Thoughts

Another theme or topic we want to share with you involves our service to the Lord. After we have been saved by God's grace and start growing in a spiritual way by studying God's Word, we should start serving the Lord.

We serve the Lord in many different ways: witnessing for Him by passing out gospel tracts, going on visitation with our pastor in our local church, trying to help others in a nursing home ministry, teaching our church's Sunday School or youth program. We could go on — what is important — we should be involved in serving the Lord in some way.

God does not save us from our sins and expect us to sit idly by and do nothing for Him. Again, we are not saved by doing works for the Lord but in appreciation and thankfulness we should be doing something for the Lord Jesus Christ who saved us and redeemed us by His grace.

"Serve the Lord with gladness; come before His presence with singing" (Psalm 100:2).
"And whatever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him" (Colossians 3:17).
Find out what God would have thee do. Perform that with service; well; For what is great and what is small, 'Tis only He can tell!"

Council urges agreement on emergency response

By Nancy Concelman
Manchester Herald

The Emergency Medical Services Council will try to schedule a meeting with the town Board of Directors to discuss recording an agreement among Manchester Memorial Hospital, the Town of Manchester Fire Department and the Ambulance Service of Manchester for responding to emergency calls.

Members of the council suggested meeting with the Board of Directors at Thursday's council meeting, after some council members expressed dissatisfaction that the council hadn't received a response from the board on the idea of drawing up an agreement. The agreement was suggested six months ago.

The present, unofficial, agreement is that the privately owned Ambulance Service of Manchester responds to calls if the Manchester Fire Department paramedic unit is busy on another call.

But members of the Town of Manchester Fire Department who were at the meeting said that the Manchester Ambulance Service wasn't always able to respond. The service also handles calls in South Windsor, East Hartford and other towns.

"There's no obligation now to be available all the time," said council Chairman Joel Reich. "That is a key issue here."

"I think we need to get it all down in black and white," said council member Gloria Langer. Reich said at the meeting that Health Director and council member Ronald Kraatz was requesting input on possible contents of the agreement so he could work with a town attorney on a draft to eventually present to the Board of Directors. Kraatz was unable to attend the meeting due to illness, Reich said.

Kraatz acts as a liaison between the directors and the council.

So far, Reich said, Kraatz has collected contracts from other towns from the state Emergency Medical Services Council to use as examples.

The idea of drawing up a contract or other formal agreement was discussed by the council in September 1987, shortly after the Manchester Ambulance Service opened. At Thursday's meeting, council members asked why the directors hadn't responded to its suggestion for an agreement.

"Six months is too damn long," said council member Richard Carrier. "We should ask Ron to get to the Board of Directors by April 15, and ask the board to get back to the EMS by our May meeting."

Reich said that the council would check out a contract or other formal agreement with the state Emergency Medical Services Council to use as examples.

Council members agreed to make a formal request for a meeting between the council and the directors on the contract issue to "take the lag out," Reich said.

Council member Irene Smith also suggested asking one or more directors to attend council meetings on a regular basis.

More directly, council members also made suggestions for provisions of the contract.

"I don't think (Riviera's proposed unit) our backup," Langer asked.

But Reich said that Riviera's request was a budget issue and it could take months before the request is approved and the unit implemented.

Riviera last month submitted a request to Town Manager Robert B. Weiss for $128,000 to cover hiring three new firefighter-paramedics. Riviera's proposal calls for an additional paramedic unit that would have one paramedic and one emergency medical technician on each shift responding to each call.

Carter sees victory

NEW LONDON — Former President Jimmy Carter says this year's Democratic National Convention will nominate a presidential ticket more electable than those emerging from the "circus" atmosphere of conventions of the recent past.

Spending Thursday at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy as its fifth Hedrick Fellow, Carter said he emerged from both conventions that nominated him for president "weaker than I went in" because too many delegates used the occasions as platforms for their own issues.

"Democratic conventions were a circus," he told a news conference after conducting an informal class for cadets majoring in international relations and government.

High clean up cost

WASHINGTON — It could cost more than $6 billion to overhaul the dozens of sewage treatment plants that pour waste into the Long Island Sound, say state officials who are searching for ways to save the sound.

Researchers believe nitrogen contained in the estimated 1 billion gallons of treated sewer water pumped into the sound daily is helping trigger a biological chain reaction that is causing a severe oxygen depletion in the water, killing marine life.

The oxygen depletion problem, known as hypoxia, was discovered last summer by researchers involved in a five-year government-funded study of the Long Island Sound started in 1985.

Robert Smith, assistant director at the Connecticut Department of Environmental Protection, told lawmakers Thursday that retrofitting the 18 waste-water treatment plants in Connecticut that feed into the sound will cost an estimated $976.5 million.

And Smith said upgrading New York's 21 treatment plants so they remove nitrogen will cost an estimated $5.3 billion, including three that will cost at least $1 billion each.

Hospitals rap payment plan

HARTFORD (AP) — A state law limiting the amount a hospital can collect for specific operations from patients and their insurers should be repealed, an official of the Connecticut Hospital Association told a legislative committee.

The law, which took effect in 1984, is designed to hold down the costs of health care by limiting the amount patients can be charged, even if the hospital's costs exceed the set amount.

Joseph Costantini, hospital association vice president, told the Public Health Committee Thursday that the system "has been and is a disaster."

But Gardner E. Wright Jr., chairman of the Commission on Hospitals and Health Care, said the idea of repealing the law was ridiculous.

He said the law needs more time to work. But more important, he said, "If the hospital association is recommending it, its principle purpose is to raise (hospital) rates."

Rep. Paul Gionfriddo, D-Middletown, co-chairman of the Public Health Committee, said there was no chance his panel would approve repealing the so-called prospective payment system.

The committee is, however, considering a bill that would require hospitals to set up discharge plans that would guarantee proper arrangements are made for patients before they leave the hospital.

Liquor board gets reprieve

HARTFORD (AP) — Opponents of a proposal to abolish the Liquor Control Commission say the recent arrest of the commission's executive director doesn't justify such a radical move.

"If we go through an ineptitude, we'd be getting rid of a lot of agencies," Sen. Thomas F. Upton, R-Waterbury, said Thursday after reciting a list of other state agencies where top officials have been arrested or dismissed because of malfeasance.

And so the beleaguered Liquor Control Commission dodged the bullet again, as the General Law Committee voted 17-1 to kill a bill that would have transferred the commission's responsibilities to the state tax department.

"To suggest there's an image problem and because of that dramatically change the process is in error," said Rep. John Wayne Fox, D-Stamford, co-chairman of the General Law Committee.

"To me it's a knee jerk reaction," he said.

One committee member jokingly referred to the bill as "this dog," prompting chuckles from his colleagues and a rebuke from the only member to vote "yes," Sen. Thomas J. Sullivan, D-Guilford, the committee co-chairman.

"I must say I'm a little surprised at the levy expressed at this bill," Sullivan, one of the bill's sponsors, chided after the remark by Rep. Francis X. O'Neill, R-Guilford.

The Liquor Control Commission was created in 1933 after Prohibition. The three commissioners are political appointees who earn $32,000 to $44,000 a year for part-time work. They oversee the Department of Liquor Control, which has 52 employees and an annual budget of about $2 million.

The Program Review and Investigations Committee first proposed abolishing the commission in 1982 after a lengthy investigation of liquor regulation in Connecticut. A Republican state senator raised the issue again in 1985.

Last month, Sullivan and his co-sponsors — Sen. Joseph Harper, D-New Britain, and Sen. Howard Owens, D-Bridgewater — said the arrest of the commission's executive director in November made this session an opportune time to enact sweeping reforms.

Raises may be trimmed

HARTFORD — A bill containing hefty pay raises for elected state officials is working its way through the General Assembly, but the raises are expected to be trimmed a bit before final approval is given this spring.

Under the measure, the governor would get a 35 percent raise, from $78,000 to $105,000, beginning in 1991 — the year after the next gubernatorial election.

Salaries for state legislators would go up 25 percent beginning next year, after this fall's legislative elections.

Currently, the base pay for state representatives is $19,200 a year and for senators, $23,200. The bill would boost those figures to $23,500 and $24,500 respectively. The bill's price tag would be $800,000.

History teacher rapped

HARTFORD — Connecticut's state historian says teachers are "woefully ignorant" of U.S. history, causing them to supply students with "grotesque misinformation" about the subject.

Christopher Collier, a University of Connecticut history professor, made the remarks in calling for local school districts to tighten standards for teachers. Collier, the state's historian for four years, has written schools superintendents and school board chairmen calling on them to enact hiring policies that require teachers be better versed in the subject.

The state Department of Education has rejected Collier's suggestion that all teacher's be required to complete a full college course in U.S. history.

Collier said he has heard many inaccuracies in visits to classrooms throughout southern New England concerning such subjects as slavery, Indians and famous Americans.

Housing funds not spent

HARTFORD — The state has spent only $24,000 of the $85 million it has been authorized to spend to construct low-income housing, while another $16 million for moderate-income housing also has not been used.

David B. Harrity, the state Housing Department's director of family housing, said Wednesday he couldn't predict when the money would be spent.

Restaurant industry vows to fight to get 15-year-olds

By Brent Lyvonn
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Despite a serious setback, the restaurant industry says the fight over its proposal to allow 15-year-olds to work in restaurants is not over yet.

The General Law Committee on Thursday voted 15-3 to reject the proposal, in a move that took its supporters by surprise.

Instead, the committee decided simply to clean up legislation passed last year that allowed 15-year-olds to work in grocery stores. The new version of the bill would also increase fines for violating the state's child-labor laws.

"The issue ... of the employment of 15-year-olds in restaurants will be debated wherever that bill goes," vowed Carroll J. Hughes, a lobbyist for the 700-member Connecticut Restaurant Association.

"The substitute bill must still go to the Judiciary Committee and Hughes said he would lobby to have the restaurant provision restored there. If that fails, he'll try again once the bill hits the floor, he said.

Rep. John Wayne Fox, D-Stamford, co-chairman of the General Law Committee, said the General Assembly needs more time to determine whether last year's law has had a detrimental effect on the school work of 15-year-olds before deciding whether to expand it.

Hughes complained that the committee was being "hypocritical" in allowing 15-year-olds to continue working in grocery stores but prohibit restaurant work.

"I don't think it's hypocritical at all," said Fox, who drafted the substitute bill. "It's a value judgment that we're making based on the input that we are getting. ... We may want to repeal the bill entirely."

The restaurant industry says the bill is needed because of a severe labor shortage.

Hughes blamed Thursday's defeat on the unexpected switch of a few key lawmakers.

The bill had been expected to face its toughest challenge in the Education Committee and its supporters were relieved when it was easily approved there on Monday. It had previously sailed through the Labor Committee.

Rep. William A. Kiner, D-Enfield, a high school teacher, urged the committee to repeal last year's law.

"I'm not to sure it's a good idea to let 15-year-olds to work at all," he said. "We're cheating kids out of their youth. We're cheating kids out of an education."

Rep. Francis X. O'Neill Jr., R-Guilford, said working as youngsters hadn't hurt his eight children, seven of whom are college graduates.

"Who knows what's best for the children?" he asked. "The board of education, the state of Connecticut or the parents?"

Hughes said changes made by the Education Committee allowing 15-year-olds to work in restaurants only on weekends and during school vacations should have addressed the major concern of its opponents.

Teacher unions, boards of education and officials from the state Department of Education have all gone on record against the bill.

Hughes didn't know how many 15-year-olds are now working as buggers and cashiers in grocery stores.

The substitute bill clarifies that the 15-year-olds can work in stores that have beer and wine permits, as most grocery stores do. Many 15-year-olds are currently working illegally because the provision was inadvertently left out of last year's bill, Fox said.

Israel blocks media

HEBRON, Occupied West Bank (AP) — The army blocked off some cities in the occupied territories to media coverage during Moslem noon prayers today after destroying at least four homes of suspected Palestinian activists.

At least five Palestinians were wounded during protests in the West Bank and Gaza, hospital officials and Arab reports said.

The mult, Sheik Said Adin Alami, called on worshippers "to defend the mosques by all possible means despite the attackers."

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, meanwhile, reiterated his opposition to a U.S. peace plan for the region in the strongest statement he has made so far.

Shamir, speaking on Israeli radio, said when he arrives in Washington next week he would "explain to our friend Secretary of State George Shultz that his plan, as it's seen today, can't solve the problem of peace in our area."

Panama sanctions near

WASHINGTON — President Reagan is likely to impose five sanctions against Panama in the next several days designed to cripple the country's tottering economy and force out military leader Manuel Antonio Noriega, administration sources say.

Although no final decisions were reached during a high-level interagency meeting attended by Reagan on Thursday, the officials said they expected approval shortly of a package that included the five sanctions.

The sanction with potentially the greatest impact appears to be a cutoff of Panamanian revenues from a pipeline that carries Alaskan oil to tankers serving East Coast ports.

Wholesale prices down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices fell 0.2 percent in February, pushed downward by drops in both food and energy costs, the government said today.

Food prices fell 1.1 percent; energy prices, 0.8 percent. The cost of lettuce, which had skyrocketed through the fall and early winter, fell a remarkable 70.9 percent.

If the overall February drop held for 12 straight months, prices for the year would be down 2.2 percent.

Bad news for smokers

NEW YORK — Forty percent of male smokers and 28 percent of female smokers die prematurely from tobacco-related causes, the American Cancer Society estimates.

That works out to about 35 percent of smokers overall, the society said in its newly released "Cancer Facts & Figures — 1988."

"If smokers could just think of those odds as twice as bad as those for Russian roulette, they might understand how dangerous the cigarette habit really is," Harmon Eyre, national society president, said in a statement.

The estimate refers to all tobacco-related causes of death, such as lung cancer and heart disease, a cancer society spokesman said.

The society estimates that smoking is related to 320,000 deaths a year, including 30 percent of all cancer deaths. It blames cigarettes for 85 percent of lung cancer cases among men and 75 percent among women.

Talks deadlocked

LOS ANGELES — Talks with movie and television producers aimed at ending a five-day scriptwriters strike broke down, with no new meeting scheduled, officials of both sides said.

The writers and producers were meeting Thursday with a federal mediator when the producers declared the talks weren't going anywhere, said Mona Mangan, executive director of the Writers Guild of America's East Coast unit.

"In view of the seriousness of the strike and its impact on the industry, we had hoped that continued talks might bring us better results. We deeply regret that the companies do not view these talks as moving us closer together," Ms. Mangan said.

A spokesman for the Alliance of Motion Picture and Television Producers, Herb Steinberg, said the scriptwriters' demands were so unrealistic that "further talks would be fruitless."

Quake in Costa Rica

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — An earthquake that shook most of Costa Rica swayed tall buildings in the capital and sent people fleeing from their homes as windows shattered in southern cities, authorities said.

There were no immediate reports of injuries in Thursday night's quake, which was centered near the Panamanian border.

The quake occurred at 9:46 p.m. and registered 5.6 on the Richter scale, said a San Jose's fire official, adding that it was centered near Buenos Aires — 70 miles southeast of the capital and 26 miles from Panama.

President quits deaf school

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leader of the student protests at Gallaudet University today said the resignation early today of Elizabeth Ann Zinser as president of the deaf liberal arts college leaves other key demands yet to be addressed.

Zinser's appointment Sunday had sparked heated protests over the board of trustees' failure to appoint a deaf president, something the school never has had in its 124-year history.

Zinser, who has normal hearing and does not know sign language, resigned just after midnight, saying her decision "was reached with great difficulty as I came to understand how deeply some see the liberal arts reflected in the presidency of this university."

Student protest leader Jerry Covell said that while the students are "very excited" about Zinser's resignation, they plan to insist on other changes to make the school more sensitive to its hearing-impaired students.

Their first priority, Covell said, is for Zinser to be replaced with a deaf president. In addition, the students are seeking:

- The resignation of Jane Bassett Spillman as chairman of the board of trustees.
- A minimum of 51 percent deaf people on the board of trustees.

A guarantee of no reprisals against students, faculty and staff who were involved in the protests.

"The school institution from the outside looks beautiful," said Covell, whose sign language was voiced by an interpreter on CBS-TV's "This Morning" program. "There are people there who don't understand and are not sensitive to our needs. And now it is time. We feel that we are ready and we have ample support and numerous people who agree with us. So why should we stop now?"

'Thrill' killer sentenced

DEDHAM, Mass. (AP) — A 15-year-old boy convicted of killing a classmate with a baseball bat "to know when he was being sentenced to life in prison, becoming the state's youngest prison inmate."

Rod Matthews could be paroled in 15 years under the mandatory sentence he received Thursday after being found guilty of second-degree murder in the Nov. 30, 1986, slaying of 14-year-old Shaun Oullette.

Two former friends of Matthews testified he told them of planning the killing and took them to see Oullette's body, which police did not find until nearly four weeks later in woods in Canton, a suburb 15 miles south of Boston.

Matthews showed no emotion when the verdict, reached for almost 10 hours of deliberations over two days by the Norfolk County Superior Court jury, was announced. Throughout the trial he had been expressionless, eyes downcast.

The decision satisfied neither the victim's mother, Jeanne Quinn, nor the defendants' parents.

"It's terrible," Matthews' mother, Janice, said on the courthouse steps hours after the verdict. "A child shouldn't be persecuted and forced to go through something like this."

"God only knows how much worse it is (prison) going to make his condition," she said.

Matthews takes 18 hours of hyperactivity, and defense attorney John Philip White argued for acquittal by reason of insanity.

White portrayed Matthews as a mentally unstable child whose pleas for help were ignored by teachers and friends and whose irrational behavior was possibly exacerbated by Ritalin.

"He was overlooked," said Mrs. Matthews. "He was overlooked in the third grade, junior high school. We overlooked him because we didn't think there was a problem."

White, expressing concern for Matthews' safety and the possibility the youth might attempt suicide, said he will try to have the boy moved from prison to a mental health center while considering whether to appeal.

"It just doesn't make any sense because there's no treatment facility there," said Matthews' father, Kenneth.

Prosecutor Peter Casey, a Norfolk County assistant district attorney, called the decision an "appropriate, well-considered verdict."

Avalanche kills close friend of Britain's Prince Charles

KLOSTERS, Switzerland (AP) — Members of the British royal family decided to cut short their holiday ski trip today after Prince Charles narrowly escaped an avalanche that killed a friend and injured another, officials said.

Charles, the Prince of Wales and heir to the British throne, was reportedly found trembling and weeping after Thursday's accident.

Charles, his wife, Diana, and the former Sarah, Ferguson, were safe in a chalet when the avalanche struck. Sarah is married to Charles' younger brother, Prince Andrew, and is expecting the couple's first child in August.

Ma. Hugh Lindsay, 34, was killed on the spot. Patricia Palmer-Tomkinson was knocked unconscious and suffered fractures on both legs.

According to a statement from Buckingham Palace, "All members of the party were in a position to take avoiding action with the exception of Ma. Lindsay and Mrs. Palmer-Tomkinson who were both caught in the avalanche."

Charles helped dig the injured and unconscious Mrs. Palmer-Tomkinson from under the snow. He also aided in freeing the body of Lindsay, said Press Association, the British domestic news agency.

The two victims had been swept about 400 yards down the slope.

Witnesses said Charles looked distraught, and one said he was crying and shouting as a rescue helicopter came to take him away.

The accident was considered certain to end the royal family's traditional winter holiday at Klosters, which had begun Tuesday.

Revaluation puzzle was avoidable

Whenever the town conducts a revaluation of taxable real estate, there is inevitably confusion among taxpayers and complaints about the new assessments.

Confusion and complaints are unavoidable. Some mistakes in the revaluation process are unavoidable. Some inequities are unavoidable no matter how carefully the revaluation is carried out.

That is why taxpayers have the right to appeal to the office of the assessor and to the Board of Tax Review when they feel their assessments are incorrect or unfair.

When the revaluation is phased in over a five-year period the process becomes even more difficult to understand. Despite detailed and repeated explanations by town officials before individual notices were sent to taxpayers there will be a rash of phone calls to the office of the assessor after the taxpayers get the notices.

But in the just-completed revaluation the town has added unnecessarily to the confusion and made the process even more difficult for taxpayers to understand.

That extra complication could and certainly should have been avoided.

On Thursday morning, the phones at the office of Town Assessor J. Richard Vincent were ringing and most of the callers were asking about what appeared to be assessments for property they do not own — "other buildings" and "acres."

The "other buildings" in many cases were attached garages that used to be considered part of the houses to which they were attached. The "acres" in many cases were simply the lot of extra land on a house lot when the lot is bigger than the average lot for the neighborhood.

Vincent has said the extra categories in and of themselves don't constitute extra assessments.

The change in the form of the assessment notice comes about because of the way town computers are programmed. The programming may work perfectly for the purposes of the assessor, but it certainly didn't help taxpayers decide whether they were being treated fairly.

The town should have found a way to change the program for purposes of sending out new assessment notices. If that was impossible, town officials should at least have told taxpayers in advance about the change. A leaflet mailed out with the notices explains the revaluation and phase-in. It makes no mention of the changes in procedure which so confused and irritated taxpayers.

Three days ago in writing I asked our town manager, Mr. Robert Weiss, and his staff for a sign on my street making drivers aware of our son's problem. To our amazement, this afternoon (March 8) the signs are there.

To Mr. Robert Weiss, Mr. Richard Dyer and Chief Robert Lennan, my family with a deep sense of humility would publicly like to thank you for your staff's dedication to making this place with all its faults, the best place in the whole wide world to live in.

Action needed on Notch Road

"IS ANYTHING WRONG? YOU'RE THE ONLY ONE GOING THE SPEED LIMIT!"

This time around, it's the Service Society

If nothing else, the campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination is proving a rich source of new formulations for the old Democratic themes.

As far back as 1983, Gary Hart recognized that his party desperately needed to come up with some "new ideas." He even went so far as to claim that he had a couple — although, as so many remarked, the only new ideas he ever actually came up with were his name and his age.

By the time the current campaign got under way, it had been pretty well conceded that genuinely new ideas are rare in politics, and that the Democrats would have to settle for re-bottling their traditional snake oil: taxing money from one source that had some and handing it out to various constituencies that could be counted on to vote right.

For rhetorical purposes the tax target was always referred to as "the rich" though in practice it was invariably the middle class and quite often, in various subtle ways, the poor. The lucky recipients of the Democrats' largesse tended to be any bloc capable of shouting loud enough — and willing, of course, to join the Democrats' bulging coalition.

And that is still the basic play. What the 1988 nomination race has contributed is some fancy new ways of saying the same old things.

A couple of years ago the uproar was over "hunger in America." A liberal Harvard professor

Manchester still best place to live

To the Editor:

My family for several generations has been involved with other families in civic organizations within our community. We have seen the town prosper and grow not only monetarily, but with a rich fulfillment of the needs of our children and the handicapped.

Never, never in my wildest dreams would have believed that my wife and I would have a child that has a handicap.

The day we found out about our son's special needs, employees of our town Board of Education were on the phone past 11 p.m. making arrangements for special education for our family.

Three days ago in writing I asked our town manager, Mr. Robert Weiss, and his staff for a sign on my street making drivers aware of our son's problem. To our amazement, this afternoon (March 8) the signs are there.

To Mr. Robert Weiss, Mr. Richard Dyer and Chief Robert Lennan, my family with a deep sense of humility would publicly like to thank you for your staff's dedication to making this place with all its faults, the best place in the whole wide world to live in.

Bush didn't warn Castro on Grenada

WASHINGTON — Vice President George Bush never warned Cuban President Fidel Castro of the invasion, President Reagan had approved of former and current staffers at the National Security Council.

Our sources say Cuba was indeed on a list of three countries to get advance notice of the invasion but that Castro, who already knew about the invasion, cut communication lines so he could pretend ignorance.

The information casts more doubt on the credibility of Jose I. Blandon, a former top aide to Panama's Gen. Manuel Noriega who was a prime witness before a federal grand jury that indicted Noriega on drug charges last month. Various authorities have challenged Blandon's reliability in recent days. His colorful stories about Noriega included the charge that Bush had asked Noriega to call Castro to warn the Cuban president before U.S. troops landed in Grenada.

Our sources, who include people who are neither allies nor supporters of Bush, say the vice president didn't set up the phone call. The job of warning Castro, possibly through diplomatic channels, was supposed to go to Lt. Col. Oliver North, who was overseeing the NSC part of the invasion plans.

By 3 p.m. on Oct. 24, 1983, the day before the invasion, President Reagan had approved an "action list" that authorized North to cable advance warning to the Soviet Union, Great Britain and Cuba. The first two were notified, but our sources say Castro, through his own intelligence, already knew about the pending invasion. NSC staffers believe Castro cut communications lines between the State Department in Washington and the small U.S. diplomatic staff working out of a former embassy in Havana.

In retrospect, our sources believe Castro didn't want any official warnings from the United States and his troops on the island could respond as if they were innocent and unknowing victims of a surprise attack. No matter what action Castro took, he could claim his people were justified in defending themselves against foreign invaders.

Castro has consistently claimed since the invasion that Cuban troops on Grenada did not fire until they were fired upon by U.S. Army Rangers. Sources at the NSC now confirm that that was the truth.

They also say Castro was furious with the Soviets for bringing down the wrath of the United States on the little Caribbean island of Grenada. In public, Castro generally blamed hard-line leftists for the overthrow and assassination of Grenadian Prime Minister Maurice Bishop.

In private, he has blamed the U.S. and the NSC. Castro thought the Soviets had meddled too much in island affairs, adding the straw that broke the camel's back — the coup.

"Castro knew how far he could push the U.S. and he knew it was the Russians who had pushed us into a probable invasion," said a former NSC staffer.

It is unclear whether the death toll in the invasion would have been any different had Castro been officially warned in advance. The U.S. claims it lost 19 people in the raid and that 45 Grenadians and 24 Cubans were killed. Had the Cubans fired first on the Rangers as they parachuted into Grenada, Castro has publicly said, the U.S. death toll would have been much higher.

Bush took some heat over Blandon's claim that he had warned Castro through Noriega's claim that Thatcher called the report "hogwash."

The plan to warn Castro fit in with U.S. strategy in Grenada. The warnings to him and other leaders were part of an attack carefully orchestrated to eliminate surprises and score a quick and clean victory.

The Soviets were warned on the day before the invasion as Reagan directed. The British were on the list because Grenada was part of the Commonwealth until 1974 and the queen has a governor general stationed there.

The warning to Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher was forgotten her until late on the day before the invasion. When she finally got the cable, Thatcher wired back asking Reagan to use political and economic pressures instead. According to a detailed account of the Grenada strategy by Ralph Kinney Bennett, which appeared in 1984 in Reader's Digest, Reagan sent a cable back to Thatcher thanking her for her "thoughtful message" but telling her that he had "an obligation" to the Caribbean countries that sought his help and to the 1,100 U.S. citizens living in Grenada.

Finally, in the 1970s, the welfare machinations of the Great Society wound up destroying the black family and dumped hundreds of thousands more of the destitute onto the streets.

These are the people, collectively dubbed "the homeless," on whom the Democratic candidates have settled as among the lucky new beneficiaries of their loudly advertised compassion.

But there are still clever things to call spending. For example, how about "investing" in school administrators — probably the most powerful single political bloc in America — can be packaged as "investing" in the education of our children. (Similarly, the enormous federal subsidies to the dairy industry are disguised as "free milk" under the school lunch program.)

Gradually, the Democratic contenders are reexamining us to think of the federal government as a huge benefactor from which all sorts of blessings flow — or, as H.L. Mencken put it in the palm days of the New Deal, as "a gigantic milch cow with 125 million teats."

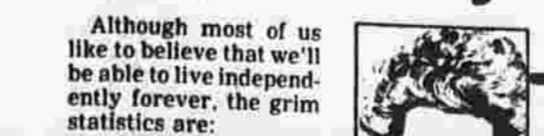

But this time they won't call it the Welfare State, "welfare" being in some derisive these days. Instead, I predict we'll be hearing a lot about the Service Society. Your friendly federal government has lots of "services" it wants to perform for you. Isn't that nice? And you won't mind paying for them, will you?

How to buy long-term health insurance

home care before getting benefits for intermediate care, custodial care and/or home health care?

Does the company guarantee to renew the policy as long as you pay the premium on time?

Will this policy cover: Alzheimer's disease, Parkinson's, senility?

Must you be hospitalized before you can receive benefits?

How many days after you enter a nursing home must you wait before receiving benefits for pre-existing conditions?

Must you receive skilled nursing insurance against long-term health care needs, here's a list of questions:

1) What is the maximum age by which you may apply?

2) Will the premium continue to be based on your age at enrollment?

3) What is the maximum amount the policy will ever pay out?

4) What is the cost of the coverage you want per month, per year, over 10 years?

Warning: There are insurance companies and agents who are dishonest and unreliable. You must be on the lookout for false claims, particularly in the areas of Medigap and long-term care insurance.

Be wary of:

• Seamy tactics by fast-talking salespeople, particularly if they are pushing you into buying coverage you may not need, cannot afford or already have.

• Someone who wants you to buy policies offering benefits for which you are already covered under Medicare and any Medigap policy you may already have. What you are looking for is insurance against costs for which you are not covered.

• The salesperson who "borrows" a legitimate senior organization's name — or even implies he or she represents the U.S. government — to help sell policies. By all means, check out any such credentials if you have any suspicion that they are not legitimate. A business card is not a license. No Medicare supplement policies are sold by state or federal governments. Only a very few group policies are sold by senior organizations (e.g., The American Association of Retired Persons).

• Pitches for "dread disease" insurance — e.g., for cancer — that rely on scare tactics and will only pay off if you come down with the particular disease you are insuring against. Medicare and Medigap policies are likely to cover a large part of the cost of hospitalization and medical care for cancer.

• Beware of an offer of "No required medical exam" means the policy covers some serious pre-existing illness you may have. That is almost never true.

Key point: Now, when you are healthy and not looking for any care, is the time to prepare.

Looking for a mortgage? Lenders like light debt

By Changing Times
The Kiplinger Magazine

Are you itching to be a "3BR, 2 1/2 BA, LR with FPL, lge. yard, sep. gar., $130,000," but fear the high inflation rate? Well, start with $150,000 for a "4BR, 2 1/2 BA, condo, $67,000" to a lender?

In other words, it is time for you to move to a bigger house, but the high inflation rate is making it difficult to pack. Though mortgage lenders have become flinched, you need not let this be your line.

The mortgage rates for 1988 is that lenders like light debt. They think twice about pushing home buyers to their financial limits in these low-inflation years. Companies with 1981, you need 20 percent more real income — what's left after paying housing expenses, taxes and long-term debts — to get a low-interest rate today.

Whether you agree that prudence is best or are determined to stretch your credit, before shopping for a loan you'd best know how lenders will evaluate your application.

The rules, such as they are, come primarily from Fannie Mae — the Federal National Mortgage Association. To make its mortgage pools attractive to investors, Fannie Mae wants loans to conform to its standards, and that limits the flexibility of original lenders. They either write loans to conform to these standards, or they are unable to resell them.

Fannie Mae measures your borrowing power as a ratio of your projected housing expenses to your gross household income. For a $90,000 fixed-interest loan on a $100,000 house, the magic numbers are 28 percent and 36 percent. That is, monthly mortgage interest and principal payments plus homeowners' insurance and property taxes should total no more than 28 percent of your gross monthly income. In addition, your monthly housing payment plus other long-term debts with 10 or more monthly payments still outstanding should total no more than 36 percent of gross income.

Income is what you and your spouse earn in before-tax wages. And it's pay for work you have been doing for a year or longer, not the extra job you took a few weeks ago. Other income, such as bonuses, commissions and overtime, must be averaged over two years to be considered wages.

Count alimony and child-support payments as income. If the payments will continue at least three years from the date of your loan application.

Not all loans get the straight 28-36 application. To qualify for certain adjustable-rate mortgages (ARMs) — ones that might deliver especially steep rate hikes in future years — you must meet stricter requirements. Here we're talking about ARMs that represent more than 80 percent of the value of the home, extend beyond 15 years and rely on a so-called 2-6 cap, which allows a maximum increase of 2 percentage points in any one year and 6 points over the life of the loan. In these cases Fannie Mae bases its calculations on the maximum rate that can go into effect after the first year. So if you are considering such an ARM with an 8 percent initial rate and a 2 percentage-point maximum increase per year, Fannie Mae (and thus very likely your lender) will analyze the loan based on a 10 percent rate.

Fannie Mae also has tightened up on mortgages with down payments of less than 10 percent of the purchase price. Today, these loans are held to stricter 25 percent and 33 percent standards.

For a $95,000 loan on that same $100,000 house, your home payment should equal no more than one-quarter of your gross monthly income, and your long-term debt no more than 33 percent.

Now that you know the guidelines, here's how to increase your borrowing power. First, analyze your monthly bills. Remember that lenders doing business with Fannie Mae will probably want your home expenses plus long-term bills to fit the 36 percent income ratio. If you are over the ratio, consider selling assets such as mutual fund shares to pay off debts.

Shop for the best mortgage rates. They often vary widely within an area. The interest rate on a loan is just as important as the loan amount itself when qualifying for a mortgage.

Adjust your down payment to meet your needs. If you have the cash or enough equity in an existing home, you can minimize your mortgage loan by making a down payment of 25 percent or more. Don't ignore the impact of your credit rating. The only acceptable mortgage loan and they are paid when you take out your loan, however, especially steep rate hikes in future years — you must meet stricter requirements. ## Parasites cause elephantiasis

DEAR DR. GOTT: A relative was recently diagnosed as having elephantiasis of the lower extremities. Is this inherited or contagious?

DEAR READER: Neither. Elephantiasis is the last stage of a disease called filariasis, in which the microscopic worms of the lymph circulation system, producing legs that are swollen with excess fluid. Although rare in the United States, filariasis is common in tropical countries where the parasite is carried by many species of mosquito. The disease is not inherited or spread by human-to-human contact. Treatment consists of elevating the legs and wrapping them with bandages, using a drug (diethylcarbamazine) and resorting to surgical removal of the worms in selected cases.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My daughter, 37, has been bleeding from the left kidney for four months. The urologist told her she had mesangial proliferation, which we can't find in a medical dictionary. He also told her that she should bleed for the rest of her life and that she should come back in a year. Is he correct? What is this disease?

DEAR READER: Mesangial proliferative glomerulonephritis is an unusual kidney ailment of unknown cause, marked by a breakdown in the kidney's filtration system. It causes loss of protein and blood in the urine, hypertension and eventual failure of the kidney to function. Spontaneous cures (without therapy) are frequent; there is no currently accepted treatment.

Because this is a rare medical disorder, your daughter should be under the care of a nephrologist, a non-surgical kidney specialist.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is a "trick knee"? Since I slipped and fell a year ago, my leg gives out during exercise, my knee swells up and I can't walk. My family thinks I'm overreacting.

DEAR READER: "Trick knee" is a phrase used to denote a variety of joint disorders, all of which have a common characteristic: instability of the knee. Ligament damage and cartilage problems can cause pain, swelling and a "giving way" feeling.

You need to be examined by an orthopedic surgeon who will diagnose the reason for your knee problem and suggest treatment.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the man who was dunned for months by the General Telephone Co. of Holiday, Fla., for a 1-cent bill reminded me of my own experience.

My dear departed wife left me one share of some vague stock that earns 8 cents a quarter — that's 32 cents per year! I have pleaded with the bank that sends me these "8-cent checks" to forget the whole thing, as my CPA, in preparing my tax returns, charges me the same amount to report that one share as all the other earnings — $10 for each listing.

I have subscribed to a soft-water service for 30 years, never missing a payment — and always punctually. Recently, I received a threatening, dunning computer printout in red to show that I was "seriously in arrears in my payments," and if I didn't send my 6 cents immediately, service would be discontinued and legal action taken.

Dutifully I endorsed one of my quarterly 8-cent checks and sent it to the company requesting that a check for 2 cents be returned to me.

In due course, the check for 2 cents arrived. Any company that uses computers and doesn't have a but in sense of humor is in trouble. I canceled that purified water service, am now drinking water from my tap, and I never felt better in my life.

JACK DEDERICK,
COSTA MESA, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the telephone bill of 1 cent, I'd like to bring you up to date. It would seem ridiculous, as you say, if the bill had been sent by a human being. Today these matters are handled by computers. Computers have many fine qualities, but common sense is not one of them.

A friend of ours, on returning from vacation, received a bill for $0.00. When he ignored it, he received a letter threatening to cut off his utilities if he didn't pay the bill immediately. He sent a check for $0.00. The computer was satisfied.

BERTHA PIERCE,
COOLIDGE, ARIZ.

DEAR ABBY: I am going to be married next summer. My fiance and I have lived away from our respective homes for several years and have almost everything we need to set up housekeeping. We are now trying to come up with some way to inform our friends that we have already selected a color TV, microwave oven and VCR at a certain store, so if they want to give us a gift, they should go to that store and put their money toward one of those gifts.

I hope I don't sound terrible saying this, but we really don't want anyone to spend their money on some junky little gift that we can't use. We would rather have them put their money toward something important.

How should I word a message of this kind to send along in our wedding invitations? PLANNING AHEAD

DEAR PLANNING: To enclose with your wedding invitations a suggestion concerning a gift would be very poor taste. The only acceptable way to convey your suggestions would be for a close friend to inform other friends. But don't be disappointed if some people prefer to make their own selections.

CONFIDENTIAL TO: Ellen, age 44, faithfully married to "John" in Fort Wayne. Please write again and include your name and address. I want to answer your question.

New book from Burns

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Comedian George Burns may be 82, but it's not slowing him down — he's doing stand-up routines at casinos, has just finished a movie and is working on a new book.

"There isn't anything I can't do now that I couldn't do when I was 18 — which shows you how pathetic I was at 18," he said during a recent one-hour performance at Caesars Palace on the Strip.

Burns is a regular at the Palace and other Caesars properties in Lake Tahoe, Nev., and Atlantic City, N.J. His new movie, "18 Again," opens April 9.

Burns' newest book is about the one true love of his life, Gracie Allen, his stage partner and wife of 58 years until her death in 1964.

"I've written six books. That's pretty good for a guy who only read two," he told the audience at Caesars.

"The formula for acting?" "If the director wants me to cry, I think of my sex life," he said. "If the director wants me to laugh, I think of my sex life."

"I'd go out with women my age, but there are no women my age."

Burns smokes 15 to 20 cigars and drinks several martinis daily.

What do his doctors think of that? "They're all dead."

WEEKEND

Bee-ing a hooker

A rug-hooking bee will be held Sunday, as part of an exhibit on hooked rugs at the Historical Society of Glastonbury's Museum-on-the-Green. The museum, at Main and Hubbard streets in Glastonbury, will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Artists will show various styles of hooking, and between 6 and 7 p.m. will hang for the public to examine. Admission is free.

The corny game

Danny Cahill's play, "Cornish Game," will be presented tonight and Saturday evening by Company One at the Hartford Arts Center, 94 Allyn St. The performances begin at 8 p.m. and are followed by a conversation with the performers and director, and a snack provided by the Congress Rotisserie. Tickets, at $10 each, are available at the door. However, to ensure that there is sufficient food, the audience is asked to make reservations by calling 278-6347.

Visit our town

The New Britain parish of St. Maurice is presenting the play "Our Town" this weekend to raise funds for the Friendship Center of New Britain. The center provides daily meals and lodging for many people who are homeless or troubled, and operates a Human Needs Office. Performances will be tonight and Saturday at 8 at the church, 100 Wightman Road, New Britain. A chicken dinner will be served Saturday evening at 6:30. Tickets for performances alone are $8; dinner and the show cost $15. To make a reservation, call 827-8847.

Blacks in aviation

The little-known story of American blacks in aviation will be illustrated for the coming month at the New England Air Museum in Windsor Locks. The exhibit, Black Wings, tells the story of the black involvement in aviation, from Eugene Bullard's service in France during World War I to the first black astronaut assigned to the space shuttle project. The museum is open daily, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is $5 for adults, $2 for children, and those under 6 are admitted free. The exhibit will be there through April 11. The museum is on Route 75, near Bradley International Airport.

Moscow Circus plans tour

NEW YORK (AP) — The Moscow Circus rolled out dancing bears and jugglers to announce that it is scheduling its first North American tour in 10 years. Company representatives, appearing at Radio City Music Hall on Wednesday, said the famous Soviet circus will open in Toronto on Aug. 15 and end its 15-city tour in San Francisco on Jan. 1. The 200 shows will include 44 performances

INTERTWINGING VINE — Members of the Vine Dance Theatre, a professional liturgical dance company, work on one of their dances, which include elements of jazz, tap and ballet, as well as American Sign Language, mime and folk dance. They will perform Saturday at 7 p.m. in the sanctuary of South United Methodist Church. One piece, "Kyrie," will be performed with the church's choir and organist, David Morse.

Chicago at Yale

You don't have to travel all the way to Chicago to see famed feminist artist Judy Chicago. This weekend, she will be in New Haven, as part of the Women in the Arts Festival. Her slide presentation, entitled "From the Creation to the Fall," will show the evolution of her work, including the room-sized multimedia work "The Dinner Party" and the needlework pieces collectively known as "The Birth Project." More recently, she has done a series called "Powerplay," about the effects of power on men, and she is working on a project about the Holocaust.

Playing around

The Producing Guild of Hartford will present Terrence McNally's spicy comedy, "It's Only a Play," beginning this weekend at the Wallace Stevens Theatre of The Hartford Insurance Group, 690 Asylum Ave., Hartford. There will be 18 performances through March 27. Performances are weekdays at 8 p.m., Fridays and Saturdays at 8:30 p.m., and Sundays at 2:30 and 7:30 p.m. Tickets may be reserved Monday through Friday, at 528-2143.

Galapagos

A film called "The Galapagos: Darwin's World Within Itself," will be shown this weekend at Dinosaur State Park in Rocky Hill. The film will be shown free at 11:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. For more information, or directions to the park, call 529-9423.

Up the Creek

Max Creek, a band which claims to play in the tradition of the Grateful Dead, will present a concert tonight in the Program Center at Manchester Community College. Tickets, sold at the door, will be $10. This is sponsored by the Student Senate Activities Committee.

FLYING HIGH — Members of the Alvin Alley American Dance Theater perform "The Slack Up," one of the pieces they will be doing this weekend at Bushnell Memorial Hall in Hartford. Performances are tonight and Saturday at 8, and Sunday at 2:30 p.m. Tickets cost between $10 and $29 each, and are available by calling 246-6807.

Blazing cannon

The sounds of thundering cannons and clashing armies will fill the air as the South Windsor High School Concert Band performs Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture" Saturday evening at 8. Joining the South Windsor band for the evening will be the band of Marple-Newton High School, from Newtown Square, Pa. This is the 17th annual band exchange for these two towns. The ambitious program also includes Bizet's "Carmen Suite" and various jazz selections. Admission is $2, which goes to support the band.

Filippin' delicious

The Lions Club of Hebron will serve a pancake breakfast Sunday from 9 a.m. to noon at the RHAM High School cafeteria in Hebron. The meal includes pancakes, sausage, coffee or milk. The donation is $3 general, $2 for senior citizens and children under 12.

UTC gives up skybox

HARTFORD — United Technologies Corp. has given up its $120,000-a-year skybox at the Hartford Civic Center in a cost-cutting move.

The conglomerate, in the middle of a restructuring that has already led to layoffs, divestitures and management changes, gave up the 24-person box on March 1 to two unnamed companies that will divide it.

UTC spokesman Bob Coombs said on Wednesday the move came following a regular review of operations that concluded that "more efficient means exist to serve the needs of the company."

There are 45 skyboxes at the Hartford Civic Center, all built and owned by the Hartford Whalers, according to Dave Andrews, vice president of finance and development for the National Hockey League franchise. Most have separate viewing and lounge areas, wet bars and restrooms, as well as telephones. The UTC box is the largest.

Colt going private

NEW YORK — Colt Industries Inc., a large defense contractor, said Thursday that it has accepted a $526.8 million cash tender offer from a group led by senior management and a unit of Morgan Stanley Group Inc.

The $75-a-share bid for all of Colt's approximately 20 million common shares outstanding was approved by the company's board of directors late Wednesday and is expected to begin within the next five days, according to a spokesman.

The offer was subject to several conditions, including a majority of the shares being tendered.

The deal calls for Colt to become a wholly-owned subsidiary of Colt Holdings Inc., a new company formed by the management team and Morgan Stanley Leveraged Equity Fund II. Colt said in a statement that about $1.4 billion of Colt debt would remain outstanding, it said.

Colt is a leading supplier of aerospace, automotive and industrial products. It employs about 22,000 people.

Westinghouse fine

BRIDGEPORT — Westinghouse Electric Corp. has agreed to pay a $90,200 penalty for violating federal rules on the use and storage of polychlorinated biphenyls at its Bryant Electric Division in Bridgeport and repair plant in Springfield, Mass., the federal Environmental

Small airlines attack landing fee hike plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Regional airlines say they are endangered by a proposal to raise landing fees for smaller planes at Boston's Logan International Airport, and they fear the action could set a dangerous precedent that other major U.S. airports are likely to follow.

Rep. Sherwood Boehlert, R-N.Y., said Thursday there is "legitimate and growing concern that the (Logan) proposal will set a national precedent which could severely jeopardize both commuter carriers and general aviation users across the country."

Boehlert drafted legislation that would allow Transportation Secretary James Burnley to place a moratorium on any fee change proposal for six months, and then bar new fee structures if found "not to be in the best interests of the public."

The Massachusetts Port Authority, the state-city airport authority that runs Logan Airport, is scheduled to vote next Wednesday on a revamped landing fee schedule designed to encourage more use by the big carriers over regional airlines, thereby reducing traffic and cutting down on delays.

Under the current system, planes have to pay $1.31 per thousand pounds of landing weight or a minimum $25, whichever is greater. Traditionally, airports have assessed landing fees according to weight.

But MassPort officials want the number of passengers to be considered too. The new proposal basically would raise the peak, time minimum to $91 plus 45 cents per thousand pounds of landing weight. That would result in much heavier fees for commuter and private planes, and less for jet liners.

Thomas Champion, assistant to the executive director at MassPort, said the plan would discourage some regional carriers and private owners, thereby reducing airfield traffic by 5 percent, which would result in a 40 percent decline in delays at the congested airport.

Ex-defense employee is sentenced in scam

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A former government employee, once responsible for $1.3 million a year in Pentagon clothing contracts, was sentenced Thursday to 10 years in prison for taking at least $31,000 in bribes from manufacturers.

Frank Cocca, 45, was convicted of paying Cocca thousands of dollars to get contracts for his clothing firm.

"Cocca influenced the awarding of hundreds of millions of dollars in military contracts to corrupt companies" in exchange for cash, money orders, gold coins and securities he hid in his home, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Linda Hoffa.

Cocca's crimes began in 1976 and continued for 10 years. Cocca was charged in a corruption investigation begun four years ago, that has resulted in the conviction of nine companies and 15

50-point stock 'collar' working

By Rick Gladstone
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — A New York Stock Exchange limit on computer program trading has squelched at least three wild price swings since it was enacted last month and has helped lure investors back to the market, analysts say.

The "collar," as NYSE officials call it, seems to have cooled speculative excesses by banning the use of exchange computers in a trading technique known as index arbitrage when the Dow Jones average changes 50 points from its previous close.

An earlier, voluntary restraint was triggered by a 75-point change.

Since Feb. 4, when the 50-point collar was announced, the limit has not been breached. The Dow average approached it three times, moving up 47.58 on Feb. 10, up 48.11 on Feb. 29, and down 48.24 on Thursday.

The technique's relationship to the volatile futures market has been blamed for playing a role in the Wall Street crash and subsequent price swings that frightened millions of ordinary investors into dumping their stocks.

Several prominent Wall Street firms, concerned they were killing their own business and arousing congressional hostility, have since abandoned index arbitrage for their own accounts.

Richard Wholey, a broker-analyst at the Wayne Hummer & Co. investment firm in Chicago, said he believes more investors are feeling less anxious about the market, partly because of the restriction on index arbitrage.

"Investors know they're not going to have a 500-point debacle on their hands," he said.

John J. Phelan Jr., chairman of the NYSE and an outspoken critic of index arbitrage, acknowledged last month that his office had been inundated with letters from outraged investors demanding an end to it.

Sharon Gamsin, an NYSE spokeswoman, would not comment Thursday on whether the nation's biggest stock market believes the collar has been effective.

Dividend procedure requires explaining

QUESTION: I have recently begun reading the business and financial section of the newspaper and would appreciate your explanation of the dividend procedure. My interpretation is that I can buy a stock before its "record date" and, soon after that, receive the cash dividend. Is it really as simple as that?

Investors' Guide
William A. Doyle

ANSWER: Not by a long shot. To begin with, in order to get the dividend, your purchase must be made before the "ex-dividend date" — four business days before the record date. Here, we're assuming your purchase is made in a "regular way transaction" — the way stocks normally are bought and sold.

Then, at the opening of business on the ex-dividend date, the market value of the stock automatically is reduced by the amount of the dividend. You'll receive the dividend on the "payment date," which occurs after the record date.

However, unless buying demand sends the stock's price up, you'll be no better off — because the market price of the stock after it goes ex-dividend plus the amount of the dividend will be equal to the market price of the stock before it goes ex-dividend. Actually, you'll be worse off. You have to pay income tax on the dividend.

A stock goes ex-dividend at the opening of business on the ex-dividend date because of the five-day settlement of regular way transactions. When you buy a stock, you have five business days to pay for it; when you sell, you have five business days to "make good delivery" to your broker. Let's say XYZ Corp. today declares a 50-cent dividend on the company's common stock, payable April 29 to stockholders of record March 25. Dividend checks will be mailed on or shortly before April 29 to investors whose names are recorded as stockholders on XYZ Corp.'s books at the close of business March 25.

March 25 is a Friday. XYZ common stock will go ex-dividend at the opening of business Monday, March 21. Between the opening of business Monday and the close of business Friday, five business days will elapse.

In this example, if you buy XYZ common in a regular way transaction on or before Friday, March 18, you will get the dividend.

QUESTION: Is it ever possible to buy stock on or after the ex-dividend date, up to the record date, and receive the scheduled dividend?

ANSWER: Yes, by arranging for four-, three-, two-, one- or same-day settlement of your transaction. A trade with same-day settlement is called a "cash sale." By doing that, you would not make your purchase in a regular way transaction, with the usual settlement period of five business days.

1888: It was some snow job!

no snowplows and no emergency planning. He recalled the blizzard in his article:

"The drifts covered the entire first floor windows. The tunnel from the house to the barn was in some places 6 feet deep. The most modern snow removal equipment... would in this writer's opinion have been almost useless in '88."

The Watkins family was stranded in their home until the storm finally ended on March 13.

"When we woke up on the third day we saw that the storm was over and leading a procession of men on horseback single file was our good and distinguished neighbor, Dwight Bidwell, principal of the high school and gentleman farmer," Watkins wrote. "The single path made by the men on horseback was widened by yokes of oxen so that foot travelers could get to town."

A 1967 article for the Herald, prepared by members of the Manchester Historical Society from newspaper accounts of the storm, described how the town was brought to a halt.

"The blizzard of Monday caught many people away from home. The Manchester (train) station was crowded all day with weary passengers waiting for the train that did not come. The noon express reached Vernon on time, but there it remained. The local freight, which had been switching in the yard all the morning, finally came to a standstill on the south track of the main line. The train crew swelled the crowd in the depot and passed the night there with a dozen others."

"The Cowles Hotel was crowded. The Mather Electric company's employees were only partly successful in reaching their boarding places. Seven girls and 35 men passed the night in the factory; they made beds in the hay used in packing electrical pumps."

"The silk mill closed early and most of the employees found shelter at home or among their friends who lived near the mills. About 20 girls spent the night at the mills and were provided with food from the families of the Messers. Cheney. The schools closed as soon as the storm became severe and the children were safely disposed of. At Oakland the teacher and 12 pupils passed the night at the schoolhouse.

"Business was suspended Tuesday save at the meat market and grocery stores, which were thronged with customers. Every house holder made his way to the nearest store and laid in supplies for a long siege."

"Wednesday morning the situation was unchanged. The novelty of the storm had worn off and everybody was longing for pleasant weather. By noon their wishes were granted and the work at the mill began."

"The South Manchester railroad put a force of 125 men at work shoveling and by night had cleared the line. The smoke of approaching engines on the New England road was eagerly watched from the depot; and when a train finally appeared, 'it was hailed with cheers.'

"Work on the streets began Tuesday afternoon and all day Wednesday heavy sleds were dragged over the principal thoroughfares. Many of the side streets are still impassable."

When the blizzard stopped, Manchester and the rest of the East Coast faced the enormous problems of what to do with tons of snow, the largest amount to fall in two-and-a-half centuries, wrote Caplovich.

Fortunately, wrote Watkins in his article for the Herald, "The blizzard of '88 occurred in March, too late to do any permanent damage, nor was Lovely Spring affected or delayed by Winter's last big bluster."

Countless winter storms have hit central Connecticut since but none have ever matched the blizzard of 1888.

This story includes material from a March 1988 "Smilbanian" magazine article by Ezra Bowen.

Town says repair is due on culvert

million infrastructure bond issue approved in 1984.

Werber added that the administration was aware of the holes in the Pascantelli's back yard. Workers from the highway department will be sent to the home to determine the extent of the damage and whether any immediate action should be taken, he said.

"If there's any imminent danger, then we'll have to take the appropriate action," he said.

Werber said that the repair of the culvert at the Pascantelli's was being delayed because it was believed that other culverts were in worse condition and needed more immediate attention.

Sandra Pascantelli said that when she complained about the culvert to former Public Works Director George A. Kandra last spring, Kandra "talked me in circles."

"On the one hand, he said it's not the town's responsibility. On the other hand, he said, 'Do you know how much this is going to cost?'"

Last March, Thomas Pascantelli said, he wrote to former Mayor Barbara B. Weinberg about the problem but received no reply.

The problem with the culvert became evident soon after the Pascantellis bought their home. Their basement flooded after a heavy rain, but they figured at the time that the rain was at fault.

In 1979, Sandra Pascantelli said, she and her husband decided to tear up the parking lot behind their two-family home and make it into a yard for their children. At that time, they asked the town to repair the culvert while excavating was going on.

The town took no action, she said.

Two years later, workers from the town returned to look over the problem.

"They looked around and said they were shocked it was here. They periodically come out and look at it and do nothing," she said.

Pascantelli said she and her husband knew about the problems with the culvert when they bought their house, but they were told that the problems had been corrected.

Now, with the culvert still in disrepair, they want to move to a new, larger home but are unable to do so because they wouldn't be able to sell their present home.

If they could sell their house, their first priority would be to find a new one outside Manchester, Sandra Pascantelli said.

"I tell you, we've been treated pretty shabbily (by the town)."

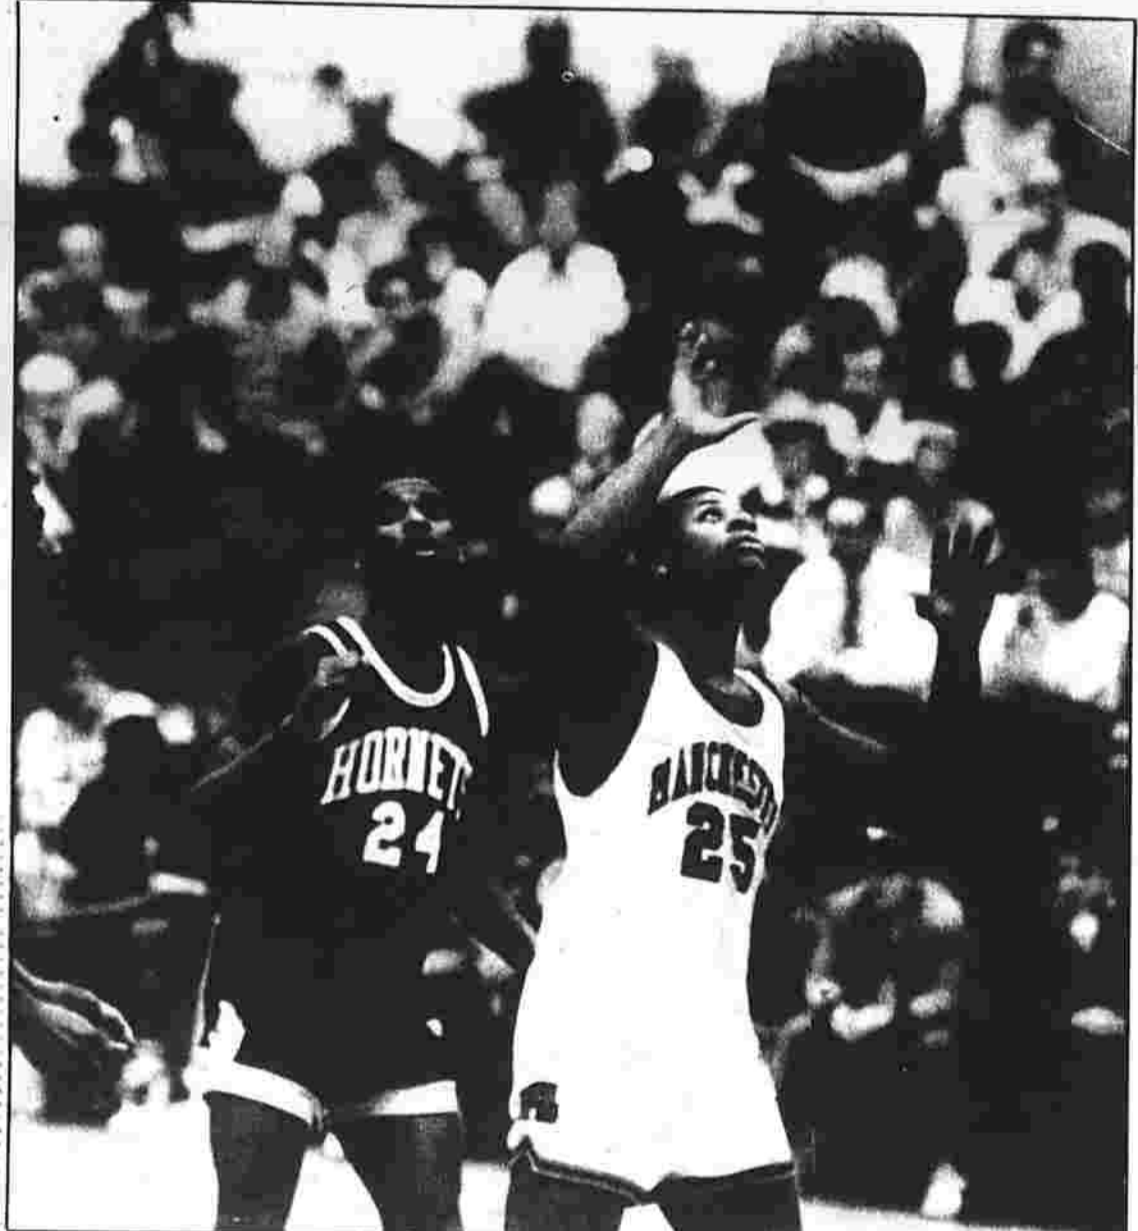

Both Pascantellis are Manchester natives who work in town. She is a dispatcher with the Manchester Police Department, and he has been an officer on the force for the past 15 years.

Not born in America

WASHINGTON (AP) — Of the 55 signers of the Declaration of Independence, eight were not born in America.

The eight were born in the British Isles and had come to America as immigrants. They were: William Penn, Robert Morris, James Wilson, George Taylor and Matthew Thornton, Ireland, and James Wilson and John Witherspoon, Scotland.

UConn gets by PC in Big East tourney

NEW YORK — University of Connecticut basketball coach Jim Calhoun insisted his Huskies weren't a last-place team and they went out and did something about it Thursday night, beating Providence College, 75-62, in the opening round of the Big East Tournament.

The Huskies, who finished last in the nine-team conference in the regular season, will meet fifth-ranked and top-seeded Pittsburgh Friday in a quarterfinal game at 7 p.m. The game will be telecast on state by WTTX-TV Channel 20. The other quarterfinals have Syracuse against Boston College, Georgetown versus Seton Hall and Villanova against St. John's.

Juniors Cliff Robinson and Phil Gamble netted 24 and 23 points, respectively, to pace the Huskies' 15-13 overall. This was Connecticut's first Big East tournament victory since 1980, a streak of eight losses to the conference.

"This is a big win," Robinson said. "Since I've been here this is the first time we've made it past the first round and it really feels good. And we feel Pitt is a beatable team. I'm not saying they aren't a good team, but if we come out and play hard they're beatable."

Pittsburgh beat UConn twice during the season by margins of three points (61-58) in Pittsburgh and five points (74-69) in Hartford.

The loss ends the season for Providence, which went to the Final Four last season but finished 1987-88 with an 11-17 record.

"We have the coach and the players and more good players are coming in," Gamble said. "Everybody wants to win. We're coming in losing. This is my third year and I didn't play the last half of last year. It's a great feeling."

Connecticut led 31-27 at halftime and a baseline jumper by Steve Wright with 18:24 to play brought Providence within 35-33. Robinson then started an 8-0 run with four straight points on a reverse layup and an alley-oop. Freshman forward Lyman DePriest scored on a steal and layup and Gamble, who had just four points at halftime, finished the run off with a driving basket with 15:33 to play.

Robinson scored four straight points again with 6:34 to play to give the Huskies a 56-46 lead.

"The Friars scored six straight points and the seven-point difference was as close as they would get the rest of the way."

"Our defense was the key," Calhoun said. "We were able to stop their three-pointers and we did a very good job overall."

"It was a hard-fought game," PC Coach Gordon Chiesa said. "UConn is the Seton Hall of the Big East of last year. UConn is a sleeping giant. This year they've progressed. Next year they will be very talented."

Tate George added 10 for Connecticut, while Wright led Providence with 20 points. Darryl Wright added 13 for the Friars and Quinton Burton had 10.

Lakers lose minus Magic

CHICAGO (AP) — Can the Los Angeles Lakers win without Magic Johnson?

"Probably not," Lakers Coach Pat Riley says. "But, when you've already lost Michael Cooper (sprained left ankle) and Wally Matthews (corned abrasion of the right eye) is unavailable, the loss of the NBA's most valuable player does not make for a good evening."

With Johnson playing only 10 minutes Thursday night before re-injuring his groin, Michael Jordan and the Chicago Bulls to a 128-107 victory over the Lakers.

Jordan's 38 points, including 17 in the third quarter, enabled the Bulls to tie the defending world champions for the first time since Dec. 2, 1984.

Johnson is the Lakers' leading scorer and is second in the league in assists.

"There's no doubt about it, Magic is the heart and soul of the Lakers and without him running their fast break and half-court game they are literally doomed."

Jordan's third-quarter effort along with Charles Oakley's 20 points allowed the Bulls to defeat Los Angeles for the first time in Chicago since Jan. 8, 1982. The loss also was the first in five games for the Lakers and only the second in their last 16.

James Worthy, who led the Lakers team with 21 points, said, "The loss of Johnson for any stretch of time is a disaster for us, especially when it's for most of the game. He is our floor leader. But the Bulls played well and we knew we would be fatigued."

Blazers 112, Rockets 109

Clyde Drexler scored 33 points, a career-high for him against the Portland Trail Blazers. Kevin Duckworth had 30 points and 13 rebounds to lead Portland to its seventh straight victory, snapping the Blazers' 11-game losing streak to Houston.

Jerome Kersey added 19 points and 11 rebounds for Portland, which tied the club record for consecutive road victories at five.

NBA Roundup

Akeem Olatunju paced the Rockets with 28 points and 20 rebounds.

Warriors 128, Nets 112

Chris Mullin scored 26 points and reserve guard Steve Harris had a career-high 24 as Golden State snapped an eight-game losing streak by handling New Jersey only its second loss in six games since Willis Reed took over as coach.

The Nets were led by Tim McCormick's 26 points and Roy Hinson's 21.

With Ben McDaniels scoring 11 rebounds, the Warriors led 32-29 after the first quarter and extended the margin to 63-55 at the end of the third quarter. State's Rod Higgins, who finished with 22 points, sparked a 17-4 run to break a 45-45 tie midway through the second period by connecting on a trio of 3-point baskets.

LOVE HUG — Portland's Steve Johnson puts a bear hug on Houston's Akeem Olatunju in their game Thursday night. The Trail Blazers won, 112-109.

MHS in quarterfinal bout, Coventry after girls' title

Tonight is what Manchester High (19-3) has been waiting for since it was ousted in last year's Class LL quarterfinals by eventual state champs West Haven High by a one-sided 85-53 margin.

The Indians will collide with Danbury High School (20-4) in a Class LL quarterfinal tonight at 8:15 at Crosby High in Waterbury. Manchester, co-CCC East champs, advanced to tonight's game with wins over Fern Hill (67-49) Monday night and Hall High of West Hartford (78-70) Wednesday night. The Indians, the top seed in the East Region, is ranked fifth overall.

The Hatters, seeded fourth overall, advanced with wins over West Haven (64-61) and Notre Dame of West Haven (67-48). Danbury is led by 6-foot-2 junior guard Donald Diggs, who averages 22 points a game.

"We've reached the same point we were at last year," Manchester Coach Frank Kineal said. "This time we want to go (out) and win. Last year we were a little embarrassed."

Danbury is a member of the Fairfield County Intercollegiate Athletic Conference. "We're not small. We rely on balance," Danbury Coach Ken Smith said. "Tonight you play the first quarter trying to figure what it's all about."

along with 5-foot-11 junior Maura Daney (7.5 points, 11.1 rebounds). Kolbe answers with one rebound. The Cougars are an independent school and played seven Double L schools this year, and only two games against Class S opposition.

This is Kolbe's third consecutive trip to the Class S final. It dropped a 45-41 victory to six-time champ Westbrook High in 1987. This is Coventry's first trip to the final since 1980 when it lost the Class S final to East Hampton.

Coventry boys ousted from tournament play

WILLIMANTIC — A cold-shooting second half spelled the fate of the Coventry High boys' basketball season in a second round Class S East Region state tournament game with Griswold on Thursday night.

After leading 17-11 after the first quarter and 35-28 at halftime, Coventry shot a woful 7-for-30 in the second half and the Patriots dropped a 66-56 decision to Griswold at Eastern Connecticut State University.

Coventry, which was seeded third in the region, finishes its season with a 15-8 record. Sixth-seeded Griswold moves to 14-11.

"We just shot poorly in the second half," Patriot Coach Ron Badstueber said. "That's how they beat us."

Despite an eight-point performance in the third stanza, Coventry still clung to a 45-42 lead after three quarters. The Patriots lost its lead quickly in the final stanza and shot 3-for-17 from the floor.

"You're not going to catch anybody shooting that way," Badstueber explained. Jack Ayer led Coventry with a game-high 24 points while Charles Morris topped Griswold with 20.

Kerr's return big plus for the Flyers

By Ken Rappoport
The Associated Press

Tim Kerr didn't score a point, but was nevertheless worth his weight in goals for the Philadelphia Flyers.

"Obviously, Tim made a difference tonight," Flyers Coach Mike Keenan said following Thursday night's 5-2 NHL victory over the Washington Capitals. "The team responded well and they gave a great performance. Tim has been a back-breaking force against the Capitals."

The game was Kerr's first since last April 24. Since then, he has undergone five operations on his right shoulder. He resumed skating less than a month ago and practiced for the first time Tuesday.

Brian Propp, who scored two goals as the Flyers moved back into first place in the Patrick Division over the Capitals, found a big advantage in Kerr's return.

"It's nice to have the team concentrating on someone else," he said. "Timmy made things a lot easier out there tonight. He's always hustling. He makes you play better."

Kings 3, Bruins 3

Bernie Nicholls beat Reggie Lemelin for his second goal of the game on a power play with five seconds remaining in the third period to give Los Angeles the tie.

The Bruins had taken a 3-2 lead just 54 seconds earlier when Canadian Olympian Bob Joyce tipped in Glen Wesley's shot from the point for his third NHL goal.

U.S. Olympian Craig Janney scored his first NHL goal for the Bruins in the second period when he scored in the other Boston goal.

Jimmy Carson also scored for the Bruins.

Two power-play goals by Doug Gilmour enabled St. Louis to overcome an early 2-0 deficit and break Pittsburgh's three-game winning streak.

Tony McKenney added a goal and two assists for the Blues.

The Penguins remained tied with New Jersey in the Patrick Division, one point behind the fourth-place New York Rangers.

Flames 5, Jets 3

Rookie Joe Nieuwendyk scored his 47th and 48th goals as Calgary tied the Montreal with 88 points, the most in the NHL.

Nieuwendyk's second goal, on a power play at 8:33 of the third period, tied the score 3-3 and Dana Murzyn netted the winner just 39 seconds. Al MacInnis and Brad McCormick also scored for the Flames, whose Mike Bullard had two assists to total 500 career points.

Assessment hearings scheduled

By Alex Girelli
Manchester Herald

Several taxpayers have scheduled hearings with the assessor's office to appeal their new property valuations, but none so far this morning had appeared to the Board of Tax Review.

Tax Assessor J. Richard Vincent said today some hearings with taxpayers have been scheduled by members of the assessor's staff. Vincent said he did not know how many such hearings have been set because four members of the staff are scheduling them independently.

He said he planned sometime today to find out how many hearings his staff has scheduled. Vincent said it is not necessary for taxpayers to appeal to the assessor before they go to the Board of Tax Review, but that is the normal practice. Taxpayers must approach the tax review board before they can file an appeal with the Superior Court, however.

Vincent said he would normally expect to see appeals to the Board of Tax Review for a couple of weeks. Most of the calls coming in now, he said, are inquiries.

"One day's experience produces pandemonium," Vincent said, but it does not give a clear indication of how many formal appeals there will be.

The Board of Tax Review has scheduled six hearings to hear appeals beginning March 22. The board schedules such hearings in advance of receiving appeals.

The board may have to schedule added hearings. The number of appeals is normally high after a revaluation.

The hearings, all in the office of the assessor in the Municipal Building, at 41 Center St., are scheduled for March 22, 23, 24, 29, 30, and 31, all from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Notices of the new assessments will be sent out this week and most of them have already been received by property owners. The assessments, on which the tax will be mailed out in June will be based, are set at 34 percent of the fair market value of the property as of Oct. 1, 1986 although the effective date of the assessment is Oct. 1, 1987.

The assessment will automatically increase each year for five years.

For the tax bills that will be sent out in June 1992, the assessment will be at 70 percent of the fair market value as of Oct. 1, 1986. Many of the calls the assessor has been receiving had concerned what appear to the taxpayers to be new category assessments. They are for "other buildings" which now include attached garages and for "acres" which does not include any part of a house lot in excess of the average house lot for the neighborhood in which the house is located.

These categories appear on the assessment notices because of the way the town's computer program is set up and do not affect the amount of the assessment, Vincent said.

Home schooling is increasing in popularity

By Pierce Tyler
The Associated Press

BRIDGEPORT — Religious beliefs and a desire to strengthen family ties have prompted a growing number of parents to bypass public schools in favor of teaching their children at home. The movement is known as home schooling. And the overwhelming message of home-schooling parents is that they want more control over the moral education of their children. Experts say Christian families have been at the forefront of the surge for the past decade. Some parents fear the influence of violence, sex and drugs in public schools. But education experts have cited problems with keeping children at home, including possible difficulties adjusting to society later in life.

IN CONNECTICUT last year, state education officials recorded a 30 percent jump in the number of documented home-school cases. Yet the number of home-schooled children accounts for less than 1 percent of the state's total school age population. In southwestern Connecticut, Bridgeport reported three home-school cases this school year; Beacon Falls, two; Naugatuck, one; Newtown, two; Orange, one; teaching Christian doctrine. Parents need prove only that their child would receive an "equivalent" education for approval to home school, according to Lorraine Aronson, deputy commissioner of education. "There is really no sense of unrest, or need to change the legislation," Aronson said.

BUT SOME area school authorities feel otherwise. For instance, members of the Region 16 Board of Education, which encompasses Beacon Falls and Prospect, in the past few months have found state guidelines to be inadequate. The board last fall approved three home-school requests. In each case, however, board members were unable to reach a satisfactory definition of equivalent education, according to Region 16 Schools Superintendent John Buck.

"The members of the board were frustrated by the lack of criteria in the state statute," Buck said. "I would certainly welcome more detailed guidance from the state Department of Education, perhaps even a checklist," said Bridgeport Schools Superintendent James Connelly. There is also an absence of data on home-schooling, research ever would have been," said according to Marie Della Bella, curriculum specialist with the state Education Department. Large home-school populations appear in states such as California, Florida and Michigan, according to Lines. Many states have been forced by the sheer volume of requests to adopt home-schooling legislation, she said.

BUT CONNECTICUT has no plans for such laws, Aronson said. Home-schooled children's test scores show rankings at or above grade level, according to Della Bella. One example is the case of the Colfax brothers, according to Susanah Sheffer, editor of "Growing Without Schooling," a 4,500-circulation magazine for home-schooling parents published in Boston. The two Colfax brothers, of Beverly Hills, Calif., were schooled at home most of their lives. Later, they were admitted to Harvard University.

"There are lots of others," Sheffer said. "They apply to be considered as an anomaly." Competition and peer pressure are factors of school life that home-schooled parents want their children to avoid. But keeping children out of school may have dangers in isolating children from the school community. Dr. Dennis Meadows, a psychologist, says that home-schooling parents who do not interact with other parents would have been," said
