Weiss: Outside reval 'wiser'

By Nancy Concelman
Manchester Herald

Town Manager Robert B. Weiss says now that the town would probably have been "wiser" to bring in an outside firm to do the 1987 revaluation that was scrapped after a series of problems.

But, he said, the decision to have the town assessor do an in-house revaluation seemed right when the revaluation was being planned about five years ago because of problems South Windsor and Glastonbury were having with the outside firms doing their revaluations. The town has received permission from the state Office of Policy and Management to scrap the revaluation because of a number of problems, including questions over whether 1986 market values were properly used to determine the revaluation.

The OPM has asked the state attorney general's office to rule on whether those market values were properly used. A decision on that request is not expected to be issued for several weeks, according to James Kennedy, the executive assistant to Attorney General Joseph Lieberman.

"Given the facts at that time... it appeared to be the right decision," Weiss said Friday. "Looking at the situation as it developed, it's obvious the town would maybe have been wiser to bring in an outside firm."

Weiss said when the revaluation was being planned five years ago, Assessor J. Richard Vincent told town officials he would be willing to do the revaluation himself.

"He thought the results would be better," Weiss said.

But Vincent, who has been criticized recently by town officials and the public for his handling of the 1987 revaluation, said recently he wished he could have avoided the revaluation by hiring an outside firm. Vincent said the town rejected the idea because of costs.

Vincent estimated the cost of hiring an outside firm at about $500,000. Before the town got permission to set aside the in-house revaluation, Weiss estimated the cost of it at about $292,000.

The current revaluation also has cost the town about $15,000 in overtime for employees at the assessor's office.

Vincent also responded to criticism from members of the town Board of Tax Review that he didn't tell them about a March 21 deadline to request an extension from the state to act on appeals of assessments.

Vincent said he suggested the extension at the beginning of this year, but his request was refused by Weiss and other town officials.

Weiss said Friday that at the time, he thought it would be feasible for employees to put in the overtime and complete the process this year.

"I had said we wanted to do everything on schedule," he said. "Hindsight's a lot easier than foresight."

Arabs kill hostage, seek fuel

By Mona Zlode
The Associated Press

LARNACA, Cyprus — Arab hijackers of a Kuwait Airways jet killed a hostage today and tossed him onto the tarmac, after threatening to slay a member of Kuwait's royal family.

The gunmen said the dead man was a "Kuwaiti officer." He was the second man killed by the hijackers, who hold nearly 50 people aboard the plane.

Doctors said the side of the man's face was badly injured, possibly because of a beating, and there appeared to be one bullet wound in his forehead.

The hijackers warned they would take "more dangerous steps" if their demand for fuel was not met by Cypriot officials. They earlier said they wanted to fly to a "neutral country."

The victim, wearing a blue top and light gray or brown pants, remained motionless after hitting the ground today, said Associated Press photographer Udo Weitz, who was watching through a telephoto lens.

He was thrown out at 3:07 p.m. (8:07 a.m. EDT) after Cypriot authorities did not comply with several demands that the aircraft be refueled.

Half an hour later an ambulance headed toward the plane, picked up the body and took it to the Larnaca morgue, where AP photo stringer Takis Ioannides said the man was dead on arrival.

Ioannides said doctors told him the man apparently had been shot in the forehead and beaten.

"We have executed a Kuwaiti officer," a hijacker told the control tower. "We also reconfirm that the craft must be refueled immediately, immediately, before we take more dangerous steps."

Earlier, Kuwaiti officials had said three people with "military status" were on the plane.

One of them, a 24-year-old Kuwaiti border guard, was killed Saturday in the first death in the weeklong ordeal.

The hijackers had set two deadlines today for fuel. A 1 p.m. (6 a.m.) deadline passed without incident after Malaz Abdo, deputy head of the Palestine Liberation Organization office here, and Michael Herodotou, head of Cyprus' Civil Aviation Department, conducted brief negotiations with the hijackers.

The hijackers then set a 2:30 p.m. (7:30 a.m. EDT) deadline and told the control tower refueling must start or "you will receive the corpse."

Forty-seven minutes after that deadline passed, the person, identified by the hijackers as a Kuwaiti officer, was thrown out of the jet.

In announcing the first deadline today, one of the gunmen told the control tower by radio: "We

HERE SHE IS! — Carri Grilli waves to the audience at Manchester High School Saturday following her selection as Miss Manchester 1988.

Town gets a new 'Miss Manchester'

By Jayne Keedle
Manchester Herald

No. 13 proved to be good luck for Carri Grilli, who became the new Miss Manchester Saturday night in the first Miss Manchester Scholarship Pageant held since 1979.

"I did it!" the newly crowned Miss Manchester, who was officially listed as contestant No. 13, announced joyfully to her parents, Gary and Jean Grilli, backstage after the win.

Grilli, of South Windsor, said her parents had been very supportive of her entering the pageant, an idea that initially came from her dance instructor. The Manchester contest was the fourth pageant Grilli had entered.

She will now go on to compete in the Miss Connecticut pageant June 18 in New Haven. The winner will compete in the Miss America Pageant.

"Winning this was a complete surprise," Grilli said. "I'm ecstatic! I was just as nervous as everyone else." The contest was close and the women waited anxiously on stage for several minutes while the scores were recounted.

An audience of 400 attended the pageant at Manchester High School. Mayor Peter DiRosa and Grace Jaworski, the 1979 winner, were the emcees. The contest program included performances from former pageant winners from other towns, giving the entrants time to change for the different competitions.

The judges based their evaluations on bathing suit and evening gown competitions, talent displays and public speaking, along with interviews with each candidate held earlier in the day.

Grilli, who performed a tap dance routine for the talent competition, will now serve as official hostess for the town.

Jaworski, who had held the title for nine years, said that being Miss Manchester had been exciting and had given her a lot of self confidence, but that she is "glad to hand the title over."

Informant is linked to murder arrest

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Manchester Herald

Hartford Superior Court Judge Salvatore Arena agreed today to a request by Assistant State's Attorney Lawrence Daly to keep an affidavit related to the Lauren G. Anderson murder case sealed for another two weeks.

Christopher Cosgrove, a public defender representing the man charged with murder in the case, Epifano Vasquez, said outside a court hearing that the affidavit was ordered sealed "probably because of a confidential informant."

Daly was unavailable for comment this morning.

A hearing was to be held later today to determine whether bond should be reduced from the $250,000 set last month. Vasquez is being held at the Morgan Street lockup in Hartford.

Vasquez's next court appearance is set for April 25, at which the judge will probably schedule a probable cause hearing. Cosgrove said.

Vasquez, 35, is charged with felony murder in connection with the killing of Anderson last year. Anderson, 26, was found dead in her apartment at 82A Congress St. on Jan. 27, 1987, with a bullet wound in the side of her body.

The charges against Vasquez were transferred to Hartford Superior Court, where more serious crimes are tried, after his arraignment last month in Manchester Superior Court. He was transferred to Connecticut after drug charges against him in Rochester, N.Y., were thrown out of a New York court on March 9, officials have said.

Police have said the murder may have resulted from an argument Vasquez and Anderson, his former girlfriend, were having about drugs. Anderson was killed by a single bullet, which struck her left arm and entered her body, police have said.

CHARLOTTE GRANVILLE
... New England apple pie champ

When it comes to apple pies, she's New England's champ

By Marle P. Grady
Manchester Herald

A Manchester woman who admits her mother banned her from the kitchen when she was a child became the first Connecticut resident to win New England's Best Two-Crusted Apple Pie Bake-off competition Sunday.

Charlotte Granville, of Deer Run Trail, dabbed tears of joy from her eyes at the Salem Cross Inn in West Brookfield, Mass., where she competed against nine other women from New England for the title.

"My mother would not let me bake because she was afraid I'd spoil something," Granville said an hour before the judges chose the winner: the low-calorie, double-crust pie she baked in a 17th century oven.

Later, she said her mother, who died several months ago, would have been delighted.

"My mother was an excellent cook. She would have been proud," Granville said.

So was Ken Andersen, commissioner of the Connecticut Department of Agriculture.

"You made my day because this apple is Connecticut grown," said Andersen, as he handed Granville a sterling silver apple, that was one of many first-place prizes.

Andersen, who wore on his shirt collar a button with "Connecticut Grown" emblazoned on it, said the state had lobbied to increase interest in the four-year-old competition. Ninety three Connecticut contestants had vied in a state competition in Farmington March 12 to earn their way to the finals. Of those 93, 10 were chosen to compete in a semifinal competition at the Salem Cross Inn in late March.

Granville was one of three Connecticut women to make it to the finals. That number was higher than that produced by any other state.

"Connecticut put this (competition) on the map," said Andersen, who joked that his Connecticut-grown button is "permanently attached to my neck."

The competition helped highlight the fact that apples should not "just be associated with October," Andersen said.

"By the year 2,000, we could actually double the size of Connecticut-grown apples."

Oscar night arrives

By Richard De Atley
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Six 24-foot fiberglass Oscars stood guard today outside the Shrine Auditorium, flanked by dozens of fans camped out in bleachers for a front-row look at celebrities arriving for the 60th annual Academy Awards.

"This is my ninth year being first, and 11th overall. I'm having a great time," bragged Joey Marcus, slurping on a frozen ice bar as temperatures soared to 93 degrees Sunday afternoon.

With about 100 fans already grabbing seats outside Sunday to catch a glimpse at the glitz, inside, technicians fine-tuned reluctant dragons and participants rehearsed.

Tonight's three-hour show is to be broadcast nationally by ABC-TV starting at 9 p.m. EDT.

Bernardo Bertolucci's "The Last Emperor," the kind of historical epic Hollywood loves to embrace, was favored for best picture over "Broadcast News," "Moonstruck," "Fatal Attraction" and "Hope and Glory."

Cher, Holly Hunter, Glenn Close, Sally Kirkland and Meryl Streep were in contention for best actress. Michael Douglas and Robin Williams were in a best actor battle with Marcelllo Mastroianni, Jack Nicholson and William Hurt.

During rehearsals Saturday, Dudley Moore and Liza Minnelli worked their way through an introductory medley of Oscar-nominated best songs, with Moore playing a white concert grand piano.

The first song, "Storybook Love," got under way with a silhouette sequence featuring a prince who was supposed to take on enemies and slay a dragon as they slipped past him on a treadmill.

Renzo Cassettari
Renzo Cassettari, 62, of 130 Maple St., husband of Joanne (Murray) Cassettari, died April 5 while on a cruise. He is the father of Philip Cassettari of Manchester. He was born Oct. 12, 1925, in Wakefield, Mass., the son of the late Pietro and Pia (Rossi) Cassettari. He moved with his family from Wakefield to Bagini di Luca in Forni, Italy, when he was 6 months old. He attended grade school and high school there. While in high school he learned the tailoring trade and practiced as a tailor in Italy until the age of 21. In 1947, he returned to the U.S., settling in Putnam, where he worked at the Church clothing store as a tailor. In 1955, he bought the Danielson Fruit Co., which he operated until he died.

Besides his wife, he is survived by three sons, Philip Cassettari of Manchester, Peter Cassettari of Danielson and Paul Cassettari of Newmarket, N.H.; two daughters, Susan and Lisa, both of Danielson; a brother, Aldo Cassettari of Danielson; two grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

James Lawrence Greene
James Lawrence Greene, of Norwich, died Saturday. He was the brother of Glair Greene of Manchester. Besides his sister, he is survived by a brother, Robert Greene in Florida.

The funeral will be Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the Gagne-Plechowski Funeral Home, 483 W. Main St., Norwich. Burial will be in South Cemetery, Hampton. There are no calling hours.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Lung Association, 45 Ash St., Hartford.

Deaths Elsewhere
Brook Benton
NEW YORK (AP) — Brook Benton, whose smoky baritone produced a string of hits in the late 1950s and '60s and "Rainy Night in SoHo" in 1970, died Saturday at age 54.
Benton, who started out as a gospel singer, was known for ballads set against lush orchestral arrangements.

In 1959, he had four Top 20 hits: "It's Just a Matter of Time," "So Many Ways," "Endlessly" and "Thank You Pretty Baby." Among his later hits were "The Boll Weevil Song," "Think Twice," "Revenge," "Frankie and Johnny" and "For My Baby."

Timothy S. Mayer
BOSTON (AP) — Timothy S. Mayer, a playwright, theater director and lyricist nominated for a Tony Award for writing the book for the hit musical "My One and Only," died Saturday. He was 44.
Mayer was associate director of the Boston Shakespeare Co. and in 1984, with Peter Sellars, staged the widely acclaimed production of Bertolt Brecht's "Mother Courage."

Pierre S. du Pont III
WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Pierre S. du Pont III, a retired Du Pont Co. executive and the father of the former presidential candidate and governor, died Saturday at age 77.
A chemical engineer by training, du Pont in 1934 joined the chemical company founded by his great-great-grandfather, E.I. du Pont, becoming vice president and director.

Willy Schaeffler
DENVER (AP) — Willy Schaeffler, who coached the 1972 U.S. Olympic ski team and won 13 NCAA skiing titles as coach at the University of Denver, died Saturday. He was 72.
Schaeffler was involved in founding the Special Olympics, as well as the Professional Ski Instructors of America.

Woody Kling
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television comedy writer Woody Kling, whose 40-year career spanned from Milton Berle's "Texaco Star Theater" to the "Cabbage Patch Kids," died Sunday at age 82.
The Los Angeles resident began his career in the 1940s with Buddy Arnold, writing sketches and jokes for Berle's comedy show.

Today's weather picture was drawn by Peter Forbes, who lives on Earl Street and attends Bowers School.

Thoughts

Our love for God makes it easier for us to obey his laws. The best way to achieve success in our way of life is to cultivate each day a greater love for God who has loved us so much. This can be applied to any walk of life. For example, those who are entering marriage should not think of it only as a piece of paper legitimizing selfish sensuality but rather a contact of a man and woman with God. God gives the rules and graces and they cooperate with Him and with each other. Love for God gives presence and generosity to the rearing of children. For those who learn to love each other through their love for God, the (Christian) home is a success, a permanent union until death. Love for God will also bring peace and understanding to those who lead nations. Love and grace can also overcome excesses in alcohol, gambling, drugs and anything else that leads from freedom to slavery. Thinking of how much God loves us makes it easier for us to love Him. God does love us so much we should return to him to Him.

Swedish band charms army

Some 200 people gathered in the Salvation Army hall on Main Street Friday night to listen to a brass band and to get a lesson in Swedish.
The occasion was the performance of the Soderstalje Corps Band from Soderstalje, Sweden, an industrial city south of Stockholm. Manchester is one of 11 stops in the corps' tour of Canada and the United States.
The Swedish band concert was the kick-off for the 100th anniversary celebration of the founding of the Manchester corps, said Capt. Pearl Asperschlager of Manchester.

Parents to rate school system

By Andrew J. Davis
Manchester Herald
The cards will ask parents to rate the performance of the school system in areas such as curriculum and instruction, guidance, discipline, extracurricular activities and facilities.
— Superintendent James P. Kennedy
Parents will soon have an opportunity to turn the tables and issue a report card on the Manchester school system, said School Superintendent James P. Kennedy.
At tonight's Manchester Board of Education meeting, the school board will vote on whether to mail out "Parent Report Cards," Kennedy said. The cards will ask parents to rate the performance of the school system in areas such as curriculum and instruction, guidance, discipline, extracurricular activities and facilities.
If the plan is approved, school officials plan to mail the report cards in early May to the parents of the about 7,000 public school children, he said.
Tonight's meeting will be held at 7:30 at Manchester High School.
In other business, members of the school board will be spending part of their meeting touring the high school industrial arts program, Kennedy said.
The tour comes as part of a change in emphasis for the school board, he said. Last year, the school board dissolved its curriculum committee because the board felt the subject to be so important that such matters should come before the entire board and not just committee members, Kennedy said.
"We now schedule that for the whole board," Kennedy said. "The instructional program is (an) emphasis" of the school system.
Last month, the board also met

State tax relief is urged

Route 6 takings diminish town revenues

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Manchester Herald
COVENTRY — Town Council Chairman Joan A. Lewis said today she would welcome legislation proposed by state Sen. Masid Herbst, D-Vernon, that would provide property tax relief for towns whose tax rolls decreased because of the taking of properties by the state.
About $500,000 worth of land in Coventry has been taken for the proposed Route 6 expressway, most of it in the past year, and $1 million is expected to be taken before the project's completion, according to a news release released today by the Senate Majority Office. Herbst could not be reached this morning for comment.
Lewis said that the tax bill would be welcomed by Coventry officials.
"Anything we lose off the tax rolls is detrimental to us because our tax base is not large to begin with," she said.
Lewis said she had not calculated what the difference in the mill rate would be this year with and without the property lost because of the Route 6 takings. The value of property taken, based on the revaluation of 1981, is approximately $500,000, Lewis said.
The news release says that Herbst proposed that funds be set aside to give relief to towns and cities that have seen their grand lists reduced because of the seizure of property. Land cannot be locally taxed once it is purchased by the state.
Coventry's adjusted 1987 Grand List, from which the tax bills coming due this year will be calculated, is $180,152,660, Lewis said. The 1988 Grand List totaled $167,150,330. The tax rate for the $11.2 million 1987-88 budget is 34.14 mills, while the tax rate for the $13.2 million budget proposed by the town manager for 1988-89, without cuts, is 40.68 mills.
The United States Army Corps of Engineers is expected to rule within six months on a request by the DOT to fill in 77 acres of wetlands in connection with work for the project. The new expressway would extend from Bolton Notch to Windham.
The proposal has drawn fierce protests from groups such as the Connecticut Citizen Action group, which opposes the project partly because of the taking of land. CACG has indicated the state is in danger of losing $42 million in federal funds for the project that must be spent between Oct. 1, 1989 to Sept. 30, 1991.
The project is not expected to begin until 1991.

Fuel tank removal funding may fall short of work cost

By Nancy Concelmon
Manchester Herald
The town has submitted a contract proposal for the replacement of 14 town-owned underground fuel storage tanks at 11 locations, but the $82,000 budget approved by the town may not be enough, the director of Engineering Services said today.
William Camosci, director of the contract proposal, said $57,000 has been set aside in the capital budget for fiscal year 1987-88 for the replacement of the tanks, but because the capital budget was done in January 1987, that estimate was based on year-old prices. Camosci said an additional tank not included in the budget must also be replaced.
"We're really looking at a year plus prices," he said. "I'm a little leery that we're going to need more funding."
Of the 14 tanks listed under the current contract proposal, four will be replaced by the Town of Manchester Fire Department. According to the capital budget requests for 1987-1993, $25,000 was requested for removal of those four tanks.
The tanks must be replaced under Section 22a-44b of the state statutes, passed in November 1985, said Gerald DuPont, director of General Services for the town.
The law requires that storage tanks 20 years old or more be replaced by Nov. 1 of this year. But the law also provides a grace period of five years beyond the life expectancy of the tank to replace it, said Jacques Gilbert, a senior environmental analyst with the state Department of Environmental Protection. Gilbert said about 15,000 tanks will have to be replaced, about 7,500 of them over the next two years.
He had the Swedish band toured in the United States but never abroad. Asked whether the band would reciprocate the visit by the Soderstalje Corps Band, he smiled and said, "Not unless we get an invitation."

Fire caused by lighter doesn't cause injuries

No one was injured and there was no major damage as a result of a fire started by a 3-year old boy playing with his mother's cigarette lighter at a Clinton Street home on Friday night, a fire official said.
The fire, at 27 Clinton St., was reported at 8:15 p.m. and was out by the time firefighters arrived a minute later, said Deputy Chief Peter Beckwith of the town Fire Department.
Beckwith said the boy took the lighter from his mother's pocket-book while she was sleeping and ignited a box of trash in the kitchen. The smoke from the fire set off two smoke detectors, which woke up the mother, Theresa Caesar-Johnson, Beckwith said.
Meanwhile, the woman's daughter, put out the fire with a bucket of water.
Robert Thornto, 27, of 14 Norman St., a former dispatcher for the Eighth Utilities District, heard the sound of the detectors from his home across the Clinton Street residence, and told Theresa Caesar-Johnson to call the fire department and took the boy to his home. Beckwith said the box was smoldering at the time Beckwith said.

Blocking porn calls

NEW HAVEN — Southern New England Telephone Co. wants to help customers opposed to dial-a-porn services and is proposing an option that would allow those customers to block pornography calls beginning May 1.

SNET's proposal must be approved by regulators, who are investigating pay-per-call and "dial-it" type services in general. A hearing will be held April 19 by the state Department of Public Utility Control by the "dial-it" type services, but it does not cut down on the possibility of young people getting through," said SNET spokesman William Seckamp.

SNET officials say they find dial-a-porn repugnant, and SNET does not carry its own dial-it service.

Suspect leads chase

CORTLANDT, N.Y. — A shotgun-wielding man abducted a Connecticut supermarket clerk, then exchanged gunfire with police during a two-state, 21-car chase that ended when he jumped into the cold Hudson River, authorities said.

Michael Chamandy, 26, of Riverside was plucked from the river near Croton Point Park by police who commandeered a boat from a nearby yacht yard. He was charged with attempted murder and second-degree kidnapping, police said.

The incident began at 8:10 a.m. Saturday when a manager at a Finast supermarket in Stamford, Conn., suspected that Chamandy was shoplifting, police said.

When confronted, he allegedly pulled a sawed-off shotgun from beneath his coat, forced a clerk into his car and sped off.

Officer dragged 200 feet

NEW LONDON — A city police captain was dragged 200 feet when he held onto a driver who threw his car into reverse in an attempt to escape arrest during a prostitution sting, authorities said.

Capt. John W. Pearson Sr., a 29-year veteran of the force, thought an undercover female officer being dragged by the car, so he reached inside the open car window, grabbed the driver, and held on.

Pearson, who will turn 60 later this month, was listed in satisfactory condition at Lawrence and Memorial Hospital with multiple scrapes and cuts, but he escaped serious injury in the incident at 1:37 a.m. Saturday.

In addition to his other injuries, Pearson said he was bitten on the hand by the driver.

Kaman discharges pollution

BLOOMFIELD — Attorney General Joseph I. Lieberman has launched an investigation following a published report accusing Kaman Corp. of discharging polluted waste water into a potential drinking supply and dumping poisonous chemicals into the Windsor-Bloomfield landfill.

A copyright report in Sunday's editions of The Hartford Courant said laboratory tests it sponsored on Kaman waste water showed a high level of an industrial solvent rated by the Environmental Protection Agency as a controlled hazardous substance that can be toxic to people and animals.

Tests on Kaman containers dumped in the landfill revealed residues of at least four poisonous chemicals, including methyl ethyl ketone, a solvent lethal to animals when ingested in large doses, the newspaper said.

The level of TCA found in the water was three times what is allowed by the permit, and the permit prohibits the discharge of any foam.

Thieves steal snakes

WEST HAVEN — Burglars stole $8,000 worth of snakes, spiders, scorpions and lizards from an exotic pet shop, and they even stole their captives a lunch — they stole rats, mice and meal worms too, police said.

They really knew what they were doing," police Detective Gary Hunt said after Ornamental Fish Imports' most expensive reptiles and arachnids were stolen Saturday.

The thief was discovered Saturday morning by shop owner Arthur Klein, who said he lost a matched pair of emerald tree boas, 30 pythons, eight iguanas, 35 tarantulas and 12 scorpions.

Police said the creatures total value was placed at $8,000. Bags of meal worms, 38 rats and 250 mice were also stolen.

Yale students demonstrate

NEW HAVEN — About 100 anti-apartheid activists demonstrated outside the monthly meeting of Yale Corporation, demanding divestment of Yale University's stock in companies doing business with South Africa.

The demonstration on Saturday was sponsored by the Black Student Alliance at Yale and the Coalition Against Apartheid and included guerrilla theater production in which four white students, dressed in white, staged mock arrests of eight blacks, dressed in black, manhandling and shouting at them.

Rosanne Adlerley, a junior from Nassau, said the piece was staged to "dramatize the kind of thing that happens everyday in South Africa."

The vice president of Yale's White Collar Union, Local 34, Steve Fortes, spoke about the union's continuing support for the divestment movement.

Fortes said the issue affecting the union specifically is that the labor organization wants the university to divest Local 34 pension funds from companies doing business in South Africa.

Families recall sinking of Thresher

By Betsy Henderson
The Associated Press

CONCORD, N.H. — Edna DiNola has trouble recreating the jumbled events of April 10, 1963, the night she was told the USS Thresher, a nuclear submarine carrying her husband and 128 other men, had not resurfaced from a dive 220 miles off the New England coast.

She isn't quite sure who came to her home or what they said. She thinks friends helped put her five children to bed and turned away reporters clamoring for reaction. She thinks a Portsmouth Naval Shipyard chaplain told her he would be there if she needed him.

There is one thing, however, DiNola did remember as she reflected last week on Sunday's 25th anniversary of the nation's worst submarine disaster: "I just didn't think that they wouldn't come up again."

But the submarine, powerless with a crippled nuclear reactor, never had a chance, sinking deeper and deeper in the Atlantic until fierce water pressure crushed its hull and killed all aboard.

Rear Adm. Dean Axene, Thresher's commanding officer until three months earlier, was returning to Portsmouth from Boston when he heard on the radio a submarine was missing.

He dove immediately to the shipyard, which Thresher had left two days earlier.

After midnight, Axene began calling family members, many of whom were close friends and had faith in the 278-foot submarine that the Navy said could "dive deeper, move faster and carry more weapons than any other submarine in the fleet."

"It was a great ship and it had a great crew," when I was reassigned, I fought to stay on the Thresher had three years of success when it left for tests the morning of April 4. Accompanied by the submarine tender Skylark, Thresher's 132 military personnel and 17 civilian technicians were looking for minor glitches in the machinery after a routine overhaul.

But the problems were more severe than anyone suspected.

At 9:02 a.m. on April 10, the Skylark received a message from Thresher, 1,000 feet below the surface. "Experiencing minor difficulties."

Garbled radio messages followed saying Thresher was "exceeding test depth," then "attempting to blow," a naval term for resurfacing.

At 9:17, Lt. Jim Watson, listening to Skylark's radio, "heard the sounds of a ship breaking up — a dull, muted roar."

Then silence.

Skylark radioed that Thresher was missing.

"It was a terrible experience, a terrible thing," Axene, now retired and living in Pensacola, Fla., said of calling crew families. He plans to attend Sunday's memorial services for the first time in 24 years, but the memories are still too painful for his wife.

Some crewmen's wives, like DiNola, didn't believe Thresher was lost and told reporters to print the good news when their husbands returned.

DiNola finally went to bed that night. "I had three babies (and two other children) and they had to be taken care of, so you just go on," she said.

Although the Navy told her the ship was lost, she told shipyard officials to leave her husband's car waiting at the pier.

Lawmakers, facing crunch, clear decks

HARTFORD — The General Assembly is clearing the way for bills waiting action on both the House and Senate calendars, and a few score more awaiting action in the Appropriations and Finance committees, both of which run into their deadlines for action on bills this week.

He said there would likely be some evening sessions, but he doubted there would be a need for a Saturday session, which has happened with some regularity in recent years.

Senate President Pro Tem John B. Larson, D-East Hartford, said last week that he didn't believe in quotas, informal or otherwise.

"It's always discussed in a loose manner," Larson said. "For the most part, they understand the system."

Gov. William A. O'Neill said he was not alarmed about the reports of a shortfall of money that might mean spending cuts or tax increases in 1988-89 and said legislators shouldn't be either, at least until additional revenue information is available.

He urged legislators to move cautiously and avoid the need for any special legislative sessions this summer. Said O'Neill: "I hope it's not going to be a long, hot summer."

Stolberg said he is also thinking about studies. Legislators have a habit of turning controversial bills into studies; the issues are examined for a year, tempers cool and then legislation is adopted the following year.

from House Speaker Irving J. Stolberg, D-New Haven, who said, "Kill 10 referred bills and 10 of your own." Stolberg said the next day that it had been just a friendly "reminder call" about "an agreement he had made about the total volume of bills that was reasonable."

Stolberg wouldn't give any numbers, but he said committee chairmen had agreed to informal quotas of bills they would send to the floor.

With only three weeks to go before adjournment, Stolberg and other legislative leaders are getting worried about the annual end-of-session crunch.

Finance committee tackles tax package

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD (AP) — With just over three weeks left in the General Assembly session, the Finance Committee today planned to tackle what is probably the legislature's most sensitive issue in an election year, taxes.

The outcome there will determine the way the House of Representatives handles the proposed $6.32 billion 1988-89 budget. The vote could come as early as Tuesday.

The Finance Committee's co-chairman dropped a bombshell last week when he casually revealed that the budget approved by the Appropriations Committee was between $40 million and $200 million out of whack and would require major cuts or tax increases to balance it.

Also this week at the Capitol, Republican lawmakers planned to announce a lawsuit against the state treasury over the state's failure to pay off $63 million in state bonds with last year's surplus.

The Program Review and Investigations Committee plans to meet to decide how to handle two secret grand jury reports the committee has obtained as part of its investigation into the continued feud with the state's criminal justice system.

At week's end, House Speaker Irving J. Stolberg, D-New Haven, flatly ruled out tax increases as a way to balance the state budget and suggested he thought his Finance co-chairmen were being pessimistic.

Gov. William A. O'Neill proposed in his 1988-89 budget that instead of paying off $63 million in bonds from last year's surplus, as had been proposed, the state would use the money to help balance next year's budget. House Minority Leader Robert G. Jaeckle, R-Stratford, wrote last week to Attorney General Joseph I. Lieberman to complain about what he maintains is a violation of state statute.

On Monday, Rep. Anthony J. Nania, R-Canaan, planned to announce a lawsuit against Treasurer Francisco L. Borges over the $63 million debt issue.

AIDS prevention blitz under way in Stamford

STAMFORD (AP) — The city health department will distribute bleach for intravenous drug users to clean their needles and hire the homeless to help hand out educational information as part of an AIDS prevention blitz.

"This is an overall effort to reach everyone in the community," said Debbie Katz, Stamford AIDS education counselor.

"Schools, corporations, the fire and police departments, even Girl Scout troops have asked for information. We will also go to the people who are more at risk when we don't normally see young adults, the gay community and minorities."

The month-long program, which is in its early stages, will also include free, anonymous AIDS testing and the distribution of condoms.

Stamford Health Director Dr. Andrew McBride said distribution of bleach, an AIDS prevention measure already implemented in many of the nation's urban centers, is effective.

However, said DeHuff, executive director of Liberation Programs Inc., a Stamford non-profit drug abuse treatment agency, was skeptical about its overall chance for success.

"Information from around the country shows that addicts will pick up the bleach but don't use it," DeHuff said. "They will still share dirty needles. If anyone wants to use a clean needle there is enough information out there for them to know how to do it."

Health officials have said that intravenous drug users are now the largest risk group for contracting acquired immune deficiency syndrome and are the carriers of the disease who can infect the heterosexual population.

As of December, about 43 percent of the 585 AIDS patients in the state were intravenous drug users, equal to the number of homosexual males who have been diagnosed with AIDS.

Nationwide, about a quarter of all the reported cases of AIDS to date are among intravenous drug users, according to the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

McBride said the health department has begun to train 60 people to become counselors to teach the causes and prevention of the disease.

Once training is completed, the counselors will give information to intravenous drug users, the black and Hispanic communities and the homeless. Each outreach worker will receive $10 an hour for their work.

McBride said Stamford's homeless will be hired as counselor trainees. He said using the homeless will provide temporary employment and could help AIDS information to reach a population that needs it most.

A $20,000 grant from the state finances the project while four local community organizations, the Committee for Training and Employment, Our Lady of Mount Saint Parish, Coalition for One Hundred Black Women, and the Haitian Community Center have provided the trainees.

In one month the health department will interview its outreach counselors to see what methods of instruction were effective. Those parts of the program will be incorporated into a new AIDS prevention program. Funding for that program will be available in the next fiscal year which begins July 1.

HUD tests real estate markets for 'racial steering'

By David Briscoe
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Federal housing officials today announced plans to find out how many black and Hispanic couples are victims of "racial steering" or other discriminatory treatment in their search for places to live.

The first major study of housing discrimination in a decade will use hundreds of white, black and Hispanic couples as bogus house-hunters to test the nation's metropolitan rental and real estate markets.

"Racial steering" occurs when agents steer minorities away from all-white residential areas.

"Despite advances in civil rights, discrimination still exists, in more subtle ways than before, in many areas," said Housing and Urban Development Secretary Samuel R. Pierce in requesting the study. The study is to be completed in mid-1990.

Pierce said the aim is to increase enforcement against illegal discrimination. Other officials said the study also could determine the need for stronger fair-housing legislation.

The last such study, completed in 1979, used 600 black and white couples who tried to buy or rent homes or apartments in 40 metropolitan areas across the country.

It included couples with nearly identical backgrounds, except for race, who would respond to the same newspaper ads and then fill out detailed forms reporting their experiences.

C. Duncan MacRae, HUD's deputy assistant secretary for policy development and research, said in an interview that the new study will use similar methods.

The 1979 study estimated that 27 percent of rental agents and 15 percent of house sellers discriminated against blacks. Discrimination then was defined as "failing to provide important, necessary information to rent or purchase a home."

The study concluded that black home buyers who inquired about four different advertised homes had a 46 percent chance of finding discrimination in dealing with at least one of them. In the rental market, 85 percent found discrimination in at least one of four inquiries about apartments.

MacRae said the new study will be expanded to include more subtle discrimination, differences between discrimination in cities and suburbs, and discrimination against Hispanics as well as blacks. There is no plan to include Asian, native American or other minorities, he said.

Since the Fair Housing Act's passage in 1968, about 5,000 complaints a year to about 4,500 annually, MacRae said. The new study, he said, is needed to determine whether that decline is significant.

"We hope this research will document the existence of housing discrimination in America, or lack of discrimination — whatever the case may be," MacRae said.

would have a good case for pardoning, because then the so-called crime would lack in intent," Nixon said.

Poinsetter, the former national security adviser, and North, who served as a National Security Council aide, face charges of conspiring to divert proceeds of U.S.-Iran arms sales to the Nicaraguan rebels at a time when Congress banned military aid to the Contras.

Reagan has made several comments indicating he believes his former aides did nothing illegal and suggesting that he is favorably inclined toward pardons. But his official position on the subject remains one of neutrality, according to White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater.

Nixon, in an NBC-TV "Meet the Press" interview aired Sunday, said that in the early 1970s he asked himself about pardoning former advisers H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman. Both were convicted on charges of conspiracy and obstruction of justice and served time in prison.

"I probably should have pardoned them," Nixon said. "I'm not sure that the country would have taken it at that time — it was a little stirred up, as you might imagine. But, on the other hand, they had not done it for personal gain."

The former president said "personal gain" also was not a consideration in the Iran-Contra affair.

Nixon, 75, is making a series of television appearances this week to promote his new book, "1999: Victory Without War."

FBI shoots, kills fugitive; ends standoff

By David Briscoe
The Associated Press

SPERRYVILLE, Va. (AP) — Nineteen hours after authorities found an armed fugitive holding two hostages in a farmhouse, they fired him outside and an FBI marksman killed him with a single shot, agents said.

Authorities found an armed fugitive holding two hostages in a farmhouse, they fired him outside and an FBI marksman killed him with a single shot, agents said.

Charles A. Leaf III, who kidnapped his 3-year-old son and the child's mother from their Trumbull home April 2, was shot shortly after 3 p.m. Sunday, said Terry T. O'Connor, special agent-in-charge of Richmond's FBI field division.

Cheryl Hart, 27, and Charles A. Leaf III were shaken but uninjured in the shooting, which occurred at the elder Leaf, holding the woman and child at gunpoint, ran from the house to a nearby FBI helicopter, O'Connor said.

Leaf, wanted by Trumbull police on a felony kidnapping warrant, was flown to University of Virginia Medical Center, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Trumbull police Capt. Frederick Nacovitch described Leaf as a construction worker who moved from place to place and had a history of domestic violence involving Ms. Hart.

"He struck me as being a relentlessly unreasonable person," Nacovitch said.

Authorities began looking for Leaf after finding his 1973 Chevrolet sedan April 3 in a remote area of Rappahannock County, about 50 miles west of Washington, D.C., and five miles east of the Skyline Drive, which runs through Shenandoah National Park.

O'Connor said authorities intensified the search Saturday night when evidence was found indicating Leaf may have been in a barn adjacent to a farmhouse. The agent refused to say what that evidence was.

"Agents entered the farmhouse shortly before 8 p.m. Saturday and were immediately confronted by Leaf," O'Connor said. Leaf was armed with a 9mm rifle and was holding the woman and child in an upstairs bedroom.

Stolberg said he is also thinking about studies. Legislators have a habit of turning controversial bills into studies; the issues are examined for a year, tempers cool and then legislation is adopted the following year.

NIXON ON "MEET THE PRESS" offers advice to Reagan

Nixon says pardons in order if Reagan aides trying to help

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan should pardon John M. Poinsetter and Oliver L. North if he believes they engineered the Iran-Contra deal to serve the presidency, according to former President Richard M. Nixon.

Nixon said Sunday that he regrets not absolving his own advisers for their role in the Watergate scandal.

The former president, who was driven from office in 1974 by Watergate, said Reagan should absolve Poinsetter, the former national security adviser, and North, who served as a National Security Council aide, face charges of conspiring to divert proceeds of U.S.-Iran arms sales to the Nicaraguan rebels at a time when Congress banned military aid to the Contras.

Reagan has made several comments indicating he believes his former aides did nothing illegal and suggesting that he is favorably inclined toward pardons. But his official position on the subject remains one of neutrality, according to White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater.

Volunteers sift through sand for bodies

By Holden Lewis
The Associated Press

EL PASO, Texas — Parents are sifting through the desert sands looking for more bodies after finding six young women buried in shallow graves.

Residents in northeastern El Paso are dealing with the slayings of the six young women, ages 14 to 24, in many ways while the city's police chief calls on residents to be careful, not alarmed.

In response, far fewer young women can be found loitering around bars, convenience stores and motels, even on warm spring nights.

"(The slayings) brought it home to them that maybe they're not invulnerable," says Rebecca Wylie, head counselor at Parkland High who counseled friends of 14-year-old Dawn Smith, a Parkland dropout whose remains were discovered Oct. 20.

"They're more careful about walking out by themselves. They're more conscious about coming home by their curfew," Ms. Wylie said.

The killings also inspired a community group to give elementary school children identification cards to be sewn into their clothing or laced into their shoes.

"One thing we've noticed in seeing pictures of grave sites or even auto accidents is that there is always a shoe at the scene," said Stan Roberts, president of the Northeast El Paso Civic Association, which ordered 10,000 shoes for students.

The police investigation centers around the deaths of Angelica Jeanette Frausto, 17; Karen Baker, 20; Maria Rosa Casio, 24; Desiree Wheatley, 15; Susanna Williams, 23; and Miss Smith.

Frausto was last seen behind a tavern in northeast El Paso. Baker was last spotted getting into a car at a motel on the same street. Her body was found Sept. 4 buried among creosote bushes in the desert 18 miles northeast of El Paso.

Since then, the bodies of the five other young women were found in shallow graves in the same litter-strewn patch of desert. Police are almost certain the women were victims of the same killer but refuse to discuss most aspects of the case.

David Leonard Wood, a convicted sex offender, was described as a possible suspect in the case by a detective testifying at Wood's rape trial.

Wood, 30, who had been jailed since his Oct. 23 arrest on the rape charge, was committed last month and sentenced to 50 years for his fourth sex crime conviction.

Slayings remain unsolved

By Holden Lewis
The Associated Press

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — More than three years after 11 young women were killed in the Fort Worth area, only one of the crimes has been solved, leads are down to a trickle and residents remain fearful.

The women, killed from September 1984 until May 1985, included waitresses, schoolteachers, receptionists, a bartender, a student and a homemaker. They died of stab wounds, gunshot and strangulation. One is missing and presumed dead.

"It was on all our minds. It was the conversation everywhere. Everyone was wishing that some of these women would be found," said Bernice Barker, 68, who lives across the street from the garage apartment where one victim lived.

A multi-agency group spent more than a year investigating the deaths and, at one point, grew to more than 40 officers. By July 1985 the task force was reduced to 15 members. In mid-1988, Police Chief Thomas Windham returned officers to their regular assignments.

Detectives conducted more than 3,000 interviews and compiled a list of 8,000 suspects, including friends, acquaintances and relatives of victims. The investigation cost more than $1 million, Windham said.

The different slaying methods convinced police that more than one killer was responsible, said Capt. Ben Durmus.

Police today say they have suspects in three of the slayings but lack the evidence needed to file charges. Investigators sometimes spend time after work on the case in hopes of finding leads.

25th ANNIVERSARY

More than a decade ago, Koko, a female gorilla, and Wanda, a female chimpanzee, learned to use sign language to communicate with humans.

But counting is a new research goal, and a hobby Sheba indulges in when she is not playing with her keepers, with the four other apes at the lab or with Boyesen's dog Schuyler, who is her best friend.

OPINION

Connecticut didn't need a monument

Anyone who has watched from the outside while the state's new Legislative Office Building was being constructed and then toured the interior of it over the weekend experienced a shock.

The exterior is pleasant enough, but not especially distinguished. The interior is something else again, lavish and almost imperial with its rose and gray and ivory marble and its marquetry doors that cost $10,000 a pair.

Legislators, former legislators and the citizens gazed and gasped at the atrium, many of them wondering if the $61 million expenditure is justified.

Connecticut has long needed adequate office facilities for legislators. The modern, well-equipped offices make sense. Adequate hearing rooms also make sense.

Things like a cherry desk with a reported price tag of $1,683 do not.

It would have been foolish for the state to build an office building that would serve only the needs of today. The office building is intended to serve for more than a century. It would have been foolish to leave out of the building some facilities, like a television system, that would probably have been added later at a higher cost.

Not everything that is impressive about the building is impressive because it is expensive. The pleasing soft colors that dominate the place did not cost more than jarring colors would have cost.

But it is going to be difficult for Connecticut citizens to understand the need for the opulent and cavernous atrium that rises five floors. The structure is a monument. But no monument was needed. The renovated State Capitol serves that purpose.

Soon people will be gathering in the posh hearing rooms to plead for modest causes with modest price tags. The surroundings may make them uncomfortable. And the legislators who listen may be uneasy as well, if they have to reject the pleas.

Operator, could you tell me the 800 number for "Dial-A-Conversion"?

Canada recruits women for combat jobs

OTTAWA — The Canadian Armed Forces have not in the past been known for bold military initiatives. There are only 87,360 full-time troops in Canada, they are among the most poorly equipped soldiers in the Western world, and they have not been in a declared war in more than 40 years.

For all of this, however, the Department of National Defense is now trying to introduce a decidedly enterprising element to the battlefields of the future. The Army, Navy and Air Force are looking for a few good women for their firing lines. The Dominion wants to integrate its combat services.

The plan is officially known as "the combat-related employment of women." Military leaders say it will begin as an experiment. Women are being recruited for the shooting categories. They will be field-tested in war games, and, if everything works out, they will be put permanently under arms in the coming decade.

Of course, there is no assurance that everything will work out. But many authorities are convinced that Canada is on the brink of giving a new North American spin to sexual equality. Among the few nations anywhere that train women for front-line duty: Norway, Denmark and the Netherlands.

One of the optimistic authorities in Canada is Navy Cmdr. Judith Harper. She is among the six highest-ranking women in the Canadian military, and she is responsible for female employment. She says the Dominion has come a long way, baby, from the days when men were men and the ladies made the coffee.

Harper says Canadian women were limited to clerical and medical responsibilities during the two world wars. And they did not get other opportunities until the 1960s. Women were given a range of non-traditional military jobs in 1972, and became, as in the United States, everything from mechanics to military police.

Then the final barriers were breached in 1982. Canada adopted its own constitution that gave, and

Researchers getting away with murder

WASHINGTON — The National Institutes of Health gives away more than $5 billion a year for research. But whether that money is well spent is anybody's guess. For the most part, NIH blindly trusts that the money went for credible research.

Rarely does NIH challenge the integrity of prestigious universities or their esteemed scientists. The trust runs so deep that only one person on the NIH staff is assigned full time to investigate allegations of fraud.

Walter Stewart and Ned Feder, two NIH scientists, are scheduled to testify Tuesday before a House Energy and Commerce subcommittee chaired by Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich. They will tell the subcommittee that research is too often neither checked nor challenged. Feder and Stewart have long urged scientists to take a more active role in insuring the quality of research.

"The peer review system does not pick up fabricated work," Stewart told our associate Jim Lynch. "You can get away with murder for a pretty long time."

Examples of questionable research likely to be studied by the subcommittee for Oversight and Investigations include these cases, which have been detailed in medical journals.

A blue-ribbon committee at Harvard in 1982 defended the research of scientist John Darce, who had published his findings on heart medicines while at the university's medical school. Almost all of Darce's writings, including more than 100 articles, were later found by NIH to be fabricated. Some of the information was ridiculous on its face. The 52-member family Darce invented for his research. One of the men in that family was said by Darce to have fathered his first child at the age of 8 and his second at age 2.

University of Wisconsin biochemist Hector DeLuca allegedly pirated the work of a colleague to conceal defects in his patent for producing a vitamin D derivative. The patent is now more than 15 years old. Before the allegations against DeLuca recently came to light in a lawsuit over the patent, he had been mentioned as a nominee for the Nobel Prize. DeLuca contests the charges, and the matter is under investigation by the university at DeLuca's request.

Robert Sprague, a professor at the Institute for Research on Human Development in Champaign, Ill., waited three years for the National Institute of Mental Health (a parallel agency to NIH) to confirm his claim that his study of drugs to treat the mentally retarded. Sprague gave NIMH almost all of the information needed to prove his claim against Breuning, but NIMH still took three years to testify to the information. In the meantime, patients were subjected to treatment and medication based on Breuning's falsified research.

Sprague doesn't think the NIMH would have taken him seriously at all if he had not been of senior rank to Breuning. "I was barely able to blow the whistle on him," he said.

From 1982 to 1987, NIH found evidence of misconduct in about 15 of some 100 reported allegations of fraud. Investigators for the Oversight and Investigations subcommittee have determined that the number of abuses reported is reduced by an NIH system that tends to protect the offending scientist and put the whistleblower on the defensive.

If an allegation of fraud warrants investigation, NIH tells the university where the research is being conducted. The university then investigates itself — a process that sometimes covers up rather than exposes fraud.

If NIH still smells a rat, it appoints an investigative panel. But that panel is staffed by scientists who are hesitant to lower the ax on their peers.

Even if a scientist is implicated in fraud, the evidence can disappear, making it hard to prove that the scientist deliberately doctored the research. In 1979, one drug researcher under investigation swore that all his data was lost when his rowboat flipped.

Our staggering national debt is soaring faster than taxes can be collected to pay it off. Economists need only look at Brazil to see what happens to a nation that continues to spend more than it earns. Brazil's foreign debt has now hit a staggering $113 billion. Of that, $70 billion was borrowed from private banks. The Brazilian government can't even afford to pay the interest. It has asked the banks to reduce the interest rates and lend Brazil another $3 billion to pay the reduced interest. Meanwhile, all of this has caused Brazil's inflation to leap upward at the rate of 800 percent a year.

Opposition leader exiled

PANAMA CITY, Panama — An opposition leader forced into exile by Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega left for Venezuela after calling on Panamanians to step up protests against the strongman.

In another development, doctors and pharmacists on Sunday said a lack of dollars caused by U.S. economic sanctions is causing a medicine shortage and broad cuts in hospital services in Panama.

PLO hearings open

THE HAGUE, Netherlands — The United Nations today accused the Reagan administration of violating a U.N. treaty by trying to close the PLO Mission in New York.

The United Nations has asked the World Court for an opinion on whether the U.S. government must accept arbitration in the dispute, which emanates from anti-terrorist legislation signed by President Reagan last December.

Arabs mount strike

JERUSALEM — Arabs in the occupied territories shuttered their stores today and stayed home from jobs in Israel under PLO orders. Leaders of the four-month uprising called for a "day of freemobing" later this month.

The Israeli army promised the Supreme Court it would give 48 hours notice before destroying more homes in Beits, the West Bank village where a teen-age Israeli girl was killed and other settlers injured with stones last week.

Explosion kills 70

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — A series of explosions destroyed a huge ammunition depot and sent grenades and anti-aircraft missiles crashing into two Pakistani cities. More than 70 people were killed and at least 800 injured.

Officials said the death toll could rise steeply as more bodies are recovered from the disaster, which occurred in southern Islamabad and propelled explosives up to six miles away in the capital and in nearby Rawalpindi.

Reagan applauds move

WASHINGTON — President Reagan is favoring the Soviet Union's move toward peace in Afghanistan, while showing distrust of the Kremlin's "invisible wall of oppression" at home.

Setting the tone for the coming summit in Moscow with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, Reagan said Sunday he looks forward to the signing of an agreement providing for the withdrawal of Red Army forces from Afghanistan.

Panel looks at crime

WASHINGTON — Organized crime and its power in America are the subject of a new round of Senate hearings beginning today, nearly 25 years after convicted murderer Joseph Valachi introduced the phrase "La Cosa Nostra" to the national consciousness.

Valachi was the star witness in the widely publicized 1963 Senate investigation of organized crime, unfolding a complex story of murder, terror, crime and vice. He described the La Cosa Nostra organization and named alleged members.

Plane crash kills 29

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Afghan guerrillas downed a Soviet-built passenger plane near the Soviet border, killing all 29 people aboard, Afghanistan's official Radio Kabul reported.

There was no immediate comment from the guerrillas.

The report said the Antonov-26 passenger plane was shot down by a missile at 3:10 p.m. Sunday (8:40 a.m. EDT) while flying between Maimana, in Afghanistan's northwestern Faryab province, and Mazar Sharif, in the Balkh province. The cities are about 145 miles apart.

Chinese pull out of meeting

OXFORD, England — China, expressing displeasure at the attendance of the Dalai Lama, pulled out of an international meeting of religious leaders and lawmakers discussing global problems, the organizers said.

"We worked hard to get the Chinese here because we are discussing issues of great concern to them, like population growth," said the Rev. James Parks Morton, a co-chairman of the Global Conference of Spiritual and Parliamentary Leaders on Human Survival.

Morton, dean of the Episcopal Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York, said the leaders of the world's most populous nation had earlier shown a willingness to attend the five-day conference, which was to open today.

Israel key issue in New York campaign

By Laura King
The Associated Press

Democratic presidential contender Jesse Jackson tackled a sensitive issue in New York's key primary by saying he would not meet again with Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat. Rival Albert Gore refrained from fresh attacks on Jackson but continued to play up his own strong support for Israel.

The New York primary, with its prize of 25 delegates, is eight days away, and all three Democrats were stumped in the state today. The trio had three debates scheduled this week — their first full-scale faceoffs since last month's Super Tuesday campaign.

ABOVE NEW YORK — Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis catches up on work Saturday aboard his Boston-bound plane after campaigning in Pennsylvania and New York.

Vice President George Bush, bidding to stay in the spotlight although he virtually has the Republican nomination wrapped up, was beginning three days of campaigning in New York today. Bush's only remaining rival, Pat Robertson, has all but abandoned his effort.

Jackson, who has been criticized by Jewish leaders for meeting with Arafat, was asked Sunday whether he would do so again.

"I would not — and it's not necessary to do that," he said on CBS' "Face the Nation."

However, he said, "We must somehow get Israel beyond the burden of occupation, and the Palestinians beyond the pain of being occupied."

In the interview, Jackson went far out of his way to be conciliatory toward Gore, whose attacks on Arafat got so heated last week that party officials told him to tone it down.

In recent days, Gore has blasted Jackson's lack of government experience and his foreign policy views.

"I believe," he said, "the Tennessee senator said as he campaigned in Brooklyn."

Gore, appearing in heavily Jewish neighborhoods, picked up the endorsement of state Assemblyman Dov Hinkin. At one stop, Hinkin introduced Gore by denouncing Jackson as the candidate who "embraced Yasser Arafat" and saying that Gore was the only one who "had the courage" to criticize Jackson.

But when he spoke, Gore didn't discuss Jackson.

"The statement Jesse Jackson made this morning was very constructive. That's a change in his position, I believe," the Tennessee senator said as he campaigned in Brooklyn.

Gore, appearing in heavily Jewish neighborhoods, picked up the endorsement of state Assemblyman Dov Hinkin. At one stop, Hinkin introduced Gore by denouncing Jackson as the candidate who "embraced Yasser Arafat" and saying that Gore was the only one who "had the courage" to criticize Jackson.

program, said he did not intend to change his campaign style despite criticism from Democratic heavyweights like party chief Paul Kirk and New York Gov. Mario Cuomo over attacks on the other Democrat.

"I have no plans to change my basic campaign posture at all," he said.

Democratic non-candidate Cuomo, meanwhile, offered a confusing succession of statements on whether he would accept a draft from a dead-end convention.

On Saturday, during a telephone interview with The Associated Press, he declared: "I've ruled it out."

Cuomo's press secretary, Gary Fryer, immediately denied that the governor had intended to say he would refuse a draft, and meant instead that a draft should not take place.

On Sunday, Cuomo told the AP: "I think it is absolutely a reasonable interpretation to say that if a person says it's wrong, it's counterproductive, it's unwise, it shouldn't be, then that means he rejects a draft."

But when asked flatly if the correct interpretation was that he would not accept a draft, Cuomo said, "I think so."

Gore, meanwhile, said it would be "outrageous" to suggest that he has been talking up his support for Israel just to woo New York's substantial Jewish electorate. He said his position has been consistent.

Jackson was preaching racial unity.

"If lions and lambs can find common ground, then blacks and Jews, Hispanics and Italians can find common ground," he told a crowd in New Rochelle. In Harlem, Jackson delivered a sermon at the Abyssinian Church, evoking the memory of slain civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King.

Kirk, the Democratic National Committee chairman, said Sunday that the fight for the nomination will help the Democrats by keeping the party's candidates in the spotlight — unlike Republican race, where the suspense is gone.

'Hiding of Anne Frank' Sunday

By Kathryn Boker. The Associated Press. NEW YORK — Miep Gies, the woman who helped hide the Frank family from the Nazis, says it was a long time before she could bring herself to read 'The Diary of Anne Frank' even though it was what she saved it.

Mrs. Gies said she never had any desire to write a book, because she felt nothing could be more eloquent than the diary. But she was convinced by Gold that a history should be written of what it was like in Amsterdam outside the attic during that time.

WHITNEY PAULEY? — With Jane Pauley out for the week that ended April 1, NBC's 'Today' was dropped to a virtual tie with ABC's 'Good Morning America' after a 19-week winning streak.

LIBA JACOBS plays the bright, mischievous young girl who implores her father to be especially difficult. Mrs. Gies fondly recalled Anne as a 'very charming girl, lively, but very curious.'

MRS. GIES, 79, was joined by her 82-year-old husband at a recent news conference. They agreed that the scene, as well as the rest of the movie, was quite accurate.

Fans began arriving before dawn on Sunday, bringing ice chests, sleeping bags, plenty of cold drinks and hats.
Southern California residents Ray Hernandez and his wife, Tina, grabbed a corner spot of the bleachers.
The Hernandezes and their niece found seating after officials turned them away Friday and Saturday because the bleachers were unfinished.
"They said come back at 7 p.m. on Sunday, but we came early on a hunch and they (would) let us in," Hernandez said.
In all, winners of 22 awards were to be announced tonight. Three already were announced, the Irving G. Thalberg lifetime achievement award for director Billy Wilder.
In the actress category, Cher was nominated for "Moonstruck" role, Hunter for "Broadcast News," Close for "Fatal Attraction," Kirkland for "Annie" and Streep for "Ironweed."
In the actor category, Douglas was nominated for his "Wall Street" role, Williams for "Good Morning, Vietnam," Mastroianni for "Dark Eyes," Nicholson for "Ironweed," and Hurt for "Broadcast News."
The supporting performance categories include Norma Aleandro for "Gaby," Anne Archer for "Fatal Attraction," Olympia Dukakis for "Moonstruck," Anne Ramsey for "Throw Momma from the Train," and Ann Sothern for "The Whales of August."
For supporting actor: Albert Brooks for "Broadcast News," Sean Connery for "The Untouchables," Morgan for "Street Smart," Vincent Gardenia for "Moonstruck" and Denzel Washington for "Cry Freedom."

New England's top apple pie

That marketing approach to the competition was fine with Granville, who said, "I'm just so proud to represent Connecticut." That was no easy task.
Granville, who has entered the competition three times and won third place once, had to sift her ingredients in front of the eyes of seven judges—many food editors and reporters from New England newspapers—and dozens of other people. She then had to bake the pie in a "beehive oven," which she constructed from one built in 1699 at the Bonister Tavern in Brookfield, was tested by Salem Cross personnel.

Her family owned the 280-year-old inn in the 1860s as a restaurant. The inn was named for the "witch mark" found on the door latch. The mark, popular in Salem, was designed to guard the door inhabitants against "ye evil of witchcraft and diverse other manifestations of devilry."

The competition was open to single women between the ages of 17 and 26. Many of the 13 women who entered were pageant veterans, most having taken part in several local contests.
Jennifer Joy, the first runner-up, said that she had been in five other pageants and had entered another scheduled for the night after the Miss Manchester pageant, giving her another chance to qualify for the Miss Connecticut contest. "It's a kind of career sometimes, once you get started," Joy said. Joy is a graduate of Manchester Community College, where she studied to be a paralegal secretary, but she wants to attend a music conservatory to pursue a career in the performing arts. "Pageants are a good way to get scholarship money," Joy said.
Nanette Piscitano, voted Miss Congeniality by the other contestants, is also no newcomer to pageants. Wearing blue tinted contact lenses that matched her evening dress (allowed as long as true color is listed on the pageant application), the Manchester Community College student said she had increased her self-esteem. She also liked the contests because they were a good way to meet people.
"I love pageants. I love making friends and this is the best way to do it," Piscitano said. "The congeniality award made me feel excellent."
She said that it was rare to find the other contestants get along as well as those in the Manchester contest had. "This was a fun pageant," Piscitano said. Her parents live in Hartford.

The hijackers' main demand has been the release of 17 terrorists held in Kuwait by the hijackers from the top of a stationery near the plane.
Earlier today, the PLO negotiator and other sources at Larnaca Airport had hinted without giving details that the hijackers were softening their demands.
But those hopes appeared to fade when the hijackers threatened to harm the members of the royal family as they had earlier.
On Sunday, the hijackers threatened to start a "slow and quiet massacre" of the 47 or so remaining hostages unless Kuwait released the 17 pro-Iranian prisoners in Kuwait. But the hijackers failed to carry out the massacre.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — American and French hostages in Lebanon will be killed if security forces storm a hijacked Kuwaiti jet in Cyprus, a pro-Iranian group said in a statement in Beirut.
"To the families of the hostages, we declare that we shall execute the Western captives in Lebanon if the plane and holy war (hijackers) aboard is subjected to any military 'hardness,'" a statement by the Shiite Muslim group Islamic Jihad said.
The threat was accompanied by photographs of two hostages, journalists Terry A. Anderson, an American, and Jean-Paul Kaufmann of France.
Anderson, 40, chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press, is the longest held of the 22 foreigners missing after being kidnaped March 16, 1985, in west Beirut.
Kaufmann, 43, was abducted May 22, 1985.
The typed, Arabic-language statement was delivered late Sunday to Reuters news agency in west Beirut.

Cream can sniffer arrested in store
A man was arrested Thursday and charged with abuse of a restricted substance after a store detective at the Broad Street Stop & Shop saw him inhaling from a whipped cream can, police said.
Timothy W. Kilgore, 26, who gave no certain address, was arrested at 2:40 p.m. at the Super Stop & Shop supermarket at 342 Broad St. A store detective saw him inhale nitrous oxide from a whipped cream can and walk through an aisle, putting food items under his jacket, police said. The detective told police Kilgore left the store without paying for the items.
Kilgore was charged with sixth-degree larceny and abuse of a restricted substance. He was held in lieu of $500 bond and is scheduled to appear in Manchester Superior Court April 13.

Man charged in burglary

A man was arrested Sunday and charged with burglary after police said he tried to break into an occupied room at Willie's Motel at 44 Center St. police said.
Derrick A. Williams, 36, who gave no certain address, was arrested at 1:24 a.m. Sunday after a store detective in a room in the motel reported to police that he entered the room, police said. Police responded to a call of a suspicious person trying to enter a room in the hotel and saw Williams running away, police said. A couple staying in the room, Frank and Marilyn Bonomo of Comack, N.Y., said they heard a person try the front door, police said. Bonomo told police the person went to the bathroom window of the room, and the couple heard prying noises, police said. The couple called the motel manager who called police.
Williams went back to the door and came into the room, Bonomo told police. Bonomo said he had a key, police said.
Police later found a key to the room on Williams, who told police a truck driver he met had given him the key, police said. Police said Williams didn't know the truck driver's name.
Police found a duffel bag containing clothes near the bathroom window and a screwdriver that matched the pry marks, police said.
Williams was charged with second-degree burglary and possession of burglary tools. He was held on $1,000 cash bond and is scheduled to appear in Manchester Superior Court April 18.

Third-period explosion keeps Whalers alive

By Jim Tierney
Manchester Herald
HARTFORD — It seemed all too familiar.
When Bobby Smith and Ryan Walter scored power play goals 56 seconds apart to put Montreal back in front of Hartford, 4-3, with 14:58 remaining in the Whaler season the end seemed imminent.
During this Adams Division semifinal, the Canadiens had successfully utilized similar scoring sequences which usually sunk the Whale. But, not Sunday night. Down three games to zero in this best-of-seven playoff series, the Whalers refused to quit.
"The other games we lost our composure after we'd give up a couple of goals. We kept grinding and didn't let up," Whaler Coach Larry Pleau said.
Behind two goals from Kevin Dineen (the tying and winning scores), Hartford erupted for five Montreal goals and defeated Montreal, 7-5, before a crowd of 15,181 Sunday night at the Civic Center. Game 5 is back in the Montreal Forum Tuesday night. A Whaler victory would bring the series back to Hartford for Game 6. Saturday night will be a possible Game 7 would be in Montreal Saturday night.
Montreal edged Hartford, 4-3, in Game 3 Saturday night at the Civic Center.
"They (Montreal) have done that to us in almost every game we've played this year," Whaler goalie Mike Luit said of the Canadian offensive spurts. "It looked like we were going to collapse at that point. But our guys have hung in there well for the whole series. That's the kind of thing that maybe can turn this

Sylvain Cote picked up a double-minor for high-slicing. Guy Carboneau at 3:19 of the third period with Montreal trailing 3-2. Just 56 seconds after Smith tied the game at 3-3, Walter deflected the puck off Luit's pads into the back of the net for the go-ahead goal. At 11:20,

Whalers a 2-1 lead after one period. Richer's second score of the night knotted the affair at 2-2 heading into the third. Babych tallied his second goal — a slapper just inside the blue line — 59 seconds into the third which put Hartford up, 3-2.
Gavin, who scored the go-ahead goal in the third period, was glad with his club's offensive explosion. "I haven't heard enough of that song," he said of the music played after each Whaler score. "Hopefully, we'll get that again in the Forum and be back here on Thursday."
The Whalers know that Montreal has never lost a playoff series after having a 3-0 lead and patience will be a virtue if they are to break that Canadian trend. "We feel good about ourselves. (But) I know they're not going to want to come back here so they're going to be flying out on Tuesday night. We're playing desperate hockey. We have to take it a period at a time."
Roy was peppered by 43 Whaler shots while Luit didn't give one of his better performances either. "I was not a goalie's night," Montreal Coach Jean Perron said. "They (Hartford) played a good game. They deserved to win. We had some defensive lapses late in the game. For seven minutes we didn't play well defensively and that cost us the game."
After Stéphane Richer rocketed a 76-foot slapshot past Luit to open the scoring in the first period, goals from Dean Evason and Dave Babych gave the

Rangers take a stroll past Boston in finale

By Charles Richards
The Associated Press
ARLINGTON, Texas — The managers of the Texas Rangers and Boston Red Sox agreed that a bases-loaded walk to Pete Incaviglia was the turning point in Texas' only victory in a three-game series.
"Everybody wants to get a hit, no doubt about that, but I think we learned the value of the walk today," Texas Manager Bobby Valentine said after the Rangers' 4-1 victory Sunday.
The Rangers got singles from Scott Fletcher and Ruben Sierra to start the fourth inning.
Only once in the previous 32 at-bats with runners on second or third had the Rangers delivered a hit. No clutch hit was forthcoming this time, either, but Texas managed to pick up three runs on a balk. Three walks and an error by Boston pitcher Jeff Sellers walked Pete O'Brien intentionally in the fourth to load the bases with one out and get to Incaviglia, who was 0-for-13 with seven strikeouts and only one ball out of the infield.
But Incaviglia walked on a

Yankees unstoppable thus far

NEW YORK — There's no stopping the New York Yankees, especially when opposing pitchers aren't stopping them.
The Yankees, the only undefeated team in the majors, beat the Milwaukee Brewers 7-6 Sunday for their first 5-0 start since 1932. An American League record six balks were called, including a league-record five against Brewers pitchers.
"I guess we (players) just have to follow the rules a little better," said Yankees catcher Don Slaught, who went in for a two-doubles and hit a two-run single that broke an eighth-inning tie.
Milwaukee Manager Tom Trebelhorn thinks his staff is complying with the new, tighter balk regulations that require pitchers to come to a full stop in their set positions. Apparently they are not, however, because Sunday's violations matched the Brewers' total for 32 spring training games.
"Everybody wants a balk, I have to watch my pitchers like a maniac," Trebelhorn said.
"We're getting out of whack here."
Ted Higuera, called for two balks last season, committed three on Sunday. Chuck Crim's balk helped Slaught score the tying run in the seventh inning and Dan Plesac balked home New York's final run in the eighth. "I could put another defender in the outfield and the umpires might not see it because they're watching so much for balks," Trebelhorn said. "I might do that tomorrow in Boston, put another guy behind shortstop."

(Phil) Niekro cheered for 40 years and they're trying to make it up one year. Who are the pitchers trying to deceive? I don't understand. It's a complete deception," Trebelhorn said. "Go ask the umpires. They must understand the rule. They're calling the balks."
Balks are being called at a 300 percent higher rate than last season. Higuera, who comes off the disabled list this week, Slaught went 2-for-3 in his New York debut Saturday night and on Sunday matched his single game career high with four hits in the fifth time he's done it and the first time since he was benched by Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd in 1986. Slaught has hit .340 in his career against Milwaukee. He doubled twice against Higuera Sunday night. "He's one of those pitchers I see well, but I can't explain it," Slaught said.
Slaught began the game with a strike. That might enable Kelly to steal home. Instead, Plesac was flagged for a balk by second base umpire Rocky Roe.

MASTERS CHAMP — Sandy Lyle raises his putter in victory after winning the Masters golf tournament on the 18th hole Sunday.

Steve Kiefer and RBI singles by Yount and Glenn Braggs made it 4-0 in the second inning, but Higuera couldn't hold it.
Slaught doubled and scored on Ricky Henderson's single in the third. Slaught's double in the fifth was wasted, but Dave Winfield hit a two-run single in the sixth that pulled New York within 4-3.
Slaught greeted Crim with a leadoff single in the seventh, was sacrificed to second and took third on a balk. That call particularly bothered Trebelhorn.
Slaught's on second base and Crim is called for a balk. Is Slaught going to run? If he does, we say "Thank you very much." And if we don't throw him out, we deserve to lose."
Slaught, who has stolen just 11 bases in 544 big-league games, trotted home on Henderson's sacrifice fly for a 4-4 tie.
The Yankees loaded the bases with one out in the eighth against Crim. 0-1 on singles by Gary Ward and Winfield and a walk to Roberto Kelly. After Plesac struck out Mike Pagliarulo on three pitches, Slaught hit an opposite-field single to right.
With Slaught on first and Kelly on third, Martin tried a trick play. He had Slaught break early, trying to draw a throw from Plesac. That might enable Kelly to steal home. Instead, Plesac was flagged for a balk by second base umpire Rocky Roe.

Overtime once again belongs to the Islanders

By Ken Roppoport

When it comes to overtime in the Stanley Cup playoffs, nobody does it better than the New York Islanders.

The team with the best overtime record in playoff history continued to shine with a dramatic 5-4 victory over the New Jersey Devils in one of eight playoff games Sunday night.

"We have confidence in overtime," said Brent Sutter, who scores the Islanders' winning goal at 15:07 of overtime with the Islanders down a man. "We believe we can win."

It was the second overtime victory for the Islanders in their first-round Patrick Division series with the Devils and their 24th in 31 playoff games — by far the best record in the NHL. No other team in the league is more than four games over .500 in playoff overtime games.

In other action, five teams were on the verge of elimination in the playoffs as the result of Sunday night's results.

Philadelphia beat Washington 5-4 in overtime in the second round of the Patrick Division game. Detroit beat Toronto 4-0 and St. Louis stopped Chicago 6-5 in the Norris and Edmonton trimmed Winnipeg 5-3 and Calgary whipped Los Angeles 7-3 in the Smythe. The winners in those series all took 3-1 leads.

In the Adams Division, Hartford defeated Montreal 7-3 to stay alive. The Canadiens still hold a 3-1 lead and can wrap up the series Tuesday night at the Montreal Forum. Also, Buffalo edged Boston 6-5 in overtime to tie their Adams Division series at 2-2.

deficit late in the second period and went ahead on Pat LaFontaine's goal with 1:30 to play, only to see the Devils tie the score on John MacLean's second goal of the night with 12 seconds left.

The Devils had three of the four power plays in overtime, but the third one led to the game-winning goal for the Islanders.

Devils defenseman Craig Volanin gave the puck up to Sutter near the New Jersey blue line, and the Islanders' captain skated around him before writing a 20-foot shot that goaltender Sean Burke appeared to stop. But the puck dribbled through Burke's pads and Sutter poked it into the empty net for his second goal of the night.

Flyers 5, Capitals 4
Murray Craven's goal 1:18 into overtime lifted Philadelphia over Washington after the Flyers rallied from three goals down in the final 10 minutes of regulation.

In the overtime, Rich Tochet passed the puck to Craven, who beat Capitals goalie Clint Malarchuk.

Washington took a 4-1 lead with pair of goals in the first 3:04 of the third period. Mike Gartner and Dale Hunter each beat Flyers' goalie Ron Hextall on rebounds.

But the Flyers snapped back and scored on a goal by Mark Howe at 11:53. Brian Propp at 15:08 and Kjell Samuelsson with 53 seconds left.

Flames 7, Kings 3
Halkan Loo's three goals led Calgary over Los Angeles. Loo scored just 1:19 into the game to start a 3-0 Calgary run, and he and Tim Hunter scored 1:30 later in the second period after the Kings had tied the score. Loo, who had 50 goals during the regular season, scored his third goal on a 15-foot wrist shot at 8:41 in the third period.

Calgary, which had the NHL's best record during the regular season, won the series' first two games at the Saddledome. The Flames have never lost a playoff series in which they won the first two games.

Adams Division
Sabres 6, Bruins 5
John Tucker had two goals, including the winner on a power play at 5:32 of overtime, and added three assists as the Sabres evened their playoff series with the Bruins.

Twenty-four seconds after Boston's Glen Wesley was penalized for tripping Mike Foligno on a breakaway, Tucker fired a 25-foot shot from the left wing that crumpled over the shoulder of Boston goalie Reggie Lemelin. Tucker's two goals came on top of his 11th goal in the series on night's 6-2 Buffalo victory. Pierre Turgeon, who assisted on the game-winning goal, also had two goals for Buffalo.

The Bruins came back from 4-2 and 5-4 deficits in the third period to force the overtime.

Wilson gives it his best while still with the Mets

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The fact that he would rather be playing elsewhere is not stopping Mookie Wilson from giving an all-out effort for the New York Mets.

Wilson hit two home runs Sunday afternoon, including a seventh-inning, two-run blast that gave New York a 4-1 lead over the Philadelphia Phillies.

However, since the Mets plan to platoon Wilson with Len Dykstra in center field, playing every day is still the most important thing to Wilson.

"I would like to have a better situation than I have here," Wilson said. "I'm going for the time being. I'm going to play my best whenever I play."

Wilson also has no preference as to which position he plays in the outfield. "I feel comfortable playing all three outfield positions," he said. "It doesn't matter to me where I play."

For now, New York Manager Davey Johnson is glad Wilson is still an effort for the Mets.

"We needed someone to pick up and that's what Mookie did today," Johnson said. "He's a valuable member of this club."

The Mets took a 1-0 lead in the second on an RBI single by winning pitcher Dwight Gooden. 2-0, and Wilson's first home run in the third made it 2-0.

The Phillies scored an unearned run in the third, and tied the score at 2-2 in the fourth on a two-out single by Steve Jeltz.

The Mets took a 3-2 lead and scored on a Chris James single to give Philadelphia a 3-2 lead.

Mike Stanley's single for Texas' final run.

Stanley's hit was the second for Texas in 41 at-bats with runners in scoring position.

"That was an RBI single. I saw it," Valentine said, cherishing it more than the three runs scored off the error and two walks.

Boston scored its run in the second inning. Dwight Evans and Mike Greenwell singled, and single runner advanced both runners with a sacrifice bunt.

Rich Gedman, Boston's catcher, fouled a ball off his foot, breaking his right toe, but continued his at-bat and drove in Evans with a ground out to O'Brien at first.

The Phillies collected eight hits in the game, but were unable to score.

"Obviously the long ball hurt us," Ella said. "Mookie had a heck of a day. We let several opportunities slip away, but we're playing good baseball. All in all, we had a good homestand (3-2)."

June, we knew it was just a matter of time.

Ed Whitson, 1-1, lasted five innings for the Padres, then got some excellent relief help from Mark Davis and Lance McCullers to break a nine-game road losing streak. Davis, a left-hander, retired all six batters he faced, and McCullers gave up one hit while striking out three over the final two innings.

Dodgers 3, Braves 1
Orel Hershiser's string of consecutive scoreless innings to start the season ended at 17 when he lost his shutout in the ninth inning as the Dodgers won their fifth straight. Hershiser allowed five hits in 8 1/3 innings and didn't give up a run until Dion James led off the ninth with a single and, one out later, scored on a double by Gerald Perry.

Hershiser shut out San Francisco 5-0 with a five-hit shutout Tuesday night.

Rick Mahler gave up three runs, one unearned, on nine hits over 7 2/3 innings for Atlanta.

"We had a lot of good pitching performances, but no hitting to back it up," Oberkell said. "This kind of streak really shows up early when you start out 0-6. This club's offense is not to be feared."

Pedro Guerrero drove in a run with a sacrifice fly, and Mike Davis and Mike Marshall had run-scoring singles.

Last year, many so-called experts thought the Cleveland Indians were for real. This year, it's the Indians who think so.

Who's more, they're proving it, even though the season is only one week old.

"We're the most underrated team in baseball this year," said shortstop Jay Bell, who had a two-run triple Sunday as the Indians, who lost 101 games last year, won their fifth straight after an opening game loss, defeating the winless Baltimore Orioles 6-3.

"We're going to win some ballgames. People may say it's fluke, but we have a good nucleus, good hitting, good defense and good pitching."

The hottest team in this balky baseball season, however, is the New York Yankees, who got four hits from Don Slaught — including a tie-breaking two-run single in the eighth inning — and five batters by Milwaukee pitchers to beat the Brewers' 5-0 for their first 5-0 start in 55 years.

Oakland's Bob Welch also was a target of the balk-happy umpires. He was charged with three — after committing four last season with the Los Angeles Dodgers — and all proved costly in the Athletics' 6-4 loss to the California Angels.

Cleveland's major problem last year was pitching — namely, a 5.28 team earned-run average that was the worst in the majors in 31 years. But the Indians have a league-leading 1.36 ERA — to go with three complete games and one shutout — after Rich Yetter allowed three runs and seven hits in 6 1/3 innings on Sunday.

"I think these guys can play," Manager Doc Edwards said. "I think it's exhilarating for the whole team. They just believe in themselves. They know they have a good club, and they know they have good chemistry. They believe they can win, and I do, too."

East nine fortunate to post win over MHS

SLIDING HOME — East Catholic's Marc Mangialfico, left, slides home safely before Manchester catcher Frank Savino can apply the tag in their game Saturday afternoon at Kelley Field. The Eagles won, 11-3, in nine innings.

By Len Auster
Manchester Herald

The final score told anything but the story of Saturday's nine-inning 11-3 victory by East Catholic High over Manchester High in non-conference baseball action at Kelley Field.

The Eagles, 2-0, had to thank their lucky stars they had the opportunity for an eight-run ninth inning. Manchester, 0-1, saw opportunity to win it in the seventh slip away as it failed to push a run across despite a situation that saw the Indians load the bases with one out, and with a 3-0 count on Ryan Barry.

"Manchester should have won this game in the seventh," a relieved East Catholic coach Jim Penders said. "We were very fortunate. They hit the ball a lot better than us. They gave us our third run in the fourth when the shortstop lost the ball in the sun."

"We played even until the last inning. Then (relief pitcher) Jim Kitchcock ran out of gas and my relievers had nothing. It wasn't Jim's fault. Left him in too long," Manchester Coach Don Race said.

In the Manchester seventh, the Indians loaded the bases with one out. Reliever Pat Merritt went 3:0 p.m. at Moriarty Field against St. Bernard. Joe Leonard and Kitchcock each slapped two safeties for the Indians, who went windham High Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. at Kelley Field.

IN BRIEF

Kelly testimonial planned
East Catholic High School will hold a testimonial dinner for Judge Kelly on Thursday night, May 12, at the Marco Polo Restaurant in East Hartford. There will be a social hour at 6:30 with dinner at 7:30. Tickets are $25 apiece and can be obtained from East Catholic Director of Athletics Tom Malin or head baseball coach Jim Penders.

Kelly was East's football coach for nine years, guiding the Eagles to three state championships including two in 1986 and '87. He resigned in February to take a teaching post and the head football coaching position at Southington High School.

Konopka, Abele champs
The team of Ron Konopka and Claire Abele took the mixed doubles championship at Manchester Racquet Club last weekend, besting the team of Bret Smith and Sue Glenn 7-6 (7-5) and 6-3.

Smith and Glenn defended defending champion Ken and Norman White in the semifinals 7-5, 6-1. Konopka and Abele defeated Don and Karen Erickson 7-6 (7-1), 6-1 in their only match before the final.

The team of Bob Price and Heidi Willis won the consolation crown with a 6-3, 6-2 win over Rich Tarantino and Carol Plunkett.

NEW HAVEN — An Old Blue has been named Yale University's new athletic director.

Harold E. Woodsum Jr., a record-setting receiver for the Bulldogs in the early 1950s and more recently a prominent attorney in Portland, Maine, was appointed Saturday as the Ivy League school's 10th athletic director.

Okamoto wins LPGA event
POMONA, Calif. — Japan's Ayako Okamoto likens her strategy in a golf tournament to that of a runner who waits until the end of a race before striking to victory.

"It's better to chase somebody than be chased," Okamoto said Sunday after winning her second straight San Diego Inamori Classic with a four-day total of 272, 12 under par. She had a final-round 69 over a hilly, 6,921-yard Stone-Ridge Country Club course to beat Colleen Walker by a stroke.

The victory was worth $33,750 and moved Okamoto atop of the money-winning list, $1,024 ahead of Amy Alcott, who finished at 3-under-par 281.

Martina wins tennis title
HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. — Top-seeded Martina Navratilova defeated second-seeded Gabriela Sabatini 6-1, 4-6, 6-4 on Sunday to win the Family Circle Magazine Cup women's tennis tournament.

It was the third Family Circle tournament title for Navratilova but her first since claiming the second of two consecutive titles in 1983 — the last time she had played here.

Mizesko spins perfect game

H.S. Roundup

Tolland goes to 0-2 with the loss. Coventry's next game was today at 3:30 p.m. against E.O. Smith in Storrs.

Mizesko fanned 10 out of the 21 batters faced with the other Eagles retired on bunt attempts.

"Tolland is usually a good hitting team but I don't think she (Tolland Coach Beth Regan) thought they could hit him. The corners (third baseman Jen Daniels and first baseman Johanna VanKruiningen) and Mizesko (and catcher) Leslie Davey just played great," Patriot Coach Dick Page said.

The 2-0 Patriots collected eight hits with Daniels and Corine Cagiano on base, taking the extra base when they can. "They're doing well for now," Coventry is 2-0 while the Eagles are 0-2.

COVENTRY — The number '11' has been productive to date for the Coventry High baseball team. The Patriots for the second consecutive game rapped 11 hits as they bested Tolland High, 11-8, Saturday morning in non-conference play.

"We had 11 hits again," advised Coventry Coach Bob Plaster. "The kids are playing aggressively on the bases, taking the extra base when they can. They're doing well for now."

Coventry is 2-0 while the Eagles are 0-2.

Knicks ready for big game

By John Kreiser
The Associated Press

It's been a long time between important games for the New York Knicks. But when one came along, they were ready.

Kevin McHale had a fabulous week. New York Coach Rick Pitino said after his club whipped the Washington Bullets 118-88 Sunday at the Capital Centre. "I'm really, really proud of the way they mentally prepared for this basketball game."

"This was a big game. We really felt that way," said rookie guard Mark Jackson, who finished with 18 points.

Celtics 117, 76ers 108

The Celtics, who blew a 30-point lead against Philadelphia at home on March 25, led almost all the way at the Spectrum and held off a fourth-quarter rally by the 76ers for their seventh straight victory.

Dennis Johnson put the Celtics ahead to stay with a jumper 3:04 before halftime and Boston led the entire second half.

Kevin McHale led Boston with 24 points despite spraining an ankle in the second quarter and Robert Parish added 22.

Cavaliers 119, Nets 105

Cleveland shot an NBA season-best 68.5 percent from the floor to hand the Nets their 10th straight loss.

Brad Daugherty scored 20 points on 10 of 12 shooting. The Cavaliers' sixth in the East with a 47-38 mark, broke the game open early, scoring the 16 game's first 10 points and [8] the first 21, to win for the third straight time and sixth in their last seven games.

Kings 121, Warriors 105

Harold Green scored a career-high 31 points — including 14 of 14 from the foul line, as Sacramento handed Fresno State its eighth straight defeat.

Clippers 122, Rockets 105

Darnell Valentine scored 18 of his career-high 30 points in the third quarter as the Clippers matched their biggest winning margin of the season.

Escrowed bonds rate high

QUESTION: I have been told that "advance refunded" municipal bonds pay tax-free interest and are rated as high as U.S. Treasury bonds. Is this true? Also, please explain what advance refunded bonds are.

Investors' Guide William A. Doyle

ANSWER: It's true. Advance refunded bonds are also called "pre-refunded" and "escrowed" bonds.

Keep in mind that most municipal bonds — debt securities issued by states and their political subdivisions — pay interest free of federal income tax and also exempt from state and local income tax in the state in which the bonds were issued.

Time was when "municipal" and "tax-free" were synonymous in speaking of bonds. In recent years, however, the interest from an increasing number of municipal bonds has become taxable.

Also receiving otherwise tax-free interest can result in a higher effective rate than the Treasury bonds. To turn a should-a-city go through the complicated exercise?

Here's how an advance refunding works: After selling one issue of tax-free bonds, a city sells a second tax-free issue of the same size.

The city uses the money advanced to refund the municipal bonds.

did not take kindly to the thought that a city, state, or other issuer of municipal bonds could profit on the "spread" between the low interest it pays on tax-free bonds and the higher interest it receives from the Treasury bonds it buys in an advance refunding scheme.

So, as part of the Tax Reform Act of 1986, our lawmakers greatly restricted the use of municipal bond advance refunding.

Although not banned, advance refunding now can be done far less frequently than in the past.

As a result, the supply of advance refunded tax-free bonds is gradually diminishing.

QUESTION: I don't understand why most municipal bonds pay lower interest than U.S. Treasury bonds. The latter are backed by the full faith and credit of our federal government.

People with money to invest are willing to accept lower tax-free interest than taxable interest. It's as simple as that.

ANSWER: Sure. But the interest on Treasury bonds pay is subject to federal income tax. The interest from most municipal bonds is free from that tax bite.

People with money to invest are willing to accept lower tax-free interest than taxable interest. It's as simple as that.
