Hearings scheduled Tuesday on water, sewer rate hikes

By Alex Girelli
Manchester Herald

It all adds up

When the town administration decided to eliminate a minimum charge for water customers and impose a service charge instead on all customers, it settled on $5.01 as the figure.

A few curious people have wondered why the fee was not set at an even $5.

A neat $5 would seem simpler, but it really isn't.

Francis Taylor, office manager for the Water and Sewer Division explains: $5 is not evenly divisible by three, but $5.01 is.

When someone sells a house, the water division figures out how to prorate the water bill so that the old owner and the new owner bear their proportionate shares based on the date of the transfer, computed to the closest third of a quarter. With the $5.01 figure it will be easy to compute, $1.67 for one-third, $3.34 for two-thirds, and $5.01 for three-thirds.
Now you know.

Customers of the Manchester Water Division and residents who have town sewer services will have an opportunity Tuesday to comment on proposed cost increases scheduled to go into effect for both on July 1.

The Board of Directors, which meets beginning at 7:30 in the hearing room of Lincoln Center, will hold public hearings on the rate structures.

For town water, the charge for residential users is scheduled to increase by 20 percent from $2.18 to $2.62 per 100 cubic feet (about 750 gallons) of water. Charges for sewer service will increase under the proposed rate schedule by 35 percent, from 97 cents per 100 cubic feet of water consumed to $1.31 cents.

Sewer rates for most customers are pegged to the amount of water consumed.

A new charge would be imposed under the new schedule for those who connect for the first time to the water system would be the same rates as the charge now made for new sewer connections. That charge is $400 for each dwelling unit and $2,000 per acre for land approved for commercial development.

For a little less than 50 sewer users, bills would more than double, from $23.28 to $55.02. Those are residents with wells that do not have meters on them. Under the current rates, they are charged for sewers on the assumption they use 2,400 cubic feet of water each quarter. Under the new proposed rates, they will be charged on the assumption they use 4,200 cubic feet of water. The town would prefer to install meters on wells so that sewer charges could be based on actual water use.

For some residents, those who use small amounts of water, the costs will go down under the new proposed rates. Town Manager Robert Weiss estimates that 1,800 water customers and 940 sewer customers will get lower bills under the rate structure. The rates eliminate a minimum charge of $1.20 per quarter for those who use up to 1,220 cubic feet of water and substitute a fixed quarterly service charge of $5.01 regardless of how much water is used. What amounts to a minimum rate, which now is $11.64 per quarter for sewer service, would also be eliminated.

Under the new proposed rates, those who use 1,000 cubic feet of water would end up paying $31.21 for it. Those who use less than 1,000 cubic feet would pay less than they have been paying under the current rates.

The most recent increase in water and sewer rates came in 1984. According to Weiss, that increase was expected to provide rate stability for three years, but has in fact kept the rates stable for four years.

Weiss said the new water rates should provide stability for at least five years. But sewer rates will have to be reviewed, he said, once improvements to the town's sewage treatment plant are completed in two or three years.

Residents of the Eighth Utilities District do not pay for sewer service on the basis of the metered water they consume. They pay a property tax, which beginning July 1, will be at a rate of 3.25 mills for sewer service.

The district government, beginning July 1, will pay the town a fee of $1,263 per 100 cubic feet of water used by district residents. The directors last month approved budgets for the water and sewer divisions based on the increased rates.

It was only a paper fire

Residents at the Bennet Apartments for the elderly on Main Street breathed a lot easier Friday night when the smell of smoke in the building turned out only to be paper burning in an ash tray.

According to a Town of Manchester Fire Department spokesman, a man leaving the building after visiting his mother smelled smoke and pulled the fire alarm.

When firefighters arrived they began to evacuate the basement and first floor apartments of the 45-unit building.

The fire department spokesman said the smell was typical of paper or wood and firefighters opened ceiling tiles and began an apartment-by-apartment check when they discovered what was either tissue or a paper towel that had burned in an ash tray in the main foyer.

A total of 18 firefighters responded including paramedics, he said. There were no injuries.

Carson quits economic post

HARTFORD (AP) — Economic Development Commissioner John J. Carson, who has led Connecticut's efforts to rebuild its economy for the past seven years, is quitting to join a business consulting firm in Hartford.

"It is with a mixed sense of excitement and melancholy that I am submitting to you my resignation..." Carson said in a letter to Gov. William A. O'Neill released Friday.

He said he was excited because of his new job with Deloitte Haskins & Sells, but saddened over leaving an agency he has worked for for more than a decade.

Carson, 44, of Bloomfield, joined the Department of Economic Development in 1975 as director of planning and was named deputy commissioner three years later. In 1981, he succeeded Edward J. Stockton as commissioner.

"John has seen that agency through tough times and he has been instrumental in helping our economy rebound to its present strong position," O'Neill said in a statement accompanying his release of Carson's resignation letter.

Carson's resignation is effective June 23. O'Neill gave no indication as to when he would name a replacement.

APPLAUSE — President Reagan receives a standing ovation from his wife, Nancy, and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher after an emotional speech on East-West relations Friday in London. The Reagans stopped in London on their way home from the Moscow summit.

Reagan, home from summit, says talks 'good, promising'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan returned home from his Moscow summit to a campaign-style star-spangled welcome Friday, and said his talks with Mikhail Gorbachev would prove "good and promising for the future."
"Peace and freedom are what this trip was about and we saw some real progress in several areas in Moscow," the president said moments after stepping off Air Force One, his memorable 11,000-mile journey at an end.

He claimed progress on human rights, regional conflicts and "tangible progress" toward a new arms control treaty — even though his talks with Gorbachev produced no breakthrough on a new pact.

Reagan and his wife Nancy were greeted by Vice President George Bush and his wife Barbara as they stepped off their plane onto a red carpet.

The scene at Andrews Air Force Base was as meticulously orchestrated as any in Reagan's two terms in the White House — a receiving line of dignitaries, several thousand invited guests waving small American flags and a Marine band playing "Ruffles and Flourishes" and the national anthem.

"As far as Nancy and I are concerned, there's no place like home," Reagan said, as the audience cheered.

The president pronounced himself and his wife as "weary travelers," and he seemed to lose his place once while reading his prepared remarks. He touched on many of the same themes he raised several hours earlier in a speech in London.

There, the president said his summit talks with Gorbachev may have begun dismantling Cold War barriers, but he vowed America will remain wary and strong as it seeks lasting changes in Soviet policies.

Assessing his first visit to the Kremlin before an applauding audience of British admirers, Reagan said he found Gorbachev to be "a serious man seeking serious reform," and believed the superpowers may be entering "a new era of history."

Although the Soviet leader had expressed disappointment over the lack of major summit achievements, Reagan said in his London speech Friday that there had been "tangible progress" toward treaty agreement for a drastic reduction in stockpiles of strategic nuclear weapons.

"Such a treaty... is, I believe, now within our grasp," he said. He made no such claim in his brief remarks in a hangar at Andrews Air Force Base, but said he and Gorbachev had made "tangible progress" toward a treaty to follow the one eliminating intermediate-range nuclear weapons. As he noted, he and Gorbachev exchanged ratification documents in Moscow for the pact they agreed to last December.

He ticked off several other accomplishments of his five days in Moscow.

Shultz in Cairo to promote peace

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Friday that Arabs and Israelis must accept that they will each have to compromise to reach a fair settlement of the Middle East conflict.

Shultz, arriving on his fourth mission to promote a U.S. peace plan for the Middle East, told reporters on a flight from London that he has "no particular indication" of changes in positions since his last failed effort two months ago.

In a five-page arrival statement, Shultz said the root of the Arab-Israeli dispute "is the competition between two national movements for sov-eighty on one land." He said neither the Palestinians nor the Israelis seems able to abandon "prejudices, hatred and overblown dreams" in favor of a negotiated settlement.

But Shultz said there is room for Israelis and Palestinians to live side-by-side in Israel, the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

"Arabs and Israelis are not engaged in a winner-take-all competition," Shultz said. "A fair settlement is possible, even though people have difficulty conceiving how to achieve it." Shultz's five-day mission will take him from Egypt to Jordan, Israel and Libyan groups linked to acts targeting U.S.

By Henry Gottlieb
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Groups supported by Libya are the "prime suspects" in a spate of recent attacks against Americans and U.S. facilities around the world, a State Department spokeswoman said Friday.

"There has been an upsurge in recent weeks of terrorist attacks against U.S. and other western European interests in Europe, Latin America and Africa," spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley said. "Although these incidents are still under investigation in numerous cases, the prime suspects are groups which have received support from Libya."

The suspicion, she said, is accompanied by "concrete evidence, including the seizure of Libyan arms destined for the IRA (Irish Republican Army) and the arrest in Senegal of Libyan operatives, that Libya continues its support of terrorism."

Mrs. Oakley referred to reports that a weapons shipment intercepted by France last November was bound for the outlawed IRA and that suspected Libyan agents were arrested carrying bomb-making materials in Senegal in February.

For years, Libya has been one of a half-dozen countries on a list of nations identified by the State Department as sponsors of terrorist groups. The Reagan administration has accused Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi of fomenting terrorism and in April 1986 U.S. warplanes attacked his personal living quarters in Tripoli. He was not hit.

Around the second anniversary of the attack, there were several terrorist attacks on installations and clubs owned or frequented by Americans.

Among the targets hit this year were U.S. Information Agency offices in Costa Rica, Colombia and Peru and the bombing of a club frequented by American servicemen in Naples, Italy. Five people were killed in the Naples attack. Two Americans were wounded in an attack on a club in Khartoum, Sudan, in mid-May and the office of a U.S. bank in New Delhi was also a target.

Mrs. Oakley stopped short of directly accusing Libya in the attacks, and U.S. officials have been quoted as saying there is no "smoking gun" to prove Gadhafi's involvement.

"We want to make sure that when we make statements about this, that they correspond absolutely with the facts and the evidence that we have," Mrs. Oakley said.

A State Department official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said it is widely believed that Libya is the headquarters for an organization led by Abu Nidal, a Palestinian accused of terrorism who was expelled last year from Syria.

The department has blamed Abu Nidal for the December 1985 attacks that killed more than 20 people at the Rome and Vienna airports.

Syria for talks on the U.S. peace plan and a bit of sightseeing. He flew here from London, where he had come with President Reagan after the Moscow summit.

Shultz said the Soviets seemed to have softened their stand on an international Middle East peace conference by no longer insisting that it be "authoritative."

In his airborne news conference, Shultz said the Soviets now use the word "effective" to describe the conference he is trying to set up to deal first with Palestinian self-rule, then an overall settlement.

Got your tickets for Arts in the Garden?

By Nancy Pappas
Manchester Herald

What may be the most elaborate arts extravaganza in recent Manchester history is also one of the town's best kept secrets.

On Saturday, June 11, Arts in the Garden, a five-hour cooperative celebration featuring eight local performing groups and many visual artists, will be staged at the corner of Porter Street and Westminster Road.

From 5 to 10 p.m., ballerinas will pirouette, bagpipers will skirl and drone, chamber groups will play and vocalists will fill the air with tunes. Local chefs will prove that cooking is also an art, by donating sumptuous refreshments.

The effort probably represents the largest showcase of its kind in the town, according to Susan Vaughn of Oak Street, president of the Manchester Arts Council. But sales of the tickets, which cost $15 per person, have been going slowly, and Vaughn fears that the public is not yet even aware that such an event has been planned.

"We are concerned that people haven't really heard much about this event," said Vaughn on Thursday. "They may not really understand what their $15 ticket will get them."

For their investment, patrons will get continuous performances by members of the Manchester Gilbert & Sullivan Players, Manchester Symphony Orchestra, Manchester Choral, Manchester Ballet, Connecticut Concert Ballet, Manchester Pipe Band, the Silk City Chorus and the Little Theatre of Manchester, according to Jay Savery, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Arts Committee.

This represents cooperation of another sort, as well. The Manchester Arts Council has worked with the Chamber committee for the first time, to "promote more support for the arts among the business community," more than 40 local businesses.

Bolton High names its top 2 scholars

By Anita Caldwell
Manchester Herald

BOLTON — When Donna LaChapelle was named valedictorian of Bolton High School Friday at the school's annual awards assembly, it didn't quite sink in until she got to the stage.

"I just kind of sat there (when her name was called) then walked to the stage and it finally hit me when I shook the principal's hand," she said, remembering the thrill.

"I was being recognized for all the work I've done," she said. "I worked four years and was able to make it to the top."

"I was wondering why I wasn't called with the students who won the honors," she said, with a laugh.

LaChapelle, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred LaChapelle, 648 Hop River Road, is a member of the National Honor Society, the French Club, where she served as president this year, the Spanish Club and the varsity softball team. She also held one of the lead roles in the school's production of the Broadway musical, "Bye Bye Birdie."

She was the 1987 delegate to Laurel Girls' State and recipient of the Raymond Allen award. She has also received numerous school awards for outstanding achievement in academic subjects.

LaChapelle will be enrolled in the honor's program this fall at the University of Connecticut but for the summer, she's applying to the YWCA in Manchester "to find out if I really enjoy working with kids." She will also continue her part-time work at Bonanza.

Meanwhile, Jennifer Piatek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Piatek, 56 Clint Eldredge Road, West Willington, was named salutatorian.

"I was nervous, happy and relieved," Piatek said about hearing her name called. "Everything at once."

Piatek said she was nervous because she hadn't heard her name called among the top 10 honors. When she was named salutatorian, she said she tried to remain calm and walk carefully from her seat in the jazz band.

"I had to get around a lot of people and not kick anyone's instrument," she recalled.

Piatek was an active member of the Concert Band and Jazz Ensemble during her school years. In addition, she was a member of the Latin Club, French Club and National Honor Society. Piatek was chosen to attend the Connecticut Junior Science and Humanities Symposium this past winter and was the recipient of the Bausch-Lomb Science Award and the Rensselaer Math/Science Award in her junior year.

Piatek plans to attend Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in the fall. Her summer plans include horseback riding in between working at the Willington Library and a drug store.

Local News in Brief

Robertson to honor students

About 120 Robertson School students will be honored Monday for their participation in a school reading program. The students will be honored for taking part in the PATH reading incentive program, which helps students learn about the value of reading. The students had to read for 60 days at home to be eligible to receive an award. There are 357 students at the school.

Andover hours change

ANDOVER — Monday evening office hours for the Andover tax collector and town clerk will change beginning July 1. Both offices will be open from 6 to 8 p.m. Monday nights, a change from the current hours of 7 to 9 p.m.

SNET adds fiber route

Southern New England Telephone plans to add a new 90-mile fiber optic route to its statewide Telcom Network that will connect Hartford and Stamford by way of Danbury and Waterbury and is scheduled to be in service by fall 1989.

The new cable, called Backbone III, contains fiber pairs, each of which can handle 16,128 simultaneous phone conversations. Each fiber pair can transmit all the information in a 45-volume encyclopedia in less than a half a second.

SNET has already installed more than 1,000 miles of optical fiber cable in the state, including a route between Hartford and Manchester that went into service in 1985.

The two existing fiber backbone systems connect Stamford, Bridgeport, New Haven and Hartford. Between 1988 and 1991, SNET will invest more than $1.3 billion in its statewide telecommunications network.

Hot-air balloon contest

Dr. Bradley J. Daar of Manchester, a dentist practicing at 229 East Center St., will be among 80 hot-air balloon pilots who will fly in the second annual Balloon Classic in Illinois June 10-12 at the Vermillion County Airport in Danville, Ill. The event includes four weekend races and airshows. To qualify, commercial or sport pilots must have over 100 hours of flying experience.

Coventry school gets grant

COVENTRY — The George Hersey Robertson School was recently awarded a grant for $980 from the Connecticut Commission on the Arts for a puppetry program that teaches self expression to children in kindergarten through fourth grade. The school is among 65 throughout the state that received grants totaling $232,197 from the commission for projects, artist residencies and performing arts commissions. Awards were made May 12 in New Haven.

Teacher gets grants

Marie Reluga, a chemistry teacher at East Catholic High School, has received a National Science Foundation grant to study chemical instrumentation at the University of Arizona in Tucson from June 10 through July 1. She also has been awarded a grant through the Catholic-sponsored Mother Seton Fund to attend the 10th Biennial Convention of Chemistry Teachers, which will be held at Purdue University in West Lafayette, Ind., from July 31 through Aug. 4.

Party donations sought

BOLTON — Donations are still being sought for Project Graduation, the graduation party planned for seniors by their parents.

About $500 more is needed, said party organizer Dorli Cloutier. So far, about $3,000 has been raised for the alcohol-free party.

The party will be held on June 17 at Court House One in Vernon.

Donations can be sent to Project Graduation, 72 Brandy St., Bolton.

ALL SET — Julia Tashjian, secretary of the state, examines an apron like the one worn by Brad Davis, WDRC radio personality, to get ready for the fourth annual Celebrity Waiters Luncheon planned by John J. MCC minorities up in statewide trend

By Andrew J. Davis
Manchester Herald

Manchester Community College followed a statewide trend in 1987 when the number of its minority students jumped.

Minority enrollment was up at the college by 6.7 percent over 1986, according to the state Department of Higher Education. Statewide, overall minority enrollments grew at a rate faster than the national average, according to the state Department of Education.

"Connecticut is a bright spot on the national horizon," said Norma Foreman Glasgow, commissioner of higher education. "Growth in black and Hispanic enrollment is triple the overall growth rate in our public colleges."

Between 1986 and 1987, the number of black students attending public colleges in the state jumped 9.2 percent to 5,730, while the number of Hispanic students increased 12.7 percent to 2,874 students. The state based its figures on a national report, "One Third of a Nation," which was released Tuesday.

Manchester Community College ranks fifth in the number of minority students at the 12 regional community colleges, according to the figures. That means that seven of the regional community colleges had smaller minority enrollments than MCC.

There were 285 black students at the college in 1987, up 10 students from 1986, according to the figures. There were 111 Hispanic students enrolled at the school in 1987, seven more than the previous year.

There were 376 total minority students out of a total 6,047 students at Manchester Community in 1987, according to the department.

"It's growing," said Joseph Mesquita, college director of minority student programs. "There will be a continuation of that."

Mesquita said the number of minority students should increase over the years because the college is actively recruiting them. Also, once at Manchester Community College, Mesquita's office offers support services to help students with academic and social needs.

The totals still place Manchester Community behind Greater Hartford Community College and Norwalk Community College, the two community college leaders in the number of minority students.

Greater Hartford had 1,201 minority students, up from 1,140 students in 1986. Norwalk's total increased by 100 to 870 students in 1987.

There were 2,672 students at Greater Hartford last year, while there were 3,338 students at Norwalk. Other community colleges with more minority students than Manchester Community are: South Central Community College in New Haven with 774 out of a 2,673, and Housatonic Regional Community College in Bridgeport.

SNET cables damaged because someone forgot to make a call

By Nancy Concelman
Manchester Herald

A contractor who may be responsible for damaging underground telephone cables while installing poles in front of Southern New England Telephone's East Center Street office should have called "Call Before You Dig" before he dug.

Steve Rieben, manager of the Hamden-based Call Before You Dig Inc., a non-profit company mandated by the state to disseminate information on the location of utility structures, said the contractor for the project was responsible for calling him before beginning work and could be fined for failing to call and damaging cables.

The damage to the air pressure sheath surrounding the cables, which protects them from moisture, didn't affect telephone service, Paul Krysiak, a SNET cable repair technician said.

SNET's contractor, the Thomas Corp. of Vernon, was installing poles to prevent trucks from going up onto the sidewalk in front of the office. Krysiak said Friday the SNET hadn't determined if the cables were damaged by the installation of the poles, but that it was up to Thomas Corp. to call Call Before You Dig anyway.

"They (SNET) knew we were doing it," argued a spokesman for Thomas Corp., who didn't want his name used.

The Department of Public Utility Control requires contractors and excavators using mechanical equipment to contact Call Before You Dig two full working days before any scheduled excavation.

Call Before You Dig, which has the location of utility structures on file at its offices, then contacts utility companies or operators who's structures may be affected.

The utility companies are responsible for having the site inspected and telling excavators where they may dig. SNET uses a private contractor, Central Locating of Meriden, for inspections, Rieben said.

Contractors or utility companies who don't comply may be fined up to $10,000 by the DPUC. DPUC investigates cases and sets the fine based on many factors including the number of past violations the excavator has had, the amount of damage and threat to public safety, Rieben said.

Volunteers honored

The National Board of Directors of the American Association of Retarded Persons will announce the person in each chapter that has been honored as the volunteer of the year. This honor is bestowed on a person in each chapter who lives up to our national motto, which is "to serve, not to be served."

There are many true-spirited volunteers among us but each chapter picks the one of their choice each year and this name is submitted to the national AARP for consideration. These people will serve one year with special recognition given at their respective annual dinners in June.

Chapter 1275

The 16th annual installation luncheon will be held Wednesday at Vito's Birch Mountain Inn with a social hour at 11:30 a.m. and a luncheon at 12:30 p.m. The Rev. Eugene Brewer, pastor of Church of Christ, will give the invocation. After the luncheon and the installation of officers, a musical entertainment will be provided by Bob Price. Father's Day celebration set

Editor's note: This column is prepared by the staff of the Manchester Senior Citizens' Center.

The Senior Center in observance of Father's Day will sponsor a "Men's Day" on Thursday. The day will begin at 10 a.m. with the presentation of two videos, "Legends of Golf" and "Champions of American Sport." Doughnuts and coffee will be served at intermission.

Lunch will be served from 11:45 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Chef Mary Ann Lawler will be preparing a delicious barbecued chicken meal. After lunch, approximately 12:45 p.m., our featured guest will be Mary Dunphy, who will demonstrate the "Art of belly dancing." Ladies are encouraged to attend and bring their husbands, boyfriends, or just friends.

I promise you the day will be fun-filled. Tickets for lunch will be on sale at the center until Tuesday at noon.

Men golfers are reminded that an Arizona scramble/cookout is planned for June 20 at Twin Hills. The fee $3, which includes the picnic and prizes. If interested, please register with the treasurers the next two weeks.

There are still a few openings for driver education class slated for June 14 and 15 from 12:30 to 4 p.m. The class will consist of videos and classroom discussion. No tests will be given. Individuals completing the class will receive a 5% reduction in their insurance premium as mandated by state law. Fee for the class is $7 and only payable by check (payable to AARP). Applications may be picked up at the center.

The 4th of July Committee is seeking volunteers to help at the celebration on July 2 (raindate July 3) to be held at Manchester Community College. Volunteers are needed to sell soda, take collections, relieve workers for supper, and cleanup the following morning. If you plan to attend the event and would like to give an hour or more of your time, please contact Terry in the Senior Center Office.

Activities for the Independent Day celebration begin at 4:30 p.m. with a chicken barbecue, children activities, band "Time Was," at 7-9 p.m. Governor's Foot Guard Band, and an aerial fireworks display at 9:30 p.m.

Judge refuses to bar pickets

BRIDGEPORT — A Superior Court judge on Friday refused to grant an injunction limiting pickets outside the Bridgeport Jai Alai fronton, ruling that management failed to prove that striking players were responsible for acts of violence.

The fronton's management argued that "unlawful acts" had been committed by striking players and wanted restrictions on the number of pickets outside the fronton.

"This court finds that the fronton did not sustain its burden of proof," Judge Burton J. Jacobson said.

Robert Cheverie, who represents the newly formed 500-member International Jai Alai Players Association, hailed Jacobson's decision as a major victory for the union.

Workers walk out in protest

STAFFORD — About 40 first-shift workers walked off the job for about 15 minutes Friday at Warren Corp. to protest what they called low pay, poor benefits and long hours.

The non-union workers refused to re-enter the mill until assistant plant manager Terry Bryant agreed to meet with them. About 100 people work the first shift.

Company spokesman William Tuman said the average starting salary is between $6 and $7 an hour.

Kathy Bacha, a 10-year employee, said the walkout was sparked by a recent 4 percent wage increase, 1 percent more than employees received last year. Bacha said company president Joseph Anderer had promised a substantial raise, which employees thought would be about 10 percent.

The woolen mill employs about 275 people.

Farmer cleared in cruelty case

ENFIELD — Windsor dairy farmer Joseph Caesar has been found innocent of cruelty to animals.

Caesar, 62, was charged with cruelty to animals after the Connecticut Humane Society seized 10 cows on his farm April 7, 1987. The Humane Society accused Caesar of starving his animals.

"God bless America and the judicial system," Caesar said after the Superior Court jury in Enfield announced its verdict Thursday.

Former Windsor Mayor Mary K. Drost, town Councilman William D. Chiodo, a police officer and a veterinarian testified on Caesar's behalf Wednesday.

Raymond E. Denette, chief of law enforcement for the Connecticut Humane Society, testified earlier that cows were found in poor condition and were "being kept under intolerable conditions."

But Jean C. Kucia, chief veterinarian for the state Department of Agriculture until she left the job in April, testified she visited Caesar's farm April 1, 1987, and found no evidence that he was mistreating his cows.

DEP chief considers road link

HARTFORD — Environmental Protection Commissioner Leslie Carothers may decide this month whether to grant environmental permits for a key segment of a four-lane expressway to link Interstate 84 in Danbury and Interstate 95 in Norwalk.

A hearing officer recommended May 27 that permits be issued for the 2.1-mile segment of "Super 7" in Norwalk. Carothers will begin hearing oral arguments June 21 on the expressway, which would replace the winding two-lane Route 7.

If the permits are granted, the state Department of Transportation would be allowed to fill more than 10 acres of wetlands. The department has outlined a plan to create about eight new acres of artificial wetland and relocate about 1,900 feet of the Silvermine River.

"We are pleased with the overall permit and overall decision," said Kathryn Mobley, state assistant attorney general.

Edwin C. Pearson, a Ridgfield attorney representing Citizens for a Sensible 7, said he was disappointed but not surprised by the decision.

Crafts' sitter returns to stand to ID fabric from chipper site

NEW LONDON (AP) — Richard and Helle Crafts' former baby sitter was recalled to the witness stand Friday to identify a bit of fabric found at the site where the state claims Crafts disposed of his slain wife's body with a wood chipping machine.

In the 41st day of the Crafts' murder trial, state police took a quick trip to Long Island in the morning to pick up Dawn Marie Thomas, who lived with the Crafts in Newtown between June and December 1986.

Thomas spent two days on the witness stand in early April and has been subpoenaed by defense attorney J. Daniel Sagarin.

Crafts, 30, of Newtown is on trial for killing his wife, Helle, 39, on Nov. 18 or 19, 1986 and disposing of her body with a chainsaw and wood chipper.

Thomas said photographs of a polished fingernail recovered from the banks of the Housatonic River in Southbury looked like a nail polished with Helle Crafts' favorite color.

The prosecutor, Walter Flanagan, showed Thomas two bottles of red nail polish taken from the Crafts' house by state police in December 1986. Thomas pointed to one bottle and said, "That's the color she always used."

Flanagan then asked Thomas to identify a small piece of blue-green fabric, which forensic expert Dr. Henry C. Lee described as the neck part of a T-shirt.

"That's the same color and fabric as the night shirt Helle wore often," Thomas said.

Under cross-examination by Sagarin, Thomas selected a bottle of red polish from two bottles presented to her and said that Helle Crafts often used that color polish. She added that she also often wore a red polish that was "in between those two" bottles.

The state also called two workers from the Newtown landfill to the witness stand Friday.

William Sears and Michael Flanagan said they saw Crafts in his pickup truck at the landfill several times prior to his arrest in January 1987, but could not recall when or how often.

Flanagan said he called the two to show that the state investigated the landfill area in search of a freezer and carpet that Crafts said he took there in November 1986.

The state believes Crafts used the freezer to freeze his wife's body before cutting it into pieces and feeding it through a wood chipper. The freezer was never found.

Crafts told police that he took a carpet from the master bedroom to the landfill because it was stained with kerosene, but the carpet was never recovered.

The trial is scheduled to resume Tuesday with the state expected to rest its case early next week.

Cop suspended after his arrest

SOUTHINGTON — A local police officer was suspended with pay after his arrest on a sexual-assault charge stemming from allegations he fondled a woman he stopped for motor-vehicle offenses, officials said.

The officer also made obscene phone calls to the woman in the weeks after the initial incident, police said Thursday.

Edward Schlegel, 23, of Southington was charged with third-degree sexual assault and was scheduled to be arraigned in Superior Court in Bristol Tuesday. He was not charged in connection with the phone calls.

Schlegel, a patrol officer for about two years, was released on a $5,000 bond, police said.

Murdered man buys a house

WATERBURY — Local, state and federal officials are trying to piece together a deal in which a house was purchased by a man — a month after he had been murdered — from one of the pallbearers at the man's funeral.

The house purportedly was bought in March by the late Larry Parrett from Gregory A. Burrus, who helped carry Parrett's casket. Parrett had been shot to death at the house on Feb. 25 in a drug dispute, according to police.

"I would love to know how someone at the mortgage company approved a $92,000 loan for a house for a dead man," said Chief Inspector of Detectives John Griffin, who alerted Waterbury State's Attorney John Connelly's office to the apparent discrepancies.

Connelly confirmed Friday that the matter was under investigation.

Man admits cocaine charges

BRIDGEPORT — A Milford man pleaded guilty Friday to cocaine charges that could mean penalties of up to 20 years in prison and $1 million in fines.

Miguel Tirado was arrested March 1 at a McDonald's restaurant on Interstate 95 following a drug transaction recorded by an informant. Officials said they found 300 grams of cocaine in the car. The car's driver was also arrested and has since pleaded guilty.

Tirado remains free on $200,000 bond pending sentencing July 28 in federal court.

Drugs and weapons seized

NORTH BRANFORD — Two people were arrested Friday on a variety of drug and weapons charges following a raid on a home where authorities found one-quarter of a pound of cocaine and numerous marijuana plants worth $65,000.

Charged were Joseph J. Meli, 41, and Martha Hodinott, 36, both of whom lived at the home. Meli was being held on $150,000 bond, while Hodinott's bond was set at $100,000.

Among the charges they face are operation of a drug factory, possession of narcotics with intent to sell and conspiracy to distribute narcotics.

Officials said they confiscated a .45-caliber handgun and an undisclosed amount of cash.

Newman case creates confusion

BRIDGEPORT — Bridgeport Superior Court broke out in noise and confusion Friday when an attorney charged that actor Paul Newman's food company isn't just for charity, but makes hundreds of thousands of dollars for certain people.

"There will be testimony about hundreds of thousands of dollars that Mr. and Mrs. Hotchner have taken out of this corporation," attorney Richard Albrecht said. "Hundreds of thousands of dollars."

Albrecht is representing Julius Gold, a Westport delicatessen owner who is suing Newman and others, claiming he was promised 8 percent of the stock in Newman's food company.

Author A.E. Hotchner and his wife, Ursula, are long-time friends and business partners of Newman's.

DITH PRAN visits New Haven

Cambodian survivor fears new holocaust

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Dith Pran, whose plight as a prisoner of the Khmer Rouge in Cambodia was chronicled in the movie "The Killing Fields," said Friday that he fears another holocaust could happen again.

"I don't understand why the holocausts keep happening again and again," Pran said. "One happened to the Jewish people and then one happened to the Cambodian people. I'm afraid it could happen again."

Pran spoke to a meeting of the Connecticut Associated Press Broadcasters Association.

"The Killing Fields," released in 1984, told the story of Pran's capture by the Khmer Rouge at the end of the Vietnam War, and the efforts of his friend, New York Times reporter Sydney Schanberg, to locate him.

During the war, Pran worked as an interpreter to Schanberg and at the end of the war, Pran managed to evacuate his family to the United States but chose to stay behind. He now works as a photographer for the Times.

"Cambodia used to be a land of peace," he said. "Cambodians are religious and friendly."

"I was there when the Khmer Rouge came to power," he said. As a survivor, he said he did everything he could to find food and stay alive.

"A survivor grabbed all kinds of everything you could (to eat), be it a snake, a mouse, a rat, a grasshopper or a cricket," Pran said. "People would cut off one leg of a water buffalo to eat."

Pran said the Khmer Rouge "killed children, elderly people, the crippled and the blind."

Pran says the only way to "bring Cambodia back to normal" is to "discount the Khmer Rouge."

"Cambodia is still burning and the people are still suffering," he said.

Weicker and Lieberman clash in first debate of the campaign

HARTFORD (AP) — In their first face-to-face confrontation, Republican Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. and Democratic challenger Joseph I. Lieberman clashed Friday on issues ranging from drug control and Social Security to energy and raising taxes.

The two traded an array of barbs, including one from Weicker who said it was "absolutely inane (for Lieberman) to sit around up here and give a lot of fluffy stuff off the top of your head."

Lieberman, now the state's attorney general, told Weicker he had made the wrong choice numerous times in his 18-year Senate career and said he would be a more dependable senator than the maverick Weicker.

"I intend to hold your feet to the fire of your record," Lieberman said.

Weicker, who has built a career on defending the rights of minorities, said that "wherever anybody has the short end of the stick, that's where Lowell Weicker will be."

Lieberman repeatedly jabbed Weicker on the issue of Social Security benefits, criticizing him for voting against cost-of-living increases for recipients. Lieberman also said Weicker missed a key vote on saving the Social Security system.

Weicker shot back that the vote Lieberman referred to was a routine "procedural OK" on a conference committee report after the Senate had already voted on the matter.

"Hold on a second," the three-term senator said. "You're engaging in a little sort of in and out."

"I think what you're engaging in is a little snare and illusion," Lieberman retorted, insisting the vote Weicker missed was important.

The two also clashed on stemming the flow of drugs into the United States, with Weicker calling for more money for agencies that know how to fight drugs: the Drug Enforcement Agency, the FBI and the Coast Guard.

Lieberman said he favored a stronger role for the military in the drug war. He also criticized Weicker for voting against creation of an office of "drug czar" who would coordinate federal efforts to fight drugs.

Weicker said a better answer is more money for education to teacher children about the dangers of drugs, for the long-term fight.

Lieberman said Weicker had opposed an investigation into allegations of drug smuggling and corruption by Panama's Gen. Manuel Noriega.

Weicker acknowledged his opposition but noted it had been a couple of years ago, long before anything substantive about Noriega was public knowledge.

On taxes, Weicker said he would not, and has not, hesitated to raise taxes to pay for programs. Lieberman said tax increases should only be considered as a last resort.

On energy, Weicker said he saw no reason not to permit exploration, but not drilling, for oil within the boundaries of a huge national wildlife refuge in Alaska "so we know what's there in case we need it."

Lieberman said the environmental risks weren't worth trying to find what is likely to be a small amount of oil anyway.

"The key to the energy challenge is conservation," Lieberman said during the forum sponsored by The Hartford Courant.

Lieberman said he opposed Weicker's proposal to raise gasoline taxes as a way of increasing conservation and raising money for other programs.

Afterward, both candidates said they were satisfied with the tone of their first meeting.

Sakharov: Give Soviets time

MOSCOW — Human rights activist Andrei D. Sakharov said Friday that Mikhail S. Gorbachev has not yet guaranteed human rights but that the Soviet leader must be given time and trust to carry out his reforms.

Sakharov, the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize winner and a former political exile, told reporters at the Foreign Ministry press center that his unprecedented appearance at a government building "reflects a change in the situation in this country, and it's not a matter of me changing my position."

He held his news conference in the same hall where Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev on Wednesday held his first formal meeting with reporters in the Soviet Union.

Sakharov, 67, handed Gorbachev a list of names of 200 political prisoners when they met for the first time in January. On Friday, he called again for the release of those who remain incarcerated for their beliefs.

Bomb in trash bin kills four

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — A bomb hidden in a trash bin exploded on a busy street corner Friday, killing four people and injuring 19 in South Africa's deadliest bombing in more than a year.

Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok blamed the African National Congress guerrilla movement, which has been accused of four other bombings in the past nine days.

The ANC has not commented on the recent bombings. But it issued a statement Friday from its headquarters in Lusaka, Zambia, saying June "must be a period of united and decisive popular offensive" against the government.

The statement endorsed a three-day anti-apartheid protest scheduled to start Monday, saying South Africa's economy "must grind to a halt" on those days.

The ANC is the main guerrilla group fighting the South African government.

Iran targets Iraqi president

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iraqi forces on Friday drove off an Iranian warplane that flew 110 miles into Iraq and tried to bomb President Saddam Hussein's family home north of Baghdad, a military command announced.

While maneuvering to evade Iraqi ground fire, the Iranian jet "dropped all its load of explosives indiscriminately" in the village of Ouja, just south of Tikrit, Saddam's hometown, the official Iraqi News Agency said.

No injuries were reported in the attack at 5:55 a.m., according to the news agency. The report, monitored in Nicosia, did not say whether Saddam was home at the time. It was the first time the Iraqis have reported an attack on Saddam's hometown during the nearly 8-year-old Iran-Iraq war.

The report did not say whether the U.S.-built Iranian F-4 Phantom jet was hit.

Asian gangs worry prosecutors

MINNEAPOLIS — Organized crime families linked to Asia are commanding more attention from U.S. law enforcement officials as their underworld network expands, a Justice Department lawyer said Friday.

"That's an area where we are going to see more and more growth and violence," said Gary Shapiro, who heads the federal organized crime strike force in Chicago.

Speaking as a panel member at the national conference of Investigative Reporters and Editors, Shapiro said most of the activity involving gangs of Chinese, Japanese, Taiwanese and Vietnamese criminals has occurred in Los Angeles, New York, San Francisco, Honolulu and, to a lesser extent, Boston.

Shapiro said he recently announced an investigation of the Chinese merchants group, On Leong, in Chicago.

HOUSE CALL — Vice President George Bush meets with El Salvador President Jose Napoleon Duarte and his wife, Inez, at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington Friday. Duarte was recently diagnosed with gastric cancer.

Duke with wife after surgery; Bush welcomes Reagan home

By The Associated Press

Democrat Michael Dukakis spent Friday at his wife's side as she recovered from a delicate spinal operation and Republican George Bush returned to Washington to welcome President Reagan home from Moscow.

Jesse Jackson, the only candidate out on the campaign trail, called for an end to discrimination against AIDS victims as he searched for votes in Tuesday's final four primaries.

"We cannot wait to lead our nation away from discrimination and fear-mongering. All leaders must speak out now," Jackson said in a statement in Los Angeles. "The president must take every available step, including an executive order, to stop discrimination now."

Dukakis is favored to best Jackson in Tuesday's balloting in California, Montana, New Jersey and New Mexico and seal his hold on the Democratic presidential nomination.

The Massachusetts governor continued to pick up delegates from uncommitted blocs and those pledged to candidates who have dropped out. By late Friday, he was about 300 delegates short of the 2,081 he needs to win the nomination in Atlanta in July. Tuesday's primaries have 466 Democratic delegates at stake.

Dukakis canceled his campaign schedule Thursday to return to Boston after doctors urged immediate surgery for his wife Kitty. He spent the night at Massachusetts General Hospital and then worked at the hospital awaiting the end of the operation.

After five hours of surgery to correct a neck problem that doctors feared could lead to paralysis, the prognosis was positive.

"The operation went very well," said Dr. Lawrence Borges. "There were no problems at all."

Doctors removed two herniated discs from her neck and replaced them with bone taken from her hip. She had been experiencing pain and numbness for several weeks and doctors determined both problems were caused by dangerous pressure on her spine caused by the discs.

"I talked to Kitty in the recovery room and she said she wanted an ice cream and a massage," Dukakis said following the surgery. "I'm prepared to provide both."

Dukakis said he would resume campaigning in New Jersey over the weekend, if Mrs. Dukakis' condition remained good, and head to California for a final campaign swing on Sunday.

Bush, the GOP-nominee-to-be, returned to Washington from a week of meetings at his Kennebunkport, Maine, to be part of the entourage welcoming President Reagan home from the super-power summit.

Mistrial denied in Mecham case

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A judge on Friday rejected a defense request for a mistrial on grounds that a prosecution witness' testimony was unfair in former Gov. Evan Mecham's trial on charges he concealed a $350,000 campaign loan.

Judge Michael Ryan of Maricopa County Superior Court rejected a claim by lawyer Thomas Crowe that the prosecution tried to prejudice the jury by presenting testimony that Crowe said implied wrongdoing in how the Mecham campaign's checkbook was handled.

Mecham and his brother, Willard, are charged with concealing the loan by Tempe developer Barry Wolfson. Willard Mecham was his brother's 1986 campaign treasurer.

Also on Friday, U.S. Rep. Sam Steiger was placed on probation for four years, fined $5,480, and ordered to perform 700 hours of community service work for pressuring a parole board member over an administrative matter while working as an aide to Evan Mecham while Mecham was governor.

Steiger, 59, was convicted April 7 of theft by extortion in threatening Board of Pardons and Paroles member Ron Johnson over a personnel vote.

In Mecham's trial Thursday, state handwriting expert William Flynn testified there had been a number of "white-outs, erasures and alterations" in the campaign checkbook. He did not speculate on the reasons for the changes.

Crowe contended the revisions were innocent corrections, but the prosecution implied "there was something wrong, something criminal, something improper" about them.

"The effect (on the jury) was devastating," Crowe said.

The first-term Republican governor was removed from office April 4 when the state Senate convicted him of two unrelated impeachment counts. The Senate opted not to consider the count against him related to the loan after some members argued that to do so would unfairly prejudice his criminal trial.

The defense contends the failure to report the loan was an innocent mistake.

Prosecutor Barnett Lotstein said in court Friday there was no negative implication in Flynn's testimony about the checkbook.

He said the prosecution was seeking in testimony Thursday to show that Willard Mecham was a meticulous bookkeeper who was not prone to mistakes.

Army sergeant jailed 10 years

ABERDEEN PROVING GROUND, Md. — A military jury sentenced a decorated Army sergeant Friday to 10 years in prison for passing unclassified documents to an FBI agent who was posing as a Russian spy.

Sgt. Daniel Walter Richardson, 42, also was ordered to pay a fine totaling $36,000, demoted in rank and ordered discharged with a bad conduct record.

The same jury that convicted Richardson Friday of attempted espionage deliberated about 2 1/2 hours before issuing its sentence, concluding a weeklong court-martial.

The verdict and sentence are subject to the review and approval of the commander of Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maj. Gen. George Akin, and automatically will be appealed to the Army Court of Military Review.

Richardson, a 19-year veteran, also was convicted Friday of stealing government property; of the unauthorized sale of government property; and failure to report an attempt by an unauthorized person to obtain classified information. He was acquitted of a second count of attempted espionage.

War relic causes bomb scare

SEATTLE — A war relic that a youngster carried home on a flight from Europe caused a bomb scare and partial evacuation Friday at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport, authorities said.

The artillery shell, picked up from a European battlefield by a youth on a bicycle trip, dropped out of a bicycle box being unloaded from Scandinavian Airlines System Flight 937 from Copenhagen, Denmark. Port of Seattle police Chief Ed Ingram said.

Ingram said an adviser had told the youth to get rid of the device before the return home but the youngster, whom he did not identify, had not done so.

The device was about a foot long and 3 inches in diameter, airport spokeswoman Margo Spellman said. It was not immediately known whether it was capable of exploding.

'Nazi bar' stirs controversy

BANGKOK, Thailand — A middle-aged woman spit and cursed at a drawing of officers who served Germany's Third Reich. A European man threw a beer mug to the floor, apparently enraged by the decorations of Bangkok's "Nazi Bar."

Trendy Thais are frequenting the new nightspot, but foreign news objects to the caricatures of Adolf Hitler, Benito Mussolini, photos of storm troopers and waiters with "swastika" armbands.

"For us, the bar is purely business-oriented, apolitical, artistic and entertaining," said manager Aor Saratuk.

He said he and business partners focused on the Nazi theme because its "powerful, catchy name and emotive appeal" would draw young patrons in a downtown area dotted with competitive pubs with names such as "Express" or "Studio West."

Aor said there have been no complaints by Thais, but in recent weeks several foreigners have criticized the bar in letters to the English-language Bangkok Post newspaper.

Family's kidneys always better

CHICAGO — Transplant patients fare much better with poorly matched kidneys from living relatives than well-matched organs from dead strangers, a finding that could spark more donations by family members, doctors said Friday.

The option is especially appealing, they said, because demand is up but organ donation is down. "There are a lot of people that can be helped that you would otherwise have waiting in line," said Dr. Dixon Kaufman, a transplant fellow at the University of Minnesota.

"The point is, don't just discount" kidneys from family members whose tissue does not properly match the recipient, he said at the annual meeting of the American Society of Transplant Surgeons.

GENERAL STRIKE — A Palestinian fingers his prayer beads Friday, on the traditional Moslem Day of prayer, as a three-day general strike begins in central Ramallah, on the occupied West Bank.

Another Arab strike paralyzes territories

JERUSALEM (AP) — Another Arab strike paralyzed the occupied lands Friday, and a 20-year-old man shot in the chest became the 200th Palestinian killed since a rebellion against Israeli rule began six months ago.

Officials at Alia hospital in Hebron said relatives of Mustafa Ahmed Halaika told them the man was shot by Jewish settlers in the nearby West Bank village of Shuykh.

He died of a bullet wound in the chest, and three other Arabs were wounded by gunfire in the village, the hospital officials said. Soldiers wounded two other Palestinians during a protest in Nablus.

The three-day strike that began Friday was total. Stores were closed, streets were deserted and there was no public transportation throughout the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Halaika's relatives said five Jewish settlers opened fire when Palestinians protested their presence in Shuykh, the hospital officials said.

A Palestinian driver who accompanied two journalists to the hospital quoted a 15-year-old villager, Nael Ayside, as saying the settlers beat him and another Arab.

Villagers began stoning the settlers, who then opened fire, the driver quoted Ayside as saying. The driver said Ayside had a broken arm.

S. Korea seeks talks with North

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The government proposed new talks with communist North Korea, and thousands of radical students declared Friday they will march to the demilitarized zone in an effort to force unification of the peninsula.

Prime Minister Lee Hyun-jae wrote a letter to North Korea proposing discussions, possibly this month, about the Olympic Games scheduled for Seoul in September and other pending issues. It was read on the radio Friday.

Later in the day, 3,000 students from 18 schools held a campus rally in Seoul in support of a march next Friday to the village of Panmunjom to meet with North Korean students on national reunification.

"Let's go and meet the northern people after driving out all foreign forces!" a speaker told the rally at Kyonghee University in eastern Seoul. Students cheered and applauded.

Officials said they would not permit the march because it was a violation of the National Security Law and would be propaganda for North Korea.

Panmunjom is 35 miles north of Seoul, in the 2 1/2-mile-wide demilitarized zone that separates the Koreans, and is off-limits to civilians.

Lee Jong-nam, the prosecutor general, warned against "left-leaning" student activism and ordered a crackdown on illegal campus activity favoring the North.

At the rally, students shouted "Yankee go home!" and "Let's go to Panmunjom!"

Giant posters showed students destroying U.S. flags and routing U.S. troops. The United States has 42,000 soldiers in South Korea.

Most campus rallies reported Friday were peaceful, but one at Dankook University in Seoul turned violent when 50 students fought police, hurling firebombs and rocks. Riot squads countered with tear gas.

Lee, the prime minister, wrote the letter proposing talks to Premier Lee Gun Mo of North Korea. Chung Han-mo, the culture and information minister, read it on radio.

What's your impression of the government's pamphlet about AIDS?

"I think there's a big need to inform the public about this, I think it's very important and definitely some government dollars should be spent to inform people about it... people should not only know about it but most importantly how not to get it."

How do you sum it all up?

By Chuck Stone

My Harlem friend, Booker Leroy Jackson, hasn't usually prayed for divine intercession beyond his country's temporal borders. He is a stouthearted America Firster.

But this time, the Reagan-Gorbachev summit got to him. Not because he acquired a sudden interest in nuclear weapons control, but because he watches television most of his waking hours.

The networks saturated us with so many reports on Reagan-Gorbachev Summit IV that Booker Leroy was intrigued. He watched. He read. He got disturbed. Then he decided to pray.

He sent me a copy of his latest supplication.

Yo, Lord:
I'm back and I know what you gon' say. How come I don't check in with you more often? You know the answer to that, Lord. Prayer ain't an easy rap. And I don't be comin' to you lessen I got somethin' really on my mind.

Like my president who met in Russia with their main man who's got that Picasso mark on his head. That ain't no put down, Lord. At least, Gorbachev be havin' a mark on his head. President Reagan ain't got nothin' inside his.

But I'm prayin' to you, Lord 'bout this summit cuz there was so much hypocrisy. Maybe, it couldn't be helped. Like how one of your messengers, Isaiah, put it, "every one is an hypocrite and an evildoer, and every mouth speaketh folly."

"Sure sound like he be talkin' 'bout Reagan and Gorbachev."

Know what should of happened at that summit, Lord? When President Reagan leaned across the table and asked Mr. Gorbachev, "What are you doin' about human rights for the Jewish people what wants to leave Russia?" Mr. Gorbachev should have answered, "When are you gon' start doin' something 'bout human rights for your black countrymen what just want to leave their second-class citizenship?"

Lord, wouldn't that have been hip?

President Reagan would have started stutterin' and swallowin', and before he be sayin' anything, Mr. Gorbachev would of followed up like they be doin' at his press conference. "I just finished readin' that national report by a commission headed up by two of your former presidents and Ted Koppel about how things done got worse for minorities. Blacks is going' backwards in jobs and education, specially in your presidency."

"Mr. President, you got a real human rights credibility problem with your black countrymen."

But my president be cool, even when his hypocrisy is exposed.

"Mr. General Secretary, you got a bigger credibility problem for the Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces treaty."

"You sign it, but according to my Defense Department's annual report, the Soviet Union done built a huge underground structure to house thousands of people, including Soviet leaders, to protect them during the conduct of a nuclear war. How you explain that?"

Like this, Gorbachev would have said:

"Mr. President, you talk about how we be the world's two most important leaders. But you can't even get rid of a drug dealing pipsqueak general on your country's doorstep."

Hypocrites never get stuck for an answer. But treaties ain't answers, Lord. They be pieces of paper only as good as the sincerity in the hearts of men who sign them. American Indians should know. They be havin' a long history of summit meetings.

Like Sitting Bull once said: "What treaty that the white man ever made with us have they kept?"

Lord, if Mr. Gorbachev and President Reagan don't be keepin' this INF treaty, my next prayers to you gon' be delivered in person.

And that do be some very expensive hypocrisy.

Perfectly legal schemes rip off the government

WASHINGTON — Military contractors have fleeced the taxpayer with double billings and 8649 toilet seats for years. An alert auditor can catch those scams and slap the hands of the contractors.

But a more discriminating contractor can rip off the government with perfectly legal schemes. A favorite tactic is to use the government warehouse as a shopping mall. Contractors have access to the warehouses for supplies necessary to carry out their contractual work with the government. Or they simply do their own shopping on the private market and bill Uncle Sam for the equipment.

The present system would work if the government could count better. But the military often loses track of goods checked out of its warehouses and is so bad at keeping inventory that it even asks many contractors to do their own accounting.

An ongoing investigation by Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, and his Governmental Affairs Committee discovered that $51 billion worth of government equipment is currently in the hands of private contractors.

The military has resisted this practice of giving away government property since 1970. As recently as 1985, Defense Department officials decreed that private companies had to provide everything they needed to fulfill their service contracts. But Glenn's investigators, working with the General Accounting Office, discovered that the military was still giving away paint, lumber, hardware, car wax, office supplies and video tapes.

In many cases, the contractors acquired equipment that they don't need. A 1980 GAO investigation found that a $65,000 Navy computer sat unused at a contractor's plant for three years before it was returned. Thirteen Army communications shacks worth $76,000 gathered dust in a contractor's warehouse for four years while the Army scrambled elsewhere for new shacks. An Air Force contractor took $120,000 worth of telecommunications modems, even though they were not needed and never used.

When contractors don't check out government property directly from a warehouse, they can avoid the cost of materials by doing their own shopping, and then billing the government. The military was supposed to eliminate the practice of paying for so-called "other plant equipment" by 1975. But those orders were essentially ignored, according to a report issued in May by the Defense Department Inspector General.

Directly billing the government for this equipment is a sham. It forces the government to pay for items that can be used by the contractor long after the contract work is done. The contractors are supposed to bill the government only for the amount of time the equipment was used to fulfill the contract. But the Inspector General's review of 15 military consulting firms around the Washington area confirmed that many of these contractors bill the government for the full cost of the equipment, and some do it even when their contract specifies otherwise.

One Virginia company charged the government for $135,000 worth of equipment, even though the contract said, "All other material required in the performance of the contract shall be furnished by the contractor."

Jack Anderson

Eight of the 15 contractors even made a profit on the material they bought with government funds.

Cuba overstates its welcome

There are signs of growing disenchantment between Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev and Cuban premier Fidel Castro. Castro may have gone to the trough one time too many.

Simply put, Gorbachev is weary of financing Castro's economic failures. After nearly 30 years of abundant Soviet assistance, Cuba still cannot feed itself, although it was a net exporter of food before Castro took over. Cuba continues to fall short of its sugar export quotas to the Soviet Union. The goal to produce 10 million tons by 1990 (the original target year for that amount was 1970) seems unreachable. Moreover, the Soviets think that Castro's economic pipe dreams are costly failures. That includes his sudden enthusiasm for dubious ventures, such as biogenetic engineering.

Castro and Gorbachev concluded a new economic agreement under the cloak of secrecy several months ago. No details were announced, but U.S. intelligence officials have learned that it doesn't look good for Castro. Gorbachev simply agreed to maintain the current annual Soviet subsidy of the Cuban economy, amounting to $3.5 billion.

Castro's recurring speeches about ongoing economic problems are the clue to U.S. analysts that the Soviets have not offered anything new.

There are other signs that Gorbachev is quietly directing a slow, anti-Castro campaign from Moscow. For the first time, the Soviet press is openly critical of Castro's erratic and personalized approach to economic development. Some Soviet diplomats are openly castigating him.

For all the grumbling on both sides, no one expects the Soviets to set Cuba adrift. It is too important as a strategic asset. And there is always hope in Gorbachev's mind that Castro, who turns 62 in August, will someday step aside for someone with better economic sense.

Memorial service set

The Visiting Nurse and Home Care of Manchester has scheduled in interfaith memorial service for Tuesday at 7 p.m. It will be at Community Baptist Church. Those planning to attend should call 647-1481 today.

Volunteers needed for camp

Editor's note: This column is prepared by the staff of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches.

By Nancy Carr Executive Director

It's only five weeks until some 50 Manchester youngsters ages 6 to 11 will be piling on the bus and heading for the MACC Interfaith Day Camp. The annual free Interfaith Day Camp offers two weeks of sun, fun and lots of caring to children referred to us by local social workers as needing a special loving touch.

We are woefully short of adult volunteers this year. We are only able to offer a free two-week camp experience to these children of special need through the generosity of those who volunteer their time and those who support the camp with their financial contributions.

Since we must meet the same state requirements as a for-profit camp charging several hundred dollars a week, we must have a nurse on staff each day and should have several adult staff who are there on an ongoing basis each camp day to make camper-counselor assignments, act as back up to the teen-age counselors and generally provide hands on continuity.

The two-week day camp starts July 11 and is open Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Please call as soon as possible if you could help us during these two weeks. Camp Director Beth Harlow at 646-4114 will be happy to provide more information.

The following is a list of volunteers who staff the shelter from various churches:

St. Bartholomew Church: shelter coordinators Bob Albert and Gloria Langer; overnight volunteers Robert Albert, Sally Albert, William Brown, Harry Carr, Yoland Carroll, Charlie Cass, Mary Cavedon, Arthur Clements, Mary Cose, Mary and Joseph Connors, Thomas Donovan, Joseph Dubiel, Tony Fallon, Roxanne Feeney, Robert Ferron, Patricia Guinan, Leo Hogan, Charles Jaworski, Mary Jaworski, Betty Kraynak, Joseph Langer, Larry Leonard, Meg Lynam, William Manning, John McNamara, Willie Rodriguez, David Sombric, Nancy Stoppleworth, Thomas Sullivan, Paul Tucker, Ruth Tucker, Jackie Wallert, Mona Wilke, Edna Woods, Carolyn and George Zackmann.

St. Bridget Church: shelter coordinators David and Karen Kohl, Doug Curry, Bruce Lavery, Jeff Ouellette, Sue Malnoski, Ray Gelting, Jack Halldin, Bill Toomey, Ed Maillet, John Ryan, Frank and Sue Reischerl, Dick Boyle, Richard Bohardik, Paul Sombric, Michael Policastro, Carlos Castillo, Gary Gentilcore, Irene Giles.

St. James: shelter coordinators Bill McCartney; volunteers Alice Shea, Jeff Watt, Don Rowe, Dave Brannick, John Smith, Evelyn Farrell, Joe Erardi, Marilyn Watt, Chuck Obuchowski, Tom Bugnacki, Bill McCarthy, Dana McCarthy, Father Frank Carter, Father John Gwozdz.

We have not yet received lists from the following churches but we would like to recognize their coordinators. South United Methodist Church coordinator Lina Vesho, Presbyterian Church coordinator Dale Goss, and Trinity Covenant Church coordinator Mary Juleson.

We would also like to acknowledge the volunteer bookkeepers for the shelter, Doreen Spano and Sally Albert, Charlie Cone, our right-hand man, and Alice Shea, who is our emergency call system.

Also, the Sheltering Ministries Advisory Committee which oversees the programs and helped put on the recognition event: Skip Johnson, Barbara Baker, Joan O'Loughlin, Nick LaPenta, Jim Meek, Bill Road, Harry Reinhorn, Ray Gelting and Alice Shea and shelter staff who also helped, Pat Burt, Mark Melley, Mark Albert, Tim Thibodeau, Charlie Cone. It all happens because of good folks like these.

Notices: We are still looking for volunteers to help staff the Farmer's Market (Saturday mornings July 9 through September) and the free Interfaith Day Camp which will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Mondays through Fridays the weeks of July 11 and 18. We only accept Manchester youngsters ages 6 through 12 referred by local social workers. Both the Farmer's Market and the Day Camp are totally dependent on volunteers to staff them. Please call the conference at 646-4114 for more information.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS by Eugene Brewer

A junior high science teacher in a western state has encountered opposition to his teaching of a curriculum section on Origins. He pointed out that the text presents arguments for evolution that were surrendered a decade ago. And he encouraged his students to research the pros and cons on all the theories of origins — evolution, creation, panspermia, and others.

This teacher carefully avoided all references to God or religion or his own personal belief. Still, parents of a student objected because some students through their own research came to question evolution's validity. Generally advocates of evolution will not accept its objective evaluation.

This reflects the narrow-mindedness that exists even among evolutionists. What's to fear in truth? So long as children are guided to discovery of facts, without persuasion or intimidation, they can only profit. "Buy the truth and sell it not" (Proverbs 23:23)

A Sept. 24 wedding is planned in Glastonbury.

Early help needed for a heart attack

NEW YORK (AP) — The importance of getting to a hospital early at the first sign of a heart attack is being stressed by the American Heart Association (AHA), which says that of the more than a half-million Americans who suffer fatal heart attacks each year, two-thirds die before ever reaching a hospital. Although most Americans could recognize signs of a heart attack, according to a recent national survey sponsored by Genentech Inc., most heart attack victims wait an average of three hours or more before seeking medical help, AHA adds.

Early treatment is particularly important with the availability now of new therapies that can stop a heart attack in progress.

Job seekers advised to check attitude

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. (AP) — Examine your attitude closely; it can be as important as technical or professional knowledge, an authority on business and interpersonal skills advises job seekers.

"Employers, of course, require basic skills, but at the same time they put a high premium on those personal qualifications a resume can't capture," says J. Oliver Crom, president of Dale Carnegie and Associates Inc., with headquarters in Garden City.

Crom, head of the international organization that trains more than 150,000 men and women annually, offers these suggestions to help project a winning attitude:

■ Keep your self-confidence at full strength. Review past accomplishments and give yourself a pep talk when the going gets tough.

■ Be animated, and you'll be more alive and alert.

■ Listen actively during an interview. You'll be more at ease, more responsive.

■ For greatest persuasion, communicate your thoughts in terms of the other person's interests.

■ Express genuine enthusiasm. It's one of the most highly prized and productive assets, one especially important in selling, and now you're selling yourself.

■ Be sincere. Experienced interviewers can spot a phony very quickly.

■ Remember to smile. A smile is a mark of friendliness, a sign that you're a pleasant person to have around.

She makes cuddly companions

Fowler makes friends

By Jacqueline Bennett
Manchester Herald

The word Teddy conjures up different images. There's the sexy lingerie teddy, the charismatic senator from Massachusetts, Teddy Kennedy, and then there's the Teddy likely known and loved by most — the teddy bear.

Teddy Bears frequently reside at the Fowler home on Wall Street in Coventry because the lady of the house, also a member of the Town Council, Rose Fowler makes them. Yep, she makes 'em. Those cute, cuddly companions.

"Let's step into my teddy bear room," Fowler said during a recent interview, climbing the stairs to the second floor of her 19th century farmhouse. There she makes the bears which she calls Fowler's Farm Bears.

Cluttered in every corner of the small room are materials to make teddy bears. Buttons in boxes, boxes of fabric in a stack, an open closet of doll clothes, shelves filled with how-to-books, a sewing machine, and a wooden peg board with about 60 spools of thread on it, in a variety of colors.

Some finished bears are scattered about while others sit headless waiting to be done.

It all began in 1985 with a 10-week adult education course in Mansfield on teddy bear making. Fowler had tried other crafts but really took to this one.

"Maybe it's because when I got married I wanted to have twelve children. I ended up with three. So, these (bears) are more children," she said, adding, "I love this. Everything else is work. This is play."

The first one she made went to her husband, Joseph. Since then she has made 72, many as gifts. Fowler does sell the bears but says it is hard for her to do that.

"I have a difficult time putting a price on them. This is not something I do for profit," Fowler said. Generally the price covers the cost of materials which varies from bear to bear.

"Every bear is different. They each have their own personality," she said.

To determine that personality, choose other details like outfits.

Making the bears involves several steps. Using a pattern, the body parts are cut out of fabric. Tufts and joints are marked off before sewing begins. Three plastic pieces form each of four joints so that the arms and legs move. Lock washers are used for eyes and cardboard goes in the paws. Before being sewn together, the bears are stuffed. Fowler has demonstrated this procedure at local craft shows.

"Some sewing I can do on the machine, but there's a lot of hand work. The last thing I do is the nose because it's the most difficult," Fowler said. Noses are embroidered on with thread or yarn.

The time required to finish a bear varies from a few weeks to a year depending upon how often she works on it. Almost 90 percent future owners are invited to Fowler's house to discuss the bear, pick fabric, eye color and are made for adults, she said.

Fowler believes teddy bears are popular because "it's a friend."

Bears have gone to people as far away as Florida, New Hampshire and New Jersey. She finds materials for the bears at flea markets, tag sales, novelty shops and even estate auctions. Fowler keeps a scrapbook with photos of each bear she has made. she also names each one.

Among her favorites are the Fred Astaire Bear. He of course, wore a top hat, tuxedo and tap shoes and was made for a dance council auction. Other favorites are a set of bride and groom bears and one she made for local physician, Robert Bowen, which she named 'The Doc.'

"For me this had to be a special Fowler.

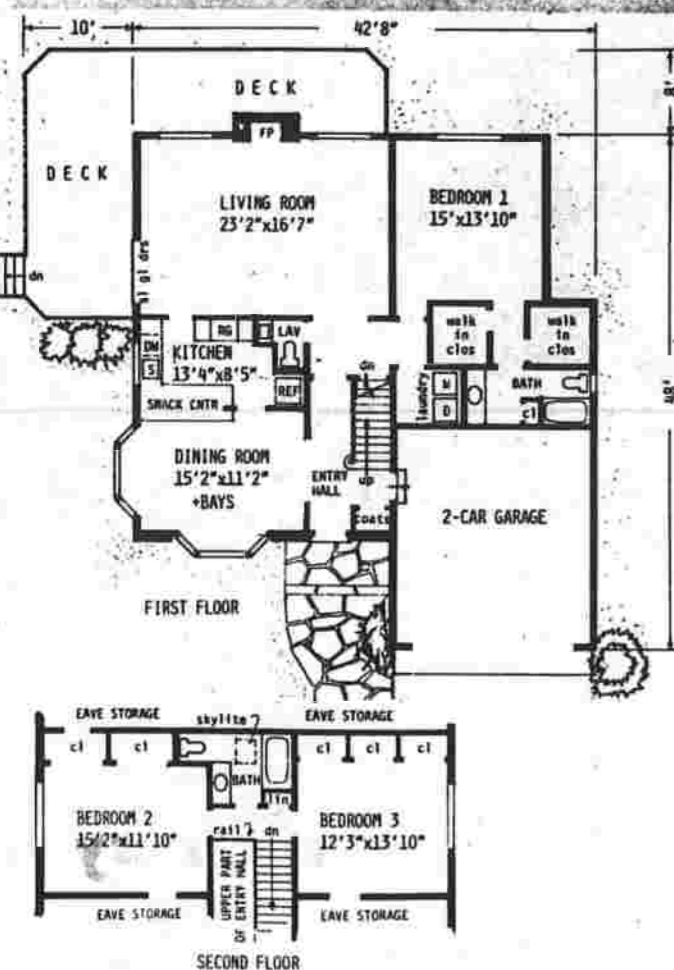

bear" she remembered. Cloth from an old suitjacket of Bowen's son Steve was used on the bear. "Bowen later wrote to thank me, saying 'Doc Bear' watches T.V. with him every night," Fowler said, smiling.

Although the custom makes them, Fowler could not bring herself to put a signature mark or tab on the bears. Instead, each now comes with a Fowler Farm notecard, reproduced from a sketch of the farm she had done for her husband as a Christmas present last winter by local artist Marilyn Richards.

"This just tickles my imagination. It's my artistic bend," Fowler said, but she has yet to make one for herself.

"Maybe bear number 200" said Fowler.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK — The farmhouse style is an inviting aspect of this home. It has two big bedrooms on the second floor and a master bedroom on the first. Plan HA1471C has 1,370 square feet on the first floor and 580 on the second. For more information, write to architect Thomas M. Cohen, 19 W. 44th St., Room 1507, New York, N.Y. 10036. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Here's the Answer

QUESTION: In our previous house, we had vinyl tile on the floor in two of the bedrooms. I had to replace a couple of them at one time and had very little trouble. In this house, we have sheet vinyl rather than resilient floor tile. A damaged area has developed. Is there any special way to repair this?

ANSWER: The principle is much the same as with the tile, except that you must cut out the damaged portion and replace it.

The big difference is that when you replaced a tile, you had only to use the same kind of tile. With the sheet vinyl, you have to make as close to a perfect match as you can to keep the patch from standing out. After you have cut out the portion of flooring and scraped off any remaining adhesive, fit the new piece into the opening to be sure it fits before you apply any adhesive. Once the patch is in place, weigh it down with some books until the adhesive has had time to dry.

Pumice powder can assure smooth, satiny wood finish

By Andy Long
The Associated Press

Pumice stone in the form of powder is a material that assures a smooth, satiny finish on a wood surface that has been varnished, lacquered or shellacked.

When you see an advertisement for furniture that includes the phrase "a hand-rubbed finish," the chances are pumice powder was used as the rubbing compound. If finished properly, the wood will be free of irregularities, have a slick surface and be silky rather than highly glossed.

If you find wood finishing an engrossing hobby, you should experiment with pumice stone and either oil or water even if you are satisfied with the results you have been achieving. It will supply a new dimension to your skills and provide an interesting addition to your list of finishing techniques.

You will have no trouble achieving good results even if you have only a limited amount of knowledge regarding the refinements possible with wood finishes. One thing you will discover is that pumice powder does not leave scratches and is, in fact, a good way of getting rid of them if left over from any previous finishing operation. Used with a felt pad, pumice powder and oil cuts quickly and with little effort. It cuts even faster with water, which is why beginners should get used to the pumice-oil combination before trying the pumice with water. When oil is used, there is a slight tendency toward stickiness, requiring wiping off. One other thing, pumice powder and water can be used on varnish or lacquer, but not on shellac.

To use pumice powder and oil, dip the felt pad lightly into the liquid, then rub without much pressure. What kind of oil? Almost any kind. It can be crude oil, a light mineral oil, paraffin oil or even ordinary household oil used mostly on sewing machines.

You can avoid trouble if you examine the pumice powder carefully to be certain no foreign ingredient has fallen into it. Even an almost invisible speck in the powder can cause the wood to be marred. Many professional wood finishers sift the powder each time through a piece of cheesecloth. The rubbing should be with the grain, stroking lightly and carefully. While you can make your own felt pad from material you have on hand, such as a piece of felt from an old hat, it is better to purchase a felt pad ready-made. It can be obtained in different thicknesses and textures. Get used to using a pad of medium thickness and texture. When you have acquired the knack of using pumice powder and a liquid, you can try other kinds of rubbing pads. When the oil residue must be wiped off, be sure the cloth you use has no visible seams or anything else that can damage the finish.

If you complete the pumice-oil process and find the finish is smooth and satiny but not quite glossy enough, you can obtain a gloss with rottenstone powder and either oil or water. This also is rubbed on the finish with a felt pad. Check every few minutes to see whether the desired degree of gloss has been obtained. The same caution is necessary as with pumice powder. If water is used as the lubricant, it's fine for varnish and lacquer, but not for shellac. Some professionals apply a paste wax to the rubbed finish, some do not.

Weed seeds threaten lawns

By Earl Aronson
The Associated Press

Weed seeds are a continual threat to your lawn because they can remain viable in the soil for many years.

Weed seeds are dropped onto the soil surface by parent weeds that grew there previously. Or seeds are transported from elsewhere by wind, birds, animals or flowing water. Weed seeds can enter the soil through cracks or holes created by worms, insects or wetting and drying processes.

Late winter and early spring are when weeds often become established in the lawn. Another time is early fall.

Experts at the Professional Lawn Care Association of America say dense turf is an important prerequisite for weed control because it crowds out weeds. "Furthermore, pulling or killing weeds in thin turf merely invites more weeds."

To fight weeds, you should know the exact size of the lawn.

You should also be able to identify weeds accurately to classify them as broadleaf, such as dandelions; grasses, such as crab grasses or sedge, or as annuals, biennials or perennials. Many weeds resemble one other at one stage of growth or another, so the critical task of identifying them is difficult.

Choose the right herbicide or combination of herbicides. The wrong herbicide can harm your specific turfgrass species. Herbicides can also injure or kill flowers, vegetables and ornamental shrubs.

Apply the herbicide according to label specifications. Too little cannot control weeds. Too much will injure the grass and possibly harm the environment.

Some weeds must be treated pre-emergence — before the seeds have germinated. Some require post-emergence treatment — after they have started growing and while the grass is competing vigorously with those weeds.

Temperature and wind are other factors.

In summary, the lawn tender should identify the most troublesome weeds in the area; the common and trade names of appropriate herbicides; the single herbicide that may control particular weeds; prepackaged combinations of herbicides that may be used; whether pre-emergence, post-emergence or both kinds of treatment are needed to control particular weeds, and the tolerance of various turfgrasses to herbicides under specific conditions.

Crab grass establishes itself early in summer, sows the following year's weeds and then dies in autumn. For extreme infestations, professionals recommend a 2- to 3-year program by the homeowner and a lawn service company.

A survey in 1987 indicated that 60 to 75 million homes used some kind of lawn care and about 9 million homeowners hired a professional lawn service.

The Professional Lawn Care Association of America has 1,300 member firms in the United States and Canada. Members are trained, supervised and equipped. They train employees in the proper handling and use of pesticides.

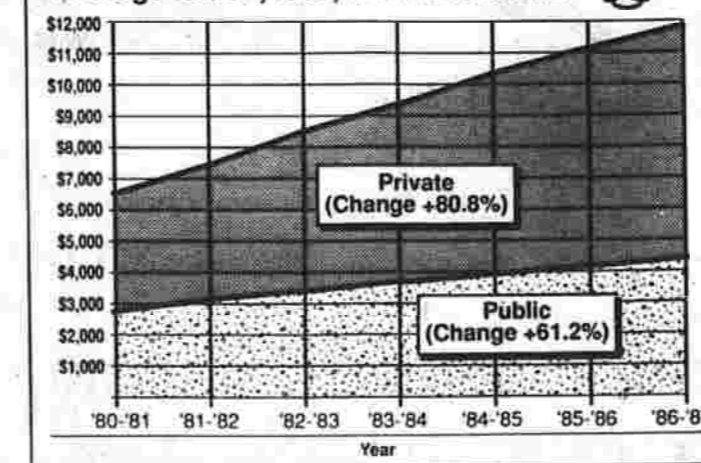

In the United States, members of the Professional Lawn Care Association are certified and regulated by an agency in each state that works closely with the Environmental Protection Agency.

Among the largest producers of herbicides for homeowners: Ortho, Scott and Vigoro. They make products to control crab grass, oxalis, spurge, foxtail, barnyard grass, annual bluegrass, goose grass, chickweed, dandelions, plantain, knotweed, clover, thistle and other broadleaf weeds; black medic, dollar weed, henbit, purslane, rescue grass and other weeds.

RIISING COLLEGE COSTS
Average tuition, fees, room and board

GETTING EXPENSIVE — Between 1980 and 1987, median family income in the United States increased by 40.1 percent. During the same period, the cost of a year in a private university increased by 80.8 percent and the cost of a year at a public university rose by 61.2 percent. Meanwhile, funds for grants increased only 3.8 percent while funds for loans increased 45.7 percent.

Record firms block availability of DATs

By the Editors of Consumer Reports

The last word in high fidelity seems to last only as long as it takes to utter the next word. The last word these days is the compact disc, which delivers music with essentially no added noise or distortion. The next word is likely to be digital audio tape, which will not only play music with the same fidelity as the compact disc, but record it and play it back.

Although digital audio tape (DAT) and the tape decks needed to record and play it are available in Japan and elsewhere, this new technology is not yet on sale in the United States. Its introduction has been delayed by the record industry's fear that entrepreneurs would use DAT decks to make near-perfect "pirate" copies of compact discs. Obviously, a pirate copy generates no income for the record company and no royalty payments for the musicians involved.

The record companies backed a scheme to issue "Copy-protected" compact discs, recordings with a "notch," or missing a sliver of high-frequency sound. The industry has lobbied Congress to require all DAT decks to contain a "spoiler" chip that would recognize the notch and shut off the recording circuits. But when the National Bureau of Standards assessed the notch scheme, it found that the notch degraded the sound on some recordings — and was ineffective a good part of the time, to boot.

As a result of that report, Congress probably won't act, and the way seems clear for DAT's to enter the U.S. market soon.

Recently, Consumer Reports' electronics engineers tested a Sony DAT deck (Sony DTC 1000ES) that had been purchased in Taiwan. The machine cost $1,500, including customs duty. Blank tapes currently cost about $12 to $17 each.

Technologically, the Sony met nearly all the engineers' expectations. Its frequency response was close to ideal. Its dynamic range (the difference between background noise and the loudest recorded peaks) was almost as wide as that of a CD. Noise was inaudible under any safe and reasonable playback condition.

Flutter, a wavery sound defect, was virtually unmeasurable and completely inaudible. Distortion was extremely low — less than that produced by many fine stereo amplifiers.

The recordings the testers made from FM radio, LP records and tape cassettes showed no audible degradation. The sound that went in was the sound that came out.

The testers didn't get absolutely perfect recordings of music made from compact discs. However, DAT decks, despite the hyperbole, don't make perfect copies of digitally recorded CD sound. That's because the digital signal is encoded on a DAT in a slightly different way than on a compact disc.

The latest thing in scams: Vitamin sweepstakes deals

The latest scam to hit the American public — and your pocketbooks — involves vitamin promotions that feed not so much of your desire to stay healthy as on your dream to win big.

Sylvia Porter

Right now there are about 25 different companies operating in Florida alone that make nationwide pitches for vitamin/sweepstakes deals, reports Richard Brown, consumer complaint analyst with the Division of Consumer Services in Florida.

"We've received more than 100 complaints about these types of operations in the last month and a half," he adds.

The way these gimmicks usually work: You receive a postcard in the mail congratulating you for being selected to receive either a snazzy new sports car, thousands of dollars in cash or a luxurious fur coat. All you need to do to collect your prize is call the number.

The enthusiastic operator at the other end of the phone mentions that there's just one tiny detail the postcard did not disclose: In order to collect your fabulous gift, you must purchase a six-month or year's supply of vitamins. The cost of these supplements usually ranges from $300 to $400.

Too savvy to be duped by such a scheme, you angrily protest to the friendly voice on the phone. "Why on earth I would ever lay out three hundred bucks for a few months' worth of vitamins?"

"Because," the operator purrs, "it's all you have to do and then the sporty new car is yours!" Or he or she may reason, "Isn't it worth a few hundred dollars, when you are guaranteed one of these prizes that are much more valuable?"

Suddenly, you're not so sure anymore. "Lots of people win prizes," you think. "Maybe this is real. Maybe my ship has finally come in."

Just make sure the ship is not an inflatable boat. "One company promised winners a fishing boat, but all the consumer got was a toy made out of the cheapest plastic," says Herschel Elkins, a senior assistant attorney general in California.

Some other "prizes": A grandfather clock made out of cardboard; 30 karats of gems that are virtually worthless; French designer-made watches that may sound legitimate, but aren't.

Why vitamins? There are all sorts of explanations. Perhaps it has something to do with capitalizing on the fitness trend.

"The potential market for anything nutritional is 100 percent," says Stephen Barrett, M.D., a consumer advocate and editor of Nutrition Forum Newsletter. What's more, about 40 percent of the people in the U.S. take vitamins, so it's a relatively easy sell.

"There's absolutely no justification for anyone paying hundreds of dollars for a year's supply of vitamins," adds Barrett. He estimates that the average person can buy vitamins for about 5 cents per day.

In short: The profit margins involved in these scams can range from four to twenty times the retail price of the vitamins.

According to the Long Island Better Business Bureau, a company with a Long Island address has been informing consumers across the country that they have already won a "1988 Mercedes Benz sedan," a "$2,500 cashier's check," a "ladies' fur coat," a "deluxe stereo home entertainment system," or a "25-inch color TV and VCR with remote control." All you have to do — purchase vitamins for $330 to $375.

The bureau says the only awards received thus far have been a fake fur coat of "man-made pelts" or a stereo system wholesaling for $104.

The Nassau regional office of the New York state attorney general's office expects to enter into a court-ordered agreement with the company to resolve existing complaints, reports Elizabeth Bradford.

Not moving saves money

By John Cunliff
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — During the 1960s it was common for young couples to buy a relatively low-priced "first house," which was a subtle way of letting you know they really aspired to much better things.

A few years later, having acquired some equity, they moved to a more commodious dwelling in what they considered a better neighborhood, one they felt was more in keeping with their view of themselves.

While the motive was snobbish, the results often were quite practical. The better house in a better neighborhood might rise sharply in value, as many of them did during the inflated 1970s. Smart move.

Now something quite different is taking place. Rather than moving, many young couples are staying put, fixing up the old house to suit their needs, and in the process saving themselves a lot of headaches and dollars.

Look around the old neighborhood and you'll see the evidence:

new rooms, decks, energy-efficient doors and windows, swimming pools. In some instances small houses are almost encased by additions twice the size.

And once again, the reasons for so doing make sense.

Two big factors are at work:

1. Many families prefer to stay put for financial and social-cultural reasons. By remaining, they save various closing costs, taxes, legal fees, moving expenses and the like. They are able to retain ties to churches, schools and other organizations. And the home might be more convenient to work.

2. A percentage of families that once might have sought new homes in new developments, as in the 1960s, might be more inclined now to move into homes in existing neighborhoods, fixing up to meet their specific needs.

Influencing such behavior might be the surge in new-home prices, contrasted with bargain prices that sometimes can be found for fix-up houses in older but still desirable neighborhoods. Whatever the reasons, expenditures for residential remodeling in the past three years have exceeded $270 billion, and about $200 billion is expected to be added to that total by the end of 1989.

Last year, according to a preliminary estimate by the Census Bureau, $94.1 billion was spent on alterations and repairs. While this was only 3.1 percent higher than in 1986, it was triple the amount spent 10 years earlier.

Martin Azola, chairman of the Realtors' remodeling council, believes the pace will quicken to $98 billion this year and to more than $100 billion in 1989.

Of 77 million people born during the post-World War II baby boom, about half own their homes, Azola says. He observes that while many have been trading up, "others are staying put and upgrading."

The upgrading trend doesn't seem to be a reflection of a tougher housing market, as some market analysts contend. It appears not to be solely, if at all, a consequence of couples being unable to make any other choice.

Urologist's pills did little to treat man's impotence

DEAR DR. REINISCH: I'm 69 and in very good health, but impotent. Taking pills from a urologist did little good for erections. Now he wants me to go for injections into the penis to open up the blood flow to get erections. Is this advisable? Are there side effects? How long would this last?

Kinsey Report
June M. Reinisch, Ph.D.

DEAR READER: From your letter, it is impossible to tell which diagnostic tests you've had, what was found and what type of injections have been recommended.

Insufficient blood flow to the penis and problems with blood vessels in the penis are common causes of erectile difficulties. Test to determine whether these factors are involved include a Doppler analysis of penile arteries (using ultrasound to evaluate blood flow) and NPT (nocturnal penile tumescence) monitoring in a sleep laboratory to measure erections during sleep.

If all other possible causes of erection problems have been ruled out and if these preliminary tests show that reduced blood flow is likely to be causing erection problems, then more complicated tests are done to pinpoint exactly where the problem is located.

Using penile arteriography and/or corpus cavernosography (X-rays taken of the penis after a special dye has been injected), a physician can determine which of the many blood vessels are involved.

Without such tests, it can be difficult to locate a specific cause for erectile problems and even more difficult to recommend the best treatment. If you have had all of these tests and the urologist has shown you X-rays or other evidence of exactly where the blood vessels are blocked, then he or she will also be able to tell you the chances for success of the suggested treatment. Ask how many men the physician has treated with this procedure, how many regained erectile functioning and how long they've been followed to see if the problems returned.

If you've not been thoroughly tested, you might want to seek a second medical opinion before deciding upon a treatment. Because some of these tests are available only at major hospitals or medical schools, call the nearest one and ask to make an appointment for a diagnosis of erection problems.

A number of treatment methods to correct problems of blood flow to the penis are currently being tested, so always ask how many men have been successfully treated on a long-term basis before agreeing to any treatment. For example, some surgical attempts to correct or bypass penile blood vessels have looked highly successful immediately after surgery, but patients report a return of erection problems after a year or two.

One of the most successful long-term treatments to date has been surgery to implant a penile prosthesis. If you decide to try some other treatment, ask whether it will interfere with having a penile implant later if necessary.

DEAR DR. REINISCH: Can a sexually active man have REM erections (nocturnal erections)? These are not always "wet dreams," right?

DEAR READER: Right. All males (except those who lack erectile capacity due to a physical cause) have some degree of spontaneous penile tumescence (swelling and enlargement of the penis) during the REM (rapid eye movement) stage of sleep, whether or not they have other forms of sexual outlet.

These erections begin even before birth, as evidenced by ultrasound pictures of male fetuses, and continue throughout a man's life. Periods of REM sleep total about 200 minutes each night during puberty, and gradually decline to about 100 minutes every night for men in their 70s.

Ejaculation need not occur during these erections. Erection, ejaculation and orgasm are all separate processes (that is, a man can have an ejaculation without an erection or an orgasm, etc.).

Eighty-three percent of males report having had at least one ejaculation during sleep (nocturnal emission, or "wet dream"), with the highest rates occurring during adolescence.

Women have similar responses: nightly cycles of genital swelling during REM stage sleep, and some also have orgasms during sleep.

Take the hint about bathing

DEAR DR. GOTT: I need an answer to resolve a domestic battle. How often should the average respectable citizen bathe? If a person is relatively inactive, perspires relatively little, does not become soiled, uses deodorant and changes clothes every day, is there any hygienic reason that person should be criticized?

Dr. Gott
Peter Gott, M.D.

As you wish. When you are ready for a bath or shower, I am sure those friends and family around you will be more than happy to let you know.

Any criticism you're getting perhaps should alert you that you ought to bathe more frequently. When it comes to washing, cleanliness is not necessarily next to godliness — but in some cases, it can appear to be.

gets really red, then breaks into hives. People ask me what's the matter, which just makes it worse. Would hypnosis help?

DEAR READER: Possibly. You are experiencing an emotion-induced release of histamine into the skin. Since this reaction is mediated by the brain, hypnosis or biofeedback might help you overcome this troublesome condition. On the other hand, so might antihistamines or medications called beta-blockers which interfere with the cascade of nerve impulses reaching the skin's blood vessels at times of tension. See your doctor.

He discovers beauty is mind over matter

DEAR ABBY: There is no one in this world I can tell this to but you. My marriage was made in heaven. I have been married for 50 years to a man who adores me. We are financially secure and have a beautiful family of children and grandchildren.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

We keep strong lights burning around our home at night for security reasons. About a year ago, my husband began wearing a sleeping mask. Naturally, I thought it was because of the brightness of our bedroom, but I learned differently. He wears it only when we make love. He talks to me at this time about how long and silky my hair is and how firm my body is — just as he did when we were first married, when I was 18 and he was 21.

When I questioned him about this, he said he was "fantasizing" and suggested that I wear a sleep mask, too, so we could both pretend that we are young again! I can't do that, Abby. He is twice the size he was when we were married — plus, he's bald. Also my hair isn't long and silky now; it's short and gray. And my body at 68 is far from firm. However, since he started wearing the sleep mask, his lovemaking has improved so much, it's unbelievable.

Should I wear one, too?
PERPLEXED
IN PASADENA

DEAR PERPLEXED: Why not? If a mask will enhance your enjoyment as it has his, go ahead and wear one.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for asking advertisers (and comedians) not to ridicule the hard of hearing.

Last Easter, I received a beautiful basket of fruit from my granddaughter. It was delivered by a local florist. I was so pleased — until I saw the card that came with it. On the outside of the envelope containing the card was written: "She is deaf, so please wait for her to answer the door."

DISGUSTED
IN AMARILLO

DEAR DISGUSTED: I'm sure you are not alone. Anonymity does not justify crudeness. But it certainly fosters it.

Abby, dear, it spoiled my day.
HURT IN PATERSON, N.J.

DEAR HURT: To have written those instructions on the envelope for the recipient to see was insensitive. I hope you are not blaming your granddaughter for the thoughtlessness of the person who filled the order.

DEAR ABBY: I have been a telephone operator with the Bell system for 18 years, and I am continually amazed at the conduct of some customers on the telephone. I have had people curse, burp, yawn, cough, sneeze, chew and eat while requesting a telephone number, and I have yet to hear the first "Please excuse me, operator," or a simple "I'm sorry."

This rudeness is universal. One would expect physicians, lawyers, teachers, secretaries and other professionals who deal with the public to have better manners. Perhaps they have, but because they can't be seen, they don't bother to use them.

Telephone operators have to deal with abusive drunks and perverts who get their jollies by using obscene language on the phone, but we consider the source and carry on.

Although to some extent we are computerized, we are still real people manning those telephones, and there is no excuse for such rudeness. If this letter makes a half-dozen people realize that telephone operators are human beings with feelings, then writing it will have been worthwhile.

DEAR DISGUSTED: I'm sure you are not alone. Anonymity does not justify crudeness. But it certainly fosters it.

Astrograph

Your Birthday
 June 5, 1988
 In the year ahead, conditions in general will be more conducive for the fulfillment of your aspirations than they have been for quite some time. Raise your level of expectation.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today you will learn by teaching, so don't be reluctant to disseminate to others knowledge or information you possess. Both you and the listener will profit. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) There is no reason at this time to leave matters up to chance. If there is something you want to alter, readjust or change, take steps to do so today.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) As of today, you should begin to see noticeable improvements in areas of your life that have been causing you concern. Things are looking up.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your rewards will be more substantial today if you not only take pride in what you do, but strive to work in a manner that will please others as well.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Social contacts that you've developed over the years could now start to play key roles where your business or commercial interests are concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't be disturbed by outward appearances at this time. You're on a lucky roll, and things will have a way of working out to your ultimate advantage.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Partnership arrangements look very promising for you today, whether they be in sports, business or romance. There is power in pairs.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Something unusual may develop for you at this time that could provide you with a new way to make money. It might be similar to an idea that's been successful for a friend.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) If you don't lose track of something that is important personally to you today, you can achieve the results you desire. Think "self" without being selfish.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Something may transpire today over which you'll have little or no control. It might not look like much at first, but later, you'll be aware of its benefits.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your unselfish attitude will not go unnoticed by your friends today, as you place the interest of others far above your own. No wonder people like you.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your chances for success will be greatly enhanced today if your objective is clearly defined. Be methodical and deliberate, and approach your goal one step at a time.

ber-bridge players, they should appreciate a clever defensive play that takes a trick away from declarer.
 The bidding by South showed six clubs and five spades, with reasonable extra strength. North decided to play four spades rather than three no-trump in case South needed to ruff club losers. That was not the best decision, but it should have worked out well. Against three no-trump it would have been obvious for the defenders to take two diamond tricks to go with the club ace. At spades, even with the diamond lead, it is hard to see how the defense can take more than a diamond trick and the club ace. But follow the play.
 On the opening lead of the diamond two, declarer played the jack from the dummy and East won the queen. With hardly a thought, East immediately returned a low diamond. Believing that West was clever enough to underlead his ace at trick one, declarer ruffed. He knocked out the ace of clubs and was forced to ruff again when West led a third diamond to East's ace. He now played three rounds of trumps and ran the clubs. Eventually West ruffed in and had to give up all the high red cards in dummy, but declarer had been held to 10 tricks, resulting in a good tournament score for the defenders.

'White Mischief' blends satire and melodrama

WHITE MISCHIEF (R)
This picturesque portrait of the last days of English colonialism in 1940s Kenya is etched in acid. Based on an actual murder case that rocked Nairobi and sent shock waves back to England, the film pivots on the adulterous affair between Lady Diana Broughton (Greta Scacchi) and womanizer Josselyn Hay, Earl of Errol (Charles Dance).

Filmeter
Robert DiMatteo

The social-climbing Diana's relationship with her controlling, fatherly husband parallels the relationship between the patriarchal British and the Africans. Gorgeously filmed and proceeding by way of languorous set pieces, the movie offers a blend of upper-class satire and silky romantic melodrama. The film provides lots of nasty fun, but it also means to keep us slightly detached: Its satire is more intentionally caustic than the leisurely, elegant surface suggests.

Director Michael Redford ("1984") coolly places the film's murderous love triangle in the context of last-gasp colonial rule.

visually seemed more a beautiful than talented. She's absolutely ravishing here; a prize wild cat to be hunted. Sarah Miles does a terrific turn as a seriously jaded socialite who shoots drugs with ladylike poise, while Joss Ackland's brilliant performance as Diana's cuckolded husband provides the emotionally resonant center of the film. Think of this movie as a canny, deliberate curdled "Out of Africa." Grade: ****

scene. Directed by Barbet Schroeder, the movie is curiously charming as it follows the rambling exploits of an alcoholic writer (Mickey Rourke) who takes up with a long-legged lush (Faye Dunaway). Rourke and Dunaway give their best performances in some time, though both were robbed of Oscar nominations. The movie becomes an entertainingly perverse romanticization of the linkage of booze and creativity in a certain kind of writer's consciousness. Grade: ***

HOPE AND GLORY (PG-13) Nelson, $89.95. One of the best movies released in 1987, this John Boorman picture casts a fond eye back on the writer-director's London childhood during World War II. The result is funny and lyrical — the blitz seen through the eyes of an impressionable young schoolboy (Sebastian Rice Edwards), who finds it thrilling. The bombings, the beautiful barrage balloons overhead, a German pilot parachuting to the ground, the canceling of school: These are the marks of a full-scale lark to a child. The movie also gives us the darker aspects of the war, with tragedy bubbling to the surface. And then, in the magical final section — the nature idyll of a family in exile — the movie leaves behind the rubble-strewn London suburbs for the boy's grandparents' house on the Thames. Grade: ****

TOPS — This batch of wooden tops Caplovich, with the lot being worth just comes from the collection of Judd about $50.

Tops part of many cultures, and there're six main groups

Collectors' Corner
Russ MacKendrick

This is a batch of old-time wooden tops lately acquired by that unrelenting auction buff Judd Caplovich of Vernon. The lot is worth about $50, with most of the value in the standing piece.

Buzzer. The last type is Yo-yo. What else is new? They had them in ancient Greece. We have seen pictures on ceramic artwork showing yo-yos in use and also some of the actual toys have been found, minus the string.

After it comes to rest the uppermost is the winning number. Type II is the Supported Top. It is set in motion by a cord wrapped around and then pulled sharply. It is guided by a key, bracket, yoke, sprocket, grip, holder, cage or handle. The scientist James Clerk Maxwell used this top in his pioneering studies of color mixtures.

And now to the group pictured here: the Peg-top — the "Queen of toptodm." These are set into their spin by a string wrapped around (note the grooves), then give a yank just so. The "just so" is very tricky. Author Gould says he never could do it right, whereas pink-cheeked kids had no trouble. "Like this — see?" Type IV is the Whip-top. We never heard of it, but it is displayed over and over in many pictures throughout untiqumity. You keep the things spinning by flipping it with a lash. If you put two strings through wide-apart holes in a large button and twist the assembly, then give it a two-handed pull — you have made yourself Type V, the

It is enough to accept this as a top, but Mr. Gould goes off the deep end with Frisbees, gyroscopes, boomerangs, or seemingly just anything that spins, like a flat rock or a discus. This is warping the word "top" all out of shape.

We shouldn't run down the book though, as it is a fabulous job with illustrations, index and a bibliography of 367 titles in just about every language except Swahili.

Cop experience inspires novelist

By Helen Miles
The Associated Press

RIDGEFIELD — Author Robert Daley knows that the quick grip of fear and split-second decisions that can make or break a cop's career are not just the stuff of police fiction. A former deputy commissioner of the New York City police, Daley has grabbed the attention of readers on subjects ranging from treasure diving in Florida to bullfighting in Spain, but is best known for his insider's tales of street crime and police bureaucracy.

During an interview at the converted cottage on his Ridgefield estate where he does his writing, the best-selling author of "Year of a Dragon," "Hands of a Stranger," and "Prince of the City," explained how fact and fantasy merge in his latest novel "Man With A Gun."

"Most of the incidents happened to me one way or the other, but they didn't happen just that way," said Daley. "All of them have been extracted from the converted cottage on his Ridgefield estate where he does his writing, the best-selling author of 'Year of a Dragon,' 'Hands of a Stranger,' and 'Prince of the City,' explained how fact and fantasy merge in his latest novel 'Man With A Gun.'"

For one thing, Keefe is not a successful author. Daley has twenty books to his credit, five novels made into films, and Paul Newman is slated to play the lead role in "Man With A Gun." In his novels, the 57-year-old Daley aims to provide more than a mirror image of life. Literature should provide "new insights into your own life, into everybody's life, a new understanding of what we are all up against," he said. Novels about the police, however, tend to be grouped together as thrillers, said Daley, who considers thrillers to be books with "preposterous characters doing preposterous acts all the time."

Social Security

QUESTION: I recently saw a poster that said people 65 or over with limited income and resources should apply for supplemental security income at any Social Security office. Well, I'm 67 and have limited income and resources so I thought I'd apply. But a neighbor told me I probably couldn't get it because I have children who could help support me. Is that true?

ANSWER: No. Your eligibility for supplemental security income (SSI) would not be affected by your children's ability to help support you. However, any support they give you would be considered income for SSI purposes and could affect the amount of your payment. Call or write any Social Security office for information about applying for SSI.

QUESTION: I recently got married, but I haven't changed my name as far as my job is concerned. Do I have to let Social Security know I got married?

ANSWER: No, not as long as you keep using your maiden name and you do not get Social Security benefits. However, if you start using your married name, you should notify Social Security of the change.

QUESTION: A few years ago I worked briefly for a company that soon thereafter went out of business. How can I be sure that I received Social Security credit for my wages?

ANSWER: The Social Security Administration maintains each person's individual earnings record at its headquarters in Baltimore, Maryland. To receive a statement summarizing the information contained in your earnings record, you may get in touch with any Social Security office and ask for Form SSA-7004 entitled "Request for Statement of Earnings." Fill it out and mail it, and you will receive the information in a few weeks.

QUESTION: Does Medicare pay for podiatrists' services?

ANSWER: Medicare medical insurance can help pay for certain services of a licensed podiatrist, including the removal of plantar warts. But it does not generally cover routine foot care unless you have a medical condition affecting the lower limbs (such as severe diabetes).

QUESTION: My son receives SSI checks because he is disabled. He wants to try to work, but he has many medical problems and I'm afraid if he goes to work, he'll lose his Medicaid benefits. Is it possible for him to work and keep his Medicaid coverage?

ANSWER: Yes, he may continue to qualify for Medicaid even if he earns too much to receive SSI cash benefits. To keep his Medicaid coverage, he must continue to be disabled, meet all other non-earnings SSI eligibility requirements, depend on Medicaid coverage to continue working, and be unable to purchase similar medical care.

The amount used to determine whether a recipient's earnings are sufficient to replace the SSI and Medicaid benefits lost due to work varies from state to state. For specific information about your state, call your local Social Security office.

FOCUS

Life isn't the same since the balloon came

David Kool/Manchester Herald

FLAGGING HER DOWN — Kelly Juleson waves one of the Canadian flags which students in Welland, Ontario, sent her recently, as her mother, Mary Juleson, looks on. The dining table is littered with souvenirs which came from, and are heading to, Ontario.

Mary and Ray Juleson haven't been able to sit down for a meal together for about two weeks.

For some couples that would spell big trouble. For others, it would be typical of the conflicting schedules that keep so many of us apart at meal times.

But for the Julesons, the "problem" is something a bit more pleasant. The big oak table in their neat-as-a-pin home on Hackmatack Street is overflowing with envelopes and packages, shopping bags, photographs, souvenirs and newspapers.

There are Canadian flags and letters from a member of Parliament in Ottawa. There are piles of Lego toys, a Lutz Museum T-shirt, bright red fire hats, the Game of Manchester and a handsome canvas purse.

Who's to blame for this mess? You could point the finger at Kelly Juleson, just 2½, who found a bright red balloon in a tree in her back yard, one day in April. Or you could put blame Lea Valcourt, a first-grade student at Fitch Street School in Welland, Ontario. She's the one who launched that balloon. In doing so, she unwittingly launched a relationship between her school — actually, her entire town — and the town of Manchester.

From the moment that Kelly Juleson showed her mother the balloon, some rather ambitious ideas began to percolate.

Mary Juleson, a veteran of 11 years in the classroom, was captivated by the possibilities presented by this small balloon, which had crossed an international border and traveled more than 500 miles.

"I have to say, I got so excited, I just about took off and flew myself," Juleson said. "I wanted to gather up as much as I could about Manchester, to send them a huge package. I mean, as a classroom teacher myself, that's what I would have wanted someone to do for me."

She and her daughter spent

My Side

almost three days gathering souvenirs of our area. With each item was an explanatory note from Juleson. As Lea's mother, Rina Valcourt, said later in her thank-you letter, "All your notes were terrific — I felt you were right there with us, explaining everything in person!"

Even as she packed off the box to send to Canada, Mary Juleson's mind was still clicking. "I couldn't just let it rest," she said.

In the next three weeks, Mary Juleson spoke with Lea Valcourt's teacher. Letters were exchanged between Lea's family and the Julesons.

A friendship was formed, and Mary Juleson came up with a plan: She and the family will visit Welland next week, bringing a carload of gifts. While she's there, she will visit Lea Valcourt's class to teach the Canadian youngsters about Manchester.

She plans to play the role of Mary Cheney, with an appropriate costume. For this, she has had to do considerable research. "I've never been tremendously involved in town history before," she said. "Now I've got a purpose, and I'm really diving in."

The student body of the Fitch Street School in Welland has apparently reacted with pleasure to Juleson's willingness to "dive in." Lea Valcourt's teacher wrote that when the box from Manchester arrived, the class "was so excited, it was all I could do to keep them off the ceiling."

While the Manchester box was passed around the school, the Canadian students were hard at work on a box of their own.

In it, they put Canadian flags, a letter from a member of Parliament, newspaper clippings, pictures of the canal which runs through Welland, letters from officials, commemorative coins, two T-shirts for Kelly Juleson, and lots more.

The gifts from Welland made it to Manchester this week. "I'd really have to say that getting the box from Canada has been one of the biggest thrills I have ever had," Mary Juleson said.

The thrills don't stop. Next week, Juleson will be an official ambassador from Manchester, Conn., to Welland, Ontario, designated by Manchester Mayor Peter DiRosa.

As one Canadian student said in her letter, "We will miss you. We will learn lots of things from you."

Or, in the words of Rina Valcourt: "We have such a good sense of the heartbeat of Manchester, and its people."

Inflation fears ease in market

By Chet Currier
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Fears of an inflationary boom have loosened their grip a little on Wall Street's financial markets in recent days.

True, the economy has remained much stronger, by all the evidence, than most people expected just a few months ago.

The trend of secular disinflation — gradual declines in the peak rates of inflation — still appears to be in place.

Edward Yardeni, economist at Prudential-Bache Securities, said it was noteworthy that the Commerce Department, in issuing an upward-revised figure for economic growth for the first quarter, lowered its gauge of inflation for the January-March period from an annual rate of 2.4 percent to 1.7 percent.

Yardeni acknowledged that recent price jumps in raw industrial commodities have been worrisome. However, he added, "we're inclined to think that fears of an inflationary boom are exaggerated."

The Fed has done its part to improve the mood on Wall Street by making no change in the discount rate, at a time when many analysts were talking of an imminent increase from the current 6 percent.

"In my view, raising the discount rate at this juncture would amount to a high degree of overkill," said Stanley Berge, an analyst at Tucker, Anthony & R.L. Day Inc. "The Fed has already taken steps to slow inflation."

Boostered in no small measure by an ebbing of inflation fears, stock and bond prices rallied briskly in the past week. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks jumped 114.86 to 2,071.30, for its largest weekly point gain ever.

Jobless rate rises to 5.6% but officials aren't alarmed

By Matt Yancey
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Unemployment increased for the first time this year to 5.6 percent in May, the Labor Department said Friday. But both government officials and private economists cautioned that the job figures for last month are too unreliable to suggest that the economy is losing steam.

The 0.2 percentage point increase from April's 14-year-low civilian jobless rate of 5.4 percent reflected a seasonally adjusted shrinking of the U.S. labor force by 363,000 people, with 536,000 fewer Americans at work.

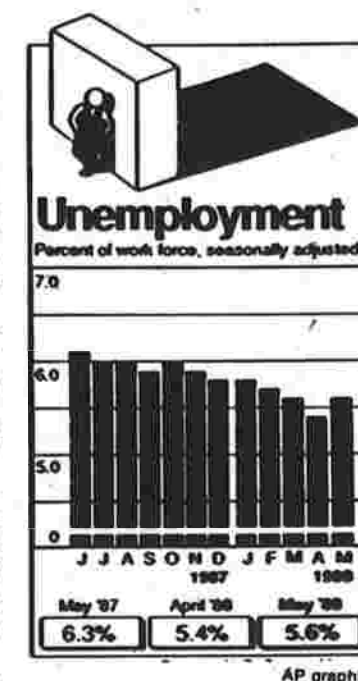

But before the seasonal adjustments made in the government's household survey to reflect an historically burgeoning job market in May with the end of school terms, the actual number of people working increased by 317,000.

A separate government survey of employer payrolls also showed 209,000 new jobs in May, down from an average net gain of 250,000 new jobs monthly over the past year but reflecting a still-tight labor market.

Janet L. Norwood, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, said it would be premature to draw any conclusions from the May change in the jobless rate based on her agency's household survey.

The unadjusted increase in May employment was "very low" by historical standards, particularly when compared with a 1.3 million rise the same month a year ago, Ms. Norwood told the congressional Joint Economic Committee.

"In past years when May employment growth has been relatively weak, substantial expansions generally occurred in June or July," she said. "At this time of the year, it's more appropriate to focus on the business survey, which shows continued, although somewhat slower, growth than previously."

AP graphic

Private economists agreed, and some even suggested that the unemployment rate may still be on a downward trend despite the slight increase in May.

"You really can't identify a 0.2 percentage point move as a change in the trend," said Chris Caton, an analyst for Data Resources Inc. of Lexington, Mass. "Next month it will probably go down a tenth of a percent."

Donald Straszheim, chief economist for Merrill Lynch, said the April and May figures together indicate an economy that is still growing strongly.

IP strikers seek bank boycott

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Striking workers from the International Paper Co.'s mill in central Maine on Friday called for a boycott of the Bank of Boston and its subsidiaries in three New England states, charging that the bank supports their employer at the expense of labor.

The paperworkers, who have been on strike for nearly a year, termed the boycott "another weapon in our arsenal" of tactics they have used to try to force International Paper back to the bargaining table.

In the last six months, the paperworkers also have distributed leaflets in front of Bank of Boston subsidiaries and placed fish in safe deposit boxes at branches in Massachusetts and Maine. William Meserve, president of the United Paperworkers International Union Local 14 in Jay, said the strikers will ask members of other unions, friends and family to withdraw any money they have in the Bank of Boston, Casco Northern Bank of Boston, Rhode Island Hospital Trust and Bank of Boston Connecticut.

He also urged those sympathetic to the strikers not to generate any new business with the bank, which owns institutions around the world and has assets of $33.5 billion.

"These institutions are using our money to fight the unions and that just isn't going to work," Meserve told a Portland news

"There is nothing in this report that will convince people that the economy is slowing appreciably or that inflation and interest rates are not on the rise," he said.

He predicted the unemployment rate will dip below April's 5.4 percent by year's end.

The government's survey of employer payrolls shows manufacturing jobs growing by 16,000 in May after an increase of 45,000 in April. Construction employment fell by 16,000 following a rise of 157,000 from January through April.

The 0.2 percentage point drop in April's jobless rate to the lowest it had been since June 1974 had been propelled largely by assembly line hiring by factories trying to keep up with a surging foreign demand for U.S. products.

Ms. Norwood called May's 16,000 new factory jobs "no real change." But she said both the machinery and metal products industries continued to register higher employment.

"The two export-influenced industries have paced the gains in manufacturing over the last year, along with electrical equipment, printing and publishing, chemicals and rubber and plastic products," she said.

Accompanying the resurgence in export-led manufacturing is a strong growth in wholesale trade. Over the past year, wholesale trade employment, most of it in durable goods distribution, has increased by 275,000, including a 25,000 gain last month.

"Trying to read through the murkiness, the figures are telling us pretty much what we already know about the economy," said Charles Renfro, chief economist for Alphametrics, a consulting firm in Bala Cynwyd, Pa. "It's cooling off a little bit on the domestic front but is still very strong on exports."

The labor leader noted that the Bank of Boston and its subsidiaries are targeted because one board member, Donald McHenry, also is a member of International Paper's board of directors.

The union is asking the bank "to do whatever they can to ask their board to put pressure on International Paper to come to their senses and come to the bargaining table and treat their workers fairly, which they haven't done in over a year," Meserve said.

About 1,200 paperworkers have been on strike against International Paper's Androscoggin Mill in Jay since June 16, when they walked off the job over company demands.

Swimmer's ear is a danger of summer

NEW YORK (AP) — With the arrival of warm weather, swimmers are urged to be aware of possible damage to their ears. "If you are aware of the dangers and take some simple cautionary steps, most likely you can avoid the problems swimmer's ear can cause," says Dr. Walter A. Petryshyn, medical director of the Deafness Research Foundation based here. "Water that remains in the external ear canal, the tunnel just beyond the visible part of the ear, can result in a potentially dangerous ear infection," he notes. "If untreated, swimmer's ear, technically called otitis externa, can spread inward, possibly causing a middle-ear infection." Petryshyn said three factors interact to cause swimmer's ear: warmth, moisture and the presence of infectious organisms such as bacteria or fungi. Among the steps he advises for protecting against the problem are: ■ Dry the ear canals when water enters, particularly after swimming and diving. Tilt each ear toward the ground and let the water run out. Do not use a cotton-tipped applicator or the twisted point of a cloth or towel. This will only irritate the ear. ■ Divers should use preventive measures such as ear drops with alcohol to dry the canal, and a solution of a teaspoon of boric acid in a cupful of warm water or a few drops of white vinegar to restore acidity. This should not be done in case of a perforated eardrum, which requires professional attention. ■ Premolded earplugs are not watertight seals and should only be used as an aid. Don't place total reliance on them. Symptoms of swimmer's ear vary from mild to severe. Mild cases involve moderate pain which, in most instances, is made worse by touching or manipulating the outer ear. Other symptoms are a low-grade fever with a mild discharge.

Highlights of the week

By The Associated Press

The government said the nation's civilian unemployment rate rose to 5.6 percent in May, only its second increase in 20 months. Other reports showed the government's economic forecasting gauge rose modestly, orders to U.S. factories surged, construction spending increased and sales of new homes climbed during April. Farm reports showed exports up in March and prices to farmers up in May.

The nation's largest general retailers reported disappointing sales again in May as a long buying slump continued. Consumers were said to be bothered by high installment debts and cool weather and bored with current fashions.

A private survey found contracting for new construction projects declined 6 percent in April from the previous month, extending a downward slide that began last fall.

The government said foreign purchases of U.S. businesses dropped 2 percent to $30.5 billion in 1987, the first dip since 1983.

The standard of living of workers in other major countries has risen four times as fast as the U.S. standard of living in the past 15 years, a study on American competitiveness said.

The government has concluded that both Eastern Airlines and its sister carrier, Continental Airlines, are safe to fly, but a bitter labor-management war at Eastern raises possible safety risks if allowed to continue.

A proposed mandatory drug-testing program for airline workers prompted sharp criticism from airline labor unions, which argued there is no evidence of a problem in the industry to warrant it.

Financier Carl C. Icahn sought to turn up the heat in his fight with Texaco Inc., calling together securities analysts to try to convince them he has the financing to follow through on his takeover bid. Many analysts remained skeptical about his $60-per-share offer.

Burlington Northern Inc., owner of the nation's largest railroad, announced a major restructuring that includes separating non-transportation operations into a subsidiary that eventually will be spun off as a separate company.

Publishing giant Macmillan Inc. announced a major restructuring that it valued at more than $1.66 billion, seeking to counter a hostile takeover bid by Texas investor Robert M. Bass.

An investment group including Asher B. Edelman offered to buy the telecommunications company Centel Corp. for $2.8 billion in cash.

The Federal Trade Commission approved American Stores Co.'s plans to acquire Lucky Stores Inc., provided American divests itself of stores in California and its interest in a Midwestern grocery chain.

Pittsburgh-based Koppers Co., one of the largest U.S. road repair companies, dropped its resistance to a $1.7 billion takeover bid from British industrialist Brian C. Beazer. But city officials in Pittsburgh refused to give up the fight, asking a federal judge to delay the takeover.

Billionaire computer pioneer H. Ross Perot launched a new consulting business with a contract to study cost-cutting for the U.S. Postal Service. But there was concern on Wall Street that Perot had lured away talent from the company he once served as chairman, General Motors Corp.'s Electronic Data Systems unit.

The Supreme Court, in a victory for bargain hunters and discount dealers, upheld federal regulations that allow a multibillion-dollar "gray market" in which costly imported goods are sold at reduced prices.

Ease the money squeeze

QUESTION: My husband and I have been married almost two years and, like a lot of couples just starting out, are finding it very difficult to save any money. All the investments we have looked at require at least $500 to $1,000 to get started. We have a problem getting even $500 saved.

Can you recommend something earning more interest than a savings account but requiring less than $500? We prefer not to tie up the money for seven years, as U.S. Savings Bonds require. We would not mind one or two years, to assure we would not dip into the money and spend it.

ANSWER: That natural recommendation is certificates of deposit. Many banks and savings and loan associations offer CDs in denominations as low as $100. Recent statistics from the Bank Rate Monitor newsletter put the average annual effective yield at 7.19 percent on one-year CDs and at 7.61 percent on 30-month CDs.

These are "average" numbers, based on CDs all around the country. As has been stressed in this column, you have to shop around to find high CD rates. Also, some banks and S&Ls pay higher interest on large CDs than on small ones.

By inquiring at the bank or S&L at which you presently do business, as well as number of others, you're certain to find CDs with higher interest than is available on savings accounts.

Given the start-up financial problems you and most other young couples face — which my blue-eyed finance officer and I remember all too well — you're better off banking whatever cash you can scratch together. Start thinking about other types of investments after you have a financial cushion.

Carbide to withhold interim relief

DANBURY (AP) — Union Carbide Corp. announced Friday that it would withhold $192 million in interim relief to victims of the Bhopal gas leak while it appeals the order to the Supreme Court of India.

The State High Court ordered Carbide to pay the interim compensation on April 4.

"The needs of the victims will be fully addressed only in the context of a final resolution of all issues," Carbide said in a statement.

Tropicana sues to save 'Twister'

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Tropicana Products Inc. has filed suit in federal court against Heublein Inc., claiming the Connecticut distiller infringed on its trademark in using the name Twister in a wine-based beverage.

The suit, filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court in Tampa, seeks an injunction barring Heublein from using the name in drinks such as Lemon Twister and Tea Twister, and it asks for unspecified damages.

Investors' Guide

William A. Doyle

And where did you get the notion that U.S. Savings Bonds must be held for seven years. The EE bonds now being sold can be redeemed six months after their issue dates. However, they must be held for at least five years in order to earn their guaranteed 6 percent or the variable "market-based" rate, whichever is higher. If they are cashed before five years, they earn less than 6 percent.

QUESTION: My salary is $40,000. I am married, with three sons under 10 years old. I own a $60,000 home, with a $7,000 balance on a 8.5 percent mortgage. My only other debts are about $4,000 on credit cards at 14.8 percent.

I am considering getting a $3,000 CD. That way, I will have more interest to deduct on my income tax return.

Is this the most cost-effective thing to do?

ANSWER: Only if the interest you will have to pay on the home equity loan will be lower than 8.5 percent you are paying on your present mortgage and if the equity loan interest will be lower than the interest you would get on the CD. Both those "ifs" are most unlikely.

By swapping a low-interest mortgage for a higher-interest home equity loan, you would pay out more money in interest. Sure, you would have a bigger tax deduction, but you would still come up short.

You probably can get a home equity loan with lower interest than the 14.8 percent you are paying on your credit card debt. So taking out a equity loan and paying off the charge card balance makes sense. But taping a home equity credit line can become habit-forming and put you deep into hock.

QUESTION: I plan to get a CD and put it in my young son's name to avoid paying tax on the interest. Good idea?

ANSWER: The "kiddie tax" provision in the Tax Reform Act of 1986 put the kibosh on most such dodges. Annual interest, dividends and other so-called "unearned income" of a child under age 14 now is taxed at the parents' top federal income tax rate if the youngster's unearned income exceeds his or her $500 standard deduction and the greater of $500 or the itemized deductions directly related to the production of the unearned income.

Summed up, a family can't duck income tax on any more than $1,000 of a youngster's unearned income.

William A. Doyle, a syndicated columnist, welcomes written questions, but he can provide answers only through the column. Write to Doyle in care of the Manchester Herald, P.O. Box 591, Manchester 06040.

than the interest you would get on the CD. Both those "ifs" are most unlikely.

By swapping a low-interest mortgage for a higher-interest home equity loan, you would pay out more money in interest. Sure, you would have a bigger tax deduction, but you would still come up short.

You probably can get a home equity loan with lower interest than the 14.8 percent you are paying on your credit card debt. So taking out a equity loan and paying off the charge card balance makes sense. But taping a home equity credit line can become habit-forming and put you deep into hock.

The Indian government says at least 2,660 people were killed and 40,000 injured when methyl isocyanate leaked from a pesticide plant owned by a Union Carbide subsidiary on Dec. 3, 1984, in the world's worst industrial disaster.

"Unlawful court orders generate lawful appeals to higher courts," the company said. "Denying justice to Union Carbide Corp. ultimately does not help the Bhopal victims."

The company accused the Indian government of delaying final resolution of lawsuits stemming from the December 1984 gas leak at a Carbide plant in Bhopal, India, by first trying to sue Carbide in U.S. courts and then "by subsequently circumventing existing laws in India."

Sports in Brief

Coventry to face Shepaug

MERIDEN — Coventry High's baseball team will confront a formidable foe in a state Class S quarterfinal matchup today at 4:30 p.m. when it battles top-ranked Shepaug Valley of Washington at Ceppa Field. The Patriots are the eighth seed and advanced their record to 15-5 with a 3-0 blanking of Valley Regional of Deep River in second-round play. Shepaug, 17-1, moved into the round of eight with a 12-1 pasting of Stafford High.

East to play Monday at 4

East Catholic will meet Wolcott High on Monday at 4 p.m. at Southington High School in a state Class L Division quarterfinal baseball clash. East, the No. 5 seed and now 15-6, advanced with a 6-3 win over Naugatuck while Wolcott, the No. 13 seed, upset St. Bernard's, 4-0, to make it to the round of eight.

Midget football signups set

Registration for the Manchester Midget Football League will be Monday and Tuesday from 6 to 8 p.m. at the American Legion Hall and also Monday and Tuesday, June 13 and 14, at the American Legion Hall from 6-8 p.m. Late registration will be held August 10-12 from 6-8 p.m. at Charter Oak Park. The first practice will be Monday, August 15, from 6-8 p.m. at Martin School.

Any boys or girl between the ages of 10-13 is eligible to participate. He or she must have attained the age of 10 by Jan. 1, 1988 and cannot attain the age of 14 prior to Sept. 1, 1988. Birth certificates are required at registration.

Minimum weight is 70 pounds and the maximum weight prior to the first game is 130 pounds. There is a $15 fee for each player and $25 for two or more players and $10 for cheerleaders.

State track meets today

The Manchester High girls' track team will host the Class LL State Meet today beginning at 2:30 p.m. at Pete Wigren Track. The girls are one of the teams to beat for the LL title along with East Hartford High and Weaver High of Hartford. Meanwhile, the Manchester boys' squad will compete in the Class LL meet at East Hartford High.

The East Catholic girls' track contingent will participate in the Class L meet at Bethel High School while the Eagle boys will be in the Class L meet at Middletown High.

Dorsett dealt to Broncos

DALLAS — The Dallas Cowboys traded running back Tony Dorsett to the Denver Broncos Friday for a conditional 1989 draft choice.

"The draft choice could range from a fifth to a first, depending upon his performance next season," Cowboys spokesman Doug Todd said. The trade had been expected for several days. Dorsett had sought a trade since being demoted to a backup for Herschel Walker.

Dorsett announced last weekend that to facilitate the trade between Dallas and Denver he had agreed to forfeit about $2.4 million in deferred payments.

Indians deal for Black

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Kansas City Royals traded pitcher Bud Black to the Cleveland Indians Friday for designated hitter Pat Tabler.

"Tabler has established himself as one of the most effective RBI men and clutch hitters in the American League over the past several seasons," said John Schuerholz, Royals general manager. "We feel his acquisition continues to strengthen our overall team production and offense."

Tabler, 30, has a lifetime .289 average with 41 home runs and 355 RBIs.

Black, 30, has been with the Royals since 1982, when he was acquired from Seattle. With Kansas City, Black compiled a 56-57 record and a 3.73 earned run average.

Black's best year was 1984, when he was used exclusively as a starter and went 17-12 with a 3.12 ERA. This year, Black is 2-1 with a 4.91 ERA in 17 relief appearances.

Lopez maintains her lead

TOLEDO, Ohio — Nancy Lopez overcame her second straight opening-hole bogey to shoot a 2-under-par 70 Friday and maintain a one-stroke lead over England's Laura Davies after two rounds of the LPGA Jamie Farr Toledo Classic.

Lopez bogeyed the par-4, 400-yard first hole Friday, as she had a day earlier, but was flawless the rest of the way on the 6,235-yard course at Glangarry Country Club. She finished with a two-day total of 6-under-par 138, with her only two bogeys through 36 holes coming on No. 1.

Lopez, 31, is seeking her fourth victory of the year and the 40th of her career.

Hallet leads at Kemper

POTOMAC, Md. — Rookie Jim Hallet birdied four straight holes late in the round on the way to a 6-under-par 65 Friday that gave him a one-stroke lead over defending champion Tom Kite and Morris Hatahsky after two rounds of the $800,000 Kemper Open.

Mark Brooks shot a 67 and was next at 135. Four players, including John Mahaffey and 1985 Kemper champion Bill Glasson, were at 136.

Arizona State cops opener

OMAHA, Neb. — Rusty Kilgo, making his first start of the season, scattered nine hits in eight innings-plus to lead top-ranked Arizona State to a 4-2 victory over California Friday in the first game of the 1988 College World Series.

Kilgo, 11-2, who had made 28 relief appearances for the 57-11 Sun Devils, walked one and struck out six before tiring in the ninth.

Wilander's experience too much for Agassi

By Larry Siddons
The Associated Press

PARIS — The clowning, yahoing, crowd-pleasing charge of Andre Agassi ended one set short of the French Open final Friday, as the 18-year-old American's legs gave out to the experience of Mats Wilander.

After coming back from a 4-5 deficit to win both the fourth set and a standing ovation from the center court fans, then holding two break points in the opening game of the fifth set, Agassi fell to the two-time champion 4-6, 6-2, 7-5, 5-7, 6-0.

Viewed as the latest hope to raise American men's tennis out of the doldrums, Agassi left the crowd in cheers and in stitches. He once pretended to pay off a line judge whose call went in his favor and another time took an open umbrella from a fan and carried it onto court during a shower.

"It's the first time I've seen a tennis player with that attitude," Wilander said. "I think it's great, but I think it's going to be tough for him to keep it up. It's very important for tennis that he makes it."

In Sunday's championship match, his fifth in seven years, Wilander will meet 11th-seeded Henri Leconte of France, who smashed unseeded Jonas Svensson of Sweden 7-6, 6-2, 6-3. He is the first French finalist in Paris since Yannick Noah won the men's title in 1983.

Wilander holds an 8-2 lead in career meetings with Leconte and has not lost since May 1985.

"I feel great. I have nothing to lose, so I'm going to play the best I can," said Leconte. "I know I have the public behind me and I hope they'll be there for the match against Mats."

The women's title will be decided Saturday between defending champion Steffi Graf of West Germany and 13th-seeded Natalia Zvereva of the Soviet Union.

Graf, who became the youngest French Open women's champ last year at 17, is almost two years older than Zvereva.

Wilander, who reached the men's final for the second year in a row and the fifth time in the last seven, allowed the punk-haired Agassi just eight points in the last set, four of them in the first game.

Agassi's loss meant that for the fifth consecutive year the men's final in Paris will be played without an American contestant. It also meant that the U.S. title drought in the men's field that goes back to 1955 will continue.

Wilander said that, from what he saw from the 11th-ranked native of Las Vegas, Nev., the odds against U.S. success may be about to change.

"He's better than what he is, he's better than No. 11," Wilander said. "On clay, he's third or fourth in the world. The thing about him is, he doesn't mind winning matches and he doesn't mind losing matches. He has a good attitude. He's definitely going to be top 10 for years."

The crowd has made Agassi its favorite visitor. After becoming the youngest U.S. man to make a Grand Slam semifinal, he gave them a farewell to savor, both in tennis and showmanship.

"I appreciate the crowd," he said. "They've been pulling for me. The crowd brings out the best in me by far."

When Agassi makes a mistake, he yips in a high-pitched, cowboy-style "Yee-haw-haw." When his opponent makes a good shot, he often shouts "Yes!" and taps his racket in admiration.

There were few yips Friday. Agassi's potent forehand and backhand had Wilander on the run, bringing the American back from three games down to win the first set on a pinpoint lob.

Wilander got off to a fast start in the second set, too, going up 3-1 before a 15-minute rain delay. Agassi broke back just after play resumed with an inside-out forehand service return before Wilander won three games in a row to even the match.

The two exchanged service breaks before Wilander held for a 3-2 lead in the third set. Agassi saved two break points and held for 4-4 by plucking a hard Wilander forehand out of the air and sending it screaming down the line for a winner. He held for 5-5 in a game with winners thick on the ground, but Wilander broke for 6-5 on a backhand down the line that just kissed the corner and held for the set on a lob that brought a congratulatory tap of the racket from Agassi.

Down 3-1 in the fourth set, Agassi raised the level of his court antics and his tennis. He broke back, held for 3-3 on a backhand passing shot down the line and broke for a 4-3 lead before Wilander broke again. In the ninth game, disputed line call gave Agassi the first point; as Wilander returned to serve, the American trotted up to the judge who made the call and tried to shake his hand but was shooed away.

Wilander held for a 5-4 lead. Agassi spicing the game by taking a big, blue umbrella from a fan and standing beneath it as rain splattered the court, and the American then dominated the set.

He pretended to pass money to a line judge who called a fault, on his way to breaking for 6-5 with a backhand return down the line. Serving to tie the match, Agassi dropped the first point of the 12th game, then let loose four winners.

Young against younger in the women's final

By Savaitore Zanca
The Associated Press

PARIS — When defending champion Steffi Graf plays Natalia Zvereva of the Soviet Union Saturday in the women's championship of the French Open, it will be a battle of the young against the younger.

Graf became the youngest French Open women's champ a year ago, when she won the title one week shy of her 18th birthday.

But in a tournament where youth and upsets have ruled, the West German was the oldest semifinalist, at 18 years, 11 months, three weeks, and faces an opponent almost two years younger in the final.

"I feel terrible. My career is over," Graf joked in an overdramatic voice that would have done a soap-opera actress proud.

Graf has made the finals of the last five Grand Slam tournaments, winning the Australian Open this year in addition to last year's French Open. She lost at Wimbledon and the U.S. Open.

Zvereva, 17 a month ago, is in her first major final. She won the French, Wimbledon and U.S. Open junior titles last year and was recognized as the world junior champion.

She is the first Soviet to gain a Grand Slam final since her occasional coach, Olga Morozova, lost to Chris Evert in both the 1974 Wimbledon and French Open.

Saturday's champion collects more than $246,000. The loser pockets $123,000. Zvereva's money will go to the Soviet Tennis Federation, and it will give here a stipend that should more than cover her expenses.

Although Graf and Zvereva have never played each other before, the top-seeded Graf goes into the final as a heavy favorite after her semifinal victory over Gabriela Sabatini.

But then Martina Navratilova was a heavy favorite when she met Zvereva, seeded 13th, in the fourth round. Zvereva eliminated the two-time champion 6-3, 7-6.

The Soviet was the survivor of the error-filled semifinal against Australia's Nicole Provis. With Navratilova and seven-time champion Evert out early, the bottom half of the draw was left to a battle of players who were the No. 1 and No. 2 seeds of last year's junior tournament.

"Zvereva has the ability to change the game, hit drop shots," Graf said. "I have to play powerful, play my game."

Graf has powered her way through the women's draw. Before her 6-3, 7-6, victory over Sabatini, she lost just 10 games in five matches, a number when she said she was "experimenting."

A confident Zvereva said she has some surprises in store. "I know how to play against her tactically and mentally, so I will try my best," she said. "I hope I will play my best game and the match will be great."

Zvereva has had a spotted record this year, her first full season on the women's pro circuit. She won the junior final last year the day after Graf took her women's title.

"It's a big, big, big difference," Zvereva said. "Can you imagine? That's the juniors and this year women's."

Saturday's final is her first of 1988 and she has a 19-8 record for the year. She was top-seeded in a Strasbourg tournament just before the French but was beaten in the semifinals.

Graf, meanwhile, enters her sixth final of the year and 34th of her career. She has lost just twice this year, both times to Sabatini, winning four tournaments in 1988, and has 23 for her career.

Stafford looks for more fans

In an effort to create some new fans, Stafford Speedway will go with its first ever Enduro Sunday at 1 p.m., at the half-mile track. In fact, the oval has been redesigned with two dogleg paved strips at the front and rear of the track giving the plant some 3/4 of a mile in racing surface.

According to the track information, the design best utilizes the portion of the track and its barriers and walls. Up until Stafford bounced the big bore NASCAR Modifieds, this would have been unheard of at the original center of NASCAR Modified racing. We would guess that it's the track's way of bringing in some cash, heightening the interest and getting some fans into the grandstands.

"We have had many requests to provide Enduro racing at Stafford and have figured out a unique and different way of providing some entertaining racing," said Stafford GM Ed Yerrington. Enduros at other tracks just utilize ovals while Stafford's efforts will force the cars to make right and left hand turns like a road course. Enduro are races that start Street Stock type cars bumper-to-bumper. Sometimes, there are as many as 100 cars on the track. Stafford plans heats and a 100-lap feature. The event is strictly "crasharama" and many of the purist fans won't support this type of race.

However, the tracks running this type of program do get the folks that are looking for the "crash and burn" show.

Ben Dodge Jr. and his racing talk show, Motorsports Line is back on the air on WHYN-AM in Springfield, Mass. The program has a format starting at 6:10 p.m. Thursday nights starting on June 9. It will have a call-in session for the fans. New Britain's Mike McLaughlin and Reggie Ruggiero of Forestville will be guests of the first program.

Riverside Speedway in Agawam, Mass., goes with the Manchester Oil Heat 100 for the NASCAR Modifieds Saturday night. Down at the New London-Waterford Speedway it's a four division card with the NEMA Midgets coming in for the first time in years. The same night at Seekonk, Pro Stocks, going for $1,200 to win top the card. Rehoboth, Mass., driver Bugs Stevens goes for another win. Sunday afternoon will see the NESC Motocross circuit at the Central Village, Conn., track.

Girl faces arrest

WEST HAVEN (AP) — A 12-year-old girl who was threatened with arrest when she staged a sit-down strike on the pitcher's mound to protest Little League orders that she move to a higher division plans to continue her protests at the last four games of the season, her father says.

As 100 spectators watched, a tearful Felicia Lewis, wearing the uniform of the Allingtown Volunteer Fire Department, was led away by her parents after local police warned she would be charged with disturbing the peace if she didn't let the all-girls softball game resume.

West Haven Little League officials reiterated Tuesday that Felicia must move up because she is too old and talented for the Allingtown Volunteer Fire Department team, where she was assigned in April at the beginning of her rookie season.

Ex-NHL player Spencer slain

RIVIERA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Brian Spencer, a former NHL player acquitted last year of murdering a restaurant owner, died Friday of a gunshot wound to the chest.

His companion at the time of the incident, Gregory Scott Cook, told police Spencer, 39, was shot in Cook's truck during a robbery attempt that followed a crack cocaine buy late Thursday night.

But police Capt. Jerry Poreba said there are questions about Cook's account. "We have a forensics team going over the vehicle to see if his story matches the facts," said Poreba. He emphasized, however, that Cook, 35, is not now considered a suspect, and is cooperating with detectives.

Spencer, nicknamed Spinner for his style on the ice, played in the NHL from 1969 to 1979, for the Toronto Maple Leafs, Buffalo Sabres, New York Islanders and Pittsburgh Penguins.

He was arrested in January 1987 for the slaying of a West Palm Beach restaurateur, but was acquitted in October.

Cook told police that "they had been out Thursday night partying at several bars," then stopped at a known crack cocaine area to make a buy, Poreba said. After purchasing the cocaine, they stopped about 20 blocks away to look for cigarettes in Cook's pickup truck, according to his account.

A white car then pulled up beside them, and a man carrying a large-caliber pistol got out, walked to the driver's side of the truck and demanded money.

Then, according to Cook, the man fired a shot, hitting Spencer across the cab in the passenger seat. "The bullet went through his upper arm, into his chest cavity, into the heart and exited into the right lung," said Poreba.

Cook said he immediately pulled away, striking the suspect's car, and brought Spencer to a nearby fire station.

Spencer was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Mary's Hospital early Friday. Doctors extracted a .38- or .357-caliber bullet from his body. The man in the white car is being sought, said Poreba.

The last time Spencer was in the news was a year ago after police arrested him on the word of his former girlfriend Diane Fialco, who told police she believed Spencer killed restaurant owner Michael Dalfo in 1982.

She received immunity, but U.S. Customs agents told the jury the escort service Fialco had worked for was involved in a sophisticated prostitution and money-laundering business.

No gun was found and the woman testified she had not actually seen Dalfo slain. A bartender testified Spencer was drinking in his bar the night of the slaying, and a jury took only one hour to acquit him.

Barkley gets another shot at title

By Ed Schuyler Jr.
The Associated Press

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Iran Barkley, who slipped up in his first shot at a world title, will try again Monday night.

He will challenge Thomas Hearns for the World Boxing Council middleweight championship 7 1/2 months after he lost a 15-round decision to Sumbu Kalamby in a bid for the World Boxing Association title at Leghorn, Italy.

"There were all kinds of problems," he said Friday in recalling the Kalamby fight. One was the slick canvas.

"I was slipping all over the ring," Barkley said. "Everything was in that guy's favor. I was hurting him more than he was hurting me. But I never had the balance. I kept slipping.

"The timing is much better now," Barkley added. "Maybe that wasn't the right time."

The oddsmakers don't feel Monday night will be the right time for the 28-year-old challenger from New York.

The 29-year-old Hearns, who is the only fighter to win four titles, was a 3 1/2-1 favorite to win the scheduled 12-round featured bout of a championship tripleheader indoors at the Las Vegas Hilton.

"I think Iran Barkley is a very good fighter," Hearns said. "He shows ability to punch and ability to take a good shot, but he hasn't been in there with me yet."

It will be Hearns' first defense of the title he won when he knocked out Juan Domingo Roldan in the fourth round last Oct. 29 at Las Vegas. That was the 38th knockout victory on Hearns' 45-2 record.

Barkley has a record of 24-4, with 15 knockouts. The other two champions on the card also were favored to win scheduled 12-round bouts.

Roger Mayweather will defend the WBC super lightweight championship against Harold Brazier, who turned pro at age 26 six years ago.

Virgil Hill will defend the WBA light heavyweight championship against Ramzi Hassan, who turned pro in 1982 after moving to the United States from Jordan. He lives at San Diego.

Slaney looks to outrun injury bug

NEW YORK (AP) — There aren't many races that Mary Decker Slaney runs that she is not trying to beat an invisible but constant challenger — injury.

When the 29-year-old joins the field for Saturday's Leggs Mini Marathon, she will be one year removed from surgery to repair an Achilles tendon which was more seriously damaged than doctors first thought. That surgery was eight months after an operation on the right Achilles tendon.

And while Slaney is among the favorites, she can't totally escape the spectre of pain which has marked her career.

"The concern I have is that I haven't run many 10K races," Slaney said Friday. "Since I have a vast history of injuries, I'm concerned about the hills" which are part of the 6.2-mile course through Central Park.

The Achilles surgery last June essentially ended Slaney's track season for 1987. She admits that it resulted from the zeal to succeed that once drove her to run with pain, only to do more damage to herself.

Moyer, Cubs shut out Mets

NL Roundup

NEW YORK (AP) — Jamie Moyer pitched a three-hitter. Ryne Sandberg hit a three-run homer and Vance Law had four hits as the Chicago Cubs defeated the New York Mets 5-0 Friday night.

Moyer, 3-4, who ended a personal four-game losing streak, struck out four, walked none and retired the last 10 batters in a row. It was the second shutout and third complete game of his career. Moyer is 3-0 lifetime against the Mets. He allowed a single to Mookie Wilson leading off the fourth and singles to Wilson and Keith Miller in the sixth.

It was the fifth shutout by Chicago pitchers this season, equaling their 1987 total. It was only the second time this season the Mets were shut out.

Moyer's only other shutout was against Montreal on Aug. 16, 1986. His last complete game was June 22, 1987, against Pittsburgh.

Bob Ojeda, 4-5, has lost three games in a row and four of his last five.

Rafael Palmeiro was hit by an Ojeda pitch to open the third inning. Andre Dawson singled and Sandberg followed with his ninth homer of the season and fourth in his last five games.

Darrin Jackson led off the fourth with his second homer to make it 4-0. In the seventh, Sandberg reached second on a throwing error by second baseman Keith Miller, stole third, and scored on a single by Jody Davis.

Pirates 2, Expos 1

PITTSBURGH (AP) — John Smiley pitched a one-hitter and pinch-hitter Mike Diaz drove in the winning run with one out in the bottom of the ninth as the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Montreal Expos 2-1 Friday night.

Smiley, 5-4, struck out a career-high eight and walked two in pitching the Pirates' first one-hitter since Jose DeLeon lost to Cincinnati 2-0 on Aug. 24, 1984. The only Montreal hit was a two-out triple by Tim Wallach in the fourth. Wallach scored on Smiley's balk.

With one out in the ninth, Mike LaValiere doubled against John Dopper, 1-3. John Cangelosi ran for LaValiere and Diaz lined a single down the left-field line as the Pirates ended a three-game losing streak. It was the first time in 18 games this season the Expos had lost when leading after the seventh inning.

Jose Lind led the game in the eighth with his first major-league homer in 367 at-bats.

Dopper allowed nine hits, walked one and struck out one.

Cardinals 5, Phillies 4

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tom Brunansky homered off the facade in left field with one out in the 10th inning as St. Louis defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 5-4 for the Cardinals' fourth straight victory and eighth in their last 10 games.

After Willie McGee flied out to right, Brunansky hit his eighth homer on a 2-0 pitch from Greg Harris, 1-2. Todd Worrell, 3-2, the fifth St. Louis pitcher, came on to retire Mike Schmidt with two outs and runners on first and third in the ninth and then pitched the 10th. The Cardinals' last three victories have been extra-inning games.

St. Louis is 7-0 in games that Brunansky has homered. Brunansky, who also singled twice, has a 19-game hitting streak, the longest in the National League this season.

The Cardinals tied the score in the eighth, aided by two Philadelphia errors. Vince Coleman opened with a walk, went to third one out later on McGee's double and scored when right fielder Mike Young threw past second baseman Juan Samuel on the relay.

Kent Tekulve replaced starter Bruce Ruffin and retired Brunansky on a flyout to right with McGee moving to third. After Bob Horner walked, McGee scored when first baseman Hayes bobbled Jose Oquendo's grounder.

BACK SAFELY — Boston's Ellis Burks, right, dives back safely to first base as Toronto first baseman Fred McGriff watches during first-inning action Friday night at Fenway Park. The Blue Jays won, 6-3.

Blue Jays beat Bosox again

BOSTON (AP) — Fred McGriff had a single, double and a triple, scoring three runs and driving in one, as the Toronto Blue Jays won their fourth straight game Friday night, a 6-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Kelly Gruber hit a pair of RBI doubles and Ernie Whitt drove in two runs with a sacrifice fly and a single as the Blue Jays extended Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd's pitching slump.

Despite a 5-4 record, Boyd has allowed 36 runs, one unearned, in seven starts since May 3. Pitching just 33.1-innings in that span, he has allowed 49 hits and 17 walks with a 9.45 ERA.

Todd Stottlemyre, 2-7, earned the victory after relieving injured starter John Cerutti with runners at first and third and no one out in the fourth inning.

Stottlemyre allowed a pop-fly RBI single to Spike Owen but held the Red Sox to two more singles in his five-inning stint. Tom Henke pitched the ninth for his 10th save.

Yankees 4, Orioles 0

BALTIMORE (AP) — Tommy John, New York's 45-year-old sinkerballer, scattered six singles in 7.2-3 innings and Claudell Washington hit a two-run homer as the Yankees beat the Baltimore Orioles 4-0 Friday night.

John, 4-1, walked two, struck out one and didn't allow more than one hit in an inning. He was relieved by Cecilio Guante with two out and the bases empty in the eighth. Guante retired all four batters he faced.

Rickey Henderson stole three bases, giving him 39 for the season and setting up New York's first two runs against rookie Jose Bautista, 2-4.

Indians 6, Tigers 3

DETROIT (AP) — Joe Carter became the first player in Cleveland history to hit 100 home runs and steal 100 bases, leading the Indians to a 6-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers on Friday night.

Carter's two-out homer started a four-run first inning against Walt Terrell, 2-3, who was knocked out in the first inning. Carter doubled and scored the first of two second-inning runs.

Cleveland's Julio Franco singled on the game's first pitch, extending his hitting streak to 21 games, longest in the major leagues this season. Willie Upshaw lined into a double play but the Indians followed with six consecutive hits — Carter's 11th homer and five singles.

Cleveland's victory was its 33rd in 52 games this year. The Indians needed 92 games last year to reach that total.

Royals 3, Mariners 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bret Saberhagen pitched a six-hitter and Kurt Stillwell hit his sixth home run as the Kansas City Royals defeated the Seattle Mariners 3-1 Friday night.

Saberhagen, 7-5, struck out two and walked two. Loser Mike Campbell, 3-7, went seven innings, allowing nine hits and all the Kansas City runs.

Athletics 8, Twins 5

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Dave Parker and Dave Henderson had a two-run double and Jose Canseco hit a mammoth home run, leading the Oakland Athletics to an 8-5 victory over the Minnesota Twins on Friday night.

The Athletics' eighth victory in their last nine contests — but first since Aug. 3, 1986, at the Metrodome, where they lost all seven games a year ago — gave them a 10-game lead over the defending world champion Twins in the American League West. Minnesota lost for just the second time in its last 12 games.

Oakland's Dave Stewart, 9-3, snapped a personal three-game losing streak in beating the Twins for only the second time in his career. He survived Greg Gagne's second-inning grand slam that gave the Twins a 4-0 lead and went eight innings, allowing six hits.

Loser Les Straker, 2-3, couldn't protect the lead provided by Gagne's first career grand slam and fifth homer of the year. Canseco's estimated 456-foot homer started Oakland's scoring with two out in the third inning. It was the major-league-leading 14th homer for Canseco.

Brewers 8, Angels 2

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Tom Filer won his third straight game since being promoted from the minors, extending his seven-year unbeaten streak to 11 games, and B.J. Surhoff and Glenn Braggs homered, leading the Milwaukee Brewers to an 8-2 victory over the California Angels on Friday night.

Rangers 9, White Sox 3

CHICAGO (AP) — Ruben Sierra snapped a 1-10 slump with a three-run double, another double and a single, leading the Texas Rangers to a 9-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox on Friday night.

Winner Ray Hayward, 4-2, gave up two runs and two hits in six innings. In the third inning, the rookie left-hander walked four batters in a row, gave up a double, committed a balk and threw a wild pitch but escaped with only two runs.

Masse to make decision Sunday

Manchester native Bill Masse, drafted in the seventh round by the New York Yankees in Wednesday's Major League amateur baseball draft, will make the decision about his future Sunday.

Masse met with Yankee front office personnel on Thursday at Yankee Stadium. He was encouraged to sign with the American League team now, bypassing the Olympics that will be held in Seoul, South Korea, this summer. Masse said, however, the ultimate decision will be his.

"(The Yankees) said if my ultimate goal is to play major league baseball, I should start now," Masse said. "But they left the option open for me."

Masse met with Yankee scouting director Bill Livesy, whose son went to school with Masse at Davidson College. "He saw me play and it's good to have someone in your corner. There's no problem if I don't sign now and it's a tough decision to make. They want to know by Sunday."

Masse is one of 41 collegians who have been invited to attend an Olympic tryout camp in Millington, Tennessee, that opens on June 12.

Masse had a standout senior campaign at Wake Forest University where he batted .422 with 24 homers and 77 RBIs. He was the fourth selection by the Yankees, who didn't have a pick until the fourth round.

He could sign a major league contract and still play with the Olympic team. Any bonus money would be put in a trust fund until the Olympics are over.

If the 21-year-old Masse opts for the Olympics, he'll report to spring training camp next February. If he signs and elects to report immediately, Masse said he was told he'd be assigned to Albany, a Double A club. Masse said he was told that would only be the third time in the last 15 years someone out of college would be assigned to a Double A club in the organization.

Lakers are glad Game 7 at home

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers have the Dallas Mavericks where they want them for the seventh and deciding game of their Western Conference finals — on the Lakers' homecourt.

Coach Pat Riley said the Lakers played hard during the regular season so they could have a game like the one Saturday in The Forum.

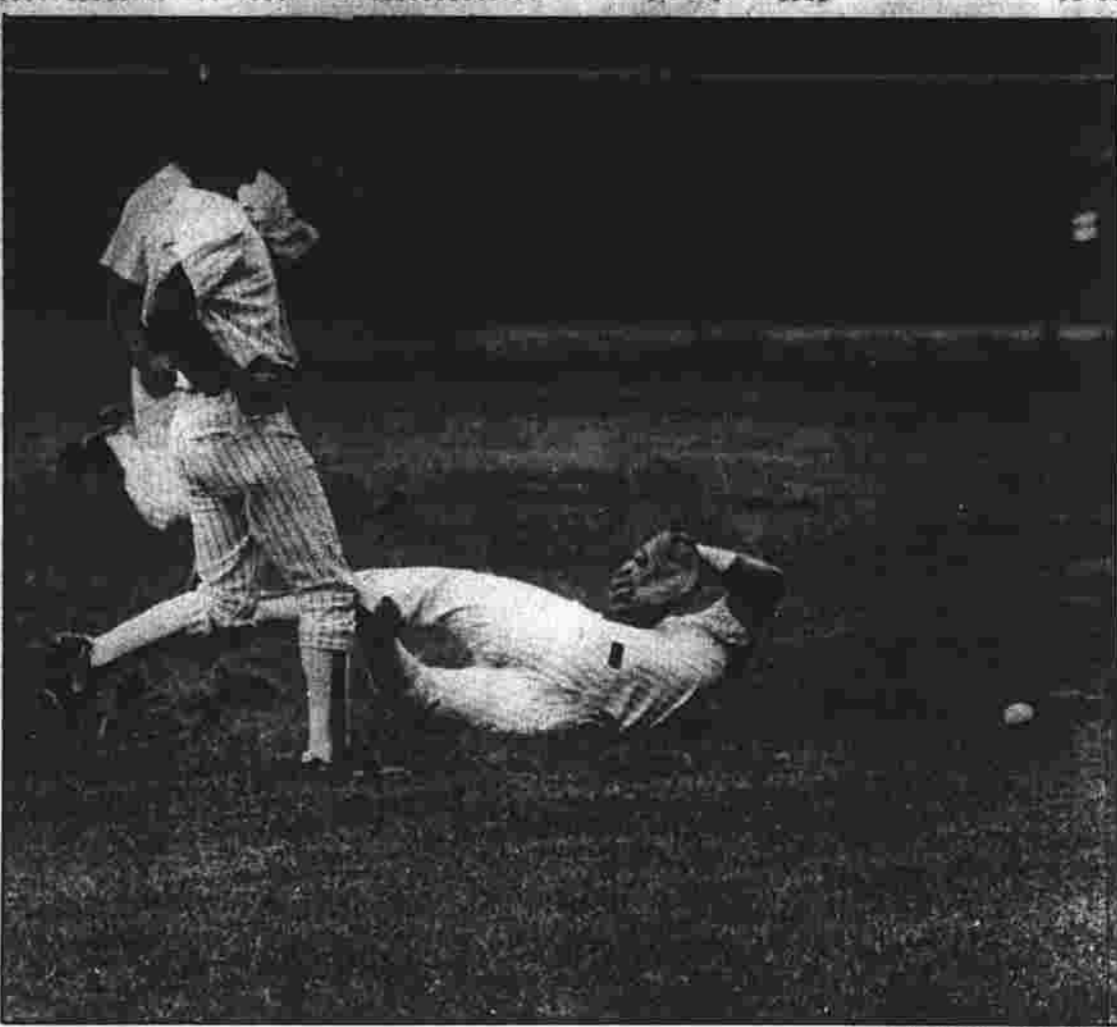

"The homecourt means a lot in this league and we played hard all season to gain that advantage," he said. "Be ready for Saturday because there will be some fireworks. Saturday is all that's left. We worked hard for 82 games for the advantage."

Dallas is 6-9 in playoff games against Los Angeles in the Forum, including three recent routs.

Los Angeles, the defending champion, would qualify for its seventh trip to the NBA Finals in nine seasons with a victory in the game which begins at 3:30 p.m. EDT.

Dallas defeated the Lakers 105-103 at Reunion Arena on Thursday night, holding serve in the homecourt-dominated series.

Dallas has never been this far in the eight-year history of the franchise. The Lakers hold 10 NBA titles, five of them when they were in Minnesota.

Coventry breezes into semis

STORRS — For the No. 1 seeded and unbeaten Coventry High girls' softball team, its Class S state tournament quarterfinal matchup with eighth-seeded Stafford High Friday afternoon turned out to be nothing short of a yawner. This game was never in doubt as the Patriots trounced the Bulldogs, 14-1, to advance to the semifinals Tuesday at 3:30 p.m.

Coventry, the defending champion, would qualify for its seventh trip to the NBA Finals in nine seasons with a victory in the game which begins at 3:30 p.m. EDT.

of the seventh, allowed just two hits, walked two and struck out 11. Stafford averted the shutout in the seventh when, with two outs, Marcy Litus singled down the left field line to score Kristi Sweeney. The latter collected two of the four Bulldog hits.

"I thought Kim did a real nice job," Coventry Coach Rich Page said. "She was on top of her game."

The Patriots, who were the visiting team, took a quick 2-0 lead in the first inning abetted by four Bulldog miscues. Hodina led off with a bunt single, stole second and scored when Stafford catcher Keri Vail's throw sailed into center field.

A couple of dropped throws by Bulldog first baseman Sharon Smith kept the inning going allowing Danehy to score the second run of the frame.

"It's no secret what you have to do against Coventry, you have to play defense and you can't let them score right off the bat like that," Stafford Coach Steve Levinthal said. "You make four errors against a team like that, you're never going to beat them. Nothing to take away from their pitcher (but) we lost it in the first inning."

Page also felt the first inning was pivotal. "They (Stafford) opened the door right away in the first inning," he said. "I think they got down right after that."

Leading, 3-0, in the fourth, Coventry exploded for six runs off Stafford starter and loser Stacy MacDonald. Junior Nektaria Gliss and Hodina each drilled two-run doubles and Juniors Core Caginello and Jen Daniels collected RBI-walks to put the Patriots up, 9-0.

"Once we got six runs (in the fourth) they knew it was going to be a long day," Page said. Mizesko (sacrifice fly) and VanKruiningen (single) each drove in runs in Coventry's five-run sixth frame in which Stafford committed two more errors.

Levinthal added the Bulldog's No. 1 pitcher quit the team last week.

CELTICS SENT PACKING

48 — MANCHESTER HERALD, Saturday, June 4, 1988

LOOKING AROUND — Detroit's Joe Dumars, left, passes around Boston's Dennis Johnson during first-quarter action in Game 6 Friday night at the Pontiac Silverdome. The Pistons, who won two games in Boston, eliminated the Celtics in six games in the best-of-seven series.

By Bill Barnard
The Associated Press

PONTIAC, Mich. — The Detroit Pistons, with reserve guard Vinnie Johnson scoring 24 points, earned their first trip to the NBA finals with a 95-90 victory over the Boston Celtics on Friday night.

Detroit's 4-2 victory in the Eastern Conference finals marked the end of the Boston coaching career of K.C. Jones, who in April announced his retirement effective at the end of the season.

Detroit's depth overwhelmed the Celtics in the final game and in the series, and the Celtics' chances dimmed considerably when center Robert Parish missed all but six minutes with a knee injury.

The Pistons' bench outscored the Celtics' 46-20 in the game and 190-58 in the series. With all the Boston starters except Kevin McHale, who had 33 points, in a shooting slump, the Celtics couldn't overcome the difference.

Larry Bird had 16 points and stayed under 40 percent shooting for the series. Adrian Dantley had 22 points and reserve center James Edwards 15 for the Pistons.

The Fort Wayne Pistons lost in the championship series in 1955 and 1956, and they spent only one more season in Indiana before moving to Detroit in 1957. Since then, the Pistons hadn't won a division title until this season.

The Pistons will face the winner of the Western Conference finals between Dallas and the Los Angeles Lakers, who play their seventh game Saturday.

The Celtics, winners of 16 NBA titles, were trying for their fifth consecutive trip to the championship round. But despite winning Game 2 in double overtime and Game 4 by one point, they couldn't overcome the shooting woes that plagued them throughout the series.

Boston, trailing by two points at halftime despite shooting 37.5 percent from the field, made only five of 19 shots in the third quarter and was outscored 27-17 in the period.

Johnson had eight points in the third quarter, helping the Pistons take a 75-63 lead that was never threatened.
