efforts were rewarded in May when House awarded him custody of the two youngest brothers, 12-year-old Michael and 9-year-old Jason. He had won custody of Tommy, now 18, Charles, 17, David, 16, and Jeffrey, 15, last December.

Although most of this week's court hearing was closed to the public, the judge's statements indicated they were having trouble living under one roof. Tommy, who is no longer a minor, moved out several months ago and Charles has since moved in with him.

O'Kelley said the older boys didn't want to obey him because they were so close in age. "They moved away from home because they don't want to follow the rules," he said.

Jeffrey and David have been living with him. The judge said Michael and Jason have been living in a foster home in Rome, although O'Kelley described it Friday as a school.

House placed Charles, Jeffrey, David, Michael and Jason in the custody of the Hall County Department of Family and Children Services. However, while he recommended that Michael and Jason stay in Rome, he said he has no objection to the other three living with O'Kelley if they wish.

The judge said social workers would continue to monitor the situation and he would reconsider his order in six months.

Eddie Benton, the attorney representing the minor O'Kelley brothers, said he agrees with the judge's decision. "I think the boys all can accept the judge's order is the safest route to assure stability," he said.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Her humor not very amusing

DEAR ABBY: Our small office group (seven) recently took up a collection of bets and played paycheck poker. The person with the best poker hand among his paycheck's six digits wins the pool.

I held the winning check stub (three 5s) and went to the gal who had collected the bets to show her my winning numbers. She checked them out, and then in the center of the office floor proceeded to flip seven $1 bills around her feet, saying in a voice for all to hear that the winner must pick up the bills and collect the money for the next payday pool. I was appalled and told her I felt humiliated. She said, "Think what it's doing for your waitline." (No one laughed.)

I went over to her desk later in the afternoon (after building up some steam) and told her how upset I was. She said it was a joke. Later I heard her telling others (ha ha) that she was surprised I should be upset over the "fun."

The next morning I returned everyone's money, saying that I would not be participating in any future pools and couldn't, therefore, accept my winnings. To the "lady" in question, I placed the $1 bill on her desk (not on the floor as many people had suggested) and told her I thought what she did was sadistic and unfunny.

Is something wrong with my sense of humor?
NOT LAUGHING
IN PHOENIX, ARIZ.

DEAR NOT: No, I think something is wrong with hers.

DEAR ABBY: You are not going to believe this, but I haven't been to visit my mother for four years. She lives 1,000 miles away, but that's not the reason. My mother has a cat, and I have a wife and daughter who are both allergic to cats to a point that they literally choke when they enter a house where a cat lives. Their allergist says there is no cure for this type of allergy.

It's not reasonable to ask my mother to get rid of her cat so we can visit her annually. And it wouldn't be much of a visit if I went alone and left my family home. Help!

ONTARIO

DEAR ONTARIO: It's not necessary for your mother to get rid of her cat permanently. She could arrange to have someone keep her cat once a year while you and your family visit her. Or she could come to visit you, and leave her cat home — which, I think, is the purr-fect solution.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter just turned 5 years old. Several times now, I have noticed that while playing or in some activity, when she turns her head a certain way she suddenly screams with pain, indicating that she must feel a very sharp pain in her head.

I have asked her pediatrician twice about it, and both times he said it was nothing to worry about.

I am worried. What could cause it? That child screams out in pain and cries. Isn't there anything that can be done to prevent this from happening? With access to your experts, you might be able to come up with some answers.

TROUBLED MOTHER IN N.C.

DEAR MOTHER: Please have your child examined by a neurologist immediately. The sharp pain she feels is a symptom that there is something wrong. Furthermore, a pediatrician who would tell a mother "not to worry" without ordering some tests to determine why her child screams in pain, would never see my child in his office again.

People are healthier not sicker

DEAR DR. GOTT: In our area, it seems people are getting sicker in the winter and staying sicker longer than they did in the past, with more severe illnesses. My husband is a pharmacist, and our theory is that the popularity of drugs to lessen symptoms is weakening the body's natural immunity. Do you have any theories about this?

DEAR READER: All I really have is theories. People are living longer and closer to each other and are more likely to ask for help than in the past. Many past illnesses — such as diphtheria, malaria, polio and hypertension — were more severe and caused early death. Now these diseases, and others like them, have been tamed. Therefore, people are more likely to suffer inconsequential ailments, such as flu, and a host of other afflictions that come with age. These folks are also more likely to ask a pharmacist for medicine than they would have years ago, when many families depended on folk remedies and home brews.

Your perception that more people are getting sick for longer periods may be in error. There are more people today, hence, more illness. Actually, most people are leading healthier, longer lives than ever before in history.

Unquestionably, drugs do have the potential to alter the body's immunity. Perhaps, as you suggest, this is a factor. However, my impression is that medicine is not the cause of the phenomenon you describe. I should add the obvious caveat: Drugs are not necessarily the answer to good health; we take too many and probably would be better off if we popped fewer pills.

Dr. Gott
Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Suddenly I developed DeQuervain's disease in both wrists. Two doctors have confirmed the diagnosis. Is surgery the only cure?

DEAR READER: This disease is the painful inflammation of the tendons that move the thumb. The tendon covering becomes narrowed and causes irritation of the tendon within it. Although anti-inflammatory drugs, such as aspirin, are sometimes useful in relieving symptoms, surgical release of the constricting tendon sheath is the preferred treatment. The operation is not difficult and can be performed by most qualified orthopedic surgeons.

DEAR DR. GOTT: When our son was in the Navy, he had 16 teeth filled. He developed symptoms of multiple sclerosis. Recently he had them replaced with non-mercury fillings and has improved, but he has colitis, is weak and has blood in his urine and stool. How can he get rid of the mercury in his system?

DEAR READER: Although some dentists believe that amalgam fillings made with mercury can cause mercury poisoning, the American Dental Association has not endorsed this view. Neurological disorders, including multiple sclerosis, are common in adults and, I am told by my dental consultants, no reputable studies have proven a relation between these diseases and tooth fillings. Before dentists take pen in hand to write complaints to me, I reiterate that I'm not a dentist. This issue of mercury poisoning from fillings is being studied, but, so far, the ADA has promulgated guidelines only for the handling of mercury by dental personnel.

If you believe that your son has mercury poisoning, I suggest that he undergo a complete physical examination, including urine-and-blood mercury levels. Depending on the results, chelation treatment may be indicated.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My mom has tennis elbow. The doctors have given her cortisone shots but her arm still hurts constantly. She's tried using a heating pad, but that hasn't helped, either. What can she do?

DEAR READER: Tennis elbow is known medically as lateral humeral epicondylitis, an inflammation of the area where the elbow bones articulate. It is due to overuse (or misuse) of the elbow joint. It can be treated with anti-inflammatory pills (such as Ruzalodin and Indocin) or with cortisone shots. Rest is vital. In difficult cases, physiotherapy (using heat, exercises and ultrasound) is usually successful.

If your mother's elbow continues to hurt her, I suggest that she ask her doctor for a referral to an orthopedic specialist, who will be able to offer her suggestions and supervise a program in physiotherapy.

Annual Christmas Carol Sing is Sunday

The "wonder" filled story of the coming of Love into the world set the scene for our annual Community Christmas Carol Sing Sunday night. As we gather together to hear the telling of the Christmas story, we will take the part of the "heavenly choirs" singing the traditional carols which welcome the birth of the Christ Child.

Come celebrate Christmas with us. The Salvationists and members of Second Congregational Church have once again planned a Christmas event for the whole family. The gathering in Center Park near Mary Cheney Library will begin at 6 p.m. (plenty of time to have the little ones home in time for a hot bath and regular bed time.)

Wrap up warmly and bring a flashlight. The Salvation Army Band and the choir from Second Congregational will provide both the music sheets and musical setting.

After the Carol Sing, you are all invited across the street to the Salvation Army Citadel for hot chocolate, coffee and coffee cake.

Toy Reminder

A reminder to Manchester and Bolton parents that the Toys for Joy disbursement at St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Church Street door, is open from 9 a.m. until noon today to parents having difficulty providing for their children this Christmas. You are warmly invited to select one major gift from the new or good as new used toys donated by the community, plus several stocking stuffers for each of your children. The disbursement is for parents only.

Please bring a bag (or bags) with you and proof of residency. MACC volunteers will be available to help you with your selection.

Perishables

— Those of you who are baking or donating perishable foods to top off the

MACC News

Christmas food baskets are reminded that the deadline for the delivery of perishable foods is between 8 a.m. and 9 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 22, at the rear of Concordia Lutheran, 40 Pitkin St. Basket deliveries start at 10 a.m.

Christmas baskets

We've already had 361 households (unduplicated count) referred for Christmas food baskets by Manchester and Bolton teachers, social workers and public health nurses. The response from the community has been overwhelming. Our local churches have adopted 212 families for Christmas giving. Our thanks to St. Bartholomew, who are adopting 50 families, to Center Congregational, Concordia Lutheran, St. James, South United Methodist, Community Baptist, St. Mary's Episcopal, Trinity Covenant, The Salvation Army, First Baptist, Second Congregational, North United Methodist, United Pentecostal.

Our young people have also been magnificent givers. Students at East Catholic High School have "adopted" 25 families and are providing food baskets and gifts for each member of their families, to students of Assumption Junior High and Buckley Elementary, Martin Elementary, to Brownie Troop 645 and Brownie Troop 602 and Girl Scout Troop 603, to Boy Scout Troop 123, to Nancy Pappas' Brownie Troop, to Manchester Assembly No. 15, International Order of Rainbow Girls, and the French Club at Bolton High School.

Local organizations who have adopted families include Manchester Grange, combined firefighters of Manchester, Eighth District Firehouse, Manchester Emblem Club No. 251, Home England

Bowling League, Satya Said Baba Service Organization, and the Manchester Memorial Hospital Nursing office.

Local business groups who have adopted households include employees at J.C. Penney's who adopted 50 families, employees at K-Mart, the Telephone Pioneers, Cigna Insurance Group MMI, Cigna Insurance Group FAS, Connecticut Mutual Life, employees at South Building Manchester Convalescent Home IRS Hartford office.

Individuals who have adopted families include Arline Brown, Rita Davidson and sister, Edna Harris and Eleanor Brook, Deborah Duff, Bob and Jane Durato, Barbara and Clint Greene, Julie Marinelli, Joan Morra, Janice Pierre, Cathy Trall.

Operation safe holiday

— MACC joins the National Council on Alcoholism and the Center for Science in the Public Interest in sponsoring Operation Safe Holiday, which promotes the drinking of non-alcoholic beverages at office parties and other holiday gatherings. Enjoy and celebrate friendships, arrive home safely and look forward to a new year.

Christmas sparkles

— The Perennial Planters Garden Club of Manchester has opted to donate 40 poinsettias to our neighbors in convalescent homes. It's a wonderful idea instead of their traditional ornament exchange.

Students at Iling Junior High School are going all out this year to share their Christmas. The students raised $500 to purchase gifts for the Toys for Joy disbursement at their Christmas Dance. Members of the Student Council then came in after school on Thursday and Friday of last week to help sort and prepare for the distribution. This week the student council is sponsoring a project to collect non-perishable foods for the Christmas baskets and a most needed drive to collect new and good used clothing for children. Special thanks to Betty Nordeen, Iling, we salute you.

Steve Nelson at Agway is donating a $1 from each Christmas tree he sells to the MACC Seasonal Sharing Appeal.

Linda Boothroid of Bolton used her birthday gift money to donate food to the Pantry.

Trustees of the Hartford Courant Foundation have sent us a check for $175 to buy Christmas presents for our shelter guests.

Special gifts and donations of Holiday treats for the homeless using MACC Samaritan Shelter may be left between 3:30 p.m. and 10 p.m. any night at the Shelter.

Christmas Angels

Disciplinary hearing might not be held

LITCHFIELD (AP) — A disciplinary hearing scheduled for Litchfield County State's Attorney Dennis Santore should be dropped because the prosecutor has submitted his resignation, the chairman of the state Criminal Justice Commission says.

"My best guess is that we will not go ahead, but that's just my opinion," Chairman James Murphy said Thursday. But he said the decision is up to the entire seven-member board.

Santore, appointed Litchfield prosecutor in November 1976, has resigned effective March 15.

Chief State's Attorney John Kelly requested the disciplinary hearing after a grand juror investigating allegations of political corruption in Torrington concluded that Santore's office was most likely to blame for a leak that compromised a police wiretap on a phone used by Torrington gamblers in 1981.

When Santore was called before the grand jury, he invoked his Fifth Amendment right to remain silent when questioned about the award in 1981 of a $7 million contract to build the Danbury Superior Courthouse to a company party owned by a woman who was then his wife.

Kelly declined comment on Santore's resignation, saying only that he will make his position known when the commission meets next week.

Thoughts

When Mary sang her song, her words were not just her own invention. Her song was an echo of the Psalms, of the joy of Hannah over the birth of her son, of the songs of the prophets. Mary sang as the latest of generations of singers, of those who have thanked God for all his love and goodness. God's promise to Mary was not some new thing, but an expression of the faithfulness shown to those who love him throughout all generations.

When we want to know what God can do, we have only to look at that promise, a promise made to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, to Hannah and Mary. Scripture shows us over and over the ways in which God has kept the promise of love to his people. That promise and its fulfillment are ours to claim as well. Thanks be to God, who is faithful in love throughout eternity.

Between the Lines

The story behind the story

By Josie

Neil Diamond

Q. I have to know if Neil Diamond is married. I saw his show in Baton Rouge and he was wonderful. Ann H., Baton Rouge, La.

A. He is, for the second time. He and wife Marcia also have two sons, Jesse and Micah. He has two daughters from his first marriage, which broke up, he's explained, because he spent too much time on the road.

Tuesday Weld

Q. How old is Tuesday Weld, what has she been in and is she married? I think she's great. Joan Sadlack, Tripp, S. D.
A. Susan Ker Weld is 44, has been working since the age of 4 modeling (to support her family; her father died when she was 3) and by her teen-age years was in the movies. Her first was the teen flick "Rock, Rock, Rock," followed by a seven-year studio contract and numerous others: "Rally Round the Flag, Boys," "Pretty Poison," "Lord Love a Duck," "The Five Pennies," "Sex Kittens Go to College," "Return to Peyton Place," "Wild in the Country," "Bachelor Flat," "Soldier in the Rain" and "The Cincinnati Kid."

She also co-starred as Thalia Menninger, the girl of Dobie Gillis' dreams in the TV series "The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis" but was bounced from that show when one of its sponsors thought her too wild (her uninhibited private life was well known in Hollywood) for a family show.

More recently, she's been in a number of TV movies as well as the features "Looking for Mr. Goodbar," "Once Upon a Time in America," "Serial," "Who'll Stop the Rain," and "Author! Author!" She's married to musician Pinchas Zukerman; previous husbands were writer Claude Harz and Dudley Moore.

John Cleese

Q. Please tell me anything and everything about actor/comedian John Cleese. D. Marie, Waterbury, Conn.

A. He's 48, from Weston-super-Mare, near Bristol, England, the only child of an insurance salesman and his wife. He's 6 feet-five inches tall now and by the age of 12 was already 6 feet, a distinction that provoked a good deal of ribbing on the part of his peers. He developed a sense of humor, he explains, in self-defense.

He was a good student at Clifton College in Bristol, and after graduation taught history for two years before going on to Cambridge to study law. He got his degree, but while at Cambridge he'd also become involved with the famed Footlights troupe; he decided to take law in favor of show business.

He appeared in the Footlights Revue, a campus production that later transferred to London's West End and to Broadway, in the musical "Half a Sixpence" on Broadway, wrote comedy for BBC Radio and for David Frost's TV show "The Frost Report."

It wasn't until 1969, though, that he really broke through when he joined with several friends from Cambridge and others from Oxford in a little troupe called Monty Python. Their TV shows have been, as you undoubtedly know, hugely successful on PBS, as have their films "And Now for Something Completely Different," "Monty Python and the Holy Grail," "The Life of Brian" and "The Meaning of Life."

He quit the group after a couple of years, though, feeling that they had done pretty much all that they could, and with then-wife Connie Booth developed another TV show, the similarly hugely successful "Fawlty Towers." (Booth played Polly, and although they divorced while the show was in production, they continued to work well together.)

He's also appeared in a number of movies: "The Last Remake of Beau Geste," "Yellowbeard," Python colleague Terry Gilliam's "Time Bandits," "Privates on Parade" and "Clockwise" and, as you may know, appeared on "Cheers" last season, a performance that won him an Emmy.

Currently, he's finishing up "A Fish Called Wanda," a movie he wrote and co-directed, starring Kevin Kline, Jamie Lee Curtis and Michael Palin. After that, he plans to give up show business, he's announced, and go back to teaching; he's also writing another book with his psychiatrist. (Their first, "Families and How to Survive Them," was a big hit.)

But he welcomes this explosion of activity and says, "You've got to do it while you can. I really have to dig myself out from underneath 'Remington Steele,' having done that for five years. Now I really have to work." ■

Hot tips and trivia about popcorn

By Frances Sheridan Goulart

The average kid has watched more than 17,000 hours of television by the time he's 18, says the Population Reference Bureau. The average adult's not far behind. And we eat a lot of popcorn while we watch. The average American munches 42 quarts a year — an increase of 6.1 billion quarts since 1976.

What else you don't know about America's oldest vegetable snack would probably fill a fruit bowl. Pop secret No. 1, for example: What makes corn pop? This happens when the moisture in the kernel gets hot enough to create steam pressure which in turn causes the kernel to explode.

Here are more bits of corn-but-true trivia from The Popcorn Institute, Orville Redenbacher, The Consumers Union, The American Popcorn Company and The United Fruits & Vegetable Association:

Popcorn is not junk food, but an explosive vegetable with fewer calories than peanuts, as much protein as whole-wheat bread and more B vitamins, fiber or calcium than any other popular snack, says the Popcorn Institute.

There are three people named Popcorn in the Manhattan phone book. Los Angeles and Chicago have none.

Popcorn is one of five special species of corn. The others — dent, flint, sweet and soft — don't pop.

The world's champion popcorn chompers are Minneapolis and St. Paul, Minn., where annual per capita consumption is four pounds. Milwaukee, Chicago and Seattle are the third-, fourth- and fifth-place munch-a-bunchers.

You'd have to eat 148 cups of plain popcorn to gain one pound.

America's only snack food with sound effects was introduced to the white man by the Indians at the first Thanksgiving dinner in 1630.

More popcorn is sold in Dallas than anywhere in the United States.

Best hot oil temperature for bang-up popcorn is 480F. Indiana grows the most popcorn in the United States. Nebraska is No. 2.

Popcorn grows in six colors — red, blue, brown, calico, yellow and white. But all are yellow when popped.

Hot tip No. 1: Three tastiest cheese seasonings for popped corn, says Orville Redenbacher, are Gouda, Monterey Jack and Swiss. Pre-grated cheese such as

IT'S POPCORN POPPIN' TIME

Parmesan, Romano and American stick to popcorn twice as long as home-grated.

Popcorn is the only food that increases 40 times in size when cooked.

Five minutes of running or 10 minutes of walking burns the calories in one cup of plain popcorn.

If you're allergic to wheat, you may be allergic to popcorn. They belong to the same botanical family, says the Clinical Ecology League.

Two grains you can put in your popcorn machine besides corn: whole wheat and whole rice.

Celebrity seasonings: Tabasco sauce (Julia Child); brewer's yeast (George Hamilton); chocolate chips (Famous Amos); powdered Hamburger Helper (Phyllis Diller).

No. 1 way to prevent burnt kernels — use a machine with a thermostat.

Hot tip No. 2: Five best sprinkles for popped corn: instant soup mix, powdered dip mix (cheese, chicken, sour cream, etc.), sweet/sour and teriyaki seasoning mixes, dry powdered hollandaise and chili sauce mixes.

Ears of popping corn more than 5,600 years old have been found in caves of New Mexico; 1,000-year-old kernels still in top popping condition have been discovered in Peru.

Shelf life: Air-popped corn stays fresh in a plastic bag for 90 days; oil-popped, only three to four days.

Americans spent $1 billion for popcorn in 1985, a third of what they spent on potato chips.

Seventy percent of all the popcorn eaten in the United States is popped in the home.

The two top popcorn shop flavors: caramel-corn and all cheese flavors.

Three worst "fancy" flavors of popcorn: bubblegum, kremsickle and espresso.

The Popcorn Institute says 132 cups of popcorn provides as much calcium as one eight-ounce glass of milk.

Popcorn pretenders: Four foods that pass the next-best-thing-to-popcorn-taste test: deep-fried crayfish, Kix cereal, puffed rice cakes and Basmati Indian rice.

A $1.50 box of movie popcorn costs 8 cents to make.

Tough-kernel stopper: Don't add salt until the popping stops.

Mutt munch: Popcorn is one of the four "people's snacks" approved by vets (peanut butter, raw nuts and ice cubes are the other three.)

For popped corn Iroquois Indian style, fill a clay pot with very hot sand, add corn kernels and stir. Corn will rise to the top, ready to munch. (The Iroquois also turned popcorn into soups and bread flours.)

Popcorn is approved as an anti-cancer snack by the American Dental Association and a bread substitute by the American Diabetes Association.

Popcorn is America's cheapest can't-stop-after-one snack. Five quarts of kernels produce 160 quarts. Dud (unpopped kernels) stopper No. 1: Use less corn. Unbuttered hot-air corn has one-third the calories of oil-popped.

Dud stopper No 2: Add a dash of water to the jar. Seal. Pop tomorrow. And don't crowd the kernels in the pan.

Popcorn poetry: Read "Popping the Question" by Anonymous in the "World's Best Poetry" (University Society, 1904).

Two cups of popcorn have fewer calories than half a grapefruit.

Three out of four movie theaters "butter" their popcorn with coconut oil or Durkee's Liquid Dress, an artificial soybean substitute.

Popcorn was eaten as breakfast cereal by American colonists, (see Pilgrim's Corn Krispies recipe below).

Hot tip No 3: To produce fluffier, chewier corn and eliminate duds, add cold (refrigerated) kernels to hot oil and be sure to provide an escape hatch for the steam.

White popcorn is harder to chew than yellow because the larger husks get caught between your teeth.

Popcorn profits: $200 million a year are sold for home use; $700 million to movies, ballparks and restaurants.

Snack fashions: The Aztecs wore popcorn in garlands of popped corn to honor the god of war... and popcorn was used as a ceremonial head-dress.

Popcorn baking: Freshly popped corn ground in the blender can be used as a flour substitute.

Heart smart snack: Popcorn has twice the cholesterol-lowering fiber and only one-quarter of the saturated fat in potato chips, says the Council for Responsible Nutrition.

To learn more? Read Orville Redenbacher's "Popcorn Book" (St. Martin's Press, 1984). And there's even a Popcorn Diet book out now.

CONSUMER UNION'S PERFECT POPCORN

For tip-top popcorn without a top-of-the-line electric popper? Add enough vegetable oil to cover the bottom of a pan. Add a few kernels. Cover skillet and agitate pan briskly over medium heat. When you hear the first pop, add enough kernels to cover bottom of the pan. Put lid on, shake to mix oil and kernels. While corn is popping, continue to shake the pan. When popping stops, pour popcorn into a bowl.

PILGRIM'S CORN KRISPIES

Drizzle 4 teaspoons unsalted melted butter over one quart of popped corn. Spread on a cookie sheet in a preheated 400F oven for 5 minutes, or until golden. Serve with fresh fruit and skim milk. ■

Cover Story

Pierce Brosnan forges ahead

By Fred Robbins

If you were feeling sorry for Pierce Brosnan because he didn't get to play James Bond in "The Living Daylights," don't! His career has never been better. You remember what happened. His TV detective series, "Remington Steele," was canceled, and he was hired to be the new 007, and that's when things got sticky. NBC got reinterested, decided they made a mistake, and exercised their option to renew the show.

So there was Brosnan, stuck for another season with Stephanie Zimbalist while Timothy Dalton got one of the most coveted and lucrative roles in the history of films.

"I was angry, I was cross," says the suave, 36-year-old Irish actor. "I was vexed by the whole situation. But, you know, then you say, 'Hey, hang on; I breathe in, I breathe out, what have I got?' But I think Timothy is a fine actor and we used to hang out in the same bar when I first went to L.A. But I feel glad that I'm not doing it. I would have dug myself into another trench of playing a character — the contract was for four pictures — and creating another image, but not that much different from Remington Steele."

And though the long-running series of five years firmly established Brosnan as an international star, he points out, "I never really felt like an actor doing it. I don't know what I felt like... like I'm a TV celebrity, whatever that is — some strange being."

A frown crosses his handsome face, and he wonders how his psyche will be affected by the way things turned out, with the success of "The Living Daylights," despite the somewhat mixed reviews for Timothy Dalton.

"That's what it's all about. That's what spurs you on. And you say 'Dammit, I'm not going to sit back and take this. I'm going to be good, I'm going to go out there and fight again.' And then you go out and say 'Hey it's only a job, it's only a job.' And you cannot get too uptight about it. What has happened was definitely meant to be."

Brosnan is basking in the glow of Frederick Forsythe's thriller, "The Fourth Protocol," in which he co-starred with Michael Caine, and really got a chance to stretch as a KGB general involved in a plot to build and set off an atomic bomb in London.

In Wilmington, N.C., he was completing five months of production on the NBC TV miniseries "Noble House," an eight-hour epic co-starring Deborah Raffin. "What a lovely lady," he says, smiling. "Really a joy to work with. And it's nice to be able to say that. We really got on well."

It's based on James Clavell's blockbuster novel about romance, intrigue and international power struggles in contemporary Hong Kong. And Brosnan stars as Ian Dunross, the "Taipan" (leader-boss) of one of Hong Kong's oldest and most influential trading houses. It's a role he really enjoyed doing and loved his three months in Hong Kong. As who wouldn't! "Quite a wonderful place, but I had my fill of it by that time... it's very populated."

Relaxing in his dressing room in jeans, a multi-colored sport shirt and huaraches, he reflected on the experience and the crossroads in his career.

"I thought after Remington Steele I wouldn't be able to create another character or do anything. I really didn't care what I did. I said, 'OK, well let's just do "Noble House," forget about it. It's a way of getting out of Remington Steele. I can't get stuck for years in a miniseries.' But then as I began to read the book and then the script, I realized what a wonderful part it is and I really feel whole again. I feel refreshed."

His deep-set blue eyes sparkle with enthusiasm and his smile is beguiling as he adds, "This role in "Noble House" has been a real challenge to do, and I've been on the edge, and that makes you feel alive again. I feel like I've done good work on it. I know I've done good work."

Pierce Brosnan is proud of being an actor, and it's obvious that his tenure on "Remington Steele" was not a happy one artistically. He's grateful for the financial rewards and security for his family, remembering that he and wife Cassie had to borrow money for their first trip to L.A.

And he values his great personal accomplishment of being accepted on American television as "an English/Irish actor." He says that working in front of the camera every day on episodic TV "really tunes you up, you learn a lot of good things and you also learn a lot of bad habits because you shoot scenes so quickly. You cut corners in your performance and your process of working."

What also contributed to his disenchantment with the security of a steady job that so many actors strive for was the boredom that sets in creatively.

Of his highly publicized discord and friction with co-star Stephanie Zimbalist, he says, Pierce Brosnan sheds the "Remington Steele" character and finds new challenges.

"Stephanie and I are just different people. We're just opposites completely. I think there was a great frustration on her behalf because of the attention I got at the very beginning. But she really grew up during those five years."

Yet he insists it was a happy set and, despite differences of opinion they had and the underlying tension, it never came out on the set. But when he is asked how an actor does love scenes on stage or screen when he doesn't like and isn't attracted to his leading lady, and yet has to make them convincing in a show that depends on chemistry between the two characters, Brosnan pauses to consider, hands over his face, and replies with a sigh.

"You go home, and you talk to your wife, and you say, 'That so and so, she's the biggest pain in the neck.' And you have a large glass of wine and you sit back and watch the telly. And you go in the next day and you just do the job."

He runs his hand through his thick black hair and continues, "Actresses are a strange breed anyway. There's so much paranoia and insecurity in this, that somehow it sets better on actors than it does on women. It seems to kind of bend them out of shape. But all of the leading ladies I've had have been smashing."

Oddly enough, Pierce Brosnan is married to an actress, Cassandra Harris, who worked with Roger Moore as one of the Bond girls in "For Your Eyes Only." They met at a party in London and he smiles as he recalls that he found her "so ravishing and beautiful and incredibly sexy, that I thought she was unapproachable at first. She has a great sense of humor. And I found myself being wooed by her. And I never thought she was going to fall for me in a month of Sundays. And after the first night of being together, that was it. We were never apart."

"I don't think my career would have taken off the way it has done if I hadn't met her. I'd have a career in a different way. But I don't think it would have taken flight in the same way. She has given me strength and courage at times, real inspiration to go out there and do certain things. And she really clears my head when I get knotted in the brain with the business and who I am and what I'm doing."

Ask Dick Kleiner

Dear Dick: I am a big fan of Valerie Bertinelli. Why is it that she's been in so many made-for-TV movies, but I haven't seen her in a movie in the theater? — L.N., Idaho Falls, Idaho.
 Dear L.N.: Mostly because movie-makers don't think she would bring people into the theaters. She is, they feel, strictly a TV actress, and not a big enough draw (or a big enough talent) to sell tickets. I think they're probably right.
 Dear Dick: My question is: which of the handsome young men in the soap, "The Bold and the Beautiful," is Ethan Wayne? Also, please identify the other gentlemen on that show.
 Dear E.G.T.: Ethan Wayne plays a character named Storm Logan. I'm afraid there are so many "other gentlemen" on that show I just wouldn't have room to list them all.
 Dear Dick: Could you tell me if the actor who played the role of Max on "Hart to Hart" also played on the old series "Car 54, Where Are You?" — P.J., Reading, Pa.
 Dear P.J.: No, two different men. Joe E. Ross is the man you are thinking of from "Car 54." He played a character named Gunther Toody. Lionel Stander was Max on "Hart to Hart."
 Dear Dick: It seems that somewhere I read that William Katt, who is playing Paul Drake, Jr. on the present series of Perry Mason movies is in real life the son of Barbara Hale, who plays Della Street. Am I mistaken? — R.E.W., Burlington, Wash.

 Dear R.E.W.: No, that's true.
 Dear Dick: Please tell us what show Dale Robertson was on way back when. We just love his new show, "J.J. Starbuck." — M.T., Jensen Beach, Fla.
 Dear M.T.: Robertson was the hero of "Tales of Wells Fargo," which aired from 1957-62, back when men were men and every gfer show was a western.
 Dear Dick: I can't understand the game show emcees — Pat Sajak of "Wheel of Fortune" in particular — who always play to the studio audience, and choreograph the applause. It hinders the home audience from hearing much of the program. I think they should consider the home audience more. After all, we are the ones who keep them on the air. — I.B.M., Saginaw, Mich.
 Dear I.B.M.: That is done on the theory that the laughter and applause from the studio audience is infectious, and makes the home audience think the show is very funny or very exciting. They think the home audience is rather than just a show. I think they are probably right — but you are right, too. They overdo it.

Woman concerned about surgery

Hot flashes after menopause are common

By Dr. June Reinsch

DEAR DR. REINSCH: I had hot flashes after having a complete hysterectomy for advanced endometriosis at the age of 41. I'm now 56, and for the past three to five years I've endured perpetual body heat, a sensation of "turning up."

Would estrogen replacement help cool me off?

The Kinsey Report

sample from a finger and said it was to check for prostate trouble. The results were negative, but I always thought a man had to have a physical examination of the prostate gland itself to see if he had prostate trouble. Is having a blood test reliable, or should I also have an examination?

DEAR READER: About 80 percent of women have hot flashes for more than one year following either surgical (removal of the ovaries) or natural menopause. Between 25 percent and 50 percent continue to have hot flashes for more than five years, and some have hot flashes for 10 years or longer.

After each hot flash, it takes the body about 30 minutes to return to normal again. When a woman has many hot flashes each day, her body is constantly in flux between overheating and cooling.

The best way to find out whether your current body sensations are related to a low level of estrogen (the usual cause of hot flashes) is to consult an endocrinologist. This specialist will probably check the level of progesterone and LH (luteinizing hormone) as well as estrogen. You may need to have blood samples taken at several different times to see whether hormonal levels change during the day or over several days.

If the level of estrogen is found to be low and an estrogen medication is prescribed, you probably will also be given a progestin medication and a monthly schedule for taking this medication. It may take several months to find the best dosage. So follow the endocrinologists' instructions for scheduling follow-up appointments.

Studies have shown that more than 90 percent of women who take estrogen for menopausal symptoms have substantial or total relief from hot flashes.

Questions method

DEAR DR. REINSCH: Recently my doctor took a blood the prostate are caught early. If a physician also suggests doing a blood test for acid phosphatase, it's worth the minor discomfort and cost because the test might detect a cancer before it could be felt by examination.

However, the blood test should be considered a supplement to, not a substitute for, a rectal exam. Moreover, the blood sample should be drawn before, not after, the examination because the examination itself can cause acid phosphatase levels to rise.

Why cell changes?

DEAR DR. REINSCH: Four women I know who are being treated at an infertility clinic have been diagnosed as having cervical cancer. Is there any evidence that women who are being treated for infertility are at greater risk for cervical cancer? Is it possible that the drugs and procedures make the cervical cells change?

DEAR READER: There have been no data reported to show any relationship between cervical cancer and infertility treatments, perhaps because many of the medications and procedures are too recent for this to have been evaluated.

Scientists will be able to see whether any connection exists only after they account for conditions that are known to affect both fertility and the cervix. For example, women whose mothers took DES (diethylstilbestrol) during their pregnancies have an increased risk of vaginal and cervical cancer and fertility problems.

Although the vast majority of these DES daughters will have neither problem, it is clear that 1.4 of every 1,000 to 10,000 DES-daughters will be diagnosed with an otherwise rare vaginal cancer. If this happens to be diagnosed while the woman is undergoing infertility treatments, it would be possible to confuse the cause as being the infertility treatments rather than the prenatal DES exposure that took place many years before.

DEAR DR. REINSCH: I read your column and felt sure I could write and ask you about yeast infection. I would appreciate an explanation of how you get it and what you do to keep it from coming back.

I am 70 and have had no sex since my husband passed away 20 years ago. I do not understand how this happened to me.

“About 80 percent of women have hot flashes for more than one year following either surgical (removal of the ovaries) or natural menopause”

DEAR READER: The vaginal infection commonly called "yeast" is also called monilia or candidiasis. An infection occurs when an organism (candida albicans) normally present inside the vagina and other parts of the body multiplies much more quickly than usual.

Taking antibiotics is one common cause of this type of vaginal infection, because the antibiotics kill off the bacteria that keep the number of candida albicans organisms low. This type of reaction to antibiotics can occur at any age (even to young girls) whether a woman is having sex or not.

Hormone levels can also be involved in increasing number of candida albicans organisms. Some women have these vaginal infections when they take hormonal birth-control pills and some have this problem while pregnant. (In both conditions, the level of progesterone may be increased, which is a possible factor in causing yeast infection.)

Among older women, a hormonal factor is also often involved, but in this case it is usually because of a low level of estrogen. After the ovaries stop producing estrogen at menopause, a woman's genital tissues gradually become thinner and more easily infected. Levels of bacteria and other organisms that were no problem when she was younger may now cause vaginal irritation and infections.

Vaginal infections are common among older women, as are urinary-tract infections, because those tissues more susceptible, too. No older woman should feel embarrassed about seeking help for these problems, nor should she worry that having a vaginal infection will be misunderstood to mean that she is having sex.

As with vaginal infections at any age, it is important to take samples of the vaginal secretions to determine which organism is involved. Different medications are prescribed to treat different organisms.

Even though medication can clear up an infection, some older women have continuing problems because of the easily infected condition of their genital tissues. Taking replacement hormones (estrogen along with progesterin in a monthly pattern) improves the condition of these tissues (and as a result reduces vaginal infections) for many women. This treatment can be started at any age following menopause. Ask your physician about using hormones if your yeast infections persist.

Curious friend

DEAR DR. REINSCH: One of my friends asked me this question. I didn't know the answer, but I became curious and thought I'd ask you.

This friend had a miscarriage a few months ago. She wants to get pregnant again, but her husband doesn't want another pregnancy. He's been withdrawing at climax. My friend wanted to know if it's possible to become pregnant by putting some of his ejaculate into her vagina herself.

DEAR READER: Yes, pregnancy would be possible, but I'm not sure that it is advisable. The decision to begin a family should be a joint venture. Perhaps her husband needs more time and more discussion in order to overcome his grief about the miscarriage.

Withdrawal just before orgasm and ejaculation (called coitus interruptus) has a fairly high failure rate as a method of contraception. Of 100 couples who do this for one year, between 16 and 23 will become pregnant.

Your friend might better spend her energy talking to her husband (with the help of a marital counselor to assist them in working out an agreement about starting a family) instead of trying to secretly inseminate herself. Then, if they decide to postpone getting pregnant, the counselor can inform them about more effective contraceptive methods.

Dr. Reinsch is director of the Kinsey Institute for Research in Sex, Gender and Reproduction, Indiana University-Bloomington.

Gearing up for winter weather

By Richard R. Grayson, M.D., and June Grayson, R.N.

Don't let the onset of bad weather interfere with your exercise programs. Here are some easy ways to get the exercise you need but think that you do not have time for:

Walk to the nearest store every day for your newspaper instead of having it delivered.

Plan to walk to the grocery store daily for at least one item, such as milk.

When you drive someplace, park as far from the entrance of the building as you can.

If you take public transportation, get off of the bus or the train before your regular stop and walk the rest of the way.

Don't use the elevator all of the way to your floor. Plan to walk as many flights as your condition will allow.

During lunch, walk to a distant place to eat, such as a park, or spend your whole lunch hour walking.

Walk around the house whenever a television commercial comes on (but not to the kitchen, please!). Instead of coffee breaks, take exercise breaks.

Go for a walk after meals; don't just sit there. (Diabetes in the News, October 1987)

Comment: You can also become a mall walker. This is especially good for people who are afraid to exercise outside in bad weather — such as people with heart, lung and orthopedic problems. Check out the shopping malls near you. Many now open their doors at 7 a.m. to accommodate fitness buffs. They have planned walking tours laid out with the known mileage. Some malls even plan social events and competitions for their exercisers.

EXERCISING WHEN PREGNANT

A trained body can better meet the demands of any increased work load, such as labor and delivery. Therefore, women should continue to exercise prudently throughout the course of an uncomplicated pregnancy.

Activities that are safe for most healthy pregnant women are moderate jogging, walking, tennis, calisthenics, stretching, yoga, bowling, swimming, softball, racquetball, volleyball, bicycling, cross-country skiing, ice and roller skating, golf and dancing. (The Female Patient, July 1987)

ARE AMERICANS REALLY PHYSICALLY FIT?

One-third of the American adult population never exercises, and only 10 percent exercise enough to reduce their risk of heart disease, according to a recent survey by Christine L. Brooks, Ph.D., assistant professor of physical education, at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

Among the adults who do not exercise, more than 80 percent consider themselves "physically fit."

This shows that Americans have a long way to go to meet the goal of the U.S. Public Health Service: that 60 percent of the adult population should be encouraged to participate in vigorous physical exercise by 1990. That goal has now been lowered to a more realistic 30 percent.

The National Sporting Goods Association contends that Americans are intensely interested in exercise, with exercise walking, exercising with equipment, running/jogging, calisthenics and aerobic exercising having the most participants. (The Physician and Sportsmedicine, November 1986)

CARBON MONOXIDE POISONING

It's the time of the year to warn you again of the dangers of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Here's a hint: If more than one member of your family develops a headache, gastrointestinal illnesses mimicking flu, or even a hangover, think carbon monoxide poisoning and see your doctor and tell him of your suspicions.

The problem is that everyone knows that carbon monoxide poisoning can result from fires or overwhelming smoke inhalation.

What people do not know — or tend to forget — is that a lower level of carbon monoxide in the blood can cause milder chronic symptoms.

The incidence of carbon monoxide exposure is high in the winter when gas space heaters and stoves are used as alternative heating sources.

Carbon monoxide is colorless, odorless and tasteless. Your doctor must order a specific test to prove that you have too much carbon monoxide in the blood. Routine blood screening tests do not test for carbon monoxide. (American Journal of Emergency Medicine, 1987)

Comment: If you think that you have been exposed to carbon monoxide, and you don't have a doctor, go to the nearest hospital emergency room. The test must be done as soon as possible after exposure.

Remember to check the mufflers of your cars for winter driving. Now that car windows are closed up tightly, a leak in the muffler could seriously affect — or even kill — children asleep in the back seat of the car.

SHOE DERMATITIS

If you or your children have an eruption, scaling or infection on the top of your feet, it could be due to shoe dermatitis. Wet shoes cause more trouble than dry ones. Stop wearing the shoes and see if the trouble goes away. That way you can pinpoint which shoes are the offenders. Medication to treat the problem will give only temporary relief if you don't stop wearing the shoes. (Consultant, October 1987)

HOW TO SAVE MONEY IF YOU ARE A DIABETIC

If you cut your blood and urine testing strips in half vertically with a clean scissors, your results will still be accurate and you will halve the cost of your testing program. Another benefit is that the testing strip will then require a smaller drop of blood. (Internal Medicine News, October 1987)

THUMB SUCKING

If you think your child is old enough to stop sucking his thumb, and you have used aversive medications without any results, you may want to send for a book called "David Decides About Thumbsucking." The book motivates the child to stop on his own. (American Family Practice, September 1987, in reference to the book available from Reading Matters, Box 300309, Denver, Colo. 80203.)

Dining In

Hearty food for the hard-working

By Shirley E. Sump

What meal always brings a beam of pleasure from a hard-working man? Corn bread and beans, of course!

This marvelous combination has been served since America's earliest days. It was considered an important food duo by all the Indian tribes and they shared their knowledge with the colonists.

It was not only nutritious, but also tasty. There was an added attraction for later generations, with little money and big families. It made a complete low-cost meal.

Corn breads came in many forms; light and tender to heavier and flat. There were tortillas, biscuits, muffins, spoon breads, dumplings.

The bean dishes ranged from navy bean soup, pinto or kidney bean chilies from the Southwest, black-eye peas from the South and varied beans all across the nation.

The following recipes such as Bar-Bean Stuffing Pie, Greek Bean Pie or Layered Bread with Bean Sauce combine the fantastic twosome into some uncommon corn bread and bean dishes.

This Spanish-style soup is Americanized with the addition of cornmeal dumplings. Serve with tossed green salad and orange sherbet.

SPANISH SOUP WITH DUMPLINGS

- 3 cups water
- 1 (15-ounce) can undrained garbanzo beans (chick peas)
- 1 (15-ounce) can dark red kidney beans, drained
- 2 (8-ounce) cans tomato sauce
- 1/4 teaspoon dried basil leaves
- 1/2 teaspoon dried celery flakes
- 1/2 teaspoon instant minced onions
- 1/8 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1 pound Polish sausage, sliced into 1/2-inch rounds
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1/2 cup cornmeal
- 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup milk
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil

Combine water, garbanzo beans, kidney beans, tomato sauce, basil, celery, onion, garlic and Polish sausage in a Dutch oven. Bring to a boil.

Meanwhile, combine flour, cornmeal, baking powder and salt in large bowl. Add milk and oil; stir until thoroughly combined. (Don't beat.) Drop by large tablespoons into soup. Lower heat and cook uncovered for 10 minutes, then tightly covered for 10 minutes. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

This super-easy corn bread-bean dish uses corn bread stuffing mix as a pie crust with pork and beans, beef and barbecue sauce as the filling. Serve with salad and fluffy lemon pudding.

BAR-BEAN STUFFING PIE

- 1 (6-ounce) package corn bread stuffing mix
- 1/4 cup oatmeal
- 2 tablespoons margarine
- 3 tablespoons hot water
- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 (16-ounce) can pork and beans in tomato sauce
- 2 tablespoons barbecue sauce
- 6 slices (1/4-ounce each) American process cheese

Preheat oven to 375F. Combine stuffing mix and hot water in bowl. Mix lightly but well. Press mixture into bottom and up sides of a deep-dish 10" pie plate. Bake in oven for 8 minutes.

Meanwhile brown ground beef in 10" skillet. Drain off excess fat. Stir in beans and barbecue sauce. Simmer until heated through and slightly thickened.

Spoon meat-bean mixture into baked crust. Bake for 15 minutes. Lay cheese on top of bean mixture, pinwheel fashion. Return to oven and bake for 5 more minutes. Allow to cool for 5 minutes before cutting in wedges. Makes 6 servings.

This recipe uses cornmeal and baking mix to make a corn bread crust. The filling is a Greek-flavored combination of beef, tomato sauce and navy beans. Serve with tossed salad and fresh fruit compote.

GREEK BEAN PIE

- 1 cup packaged baking mix
- 1/4 cup oatmeal
- 2 tablespoons margarine
- 3 tablespoons hot water
- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 (8-ounce) can tomato sauce
- 1 (15-ounce) can navy beans, drained
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/2 teaspoon instant minced onions
- 1/2 cup water

Preheat oven to 425F. Grease a 10" pie plate.

Mix baking mix, cornmeal and margarine in a bowl. Stir in water until a dough is formed. Press mixture against the bottom and sides of pie plate.

Brown beef in 10" skillet. Drain off excess fat. Add tomato sauce, beans, cinnamon, garlic, onions and salt. Simmer until heated through and slightly thickened, about 5 minutes. Stir frequently. Spoon mixture into crust. Bake for 15 minutes. Allow to cool for 5 minutes before cutting into wedges. Makes 6 servings.

LAYERED BREAD WITH BEAN SAUCE

- 1 cup cornmeal
- 1 cup flour
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs
- 1/4 cup oil
- 1 cup milk
- 1 1/2 cups chopped cooked ham
- 6 slices (1/4-ounce) American process cheese
- 1 (11 1/2-ounce) can condensed bean with bacon soup
- 1 (15-ounce) can navy beans, undrained
- 1/2 cup water

Preheat oven to 400F. Grease an 8 x 12 x 2" baking dish.

Combine cornmeal, flour, sugar, baking powder and salt in mixing bowl. Add eggs, oil and milk. Beat with mixer until just smooth. (Do not overbeat.) Pour half of batter into prepared pan.

Sprinkle ham on batter. Top with cheese slices. Pour remaining batter over cheese. Bake for 25 to 35 minutes or until golden brown. Cut into squares. Combine soup, beans and water in 2-quart saucepan; heat until hot, stirring frequently. Serve bean mixture over each corn bread serving. Makes 6 servings.

Whole kernel corn in the corn bread makes it a treat on its own, but with the addition of butter beans it is even more tempting.

SOUTHERN CORNBREAD AND BEANS

- 2 (16-ounce) cans large butter beans, packed in sauce
- 1 1/2 cups diced cooked ham
- 1 tablespoon instant minced onions
- 1 tablespoon dried parsley leaves
- 1 tablespoon dried celery flakes
- 1 1/2 cups yellow cornmeal
- 1 1/4 cups flour
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 5 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup milk
- 1/4 cup oil
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1 (16-ounce) can whole kernel corn, drained

Preheat oven to 400F. Grease an 8 x 12 x 2" baking dish.

Combine beans, ham, onions, parsley and celery in 10" skillet. Heat to boiling. Lower heat. Simmer for 10 minutes; stirring occasionally. Spread hot mixture in baking dish.

Combine cornmeal, flour, sugar, baking powder and salt in mixing bowl. Add milk, oil, eggs and corn. Beat until well combined. (Do not overbeat.) Pour over top of beans. Bake for 20 minutes or until golden brown.

Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Religion reaches into video market

Religious videotapes are becoming big business and feature everything from an animated cartoon explaining the meaning of Chanukah, to "Believers," a work-out tape featuring dancing to contemporary gospel music.

You can see Old and New Testaments dramatized by live actors, watch well-known preachers deliver sermons, learn more about effective ways to pray, search for Noah's ark, and even follow the Pope on his recent American tour. And, lest things get too serious, there's even a Christian effort in the Monty Python vein and several evangelical comics.

According to Video magazine, religious videos reach almost 8 million Christian homes. Distribution is primarily through mail order and some 3,000 religious bookstores, but religious videos are also being sold in secular video stores and grocery chains. Companies such as Word Inc. and Entertainment Plus Family Video provide the sort of entertainment sought by religious Christian households who dislike sex and violence on television.

Along with fitness and entertainment there are many instructional tapes to help cope with dating problems, rocky marriages, and the troubles of raising difficult children. There are instructional sermons as well, delivered by such notable speakers as Billy Graham and Norman Vincent Peale. Several athletes have also made their contributions to the video market with inspirational advice and guidance.

The most popular of all the tapes with a religious slant are the big budget Disney films. Films such as "Ben Hur," "Jesus of Nazareth," and "Exodus" offer a healthy dose of inspiration. Also check out the documentaries and documentaries about such figures as Corrie Ten Boom, a concentration camp survivor, and quadriplegic artist Joni Eareckson.

The quantity of video programming directed at Jews is small but growing. Recently Paul Simon and artist Gerald Scarfe, of Pink Floyd's "The Wall" fame, collaborated on a traditional Hasidic story entitled "Seven Beggars."

A dumb, bloody action film

Filmeter
Robert DiMatteo

The Running Man (R) His English is still barely above the grunt level, and his acting continues to give new meaning to the word "stiff." But Arnold Schwarzenegger is a full-fledged movie star — a cartoon-style mock-fascist palooka who can single-handedly send an action movie into box-office stratosphere. Witness Arnie's latest smash, "The Running Man," a gory, slam-bang blend of "Rollerball," "Blade Runner" and other apocalyptic thrillers.

"The Running Man" is set in the 21st century. The government and media have joined corrupt forces and the energies of the citizenry have been co-opted — sublimated into a life-and-death gladiatorial TV game show hosted by a smarmy closet-sadist ("Family Feud" host Richard Dawson).

Arnie plays a muscle-bound cop who has been framed and then entered as a contestant on the TV show. That dark-eyed spitfire Maria Conchita Alonso ("Moscow On the Hudson") co-stars as a woman who at first betrays Arnie to the authorities, only to realize that he's innocent of the charges leveled against him. So much for the movie's attempt at a love interest for Arnie who, with his narcissistically maintained super-physique, seems somehow too self-sufficient for sex anyway.

The movie is splashily designed, and the gilty, ominously caricatured TV game show milieu is darkly compelling. Richard Dawson as the sleazeball emcee is an inspired stroke of casting. There are some smart touches, like the sweet little old lady in the audience who turns out to be a rabid authority on blood sports.

Still this is basically a dumb, bloody action film that gooses audiences the same way the TV game show within the movie does. The actors don't get much help either: They're primarily of value in terms of how good (and mean) they look running this way and that in their spandex body suits. Poor Yaphet Kotto, that chunky, first-rate character actor who plays one of Arnie's cohorts: Spandex doesn't do Kotto justice at all. Grade: ****

House of Games (R) Playwright David Mamet ("Glengarry Glen Ross") makes an auspicious directorial debut with this slow-building new-style film noir. It's the portrait of a repressed psychiatrist (Lindsay Crouse, Mamet's wife) who sets out to help one of her clients and ends up the patsy of a series of dangerous con games.

The terrific Joe Mantegna co-stars as the chief con, a charming scoundrel who awakens the shrink's passions — to devastating effect. The movie is full of twists and turns, not all of which work dramatically, and Mamet has directed his actors in studied, resolutely minimalist fashion. But the approach pays off. The movie is marvelously sly and unsettling, one of the most distinctive American films of the year. Grade: ******

New home video

Outrageous Fortune (R) Touchstone, $89.95. Shelley Long and Bette Midler pair up — entertainingly — as two acting-class students who discover they have the same two-timing boyfriend (Peter Coyote). Grade: *****

NFL playoff picture needs to be cleared up

By The Associated Press

Confusion says: a victory or two coupled with losses by another team or two, etc., will qualify six more teams for the National Football League playoffs. As usual at this time of year in the NFL, it's confusion that reigns. Some more pieces could be fitted into the annual playoff puzzle this weekend.

AP photo

New England quarterback Steve Grogan (14) will lead the Patriots against the Buffalo Bills Sunday. The Patriots need a win to stay in contention in the AFC East.

Presently 15 teams are in contention for the one remaining playoff spot in the National Conference and for all five spots in the American Conference.

Washington, which has clinched the Eastern Division; Chicago, the Central winner; San Francisco and New Orleans, either as Western winner or as a wild-card entry, are the NFC teams in the playoffs.

Still battling for the last NFC wild-card spot and the AFC spots are Minnesota, Los Angeles Rams, St. Louis and Green Bay in the NFC and Indianapolis, Buffalo, Miami, New England and New York Jets, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Houston, Denver, San Diego and Seattle.

Denver would clinch a playoff berth by beating visiting Kansas City Saturday, while Green Bay can keep alive its hopes for a first playoff spot since 1982 with a road victory over the New York Giants.

Kansas City is coming off a victory over the Los Angeles Raiders, but they have lost four straight at Mile High Stadium, where they will face the John Elway-led No. 1 pass offense in the AFC.

The Giants whipped Green Bay 55-24 in their Super Bowl championship year of 1986, and some Packers feel New York ran up the score. The Packers are coming off a 16-10 upset of the Minnesota Vikings.

Sunday's games will have Pittsburgh at Houston, Cleveland at Los Angeles Raiders, New England at Buffalo, Seattle at Chicago, Minnesota at Detroit, St. Louis at Tampa Bay, Indianapolis at San Diego, New Orleans at Cincinnati, Washington at Miami at night, Philadelphia at the Jets and Atlanta at San Francisco.

Dallas plays at the Los Angeles Rams at Monday night.

Steelers at Oilers: Houston, 7-6, beat the 8-5 Steelers 23-3 in their first meeting this year and can clinch its first winning season since 1980 with a sweep. Pittsburgh can win its first AFC Central title since 1984 by winning Sunday and against the Cleveland Browns the following week.

NFL Roundup

Browns at Raiders: Cleveland, tied for first with the Steelers, appears in good position to snap an eight-game losing streak to the Raiders and stay alive for the AFC Central title.

Patriots at Bills: Buffalo also will be trying to snap a jinx against a particular team. New England has 10 straight wins over the Bills, who are seeking their first AFC East title since 1980.

Seahawks at Bears: Seattle, which is challenging for the AFC West title, runs into a club which was embarrassed 41-0 by San Francisco last Monday night.

Vikings at Lions: The Vikings, coming off an upset loss, will be meeting a Detroit team that is coming off only its third win of the year.

Cardinals at Buccaneers: The Cardinals, who might never see St. Louis again, hope to ride the arm of Neil Lomax, the NFC's No. 2 passer, to a second straight win over Tampa Bay this season.

Colts at Chargers: The Colts have not won in San Diego's Jack Murphy Stadium since 1976 and lost at home to the Chargers earlier in the year when Vince Abbott kicked a 39-yard field goal with 12 seconds left.

Saints at Bengals: The Saints, with their first winning record and first playoff berth assured, will try to extend their winning streak to eight games.

Redskins at Dolphins: This is a battle between two clubs who have split two Super Bowl meetings. The Redskins' chances of playing in this season's Super Bowl appear much better than Miami's.

Falcons at 49ers: With quarterback Joe Montana out for two games with injuries suffered against Chicago, Steve Young gets an opportunity to further sharpen his skills, which were razor sharp against the Bears.

Eagles at Jets: This will be their first meeting since 1978.

Packers looking for revenge against Giants

By Tom Canavan
The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Tom Flynn knows the Green Bay Packers well enough to know they are coming to Giants Stadium on Saturday with last year on their minds.

Many of the Packers feel the Giants deliberately ran up the score in a 55-24 rout in 1986. They talked about it after the game, especially a fake field goal midway through the fourth quarter when New York was leading 45-24.

"Knowing their coaching staff I think they thought we did (rub it in)," said Flynn, who was released by the Packers last year and later signed on with the Giants and earned a Super Bowl ring. "That will be one of their motivating factors in their speeches this week, how we supposedly rubbed it in and kicked them when they were down."

Flynn denies the Giants ran up the score in their final regular-season game before the playoffs, but he also says Packers Coach Forrest Gregg probably doesn't see it that way.

"It's not like he (Gregg) is going to explain that we were getting ready for the playoffs and we were just showing teams don't rush the field goal because we might do this and it could cost you a trip to the Super Bowl," Flynn said. "He is probably thinking it is a personal vendetta against him and the rest of the team."

"It's not like he (Gregg) is going to explain that we were getting ready for the playoffs and we were just showing teams don't rush the field goal because we might do this and it could cost you a trip to the Super Bowl. He is probably thinking it is a personal vendetta against him and the rest of the team."

— Tom Flynn

Flynn evened up his own score with the Packers in that game, blocking a punt and returning it 36 yards for a touchdown.

"It was a little revenge," said Flynn, a free safety who had 11 interceptions in two-plus years with the Packers. "It was good."

Gregg said the fake field goal did bother him when it happened, but not any more.

"It is kind of hard to stay angry for a whole year," he said. "The game is over and that is part of the past. What we have tried to do in Green Bay is put the past behind us for awhile, particularly the past couple of years."

"We are looking forward to this game. We have no grudges to bear with anybody. We just want to play good football."

Actually, the Packers have a lot more at stake this year than the Giants. Green Bay, 5-7-1, still has a mathematical chance of making the playoffs, while the Giants, 4-9, were eliminated from postseason contention last week after losing to St. Louis 27-24.

Green Bay's playoff chance are not great and the Packers would be eliminated if Minnesota wins one of its last two games. The Packers beat Minnesota 16-10 last Sunday to keep their hopes alive.

"We're still mathematically alive, but a lot of things would have to happen before we got to the playoffs," said Gregg. "What we are more interested in instead of worrying about that is just trying to get better each week."

The Giants will be without defensive end Leonard Marshall, who underwent surgery on Monday to repair a dislocated left wrist. He has been placed on the injured reserve list and will be replaced by second-year pro John Washington, who will be making his first NFL start.

The game, which starts at 12:30 p.m. EST, will be nationally televised.

Tulane looks to send Brown off a winner

By Austin Wilson
The Associated Press

SHREVEPORT, La. — Tulane hopes to open the two-week-long college football bowl season Saturday against Washington by making Mack Brown's departure a happy one.

Brown, after three years of rebuilding at Tulane, becomes the coach at North Carolina with the final gun at the Independence Bowl, the first major college bowl of the season.

Greg Davis, assistant head coach during those rebuilding years, was promoted Friday to head coach, effective at the end of the game.

Through his three years at Tulane, Brown established a reputation as a glib quipster, frequently masking the bitterness of defeat with humor. In that respect, at least, Davis appears a worthy successor.

"If we beat Washington, I will humbly accept credit," Davis joked. "If we lose, I will say, 'It's a shame Mack had to go out that way.'"

Tulane is 6-5, enjoying its first winning record in seven years and its first bowl appearance in eight years. Washington, 6-4-1, is making its ninth straight bowl appearance under Don James.

"The last time I faced this guy he was a lame duck," James recalled, gesturing at Brown. "He was an assistant at Oklahoma and had already accepted the Tulane job."

"That was in the Orange Bowl in 1984," Brown responded.

"Yeah, and you beat our brains out," Brown

Washington fields an offensive line that averages 6-foot-5 and 290 pounds. Tulane's defensive front is two inches shorter and averages 245.

"They are the biggest people I have ever seen in my life," Brown said.

He said he thought about keeping his team at their hotel, instead of letting them go to joint functions with the Washington team. "We thought we might have some people leave after they saw how big they are, but we locked them in their rooms," he said.

Offensively, he said, Tulane will spread and go wide open, trying to make the option work with quarterback Terrence Jones to set up the passing game to All-American receiver Marc Zeno.

"Defensively, we'll never line up in the same place twice. We'll try to make it hard for them to find us," he said.

James had a concise scouting report on Jones. "He's too quick. He has too good an arm. He's too accurate, and Mack lets him run too much," he said.

"When you can spread people all over the field and still run the option, you're a dangerous football team," James said.

"I don't think there's a coach in America who won't tell you that the toughest thing to defend against is the option. And they spread you out so much, it could be trouble," James said.

Brown said he felt Washington would try to take advantage of its size advantage. "They'll just line up and try to mash us," he said.

Tulane gave up an average of 230 rushing yards a game through the season. Brown said Washington fullback Aaron Jenkins, 233 pounds, and tailback Vince Weatherby, 202 pounds, are as big as some of his defensive linemen.

"They'll just line up and run right at us," he said.

Brown said he was delighted that Davis was promoted to replace him. "I will be able to walk away after the game knowing Tulane's football future is in good hands and that the program is in better shape than it was three years ago," he said.

Spurs benefitting from deal with Lakers, too

By Bill Barnard
The Associated Press

Nearly everyone believed San Antonio got a raw deal last season when the Spurs traded Mychal Thompson to the Los Angeles Lakers.

San Antonio got Frank Brickowski, Petur Gudmundsson, a 1987 first-round draft pick and a 1990 second-round choice in the deal. While Thompson continued to thrive as the Lakers' first frontcourt reserve, the Spurs are benefitting, too.

Brickowski is averaging 15 points as the starting center. Gudmundsson recently scored a career-high 21 points with 11 rebounds, and Greg Anderson, the first-round pick from the trade, has scored as many as 31 points in a game.

"We knew what we were doing when we made the deal," Coach Bob Weiss said.

But the Spurs' youth has brought about some ugly losses this season.

A recent four-game winning streak followed a string of three consecutive losses by margins of 31, 32 and 24 points.

Of their first nine losses this season, only two were by less than nine points. Before a six-point loss to New Jersey on Tuesday, the Spurs' average margin of defeat was 18 points.

Both Washington and Philadelphia will have one first-round draft pick in 1988, but the 76ers are guaranteed the higher of the two selections because of a pair of trades between the two teams.

On draft day in 1984, the Bullets dealt their 1988 first-round pick to the 76ers for the rights to Tom Sewell, who played in 21 games before disappearing from the NBA.

The Bullets got a first-round pick back from Philadelphia in the deal that brought them Moses Malone in 1986, but the trade stipulated that the 76ers get to keep the higher of the two picks.

The Lakers-Celtics' game on Dec. 11 was the 33rd between the two teams in which Larry Bird and Magic Johnson played against each other.

The Lakers' 115-114 victory on Johnson's off-balance 20-footer at the buzzer was their 19th in those 33 games, which include playoffs.

Bird is averaging 24.1 points, 10.9 rebounds and 5.6 assists against the Lakers when Johnson is in the lineup. Johnson is averaging 20.0 points, 11.7 assists and 7.2 rebounds against the Celtics with Bird in the lineup.

Detroit's Chuck Nevitt was the last active player who started the season in the NBA to score a point when he made a basket on Dec. 12 against the New York Knicks.

Nevitt played 12 scoreless minutes in four games before finally getting his first points.

Portland's Kevin Gamble went scoreless in 19 minutes and nine games before he was waived by the Trail Blazers. Dudley Bradley, who played four minutes in one game and didn't score, was waived by Milwaukee.

When Rick Carlisle signed with the New York Knicks, former Boston Celtics teammate Bill Walton sent him a congratulatory telegram from the Baja beaches of Mexico, where Walton is recovering after off-season foot surgery.

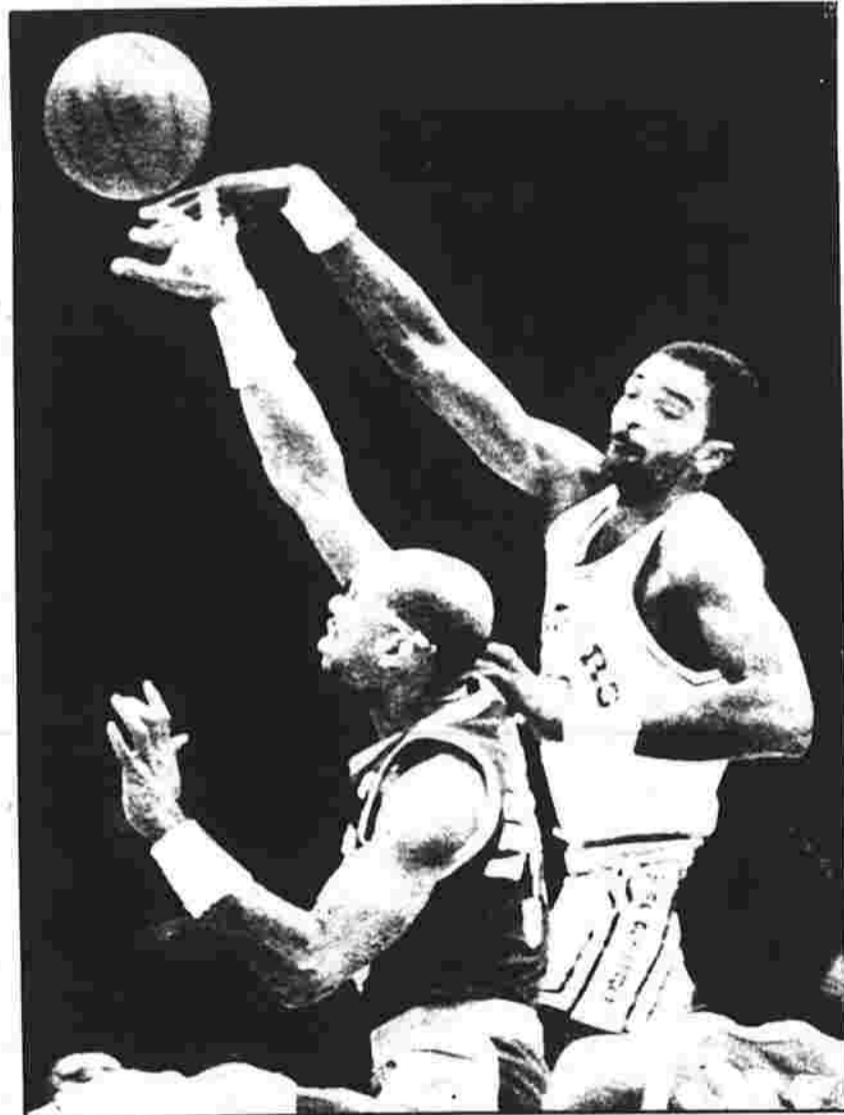

Walton sent the entire telegram in Spanish.

A.C. Green, improving steadily in his third year with the Los Angeles Lakers, had a streak of eight consecutive games, from Nov. 15 through Dec. 2, with at least 10 rebounds and is now among the NBA leaders in that category.

In addition, he has improved his scoring average by more than five points per game compared to last season.

His best game during his hot streak was a career-high 28 points and 16 rebounds in a 127-119 victory over Denver on Nov. 27.

"He's been tremendous and given us a lot of energy," Lakers General Manager Jerry West said. "The difference this year is he finally feels like he belongs."

Tulane names Davis head coach

SHREVEPORT, La. — Tulane University assistant football coach Greg Davis was named Friday to replace outgoing head coach Mack Brown. Eamon Kelly, president of the New Orleans university, made the announcement just two days after Brown confirmed that he would take the head coaching job at the University of North Carolina. The announcement was made in Shreveport, where Tulane players were preparing for Saturday night's Independence Bowl game against the University of Washington. Kelly also said that associate athletic director Wright Waters would temporarily fill the athletic director post left vacant by Brown, who held that position also. Waters would be considered a prime candidate for the permanent AD job, Kelly said.

Tulane players were happy about Davis's promotion.

Canadiens now living up to their potential

By Ken Rappoport
The Associated Press

When the Montreal Canadiens won the Stanley Cup two years ago with the youngest championship team in NHL history, great things were expected from them.

And they are living up to that promise. "I think Montreal is the best team overall in the league," says New York Ranger Coach Michel Bergeron, who has a lot of company in this prevailing opinion.

The Canadiens have the figures to prove it, boasting the best record in the NHL so far.

MANY OF THE CANADIEN players believe that this year's team is stronger than the team that won the Stanley Cup in 1986.

"I think overall we're a little bit stronger with a lot of the same strengths we had then," says captain Bob Galney. "Our goaltending is good, maybe a little bit better. Our defense is good, perhaps a little more experienced, and I think we can score more goals now than we did the last two or three seasons."

Veteran center Bobby Smith agrees. "On paper we have a stronger team (than won the Cup)," he says. "No question about it, we weren't able to compile this kind of a (regular-season) record with the Stanley Cup team. We have more offense, our defense should be a little better and the goaltending is better than it was back then."

Actually, this year's team is practically the same one that won the Cup in 1986 — only two years older. Back in 1986, the Canadiens had nine rookies in their lineup at various stages of the playoffs.

MANY ARE COMING INTO their own this season, most notably Claude Lemieux, Stephane Richer and Shayne Corson.

"The year we won the Cup, sometimes I wasn't so confident," says Lemieux, a right wing who was among the early-season leaders in the voting for the All-Star team. "I know I am a better hockey player now."

Notes Coach Jean Perron about Richer: "He has been very consistent. He's playing very well on the road. That's something he didn't do before."

For Perron, who was a rookie NHL coach when the Canadiens won their record 23rd Cup in 1986, this year has been a generally comfortable season — no major squabbles among his players, "a dream season," in his words.

He is generally happy with the overall performances of his team, although the specialty teams have not been playing up to par in his opinion.

"There's no question," he says. "The power play has got to get better. But overall, the lines are very stable. Guys want to work. They want to be part of the winning combination."

THE CANADIENS HAVE OVERCOME some problems this year, most notably the injury to All-Star defenseman Larry Robinson. He missed a good part of the early season after breaking a leg in an accident with a polo pony last summer.

But backups such as Mike Lalor and Larry Tracer adequately filled in.

When Rick Green, another veteran defenseman, went down with injury about the same time, Peter Svoboda and Chris Chelios emerged as leaders. Perron called Svoboda "our best defenseman breaking out of our own zone."

Those type of situations, according to left wing Mats Naslund, displayed more than anything what kind of team the Canadiens have this year.

"We're a pretty complete team," he says.

New York Ranger goaltender John Vanbiesbrouck couldn't agree more.

"They have the best checking team in the league," he says. "When it comes to offensive power, Edmonton ranks first. But the Canadiens forwards create a lot of breakaways and their centers are very good. They count on them a lot."

FEW CLUBS IN THE league have the stickhandling ability of the Canadiens, or the speed.

Points out Lemieux: "We have good speed and the best defense in the league to give you the quick release you need for breakaways. We take advantage of our speed."

Last year, goaltenders Patrick Roy and Brian Hayward shared the William Jennings Trophy for fewest goals-against. Their play was a factor as the Canadiens went all the way to the Wales Conference finals against the Philadelphia Flyers before losing a tough, six-game series.

This year, Roy and Hayward find themselves in the same position, leading the NHL in goals-against.

"I think (General Manager) Serge Savard's philosophy of no individual performance bonuses, and a lot of team bonuses, has something to do with it," Hayward said. "Instead of just the goalies and the defense being proud of the defensive record, everybody on the team takes some pride in that."

ONE MORE FACTOR ABOUT the Canadiens that cannot be overlooked: their heritage as the most successful sports franchise in North America.

"It means a lot to us," Smith says. "We're very aware of the great tradition we have and the management does everything it can to make us aware of it.

"They have the oldtimers hanging around the rink. You can look up on the wall and see all the Hall of Famers with those haunting eyes looking down at you, and it's something that we're certainly aware of. I don't think the hockey fans in Montreal would put up with a bad team the way they have in other cities."

Fisk signs one-year deal with the White Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — Carlton Fisk, a 16-year major league veteran, has signed a one-year contract with the Chicago White Sox and is being penciled in as the American League team's starting catcher for 1988, the White Sox announced Friday.

"We have satisfied one of our major needs by signing Carlton Fisk," General Manager Larry Himes said in a statement. "I know that Carlton is happy to be back with the White Sox, and the White Sox are happy to have him on board for 1988."

Terms of the new contract were not disclosed. Fisk, a Chicago area resident who turns 40 on the day after Christmas, had expressed concern a few weeks ago that his contract had not been settled.

Fisk hit .256, with 23 homers and 71 runs batted in last season for Chicago. Last season he became only the third catcher in major league history to hit 300 home runs and have 1,000 RBI.

Fisk is one of three catchers on the White Sox' roster. The other two are Mark Salas, acquired in the Richard Dotson trade with the New York Yankees, and Ron Karkovics, who batted .071 in 39 games and was sent to the minors at mid-summer.

Another catcher, Ron Hassey, spent most of 1987 on the team's injured list and signed recently with the Oakland Athletics.

Laudner accepts terms

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Free agent Tim Laudner on Friday accepted the Minnesota Twins' offer of salary arbitration, returning him to the team's roster for next year.

Laudner, a catcher, batted .191 with 16 home runs and 43 runs batted in last season. He hit .318 with one homer and four RBI in the Twins' World Series championship victory over St. Louis.

Phils sign Palmer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Right-handed pitcher Dave Palmer, a free agent who played with the Atlanta Braves last season, Friday signed a one-year contract with the Philadelphia Phillies, saying he wanted to play with a team that had a chance of winning the National League pennant.

Salary terms were not disclosed, but during the 1987 season, Palmer, who had an 8-11 record, was paid $725,000 by Atlanta.

Phillies President Bill Giles said Palmer would be getting "less than $1 million."

Palmer injured his left arm when he slipped while backing up third base last season and was out for a month. He was examined by the Phillies physician shortly before the signing, and Giles said, "He was given a clean bill of health."

"This is the only team that contacted me," Palmer said. "I decided I wanted to be on a team that had a shot at winning it all and that's why I picked the Phillies."

Mats Wilander of Sweden watches his serve. Wilander beat Ramesh Krishnan of India in their Davis Cup final match Friday, 6-4, 6-1, 6-3.

Sweden leads Davis Cup final

By Stephan Nasstrom

GOTEBORG, Sweden — The first day of the Davis Cup final turned out much as Mats Wilander and most of the rest of the world expected.

Wilander and Anders Jarryd won singles matches against Indian opponents to give Sweden a 2-0 lead after Friday's opening singles matches. Saturday's doubles could decide the best-of-5 cup final.

Wilander, who has beaten Ramesh Krishnan on clay, grass and hardcourt in their last three matches since 1985, picked up another one on indoor clay as he prevailed 6-4, 6-1, 6-3 over India's top player.

Jarryd, making his Davis Cup final debut in singles, also won in straight sets, coasting to a 6-3, 6-3, 6-1 victory over part-timer Vijay Amritraj before a near-capacity crowd of 12,000 at the Scandinavium Arena.

Wilander, who did not play last year's final in Australia because he was getting married only a few days later in South Africa, said it was important for him to get a good start.

"The match turned out as I expected," he said. "The beginning was very important, when I broke him early. It put him off a little bit and he didn't get into his rhythm."

"I was serving very well and I put him under pressure. It was important to serve well, because the balls were very fast, and I had some problems with my ground strokes."

Amritraj, 34-year-old Indian playing captain and one of the game's most elegant shotmakers, had not played on clay for three years. It showed.

It was his eighth setback in as many matches against Jarryd, dating back to a tournament in Bangkok six years ago.

Sweden, playing its fifth straight Davis Cup final, can clinch its fourth triumph by winning the doubles on Saturday. Sweden won the cup for the first time in 1975, when the retired superstar Bjorn Borg was on the team, and again in 1984-85.

Wilander was never really challenged by Krishnan. The Swede, one of the world's top clay court players and a former two-time French Open champion, proved far too steady from the baseline.

He also served well. He was broken only once during the match, that lasted less than two hours.

"He was always a step ahead of me," said Krishnan. "The surface makes it tougher for me."

Baird, Johnson in golf lead

MONTEGO BAY, Jamaica (AP) — Senior PGA Tour player Butch Baird and LPGA player Chris Johnson combined for a 7-under-par 64 and a one-shot lead after the opening round off the Mazda Champions team tournament Friday at the Tryall Golf and Beach Club.

Two teams — Arnold Palmer and Colleen Walker, and Miller Barber and Nancy Lopez — were tied at 65. Baird and Johnson shot bogeyless golf. Baird made five birdies and Johnson two over the par-71 course. The course measures 6,407 for the men and 6,296 for women.

Baird won $249,731 in 1987 on the Senior Tour.

"Most everything went our way today," Baird said. "When I was out of a hole, Chris was right there. We didn't go out with a number in mind, but we'll certainly take 64 everyday."

Palmer had one of his best putting rounds of the year. He made five birdies, including two with putts of more than 15 feet.

"I made the birdies, but she (Walker) made the pars that kept the spirit of the team alive," Palmer said.

The Barber-Lopez team was one shot behind despite the fact they both bogeyed the par-3 fourth hole.

In the tournament, each player plays his or her own ball with the best score counting toward the team total. The second round of the 54-hole event continues Saturday.

I-AA grid championship is at stake

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP) — Northeast Louisiana played well enough to win its last two NCAA I-AA playoff games, but the Indians will have to do better in Saturday's championship game against Marshall.

"The last two weeks we haven't been playing up to par," defensive tackle Claude Brumfield said of the line's performance. "We have to play well against a team like Marshall. Defensively, we have to feel them out early, but play hard and attack from the beginning."

The Indians will be concentrating on Marshall quarterback Tony Petersen in the game at the Idaho State Minidome.

Petersen also has something to prove. Last week, Marshall gained revenge for a loss to Appalachian State this year, but Petersen won't be satisfied until the Thundering Herd wins one more game. "We didn't win the Southern Conference, which we were looking forward to doing," Petersen said.

"Now we've got a chance to redeem ourselves and become national champions."

In many ways, the Thundering Herd already has made up for past errors.

The team that once was 2-3 and lost the conference title Nov. 7 in a 17-10 loss to Appalachian State earned a spot in the final with a 24-10 victory last week in a rematch.

Canadiens, Sabres in 2-2 tie

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Buffalo Sabres goalie Jacques Cloutier, making his first start since mid-November, made several glittering saves in the third period Friday night to preserve a 2-2 NHL tie with the Adams Division-leading Montreal Canadiens.

Cloutier, who was credited with 39 saves, stopped Bobby Smith from in close two times and Ryan Walter from the slot during a Montreal power play midway through the final period, in which the Canadiens outshot Buffalo 18-3.

Claude Lemieux scored both Montreal goals, with assists on both goals going to Smith and Larry Robinson. The Canadiens, atop the NHL with 48 points, are unbeaten in their last nine games.

Richie Dunn and Phil Housley scored for the Sabres, who are 20 points behind Montreal in fourth place in the Adams Division.

Buffalo rookie Pierre Turgeon had the best chance in overtime, breaking in alone from the blue line before shooting the puck over the net.

Lemieux put Montreal ahead 2-1 on identical set-ups from Smith in the first and second periods, but Housley tied it in the second period

DETROIT (AP) — Bob Probert's power-play goal 3:09 into the final period snapped a tie Friday night and ignited a five-goal third period that carried the Detroit Red Wings to an 8-3 NHL victory over the Minnesota North Stars.

The game featured a near-brawl in which Detroit Coach Jacques Demers had to be restrained on the Red Wings' bench when he tried to get at Minnesota Coach Herb Brooks.

Gerard Gallant scored three times for Detroit, which raised its Norris Division-leading mark to 15-12-4. Brian Bellows scored his 21st and 22nd goals for Minnesota, which suffered its fourth straight defeat.

Probert, who leads Detroit with five game-winning goals, poked a rebound past Minnesota goaltender Kari Takko for his 14th goal to break a 3-3 tie. Gallant added a pair of third-period goals and Tim Higgins and Mike O'Connell one each as the Red Wings pulled away.

The teams were tied 2-2 after one period before Gallant scored at 7:05 of the second period. Gallant took a pass near his own blueline, skated into the Minnesota zone and went around defenseman Al Tuer before tucking the puck between the pads of North Stars netminder Kari Takko.

Capitals 4, Leafs 2

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Dave Christian, who had two goals, and Scott Stevens scored 3:07 apart in the second period and the Washington Capitals held the Toronto Maple Leafs to 18 shots in a 4-2 NHL victory Friday night.

Christian took a centering pass from Peter Sundstrom, split two defensemen, and flipped a backhand past Toronto goalie Allan Bester with 9:27 left in the second period.

Stevens scored a short-handed goal on a slapshot from the blueline 3:07 later, putting Washington ahead 3-1.

NBA Roundup

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Craig Ehlo had 19 points, and Cleveland scored seven consecutive points in the final minute Friday night to clinch a 103-94 NBA victory over the New Jersey Nets.

The Nets lost for the 13th time in their last 14 games and fell to 3-17 for the season, including 0-8 on the road.

Cleveland led 77-69 entering the final quarter and took a 10-point lead on a jumper by Tyrone Corbin, but the Nets narrowed the lead to four points on four occasions, the last time at 96-92 on Ben Coleman's basket with 1:03 remaining.

Dell Curry, who scored 18 points, hit his third 20-foot jumper of the quarter with 46 seconds remaining, and Kevin Johnson followed with a three-point play. Brad Daugherty's dunk ensured the Cleveland victory.

The game was tied 49-49 at halftime before Cleveland surged ahead behind John Williams' nine points and seven by Ehlo in the third quarter.

Coleman scored eight of his 18 points in the final quarter to keep New Jersey close. Mike Gminski also scored 18 points for the Nets.

Pacers 121, Jazz 97

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — John Long scored 20 points Friday night, including nine straight in the third quarter, as the Indiana Pacers broke a three-game NBA losing streak with a 121-97 victory over the Utah Jazz Friday night.

Indiana led 57-50 at halftime and increased its margin to 64-52 early in the third quarter on a 20-foot jumper by Chuck Person, who led the Pacers with 22 points.

The Jazz then outscored the Pacers 12-4 in the next 3 1/2 minutes, led by Karl Malone and Thurl Bailey with four each, to cut the deficit to 68-64.

Long then scored all of Indiana's points in a 9-2 run, giving the Pacers a 77-66 lead with 2:08 left in the third period.

Steve Stipanovich scored 19 points and Wayman Tisdale 17 for Indiana, and both players had 11 rebounds.

Utah was led by Malone with 20 points. Mark Eaton and John Stockton added 13 apiece.

Pistons 117, Mavericks 112

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Isiah Thomas made five 3-point goals and scored 20 of his 24 points in the first half Friday night, lifting the Detroit Pistons to their eighth consecutive victory, a 117-112 triumph over the Dallas Mavericks.

Thomas set a team record for 3-point field goals in a half and Adrian Dantley finished with 28 points as the Pistons improved their record to 15-5, best in the NBA. Mark Aguirre led Dallas with 35 points, including five 3-pointers.

Thomas' fifth 3-pointer started a 14-7 run midway through the second quarter that gave Detroit a 54-42 lead.

Aguirre fouled out with 4:13 left in the game and Dantley was ejected with two technical fouls with 48 seconds remaining.

Joe Dumars scored 18 points and Laimbeer had 16 points and 15 rebounds for the Pistons. Harper and Rolando Fernandez scored 18 points each for Dallas.

Spurs 133, Nuggets 114

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Forward Walter Berry scored a career-high 30 points and Frank Brickowski added 23 as the San Antonio Spurs defeated the Denver Nuggets 133-114 in NBA play Friday night.

The Spurs, who took control of the game early in the second quarter, led by as many as 23 points late in the fourth. The Spurs have now won eight consecutive games at home, but have lost the last five on the road.

Denver's Alex English led all scorers with a season-high 37 points, and the Nuggets' Lafayette Lever scored 18.

Johnny Dawkins came back from an ankle injury to score 20 and Alvin Robertson scored 17 as the Spurs out-rebounded the Nuggets 66-44.

Denver took the charge early, but San Antonio came back taking the lead at the end of the first quarter, 33-32, and finished the half ahead 68-56.

Cheney Tech wins opener

After a case of opening-night jitters, Cheney Tech got things together in the second half and registered a 52-43 victory over Bacon Academy in Charter Oak Conference boys' basketball action Friday night.

The loss drops the Bobcats to 0-2 for the season. "It seemed we tried to get the ball to Terrance (Phillip) with the first pass," Cheney Coach Aaron Silvia described the Techmen's first-half offense. "They'd get flustered and lose the ball. It wasn't much of an offense," he admitted.

Bacon was able to move to a 24-18 halftime lead after the clubs deadlocked at 8-apiece after one quarter. Phillip was in foul trouble and sat out most of the opening half with three personals.

The second half was another story for Cheney. "(Freshman Anthony) Evans showed a lot more control in the second half. We moved the ball side to side until we eventually could find Terrance," Silvia said.

The Beavers, who still trailed after three quarters, 34-33, were able to take control in the closing minutes. Phillip had 7 of his team-high 16 points in the fourth quarter while Evans had 6 of his 10 points, including a three-pointer. "That gave us a little space," Silvia said. "Defensively, we scratched and clawed until we got back into it."

Phillip had 10 rebounds for Cheney. John Parsons added 9 points for the Beavers.

Larry Curran paced Bacon with 16 points. Cheney's next game is Wednesday night at 7:30 against RHAM High in Hebron.

The Indians shot 5-for-18 in the first quarter after which they trailed, 18-15. Allen had 10 of his 17 first-half points in the opening stanza. Two free throws by senior co-captain Troy Peters gave Manchester its first lead (19-18) with 7:47 left in the first half. An Allen three-pointer five seconds before intermission provided the Whippets with a 33-30 halftime lead.

Windham erupted during the third quarter behind 13 Allen points (three 3-pointers) and outscored Manchester, 19-4, to take a commanding 52-36 lead with 2:25 left in the stanza. The Indians trailed, 56-43, heading into the final quarter.

"I thought our defense was sound," Curland said. "We were containing their big people inside." Three-point plays by Goddard and junior Calvin Meggett closed the gap to 62-55 with 5:58 left. The Indian fullcourt pressure finally got to the Whippets. "We were fatigued," Curland explained. Junior Cory Goldston's steal and layup with 3:26 left brought Manchester to within three, 64-61.

After a steal by Junior Paris Oates, Vaughn was fouled and converted two free throws and Manchester was within one, 64-63, with 2:50 left. A Vaughn steal with 52 seconds left again inched the Indians within one, 72-71.

"He (Vaughn) did a great job bringing us back," Kinel said. "Jason (Goddard) was a madman (on the boards)."

Then it was Vaughn's three-pointer which tied the game. "He (Vaughn) was able to shake himself loose and hit the shot," Kinel said.

Oates added 12 points for Manchester. Morales and Bob Turner added 11 and 10 points, respectively, for Windham. Only four Whippets hit the scoring column. Manchester was 17-for-29 from the field in the second half.

The Indians' next game is Wednesday night at 7:30 when they host Glastonbury High.

Detrick forced out of coaching

NEW BRITAIN (AP) — Bill Detrick, head basketball coach at Central Connecticut State University for 29 years, announced Friday that medical problems forced him to give up coaching for the rest of the season.

The university named Charles Jones, an assistant coach since 1969, to replace Detrick.

Detrick, 60, said tests Thursday revealed he has a heart problem "at peak stress."

"My cardiologist urged that I take the rest of the season off from basketball," Detrick said. "By the early spring I hope to re-evaluate my situation and decide what the future holds."

Detrick has a record of 465-266 at Central. He will continue to serve as the university's interim director of athletics.

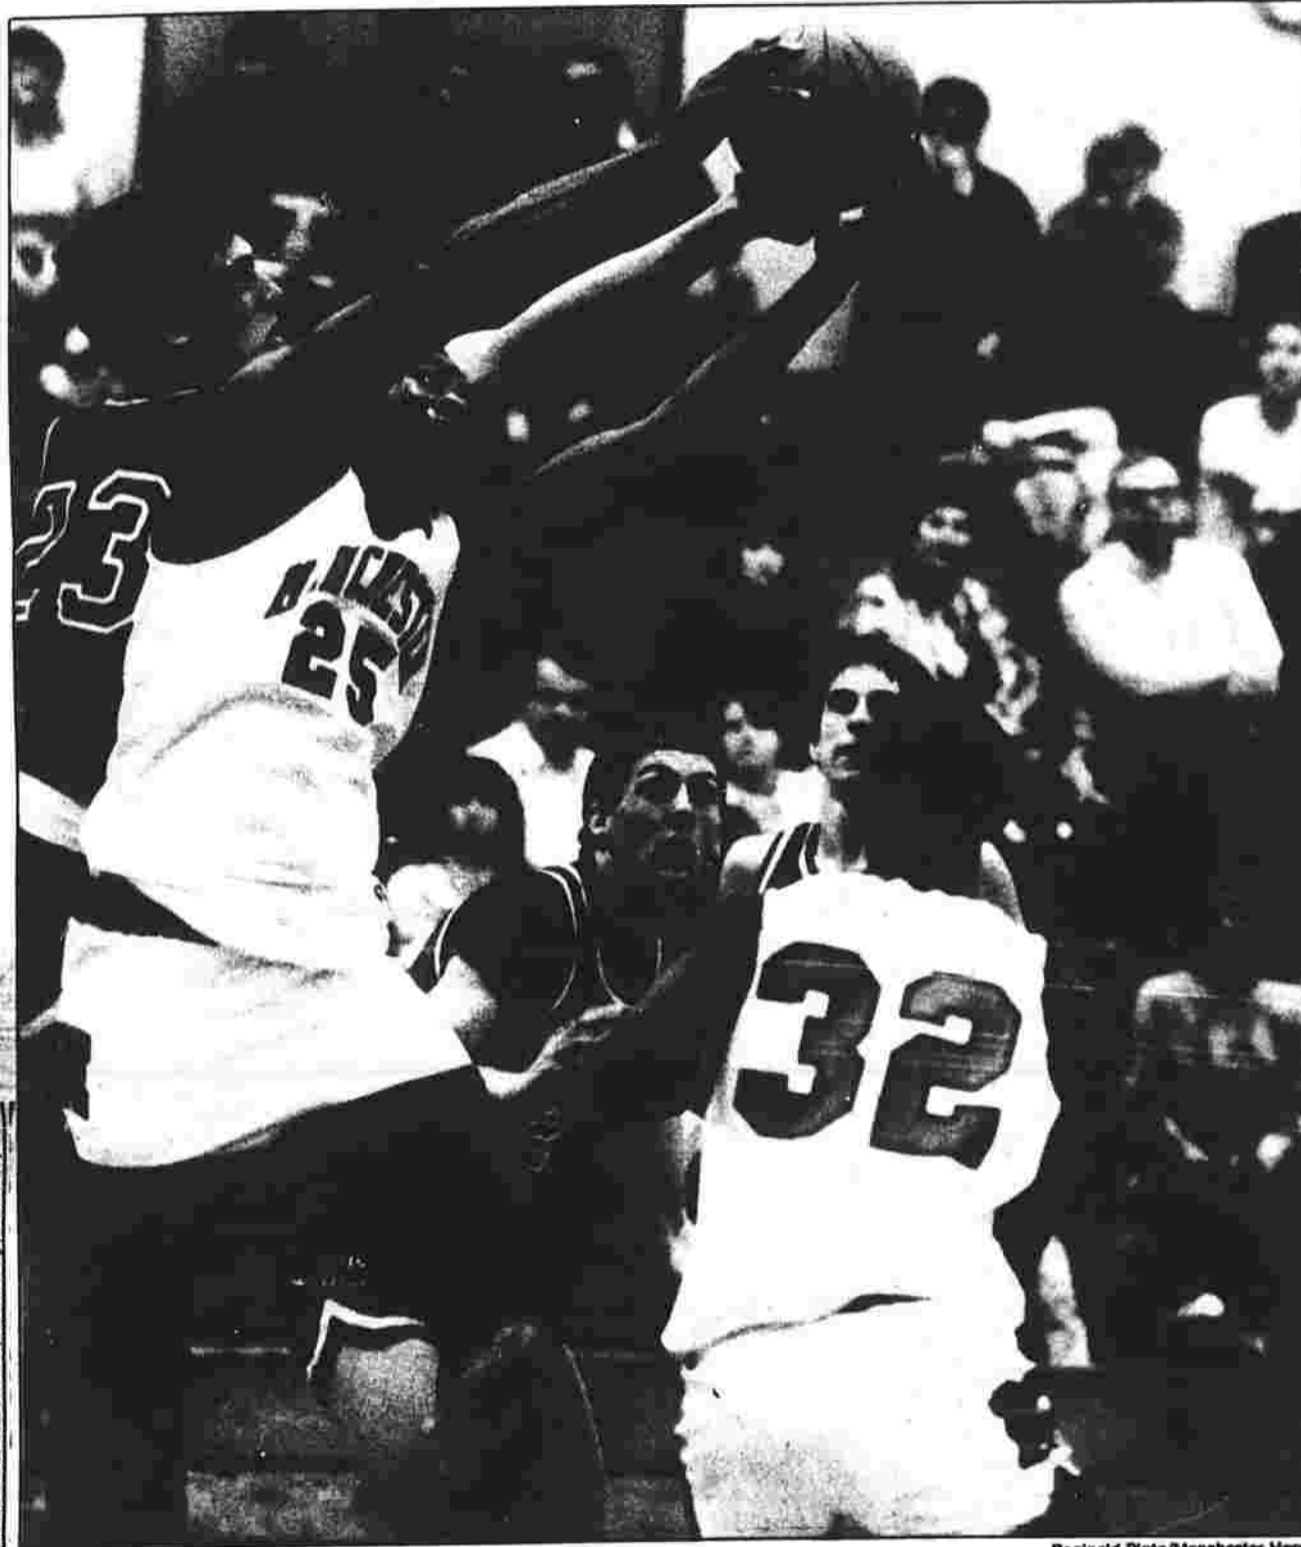

Central's next game is next Tuesday against the University of Connecticut in Storrs. The Division I team is 2-3 so far this season.

Opening games don't get any better than Friday night's Central Connecticut Conference East Division clash between the Manchester High and Windham High boys' basketball contingents.

With an abundance of confidence as they entered this 1987-88 campaign, the Indians fought back from a 52-36 third-quarter deficit. Junior Jason Goddard's free throw with no time left on the clock boosted Manchester to a scintillating 75-74 victory over the visiting Whippets at Clarke Arena.

Senior co-captain Matt Vaughn, who scored a team-high 26 points, had finally knotted the affair at 74-all with 18 seconds remaining with his fifth three-pointer of the night. "The kid (Vaughn) hit a great three-pointer," Windham Coach Neal Curland said.

On the ensuing inbounds pass Windham senior Mike Allen, who poured in a game-high 45 points, lost control of the ball and Manchester gained possession with 11 seconds left.

Vaughn received the ball and dribbled to his left to the top of the key and released his shot which caromed off the rim. Goddard corralled the rebound inside and was fouled by Ariel Morales with no time left on the clock. The buzzer, however, had not sounded.

Goddard, with two foul shots, missed the first one. With the Indian faithful on the edge of their seats, Goddard proceeded to sink his second free throw for the 75-74 advantage. Goddard finished with 21 points.

A desperation shot at the buzzer by Windham fell far short. The last lead Manchester had was 24-22 early in the second quarter.

"They (Manchester) deserved to win. It was a great comeback," Curland said. "They have some extremely good offensive rebounders. Goddard killed us last year, too. They really worked hard."

Indian Coach Frank Kinel, emotionally drained after the win, was proud of the way his kids held their composure. "I think the kids thought they could win even when they were way behind," Kinel said. "They never once gave up."

On Goddard's winning foul shot, Kinel said, "He's a consistent foul shooter. When he missed the first one I thought this is the way the game has gone. Nothing is going to come easy."

The first half was fairly even despite Manchester's poor start.
