GORBACHEV SEEKS EDGE IN SUMMIT

By Barry Schweld
The Associated Press

HELSINKI, Finland — By shuffling the summit schedule and questioning delegations set to meet with President Reagan, Kremlin leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev is sending an unmistakable signal that he intends to seize the initiative during the pair's Moscow face-off.

The challenge facing Reagan as he awaits the start of the summit Sunday is to maintain his well-rehearsed game plan — or to alter it to compete with the Soviet leader.

The Soviets already have scrambled the schedule for the talks opening Monday and apparently imposed restraints on some of the people who hoped to meet with Reagan.

One of two summit sessions scheduled for Monday was scrubbed, although the time allotted for the two leaders to meet — 6 hours — was maintained.

The Soviets gave no specific explanation, saying an "internal function" required the cancellation.

The White House, puzzled at first, decided to describe the decision as "mutual" and not make a fuss.

Moreover, Gorbachev will take the unprecedented step of holding a news conference next Wednesday, the day before the summit ends, according to an official Soviet source who spoke only on condition he not be identified.

Never before has a general secretary of the Soviet Communist Party met formally with reporters on home territory, the source said.

Meanwhile, a Leningrad "refusenik," Roald Zelichenok, said in a telephone interview that KGB secret police had warned him against accepting an invitation to meet Reagan on Monday.

The Jewish dissident, who has been refused permission to emigrate to Israel for more than 10 years, said he was told "in light of security measures" around Moscow, he would not be permitted to leave Leningrad.

There were reports, too, that some of the church officials due to meet Reagan at the Danilov monastery also were being kept away.

The White House said Thursday that everyone invited to attend both gatherings would be there.

And in Moscow, officials showed no concern over the meetings and sought to minimize their impact.

Vladimir F. Petrovsky said "the U.S. president... is certainly free to decide who of Soviet citizens he finds interesting and useful to meet with outside the

Senate rejects amendments, approves arms treaty, 93-5

By Tim Ahern
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate on Friday ratified, 93-5, a treaty to abolish medium-range nuclear missiles, enabling President Reagan to present the pact to Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev at their Moscow summit next week. It was the first major U.S.-Soviet arms control accord ratified by the Senate since 1972.

Leading up to the ratification vote, the Senate rejected four minor amendments offered by Republicans. That brought to 14 the number of amendments proposed by GOP conservatives and rejected during two weeks of floor consideration of the treaty.

The Senate's consent to ratification, which required a two-third majority, had long been assured because only a handful of conservatives opposed the pact.

Senators voting against the treaty were Republicans Jesse Helms of North Carolina, Steve Symms of Idaho, Gordon Humphrey of New Hampshire and Malcolm Wallop of Wyoming and Democrat Ernest Hollings of South Carolina.

Sens. Joseph Biden, D-Del., and John Glenn, D-Ohio, did not vote. Spectators crowded into galleries overlooking the Senate floor gave a standing ovation after the vote tally was announced.

Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., and GOP Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., quickly informed Reagan of the outcome in a telephone call to Helsinki, Finland, where the president was resting in advance of the summit.

The two leaders accepted Reagan's invitation to come to Moscow next Tuesday to witness the exchange of treaty documents. The White House said presidential chief of staff Howard Baker would fly to Moscow to deliver the U.S. ratification materials Sunday.

In a statement issued by the White House, the president said he was "very pleased" by the vote, which "clearly shows support for our arms reduction objectives."

He added, however: "I continue to have concerns about the constitutionality of some provisions of the resolution of ratification, particularly those dealing with interpretation, and I will communicate with the Senate on these matters in due course."

Byrd told Reagan, "Bless your heart. We're just delighted that we're going to send you a treaty and it was almost a unanimous vote ... we'll have a little blue ribbon tied around it."

Dole told the president, "We are very pleased to be able to give you this (ratification) in advance of your stepping on Soviet territory in Moscow."

Reagan and Gorbachev signed the pact Dec. 8 at their summit meeting in Washington, and the administration had pushed for Senate action before the Moscow summit.

Administration officials also waged a successful fight to win Senate approval without so-called "killer amendments" that would have required U.S.-Soviet negotiations to be reopened.

The intermediate-range Nuclear Forces or INF treaty provides for the elimination within three years of all medium-range missiles with a range of 300 miles to 3,400 miles. The Soviets would destroy 1,752 missiles while the United States would eliminate 867.

Gorbachev

framework of the official events."

But, he added, "this American move is hardly aimed at improving mutual understanding between the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R."

Reagan arranged for Howard H. Baker Jr., the White House chief of staff, to make a flight to Helsinki with the text of the treaty the two leaders signed last December in Washington to abolish land-based nuclear ballistic and cruise missiles in the range of 300 to 3,400 miles. The Senate ratified the pact Friday.

The instruments of ratification will be presented in ceremonial exchange with Gorbachev. Reagan intends to use the occasion to extol the agreement — his only deal in the nuclear arms race in 7½ years in office.

Gorbachev clearly has another agenda in mind for the summit, one that does not focus on human rights — or even arms control.

With negotiations stymied on a bigger treaty to reduce long-range nuclear weapons, Gorbachev is looking elsewhere to give the summit some substance. His sights are focused on regional hotspots, and he has begun to make his moves.

The first, of course, was completing an agreement in Geneva to withdraw the Soviet troops that have occupied Afghanistan since 1979.

Reagan says Kremlin falls on human rights

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — President Reagan, underscoring a key theme for the superpower summit, said Friday reforms championed by Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev are "new and good" but that the Kremlin still falls short of meeting international standards on human rights and freedom.

Two days before his arrival in Moscow, Reagan said, "Soviet practice does not — or does not yet — measure up to Soviet commitment" under the 1975 East-West agreement known as the Helsinki Final Act.

The Senate gave Reagan a big pre-summit boost Friday when it ratified by an overwhelming 93-5 vote the treaty outlawing medium-range nuclear missiles which the president and Gorbachev signed at their Washington summit last December.

Reagan issued a statement saying he was "very pleased" with the Senate vote, which he said "clearly shows support for our arms reduction objectives."

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., and Minority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., who telephoned the president in Helsinki with the news, accepted Reagan's invitation to fly to Moscow on Tuesday to witness a ratification ceremony the following day.

Reagan made his remarks in a speech to an invited audience of about 1,200 people in the austere marble auditorium of Finlandia Hall, where the Helsinki accords were signed by 35 nations, including the Soviet Union and United States.

Under the agreement, the Soviets pledged to provide more liberty for their people and those in Eastern Europe. And yet, 13 years later, Reagan said, the cases of divided families and blocked marriages remain on the East-West agenda, while Russians trying to emigrate are subjected to artificial quotas and arbitrary rulings.

"And what are we to think of the continued suppression of those who wish to practice their religious beliefs?" Reagan asked.

At the same time, he said Gorbachev's twin campaigns of "glasnost," or openness, and "perestroika," the restructuring of the economy, are "words that to our ears have a particularly welcome sound."

Thirteen years ago, Reagan and other conservatives had opposed the U.S. signing of the Helsinki agreement because it implicitly accepted Eastern European boundaries set after World War II in Moscow's favor.

Documents detail woman's burial story

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Manchester Herald

An illness two years ago prompted a woman to approach police with her allegations about the burial of a young girl she said she witnessed on Pine Hill Street more than 35 years ago, according to investigative documents released Friday.

A search warrant affidavit released earlier this week said that the woman, who was between 8 and 10 years old at the time of the incident, told police that she saw a man trying to bury the body of a 4- or 5-year-old girl. She said the man discovered her presence and sexually assaulted her.

"I felt that I knew something that other people should know," the unnamed woman, who would be at least in her mid-40s today, told police. "I got very ill last year and they weren't sure for a while what was wrong with me, and I thought that this was something that somebody should know in case something should happen to me. I didn't say anything before because I didn't think anyone would believe me."

Police called off their search after finding only animal bones in a shed behind the house. No one has been charged in connection with the case, and Frederick Delaney of 24 Pine Hill St. — the man identified by the woman — has denied all the allegations.

In an interview with the Herald Thursday, Delaney said he thought it was unfair that his name was not deleted from the affidavit. He said he will consult with his attorney, Hubert Santos of Hartford, before deciding if he will take any legal action. Delaney's name is not contained in any of the documents released Friday. But the documents reveal that police interviewed a man they believed buried the girl's body before they executed the search warrant, and he denied the woman's allegations. The interview took place without an attorney present.

The interview was carried out the same day the search warrant was executed, Nov. 24. The transcript of the interview runs 37 typewritten pages.

The woman said that she remained silent about the alleged incident for so long because she believed that the sexual assault was punishment for something she had done wrong.

She said that when she first tried to tell her mother about the alleged incident immediately after it happened, her mother rebuffed her because she was entertaining guests. By the time her mother asked her what was wrong, "I had decided that, at that point, I had done something terrible, because adults don't hurt you unless you do something wrong, so I shouldn't say anything. So I didn't say anything."

The woman, whose current place of residence has not been revealed, first made her allegations known in a letter to police in May 1987.

Within days of when the search on Pine Hill Street began, three women came forward with information on the case, the documents show. One of them suggested to police that they look for a body in another location on the street. The documents do not indicate whether this lead was pursued.

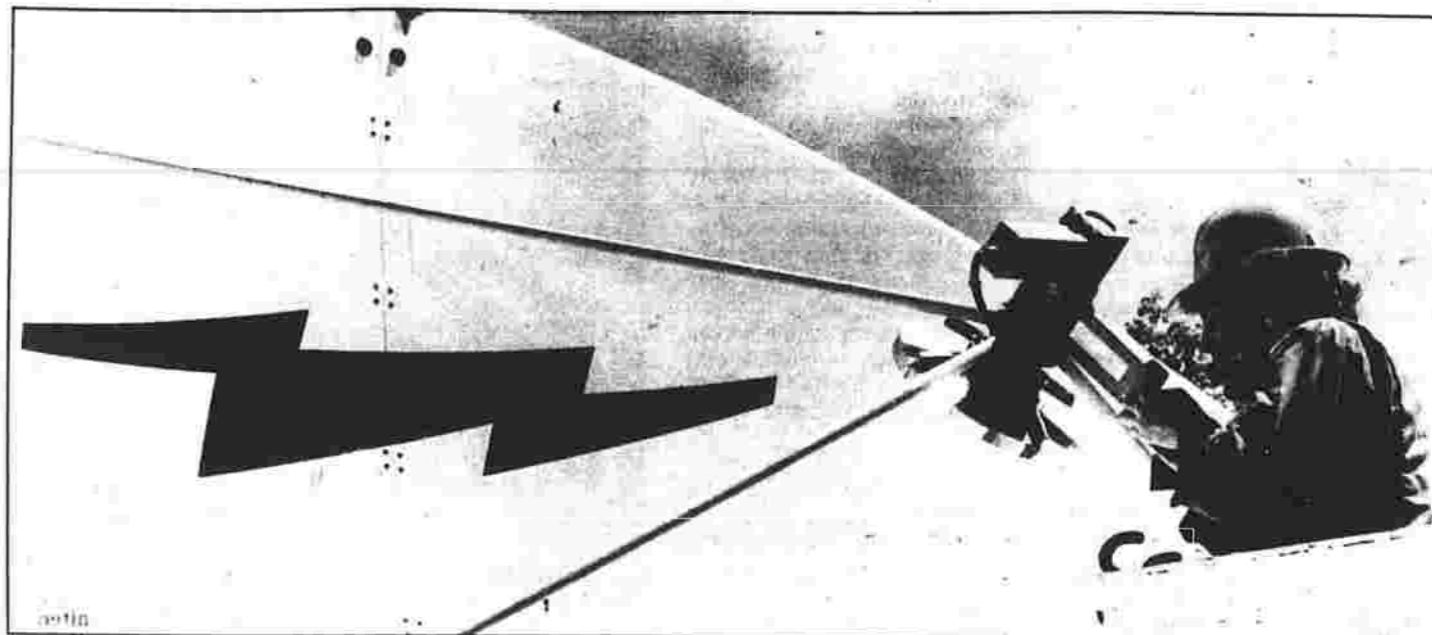

The documents show that the investigation was a wide-ranging one, including inquiries into the 1947 case of a missing girl from Wisconsin and a case of indecent exposure in Manchester in 1948. But in these two cases, police were unable to find a connection to the burial.

Police did, however, attempt to connect the burial with the disappearance of 10-year-old Connie Smith in New Canaan in 1952 and the disappearance of 7-year-old Janice K. Pockett in Tolland in 1973. Those two cases were cited in the search warrant affidavit.

The last report on the case was filed by police in February.

'Enormous tragedy' of cocaine and death

By Nancy Concelman
Manchester Herald

PUTNAM — "The tragedy is enormous. The tragedy is drugs," James Lacey of Manchester said Friday after his daughter's killer — Thomas Brown, her husband — was sentenced to 18 years in prison.

Brown's attorney, public defender Richard Kelley, and Windham County State's Attorney Terence Sullivan, as well as testimony from friends and family members, agreed that Brown was under the influence of cocaine at the time of the murder.

Susan Brown, 24, was found dead in the couple's Willimantic apartment Feb. 7 with 26 stab wounds. She was an East Catholic High School graduate.

James Lacey and his wife, Irene, of Shallowbrook Lane; a friend of Susan's; Brown's parents, Judith and Charles; and two of Brown's friends were in court Friday as Brown, 29, held a photograph of Susan and told the court. "I didn't mean to hurt anyone, especially not my wife. This is not the Tom Brown she married."

James Lacey told the court before the sentencing, "I think our family is able to forgive Tom because we know it is not the Tom we know that killed Susan."

"He was a model citizen in every respect," Kelley said. "The Tom Brown who killed was not the Tom Brown that any of his friends knew."

Before handing down the sentence, Windham County Superior Court Judge Richard C. Noren said, "The enormity of what has happened cries out for eloquence. Eloquence, however, cannot hide, but only accentuate that enormity. Not one tragedy, but several," he said. "What has occurred is because of the scourge of drugs. Any use is abuse, and the proof of that is here today."

But Sullivan said Brown's attempts to flee police in Red Bank, N.J., on Feb. 7 and his testimony to police, during which he lied and said he arrived home the night of the murder and saw another man run from the couple's apartment, were attempts by Brown to "avoid responsibility."

"At the time he said those things, I'm sure this was not the Tom Brown that you and I know," Kelley argued. "He was so strung out he said anything he could to justify this terrible thing."

"I'm sure Thomas Brown ... is sorry, is remorseful," Sullivan said. "But isn't that the case with all people who sit in this courtroom? You cannot undo what you have done."

Brown was a standout baseball player at Eastern Connecticut State University when he first started using cocaine, Kelley said. Brown also worked with retarded children.

"Tommy was excellent on the field, excellent with the kids," Thomas

Brown's friend of 10 years, Steve Cervizzi, told the court.

Cervizzi told of how Thomas and Susan helped him when his wife got cancer.

"Tommy and Sue were like second parents to me," he said.

"I've known no other athlete more highly regarded by his peers," a tearful Ed Ferrigno told the court. Ferrigno was Thomas Brown's baseball coach for four years at Windham High School.

At Kelley's request, the court granted permission for Brown to remain incarcerated at the Whiting Forensic Institute in Portland. He was transferred there from the state prison in Somers because of severe depression.

Brown pleaded guilty to first-degree manslaughter April 14. Sullivan agreed to reduce the charge from murder because of Brown's condition at the time of the murder.

No more waiting lists for town housing

By Alex Girelli
Manchester Herald

Ada Sullivan, chairwoman of the Housing Authority of Manchester, is hoping the authority will not have to make too many changes in the way it selects tenants for federally-subsidized housing as the result of new federal law that goes into effect July 13.

The law requires housing officials to abandon the first-come, first served, system for filling vacancies in federally-funded housing and develop procedures that favor applicants with the greatest need.

Sullivan said the new regulation will be difficult to implement and "is going to take a lot of work." But she said the authority already takes need into consideration in special hardship cases when it fills vacancies. She said that when elderly persons are put out of their homes as a result of a fire, for instance, they get preference.

Sullivan said she does see the new rules as a problem but the more she learns about them the less concerned she becomes. The regulation was first discussed by the Board of Commissioners of the authority May 18, but few details were available then, Sullivan said.

On May 24 Carop Shanley, executive director of the authority, attended a meeting at which federal officials explained the new priority listing rules and sought to calm the fears of housing administrators, many of whom said the felt administering the rules would be a nightmare.

Shanley was unavailable for comment Friday on the regulations.

The new regulations require housing officials to abandon first-come first-served waiting lists and develop lists giving preference to people who pay more than half their income for rent, live in substandard housing, or have been displaced from their homes.

Manchester has a waiting list of 385 for apartments in its elderly housing facilities and over 170 on its list to get housing subsidies in privately owned rental apartments.

Sullivan said the authority will have to review the lists to see what will have to be done to make them conform to the law by July 13.

Failure to comply with the regulations could result in loss of federal subsidies, Sullivan said.

His ramp to freedom was built by friends

By Anita M. Caldwell
Manchester Herald

Vietnam veteran Vincent Miele is finally free.

Five years ago, the 36-year-old Birch Street resident was stricken with multiple sclerosis and in the last two years his condition worsened so that he couldn't get out of his house because he couldn't negotiate the steps in both the front and back.

Commander Lloyd Smith of the Disabled American Veterans in Manchester heard of his plight and suggested to the members that they form a committee to build Miele a ramp.

After two years of being "locked up," Miele said, he can finally get outside.

"I hadn't done anything but stare out the window," said the father of three.

"With the ramp, I can get out of the house and my wife can take me shopping," he said. "I have more freedom."

Miele said his wife works while he watches his 5-year-old son and two daughters, ages 7 and 9 after school.

"Now I can keep my eye on them," he said with a laugh.

Miele, who demonstrates a strong spirit and good sense of humor, said the day of freedom came about two weeks ago. As soon as the ramp was completed, he said, he left the house. "I said, 'hallelujah, I'm free at last,' and went out," he said. "I opened up the door and I wheeled out and I left," he said remembering his determination. "There were just streaks of smoke behind me," he said.

Miele served in the U.S. Air Force from 1970 to 1971 in Vietnam. He has lived in Manchester for eight years and had been a retail salesman. While he can no longer continue his career, he can get out to pursue other interests.

"He was a very happy person when we were through," said Arthur Warrington, a DAV member and coordinator of the project.

"It was our first venture in this," Warrington said. Most of the veterans' efforts are directed at the veterans' hospitals in the area rather than at specific individuals, he said.

Warrington said the committee had help from volunteers in the community who built the ramp.

But the volunteers didn't have much help from the weatherman.

"The winter held us up," Warrington said. "It was cold and we had rainy Saturdays." The project was started in November and was completed in a total of six weekends.

For Miele, it was worth the wait.

Post card sale benefits Cheney Hall fund

By Alex Girelli
Manchester Herald

Post cards depicting Manchester scenes have been delivered to 16 stores and other outlets, and proceeds from the sale will help set up funds to maintain historic Cheney Hall once renovations to it have been completed.

Rose Jackson, who is in charge of the Manchester Historical Society sale project, said she brought the cards in display racks to various places in town where they are now on sale.

About 100 of the cards were sold Sunday at the Manchester Historical Museum on Cedar Street where visitors were attending a demonstration and talk on quilts and quilting. About 25 more were sold at the museum Thursday during its regular viewing hours.

Part of the cost of producing the card came from a $500 grant from the East of the River Tourism District and part also came from a contribution by J.C. Penney.

All proceeds will go to the Cheney Hall Foundation Endowment Fund. Photos for the cards were made by Tibor Zoller, a professional photographer who volunteered his services. The cards were printed through an arrangement with Visual Impressions of Manchester, operated by Robert and Elsa Pound.

In all there were 3,000 cards printed of each of the scenes. They are the Pitkin Glass Works ruins, the Mary Cheney Library, Cheney Hall, the Clocktower Mill converted to apartments, the J.C. Penney catalogue distribution center, the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, the falls and dam at Highland Park, the Community Y, the Municipal Building, and downtown Main Street.

Board of Finance chairman raps town manager proposal

By Andrew J. Davis
Manchester Herald

BOLTON — A proposal by the Charter Revision Commission to switch to a town manager-selectmen form of government is a mistake because it would bring less accountability to town hall, says the Board of Finance chairman.

The proposal, endorsed earlier this week by the 15-member commission, would eliminate the Board of Finance. However, Raymond Ursin, finance board chairman, said the proposal would bring problems to town because it would mean less "accountability" in government. The proposal would make the finance board unnecessary because the town manager would be in charge of preparing budgets and submitting them to the Board of Selectmen before the Annual Town Meeting, said Robert Lessard, chairman of the committee's Form of Government subcommittee. One exception to this procedure might be the Board of Education budget, he said. It has not determined if that budget would go through the manager or selectmen before reaching voters at the town meeting.

The proposal irks Ursin, who said townspeople would not know who was at fault between the selectmen and the manager if there was a problem in town. Currently, it is clear which board has control over certain aspects of the government, he said.

"It doesn't change a damn thing," Ursin said. "It makes it worse. There's an escape. It doesn't correct anything. It doesn't improve anything."

Ursin said there was nothing wrong with the town's current form of government. Ursin did say that Bolton could do better with the resources it has.

"There's a need for quite a bit of improvement for what we're doing in Bolton," Ursin said. "I think it can be done in the selectmen form of government. The selectmen form of government comes right to the people."

Town government could be improved if officials were more "professional" in their business, Ursin said. Also, the selectmen should define job descriptions more clearly, establish performance standards, and review the performances of town employees yearly, which is not the current practice, he said.

He said he would grade the effectiveness of government as a C minus, though with changes that could be upgraded to an A minus.

Lessard said he doubted the proposal could be completed in time for the November election. After a final report is completed, the proposal must go to a public hearing, to the selectmen, to another hearing, back to the commission, and then the selectmen approve or reject the idea.

If approved, the Secretary of the State would have 60 days to prepare a ballot, said Robert Young, commission chairman. Lessard said the proposal does not necessarily mean that the committee is dissatisfied with the town officials. The change was proposed because projected town growth may require the change.

Also, if implemented, the finance board would not be eliminated immediately, Lessard said. He said there would be a transition period of a number of years before the finance board was dissolved.

In East Hampton, one of the towns the subcommittee has studied, it took 15 years for the finance board to be eliminated after a town manager form of government was adopted, he said.

Summer will have the sounds of music

David Kool/Manchester Herald

WHAT TO CUT? — Donna Mercier, left, and Jan Wodal look through the score of "The Sound of Music," to decide what to cut from the show. They will work with a group of 50 students in a condensed version of the musical, to be presented this summer.

By Nancy Pappas
Manchester Herald

Stagestruck youngsters will have the opportunity to fill Manchester with "the sound of music" this summer.

A new non-profit performing group, C.A.S.T., will produce the Rodgers & Hammerstein musical, "The Sound of Music," with about 50 student performers in Grades 4 through 8.

The group was founded by two Manchester performers. Jan Wodal of Hartford Road is an elementary school music teacher, and was once a candidate for the Metropolitan Opera. Donna Mercier of Elsie Drive has danced and choreographed since the age of 8.

The two worked together on student productions of the musical, "Oklahoma," and the Gilbert & Sullivan operetta, "The Pirates of Penzance," at Buckley Elementary School. Their collaboration was successful, and they decided that it was time Manchester had an outlet for theatrical youngsters.

Other towns, such as East Hartford, Mansfield, Glastonbury and South Windsor, have well-established summer theater programs for children, they point out.

"But for this age level, in particular, there is nothing," said Mercier. "There are lots of sports going on. But there is really nothing for the theater-oriented."

The parts will be awarded after auditions, June 6, 8 and 9. But it's not necessary to be a latter-day Shirley Temple to land a part in "The Sound of Music."

"We want this to be a chance for kids who have never been in a play, as well as those who are really stage kids," said Wodal.

The students will rehearse each weekday morning, from July 5 through Aug. 4. Performances will be on Aug. 4 and 5, at Buckley School.

Each child who is given a part will be asked to pay $40, as tuition for the five-week program. However, a total of $15 will go back to the youngsters as "payments" for rehearsals and performances.

The remaining $25 will be used to offset some of the expenses of the program. The largest of these is the insurance, followed by the cost of the building rental. Although rehearsal space is being donated by the Beverly Bolino Burton Dance Studio, the use of Buckley School during production week will cost about $100 per day, said Mercier.

In the past, Mercier and Wodal have worked with the fifth and sixth grade students at Buckley, who know each other well. But they do not think there will be interpersonal problems with this cast. "We're hoping that, as they work together, they will really become a company," said Mercier.

"You've got to think they want to be there, so they will really buckle down to work," said Wodal.

Although they feel confident that they can handle the children and the technical aspects of the theatrical production, these two women are concerned about one thing: They realize they are late in getting started this year.

"Many families have already made their summer plans, they don't have a five-week block of time when they'll be in town," said Mercier.

To make an audition appointment, call Donna Mercier, 646-2668, or Jan Wodal, 649-7804.

8th's parade looks like one of biggest

By Alex Girelli
Manchester Herald

Fire department pipe bands from New York City and Boston will be among those participants in the Sept. 18 parade that will help mark the 100th anniversary of the Eighth Utilities District Fire Department.

Bands from throughout the Northeast have accepted invitation to march in the parade, which officials of the fire department say they expect to be one of the largest parades in Manchester history. More than 75 fire departments have registered to participate so far.

Among the bands are the pipe bands of the Emerald Society of the Fire Department, from New York City, and the Boston Gaelic Fire Brigade pipe band and the United States Coast Guard Band, according to a news release from the fire department.

U.S. Rep. Barbara Kennelly, D-Conn., who represents the 1st Congressional District, had accepted an invitation. Other acceptances have been received from state Sen. Michael Megitt, D-Glastonbury, state Rep. John Thompson, D-Manchester, and George Luther, state fire administrator.

The parade is one of a series of events planned to mark the centennial of the volunteer fire department, which traces its origins to a fire in 1888 when men in the North End organized a bucket brigade for fire fighting after a fire destroyed a barn. A short time later, another fire ravaged Depot Square, and prompted the formation of the fire department.

Other events in the celebration include the annual peach festival Aug. 26, and the State Firemen's Convention Sept. 17.

Former district Fire Chief John Christensen is marshal for the parade that will start at Brookfield and Center streets at noon. The route runs west on East Center Street, and north on Main Street to North Main Street. The parade will disband at Robertson Park where refreshments will be served to participants and trophies about 70 trophies will be awarded for fire departments, bands, and other organizations.

Trustees threaten divestment

MIDDLETOWN — Wesleyan University's trustees Friday adopted a stricter policy regarding investments in companies doing business in South Africa, but stopped short of an outright call for divestment.

"Our (new) policy now presumes that all American companies should withdraw from that country, with the exception of those firms that can show they are providing extraordinary assistance to black South Africans," the trustees for liberal arts university in Middletown said in a statement.

The new policy had been recommended to the trustees on May 17 by the school's Social Implications Subcommittee. Wesleyan students criticized the subcommittee's proposal when it was announced, saying it didn't go far enough in opposing apartheid.

Green admits some problems

HARTFORD — The director of the state Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities has acknowledged problems in his agency but says news reports of law and policy violations will "discourage the general public from dealing with this agency."

Arthur L. Green said Thursday he thought reports in The Hartford Courant oversimplified the commission's duties and operations.

"That's pretty tragic. We didn't create that image," Green said. "We can show ... where we've done a lot of good things."

Green said that if the commission is to be criticized for trying to process discrimination complaints quickly, then he will take the blame, since he requires each of his approximately 35 investigators to turn around five cases per month.

Suspect immune in murders

HARTFORD — Richard Bazzano Jr. will not be prosecuted for his role in the slayings of two men gunned down in Suffield last year, the state said.

The immunity disclosure came Thursday as Bazzano took the witness stand at the probable-cause hearing of Bryan Patterson, another defendant in the case and related how a confrontation at a Suffield cul-de-sac led to the shooting deaths of the two men.

Bazzano, 19, and Patterson were among four young Suffield men charged in the July 11, 1987, slayings of Daniel Seymour, 25, of Suffield and William Price, 26, of Monroe.

At the start of the hearing before Superior Court Judge Jonathan Kaplan, Assistant State's Attorney Herbert Appleton announced that State's Attorney John M. Bailey had granted Bazzano immunity in exchange for his cooperation with authorities.

New Haven police ratify pact

NEW HAVEN — City police, who staged a sickout earlier this month to revive stalled contract talks, have overwhelmingly approved a new four-year wage and benefit package.

Mayor Biagio DiLieto, who helped resume contract negotiations after the sickout, said he was relieved by the settlement.

The mayor had been afraid that police job actions would tarnish this city's upcoming 350th birthday celebrations.

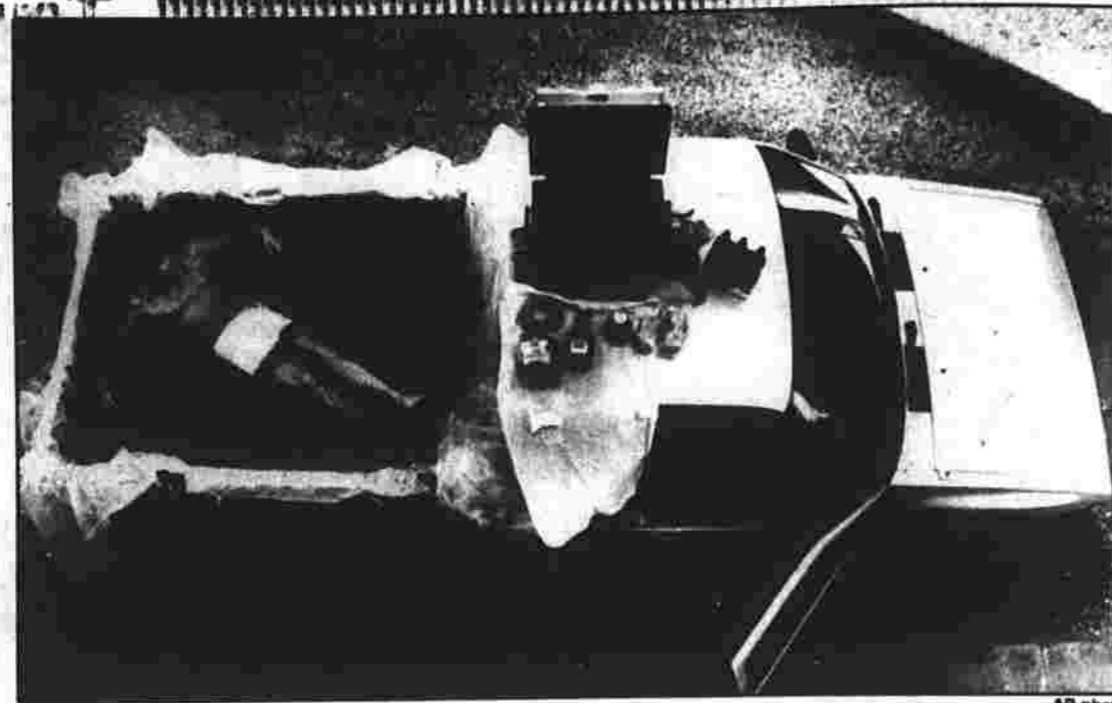

The new contract, approved 281-35 on Thursday, gives police what they have long sought — pension eligibility after 20 years on the job.

University to eliminate jobs

BRIDGEPORT — The University of Bridgeport will cut about 25 administrative jobs immediately and as many as 110 jobs eventually to balance the university's budget, school officials said Thursday.

The 5,300-student school, with 750 full-time and part-time employees, has had a declining enrollment for the past several years.

Officials refused to say which jobs are being eliminated because some administrators have not been notified.

THE GOOD LIFE — William Keane of College Park, Md., takes a dip in the back of his small pickup in New London Friday. Keane, nearing the end of his six-year

Navy enlistment, lined the bed of the truck with plastic and filled it with 100 gallons of water. A barbecue, prepared atop the truck's cab, followed the swim.

Deal closes, Compounce opens

HARTFORD (AP) — The nation's oldest amusement park was sold Friday and opened on schedule minutes later, but it wasn't easy.

At about 5 p.m. Friday, attorneys, bank officials and others emerged from a paper-cluttered conference room to say the deal transferring ownership of Lake Compounce in Bristol had been completed.

"This really worked out well," said James Brady, a Milwaukee attorney representing the park's new majority owner, The Joseph Entertainment Group Inc. of Milwaukee.

Fifteen attorneys, accountants, bank officials and others representing six parties and owners hammered out the final details of the sale while meeting in the offices of Day, Berry and Howard on the 25th floor of CityPlace.

"You can't get that many people to agree that often," Brady said.

With the complicated $13.2 million deal completed, the newly named Lake Compounce Festival Park opened for its 142nd season. Seasonal workers had been hired beforehand, and officials from Joseph Entertainment rushed from the Hartford law offices to oversee the start.

"We've been in the park since April 1st," Stephen R. Voboril said during a cigarette break after a flurry of telephone calls and signing legal documents. "We accomplished what we set out to do."

Voboril, Joseph Entertainment's vice president for finance, said the hectic conclusion to the million-dollar deal was worth it because they wanted to open for the Memorial Day weekend and "once you set a date, you like to make it."

"It's a good weekend, because it almost like summer for the kids," Voboril said.

Voboril declined to estimate how many people would attend Friday's opening, but he said the chances were good for a respectable-size crowd because of the publicity surrounding the sale.

"We anticipate a great weekend," he said. All the rides and other attractions at the park were opened.

Aside from turning a profit this year, Voboril said Joseph Entertainment hopes to learn more about doing business in Connecticut this year and making improvements next year. The biggest improvement planned for next year is an amphitheater for outdoor entertainment.

The Joseph Group intends to stage music and thnic festivals at the amusement park, with the amphitheater as the centerpiece. Work will begin on the theater at the end of this year's park season, Voboril said.

Undertaker charged with theft

NEW HAVEN (AP) — A funeral home director was charged Friday with stealing more than $3,900 from the apartment of a welfare recipient her funeral home had been hired by the state to bury.

Concetta Cannici, 74, of the DeLucia Memorial funeral home, surrendered to police at noon and was released on a written promise she appear in court June 10 to answer a charge of third-degree larceny, a police spokesman said. Her lawyer, Jonathan Silbert, said she would plead innocent.

Charles Pawlowicz, 77, from whose apartment the money was allegedly taken, died Jan. 10 at Yale-New Haven Hospital. Hospital officials said they were unable to locate next of kin. His body and his possessions, including the key to his apartment, were released to the DeLucia funeral home Jan. 17 after the state Department of Income Maintenance chose the home to handle the burial. Pawlowicz was receiving aid from the state.

The body was later transferred to another funeral home for burial after his sister contacted the hospital and found out that Pawlowicz had died and that the body had been turned over to DeLucia.

A woman who lived next door to Pawlowicz said in a court affidavit she saw Mrs. Cannici and her son enter the dead man's apartment, and followed them inside.

"They told me they were looking for anything of value to bury Charlie with," she said in the affidavit.

The woman said she saw the Cannicis rummage through cigar boxes in Pawlowicz's closet and find an envelope with $3,900 in bills. They also found a life insurance policy with Bob Mazurek, a nephew, listed as beneficiary.

"This should be enough to bury the man," the witness quoted Cannici as saying.

A nationwide test of the Salk anti-polio vaccine began in 1954.

SUN RACERS — Solar-powered cars from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, left, and Dartmouth College, right, work out this week at Bryar Motorsport in Loudon, N.H., in preparation for the Tour de Sol, a world solar-car race in Switzerland next month. The two cars are the only U.S. entries.

CL&P seeks rate hike; counsel, AG rap utility

Plan would add about $3 a month to the typical electrical bill

NEW BRITAIN (AP) — Connecticut Light & Power Co. formally notified state utility regulators Friday that it will seek a $118 million increase in annual revenues by boosting its electricity and natural gas rates.

The announcement was immediately criticized by state Consumer Counsel James Meehan and state Attorney General Joseph I. Lieberman, who said the proposed increase was unnecessary.

CL&P, a subsidiary of Berlin-based Northeast Utilities, has not raised its rates in five years. Its proposal would increase electricity rates 6.5 percent to raise an additional $112 million, while booting natural gas rates 3 percent to raise another $6.4 million. The proposed increases would take effect in January 1989.

"Today's gas and electric bills are at least 9 percent lower than they were in 1984 even though the cost of living has risen nearly 17 percent during that period," said NU chairman William B. Ellis.

"No one welcomes a rate increase, but I hope CL&P customers will recognize that with our proposal typical customer bills will still be lower in 1989 than they were five years earlier."

CL&P said that because of declining oil prices and sales growth, the typical 500 kilowatt-hour residential electricity bill fell from $51.69 in January 1984 to $47.64 this month. The requested increase, which would affect more than 1 million electric customers, would add about $3 a month to the typical 500 kilowatt-hour bill. CL&P said.

The typical residential gas customer bill has fallen by 13 percent since 1984. CL&P said. The company serves 170,000 gas customers in Connecticut.

"There they go again," said Meehan, who represents state consumers in utility rate cases. "I don't think they've got the message yet. It's going to be another grueling six months. I feel like the Celtics feel after the seventh game."

Meehan predicted that the rates would remain unchanged, or be reduced during the upcoming rate hearings. Meehan noted gas rates were cut 5.5 percent last year, and he said they could be reduced further because CL&P rates are among the highest in the nation. He said electricity rates also could be cut.

The hearings will likely begin in October and continue through until the end of the year, the consumer counsel said.

"They're looking for excess profits. I don't think that's going to happen. Their earnings today are reasonable and maybe should come down a bit," Meehan said.

Lieberman said he didn't believe a $118 million rate increase was justified. The attorney general said that since electric rates were frozen at their 1986 levels, "the economy has been strong, electric sales are up and energy prices have not skyrocketed. All these factors argue against a rate increase."

Lieberman said he has instructed his staff to review the matter and said he expects to participate in the hearings.

The company said it needs a rate hike to "improve sagging company earnings" and to make up for the depletion of the so-called "rate moderation fund."

The $82 million rate moderation fund, collected primarily through a cap on CL&P earnings in late 1986 and 1987, was used this year to offset cost increases in CL&P's electric business.

"The fund's $82 million will be used up completely in 1988 with nothing to take its place in 1989," Ellis said. "And so, despite vigorous cost containment by CL&P and sales growth due to a strong Connecticut economy, the need for a rate increase is unavoidable."

The company said another reason for the proposed increase is that another 8 percent of the costs of the Millstone 3 nuclear power plant must be included in rates. CL&P owns 53 percent of the 1,150-megawatt nuclear power plant in Waterford. CL&P included 48 percent of the costs associated with the billion-dollar plant this year.

Town to honor soldier who saw Brits in 1779

WEST HAVEN (AP) — This city will pay homage this weekend to a native son from the Revolutionary War era who local historians say never received the recognition he is due.

He is Thomas Painter, the man who is credited with being the first to spot a British invasion of the New Haven Colony in 1779 and to spread the word of the assault.

Mayor Azello M. Guerra is proclaiming Sunday "Thomas Painter Day" in West Haven, and a ceremony will be held to mark the occasion.

A mayoral proclamation will be presented to Lorraine Painter Rockefeller, a descendant of Painter, and local historian Bennett W. Dorman will give a speech on Painter's exploits.

A local park and street are named after Painter, but apparently very little else has been done to recognize the role played by one of the city's foremost historical figures.

Very little has been written about Painter, Dorman said.

A diary that Painter kept disappeared from the local library quite a few years ago, he said.

But Dorman said he has a copy of a portion of the purported diary, and that he will read from it at Sunday's ceremony at Bradley Point Park.

Painter is credited with first spotting the British ships that invaded the New Haven Colony on July 5, 1779. He reportedly saw the ships just before midnight on July 4, off Clark's Point, near what is now the West Haven-Milford line.

But to be absolutely truthful, his diary suggests the honor should be shared by several of his friends, Dorman said.

Painter was born in West Haven in 1760, and enlisted as a soldier when he was 15 or 16, Dorman said.

Contras agree to talk truce

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — Rebel leaders agreed Friday to discuss a truce extension proposed by the leftist government and one of the best-known rebel commanders turned himself in to accept government amnesty.

Manuel Espinoza, the presidential spokesman, said "some advances had been made" during the second day of the peace talks. The government proposed extending the talks beyond their scheduled end on Saturday.

Felix Garcia Hernandez, known as Alfa Lima, told reporters Friday that before he asked for amnesty he commanded more than 400 Contras in the Chontales region and had been in the rebel forces since the civil war began six years ago.

Bush looks at women's issues

Republican George Bush, conceding that women's negative views are hurting him in the polls, promised Friday he would spell out "what I feel on certain women's issues." Democrat Michael Dukakis said his own positions are evident from his record on pay equity, child care and affirmative action.

Bush said his "gender gap" problem — the difficulty he and some other Republicans have had in drawing votes from women — would be discussed during the coming week of meetings with GOP governors and other party officials at his Kennebunkport, Maine, retreat.

Dukakis, the Democratic front-runner, continued to blame the Reagan administration for its dealings with Panamanian military leader Manuel Noriega, talking of alleged $200,000 payments by the CIA as well as the failed negotiations to get him out of power.

Syrians enter Beirut slums

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Hundreds of Syrian soldiers wearing bulletproof vests over combat fatigues moved into the south Beirut slums Friday, halting a three-week war between rival Shiite Moslem militias that killed nearly 300 people.

The intervention, under a Syrian agreement with Iran, is expected to increase pressure for the release of the 18 foreign hostages in Lebanon, who include nine Americans.

Most are believed held in the slums by extremists linked to the pro-Iranian Hezbollah, or Party of God, which gained control of nearly all south Beirut in the battle with the Amal militia that began May 6.

Top Meese aide joins exodus

WASHINGTON — Charles Cooper, a top aide to Attorney General Edwin Meese III, handed in his resignation Friday, but said his decision to join the exodus of officials from the Justice Department was "wholly unrelated" to Meese's legal troubles.

Cooper, the assistant attorney general who heads the office of legal counsel, said he is "just now beginning" to look for work with a private law firm. But he said his decision to leave was not based on the fact that independent counsel James C. McKay is expected to issue a report in several weeks raising questions about Meese's ethical conduct.

Cooper, whose resignation is effective July 8, praised Meese as being "almost exclusively responsible" for advancing a number of issues on the Reagan administration's conservative agenda by focusing debate on interpreting the Constitution and the principles of federalism and non-discrimination.

Fund to repair Viet memorial

WASHINGTON — More than $60,000 has been raised to repair scratches made by vandals on the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, thanks to the efforts of veterans organizations and radio stations nationwide, a fund-raising official said Friday.

"People have been exceedingly generous," Jan Scruggs, founder and president of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund, said.

PIER ABLAZE — A spectacular fire spreads from restaurant on the storm-ravaged King Harbor pier in Redondo Beach, Calif., Friday. The fire sent plumes of smoke and flame billowing into the sky over the resort city, 25 miles south of downtown Los Angeles.

Latin America in quandary over Panama and Noriega

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Latin America appears to be in a quandary over Panama and its military ruler, Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.

The South and Central American nations that have espoused civilian democratic governments after decades of military rule have expressed little regard for Noriega.

But, because of their own historical experience, they also look unkindly on overt attempts by Washington to dictate who should run a country and how he should do it.

The little regional reaction to the breakdown in U.S.-Panamanian talks aimed at Noriega's removal has been cautious and wavering. The talks involved an offer from the United States to drop drug-trafficking charges against Noriega in exchange for his removal as Panama's leader.

Two Latin American countries,

Cuba and Nicaragua, have expressed strong support for Noriega in his confrontation with the United States, presenting the conflict as a classic example of a small but proud country valiantly standing up to imperialism.

Several countries mentioned self-determination as an issue at the heart of the region's posture toward the Panamanian crisis since it deepened three months ago. They stated a desire to see democracy established in Central America.

The foreign ministers of the 13-member Caribbean Community, or Caricom, said at the conclusion of a meeting last weekend in Trinidad that they "reaffirmed the sovereign right of the Panamanian people to determine their own destiny free from external pressures."

Colombian Foreign Minister Julio Londono Paredes said Thursday: "The (Panamanian) problem must be resolved by Panamanians themselves... without foreign interference and with the objective of re-establishing democracy in Panama."

Guatemalan President Vinicio Cerezo may have offered the most significant response to the collapse of U.S.-Panamanian talks.

Cerezo said he is willing to mediate a plan "aimed at finding a space for dialogue in Panama in order to consolidate a democratizing process."

Cerezo said early this month that Panama had reacted favorably to his offer and that he would pursue the idea with representatives of the Panamanian opposition and with other Central American leaders.

"We believe Panama is drifting toward confrontation and violence, toward radicalization against the United States, which is dangerous for the region and is also causing great damage to Panama," he told journalists Thursday night.

Noriega won't 'abandon his ship'

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — The foreign minister said Friday that relations with the United States were "practically non-existent," and he indicated that military chief Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega should not be expected to resign.

"The commander doesn't abandon his ship in stormy weather," Jorge Eduardo Ritter told reporters.

He made the comments two days after U.S. officials announced that their talks with Panama to resolve the struggle over Noriega's leadership had fallen apart. Secretary of State George F. Shultz blamed the collapse on Noriega.

However, Ritter said relations were bad "because the United States maintains recognition of a government that doesn't exist."

Washington recognizes Eric Arturo Delvalle as Panama's legal president, even though he was ousted in February after he tried to fire Noriega as chief of the Defense Forces of Panama. Noriega then installed Manuel Solis Palma as president, and Delvalle has been in hiding ever since.

Delvalle, speaking from hiding Friday, said he warned the United States in vain against go-it-alone tactics in talks with Noriega. He also predicted violence if Noriega doesn't leave.

WORLD'S LARGEST — Joe and Betty McKinley watch from shore as the world's largest oil-rig jacket moves through a channel at Port Aransas, Texas, on its way to Louisiana waters Friday. The 1,615-foot-tall, 78,000-ton platform, known as "Bullwinkle," cost about $700 million.

27 months later, charges dropped

MIAMI (AP) — A black Cuban refugee jailed more than two years on a murder charge despite two witnesses' testimony that the killer was white has been released, ending an ordeal he said was "not supposed to happen in this country."

At one point prosecutors had said they would seek the death penalty for Rigoberto Alberja, 32, indicted for first-degree murder in the 1982 shooting of a patron at an Allapattah bar during a holdup.

Alberja was arrested in January 1986 on the tip of a police informant even though the bar's two owners said the killer was white and had straight hair.

Alberja always maintained his innocence and refused offers to plea bargain. Earlier this month, the state finally conceded it could not prove its case, and Alberja was released.

"It's unbelievable," said Alberja's public defender, Art Koch. "If all you got is two witnesses saying the guy was Caucasian and you arrest a guy who isn't Caucasian, well then maybe you better think you got the wrong guy."

Alberja said Thursday he had never been arrested before the murder case, and was stunned by the treatment he got from the United States.

"It is a great injustice," said Alberja. "This happens in other countries, but it's not supposed to happen in this country."

During his time in the Dade County Jail, he said, he was stabbed six times by another inmate.

Prosecutor Mike Cornely defended his case despite the identification problems. He said lengthy appeals over pre-trial motions hampered his efforts.

"We had other information, a confidential informant and certain other witnesses who knew something," said Cornely. "But by the time the appeal was done, a lot had dried up."

It was a bloody week for New York teachers

By Judie Glave
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — After a week in which New York City teachers were bludgeoned, slashed, pummeled and blasted, their union leader called Friday for increased security and tougher sentences for teacher assaults.

"One attack against a teacher is outrageous and to have four in one week is just intolerable," said United Federation of Teachers President Sandra Feldman. "And we're afraid that this is just the tip of the iceberg."

Though schools officials insisted the number of attacks on teachers had actually decreased in three years, Mayor Edward I. Koch said the city was concerned about teacher safety and he called a "summit meeting" Tuesday of the chancellor, union leaders, the five district attorneys and police commissioner to discuss the problem.

The latest act of violence occurred Thursday afternoon when a physical education teacher came upon an intruder rifling through students' gym bags outside a Bronx school and was beaten unconscious with a baseball bat.

Gary Smith, 37, who remained unconscious Friday, was the fourth teacher assaulted. Douglas De Marco was knifed more than a dozen times by a mugger in the bathroom of a South Bronx grammar school.

The other incidents included a teacher who was beat up by a student, the student's brother and sister, and a 71-year-old teacher who was injured when an M-80 firecracker was tossed into her classroom.

"There's something seriously wrong here," said De Marco, who added that the attack on Smith made him even more "angry and frustrated."

The need for increased security has long been evident to De Marco who said he teaches in "a neighborhood that's known for two things: heroin and crack."

De Marco, speaking from his hospital bed, said his attacker was "some young crazed guy, looking to make a quick score."

The assailant got a few subway tokens and a couple of dollars; De Marco got kicked in the ribs, abdomen and groin and stabbed in the ear, neck, shoulder, side and back.

"A few more inches and it could have been my eye or an artery and we wouldn't be having this conversation," said De Marco, who is expected to recover.

Yet the Board of Education said the number of assaults in city schools have decreased, mainly because of an increase in security guards in elementary schools.

There were 1,322 assaults in the city's 1,000 schools in 1985-86 and 969 this year, said board spokesman Bob Terte.

That included 337 teachers assaulted in 1985-86 and 198 so far this year, he said. The rest were on students or other personnel including custodians and cafeteria workers. An assault could be anything beginning with a shove against a wall, Terte said.

In addition, Terte said 350 security guards have been added in the last two years, and the operating budget for school safety increased from $31.8 million to nearly $43.2 million. There are currently 2,081 guards in schools.

But the UFT insists there were about 1,000 physical attacks against teachers both last year and this year. Edward Muir, chairman of the UFT School Safety Committee, said about 20 percent required emergency-room treatment.

Though Ms. Feldman acknowledged a decrease in teacher assaults and a rise in security personnel, she said "it's obviously not good enough."

"If we have four incidents in one week and if we have a situation where a teacher can be bludgeoned this way in a school yard while he's teaching kids, then obviously the efforts, and I do acknowledge the effort, isn't enough."

Remember POWs, MIAs

To the Editor:

Enclosed is a copy of a speech I presented to Manchester's Permanent Memorial Day Committee on March 28. Subsequent to this presentation, my request was honored and will be adopted in Manchester's Memorial Day Parade on Monday, May 30.

It is respectfully requested that you honor those men and women considered to be a prisoner of war (POW) or missing in action (MIA) during Manchester's annual Memorial Day observance of those who gave the most precious gift of all, their life. I am petitioning for an empty vehicle with the POW/MIA standard on each side be placed in the line of march. I fully recognize that this memorializing will reopen old wounds, renew griefs we took so long to put to rest, and once again make us uncomfortable with ourselves.

I ask the question: "Are we going to experience any more pain and suffering than our approximate thirty-two-and-a-half-thousand unaccounted-for patriots and their families?" $2,500 is our federal government's estimated figure with 22,000 being attributed to World War II, 8,000 to the Korean police action and 2,400-plus for the Vietnam conflict. It is interesting that there is no accounting for World War I. Intervention with hostile forces, police action, conflict — they all spell War with a capital "W." These people are still at war, their truce was never signed or acknowledged.

I do not remember a time in my life, before the 1980s, that the United States openly acknowledged that we had POW/MIAs which were still held captive. I knew about POWs through license plates, but it never crossed my mind that our country still had those that were unaccounted for. The number 32,500 is not meaningful by itself, but when shown in the context of Manchester's population, about 51,000, it states that we do not know where sixty-four percent of our community's populace is. "Where Have All the Children Gone?" is the title of a song I relate with war. Were they not children when they answered? Are not those that are still missing our nation's children?

Two years ago the Department (State) of Connecticut's Disabled American Veterans began an "Adopt a POW/MIA Program." Each chapter was requested to sponsor a POW/MIA's name whose hometown was the closest to their own. After much deliberation, Manchester Chapter 17 selected the U.S. Navy's CPO1 Edward Louis Ott III, of Rockville. Upon investigation it was found that Chief Ott was assigned to a helicopter light attack squadron aboard the USS Garrett County. On September 1, 1967, his aircraft crashed immediately after takeoff into the Hau Giang River, in the Republic of South Vietnam. Nothing but the cockpit/cabin was found. To this day no remains were ever found.

The Department of the Navy, Bureau of Naval Personnel's Special Assistant for POW/MIA Affairs, responded: "Petty Officer Ott was survived by his widow and two daughters. We have since lost track of Mrs. Ott from her last known Rockville, Connecticut, address." In addition, Chapter 17 was unable to locate Edward's mother and father through the town clerk's office in Rockville or their place of employment and subsequent retirement. Can we not remember Edward L. Ott III and his 32,000-plus comrades on Memorial Day? I beseech you to include the sign of remembrance, an empty vehicle, that "You Are Not Forgotten."

For those that did not come home ...

Legalizing drugs is dumb

By Chuck Stone

At first blush, the logic is simple. If alcohol and cigarettes are legal, despite potentially lethal consequences, why shouldn't drugs be legalized?

One reason may be due to the differential of time and quantity. You can smoke yourself into lung cancer and drink yourself into cirrhosis of the liver. But you can't self-destruct with only one pack of cigarettes or one fifth of whiskey. You have to work hard at it for several years.

Comedian Dusty Fletcher, creator of that marvelous "Open the Door, Richard" routine, explained the time and quantity factors for acquiring a drunken stupor. "I'm goin' to keep drinkin' to everybody else's health until I ruins my own."

But it doesn't take long to ruin your health by smoking crack, snorting cocaine or injecting heroin. Without realizing it, you can cross an invisible line and terminate your health completely with a snap-of-the-finger overdose.

Addicts do it every day in dark alleys or in threadbare "shooting galleries." An anonymous dropout from life overdoses, becomes a statistic on a police blotter, and is blotted out of our humanity.

Only when a prominent entertainer or sports figure OD's are we horrified: University of Maryland basketball star Len Bias, John Belushi, Billie Holiday, Janis Joplin. And just a few days ago, trumpet star Chet Baker.

Beyond the sea of human wreckage, illegal drugs have spawned a criminal network that sucks in kids as early as 9 and 10. Drug abuse is America's biggest industry of death.

But this nation has never really mobilized its national law enforcement and military capabilities to stop drug importation and abuse. If drugs were a communist conspiracy to overthrow the government, we would have jailed its leaders years ago.

Currently, a number of respectable dignitaries are engaged in a national debate on the merits of legalizing drugs. Because a few conservative Republicans and liberal Democrats are on the same side of the fence on this one, that somehow is supposed to authenticate the case for legalizing drugs.

But drug abuse is not just an adult problem. It's a juvenile crisis. Even the proponents of legalization aren't suggesting that we make drugs available to children, but how can we prevent kids from getting their hands on them once cheaper legal drugs become available on the market? Kids can't buy whiskey legally, but teen-age alcoholism is still a serious problem.

Certain powerful medicines can't be bought without a prescription. Could drugs be purchased without a prescription? And where — at your neighborhood drug store?

Would there be legal limits, such as one pound per month per person? Who would decide how much cocaine, crack, marijuana and heroin any one person could purchase during any given period? And who would keep adults from buying drugs legally, then reselling them — at a major markup — to children?

But legalization would produce one salutary fallout. The multi-billion-dollar illegal drug empires of Colombia, Mexico and Jamaica could pay off their countries' international debts by selling us legalized drugs.

Or would our government organize a "Buy America" campaign to encourage kids to buy "made in America" cocaine, crack and heroin?

The debate over the legalization of drugs ignores one tragedy: Our government — especially under President Reagan — has never organized an effective military and espionage operation to stop the flood of drugs into America.

Until this is done, any talk of legalizing illegal drugs is the dumbest idea this country has had ever since it first imported slaves.

No easy solution to aid troubled thrifts

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The nation's savings and loan system, repository of almost $1 trillion in savings and provider of most home mortgage money, is in serious jeopardy and could collapse. Should this disaster come about, American taxpayers may be called on to bail out the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp.'s insurance fund that guarantees deposits. The tab for this salvage project could approach $100 billion.

Savings and loans have been sliding downhill since 1982, when they were "deregulated" by an act of Congress, and they are now reeling from a raft of bad loans, poor management and speculative investments. The true extent of the damage is described in stark terms in a highly confidential, 1,200-page "supervisory briefing" book prepared monthly by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, the federal agency that oversees the thrifts. The tightly guarded documents are distributed to only 12 top bank board officials.

Our associate Michael Binstein obtained the supervisory briefing book prepared last July. It contains a list of 183 "FSLIC cases" and another 206 "significant supervisory cases."

Think of the first category as S&Ls that are already in the morgue, the second as those that are in intensive care.

Here are just a few of the alarming conclusions in the sensitive document:

■ Bailing out the 40 weakest savings and loans in Texas alone would require an average of $173.4 million per institution and wipe out FSLIC's existing cash reserves twice over. If Texas citizens took on the task themselves, it would cost every man, woman and child in the Lone Star State $424.

■ Bailing out the 23 weakest thrifts in California alone would cost an average of $165.8 million, about $145 for every person in the state.

■ The more than $10.7 billion required to deal with the terminal thrifts in these two states would deplete the sum recently authorized by Congress to recapitalize the insolvent FSLIC through the sale of bonds.

■ The states with the worst S&L problems, counting both FSLIC cases and significant supervisory cases, are Texas, California and Illinois with 112, 30 and 26, respectively. Trailing close behind on the bad cases list are Louisiana with 25, Florida with 17 and Arkansas with 13.

A close examination of the FSLIC cases offers insight into the geographic dimensions of the problem. East of the Mississippi, there were 55 of these terminal institutions. Estimated cost to the insurance fund: $1.27 billion, or an average of $23.2 million per thrift.

West of the Mississippi, there were 127 such cases, projected to cost more than $14 billion, or about $107 million per institution.

Put another way: For every dollar that the FSLIC, or the American taxpayer, will eventually have to spend in the East, more than $10 will be required in the West.

Expensive waste

Mining companies are defying the laws requiring them to clean up after themselves, and the taxpayers are being stuck with the tab for doing it.

Auditors for the General Accounting Office recently tabulated how much federal land has been mined and left in disarray in just 11 western states. The bottom line: More than 400,000 acres of federal land in those states is in need of reclamation. More than half of the scarred acreage was left behind by illegal miners or by legal miners who suspended operations.

The battered landscape is pocketed with open mine shafts, laced with severe erosion, and strewn with rusting equipment.

The bill for restoring the land to its natural condition will come to about $284 million, and if the mining companies don't pay it, the public will.

Diplomatic nonsense

Thanks to internationally accepted protocol, diplomats are largely immune from the laws of their host countries. Now we've tripped across a case which suggests that representatives of foreign nations in this country are even exempt from worker's compensation suits.

A Lebanese immigrant was injured last year when he fell in the house of his employer, a Lebanese national who worked at that country's embassy. The immigrant filed a worker's compensation claim, but the employer claimed she was immune from such actions. Our investigation showed that she had not officially received diplomatic status before the claim was filed. But the embassy is supporting her and has even revoked the worker's passport, apparently in retaliation for his claim.

New office is dedicated

Editor's note: This column is prepared by the staff of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches.

By Nancy Carr
Executive Director

The Manchester Area Conference of Churches dedicated its new office at St. Bartholomew's Church, 736 E. Middle Turnpike, last week.

Parishioners of St. Bartholomew's were honored during the dedication for setting aside an area in their education wing for MACC and raising $3,500 through church dinners and an auction to renovate the space.

I am amazed at our spacious new office space. Not only is there room for a desk and chair for each of us, but room for our volunteer helpers, the files and our office machinery.

The MACC staff, board and volunteers are grateful to all the folks at St. Bartholomew's. Accolades are due a few individuals, including Frank Steiger, who has financially subsidized all of the dinners so that all proceeds could be used in the renovations. Bernie Hickey of the property committee master minded the whole project. He did the architectural planning and sent his own men to do much of the work. Ed Sorrel served as the head chef at all the dinners and also helped paint. Frank Aszklar helped to plan and paint but and was the trouble shooter for our maintenance problems. My personal thanks to Rev. Martin Scholsky, the most generous of landlords and spiritual advisors.

Their careers kneaded in bread

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Manchester Herald

Three men are working at a quick pace in the steamy basement of a home off Williams Road in Bolton.

It's a typical afternoon at the Kupris Home Bakery. One man is forming a fresh batch of dough into loaves of bread, and another is deftly cutting mounds of dough into smaller pieces for hamburger buns. In the room next door, a third worker is packaging bread that has already been baked.

Things have changed dramatically since Vilma Kupris began the bakery in 1971 as a way to make some extra money. The output has grown from 10 loaves a week to about 2,000, and the number of stores selling the product has gone up from two to 18.

Juris Kupris, who has taken over the business from his mother, is in a position many businessmen would envy. Because demand for the bread is so high, the bakery's number is not listed in the telephone directory. "We don't need it," Kupris said. "It's busy enough."

The bakery's specialty is Latvian dark sourdough bread. The culture for the bread was carried in a jar from Latvia by Vilma Kupris when she and her husband, Voldemars, fled from there at the end of World War II. Juris Kupris claims that his is the only Latvian bakery in the United States.

Besides the Latvian bread, the bakery makes about six other breads, including raisin, whole-wheat and white. There are no preservatives in any of them.

The bakery began to grow rapidly in 1981, and volume has increased since then by about 10 or 15 percent every year, Kupris said. "Our business took off a few years ago, basically when the health business started to take off," he said.

The majority of customers, Kupris said, are "people who are health-conscious." Though there are many Latvians in the area, they make up only a small number of the customers.

Kupris has shipped the bread as far away as Alaska. One Latvian woman, who lives in St. Croix, visits twice a year and brings 50 loaves of bread back with her each time.

Most of the bread, however, is sold in nearby outlets — in Manchester, Coventry, Rockville, Willimantic, Storrs, Glassonbury and West Hartford. The Highland Park Market and the Parkade Health Shoppe — the two stores in Manchester that sell the bread — were the first to carry it when Vilma Kupris began the bakery 17 years ago.

Juris Kupris became involved in the business in 1974, after he returned home from service in the Army. He didn't have a job at the time, so he helped knead the bread. "Then I decided it was something I liked to do," he said.

His mother is proud of the fact that he's carrying on the culture of his ancestors. "I never dreamed this," she said, speaking about how the bakery has grown.

Juris said that he may expand the business further in the future, but his main concern is keeping up the high quality customers have come to expect. He and his two helpers now do all the work, from baking the bread to making the deliveries.

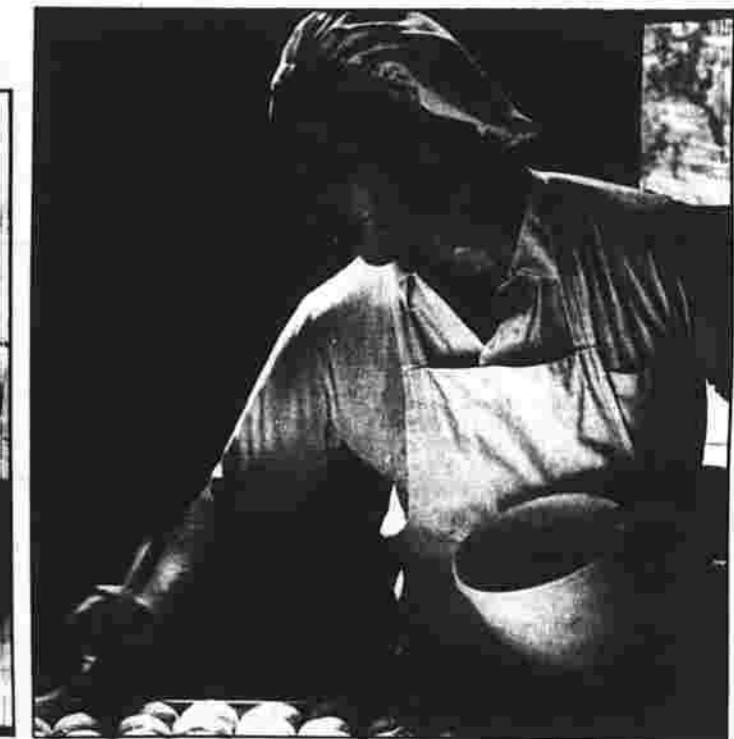

"If I can expand and maintain the product, then fine," he said.

Here's the Answer

QUESTION: Our house has a dirt driveway. I would like to put down a concrete covering. I have had some experience in working with concrete, but have never tackled anything as big as a driveway. I think I know most of the answers and I intend to have the mixture brought to the site by truck. The thing I am not sure about is how long to wait between the time the concrete is installed and the process of doing the finishing operations. Is there a special time for this?

ANSWER: Frankly, it sounds as though you need some kind of refresher course. Get yourself a book that deals with this kind of work. As for your specific question, the finishing operations should take place as the concrete begins to set a little. This is when the surface water begins to disappear. It is not an easy matter to do a driveway with yourself. You should have some help.

Bleaching wood? Be careful

By Andy Lang
The Associated Press

After you remove the old finish from a piece of furniture, you may discover traces of color still remain in the wood.

If the stain residue fails to come off with a light sanding, you must resort to some kind of bleach to get the desired result. Exactly which kind of bleach depends on how stubborn the old color is.

In some cases, the stain may yield to ordinary household bleach, the kind used for clothes. This is especially so when only a part of the wood is darker than the surrounding surface. A little careful rubbing often will do the trick. "Careful" rubbing, because even a household bleach can cause damage to your hands. Wear rubber gloves and work with caution. With any bleach, something must be put on the wood later to neutralize the acid. In the case of household bleach, an effective neutralizer is vinegar. If the wood begins to get lighter but not as light as you want, repeat the treatment.

Professional wood finishers often bleach the wood after removing the old finish on the theory it produces a uniform color (or lack of it) that will "take" stain very evenly. They generally use a commercial bleach, which comes in separate containers. It is vital the instructions be followed to the letter, as to mixing or non-mixing and the kind of neutralizer to be used. Also, check to see whether a light sanding is necessary if it appears the bleach has raised the grain of the wood. And, most definitely, observe the recommendations about rubber gloves and any other safety precautions. Generally, you will be advised to use a nylon brush for the application of the bleach. A certain amount of time, usually about 20 minutes, must elapse between the first application and the second. Whatever it says on the label, do it meticulously, since different brands of bleaches sometimes require different procedures.

A cabinetmaker of my acquaintance said he always got excellent bleaching results on open-grained woods, such as oak and ash, by using three solutions. The first called for a mixture of three ounces of oxalic acid and one quart of water. The second, a mixture of three ounces of sodium hyposulphate with a quart of water. And the third, an ounce of borax with a quart of water. The oxalic acid solution was applied first with a stiff brush. When it was partly dry, the hypo solution was applied. And when that was completely dry, the borax solution was used as the neutralizer. The new finish was not put on for at least 24 hours. The cabinetmaker said this was a superior bleach for the open-grained woods, but some wood finishers have various other bleach combinations, all of them utilizing oxalic acid.

There are various products on the market that can lighten wood. Lightener stains are pigmented and are rubbed on, allowing the pigment to be absorbed and giving the wood a lighter appearance. Whether you use these or the more properly called bleaches, it's a good idea to get the hang of what you are doing by testing the products first on scrap wood.

The techniques of using bleach, varnish, lacquer, shellac, stain, remover, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," which can be obtained by sending 75 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743.

Five factors in healthy lawn

By Earl Aronson
The Associated Press

There are five major factors in the development of a healthy, beautiful lawn: mowing, watering, soil, species of turfgrass and weed control.

MOWING: An average lawn of 8,000-10,000 square feet needs about 40 hours of maintenance a year, according to Professional Lawn Care Association experts, much of it mowing and trimming. Mowing is a significant shock to turfgrass, so stress must be minimized.

Don't cut grass too low. The higher the grass, the deeper and stronger the grass roots. Heights of 2 to 3 inches, especially in drought and heat, are better than 1 to 1½ inches. By raising cutting height one-eighth of an inch, the ability of grass to perform photosynthesis is increased. That eighth-inch means an extra 300 square feet of leaf surface for every 1,000 square feet of lawn.

Mower blades must be sharp. Grass should be sliced neatly, not shredded. Reel mowers cut a uniform height because of their horizontal cutter-bar design. However, most homeowners use rotary mowers.

The whirling blades of rotary mowers must be kept sharp or some grass will be bent over. When the grass is bent over, the height will be irregular after mowing. Sharpen and balance blades in the spring and one or two times more a season. Change directions each time you mow, especially with rotary mowers.

Weeders Guide

Don't catch and remove too many clippings. If grass is mown while very long, you may have little choice but to catch or rake. Keep in mind that it's important to prevent clumps from smothering grass. Timely mowing can eliminate the need to remove clippings.

One plant of Kentucky bluegrass can produce 3 feet of growth in an average season; that's 5 tons of clippings per acre in a year. These clippings provide one extra fertilization a year when left in place after every mowing to decay naturally and to nourish the soil.

SPECIES OF TURFGRASS: Know your species of turfgrass. A 10,000-square-foot lawn has about a million grass plants. Each square inch of lawn has about six grass plants.

New species are developed each year, so a 10-year-old lawn probably is out-of-date, especially if it is composed mostly of one turfgrass species.

Professional lawn services can choose a good mixture of new seeds, provide core aeration and overseed patches of your entire lawn without tearing out all the old turf.

WEED CONTROL: How is your weed control program? About 200 weed seeds exist in the turfgrass root zone about 6 inches deep under each square foot of lawn. Next week, in the third and last in a series on lawns, we'll discuss weed control.

diseases. Watering soon after mowing is good if there isn't enough rainfall.

SOIL: A healthy lawn needs correct soil conditions to compete with weeds. If you haven't had your soil analyzed for years, it's a good idea to check soil pH and nutrient conditions.

Send a soil sample to your state university extension office or ask a professional lawn service to make arrangements. Sandy soil lets water percolate below the root zone too quickly; clay soil restricts water availability by letting it run off or evaporate.

Apply proper amounts of nutrients at the correct time. Loosen compacted soil.

Timely mowing eliminates the need to rake during midseason. This preserves the herbicide barrier in the soil, designed to control crab grass.

Don't mow in unfavorable weather. Mowing in rain, dew or dense fog can leave grass clumps or uneven patches. Mowing in hot, dry weather, on the other hand, is stressful to grass. Mow high and water deeply.

WATERING: Watering plus rainfall should total 1 to 2 inches a week. Water deeply into the grass root zone. Avoid lighter amounts or more frequent waterings because such practice improperly trains grass roots to remain near the surface when they dry out.

Maintain a regular watering program all season. Watering in the morning is better than at night because it discourages

Lease, don't buy, that new car if you're without down payment

By the Editors of Consumer Reports

If you can afford to make the monthly payments on a new car — but cannot afford a big down payment — consider leasing. It may be able to put a new car within reach.

Leasing is not cheaper than buying a new car, but it does buy convenience if you keep a car only three or four years before selling it. Depreciation makes owning a new car very expensive. A new model that sells for $13,000 will be worth less than $5,000 in four years.

There are two basic types of auto leases — a closed-end, or fixed-cost, lease, and an open-end lease, also called a finance, or equity lease.

With a closed-end lease, you pay a fixed price for a fixed number of months and return the car when the lease ends.

With an open-end lease, you can buy the car when the lease expires. You pay an amount established by the leasing company at the time you signed the contract.

If you don't want to buy the car, you can ask the leasing company to sell it for you. Should the car sell for more than the price you agreed to when you signed the lease, you either owe nothing or get a refund, depending on how the lease was written.

Consumer Reports

If the car sells for less than the original estimate, you pay the difference between the estimated and actual price of the car.

Whether you sign a closed-end or open-end lease, you'll be responsible for certain up-front expenses. Most companies require a security deposit equal to one or two months' payment. You may also have to pay the first month's payment in advance.

Most leases allow you to drive only a set number of miles. While you can buy more mileage, the editors at Consumer Reports say you shouldn't, unless you're certain you'll use it. Most companies won't refund your money for unused extra miles.

Leasing a car is somewhat like buying one — it takes both savvy and skill to get a good deal. You can lease from a dealer who sells the make you want, or choose from almost any make and model by shopping at an independent leasing company.

Collect estimates from at least three companies, carefully comparing both the total price and terms of each lease.

Monthly payments for identical cars can vary from one leasing company to the next, since the companies' costs may vary; one may have bought the car for a lower price, while another may have arranged more favorable financing.

Some expenses can be negotiated. For instance, you are responsible for the car's upkeep and repairs — unless you negotiate to have the leasing company share the burden.

Challenge the monthly lease prices. You wouldn't expect to pay the sticker price on most cars, and shouldn't expect to pay the first price quoted for most car leases.

Some companies advertise super-low monthly payments, but then ask for an up-front payment — sometimes called a capital-cost-reduction payment — in order for you to get that low rate. Since avoiding up-front expenses is one of the big advantages of leasing over buying, it doesn't make sense to pay the equivalent of a down payment.

And never sign a lease that will penalize you if the car is lost or stolen. Even though you're required to carry auto insurance, the leasing company can invoke an early-termination clause and slap you with penalties over the amount paid by your insurance.

Changing Times

Before saying 'I do'

Prenuptial agreements between couples who want to protect their individual property interests after marriage are recognized in almost every jurisdiction. But because the rules vary from state to state, an agreement in one state may not be enforceable in another.

To clear up the confusion, the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws presented the Uniform Premarital Agreement Act (UPAA) to the states for adoption in 1983. So far, Arkansas, California, Hawaii, Maine, Montana, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oregon, Rhode Island, Texas and Virginia have signed up.

The UPAA, which has been endorsed by the American Bar Association, standardizes requirements for valid agreements.

■ The agreements must be in writing and voluntarily signed by both parties.

■ Each person has to know (or have a chance to find out) about the other person's finances and property before an agreement can be enforced.

■ Couples can agree to almost anything — from who will do the vacuuming to who gets what if they divorce — as long as what they propose isn't illegal or unconscionable, such as one person concealing assets while getting the other to waive all rights to property.

So if you move from one UPAA state to another, you won't have to worry about renegotiating your agreement. It will be good in any UPAA state.

Paying for college

On Jan. 11, Illinois offered for sale $90 million in tax-exempt college savings bonds. By Jan. 12, it had orders for three times that many bonds. The zero-coupon bonds, which cost as little as $1,000 and mature at $5,000, are exempt from both Illinois and federal tax. And if used to pay for education at an Illinois institution, there's a bonus payment of $100 to $400.

Illinois plans another bond issue later this year; North Carolina has already authorized a similar plan, and lots of other states are interested.

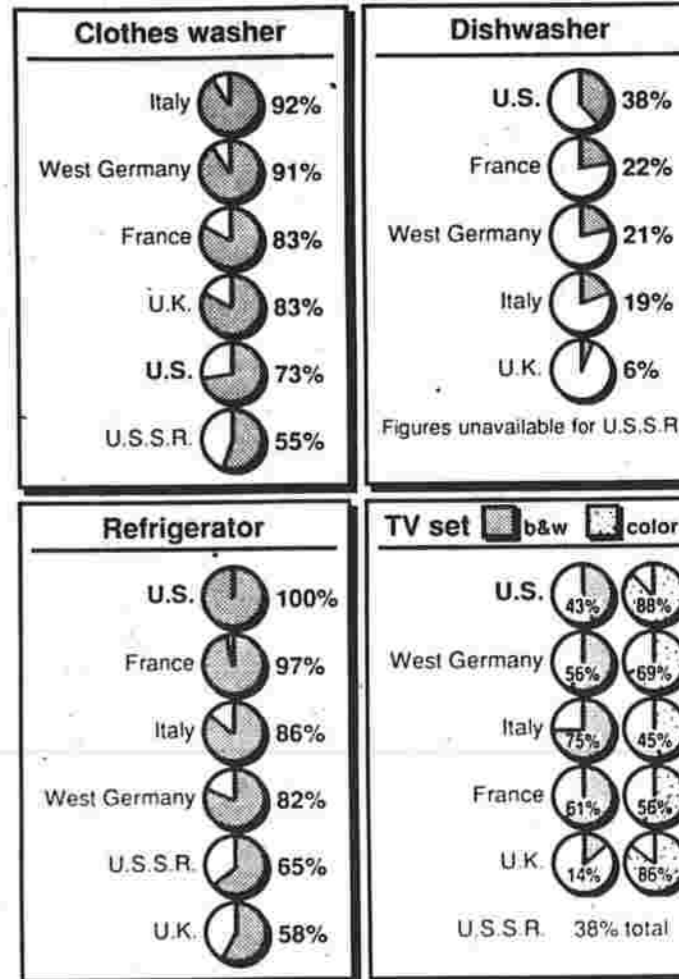

Figuring out ways to let families build up tax-free college savings will become a national pastime in years ahead. At the federal level there already are several proposals supported by key senators to make the interest on U.S. savings bonds tax-free if the bonds are used to pay for college.

FOCUS / Advice

Fertility reduction gradual

DEAR DR. REINISCH: It seems that women have more trouble getting pregnant these days, and I think it's because they wait too long to start families. Isn't it true that the older a woman gets, the harder it is to get pregnant?

Kinsey Report
June M. Reinisch, Ph.D.

DEAR READER: A woman's fertility is thought to be highest between ages 18 and 28, the time when ovulation (release of an egg from the ovaries) occurs most regularly.

During the pubertal years, menstrual cycles may be irregular and an egg is not always released during each cycle. The same irregular and anovulatory cycles (in which an egg is not released midway between two menstrual flows) gradually begin to reappear as a woman nears the age of 30.

This reduction in fertility is usually very gradual, however, so that a woman is capable of becoming pregnant until her ovaries stop releasing eggs altogether at menopause. For example, in a study of women inseminated with donor sperm, 54 percent of those older than 35 became pregnant as compared to 74 percent of those between 26 and 30.

Among infertile couples, about half the problems are attributed to the male partner and half to the female, so that the age of the female is certainly not the only factor involved in reducing fertility. Some researchers have noted that delaying childbearing until a couple is in their late 20s or 30s (increasing the likelihood that the parental relationship is stable and that progress toward personal or career goals has been made) may have benefits for the children.

DEAR DR. REINISCH: Is it dangerous for a man, age 72, with very low testosterone, to have testosterone injections or pills? I read that this could start up latent cancer cells in the prostate. I am in wonderful health, but erections are not firm enough except in early mornings and, as you probably know, women are not interested in sex then. My doctor recommended the testosterone and was not aware of any danger.

DEAR READER: Get a second medical opinion from a urologist who specializes in diagnosing and treating erection problems. You need to establish that there are no other causes involved except the low level of testosterone (a hormone produced in higher amounts of men).

That specialist can also carefully check your prostate. It is my understanding that although testosterone should not be taken if cancer of the prostate is present, this is generally safe when there is no evidence of cancer and a man is monitored by regular prostate examinations.

It may be that some treatment other than taking testosterone will be recommended instead, especially if any other problem is found. Moreover, careful research on men given testosterone injections (injections are thought to be more effective than pills) reported that this treatment can significantly increase sexual desire, but has no effect on erectile functioning (even when testosterone levels are very low).

There's another good reason for finding a sexual dysfunction specialist. Besides getting a complete diagnosis and possible treatment options, most physicians who specialize in sex dysfunctions emphasize involvement of partners and attention to relationship issues, not just the physical problems of one partner.

It may be that you have only a little or no physical problem requiring medical treatment (it is not unusual for older men to have their strongest erections in the morning) and that what is needed are a few counseling sessions in which you and your wife discuss when to have sexual encounters or learn about techniques to increase stimulation (needed by many men as they get older).

Often a compromise to have intercourse when the man feels best and to exchange other forms of affection at the time of day the woman prefers is a workable solution — and avoids any need for medical treatment. For example, this type of agreement is often successful when one partner has an illness such as arthritis and feels best at one particular time of day.

Samaritan thinks twice about rest-area charity

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I often travel by car around the country. On our last trip, as on previous ones, we ran into people at rest areas asking for money.

The first person was trying to get to a family reunion in St. George, Utah, in January because he couldn't get home for Christmas. He offered to sell us anything he had, or return our money. (He had used up his money on car repairs.) Not wanting to give out our address, we just gave him the money.

The second one was about two hours west of Phoenix. A woman and her husband were trying to get to Phoenix. They had run out of gas and were broke. She was in her 50s — she stood by the restroom door asking for money. I gave her $5 and asked how much she had collected. She said $9. I said, "Well, that should buy enough gas to get you to Phoenix" — then suggested she get in touch with Travelers Aid. She continued to ask others for help.

In a third instance, we were asked for money for gas and food. This time there was a young child and a couple of ragtag-looking adults. The car hood was up, the man was sitting on the curb and the woman was sitting in the car. This time we did not make a donation.

My problem: If I don't help out, my conscience bothers me. If I donate, I wonder if I'm being suckered.

Abby, do you think rest areas are just a convenient place to panhandle? What would you do? I am ...

CHARITABLE BUT SKEPTICAL

DEAR CHARITABLE: Rest areas are an ideal place to panhandle, and I'd decide how to handle it very much the way most people do. I'd size up the situation, then act on my hunch.

DEAR ABBY: I read your applicant letter from the Apostle Paul in the Pacific Stars and Stripes, and offer another piece on what is expected of a pastor: THE PERFECT PASTOR

(from the Christopher Book, "Three Minutes a Day," Vol. 22, 1983)

"The perfect pastor preaches exactly 10 minutes. He condemns sin, but never hurts anyone's feelings. He works from 8 a.m. until midnight, and is also the church janitor.

"The perfect pastor makes $40 a week, wears good clothes, drives a good car, and donates $30 a week to his parish. He is 29 years old and has 40 years' experience.

"The perfect pastor makes 15 house calls a day and is always in his office.

"If your pastor does not measure up, send this to six other parishes that are also dissatisfied with their pastor, then bundle up your pastor and send him to the church at the top of the list. In one week, you will receive 1,643 pastors — and one of them should be perfect.

"Have faith in this letter. One parish broke the chain and got its old pastor back in three months."

DEAR ABBY: For the last four or five years, my family has been plagued by a question that has started many arguments. Can hair turn white overnight?

DEAR DR. GOTT: You say that no one has ever turned white overnight? On June 15, 1910, my aunt was operated on. As the ether was given, the nurses and doctors watched as her hair turned white. She was 28. My brother was towhead until, at age 4, his hair turned black in four days. One morning when he looked in the mirror to shave, it had turned milk-white. So it can happen.

Dr. Gott
Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR READER: I appreciate your comments, but can offer no scientific explanation for the events you describe. It is my understanding that hair pigment is laid down in the hair shaft during growth and, once there, it cannot be removed or modified by natural means. I welcome comments from dermatologists who can explain the unusual phenomenon of rapid change in hair color.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 35, male and a vegetarian, non-smoker and non-drinker. I just had an adenocarcinoma removed from my upper palate. Is it possible to graft skin over the hole, which is about the size of a quarter?

DEAR READER: I think so. Most patients who have a surgical defect of the palate from removal of tissue can be helped by a graft or by other types of operation to close the abnormal opening.

However, in some cases, repair may not be appropriate. For example, if some microscopically small nests of cancer cells remain after surgery, a graft may simply cover up the continuing disease and make later investigation more difficult. In addition, the use of X-ray therapy may alter the tissues of the palate so that a graft would not "take." The surgeon who operated on you is the most qualified person to answer your question. Ask him to advise you.

To give you more general information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report on "Surgery."

DEAR DR. GOTT: Recently you answered a question about how a child might contract infant botulism. I've worked in the packaging field for 17 years and have some suggestions. First, don't purchase any vacuum-packed products that have a bulge. Second, before opening, wash the tops of cans and bottles to remove any dust, insect eggs or droppings that can build up during warehouse storage, shipping, store display and home storage.

DEAR READER: Thank you for sharing your suggestions. They are appropos for general hygienic measures, as well as for preventing good contamination by botulism.

Social Security

QUESTION: If I became disabled, why do I need a certain number of work credits to receive a Social Security disability benefit?

ANSWER: Disability benefits are intended to replace part of the earnings you lose if you are disabled and cannot work. If you have not worked, obviously, you would not lose any earnings if you become disabled. To assure that there is a relation between earnings and benefits, you cannot receive disability benefits unless you have worked long enough and recently enough in a job covered by Social Security.

QUESTION: I recently applied for SSI. When I got my first check, it was only about half what I expected. Why is that?

ANSWER: Without more specifics, I can't be sure of the reason. It could be because of the time of month you applied — SSI payments are not made retroactively. Or perhaps you had some income that required your payment to be reduced. To find out the exact reason, you should call your Social Security office.

QUESTION: How can I tell if I owe any income tax on my Social Security Benefits?

ANSWER: The first thing you should do is fill out IRS Notice 703 that came with the Social Security Benefit Statement. The answer you get on the worksheet should tell you if you have to include any Social Security benefits in your taxable income. Then, if you do, ask for a free copy of Publication 915, available at any IRS office. That will give you more detailed information. If you still have questions, call the IRS. A toll-free number is listed on the back of IRS Notice 703.

QUESTION: My aunt is 71. Her only income is a small Social Security check — I think it's about $320 a month. Would she be eligible for the supplemental security income program.

ANSWER: It's very possible. The SSI program makes payments to people who are 65 or older, blind, or disabled and meet certain income and resource limits. If her only income is $320 a month, she would meet the income limit. If she doesn't own a lot of resources, she may be eligible. The best way to find out is call any Social Security office.

QUESTION: My daughter gets SSI payments because she is disabled. She wants to go to college and hopes to win a scholarship. Will a scholarship affect her SSI payment?

ANSWER: It depends. The portion of the scholarship used for paying tuition, fees, or other necessary educational expenses is not considered income under SSI and will not affect the amount of her payment. However, any amount actually used or set aside for food, clothing, or shelter will be counted and may reduce her payment. You should discuss any possible scholarship with someone at Social Security to find out exactly how her payment will be affected.

QUESTION: Two months ago I took a second job, working at night. I notice now that my second employer is also deducting Social Security taxes. It seems to me that by the end of the year I will have paid in more than the maximum. What can I do about that?

ANSWER: When you file your federal income tax at the end of the year you can apply for a refund of any overpayment in your Social Security tax.

FOCUS / Movies

'Salsa' just doesn't work

SALSA (PG) In a line a cross between "Saturday Night Fever" and "Dirty Dancing" and you have the essence of this movie. It doesn't come close to either.

Filmeter

Robert DiMatteo

though. It's about Rico, a Los Angeles club habitue and prime specimen of beefcake — a guy who knows the full measure of his uh, physical charms. Stepping out of the shower and donning a carefully placed towel, the lissome Rico cavorts in a manner that would shame Michael Jackson.

Rico dreams of becoming a big Latino jazz dancing star (a "salsero") and relocating to Puerto Rico. First, he must win the local salsa contest at Club La Luna. That is, if he can choose the right partner. Will he stay with his loyal girlfriend, who easily commands the dance floor, or will he partner up with the reigning salsa queen — a voracious older woman in heavy eye makeup?

On the home front, Rico is obsessed in a different way — possessive of his sister Rita (Magali Alvarado), a supposed innocent who nevertheless knows how to get dolled up like a hooker to sneak into the clubs. She's also secretly smitten with Rico's best buddy, an "Anglo" who's known in the movie's rather self-conscious idiomatic parlance as a "bro" in the familia.

Directed by Boaz Davidson, this glitzy urban fantasy is as silly as it sounds, even reviving corny conventions of '30s movies (not that kids will know). Characters say things like: "I don't want to get in the way of your dreams." And everything is hotted up for the camera, so that the movie resembles a succession of lascivious Latino commercials. Rico is played by former Menudo lead singer Bobby Rosa, and he's photographed with the sex-object adoration normally reserved for the likes of a Raquel Welch.

The two redeeming features are the music (by the likes of Celia Cruz, Tito Puente and Willie Colon), and the sensual and sometimes even dazzling dancing (choreographed by Kenny Ortega, who did "Dirty Dancing"). Grade: ★½

New home video

THE WITCHES OF EASTWICK (R) Warner, $89.95. This lively, messy battle-of-the-sexes comedy from the John Updike novel was a hit. It wasn't due to its literary pedigree, that's for sure.

Jack Nicholson stars, offering ham with relish as enigmatic millionaire Daryl Van Horne — a devil of a guy who arrives in a New England town and proceeds to seduce three desirable females. The women are desirable indeed: raven-tressed Cher, flaming-redhead Susan Sarandon and cool, blond Michele Pfeiffer. And they happen to be witches.

The movie, directed by George ("Road Warrior") Miller, is entertaining, though it's big on Miller's brand of crunchy stylized action and gross-out. Grade: ★★½.

SOMEONE TO WATCH OVER

ME (R) In this romantic thriller, English director Ridley Scott ("Blade Runner," "Alien") brought his gift for glittering visuals and high-tech design to a flimsy melodrama. Scott's swirling camera style exposes an implausible adultery-and-murder storyline.

Tom Berenger plays a happily married cop assigned to protect a rich Manhattan socialite (Mimi Rogers). Guess who falls in love? There's no denying the film's dark visual allure. But this fancy nail-biter has a stalking murderer who behaves stupidly even by stalking-murderer-movie standards. Grade: ★★

MY LIFE AS A DOG (not rated) Paramount, $79.95. Every now and then a foreign film attracts a big American audience. That's what happened with this portrait of a 12-year-old Swedish boy in the late '50s.

When the boy's mother gets sick he's sent to live with his uncle in a small country village — where his already odd life only gets odder. A bedridden old man wants to be read to from women's underwear catalogs. And the toughest kid in the village reveals that he's really a she.

This lyrical boy's-eye-view tale of survival won director Lasse Hallstrom an Oscar nomination, and it's deft and charming — though there's perhaps a surefire of quirky cuteness. Both a dubbed and subtitled version are being released. Grade: ★★

(Film grading: ★★ excellent, ★★ good, ★★ fair, ★★ poor)

Interest rates, stock struggle starting to exert political pull

By Chef Currier
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — In the view of a good many Wall Street analysts, rising interest rates and the depressed state of the securities markets are beginning to loom as a factor in this year's election campaign.

Pocketbook issues nearly always carry a lot of weight at the polls. On the surface at least, the picture looks pretty good for incumbents of both parties right now.

After all, the unemployment rate is at a 14-year low. Economic growth has been faster of late than almost anybody expected.

The recession that was so widely feared in the aftermath of the stock market crash last year has so far failed to materialize.

But interest rates have been moving up steadily in recent weeks. The Federal Reserve, most analysts agree, has been taking measured steps to tighten credit in order to ward off a revival of inflation.

And some observers say the Fed faces an especially delicate mission over the next few months.

"In our opinion, in order to deal with the present inflationary threat, the Fed must tighten more forcefully than it has to date," said Paul Getman in a commentary for the Wefa Group, a forecasting firm. "Without such a move, bond prices will continue to deteriorate."

Getman said the Fed is likely to pull in the reins a bit more in June, and to raise its discount rate, which now stands at 6 percent, during the summer.

"If this tightening is sharp enough," he added, "then the Fed may not need to tighten again before the election."

"But if the Fed is not decisive enough in its actions, then the bond markets will once again force the Fed's hand, and it will not be pretty."

At the same time, analysts say, Fed policymakers are well aware of the risks of being too aggressive. The last half-point increase in the discount rate, on Sept. 4 of last year, may have played a part in (or at least failed to prevent) a crash in stock prices.

Amid all these concerns, stocks struggled to break a three-week losing streak in the past week. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.85 to 1,958.44.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index gained .36 to 143.66; the NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market added .63 to 366.66, and the American Stock Exchange market value index dropped 1.34 to 290.50.

Volume on the Big Board averaged 135.75 million shares a day, against 156.80 million the week before.

Optimists on the market outlook argue that the Fed's challenge will diminish as it becomes apparent that inflation worries are excessive.

"Over the last three years, fears about impending acceleration of consumer prices have repeatedly swept through the bond market," observed economists at Shearson Lehman Hutton Inc. "Yet there is little evidence of any material acceleration of gains in consumer prices."

"In the past few months, the fear of depression has been transformed into the fear of an economic boom," said Shearson's Michael Sherman. "Neither expectation was or is based in reality."

Business in Brief

People's Bank opens branch

People's Bank opened its newly renovated Vernon Circle branch Tuesday at Tri-City Plaza.

The new 3,300 square-foot office features two new drive-up windows, a walk-in vault and expanded teller and desk services. The Vernon office is one of 68 branches and six loan production offices throughout the state.

In recognition of the opening, the bank contributed $500 to Cornerstone, an emergency shelter for Vernon, Tolland and Ellington.

Texaco rejects Icahn offer

NEW YORK — Texaco Inc. directors gave thumbs down Friday to a takeover offer from financier Carl C. Icahn, who proceeded with his threat to wage what analysts called an uphill proxy fight for five seats on the oil giant's board.

The board had been expected to reject the $60-a-share offer, which values the company at $14.6 billion.

Texaco directors echoed management's sentiment in questioning whether Icahn could arrange financing. They said Icahn's 48-hour deadline to respond was further evidence he was not serious.

Icahn has been pressuring Texaco's management in recent months to boost the value of company stock, if necessary by breaking it up and selling off the pieces.

Icahn spokesman Neil Call noted that the board did not challenge the $60-a-share price.

Landing fees cut air service

AUGUSTA, Maine — A plan to sharply increase landing fees at Boston's Logan International Airport is being blamed as the reason for a commuter airline's decision to suspend service to Maine's capital.

Business Express, a Harford, Conn.-based airline that currently runs three daily flights out of Augusta, said Thursday it plans to end service on July 1, the day the new fees are scheduled to take effect. The airline intends to continue service to Portland, Bangor and Presque Isle.

"It didn't make sense for us to fly the distance between Portland and Augusta for the fewer passengers," said airline Vice President Frank Arciuolo, adding that the Augusta flights averaged five passengers each.

Still, he said, "if the landing fees (at Logan) did not go up on July 1, chances are we'd still be in Augusta."

Mergers hit nation's farms

By Joe Bigham
The Associated Press

FRESNO, Calif. — Agribusiness has not escaped the urge to merge that has caused many companies to disappear as individual entities in recent years.

But is merger mania good for farming?

Robert Glassman, financial vice president of Fresno's Britz Inc., thinks so. He says bigger concerns can exert more clout, especially in dealing with large wholesale buyers of raw or processed foods.

Glassman, whose company is engaged in family farming and distribution of crops and fertilizers, expects continued consolidation of the now widely dispersed fruit and produce industry to offset antitrust restrictions he said favor big grocery chains.

"Grocers can call each other and ask, 'How much are you paying for raisins today?'" Glassman said. "We can't call each other and ask, 'What are you selling raisins for today?'"

Antitrust laws should be revised to give agribusiness more flexibility in setting prices, Glassman said at a recent forum sponsored by the California Chapter of the American Society of Farm Managers and Rural Appraisers.

Business Mirror

He noted that farmers received 50 percent of the money American consumers spent on food in the 1950s, but the farmers' share fell to 30 percent in 1986 and 28 percent last year.

"This trend may eventually put us all out of business, and we must as farmers and marketers reverse it — now," Glassman said.

Softening of antitrust laws seems unlikely, so Glassman expects mergers in the agribusiness area to continue.

But Charles Bonner, president of Bonner Packing of Fresno, said a report in Business Week magazine showed 70 percent of business acquisitions were failures, resulting in lower stock prices and a drop in market share for the surviving companies.

"I think a lot of acquisitions we have seen in agriculture the last 10 years have been unmitigated disasters," Bonner said.

David R. Smith, president of Dole Citrus in Ontario, Calif., countered that some companies, such as Paramount Properties, seek out undervalued properties in their area of expertise, citrus and nuts. Paramount is a diversified farming company based in Bakersfield, Calif.

"Paramount focuses on two main commodity groups that allows them to move quickly to evaluate property ... and make purchases before anybody else can make that determination and get capital together to make the purchase," Smith said.

On the other hand, Dole's parent company, Castle & Cooke Inc., lobs for purchases that will increase its share of a given market.

But Bonner contended that companies can be fooled when they buy land or processors they think are inexpensive.

"When we bought a dried fruit plant, we stole that asset, but we're still paying for it," said Bonner, citing a decision by his family raisin-processing company to diversify.

"What can start as a real cheap price often turns out to be an expensive education," Bonner said. "We've had a couple of those."

He noted that Tenneco West spent a decade, and more than $30 million, advertising its own raisin brand, Sun Giant. Bonner contended that the petroleum company wound up with 6.4 percent of the $200 million United States raisin market, or about $13 million in sales, which he translated to a profit of perhaps $200,000 a year.

Bank records stored safely

QUESTION: Although we do not live in California, my husband and I have a share of large certificate of deposit at a bank there. The certificate is held by a relative who does live in California. The bank is a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. Should California experience a catastrophic earthquake, what would happen to our savings if the actual certificate and the bank's records are destroyed or lost?

ANSWER: In all probability, your savings would be safe. FDIC strongly recommends that banks maintain backup data in secure areas away from their places of business. The Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corp. makes the same recommendation to insured thrift institutions.

There's no absolute requirement on this. But every well-managed bank and S&L has copies of its records tucked away in secure locations, such as deep caves, well removed from its main office and branches.

These precautions aim to prevent losses not only from the often-predicted California-falling-into-the-Pacific quake but also from other disasters, ranging from fires, to airplane crashes to nuclear war.

If you're truly concerned about his, check with the bank that

Investors' Guide

William A. Doyle

issued the CD. Ask where its backup data is maintained.

QUESTION: How safe are wills, jewelry and other valuables kept in safe deposit boxes at banks and S&Ls in California? Couldn't the things in those "lock boxes" be lost forever or destroyed by fire or looting in the event of an earthquake?

ANSWER: The contents of safe deposit boxes are not covered by FDIC or FSLIC insurance. Some banks and S&Ls have private insurance coverage on what customers keep in safe deposit boxes. Most don't. If you want to insure the contents of your lock box, you usually have to buy your own policy from an insurance company.

Don't get all upset. Despite occasional headline-grabbing stories about burglaries of safe deposit vaults, such happenings are extremely rare.

While there is no way of knowing, for sure, what would happen in the event of a catastrophic earthquake, the management of your bank or S&L almost certainly would have armed guards on the scene in a hurry. I have to say you are worrying unnecessarily.

QUESTION: We owned 600 shares of stock in a local bank, which was declared insolvent and taken over by the FDIC. This represented a substantial loss to us. What bothers us most, however, is the way things were handled.

Another bank took over our insolvent bank, so depositors lost nothing. New stories about our bank's troubles thwarted any chance for a takeover by other banks before the FDIC took charge. Now, after writing several letters to the FDIC and receiving vague answers, we know there will be nothing left for stockholders.

What government agency monitors the FDIC? If anyone is found guilty of fraud, what recourse do we have?

ANSWER: The FDIC is a federal agency, created by act of Congress. It is subject to oversight by Congress. Its books are audited by the General Accounting Office.

Your gripe is not with the FDIC. Your wrath should be directed at the management of the busted bank — its officers and members of its board of directors.

FDIC and FSLIC protect depositors — not stockholders. As a stockholder, you were a part owner of that failed bank. As you learned through unhappy and expensive experience, stock ownership involves risk.

Highlights of the week

By The Associated Press

■ Senate Banking Committee Chairman William Proxmire, D-Wis., scolded the Reagan administration for offering "pitiful" solutions for the stock market's problems, and promised to press ahead with his own bill.

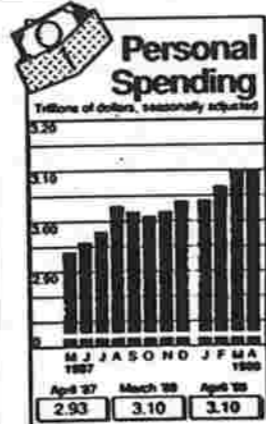

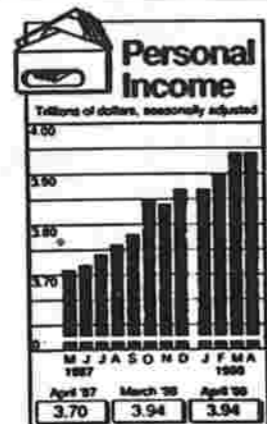

■ The Securities and Exchange Commission declared its independence from the administration by pushing its own plan for market reform. A sharply divided commission voted 3-2 to ask Congress for jurisdiction over the stock index futures markets in Chicago, an area now regulated by a sister agency.

■ An order from United Airlines for 30 757 jetliners capped two weeks of multibillion-dollar orders for Boeing Co. aircraft. Other orders included 50 planes for American Airlines and 100 for International Lease Finance Corp. The orders, which contain options for even more jets to be purchased in the future, have added to a boom in work at Boeing, where workers are already complaining about excessive overtime.

■ Takeover strategist Carl C. Icahn announced a $60-per-share offer for Texaco Inc. after the oil company's management broke off talks with him on the future of the company. Some analysts doubted the seriousness of the bid, and Texaco's board flatly rejected it.

■ KaiserTech Ltd., the world's fifth-largest aluminum producer, said it had agreed to be acquired by Maxxam Group Inc. in a deal estimated at $725 million.

■ West Point-Pepperell Inc., the nation's increased in April for the third consecutive month, tax filings took a chunk out of personal income and the gross national product advanced more strongly in the first quarter than previously estimated.

■ A business information group said builders started 16 percent fewer new housing units in the first quarter than in the same period of 1987, but a real estate trade association said sales of existing homes jumped in April while prices in the Northeast moved up over the first quarter.

■ Dun & Bradstreet Corp. said business failures declined by 10.1 percent in the first quarter over a year earlier as more farmers and retailers climbed out of the red.

■ Sales of domestically made cars and light trucks in mid-May rose 2.6 percent from a year ago despite trimming of buyer incentive lures.

■ President Reagan vetoed a major trade bill for the second time in three years. The House countered by voting to enact the measure over his objections, but the Senate is unlikely to go along when it considers the override.

■ Reagan said he would nominate John P. LaWare, a Boston banking executive, to be a member of the Federal Reserve's board of governors.

■ The Supreme Court let stand a ruling that put millions of so-called fixed annuities under the jurisdiction of federal securities laws. In other business-related actions, the high court agreed to study the power of states to regulate natural gas production and refused to unravel a merger between units of Eastman Kodak Co. and Fujiu Industries Inc.

■ New York state officials announced that the Shoreham nuclear power plant, long a burden to Long Island Lighting Co., would be torn down. If the plan goes through, it would be the first time a completed nuclear power plant was abandoned before it opened.

Unser won't sneak up on anyone this time

By Mike Harris
The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Al Unser, who came out of nowhere to win the 1987

Indianapolis 500, won't sneak up on anybody Sunday. Unser, who will celebrate his 49th birthday on race day, will start from the outside of the front row in the 72nd

STANDING TALL — Race car driver Mario Andretti stands atop a stack of racing tires on the final day of practice for the 72nd Indy 500 Thursday. Andretti turned in the fastest time of the day with a lap of 215.105 mph.

Indy 500, with an opportunity to become the first five-time Indy winner.

A year ago, Unser began the month without a ride and got to drive the third Penske Racing entry only because Danny Ongais was knocked out of the race in a crash in practice. This time, Unser is here only because he won last year's race. After last May, car owner Roger Penske promised him a ride at Indianapolis and at the other two 500-mile Indy-car events if nothing else came up for the veteran racer.

Al Unser Jr., who will start his sixth Indy race just one row behind his father, can't understand why somebody doesn't hire his father for a full-time ride.

"It makes me real curious," Unser Jr. said. "It's a bit annoying because he is a very, very good race car driver. For him not to have a ride for the whole series is mind boggling. But then, that's racing. There's some things that you understand very well and there's some things that blow your mind, and this is one of those things that blow your mind."

The elder Unser, never one for fiery oratory, tried to be philosophical about the situation.

"I'm here and I've got a ride," he said. "After this race, I've only got two races to run because there aren't enough car owners."

"This sport has got so expensive. It's cut down on the number of car owners, so there just aren't that many good rides."

But, like last year when it was strictly a one-race deal with Penske before he won Indy, the driver from Albuquerque, N.M., said he will put his feelings aside and do the best job he can on the 2 1/2-mile Speedway oval.

"The Penske team is a very strong team and I feel I have as good a chance as anybody," Unser said. "If I'm running at the end and I don't make any great mistakes, I'll have a chance to win it."

Unser was asked if an unprecedented fifth victory here would be any more important than any of the first four — 1970, 1971, 1978 and 1987.

"I'm going for my first win as far as I'm concerned," he replied. "This one would be no different than any of the others."

"If the other four would mean I could relax and take it easy more, it would mean something," he added with a smile. "But, I can't."

Unser has the opportunity to become the first Indy winner in successive years since he accomplished the feat 17 years ago.

"In '71, when I won that race, it was going so easy it was funny," Unser said. "I came back in '71 and had an obsolete car. (Mark) Donohue and (Peter) Revson were out-running me. Somehow, though, we hung in there through a great team effort and, when those other guys had problems, we won it. But it was very hard."

"Winning this year will be just as hard or harder," he continued. "It's like last year with Mario (Andretti). He had the best car and he was running away from everybody and then he had an engine problem and I won the race."

"Mario can sit back and say, 'That was my race,' but he didn't get the checkered flag. For every race you win, there's 10 you should have won and didn't."

The garage area was the only busy place at the Speedway on Friday, with mechanics working feverishly to rebuild and set up the cars.

greatest team ever."

That, of course, is debatable.

Five championships in six years would be an incredible accomplishment. But the Montreal Canadiens won five straight Stanley Cups from 1956-60 to end a run of 10 straight appearances in the finals.

There has been plenty of talk in recent years of hockey dynasties.

Before Edmonton's string, the New York Islanders won four straight Cups. And before that, the Canadiens won four in a row.

In fact, since the league expanded from six teams in 1967-68, five clubs have done all the winning — Edmonton, New York, Montreal, Boston and Philadelphia — each of them spurring dynastic dialogue.

Whether or not the Oilers are eventually recognized unanimously as the greatest team of all time, it is hard to argue with anyone who claims that they are one of the best teams ever.

And that they probably aren't through sipping champagne from Lord Stanley's Cup.

Oilers' domination can continue indefinitely

By Mike Nadel
The Associated Press

EDMONTON, Alberta — Sorry, NHL. It appears that the Edmonton Oilers' domination of the league can continue indefinitely.

"What some people don't realize is that we're still a young team," said Oilers co-coach John Muckler. "This year was the big year to get over the hump. We made some changes in strategy and personnel and now I can foresee us being a strong team for the next several years."

Wayne Gretzky is only 27. So are Mark Messier, the Oilers' heart and soul, and hard-driving right wing Glenn Anderson. Grant Fuhr, whom Gretzky contends is the greatest goalie ever, is 25.

There's more. Jari Kurri just turned 28. Esa Tikkanen is 23. Tough guys Kevin McClelland and Marty McSorley are 25. Steve Smith is 25 and showing signs that he will become one of the league's top defensemen.

There's still more. Craig Simpson, who in his first year as an Oiler was the NHL's second-leading goal-scorer, is all of 21. Steady defenseman Charlie Huddy is 28. Kevin Lowe, the old man and the glue of the defense, just turned 29.

And there's more to come. Defenseman Chris Joseph, 18, acquired with Simpson in the blockbuster Paul Coffey deal, is considered one of the best young players in the world. And Bill Ranford, 21, another 1987-88 acquisition, will be a solid backup to Fuhr for years before taking over the net.

So it's not blind ambition that has the Oilers — who on Thursday wrapped up their second straight Stanley Cup and fourth in five years — talking about winning many, many more.

"We don't have a real age factor," said Gretzky, who shows no signs of letting up on the dizzying pace that will give him every major offensive record in hockey history by the time his contract expires in 1992. "It's going to be a good hockey club for a long time."

Added team philosopher Lowe: "We were desperate. We knew what we were here to do ... and we did it. But we only earned respect for today. We're one Stanley Cup away from being the

Carter guides Indians to win

AL Roundup

Joe Carter hit a solo home run and sacrifice fly Friday night as the Cleveland Indians beat the Milwaukee Brewers 6-3.

The victory was the Indians' third straight and eighth in the last 10 games, putting them 14 games over .500 for the first time since July 1966. The Brewers lost their third in a row.

Scott Bales, 4-4, gave up six hits in eight-plus innings. He issued his lone walk to start the ninth and Doug Jones started Cleveland's two-run first inning with a leadoff single that extended his hitting streak to 15 games, longest current string in the majors. Willie Upshaw then tripled home Franco and scored on Carter's sacrifice fly off Mike Birkbeck, 2-4.

Glenn Braggs hit his eighth homer to get Milwaukee within a run in the fourth, but Cleveland went up 3-1 in the fifth on singles by Brook Jacoby and Pat Tabler, a sacrifice bunt by Andy Allanson and Jay Bell's sacrifice fly.

Carter hit his 10th home run in the sixth on a fly ball that landed just beyond the 320-foot sign in left. Dale Sveum hit his sixth homer.

Blue Jays 4, White Sox 3

Pinch hitter Juan Beniquez and Nelson Liriano hit run-scoring singles in the ninth inning Friday night, rallying the Toronto Blue Jays over the Chicago White Sox 4-3.

Fred McGriff met reliever Rick Horton with a single to open the ninth and advanced on a sacrifice. Bobby Thigpen replaced Horton and Beniquez singled, making it 3-3. After Lloyd Moseby walked, Liriano singled to right-center field.

Duane Ward, 1-0, went 2-2 in innings for the victory. Thigpen, 1-5, took the loss.

The White Sox lost for the 10th time in 11 games. Toronto has two of its last six.

Rangers 3, Royals 2

Jose Guzman pitched a seven-hitter Friday night and the Texas Rangers beat Kansas City 3-2, the Royals' sixth straight loss.

Guzman, 5-3, struck out seven and walked four in his third complete game. Floyd Bannister, 6-4, took the loss for the Royals, who have dropped 12 of their last 14 home games.

Mike Stanley's two-run double broke a scoreless tie in the sixth inning. Bannister had allowed only two hits through five innings before Scott Fletcher and Ruben Sierra hit one-out singles. Stanley followed with a drive that caromed off third baseman Kevin Seitzer's glove and went down the left-field line.

Twins 7, Tigers 1

Frank Viola won his eighth straight game and Kent Hrbek hit his major league-leading 12th home run Friday night as the Minnesota Twins beat the Detroit Tigers 7-1 for their sixth consecutive victory.

Viola, 8-1, won his 14th straight decision at the Metrodome in 19 starts since last May 22. He gave up one run on eight hits in seven innings and struck out eight.

Jack Morris, 4-6, lasted only 5 2/3 innings. He had won his previous eight regular-season decisions in Minnesota.

Hrbek hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning. Randy Bush had a three-run homer during a four-run sixth as the Twins sent Detroit to its second loss in eight games.

Dan Gladden, who had three hits, led off the Minnesota fire, with a double, stole third and scored on Kirby Puckett's grounder. Detroit tied it in the sixth on Chet Lemon's double and Jim Morrison's single.

SAFE — San Diego's Dickie Thon covers up as he averts the tag by New York second baseman Wally Backman during the first inning of their game Friday night at Shea Stadium. The Padres won, 2-0.

Grant's four-hitter shuts out Mets

NEW YORK — Mark Grant, winless in his four previous decisions, and Mark Davis combined on a four-hitter as the San Diego Padres beat the New York Mets 2-0 Friday night.

The Mets became the last National League team to be shut out this season.

Grant, 1-4, hadn't won since pitching his only career shutout against Atlanta last September. He allowed three hits, struck out four and walked three in 6 2/3 innings as the Padres snapped an eight-game road losing streak. The Padres also had dropped eight straight to the Mets, including four in San Diego earlier this month.

Dave Magadan had two of the Mets' four singles as New York lost for the third time in four games since returning home with a seven-game winning streak.

Tim Belcher of the Dodgers and Floyd Youmans of the Expos were locked in a scoreless duel until the seventh inning when the Dodgers took a 1-0 lead on singles by John Shelby and Mike Scioscia plus Dave Anderson's sacrifice fly.

Jesse Orosco, 2-1, was the winning pitcher.

Andres Galarraga hit his 11th home run of the season off Alejandro Pena in the bottom of the ninth.

NL Roundup

Reds 5, Pirates 3

Jeff Treadway hit two run-scoring doubles as the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3 Friday night.

Pat Pacillo, 1-0, who pitched a scoreless fifth inning after starter Danny Jackson pulled his left hamstring running to first on a bunt, got the victory and Rob Murphy and John Franco each went two innings. Murphy allowed the three Pittsburgh runs and Franco pitched two hitless innings for his sixth save. The Reds made it 4-0 in the sixth. Buddy Bell drew a leadoff walked and Bo Diaz singled him to second. After Dave Concepcion forced Bell at third, Treadway doubled, scoring Diaz.

Luis Quinones, just up from the minors, batted for Pacillo and singled to make it 3-0. Bob Kipper relieved Fisher and Kal Daniels' single drove in the final run of the inning.

The Reds scored their final run in the seventh on a wild pitch by reliever Scott Medvin after Barry Larkin and took third on a groundout.

Phillies 5, Giants 2

Kevin Gross blanked San Francisco until the eighth inning and Lance Parrish homered as the Philadelphia Phillies snapped a four-game losing streak Friday night with a 5-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Lozer Kelly Downs, 2-5, retired the first 11 Philadelphia batters, striking out five, before Parrish hit a 1-2 pitch for his eighth home run of the season.

Gross, 5-2, allowed three hits through seven innings. The Giants loaded the bases with no one out on singles by pinch hitter Mike Aldrete and Brett Butler, after which Robby Thompson was hit by a pitch. Will Clark and Kevin Mitchell popped out but Jeffrey Leonard singled to score two runs.

The Phillies added a run in the bottom of the eighth off Scott Garrelts on singles by Parrish, Chris James and Bradley.

Gross allowed six hits in 8 2/3 innings before Steve Bedrosian came on for his second save. Downs went seven innings, allowing six hits and striking out eight

Cards 5, Braves 2

Bob Horner's sacrifice fly broke a 2-2 tie in the eighth inning and pinch hitter Tom Paganzzi followed with an RBI single as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Atlanta Braves 5-2 Friday night.

The loss spoiled the home debut of Russ Nixon, who replaced Chuck Tanner as manager of the Braves on Sunday night.

Cubs 3, Astros 2

Greg Maddux and Rich Gosage combined on a five-hitter Friday and Jody Davis and Rafael Palmeiro hit the first Chicago home runs at Wrigley Field in 97 innings as the Cubs beat the Houston Astros 3-2.

Maddux, 8-3, allowed four hits, struck out five and walked two as he tied Dwight Gooden for the most wins in the National League.

Irwin leads Memorial

DUBLIN, Ohio — Hale Irwin holed a 105-yard wedge shot on the way to a 4-under-par 68 that gave him a one-stroke lead Friday at the halfway point of the $1 million Memorial Tournament.

Irwin, 42, whose last victory came in this event three years ago, completed two trips over Jack Nicklaus' Muirfield Village Golf Club course in 6-under-par 138.

Ok-Hee-Ku tops LPGA event

CORNING, N.Y. — Korea's Ok-Hee Ku had nine birdies Friday to take a one-stroke lead over hot-shooting Sherri Turner after the second round of the $325,000 LPGA Corning Classic.

Ku, who has 15 birdies in the first two days of the tournament, finished with an 8-under 64 for a two-round total of 11-under 133 — the best 36-hole score in the 10 years of the tournament.

Joyner-Kersey, Decker to run

SAN JOSE, Calif. — Jackie Joyner-Kersey, one of track and field's top performers in recent years, and comeback athlete Ron Brown and Mary Decker Slaney are among the runners entered in Saturday's Bruce Jenner Classic.

Joyner-Kersey, who held the U.S. record in the women's 100-meter high hurdles briefly this month, will be attempting to regain it.

Decker Slaney is entered in the women's 3,000. She was away from competitive running for two years, giving birth to a daughter in 1986 and suffering an injury last year. Early this month, she returned to the track and won a 1,500-meter race at Eugene, Ore. She holds every U.S. women's record from 800 meters to 10,000 meters, and is the world record holder in the mile.

St. John's wins in NCAAs

NEW BRITAIN — Tom Singer limited defending national champion Stanford to six hits in 8 1-3 innings as fifth-seeded St. John's defeated the second-seeded Cardinal 5-3 Friday in the Division I Northeast Regional Baseball tournament.

Singer got relief help from Charlie Wonsowicz, who earned his first save.

St. John's got a run in the second inning on singles by Tom Dobson and Joe Fallacaro and a fielder's choice. The Redmen made it 3-0 on RBIs by Jerry Kelly and Dobson.

The Cardinal fell to 37-22 while St. Johns is now 29-19-1 and will oppose Clemson Saturday at noon.

Pistons' jet too noisy

BOSTON — Boston airport officials threatened legal action Friday against the Detroit Pistons, saying the NBA team deliberately violated noise regulations when their jet took off from Logan International Airport after a playoff loss to the Boston Celtics.

"They try to intimidate you on the basketball court and they basically have the same attitude toward rules and regulations at the airport," said Patrick Moscaritolo, Logan's acting aviation director.

Airport regulations prohibit noisy jets from taking off from or landing at Logan between 11 p.m. and 6:45 a.m. The Pistons' plane, which took off at 12:30 a.m., was a BAC-111, "literally the noisiest jet in the skies today," Moscaritolo said.

Reds' Durham on disabled list

CINCINNATI — The Cincinnati Reds put outfielder Tracy Jones and first baseman Leon Durham on the 15-day disabled list Friday and recalled two minor-leaguers to take their places on the roster.

Infielder Luis Quiñones and outfielder Leo Garcia were expected to join the team in time to open a three-game series against the Pittsburgh Pirates at Riverfront Stadium. Both have been playing for Class AAA Nashville.

Local squads play at home

HAMDEN — Four of the five local teams involved in postseason play will have home dates as rankings and pairings for the CIAC state baseball and softball tournaments were released Friday at CIAC headquarters.

First up will be the Manchester High baseball team and the East Catholic High girls. The Indians are the lone local entry who'll hit the road for their first encounter. Manchester, 10-8, is the No. 22 seed in the 30-team Double L field and will visit 11th-ranked 13-7 Guilford High Tuesday at 3 p.m.

The East girls, meanwhile, are the No. 14 seed in the 22-team Class L Division and will host neighboring South Windsor High, the No. 19 seed at 10-9, Tuesday at Robertson Park at 3:30 p.m. The clubs split during the regular season with the Bobcats taking the season opener, 9-0, and East prevailing on April 26 by a 20-15 count.

Next up will be the unbeaten Coventry High girls. The two-time Charter Oak Conference champs are the No. 1 seed at 18-0 in the Class S Division and will host the winner of the Grasso Tech-East Windsor clash on Wednesday at 3:30 p.m.

East Catholic and Coventry diamond squads swing into action on Thursday. The Eagles, 14-5, are the No. 5 seed in the 21-team Class L Division and will host the winner of the Naugatuck-Harding first-round clash at Morarty Field at 3 p.m. Coventry is the No. 8 seed in Class S at 13-5 and will host ninth-ranked 14-6 Valley Regional of Deep River Thursday at 3 p.m.

The tournaments are to run two weeks with the finals slated for either Friday and Saturday, June 10-11.

Martina among French winners

By Larry Siddons

PARIS — Second seeds Stefan Edberg and Martina Navratilova scored straight-set victories that were tougher than usual Friday at the French Open, while Chris Evert hoped her injured foot would heal enough to allow her to keep playing.

Evert, winner of a record seven singles titles in Paris, had her right heel re-examined and said she would decide Saturday morning whether to play her third-round match later in the day.

After beating countryman Jan Gunnarsson 6-3, 6-4, 7-6, Edberg, a normally mild-mannered Swede, criticized tournament officials who made him play two of his first three matches on a bumpy outside court.

"I deserve better than that," the world's No. 2 tennis player said after finally clinching a spot in the fourth round on his sixth match point.

Navratilova, trying to regain the women's top spot and win her third singles title in Paris, had trouble as well before downing Austria's Barbara Paulus 6-2, 6-2 on center court.

Another seed was eliminated from the women's field by one of the three teen-agers to advance. Nicole Provis, an 18-year-old from Australia, defeated seventh-seeded Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany 1-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Two other seeds struggled to victory. Yannick Noah, the men's ninth seed from France, needed four sets to calm a worried full house on center court and overcome Jakob Hlasek of Switzerland 6-4, 6-4, 6-7, 6-3.

Earlier on the same court, women's 15th-seeded Sylvia Hanika of West Germany rallied to defeat Isabelle Demongeot of France, 3-6, 7-5, 6-4.

Climb to top has been rapid one for Coventry's Mizesko

By Len Auster
Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — It's sometimes a long trek from the bottom to the top, but that was not necessarily the case with Coventry High ace hurler Kim Mizesko.

The Patriot senior didn't pick up a softball in earnest until her freshman year in high school. She did it to be with her friend, Louise Chamberland, who was an All-State pitcher in her own right. Mizesko was not a hit right off the bat.

"She was so raw, she didn't know which hand the glove went on," recalls seven-year Coventry Coach Rich Page. "It was either feast or famine with her (as a freshman and sophomore on the junior varsity team)," he added.

"When I first pitched, I tried to imitate Louise," said the 5-foot-11, 18-year-old Mizesko, who will attend Division I University of Connecticut on a softball scholarship in the fall.

Mizesko's potential was evident. She threw hard, but without control. Page put her in touch with Bill Sayers, the former pitching coach at Eastern Connecticut State University. "Sayers developed a lot of kids (at Eastern). He came over and started working with her. He was a real taskmaster. He made her work, but she really responded," Page said.

Mizesko began to emerge as a junior. She pitched every game as the Patriots posted an impressive 19-2 record, winning the Charter Oak Conference title and making it to the Class S semifinals before being eliminated. Mizesko was named all-COC and All-State for her efforts. She struck out 144 while walking 104 in 133 innings.

Sayers passed away the day of the school's spring sports banquet in 1987. That was a setback, but Mizesko was put in touch with John Stratton, the former coach of the world-famous Raybestos Brakettes, in the fall of that year. "He's worked with me on a lot of different pitches," Mizesko said. "I've learned a rise and a drop and I throw all of them in a game."

"(Stratton) has got her to use her whole body. Last year she threw hard. This year she's using her legs (for more power)," Page said.

"She's a much better pitcher this year," said RHAM Coach Mike Zotta after his thrice-beaten Sachems lost their second outing this season to Coventry and Mizesko. "She's doubly more effective than last year. She's worked hard at her craft."

Mizesko has had a banner senior campaign. She, and the Patriots, are unbeaten through 18 games and they've combined for a second straight COC championship. She's spun seven no-hitters, including two perfect games. Mizesko struck out 15 of 15 Bolton batters in one of the gems. Her strikeout to walks ratio has improved dramatically. She's pitched 113 innings, striking out 209 against only 43 free passes. And she's only been touched for 24 hits in those 113 innings.

She's also come through in the big outings. She beat RHAM with a 25-strikeout performance the first time, pitching all 13 innings of a 4-3 struggle, and then beat the Sachems again on a three-hit, 11-strikeout shutout.

"She always threw hard," Page said. "I knew if she worked on her mechanics she could really turn into something."

Police look into Garden blackout

BOSTON (AP) — Police have conducted interviews with workers and electrical engineers while investigating whether a saboteur caused a power outage that ended a Stanley Cup playoff game at Boston Garden.

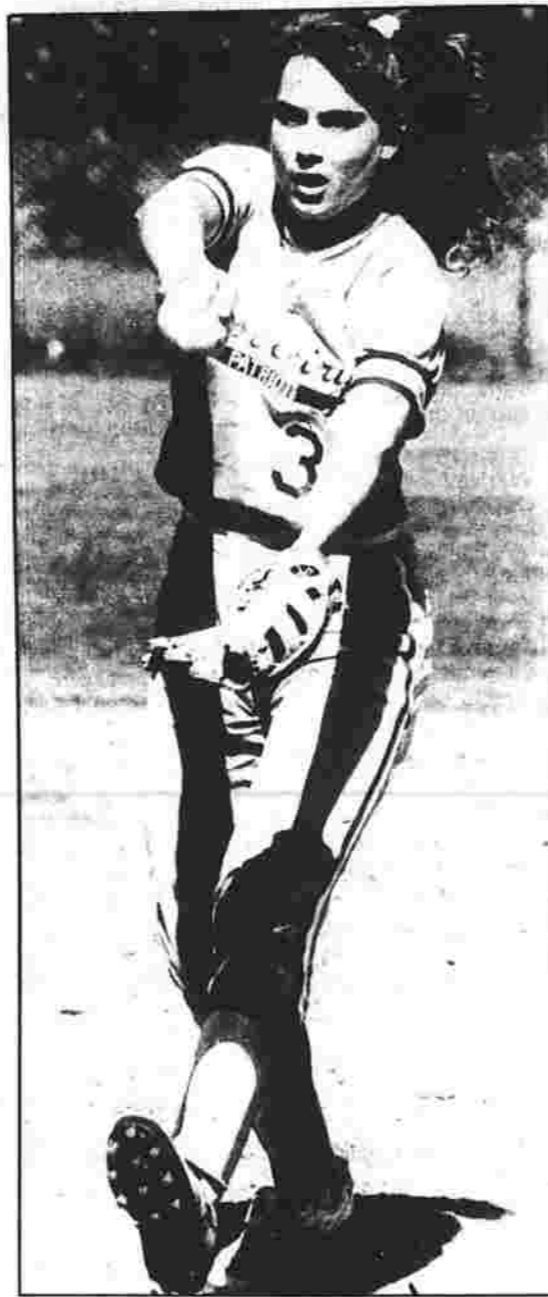

Boston Police spokesman James Jordan said Friday that authorities have talked with several people, including Garden employees and Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority workers, in connection with the blackout late in the second period of Tuesday night's fourth game of the Edmonton Oilers-Boston Bruins best-of-seven championship series.

Jordan said a police officer saw a Boston and Maine Railroad worker acting suspiciously near a transformer storage room, although Jordan would not say if the worker had been interviewed.

"It still remains to be concluded if the transformer had been tampered with or blew somehow," Jordan said.

Reginald Pinto/Manchester Herald

COVENTRY ACE — Senior Kim Mizesko has won all 18 games for the Coventry High softball team this spring. The hard-throwing right-hander has seven no-hitters to her credit and has struck out 209 in 113 innings.

How's it come about? "A lot of practice and a lot of good coaching," Mizesko answers. "I (played) because my friend did. I just want to be the best I can be."

That, for now, is plenty good.

Daly expects battle from the Celtics

By Bill Barnard
The Associated Press

PONTIAC, Mich. — Detroit coach Chuck Daly says the Boston Celtics' eight-game losing streak at the Silverdome means about as much as the Pistons' 21-game losing streak at Boston Garden.

"We know what we're in for," Daly said. "The Celtics have been there before. We know they are going to play hard every night. We've got to expect it and make the next step. We've got to play hard, too."

The third and fourth games of the series will be at the Pontiac Silverdome Saturday and Monday afternoons, with Game 5 at Boston Garden Wednesday night.

"We have to go into the Silverdome and play hard, keep a level head and try to come up with something there," Boston's Dennis Johnson said. "We dug ourselves a hole by losing on Wednesday and we have to get out of it."

Detroit came into the NBA Eastern Conference finals with a 21-game losing streak in Boston and nearly turned it into a two-game winning streak.

The Pistons won Game 1 104-96 and lost the second 119-115 in double overtime Thursday night.

Detroit took a 109-106 lead on Isiah Thomas' 3-point goal with seven seconds left in the first overtime. But Boston forced a second five-minute period when Kevin McHale, 1-for-21 for his eight-year career from 3-point range, hit a controversial 3-pointer with five seconds left. Ironically, the Celtics planned for Larry Bird to take the game-saving 3-point shot, but the inbound pass went off his hands to McHale, whose toe was on the line or a fraction behind it.

"We wanted to foul, but the play broke down and the official called it a three," Daly said.

Officials Jack Madden, Mike Mathis and Bill Saar conferred for several minutes before agreeing that none of them could over-ride Madden's original call that the basket was a 3-pointer.

"I didn't see it, but I thought it was a fantastic call," Boston coach K.C. Jones said. "When Larry missed the inbound pass, I was surprised that Kevin got the ball and shot it," Johnson said. "He can make the outside shot, but I wasn't sure he could make it from that far out."

Despite McHale's woeful past as a long-distance shooter, the Celtics may have been better off with him taking the shot because Bird, three-time winner of the NBA's long-distance shooting contest, went 6-for-20 from the field.

"I haven't been able to get a rhythm going," Bird said. "A couple of times when I came off a pick I got the ball too late and couldn't get the rhythm."

"I don't know what Larry's problem is," Jones said. "His arm motion doesn't look familiar to me when he's firing it up. He had one of the poorest nights I've ever seen him have as an outside shooter."

Johnson, 3-for-14 from the field in Game 1 and 7-for-18 going into the second overtime, scored all six points in the final 1:25 to bring Boston back from a 117-115 deficit.

"He always comes through in clutch situations," said Thomas, who scored all seven of Detroit's points in the first overtime and finished with 24 points. "He could be 2-for-19 on the night, but he'll come up with the clutch steals and points."

Johnson had three steals and 10 assists to go with his 22 points.

Coventry in COC title game

H.S. Roundup

COVENTRY — Needing a victory to get into the Charter Oak Conference title game, the Coventry High baseball team accomplished its mission Friday with a 14-7 victory over Cheney Tech in the regular-season finale for both schools.

Coventry, 13-5, will represent the COC East and will take on COC West pace-setter Cromwell High today at 3:30 p.m. at Rocky Hill High for the conference championship. Coventry won back-to-back COC titles in 1983 and '84.

Coventry and Cromwell split two games during the regular season with the Patriots winning on May 4 (6-3) and the Panthers on April 12 (4-1).

Coventry, which snapped a three-game losing streak, unleashed a 15-hit attack in sending Cheney. The Techmen, who lost out in their bid to qualify for postseason play with a loss on Thursday to Portland, to a final 9-11 mark.

"We didn't start off too well. (Cheney) was up 3-0," Coventry Coach Bob Plaster said. "But I feel we finally got our hitting shoes back on. We hit today like we had before we got rained out for over a week. We hit the ball real well today."

Chris McCarthy rapped three hits and Steve Poulin, Jack Ayer, Matt Harrington, D.J. Figiela and Steve Talaga two apiece for the Patriots. Ayer knocked in four runs and Harrington, Talaga and McCarthy two apiece. Ayer ripped a bases-clearing double in a seven-run third inning with Harrington following with an RBI triple and Figiela with an RBI double.

"The game today was a story of no pitching," Baccaro said. "It was our fourth game this week. The game meant a lot more to them. I wish them luck in the COC tournament."

Senior Glenn Parent finished up with a .471 average (32-67) and 24 runs batted in. Senior Jim Krone broke the school's single-season RBI record with 25 while Rich Assid tied the stolen base record with 18.

Cheney mustered 10 hits with Pat Maguire, Krone and Jeff Allen slapping two apiece in the finale.

Ayer was the winning pitcher, moving his record to 6-4. Allen absorbed the loss.

DALLAS (AP) — Mark Aguirre scored 23 points and Roy Tarpley had 21 points and 20 rebounds Friday night as Dallas slowed down the Los Angeles Lakers' fast break for a 106-94 victory in Game 3 of the NBA Western Conference finals.

The Lakers still lead the best-of-seven series 2-1 with Game 4 scheduled for Dallas on Sunday afternoon.

The Mavericks outscored the Lakers 15-3 during a four-minute stretch late in the fourth quarter to break open a close game. With Dallas leading 85-84, Aguirre started the winning charge with 6:39 left in the game.

Derek Harper's 3-point basket with 2:19 to go put the Mavericks in front 100-87.

James Worthy led six Lakers in double figures with 19 points.

Although the Mavericks slowed down the Lakers' fast-breaking attack, which led to victories in the first two games, Dallas led only 52-51 at the half. Both teams came out running in the third quarter, with the Lakers taking the lead on Worthy's basket to start the quarter.

The Lakers held a 76-75 lead going into the final period after the fast-paced third quarter that included six lead changes and six ties.

Aguirre scored 11 first-quarter points as Dallas took an early lead. Tarpley took over in the second quarter with 10 points.

The Lakers moved head 35-34 lead with 7:34 to go in the second quarter, but Tarpley scored three straight baskets to give the Mavericks their slim halftime lead.
