School posts are lacking in minorities

By Andrew J. Davis
Manchester Herald

The number of minority administrators in Manchester schools is low compared to the rest of the state but the number of women in such positions is slightly higher than the state average.

But an official for the state Department of Education predicts that the vast majority of school administrators in Manchester and elsewhere across the state will continue to be white males.

Manchester School Superintendent James P. Kennedy and others attributed the historically low number of minority applicants for administrative posts in Manchester as one reason why there are no minority administrators here. But the superintendent said there may be minority administrators, and more women, in the next decade.

"I predict a major change in 10 years," Kennedy said. "I think it's going to be a growth industry."

The National Center for Education Information concluded in a recent report that educational administration is top-heavy with white male administrators.

In Manchester, white male administrators total about 76 percent of the 33 administrators while females total about 24 percent. There are no minority administrators in Manchester. Administrators include principals, vice principals and central office administrators.

Statistics compiled by the state Department of Education from the state's 165 school districts report women and minority representation by specific job titles. There are 18.6 percent female principals and 6.7 minority principals. Also, there are 22.5 percent female vice principals and 12.4 percent minority vice principals, according to state figures.

Statewide, there are 15.7 percent female assistant superintendents, while there are 6 percent minority assistant superintendents. There are also 5.8 percent and 1.4 percent female and minority superintendents, respectively, throughout the state.

Eve Hendricks, consultant for sex equity for the state education department, predicts that increases in minority and female representation may be slow. She said the number of male administrators has always been high even though there are many more female teachers.

"I think things are changing a little bit, but not at the speed of light," she said. "There have always been a lot of female teachers. That has not made a difference."

Kennedy said there is potential for an increase in female administrators because the teaching ratio in Manchester is 72 percent female to 28 percent male. Within 10 years, some of the current principals, vice principals, program directors and central office administrators — most of whom are white males — will either retire or change jobs, he said.

Currently, there are two female principals in Manchester: Gail Rowe at Waddell School and Rochelle Abratis at Robertson School. Also, Gwen E. Brooks and Joan C. McGee are vice principals at Manchester High School.

Other female administrators in Manchester schools are: Anne-Louise Fournier, special education supervisor; Marsha Gunther, Bennet Junior High School vice principal; Diane S. Novak, Head Start director; and Barbara Quinby, vocational education director.

Since he was hired 16 years ago, Kennedy said he has made 29 administrative appointments. Twelve women and 17 men have been named to administrative posts in that span, he said.

Only one minority person has been named to an administrative job in those 16 years, Kennedy said. Charles Senteio, now deputy

Grand List, up 31.2%, beats clock

By Alex Grell
Manchester Herald

A new Grand List containing a 36.5 percent increase in real estate assessments was filed hours before a state deadline Monday, assuring that the list is legally valid.

The Grand List, on which the tax bills due July 1 will be based, amounts to about $989,447,000, an increase of 31.2 percent over the last completed Grand List before revaluation, figures released by Town Assessor J. Richard Vincent show.

The new Grand List was completed at midday Monday after about a dozen town employees worked many hours over the weekend. It was filed in the office of the town clerk at 1 p.m. before the deadline set by the state's Office of Policy and Management.

If the deadline had passed, validation of the tax list could have required a special act of the General Assembly.

A summary of the Grand List shows that real estate, valued at 34 percent of its fair market value, accounts for $773,011,000 of the total, an increase of 36.5 percent over the $566,254,000 figure on the 1986 list.

Personal property, which is assessed at 70 percent of market value, accounts for $100,999,000, an increase of 11.1 percent over the $90,934,000 on the 1986 list.

Motor vehicles account for $115,437,000, an increase of 19.1 percent over the $96,940,000 figure for the 1986 list.

Vincent said the real property increases are due to the revaluation and "a very busy year of new construction."

There was no breakdown showing what part of the increase came about from new construction.

He said the personal property increases are due to a good economy with businesses buying new equipment and several new businesses starting. He also said it was a good year for new car sales.

The portion of the Grand List for properties within the Eighth Utilities District, which levies a tax for fire protection and sewer service, is $277,047,675, compared with $212,328,547 for the last list.

Of that total district list, $207,312,335 is for real estate compared with $150,675,031 for the 1986 list. Personal property accounts for $40,099,380 compared with $36,663,720 on the 1986 districtwide list. Motor vehicles

Reagan flies to Europe to reassure worried NATO allies

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan headed for Europe today to assure the NATO allies they will not be left defenseless. He pledged that America will keep its troops in Europe "as long as Europeans want them to stay."

Reagan, as he left the White House for a two-day NATO summit in Belgium, said the session comes at a historic moment for both East and West. "For four decades, the combination of a strong common defense and pursuit of dialogue with the East has been a winning formula for NATO," Reagan said. "It is a combination that can lead us to a future of peace, freedom and prosperity for generations to come."

A throng of teen-age participants in the White House Conference on a Drug-Free America, brought to the diplomatic entrance to give Reagan a sendoff, sang "God Bless America" as the president emerged. Reagan attempted to calm allied fears that the U.S.-Soviet treaty banning medium-range nuclear missiles portends an American abandonment of its long-time commitment to the European democracies.

"That historic agreement was possible because the alliance's steadfast political and military resolve backed up our negotiations with the Soviets," Reagan said.

The NATO allies are also concerned that the force of 326,000 U.S. troops stationed in Europe might be cut due to the U.S. economic budget crunch.

"My Atlantic colleagues and I will rededicate ourselves to maintaining the deterrent that has protected our freedom and prosperity for almost 40 years," Reagan said. "I will repeat to my colleagues my strong conviction that American troops will remain in Europe, under any administration, so long as Europeans want them to stay."

As the first full-scale North Atlantic Treaty Organization summit since 1982, the meeting has been touted as a chance for the 16-nation alliance to evaluate its goals and accentuate its solidarity.

But the summit, Reagan said, will not be held for "self-congratulations." Instead, he said, it will be a time for a rededication to the democratic goals that forged the alliance in 1949 in the face of the spread of Soviet influence in Eastern Europe.

"If our common approach to the East over the years has given coherence to our message of peace and world freedom, it has been our unwavering commitment to defend ourselves that has given it credibility," Reagan said. "Arms reduction can only succeed if it is backed up by a strong defense."

Iraq bombards Iran with blitz of missiles

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iraq said today it fired 14 surface-to-surface missiles of its own design and production into the Iranian capital in a 24-hour blitz lasting late into this afternoon.

Iran vowed revenge and said one Iraqi strike killed 16 people when it struck a Tehran hospital. At least one other fatality was reported in the Iranian capital.

It was the worst escalation of the so-called "war of the cities" that has killed thousands of civilians since 1985. Iran and Iraq have been at war since 1980.

Iraq said it began firing the missiles into Tehran Monday afternoon in retaliation for two pre-dawn missile strikes on Baghdad, the Iraqi capital.

Iran initially reported its capital of 6 million people was under attack by Iraqi warplanes. It later said missiles had struck the city.

One person was killed and several wounded this morning by a missile that destroyed or damaged several houses and shops in Tehran, Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency reported.

IRNA said at least 16 civilians were killed and dozens wounded, "including newborn babies," when the hospital was hit Monday night.

Disclosure is an 'uphill battle' in Enfield corruption argument

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Manchester Herald

HARTFORD — Associate Supreme Court Justice T. Clark Hull said this morning that an attorney arguing for disclosure of grand jury documents relating to a corruption case, involving the former chairman of the Enfield Planning and Zoning Commission and two Manchester businessmen was fighting an "uphill battle."

The Connecticut Supreme Court heard oral arguments this morning on what standards should apply for the release of the documents.

The trial of six men charged in the probe, including developer Neil Ellis and former Manchester Board of Education Chairman Leonard Seader, has been on hold since last April, pending resolution of this question.

Manchester attorney Dominic Squatrito, representing the Journal Inquirer in its efforts to have the information disclosed, argued that a 1985 law changing the grand jury proceedings established a new standard for disclosure of the documents — "public interest."

Ellis, whose attorneys have been fighting the disclosure, owns the Journal Inquirer.

Attorneys representing Ellis, Seader and the state argued that information should be released on the basis of "particularized need," a point considered difficult to prove. They argued that the "public interest" does not necessarily mean disclosure.

"The public has as much interest in the effective prosecution of a crime as it does in knowing what is going on," said Assistant State's Attorney John M. Massameno.

X-ray school is hard work

By Andrew J. Davis
Manchester Herald

It's not as easy as it looks. For the students who are enrolled at Manchester Memorial Hospital's X-ray school, learning how to be an X-ray technician is a little harder than pushing a few buttons on an over-sized machine. It is two years of intense studying and training.

"It is a lot of education," said Fran Dressler, program director. "People don't understand (that). There's a lot more to it."

Students spend between 4,000 to 5,000 hours in the classroom and in clinical work. Dressler said. Students must learn physics, how to position patients, and develop film, she said.

Applications are being taken for classes beginning in October. The class costs $400 per year, with an additional $350 for books, she said.

To qualify, an applicant must be a high school graduate, have passed basic algebra and two science courses with at least a "C."

Only seven applicants are accepted into the program, which was started about 25 years ago, Dressler said. About 15 people apply a year, she said.

Hartford Hospital, Mount Sinai Hospital, and Windham Community Memorial Hospital have similar programs.

The program is not like most colleges, where students have a number of vacations and holidays. Students only have two weeks of vacation a year, Dressler said.

During their 24 months of study, students become more and more accustomed to dealing with patients and learning the ins and outs of X-rays. It will take months, though, before a student is allowed to X-ray a patient, John Myers, an X-ray technician, said.

"We start from ground one and build up to the person," he said. "It's a very gradual thing. Students are never put out on a limb." Students first learn to X-ray areas such as the abdomen, which is simple and a common practice, Myers said.

David Kool/Manchester Herald

there are only a few part-time openings available at Manchester Memorial Hospital, Dressler said. There are many hospitals in need of technicians.

The average starting salary for an X-ray technician is between $18,000 to $20,000, Dressler said.

"It's great for the students. They have their choice of jobs," she said. For students Corinne Moynihan and Crystal Warn, the high availability of jobs was one of the overriding reasons for entering the program. The students said they loved the challenge and diversity of the training.

Both Filbert and Beck said the new pay scale will make the hospital competitive with other health care facilities. That is important because many nurses are leaving hospitals to take jobs with insurance companies or in doctors' offices, she said.

Also, Filbert said she hopes the proposed pay scale will keep nurses at the hospital while attracting new ones there. The hospital currently has about 20 openings. The full staff is 200 to 250 nurses.

The hospital opened negotiations with the union on Jan. 25, Beck said. He said the talks were open because non-union hospitals have provided increases in salaries and benefits to their employees over the last year.

Nurses to vote Thursday

By Andrew J. Davis
Manchester Herald

Manchester Memorial Hospital nurses will vote Thursday on whether to accept a new contract proposal, a week after a tentative agreement was reached with the hospital, said Barbara Sloan, secretary for the Federation of Nurses and Health Professionals union.

Voting will take place throughout the day until 5 p.m., she said. The union reached a tentative agreement with the hospital Wednesday. Andrew A. Beck, director of public relations at the hospital has said.

Gloria Filbert, head of the nurses union, said the contract calls for a "substantial" increase in pay. However, neither she or Beck would release details of the contract until Thursday's vote.

Under the current contract, the starting pay for registered nurses is $11 an hour. The top pay level is $13.28 an hour under a two-year agreement that was to expire June 30.

Both Filbert and Beck said the new pay scale will make the hospital competitive with other health care facilities. That is important because many nurses are leaving hospitals to take jobs with insurance companies or in doctors' offices, she said.

Black History Month luncheon

More than 40 prominent community black leaders celebrated the end of Black History Month on Monday with a special luncheon hosted by Manchester Community College, said Andy Paterna, director of admissions.

The luncheon was hosted by the admissions office. Also, about 10 college officials including President Jonathan M. Daube attended the luncheon.

Among the community leaders that attended were: Bernice Cobb, member of the Manchester Board of Education; David Dampier, Economic Industrial and Development Commission member and former member of the Manchester school board; and Ronald Williams, assistant executive director for Regional Community Colleges.

The luncheon was the finale of a host of activities sponsored by the college and college organizations for Black History Month, said Judy Geis, public relations director at the college. Among the activities were: an exhibit of prominent black women, which was located in the college lobby; a dance and discussion on civil rights by the Minority Student Alliance and Minority Caucus; and a speech by South African Leslie Liddell on the efforts to end apartheid.

Supplying water to Vernon, asbestos work on agenda

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Manchester Herald

A contract to provide water service to 25 homes in Vernon and an allocation of $19,000 to pay for an asbestos study of town buildings are among the items on the agenda for the Board of Directors' meetings this month.

The directors' first meeting this month is tonight at 7:30 in the hearing room at Lincoln Center. Under the proposal for water service, the town would provide water as an agent to the Connecticut Water Co. for the 25 homes, which are located in the area about the Manchester town line between Deer Run Trail and Lake Street.

Robert J. Young, the town's water and sewer administrator, said in a memorandum that the water service would require 6,000 gallons of water per day. The service was requested by developer Donald Fish, who is building the subdivision.

Town Manager Robert B. Weiss said Monday he expects that the town would provide the water service only temporarily.

The $19,000 cost of the asbestos survey would cover the examination of 42 town buildings to determine the amount of asbestos in each building and the need for removal or encapsulation.

Health Director Ronald Krantz has recommended that the town award a contract to the company which has submitted the lowest cost estimate for the work, EnviroMed of West Hartford.

Another proposal for the same work was $22,500, submitted by EnviroScience Consultants of Newington.

Also on the agenda is a contract between the town and about 100 public works employees. The Board of Directors, however, is not scheduled to act on that item until next week. The public works employees are to vote on a tentative agreement with the town later this week, according to Assistant Town Manager Steven B. Werber.

The workers, members of Local 991 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, have been without a contract since June 30, when a three-year contract expired. Werber has refused to discuss details of the new contract agreement.

Coventry Grand List up 7.7%

COVENTRY — The town's Grand List as of October 1987 totaled $180,153,823, an increase of 7.7 percent over the previous year, Assistant Assessor Louise Bouville said today.

The Grand List is the total assessment of taxable real and personal property from which the town draws revenue for running government.

Real estate assessments alone increased 9.5 percent, to $152,780,950. Motor vehicle assessments increased 8 percent, to $22,265,210. Personal property assessments declined by three thousandths of a percent to $5,651,723.

The figures broken down do not add up to the total because the individual figure for real estate includes exemptions not included in the total.

The top property owners for real estate are: American Electric Light and Power, $1,687,950; Moser Farms, $589,200; Friland Estates, $542,286; Algonquin Gas Transportation, $413,916; Mark Lavitt, $343,210; City Place Associates, $312,770; Pai Ki Tai, $287,916; Leona and Alice Gilglio, $278,690; and Herman and Anette Fréchet, $273,970.

Larson Co. of Manchester, presented studies showing the decibel levels of each type of unit, something board members said they wanted to see at the first hearing.

"The noise transmission is probably in the neighborhood of 50 percent quieter than the air-cooled (units)," Mongillo said.

Reale asked for an example of how loud the new units would be. "At 50 feet (from the unit) I hear an average radio, or do I hear artillery fire?" he asked.

"At 150 feet, you're going to hear a little bit less than an average radio," Mongillo said.

Mongillo said noise would be further reduced by the retaining wall and landscaping that would be installed around the trough. The eight-foot high units would be surrounded by two nine-foot high retaining walls, which would be surrounded with sound-deadening trees, Liistro said.

Reale and Moran said they were pleased with the proposed new units. "I find they made a great deal of improvement," Moran said. "Under the changes, I would go along with it," Reale said.

'Cafe' liquor license OK'd for country club

By Nancy Conzelman
Manchester Herald

The Zoning Board of Appeals Monday unanimously approved a variance that will allow the Manchester Country Club to get a cafe liquor license, using arguments from opponents of the club's request as grounds to approve the variance.

Manchester Country Club Inc., a private organization which owns the clubhouse and leases the golf course from the town, received a restaurant liquor permit in 1984, but hasn't complied with that use, according to the club owners. But at a meeting who opposed the variance request at the hearing, the state liquor commission charged the club last year with not operating as a restaurant, which requires serving hot meals at regular hours at least six days a week, according to Allan Thomas, a Manchester attorney representing the club.

ZBA Chairman Edward Hachodourian said that because the club's function as a cafe hadn't changed since 1984, when it applied for a restaurant liquor permit, it should be classified as a cafe. He said testimony from the former members of the club proved that the club had never functioned as a restaurant.

THOMAS SAID if the variance were denied, the club could either abandon its liquor license, a move that would create problems because of the number of wedding receptions and dinners the club handles in its banquet facilities, or increase its hours and comply with requirements for a restaurant. "That (the restaurant use) is not the basic use of the Manchester Country Club," Thomas said. "It is first and foremost a golf course."

Thomas argued that the club's function as a golf course and cafe hadn't changed since 1964, and the hardship faced by the club was the change in liquor laws that required a separate cafe license for certain functions.

Members of the Zoning Board of Appeals agreed, after hearing arguments from two opponents.

Before a permit could be granted by the commission, the club was required to get approval from the Zoning Board of Appeals after a public hearing.

The board granted the variance, which would allow the club to change its use from restaurant to cafe, despite objections from two residents and their attorney who argued that the club should not change its use, but change its function to comply with the restaurant permit, something the club doesn't want to do, Thomas said.

Residents William Ogden, of 157 Branford St., and William Hooker, of 77 Erie St., represented by Manchester attorney Martin Wheeler, argued that the club didn't show that it will face a hardship if the variance weren't granted.

"The point of a variance is not to help parties deal with a problem from a difficult situation," Wheeler said. "In order to get a variance, you have to show hardship. The hardship must arise from events beyond the control of the applicant. The applicant is saying, 'we don't want to have a restaurant.'"

Hachodourian said that arguments on whether the club should be a cafe or restaurant should be decided by the Board of Directors, who will consider renewing the club's lease with the town in 1991, when the current lease expires.

"The hearing has virtually nothing to do with those questions," he said. "Those are the questions that are before the Board of Directors. To me the issue is allowing the country club to continue its operation... in the same way it has."

Fire officials have determined that a fire which gutted a construction trailer Sunday was caused by the improper wrapping of electrical tape around inside piping, said Capt. Jack Hughes of the Town Fire Department.

The 50-foot trailer, which was located near the town sewerage treatment plant near Olcott Street and Love Lane, was destroyed, he said.

Fire officials are investigating and estimate there is about $10,000 worth of damage. The trailer was being used by Metcalf and Eddy Engineers, a national engineering firm, he said.

THE WEATHER

Rain on West Coast, snow in Pennsylvania scattered late Monday from central Oregon coastal areas into northern California. Showers and a few thunderstorms also were reported in southern Nevada, the Great Salt Lake in northern Utah and across south-central Utah.

A few showers and thunderstorms fell in parts of New Mexico and the central Rio Grande Valley of Texas.

Chilly temperatures were reported early today across the upper Great Lakes. Readings were returning to the subzero range across parts of Michigan. Much of the region from northern Minnesota across northern Wisconsin and northern lower Michigan reported temperatures in the single digits and teens.

Much of the nation reported temperatures in the 30s or 40s during the early hours today. Temperatures were in the 50s and 60s from the southern half of Texas through Florida.

Today's forecast called for showers and thunderstorms to continue over the Intermountain West and extend into the central Rockies; showers in California and southern Oregon.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 a.m. EST ranged from a below zero at Pellston, Mich., to 70 at Laredo, Texas.

Puzzles in charting education

Comparisons not simple in reports on progress

Secretary of Education William J. Bennett's wall charts on progress toward excellence in education or lack of progress include some interesting puzzles.

For instance, the charts show that in 1987 New Hampshire was first in Scholastic Aptitude Test scores among 22 states that use SATs as college entrance tests. The charts, which Bennett posted on a wall at a recent news conference, show that New Hampshire was first in 1982, too.

But that same state in 1987 ranked 42nd among the 50 states and the District of Columbia in teacher salaries, the statistic that is presumed to measure a community's dedication to the cause of good schooling. In 1982, New Hampshire ranked 47th in salaries.

Obviously, the buying power of the $22.01 average teacher salary in New Hampshire is greater than it would be in many other states, but the statistics do seem to suggest that teacher salaries alone do not provide the answer to good education, assuming SATs do really measure good education.

New Hampshire has a relatively high dropout rate, 26.7 percent, which puts it in the middle of the states statistically, just where it is in spending per pupil. If the stay-ins can be considered the fit who survive, that may help explain New Hampshire's SAT success.

Connecticut rose sharply in teacher salaries from 1982 to 1987, from 22nd to 17th. At the same time it rose only slightly in SAT score ranking, from 6th to 5th. Of course, it is harder to rise when you are closer to the top.

And in the same period, this state greatly improved its dropout rate. In the last school year, 49 states had a higher dropout rate than Connecticut, compared to 1982 figures, which showed that 20 states had a higher dropout rate than Connecticut.

In the last school year, 10.2 percent of Connecticut's school population dropped out, compared to the 43.2 percent of students in the District of Columbia who dropped out. The District of Columbia had the highest dropout rate in the last school year.

The dropout statistics for 1987 indicate Connecticut's success in getting more of the population to complete high school, which is just as valid an educational objective as preparing students for colleges and universities.

The charts, and the comparisons they encourage, may give some hints about the effectiveness of education from place to place in the nation, but they do not provide a simple, all-encompassing answer.

It's time to reform the welfare system

WASHINGTON — "It would be a wonderful accomplishment for the administration to get a welfare reform which emphasizes that anybody who is able-bodied, including women with children two years old or older — has to work or has to go to training for work."

"In exchange, we will remove the barriers to work such as providing health care to the family that is normally lost in going off welfare. And we will offer child care, transportation, and job training," said N. J. Gov. Thomas Kean, a Republican, summarizing the welfare reform plan that has a good chance of passing Congress after two decades of debate.

"Never has there been such strong consensus on the need for reform." Says who? A statement signed by 48 governors — virtually everyone in Washington for the National Governors' Association meeting — in a letter to Senate Finance Committee Chairman Lloyd Bentsen.

Yet they said that if his committee does not pass the bill "within the next several weeks, this unique opportunity to change the welfare system will be lost. The full congressional calendar and the rush of election year politics will substantially reduce the time for the conference committee to develop a bill that the president will sign."

To emphasize their commitment to the reform, the governors spent an afternoon lobbying their senators. But the problem is not a lack of Senate willingness to support the $2.3 billion welfare reform package that Sen. Pat Moynihan, D-N.Y., has crafted.

Already, there are 50 co-sponsors of his bill. And a different but more costly version has already passed the House.

The problem with welfare reform is not on Capitol Hill, but at the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue — at the White House. When the government met with President Reagan, he said he

"Howard, I'm sure there's a logical reason why a billion dollars worth of Iraqi pipeline is jamming the White House shredder."

Mental gyrations against Israelis

To the Editor:

In the course of human events when a country is founded on the ashes of a holocaust of collective worldly guilt, it is incumbent upon its occupants to create a governmental system wherein all its occupants can achieve peace and harmony. However, when this fledgling country, Israel, is born amidst the continual stated objections of their immediate neighbors, as well as many within its borders, namely, to extinguish its right to existence, then the black and white polarities of "rights" fade into a world of gray realities. It is quite fascinating today to observe the worldly double standard when evaluating Israel. Repeatedly in the world body of the United Nations, as well as in regional bodies, the voice of reason is drowned by the political majorities of anti-Semites. Following the twisted logic of the anti-Zionism resolution from the United Nations, a local example of such mental anti-Israeli gyrations repeats itself in the column of Nicholas Von Hofmann on Feb. 19.

If he were at constant war for the past 40 years, which is the case since the creation of the state of Israel, I wonder how his perceptions would differ. Since its creation 40 years ago, Israel has had to fight for its very survival on a continual basis, through both declared and a continuing terrorist war. When the state was formed, despite reassurances of democracy, many Palestinians fled into the neighboring countries, and eventually were packed into the camps we know of today. Why didn't their Arab brothers accept them and provide assimilation, as has occurred to the Israeli Arabs? Arab citizens in Israel can vote, have representation in the Knesset, have access to all social services, and can go to all the universities. In fact, they have a higher standard of living than most Arabs in Arab nations.

When King Jordan attempted to assimilate the Palestinians during the '70s, he eventually became very frustrated, resulting in the Black September episode. When Arab was brutally murdering Arab, hanging them, raping their wives and children, the woman mildly responded. However, when the Israelis attempt to restore order, in a far more democratic fashion, the world decries it in a loud, clamorous voice. When the Arabs took away Israeli land near their wells, it was perceived as the just spoils of war. By contrast, when the Israelis won the West Bank, Gaza and Sinai, then they are continually referred to as the occupied lands.

Continually, omissions of logic and distortions of reality pervade the treatment of Israel in the press. When Mr. Von Hofmann states "the impossibility of finding 'responsible' Arab leaders within Israel," he goes on to blame Israel for searching for Arab Uncle Toms. However, whenever moderate Arab leadership attempts to emerge, the PLO has systematically assassinated them, instead allowing only radical, anti-Jewish leaders to head the Palestinian movement. Against Arab casualty statistics, when America supported the racial riots of the '60s, then set out

Preachers may emerge as winners

WASHINGTON — The jackpot winners of Super Tuesday's presidential primaries will probably be the two preachers — the Rev. Pat Robertson and Rev. Jesse Jackson.

Neither has scored higher than 15 percent in any poll of the electorate. But the winners on Super Tuesday will be determined by the turnout, not the poll.

Both Robertson and Jackson generate intense loyalty, and their supporters are more likely to participate in the primaries than those of the other candidates.

Until the Iowa caucuses, the news media had largely dismissed the two evangelists as outsiders too isolated to be taken seriously. No one ever thought the GOP walls would crumble before Robertson's trumpet. Jackson was regarded as a radical-at-large, a counterculture hero who would be rejected by the moderate majority.

But last year we began reporting that Robertson and Jackson, despite their small national followings, could win most of the presidential primaries and force themselves on their party conventions. We cited some startling arithmetic: that only 18 percent of the eligible voters bothered to participate in 1984 presidential primaries, that the winning candidates got an average 6.8 percent of the eligible vote, and that Walter Mondale won the Democratic primary in New York state with only 4.7 percent of the registered vote.

We pointed out what this meant: A candidate with a small, dedicated following need turn out only seven or eight of every 100 eligible irregulars to out-vote the other candidates' regulars. In Iowa, Robertson "surprised" the experts by attracting enough irregulars to the GOP caucuses to win second place. In New Hampshire, he had no organization and only a limited evangelical base, and he did poorly. But it's the Southern Bible Belt where Robertson's "invisible army" of Christian soldiers should materialize. Robertson will probably win the South Carolina primary on March 8. This should give him momentum on the eve of Super Tuesday, March 8, when 19 states will choose their convention delegates. Robertson's fundamentalist followers can be found in both political parties. Since party-switching is allowed by most Bible Belt states, many Democrats can be expected to cross over and vote for him. He also has a volunteer organization that can match any other campaign organization down to the precinct level. We also anticipate that Jesse Jackson will be able to round up enough black voters, poor white farmers and factory workers to win several Southern states. He hails from South Carolina and speaks their language. In Iowa and New Hampshire, Jackson proved that he can also appeal to white liberals, intellectuals and workers, particularly those on a slippery economic ground. He has campaigned in all 15 Southern and border states, generating so much free publicity that he hasn't needed to dip deeply into his campaign funds. Our sources say he is so confident of his staying power that he is planning his biggest campaign push in the last of the state primaries — California. If Robertson and Jackson succeed in winning the most delegates, it might look like discrimination should they be rejected at the summer conventions.

Student debt
The taxpayers are holding notes on more than $1 billion in loans to nursing and medical school students. About $127 million worth of the loans are delinquent, according to General Accounting Office investigators. The schools are supposed to act as collection agents, and to make good on the loans when the students fail to pay up. But the system isn't working because the government hasn't established guidelines that determine when loans become delinquent. Because money from repaid loans is used for new loans and grants, the pool of funds for medical and nursing students is dwindling.

Disimilar simulators.
The military services have wasted millions of dollars on the development of electronic devices designed to simulate Soviet weapons and radar systems, according to an investigative report that recently landed on Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci's desk. The biggest problem is inter-service rivalry. Since 1980, for example, the Army, Navy and Air Force have spent more than $561 million to develop six different simulators of a single Soviet air defense system. Duplication of efforts on 23 additional simulators during the same time cost another $600 million.

Reagan's daily meetings are scripted minute by minute

By Susanne M. Schafer

WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan was known during his presidency for his relaxed, folksy ways as a quick study, but nowadays his White House staff leaves nothing to chance, scripting his performance at each meeting from the opening "Welcome to the White House" to the closing "God Bless You."

A peek at background memos prepared for the president reveals that he is provided with an extremely detailed minute-by-minute schedule of the day's meetings and activities, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Reagan is given "suggested talking points," papers that lay out specific greetings he should offer, questions he should ask and closing remarks to be made. Also included are breaks in the copy where the other participants may be called upon to speak. Each event is covered on a separate page, with the time, place, names of the participants and possible type of press coverage, as well as an explanation of why the session is being held.

A 20-page package of memos, dated Feb. 25, was first obtained and reported on by ABC White House correspondent Sam Donaldson, who made them available to The Associated Press. The package included remarks prepared for outside visitors to the White House, ranging from singer Wayne Newton to an interview with Washington Post reporter Lou Cannon.

Absent from the package were any comments prepared for the president's daily top-level staff meeting or national security briefing. The fact that such usually closely guarded scheduling papers or corporate memos are prepared by hands clearly an embarrassment for White House officials.

But some White House staffers dismiss the disclosures with a laugh, contending the paperwork is similar to that provided other high administration officials or corporate officers and is nothing more than the product of an overzealous staff.

"I think the insinuation that President Reagan needs to be told to say 'Goodbye' or 'God Bless You' is a cheap shot," said Elaine Crispin, press secretary to first lady Nancy Reagan. "Anyone who's around the president frequently knows that the best stuff he says at meetings are the things he comes up with on his own. It's unfair and silly to insinuate that he can't function without those papers," said Bauer.

"It's little worker bees who have little jobs to do," said Elaine Crispin, press secretary to first lady Nancy Reagan. "It's not that they're not good at their jobs, it's that they're not good at their jobs."

Reagan was provided with the following script for a 30-minute, 2 p.m. meeting with leaders of Congress who had recently met with North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies about the arms control treaty signed in December:

"Bob (Byrd), I appreciate you and your colleagues coming down today. I know there has been a good deal of discussion in your hearings about the treaty's implications for NATO. On that point, I'm pleased you were able to make this trip together, and Bob, I want to thank you especially for undertaking this and for handling your discussions over so effectively. And I'm really glad that you made it to Turkey. I want to hear about that part of your trip in particular." (Senator Byrd and other senators report on their trip.)

"For the rest together, Reagan was provided with the following "Sequence of Events:"

"11:30 a.m. — You enter Cabinet Room, are introduced by Senator Baker and deliver remarks. At the conclusion of your remarks you open the meeting to discussion. "11:47 a.m. — Rebecca Range will signal the end of the official portion of the meeting. "You move to the end of the Cabinet Room (under President Coolidge's picture) for handshake photos with the participants. "11:50 a.m. — You depart."

How to invest $180,000 for your wife

QUESTION: I have a terminal disease. After all bills are paid, my life insurance will leave my 55-year-old wife with about $180,000. She will also receive $850 monthly, minus income tax and health insurance premiums. But she will have a $750 monthly house payment.

Investors' Guide

William A. Doyle

She is employed by the government, with a salary around $16,500, and plans to work until age 62, when she can retire under the Civil Service plan.

Neither she nor I have any investment knowledge. Can you suggest one, two or three places where she can put the $180,000 and receive monthly dividends or interest, without touching the lump sum?

ANSWER: While there are many places she could invest, for safety and simplicity, my suggestion is for her to put the money into certificates of deposit at banks with Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. coverage or S&Ls with Federal Savings and Insurance Corp. coverage.

Depending on the state of your health, you can help your wife get her finances lined up. You and/or she should check around to learn which banks and S&Ls pay the higher interest and in locations convenient for your wife.

Not that I wrote "two." That's because FDIC and FS&LIC coverage is limited to $100,000 per depositor. She can split the $180,000 between two federally insured institutions with absolute safety.

What would happen if I neglect to include the checking account the efforts you are making on her behalf. And I can't let this go by without commending you for being a caring husband and an exceptionally fine human being.

QUESTION: I receive between $300 and $400 interest on my checking account each year. I have never reported this interest when I file my income tax return. Every other source from which I receive interest or dividends sends a Form 1099 each January, but the bank at which I have the checking account never does.

What would happen if I neglect to include the checking account the efforts you are making on her behalf. And I can't let this go by without commending you for being a caring husband and an exceptionally fine human being.

Macy's makes offer for Federated stores

CINCINNATI (AP) — R.H. Macy & Co. made a surprise bid for Federated Department Stores Inc., throwing into disarray a competing offer by Campeau Corp. for the nation's largest department store operator.

The bid Monday by New York-based Macy's is valued at about $6.6 billion, topping the $6.1 billion offer from Campeau, a Toronto-based department store and real estate company, Federated said in a statement.

Campeau has been trying to buy Federated for more than a month, but Federated's board rejected three successive offers. On Friday, Campeau sweetened its offer and Federated agreed to stop fighting and shut merger talks.

Federated's board met in New York to consider the latest, $6.6-a-share offer from Campeau for all of Federated's 89.6 million common shares outstanding. Macy's offices in New York were closed when Federated announced the proposal, and a spokesman could not be reached for comment.

OPEN FOR BUSINESS — James Wallace shows accessories to Christine DeNino and her son, David, 7, of Willington, and DeNino's mother, Marlon Roscio of South Windsor, Monday at the new Nassau Furniture store.

Index plunges in January, but little fear of recession

By Martin Crutsinger
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The government's chief economic forecasting gauge dropped a sharp 0.6 percent in January, but an upward revision for December eased fears of an imminent recession the Commerce Department said today.

The department reported a month ago that the index had declined 0.2 percent in December after falling in October and November.

Three consecutive monthly declines in the index is the traditional, but not infallible, signal of an impending recession. In today's report, however, the December calculation was revised to show an increase of 0.3 percent.

Source: U.S. Dept. of Commerce

Since it was created in 1948, the index has correctly forecast every recession the country has had with declines for at least three consecutive months. Thus, the revision to December was taken by economists as a heartening sign that the country is unlikely to suffer a downturn this year.

The index has taken on added significance since Oct. 19, when stock prices plunged a record 508 points, eclipsing the 1929 market crash, which preceded the Great Depression.

Since October's steep decline, however, a number of business barometers have shown strength, including continued declines in the unemployment rate. Even the stock market has rallied in recent weeks, climbing more than 48 points on Monday to close at its highest level since the October collapse.

Obituaries

Frederick G. Anton, 97, formerly of Easton, died Sunday in the Danbury Pavilion, Danbury. He was the husband of the late Agnes (Gustafson) Anton and father of Richard Anton of Manchester.

He is also survived by another son, Robert Anton of Monroe; and six grandchildren; five great-grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

Private funeral and burial will be held at the convenience of the family. A memorial service will be held Thursday at 10 a.m. in St. Bridget's Church, Manchester. Larson Funeral Home, 2498 North Ave., Bridgeport, has charge of arrangements.

Memorial donations may be made to a charity of the donor's choice.

Narlik (Turner) Arnold, 49, of Hamden, died Saturday. She was the sister of Margaret Turner of Manchester.

She is also survived by her father, Richard Turner of Hartford; a son, David Arnold of Hamden and his father, Paul Arnold of Hamden; three aunts, Narlik Damadian of West Hartford, Mary Bostandjian of Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, and Susan Parnakyan of Avon; and two cousins.

A memorial service will be held Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. in St. James Episcopal Church, Mountain Road, Farmington, with the Rev. James A. Crowder officiating. There will be no calling hours. The Ahern Funeral Home, 111 Main St., Rte. 4, Unionville, has charge of arrangements.

Memorial donations may be made to the Memorial Fund at St. James Episcopal Church, Farmington 06032.

Clare D. Gaudette, 79, of Belchertown, Mass., formerly of Stafford, died Sunday in Holyoke, Mass. He was the husband of Vivian (Brown) Gaudette and father of Elizabeth Sampson of Coventry and Carol Selsky of Manchester.

Besides his wife and daughters, he is survived by six other children, Catherine Phlips of Springfield, Mass., Hazel Joslyn of Williamstown, Mass., Hazel Joslyn of Williamstown, Mass., and Charles Gaudette at home, a brother, Myron Gaudette of Bloomfield, 32 grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; and two great-great-grandchildren.

The funeral is Thursday at 2 p.m. at the Belchertown Congregational Church. Burial will be in the spring. Calling hours are Wednesday from 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. at the Beers & Story Funeral Home, 16 Maple St., Belchertown, Mass.

FEMALE PRINCIPAL — Gail Rowe, principal of Waddell School, is one of two female principals in the Manchester school system.

school superintendent in Hartford, was principal at Keene Street School from 1978 to 1981.

Rowe said the reason there is a low number of women administrators in Manchester is because many women do not go into administration as a career choice. She said many women choose other high-paying careers or choose to stay in the classroom, where they can teach children.

While there are not a lot of female administrators, Rowe said the shoe is on the other foot when it comes to teaching. There is only one male teacher and a female school psychologist at Waddell. Excluding custodial help, the remaining professional staff is female, she said.

"There are more female teachers. That bothers me," Rowe said. "I'd like to have more male teachers. Maybe I have to make a concerted effort. I think it's worthwhile to have a mix."

Bernice Cobb, the only minority member of the Manchester Board of Education, said the number of minorities in Manchester schools is low because the number of applicants is low. Many minority applicants seem to be attracted to teaching in larger cities where there are more minorities and higher salaries, she said.

"I know Deak" Assistant Superintendent Wilson E. Deak Jr. is always looking," Cobb said. "I don't think it's an issue."

According to state figures, the beginning starting teacher salary in Manchester is $21,996 compared to $21,720 in Hartford. The highest teacher salary in Manchester is $42,423, while it is $45,500 in Hartford.

Ferguson declines to oppose Thompson

By Alex Girelli Manchester Herald

Former Republican Town Director Vivian Ferguson has decided not to run for election as state representative from Manchester's 13th Assembly District. Ferguson announced her decision today.

"After long and careful deliberation, I regretfully decline to run," Ferguson said, reading from a prepared statement. "My present goals in life are such that I would not be able to devote the time and effort necessary to this important office."

Ferguson's decision leaves the Republican Party without an opponent for Rep. John Thompson, D-Manchester.

"This decision has taken a lot of searching since it has always been difficult for me to refuse a call to civic duty," Ferguson said.

Hannon may resign as senior planner

By Nancy Concelman Manchester Herald

Manchester Senior Planner Robert B. Hannon said today he may leave his post at the end of July or middle of August to go to law school and pursue a career in land-use law.

Hannon, 36, was hired as senior planner in September 1986. He said today his resignation depends on whether or not he is accepted to law school in Manhattan, N.Y.

Law school, he said, is "something I've been kicking around and on since high school."

Hannon has a bachelor's degree in urban studies from Washington University in St. Louis and a master's degree in city planning from the Georgia Institute of Technology.

Before coming to Manchester, he had worked as planning director in Woodbury for one year. He also worked as community development coordinator for the Mid-State Regional Planning Agency in Middletown. In that position, he worked on planning, zoning and subdivision plans for a number of towns in the Middletown area.

SPORTS Same old story as Redmen rout UConn

By Len Auster Manchester Herald

HARTFORD — Is it live, or is it Memorex? When watching the University of Connecticut, doesn't it seem like you've seen it all before?

The opponents and venues change, and the scripts do undergo rewrites from time to time, but when "The End" hits the big screen, it's the same old story.

That was the case Monday night at the Civic Center. The Huskies fell behind early — sound familiar? — before making a couple of halting runs at St. John's before eventually succumbing, 77-62, in Big East Conference play.

Most of the crowd of 10,781 was long gone before the final buzzer sounded. Connecticut's 12th loss in 16 Big East affairs. The loss also drops UConn to the 500 mark at 13-13 for the first time since the fourth game of the season.

The Redmen, who had lost three of their last four and were without the services of junior point guard Greg "Bo" Harvey, missed the Redmen's 74-65 loss to Boston College on Saturday, was clad in a blue warm-up suit as he missed his second consecutive game with viral enterogastritis. The Huskies were quick to turn it around and opened a 37-23 halftime bulge.

The Redmen widened their lead to 48-22 at 19:45 and kept it in double figures until 5:18 was left when George's 3-point shot cut it to 60-31. A rebound bucket by freshman Murray Williams, who totaled 13 points and 12 rebounds before fouling out, cut it to 66-30 with 1:56 to go. But a breakaway jam by Matt Brust, who totaled 18 points and 12 rebounds before fouling out, cut it to 66-30 with 1:56 to go.

Leetch debut successful one

NEW YORK (AP) — Whoever place visit probably wasn't a member of the St. Louis Blues.

Over the years, the Blues have visited Madison Square Garden 46 times. They have won three games and tied four, which leaves 39 losses. The latest setback took place Monday night by a 5-2 score.

The Rangers are doing it with defense — and they even added a new face in Brian Leetch, who captained the United States team in the Winter Olympics. They have won three straight games and climbed back into fourth place in the NHL's Patrick Division.

Dream comes true for MHS's J.J. Gorman By Jim Tierney Manchester Herald

J.J. Gorman has a vivid recollection of when he was six years old gazing up at the Manchester High School swimming records located inside the Indian pool.

get it back on our power play." John Grodnick started the scoring with his 7th goal of the season at the seven-minute mark when his 35-foot slapshot from the top of the left faceoff circle beat St. Louis goalie Rick Wamsley on the stick side. Sandstrom made it 2-0 with the Rangers a man up at 17:58 when he redirected Steve Maciver's pass from the right side.

Sandstrom got another power-play goal 20 seconds into the second period on the rebound of Wall Poddubny's shot. It was his 22nd goal of the season.

After Kisio made it 4-0 at 2:59 with a backhand, Cliff Ronning scored St. Louis' first goal at 10:34 from a scramble in front of the net. Kisio got his second goal and 19th of the season at 12:15 when he tipped in David Shaw's 50-foot shot from the point. Mark Hunter of the Blues completed the scoring with 1:51 left in the game.

"The guys played a great team game tonight and Johnny (Vanbiesbroeck) was there to back us up," Kisio said.

Unbeknownst to Gorman was the fact that 11 years later, in his senior year at Manchester High, he would vanquish that enviable mark along with one other longstanding record, in his ultimate scholastic swimming campaign which can only be termed 'perfect'.

Sixers play beat the clock

By The Associated Press

The Philadelphia 76ers beat the clock, but only after their timekeeper held back the second hand.

Gerald Henderson's driving layup at the buzzer Monday night gave Philadelphia a 102-101 victory over the Chicago Bulls. But with four seconds left time stood still.

Or at least the clock did. With four seconds remaining, the Bulls' Horace Grant missed a free throw. Mike Gminski grabbed the rebound and the Sixers called time.

"The clock still read four seconds," Grant said. "I'm going to protest the game."

Collins protested at the scorer's table when Henderson scored to win the game. Collins charged the table and had to be restrained by his assistants.

"If the clock shows four seconds, it could be a few seconds and the clock doesn't start until someone touches the ball," timer Jack Garske said. "I said I never started it and that's not true."

Two Sixers, Gminski and Charles Barkley, agreed that Philadelphia should not have gotten four seconds for the final shot.

"I got a hand on it and tipped it to Mike," Barkley said. "The ball got tipped over to me, but funny things happen at some," Gminski said. "I saw I wasn't going to go over and plead Doug's case for him."

In other games, the Dallas beat Denver 123-86. Washington beat Golden State 110-105. Utah beat Sacramento 115-110 and Portland beat Cleveland 107-94. Henderson said the drive for

The final basket also was a mistake. "The play wasn't designed like it happened," he said. "Charles was the first option. I tried to get as close as I could and a couple of their guys had their backs turned, looking for Barkley."

"Obviously Henderson made a super play," Philadelphia Coach Jim Lynnam said. "Whoever was guarding him got lost in traffic."

Grant's jumper at the start of the fourth quarter gave Chicago a 92-78 lead. But neither team led by more than three points thereafter.

Mavs 123, Nuggets 86
Roy Tarpley scored six points during a 16-fourth-quarter spurt as Dallas won a club-record ninth consecutive game.

Rolando Blackman also had six points during the streak, which pushed Dallas from an 85-85 tie to a 103-88 lead with 5:49 left.

Tarpley finished with 15 points and 12 rebounds. Earlier in the day he was named NBA Player of the Week.

"Like Tony the Tiger says, 'It's great,'" Tarpley said of his award. "My goal is just to try and be consistent and to excel."

Mark Aguirre scored 23 points and Sam Perkins added 21 for Dallas, which extended its Midwest Division lead over Denver to 4½ games. Danny Schayes scored 21 points and Michael Adams 20 for the Nuggets.

Bullets 110, Warriors 105
Moses Malone scored 33 points, including 10 in a 14-6 run at the start of the third quarter to lead Washington to its third consecutive victory. Washington went ahead 64-53 with the burst over the first six minutes of the second half and ahead the rest of the way.

"We came out a little bit stronger in the third quarter and were able to maintain a nine-point lead. That was the key," Bulls' Coach Wes Unseld said.

"We've gotten big games out of a couple of guys lately. The last few games, it was Jeff Malone, and tonight it was Moses."

Jazz 115, Kings 110
Karl Malone scored 41 points, tying his career high, including the basket that put Utah ahead for good at 101-100 with 5:18 left.

"Karl came into the league and was working hard since Day One," said Utah assistant coach Jerry Sloan, who is acting coach while Frank Layden recovers from a hernia operation.

"He and John Stockton always give it all they've got. Hustle is the key. They're a great pleasure to coach."

Thurl Bailey and Bobby Hansen added 21 points each for Utah. Malone also had 15 rebounds and Stockton had 19 assists.

Reggie Theus scored 22 points for Sacramento, which lost its seventh consecutive game.

Blazers 107, Cavs 94
Jerome Kersey scored 33 points and the Trail Blazers held Cleveland to 18 points in the fourth quarter as Portland won its third straight game.

Kersey also had eight rebounds, made five steals and blocked three shots for the Trail Blazers, who played their fourth game in seven nights.

Kersey was outstanding," Portland Coach Bill Walton said. "The one thing about Jerome is that he'll give you a consistent effort every night."

REJECTION NOTICE — Chicago's Michael Jordan (23), right, blocks a shot first-quarter action of their game Monday night in Philadelphia. The 76ers by Philadelphia's David Wingate during won, 102-101.

A lot of people look at this organization as being at rock bottom," Reed said. "I think we have a good young nucleus. If we can get everyone healthy and playing again things will change."

Reed played 10 seasons in the NBA and led the Knicks to league titles in 1969 and 1970. A seven-time All-Star, he was named the Knicks' head coach in 1977 and led the team to a 14-67 record in eight Olympic games. He scored three goals in Canada's victory over Czechoslovakia.

Sherven played once before for the Whalers, who selected him in the 1986 NHL waiver draft. He played seven games for the Whalers and didn't score any points before joining the Canadian Olympic team last year.

Sherven was a 19th-round choice of the Edmonton Oilers in the 1981 entry draft. He has played a total of 85 games over the last four NHL seasons with Edmonton, Hartford and Minnesota.

London — World heavyweight boxing champion Mike Tyson was reported Monday to have agreed to a September defense against Britain's Frank Bruno that will earn the undisputed champion $12.25 million and the challenger $5 million.

British commercial television reported that Kieron Murphy of London's Anglo-City Sporting Club made the offer to Tyson's camp and that, despite initial skepticism, the champion had agreed.

Murphy refused to confirm the report on the morning program, but indicated he expected to hold a press conference "within 48 hours."

Bruno's manager, Terry Lawless, said he would be skeptical about the fight until he received confirmation that Murphy had indeed got Tyson's signature.

Arizona State apologizes to Kerr
TEMPE — Arizona State University Athletic Director Charles Harris has sent University of Arizona basketball player Steve Kerr a letter of apology after Kerr's teammates buried insults at Kerr during a Pacific-10 Conference basketball game between the two archrivals Saturday night.

"I feel with sincere regret that I write this letter. I would like to extend my apologies to you for the mental anguish that you had to endure because of the disaffection felt at the University Activity Center last Saturday," Harris wrote.

"I refuse to refer to them as fans because they do not dignify the term," he said in the letter.

"We do not condone that kind of behavior from our ticket holders. I sincerely hope they will realize from this unfortunate incident that it does affect people in horrible ways," the letter said.

"Again, please accept my apologies for you and your family, the Wildcat basketball team and the University of Arizona. All of us respect and admire you and hope that this can be a friendly rivalry for years to come. Thank you," the letter concluded.

During Saturday night's game some fans yelled "P.L.O., P.L.O." "Go back to Beirut," and "Where's your dad?" at Kerr during much of the first half.

After the game Kerr lashed out at the vocal fans. "There's a place for that in the college basketball. Those kind of people are the scum of the earth," Kerr said. "There are some sick people in this world."

Zaragoza, Nelson take boxing titles
INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Daniel Zaragoza of Mexico City dashed the comeback attempt of 36-year-old countryman Carlos Zarate by winning the vacant World Boxing Council super heavyweight title.

Zaragoza stopped Zarate of Tepito, Mexico, in the 10th round of their scheduled 12-round fight Monday night at the Forum.

In a companion fight, Anamah Nelson of Accra, Ghana, won a split, 13-round decision over Asabache Martinez of Guadalajara, Mexico, to claim the vacant WBC super featherweight championship.

Nelson, a former WBCbantamweight champion, retired in 1979 after losing his crown to Lupo Pinter, but resumed his career two years ago.

Trump washing hands of Patriots
NEW YORK — Blaming unnamed people in the NFL for attempting to "co-opt" him, real estate magnate Donald Trump announced Monday that he would no longer have any interest in trying to find a buyer for the New England Patriots.

Trump, who two weeks ago expressed an interest in buying the team, then became involved in seeking a purchaser, said in a statement released by a New York public relations firm that he is dropping his involvement because the USFL's antitrust suit against the NFL remains on appeal.

Trump, who owned the New Jersey Generals in the USFL, was the prime figure in the league's move from spring to fall and in the antitrust suit against the NFL because he felt he was being set up by the NFL.

"I feel that the enthusiasm for selling the New England Patriots to me is an attempt by the NFL to co-opt me and get rid of Donald Trump as a problem, much as they have in other instances," the statement attributed to him said. "As the NFL is trying to find a way out, I am not easily lured."

Tarpley NBA player of the week
NEW YORK — Roy Tarpley, who averaged 17.3 points and 16.4 rebounds for the Dallas Mavericks last week, was named the NBA Player of the Week on Monday.

Tarpley scored a career-high 27 points and tied his career-high with 23 rebounds in a 114-107 victory over Phoenix Feb. 22. "Roy has been rebounding like an animal," Dallas guard Derek Harper said. "He's been rebounding better than anybody in the league."

Tocchet NHL player of the week
NEW YORK — Right wing Rick Tocchet, who had five goals and three assists for the Philadelphia Flyers last week, was named NHL Player of the Week on Monday.

Tocchet already has 59 points this season, 12 more than he had all last season.

He beat out Edmonton's Mark Messier, Montreal's Stephane Richer and Buffalo's Tom Barrasso for the award.

Whalers sign Gord Sherven
HARTFORD — Gord Sherven, a member of the Canadian Olympic hockey team, signed a multiyear contract with the Hartford Whalers Monday.

Sherven, 24, had 12 goals and 14 assists during pre-Olympic competition, and added four goals and four assists in eight Olympic games. He scored three goals in Canada's victory over Czechoslovakia.

Sherven played once before for the Whalers, who selected him in the 1986 NHL waiver draft. He played seven games for the Whalers and didn't score any points before joining the Canadian Olympic team last year.

EC girls ousted from tournament

ENFIELD — Things didn't work out so well for the East Catholic High girls' basketball team in its first round match with host Enfield High School in Class I state tournament action Monday night.

East was ranked 10th in the East Region while Enfield was ranked seventh. After leading for the first 16 minutes, the Eagles dropped a 51-44 decision with their season coming to a close.

East finished up with a 12-11 record while the Raiders moved to 14-6. Enfield now meets second-ranked Lardyard Wednesday at a site to be announced.

The Eagles led, 14-10, after one quarter and held a 25-22 halftime advantage. A dismal four-point outburst during the third stanza proved to be East's downfall.

Enfield Coach Donna Rida said, "Enfield capitalized from the charity stripe hitting nine for 14," Rida explained.

Shanahan ready for new challenge

By John Nodel
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Mike Shanahan knows a lot is expected of him as coach of the Los Angeles Raiders. He says he's ready to meet the challenge.

"My concern is not really with the playoffs because my standards are high and I want to win the playoffs," Shanahan said. "It's Monday at a news conference called to introduce him as the Raiders' new head coach. "Our standards are to win world championships."

"It's been a situation of great pressure," Shanahan said. "I'm going to try and add to that success."

The Raiders are the only AFC team to win a Super Bowl in the 1980s, having accomplished the feat following the 1980 and 1983 seasons. But the club has missed the playoffs the last two years, going 8-8 and 5-10.

The Raiders' record last year was their poorest since 1982, perhaps prompting Tom Flores to announce his retirement as head coach on Jan. 20 at age 50 after 10 years as head coach. He was 83-53 in regular-season games.

Shanahan, who has been with the Raiders in the past two seasons, won the AFC West championship the last two seasons and advanced to the Super Bowl. Meanwhile, Los Angeles finished well down in the standings.

Now Shanahan will try to change all that. "I'm going to be my own person and try to do the best job I can," Shanahan said. "I have the freedom to do the things I want to do offensively. You try to go full speed ahead, make decisions, don't look back."

"I take a look at a team's defense. I really thought the Raiders were one of the best defensive defenses in the National Football League to begin with. Denver that the one thing we had to do to be successful was beat the Raiders. Offensively, I haven't really studied them."

"Obviously, my expertise is in the offensive area. I plan to contribute in a lot of areas. Our quarterback situation will start at the base. I will not have a preference as to which one will play. There are several people at that position who I will look at."

The Raiders have had quarterback problems in recent years, with veterans Marc Wilson and Jim Plunkett and the young Rusty Hill unable to provide athletes, because snow conditions and track conditions vary around the world," he said. "But Samaranch said that some qualifying criteria may be imposed in bobsled and luge. "They must be much more strict in making the competition," Samaranch said.

Samaranch and Hodler said weather was the only problem in Calgary. High winds and warm temperatures disrupted the schedule, and Samaranch said the IOC was lucky it had added four days to the Games. He said the 16-day schedule adopted for Calgary was likely to remain in effect for Albertville.

The two officials also said that international sports federations and national Olympic committees would be asked to be more precise in reports on weather conditions at future Olympic bidding cities.

Reed takes Nets' coaching job amid its problems

By Tom Canavan
The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Willis Reed did not take the New Jersey Nets head coaching job unaware that the club has problems. He has a drug problem, a leadership problem and three straight losing seasons only highlight the Nets' woes.

But beyond the problems, Reed found something he has been looking for for almost 10 years, a return to the NBA head-coaching ranks.

"This is going to be a challenge," the 45-year-old Reed said. "I'm like coaches who have only 23 jobs in this league and when you get the opportunity for one you have to take it."

The Nets ended a 12-week search for a coach Monday by naming Reed as their third coach this season and giving him the job of turning around a team that has won only 12 of 54 games this season.

The Nets did not disclose the length of Reed's contract, but sources said it was three years.

"I don't know if this is a troubled franchise," said Reed, a Hall of Fame center with the New York Knicks in their heyday in the late 1960s and early '70s. "I think they have problems. However, I don't see them as problems that can't be resolved."

New Jersey is tied with the Los Angeles Clippers for the worst record in the league. The club lost 124 manpower games due to injuries, and twice in the past three seasons has lost players due to drug problems.

Two years ago, Michael Ray Richardson was banned from the NBA for violating its drug policy for a third time, and just last week forward Orlando Woolridge, Reed's cousin, admitted he has a drug problem and was suspended while he undergoes rehabilitation.

Reed said his main job will be to evaluate his players the rest of the season.

"I'm looking at this as a 26-game season," said Reed, who debuts tonight when the Nets play the Clippers at home. "We'll be looking to win as many as possible and then take it from there."

In taking over, Reed replaces interim coach Bob MacKinnon, who compiled a 10-29 mark after taking over for the fired Dave Wohl in early December. Under Wohl, the club won only two of its first 15 games.

MacKinnon will return to his job as assistant general manager, and Reed said he plans to retain assistant coaches Gary

St. Jean and Bob Wenzel for at least the rest of the season.

Bob Casella, the Nets chief operating officer, said the field for the job was narrowed last week to Reed, an assistant at Sacramento under Bill Russell.

The two sides ironed out the final details of the contract Saturday afternoon and Reed signed it later that day, Casella said.

"This team needs a leader," Casella said. "Willis is a player who are individuals and players who have some ability. We don't have a take-charge guy. We had coaches who have good leadership qualities, and Willis Reed is that kind of man."

Reed's first job with the Nets players for about 10 minutes before attending the news conference to officially announce his appointment.

"I think it's good to bring him in now and throw him into the fire," Nets captain Buck Williams said. "This way we can evaluate who can play and who can't. He can get a feel for the players in game situations. I think this is the best time to bring him in."

Reed added that coming in now also will give him a say in the team's off-season training and a chance to have an active role in the NBA draft. He also said injuries are something no coach has control over.

College 78: Charles Smith scored 23 points to become the second-leading scorer in Pitt history as the first-place Panthers improved to 11-3 in the Big East Conference and 21-4 overall.

Ironically, Smith had the first 3-point goal of his career.

"The funny thing is he's actually a good three-point shooter," Coach Paul Evans said. "We have some plays designed for that but he doesn't take that many."

Demetres Gore scored 14 of his 20 points in the second half for Pitt. Sean Miller added 16 points, including four 3-pointers.

Dana Barros led Boston College to 23 points, hitting on 11 of 22 shots, including six 3-pointers. Steve Benton and Jamie Benton added 14 points apiece for Boston College. 15-12 overall and 6-10 in the conference. No. 16 North Carolina 81, 87, N.C.-Asheville 78; Chuckly Brown scored 25 points and Winnie Del Negro added 23 to lead the Wolfpack, 21-6.

Talk, information shows the trend

By Jerry Buck
The Associated Press
LOS ANGELES - The first-run situation comedy may have peaked in the television syndication market, and "reality" programs - talk and information shows - seem to be the trend for the fall.
The National Association of Television Program Executives has just concluded its 25th-anniversary convention in Houston, and a number of the new programs being offered are reality based, such as "USA Today," a news show designed to be a TV version of the newspaper.
An estimated 8,000 people attended the five-day meeting at the George R. Brown Convention Center. The convention is the major arena for producers to show off their new programs and for station program executives to pick and choose syndicated shows for the next television season.
Although there are 300 and 400 shows being offered to the television executives, the shows include reruns of network shows and packages of motion pictures.
"WHAT I SEE is a movement toward reality programming," A. Philip Corvo, executive director of NATPE, said in an interview before leaving for the convention. "I think it will be bigger than any move in that direction we've had in the past."
Other reality shows being offered include "Group One Medical," from MGM, "Public People, Private Lives," from Orbus Communications, "The Howard Cosell Show," from Channel 4, and "Tom Truitt," from Republic. "USA Today" is from GTG Entertainment.
"I think this trend will pick up speed if any of these shows are successful," said Corvo. "Another trend I see is that some shows are leaning toward horror and science fiction."
Lorimar has "Nightmare on Elm Street" and MCA has "The Munsters," a revival of the horror spoof from the 1960s. Already on the market are Paramount's "Star Trek" and "Friday the 13th." Another new show will be Paramount's "War of the Worlds," based on the novel by H.G. Wells and the award-winning 1938 movie by George Pal.
MGM has 30 new episodes of "The Twilight Zone," in addition to 64 vintage shows from the Rod Serling classic series.
BY FAR the most successful of the distributors is King World, which has "Wheel of Fortune," "Jeopardy!" and "The Oprah Winfrey Show."
"There doesn't seem to be a dent in the popularity of those shows," said Corvo. "Stations are buying them three or four years in advance. In the old days you never bought a game show more than a year in advance. Most didn't last that long."
"FOR KIDS - Fourteen-year-old Tina Yothers of NBC's "Family Ties" is the host of the PBS special "It Shouldn't Hurt To Be A Kid," which will be telecast on March 25. The show will look at the various problems teen-agers face growing up, from family troubles to alcohol to drugs to sex.
PRESENTERS - Among the presenters announced for the 14th Annual People's Choice Awards are Danny DeVito, Kirk Douglas, Howard Hesseman, Bronson Pinchot, and James Stewart. The show will be presented live on Sunday, March 13, on CBS.
WOMEN IN FILM - The Arts & Entertainment Cable Network is providing funding for the American Film Institute's Directing Workshop for Women, a 14-year-old program whose alumni include Dyan Cannon, Lee Grant, Marsha Mason and Joanne Woodward. The program provides women directors with backing for videotape projects that may then get an airing on A&E.

Carter plays Carnac

CREATED BUTTE, Colo. — He may not have been known as "Carter the Magnificent" during his presidency's trying times, but Jimmy Carter assumed the title temporarily during a fund-raising event here.

Jimmy Carter

the character created by talk-show host Johnny Carson. The former president was at the Crested Butte ski resort briefly to help raise money for handicapped skiers. He planned to be back in Platts, Ga., today to meet with Democratic presidential hopeful Richard Gephardt.

Not an easy decision

RADNOR, Pa. — A throat operation couldn't stop Katharine Hepburn from making the upcoming TV film "Laura Lansing Slept Here," but it wasn't an easy decision.

Hepburn said her problem became evident when she showed up for the first script reading last fall in Vancouver, British Columbia. She opened her mouth and "her voice. Total rasp," she wrote in the March 5 issue of TV Guide.

She identified herself as her doctor's Aunt Nora when she checked into Vancouver General Hospital, but "everyone immediately recognized me, and they were trying not to show it."

A day later, she found out the growth wasn't cancerous. It was "just one of those growths that the human body throws out to torment us," Hepburn said.

Cap joins Rogers' firm

NEW YORK — Former Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger is joining a law firm headed by former Secretary of State William P. Rogers as a Washington-based specialist in international law and finance.

The announcement was made Monday by the 275-lawyer firm of Rogers & Wells, whose headquarters is in New York.

The firm said Weinberger will not engage in any work involving the federal government, defense contracts or any other matters connected with the Defense Department.

Soviets film Hammer

MONTEZUMA, N.M. — A Soviet film crew is making a documentary to honor the 90th birthday of industrialist Armand Hammer, who has been dealing with Soviet leaders since Lenin.

The crew from Gosteleradio, the Soviet Union's government television company, accompanied Hammer to northern New Mexico to visit the college he funded here, the Armand Hammer United World College of the American West.

The crew spent a couple of hours filming at the college Monday before heading on to New York with Hammer, who is chairman of Occidental Petroleum Corp.

Gosteleradio requested the one-hour film be made in honor of Hammer's birthday May 21.

'Stay out of trouble'

NEW YORK — Actor Eric Roberts was put on probation for six months by a judge who told him to "stay out of trouble."

Roberts, 31, was sentenced Monday for a Dec. 31 incident in which he went to a woman's apartment at 2:30 a.m., pounded on the door and demanded to be let in. The woman instead called police.

Waterbury wrestlers will test glasnost

By Brent Loyman The Associated Press

WATERBURY — Gary Shvartsbeyn, a 16-year-old Soviet Jew who immigrated to the United States in 1980, hopes to visit some of the sights he never saw as a youngster when his high school wrestling team travels to the Soviet Union this week.

The Sacred Heart High School team, which has dubbed its eight-day trip "an experiment in glasnost," is apparently the first Roman Catholic group officially welcomed to the Soviet Union and allowed to compete with Soviet athletes.

Philip J. Cascia, the school's chaplain and wrestling coach.

"I like to fly in planes — adventure," Shvartsbeyn, a husky blond who sports a wispy mustache and wears sunglasses even indoors, said Monday of the upcoming trip.

Noting that the Soviet Union imposes severe travel restrictions within the country even for its own citizens, Shvartsbeyn, a native of the village of Donetz in the Ukraine, said, "I'd just like to see something in Russia I never saw before."

The 30 wrestlers are to leave Wednesday. The team, which had a disappointing 2-22 record this season, has scheduled three matches with Soviet wrestling clubs — one at the Olympic Village in Moscow and two at the Sports Complex in Leningrad.

Also making the trip are 20 honor students from Sacred Heart along with 37 adults — coaches, teachers and parents who will act as chaperones.

Cascia said he wants to make sure the energetic teen-agers are on their best behavior, because they will be acting as goodwill ambassadors not only for the United States but for the Catholic Church as well. In addition, the school enrolls a number of students from various faiths.

"I'm not nervous about it, but I have certain apprehensions," said Cascia, whose cluttered office is decorated with a lead bust of Lenin that was given to him by a friend.

"Because we are a Catholic school and we will be promoting by our presence a Catholic image, there might be those who are not happy that we are there," Cascia said.

Cascia hatched the idea for the trip seven months ago. Formal approval

GETTING READY — Gary Shvartsbeyn looks up at coach Mark Buckley during a practice session for the Sacred Heart High School wrestling team in Waterbury Monday.

The team leaves Wednesday for the Soviet Union. Shvartsbeyn and his family emigrated to America from the Soviet Union in 1980 and this will be his first return visit.

"When nobody was around, many of them would pull me aside and ask me questions like 'Is it really possible to believe in God?'" he said. "As soon as another Soviet would come by, they would take off."

Cascia blames the team's record this year on the fact that he deliberately scheduled matches against local schools to get his wrestlers ready for the Soviets. They have also had to learn a form of wrestling called freestyle, which is used by high school athletes in every country but the United States, Cascia said.

The students have prepared for the trips in numerous lectures, including one from Sylvia Cole, a defenseman for the Hartford Whalers who competed against Soviet athletes at a member of a Canadian national team, also came to the school to talk to the wrestlers.

"They are very competitive, they go out to win at all costs," Cascia said. "They are very competitive, they go out to win at all costs," Cascia said.

came the day Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev headed home after his summit meeting with President Reagan in December, a fact Cascia finds significant in light of the Soviet leader's much touted policy of glasnost — the Russian word for openness.

"The fact that they've given us the Olympic Village, which is their showpiece ... indicated right away they are going to give us a lot of attention," Cascia said.

"The Soviets are very conscious of their image," he said. "This could be a very positive statement from them that they are willing to take steps toward more openness."

This will be Cascia's second trip to the Soviet Union. He spent 3 1/2 weeks there in 1986 to study the social and religious life.

"All the Intourist guides knew I was a priest before I even introduced myself — so I knew I was well scrutinized," said Cascia, who knows Italian, French, Latin and Greek but calls his Russian "pathetic."
