THREE TO GET READY — Steve Austin, John Morris, and Ken Ham were among the speakers at the Back to Genesis conference. The two-day conference continues all day today at Manchester High School.

1,500 get 'Back to Genesis' at creationism conference

By Nancy Pappas
Manchester Herald

Carol Pelkey, of Manchester, has sometimes felt isolated in her belief that the world was created by God in just six days. But she was anything but isolated on Friday evening, when she joined about 1,500 people who swarmed through the halls of Manchester High School to get "Back to Genesis."

Presented by the Institute for Creation Research in California, the two-day conference, called "Back to Genesis," is striving to present a Biblical view of science, according to conference organizers.

Pelkey's son, 10-year-old Kevin, was one of hundreds of children who attended the conference. The youngest, at two weeks, dozed through most of the evening. But the rest of the children were very attentive, particularly when the subject was dinosaurs and fire-breathing dragons.

"We want you to be able to look at science with your Biblical glasses on," John Morris told the standing-room-only crowd in Bailey Auditorium. Morris, who holds two advanced degrees in geological engineering from Oklahoma University, gave an introductory talk, and also presented one of the evening's electives, on the origins and demise of the dinosaurs.

"The main emphasis of this conference is that there is not just one way to look at the world, and at scientific data," said Morris, at the end of the evening. "When you look at the data from an evolutionist viewpoint, there are lots of holes and gaps. When you look with a Biblical viewpoint, the scientific data make much more sense."

The creationists believe that the world is between 6,000 and 10,000 years old, while evolutionist scientists believe that it is many millions of years old, Morris said.

One problem for creationists has been the existence of dinosaurs. "Dinosaurs have long been thrown up to the Christians as the proof that there has to be evolution, and that the world must be many millions of years old," said Morris.

However, he said, the dinosaurs could well have been created by God, on the fifth and sixth days of creation. If so, then extremely young dinosaurs were undoubtedly on board Noah's ark when he set sail, Morris explained.

Generations later, many of the dinosaurs were probably wiped out during the Ice Age, which Morris believes followed the flood by about 500 years. Others survived several thousand years, and some are probably still around.

"Almost every culture in the world has legends of dragons," Morris said. "I suspect it's because people in the past had contact with dinosaurs."

In modern times, natives in the African Congo have reported close contact with creatures that look like small brontosaurus, he said.

William Benito of Manchester, one of the key members of the conference steering committee, said that he was pleased with the Friday evening turnout. He was expecting at least 2,000 to attend the sessions today, which run from registration at 8 a.m. through a question and answer session that closes at 9:30 p.m.

It might be a loud July 4th

HARTFORD (AP) — Connecticut Police say its anybody's guess whether New Hampshire's decision to legalize fireworks will put more sparkle and sizzle in this state's summer celebration.

The New Hampshire law which took effect this week ends a 40-year ban on fireworks and enables out-of-state residents who are over 18 years old to buy them.

While out-of-state residents may buy fireworks in New Hampshire, they're still illegal in Connecticut, according to New Britain Police spokesman William Kilduff.

Adam Berlutti, public information officer for the state fire marshal's office, said he is concerned about the new law. "We're very concerned about any illegal fireworks in the state," Berlutti said. "It's too soon to tell yet how this will affect us, but we'll be monitoring the situation closely."

Douglas Patch, assistant commissioner of public safety in New Hampshire, said the state law allows municipalities to decide whether fireworks can be sold.

"We're hoping the communities will regulate this well," Patch said.

3 judges KO sentencing guidelines

NEW HAVEN (AP) — New federal guidelines sharply limiting judicial discretion in the imposition of sentences were ruled unconstitutional Friday by three of the state's six federal judges.

The guidelines, which set minimum and maximum sentences based on the nature of the crime and whether the defendant cooperates, were intended to reduce the disparity in sentences for the same crime handed down by federal judges across the country.

In separate decisions, the three judges found that the rules were too rigid and violated the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers because three federal judges served on the seven-member commission created by Congress to draft the guidelines.

"Because the guidelines were promulgated pursuant to an unconstitutional statutory provision, the guidelines themselves are null and void," U.S. District Judge Jose A. Cabranes of New Haven wrote in his 17-page decision issued Friday.

"The use of mathematical values had reduced the discretion of the sentencing judge almost to the point where the sentencing process could be performed by a computer or an accountant," he wrote.

Federal judges in Los Angeles and Maryland also have declared the guidelines unconstitutional. Individual judges elsewhere have disagreed on whether to implement the rules. U.S. District Stanley A. Twardy Jr. predicted the validity of the new guidelines, which took effect in November, would ultimately be decided by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The rulings issued by Cabranes, Chief Judge T.F. Gilroy Daly of Bridgeport and U.S. District Judge Ellen Bree Burns of New Haven affect only cases they hear and has no effect on the state's other three federal judges: U.S. District Court Judges Peter C. Dorsey of Hartford, Warren W. Eginton of Bridgeport and Alan H. Nevas of Hartford, who have yet to rule.

All six judges met Thursday in New Haven in an unusual plenary session, one in which all judges participate, to hear lawyers' arguments over the rules.

Federal Public Defender Thomas

G. Dennis of Hartford and defense lawyer Darcey McGraw of New Haven argued that the new rules should have been adopted by Congress, which has the legal right to set maximum and minimum levels of punishment.

Lawyers for the sentencing commission and the U.S. Department of Justice argued that there were problems with the way the rules were enacted, but they insisted those flaws were minor and don't require that the rules be struck down.

The 14-10 split decision issued by the U.S. District Court in Los Angeles on Thursday affects 32 federal judges working in the seven-county Central District, which extends from San Luis Obispo to San Clemente.

30,000 miles later, Eagle is back home

By Larry Rosenthal
The Associated Press

NEW LONDON — The Coast Guard tall ship Eagle returned home Friday after its longest voyage ever, a 30,000-mile training and goodwill mission which was closely followed by millions of school children.

The 295-foot, three-masted sail training ship left the Coast Guard Academy in New London on Sept. 10, 1987, for Australia to help celebrate that country's January bicentennial. It was the ship's first trip south of the equator.

Half of the academy's second-year class of cadets, about 130 students, made the voyage and were then flown home before the bicentennial celebration. They were replaced on the return trip by the rest of their class.

About 60 enlisted personnel and officers, commanded by Capt. Ernst Cummings, were aboard for the eight-month voyage.

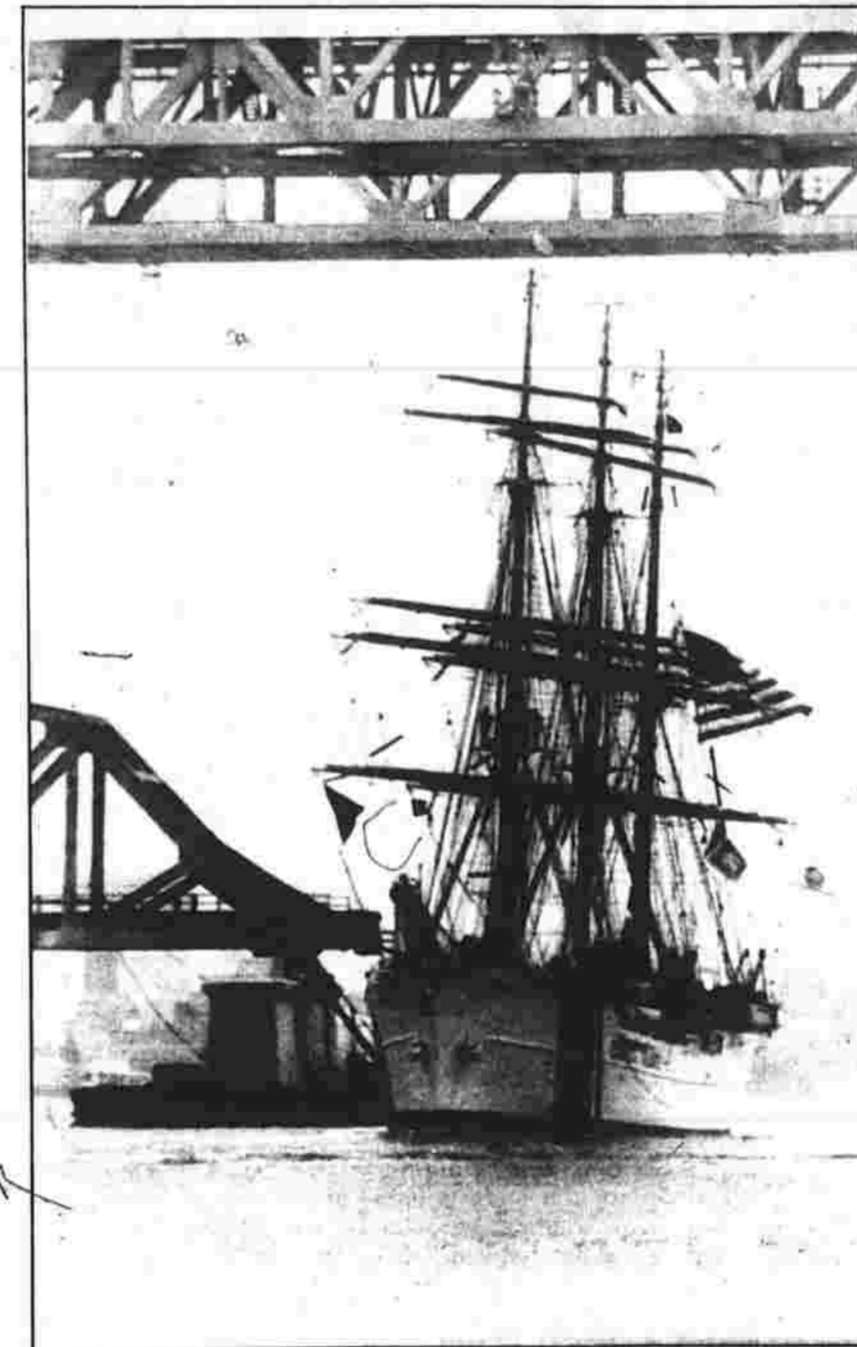

Because of strong headwinds, the ship relied on its diesel engine instead of its sails to make the final leg of its trip from Miami to the home port off Long Island Sound, Coast Guard officials said.

The ship arrived off the mouth of the Thames River Thursday night and proceeded under power up river today after lowering its main two-piece steel mast to fit under the Interstate 95 bridge.

The Coast Guard band, the academy superintendent, and school children carrying banners welcomed the vessel and its crew home as it arrived at the Coast Guard docks to a 13-gun salute at 9:50 a.m.

"Words obviously do not describe the accomplishments of the Eagle and the men and women on her," said Rear Adm. Richard P. Cueroni, the Academy superintendent during a brief ceremony held as a light rain fell.

While the ship was given a grand sendoff filled with pageantry, Coast Guard officials said the welcoming-home ceremonies were kept low-key so those aboard the ship could be quickly reunited with their families.

LONGEST VOYAGE — The Coast Guard tall ship Eagle sails up the Thames River in New London on its way home Friday after an eight-month voyage to Australia to help that country celebrate its bicentennial. The three-masted training ship traveled 30,000 miles.

For many of those on board, it will be the first time since Christmas that they have seen their families. Many of the crew's wives had gone to Australia to be with their husbands during the holidays.

Coverage of the Eagle's journey was provided to readers of the Weekly Reader's editions for children in grades 3 through 6, and Current Events, a classroom newspaper for junior high pupils.

Maps and stickers allowed children to chart the ship's course. Weekly Reader and Current Events also highlighted the geography of the vessel's ports of call and covered such topics as sailing, spars and rigging, and flag messages.

More than 1 million Weekly Reader pupils sent bicentennial greetings to their counterparts in Australia via the Eagle, as part of a joint educational campaign with the Coast Guard called "Schoolmates Sail With Eagle."

The Eagle delivered 30 canvas seabags filled with memorabilia from about 30 American schools to Australian school children. The Australian children, who also followed the ship's voyage, sent back letters and mementos of their own.

The sailing ship's ports of call, in addition to its stops in Australia, included Acapulco, Mexico, the U.S. Navy base in Panama, the Galapagos Islands, the Society Islands, American Samoa and Tonga.

The Eagle arrived in Newcastle, Australia, on Dec. 20, a little more than three months after it departed from New London. It returned to Honolulu on March 1 before heading to Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles and then Miami.

The worst weather of the journey was encountered off the coast of Seattle, when the Eagle rode 30- to 40-foot seas, said Petty Officer Frank Jennings, a Coast Guard spokesman.

Originally a sail training vessel for Nazi Germany, the ship was launched in 1936 from Hamburg. Named after an associate of Adolph Hitler, it was taken as a war prize after World War II, Jennings said.

Plans double headquarters

Three preliminary plans for doubling the size of the present police headquarters on East Middle Turnpike were reviewed by the space subcommittee and the town Board of Directors Friday afternoon.

All three proposals would provide a total square-footage of 43,000. The present headquarters has an area of 22,793 square feet.

The first proposal calls for keeping the present structure and building an addition, said Richard Lawrence, a partner of the Lawrence Associates. When the addition is completed, the existing building would be renovated.

The two other plans call for saving only the detention area of the present building, the newest part of the structure, Lawrence said. When a new facility were completed, all portions of the old building except the detention area would be demolished.

No cost estimates for any of the plans were available.

In February, the directors approved the $8,500 study to look into expansion of the police headquarters, which police administrators say has run out of space. Of the total cost of the study, $2,500 is being paid for by a grant from the state Office of Policy and Management.

Lawrence said cost estimates and more detailed plans are to be presented to the Board of Directors in July.

Fire flow test set

The town Water Division will do a fire flow test on Hale Road Wednesday to determine the effects on the water system for fire protection. The test will last about two hours and could decrease water pressure in the area of Hale Road at the intersection of Avery Street and Deming Street.

Teacher named judge

Dr. LeRoy Hay, a teacher at Manchester High School, has been named as regional judge for the 1988 writing competition by the National Council of Teachers of English. In the competition, about 800 high school seniors are cited for excellence in writing and are recommended to colleges for admission and for financial aid, if necessary. Results of the contest will be announced in October. Students are nominated by their high school English departments and each submits an impromptu theme and a sample of his or her best writing to be judged by regional judging committees.

Students represent school

Drew Pinto and Deborah Merriam have been selected as Bolton High School's delegates to the American Legion Boys State and Laurel Girl's State, respectively.

Pinto is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Pinto of 23 School St., Bolton.

Merriam is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Merriam, 111 Tolland Road, Bolton.

Pinto is a member of the National Honor Society, the Spanish National Honor Society, boy's varsity soccer, basketball, and baseball, as well as Manchester Junior American Legion baseball. He is treasurer of the Student Council, vice-chairman of the Charter Oak Conference Student Leadership Congress and the Spanish Club.

He will spend the week of June 19 to June 24 in a program at Eastern Connecticut State University.

Merriam is a member of the National Honor Society, president of the junior class, editor of the school newspaper, an executive board member of the Latin Club, and president of the Unitarian Universalist Church Youth Group.

She has played varsity softball for the past two years.

James Hathaway, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Hathaway, of 40 Quarry Road, has been chosen as an alternate delegate to Boys' State and Kristie Klekotka, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Klekotka, has been chosen as an alternate to Laurel Girls' State.

He's still on cloud nine

Student named president of business club

By Andrew J. Davis
Manchester Herald

The excitement got to Jeff Bernier.

Bernier, a 16-year-old Manchester High School junior, sat last year at a state convention of the Future Business Leaders of America and was awed by the pomp and circumstance afforded the presidential election. He decided right then and there that he wanted to run for the state presidency of the organization this year.

Now, his dream has been realized. On April 29, Bernier was elected as next year's club president at the same time several Bolton students were honored for their achievements in the club. Bernier will assume the presidency next school year.

He defeated David Arnaukas of Watertown High School in the election.

"Last year when I was at the leadership conference, I witnessed the (presidential) ceremony," Bernier said. "I was overwhelmed. I knew right then I wanted to do that."

Confident of victory, Bernier had no desire to do anything else but secure the presidency. Since the club could not find a candidate for the position of treasurer, the position was offered to the loser of the presidential election.

David Kool/Manchester Herald

LOVES HIS JOB — Jeff Bernier, a junior at Manchester High School, is still euphoric over his selection as president of the state chapter of the Future Business Leaders of America Association. He says he wants to improve the ties between state chapters.

However, Bernier would have none of that. He declined the club's invitation, deciding that he did not want to be treasurer if he lost.

"I declined. I didn't want to think of a backup (position). I wanted to focus ... on the presidency," he said.

Now that that is in the past, Bernier is concentrating on improving the club. He said he wants to bring the about 60 state chapters closer, possibly by sponsoring a dance for the 600 members. Also, he wants to increase the treasury and keep in monthly contact with chapter presidents, he said.

Bernier has months to work on his plans, but he still has not come off the emotional high he has been on since winning the presidency. "I've been coming down from cloud nine," he said.

Veterans sought

The Veteran's Administration announced that the French Government will recognize living veterans who saw duty in France, in commemoration of the 70th anniversary of World War I.

Any veteran with an honorable discharge, and who was in service in France between April 6, 1917 and Nov. 11, 1918 is eligible for this honor. The Veteran's Administration estimates there are 2,000 such veterans living in Connecticut.

Local veterans should contact Eugene Austin, veterans representative, at the Manchester Job Service, 806 Main St. The phone number is 649-4558.

Hockanum River plan funded

Manchester will be one of four towns to benefit from a $4.75 million appropriation to help build the proposed Hockanum River Linear Park, a state official said.

The money is in addition to the $1 million in state funds approved for the park last year, said Joe Hickey, state park planner for the state parks and recreation office of the Department of Environmental Protection. The money, included in a $1.2 billion bonding package passed Wednesday by the General Assembly, would benefit East Hartford, Vernon and Ellington as well, and still must be approved by Gov. William A. O'Neill.

The money will be used to buy and develop land for park facilities along the river, Hickey said.

VNA plans auction to fund relocation

By Anita M. Caldwell
Manchester Herald

The Visiting Nurse & Home Care of Manchester Inc. is holding an art auction to raise funds for new offices in an effort to meet the January 1989 deadline to move out of Highland Park School.

"It's going to be a major expense," said Barbara Bayer, public relations chairman for the agency.

Highland Park School, which was closed in 1984, is slated to reopen for kindergarten through grade 3 in September, 1989 under a vote by the Board of Education in January. The remaining grades are scheduled to reopen in successive years.

The vote to reopen only the lower grades sparked protests when parents said families will be divided under that plan. But officials say the decision to delay opening the school to the remaining grades was made so the school's current tenants — the town Recreation Department, a day treatment center run under the school system, and the VNA — would have time to find a new location.

While parents continue to urge that the school be reopened to grades kindergarten through 6, the VNA has planned an art auction for Saturday, May 21, at the Early Childhood Learning Center on Spring Street. Preview for the auction is at 7 p.m. and the auction is at 8 p.m. Tickets are $5 each and are available by calling the agency office at 647-1481.

Bayer said the auction will feature prints, oils, watercolors and enamels by such artists as Picasso, Chagall, Miro, Matisse, Kaufmann, Dali, and the Israeli artist, Agam.

Bidding will begin below $35 and will extend to $2,500, Bayer said.

Though the agency hasn't set a goal as to how much they want to raise, Bayer said the more people that attend, the more support they'll get.

"I think the people we're appealing to will support this non-profit (homecare) agency that's working for the benefit of the town and Bolton," she said.

Meanwhile, the agency is pushing to move by the fall.

"We want to be out by September because of the weather," Bayer said. "It's easier to move in the fall."

Currently, the agency, which has been at the school for the past three years, has offices on different floors and the staff uses different entrances, Bayer said.

"It'll be nice to have their own space so everyone will be together on one level," she said.

Bayer said she has a positive attitude about the move.

"It's good for morale," she said. "And what's good for the (visiting) nurses is good for the town."

Investigation results in 4 drug arrests

An investigation by the Tri-Town Narcotics Task Force resulted in the arrests of four people Wednesday night on drug charges, police said.

Sandra Del Napoletano, 29, of 129 Birch St., was charged with possession of cocaine with intent to sell and possession of drug paraphernalia; Victor Darrell Brown, 28, of 22 Berkley Drive, Hartford, was charged with possession of marijuana; and Kenneth Michael Brown, 26, also of 22 Berkley Drive, Hartford, was charged with possession of marijuana and possession of cocaine, police said.

A fourth person, Carrie Louise Fiaschetti, 26, of 8 Saner Road, Marlborough, was charged with conspiracy to possess cocaine, police said. She is accused of trying to buy cocaine while the police officers were searching Napoletano's home, police said. The task force includes police from Manchester, Vernon and South Windsor.

Many to lobby for street work

By Nancy Concelman
Manchester Herald

Main Street business owners and town officials plan to attend a Capitol Region Council of Governments meeting in June, during which the council will vote on whether the $15 million Main Street reconstruction project is worthy of federal funds.

Representatives from downtown businesses, the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce, Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr. and possibly Town Manager Robert E. Weiss plan to attend the meeting. Veronica Pastorelle, coordinator for the Downtown Manchester Association and membership services coordinator for the chamber said.

In the meantime, business owners should join the town in lobbying local legislators who will eventually vote on the transportation budget. William Camosci, Director of Engineering Services said. While CRCOG will vote on project cost increases, funds for the projects will eventually end up being voted on by the General Assembly, Camosci said.

But because of changes in plans and the uncertainty of whether funds will be available for the project, many Main Street business owners aren't aware of the status of the project, Pastorelle said.

"There have been so many stories floating around," she said. "There are too many unknowns right now. People want to know, but there's so much confusion with the funding."

To clear up some of that confusion and get a consensus of opinion from Main Street merchants, DiRosa will speak on the status of the project at the Downtown Manchester Association's annual dinner, scheduled for 7 p.m. Wednesday, Pastorelle said. Also scheduled is a slide show presentation on the town by Planning Director Mark Pellegrini.

While some property owners whose property must be taken by the DOT for the project have spoken against the reconstruction in the past, Pastorelle said she hasn't heard any objections recently.

"Nobody else has attacked the project," she said. "I haven't heard any other complaints from the businesses."

The cost of the Main Street reconstruction project has risen from an estimated $8.9 million to about $15.6 million, making CRCOG's review of cost increases necessary and a referendum on increased town expenditures likely. Tom Maziarz, transportation planner for the council, said Friday the council is waiting to receive a list of cost increases for projects all over the state from the Department of Transportation.

Once CRCOG gets the list of increases, he said, it will schedule two special meetings in late May and early June to vote on cost increases. Two meetings are required because the council must review 300 to 400 projects, Maziarz said.

Pursuit prompts lawsuit threats

By Andrew Yurkovsk
Manchester Herald

An East Hartford man plans to sue the Manchester Police Department for injuries he received in 1987 in an accident he claims occurred because of a high-speed pursuit by police officers.

Richard J. Zimmer IV of 400 Oak St., East Hartford, was a passenger in a car driven by Thomas P. Mckernan, 19, of 24 Arthur Drive, South Windsor, Oct. 28, 1987. The car was traveling west on West Middle Turnpike at a "high rate of speed" with Manchester Police officers in "high-speed pursuit", according to the notice, filed with the town clerk April 27.

At about 10:05 p.m., about 33 feet south of the intersection of West Middle Turnpike and New State Road, Mckernan lost control of his vehicle, collided with a median divider, flipped over the divider and hit an oncoming vehicle that was traveling east on West Middle Turnpike, the notice said.

The driver of the oncoming vehicle, 22-year-old Jose Vieira of 104 Harbison Road, Hartford, filed a suit against the police department in December 1987, charging that the police were negligent in not adopting a "high-speed pursuit" policy required by state law and the Manchester Police Department.

Zimmer suffered fractures of a leg and finger, abrasions, contusions and shock to the nervous system, according to the notice. Vieira suffered a broken knee cap.

The notice for Zimmer, filed by his attorney, Norman Ebenstein of Hartford, said police officers were negligent in pursuing Mckernan at a high rate of speed instead of calling for help or setting up a roadblock.

In a statement filed with police, Officer Joanne Schaller, who was driving the police car, said she saw Mckernan run a red light at the intersection of West Middle Turnpike and Tower Road. Schaller said she turned on her lights and siren and pursued Mckernan, slowing down at the intersection of West Middle Turnpike and Adams Street.

Schaller said Mckernan was moving fast and by the time she caught up with him, the accident had occurred, police said. A radar had clocked Mckernan's car at 77 mph in a 35 mph zone while Schaller was in pursuit, police said.

Mckernan was charged with driving while intoxicated, driving to endanger and two counts of assault in the second degree with a motor vehicle while intoxicated, according to police.

Obituaries

Hector C. White

Hector C. White, 94, of Tampa, Florida, died Friday at a Tampa hospital. He was the husband of Elma (Coon) White.

Besides his wife, he is survived by three daughters, Shirley Zeppa, Dorothy Zeppa and Anna White, all of Manchester, and Margaret Parsons of East Hartford; a son, Gordon White of South Windsor; four brothers; and five sisters; 19 grandchildren; and 22 great-grandchildren.

The funeral is Tuesday, 10 a.m., at the House of Hope Church, Tampa, Fla. Burial will be in Hillsboro Memorial Gardens, Brandon, Fla. Calling hours are Monday from 7 to 8 p.m. at Curry & Son Funeral Home, 605 S. MacDill Ave., Tampa, Fla.

Prague pleased over bill

State Rep. Edith Prague, D-Columbia, said she's pleased with the House of Representative's decision last month to pass legislation aimed at more humane treatment of residents who must give up their homes under the state Department of Transportation's eminent domain proceedings.

Prague co-sponsored the bill in the General Assembly's Transportation Committee.

Greenwood Drive vote slated

By Andrew Yurkovsk
Manchester Herald

The reconstruction of Greenwood Drive to make it safer for driving could be completed by November 1989 if the work gets approval from the town Board of Directors.

The project, which will be paid for in part by a $90,000 state grant, will be reviewed by the directors during a workshop before their meeting Tuesday.

William Camosci, the town's director of engineering services, said Friday that the curve of Greenwood Drive between Vernon Street and Lynch Drive would be widened and would be banked to make it safer.

Camosci said a study by the Capital Region Council of Governments found a high accident rate on that stretch of the roadway, and the state agreed last year to provide an accident-reduction grant of $90,000 — to be matched by $10,000 from the town — to help pay for the work.

Town crews will perform any excavation required and will put in the storm drainage system, while a contractor will be hired to lay the bituminous concrete and granite curbing, Camosci said.

The cost of materials and the work of the contractor is estimated at $85,000. The remaining $15,000 will go to the state for time spent on reviewing plans and rights-of-way.

Camosci said that during Tuesday's workshop he'll run the plan by the directors to get their reaction. The reconstruction plans will be reviewed by the Planning and Zoning Commission on May 16, and a public hearing will be held on May 26.

The plans may be revised in light of any comments expressed at the hearing, Camosci said. Barring any problems, he expects the Board of Directors to allocate the grant money for the project in June.

He said final design work for the project could be completed by the summer, and work could begin in spring 1989. He hopes to have the job done by November 1, 1989.

Three nearby properties would be affected in a minor way by the project, Camosci said. He said easements for two of the projects, one of which already has been granted, would be required.

Shot to death

In 1925, architect Stanford White was shot to death atop New York's old Madison Square Garden — which he had designed — by Harry Thaw. Thaw was the husband of actress Evelyn Nesbit, who was White's mistress.

English poet Percy Bysshe Shelley died in 1822.

Families rap sex assault sentences

WEST HARTFORD (AP) — The mother of three boys who were sexually assaulted says justice was not served when the man arrested for the crime received probation.

The mother of the boys said she was not informed beforehand of the plea bargain agreement or the sentence until after she was contacted by her attorney.

"We were shocked that this happened and no one asked us," said the mother of three boys involved in the case. "If we knew that that was the sentencing we would have driven down to be down there."

John J. Armentano, 55, of Hartford, received a five-year suspended sentence on April 26 and was ordered to remain under clinically supervised probation for the period. He was allowed to continue his business at 657 New Park Ave., but cannot give haircuts to anyone under 15 years old.

The boys' mother questioned whether probation was a sufficient deterrent.

Armentano pleaded no contest to one count of risk injury to or impairing morals of children on March 14. In exchange for the plea, prosecutors agreed to drop six additional counts of risk of injury to a minor, four counts of second-degree assault, four counts of fourth-degree assault and one count of third-degree assault.

Armentano was arrested last August after a two-week investigation by the West Hartford police Department. The boys involved were three brothers, ages 8, 9 and 12 at the time of the incidents — and a friend, 11.

Michael J. Graham, attorney for both families said he was never informed beforehand of either the plea or the sentence.

Assistant State's Attorney John O'Reilly, who handled the case, said it was Graham's job to keep track of the case.

"That was his business," O'Reilly said. "He just lost track of it."

The sentence was based on a presentence report and report by a psychiatrist, who said Armentano was making progress in treatment. O'Reilly said the sentence was appropriate.

Wood chips OK'd as trial evidence

NEW LONDON (AP) — A Superior Court judge Friday ruled that wood chips seized from an undeveloped lot owned by Richard Crafts may be entered as evidence.

Judge Barry Schaller's decision came as Crafts' murder trial entered its 24th day. He is charged with murder in the death of his wife, Helle Crafts, who disappeared Nov. 18, 1986 and has not been seen since.

The evidence was seen as key to the prosecution's case because State's Attorney Walter Flanagan is expected to argue the wood chips found on the lot were produced by the same woodchipper as those found along the banks of Housatonic River.

Prosecutors have alleged that Crafts killed his wife and put parts of her body through a woodchipper.

J. Daniel Sagarin, Crafts' attorney, said the wood chips taken from the lot were seized without a warrant and violated the former airline pilot's rights to privacy. Schaller ruled, however, the concept of privacy does not apply to an "open" lot.

Sagarin said he will file a motion Monday arguing the state failed to produce tests run on the wood chips in a timely manner in compliance with a court order.

In other testimony, jurors listened to a tape recording of a state police interview with Crafts. Crafts was arrested Jan. 13, 1987.

During the interview, Crafts told police he couldn't remember the exact time he last saw his wife, but saw her on a snowy November morning.

Jai alai strike violence fears are recounted at state hearing

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

NEWINGTON — A top state gaming official told the Gaming Policy Board Friday that he recommended two jai alai frontons be shut down because of continued threats of violence as a result of a continuing strike by players.

"I saw an escalation of serious threats to public safety," William Ferris, chief of the gambling regulation unit in the state Division of Special Revenue, said in testimony before the board.

The panel is weighing a request by the frontons that their license suspensions be lifted. Members of a new players' union went on strike April 14. The frontons reopened with replacement players, but were ordered to close on April 28.

Ferris said he would not recommend reopening the frontons in Bridgeport and Hartford "as long as there is labor unrest."

"Until that dispute is resolved, it will be a continuing factor to us," Ferris said.

He recounted numerous incidents on the picket lines, some of which resulted in arrests, after the strike began. There were bomb threats, rocks thrown at non-striking players, nails strewn across the entrances, slashed tires in parking lots and, in one case, broken windows at a non-striking player's home in Windsor, Ferris said.

The players, members of the newly formed International Jai Alai Players Association, struck over what they said were unfair labor practices by the owners, who had refused to negotiate with the new union.

The National Labor Relations Board has held hearings and is due to rule soon on the union's request that it compel owners to engage in collective bargaining.

"We allege that the labor dispute at Bridgeport and Hartford jai alai caused a threat to public safety, whoever's fault it may be," Richard Sheridan, an attorney for the Division of Special Revenue, told the Gaming Policy Board.

Roland H. Lange, chairman of the policy board, told the attorneys for the state and the frontons: "This board approaches this hearing with an open mind, but, I might add, not with an empty mind."

Many players were inside and outside the hearing room Friday.

The state is losing revenue as a result of the strike. It collects 5 percent of the gross handle at the frontons. It made more than $1.3 million from jai alai in February.

O'Neill signs budget

HARTFORD (AP) — Gov. William A. O'Neill on Friday signed into law the $6.29 billion state budget for the year beginning July 1.

In a statement announcing the action, O'Neill said the budget "remains true to the basic commitments I have made to the people of Connecticut."

The budget calls for a spending increase of about 12 percent over 1987-88.

It requires no tax increases, with the exception of another penny on the gasoline tax, which

The striking players in Hartford and Bridgeport are about 500 who struck 11 in-season frontons in Florida, Connecticut and Rhode Island. There is also a fronton in Milford, but its season doesn't begin until late June.

About 800 other full- and part-time fronton employees at Bridgeport, Hartford and Milford have or may be out of work as a result of the closures.

Owners of the Bridgeport and Hartford frontons have taken out newspaper advertisements saying that those non-players are ineligible for unemployment compensation.

But Labor Commissioner Betty Tianti said Department of Labor offices have been accepting applications from the workers, who include tellers, parking attendants, concession, restaurant and maintenance employees. A decision on their applications will be released next week, Tianti said.

The Bahamas became independent in 1973.

Airlines are told: No toilet dumping

WINDSOR LOCKS (AP) — Airlines have until June 1 to stop dumping the contents of chemical toilets into Bradley International Airport's inadequate sewage treatment plant.

The order came from Airport Director Robert F. Juliano after construction workers in nearby Windsor reported noticing a blue tint to the water in a brook that flows from the vicinity of the airport into the Farmington River.

Juliano learned about the blue water Thursday from James F. Grier, a principal sanitary engineer with the state Department of Environmental Protection.

He said Grier wanted to make sure that the blue water wasn't coming from any of the chemical toilet systems airplanes have. Such systems have a blue-colored chemical, Juliano said.

Grier said the state has known for years that the sewage treatment facility at Bradley is inadequate. The problem is being solved with installation of a pipe to carry the airport's sewage to a Metropolitan District Commission plant in northern Windsor.

Juliano said Grier wrote to him April 20 about the problem of aircraft toilet waste. The DEP estimated that about 2,500 gallons per day were being pumped into the outdated Bradley plant, Juliano said.

The brook in which the construction workers noticed the blue water is the same into which Bradley has piped raw or barely treated sewage for some time.

Charles J. Petrillo, Windsor's environmental health officer, said in March that tests of the Seymour Hollow Brook in February 1987 indicated that it contained "virtually raw sewage."

Hospital workers fear for safety

NEWINGTON (AP) — Employees at Cedarcrest Regional Hospital allege they are being put at risk by new work schedules at the psychiatric facility that eliminated 24-hour-a-day police protection.

The state contends it does not have enough money to add the positions required to provide around-the-clock coverage with two officers a shift. State Department of Mental Health officials also contend that safety is not a problem.

"We have a cap on the number of positions we can have," said Jane Higgins, state regional mental health director who oversees Cedarcrest. "You have to decide what your priorities are, ... what is going to be sacrificed. It was a management decision."

The issue has grown into a labor dispute that had hospital police and staff members picketing the hospital. The workers also signed petitions, distributed leaflets and demanded that 24-hour police protection be restored.

A temporary truce has been called to allow a new Cedarcrest superintendent time to study the matter.

"Nurses are afraid," said Cedarcrest police Sgt. James E. Cox, Jr. "If my mother worked here, I'd be afraid for her. This place is unsafe and we all know it."

Of the five state psychiatric facilities only Cedarcrest lacks 24-hour security. The facility changed its security guard work schedule in February after the union representing workers won a grievance that required two guards per shift, ending the practice of one guard a shift to provide continuous security, department spokeswoman Nancy Wright said Friday.

Currently, the hospital has no security patrols after midnights on weekdays and after 8 p.m. on weekends. Security resumes at 8 a.m. on weekdays and at noon on weekends.

HUD rules create problems for state housing authorities

DANBURY (AP) — New federal regulations requiring low-rent public housing to be awarded according to need have created a stir and drawn criticism from state officials who have doled out units under a first-come, first-served policy for years.

The new regulations from the Department of Housing and Urban Development that took effect Jan. 15 require local housing authorities to toss out their waiting lists, write letters to people on those lists and start from scratch.

The housing authorities have until July 13 to comply. The new regulations don't affect those already living in public housing, only those on waiting lists.

In Connecticut, the regulations affect thousands, some of whom have been waiting for years.

"There are some people in this agency who have a lot of problems with this," said Hartford Housing Authority Deputy Director Neal Freuden.

"It's turned everything upside down," Freuden said Friday.

Housing officials complain that they had a workable, simple formula for awarding low-rent federal housing to the elderly and families. Now, they will have to use a complicated set of formulas to award housing, and they wonder where they will get the money and staff to administer the new program.

Roland Hutter, chief of the assisted-housing management branch at HUD's Hartford office, said the new regulations were mandated "because they were deemed necessary."

"This is a road map for them to follow," Hutter said.

He said he didn't see any problems with the new procedure, although the feedback he was getting from housing directors was not favorable. He said housing authority officials think they are losing control.

"It's definitely more work for them right now. There's no question about that," Hutter said. "But once the new system is in place, it won't be."

First leg of protest is complete

HARTFORD (AP) — A social activist's 122-mile march on behalf of the poor was interrupted briefly Friday for a meeting with Gov. William A. O'Neill, who later told an adviser to look into the activist's complaint about the closing of 12 outposts of the state Department of Income Maintenance.

"We talked about the issue of the underclass, the very poor in this state and he (O'Neill) seemed very concerned" about difficulties some welfare recipients may have as a result of the closing of 12 outpost offices of the state Department of Income Maintenance, said the demonstrator, Ned Coll.

One of the outpost offices that was closed is in Windham. Residents of the Windham area said the closest office to them now is in Norwich, but there is no direct public transportation between the two communities, which are only 17 miles apart. If they try to take a bus, they must travel from Windham to Hartford, Hartford to New Haven, New Haven to New London, and New London to Norwich. That's the route Coll is walking.

Coll said O'Neill made no promises during their five-minute meeting in the governor's office at the state Capitol.

He said he wouldn't stop his protest, even if state government took steps to clear up the transportation problem for Windham-area welfare recipients, who used the outpost office to apply for food stamps and other aid programs.

Coll, 48, is director of the Revitalization Corps in Hartford. Rifkin said Heintz told him that the Windham office had never been a full-service office, that it had limited hours and not all state jobs and welfare services offered in other welfare offices were available there. Coll and six other protesters started their journey Thursday in Windham and reached Hartford by nighttime. They left Friday for New Haven. They planned to walk 12 hours a day into next week to complete the trip.

Coll said O'Neill made no promises during their five-minute meeting in the governor's office at the state Capitol.

He said he wouldn't stop his protest, even if state government took steps to clear up the transportation problem for Windham-area welfare recipients, who used the outpost office to apply for food stamps and other aid programs.

Coll, 48, is director of the Revitalization Corps in Hartford.

BOTTLED WATER
In some communities people are turning to bottled water for fear of chemical impurities in tap water. Bottled well or spring water may also be contaminated, as it often travels for miles underground, exposed to agricultural chemicals, dumps, and industrial wastes. Distilled water is most pure, and is now available with minerals added, such as calcium and magnesium, which enhance its taste and are healthy for the heart, teeth and bones.

U.S./World In Brief

Plane crash kills 36

OSLO, Norway — A Norwegian airliner crashed Friday night on a domestic flight, killing all 36 people on board, the national NRK broadcasting company reported.

The television station said the plane crashed about 9 miles southwest of its destination, the Norwegian Sea coastal town of Broenneysund. All those aboard were believed to be Norwegian, it said.

The four-engine Wideroe Airline plane, carrying 33 passengers and three crew members, was flying north from Namsos to Broenneysund, a distance of about 75 miles.

28 killed in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Palestinian factions battled for control of Beirut's refugee camps Friday and rival Shiite Muslim militia fought each other in the slums around them. Police said 28 people were killed and 90 wounded.

Ambulances raced through the streets of Moslem west Beirut. The American University Hospital said its emergency wards were filled.

Police said 16 people were killed and 50 wounded in the Shiite slums, where the fight was between the pro-Iranian Hezbollah, or Party of God, and the mainstream Amal militia allied with Syria.

Polish strikers hold on

WARSAW, Poland — A labor leader in Gdansk was ordered jailed Friday for organizing an illegal strike, and Lech Walesa stirred workers with a speech in the city's strikebound shipyard after a young man tried to jump from a window.

Food and morale both were running low when the Solidarity leader gave his impassioned, impromptu speech to the strikers.

The government took steps to toughen its anti-strike laws one day after police crushed a 10-day-old steelworkers strike at the Nowa Huta mill in southern Poland.

New signs cropped up that the government of Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski was broadening its counterattack against the worst wave of labor upheaval in Poland since a 1981 military crackdown.

Shuttle rescue tested

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Space center rescue and medical workers rehearsed procedures Friday for retrieving astronauts from a space shuttle damaged during an emergency landing.

A wooden mockup of an orbiter was used in the exercise, which simulated a landing in a remote area off the runway.

In the test, controlled from the launch control center, helicopters were dispatched to pick up personnel representing the astronauts, who then were transported to a nearby site for any needed medical treatment.

It was the second test here this week of space shuttle emergency procedures. On Wednesday, seven astronauts and several workers fled to safety, with some of them receiving make-believe injuries, following a mock fire and explosion on the shuttle launch pad.

E.F. Hutton is charged

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Criminal charges accusing E.F. Hutton & Co. Inc. of conspiracy and money-laundering involving more than $500,000 were filed Friday, and officials said the company will plead guilty later this month.

In addition to the three felony counts against the firm, two former brokers at Hutton's Providence office were also named in documents, known as a criminal information, filed in U.S. District Court here.

One of the brokers died shortly after the investigation began. U.S. Attorney Lincoln C. Almond said charges against the other, Brian J. Lareau, 46, of Jamestown, would be filed next week. The company faces up to $1.01 million in fines.

Freeze on payments urged to control Bennet rents

By Alex Girelli
Manchester Herald

Town Director Stephen T. Cassano will propose a freeze on the payments made in lieu of taxes on the Bennet Apartments for the elderly building to prevent a steep hike in rents under a tax revaluation.

Cassano said Friday he will propose that the payments from the town-sponsored housing for the elderly on Main Street be frozen at the current rate of about $18,000 per year.

Cassano said the freeze could last until about the year 2,000, when the town will have the right to take over the operation of the apartments if it decides to do so.

The town-owned building is leased to a partnership which runs the apartments.

The question of how a revaluation would affect rents was raised in a report to the Board of Directors by the Bennet Housing Corp., a town-appointed board which is one of the partners in the operating partnership.

In the report, Eileen M. Stern, president of the corporation, said that a 6 percent rent increase set for 1988 "is expected to keep Bennet on sound financial footing through the coming year. Potential increases to the payments in lieu of taxes as a result of the town's re-valuation, however, may require even greater rent increases in the future to maintain this sound financial condition; so we strongly recommend you consider this before implementing any such increase."

On the 1986 Grand List, the property was valued at only $334,000. On the revalued 1987 Grand List, which has been invalidated, the valuation set by the assessor at 70 percent of fair market value was $1,984,910.

Storm may KO communications

WASHINGTON (AP) — A geomagnetic storm is sweeping over the Earth and may interfere with satellite, radio and telephone communications, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration reported Friday.

The storm, which affects the Earth's magnetic field, struck Thursday evening and is expected to end by sometime Saturday or Sunday, said Joe Hirman of the Space Environment Services Center in Boulder, Colo.

Hirman said the disturbance originated in a huge flare that erupted from the sun on Wednesday.

It took about a day for the effects to reach Earth, and those peaked on Friday, he said.

Most notable for Americans will be the display of the northern lights, which is an electrical phenomenon induced by the current from the sun.

Town Manager Robert Weiss said Friday the high value came about because the state would not allow the town to revalue the property on the basis of the money it earned and insisted on a method that takes into account replacement cost minus depreciation.

Because the town has scrapped the problem-ridden 1987 revaluation, the question of possible rent raises is not an immediate one. But the town will have a revalued Grand List for the Oct. 1, 1988 or Oct. 1, 1990 tax date, and the problem would arise then if no action is taken by the Board of Directors.

Stern told the Herald that tenants in the 45-apartment building, a former school, are concerned about the possibility of a steep rent hike.

The current rents range from $446 to $498 for one-bedroom apartments and from $542 to $594 for two-bedroom apartments.

Cassano was a staunch supporter of the conversion of the former school building to apartments for the elderly in concert with CDC Financial Corp., of West Hartford. He said Friday he had been opposed to any payment for the building, owned by the town, in lieu of taxes. But he said the payments were included in the Bennet agreement to satisfy critics of the project, which was developed in 1983.

Cassano said that even with a freeze on the payment, the project would be contributing the equivalent of taxes to the town and would be the only government-sponsored housing for the elderly in town that would pay a tax.

Under the complicated agreement between the town and the Bennet Housing Corp., the town annually gets two payments. One is the payment in lieu of taxes, which for calendar 1987 was $17,969.20. The other is a land rent which for the same year was $32,200.

The land rent is an escrow fund set aside to guarantee payment of the mortgage on the conversion.

The report from the Bennet Housing Corp. to the Board of Directors showed that total expenditures were $329,636 while total revenues were $331,845. The $2,209 surplus was placed into a reserve account, which now shows a balance of $49,208.

Reagan angry at Regan book

By Eileen Putnom
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan expressed irritation Friday about an upcoming book by former chief of staff Donald T. Regan, saying "he's chosen to attack my wife and I don't look kindly upon that at all."

Regan's book, scheduled to be published this month, is said to reveal that Mrs. Reagan used astrology to determine the timing of the president's speeches and travel.

The president has denied that any of his decisions have been influenced by astrology, in which the position of the sun, moon and stars are studied in the belief that they influence human affairs.

During a photo session at the start of a Cabinet meeting, reporters asked Reagan whether he felt betrayed or angered by Regan's book.

"Well, I will say this, that I would have preferred it if he'd decided to attack me, and apparently from what we hear he's chosen to attack my wife, and I don't look kindly upon that at all," the president replied.

Regan in the past has reacted sharply to criticism of his wife or suggestions that she interferes or has too great a role in administration decision-making.

Strobe Talbott, Washington bureau chief of Time magazine, which will publish excerpts of the book, said Friday that Regan's book "paints an absolutely devastating picture of the Reagan administration."

"It characterizes the kind of inside scene there to be a little bit like the court of the Medicis... with a little bit of Lady Macbeth and maybe the Keystone Cops."

Talbott, in comments on the syndicated discussion show "Inside Washington" scheduled for Saturday broadcast, said the book portrays an unidentified San Francisco astrologist friend of Mrs. Reagan as "a kind of absentee presence almost at the Cabinet table or at least right outside the Oval Office, working first through Mrs. Reagan."

An excerpt from Talbott's appearance on the show was aired Friday by WUSA-TV.

The president said he did not expect his former top staff aide and treasury secretary to send him a copy of his book, which is being published by Harcourt, Brace Jovanovich.

"I don't think he's going to send one unless I'm prepared to send a check in return," the president said.

Tom Dawson, a Regan spokesman, said Regan "has had and will have no comments regarding his book until it is published." He said the book, "For the Record: From Wall Street to Washington," is expected to be in bookstores beginning Monday.

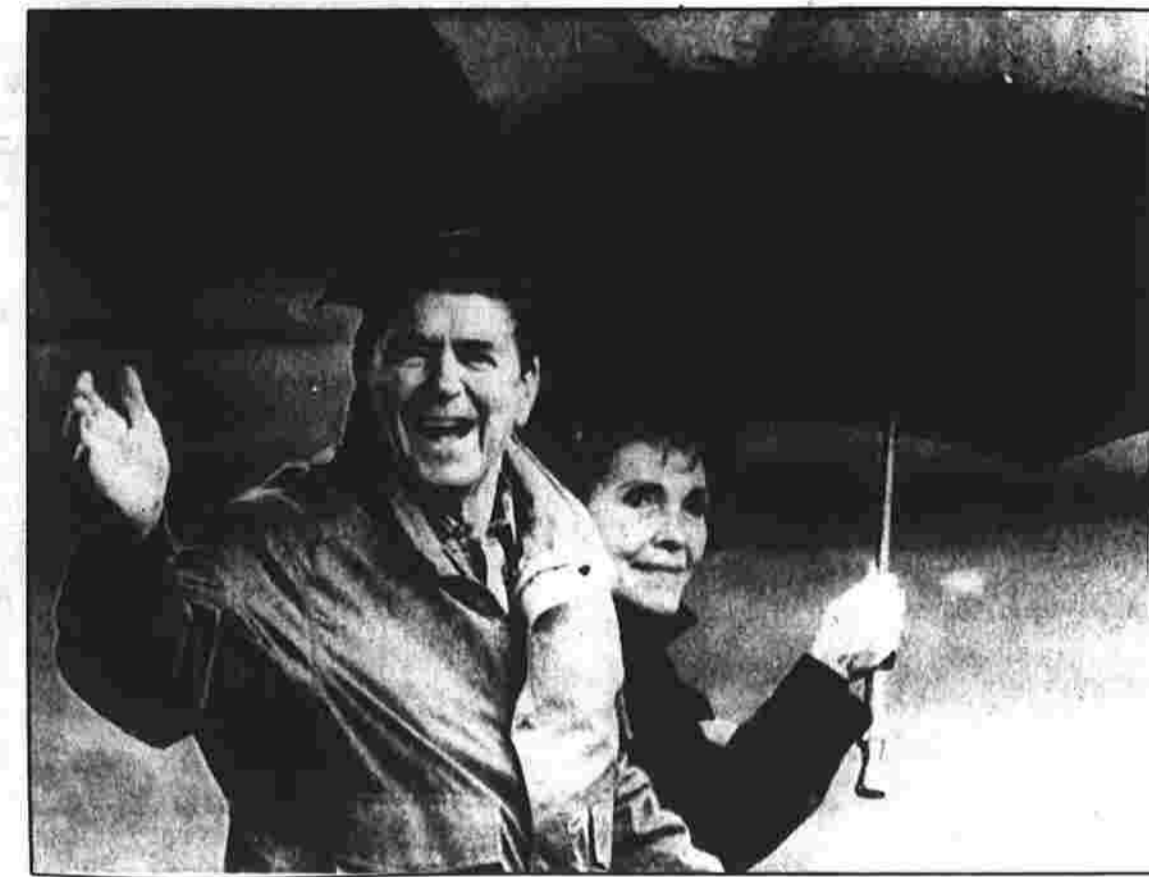

White collar crime crackdown is urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saying the country is "fed up with white-collar crime," the head of the Justice Department's antitrust division Friday urged longer jail terms for business executives engaging in price-fixing and larger fines for companies engaging in anti-competitive practices.

Assistant Attorney General Charles Rule said there is a trend toward more jail time and heavier fines in antitrust cases, but "the averages are still too low." Recently enacted federal sentencing guidelines should result in more severe penalties, Rule said in remarks prepared for release in San Francisco.

Rule said the average jail term imposed on all people convicted in antitrust division cases in the past 10 years was less than two months.

"This country is fed up with white-collar crime and wants judges to start treating white-collar criminals like the crooks they really are," Rule said.

HE'S ANGRY — President and Mrs. Reagan, with the protection of umbrellas, leave the White House Friday to fly by helicopter to Camp David. Earlier, Reagan expressed irritation about an upcoming book by former chief of staff Donald Regan, saying "he's chosen to attack my wife and I don't look kindly upon that at all."

Meese not an 'albatross'

By David Esposito
The Associated Press

Vice President George Bush said Friday he didn't authorize aides' comments depicting Edwin Meese III as a campaign liability but "I must say I am troubled by some of the allegations" against the attorney general, while Michael Dukakis pocketed the endorsements of six Democratic governors as he moved toward his party's nomination.

Jesse Jackson, the only other active candidate in the 1988 presidential race, was in California as part of an intensive, costly effort to ambush Dukakis in the June 7, season-ending primary.

He complained anew that he was not being treated fairly in the party's delegate selection process, but added soothingly, "We need not speak in terms of a fight."

Bush, the all-but-certain Republican nominee, told reporters he would have to "get on the phone" and find out what two top aides said about the attorney general, whose conduct is being investigated by a special prosecutor.

"I haven't authorized anything," the vice president added as he campaigned in Idaho.

Later, in Billings, Mont., Bush said he had talked to the aides but would not characterize his conversation. Of Meese, Bush said: "I know him well, favorably, but I must say I am troubled by some of the allegations. I think fair play dictates that the system go forward and make the determination."

When asked if Meese had become an albatross on his campaign, Bush said: "An albatross? I don't think so."

He added that the independent counsel probing Meese's legal difficulties soon will release a report and "we'll see what it says. It's only a matter of a few days away."

The comments of the Bush aides were reported in the Detroit News, the latest development in an ethical controversy that has provided Democrats with campaign ammunition and turned Meese into a political embarrassment in the eyes of some Republican strategists.

OPINION

Who's calling the shots?

By Barry Schweld
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — "It's all right with me," said Jim Wright, the House Speaker and Texas Democrat. "I'm glad he consults somebody."

Tongue firmly in cheek, Wright was referring to President Reagan's newly divulged fascination with astrology, which history says Hitler and Julius Caesar also used in planning their strategy.

Since these three leaders had very diverse aims, it's impossible to make a judgment whether heeding the position of the planets is a good or bad influence.

For sure, though, nearly everyone wants to know how Presidents make their decisions. Wives often are suspected of having undue influence. Or a chief of staff. Or poker-playing cronies. Or a "Kitchen Cabinet."

Critics of Andrew Jackson, 160 years ago, questioned his practice of sitting around the kitchen stove with old friends and swapping ideas with them. The critics probably did not care much for this first common-man president anyhow.

Curiously, in the case of Jimmy Carter, the critics wished he consulted more with Washington wise men instead of old friends from Georgia. Toward the end, Carter turned more to people like Clark Clifford and Lloyd Cutler. So the critics found other things to complain about.

Vice presidents, on the other hand, generally are not considered all that useful to the man in the White House.

Two in recent history, John Nance Garner and Lyndon B. Johnson, were credited with getting their running mates elected.

Otherwise, Presidents tend to look elsewhere for advice.

Like to the stars.

Sixty-two years ago, when it turned out President Calvin Coolidge had a yen for astrology, Congress held a hearing.

Harry Houdini, the renowned escape artist, was called as a witness.

The results of the hearing are lost in history. But Reagan's fascination with Coolidge is well-known. Reagan replaced Harry Truman's picture in the Cabinet Room with one of Coolidge, the former Boston police commissioner who made presidential inaction an art form.

What did astrology do for Reagan?

According to one unverified account, the treaty banning U.S. and Soviet intermediate-range nuclear missiles was signed exactly at 1:33 p.m. last Dec. 8 at the insistence of Mrs. Reagan, who evidently also fancies astrology.

It may be no coincidence that the astrology story originates with Donald Regan, the former White House chief of staff whose relations with Mrs. Reagan were not considered very warm.

Rosalyn Carter was supposed to have great influence on her husband, Jimmy, although few doubted he had strong convictions of his own.

Critics of Roosevelt often suggested Eleanor, his wife, steered him along liberal lines.

And after Woodrow Wilson suffered a stroke, his wife Edith, was supposed to have played a leading role in presidential decision-making.

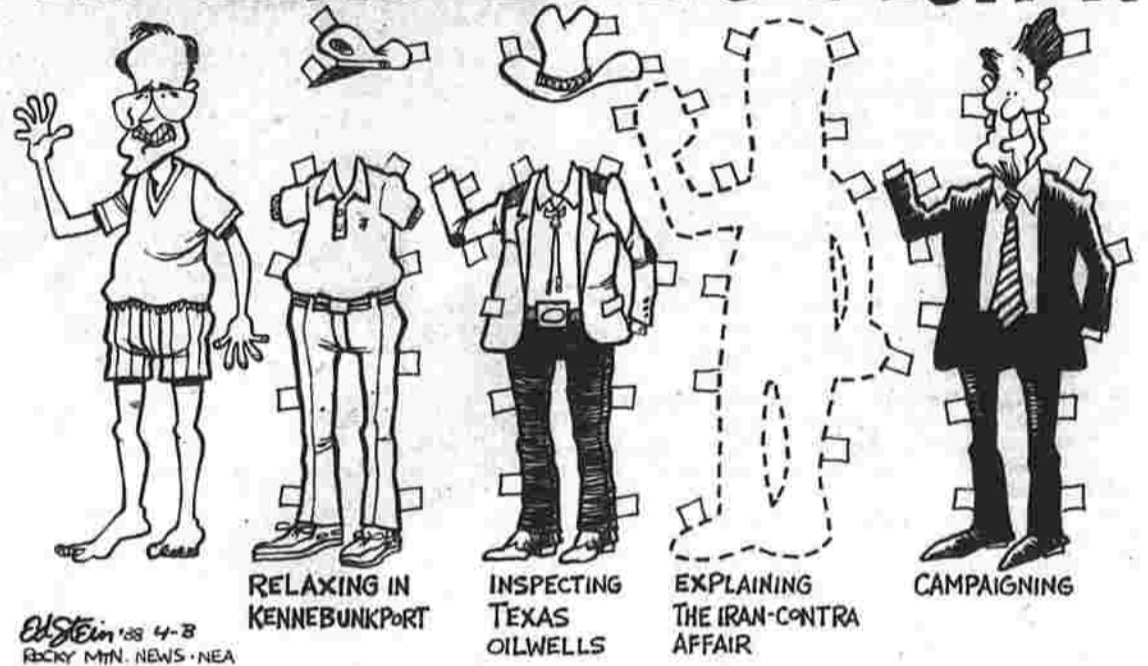

In fact, the only president never accused of being the target of wifely influence on his political career was James Buchanan. He also was the only bachelor president.

What motivates Reagan — for instance in making a speech accusing the Soviets of aggression and another two weeks later praising their human rights reforms? Maybe Mrs. Reagan, the stars, his own convictions and sense of history.

It's hard to say.

THE GEORGE BUSH COLLECTION

Why Meese will have to go

By Chuck Stone

Just as President Reagan led the fight to get teen-agers to say "no" to drugs, this same president has taken charge of the fight to get Edwin Meese to say "yes" to resignation.

This is a president with a broad-shouldered capacity for action. This is a president whose warm-hearted appreciation for loyalty will tolerate error, but not ineptitude. This president doesn't wait until the White House's credibility hemorrhages into a coma, but "takes the bull by the horns." "strikes while the iron is hot" and believes you "never put off until tomorrow what you can do today."

This president ran Donald Regan out of the White House so fast that the chief of staff dashed between the rain drops and nary a one fell on him. And now, this president's intuitive brilliance recognizes that the investigation of Meese's tawdry ethics is a dangerous threat to the White House's integrity.

As a front-page story by the fastidiously reliable Wall Street Journal reported, this president "knows that Meese has to go." But forbearance is a virtue. This president will quietly — and sweetly — exert pressure until an iron will cut off the circulation of Meese's administrative power.

Sweetly. Did I say, sweetly?

Indeed. How else to characterize this president's velvet-sheathed, gentility-fronted cussedness that can cut your political neck with a metaphorical scimitar and not leave a drop of blood.

President Nancy Reagan takes no prisoners. Only when she has heeded the spineless and equivocating advice of her husband Ronald has she gotten into trouble. But she has an amazing resiliency. By following her shrewd instincts, she has been able to lead both herself and her favorite court jester out of the cellar of controversy.

This is not to suggest that President Nancy doesn't appreciate loyalty. She cherishes it, especially when her White House aides apply their talents to making Ronald look smarter than he really is.

What she detects are those aides who believe that personal loyalty is a political license to plunder. Just as guilty in her eyesight are those who somehow keep blurring the lines between plunderer and plunderer.

George Bush shares Nancy Reagan's anxiety. But he just wants to get elected. She wants a resignation.

Granted, nobody has uncovered any "smoking gun" in the attorney general's administrative closet. Meese seems to be more the bumbling village idiot than the manipulative city slicker. But his capacity for friendship with con men, sleaze artists and deal-making hustlers casts an unethical pall over his office.

"Cleaner than a hound's tooth" was the moral criterion Dwight D. Eisenhower established for Cabinet officers and top aides. The office of the nation's leading law-enforcement officer shouldn't have even a touch of plaque.

Meese's operation has become one of the dingiest in American history. But for some reason, the myopic Meese doesn't see the reputational harm allegations of conflicts of interest, suspicions of unethical conduct, investigations into unsavory alliances and reports of spousal wheeling and dealing have done to his office.

Meese will go. Not because he embarrasses Nancy's court jester or threatens to prevent George Bush's election, but because his contempt for a great American institution is clothing it with disrepute. Conscience has forced decent men who worked under him to resign. Potential replacements have declined to serve.

The journalistic inquiries won't stop. It's just a question of time before the special prosecutor's "fat lady" sings the final aria. If Meese doesn't believe it, he should ask Richard Nixon.

It won't necessarily be the end of the road for Meese. Like Nixon, he could one day become a respected elder statesman.

What's your view of a proposed law requiring a 90-day notice to close a factory?

"I think definitely it would be beneficial to people. If I was going to get laid off, I'd like 90 days to go out and find myself a brand new job. I think Pillowtex (in Manchester) did a decent job at least giving them 30 days."

Jackson could be secretary of drug war

WASHINGTON — What will the Democrats do with Jesse Jackson if he refuses to go away?

Jack Anderson

National Democratic leaders and advisers to Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis are mulling over that question, and one of the answers cropping up, our associate Les Whitten has learned, is to make Jackson a Cabinet-level drug czar.

The wisdom is that Dukakis will easily win the Democratic nomination on the first ballot at the convention in Atlanta in July. Party insiders believe the fate of the November election may hinge on Dukakis' choice of running mate.

Party leaders are leaning toward Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., or some other strong, figure not from the Northeast who would lead conservative Democrats back into the fold. But to shun Jackson after his strong showing in the primaries is to doom Dukakis.

If blacks think that Jackson is ignored, or offered a meaningless token job, they could sit out the election. And Jackson could make the rift bigger by refusing to accept a patronizing offer.

The specter of George Bush in the Oval Office may not bother blacks enough for them to turn out in big numbers to block his election.

But if the charismatic Jackson is a committed member of the Dukakis team, blacks will turn out. In Illinois and other pivotal states, blacks have shown in past elections that they can make a difference. If Jackson were the vice presidential nominee, Dukakis could take advantage of a sizable bloc of black voters. The white vote would be harder to predict.

Thus, white Democrats are suffering a bad case of nerves these days. Many are quite arguing that Jackson deserves the No. 2 spot and should be offered it. Others are considering creating a new Cabinet post for him as the top drug enforcement official in the administration. The position would unify the scattered federal efforts to control drugs.

There is also talk of asking him to accept some other Cabinet post, and even one proposal that Jackson be offered the job of national Democratic chairman, now held by Paul Kirk.

Whatever is decided, the main subject of conversations leaking from the back rooms of Washington and Boston Democrats is how to get Jackson to campaign for the party's nominees as brilliantly as he has campaigned for himself.

Housing the elderly

If you are worrying about who will take care of you in your old age, take comfort in knowing that the federal government is worrying along with you.

A greater percentage of elderly people are choosing to live alone instead of with their children, according to a study by the Congressional Budget Office. The numbers crunchers looked at living patterns of the elderly because of the effect those patterns could have on federal spending and the demand for government services.

In 1960, about one fifth of the people over age 65 lived alone, according to the CBO. But in 1984, nearly one third were living alone. During the same time, the percentage of elderly people living with their children or extended family dropped from 40 to 22 percent.

Some live alone by choice and because a higher standard of living among the elderly means they can afford it. But others live alone because they have no close relatives who will take them in. With the average family size declining, it is likely that even fewer retire people will have the option of living with their children.

The numbers will be compounded when baby boomers reach retirement age beginning in 2010.

Although some of the retirees can afford solitary living, the statistics still bode ill for the federal budget. Those living alone often face higher expenses and get less financial help from their relatives than those whose live with their children, the CBO reported. If a frail elderly person lives alone, chances are he or she will end up in an institution sooner than the person who lives with a spouse or child.

What does this mean for the taxpayers? The CBO concluded that the numbers add up to a demand for more public assistance for the elderly, including in-home care, medical expenses and institutionalization.

Without recommending a course of action, the CBO suggested to Congress two options — increasing the income of retirees or enhancing the programs that serve the elderly.

Assuring higher incomes for retirees means mandating better pensions or easing up on the tax laws and other regulations that might keep the elderly from cashing in on their real-estate assets.

On the service side, the CBO said Congress could consider home care insurance, subsidized home care and even tax incentives to families caring for their elderly relatives.

Ministry to singles

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Ministry to single adults "is the next great frontier of the church" but they so far are mostly ignored and wrongly stereotyped, says the Rev. Jerry Hayner.

The Southern Baptist pastor from Raleigh, N.C., told family ministry consultants that single adults often get dubbed as weird, confused, incomplete, maladjusted or losers, and added: "Jesus Christ was not weird. He was not confused, incomplete or maladjusted. Yet he was a single adult."

Church of the Nazarene

Kimberley Rose Blaney, a Manchester native now living in Quincy, Mass., will present a free Mother's Day concert of sacred music on Sunday at 6 p.m. at the Church of the Nazarene. She has a master's degree in music from the New England Conservatory in Boston, and is on the faculty of Eastern Nazarene College as a voice teacher.

Other church activities planned for the coming week include:

Thoughts

Education from God's perspective is built upon the answers to four important questions. What is reality? What is man? What is truth? What are our values? The answers are found in the Holy Bible. Students can find these answers. They are not hidden from those who honestly seek to find them.

Mankind often attempts to answer these questions in his own wisdom. Man's answers usually fall short of the mark. God reveals the answers in His Word. Students need to be taught how to search the Scriptures to find the answers to life.

Much of education today totally ignores God's values and answers found within the Word of God. Christian education, along with the Christian school movement, is founded upon Biblical values and its truth. Students are encouraged to seek the Scriptures.

For Christian families, it is vital for their children to be educated from God's perspective. The world around us constantly denies God. It denies the value of knowing God. Maintaining a vital, personal relationship to Him, Christian families fight a constant battle to maintain truth within their home. Students and parents need to consider the alternatives. They need to consider redirecting their education. Consider the eternal benefits of education from God's perspective.

A time to celebrate our work together

Editor's note: This column is prepared by the staff of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches.

By Nancy Carr
Executive Director

May is traditionally designated as Manchester Area Conference of Churches Awareness Month among its member churches.

The churches making up the conference include: Church of the Assumption, St. Bartholomew, St. Bridget, St. James Center Congregational and Second Congregational, South United Methodist, North United Methodist, Community Baptist ABC, First Baptist SBC, Concordia Lutheran, Emanuel Lutheran, Trinity Covenant, St. Mary's and the Salvation Army.

The conference sponsors two local organizations. The Manchester Interracial Council, co-sponsored by MACC and Manchester Community College, and FISH of Manchester. Both organizations have their own governing boards and their own distinctive mission and goals. Both operate under the Conference 501-C-9 and donations to both are deductible.

The Unitarian Universalist Society-East was linked to the conference as a cooperating organization, while other religious and community organizations cooperate with or participate in specific MACC mission programs.

The Church of the Nazarene, the Presbyterian Church of Manchester and the Unitarians all help staff the Samaritan Shelter, while all four Bolton churches as well as Temple Beth Shalom schedule regular food collections for the Emergency Pantry.

Together these worshipping communities feed over 1500 men, women and children over 7,500 meals each year through the Emergency Food Pantry and feed between 40 and 50 men and women a hot nourishing dinner and a bag supper every weekday at the Shepherd's Place with the help of 70 volunteers.

Free clothing is supplied to over 100 families each month and over 400 pieces of good used furniture to 125 families each year.

The group also welcomes and counsels the 600 individuals who come to the MACC Department of Human Needs each year seeking support and assistance with a variety of problems.

Also: keep over 100 of our neighbors warm with fuel assistance grants (amounting to over $16,200 in 1987).

Offer crisis intervention to over 150 families with grants and small loans (amounting to almost $21,000 in 1987) enabling them to pay security deposits, pay rents, purchase needed medications.

Hold out a helping hand through Project Reentry to some 60 men and women returning to Manchester from jail and prison each year.

Encourage and support the men and women attending Honor Court at Manchester Circuit Court 12 (28 church organizations provide sandwiches and desserts).

Enable 50 Manchester children referred by local social workers to attend the free two week Interfaith Day Camp each summer. Volunteers, both adults and over 40 teenagers from local churches make the camp possible.

Bring fresh fruits and vegetables within reach of the low-income and elderly living in downtown Manchester through the Farmer's Market.

Distribute surplus foods (cheese, butter, dry milk, rice, honey) to over 500 Manchester low-income households through the MACC Feed a Friend program coordinated by 50 volunteers.

Transport elderly, handicapped and low-income mothers (Those unable or ineligible to use the Phone-a-Ride) to doctors, dentists, labs and well child clinics. Thanks to the volunteers of FISH of Manchester.

Shelter and feed Manchester homeless men and women every night at the Samaritan Shelter with the assistance of over 250 dedicated volunteers from local churches.

Priest's preaching hard for some to take

By Mario Fox
The Associated Press

JOLIET, Ill. — In his preaching from the Bible, a Roman Catholic priest goes literally by the book, telling parishioners they must sell all worldly possessions and give their money to the poor.

For this literal interpretation of the Gospel, the Rev. Michael Collins has been forced to leave three northern Illinois parishes.

"It's scary for me but as much as I would like to tell people what they want to hear, I've got a God who tells me to tell people what they've got to hear," said the 28-year-old priest.

He currently is at St. Ann's Catholic Church in Crest Hill near Joliet, but has no regular congregation and no assignment at least until June.

Until then, leaders of the Diocese of Joliet want him to write a book outlining his beliefs so they can check it against Catholic doctrine.

"Christianity means living like Christ lived, giving like Christ gave and forgiving like Christ forgave. Nothing less. Jesus didn't say 'Make a truce with me.' He said 'surrender,'" Collins said.

He lastly five months and left because of a personality conflict, he said.

His next scheduled five-year assignment was St. Ann's Catholic Church in Oswego. Among the ideas he pushed there was closing the parish for a month so the priests could fast and pray.

"There was a lot of excitement and turmoil," said Collins. "And about a year after I arrived they asked me to leave."

Then he was assigned to the fast growing, upper-middle-income suburb of Naperville, not far from where he grew up in Elmhurst.

"These are my people out there," he said.

Collins, lanky and bearded with long hair, said his message was hard for some to swallow. "The Gospel should bring comfort to the discomfortable and discomfort to the comfortable," he said.

After St. Mary of the Lake seminary in Mundelein, Collins first attracted attention while serving as a deacon at St. Theresa's Catholic Church in Kankakee in 1984 and 1985.

His homilies shocked the congregation, he recalled.

Despite adverse reaction to his strong teachings, Collins was ordained and given a five-year assignment as an associate pastor in a Bollingbrook church he declined to name.

He lastly five months and left because of a personality conflict, he said.

His next scheduled five-year assignment was St. Ann's Catholic Church in Oswego. Among the ideas he pushed there was closing the parish for a month so the priests could fast and pray.

"There was a lot of excitement and turmoil," said Collins. "And about a year after I arrived they asked me to leave."

Then he was assigned to the fast growing, upper-middle-income suburb of Naperville, not far from where he grew up in Elmhurst.

"These are my people out there," he said.

"I should be just like them but the values of the suburbs are symptomatic of the deeper conflicts inside us. We cling to status and material things."

So Collins suggested Sts. Peter and Paul Catholic Church turn the building over to the homeless.

A letter to a local newspaper denounced him as "a zealot ... attempting to change the character of the entire parish."

Parishioner Randy Schultz said many in the congregation thought his message was better suited for missionary work.

Some churchgoers sided with Collins.

"He said things a lot of Catholics are longing to hear," said Maggie Thomas.

Yet Collins said he left Naperville because he didn't want to further divide the parish, and retreated to Crest Hill to write his book.

King Richard III

Richard III was crowned King of England in 1483. A brother of Edward IV, Richard was accused of involvement in the deaths of his two nephews in order to gain the throne. His reputation has not been enhanced by theatrical portrayals of the king. The death of Richard, the last Yorkist king, at Bosworth Field in 1485, ended the Wars of the Roses.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
by Eugene Brower

After a science lesson on magnets, a primary class teacher gave a followup test. One question read: "My name starts with M, has five other letters, and I pick up things. Who am I?" To the teacher's surprise, half of the class answered: "Mother."

This amusing incident illustrates in a childlike way a family's dependence upon Mother. That dependence runs far deeper, of course. A writer told of a childhood experience. All the children were together in the living room when their father arrived home from work. Only their mother was absent. Looking about quickly, he asked: "Where is everyone?"

On the day of recognition for our mothers tomorrow, may we be reminded of all we owe them — beginning with life itself. A loss of identity by them can only bring disaster for our society. "Like mother, like daughter" is a true proverb, Ezekiel 16:44-45.

Motherhood "is tough"

Counselor says more communication needed

By Nancy Pappas
Manchester Herald

Motherhood is perhaps the most stressful and the least valued career that a person can enter. It requires maximum flexibility and minimum ego.

Setting aside one Mother's Day a year is probably a good idea. But having a few such days each year would be even better.

Those are the sentiments of Naomi Neuwirth, mother of two and counselor to many. The supervisor of family counselors at Jewish Family Service in West Hartford, Neuwirth is presently conducting a series of seminars on motherhood at Federation East in the Oakland Commons.

"Motherhood is tough," she told the group of eight mothers who gathered for class last week, with more than a dozen infants and toddlers in tow. "I don't know any other job where you have to be so flexible. Every time you get used to something, a month later the 'working conditions' change."

Far from being just "hokey," Neuwirth said that a special day to honor mothers is a good idea. "I think it's an opportunity the husband and the children have of validating the role that the mother is playing in the family," she said.

Neuwirth said there are plenty of classes where moms can learn to diaper and bathe their babies. There are courses given almost every week on disciplining preschoolers and communicating with adolescents. Those are all skills which can be mastered, with coaching. But there are few opportunities for mothers to get together to look at their own styles of motherhood.

you had definitely affects the kind of mother that you are," said Neuwirth, a few days before her series of classes began. "It's hard to know how to be playful and loving unless you've been with a parent who was that way. You may have decided, in theory, that you want to be that way. But developing a practical style of action, it just doesn't come naturally."

Neuwirth believes that motherhood in the 1980s is more complex than it has ever been before. "I think that since women have joined the work force in greater numbers, it's harder to be a mother. It's more of a balancing act than it was before," she said.

She, herself, experiences this. She works part-time, but is still the fulltime mother to a 4-year-old and an 18-month-old.

On the first day of the course, she asked participants to examine the things they liked and what they disliked about themselves and their mothers. The following week they looked at the way children change the relationships between husbands and wives.

"These are all real issues, and they're rarely discussed," Neuwirth said. "Even friends, who claim to be very close, sometimes won't talk about these matters."

NEUWIRTH SAID SHE has a few wishes for Mother's Day.

Society at large could bring several gifts to the mothers — and fathers — of America.

The first would be much better childcare, she said. "Excellent childcare should be part of a package at the time of employment," Neuwirth said. "This is the main factor that would help to reduce family stress."

Other wishes which an employer could grant would be more generous maternity leave and better flextime — adjustable work hours — so that a husband and wife can share childcare.

She would like to see stress prevention programs offered in the schools, so that both boys and girls can learn, early on, to recognize the symptoms of tension.

And finally, Neuwirth wishes that support groups for both fathers and mothers were more commonly available.

"What we've got here is only the beginning," she said, referring to the Manchester motherhood class. "We may let this kind of thing grow into something much bigger. I think there's a real need for mother-to-mother communication."

Why not wash your house?

By Andy Lang
The Associated Press

Washing your car makes it look better. A more important result is the finish lasts longer. Why not do the same for the aluminum or vinyl siding on your house?

Cleaning the siding once a year — more in an area where there is heavy pollution from industry — usually requires nothing more than a household detergent, a garden hose and some of your time. To remove a moderate amount of dirt, the accumulation most homeowners encounter, the siding should be washed with a normal solution of water and detergent, which is one gallon of water to 1-3rd cup of detergent. Contrary to general belief, the house should be washed from the bottom to the top, a procedure that minimizes streaking. As soon as this is done, use your garden hose to rinse off the solution with plain water.

No matter what brand of detergent you use, avoid any vigorous rubbing. This could result in an undesirable gloss on the siding finish. When you must wash more than once a year, you often can get by with the detergent treatment one time and simple rinsing the next.

When there is heavy pollution from industry, mix one-third cup of detergent with two-thirds of a cup of trisodium phosphate and a gallon of water. If the dirt accumulation is heavy, apply the solution with a brush and rinse well with water. Should the aluminum or vinyl siding be stained with substances such as tar, grease or crayon, apply mineral spirits with a soft cloth. When the foreign matter is ink, nail polish, paint, lipstick or gum, apply cleaning fluid to the spot with a soft cloth. The flushing with water always follows no matter what you apply.

Mildew can be removed with a solution made up of one-third cup of detergent, two-thirds cup of trisodium phosphate and one quart of sodium hypochloride 5 percent solution, an ordinary household bleach composition. Mix with three quarts of water, apply with a brush and rinse. Mildew usually will appear as black spots in protected areas, such as under eaves and inside porch enclosures.

It doesn't happen often, but when rust occurs on vinyl siding, it can be removed with oxalic acid mixed with water. Oxalic acid is the ingredient of an auto radiator cleaner. Mix one tablespoon of oxalic acid crystals with one cup of water, apply with a soft-bristled brush and wipe with a dry cloth before flushing. This advice is given with some trepidation, since oxalic acid must be handled with great caution. If you must use it, wear rubber gloves and protect your eyes and face. Another product that must be handled with care is lacquer thinner, which is a sort of last-resort cleaner if none of the previously mentioned solutions work. Dampen a section of clean cloth with lacquer thinner, sometimes called xylene, and rub the stain directly. Because lacquer thinner is so potent, be careful not to remove any more material than necessary to avoid harming the siding. Once again, rinse well with clear water.

Should you find a light powdered substance on your siding, do not be alarmed. Your siding finish was designed to gradually release microscopic particles of coating in the form of a light powder. This controlled chalking is the best way for exposed surface coatings to age. It also provides a self-cleaning feature which helps eliminate loose surface material during a normal rainfall.

Do-it-yourselfers will find much helpful data on a variety of subjects in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $2 to the Manchester Herald, Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.

Digging into their cultures

By Earl Aronson
The Associated Press

Ethnic neighborhood youngsters are being encouraged by the New York Botanical Garden to strengthen their cultural identities and preserve their heritages through plants and food.

Plants and foods used in the city's Chinese, Hispanic, Jewish and black communities are featured in the 5-year-old project, this year called Waves III: Healing, Belief and Celebration.

The summer-long exhibit was compiled by children aged 10-17 who researched and identified foods and plants popular in their cultures.

"The youngsters interviewed their own families and others to discover how plants are used in Chinese and Hispanic cultures decoratively and ritually — to make you feel better in body and spirit," said spokesmen for the Arts Resources for Teachers and Students (ARTS). "Samples from a Chinese herbal medicine shop and an Hispanic botanica illustrate the spiritual and physical healing properties many of these plants possess."

Specific foods eaten during the celebration of the Chinese New Year and the Hispanic Easter are presented, in addition to the in-depth uses of coconuts and oranges. Other displays include a Buddhist temple.

Young immigrants from Tai-

wan, mainland China, Hong Kong, the Dominican Republic, Puerto Rico, Southeast Asia and the Caribbean also consulted with New York Botanical Garden scientists about their findings. They made all the visual aids, photographs and drawings.

Waves III is a collaborative project sponsored by Arts Inc., a non-profit cultural organization that has been working with young people of Manhattan's Lower East Side for more than 15 years.

Some of the uses of foods in the Chinese communities:

Callary: Peking cabbage (Brassica pekinensis). From the mustard family, has light to yellow green leaves. Used in soups, stir-fried with shrimp, dried for winter use.

Luffa squash (Luffa acutangula). Long, banana-shaped, medium green skin. Used in soup or stir-fried.

Mung bean sprouts (Phaseolus aureus). Pale yellow to purple, stir-fried or used in stuffing.

Medicinal: Mung bean sprouts. Steeped in water, clears hoarseness and cough.

Tangerine peel. Dark brown peel. Clears skin allergies. Put in bathtub and rub on skin.

Spiritual: The Chinese prize citrus fruits for use in spiritual celebrations and holidays. The round shape of an orange symbolizes togetherness, the orange color is bright and cheerful. The giant grapefruit or "you tz" is especially popular at Chinese New Year.

Some uses of foods in the Hispanic communities:

Spiritual and culinary: Coconut, considered a "Fountain of Youth" for Caribbean peoples. Every part is used for food, utensils and spiritual purposes. Coconut oil is used in therapeutic massage, and the meat is eaten. Puerto Ricans celebrate "Fiesta de Loiza Aides" in which the devil wears a mask made of coconuts.

Medicinal: Mint, used in tea and for stomach pain. Eucalyptus, when mixed with alcohol provides relief from arthritis. Coffee, used for curing pink eye (soak cotton in coffee and apply to eyelids and lashes).

In Hispanic culture, healing, spiritual and scientific cures are connected. Herbs, oils and roots are used for both medicinal and spiritual effects.

Here's the Answer

QUESTION: The concrete floor in our garage is in bad shape and I want to put another layer of concrete over it. I have been told that only about an inch of new concrete is needed to provide a new, smooth surface. Is this so and will the new concrete adhere well to the old?

ANSWER: Oddly enough, the rougher and more uneven the old concrete is, the better the new will cling to it. In fact, some professional workers deliberately roughen up the old surface with a cold chisel and hammer before adding new concrete. Just to be sure, though, you had better apply a special bonding preparation that is sold in home centers or wherever sand, gravel and the like are sold. It is put on just before applying the new concrete.

QUESTION: We want to put a new roof on our house. One roofer said new asphalt shingles can be laid over the old. He made this analysis without even seeing the roof. A second roofer inspected our roof and said there already are two layers of asphalt shingles on it and that a third would make it too heavy for the underneath supports. Since both of them are professionals, I do not understand how they can differ so much in their judgement.

ANSWER: No way to know which one is correct. But, as a general rule, no one can make such a determination if he hasn't seen and inspected the roof. It is true that too many layers of shingles can become too heavy. Two layers of asphalt shingles usually are OK. Three layers may or may not be all right, but a professional examination is the only thing that can produce an accurate diagnosis.

QUESTION: How long will an asphalt shingle roof last?

ANSWER: If the shingles are the regular type, 15 or 20 years. The newer, heavier shingles have a life expectancy of at least 25 years and have added fire resistance.

Some mutual funds that have survived

By the Editors of Consumer Reports

Consumer Reports

When Consumer Reports evaluated 286 stock funds in June 1987, the editors based their ratings only partly on how the funds performed during the entire previous five-year period. They also scored the funds' performance during declines in the market within that period. Twenty-eight funds received high ratings.

At the time, the editors theorized that mutual funds that declined less than the market as a whole in previous down periods might also better protect your money in future declines. Then, last October, the stock market crashed, and the editors had an all-too-sterm test of their theory.

How did the 28 top-rated mutual funds fare during the crash? To find out, Consumer Reports asked CDA Investment Technologies, a major supplier of mutual-fund data, to measure the change in each fund's net asset value between Sept. 30 and Oct. 31.

Four of the seven funds that had outperformed the market as a whole during both earlier down periods also did considerably better during the month of the crash. Copley Tax-Managed Fund, Phoenix Growth Fund Series, Evergreen Total return and Fidelity Puritan posted declines of 9.1 to 14.8 percent, while the Standard & Poor's index of 500 stocks fell 21.5 percent.

The other three funds — select American Shares, Ivy Growth and Mutual Qualified Income — dropped slightly less than the market as a whole. Overall, however, only 12 of the 28 funds in the top groups outperformed the S&P 500 index in October.

For the full year, only five funds that Consumer Reports had rated highly overall beat the S&P 500's 5.2 percent gain. Three funds — Weingarten Equity, Phoenix Growth Fund Series and Loomis-Sayles Mutual — surpassed the index with strong advances of 9.6, 11.4 and 13.6 percent, respectively.

But what counts in a mutual fund is its performance in both up and down market over the long term — at least five years. One bad month or even one poor year is too brief a period on which to base a decision. To check on long-term performances, the editors reached back five and 10 years.

CDA measured the annualized rate of return over the five- and 10-year periods that ended Dec. 31, 1987. The 10-year period covers two recessions, a partial economic recovery, the wild inflation of the late 1970s, the strong bull market of the 1980s and the Crash of '87.

Over the last five years, 39 percent of the top 28 funds outperformed the S&P 500; only 16 percent of the 421 funds tracked over the same period beat the S&P. Over the last 10 years, 81 percent of the top 28 that had been studied that long beat the S&P 500 versus just 45 percent of 309 funds during the same period.

Bad as Black Monday was for investors, it should serve as a reminder of the fundamentals of investing. The potentially high reward of an investment in stocks during a bull market comes at the risk of potentially high losses in a bear market. Prudent investors divide the money they're willing to put at risk, so they hold not only stocks or stock mutual fund, but Treasury bill and bond investments, certificates of deposit, real estate or other investments.

Looking for a safe harbor?
Check zero coupon bonds

Zero coupon treasury bonds can be a secure, profitable harbor for your money in a stormy market. Backed by the full faith and credit of the U.S. government, zero coupon bonds, also called treasury "strips," are among the safest investments available today.

Because of the way they work, strips are particularly worth investigating if you know you will be needing a lump sum of money on a given date — for college expenses, retirement or the like.

Straight treasuries are purchased at face value and redeemed at face value when held to maturity. During this time, they pay coupon interest twice a year.

Zeros are purchased at a deep discount from face value. Interest is not paid out in periodic payments, but instead accrues over time. At the specified maturity date, zeros are redeemed at face value.

Thus, zeros are said to be "stripped" of their coupons. For any given face value and term of maturity, the purchase price is determined by the bond's yield (or rate of interest) on date of purchase.

"Treasury strips usually outperform straight treasury bonds by 15 to 50 basis points," reports Kenneth Witover, senior vice president for private investments at Shearson Lehman Hutton.

Investors are attracted to zero coupon treasury bonds because of their predictability, fixed rate of interest and maturity at a known value. Long-term maturities can grow to more than ten times their purchase price. What's more, they are available in denominations as small as $1,000.

"They're safe, inexpensive, compound at double-digit interest, offer a range of maturities from three months to 30 years, and accumulate sizable sums," says Richard M. Bookstaver, head of the bond department at Adler Coleman & Company, a Wall Street brokerage firm.

The discount or "leveraging" features of zeros is particularly attractive to some small investors. When you purchase a $10,000 straight treasury bond, you pay the full $10,000. The same face value in a zero coupon bond, assuming it matured in November of the year 2000, would cost you about $3,500 at current rates of interest — a difference of $6,500.

Some investment professionals, however, are not impressed by the discount feature of zeros. "There's no free lunch in investing," says Anthony J. Pace, managing partner of Simms Securities in New York. He points out one chief drawback of zeros: although they don't pay interest until maturity, the IRS requires you to pay taxes on each year's accrued value as though you had received a check in the mail.

For that reason, Pace says he does not recommend zeros for taxable accounts, only for IRAs, Keoghs and other pension accounts where your return on the bonds is tax-deferred.

Zeros are suitable for accounts set up for children under the Uniform Gift to Minors Act. If the child is under 14, however, annual interest income over $1,000 is taxed at the parents' rate. Over 14, income is taxed at the child's presumably lower rate.

The Treasury issues new bonds in February, May, August and November. They can be purchased commission-free from Federal Reserve banks and branches on the day of the issue. Bonds may also be purchased or sold at any time through fee-charging commercial banks and brokerages.

If you sell a bond before maturity, the price you receive will be determined by interest rates then prevailing.

Federal agencies such as Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac also issue zero coupon bonds. These zeros do not enjoy the full faith and credit of the government, but their yields are slightly higher, and none have failed.

Brokerage firms purchase large quantities of conventional government bonds and structure them as portfolios of zero coupon issues. These "packages" represent ownership of interest and principal payments of the government securities they contain, and are virtually immune to default.

Many corporations and municipalities also issue zero coupon bonds at still more attractive yields. Higher yields, of course, is partly a function of perceived risk.

It's always wise to consult a professional financial adviser before making any investment, and this certainly holds true for corporate and municipal zero coupon bonds.

Changing Times

SPEEDIER MORTGAGE LOANS — The mortgage-approval logjam that so enraged borrowers last spring isn't likely to be repeated this year. Nevertheless, mortgage bankers are looking for ways to cut the 30 to 45 days it usually takes to process a loan, and some lenders have already done it.

For example, California's Glendale Federal S&L offers its so-called 5-20 program, which promises to approve or reject a mortgage application within five days after you apply and get you your money within 20 days.

Other new mortgage options:

- Convertible ARMs. These were the hot new idea of 1987 that let borrowers convert from adjustable-rate to fixed-rate loans, usually at any time from the 13th to the 60th month. They are now offered by a majority of large lenders, and terms are becoming more attractive.

- Biweekly Mortgages. Now that Fannie Mae has announced it will buy these, they will probably become more widely available. Because you make 26 biweekly payments a year instead of 12 monthly ones, they're usually promoted as a way to pay less interest over the life of the loan and build equity faster. They're best suited for borrowers who get paid biweekly and can afford an additional monthly payment each year.

MUCH ADD ABOUT $78 — Once upon a time your public utilities — gas, water, electric and telephone companies — collected money from you, as part of your rates, to pay their taxes. But much of that tax was deferred because utilities were allowed to take accelerated depreciation of their assets.

Then Congress cut the corporate tax rate from 46 percent to 34 percent, and some of those deferred taxes won't have to be paid at all. So now utilities owe their customers about $19 billion — about $78 per residential household — estimates the National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners.

Now comes the rub: Congress also allowed utilities to refund that money over the same period they would have had to pay it to the government — up to 30 years in some cases.

Foul, cry regulators and consumer advocates. They're lobbying Congress to change the law to allow state regulators to decide when utilities have to give refunds and presumably to order some companies that are flush with cash to pay up sooner.

FOCUS / Advice

Gay fantasies are common

DEAR DR. REINISCH: My 16-year-old son has dated girls for several years. He is now in love and having sex with a beautiful girl. But recently he told me he had two homosexual experiences as a pre-teen and has been bothered by them ever since.

Kinsey Report
June M. Reinisch, Ph.D.

He has a wonderful sense of humor and is well-liked, but he has periods of depression, which run in our family. It is during these periods that he states he is afraid of being gay because he enjoys looking at other men and has disturbing thoughts.

I've told him I didn't think that what he experiences is unusual for heterosexual persons, and he has had some counseling. Can you shed some light on this?

DEAR READER: In his interviews with more than 5,000 men during the 1940s and 1950s, Dr. Alfred Kinsey found that 60 percent of pre-adolescent boys engage in homosexual activity and that 37 percent of males had at least some homosexual activity between adolescence and old age. The mean age of first homosexual contact was around age 9. He also found that 13 percent of males who have no homosexual activities at all past adolescence report having erotic recollections to other males.

More recent research supports this: It is not unusual for men whose adult behavior is completely heterosexual to have had some same-sex experiences in their youth and to have erotic feelings and fantasies about other men throughout their lives. Doing this does not mean that a man is homosexual, nor does it predict that he will become primarily homosexual in his behavior at some later point.

Due to pressures to select a career or a marriage partner and begin assuming adult responsibilities, while also conforming to expectations of their parents and peers, some young people react by withdrawing and/or having bouts of depression. Getting help for these pressures is important. Encourage your son to continue counseling. Let him select his counselor if he doesn't care for the current one.

It sounds as though you have a supportive relationship with your son. Perhaps he simply needs to know that you'll love him regardless of his sexual orientation. And it may be that having sex with his girlfriends is an extra pressure at this point in his life.

Teenage love relationships, especially when sex is involved, can be so intense that there are negative effects on other aspects of a young person's life.

Counseling should help, but only when it is with a person who accepts the validity of teenage emotions.

DEAR DR. REINISCH: I'm a 62-year-old woman, and I ejaculate in perhaps one out of 10 orgasms, most often during masturbation. This has been occurring only for the last eight or 10 years. These orgasms are more intense by far than my non-ejaculatory ones.

Is this unusual? Have you any data on women who ejaculate?

DEAR READER: It's not clear how many women expel fluid at orgasm. Some researchers report that nearly 40 percent of women questioned had at least one ejaculation at orgasm, while others have found a much smaller percentage.

There is also disagreement over the source of this fluid and whether it is urine or a specialized secretion from vaginal glands. But regardless of what is eventually decided, what happens to you is normal for you and does happen to some other women.

While researchers debate these scientific questions, writers of erotic stories continue to wax eloquent over the wonders of female ejaculation as they have done for decades. This is a frequent theme in sexual fiction, but both the incidence of its occurrence and the amount of fluid produced in real life as less than one might conclude from such books.

New contact lens cloud relationship

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago, during a routine eye examination, my eye doctor of eight years told me that he no longer wanted me as a patient because I bought my extended-wear contact lenses from an optician, and not from him? Although I have never had any problems with my eyes, he said he was afraid I did, due to these contact lenses. I would sue him for malpractice.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Have you ever heard of anything like this before? Every time I think of it, I get angry, so I decided to write to you and find out if my eye doctor had the right to drop me as a patient for that reason.

Also, is there someone I can complain to about what I consider terribly rude behavior?

SEEING RED
IN JACKSON, MISS.

DEAR SEEING RED: After eight years of his giving you care, I can understand why your eye doctor would expect you to come to him for your contact lenses — and also why he was miffed to learn that you went elsewhere. It's your privilege to go wherever you choose for eye care and lenses, but it's his right to refuse to keep you as a patient for reasons of his own.

If you think that your eye doctor has acted unprofessionally, you can complain to your local branch of the American Medical Association. It's listed in your phone book.

DEAR ABBY: Every time my wife and I go to pick out wallpaper we end up in a big argument. This time, I told her to go to the store and pick out the three patterns she liked the best, and I would make the final decision from one of the three.

Well, she picked out three patterns from which I selected one. We hired a professional wallpaper hanger because of my wife says I don't know how to hang wallpaper. After spending a lot of money for wallpaper and having it installed, my wife decided she hated the wallpaper. I had to agree, it doesn't look as good on the wall as I thought it would, and now my wife says wallpaper should be the wife's choice entirely because the wife has to look at it all day.

What do you say? We agreed to abide by your decision because we are going to replace it, although it's only been up for two weeks.

WONDERING IN CAPE CORAL, FLA.

DEAR WONDERING: Wallpaper should be a joint decision, but since your wife selected the three patterns she preferred, and agreed to let you make the final decision, she should have no complaints.

P.S. Next time, consult a decorator, and let him or her take the heat.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "No-Boss Office," who complains because they (the three underpaid female employees) do all the work while their boss is in the back room playing with the new computer.

I work alone in an office, and without the computer my job would be almost impossible to do by myself. The office complain-ers in the "No-Boss Office" are probably the reason the boss bought a computer in the first place. The boss is probably looking to replace one, or maybe even two, of them with the computer.

DISGUSTED IN OCALA, FLA.

DEAR DISGUSTED: Talk back? Communication and honest dialogue between employee and employer are essential if both are to prosper in a productive atmosphere.

Animal testing is essential

DEAR DR. GOTT: What do you think of using animals for experimentation? Animals are totally different from humans in every respect, and an artificially induced disease in a healthy animal can in no way be the same as the disease in humans.

Dr. Gott
Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR READER: In my opinion, the problems of using experimental animals arise from the experimental method itself, not from the fact that animals are used. I believe that medical procedures and treatments should be tried first on animals, since some animals' systems are quite similar to those of humans.

However, these experiments must be carried out in a manner that will yield the least pain and suffering for the animals. Much of the public outcry against animal experimentation has been directed against unethical scientists who have treated their animals in brutal and insensitive ways. For example, there is simply no rational justification for the practice of adding irritating cosmetics to the eyes of living, unanesthetized rabbits or of treating live animals in other inhumane ways.

There are new enforceable restrictions and guidelines to prevent researchers from mistreating animals. Of course, a few scientists ignore or bypass these rules but, for the most part, investigators now treat their animals with more respect.

Certain people still abhor animal experimentation. While I understand and sympathize with their views, such anti-experimentalists often fail to realize that almost every valid medical treatment was perfected in animals before being tried in humans. We enjoy the benefits of today's wonder drugs because of yesterday's animal experimentation. Truly, many of us owe our lives to these animals. Until synthetic experimental systems — for example, computer models — are more widely developed, scientists will continue to use animals. We need to ensure that these animals are not mistreated; each one of us has an obligation in this regard.

DEAR DR. GOTT: In 1983 I had a hysterectomy. I take Premarin and Provera. I've developed unsightly dark and blotchy discolorations on my neck. Have these settled in for good?

DEAR READER: I don't know. Ask your gynecologist or request a referral to a dermatologist. Some women develop a benign skin discoloration called chloasma from hormone pills. These patches usually fade once the hormone therapy has been stopped. However, before choosing this option, check with your doctor.

I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report, on Menopause, which may give you helpful information.

FOCUS / Movies

A low-budget horror flick

B A D DREAMS (R)
Gale Anne Hurd produced this low-budget horror flick, and one approaches it expectantly hoping for the kind of hip, shrewdly execute schlock that market Hurd's earlier productions ("Terminator," "Aliens").

Filmmeter
Robert DiMatteo

It's not nearly that good, though the premise is choice: the survivor (Jennifer Rubin) of the mass-suicide fire of a Jonestown-like hippie cult comes out of a coma in 1980s, only to suspect that the cult leader (Richard Lynch) is haunting her — and, one by one, picking off the other patients in her group therapy session.

Directed by Andrew Fleming, the movie has some distinctively snappy and tart dialogue — especially in the early scenes with the patients, all of whom have colorful fits as they suffer from "borderline personalities." There's a jivey acting turn by Dean Cameron as a manic patient with thick black eyebrows and a wisecracking wit reminiscent of a deranged Groucho Marx; in one scene, to the sound of the late punker Sid Vicious' version of "My Way," he puts a knife through his hand. But the blood-happy movie doesn't have much of a visual style, and only the slowest viewers will be at all surprised by the secret identity of the head doctor at the hospital. GRADE: ****

DOMINICK AND EUGENE (PG-13) This study of the bond of now-grown fraternal twins — one a diligent med school student (Ray Liotta), the other a somewhat mentally retarded garbage man (Tom Hulce) — is one of those warm, bedraggled little films that get by as much on good intentions as on craft and achievement. One can't help but be touched by elements of this story, which includes sibling rivalry of a very special nature, and a revelation of child abuse that only deepens the meaning of this brotherly bond.

The acting helps a lot — Hulce achieves moments of considerable pathos as he conveys the childlike nature of his character, and Liotta shows a far gentler side than he did as the crazy sex-con in "Something Wild." Jamie Lee Curtis co-stars effectively in the thankless role of Liotta's girlfriend, who arouses Hulce's jealousy. GRADE:  1/2

MAURICE (Not Rated) Lorrimer, $79.95. This highly praised 1987 adaptation of posthumously published E.M. Foster novel was the work of the genteel producer-director team of Ismail Merchant and James Ivory, and it failed to achieve the recognition of the preceding Merchant-Ivory production "A Room with a View." It's a marvelous movie, nonetheless — an Edwardian romantic comedy of repressed manners with melancholy undercurrents, in which the romantic protagonists are homosexual.

Though Merchant and Ivory give us a richly detailed, lulling old-fashioned period production, their film has true iconoclasm and power in its portrait of a fair-haired and earnest Cambridge student (James Wilby) who attempts to deny his gay feelings — even appealing to a charlatan hypnotist (Ben Kingsley) and to the family doctor (Denholm Elliott) for help.

Sustaining the sexual tension as long as possible, without becoming clogged and murky, "Maurice" achieves a satisfying full-blown romantic resolution as Maurice finds the blend of spiritual and physical love he desires. Merchant and Ivory have made something close to definitive and timeless on the subject of the perils, and beauty, of homosexual expression in a heterosexual society. GRADE: ******

Film grading:  — excellent,  — good,  — fair, * — poor.

Actor Judge Reinhold is still on a roll

By Bob Thomas
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Judge Reinhold has his own gauge on how fast celebrity can overtake an actor in today's Hollywood.

"The week before 'Beverly Hills Cop' opened, I was asked to show two pieces of ID to cash a check at my bank, where I had an account for two years," he related. "The week after the film opened, I had a family in a station wagon scream at me on the freeway to pull over for an autograph."

Reinhold has been on a roll ever since, adding to his credits "Off Beat," "Ruthless People," "Beverly Hills Cop II." His current release is "Vice Versa," in which he changes identities with his 11-year-old son, played by Fred Savage.

Yes, he realizes that the plot parallels those of "Like Father, Like Son," but he claims priority. "Our story was taken from a children's book written in England in 1880. A very popular, enduring book that's still popular. It concerned a duke who switched consciousness with his son. There was a movie, 'Vice Versa,' made with Peter Ustinov in the early 1950s."

Reinhold admitted he was at first reluctant to undertake "Vice Versa" because of the similarity to "Like Father, Like Son." But as soon as he was committed, he jumped into his research.

"I hung out in video arcades and gymnasiums," he recalled. "I was once asked to leave a playground by the police because I was just standing around watching the kids. I didn't have the nerve to say, 'Do you know who I am?' So I just left quietly."

In the early stages of "Vice Versa," the actor was concerned about the casting of his son: "I knew the kid would make or break the film. We saw a lot of kid actors who had a lot of kid-actor tricks they knew adults would respond to. Fred had none of that. He came in like a little Jimmy Cagney and just took the part. "As soon as Fred was cast, I knew we had something special," he said. "He's got this comedy timing that must be God-given; I don't know where else he could get it. We became real pals. I had him record all my lines, and I recorded all his lines, so we'd go home and study each other's inflections and nuances."

Reinhold showed the completed film to his mother and asked if he had been anything like the kid in the movie. Her reply: "Oh, no, you were much more obnoxious."

He was born Edward Ernest Reinhold Jr. in Wilmington, Del., but at the age of 2 he looked so much like a judge that the name stuck. He grew up in comfortable surroundings. His father was a trial lawyer and the actor remembers him as an aloof man whose command of a courtroom probably fostered his son's acting ambitions.

"I was pretty comically oriented as a kid," he said. "That was how I got attention." After drama classes in four Eastern universities, Reinhold spent a year playing a variety of roles in stock and dinner theaters. When his father died in 1977 he moved to California. He worked in a frozen yogurt store by day to finance his night acting classes at the James Best Workshop. His arrival in Hollywood was perfectly timed.

"I hit town in 1977, and in 1978, 'Animal House' came out and opened up a whole new genre of youth-oriented films," he recalled. "I was plucked up pretty fast."

Reinhold appeared in such films as "Stripes," "Fast Times at Ridgemont High," "The Lords of Discipline" and "Gremlins."

As the rookie detective in the megahit "Beverly Hills Cop," Reinhold hit the big time. He followed with "Head Office," "Ruthless People" and "Beverly Hills Cop II." But Reinhold now figures playing the goofy guy can be too much of a good thing.

"I'm at an important point where if I continue along these lines, people aren't going to accept me any other way," he said. "I really do want to have a well-rounded and enduring career, do all kinds of different things. Much as I love comedy, I will have to hold back right now."

"I did my first dramatic TV movie with Rosanna Arquette, 'Promised a Miracle.' It's about two fundamentalist Christians who take their diabetic son off insulin and he dies three days later of insulin shock. It's a true story, very powerful stuff. I want to do more dramatic work."

Despite his newfound fame, Reinhold feels a trifle uneasy: "Sometimes I feel I'm pushed into a place where I'm supposed to be more special than somebody else. I don't feel real comfortable with the idea that because I'm somewhat famous, I'm more special. That means I'm working."

WORTH PLENTY — Only 28 large size $50 Federal Reserve Bank Notes are left unredeemed. The bidding at the 12th Annual International Paper Money Show in Memphis should start at $6,000.

'Rag-pickers' in Memphis

You can call them notaphilists, syntaphilists or rag-pickers, but whatever the name, they will be swarming down to Memphis, Tenn., for the 12th Annual International Paper Money Show in June.

Collectors' Corner
Russ MacKendrick

United States collectors are bound to be agog over this offering by the Bowers and Merena Auction Galleries that same month.

The St. Louis branch was the only one of the 12 "Feds" ever to issue a large size $50 Federal Reserve Bank Note. Four thousands were printed and only 28 are left unredeemed. The bidding should start at $6,000 and go kiting.

The covered rag carries a grizzled General Grant on the front for solidity and lissome figure called "Panama" (between two steamships), on the back, for charm. It was signed by the Messrs. Teehee (yes), and Burke for the government and by Attebery and Wells for the bank.

Banks issued paper money in 1914 and 122 in 1918. The notes were inscribed "National Currency" but they were not an obligation of the U.S. government. Instead they were backed by securities from the issuing banks that had been deposited with the treasurer of the United States.

Somehow the St. Louis bank was the only one that put out a fifty.

These member bank notes were superseded by Federal Reserve Notes (no "bank"), that were redeemable in gold on demand from the Treasury. All this blew in 1933 when we went off gold and they had to rush out a new series of Federal Reserve Bank Notes, only by that time they were in the smaller size we see today.

The leading references in this area of collecting are Friedberg's "Paper Money of the United States," and Gene Hessler's "Comprehensive Catalog of U.S. Paper Money." Both books are in print. For a periodical there is the "Bank Note Reporter" published by Krause. The leading club

Biography reveals 'Mrs. Twain's' life

By Donna Bryson
The Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — The story of Olivia Langdon Clemens, wife of the man best known as Mark Twain, has been told for the first time in a biography written by a local Twain scholar.

"It amazes me that no one's done it before," said Rea Willis, a writer and Drury College literature professor. She completed "Livy: A Biography of Olivia Langdon Clemens, Mark Twain's Wife" early this year and she said her agent was negotiating with several publishing houses.

"I have never found any lack of interest in him or her. He really is America's best-known writer," said Mrs. Willis, who has published a novel and a number of short stories and poems.

Samuel Langhorne Clemens, whose pen name was a term of water depth that evoked his life on the Mississippi, and Olivia Langdon — his "Livy" — were married from 1870 until her death in 1904.

"I'd always been interested in him (Twain), read everything he wrote and everything about him," Mrs. Willis said.

But she hesitated to make Twain the subject of her doctoral research at the University of Tulsa because so much had already been written about him. Much less had been published on Twain's family, so an adviser encouraged her to write her dissertation on the women in Mark Twain's life — his mother, his three daughters and the frail, beautiful New York heiress he married.

After her dissertation was completed in 1984, Mrs. Willis decided to write a biography of Livy, which she said would be the first account detailing her life from birth to death. She had discovered that "Mrs. Mark Twain" was a fascinating character in her own right.

"Maybe in another time, she might have been a writer herself. She was a very talented editor," Mrs. Willis said. Livy edited much of her husband's work. "They filled in gaps in each other," Mrs. Willis said. "He needed some stability and she needed some impetuosity."

As a young woman, Livy seemed to epitomize the fragile flower that was the Victorian feminine ideal. But she discovered a reservoir of strength during a marriage marked by the death of two of her young children and financial worries due to Twain's poor investments.

The family declared bankruptcy in 1894 after Twain squandered his fortune investing in a printing scheme. Mrs. Willis said it was Livy who insisted that the debts be paid in full, and kept careful records during an around-the-world speaking tour Twain arranged to raise the money.

"She saw it as a debt of honor," Mrs. Willis said.

"As difficult a man as I knew Mark Twain could be, I figured she'd have to be a pretty special woman for Mark Twain to feel so strongly about her," Mrs. Willis said. "I was amazed to find that she was so articulate and witty. It makes me wonder how many other women's stories need to be told."

Mrs. Willis' research took her to the Twain papers at the University of California at Berkeley. Twain's boyhood home at Hannibal, Mo., the Langdon family home at Elmira, N.Y., and the couple's home in Hartford, Conn.

She has read Livy's diaries and her correspondence with Twain — she would write him as often as five times a day when they were apart — as well as with other members of her family and friends. Mrs. Willis even pored over school records at the finishing school Livy attended.

This mystery never heats up

YOUR ROYAL HOSTAGE. By Antonia Fraser. Atheneum, 228 Pages, $15.95.

Readers of mysteries have their favorite detectives. And in any series featuring the same detective, they have their favorite books.

"Your Royal Hostage" probably won't be the favorite among the books written by Antonia Fraser carrying the tag, "a Jimema Shore mystery."

Jimema Shore is a glamorous on-camera TV figure in London, a vivid personality. For starters, she isn't in "Your Royal Hostage" enough. The people who are in it just aren't fascinating.

The central character is Princess Amy, 22, pouty cousin to Queen Elizabeth, not in line for the throne because she has a Catholic mother, whose marriage to a continental prince is slated to be a big media event.

There's also a "save the animals" group whose members and meetings are detailed. Just before the wedding, they plan to kidnap Princess Amy — but not hurt her — to call attention to their cause.

Before much of the plot gets wound up, a man is murdered. It's hard to keep the murder in mind as one goes on reading about Amy's sulks, the prince's other amours and the plotters' foibles. Despite some dramatic happenings, the book never heats up.

We like Jimema Shore well enough to read about any mix-up she straightens out. But this is definitely one of the cooler books in which she has appeared.

The new 'British invader' is making a big impression

By Mary Campbell
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Rick Astley is attracting more attention with his first album than he probably expected to have in a lifetime.

It has been 20 years since England sent America anything like Astley — when Joe Cocker arrived sounding a lot like Ray Charles.

Astley's RCA album, "Whenever You Need Somebody," and the first rhythm and blues sounding single from it, "Never Gonna Give You Up," have shot up the best-selling charts in Europe and then followed the same pattern in the United States where the LP went gold.

Besides getting a superb hit with a first record, Astley excites interest because he's quite a surprise. His voice is super-soulful, deeply resonating, mature-sounding — and he's a 21-year-old English lad with a confident air, chestnut hair and freckles.

"There's so much that gets crammed in," Astley said during an interview at RCA headquarters.

"Private life is one thing I don't get, basically, any more. Today we're a little rushed and that seems to be the norm these days. I don't see my family any more. I don't mean to moan about it. I knew I was letting myself in for this. I realize little things in life become suddenly important and you miss them. It's very nice traveling to all these countries. All the same, at the end of the day, all the RCA offices look the same."

Astley was born in Newton-le-Willows, Lancashire, England — not far from Liverpool. Like many performers, he started as a teen-ager.

"I took up drums around 15," he said. "I actually liked drums. With friends, a guitarist and bass player, we got a band together. One has gone to college now, studying computers. One is married."

"It was a fun thing. The bassist was doing most of the writing. We played anything that had three chords. We disbanded out of a mutual agreement sort of thing."

Then Astley at 17 was asked by a band named FBI to be its drummer. "It was in the same little town," he said. "Anybody who can play an instrument; everybody seems to know about them. It was an all-guitar band. Nobody could afford keyboards."

"I started to write most of the material about six months after joining," he said, "so I progressed on to be the singer as well."

The band's managers — one of whom still manages Astley — invited Peter Waterman, who owns production and publishing companies, to a performance.

"The band was still very young; I was one of the oldest and I was 19," Astley said. "He offered me a solo deal which I ended up taking." FBI continues and Astley says they're still friendly.

"I went to work for Pete for eight months or so. I was a tape operator in a studio. I made tea a few weeks until I saw how a studio works. Then I started recording in December 1986, three songs. One was 'Never Gonna Give You Up,' the first single. I was writing like mad, doing demos weekends and nights, learning whatever I could, getting to know everybody."

Later, Astley played guitar on one track of the album, "No More Looking for Love."

"We did that at 2 or 3 in the morning," he said. "Nobody was around. The guy producing said, 'You do it.' I always play on my own demos. I said, 'Fine. I can get by on this.'"

"I'm not stupid enough not to know there are better musicians than me. I'm not going to get into an ego trip when I play; time is money in a studio. I'd like to do it when I get older."

On "Never Gonna Give You Up," Astley said a few notes are high. "It sounds as if it is low. I'm not saying that to be hip and cool. I prefer to sing lower; it feels better and suits better."

"I think I've always had this sort of tone to my voice. A lot of my favorite singers are black guys. In Britain, music by people like Luther Vandross, James Ingram and Michael McDonald becomes part of the Top 40. I like a white artist's voice with a soulful approach."

PWL, which Waterman runs with Mike Stock and Matt Aitken, is mainly known in the United States as the power behind

Bananarama and Samantha Fox. "It is almost like a mini-Motown," Astley said. "They produce, write and arrange for so many people, some not big in America but massive in England. They may have five singles they've written and produced in the Top 20 on the British charts in one week."

"They tend to have a very controlling role. Everybody says they have a sound. I wondered what style they were going to use for me. It was a little more musical than some of the stuff they'd done, a return almost to the '70s, with string arrangements. I don't sound like most of what they do."

"We've recorded 'Ain't Too Proud to Beg' by the Temptations. I sang it live in a few clubs in London. Everybody seems to think it's the strongest thing I've done and that's my direction. It's like rhythm, and me singing. It seems to show my vocal ability to its best. I did it slower than the Temptations did it. My voice suits slow. I think you can express yourself a little more."

"We were going to put it on the first album but didn't want to put all the eggs in one basket," he said, "and a lot of people lately have released old Motown songs. I've got all these thoughts buzzing around in my head. You've got only 10 songs to bring to people."

The album includes five songs by Stock, Aitken and Waterman, four by Astley and "When I Fall in Love," the Nat "King" Cole hit.

"I'm only 21," Astley said. "As years go on, hopefully I'll get into writing all of an album and producing some of it. It's still early days for me."

Sorry, we made a big mistake

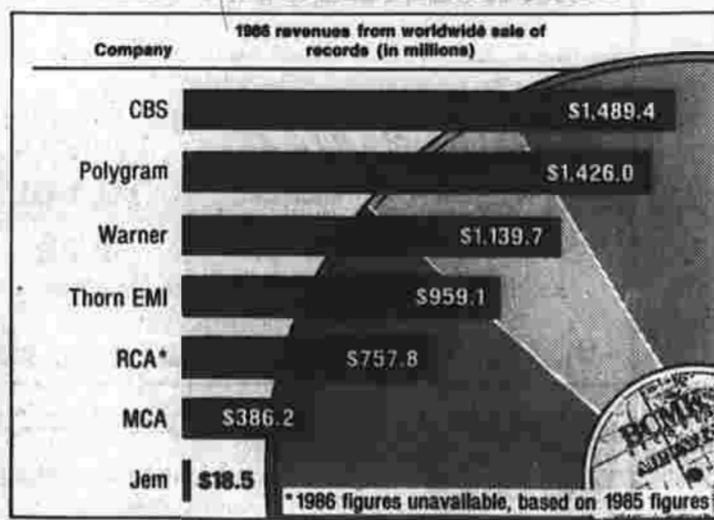

NORMAL, Ill. (AP) — A numerical error led officials to crown the wrong team winner of a state high school math contest, but a rival suburban Chicago school reclaimed the honors after a recount, officials said.

Officials of the Illinois Council of Teachers of Mathematics State Math Contest considered the appeal of New Trier High School's coach and found he was right. Final score: New Trier 992, Evanston Township High 979.

A clerk tabulating the scores gave New Trier of Winnetka only three points in one event when it should have received 33 in the competition at Illinois State University.

"We regret it was announced that Evanston was the first-place winner," said Thomas Shilgalis, a contest official.

BUSINESS

Highlights of the week

By The Associated Press

■ The Securities and Exchange Commission authorized brief trading halts across domestic markets when important news affecting a specific stock is pending.

■ The government said the nation's unemployment rate fell to 5.4 percent in April, the lowest it has been since June 1974. The drop sparked worries that the competition for scarce jobs would heat up inflation. Other economic reports showed increases in factory orders, productivity and construction spending.

■ Reports from the nation's largest general retailers showed cool weather and an early Easter hurt retail sales in April.

■ The Supreme Court, in an antitrust ruling that could make bargain-hunting more difficult, said manufacturers do not always act illegally when they agree with retailers to stop supplying discount stores.

■ An OPEC conference ended with no agreement on a plan to orchestrate global oil production cuts. But some oil ministers said they expected prices to stabilize near current levels.

■ A surge in imports caused Japan's merchandise trade surplus to fall 7.2 percent to $94.3 billion in the 1987 fiscal year, confirming the continuing strength of Japan's economy in spite of the strong Japanese yen.

■ As part of its inflation-fighting program, Mexico said it would hold the peso at its current value against the U.S. dollar until the end of the year.

■ The United Auto Workers union and Chrysler Corp. reached a tentative agreement on a two-year national labor contract, patterned after pacts achieved by the other big automakers.

■ Sales of domestically made cars fell 6.7 percent in late April, with Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. posting gains and General Motors Corp. reporting a decline.

■ Eastern Airlines sued its pilots and machinists unions for $1.5 billion, accusing them of trying to destroy the carrier so they can buy it at a "bargain-basement price." A House panel urged the government to broaden its probe of Eastern and parent, Texas Air Corp.

■ Allegis spurred a new proposal from United Airlines pilots to buy the airline for $4 billion.

■ Staley Continental Inc. rejected a sweetened $1.42 billion takeover bid from British sugar producer Tate & Lyle PLC and said it would consider other offers.

■ Gillette Co. said its shareholders narrowly rejected a bid by a group of New York investors to replace four company directors and seek a buyer for Gillette's personal care empire.

■ Desert Partners presented USG Corp. with new takeover proposals valued at about $2.6 billion, seeking to head off a reorganization plan by the building materials company.

■ A federal jury acquitted an Oklahoma oil contractor on charges of scheming to defraud Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co., but failed to reach a verdict on two bank executives charged in the case.

■ Xerox Corp. marked the 50th anniversary of plain-paper copying with a new line of products that includes its first personal copier, made for Xerox by Japanese rival Sharp Corp.

■ Coleco Industries announced a wave of layoffs and the resignation of its chairman as the toy maker sought to shore up its sagging finances.

■ The government charged E.F. Hutton & Co. Inc. with conspiracy and laundering at least $532,000 for organized crime figures and businessmen who wanted to hide income from the Internal Revenue Service.

Coleco hires trouble-shooter

WEST HARTFORD (AP) — Coleco Industries Inc. has hired a consultant known for its success in saving financially troubled corporations by implementing drastic measures.

The Hallwood Group Inc., based in Cleveland, was founded in 1981 by two British investment bankers who took over some troubled real estate trusts.

The group is known as the financier of last resort for companies facing bankruptcy.

Coleco has $335 million in debts and has lost $215 million in the past two years. Earlier this week, the West Hartford-based toy company cut 475 jobs from its workforce, or about half of its employees.

It has given holders of debentures until May 13 to accept an exchange offer designed to prevent a filing for protection from creditors under federal bankruptcy laws.

"The company that retains Hallwood wants to escape bankruptcy at all costs," said Kenneth Campbell, director of research at Audit Investments Inc. in New Jersey. "Everybody takes some poison. They usually demand concessions from the banks and debtholders and shareholders."

Paul Valentine, an analyst with Standard & Poor's Corp. in New York, said Coleco shareholders "should be getting out their garlic and crosses."

Campbell said Hallwood typically sells new shares at a discount of up to 50 percent from the current market price. In Coleco's case, the stock closed Thursday at $2.37 1/2 and could be dropped to a low as $1.20 a share.

He said Hallwood sometimes takes some of the new shares as payment. For example, in the August 1987 reorganization of BancTexas Group Inc., a Dallas financial institution, Hallwood received about 12.5 percent of the company's stock.

Hallwood also generally takes an active day-to-day role in managing troubled companies it is working with, Hallwood said.

Hallwood had revenues of $39.2 million and an income of $7.1 million in the fiscal year ended July 31, 1987.

Coleco produces such toys as Cabbage Patch Kids and Trivial Pursuit.

Advest to buy consultants

HARTFORD (AP) — The Advest Group Inc. of Hartford has announced an agreement in principle to acquire Lyons, Zomback & Ostrowski of New York, a financial consulting firm known for its expertise in the banking industry.

The terms of the agreement weren't disclosed.

Lyons, Zomback & Ostrowski specializes in investment banking services, regulatory consulting, investor relations, and data and research services. It was among the top 20 merger-and-acquisition advisors in 1987, according to rankings published in United States Banker.

"The addition of Lyons, Zomback & Ostrowski to The Advest Group's companies will enable us to better target and strengthen our service to the banking segment of the financial services industry," said Advest Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Anthony A. LaCroix.

Lyons, Zomback & Ostrowski will function as a separate subsidiary of The Advest Group, retain its present management and keep its present headquarters in New York City.

"The most important issue facing the banking industry today is capital," said John J. Lyons, managing principal of Lyons, Zomback & Ostrowski. "Advest's strength and commitment to that industry plus their broad retail distribution network will help us immeasurably in answering our clients' capital needs."

Lyons said he expected the acquisition to be completed by the middle of this month.

The Advest Group's stock closed unchanged Friday at $6.88 on the New York Stock Exchange. Its principal subsidiary, Advest Inc., is one of the leading regional brokerage firms.

Van Berg shooting for second straight Derby

By Ed Schuyler Jr.
The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — The filly Winning Colors won't be the only lady in the Kentucky Derby Saturday at Churchill Downs. Back for her 114th Derby appearance will be Lady Luck.

"My daddy always said he'd rather be lucky than good," said Jack Van Berg, who won the Derby last year with Alysheba.

Van Berg, who has been good, and lucky, enough to be the only trainer to saddle 5,000 winners, might need a special smile from the Lady Saturday.

He will saddle lightly regarded Din's Dancer in a field of 173-year-olds for the 1 1/4-mile Derby. If all go to the post at 5:33 p.m. EDT, under scale weight of 126 pounds, the race will be worth $786,200, with $811,200 to the winner.

The early favorites are Private Terms, who has won all seven of his career starts, and Winning Colors, the filly who thrashed eight male rivals in the 1 1/4-mile Santa Anita Derby April 9.

However, the race generally is considered to be wide open.

Asked to handicap the race, Charlie Whittingham, who trains Lively One and who has won more than 500 stakes, said, "Any one of a half dozen could win — maybe a dozen. It just depends on who has the luck."

At the top of the stretch in the 1986 Derby, Bill Shoemaker, riding the Whittingham-trained Ferdinand, and Pat Day, aboard Rampage, gunned their mounts toward the same hole. Ferdinand got there first and won the race.

"If you get in tough luck, like getting cut off, it's tough to come back again," said Charles Taylor of Windfields Farm, a co-owner of Canadian-bred Regal Classic. Windfields won the 1964 Derby with Canadian-bred Northern Dancer.

The luck of the draw appears to have been with Winning Colors and against Private Terms. The filly will start from post 11, while Private Terms will start from No. 16.

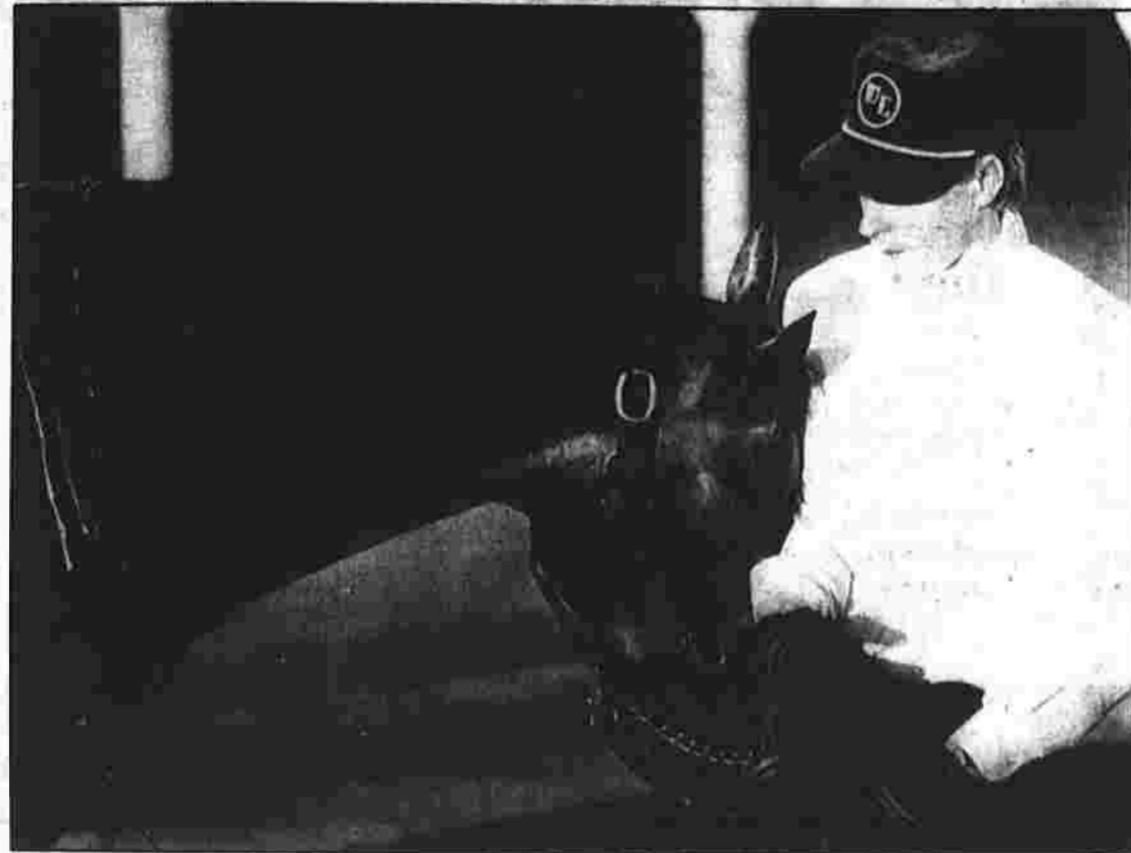

The most favorable Derby post-positions are generally believed to be from five through 12. However, Gato Del Sol won from No. 19 in 1983; Swale won from No. 15 in 1984; Ferdinand won from the rail in 1986 and Alysheba won out of the No. 3 last year.

Of course, there are worse things than a bad post position. Stalwars came down with a 102-degree fever Wednesday and wasn't entered.

Talking about the fickle fate and seemingly eternal optimism that are integral parts of horse racing, Gary Jones, who trains Stalwars, said, "A trainer once told me, 'I want to commit suicide, but I want to wait until Thursday to see how my maiden runs.'"

As usual, the Derby, which will be televised by ABC, is a study in contrasts.

Winning Colors will be the 13th starter for trainer D. Wayne Lukas, who will be seeking his first Derby riders of five Derby winners were Eddie Arcaro and Bill Hartack.

Winning Colors will be the 35th filly to start in the Derby and will be trying to become the third to win. The winners were Regret, 1915, and Genuine Risk, 1980.

Kingpost will be trying to become the eighth gelding to win the Derby and the first since Clyde Van Dusen broke from the No. 20 post to do it in 1929.

Private Terms will be trying to become the fifth unbeaten winner of the Derby, joining Regret, Morvich, 1922; Majestic Prince, 1969; and Seattle Slew, 1977. The last unbeaten Derby starter was Air Forbes Won, who finished seventh in 1982.

Regal Classic or Granacus could become the fifth Derby winner foaled outside the United States. Besides Northern Dancer in 1964, they were Sunny's Halo of Canada, 1969, and two colts foaled in England — Omar Khayyam, 1917, and Tomy Lee, 1959.

Charles Hadry will be saddling his first Derby starter in Private Terms, who worked three-eighths of a mile Friday in 39 1-5 seconds. Granacus, another Canadian-bred, sizzled the same distance in 35 flat.

Five jockeys will be riding in their first Derby. They are Chris Antley on Private Terms, Julio Pezua on Intensive Command, Pat Johnson on Sea Trek, Shane Romero on Jim's Orbit and Ken Desormeaux on Purdue King.

The 56-year-old Shoemaker will ride Lively One in his 26th Derby in a bid for a record-tying fifth victory. The Shoe won with Swaps, 1955; Tomy Lee, 1959; Lucky Debonair, 1965, and Ferdinand. The

Goodbye Halo races to win in Kentucky Oaks

By Ed Schuyler Jr.
The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Goodbye Halo took the lead from her pacemaker stablemate, Jeanne Jones, with a little more than a sixteenth of a mile remaining and won the $241,000 Kentucky Oaks Friday on Kentucky Derby eve at Churchill Downs.

Pat Day sent Goodbye Halo past Jeanne Jones and Bill Shoemaker on the outside for a 3 1/4-length victory in 1:50 2-5 for 1 1/4 miles.

Day will ride Forty Niner in the Derby while Shoemaker will be aboard Lively One.

The Goodbye Halo-Jeanne Jones entry is trained by Charlie Whittingham, who also trains Lively One.

Willa On The Move finished third, 1 1/4 lengths behind Jeanne Jones and had a five-race winning streak snapped.

Colonial Waters finished fourth, three lengths back of Willa On The Move, and was followed by Lost Kitty, Lucky Lydia, Most Likely, Joe's Tammie, On To Royalty and Fulbright Scholar. All carried 121 pounds.

It was the third victory in four starts this year for Goodbye Halo, who beat Winning Colors on Feb. 20 at Santa Anita. Winning Colors, trained by D. Wayne Lukas, is the only filly in the 17-horse Kentucky Derby field and is one of the favorites.

The entry paid $3.80, $3.80 and $2.60. Willa On The Move, ridden by Chris McCarron and owned by Lorraine R. Quinchett, returned $2.60 to show.

Goodbye Halo, owned by Arthur B. Hancock III and Alex Campbell Jr., earned $150,715.

Jeanne Jones and the Lukas-trained entry of Lost Kitty and Fulbright Scholar broke on top. When they passed under the wire the first time with a mile to go, Jeanne Jones led with Lost Kitty second and Fulbright Scholar third. Willa On The Move was fourth at that time.

They ran in that order around the turn and down the backstretch.

With a half-mile remaining, Willa On The Move had moved into second, ahead of Lost Kitty.

Jeanne Jones led them around the turn and when the field straightened for home with a quarter-mile remaining, Day had moved Goodbye Halo into the third spot and into position for the run to the wire.

A WINNER — Gabriela Sabatini, shown in a file photo, moved Friday into the semifinals of the Italian Open with a three-set victory over Sylvia Hanika.

Sabatini moves into semifinals

By Stephen Wilson
The Associated Press

ROME — Second-seeded Gabriela Sabatini, stunned in the first set, stormed from behind to defeat No. 7 Sylvia Hanika 3-6, 6-1, 6-1 Friday and reach the semifinals of the Italian Open women's tennis championships.

Sabatini advanced to a meeting with No. 13 Judith Wiesner of Austria, who earlier in the day upset No. 6 Sandra Cecchini of Italy 6-3, 6-3.

Also reaching the semifinals of the $200,000 clay court tournament were eighth-seeded Arantxa Sanchez of Spain and 18-year-old Helen Kelesi of Canada, the No. 14 seed.

Sanchez downed unseeded Bettina Fulco of Argentina 6-4, 6-4, while Kelesi upset fifth-seeded Raffaella Reggi of Italy 6-4, 6-3.

Sabatini, a 17-year-old Argentine ranked No. 5 in the world, survived a scare from the 28-year-old West German, 16th in the world.

Under a scorching sun on the center court of the Foro Italico, Sabatini broke serve for a 3-1 lead but Hanika ran off the next five games for the set.

"At 3-1, she started coming to the net and I couldn't concentrate again," Sabatini said.

The German left-hander, who was ranked No. 5 in 1983 but only recently returned to top form after a series of ailments, confused Sabatini with her low heavily-sliced backhand that denied the hard-hitting Argentine the pace she thrives on.

Looking flustered, Sabatini made numerous unforced errors and Hanika took the chance to sneak into the net for quick volley winners.

But after Hanika won the first game of the second set with a winning lob, the match turned around.

Sabatini, who has undergone vigorous training under a new coach to increase her stamina, showed new energy in the last two sets.

She got fired up when she knocked off a forehand volley winner in the third game of the second set and broke serve for a 2-1 lead. She ran out the set easily, breaking at love in the seventh game as a tired Hanika floated a forehand long on set point.

The third set was all Sabatini as she raced to a 5-0 lead before Hanika won her serve.

The Argentine showed all her talents in the second game of the final set. With Hanika serving, she punched two winning volleys, drilled a backhand winner from the baseline and fired a running forehand passing shot.

"I think I was too confident I was going to win the match," said Sabatini, who became the overwhelming favorite in the tournament after top-seeded Chris Evert pulled out Thursday with a foot injury. "But after the first set, the crowd helped me a lot."

Shipman grabs Crestar lead

By Joe Macenka
The Associated Press

SUFFOLK, Va. — Winless fourth-year pro Kim Shipman shot a career-best 7-under-par 65 Friday to open a three-shot lead after the first round of the LPGA's Crestar Classic.

Shipman, who needed only 27 putts to complete her round, was on track to tie the course record of 64, but bogeyed her final hole on the 6,215-yard Portsmouth Sleepy Hole Golf Course.

"I've been hitting it this way for quite a while," said the 25-year-old Shipman, who flew in from her Dallas home Wednesday night after receiving a two-day putting lesson from one of her instructors. "The only difference today was in making the putts."

Her closest competitors were Sherri Turner, who lost in a playoff at last week's Sara Lee Classic, and Missie Bertotti. Both carded 68s.

At 69 were Betsy King, Colleen Walker, Kathy Postlewait and defending Crestar Classic champion Jody Rosenthal.

Eleven golfers shot 2-under 70s, and a large group at 71 included Amy Alcott, the leading money-winner on the Tour this year.

Shipman's previous best was a 67 at the 1985 MasterCard International Pro-Am, where she tied for second, her best finish as a pro. Her top showing this season was a fourth-place tie last month at Los Angeles.

Shipman had missed the cut in all three of her previous appearances here.

"I really like the course," she said. "It just always fell at a bad time in my playing."

Playing in the morning and starting on the back nine, Shipman sank birdie putts of 18, 15 and 21 feet to make the turn in 33. She sank another 18-foot birdie putt on the par-4 first hole, then added birdie putts on the third through fifth holes to move to 7-under.

She put her tee shot at the 135-yard seventh hole to within five feet of the cup and made the birdie putt.

After parring No. 8, Shipman drove into the left rough on the 360-yard ninth hole. Her approach shot traveled only 30 yards and stayed in the left rough, and she needed a wedge and two putts for her lone bogey.

"I had a bad lie," Shipman said of her errant approach shot. "I just hit it fat."

Shipman was already 6-under when Turner began her round.

"At that point," Turner said, "I just felt like you've got to go out and do the best you can. The way I feel is if somebody's six under, there's a lot of birdies out there to be made."

The National Weather Service had predicted that showers which swamped the course Thursday would be back Friday, but only infrequent sprinkles appeared throughout the afternoon. Nonetheless, large pockets of standing water remained on the fairways and in many bunkers.

"The greens have a good texture to them," Bertotti said. "The fairways are fine, considering what happened."

The field will be cut to the low 70 scorers plus ties after Saturday's second round. First place in the $300,000 tournament is worth $45,000.

par-5's on the way to a seven-birdie round, but also had four bogies, two on par-3's. Zembriski and King, who like Nichols started their rounds on the back, each had four birdies against a lone bogey.

Tommy Aaron, Billy Casper, Doug Dalziel, Joe Jimenez and Jimmy Powell were at 70 while a group of 11 players at 71 included defending champion Chi Chi Rodriguez and 1986 winner Bruce Crampton.

The 72-man field was hampered throughout the day by winds gusting to 25 mph.

Nichols, taking the advice of his caddy-son, Rick, followed his drive on No. 9 with a nine-iron approach to within 12 feet of the cup.

"He knows my game pretty well and he got me to hit with my nine-iron and it worked out well," Nichols said.

"That wind is howling pretty good. The course is playing shorter than I would guess, mostly because of the winds, but also because of the hardness of the course."

Nichols said the par-5's on the 6,649-yard course makes it possible to trim some shots from par.

winner three years later. Bobby Rahal, also in the ROP in 1982, won the race in 1986.

Indy 500 rookie class talented one

By Steve Herman
The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indianapolis 500 rookie class of 1988 includes a 42-year-old judge, the grandson of a two-time winner and the nephew of another former winner.

Overall, it could be the most talented group of newcomers in recent memory, according to the U.S. Auto Club's competition director.

When the Speedway opens for practice on Saturday, eight rookies will be among the 40-plus drivers seeking spots in the 33-car field.

"Really, there's nobody flashy. But they're good, solid, reasonably young guys with a fair amount of experience in other cars," says USAC's Roger McCluskey, who saw six of the eight during the annual Rookie Orientation Program last weekend.

A seventh, Dominic Dobson, qualified at Indianapolis last year

Bolton Road Race Sunday

BOLTON — The 11th annual Bolton Road Race is set for Sunday at 1 p.m. The race, sponsored by the Bolton Lions' Club, will start and finish at Bolton High school on Brandy Street.

Entry fee is $6 day of the race. Teams may sign up at the team table on the day of the race. A minimum of three runners is required for a team.

Rain washes out schedule

The schoolboy schedule was washed out by Friday's inclement weather. Games postponed and their new dates were: Manchester boys and girls tennis against Windham to Tuesday.

Rod Sellers set to sign

The recruiting season is all but over for the University of Connecticut basketball team. Rod Sellers, a 6-foot-9, 205-pound center from Florence, S.C., indicated Friday he will sign a national letter of intent with the Huskies.

If Sellers signs a binding letter, that will bring UConn's total of scholarship players up to 15, the maximum allowed under NCAA guidelines.

Signing deadline for the spring is May 15. Sellers would join a freshman recruiting class that includes Chris Smith, Dan Cyrulik and Chris Fleming.

Fitch on the way out?

HOUSTON — The Houston Rockets have played their final match of a controversy-packed NBA campaign, and now another game begins — a guessing game over the future of the team and Coach Bill Fitch.

The Rockets two years ago were tagged as the next super team after they battled into the NBA finals against Boston with the Twin Towers, Ralph Sampson and Akem Olatujun.

Angels waive Bill Buckner

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Infielder Bill Buckner, the leader among active major leaguers with 2,607 career hits, was waived Friday by the California Angels.

The Angels also returned designated hitter Brian Downing to the active roster. Downing had been on the 15-day disabled list with a muscle strain in his left rib cage.

Rose's suspension is upheld by review panel

By Ben Walker
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Despite his explanation and videotapes, Cincinnati Reds manager Pete Rose managed to get only a three-day break Friday in his 30-day suspension for shoving an umpire.

A three-man review panel upheld the suspension imposed by National League president Bart Giamatti, but Giamatti snipped the length after hearing Rose's plea. It remained the harshest punishment for a manager in 40 years.

"I'm a whole lot disappointed. I thought then and now that the suspension is too long," Rose said. "It was wrong to touch an umpire, especially twice, but he provoked me by touching me in the face."

"I hate to say it, but I'd probably do it again if the same situation came up."

Rose was penalized for twice pushing umpire Dave Pallone in the ninth inning of Saturday night's Mets-Reds game at Riverfront Stadium.

Rose's $10,000 fine was left intact.

"I thought I'd get five or 10 days and a couple thousand dollars," Rose said at a news conference at his hotel after the panel's decision. "It'll all be forgotten when we win the West."

Giamatti, who imposed the punishment on Monday, counted this week as part of the suspension, which will now end June 1 instead of June 4. Rose has not managed since Sunday because he underwent arthroscopic knee surgery.

"The committee carefully reviewed all of the videotapes of the incident, heard evidence from Mr. Rose and his representative, and heard a full explanation of the reasons for the suspension from Mr. Giamatti," the league's Executive Committee said in a statement. "In view of all of the evidence and testimony heard, and after careful deliberation, the executive committee unanimously upholds the 30-day suspension imposed."

The panel which heard Rose's appeal consisted of Bill Bartholomay, board chairman of the Atlanta Braves; Claude Brochu, president of the Montreal Expos, and Chub Feeney, president of the San Diego Padres and former NL president.

Giamatti immediately said he was pleased with the decision and then modified the suspension.

"I have heard Mr. Rose's explanation, and in light of his service to baseball and the remorse expressed, I will count the time he has spent away from the team this week as part of his suspension," he said.

Rose met with Giamatti before facing the review board, hoping to persuade him to reduce the suspension to two weeks, the Associated Press learned. Giamatti was said to be amenable to lessening the month-long penalty, but not to 14 days.

Rose will be permitted to be in uniform during the suspension but he cannot be in the dugout during the game.

Rose arrived at league headquarters with videotapes and accompanied by his lawyer, Reuven Katz, and Reds general manager Murray Cook. "I was given the opportunity to present my case," Rose said. "I thought we had a strong case." Giamatti previously cited unruly behavior by the fans as one reason for the stiff penalty. The umpires were showered with debris, forcing Pallone to leave the game.

"The garbage came on the field because of that bad call," Rose said, referring to Pallone's delayed call of a play at first base.

Rose said it was five minutes after he left the field before the debris was thrown.

"This was the one appeal we get. It's over and we accept it for that," Katz, Rose's attorney said.

All morning, NL offices were flooded with phone calls from Reds fans who wanted to know if Rose won his appeal.

Rose said Giamatti has never acknowledged that

Pallone poked the manager in the face. "I gather Bart's whole problem is me pushing the umpire," said Rose, who earlier this week displayed a red mark on his cheek he said was put there by Giamatti's finger.

Pallone says the argument was so heated he does not know if he did poke Rose.

"I have no idea whether or not I touched him with my finger. I have seen film clips, still photographs and slow-motion stills and I still have not seen any evidence whether I touched him on the cheek," Pallone said.

The umpire made his first public comment on the episode to David Raymond, the Philly Phœnic mascot for Phillies' home games and a radio reporter for WDEL in Wilmington, Del.

The comments appeared in Rich Ashburn's column in the Philadelphia Daily News.

Yzerman set to play in Game 3 for Wings

By Ken Rappoport
The Associated Press

DETROIT — The Detroit Red Wings will have some extra ammunition for Game 3 of the Campbell Conference finals against Edmonton Saturday night at the Joe Louis Arena.

The Wings said Friday that their top scorer, Steve Yzerman, will play for the first time in the playoffs.

Yzerman has not played since March 1, when he suffered a severe knee injury after crashing into a goal post. The injury came just minutes after he scored his 50th goal of the season.

The Red Wings finished first in the Norris Division and knocked off Toronto and St. Louis in the first two rounds of the Stanley Cup playoffs without Yzerman. But they have only managed four goals in losing the first two games of the conference finals against the Oilers.

Yzerman has been practicing for the past week, and coach Jacques Demers said Friday that suiting him up will not be a medical risk.

"There is absolutely no gamble in allowing him to return," Demers said in a statement. "We've been putting him through strenuous workouts and there is no swelling in the knee. The doctors (team physician Dr. Robert Teitz and Dr. William Clancy of the University of Wisconsin-Madison) have said it's all right for him to play and Steve and I have agreed that he's ready."

Demers said the Wings' two-game deficit was not a factor in his star's return as the series shifts back to Detroit.

"I want to emphasize that Steve isn't rushing back just because we're down two games to zero in this series.

He's coming back because he can play and help the team," he said.

Saturday's game may be rougher than the first two contests. In following up their 4-1 win in the opener with a 5-3 victory Thursday night, the Oilers didn't win any friends among the Red Wings. Many Detroit players were upset over an injury to goaltender Greg Stefan, who left the game when knocked flat behind the net by Oilers forward Craig Simpson early in the second period.

Simpson did not receive a penalty and the Oilers wound up with a power play when Steve Chiasson cross-checked Simpson after the whistle blew.

"There's no need for that," said Glen Hanlon, who replaced Stefan and was shelled for all five Edmonton goals. "I hated to see it. I had to let them know what was going on."

It was at that point that Hanlon started swinging his stick at just about any Oiler who came near his crease. That included Simpson, who Hanlon considered the heavy.

"I wasn't expecting it," Simpson said of one of Hanlon's slashes that stunned him more than hurt him. "Goaltenders do that, but it still surprised me."

As it turned out, Stefan was all right. His injury was diagnosed as "a sore neck."

But Hanlon seemed a lot sorer than that.

"It's an unwritten code," he said. "You don't blind-side a goaltender. It was hard for me to keep my composure after that."

Simpson claimed innocence. "It definitely was an accident," he said. "I was going full-speed to get to the puck and my shoulder got his head."

Viola, Twins blanks Bosox

AL Roundup

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Frank Viola pitched a seven-hitter for his second straight shutout, and the Minnesota Twins beat the Boston Red Sox 5-0 Friday night. The Red Sox played the game under protest after three balks on Jeff Sellers contributed in two Twins runs.

Viola, 4-1, struck out six and walked none as he completed his second game of the season. He threw a five-hit shutout against the Red Sox last May 1 in a 2-0 victory.

Two balks by Sellers helped Minnesota score two runs in the fourth inning.

Tom Herr walked and Kirby Puckett flied out to center to start the inning. Herr stole second, and Kent Hrbek walked. With Gary Gaetti batting, Sellers was called for a balk, advancing the runners to second and third.

Gaetti followed with a single, scoring Herr. With runners on first and third, third base umpire Dan Morrison called Sellers for his third balk of the game, allowing Hrbek to score.

Red Sox Manager John McNamara argued the call for approximately 10 minutes and announced he was protesting the game. Sellers was also called for a balk in the second inning.

Minnesota scored its third run in the sixth inning when Randy Bush hit a fielder's choice grounder, scoring Herr from third.

The Twins tacked on two more in the seventh and chased Sellers. Puckett did the damage with a two-run single.

Rangers 7, Yankees 6

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Pete Incaviglia hit a home run and two doubles, and the Texas Rangers held on for a 7-6 victory over the New York Yankees Friday night.

Trailing 7-1, the Yankees scored five runs in the ninth on two bases-loaded walks, a balk on Jeff Russell, and a two-run single by Don Slaught.

Paul Kilgus, 4-2, got the victory, scattering seven hits, striking out three and walking two over seven innings. New York starter Al Leiter, 3-2, lasted only two innings because of flu symptoms. He got the loss because of Incaviglia's 435-foot solo homer to left in the second.

Incaviglia, who went 0-for-18 to start the season, doubled in the fifth and seventh innings, finishing the night 3-for-4 with two RBI and scoring twice. Steve Buechele's homer to left, after Mike Stanley's walk, improved the Rangers' lead to 3-0 off reliever Tim Stoddard in the fourth inning.

Four more Texas runs in the fifth put the game out of reach. Bob Brower doubled to right and moved to third on Scott Fletcher's sacrifice bunt. After Ruben Sierra walked, Incaviglia doubled to left-center for the first run.

Stoddard walked Pete O'Brien intentionally to load the bases, and Larry Parrish responded with a two-run single. Mike Stanley's sacrifice fly scored O'Brien with the fourth run of the inning.

Dale Mohorcic pitched the eighth, and Mitch Williams walked the bases loaded in the ninth. Don Mattingly then struck out and was ejected for arguing balls and strikes with homeplate umpire Tim Welke. Yankees Manager Billy Martin also was ejected after kicking dirt on Welke.

Brewers 4, Royals 0

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Chris Bosio shut down Kansas City on five hits Friday night, outdueling Floyd Bannister and pitching the Milwaukee Brewers past the Royals 4-0 for their seventh straight victory.

Bosio, 5-2, had two walks and three strikeouts and raised his career record to 3-0 against the Royals, who have lost three in a row. The complete game was Bosio's fifth of the season, and the shutout his first.

GOT HIM — Chicago second baseman Ryne Sandberg moves to tag out San Francisco's Brett Butler during a third-inning steal attempt Friday at Wrigley Field. The Cubs won, 3-2.

Pirates turn back Padres

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Sid Bream hit a three-run homer with two outs in the 12th inning as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat San Diego 4-1 Friday night, sending the Padres to their sixth consecutive defeat.

Mark Davis, 1-1, the Padres' third pitcher, retired the first two batters in the 12th to lead his scoreless streak to 20 2-3 innings, before Andy Van Slyke singled and Bobby Bonilla walked.

Bream, who had popped out in his previous two at-bats with runners in scoring position, then hit a 0-1 pitch over the right-field fence for his second home run of the season. Bream had singled in the Pirates' first run in the first inning.

Barry Jones, 1-0, pitched the 12th for the victory and remained unscathed upon in 11 innings this season.

Expos 6, Astros 5

MONTREAL (AP) — Tim Raines singled home Jeff Reed with one out in the 11th inning to give the Montreal Expos a 6-5 victory over the Houston Astros Friday night.

Reed led off the 11th with a double off Ernie Camacho, 0-2, and Herman Winningham then walked. One out later, Mitch Webster walked to load the bases before Raines singled to score Reed.

Bob McClure, 1-1, pitched one inning for the victory.

With one out in the ninth, Alan Ashby homered off Montreal reliever Tim Burke to tie the score 5-5. Reed had tripled home Andres Galarraga in the eighth inning to give the Expos the lead.

The Astros tied the score 4-4 in the top of the eighth on Glenn Davis' run-scoring grounder.

NL Roundup

Cubs 3, Giants 2

CHICAGO (AP) — Ryne Sandberg and Jim Sundberg hit solo home runs Friday to lead the Chicago Cubs to their fourth straight victory, a 3-2 triumph over the San Francisco Giants.

Sandberg's homer, his fifth, came off loser Mike LaCoss, 1-3, with one out in the fifth inning and snapped a 1-1 tie. Sundberg hit his first of the season in the sixth inning off reliever Atlee Hammaker.

Mike Maddux, 5-2, allowed one run on seven hits in 7 1/3 innings. He walked one and struck out seven before being relieved by Frank DiPino with one out and runners on first and second in the eighth inning. DiPino got pinch-hitter Joel Youngblood to hit into a fielder's choice, but walked Will Clark to load the bases.

Les Lancaster then came on and struck out Kevin Mitchell and Rich Gossage pitched the ninth for his fourth save, allowing the Giants' final run on Jeffrey Leonard's single, a groundout, a balk and Candy Maldonado's RBI grounder.

Phillies 7, Braves 3

ATLANTA (AP) — Shane Rawley allowed six hits in 7 1/3 innings for his first victory of the season and Juan Samuel drove in three runs as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Atlanta Braves 7-3 Friday night.

Rawley, 1-3, walked three and struck out two en route to his first victory since last Aug. 31. The left-hander had lost 10 straight since last season.

The victory snapped the Phillies' three-game losing streak and dropped the Braves' record at home to 1-12.

The Phillies scored four runs in the first inning off Tom Glavine, 1-4. Bob Dernier led off the game with the first of his four consecutive singles and Phil Bradley and Samuel followed with singles for one run.

Mike Schmidt then walked to load the bases and Lance Parrish hit a sacrifice fly before Von Hayes walked reloading the bases. Mike Young then bounced to short and when second baseman Ron Gant's relay to first trying to get a double play was wild, Samuel and Schmidt scored.

The Phillies added two runs in the second when Dernier again led off with a single and was doubled to third by Bradley. Samuel scored Dernier with a bounce to short and Parrish drove in a run with a bloop single.

Dodgers 10, Cardinals 2

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Fernando Valenzuela threw a five-hitter and Mike Marshall hit his third home run in as many games as the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 10-2 Friday night for their fourth straight victory.

Valenzuela, 3-3, struck out two and walked four en route to his second complete game. He was backed by a 14-hit attack to win a rematch against Randy O'Neal, 2-2.

O'Neal had a shutout for 8 2/3 innings April 30 as St. Louis won 5-2 in Los Angeles, but allowed eight hits and seven runs in 4 1/3 innings Friday.

NHL playoff game Friday night at the Meadowlands. The Bruins won, 6-1.

Bruins beat Devils for 2-1 lead

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Ray Bourque set up scores by Ken Linseman, Bob Joyce and Lyndon Byers in a 73-second span, triggering a five-goal second period that carried the Boston Bruins to a 6-1 victory over the New Jersey Devils in Game 3 of the Wales Conference finals Friday night. The victory gave the Bruins a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series, and was the Devils' third straight playoff loss at the Brendan Byrne Arena, where Game 4 is scheduled for Sunday night.

The loss also marked the first time in three playoff series that New Jersey has trailed after three games.

Neither team scored in the opening 20 minutes. But penalties against New Jersey's Pat Verbeek and Kirk Muller of the Devils with 30 seconds to go in the period gave Boston a power play for the opening 3:30 of the second period.

That was all the Bruins needed to solve Devils' rookie goaltender Sean Burke, who stopped 39 shots in Game 2 and made several good stops in the opening period.

Linseman, who had two goals and two assists, got Boston on the board at 1:05, one-timing a pass from Bourque in the faceoff circle to the left of Burke past the rookie's glove hand on the short side.

Joyce scored 58 seconds later, also on a power play, tipping Gord Kluzak's shot from the point past Burke after Bourque started the play.

Byers' first goal of the playoffs came 15 seconds later and capped a 2-on-1 break with Steve Kasper after Bourque hit Kasper with a breakout pass.

NEW YORK — Larry Bird scored 10 of his 28 points in the fourth quarter Friday night, leading the Boston Celtics to a 102-94 victory over the New York Knicks and a 3-1 win in their first-round NBA playoff series.

The final period had eight lead changes, the last one on a basket by Dennis Johnson that gave the Celtics an 87-85 edge with 3:38 remaining.

New York, behind rookie guard Mark Jackson, outscored the Celtics 27-11 to take a six-point lead in the fourth quarter, but Bird and Johnson led the way as the Celtics finished the game with a 25-11 run. Johnson had nine of his 19 points and Bird added six in the final 6:09.

Jackson, averaging less than 10 points in the first three games of the series, led New York with 28 points, 21 of them in the second half. Johnny Newman scored 25 points, Gerald Wilkins 18 and Patrick Ewing grabbed 20 rebounds for the Knicks.

Kevin McHale scored 20 points and Robert Parish had 18 points and 12 rebounds for Boston.

The Celtics, who led by as many as 13 points in the first quarter, saw the Knicks close within four five times before an 8-2 run, capped by Bird's 3-pointer, gave Boston a 66-56 lead with 5:10 left in the third period.

But the Knicks held Boston to five points the rest of the period, cutting the deficit to 71-70. Wilkins then hit the first basket of the fourth period, giving New York its first lead since 2-0.

Boston grabbed a 77-75 lead with 9:41 left on a fast-break layup by Danny Ainge before the Knicks scored eight straight points for an 83-77 advantage with 6:23 left. At that point, the Knicks had scored 27 of the previous 38 points, with Jackson scoring 11.

The Celtics, who meet the Atlanta-Milwaukee winner on Sunday, then started their decisive spurt, preventing a deciding fifth meeting in Boston Garden.

Bucks 105, Hawks 99

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Terry Cummings and Jack Sikma led a fourth-quarter rally as the Milwaukee Bucks beat the Atlanta Hawks 105-99 Friday night to even their first-round NBA playoff series at 2-2.

The fifth and deciding game will be played Sunday in Atlanta.

Cummings scored 30 points for the second straight game, including nine in the fourth quarter while Sikma had eight of his 23 in the final period.

The Bucks trailed by four points in the fourth quarter, but Sidney Moncrief, Sikma and Cummings brought Milwaukee back in an 11-2 run before a frenzied crowd at the Milwaukee Arena.

Atlanta took an 83-79 lead on two free throws by Kevin Willis and Glenn Rivers' steal and dunk. But Paul Pressey made two free throws for the Bucks and Moncrief took an inbound pass and fired in a 3-pointer to give Milwaukee an 84-83 lead with 7:03 remaining. The Bucks led the rest of the way.
