Cost comparisons sought for new revaluation

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Manchester Herald

A subcommittee of the town Board of Directors took the first step Tuesday toward redrawing the 1987 revaluation when it asked the administration to determine the feasibility and costs of an in-house revaluation and for one performed by an outside consultant.

The subcommittee, which has been studying the revaluation since problems arose two months ago, also decided against having the Chicago-based International Association of Assessing Officers do an analysis to find out whether the scrapped 1987 revaluation was carried out correctly. The town has until 1991 to redo the revaluation under a bill passed by the General Assembly last week.

The subcommittee asked the administration to find out from the International Association of Assessing Officers and from the state Office of Policy and Management what computer programs are recommended for an in-house revaluation. The subcommittee also asked that the administration begin putting together specifications for requests for proposals to have an outside firm do a new revaluation.

Administration officials told the subcommittee that they favored having a revaluation done by an outside firm to avoid the problems encountered in compiling the 1987 revaluation Grand List.

Sticky situation of losses like 'two porcupines mating'

By Nancy Conzelmann
Manchester Herald

Pioneer Systems Inc. is trying to protect more than 80 Manchester jobs in the wake of a pending agreement by the company to sell some of its operating assets. The company president said Tuesday, but Alan Greenstadt compared the sticky situation created by millions of dollars in operating losses as "two porcupines mating."

Greenstadt said the company's board of directors decided to offer for the operating assets "was in the best interest of the shareholders to accept." Between 80 and 100 people work at the Manchester facility, down from 130 in January. Greenstadt said the company has been laying off employees for a number of years since it decided to restructure in 1984.

Even if a contract is signed, Greenstadt said, Pioneer had been looking at sites in the Manchester area, including Vernon and South Windsor, because many of the company's workers live in the area. Robert Weinberg, president of Economy Electric Supply Inc., bought the Pioneer building in 1986 and the company now leases it.

"It appears as though we would probably change locations," he said. "This facility is designed for a type of manufacturing that we no longer do. The options we have here for places to go in the immediate area are wide open."

Stock story off the mark

By Nancy Pappos
Manchester Herald

Two Manchester pharmacists who were selling the Humco brand of the children's medicine ibuprofen have removed it from their shelves after learning that the toxic eucalyptus oil may be in the bottles instead, said William Ward, director of the Drug Control Division of the State Department of Consumer Protection.

Toxic medicine removed from shelves

Approximately 30 retailers in Connecticut at least two of them in Manchester — carried the Humco brand of ibuprofen. After the recall, according to Westown, some bottles of the nationwide 200,000 bottles had already been purchased when the recall was issued.

All bets are off as state computers fail

By The Associated Press
and the Manchester Herald

The Connecticut lottery system was crippled by the failure of a new multi-million computer network gone "bonkers," threatening a delay that could cost the state a big chunk of its $3 billion average weekly profit.

Thoughts

While vacationing in the Finger Lakes Region of upper New York state, my family and I decided to ride up into the hills. Wanting to take pictures of the lake, we finally drove onto a gravel road almost overgrown with weeds where we came upon a friendly old man tending a few goats along the road.

Directors want data on Greenwood Drive

The Board of Directors wants information on the actual cost of reconstructing Greenwood Drive and the need for the work before approving the project.

CRACKDOWN - Tax Commissioner Timothy Bannan is surrounded by meal containers at a Hartford news conference Tuesday. He said $1,000 in tax money could buy 338 meals for homebound senior citizens.

State opens hot line to report tax cheats

HARTFORD (AP) - The state tax department is trying a new tack in a crackdown on those not paying their taxes. It wants the public to turn them in over a toll-free telephone line. "There is no free ride in Connecticut," Revenue Services Commissioner Timothy F. Bannan said Tuesday. "We are calling upon honest taxpayers to turn in those individuals who they suspect are not meeting their tax obligation to the state. "By doing so, we all benefit through increased revenues, which fund vital state programs and services." His agency is promoting the effort by sending posters to libraries, city halls and other public buildings around the state. The whistleblower number is 1-800-232-FAIR. Bannan said it was impossible to estimate how much the state loses each year to tax fraud, but he said he was certain it was a significant amount of money.

Education key to town recycling plan

By Andrew J. Davis
Manchester Herald

Educating the public is of paramount importance if town recycling efforts are to be successful, a town official told the Conservation Commission Tuesday. Lee O'Connor, acting superintendent of the highway and sanitation divisions, appeared before the Conservation Commission to update commission members on the town's proposal for recycling. Recycling will become mandatory throughout the state in January 1991.

Higher cost stalls OK for drainage system

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Manchester Herald

A nearly $200,000 increase in the cost of a drainage system to serve New State Road prompted skepticism Tuesday night among members of the town Board of Directors. The board voted unanimously to table action on a request by Manchester Lumber Inc. to have the town reimburse it for the additional cost under the town Industrial Guidelines program.

Coventry PZC continues hearing on 55-lot request

COVENTRY - A public hearing on a proposed 55-lot subdivision for a development of houses off Broad Way, to be called North Coventry Farms, was continued to May 23 by the Planning and Zoning Commission Monday night.

Town Planner Robert Iner said Tuesday. "The town attorney (Abbot Schwelbe) has a problem with a 4,200-foot cul-de-sac serving 54 homes." Iner said town zoning regulations allow 650-foot dead ends serving no more than 20 homes. He said his department now gets 10 to 15 tips a month. Bannan said the phone line is an extension of a tax crackdown announced earlier this year dubbed Fair Audits. Increased Revenues, or FAIR. That program, which formally begins July 1, includes the hiring of 90 auditors who will try to track down out-of-state companies owing Connecticut taxes.

about 1,000 households in the North End is expected to begin in September, O'Connor said. If successful, the town hopes to expand the program in February. The pilot program will include residents who live north of Middle Turnpike - bordered on the west by Main Street, on the north by North Main and Woodbridge streets, and on the east by Princeton Street. Residents, on a voluntary basis, would separate their recyclables - bottles, cans and paper - from non-recyclable garbage at the curb. Even though mandatory recycling does not go into effect for under which the town reimburses developers for making infrastructure improvements. The cost of the drainage system, which would serve Manchester Lumber and other businesses on the street, was estimated by engineers for the company last year at $206,000 and is now estimated at $392,512. The board voted unanimously to table action on a request by Manchester Lumber Inc. to have the town reimburse it for the additional cost under the town Industrial Guidelines program.

three years, by starting the program sooner, residents will hopefully become accustomed to recycling efforts before then, O'Connor said. But all efforts rest upon the town educating the public on the importance of recycling, O'Connor said. A letter and questionnaire to residents who will be involved in the pilot program is being written, and should be mailed next month, he said. "The thing is educating the people," O'Connor said. "How do we educate the people? The state has their ways. It's up to the town to do theirs." Preliminary plans call for the education of residents via newspapers, public hearings and posting of fliers in stores, he said. In addition to the state law, recycling is important because landfill space around the state is hard to find, he said. The town also plans to go out to bid next month to find a recycling company, O'Connor said. If a company can be found soon for both the pilot program and thereafter, Manchester will be ahead of other towns who are also trying to make the 1991 deadline. The state law, passed last year, prohibits a landfill from accepting designated recyclables after Jan. 1, 1991.

Officials dispute acid lakes claim

NEW LONDON (AP) - A state official has disputed a National Wildlife Federation claim that 11 Connecticut lakes are acidic or on the verge of becoming acidic because of acid rain. Charles O. Fredette, principal sanitary engineer with the state Department of Environmental Protection's water compliance unit, said that while Connecticut has acid rain, no lakes have been affected. Fredette said natural conditions are responsible for the acidity of lakes on the wildlife federation's list. "The soil conditions of the watershed determines the alkalinity of the lakes, not the conditions of the rainfall," Fredette said.

Rainfall in Connecticut is more acidic than children's sweat, he said. "But we haven't been able to attribute the acidity of any of our lakes to the acid in our precipitation." Acid rain is caused when industrial emissions of sulfur dioxide and oxides of nitrogen mix with water in the atmosphere to become sulfuric acid and nitric acid. It can occur as rain, snow, frost and fog.

The federation's 116-page report, "Acid Lakes Directory," lists 1,734 large lakes that U.S. Environmental Protection Agency surveys have identified as acidified or in danger of becoming acidified by acid rain. The report contends acid rain has killed fish in 200 lakes in the Adirondack Mountains of New York, one of the hardest-hit areas of the country. "Lost lakes are resources denied to our children," said Jay D. Hair, president of the wildlife federation. "But as bad as that is, this problem is only a part of the array of acid rain impacts." Amy Cull, a spokeswoman for the federation, said the 11 lakes affected in Connecticut, eight are in the eastern half of the state, including Pickerel Lake in Colchester and Bailey Pond in Voluntown. In Windham County, Killingly Pond in Killingly; Long Pond in Ledyard and North Stonington; Morey Pond in Ashford and Union; Quinebaug Pond in Killingly and an unnamed large pond are acidic or on the verge of becoming acidic, the report found.

In Middlesex County, Foster's Pond in Killingworth is close to being acidic, Cull said. In New Haven County, Lane Pond in Guilford is affected, while in Litchfield County, Riga Lake in Salisbury is on the verge of acidity. In Hartford County, Hartland Pond in Hartland is affected, Cull said.

The federation's report is timed to coincide with a visit to the United States later this month by Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, who has been seeking a bilateral accord with the United States to combat acid rain pollution. Almost half of Canada's acid rain problem is believed to be caused by pollutants coming from the United States.

Hair said the wildlife federation supports federal legislation calling for a 50 percent cut in sulfur dioxide emissions and similar reductions in nitrogen dioxide emissions.

O'Neill signs tax relief bill

HARTFORD (AP) - A bill providing $18 million in property tax relief has been signed into law by Gov. William A. O'Neill who, in doing so, made it clear he was unhappy that the General Assembly had spurred some provisions he had recommended. But at the same time, the governor said he was pleased the bill didn't contain so-called bimested exemptions, a provision favored by the Democratic majority in the Senate that would have allowed towns to exempt the first $25,000 of the value of residential and commercial property from the local property tax. O'Neill had promised to veto the bill if those exemptions were included in the final version. Senate Democrats ultimately agreed to delete them.

The new law, signed Tuesday by O'Neill, is designed to help homeowners in towns undergoing property revaluation, which generally results in higher taxes for residential property owners. The law also includes an expansion of the circuit-breaker program for low-income elderly homeowners and renters, making more eligible by increasing income guidelines. Not included in the bill was O'Neill's proposal for revaluations every five years, rather than every 10 as now required, and additional money to towns to make up for tax-exempt property, such as colleges and hospitals, within their borders.

One other rejected O'Neill proposal would have provided more money to the state Office of Policy and Management for staff and equipment to assist towns in appraising property and collecting taxes. "Although the General Assembly agreed to study more frequent revaluations and to study other methods of tax collection, I feel we could have moved immediately to address these areas," O'Neill said in a statement announcing he had signed the legislation. Under the bill, residential taxpayers in towns undergoing revaluation can get credits on their tax bills of up to $250. Those credits would be phased out over five years, with the final credit at $50.

That program only applies in towns where revaluation caused the tax rate to be 1.3 percent or more of the market value of the average home in that community. Income guidelines for those eligible for elderly circuit-breaker relief were also increased, from $13,500 to $16,500 for singles over the age of 65 and from $16,200 to $20,000 for couples.

Homeowners could get credits on their property tax bills of up to $1,250 and renters could get direct grants of up to $900.

STATE & REGION

Evidence is allowed

NEW LONDON - The judge in Richard Crafts' murder trial has ruled that the state may submit as evidence the results of a test showing how a wood chipping machine grinds pig bones. Judge Barry Schaller's ruling Tuesday clears the way for the state to attempt to show how a wood chipper, like one rented by Crafts, cuts wood chips and human bones into small pieces. Crafts, 56, of Newtown is charged with murdering his wife, Helie, 39, on Nov. 18, 1986, and disposing of her body with a chainsaw and wood chipping machine on Nov. 21.

Helie Crafts' body was never found, but several pieces of bone, body tissue, a tooth, a fingernail, a toenail, a piece of finger and hair strands were found on the banks of the Housatonic River in Southbury, where a highway worker said he saw an unidentified man with a rental truck and a wood chipper on Nov. 21.

Bus strike continues

WATERBURY - Striking employees of the bus company that serves the Waterbury area have unanimously rejected a second contract proposal, pushing the walkout into an eleventh day today. The vote Tuesday among nearly all 38 striking employees of North East Transportation Co. was unanimous, said Perley Rossignol, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 677. The workers struck on May 1 after rejecting the first contract proposal 49-3.

Harry Filippone, North East's chief executive officer, said the bargaining unit's "economic demands are astronomical." He said no further negotiations have been scheduled.

No Spanish allowed

NEW LONDON - Hispanic workers at a nursing home have been told they can no longer speak their native tongue while they're on the job, an order some of the workers have challenged as discriminatory. "I continue to speak Spanish," said Doris Leal, a nurse aide at Nutmeg Pavilion Healthcare. "Maybe I'm going to be fired, but I'm going to fight for my rights."

"I don't feel comfortable in my job anymore," said Maria Rivera, another aide at Nutmeg. "I don't feel free when I'm working, so it's very difficult to do the job." Officials outlined the policy to employees at a staff meeting Thursday, according to a report in The Day newspaper.

Fire labeled arson

WEST HAVEN - A synagogue heavily damaged in a fire ruled an arson had been the past target of swastika-painting vandals, but the rabbi said he doesn't believe the blaze will prove to be an act of anti-Semitism. A three-alarm fire at Congregation Sinai destroyed a small chapel used for weekday services, a classroom and offices, but left the main sanctuary of West Haven's only synagogue largely untouched except for some light smoke and water damage. It also charred the side of an adjacent home. The fast-moving fire broke out late Monday afternoon.

Train smoking urged

HARTFORD - State Rep. J. Vincent Chase called on Gov. William A. O'Neill to issue an executive order lifting the ban on smoking on Metro North commuter trains. A bill that would have accomplished that died when the General Assembly adjourned last week without acting on it. The bill would have required Metro North trains with five or more cars to have a smoking car. "By creating a designated smoking area... the governor can act in a fair manner that is sure to please both smokers and non-smokers," said Chase. R-Stratford, who led the fight for the bill this year.

Needle exchange backed

NEW HAVEN - The Mayor's Task Force on AIDS is endorsing development of a pilot program that would allow intravenous drug users to trade in their dirty needles and syringes for clean ones. The unanimous vote Tuesday marked the first time a government body in Connecticut has taken a position on the AIDS-prevention method known as needle exchange. The action was advisory only and will not result directly in distribution of needles to addicts. The sale or possession of needles and syringes without a doctor's prescription is illegal in Connecticut and 10 other states.

Bipartisan budgeting gains support

Democratic Director Barbara B. Weinberg proposed Tuesday that the town budget, which has in practice been set by the Democratic majority, be worked out on a bipartisan basis in the future. The proposal was supported by Mayor Peter P. DiRosio Jr. and by Republican directors. Democratic Director James F. "Dutch" Fogarty, however, said that if the budget is worked out jointly, the two parties will probably come up with a

"loaded" budget. He suggested that the adversarial relationship between the Democrats and the Republicans kept the budget honest. "We should work together, that's what we're here for," said Republican Director Theunis "Terry" Werkhoven. Republican Director Geoffrey Naab, who had supported the idea of a bipartisan budget before the 1988-89 budget was adopted, said that he supported Weinberg's recommendation.

Hungry children can't learn

In the best of worlds, Board of Education members Francis Maffe and John Tucci would be quite right to object to holding schools responsible for serving breakfast. If all parents were able and willing to fulfill their obligation to send children to school well fed and prepared to learn, the schools would be in a far better position to do the job for which they are best equipped — teaching.

Over the objection of Maffe and Tucci, the majority of the Board of Education voted Monday to extend to Nathan Hale and Robertson schools a program of free and reduced-cost breakfasts which has been in existence at Washington School and at the Regional Occupational Training Center.

Maffe argued that feeding the students breakfast is the responsibility of the parents, not the schools, and he objected to "parents getting off the hook."

There is no doubt that those parents will take advantage of the program when with a little more effort they could provide breakfast at home.

And there is no doubt that if schools could devote their full attention to teaching, the quality of education would increase.

But it is just as clear that the quality of education suffers when teachers try to teach children who can't pay attention because they are hungry.

As one member of the Nathan Hale Parent-Teacher Association put it, "A hungry child cannot learn."

Teachers and school administrators would, no doubt, like to be freed from the non-educational responsibilities. Unfortunately, the need for a good breakfast is a prerequisite to learning, however, and it is a problem the schools have to face.

It would be ideal if some way could be found to be sure that the breakfast program is used only by those parents who have a clear economic need for it and not by those for whom it is merely a convenience. The income limits, while not a perfect control, are the best guidelines available and should be enforced.

A solution to the Israeli and PLO conflict

Editor's note: Michael Dworkin, a Manchester pharmacist, visited Israel last month and arranged a private interview with retired Israeli Gen. Rafael Eitan, the Tzomet Party candidate for prime minister.

By Michael Dworkin

Rafael Eitan, the Tzomet Party candidate for prime minister of Israel, is a retired general and former chief of staff and head of Israel's Defense Ministry Intelligence Unit.

He was born in 1929. He enlisted in the ranks during Israel's war for independence in 1948, and he fought in all of Israel's five wars, rising to the highest possible rank — chief of staff. He lost two sons in the wars and recently retired to his family farm at Moshav Tel Adoshim, where he processes and sells pure virgin olive oil and works in his carpentry shop.

QUESTION: What is your solution for the West Bank and Gaza conflict?

ANSWER: The West Bank is an integral part of Israel. The Arabs living there can enjoy Israeli law or leave. They live in the only democracy in the Middle East and enjoy many freedoms they do not have in the other Arab lands.

QUESTION: What do you think about the Shultz plan and its "land for peace"?

ANSWER: The Shultz plan is little different from the Rogers plan or the Reagan plan. It is unacceptable to Israel. It is not logical that little Israel, smaller than Massachusetts and Connecticut combined, should be asked to cede territory to the Arabs, whose combined territories are equal to all of the United States. They should give Israel territory in return for peace and allow

Let's encourage, praise good kids

To the Editor:

We at Bennett Junior High School commend you for publicizing on the front page of the May 5 edition of the Manchester Herald, news about the "readathon" held at the Manchester Parkade on May 4.

This event was sponsored by the Literacy Volunteers of America, whom we strongly support in their efforts to teach 27 million illiterate adults in America.

Manchester teachers who very diligently at developing and encouraging reading proficiency in our students, as well as a love for books. An opportunity to participate in this worthwhile endeavor seemed too good to pass up.

So, despite little advance notice and only three days in which to raise money through pledges to read for money donated by concerned adults and students, Bennett students managed to amass $371.86 which we donated to the LVA.

What was the lure? Twenty- and 15-dollar gift certificates for the two top pledge-getters to Reed's book store in the Parkade. Not cash — not records or video games — but books for prizes! And these so-called "TV-viders" teen-age fanatics raised more than $370 in three days!

Six of our students, two from each grade (7, 8, 9), represented the 600 students of Bennett by dressing in their best clothes and nervously but competently reading into a microphone in front of a group of intent adults.

What a twist, too! Kids helping adults learn to read, and you barely mentioned that they were there.

We are very proud of our students and wish that your reporter had had the foresight to ask more probing questions of the students or even venture to query the teachers who were present. With all the prominent news stories about drug-addicted, alcoholic, violent teen-agers abound in the media, let's encourage and praise the good kids who care enough to reach out and help others to share in their joy of reading!

Patricia M. Myette

Editor's note: About 50 Manchester volunteers participated in the readathon and it was impossible to name or quote all of them. The Herald reported the participation of Bennett students and quoted one of them.

Tax could offset cost of benefits

To the Editor:

In a footnote to the U.S. Supreme Court which ruled on the eligibility of two recovering alcoholic veterans, Justice Byron R. White said, "... the decision also shelters the V.A. from the potentially staggering cost of awarding disability benefits to alcoholic veterans."

Perhaps the court may not have had to be concerned about the "staggering cost" if the measure supported by Sen. Paul Simon, health taxes on alcohol and tobacco, had been passed by Congress. According to the Joint Committee on Taxation, as much as $12 billion could be raised if the taxes on alcohol were doubled, and the taxes on beer and wine raised to the same rate.

That "staggering amount" of revenue might go a long way toward offsetting the "staggering costs" referred to by Justice White. Taxes on alcohol have not been increased since 1951. The U.S. Congress is willing, however, to take $26 in taxes from a teen-ager with $1,000 in wages and $256 in savings. Connecticut taxes on alcohol have not increased since Aug. 1, 1983. Based on the amount of alcoholic beverages sold in Connecticut in the 1985-86 fiscal year, raising beer and wine taxes to the same level as liquor taxes, and then increasing the tax on all alcoholic beverages, more than $200 million could be raised, compared to the $32.6 million raised in 1985-86.

Even though a Lou Harris poll and a report by Market Opinion Research of Detroit that showed an increase in alcohol taxes is the only tax increase supported by an overwhelming majority of the American public, the seeming immunity from tax increases enjoyed by the alcohol industry continues.

I believe that it is well past time that the purveyors of America's most serious drug problem started to help pay for the destruction it visits on society.

Turkish team strikes back at terrorists

WASHINGTON — An official Turkish hit team assassinated at least one Armenian terrorist leader five years ago, despite pleas from the United States not to go ahead with the hit.

The story, which has remained a secret until now, lends credence to the possibility that another Turkish hit team killed the most wanted Armenian terrorist two weeks ago in Athens.

The kill-and-run tactic is common for Armenian terrorists, but Turkey's international reputation has not been besmirched recently by the label "assassin." Hundreds of thousands of Armenians, a major ethnic group in Turkey, died at the hands of the Turks before and during World War I. Since 1975, a new surge of vengeance by Armenians has resulted in a bloody terrorist campaign, killing dozens of Turkish diplomats.

Apparently, the Turks have been striking back without attracting much attention. Knowledgeable sources told Dale Van Atta that in the summer of 1982 the Central Intelligence Agency learned that a Turkish intelligence unit was planning to kill Armenian terrorist leaders operating in Western Europe.

Similar assassinations of Palestinian terrorists by Israel had resulted in relatively little condemnation around the world. But U.S. officials believe that an assassination by the Turks would be more difficult to swallow, and Turkey would be roundly denounced by fellow NATO allies as heavy handed.

So in September 1982, U.S. officials visiting Ankara raised the delicate matter with Turkish counterparts. The Americans presented themselves as concerned friends who didn't want to see an ally open itself up for criticism, and they urged the Turks to cancel the hit.

"The effort was not successful," a National Security Council source told us. "Not long after, the Turks killed at least one Armenian terrorist, maybe more. But the whole thing was kept quiet. Few individuals outside the CIA were even aware of it in Washington." So the U.S. fears of public scorn were unfounded. Our sources refused to reveal the name of the terrorist who was assassinated. The Turkish embassy has had no comment on the story.

But no group had a stronger motive than the Turks in last month's assassination of Hagop Hagopian, the leader of the Armenian Secret Army for the Liberation of Armenia, ASALA, the most brutal of the Armenian terrorist groups. In a surgical, highly professional hit on April 28, two gunmen fired four rounds from sawed-off shotguns at the 38-year-old Hagopian as he left his Athens home. No one else was hurt in the pre-dawn attack.

Hagopian's identity and whereabouts have long been a mystery. Hagop Hagopian was not his real name, but his nom de guerre. Few captured terrorists had ever seen him or knew his story. He founded ASALA in 1975 after breaking with the PLO, which had trained and supported him.

The biggest surprise following his assassination was the discovery that Hagopian was only half Armenian. He was also half Iranian. New evidence indicates that he was part of hit team responsible for the massacre of Israeli athletes at the 1972 Munich Olympics.

That means the Turks were not the only ones with a motive to kill Hagopian. Intelligence sources told us the Israelis knew all along that he was also an Arab terrorist, so it is possible that an Israeli hit team brought him down with the same efficiency that Israel demonstrated in the assassination of PLO leader Abu Jihad in front of his family last month.

A third possibility is that other Armenian terrorists killed Hagopian. Splits among Armenian groups have led to bloodshed in the past. Hagopian himself was believed to have ordered the execution of more moderate Armenian leaders.

Ironically, the Greeks, who are investigating the murder on their turf, don't think that Turkey is responsible, even though there is no love lost between Turkey and Greece. If Greek authorities have figured out what Hagopian's real identity was, they are not telling.

To date, Armenian terrorists, primarily with ASALA, have murdered at least 30 people in their campaign to get revenge against the Turks. The most indiscriminate act was the detonation of a suitcase bomb in July 1983 at the Turkish Airlines counter at Orly Airport in Paris. Eight people, including an American, were killed, and 51 were injured.

Four Turks have been murdered in the United States since ASALA was founded in 1975, which explains the high security at the Turkish Embassy in Washington, D.C. The ambassador keeps a machine gun in his desk. Other Turkish officials carry guns in case they have to defend themselves against terrorists while in the United States.

NATION & WORLD

Senate creating buffer

WASHINGTON — The Senate has decided to create a buffer against the political consequences of deciding which of the nation's 3,600 military installations should be closed — a commission that can be conveniently blamed if the folks back home complain.

The Senate voted 83-13 on Tuesday to create a 15-member commission that would recommend which bases to close. The House is expected to agree to the commission, senators said during debate over the proposal that was tacked onto a Pentagon budget bill.

Smooth ride for bill

WASHINGTON — Legislation to ban undetectable plastic firearms could clear the Senate Judiciary Committee this Thursday, just two days after the House approved a similar bill with a calm that rarely accompanies gun control measures.

A smooth ride for the legislation was virtually assured two weeks ago, after Attorney General Edwin Meese III and law enforcement groups agreed to a compromise version — and the National Rifle Association went along.

Labor strike ends

WARSAW, Poland — Labor leaders said they ended an eight-day strike at the Gdansk shipyard to avoid a police raid, but communist authorities said the strike failed for lack of widespread support.

Still, the government said two weeks of strikes that ended Tuesday when Lech Walesa and about 1,800 haggard strikers marched from the Lenin shipyard will compel it to speed up efforts to revive Poland's crippled economy.

Premier to name cabinet

PARIS — Newly appointed Premier Michel Rocard, who is expected to make room for centrists in a new Socialist-led government, said he will move quickly to name his Cabinet.

"The president has given me a tough job," Rocard told reporters on Tuesday after a ceremonial transfer of power at the Hotel Matignon, the premier's residence on the Left Bank.

Dividing liver successful

PITTSBURGH — The world's first two reported successful attempts to transplant parts of the same liver into different patients are big steps toward overcoming the chronic organ shortage, say transplant surgeons.

Dr. Henri Bismuth, a liver transplant surgeon at Paul Brousse Hospital in Paris, reported here Tuesday that he had no choice but to divide the liver of a 40-year-old brain-dead man for two women, both unconscious and near death.

Preventing decay

MARINA DEL REY, Calif. — Scientists who spent months testing a 3,000-year-old mummy nicknamed Lady X say they've developed a new way to prevent decay of Egypt's mummies and other priceless antiquities.

The technique involves construction of hermetically sealed display cases filled with inert nitrogen gas, and "will benefit millions of objects in museums around the world," possibly including Israel's 2,000-year-old Dead Sea Scrolls, said Luis Monreal, director of the Getty Conservation Institute.

Bomb kills two

NICOSIA, Cyprus — A car packed with explosives blew up today on a bridge minutes after police had chased it away from the Israeli Embassy, authorities said. At least two people were killed and 16 injured.

The Mitsubishi Pajero exploded and disintegrated in the middle of the bridge on a main highway, less than 200 yards from the embassy.

Israeli Ambassador Aharon Lopez said the embassy was a possible target. Authorities said windows were shattered in the building but no one there was injured.

Bush set for Reagan's endorsement

By Laura King
The Associated Press

Democrat Michael Dukakis hailed his lopsided presidential primary wins in West Virginia and Nebraska, declaring: "I'm working hard ... to wrap it up." Jesse Jackson, his hopes of derailing Dukakis fading fast, nonetheless vowed, "We will take it all the way to the end."

On the Republican side, Vice President Bush, poised to pick up President Reagan's formal endorsement today, cruised to uncontested wins in Tuesday's contests in Nebraska and West Virginia. The vice president already has a mathematical lock on the Republican nomination.

But Bush's showing in Nebraska pointed to possible weakness in the fight to come this fall. Sen. Bob Dole of neighboring Kansas, who dropped out of the Republican race almost two months ago, still vied off nearly a fourth of the vote.

Even though he has mowed down all his rivals, Bush has made weak showings in some farm states.

Bush still has taken opposition from former television evangelist Pat Robertson, who technically remains a candidate. But Robertson concedes he has no hope of getting the nomination now — Bush went over the top in delegates two weeks ago, in the Pennsylvania primary.

Reagan, who had pledged to remain neutral until the nomination fight was settled, was expected to finally bestow his formal blessing today at the White House. Reagan and Bush are also scheduled to appear together tonight at a Republican Party function in Washington.

With two more wins in his column, Dukakis moved within striking distance of the 2,081 delegates needed to nail the Democratic nomination. According to the latest AP delegate count, Dukakis had 1,581 to Jackson's 942.

In West Virginia, Dukakis captured 173,751 votes, or 78 percent, to Jackson's 31,313 or 14 percent, with 70 percent of the precincts reporting. In Nebraska, Dukakis received 103,633 votes, or 62 percent to Jackson's 43,915 or 27 percent, with 98 percent of the precincts in.

Dukakis is winning 36 of 37 delegates in West Virginia and 16 of the 25 in Nebraska.

Exit polls suggested Dukakis was beginning to make some inroads into Jackson's black support, which has been all but monolithic in contests to date. Only about 4 percent of West Virginia's voters are black, but about a third of them voted for the Massachusetts governor. ABC voter

Leader resigns; talks begin today

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Prime Minister Poul Schluter resigned today in a bid to form a new center-right coalition after an inconclusive parliamentary election called over Denmark's nuclear-arms policy and its allegiance to NATO.

Danish Radio said Schluter submitted his resignation to Queen Margrethe II at Amalienborg Palace and told her negotiations would begin this afternoon.

Schluter's outgoing minority, four-party coalition retained its 78 seats in the Folketing, the Danish parliament. The socialist opposition dropped two seats for a total of 79.

The opposition Social Democrats, Denmark's largest party, touched off the election by pushing parliament to a new anti-nuclear resolution the government refused to implement because of strong objections from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The resolution, designed to bolster Denmark's 1987 peacetime ban on nuclear arms, calls for notifying visiting warships that such weapons were not allowed in port. Unless the resolution is overturned by the new parliament, the government will have to carry it out, after the wording has been determined.

The voters' split decision denies both the government and the socialist bloc a workable majority. Both sides, however, claimed the outcome vindicated their position on the NATO issue.

Schluter, speaking during a televised post-election roundtable discussion with other party leaders, claimed that the four coalition parties opposing the April 14 resolution came out best.

"The parties that voted for the Social Democratic resolution on NATO policy were weakened," he said.

When asked when he would present his government, he replied: "As soon as possible, naturally."

Cease-fire began today in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Warring Shiite Moslem militias fought with tanks, howitzers, rockets and mortars today in a battle for control of the slums of south Beirut. Police said 19 people were killed and 50 wounded.

A cease-fire called by Syrian and Iranian mediators went into effect eight hours after fighting began at 2:30 a.m. police said.

Earlier today, Syria repeated a warning that it might use its troops to halt the battle between the pro-Syrian Amal militia and the pro-Iranian Hezbollah, which had shattered an earlier 24-hour truce.

The battle occurred near where many of the 18 foreign hostages in Lebanon are believed held. There was no word on the hostages. Since fighting broke out Friday, 173 people have been killed and 422 wounded.

"We hold the (militia) leaders responsible for all the crimes committed against humanity in south Beirut and urge them to order a cease-fire before it is too late," acting Prime Minister Salim Hoss said in a statement broadcast by all radio stations before the truce was announced.

Beirut residents were shaken awake by the thuds of exploding shells that echoed across the Lebanese capital as Amal, Arab for hope, mounted a five-pronged attack against Hezbollah, or Party of God.

A police spokesman said tank-led Amal forces, advancing behind a fierce barrage of howitzer, rocket and mortar fire, dislodged Hezbollah fundamentalists from several areas they had conquered in the past five days on the western edge of south Beirut abutting the airport highway.

Nebraska voters approved a measure raising salaries of lawmakers in the nation's only one-chamber Legislature from $4,800 to $12,900. It's their first raise in 20 years.

And in Nebraska's 2nd District, where Daub gave up his seat, Democrats denied a congressional nomination to Ed Zorinsky, widow of U.S. Sen. Edward Zorinsky. Instead, former state Sen. Pete Hoagland will be the Democratic nominee and will face Jerry Schenken, winner of a four-way Republican race.

"We did it," an elated Karnes told supporters as he claimed victory late Tuesday. "And the thing that I am so proud about is that we did it the old-fashioned way — we earned every single vote."

Nebraska's GOP Senate race had been rated a toss-up in pre-election polls, but Karnes — who was appointed 14 months ago and is the nation's youngest senator at age 38 — won by a wide margin. With 99 percent of the vote counted, Karnes had 114,101 votes or 55 percent and Daub had 93,236 votes or 45 percent.

Daub was quick to congratulate Karnes on "his very sound and impressive victory" and promised to help him in November.

Karnes was a supporter of Gov. Kay Orr's election and she appointed him to fill Zorinsky's seat after he died in March 1987. Daub, 47, was one of several GOP regulars who sought the job.

For the Democrats, Kerrey had 152,363 votes or 91.6 percent and Ken Michaels, a disbarred lawyer, had 13,889 votes or 8.4 percent.

"I know the task over the next five months is going to be difficult," Kerrey said, shrugging off polls that have showed him the clear favorite.

Save a bunch of bananas with an SBM no-point, adjustable-rate mortgage.

Finding the right mortgage can be a slippery undertaking. Some banks charge you a low interest rate but really clean up on closing costs and points. Others minimize closing costs at the expense of your interest rate.

What really makes an SBM no-point, adjustable-rate mortgage the best of the bunch? We give you a very competitive interest rate, the long-term interest rate advantages of an adjustable-rate mortgage, low closing costs, fast turnaround and, best of all, no points. Not a single one.

Here's a quick rundown on our pointless, 1-year adjustable-rate mortgage:

HE'S 100 TODAY — Composer Irving Berlin, shown from the left in the 1920s, 1936, 1946, 1968 and 1973, turned 100 today. A Carnegie Hall salute tonight will be taped by CBS for a television special later in the month.

For Irving Berlin, there's still no business like show business

By Michael Kuchwara
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Shortly before midnight Tuesday, a small group of carolers gathered in front of a five-story brick mansion facing the East River on New York's posh Beekman Place.

When the clock struck 12, led by composer and cabaret performer John Wallowitch, broke into "Happy Birthdays," followed by a chorus of "Always."

They were celebrating at the doorstep of the man who wrote that haunting love song Irving Berlin, America's best-known — yet most private — songwriter turned 100 today.

The reclusive composer, who hates to get up in the morning and wrote a song to that effect, didn't put in an appearance.

"If he's 100, he's probably sleeping," said Roberta Kaufman, who had been walking her dog and stopped to see what the crowd of 75 people was doing in front of the five-story brick mansion in Beekman Place, an exclusive East Side enclave.

Wallowitch was sure Berlin was awake. "He's a night owl, I've seen him walking his dog at 3 a.m."

Just mention the melodies Berlin wrote, and you'll start to sing: "White Christmas," "Easter Parade," "God Bless America," "There's No Business Like Show Business," "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody," "Puttin' on the Ritz," "Blue Skies," "How Deep Is the Ocean?" "Cheek to Cheek," to name a few.

Wallowitch's Berlin salute, an annual celebration he began more than 20 years ago and which he usually holds at 6 p.m. on Christmas Eve, may be the most personal tribute to Berlin this year.

The only festivity officially recognized by the songwriter will be a Carnegie Hall salute tonight to be held in connection with ASCAP, the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

Berlin is a charter member of the organization — founded in 1914 — that licenses music for public performance.

The collection of diverse performers expected to appear at the gala includes Frank Sinatra, Willie Nelson, Jerome Robbins, Walter Cronkite, Isaac Stern, Ray Charles and Garrison Kellier. It will be taped by CBS for a television special later in the month.

short walks around Beekman Place when the weather is warm, Berlin never is seen in public. On his infrequent strolls through the tranquil, tree-lined neighborhood, he usually is accompanied by a young woman or a doorman from a nearby building.

Call the Irving Berlin Music Corp. and ask for an interview with the boss. You'll get Hilda Schneider, Berlin's longtime secretary. She is polite and friendly but adamant in declining interviews for her employer.

"I'm sorry I can't be more encouraging," the woman says. "If we do, we'd have to do them all. It's all in the record. You can look it up."

And the record is pretty impressive: some 1,500 songs that span the worlds of theater, movies and popular music. No other composer can match that record.

For the stage, Berlin wrote "Annie Get Your Gun" and more than a dozen other Broadway shows. His movies include several Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers classics such as "Top Hat" and "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody." "Puttin' on the Ritz," "Blue Skies," "How Deep Is the Ocean?" "Cheek to Cheek," to name a few.

Flower arrangements can pay the bills

DEAR MR. ROSS: I'm expecting a baby any day now. My husband left me a month ago, but I've managed to keep up with my bills in an odd way.

Thank A Million

The problem is now that I'm so close to my delivery date, I can't walk to the cemetery in order to get the flowers.

I go to the cemetery and pick up the flowers they throw away off the graves. From these I make flower arrangements to sell.

DEAR MR. ROSS: I hope you gave "Mrs. Tired" of Santa Ana the $100 for peaceful sleep.

DEAR MR. ROSS: For myself I ask nothing - I have enough to live on, in my own way.

DEAR MR. ROSS: I have a job waiting for me after the baby is born. I just need a little something until then.

DEAR MR. ROSS: What my readers don't know is that you sent me one of your flower arrangements. It's a good thing you did, otherwise I don't think I'd believe your story.

Limit on program trading: progress or broker ploy?

By Rick Gladstone The Associated Press

NEW YORK - A broad move by five big brokerages to limit computerized stock trading has won enthusiastic endorsement from critics who say program trading caused unwarranted price convulsions and alienated investors.

But some question the effectiveness of the halt on index arbitrage program trading because four of the firms will continue using the strategy for their clients' investments.

Kidder Peabody & Co., Morgan Stanley & Co., FalmesWebber Inc. and Salomon Brothers Inc. on Tuesday announced limitations on program trading for their own accounts only.

The moves marked the most aggressive voluntary steps yet to calm an outcry that has reached the end of the line with the announcement by new operators that it will reopen Memorial Day weekend.

Richard J. Denois, a CBT spokesman, declined to comment on the terms of the agreement but said negotiations were continuing.

HAPPY BUNCH — Boston Bruin and Enfield native Craig Janney, left, Ray Bourque, center, and Glen Wesley celebrate after Janney's first-period goal which gave the Bruins a 2-0 lead over New Jersey Tuesday night at the Boston Garden. The Bruins won, 7-1, and took a 3-2 lead in the series.

Schoenfeld sits out; Bruins burn Devils

By Dove O'Hara
The Associated Press

BOSTON — Power politics gave way to power hockey. NHL officials returned to work and the Boston Bruins never let up.

Led by three young rookies, the Bruins ignored the suspension of New Jersey coach Jim Schoenfeld and whipped the Devils 7-1 Tuesday night.

"We were on the money, everybody came to play," Coach Terry O'Reilly said after the Bruins' 7-1 victory.

Frustrated by amateur officiating in a 4-1 loss that evened the series Sunday night, the Bruins overcame the Devils in moving within one victory of a shot at the Stanley Cup championship title last night.

"I talked about how to score more goals, but everybody really knows what has to be done," O'Reilly said. "We realized that we had to play a 60-minute game, that we had to cut down on mistakes and get to their goalies, Sean Burke."

"This is a good goalie when he gets momentum. That's the key word. Some nights he's hot and they have momentum. When we get it we have the momentum."

The Bruins peppered Burke with 31 shots. They scored three goals on power plays while holding the Devils scoreless when they had a man advantage.

The Devils learned about 35 minutes before gametime that Schoenfeld had been suspended for the game for his run-in with referee Don Koharski after Boston's 6-1 victory Friday night in Game 3. Schoenfeld also was fined $1,000 and the Devils $10,000 for the Koharski incident.

"We just want to put all this behind us. Schoenfeld (Schoenfeld) will be back (Thursday) for the next game. Hopefully, we can get things going."

"We've overcome adversity before. We've had our backs to the wall."

New Jersey's Tom Kurvers said the Devils were determined not to let the Schoenfeld situation "bother us."

"We don't have any excuses," Kurvers said. "We weren't sharp at the start of the game and they pretty much took it to us from start to finish."

Kurvers said that the Devils have to "play the game the way we should" — avoid penalties and get an early lead — in Game 6 at some Thursday night.

"We've had a lot of scoring chances in every game and tonight we put away our chances," Janney said. "We kept shooting the puck and it kept going in. We kept our heads up on a swivel and found the open man."

Referee Denis Morel called 18 penalties against Boston and 16 against New Jersey. Each team had two misconducts.

McSorley's receiving only a three-game suspension for appearing Calgary's Mike Bullard — did so again.

When it's going to learn. When is going to act like a major league.

The Hartford Whalers, due to a scheduled conflict with the Hartford Civic Center, will hold the first week of their 1988 preseason training camp in Lake Placid, N.Y.

The Whalers will then split their squad and approximately 26 players will return to Hartford for the preseason exhibition opener on Sept. 17 against Washington and continue training camp there.

The infield at Manchester High's Kelley Field is superb. It was sodded and every bounce is true for the infielders. The same cannot be said for the outfield, which needed to be cut before last Saturday's game with Newton but was not. The infield is in terrific shape now, but if it isn't watered regularly, and there isn't an automatic sprinkling system there, it could revert back to its prior shape. Hopefully, that won't be the case.

NHL must get its major league act together soon

How do you spell the National Hockey League? How about M-F-C-K-E-Y-V-O-U-S-E.

Here else can you have a crisis and have the executive director, namely NHL President John A. Ziegler, unavailable for either comment or assistance in the situation that developed Sunday night at the Meadowlands?

It's a mind-bender when Gov. Meskill refused to come back to Connecticut when the state was in the middle of a snowstorm that virtually shut down operations.

The mind-set was let the other guy handle it. All it did was leave another black eye for the NHL with the public. How can the public consider the NHL a major league when it handles matters of this significance like an afterthought.

Incredible. The resolution settled upon by the NHL also left many shaking their heads in amazement. The Stanley Cup playoffs, the pinnacle of the sport, being handled by three amateur officials. They did the best job possible, but they were abetted by the players who helped police the fights that broke out on the ice. But there were obvious penalties that left commentators Sam Rosen and Phil Esposito, the New York Rangers' general manager, shaking their heads.

What should have been considered was postponing the game. It wouldn't have set right with the over 19,000 Devil fans at Brendan Byrne Arena, but it would have been preferable to a amateur night. The problem, however, was that ESPN has paid a lot of money for the rights to the Stanley Cup playoffs and the NHL wasn't about to leave the network with three hours of air time to fill.

In this case, it wasn't the networks' fault. ESPN commentators hinted strongly at a postponement. NHL officials, unfortunately, had their ears turned off to this, too.

The scenario, for those who missed the incident is this. New Jersey Coach Jim Schoenfeld, outraged by the officiating of referee Don Koharski at Friday night's Game 3, won 6-1 by the Bruins.

thought for Koharski as he left the ice. Simplifying matters, Schoenfeld had some choice — obscene — words about Koharski's girth and eating habits.

Koharski, during the disturbance, lost his balance, or was pushed depending on your point of view, and fell to the concrete floor.

NHL President Brian O'Neill, chief of league discipline, suspended Schoenfeld for one game without a review. Here's where the fun begins. The Devils tried to appeal the decision to Ziegler, but he was nowhere to be found.

That prompted Schoenfeld to seek an injunction from a Superior Court judge against the NHL suspension. He authorized it, and the NHL officials assigned to the game, Dave Newell, et al., refused to stop Sunday's game with Schoenfeld behind the bench.

You're now caught up. Whether Koharski officiated a bad game or not is not what's the important point now. It's due process. Schoenfeld, for his verbal barrage on the referees, deserved the suspension handed down Tuesday afternoon, no question. You can't have officials in any sport at any level harangued like that without some punitive action.

But he did receive a hearing first. The NHL, at least in the foot more than one in each recent memory — how about Marty McSorley's receiving only a three-game suspension for appearing Calgary's Mike Bullard — did so again.

When it's going to learn. When is going to act like a major league.

Athletics, Brewers see streaks end

By John Nelson
The Associated Press

Two long American League winning streaks — Oakland's at 14 games and Milwaukee's at 10 — are over. The same thing happened to the Brewers last year, and their season was over, too.

The Brewers lost 9-3 Tuesday night to Minnesota, the victim of another fine outing by left-hander Frank Viola, who saw his club-record streak end in the eighth at 30 1-3 innings.

Last year, the Brewers won 13 games to start the season, then soon thereafter lost 12 in a row to fall out of the AL East race.

"It's the end of another streak," Milwaukee Manager Tom Trebelhorn said. "But the one we started tonight is going to be shorter."

The Athletics, meanwhile, lost 8-2 to the Detroit Tigers, ending the longest winning streak since the franchise moved from Philadelphia during the 1954 season.

Twins 9, Brewers 3
Viola's bid for a third straight shutout ended with two out in the eighth when Robin Yount hit an RBI single to center and Glenn

Viola, 5-1, broke his 22-year-old Minnesota record of 28 straight scoreless innings by Jim Kaat, Viola gave up six hits, walked three and struck out seven in 7-2 3-innings.

Tigers 6, Athletics 2
The Athletics' winning streak was an Oakland record and the longest in the major leagues since the 1977 Kansas City Royals won 16 straight. The AL record is 19 in a row by the 1906 White Sox and 1947 Yankees, while the 1918 New York Giants hold the major league mark of 26.

Walt Terrell allowed just four Oakland hits in seven innings, and Larry Herndon and Luis Salazar homered.

Don Mattingly ended the longest string of homerless at-bats in his career with a three-run shot that ignited a seven-run third inning, and the Yankees had a season-high 20 hits and 17 runs to beat Chicago.

Mike Pagliarulo also had a two-run double in the third. Mattingly drove in four runs, and Claudell Washington, Don Slaught and Rafael Santana had three RBI apiece.

Mattingly had gone 124 at-bats this season without a home run. His longest previous stretch was 103 at-bats in 1985.

Rangers 13, Orioles 5
Pete Incevicella had a two-run homer and two doubles, Steve Buechele had four hits, and Larry Parrish added three hits to power Texas to its fourth straight victory. It was their longest winning streak of the season as the Rangers set season highs for runs and hits, with 13.

Mark Langston set a career mark and matched the season high with 18 strikeouts in beating Toronto, which has lost 11 of its last 15 games. Roger Clemens of Boston struck out 17 Kansas City Royals on Monday night.

Langston allowed eight hits, walked none and lost his shutout in the eighth inning on an RBI double by Lloyd Moseby.

Indians 7, Angels 1
Scott Ballew allowed four hits, retiring 19 straight Angels before the first and eighth innings, helping the Indians end a six-game losing streak. Ballew allowed a two-out single to Wally Joyner in the first and didn't allow another baserunner until the eighth.

EAST HAMPTON — Behind the strong two-hit pitching performance of Pat Maguire, and some clutch hitting, Cheney Tech ran its winning streak to three with a 7-2 victory over East Hampton in Charter Oak Conference baseball action Tuesday afternoon.

East, 3-2 in the ACC and 9-3 overall, was back in action today against formidable Fairfield Prep at 3 p.m. at Moriarty Field. The Kadets dip to 3-3, 7-6 with the loss.

"Marc was in total command today. He had an overpowering fastball," East Coach Jim Penders said.

Mangiafico, 5-1, spun a three-hitter. He struck out 14 while walking five in going the distance.

Penders noted the game wasn't as one-sided as it might appear. A six-run seventh inning broke matters open for the Eagles. "St. Joseph's scored a run in the fourth to make it 3-1 with runners in scoring position but Marc struck out Phil Galino to end the inning. He had it when he needed it."

East scored twice in the second inning. Doug Rizzato singled, Paul Dumais walked and after Mangiafico whiffed, Mike Begley blooped a single to lead the bases. Sophomore Jimmy Penders then sharply singled up the middle for two runs. East added a run in the third on a Pat Merritt groundout before the seventh inning uprising.

"They gave us a couple of runs then," Penders recalled the seventh frame. Begley drove in one run and Jimmy Robinson plated a pair with another single.

Begley, Penders and Rob Stanford collected two hits apiece for East.

Only one East Hampton run was earned. The Bellingers scored their two runs in the first before Cheney rallied. The Bellingers tied it with two in the second with Tony Evans singling in one run. They went ahead for good in the third as Maguire was hit by a pitch, stole second and scored on Glenn Parent's RBI double.

Parent, who went 2-for-4, is now batting .568 (25-for-44). He singled in two runs in Cheney's three-run sixth inning. Bob Bidwell had a big day for Cheney. He was 4-for-4 with a double, two stolen bases, two runs scored and an RBI. Todd Rose chipped in two hits and an RBI. "Today was an important day. Some people who were tagging the ball for us were collecting them up," Baccaro said.
