UNION DRIVE CUT SHORT

MMH workers aren't interested

By Andrew J. Davis
Manchester Herald

The United Food and Commercial Workers Union has withdrawn its petition to unionize Manchester Memorial Hospital workers because there is not enough employee support, the union president said Friday.

"We need more cards, we need more names," said Arnaldo Espinosa, president of the union's Local 919 in Hartford. "We thought we did (have enough support to file), but they said we didn't have it."

Bylaws from the National Labor Relations Board, where the petition was filed, require that the union have a commitment from at least 30 percent of the employees that a union is wanted before a petition can be filed. There are 950 non-union employees at the hospital.

The NLRB is responsible for validating the percentage of employees interested in joining a union, said Joseph McMahon, acting deputy officer in charge of the Hartford office of the NLRB.

The withdrawal does not mean the union has lost interest in unionizing the hospital, Espinosa said. Though he was unsure when the union would refile its petition, he said such an occurrence was almost a certainty.

"Rumours are flying ... that we have quit. We have not quit," he said.

The hospital was notified of the withdrawal Thursday, said Andrew A. Beck, hospital spokesman.

The news pleased hospital officials, including President Michael R. Gallacher.

"Needless to say, I am pleased that at least (for) now we will not be faced with the time-consuming legal process necessitated by the existence of a valid union petition," Gallacher said in a prepared statement. "It is my hope that we will now be able to come together and work on our mutual concerns without the interference of an outside third party. I have said all along that I recognized that you (hospital employees) have a number of valid concerns and we must show we are worthy of your

NEW HABITAT — Willie B. takes a look outside Zoo Atlanta on Friday.

Willie steps out after 27 years

ATLANTA (AP) — Willie B. found it's a jungle out there.

Zoo Atlanta's famous gorilla saw something Friday he hasn't seen since he was captured in Africa 27 years ago: green grass beneath his feet and open sky above his head.

As reporters and photographers watched from behind trees and across a protective moat, the 30-year-old lowland gorilla stepped hesitantly into his new outdoor quarters, a $4.5 million simulated rain forest where he will live near 13 other gorillas and a host of other apes.

Skeptical of those watching him, he spent almost an hour stepping back and forth from his enclosed shelter before he seemed secure enough to run atop his hill, scamper for food and begin ripping down tree limbs.

"I think he has responded well. He came through. He seems to be enjoying his environment," beaming Zoo Atlanta Director Terry Maple said.

Last month, Willie B. was moved from his tile-walled, steel-barred cage — his home since he arrived at the zoo in 1961 — into the new indoor quarters he will use for sleep and shelter.

In a physical last month, Willie weighed in at 460 pounds, about 60 pounds overweight, but not too bad after 25 years in a cage, Maple said.

Peace accord to be unveiled at district's meeting Monday

By Nancy Concelman and Alex Girelli
Manchester Herald

A proposed agreement between the town and the Eighth Utilities District that contains provisions for the sale of the town's Buckland fire station and the construction of a sewer line to serve the planned $70 million Buckland mall and surrounding development will be presented to the district Board of Directors Monday, officials said.

Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr. Friday wouldn't reveal details of the proposed agreement, but said the accord contains provisions for both construction of the Buckland sewer and sale of the fire station at a higher price than the $713,000 quoted in last year's proposed accord, defeated by district voters in November.

DiRosa denied reports that the district's fire-protection area as proposed in the current accord would affect only a few residents. Last year's accord said the whole Bryan Farms neighborhood on Deming Street would be transferred to the district by the town. DiRosa would not say how the current accord addresses Bryan Farms fire protection.

Eighth District Director Samuel Longest, who also declined to reveal details of the proposed accord, said Friday he would present the agreement to the district Board of Directors at Monday night's meeting. Longest said he hasn't discussed the agreement with district directors, and will not give the directors or anyone else copies of the outline of that agreement before the meeting.

He declined to confirm or deny any terms of the agreement as published, but said, "We've got the big stumbling blocks taken care of. I think it's going to be solved."

DiRosa said he also was confident that the agreement would be acceptable to both parties, although he hasn't discussed the agreement with the town Board of Directors because he feels the first step is to find out how the district feels.

Longest said there are many details to be worked out. DiRosa, too, said parts of the agreement require further discussion, especially conditions of the sewer proposal.

The town has offered to pay for the proposed sewer line, which will serve the Buckland area, or share the cost and allow the courts to settle disputes over jurisdiction. Without the sewer, the mall developer, the Homart Development Co. of Chicago, cannot build the mall. The mall is scheduled to open in 1989.

The agreement is "generally the same agreement" as proposed last year, DiRosa said.

As with last year's accord, the current agreement calls for the repeal of Public Act 200, a state law that allows North End residents to petition the district for admission and the district to include the petitioning area in its jurisdiction.

The current agreement would also require the town and district to approach the General Assembly for an amendment to the district's charter that would allow consolidation of the town and district governments only with approval by district voters.

Longest said he doesn't believe any agreement will be ready for action by the district electorate by the May 25 annual meeting because there is too little time. The district would have to advertise the matter by Wednesday to take any voter action, he said.

But, Longest said, the agreement could be discussed at the May 25 meeting.

Longest and DiRosa both said they've been discussing the accord since January, before each was appointed by his respective government to a liaison committee.

trust and support in the future."

The petition was withdrawn "without prejudice," which means the union can refile the petition at any time without penalty, McMahon said.

"I would think it's anticipated they will continue ... and will refile at a later date," he said. "They can file again at anytime. They can refile today, but it's not anticipated."

A meeting between the hospital and the union set for Wednesday was canceled because of the withdrawal of the petition, McMahon said. The meeting was scheduled to determine which employees would be included in an election as well as setting an election date, he said.

George N. Nichols, outside counsel for the hospital, said he was not surprised that the union withdrew its application. The union has never had "a good fix" on the number of non-union employees supporting the union, he said.

"In my mind, from the onset, they weren't sure they had enough people," he said.

On April 28, the union filed its petition with the NLRB. The petition called for the unionization of licensed practical nurses, technical employees, service and maintenance employees and medical clerical employees.

Espinosa said the original petition only called for the unionization of 284 of the non-union hospital employees because they were the only groups the union received support from at the time of the filing of the petition.

Coventry meeting draws 100

COVENTRY — A $172,000 fields maintenance program attracted many of the about 100 residents who showed up at Coventry High School Friday for the Annual Town Meeting on the $12.8 million budget.

The meeting has been adjourned to a referendum from noon to 8 p.m. on May 24. A referendum will be held on the same date on a $300,000 increase in the cost of the Booth & Dimock Memorial Library expansion and renovation project.

The $12.8 million budget, cut by nearly half a million dollars by the Town Council before its vote on the budget in April, would require a tax rate increase from 34.14 to 37.9 mills. It includes $3.5 million for general government spending and $8.3 million for the Board of Education.

All members of the Town Council and Board of Education were at the meeting, except for Board of Education member Robert Christie.

A $172,000 proposed maintenance program for the town's recreation fields attracted many to the meeting. The 1½-hour meeting was called to order by Council Chairwoman Joan Lewis and moderated by Peter Halvorson.

Phillip Carpenter, chairman of the Playing Fields Committee and commissioner of girls' softball spoke, in favor of the maintenance program.

"What we're after here is not Fenway Park. We just want to keep them (fields) from deteriorating. There is grant money to upgrade the fields if we show we can maintain them," he said.

The program includes the hiring of a supervisor and two laborers who would work out of the town garage during winter, and some capital equipment.

A $60,000 portion of the program is in the education budget. The other $112,000 is in the town budget.

Board Chairman Lawrence Mickel spoke of the need for the program. "The fields are in deplorable condition. You can only go so long dancing around the issue of upgrading. Now it's time to pay the piper," he said.

A brief debate on the value of the town meeting versus the cost of petitioning it to a referendum vote took place.

John Fleming, a member of the Board of Education, said it frustrated him to see $1,000 or $2,000 cut from education for books and have it go to pay for a referendum, when residents could just as easily vote at the town meeting.

Resident Roland Green, who has petitioned for a referendum for several years appeared angry when he responded.

PREGNANT QUEEN — AnnaMaria DeVries walks down the aisle at the Dayton (Ore.) Junior-Senior High School gymnasium Thursday night after her coronation as the school's May Day queen. She and 44 other students were suspended Friday as punishment for a protest Wednesday over school-imposed limits on her royal duties because of her pregnancy.

Power loss hits 600; burnt branch blamed

Nearly 600 Northeast Utilities customers were without power for about two hours Friday evening after a power line on Bigelow Street was damaged by a burning branch.

Joanne Tucker, supervisor of customer information at Northeast Utilities, said the outage began at 5:15 p.m. and affected a total of 599 customers. Power was restored to 589 of those customers at 7:42 p.m. and to 10 Bigelow Street residents at 8:40 p.m.

Tucker said customers on Edgerton, Russell, Haynes, Hemlock, Lilley, Flower, Summit and Strat streets were also affected. A portion of Main Street was also without power, Tucker said.

Deputy Chief Peter Beckwith of the town of Manchester Fire Department said the wind broke a tree branch that then struck the power line in front of 53 Bigelow St., causing a small fire and breaking the line. A Bigelow Street resident called the fire department, Beckwith said.

Spy satellite could spill nuclear debris

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviets have lost control of a nuclear-powered military spy satellite, and two American experts said Friday it will shower the Earth with radioactive debris.

The satellite, Kosmos 1900, "has been in a steadily decaying orbit for the last month. If nothing is done to correct its orbit, it will decay" and re-enter the Earth's atmosphere, said Maj. Alex Mondragon, a spokesman for the U.S. Space Command, in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, reported that Kosmos 1900 "has a nuclear power plant aboard and would fall to Earth in August or September, but that the radioactive material on board would not present a danger.

However, two American experts on the Soviet space program, James Oberg and Nicholas Johnson, said it was unlikely that the radioactive material would burn up on re-entering the atmosphere, as Tass implied.

"It is a certainty that the radioactive debris will come down. The question is where," said Johnson, author of the annual study, "Soviet Year in Space." He said it was likely to fall in the ocean

NATO allies applaud settlement on treaty

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The NATO allies told Secretary of State George F. Shultz on Friday that settlement of technical disputes over the U.S.-Soviet arms treaty should spur the Senate to ratify it before the superpower leaders meet in Moscow.

"We think the way is now open for the treaty to be ratified" before President Reagan meets Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev on May 29, said David Mellor, a British minister of state.

American and allied officials have expressed concern that the failure to ratify the treaty before the summit could spoil the atmosphere in Moscow and set back efforts to reach other arms control deals. Reagan and Gorbachev signed the pact in Washington in December.

Shultz briefed allied officials on his two days of talks in Geneva with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze. In Geneva, the two sides resolved differences over how to ensure compliance with the treaty.

A further dispute arose after Shultz and Shevardnadze had pronounced the problems resolved, and lower-level officials on both sides argued through the night before settling the matter shortly after dawn.

Shultz told reporters he was pleased with the outcome, but he declined to say whether he thought the Senate would be satisfied. The Senate on Monday postponed debate on the treaty after some members accused Moscow of backsliding and leaving loopholes for possible cheating.

"All the issues that anyone has raised have been squared away," Shultz told a news conference before flying back to Washington.

"It is the unanimous view of the allies that ratification prior to the summit is very desirable from their standpoint," Shultz said, adding that this view was made clear in his meeting at NATO.

The treaty calls for elimination of the superpowers' medium-range land-based nuclear missiles, which have ranges of 310 to 3,100 miles.

Shultz also told allied officials, in a closed meeting at North Atlantic Treaty Organization headquarters, that there was no chance of the superpowers concluding before the Moscow summit a Strategic Arms Reduction Talks, or START, treaty cutting long-range missiles by half.

He and Shevardnadze told reporters the same thing Thursday.

Mellor said Shultz had given NATO allies "no further insights" into how long it might take to wrap up a START agreement.

Shevardnadze flew to East Berlin on Friday to brief Warsaw Pact leaders and East German leader Erich Honecker on the talks. East Germany's state-run ADN news agency said Shevardnadze told Honecker he was optimistic the superpowers would achieve "substantial results" in reducing strategic weapons at the Moscow summit.

The bulk of the missiles to be eliminated by the INF treaty are based in West Germany. The others are in Britain, Belgium and Italy. No weapons that would be affected by a START accord are based in Western Europe.

Shevardnadze sees progress

BERLIN (AP) — The Soviet foreign minister expressed optimism Friday that "substantial results" in reducing long-range nuclear weapons will be achieved at the superpower summit, the official East German news agency reported.

Eduard A. Shevardnadze briefed President Erich Honecker and the other Warsaw Pact foreign ministers on two days of talks in Geneva with Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

On Thursday, he and Shultz said it would not be possible for President Reagan and Mikhail S. Gorbachev to sign a treaty on long-range, or strategic, arms at the summit scheduled for May 29-June 2 in Moscow.

The news agency, ADN, said: "Eduard Shevardnadze came away (from Geneva) with the impression that progress and substantial results can be made at the Moscow summit in all areas that have been under discussion."

or in a sparsely populated area.

"We will know the date a few weeks before, but we won't know the exact time or general area until a few hours before," Johnson said. The orbit of Kosmos 1900 covers the Earth between 65 degrees south and north latitude, excluding only Antarctica in the south and a swath in the north bounded by the inhabited areas of Alaska, Greenland, Scandinavia and Siberia.

Johnson and Oberg said the satellite is believed to have a system to eject the reactor core so that it would burn up rather than reach Earth.

BRIDGE OVER CALM WATERS — Edna Christensen, Mrs. Senior Citizen, and Russell Nettleton, who accepted the Mr. Senior Citizen award for the late John Dahm, have a quiet talk on the bridge in the Oriental Gardens at Wickham Park.

Volunteerism at its best

Mr. and Mrs. Senior Citizen recognized

By Anita M. Caldwell
Manchester Herald

For Edna Christensen, 13 is a lucky number. The Bolton Street senior citizen was named Mrs. Senior Citizen Thursday for 13 years of commitment and service to the Manchester Senior Citizen Center.

The Mr. Senior Citizen award was given, posthumously, to John Dahm, and was accepted by a close friend, Russell Nettleton of Conway Road.

As the couple were treated to a limousine ride through Wickham Park, on the East Hartford-Manchester town line, they talked about receiving the award. Christensen said she "had no idea at all" that she would be given the honor and recalls her years of volunteerism with fondness.

"I used to work in the shows at the Senior Fair," she said. The Senior Fair shows were performed each spring and included a chorus line, special effects and other events involving about 70 people, she said. Christensen said she was in charge of costumes and previously was a participant. Christensen has participated in other center-related activities.

"I was among many who helped pick the site for the present senior center," she said, proudly. The center used to be on Linden Street.

"We outgrew it," she said. But Christensen hasn't outgrown her interest in the center's activities. Currently, she is chairman of the finance committee and oversees the food program. While Christensen was overseeing the food program, Dahm was looking out for the center, overall. "(Dahm) was working all around, doing different things for the center," Nettleton said. "He deserved (the award)."

Nettleton said that Dahm always volunteered to help out whether he was asked or not. Nettleton said that Dahm was involved in many of the center's activities.

"John was treasurer of the golf league and he was on the executive committee," Nettleton said. "John was an artist," Nettleton said. "He did a lot of carpentry work at the center," he said adding that, "he was a perfectionist."

And as if Dahm had ordered the perfect spring day, Christensen gave a philosophical view about life at the senior center.

"Unless people are involved and out to have a good time, you're not going to have a good time," she said.

WAVE TO THE FANS — Edna Christensen, named Mrs. Senior Citizen Thursday, waves goodbye to her friends from the limousine that escorted her through Wickham Park.

Suit planned over collision

By Alex Girelli
Manchester Herald

A Manchester family intends to sue the town for injuries members received when a town truck collided with their vehicle in February, according to a notice filed with the town clerk.

The notice, filed Thursday by Hartford attorney Norman Ebenstein, charges town employee Herald W. Patterson with negligence that caused injuries to Antonio Batista and his daughter, Julia Batista, both of 18 Deerfield Drive.

On Feb. 13, at around 1:14 p.m., Antonio Batista was driving north on Adams Street near the intersection of Foxcroft Drive, according to the notice. Julia was a passenger in his vehicle.

Patterson was driving a town truck west on Foxcroft Drive, and failed to yield the right of way to Batista's vehicle, resulting in a collision, the notice said. The notice said Patterson was negligent in failing to yield the right of way.

Antonio Batista suffered strain and sprain of his lower back and Julia Batista suffered a head injury and sprain of her cervical spine, the notice said.

Strawberry festival canned

By Alex Girelli
Manchester Herald

For the first time in three years, there will be no strawberry festival in connection with the June celebration of the Cheney Historic District, and other traditional events also may not take place, officials said.

Steven Ling, director of the Lutz Children's Museum, said the date set for an antique show by the Manchester Historical Society, June 25, came too late in the season to be sure the sponsors of the strawberry festival could get enough strawberries in good condition to supply the more than 700 pounds of berries the festival would require.

The strawberry festival is a fund-raising event for the museum. Since it was started in 1985, the festival has been a major attraction of the district celebration.

Ling said that in previous years the celebration was held earlier, on dates which conflicted with the dates of other events, such as graduation exercises at Manchester High School.

While other major events of the festival will take place, other traditions will fall by the way side, officials said.

The fire museum at Hartford Road and Pine Street will be open as it normally is on the weekend but there may not be any special displays for the occasion, Carol Zebb, president of the Connecticut Firemen's Historical Society, said Friday. The society operated the museum.

She said the society is reluctant to ask the state's Department of Environmental Protection to participate, as it did last year, unless the Cheney district events can be expected to draw a large crowd. She said a decision would be made within a week.

Last year the DEP, in a fire prevention program, supplied a "Smoky the Bear," and an automated talking fire hydrant.

Some other festival attractions like a horse-drawn trolley going from place to place in the district will probably not be offered, according to Bobbie Beganny, director of tourism for the East of the River Tourism District. She said a walking tour of the district will not be held because of the likelihood that the weather will be too hot.

This year, the tour, conducted by Dr. John Sutherland, director of Manchester Community College's Institute of Local History, was held May 23 and attracted about 150 residents.

Another major event of the festival, an antique show by the Manchester Historical Society, will be held, Jay Savery, president of the society, said Friday.

It will take place on the afternoon of June 25 on the grounds of the Cheney Homestead, 106 Hartford Road. It will be under the direction of Gail and Gene Dickenson, Coventry antique dealers, as it was last year.

Savery said the Museum of Local History on Cedar Street will be open with an exhibit entitled "Gems from the Collection." He said the exhibit will consist of special items from the society's collection, some of which have never been exhibited before.

Chet Baker

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Chet Baker, 59, an American jazz trumpeter famed for his 1950s appearances with Gerry Mulligan, died Friday after falling from the second floor of his Amsterdam hotel.

Famed for the thin, cool tone of his trumpet playing, Baker set the standard for what jazz buffs knew as the "cool school."

In 1952, he was working with Charlie Parker on the West Coast when he joined Mulligan, a baritone saxophonist, and the rest of his piano-less quartet.

In 1953, Baker topped the Metronome trumpet poll and started his own quartet. His work became more assured and outgoing. In 1955, he took a group to Europe that showed high promise. Then his career started to suffer, from narcotics, arrests, headlines and a backlash against the fact he'd been overrated at the beginning.

Police Roundup

More drug arrests possible in bust

COVENTRY — Police say there is a possibility that more people may be involved in a drug operation that resulted in the arrest of three people Wednesday and the seizure of $3,000 worth of narcotics.

Lt. Ronald Doughty of the Coventry Police Department said today that police have been developing information about the case for the last three to four months and there is a possibility that more people are involved.

Coventry police, assisted by the Tri-Town Narcotics Task Force, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and the Tolland County State's Attorney's office, arrested Robert K. Saunders, 45, of Coventry, Stanley Szewc, 38, and Rosemarie Szewc, 21, both of Hartford, on related drug charges.

Doughty said close to a half-ounce of cocaine, 1¼ grams of the cocaine-derivative "crack" and some marijuana was seized as well as drug paraphernalia and about $1,000 in cash.

Saunders was released on $25,000 surety bond while Stanley Szewc was released on $1,000 surety bond and Rosemarie Szewc was released on $1,000 non-surety bond, police said. All are scheduled to appear in Rockville Superior Court Tuesday, May 31, police said.

Death threat prompts charge

A man who has a history of domestic violence and assault charges was arrested Wednesday in connection with an incident where he threatened and verbally abused his girlfriend and her 8-year-old son, police said.

The charges of threatening and disorderly conduct were brought against Robert Michael Davis, 36, of 9 Starkweather St., after his girlfriend told police she was in fear of her life, police said.

Davis had been verbally abusing and threatening the woman and her son, police said, and was reported as saying to his girlfriend, "I've got 17 charges against me now, go to the police station and add a few more."

Police said Davis also threatened to kill her and her son and dispose of the bodies.

5-year-old struck by car, injured

A five-year-old girl received minor injuries when she ran in front of a car on West Center Street Thursday, police said.

Elizabeth Echevarria, of 28 Foley St., rode her scooter into the street at 4:42 p.m. where she was struck by a vehicle, police said. The girl was dragged about 10 feet, police said.

Echevarria received scrapes on her buttocks and was transported to Manchester Memorial Hospital emergency room. Hospital officials said Friday night the girl was admitted to the pediatric ward with lacerations and was in satisfactory condition.

Court: Fargo defendant must be released on bail

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal appeals court ruled Friday that a Puerto Rican nationalist — jailed for 32 months without bail or trial for his alleged role in a $7 million Wells Fargo robbery — must be released on bail within a week.

In a unanimous decision, the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals directed a federal judge in Hartford to release Filiberto Ojeda Rios "no later than 5 p.m. on Friday, May 20" under strict bail conditions.

Those conditions include wearing a radio transmitting bracelet that would warn authorities if Ojeda Rios strayed too far.

Under the Bail Reform Act of 1984, which allows federal judges to deny bail to particularly dangerous suspects, Ojeda Rios has been detained since his arrest in October 1985.

In oral arguments before a three-judge panel of the 2nd Circuit Thursday, defense lawyer Richard Harvey said his client had been detained "longer than any person since World War II."

The panel, in an unusually swift ruling, decided Friday that Ojeda Rios should be released from pre-trial detention but stated it was only ruling on his case and not setting "precedent for future cases."

The government claims Rios is a leader of Los Macheteros — Spanish for "the machete wielders" — a Puerto Rican nationalist group charged with staging the 1983 robbery of a Wells Fargo depot in Hartford, Conn.

Harvey told the 2nd Circuit that his client was recovering from heart surgery and needed access to better medical facilities than available at the federal jail in Hartford.

But Executive Assistant U.S. Attorney Albert Dabrowski insisted Ojeda Rios could not be released on bail "because he is truly a danger." He said Rios was involved in "acts of incredible atrocity," including the shooting of an FBI agent and a rocket attack on a federal building in Puerto Rico. He also said Rios had fled criminal charges in 1970.

The 2nd Circuit noted that the trial judge has been faced with continuous delays in getting the trial under way "largely because of the zealous, perhaps overly zealous, pre-trial demands of the defendants."

But the panel noted the government had been unwilling to sever Ojeda Rios' case from the other defendants.

"It now appears, however, that the case cannot be reached for trial before next fall at the earliest and that even when reached, it will take many months to try."

Cuomo vetoes death penalty

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Mario Cuomo on Friday vetoed restoration of the death penalty in New York Friday, making it 12 straight years that capital punishment has been blocked by the state's chief executive, six by Cuomo.

Assemblyman Vincent Graber, the Democratic-controlled Assembly's chief death penalty advocate, said last week he lacked the votes to override the veto.

But state Sen. Dale Volker, the bill's sponsor in the Republican-controlled Senate, said Friday that he'd attempt an override even if one didn't appear likely in the Assembly.

Cuomo said once again that he would urge the Legislature to pass his alternative proposal to give life without parole to the state's most violent criminals.

His predecessor, Gov. Hugh Carey, vetoed death-penalty legislation for six consecutive years until 1982, and Cuomo subsequently has followed suit.

The last criminal to die in New York's electric chair was Eddie Lee Mays in 1963. Federal and state court rulings have since rendered capital punishment statutes still on the books in New York to be unenforceable.

Using surplus funds worries economists

HARTFORD (AP) — Economists were dismayed by the state's decision to dip into surplus funds to help balance next year's budget, but believe Connecticut's economy will remain relatively strong during a nationwide recession they expect next year, according to a new survey.

A possible state budget deficit and the use of $73 million from the Rainy Day fund to balance next year's $6.29 billion budget topped concerns among 44 members of the Hartford Area Business Economists.

"It seems to be insanity," said club President Ronald F. Van Winkle, an independent economist who is now director of West Hartford's community services department.

The club's annual survey of its members was released Wednesday.

The state is expected to end the current fiscal year June 30 with less than $1 million in surplus after four years of budget surpluses totaling more than $1 billion. The most recent surplus projection for the year ending June 30 was $787,000. Just in case there's a deficit, however, legislators set aside $20 million from a property tax relief fund that was set up last year.

Three-quarters of those surveyed felt a recession would strike the nation by the end of 1989, with 61 percent expecting it within a year. Those surveyed cited rising interest rates and inflation, a tight money supply, consumer apathy and the federal deficit as reasons for their concern.

Almost 30 percent of those responding pinpointed the second quarter of 1989 as the most likely time for a recession of 18 months or so to begin.

Despite a general belief that Connecticut's once-booming economy would continue to cool down, 70 percent felt it would outperform the nation's economy.

The state's shortage of labor, high housing costs, declining defense contracts and its quality of education loom as other potential problems for Connecticut's economic well being, respondents claimed.

Dump users defendants, too

NAUGATUCK — The owner of two contaminated landfills has named 196 past users of the dumps as third-party defendants in a lawsuit in which the state and federal governments are seeking $40 million in clean-up costs.

Harold Murtha, owner of Laurel Park landfill in Naugatuck and Beacon Heights landfill in Beacon Falls, has named municipalities, individuals, large and small corporations, major industries and other organizations as third-party defendants in legal actions pending against him in U.S. District Court in Hartford.

The third-party defendants include the U.S. Department of Defense, the U.S. Postal Service, the Connecticut Resources Recovery Authority, Northeast Utilities, Naugatuck Mayor Terry Buckmiller, the City of Waterbury and other Naugatuck Valley communities.

Man pays fine, halts tax scam

BRIDGEPORT — A Florida man has agreed to pay $64,000 in penalties to the Internal Revenue Service and halt the sale of tax shelters involving historical buildings in Bridgeport and Missouri, authorities said.

Ronald B. Durning of Vero Beach, Fla., entered into a consent decree with the IRS in which he agreed to pay the penalty and not sell additional tax shelters without first notifying the IRS, authorities said.

Assistant U.S. Attorney General William S. Rose, head of the Justice Department's Tax Division, said the civil suit and the decree were filed simultaneously Monday in federal court in Kansas City, Mo.

Agent matches Crafts' hair

NEW LONDON — An FBI agent trained in hair analysis testified Friday that strands of hair taken by state police from Helle Crafts' hair brush and sponge rollers matched strands found among wood chips and human remains in Southbury.

Dr. Harold A. Deadman Jr., a supervisory special agent with the FBI in Virginia, testified that nine of the 15 hairs he examined matched those taken from the brush and rollers.

Deadman was the third forensic expert to testify in Richard Crafts' murder trial about evidence found by state police on the banks of the Housatonic River.

Crafts, 50, of Newtown, was arrested Jan. 13, 1987, in connection with his wife's murder. Mrs. Crafts was last seen alive Nov. 18, 1986. Police believe Crafts killed his wife in their bedroom and disposed of her body with a chainsaw and woodchipper.

Hygienists mark anniversary

BRIDGEPORT — Bridgeport, well-known for such things as producing the world's first fitted corset and being the state's largest city, is also the founding home of the dental hygiene profession.

This weekend, about 500 dental hygiene professionals will descend on the city to celebrate the profession's 75th anniversary.

"What's going on this weekend is the celebration of the diamond jubilee of dental hygiene," Marge Reveal, president of the American Dental Hygienists' Association in Chicago, said Friday. "What has happened over the last 75 years has had a huge impact on improving the public's oral health."

The profession was founded in 1913 when Dr. Alfred C. Fones established the first school for dental hygienists in Bridgeport. The school began on the second floor of his home.

NLRB favors jai alai players

Jai alai players in Hartford and Newport, R.I., were given the right to conduct union elections and decisions Friday by the National Labor Relations Board.

The NLRB, in decisions handed down in Boston and Hartford, reaffirmed its jurisdiction over the jai alai players, who went on strike April 14 alleging unfair labor practices.

Elections are scheduled for early June at the Newport and Hartford frontons, Cheverie said.

State lottery troubles persist as officials review contracts

NEWINGTON (AP) — Connecticut's lottery troubles continued Friday as state officials began reviewing the contract with the company that took over the system this week, with one official openly talking about getting out of that contract.

"It's certainly being discussed," said J. Blaine Lewis Jr., chief of the lottery unit in the state Division of Special Revenue. "Whether or not it will happen is another thing."

He and other state gaming officials met with representatives of the company running the system on Friday.

He said about 200 of the 2,150 lottery terminals around the state were malfunctioning as of mid-afternoon Friday. In addition, he said the entire million-dollar-a-day system was inoperable for about a minute at one point during the day.

In the meantime, a state police investigation continued into how it was possible for people to buy tickets with the winning numbers Monday after the winning combination was broadcast live.

About 30 such tickets were apparently sold, including one that was cashed for $25,000. Authorities are trying to determine whether criminal intent was involved.

General Instrument Corp. of Maryland took over the system on Sunday and system-wide problems were immediately apparent, culminating in a decision to shut down the system for about 24 hours over Tuesday and Wednesday. The company has consistently refused comment on the snafu.

The state normally sells $8 million in lottery tickets a week, clearing $3 million a week in profit from three games, the Daily Numbers, Play Four and Lotto.

Drawings for the games have been held as scheduled this week and were planned again Friday night.

Lewis said he was "disenchanted" with General Instrument, but added: "The contract is a legal document and we have to abide by its terms."

'Faggot' remark not slanderous

NEW HAVEN (AP) — A Hamden couple did not slander a former Mr. Universe and his business partner by calling them "faggots," even though the two men are not homosexuals, a Superior Court trial referee has ruled.

Referee Lester H. Aaronson said in a decision earlier this month that he could not hold the remark slanderous because the law is inconclusive on whether it is slander to call someone who is heterosexual a homosexual.

According to court documents, Michael Katz and his partner in the Hamden business World Gym East, Gerald Mastrangelo, were called "faggots" by Clement and Georgianna Passariello of Orange.

Clement Passariello was a former partner in the gym, and the remark was allegedly made at various times to gym members.

Aaronson found that the Passariellos did use the term to describe Katz and his partner and that the description was not true.

Katz, a health education teacher at Hamden High School, is a former Mr. Connecticut, Mr. America and Mr. Universe.

Attorney John A. Keyes, who represents Katz and Mastrangelo, said his clients were pleased with the ruling in one sense.

"They were happy that the judge found that (the Passariellos) had said it and that it was false," said John A. Keyes. "Fortunately, no one believed it."

The Passariellos' attorney, Patrick M. Noonan, had argued in court documents that derogatory words such as "faggot" are "common epithets subject to much general usage."

He compared the term to insults such as "jerk" and

"bum," which he said a reasonable person would not take literally. Even if the word were meant literally, it still would not be slanderous, Noonan said.

Keyes said Friday he planned to file an appeal to the appropriate higher court over the issue of whether an allegation of homosexuality is sufficiently heinous to be considered slander.

step backwards to hold that the reference to a heterosexual as homosexual is slanderous," Noonan said.

Noriega says talks collapsed

LA NEGRITA, Panama (AP) — Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega said Friday that talks with the United States about his departure from power have collapsed.

At ceremonies in this rural town marking the anniversary of the death of a revolutionary hero, Noriega also told The Associated Press he could run for president in elections next year.

"Everything fell apart. Everything fell apart. Everything apart," Noriega repeated when asked about the talks between Panama and the Reagan administration to try to resolve the Panamanian crisis.

Noriega is chief of Panama's defense forces and the power behind the civilian government. He was charged in Miami in February with taking at least $4.6 million in payoffs from Colombia's Medellin cartel to protect cocaine shipments, launder money, supply drug laboratories and shelter the gang's leaders from law enforcement.

Reagan administration officials had said they were discussing with Noriega the possibility of dropping the drug charges if Noriega relinquished power.

When asked in Washington about Noriega's remarks, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater replied, "He says that all the time. He said 'fall apart' or something similar before. ... We are still talking. We are still negotiating."

Fitzwater said Elliott Abrams, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, met with President Reagan at the White House Friday, but gave no details.

Noriega visited La Negrita, 90 miles from Panama City, where Victoriano Lorenzo, a populist revolutionary, was executed by Colombian authorities on May 15, 1983.

Prosecutor argues against bargaining

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Edwin Meese III on Friday presented President Reagan with arguments against dismissing drug indictments against Panamanian ruler Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, according to the prosecutor who obtained one of the indictments.

U.S. Attorney Leon Kellner of Miami told reporters that he presented arguments against dropping the indictments in two meetings with Meese in the past two days, that the attorney general "told me that he also opposed" any dismissal and that he had assured Kellner "he would convey my thoughts to the president."

"He told me he did that today," Kellner added.

SCHOOLYARD PREACHER — Duffey Strode, 10, preaches in front of his elementary school in Marion, N.C., Friday morning. He was later suspended from school for the fourth time for what officials said was insubordination.

School suspends kiddie preacher

MARION, N.C. (AP) — A 10-year-old schoolyard preacher who said he'd rather "get gold and silver up in heaven than an education down here" was suspended a fourth time Friday after refusing to stop proselytizing and go to class.

Duffey Strode, wearing a black jacket and carrying a zippered case apparently containing a Bible, spent 20 minutes on the grounds of Eastfield Elementary School quoting Scripture and hurling biblical epithets in a steady rain before Assistant Principal Shirley Ramsey handed out the suspension.

Duffey's younger siblings, Matthew, 5, and Poppey, 6, also have been suspended for defying school officials earlier this month in this western North Carolina town. Their mother, Robin Stode, said they also will likely be suspended again when they return to school May 19.

Mrs. Stode predicted the dispute would wind up in litigation.

"It's gone too far now," she said, adding that she has contacted an attorney through the Rutherford Institute, which she described as a non-profit Christian legal foundation based in Manassas, Va. Mrs. Stode said the family moved to North Carolina in January 1987 after winning a lawsuit against city officials in a Pennsylvania town who had tried to prevent her husband, David, from street preaching.

"We came here to relax after winning the fight," she said of their earlier legal problems in Chambersburg, Pa. "All we want is to have the right, the freedom to preach. We might lose it some day and we want to preserve it."

Strode, a machinist, and the children preached at high school football games from a pickup truck last fall, and Strode has been seen proselytizing in business areas around town.

Mrs. Stode said it was her children's decision to preach.

"I told them if they want to go back and preach, that's fine," Mrs. Stode said in an interview at home Friday as Duffey and his sister watched a videocassette of "The Goonies." Matthew stopped playing with a basketball long enough to nod his head when asked if he planned to preach again when his suspension ends.

Earlier, when asked if he felt pressured by parents, Duffey had said, "No. They ain't. I want to do it."

Judge agrees to schedule quick execution for killer

CLARKSVILLE, Ark. (AP) — A judge said Friday that he will grant R. Gene Simmons' wish to set a quick execution date if he is convinced that Simmons is mentally competent to waive his appeal of the death sentence.

Simmons, 47, was convicted Thursday of killing a man and a woman during a 45-minute rampage Dec. 28 in Russellville. After he surrendered, police found the bodies of 14 relatives on his property at nearby Dover.

He is scheduled to stand trial July 18 on those slayings. But Circuit Judge John S. Patterson said he would hold a hearing Monday on Simmons' competence and would set an execution date of before July 18 if he concluded Simmons was not mentally incompetent.

After he was convicted and the jury set a death sentence Thursday, Simmons surprised the court by reading a statement emphatically requesting a quick execution date.

"I want no action that will delay, deny, defer or denounce this very correct and proper death sentence," Simmons said in a calm voice.

Simmons said that in his case, "anything short of death would be cruel and unusual punishment. ... I only ask for what I deserve. Let the torture and suffering in me end."

Slain CIA officer honored

WASHINGTON — The former CIA station chief in Beirut was honored Friday during a memorial service at his symbolic tombstone in Arlington National Cemetery, nearly three years after he died as a hostage in Lebanon.

CIA Director William Webster eulogized William F. Buckley as a man who "did things that none of the rest would have done ... he lived by example."

Buckley, the 51th CIA agent to die in the line of duty, had the "ability to handle tough situations," Webster said. "Bill Buckley made a difference to those who worked with him."

President Reagan, in a letter read to Buckley's friends and family at the outdoor ceremony, said the CIA man "loved the United States ... he cherished liberty."

Bush, Jackson attack Dukakis

Democratic presidential front-runner Michael Dukakis came under attack from his right and left Friday as Republican George Bush labeled him "naive at best" on defense and Jesse Jackson said the Massachusetts governor has failed to come up with an effective plan for fighting drugs.

Dukakis kept up his criticism of the administration's handling of negotiations to get Panamanian strongman Manuel Antonio Noriega to relinquish power. He defended his state's drug control effort as a "model" program.

Bush told workers at a Hughes Aircraft Corp. plant in Fullerton, Calif., that "the Dukakis doctrine is the doctrine of wishful thinking."

In an interview published Friday, Jackson said Dukakis' drug war plan is "a farce," and he described the Massachusetts governor as sounding little different from Bush on various issues.

25 missing in building collapse

AGUASCALIENTES, Mexico — Soldiers were called out Friday and heavy machinery was brought in from miles away to help dig for 25 people missing in the rubble of a building collapse that killed at least 10 people.

Gilberto Sanchez, the radio officer at police headquarters, said about 60 soldiers from the army garrison joined firefighters, police and volunteers in the rescue effort. Bulldozers and cranes were brought from as far away as Salamanca, 78 miles to the southwest.

Agascalientes, a city of about 500,000 people 320 miles northwest of Mexico City, is the capital of Aguascalientes state.

The building, still under construction, consisted of three basements, a main floor and three upper stories.

Pope condemns drug trafficking

SANTA CRUZ, Bolivia — Pope John Paul II journeyed Friday to the heart of cocaine country and told Bolivians to use all their Christian strength to reject drug trafficking and corruption.

Addressing Roman Catholic lay workers in this frontier city, the pope stressed the need to live a virtuous life in building a just society.

People have a "Christian duty" to strengthen public morality, the pope said, appealing to his listeners to "reject with energy" corruption, contraband activities and drug trafficking.

Contras to get cash for food

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration, contending that many Contra rebels inside Nicaragua are desperately short of food, will begin sending them cash at the rate of about $1 a day per rebel for food purchases, it was announced Friday.

State Department spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley brushed aside complaints from House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, that the rebels might use the money illegally to buy weapons.

"They already have weapons. What they need at this moment desperately is food, and we're confident that they will naturally use these small funds to provide for their basic survival," she said.

AYATOLLAH VOTING — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini casts his vote Friday in Iranian elections, making an appearance which ended rumors that he had died.

Khomeini casts ballot, squelches death rumor

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, ending rumors that he had died, voted in the final round of Iran's parliamentary elections Friday. Demonstrators burned effigies of President Reagan and Saudi Arabia's King Fahd.

Khomeini cast his vote in a special mobile polling booth outside his heavily guarded residence in north Tehran's Jamaran suburb soon after polls opened at 7 a.m.

The revolutionary patriarch is 87 and rarely leaves his residence and adjoining mosque. Iranian state-run television, monitored in Cyprus, showed him casting his ballot.

Hours earlier, rumors swept the Hong Kong stock market that Khomeini had died.

In the first round of voting April 8, 188 of the 270 seats in the Majlis, or parliament, were elected.

DARRYL SEIGEL ... faces $4,000 in fines

Worshippers, police clash in Jerusalem

JERUSALEM (AP) — Riot police stormed the sacred Temple Mount complex Friday and fired rubber bullets at protesting Moslems on the final Sabbath of the holy month of Ramadan. Twenty Arabs and three policemen were reported injured.

Soldiers closed off large parts of the occupied territories, and the turnout for Moslem prayer services was drastically reduced. The army, fearing violence, sealed off the Gaza Strip and turned back West Bank Arabs at roadblocks into Jerusalem.

As an army helicopter buzzed overhead and police snipers perched on rooftops, about 1,000 worshippers emerged from prayers and marched around the mosques on the city's Temple Mount, or Haram Al Sharif (Noble Enclosure) in Arabic.

"Jews out!" the marchers chanted. "We don't want to see any Zionists!" Others cried: "No fear! No fear! The stone is better than the Kalashnikov (rifle)!"

The marchers burned Israeli flags and raised the outlawed red, green, black and white Palestinian flag. Israel radio said a U.S. flag was set afire.

A few hundred youths threw stones at the police station that faces the Al Aqsa mosque, which is at the Temple Mount. Seconds later, about 100 police wearing riot helmets and carrying clubs and assault rifles charged the complex, firing rubber bullets into the crowd.

Some witnesses said they heard brief bursts of automatic gunfire, apparently fired in the air.

Police spokesman Rafi Levy said three policemen were slightly injured by stones during the melee. Doctors at Jerusalem's Mukkassad and Augusta Victoria hospitals said they treated 20 Arabs for rubber bullet injuries.

Another was Habibollah Asgar-Owliadi, an Islamic zealot jailed for life during the reign of the late Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi for involvement in the 1965 assassination of Prime Minister Hasan-Ali Mansur.

Asgar-Owliadi was freed when Khomeini toppled the shah in 1979.

First passenger accused of violating smoking ban

RENO, Nev. (AP) — A man who says he lit up absently in an airplane bathroom has become the first person accused of violating the 3-week-old ban on smoking on domestic flights of two hours or less, officials said Friday.

Darryl Seigel, 38, of Seattle, faces fines of up to $4,000 if the Federal Aviation Administration files charges, said FAA spokeswoman Ely Brekke.

Seigel admitted taking a few puffs on a cigarette during a 100-minute/eattle-to-Reno flight on USAir Thursday.

"He's not the first one to smoke on an airplane when they weren't supposed to, but he's the first person to be accused of breaking this new law," Brekke said.

Brekke said statements were taken Friday from the plane's flight and maintenance crews. The investigation should be completed within 60 days, she added.

A flight attendant had spotted smoke coming from the lavatory after Seigel left it about 20 minutes into the flight, Reno Cannon International Airport spokesman Rich Peacock said.

The flight attendant had explained the ban to passengers before the plane took off. Seigel was detained for questioning by Reno airport security for two hours.

Outlook is healthy if you believe in 'contrary opinion'

By Chef Currier
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — If you apply an old Wall Street principle known as contrary opinion, the outlook for the stock market would seem to be pretty healthy. Hardly anybody these days is able to work up much enthusiasm either for stocks or for the business outlook over the next year or two.

And from long experience, students of the investment scene will testify, whenever a large majority of people agree on what the financial markets are likely to do, they are probably wrong.

The extent of the pessimism now holding sway among investment managers, analysts and economists shows up in the results of the latest poll of more than 300 "decision makers" conducted by Richard Hoey at Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc.

For the stock market, Hoey reports, the bears outnumbered the bulls by 2-to-1. On bonds, the ratio was an even more lopsided 3-to-1 in favor of the pessimists.

Anecdotal evidence abounds to support that heavy negative bias. The talk on Wall Street these days is that interest rates have nowhere to go but up.

And the slow and halting recovery in stock prices since the crash last year is just about universally labeled a "bear market rally" that will soon run its course.

"The most comforting thing about today's experience is that many analysts believe the stock market rally cannot be sustained," observed Vincent Agnew at CTT Investment Management Group, a firm that manages more than $2.5 billion.

"The reason this is comforting is because whenever the crowd is anticipating one set of events, the market has been known to perversely confound everyone by doing exactly the opposite."

As simple as contrary opinion sounds, though, it can be very difficult to practice. For one thing, in trying to determine what the real consensus is in order to go against it, you sometimes have to try to separate what people say from what they really feel.

Lately, for example, some standard statistical measures of investor sentiment suggest stocks have not been beaten down to bargain-basement extremes like those seen on some past occasions.

Price-earnings ratios of several leading market indicators lately have hovered between 14-to-1 and 15-to-1. The multiple is down from better than 20 last year, but still nowhere near the single-digit levels it reached at times in the 1970s and early 1980s.

The market did not do much for optimistic "contrarians" in the past week. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed Friday at 1,990.55, down 16.91 points from the week before.

Execs optimistic about the future

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — The state of the economy seems almost too good to be true less than seven months after the stock market plunge, business leaders said Friday.

The Business Council, composed of 61 executives from the largest U.S. corporations, predicted modest growth, low unemployment and moderate inflation this year in a report issued at its meeting at the Homestead resort.

"The economy and our businesses are doing quite well in spite of that problem," said John F. Akers, chairman of International Business Machines Corp., referring to the Oct. 19 stock market crash. "Nobody is talking about that anymore."

In fact, the economic forecast of the business group, which represents the consensus of member corporations' chief economists, paints a more optimistic picture than the prediction issued just before the crash.

The business executives projected somewhat slower growth in the economy as measured by the gross national product — 2.4 percent this year compared with a forecast of 3 percent made when they last met in early October.

But they said both inflation and unemployment will be lower than they thought seven months ago and that growth will be more balanced than the 3.8 percent expansion in 1987.

A buildup in inventories contributed almost one percentage point to last year's growth. That is expected to moderate, with increased exports and spending by businesses on new equipment filling in the gap.

Consumer spending, although growing at half of the 4 percent annual rate of the early 1980s, is expected to hold steady through 1989, providing room in the economy for the production of exports.

Coleco extends deadline on bonds

WEST HARTFORD (AP) — Coleco Industries Inc., the financially troubled toy company, announced Friday that it was extending an exchange offer made to the holders of $335 million of its bonds in an effort to restructure its debt until Wednesday at 5 p.m. EDT.

The company, maker of Colgate Patch Kids dolls, has proposed that investors exchange those securities for 6 million shares of Coleco stock and new bonds worth $119 million. The company is in default on that $335 million debt. Coleco Chairman Morton E. Handel has said the company might have to seek protection from its creditors unless it can restructure the debt and raise working capital.

The company said in a statement it expected to improve the exchange offer before the new deadline of 5 p.m. EDT Wednesday "to respond to discussions held between the company and debentureholders over the past few weeks."

"The modified offers will substantially preserve the face amount of the outstanding debentures, sharply reduce the company's annual interest cost and provide debentureholders with a more substantial interest in the company," the statement said.

Coleco also said it had terminated its agreement with Halwood Group Inc., the Cleveland company Coleco had hired to help it restructure and avoid bankruptcy proceedings.

Highlights of the week

By The Associated Press

Major banks raised their prime lending rates for the first time since the stock market crash, pushing the key rate to 9 percent and heralding a period of more expensive borrowing.

The steepest energy price gain in 15 months pushed wholesale costs up 0.4 percent in April, the government said. Food prices were modestly higher. In other reports, business sales shot up 1.9 percent in March, the biggest advance in more than a year, while business inventories rose 0.3 percent.

Retail sales fell 0.6 percent in April, the first setback in six months. The decline was blamed on an early Easter, bad weather and a bigger federal tax bite for some people. A private study said consumer confidence rebounded in April, suggesting spending will be strong in coming months.

The Agriculture Department said farmers soon will be harvesting a winter wheat crop estimated at 1.62 billion bushels, up 4 percent from last year's production.

Los Angeles businessman Burt Sugarman raised his tender offer for Media General Inc. to about $2 billion or $70 per share. The battle is expected to come to a head at a shareholders' meeting May 20.

Gulf & Western Inc. and Western Publishing Group Inc. ended talks about a possible takeover of Western Publishing, a children's book publisher and commercial printer. Gulf & Western later announced its third stock buyback program in five years.

Lorimar Telepictures Corp. agreed to be acquired by Warner Communications Inc. in a $1.18 billion stock-swap deal. Investor Marvin Davis later renewed his bid for Lorimar.

USG Corp. claimed victory in a proxy battle, saying shareholders had voted for a management-backed directors slate over one supporting Desert Partners' $2.2 billion hostile takeover bid.

Local union members narrowly ratified a United Auto Workers contract covering 60,000 Chrysler Corp. employees despite objections from skilled-trades workers.

Pan Am Corp. Chairman Thomas Plaskett told shareholders the airline was in dismal financial condition and must get concessions from its labor unions.

A report from a private consultant hired by Union Carbide Corp. said sabotage by a disgruntled employee, not negligence, caused a deadly gas leak at the company's Bhopal, India, plant four years ago.

The Federal Reserve Board issued rules requiring banks, savings institutions and credit unions to meet strict check-clearing deadlines. On another matter, Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan urged the House to follow the Senate's lead and pass legislation to give banks new securities underwriting powers.

A deal between entertainer Merv Griffin and investor Donald Trump to divide up Resorts International Inc. collapsed, renewing the millionaires' battle for ownership of the hotel-casino company.

American Medical International Inc. said it would sell 37 hospitals in 10 states to an employee group in a transaction valued at $910 million.

Irving Bank Corp. said it set up a committee of independent directors to hold talks with its two suitors, Bank of New York Co. and Banca Commerciale Italiana SpA.

The Federal Aviation Administration said 15 of the nation's airlines face fines totaling nearly $6.5 million for a variety of alleged safety and security breaches.

The Federal Communications Commission proposed a new method of regulating interstate telephone rates that could save consumers $1.6 billion over the next four years.

Education is first priority

To the Editor:

Re: The reopening of Highland Park School for kindergarten through grade 6. It seems to me that the Board of Education's job is to try and educate the children of Manchester. Isn't it a bit incongruous that they are far more concerned about finding and funding posh air-conditioned offices for the town's bureaucracy? Naturally they do not want to move; neither did the children when dispossession of hundreds of them was carried out on that infamous day in 1984. Did the town also dispose of the Knoess Memorial Library to which caring parents donated time, money and books in memory of a great teacher who lost her battle to cancer? Many have found this a deed akin to desecrating cemeteries.

Recreation is fine. Learning to play golf, play basketball, make baskets, make pots, read tarot cards, do yoga is commendable. But it won't put bread on the table. That takes ability to read and write. By 1990 more than 50 percent of all jobs will require education or technical training beyond high school.

Research and funding done through the U.S. Department of Labor and Department of Health and Human Services find that it is far more important to have small classes and even an occasional tutor for elementary school children. Over 25 children in a class is too many, and splitting families is not excellence in education.

Basic skill deficiencies, problems in reading and writing, difficulties in listening and calculating impose substantial costs to employers, not only in the form of educational expenses, but also through lower productivity and ultimately reduced product quality. You pay more for goods.

Every $1 spent on early prevention and intervention can save $4.75 in the costs of remedial education, welfare and crime further down the road.

The criterion for salary increases (also for town administrators, who serve the taxpayers) should be: Has the job been well done? I think that over 500 Manchester taxpayers with children might decide that.

Murder took place in '06

To the Editor:

That was an interesting piece about the murder of Stanford White atop New York's Old Madison Square Garden by Harry Thaw in 1925. However, the year was 1906 and it occurred in a nightclub which was atop the original Madison Square Garden.

Both Stanford White and Harry Thaw were well-known celebrities before this unfortunate tragedy.

STAR WARS

Schroeder, Dole for veep

By Chuck Stone

An American suffers either from questionable judgment or reckless ambition when he or she seeks an office that has been described as "not worth a bucket of warm spit," "a spare tire on the automobile of government," the country's "next highest and th' lowest" office and "like writin' anonymous letters."

With that panoply of ridicule, it's understandable why vice presidents rarely get elected president.

Those disdainful descriptions come from cynical ex-vice presidents and impish literary critics. Yet, distinguished Americans have not surrendered their enthusiasm or respect for the nation's second highest office. And that includes Jesse Jackson.

By nominating a Michael Dukakis-Jackson ticket, Democrats would semaphore a new political ethic. But it won't happen. Psychologically, America's "good ol' boys" aren't yet ready to abdicate their preferred status to a black man—even if his power is soaked in a bucket of warm spit.

Despite Jackson's almost certain rejection at the Democratic convention, he still added eloquence and—excuse the metaphor—color to the 1988 presidential campaign. More than any other candidate, he electrified the electorate with his vision of America's mandate.

He brought out new voters. But that's not enough to guarantee victory. Without him, the presidential campaign guarantees dullness.

On a Richter scale of excitement, a Dukakis-George Bush debate rates slightly lower than a Bartles and Jaymes pitch for wine coolers. The ideological choice is clear. The desire to make it isn't. How do you choose between the personalities of Tweedledee and Tweedledum?

This isn't the most propitious way to make my argument for two distinguished vice presidential candidates, but I think 212 years after the country was founded, 69 years after the 19th Amendment nationalized women's suffrage, four years after the first major party nominated a woman for vice president, and in the year of the first major black presidential challenger—it's time for both parties to accept an America that is half male and half female.

It is time for two—not one, but two—women vice presidential candidates.

A few weeks ago, a small but feverishly dedicated group of well-intentioned but misguided Republicans began a push to draft Jeanne Kirkpatrick for vice president. This brilliant right-wing polemicist would serve the country well if Attila the Hun were making policy.

What both political camps need is a vice presidential candidate who can follow Isaiah's advice—"Come, let us reason together, yet proceed with sensitive firmness and moral resolve attuned to diplomatic delicacies in a world no longer ordered in our image."

Two extraordinary women possess these qualities: for the Democrats, Rep. Patricia Scott Schroeder; for the Republicans, Elizabeth Hanford Dole.

The similarities in their backgrounds are astounding. Now that Ronald Reagan has legitimized astrology, it might help to know that both are Leos and celebrate birthdays one day apart. (Dole, July 28; Schroeder, July 30). Both were distinguished scholars (Schroeder, magna cum laude; Dole, Phi Beta Kappa). Both are graduates of Harvard Law School. Both are from the Midwest-Western region of the country (Schroeder, Colorado; Dole, Kansas), the region both parties need to win. Both are cerebral, telegraphically attractive, witty, politically experienced and knowledgeable about public policy.

And whichever candidate won, America would enjoy the distinction of a woman vice president. I don't think we ought to postpone our rendezvous with a two-gender destiny any longer, notwithstanding that bucket of warm spit.

A major victory for proponents of airbags

WASHINGTON —

The Reagan administration has been the most powerful obstacle standing in the way of mandatory automobile airbags. But right under President Reagan's nose, a government office has handed consumers a major coup.

The battle of the airbag has been raging in courts and in Congress since the 1960s. A series of contacts between consumer guru Ralph Nader and Gerald Carman, who was then head of the General Services Administration, finally moved the debate off dead center.

Nader informed Carman that a number of government workers could be saved from injury and death if motor pool cars were equipped with the bags that inflate in the passenger compartment upon impact.

"He badgered the hell out of Carman, that's how he did it," says one consumer ally who watched Nader work. In December 1982, Carman announced that the GSA was ordering 5,000 Ford Tempos with airbags.

Carman's decision broke the dam that was holding back routine airbag use and demonstrated how government spending habits can be a powerful tool for reform. Nader told our associate Stewart Harris. With the GSA demanding airbags, automakers began to see a market for the safety device.

A survey of automakers by Nader's group, Public Citizen, shows how receptive to airbags consumers have become.

Ford Tempo and Mercury Topaz buyers have the option of adding driver's-side airbags this year. A reported 23,000 have been purchased and next year Ford will offer a full front-seat airbag as standard equipment on the Lincoln Continental.

General Motors offers the airbag as an option on the Oldsmobile Delta 88 and says it will offer half a million as standard equipment in 1990 and three million by 1992.

Chrysler did a startling about-face this month. Airbags will be standard equipment on the Fifth Avenue, Dodge Daytona, Diplomat, Plymouth Grand Fury and LeBaron Coupe and Convertible in 1990.

Anyone who has read Lee Iacocca's autobiography, "Airbags are one of those areas where the solution may actually be worse than the problem," Iacocca wrote, referring to isolated incidents in which airbags have caused accidents. To back up his statement, he quoted a retired safety engineer in Michigan, who suggested that airbags could be used as a more humane alternative to the electric chair and other forms of capital punishment.

After the GSA, insurance companies have been among the biggest airbag boosters. Travelers, Allstate and USAA have all ordered airbags in their staff cars. Many insurance companies offer bonuses and reduced premiums to drivers who use the devices.

"It's better than a savings bank," says Nader. With the premium discounts, drivers can recover the $300 cost of a Ford airbag and continue saving money on insurance premiums.

Open arms

Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis has surprised his one-time rivals by the cordiality with which he has welcomed their staffers into his campaign ranks.

Open arms? The front-runner are anxious to preserve their own place in the sun, so they shun the backers and workers of dropout candidates as if they were subversive terrorists.

But some supporters of Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., and others have been offered volunteer work and even paying jobs at Dukakis headquarters in Boston and on the campaign trail. They said they were glad we were in the fold," an astonished ex-Gore staffer told us.

One of the most amiable Dukakis aides has been campaign treasurer Robert Farmer, who has opened his arms to refugees from other campaigns. (Predictably, he has also held his palm out to the financial backers of the dropout candidates.)

Farmer and Dukakis campaign chief Susan Estrich have taken time to find places even for lower-level campaign workers who are without a candidate of their own.

Saving babies

Despite all our medical advances, the United States still has one of the highest infant death rates of the world's industrialized nations. About 40,000 babies born in this country each year die before they reach their first birthday. Infant mortality rates actually increased in 17 states between 1984 and 1985.

The federal government is supposed to do its part by making good health care available to all expectant mothers, whether they can pay for it or not. A recent congressional investigation into how those prenatal programs are working turned up little good news. Under the Reagan administration, new regulations have made it harder for low-income mothers to get Medicaid for prenatal care. Poor women are at a higher risk during pregnancy, in part because of inadequate medical care.

The congressional investigators looking into prenatal programs found that federal grants to local programs were not adequately monitored. So it is impossible to say, in many cases, whether the money spent has actually improved health care for pregnant women.

Methodists blast Israeli 'iron fist'

By George W. Cornell
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — In the months of Israeli-Palestinian violence, various church organizations have criticized Israel as moving too harshly to curb disorder. Last week such criticism got tougher.

In one of the severest condemnations yet of Israeli conduct, the United Methodist Church said, "Israel's current iron-fist policy... is totally unacceptable as civilized behavior."

The blast from this church of nearly 10 million Americans, second-largest in U.S. Protestantism next to Southern Baptists, came in a late-night finale of its governing conference and got scant news attention.

Yet it marked a heightened level of church reproach against Israel, putting added strains on Jewish-Christian relationships in this country.

Rabbi James Rudin, interreligious affairs director of the American Jewish Committee, called the statement a one-sided expression of "selective outrage" against Israel without also criticizing Arab fomenters of violence.

"Overall it's an unbalanced statement," he said, and the "harshness emanated from the church world toward Israel."

However, it was approved by an overwhelming 816-76 vote, urging the United States to stop all military and security aid to Israel until "Israel ceases the repression of Palestinians in the occupied territory."

Castigating Israel's use of force to put down rock-throwing Palestinian upholders, the resolution said of Israel's actions:

"This violent behavior brutalizes human beings, both oppressed and oppressors, and leads to a deepening cycle of hatred and violence."

The statement called on Israel "to stop beatings, to end the killings, to cease destroying Palestinian homes, to stop deporting Palestinian civilians and the Palestine Liberation Organization over legitimate demands, including fair and just distribution of disputed lands."

Thoughts

A heavy storm raged along the sea coast and a number of ships radioed distress signals. A rescue team was dispatched in a lifeboat and laboring against the gigantic waves finally rescued the crew of a fishing boat. Heading for a flashing buoy which marked the harbor entrance they found themselves in trouble. The storm had torn the buoy they were following from its mooring and they came upon a dangerous reef capsizing the boat. All of them were lost.

Floating signals are not only dangerous to sailors. There are many floating signals which mislead. They give you hope of pleasure, freedom, joy, a good life, and promising future, but often lead to chaos and even to death.

Jesus said, "I am the light of the world. Whoever follows me will never walk in darkness, but will have the light of life." (John 8:12), and the Bible says, "We have this hope as an anchor for the soul, firm and secure." (Hebrews 6:19). Keep your eye on Christ, he is the light of the world and your constantly moored anchor... at the right hand of God.

It has been a special month

Editor's note: This column is prepared by the staff of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches.

By Nancy Carr
Executive Director

Highlighting May as our special month of celebration has so far produced the Mayor's Community Prayer Breakfast and the Volunteer Recognition Dinner for the wonderful volunteers in the pantry, clothing and furniture bank, farmer's market, cheese disbursement and day camp.

Coming up on Sunday is the recognition for all our wonderful volunteers who staff the Samaritan Shelter and the Shepherd's Place. Culminating the month will be the dedication of the new MACC main office at St. Bartholomew on Saturday at 11 a.m.

The prayer focus this year for the Mayor's Community Prayer Breakfast was the well being of the community. Representatives of some of the many vocations and professions that, working together, build up and sustain this community, were asked to prepare and offer special prayer petitions.

Prayers for the family, cornerstone of community life, were written by Barbara Greene, homememaker.

Barbara, mother of six, who had just taken her mother home with her from the hospital, was not able to attend. Our thanks to Margaret Clemens for filling in for Barbara.

Responsible for bringing order to communal life are all the differing facets of government represented by Town Manager Robert Weiss, whose shared scripture reading put the responsibilities of those who lead and direct the community into sound perspective.

Prayer for the financial prosperity and well being of all in Manchester was offered by Joe Hachey of COMFED.

All those engaged in the clerical, record keeping, communicating functions, which facilitates the orderly flow of communal life, were represented by Barbara Armentano, secretary to the town Board of Directors.

Praying for the safety of Manchester and those who work to maintain the public safety (police, firemen, paramedics and all those involved in the criminal justice system and support services) was Evelyn Horn, warden at Hartford Correctional Center and a Manchester resident.

Offering prayers for the gift of wisdom in the community and for our young people was William DiYeso, educator and assistant coordinator of youth services at the high school.

Representing all those who work in the medical field was Dr. Burton Melsner, whose meditation impelized that creating and maintaining a healthy community involved far more than those specifically working in health-related fields.

Shop owner has bikes in the blood

By Nancy Concelman
Manchester Herald

He doesn't like to talk business at home, but on a nice day, John McVeigh will leave his house, hop on a bike and ride three miles to work, where he'll tell you everything you want to know.

Bicycles are his business, and have been since he opened The Bike Shop at 180 Spruce St. in 1972 at age 18, right after graduating from Manchester High School.

But McVeigh, co-owner of the newest store at 681 Main St. with his wife, Debbie, said his interest in bicycles began long before that.

"I've always had an interest in the bicycle business," McVeigh said. "I guess it's in my blood." McVeigh remembers always seeing his father, John, with a wrench in his hand. McVeigh said his father, who opened the original Bike Shop at 257 Spruce St. in 1958, taught him the mechanical side of bicycle repair and the work ethic. His mother taught him to be organized and "the skills it takes to run a business," he said.

The education he received from his parents paid off when in 1972, McVeigh, a lifelong Manchester resident, became known as the youngest full-fledged businessman in Manchester.

Since then, McVeigh's business has outgrown two locations, at 180 and 183 Spruce St. He moved into the Main Street building at the beginning of this year, and has 250 bicycles in stock. He started with eight.

"It's grown every year since day one," he said. "We are now five times bigger than we were on Spruce Street."

Just like his father, McVeigh considers repair his "forte." In a good season, McVeigh said he fixes 100-150 bikes a week, most of which have flat tires. Flat tires are the number one problem with bicycles, and abuse is the second biggest problem, he said.

"A lot of people look at a bicycle as a toy," he said. "It's a piece of equipment."

The bicycles he carries range in price from about $100 to $800. McVeigh said some customers are surprised by the $500 to $800 price tag on some of the bicycles.

"But there are people that drive $50,000 cars for the same reason," he said. "It's the performance." While the average bicycle, which costs between $100 and $200, weighs just under 30 pounds, a $500 to $800 racing bike might weigh just over 20 pounds, he said. The average bicycle is made of a steel frame with aluminum components, while more expensive bicycles have heat-treated aluminum frames and may have components made of aerospace industry materials.

"A lot of our bicycle components (materials) are a spin-off of the aerospace industry," McVeigh said. The bicycle business is "constantly changing," he said. "Constantly."

To keep up, McVeigh said he attends trade shows and reads magazines when he has time, which isn't too often.

He works an average of 12 hours a day, six days a week for seven or eight months a year until business slows down in the fall. "When we get time to smell the roses," he said.

You'll hear no complaints from McVeigh, who said he enjoys the challenge of owning a store and especially providing a service.

"That's what keeps me going," he said. "I have never hated to come to work. Never."

HOUSE OF THE WEEK — The day areas in this house face the street while the three bedrooms look on the rear yard. There is a fireplace in the living room. Plan HA1468R has 1,335 square feet. Here's the Answer

QUESTION: My three sons and I will be building a new house. We expect to do all the work except the plumbing and electricity. Since it will be mostly a brick house, we hope to get away without any insulation. We live in an area where we have all four seasons, but where it does not get too hot in the summer nor too cold in the winter. We have heard conflicting reports about insulation. One person says brick walls need insulation even more than wooden walls. Another says insulation is not necessary, as the brick is a protection against cold weather. What is your opinion?

ANSWER: This is a controversy that has been going on for many years. Most authorities now agree that walls of brick, concrete block and stone made of wood. In very hot weather areas that have cool nights, such as in some parts of the Southwest, insulation is less needed than in other parts of the country, but as a general rule, wherever insulation is needed, it's needed whether the house is wood or masonry.

QUESTION: In putting outlets into a new room, how far apart should they be?

ANSWER: It depends on the needs of those who will be using the room. Better a couple too many outlets than too few. Some electrical codes specify there should be an outlet every 12 feet, but even this isn't enough if a door comes between two of the outlets. Combine your own judgement with that of the electrician who puts in the outlets and you will arrive at a satisfactory solution.

QUESTION: Can you tell me something about a home equity loan? How it differs from a regular mortgage loan.

ANSWER: The main difference is that the lending institution will make a loan based on the market value of your home, whereas the ordinary mortgage loan is for the purpose of buying a home. With an equity loan, the money cannot be used to buy the house. The lender will give you a percentage of the market value, usually in the neighborhood of 80 percent. If there already is a mortgage on the house, your home loan is, in effect, a second mortgage.

Tree plantings salute celebs

By Earl Aronson
The Associated Press

Memories as well as trees flourish along Celebrity Path in Brooklyn, N.Y., where the Botanic Garden salutes Brooklyn's most famous sons and daughters. Already 57 artists, poets, performers and athletes who were born or flourished in Brooklyn have been honored along the path near the Japanese Garden Lake, bordered by Austrian pines, rhododendrons and daffodils.

"This path will never end," says Alan L. Smith of the Brooklyn Union Gas Co., which donated the path to the BBG in 1985, "because Brooklyn continues to be the source of great talent."

There is an individual monument to each celebrity, an 18-by-24-inch concrete paver set into the path at irregular intervals. The pavers were designed by Brooklyn artist April Kinser. Each paver contains a bronze medallion of the Brooklyn Bridge with the words: "The greatness of Brooklyn and its people." The celebrity names and a stylized leaf outline — one of four species — are also cast in bronze. The leaves — scarlet oak, Chinese parasol, red-veined maple and water lily — were chosen by Edmond O. Moulin, BBG's director of horticulture, from plants bearing special relationships with the Garden.

Scarlet oak, a native tree, was planted in 1916 as a gift of Harriet

Weeders Guide

White, sister of Alfred T. White, BBG's first major contributor. The Chinese parasol tree, a native of eastern Asia, also called Phoenix tree, was received from the Yokohama Nursery in Japan in 1925 (notable because the variety is not reported hardy in the United States except in southern California and Florida). The red-veined maple is rare, native to Japan, producing red and yellow fall foliage. The vibrantly colored water lily plants in the tropical pool have been the annual gift of William Tricker of Saddle River, N.J.

This year's Celebrity Path inductees include: Connie Stevens, 1987 "Welcome Back to Brooklyn" homecoming queen, Betty Comden, Howard Cosell, Neil Diamond, Jackie Gleason, Celeste Holm, Carole King, Mary Tyler Moore, Joseph Papp, Mickey Rooney, Barbra Streisand and George Tooker.

Others honored in the two previous years include: Woody Allen, Isaac Asimov, Eubie Blake, Clara Bow, Mel Brooks, Aaron Copeland, George Gershwin, Woody Guthrie, Susan Hayward, Gli Hodges, Lena Horne, Harry Houdini, Danny Kaye, Vincent Lombardi, Norman Mailer, Robert Merrill, Arthur Miller, Jackie Robinson, Beverly Sills, Neil Simon, Mae West and Walt Whitman.

New crape myrtles

New varieties of crape myrtles from the U.S. Department of Agriculture are now available at wholesale nurseries in 18 of the warmer states.

The 17 varieties are reportedly the first to resist powdery mildew, a disease that encrusts and kills flowers and leaves of common crape myrtles, the South's most popular flowering plant, according to plant breeder Donald R. Egolf.

Egolf says the new hybrid varieties are more cold-tolerant than the old ones and "four to five generations of breeding have unlocked 'new flower colors — blue-reds, peach-blush reds, new pinks and purple lavenders.'" Also, "magnificent bark characteristics in winter months were an unexpected bonus."

The hybrids come in four sizes, dwarf to 35 feet. Most common crape myrtles sold are small trees, 20 to 35 feet at maturity.

Three of the hybrids have reached retail nurseries and garden centers; others will reach retail outlets in one to two years. They are not available from the National Arboretum in Washington, D.C.

Map out your financial plan

Sylvia Porter

Despite the wealth of advice and information available today, many Americans still have not mastered the art of effective budgeting and financial planning. The goal has not changed over the years: Whatever your income, you strive to control rather than be controlled by your money.

The first step involves mapping out a financial plan that includes realistic objectives and a realistic time frame. This will help keep you on course and provide you with a standard against which you can measure your progress.

The second step involves spending, investing and borrowing wisely.

"By planning carefully and avoiding 'The Money Blunder Syndrome,' you'll be better prepared to meet your goals," says Dave Pickett, financial and estate planning consultant for Aetna Life Insurance and Annuity Co.

"All of a sudden the kids are ready to go to college and you are thinking about retirement," adds Maynard Engel, director of the personal financial planning division at Shearson Lehman Hutton. "By not planning in advance, college costs could put you into deep debt and set your retirement goals way off."

"First and foremost, people fail to set realistic financial goals," reports Paul Sanderason, director of the personal financial counseling group in the Chicago office of Arthur Young Co.

Most experts report similar insights. And although their points are basic, they deal with the fundamentals that are most commonly overlooked. Some examples include:

■ Overlooking the risk exposure. "Someone may have the vague notion he or she is covered with, say, disability thorough work, but most people do not know the particulars," says Sanderason.

■ Not allocating your money properly. You need some liquid assets, but leaving too much money in non-interest bearing checking accounts or in low-interest vehicles like passbook accounts and savings bonds are common mistakes.

Consider your age, income, tax bracket, financial responsibilities and temperament when building an investment portfolio.

■ Not having a will. To protect your family's interests, get help from an attorney. Depending on the state in which you live, a will could be found invalid if it does not observe the correct legal form. Review your will periodically as your family circumstances alter, your financial conditions improve and as you change your preferences about distribution of your wealth.

■ Setting an unrealistic budget. "A common problem is overestimating income while underestimating expenses," says Flora L. Williams, associate professor of family and consumer economics at Purdue University. She notes that people tend to figure out finances using their gross income and anticipated overtime pay, while they underestimate miscellaneous expenses.

"Instead of preparing a budget based on what you think is reasonable, start by listing all expenditures for a few weeks," advises Pickett. Once you know where your money goes, you'll know where you can cut back.

Over time, a well-planned budget will help you anticipate expenses so you can live within your income and have a savings plan as well.

■ Not having a "rainy day" fund. A cushion for emergencies, even if it's fairly modest (one month's salary is a reasonable goal for most families) can mean the difference between inconvenience and serious hardship for your family. A "rainy day" fund should be easily accessible — in a money market fund, for instance, or a passbook savings account.

FOCUS / Advice

What causes sore breasts?

DEAR DR. REINISCH: I'm 43 and my breasts have been sore for several months, since a doctor recommended an X-ray for a cold I had. They feel engorged, but I can't feel anything wrong.

Kinsey Report
June M. Reinisch, Ph.D.

DEAR READER: Have your physician examine your breasts carefully. If a mammogram (breast X-ray) is recommended, have it done. Mammograms can detect some problems in the early stages that go undetected by manual exams.

Do you use hormonal contraceptive pills? Sometimes they can make breasts tender. You could ask the physician to prescribe a different contraceptive or a pill with lower estrogen content to see whether your current pill is causing the problem.

If no explanation for the soreness is found, ask your physician about fibrocystic breasts. If the soreness changes during your cycle (more tender just before menstrual flow and less tender after), this common problem may be involved.

Often discomfort can be reduced by lowering the amount of salt in your diet. Some experts also suggest avoiding coffee, tea, cola and other caffeine-like substances, although the effectiveness of this has been questioned by other researchers. There is some evidence that daily doses of between 400 to 600 units of vitamin E are helpful, but again more research is needed to evaluate the effectiveness of this treatment.

effectiveness of this treatment.

DEAR DR. REINISCH: I had epididymitis in both testicles. I lost one to TB and still fight to keep the other one. My urethra has closed two times in 25 years and has been corrected both times.

What I want to know is: Can testicles be transplanted from another person or from an animal such as a dog? If anyone is trying this research, I would volunteer to be a test person. I'm 48.

DEAR READER: On the back of each testicle is a coiled tube called the epididymis, which, if straightened out, measures 12 to 15 feet. After sperm leave the testicle, they pass through the epididymis where they mature and become capable of forward motion.

Epididymitis (infection of one or both epididymis tubes) is a common male problem. Causes of epididymitis include various sexually transmitted organisms, abnormalities in the structure of the urinary tract, urinary tract infections and prostate infections. Tuberculosis can also be a cause of epididymitis infection.

Treatment of epididymitis involves use of an antibiotic effective against the particular organism causing the infection and bed rest with the scrotum elevated on a towel placed between the legs. A man may need to take antibiotics for a long period of time, until tests show the infection is completely gone.

Successful treatment depends on finding out which of many possible organisms is causing the epididymitis so that the correct antibiotic and dosage can be prescribed. This testing involves complicated laboratory tests and specialized analysis. If the organism can be sexually transmitted, then sexual partners must also be tested and treated at the same time as the patient.

I'm not aware of any research under way investigating testicle transplants. But these infections should not keep recurring, and you must get a second medical opinion to see why you're still having trouble. Much of the newest research and best testing on epididymitis is being done by specialists in sexually transmitted diseases. Ask your local health department to refer you to a clinic or specialist.

If you are bothered about having only one testicle in your scrotum, you could also ask the clinic about artificial testicles. These are gel-filled implants (shaped like a testicle) that can be surgically placed in the scrotum. They do not produce sperm or male hormones (as do natural testicles), but they make a man's body look normal.

In addition, a man who has lost both testicles (and thus is without a natural source of male hormones) can take replacement hormones. In this way he will continue to have facial hair growth, lower voice, erections and other male attributes.

Allergy brings chronic cough

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have had a bad cough since I was 9. I'm 29 now and it has gotten worse. Sometimes the mucus is foamy and sometimes it is thick. What can I do about this ongoing problem?

Dr. Gott
Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR READER: Chronic cough deserves attention. Pulmonary diseases, such as bronchitis and asthma, are common causes of cough, can be cyclic and may follow a person from childhood into maturity. On the other hand, ailments arising in tissue outside the lungs can also produce chronic cough.

In my practice, the most prevalent non-pulmonary disorder causing cough is postnasal drip. This is a common condition in allergic patients and is seen as a thin, watery mucus discharge that intermittently drains down the back of the throat, resulting in troublesome, sometimes violent attacks of coughing.

In my opinion, you need a thorough medical examination and special tests. Such tests would include a chest X-ray, a blood count and pulmonary-function studies (methods by which the efficiency of breathing can be measured). You may also need allergy testing and a provocative test for asthma, in which one of a number of substances is presented to you in inhaled form and any airway obstruction is measured.

Almost all the causes of chronic cough in otherwise-healthy young people are diagnosable and treatable. You do not have to put up with this affliction; your doctor can help you.

Heroine's good deed shines 35 years later

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: In November 1952, I was walking down a road just outside of Glendale, Ariz., with my brother, an uncle and my mother, who was carrying my 4-month-old baby sister. I was 4 years old at the time, but I remember this as though it were yesterday.

A truck hit us. My mother was knocked unconscious and my baby sister was sent hurtling through the air. My brother, uncle and I were lucky to escape with only minor injuries.

Many people stopped to help us, and I had a hard time convincing them that I was looking for my baby sister — and not a doll! A truck driver went to get some water out of a ditch to aid my mother and uncle and he saw my baby sister floating in the cold water.

The person I want to find is the pretty lady who stopped to help us. She had long blond hair. Abby, this angel took off her skirt in front of everybody and wrapped it around my half frozen baby-sister! We were all taken to the hospital where my sister remained for a long time, being fed through the veins in her legs. Thanks to this blond lady, my sister survived.

Abby, if that lady is still living, I'd love to hear from her. (She looked to be 23 or 24 at the time.) There are so few real heroes in this world I would like to find this woman. She was a true heroine.

EVA PIERCE, HEALDTON, OKLA.
DEAR EVA: Perhaps you will. Stranger things have happened.

DEAR READERS: Did you know that more accidents occur in the home than on highways? The U.S. Public Health Service estimates that 40 percent to 50 percent of all falls at home can be prevented with some practical changes in the home. Consider:

ALL ROOMS: In doorways, raised thresholds should be removed or covered with carpet. Keep electrical cords out of the way. Get rid of frayed rugs and avoid throw rugs. Fasten area carpets to the floor with tape or tacks. Repair any furniture that is unsteady.

STAIRWAYS: They are common locations for falls. Be sure stairways are well-lighted. Install secure handrails. If you have a vision problem, bright tape applied to the first and last steps can help.

BEDROOMS: Put a light switch at the door so no one has to cross a dark room to turn on a light. Avoid placement of furniture that will make it hazardous. Beds and chairs need to be of proper height: When the occupant is sitting, feet should touch the floor, with knees comfortably bent.

BATHROOMS: Install safety rails at the tub and grab-handles by the toilet. (Never use towel bars as grab-handles.) Put a non-skid mat near both places. Shower chairs and bath benches minimize risks of falling. Remember: A mishap in the shower can lead to a burn injury if the water mixer level is accidentally turned in an effort to prevent the fall.

KITCHEN: Are your cabinets hard to reach? Use extension tongs or, if necessary, a small stepladder. Never stand on a chair to reach a shelf. (Better yet, "retire" that top shelf.) Wipe up spills immediately. Use non-skid floor wax. Stove controls (especially for gas ranges) should be clearly visible and in good working order.

The above information is from the Mayo Clinic Health Letter. I have found a wealth of practical information in this monthly newsletter. If you can afford the $24 a year, write to Editor Scott D. Olson, Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn. 55905, and tell him Dear Abby sent you. It will be money well spent.

Astrograph

Your Birthday

Life may take you in an entirely new direction in the year ahead. You're going to be more restless and adventurous, and these inclinations will be attributes that will enhance your possibilities for success.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An enterprise you have in mind has good chances for success, provided your procedures are properly timed. It could misfire if you push ahead prematurely. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH, 44101-9428.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today, don't be too hasty about acting on flashes of inspiration. Sleep on your bright ideas, because they might turn out to be burned out bulbs.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A relationship you cherish could be jeopardized today if you let something of a material nature become an issue. Money has its value, but friends are priceless.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You can move ahead more swiftly at this time if you are unencumbered by unproductive partners. Be extremely selective regarding your alliances.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today, you may have to deal with someone whose politics or philosophy clashes with yours. This could be a volatile situation if it's not handled properly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A joint venture in which you're interested is not likely to work out if the arrangement isn't equitable. Each party must be able to make an equivalent contribution.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) An unresolved disagreement between you and your mate should not be aired in front of others today. If your spouse does bring it up, subdue inclinations to respond.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be cognizant of proper safety procedures today when working with tools. Also keep a close eye on co-workers to be sure they don't get careless.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your self-discipline might not be all that it should be today, and some form of overindulgence is probable. Put sensible limits on that which you eat or imbibe.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try to keep your temper under control if you have to contend with domestic frustrations today. Heated words from you could have the household boiling over.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't believe everything you hear today. A person who likes to stir things up might distort some comments another recently made about you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be a bit more protective than usual of your possessions today, especially if you're in locations with which you're unfamiliar. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Best defense not good enough

Remember that South has just ruffed the fourth spade, and now West must discard. If he underruffs, dummy is good. If he throws his diamond jack, declarer will play the diamond 10 at him. If he throws the club jack, declarer's five is promoted and will be led. Obviously if either of South's cards becomes a winner, West must ruff it when it is led, or declarer will simply discard dummy's spade and take the last trick with the heart ace.

Mystery listless and shoddy

APPOINTMENT WITH DEATH (PG) Movies of Agatha Christie who-dunits featuring Belgian sleuth Hercule Poirot and a slew of star murder suspects have become a virtual genre unto themselves. The trend began with the handsome, juicy "Murder on the Orient Express," continued with the campy, even juicier "Death on the Nile," dipped quite a bit in quality for "Evil Under the Sun," and then dipped even more with the TV-movie "Dead Man's Folly." The latest, "Appointment with Death," hits rock bottom.

Filmeter

seems to be having any fun—and she's quickly disposed of. Meanwhile, Lauren Bacall acts like a wrinkled female impersonator doing a grande dame routine. Hayley Mills looks shockingly worn as her traveling companion, and the great John Gielgud is wasted as an old colonel. You know the movie is in trouble when it tries to palm off the flat talents of Carrie Fisher and David Soul as a pair of illicit scheming lovers! TV's "Murder, She Wrote" is more satisfying—and it's free. Grade: ½ so well on their National Advanced Placement Calculus test that officials even assumed they must have cheated! People who know Edward James Olmos' work as Lt. Castillo on "Miami Vice" will probably find his performance as the obsessive, oddball Escalante a revelation. Looking paunchy, balding and heavily acne-scarred, Olmos turns Escalante into an almost too-studied acting departure: His performance sometimes seems as dogged as the rest of the movie. But both Olmos and the movie have their movingly authentic moments, too: happily, these come to outweigh the others. Grade: ½

CAUGHT (Not Rated) Republic, $19.95. Here's a good price on a largely unknown Max Ophuls-directed gem from 1949. Barbara Bel Geddes stars as a sweet young thing who marries a tortured (and torturing) recluse millionaire (Robert Ryan); pregnant and desperately unhappy, the woman seeks release in the arms of a good doctor (James Mason). Ophuls had one of the most deeply romantic directorial styles in movies, and this beautifully shot black-and-white picture takes some surprisingly dark twists and turns. Ryan's complex character was based on the real Howard Hughes. Grade: ***

(Film grading: * excellent,  good,  fair, * poor)

All the elements would seem to be in place: the exotic locale (in this case, Palestine and surrounding archaeological digs in herring); a steady supply of red stars hammering it up in classy clothes. And yet the picture, directed by Michael Winner, is listless and shoddy, with dead patches between the lines of stilted dialogue. Even Peter Ustinov, who returns in the role of the smug, omniscient Poirot, seems at half mast.

A lot of the pleasure of the first two all-star entries in this series came from watching the stars turn up in relay to perform what amounted to spirited caricatures. Here, the guest stars perform with all the cheesy élan of the cast of "Hollywood Squares." Only Piper Laurie, playing a bellowing battle-ax of a wealthy widow,

STAND AND DELIVER (PG)

A good story can sometimes tell. An example is this fact-based tale of Jaime Escalante, the East Los Angeles high-school teacher who took classes of poorly motivated inner-city math students and turned them into calculus whizzes. Directed by Ramon Menendez, the movie is often only adequate—looking a bit dog-eared, and seeming more than a bit simplistic. Yet there's an inherently pleasing, triumphant-of-the-underclass kick to the story of how Escalante's kids did

Russ MacKendrick

This is one of several glossies that landed here from the Bradford Exchange, collector plate mavens of Chicago and worldwide.

We had to make a choice out of a group that had also "My Little Pink Bird," "Little Red Robins," "Roses," and "Monarch Butterflies."

No problem: Puppydom has been uppermost in mind since Yogi took over our household. He is 14 weeks old and now will walk on his hind legs when you hold up a sliver of meat and say "Crazy-over-pork-chop!"

Someone aware of his, er, breeding has said, "Since he was the only one in the litter he must carry the genes of all four dogs." (Poodle, cocker spaniel, chihuahua and dachshund.)

A Frankensteinian creature or something from "The Twilight Zone?" Time will tell.

So far he has been a cuddly lap-sitter good to watch TV with, but only after he has simmered down from his day of savaging plastic milk bottles and perhaps making confetti out of a paper towel roll that wasn't stashed high enough.

The Field Puppy plate series is the first to be sponsored by the United Kennel Club. The artist for the Golden Retriever was Lynn Katz. Plate size 8½ inches; 150 firing days; price $24.50 from the Theater designs are unusual

Shakespeare's day, and Design by Motley soon came to mean the best in set and costume creation, Mullin said.

The women designed for Shakespeare, modern classics, new plays, opera, ballet, musicals and films. Productions — more than 300 in all — ranged from "Romeo and Juliet" on stage to "The Spy Who Came in From the Cold" on screen.

The working sketches include a hefty woman in a black skirt with a red blouse and scarf from "Shoemaker's Holiday," with a notation that she should look "very padded." The drawing of a farm woman from "Paint Your Wagon" suggests a "big straw hat" and "cotton print 12 yards."

Mullin became interested in the collection after meeting Margaret Harris in 1977 and seeing many of the sketches. The Motley team had preserved most of the drawings in a business "where designers often discard or give away their work after a production closes," he said.

Mullin, however, said consideration had been given to selling the collection piece-by-piece, and he feared that the sketches would be disbursed and lost forever.

The UI offered $100,000 for the entire collection and in 1981 two steamer trunks full of the material arrived from London.

The drawings were sorted, cataloged, photographed and preserved at the UI library.

MANCHESTER HAS IT

That footwear monster really socks it to her

I'd like to alert you to a social problem of mammoth proportions. It is a tragedy which touches nearly every household in America, a real cause of heartbreak.

My Side
Nancy Pappas

It is the high rate of divorce and runaways in the sock population. Although this issue affects just about every American family, most people tend to keep the whole thing in the closet or, I should say, the bureau drawer. The light violet, lace-topped ankle sock sits alone, mourning for its mate. The high white athletic sock, gaily striped with bars of blue and orange, wonders where its brother has wandered. And one piece of footwear, a risque black number decked out with glittering stars, thinks of her best girlfriend, who's run off to find fame in the fast-paced, sweaty, show business world.

In nearly every home, some designated spot becomes the "lost and found" department for divorced, abandoned or orphaned socks. A few months ago, we reached into the back of each family member's sock drawer, and pulled out a few dozen of these wretches in an attempt to organize the lot. There were a few "antiques" — the dark, cable-knit knee socks which my folks bought when I went off to college 20 years ago. There was a baby-sized bootie, which will no longer fit any of our household residents — except, perhaps, the Cabbage Patch dolls. And there were any number of little girls' tube socks, each decorated with bands in various shades of turquoise, pink and purple. Of course, none of these matched one another.

I decided that a great way to "file" all these socks would be to stuff them in a plastic grocery bag. The idea was that, in time, their mates would appear. They were probably under beds, behind couch pillows, or even wedged between the washer and the wall — or so I thought. Alas, for such innocence! I didn't realize that the matches for these socks had been lured to their destruction by the Great Sock Monster lurking in the depths of our washer and dryer. These wild-eyed monsters send socks off, one at a time, to their doom. I guess that they promise enormous athletic prowess to the white tube socks, and Hollywood-style success to the glitz ones. Perhaps they simply devour the others, in an attempt to

First settlement
An expedition of English colonists, including Capt. John Smith, went ashore April 26, 1607, at what is now Cape Henry, Va., to establish the first permanent settlement in the new world.

Says Derek Bok, president of Harvard University, "If you, think education is expensive—try ignorance."

satisfy their insatiable appetite. Whatever the M.O., the result is the same — a vast collection of socks which are useful only for those who make sock dolls, or who don't mind wearing unmatched footwear. And this dreadful scenario is repeated in households across the nation, year after year.

Ever resourceful, my husband has come up with a suggested solution, one which we haven't tried yet. His thinking was that a sock — just about any sock — could be designated as the sacrificial sock each year. In a ceremony complete with chants and incantations, this sock could be offered as tribute to the monsters. Remember the way the Greeks handled the minotaur? For those whose monsters are not so easily satisfied, he has another suggestion. Packets of laundry soap and fabric softener could be made up in the shape of socks. You'd add a laundry sock to the washing machine, a softener sock to the dryer. The scent could be something that was irresistible to the monsters — if that could be determined. If someone would make them, it would offer the perfect combo: a profitable product to sell through those catalogs for people who have everything, and a product that solves a sticky problem that blights American life. But until they're on the market, does anyone have a use for 14 white children's socks, each one slightly different?

Max celebrated his birthday at a fabulous place.

Chances are, Max won't remember what a great time he had at The Family Birthing Center at Manchester Memorial Hospital. But his parents will never forget the wonderful experience. From the moment they arrived, they enjoyed the special attention and personal care that are so hard to come by in some of the bigger hospitals. Throughout labor and delivery, Max's parents had the support of their own nurse in the privacy of their own birthing room, using the prepared child-birth methods they learned at the Center. After Max's arrival they celebrated with photo-taking, a champagne toast and bugs all around. All with the security and confidence that Max and Mom were getting the expert medical attention of Manchester Memorial's top-notch doctors and nursing staff. After delivery, Mom was settled into her comfortable room where Max was welcome to "room-in" anytime. Dad even spent the night! The next day, Mom and Dad shared a special "Stork Club" gourmet dinner and got instructions on how to care for their little birthday boy. If you see a "birth day" celebration in your future, The Family

Birthing Center would be delighted to show you their facilities and offer you more information. After all, doesn't your baby deserve as warm a welcome as little Max? For more information on The Family Birthing Center or a free tour please call 643-1223.

Local businesses given recognition for service

Editor's note: This column is prepared by the staff of the Manchester Senior Citizens' Center.

By Jeanette Cave
Senior Center Director

The dedication of Mrs. Senior Citizen, Edna Christensen, should be applauded. A member of the Finance Committee, she has worked diligently over the years for the benefit of the center. Christensen was named during Senior Citizen Week. In memory of John Dahm, Mr. Senior Citizen, the seniors congratulate the Dahm family. John, over the years, has been a very important part of the Golf League. His efforts will be long remembered.

The following businesses are also applauded for their efforts during the special week of activities: Arthur Treacher's, Bonanza, Bogner's, Burger King, Eastern Video, D & L, Friendly's at Tolland Turnpike, LaStrada Restaurant, Little Caesar's, Mr. Steak, Partners, Ponderosa, Regal's, Al Sieffert's, Shady Glen, Willie's and Wyman Oil.

The Thursday program on June 9 will be a Men's Day. We have a large group of men that participate in center activities. They make up a core who volunteer their time to do repairs, help with picnics and assist with programs. All men are invited to the program. The featured guest will be Mary Dunfee who will dazzle us with her belly dancing and charm.

This is the last weekend that you can attend the Senior Center Greenhouse Plant Sale. A good variety of flowering plants and vegetable plants are still available. The sale will continue until Friday or until all plants are sold, whichever comes first. The sale is being held at the greenhouse entrance at the rear of the Senior Center parking lots.

The center is sponsoring a trip to the Connecticut Historical Society for a photography exhibit on "The Way It Was" on June 8. The group will tour other exhibits at the gallery and enjoy lunch at the center. The bus will leave the center at 12:30 and return by 3:30 p.m. The cost is $2. Registration will begin May 25 at 9:30 a.m. Get well wishes are extended to Walter Fredrickson.

Driver Appreciation Day will be noted on Wednesday. The efforts of Sally Silver, Wendy Waldo and Jim Nason are applauded. The center also recognizes the Phone-A-Ride drivers who transport the elderly to doctor's appointments and other points around town.

Brower-Petersen

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Brower of Los Gatos, Calif., announce the engagement of their daughter, Diane M. Brower to Steven R. Petersen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Petersen of Tanner Street. The bride-elect is a graduate of Glastonbury High School and Forsyth School for Dental Hygiene, Boston, Mass. She is employed by Dr. Robert J. Henin, Glastonbury. The prospective bridegroom is a graduate of Manchester High School. He is employed by Gerber Garment Technology Inc. of Tolland. An October wedding is planned.

Ford-Falcetta

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ford of Ellington announce the engagement of their daughter, Peggy Ford to Gino Falcetta, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Falcetta of Vernon, formerly of Manchester. The bride-elect is a graduate of Ellington High School and St. Joseph College and is now attending the University of Connecticut. She is employed by the Stafford Board of Education. The prospective bridegroom is a graduate of Rockville High School and the University of Hartford. He is employed by Travelers Insurance Co. A June wedding is planned.

'Sesame' wedding event of lifetime

NEW YORK (AP) — It wasn't as lavish as Charles and Di's, but when two "Sesame Street" characters exchanged vows Friday, it was the wedding of a lifetime, at least for those whose lifetime was less than 10 years.

Eight pairs of eyes were locked on the television set in Shirley Foster's home as Maria and Luis got married in the season finale of the children's program. As in most "Sesame Street" segments, there was a lesson to be learned.

"Love is when somebody likes another person and they decide to get married," said Shemeka Fennell, 7, who had the day off from school and got to join the group at Mrs. Foster's house in New York City.

"It's when you like somebody in a special way," chimed in John Davy, 9.

"Big Bird looks nice," said Brandon Taylor, 5, who noticed that the leggy yellow character looked, well, different. Big Bird wore a giant turquoise flowered tie.

"Ernie and Bert look nice, too," Brandon said. They wore tuxedo shirts and bow ties.

Weekly Health Tip

by Roy D. Katz, R.Ph.

PROTECT THE HANDS
Rubber gloves are not the best answer when doing dishes or other chores that expose the skin to irritants. In fact, 1/4 of all occupational dermatitis cases are caused by allergy to one of the chemicals in rubber. Wear plastic gloves instead, and buy them a size larger to allow for cotton gloves inside to protect your skin from the dampness of sweating.

Young archaeologists sought

PENSACOLA, Fla. — While some youngsters plan to be spending their summer playing at the beach, others will be sifting through mud in search of ancient relics, thanks to a program for budding archaeologists.

The University of West Florida hopes its 1988 Summer Youth Archaeology Program will encourage youths to enter the field and will teach them the basics of literally digging into the past.

"It's dirty, but it's also exciting as archaeology gets," said UWF associate anthropology professor Judy Bense, who heads the school's Office of Archaeological Research.

Eagle deaths worry officials

CAMBRIDGE, Md. — Ten bald eagles have died in the last two months, apparently because they ate illegally poisoned animal carcasses, federal officials said.

"While our national symbol is making a recovery, it cannot sustain this rate of loss month after month nor will we tolerate it," said Frank Dunkle, director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Penalties for harming or killing a bald eagle, protected under federal law, range from one to five years in jail and fines or $5,000 to $100,000.

Alzheimer drug showing promise

MONTREAL (AP) — Early studies of a highly publicized drug for Alzheimer's disease show some promise, but also serious side effects in up to 80 percent of patients, a researcher says.

Nausea, vomiting, allergic reactions and a worrisome increase in liver enzymes have appeared in patients taking the drug, said Vinod Kumar of the Southern Illinois University School of Medicine in Springfield.

No conclusions can be reached yet about the usefulness of tetrahydroaminoacridine, often called THA, he said Thursday.

Kumar reviewed results of published and unpublished studies from Canada, Britain, Sweden and the United States at the annual meeting of the American Psychiatric Association.

THA generated excitement in 1986 when a study in the New England Journal of Medicine reported dramatic improvement in Alzheimer symptoms, particularly those related to memory deficits.

A nationwide study at 17 institutions began last September, but it was stopped in October because about 20 percent of patients showed the liver abnormalities. The trial was restarted earlier this year.

Alzheimer's disease is a progressive, irreversible neurological disorder affecting an estimated 2.5 million Americans.

Atlanta hospital smashes gallstones

ATLANTA (AP) — A machine that smashes gallstones using shock waves was used for the first time in the United States, and the patient involved in the landmark treatment said it was a lot more pleasant than surgery.

Lyn Hicks, 35, of Carrollton, joined her doctors at a press briefing Thursday at Emory University's Crawford Long Hospital in Atlanta, the first in the nation to use a new gallstone lithotripsy technique, according to hospital officials.

The treatment, Ms. Hicks said, was "virtually painless."

"I was released on a Thursday, and I could have gone back to work Friday," she said. She wound up going back to work the next Monday, after a follow-up visit the day after her release.

Ms. Hicks said she could feel pressure akin to a slap each time the machine fired shock waves at her midsection and was left with some "mild tenderness" afterward — a far cry from surgery recuperation.

"I work at a hospital," said Ms. Hicks, assistant director of registration for emergency patients at Carrollton's Tanner Medical Center. "I know what serious surgery it is."

EIGHTH UTILITIES DISTRICT OF MANCHESTER PRESIDENT'S REPORT

This has been a year of surprises. First of all, the Don Willis property at the corner of Main and Willard Streets unexpectedly became available. The District Elected Officials voted to acquire the property. When fully renovated, the building will provide the District with administrative and tax offices for many years. Just as important, it not more so, it will provide a suitable first floor meeting room with full access for the handicapped.

Second, due to circumstances beyond our control, much needed sewer projects had to be placed on hold. These projects should have been well under construction by now.

Third, our Tax collector has started a program to aggressively pursue delinquent tax monies. The results have been most rewarding.

Fourth, new construction, both residential and commercial, continues at an unexpected and staggering pace. This presents growing pains for the District as well as the community at large.

Finally, I wish to thank the staff employees, the elected officials, the chief officers and all of the line officers and members of the Manchester Fire Department, Eighth District, for their cooperation and support. My thanks also to the voters of the Eighth District for the confidence in allowing me to serve. It has been an honor to serve all of you.

Walter H. Joyner
President
Eighth Utilities District

ANNUAL FIRE MARSHAL'S REPORT 1987-1988

The responsibilities and duties of the Fire Marshal's Office continue to grow as the construction in the District evolves to a more complex state.

The duties mandated by the State have been performed with the equivalent of one day a week for inspections, meetings, classes and plan review; and full time availability for service to the public.

In addition to the annual inspections required, inspection of removal and installation of underground fuel systems, compiling hazardous materials list and compiling NIFRS reports was accomplished by this Office.

In-service training courses attended by Fire Marshal Linard, Assistant Fire Marshal Marvin and Fire Inspectors Albert and O'Marra meet the requirements to maintain certification.

Beyond the required duties, meetings for the Town of Manchester for SARA (hazardous material control) Committee and LEPIC (Local Emergency Planning Committee) were attended.

Anticipated plan review and inspection of new construction will consume a considerable amount of time for the coming year.

I would like to thank the Fire Prevention Team and quick response of the Fire Department for their co-operation in our joint effort to maintain minimum fire losses for the past year.

Respectfully submitted,
Granville Linard
Fire Marshal

FIRE CHIEFS REPORT 1987-1988

The Manchester Fire Department responded to 774 alarms during this fiscal year. There were 81 box alarms, 13 noise alarms, 1 investigation, 381 medical, 7 mutual aid, 68 service calls, 207 stills and 16 washdowns.

At the present time the department is comprised of 95 members; 40 in Company 1, 42 in Company 2, and 13 in Company 3. The department has 18 officers, 26 EMT's and 51 apparatus drivers.

Our apparatus consists of 3 first line pumps, on elevated platform, 1 heavy duty rescue truck, a utility truck, 1 reserve pumper, a pick-up truck and an alarm truck.

The Training Division conducted 18 drills covering various aspects of fire fighting and rescue techniques. These drills are conducted by the officers of the department. Three members of the department have completed the EMT Training Program and eight EMT's completed the refresher course.

In January a new 200 mega-hertz communication system by Motorola was installed. This new system along with a computer and radio alarms has afforded the department a most sophisticated dispatch center.

During Fire Prevention Week our Fire Prevention Team made their usual visits to the schools within the district.

This year 1988 our department is celebrating 100 years of dedicated service to the people of the Eighth Utilities District. On September 18th a parade will be held to honor this historic milestone.

In this fiscal year The Manchester Fire Department has strived to serve the district residents and merchants in a professional and responsible manner.

On behalf of the members of the department, I would like to take this opportunity to thank the district people for their continued support in helping us to make our community a safer place in which to live.

Respectfully submitted,
Harold A. Topf, Jr.
Chief M.F.D.

Underdog Devils like the position they're in BOSTON (AP) — There is no doubt in Joe Cirella's mind that the New Jersey Devils will be the underdog in Game 7 of the Wales Conference final against the Boston Bruins Saturday night.

And Cirella, a Devils' defenseman, wouldn't want it any other way.

"All season long our backs have been against the wall," Cirella said Thursday night after the Devils defeated the Bruins 6-3 to even the series at three victories apiece. "The fortunate thing is this team seems to play better when that happens."

The Bruins will have certain advantages playing at home. They have won seven of eight playoff games on their ice and have beaten the Devils in two of three games in the Boston Garden.

Boston will also have the final choice in matching up lines and will have a vocal following that will determine who meets the defending champion Oilers in Edmonton next week when the Stanley Cup championship series opens.

The remarkable thing heading into Game 7 is the fact the Devils are in it.

They made the playoffs for the first time since their move from Colorado — they also made it once as the Rockies — on the final night of the regular season and then beat the New York Islanders and Washington Capitals to get here.

Their 38-36-6 regular-season mark was their first better than .500 record.

"You know we've taken our lumps and it's been a long learning process," Cirella said. "You have to learn to lose before you can learn to win. We've had our share of losses to learn from. Now we're just trying to focus in on the job at hand."

And so are the Bruins, who are trying to reach the Stanley Cup final for the first time in 10 years. In getting this far, Boston posted its first playoff series victory over Montreal in 45 years.

Now the team that stands in the way is one whose club history spans just six seasons.

"It's just all a matter of playing the way we do in the Boston Garden," Bruins defenseman Glen Wesley said. "We play the same way there all the time, just bumping and grinding in the corners. We have to play tight defensively, that's been the key to the season for us."

Another key will be getting a good game in goal from Reggie Lemelin, who is expected to start again. He had a bad game on Thursday night, giving up five goals on 13 shots.

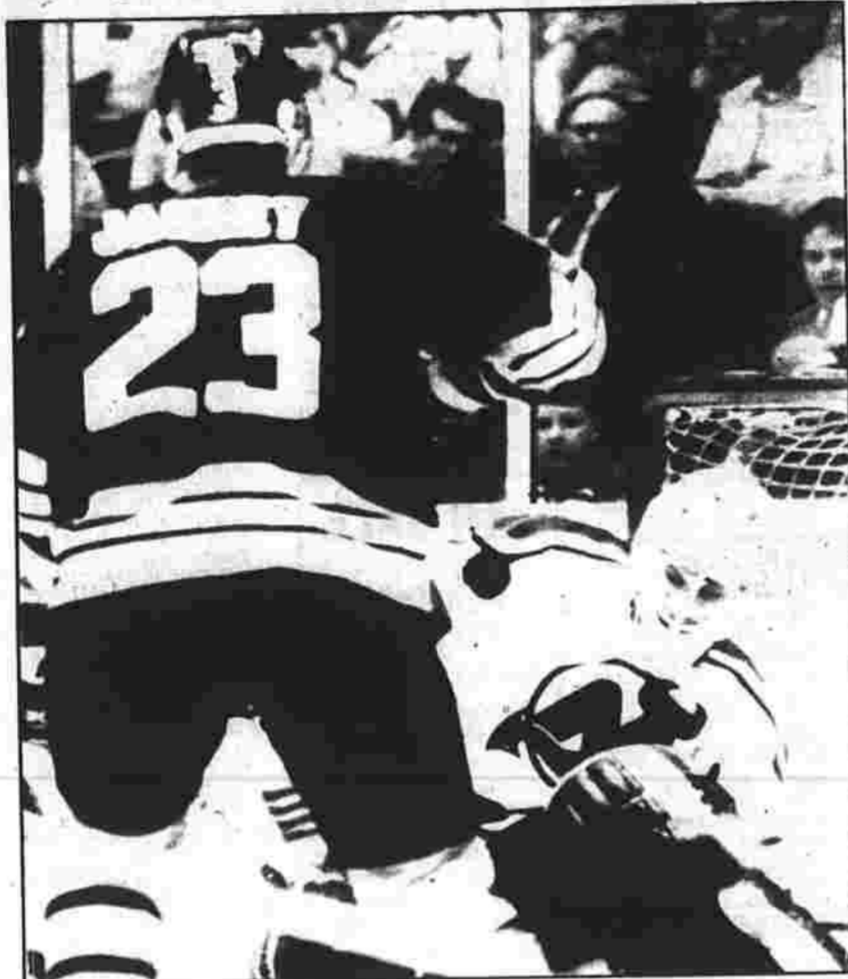

"It's another game," Lemelin said. "We know it's the last one and someone will be out. You just have to have the same feeling that you are going to do it and go on with it."

Devils defenseman Tom Kurvers said there is nothing else to do in a "one-game" series other than play at maximum intensity every shift.

"It's so important for everyone in this room," he said. "I don't know how many guys have been in this situation. You can play your whole career and never get back to this point again."

Kurvers did not feel the Devils were at a disadvantage at the Boston Garden.

"We have played well on the road in the playoffs," he said. "We just have to be ready to play well in that building and with their fans. It's a big challenge for us."

DEVILS SAVE — New Jersey goalie Sean Burke, right, makes a save on Boston's Craig Janney during Game 6 action Thursday night. The deciding game is tonight.

Agassi eliminated

ROME (AP) — Fifth-seeded Kent Carlsson of Sweden surprised Yannick Noah in a two-hour battle, and Haiti's Ronald Agenor upset American sensation Andre Agassi in just 53 minutes to reach the semifinals of the Italian Open tennis championships.

Top-seeded Ivan Lendl struggled again, but won a prolonged quarterfinal match over unseeded Jaime Yzaga of Peru 6-2, 4-6, 6-2.

In the final quarterfinal match at the Foro Italicco, 14th-seeded Guillermo Perez-Roldan of Argentina upset No. 6 Andres Gomez of Ecuador 6-2, 6-3.

The 18-year-old Perez-Roldan will face Agenor on Saturday in the semifinals.

The unseeded Agenor, who upset defending champion Mats Wilander in the third round, beat the ninth-seeded Agassi 6-3, 6-1 to end the 23-year-old Las Vegas, Nev., native's 14-match winning streak.

Agenor, ranked 45th in the world, ran Agassi around the slow red clay with a sharp forehand. "I like to play against a guy like him because we have the same type of game," the 23-year-old Agenor said. "He hits the ball hard, but today I immobilized him a bit. I didn't think it would be so easy."

Agassi, who came to Rome after two straight clay-court tournament victories, said he was exhausted.

Knight puts off a decision

By Hank Lowenkron
The Associated Press

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Indiana University Coach Bob Knight, in a move to defuse the appearance of a rift with IU President Thomas Ehrlich, said Friday if he goes to New Mexico, it would not be "because of people now at Indiana."

Ehrlich, completing his first year as president, has been the target of many Knight supporters since it became known that Knight was considering the coaching job at the University of New Mexico.

Knight has said one reason he is considering the UNM job is because of changes at IU. He has not specifically mentioned Ehrlich.

"Any decision that I would make to leave Indiana or to get out of coaching would not be made because of people now at Indiana," Knight told the Bloomington Herald-Telephone on Friday before leaving for a coaching clinic in New Orleans. "It would be because I feel that's the best thing for me to do." Knight also said he probably would not make a decision until next week.

A Thursday rally of Knight supporters turned into an anti-Ehrlich demonstration with a caravan going to the president's residence to show support for Knight.

Knight was publicly reprimanded by Ehrlich after the coach received three technical fouls in an exhibition with the Soviet Union last fall. Ehrlich also called Knight's comments about rape in a nationally televised program "coarse" and said Knight did not speak for the university.

Ehrlich's comments regarding Knight contrast with the relationship the coach had with former IU President John Ryan.

In the book, "A Season on the Brink," author John Feinstein wrote that after Knight's 1984 chair-throwing incident, Knight could not deal with a public rebuke, no matter how mild, from Ryan. Feinstein said that if Ryan suspended Knight, he would feel compelled to resign on the spot.

"For Bob's sake and for Indiana's," IU vice president Edgar Williams, who retires this year, was quoted as saying in the book. "I thought then, I think now, that the university had to take some action. It could not publicly condone what Bob did. And Bob needed to be told that. He needed to be told, 'Bob, we love you, we want you here forever, but there is a line, there is a point where we say no more. And you just came close to it.'"

Ryan took no action. Big 10 Commissioner Wayne Duke suspended Knight for one game.

But Ryan says he has no reason to believe that Knight is considering the move because of the relationship with Ehrlich.

"Frankly, neither from the coach or the president do I get any impression that that is true," Ryan said.

Meanwhile, the Albuquerque Tribune reported Friday that Dave Bliss of Southern Methodist University said he believes Knight will accept the New Mexico job.

EARLY LEADER — Nancy Lopez watches her tee shot during the first round of the Chrysler-Plymouth Golf Classic in Middletown, N.J., on Friday. Lopez fired a 4-under 68 to share the lead with Alice Ritzman.

Lopez shares lead

Golf roundup

MIDDLETOWN, N.J. (AP) — Nancy Lopez, looking to regain the No. 1 spot on the LPGA Tour, fired a 4-under-par 68 Friday to share the first-round lead at the $250,000 Chrysler-Plymouth Classic.

Lopez had five birdies and a bogey on the 6,232-yard Navesink Country Club course and was tied with Alice Ritzman, who came into the tournament looking for her first victory in 10 years on the LPGA Tour.

Janet Coles was alone in third place in the field of 106 golfers that lost defending champion Ayako Okamoto of Japan, who was forced to withdraw after nine holes because of neck pain.

Lopez already has won twice this year and can become the LPGA's first three-time winner in 1988 by winning this event for a fourth time.

"I hit the ball real well today," said Lopez, who lost last week's Crestar Classic in a playoff. "The only way you can do that is to compete and play more. Last year, I would play three weeks and then take three weeks off. Not this year. I want to play in 22 or 23 events."

"I hit the ball real well today," said Lopez, who is second in earnings this year with $152,382, less than $10,000 behind leader Amy Alcott. "I putted better today — not that I was putting bad the last few weeks, but the putts were going in."

Crenshaw holds the lead

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Former champion Ben Crenshaw shot a 5-under par 65 Friday to take the second-round lead at the $750,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

The round was marked by the on-course withdrawal of Arnold Palmer, who withdrew due to pain in his ribs.

Crenshaw, who won the 1983 Nelson after it moved to the Tournament Players Course from Preston Trail, had a six-birdie, one-bogey round in the 90-degree heat for a 36-hole total of 9-under-par 131.

Crenshaw, winner of the Doral Open this year, is fourth on the money list with $369,292. Palmer, 58, who plays sparingly on the regular PGA Tour but is a regular on the Seniors Tour, withdrew from a tournament in which he was playing for the first time in 19 years because of pain in his right side.

Chapman headed for NBA

By Mike Embry
The Associated Press

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Kentucky guard Rex Chapman, who only last month indicated that he would remain in school, said Friday he is passing up his final two years of eligibility to make himself available for the NBA.

"It's strictly a business decision," Chapman said from his Owensboro home. "There is only one reason to enter the NBA draft early ... because I feel I have the talent and the ability to utilize that talent, and the maturity that is needed."

In early April, Chapman said that he would stay at UK at least one more season. But since that time, the basketball program has come under an NCAA probe for alleged recruiting irregularities.

Chapman, however, said, "this decision is in no way based on, or influenced by, the current basketball investigation."

The NBA's deadline for underclassmen declaring for the June 28 draft is midnight Saturday. Chapman must mail a letter to league commissioner David Stern that is postmarked by that time.

Chapman, a 6-foot-4, 185-pounder, refused to speculate on where he might be taken in the draft.

Kentucky head coach Eddie Sutton said he regretted seeing Chapman leave, but wished him well in the NBA.

Sutton said he asked Chapman Friday morning if he could talk him out of it, but Chapman said he had already made up his mind.

"He's going to be missed," the coach said at a news conference. "I hope he has a good career in the NBA."

Chapman led UK in scoring as a freshman and sophomore, averaging 16 and 19 points a game. He was an All-Southeastern Conference selection each season and a member of the U.S. team that won the silver medal in the 1987 Pan American Games.

He became only the third player in UK history to pass the 1,000-point mark during the second year of career. He scored in double figures in 47 consecutive games.

"I think it will be a tough adjustment," said Sutton of Chapman going to the professional ranks. "I hope he's drafted by a team that's well established like the Lakers or Celtics so that he won't be rushed" in his development.

"I think they should stay in school," Marty Blake, NBA director of scouting, said of players leaving school for the pros. "Physically and emotionally, they are not ready. I don't think people realize how good the NBA is."

Sutton said he met Monday with Chapman and his parents in his office.

"I tried to point out the pros and cons, but told him I didn't want to be part of the decision-making process," the coach said. "I told him, 'ultimately, you and your parents will have to make the decision, but it's mostly going to be you.'"

The Kentucky coach also discounted reports of friction between himself and Chapman. He had criticized Chapman's shot selection on several occasions last season.

"I think we all grew from that experience," he said.

The university became the subject of the latest NCAA probe after an overnight mail envelope sent by assistant coach Dwane Casey to recruit Chris Mills' father popped open in transit in Los Angeles, allegedly revealing $1,000.

Chapman said his immediate goal was to make the U.S. basketball team that will compete in the Summer Olympics in Seoul, South Korea.

"There's nothing I'd rather do at this particular time than to help the U.S. win a gold medal in Seoul, Korea," he said.

Lost Code set for Pimlico Special

By Tim Liotto
The Associated Press

BALTIMORE — Lost Code will try to horn in on the rivalry between Alysheba and Bet Twice for a second time in Saturday's $500,000 Pimlico Special at Pimlico Race Course.

The last time the three horses raced — in the Haskell Handicap at Monmouth Park last August — only a half-length separated them at the finish. Bet Twice won by a neck and Alysheba was a neck in front of Lost Code.

The biggest question facing trainer Bill Donovan, who conditions Lost Code, is whether his 4-year-old colt can carry his speed the race's distance of 1 1/2 miles.

"I know this colt can go a mile and an eighth," Donovan said after entries were taken Thursday morning. "I don't know if he can go a mile and an eighth and one jump. I'd be more comfortable at a mile and an eighth, but maybe we'll find out he can go a mile and a half."

The rivalry between Alysheba and Bet Twice — a five-race duel last year that saw colt win twice — will be renewed for the first time since the colts became 4-year-olds.

"It's been a good rivalry," said Jack Van Berg, who trains Alysheba. "It will be interesting to see after the horses have changed from 3-year-olds to 4-year-olds what they will do."

Bulls return to home sweet home

NBA roundup

By Bob Greene
The Associated Press

Now that they finally have won on the road, the Chicago Bulls return home where they have been perfect during the NBA playoffs.

The Bulls play host to the Detroit Pistons in Game 3 of their second-round series Saturday afternoon. Chicago, which edged Cleveland 3-2 in the first round by winning all three games at home, defeated the Pistons at the Pontiac Silverdome 105-95 Thursday night to knot the best-of-seven series 1-1.

"We've got our work cut out for us," Detroit's Isiah Thomas acknowledged.

Dallas also won the road

Thursday night, defeating Denver 112-108 to tie that series at 1-1.

Pistons-Bulls

Michael Jordan, the league's leading scorer who was named the NBA Defensive Player of the Year on Friday, had 36 points and a big hand in 31 more in the Bulls' victory. Prior to the game, Jordan told teammate Sam Vincent: "Hey, we need you to come out and play relaxed. Don't let any pressure get to you. You're a good player. We have confidence in you."

Nuggets-Mavericks

While Chicago has won all of its home games, Dallas has found more success on the road, where the Mavericks have won three of four contests. They are 1-1 at home.

The Nuggets need desperately to win at least one game at Reunion Arena, however, to regain their home-floor advantage. And to do that, the Nuggets will have to do a better job of putting the ball in the basket.

In Thursday's loss, the Nuggets hit only 41 percent, scoring just 12 second-half goals despite taking 27 more shots than the Mavericks.

Robinson gets Olympic tryout

STORRS — The University of Connecticut's Cliff Robinson has been invited to try out for the United States Olympic basketball team beginning May 18 in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Robinson, the 6-foot-11 junior center who led the Huskies to the National Invitation Tournament title in March, topped UConn with a 17.6 average and 6.9 rebounds per game. The U.S. Olympic team will defend its 1984 gold medal in Seoul, South Korea. Robinson was informed Thursday by Georgetown University and Olympic Coach John Thompson that he was one of the 80 invitees to the tryouts.

Sports in Brief

NHL talking reprisals

CHICAGO — Four NHL officials may face reprisals for staging an embarrassing "wildcat strike" when they boycotted last Sunday's playoff game between the New Jersey Devils and the Boston Bruins, says the chairman of the league's Board of Governors.

Referee Dave Newell, linesmen Gord Broseker and Ray Scapinello and backup referee Denis Morel boycotted Game 4 of the Wales Conference final at New Jersey because of the presence of Devils coach Jim Schoenfeld.

Chicago Blackhawks president William Wirtz, who heads the NHL Board of Governors, said Thursday that the officials' conduct will be discussed during collective-bargaining negotiations between the league and the NHL Officials Association this summer.

"There's no doubt about it," he said. "It was very embarrassing ... and it will be addressed."

Jordan top NBA defender

CHICAGO — Michael Jordan, the NBA's top offensive player for the past two seasons, was named Friday as the NBA Defensive Player of the Year.

Jordan, who averaged 35 points a game but also led the NBA in steals and blocked 131 shots, was a runaway winner in the voting by a nationwide media panel, earning 57 points to nine for runner-up Mark Eaton of Utah.

Jordan said being cited for his defensive play was gratifying.

"It shows the versatility of a player, being able to play both ends of the court," he said. "It's one of the goals I set for myself."

Johnson forced to withdraw

TOKYO — World sprint champion Ben Johnson dropped out midway through the 100-meter dash Friday, after feeling a leg twinge, in his first outdoor competition this season.

The 28-year-old Canadian, holder of the world 100-meter record of 9.83 seconds, declined to meet with reporters to explain why he suddenly stopped running at the JAL Tokyo International Track and Field Meet.

Johnson's coach, Charlie Francis, said that the runner had felt "a slight strain" in his left leg and therefore immediately stopped running.

Walters case a mistrial

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. — State and defense attorneys were granted a mistrial Friday to buy more time in a bid to settle the case against Norby Walters, a New York sports agent charged with three misdemeanors for dealing with two University of Alabama basketball stars.

At the request of both sides, Circuit Judge John M. Karrh declared the mistrial and dismissed the jury that had been chosen to try Walters on criminal counts of commercial bribery, violation of deceptive trade law and tampering with a sports event.

For days, the attorneys have been negotiating a settlement that would satisfy the university, which had to forfeit $250,000 in NCAA tournament playoff revenues because of Walters' dealings with Derrick McKay, Southeastern Conference player of the year in 1986-87.

Grif advances to semifinals

BERLIN — Top-seeded Steffi Graf defeated Nicole Provis of Australia 6-0, 6-2 Friday to advance to the semifinal of the $300,000 Berlin tennis tournament.

Grif had no trouble downing Provis in a match that lasted only 39 minutes.

In other matches, West Germany's Sylvia Hanika advanced with a 6-4, 3-6, 6-1 win over Radka Zrubakova of Czechoslovakia and Czechoslovakia's Helena Sukova defeated Mary Joe Fernandez of the United States 7-6, 6-0.

McHale leads Celtics to 2-0 lead over Hawks

By Howard Ulman
The Associated Press

BOSTON — The Boston Celtics outscored Atlanta 25-9 in the first quarter, but needed a strong final period and Kevin McHale's 32 points to beat the Hawks 108-97 and take a 2-0 lead in their NBA playoff series Friday night.

The next two games of the best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal are scheduled for Atlanta Sunday afternoon and Monday night.

The Celtics squandered their early lead as Atlanta closed the deficit to 26-18, then to 45-39 at halftime and 75-71 after three quarters. Led by Dennis Johnson, Boston took control in the fourth quarter, starting with a 10-4 run that made the score 85-75 with eight minutes left. The Celtics led by eight to 18 points the rest of the way and beat the Hawks for the 18th consecutive time in Boston.

Johnson began the quarter with a jumper from the foul line and Dominique Wilkins, who led Atlanta with 22 points, hit two free throws. A foul shot by Mark Acres and a basket by Johnson got the lead to 89-73. Artis Gilmore then blocked Wilkins' shot and Johnson retrieved the ball and fired a halfcourt pass to McHale for a layup.

Wilkins' field goal preceded a free throw by Johnson and a basket by McHale, making it 85-75. Johnson had 10 of his 23 points in the fourth quarter. Larry Bird had 16 points and Robert Parish 15 for the Celtics. For Atlanta, Glenn Rivers added 16.

Atlanta never led in its 110-101 first-game loss, but got the first five points Friday night, all by Rivers, after missing its first seven attempts.

Boston missed its first seven attempts, but led 10-7 before Atlanta's Scott Hastings made a layup with 6:08 left in the first period. They were the Hawks' last points of the quarter as they missed their final 10 shots and their first two of the second quarter.

AL Roundup

BOSTON (AP) — Mike Greenwell drove in four runs with a pair of homers, Sam Horn hit a three-run shot and Rick Cerone added a solo shot as the Boston Red Sox won a nine-homer 14-8 slugfest from the Seattle Mariners on Friday night.

Four-time American League batting champion Wade Boggs broke a 0-for-10 drought with four consecutive singles, his first four-hit game of the season, for the Red Sox, who had hit only 12 homers in their first 30 games.

Cerone and Dwight Evans had three hits each and Greenwell, Marty Barrett and Brady Anderson two apiece in the 18-hit attack against three Seattle pitchers. Every Boston starter scored at least one run and each had at least one hit except Jody Reed, who walked twice.

The Red Sox scored two runs in the second inning on Greenwell's third homer of the season and Cerone's second off Mike Campbell, 2-5. Boston made it 6-0 in the third on an RBI single by Evans and a three-run homer by Greenwell.

White Sox 4, Jays 1

CHICAGO (AP) — Unbeaten rookie Melido Perez pitched a three-hitter for the first complete game of his career and Harold Baines broke an 0-for-8 drought with a two-run homer and a single as the Chicago White Sox defeated the Toronto Blue Jays 4-1 Friday night.

Angels 5, Yankees 4

NEW YORK (AP) — Brian Downing hit a two-out, two-run homer in the ninth inning Friday night that rallied the California Angels over the New York Yankees 5-4.

After reliever Cecilio Guante, 2-2, retired the first two batters in the ninth, he hit pinch hitter George Hendrick with a pitch. Downing followed by hooking a drive just inside the left-field foul pole at the 318-foot mark and just above the outstretched glove of Rickey Henderson.

Downing threw his bat down in disgust when he hit the ball but then watched in delight as it became the game-winner. It was his second home run of the season and first ever at Yankee Stadium.

Willie Fraser, 3-3, got the victory with two innings of scoreless relief and DeWayne Buice pitched a perfect ninth inning for his third save.

GOOD JOB — Boston's Mike Greenwell, right, is welcomed after his three-run homer against Seattle Friday night at Fenway Park.

Tigers 7, Twins 0

DETROIT (AP) — Luis Salazar, Alan Trammell and Ray Knight homered in support of Doyle Alexander's seven-hit pitching as the Detroit Tigers beat Minnesota 7-0 Friday night, dropping the Twins' road record to 3-11.

Alexander, 3-2, struck out six, walked one and worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the seventh. Salazar, who was 4-for-4, hit his fourth home run of the season in the first inning, a two-out solo shot over the 400-foot sign in center field off Allan Anderson, 1-2.

Orioles 4, Athletics 1

BALTIMORE (AP) — Eddie Murray and Fred

Lynn hit consecutive two-out home runs in the fourth inning and the Baltimore Orioles handed Oakland ace Dave Stewart his first loss after eight, consecutive victories by defeating the Athletics 4-1 Friday night.

Rangers 2, Royals 1

ARLINGTON, TEXAS (AP) — Rookie left-hander Ray Hayward allowed six hits in 7 1-3 innings and Oddibe McDowell keyed a two-run second inning with an RBI triple as the Texas Rangers stretched their winning streak to seven games by defeating the Kansas City Royals 2-1 Friday night.

Red-hot Barry Bonds carries Pirates over the Reds

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Barry Bonds opened his second straight game with a homer, then scored from first base on two Cincinnati errors and Jose Lind's sacrifice bunt in the ninth as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Reds 6-5 Friday night.

Bonds singled for his third hit of the game to greet Rob Murphy, 0-3, the Reds' third pitcher.

First baseman Dave Collins felled Lind's bunt to the left of the pitchers' mound and threw wildly into center field as Bonds raced toward third. The ball then eluded center fielder Eric Davis, allowing Bonds to score standing up.

Jeff Robinson, 3-1, pitched two scoreless innings for the victory as the Pirates rallied from a 5-2 deficit and improve the major league's best home record to 14-3.

Astros 8, Cubs 2

HOUSTON (AP) — Nolan Ryan pitched a seven-hitter for his first complete game in more than two years, and Glenn Davis drove in four runs, two with a homer in Houston's four-run eighth inning, leading the Astros to an 8-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Friday night.

Ryan, 3-2, broke a three-game losing streak with his first complete game since April 25, 1986 against Cincinnati. Ryan walked two and struck out 11, moving past teammate Mike Scott for the National League strikeout lead with 66. Ryan has struck out 10 or more in 176 times in his career.

Cardinals 7, Braves 5

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Terry Pendleton had three hits and drove in two runs, and Jose DeLeon struck out 10 batters in 8 2-3 innings as the St. Louis Cardinals rolled to a 7-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves Friday night.

DeLeon, 3-3, allowed seven hits, retiring the first nine men he faced in becoming the first Cardinals pitcher to win three games.

Kind words spoken at farewell Kelly dinner

They honored departing East Catholic High football coach Jude Kelly with a testimonial dinner Thursday night at the Marco Polo, with a near-capacity crowd of 150. Several former players spoke eloquently about the man who helped mold them into adulthood. And the Rev. William Charbonneau, the school's president, quipped, "Usually you have to come back for your wake to hear nice things about you. But that's what we did here tonight."

There were many kind words, all from the heart, about Kelly, who announced his resignation in February to take a teaching and coaching position at Southington High School.

The first speaker, Dan Bennett, a member of the '82 club, said it best. He recalled a Walter Camp Dinner he attended, when the speaker was Grambling Coach Eddie Robinson, who holds the record for most victories on the collegiate level. Robinson said victories can tell you if a coach is a good one. "What makes a great coach is that he produces good young men," Robinson was quoted by Bennett.

Bennett said that's what sets Jude Kelly apart from the everyday coach. He produces good men first, and good football was just part of the teaching process. The public sees the wins and losses. They don't see, at first, the kind of people a coach sends out into the world. It's clear now. Kelly is a fine coach, but foremost he is an educator. He taught such worldly lessons as unity, pride, discipline, leadership. Maybe that's corny to some, but not to Kelly. He also taught that you can't run away from your troubles; you have to confront them head-on and work until there's a resolution.

Thoughts ApLENTy

Len Auster

Buddy Zachery, who took time away from studying for a final at Yale University to attend Thursday night's dinner, said Kelly taught him humility. "I had started everywhere I had been and I was No. 1 on the depth chart." That was until his first game as a sophomore when he waited his turn. "(Kelly) said there were others who had paid their dues and deserved a chance to play." Paying your dues: That was one of the many qualities taught by Kelly to the young men under his control at East Catholic.

Kelly was described as "wholesome," a good

Christian model for others. His idea of vulgarity? "Jeepers, creepers!" That exclamation shocked the players the first time they heard it. Then there was the time when Kelly smashed a clipboard in a game against hated arch-rival South Catholic at Dillon Stadium. That was Kelly's passion for winning. He was cool, calm, collected along the sideline during games. He had done his teaching at practice. What was expected, and demanded, was execution.

What do we remember about Jude Kelly? It is the calm way he went about his business. He would never, never bad-mouth a player or an opponent. All were treated with respect. He would go to the hill for any of his boys. Many times he would say, "Whatever you need, just ask." And it was a pleasure for reporters to deal with him. Jude Kelly will be missed in Manchester.

There were several notables at Thursday night's testimonial for Jude Kelly, including Xavier High football coach Tony Jaskot, South Catholic Coach Len Corto, Trinity College basketball coach Stan Ogrodnik (former East Catholic hoop coach and guidance counselor) and Frank Kine, present Manchester High basketball coach who formerly taught and coached at East. At the head table was the Rev. Robert Saunders, who hired Kelly when he was the principal at East.

Cheney and Coventry baseball post victories

It was a see-saw affair until sophomore Tom Murphy put an end to it.

Murphy, in only his fifth varsity at-bat, slugged a dramatic two-run homer in the bottom of the seventh inning to lift Cheney Tech past Rocky Hill, 9-8, Friday afternoon in Charter Oak Conference baseball action at the Beavers' diamond.

The victory squares the Beavers' overall mark at 7-7 with six games left to the season. "If he doesn't hit it we're 8-8 and looking to come back. Now we're back in the hunt for the state tournament" with an even number of games left," Tech Coach Bill Baccaro said.

Rocky Hill, 2-13 overall, had taken the lead with a run in the sixth inning. But freshman Tony Evans, who was 3-for-4 with two singles and a triple, led off with a safety and Murphy deposited a shot over the left field fence to win it for Cheney. "That has to be the thrill of (Murphy's) life," Baccaro said. "I'm sure he'll never forget it." Murphy, promoted to the varsity when Don Sauer was injured, is now 2-for-5 in limited action.

Cheney mustered 13 hits against Terrier hurler Mike Bif. Glenn Parent was 2-for-4. Jim Krone added two hits including a two-run triple and Rich Assid was 2-for-2 with two walks, three stolen bases and two runs scored. Assid, the leadoff batter, set a school single-season record for walks, now totaling 22.

Jeff Allen, fourth Cheney pitcher, picked up the win. "The kids hung tough," Baccaro said.

Cheney's next game is Tuesday on the road at 3:30 p.m. at Portland High School.

Coventry on a tear

STORRS — After a big 12-1 win over RHAM High on Thursday, red-hot Coventry High rolled over non-conference foe E.O. Smith by the same margin Friday afternoon for its seventh consecutive victory.

"I figured we might have a letdown after yesterday's game but after the first inning, when we gave (E.O. Smith) a run, we played well," Coventry Coach Bob Plaster said.

Coventry moves to 12-2 overall with the win while the Panthers dip to 3-10. Coventry has a rematch with RHAM on Monday at the Patriots' diamond at 3:30 p.m.

Coventry rapped 11 hits with Dave Poulin, D.J. Figiela, Steve Talaga and Chris McCarthy each stroking two hits. Robb Berkowitz chipped in with a two-run triple. "We've been hitting well and been heads-up on the bases. I have no complaints for now," Plaster said.

Coventry took the lead for good with a three-run second inning. Freshman Roger Flavell plated what proved to be the game-winner with an RBI single.

Matt Harrington, 4-0, spun a six-hitter in going the distance. He walked one and struck out seven.

RETURNS TO FORM — East Catholic's Kevin Greene, who has been slowed by the effects of bronchitis, tossed a five-hitter against crosstown Manchester High in leading the Eagles to a 7-0 victory Friday at Moriarty Field.

By Jim Tierney
Manchester Herald

For East Catholic baseball coach Jim Penders and junior right-hander Kevin Greene, the Eagles' 7-0 shutout victory over crosstown rival Manchester High at Moriarty Field was a welcome sign as the scholastic season winds toward tournament time.

Greene tossed a superb five-hitter and went the distance for East. He struck out 10 Indian batters and walked only one. Manchester senior Joe Leonard suffered the loss. He gave up six runs (three earned) on six hits in three innings, walked two and struck out one.

East is now 10-3 overall and will be in Uncasville this morning at 11 to take on St. Bernard's in a key All Connecticut Conference matchup. Manchester slips to 7-6 and is at Rockville in CCC East action today at 2 p.m.

"It was a nice relaxing win going into tomorrow," Penders said, concerning today's St. Bernard's game. "The biggest plus was that Kevin pitched very well. We really need that at this time of the year."

Greene, who had a fine 9-1 record last year, has been slowed this year due to a bout with bronchitis. "Greene pitched a good game. He pitched smart baseball," Manchester Coach Don Race said. "We were dead."

The Eagles took a 6-0 lead after three innings with East scoring two in the first, one in the second and three in the third. Manchester aided East's cause with an error in each of the initial three frames.

Seniors Dave Price led off the Eagle first with a walk and swiped second. He moved to third on a single by senior Rob Stanford and scored on a sacrifice fly by junior Paul Dumais. Stanford scored when senior Doug Rizzuto's grounder got past sophomore second baseman Ryan Barry.

Leading 3-0, the Eagles added three more runs in the third. Rizzuto walked and senior Pat Merritt singled off the glove of Joe Leonard. Sophomore Jimmy Penders singled to score Rizzuto after an overthrow by Indian senior right fielder Eric Rasmus.

Juniors Joe Gorman and Marc Mangialico knocked in the last two runs of the inning with a sacrifice fly and a single.

Manchester's best scoring chance came in the second after a leadoff double to center by senior Frank Savino. After two outs, sophomore Aris Leonard, who was a perfect 3-for-3, singled to right but Price gunned down Savino at the plate.

Sophomore Matt Hellin relieved Joe Leonard at the start of the fourth and pitched three effective innings, giving up one run on two hits. He walked two and struck out two.

Stanford and sophomore Martin Fiori had two hits each for East.
