Adopt a pet: Rambo, Buffy

By Barbara Richmond
Manchester Herald

Two of the dogs mentioned in last week's column have been claimed by their owners. Liz, the featured dog, and a male Labrador retriever cross were picked up at the pound during the week.
This week's featured pet is a lively little male, named Rambo.
Rambo is a small, lively dog that Dog Warden Richard Rand says is part-Chihuahua. He is about 2 years old and won't get any larger. He's black with just a small white spot on his chest.
When picked up on Kenney Street, June 22, he was wearing a black, studded collar. Rambo will be ready for adoption today if he has not been claimed by his owner.
There were only three other new dogs at the pound, as of Tuesday. There is an 8-week old female mixed breed. She's tri-colored with her main color being a silvery grey.
When picked up on McDivitt Drive on June 27 she was wearing a white flea collar.
A male, black and tan shepherd cross was found roaming on Tolland Turnpike on June 27. He was wearing a chevron chain collar.
The third one is a male shepherd-husky cross. He's only about 5 months old and is medium-sized. He was found roaming on Westhill Street and was also wearing a choke chain collar.

Rambo

Buffy

The dog pound is located on town property near the landfill area of Olcott Street. Rand is at the pound weekdays from noon to 1 p.m. The phone number at the pound is 643-6642. If there is no one on duty at the pound, call the police department, 646-4555 and they will get in touch with the dog warden.
There is someone on duty at the pound Monday through Friday from 6 to 9 p.m.
There is a $5 fee to adopt a dog and the new owner must see that the dog is licensed. Before it's licensed it must have its rabies shot.
Aid to Helpless Animals Inc.

is always seeking good homes for the many cats and kittens the organization takes in.
This week's featured pet is a buff-colored kitten named Buffy. The kitten has a few brothers and sisters that need good homes. Their mother is Patches, the cat featured in last week's column.
If anyone is willing to adopt a cat or kitten call one of the following numbers: 666-7000, 623-0489, 242-2136 or 693-6138.
Another group that has many cats and kittens needing good homes is the Glastonbury-based Protectors of Animals. The phone numbers to call for this group are: 633-2164 or 659-3166.

Thoughts

Usually we want to influence our children for the good. We wish to have them follow the path in life we know would be best and most beneficial. True concern is seen in our parent-child relationships, for we know values are being passed down with care, as well as training in life's difficult choices.
A deep concern was burning in the heart of Jesus as he passed down His final desires to His followers. With true care He instructed them in the message to be preached, giving them authority by the nature of the message itself. What good news! The divine gospel is given to be spread to all persons everywhere. A message of hope from the heart of One Who desires that not any should perish, but that all should come to repentance, so to enjoy life more abundantly.
Such is the greatness of Jesus the Christ. For us to go out giving this deeper love of Christ is a difficult thing to do. Truly only Jesus has the power to be inclusive of all persons in His love, and desires for each of us to experience this love and power for victorious living. Praise the Lord for His concern for us and goodness to us in everyday living!

Teen-age suicides tripled

By Anita M. Caldwell
Manchester Herald

Since 1950, suicides among teen-agers has tripled, according to figures presented by Sheri Dorfman, school social worker for the Granby school system.
In a talk Wednesday night at Concordia Lutheran Church on Pitkin Street, Dorfman spoke about recognizing the signals of potential suicides and suicide attempts as well as ways to help prevent the act.
Her talk came after the suicides of two students from Howell Cheney Regional Vocational Technical School in this spring. But the talk was not a result of those suicides. It was given primarily to help educate the community, said Linda Habern, administrative and educational coordinator at Crossroads, the drug and alcohol counseling and prevention agency that sponsored the event.
"There's a real lack of communication between people," Habern said, adding that many social changes have contributed to teen suicides.
"If you pitch in and help Jack, he won't let you down," state Rep. Robert Frankel, majority leader of the House of Representatives, told supporters gathered at the hearing room of the Lincoln Center.
Frankel and state Rep. William Cibes, deputy speaker of the House, came to Manchester to support Thompson's candidacy for another term as representative from Manchester's 13th Assembly District.
"We're here this evening because we want Jack re-elected," Frankel said.
Thompson, a former member of the House of Representatives, is a candidate for every spot on the General Assembly's Appropriations Committee, the Human Services Committee, and the Environment Committee.
Frankel said it is unusual for first termers to be asked to present bills to the House and guide them through, but Thompson has done that many times.
"He seems to have a knack for saying the right thing at the right time," Frankel said.
Thompson, a former member of Manchester, said he served with some outstanding people in town, including his father.
"It came as a pleasant experience to discover that the quality of people serving in the Legislature is also high in ability, interest in service, and dedication to our state."
He said his term in the Legislature was a learning experience, and that he was able to contribute to resolving issues through committee discussions.

TALKING POLITICS — State Rep. Robert F. Frankel and state Rep. William C. Cibes Jr. chat with state Rep. John Thompson at Thompson's re-election announcement Wednesday. The two pledged support for their fellow Democrat.

State Rep. John Thompson, D-Manchester, announced Wednesday he would seek re-election as about 40 supporters looked on.

Bolton Board of Ed divided over new election proposal

By Andrew J. Davis
Manchester Herald

BOLTON — Members of the Board of Education and the school superintendent had mixed reactions Wednesday over a proposal by the Charter Revision Commission to change the way school board members are elected.
The change was recommended Tuesday by the commission, but it would have to go through a number of steps before being voted on by residents.
The proposal would allow for the possible change of majority membership on the school board every year. Thompson, a member of the commission and a Republican member of the school board, said Tuesday. Currently, there are four Republicans and three Democrats on the board.
"I believe the board is so non-political, it doesn't make a difference," said Republican member Michael Parsons. "But I'm in favor of the new one (system)."
Parsons said he did not like the current method that guarantees at least two seats to each party every other year under minority representation rules. By ensuring seats, there is the possibility that parties will nominate candidates only to fill their slate, and not because the candidates would be competent members, he said.
The proposed system would award seats to the highest vote-getters as long as the number of members from one party does not exceed five, Manning has said. If the number from one party does exceed the limit, the highest vote-getters from the minority party would be awarded seats until the limit is reached, he said.
That would replace the current system of guaranteeing seats to each party, which results in the same majority every other year, Manning said. During years when three seats are open, the majority on the board can change since an odd number of candidates are elected, he said.
Such arguments did not persuade member David Fernald or Superintendent Richard E. Packman.
"I don't like either (election procedure)," Fernald said. "They should make the Board of Education apolitical."

Andover man named town senior planner

By Nancy Conclmon
Manchester Herald

An Andover resident and senior planner for the Capitol Region Council of Governments has been appointed senior planner for the town.
Stuart Popper will take over as senior planner July 18, replacing Robert B. Hannon, who will attend the University of Connecticut Law School this fall and pursue a career in land-use law. Popper, who lives on Basildon Road in Andover, is also a member of the Andover Inland Wetlands Commission.
As senior planner, he will be responsible for coordinating the development review process for zoning and subdivision applications and wetlands permits. He will also draft new regulations and staff the Planning and Zoning Commission.
His salary range will be between $29,706 and $5,648, according to the town Personnel Department. He was one of 11 applicants for the position, department officials said.
Before working at CRCOG, he was a land use analyst with the Hartford law firm of Levin and D'Agostino. A member of the American Planning Association, Popper has a bachelor's degree in geography and environmental science from the University of Connecticut and a master's degree with a concentration in urban planning from Central Connecticut State University.

His knowledge of physical planning and Connecticut law will ease the transition from Mr. Hannon," Planning Director Mark Pellegrini said.
Hannon, senior planner for two years, announced plans to resign in April to attend law school. Pellegrini said Hannon will leave at the end of July.
School board picks Perkins
School board member Susan Perkins was named chairman of the board's Personnel and Finance committee during a meeting this week.
She replaces Joseph V. Camposeo, who resigned from the school board earlier this month.
James Morancey, who replaced Camposeo on the board, was named chairman of the Personnel and Finance, and Building and Sites-Transportation committees.

MNH appoints VP of nursing

By Anita M. Caldwell
Manchester Herald

The former associate director of surgical nursing at Saint Raphael Hospital in New Haven has been named vice president of nursing services at Manchester Memorial Hospital.
Ann B. Richard will assume her new duties Sept. 6, said Manchester Memorial Hospital spokesman Andy Beck today. The appointment was made by hospital President Michael R. Gallacher.
Beck said the hospital conducted a nationwide search and selected Richard as one of four applicants who was interviewed for the position. She was appointed following a series of extensive interviews with management, staff, physicians and trustees, he said.
"We're very pleased," Beck said. "I think her credentials coupled with her interpersonal skills will be up to meeting the challenges of delivering high quality care."
"I'm very anxious to assume that role, partly because we have an organization at Manchester Memorial Hospital that is willing to develop this department, Richard said today.
Richard described her new job as a step up from her position at St. Raphael Hospital. At St. Raphael, she was in charge of 150 beds, while at Manchester she will be in charge of 240.

"It is a larger responsibility," she said.
Richard, a registered nurse with a master's degree in science, comes to the hospital from the Hospital of Saint Raphael in New Haven where she has served as associate director of general surgical nursing and specialties since December of 1986, and concurrently as Total Nursing Care project consultant since May of 1986.
As an administrator at Saint Raphael's, she was responsible for five nursing units, the intensive rehabilitation and overnight stay units, and the intravenous therapy department. She also managed the immediate care unit of Total Nursing Care, which is a nursing delivery system model.
Richard also has experience as a nutritional support clinician, head nurse, assistant head nurse at Hartford Hospital as well as staff nurse in major surgery there. Richard was also staff nurse in the premature nursery at D.C. General Hospital in Washington, D.C.
Her work has been published in several magazines on such topics as home health care and kidney transplants.

DiRosa will name ad hoc park panel

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Manchester Herald

Mayer Peter P. DiRosa Jr. said today he hopes to appoint an ad hoc committee next week to put together plans for the use of state money for the Hockanum River Linear Park.
The move is in accordance with a recommendation made earlier this month by Planning Director Mark Pellegrini, who said such a committee was needed because of differences between several town boards over how funds for the park improvement should be spent.
The town should be receiving $438,000 sometime after the first of July, DiRosa said. Another $1 million is contingent upon the town's preparing an acceptable plan for use of the money.
Putting together such a plan would have about five or six members, DiRosa said.
DiRosa said that the formation of the committee has the support of the Democratic majority on the town Board of Directors. The board is to meet next Tuesday.
Dr. Douglas Smith, chairman of the Hockanum River Linear Park Commission and Arthur Glaeser, chairman of the Conservation Commission, have proposed acquiring additional land for the park, while the Advisory Park and Recreation Commission has proposed improving existing facilities.

Plans for the park have also been discussed by a planning committee on the park and a recreation committee formed this year by Director Stephen T. Cassano. The latter group has identified improvements to Union Pond as a priority project.
In a memorandum to Town Manager Robert B. Weiss earlier this month, Pellegrini wrote, "I strongly recommend that the Board of Directors form an ad hoc planning committee to work with staff and eventually consultants in establishing a definite plan and budget for the Hockanum River Park."
The number of groups and individuals currently involved, with different priorities and agendas, must be brought together but a final decision-maker must be identified to finally adopt a plan and authorize an expenditure of funds.
The $438,000 was part of a proposal made by the state Department of Environmental Protection last year. Town officials are hoping the town could receive an additional $1 million out of another $4.75 million package approved recently by the Legislature.

Judge denies motion

WATERBURY — A judge has refused to dismiss charges of coercion and attempted bribery against Waterbury attorney Timothy Moynahan, rejecting the defense's contention that prosecutors have diminished his right to a fair trial.

Superior Court Judge Maxwell Helman's ruling Wednesday came on a defense motion to dismiss charges stemming from a one-man grand jury investigation into allegations that Moynahan attempted to bribe a judge to make a favorable ruling in a case involving his client, convicted Wolcott gambler Thomas Speers.

Defense Attorney Paul McQuillan argued two weeks ago that Moynahan's rights to a fair trial and due process of law were violated when State's Attorney John Connelly and his chief assistant, Bradford Ward, participated in the obtaining of the warrant on which Moynahan was arrested.

O'Neill's polyps benign

HARTFORD — Gov. William A. O'Neill says he feels fine and is greatly relieved after his doctors removed three more polyps from his colon and tests showed them all to be benign.

"There's no indication of any kind of a malignancy, a tumor, cancerous growths whatsoever in my intestines or my internal body."

"I'm very, very happy of that and I feel very fine," the governor said Wednesday.

The polyps were removed Tuesday when O'Neill went to St. Francis Hospital and Medical Center for a six-month checkup following the removal of three polyps in January, one of which contained a small cluster of cancer cells.

Yearbook jokes backfire

SIMSBURY — Two jokes references in a high school yearbook dredge up "discomfort and hurt" for survivors and relatives of victims of the Holocaust and murder of 6 million Jews, critics of the yearbook say.

This year's issue of Simsbury High School's yearbook contains two pictures with captions that jokingly refer to Nazi Germany. One photograph that shows cheerleaders in formation with their arms raised is labeled "Hail, Hitler."

The caption under a picture of a gymnast doing a handstand said she is performing a rendition of a swastika.

Principal Dennis C. Carrithers asked seniors to bring their yearbooks to recent graduation ceremonies so that white tape could be applied over the two captions. Fewer than 50 of the 368 graduating seniors complied.

Police officer suspended

HARTFORD — A New Haven police officer accused of collecting pay for extra-duty hours he didn't work has been fined $1,000 and given a suspended jail sentence.

Patrolman Anthony Zembrowski, 46, a 23-year veteran of the police force, told a federal judge Tuesday he was sorry for "the disgrace I caused my family and my uniform."

Zembrowski pleaded guilty last month to a misdemeanor charging him with making false demands on the government. His plea stemmed from his claim to have worked 12 hours at a federally funded sewer project.

Church leader resigns

HARTFORD — The leader of the United Church of Christ in Connecticut, state's largest Protestant denomination, said he has resigned to pursue "less demanding career options."

The Rev. Carroll E. Kann said he would resign effective Sept. 1 as conference minister, a post the 48-year-old clergyman has held since 1980.

His resignation was accepted "with deep regret and love" at a special meeting of the board of directors of the church's state conference June 23. The Hartford Courant reported in today's editions.

The Rev. Arthur E. Higgins, an associate minister of the church's state conference, has agreed to postpone his planned retirement this fall and will serve as acting conference minister, said John Shaw of Middletown, board chairman.

Fire engine crashes

SOUTHINGTON — A fire engine responding to a call collided with a freight train at a railroad crossing, injuring four firefighters. A witness who saw the accident Wednesday from her kitchen window said she heard the truck siren and turned to the fire engine start through the railroad crossing without stopping before it was struck by the train.

Police said they were still investigating the accident, which occurred about 8:35 a.m., and didn't know how fast the train was moving.

The fire engine was en route to a grass fire. There is no warning gate at the railroad crossing. The train belongs to Guilford Transportation of East Deerfield, Mass., police said.

Delay to cost more

NEW BRITAIN — Rerouting the final three miles of the Central Connecticut Expressway through a New Britain golf course could stall the project for three years and add 30 percent to the cost, a state transportation official said.

James Sullivan, Department of Transportation deputy commissioner for planning, said Wednesday the project would be delayed for three years if the new route is finally chosen because it would have to be reviewed by the U.S. Department of the Interior and houses would have to be purchased.

State predicts $77.5 million deficit

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — For the first time in five years, the state will end the budget year with a deficit and Republicans say the news is proof that Gov. William A. O'Neill is doing a poor job of running the state.

On Wednesday, the day before the end of the fiscal year, O'Neill announced the state would end the year with a $77.5 million deficit.

O'Neill blamed the deficit on federal tax law changes, and said it would be covered by the state's budget reserve. He said that rainy day fund would still have about $100 million left in it after the $77.5 million transfer.

His Republican critics said the deficit should have been predicted and said it was a mistake to blame the federal government.

The governor said the books won't be closed on the 1987-88 budget year until Sept. 1 and the $77.5 million was "our best estimate at the moment."

"We have determined that the deficit is due largely to federal tax reform and, more specifically, its impact upon our corporation tax returns," O'Neill said at a news conference in his office.

Because corporation tax payments weren't due until June 15 — two weeks before the budget year ended — it was impossible to make an accurate deficit projection, O'Neill said.

His budget chief, Anthony V. Milano, and tax Commissioner Timothy F. Bannon said corporation tax collections were $60 million below what had been anticipated. In addition, they said sales tax collections were also off by $20 million.

Combined with some other minor adjustments, the deficit came out to $77.5 million.

The General Assembly had set aside $20 million from a property tax relief fund. It dismantled to cushion any deficit. The $20 million is taken into account in the $77.5 million figure.

The state's last budget deficit was $48 million in 1982-83. The state ended the last fiscal year, 1986-87, with a $385.2 million surplus. Over the past four years, the state has rolled up surpluses totaling $1.14 billion.

On June 1, Milano's office and O'Neill had stated the year would end with a $782,000 surplus.

During the spring, the legislature's Office of Fiscal Analysis had predicted a $48 million deficit for 1987-88. That office now estimates a deficit of more than $100 million.

The governor said it was too early to say whether tax increases would be needed next year.

He also said he was creating a commission headed by Milano and Bannon to look into ways of avoiding similar problems in the future. He indicated he wanted the commission to seriously consider changing payment dates so the state has budget information it needs earlier in the fiscal year.

"We can no longer allow Connecticut's budget and revenue structures to be wobbled by changes at the federal level," O'Neill said.

He said he would summon all state agency heads to a meeting July 7 to "re-examine spending priorities" as the state begins the 1988-89 budget year and plan for the 1989-90 budget.

O'Neill said he was not concerned about political fallout from his announcement.

House Speaker Irving J. Stolberg, D-New Haven, agreed and said the deficit is "a problem but it is a problem we can handle" thanks to the rainy day fund.

State Republican Chairman Robert S. Polner said O'Neill should have seen it coming.

"What did he expect when he signed two budgets in a row increasing spending by record amounts and far outstripping the ability of Connecticut taxpayers to keep up with his extravagance?" Polner said. "The reason he looked good in 1986 (when he was running for re-election) was the result of the Republican-controlled legislature, which lowered taxes, put money away and controlled spending."

Polner did not mention that, as happens every year, the budgets approved in 1985 and 1986 when the Republicans were in power were "record amounts."

State goes from surplus to deficit

HARTFORD (AP) — Until Wednesday, a day before the 1987-88 budget year ends, the O'Neill administration had been predicting a budget surplus for the current fiscal year.

At one point, the surplus estimate was as high as $28.6 million.

The glowing picture began growing bleaker this spring when it became evident that corporate tax revenues would be far lower than anticipated.

But because corporations don't have to pay their taxes until June 15, two weeks before the end of the budget year, administration officials didn't have a clear picture of how bad things would be until this week.

On Wednesday, Gov. William A. O'Neill summoned reporters to his office to give them the new estimate: a $77.5 million deficit, the first state budget deficit in five years.

The following are the monthly administration estimates on how the state would end the current year:

Sept. 1: $24.2 million surplus.

Oct. 1: $28.6 million surplus.

Nov. 1: $17.2 million surplus.

Dec. 1: $5 million surplus.

Jan. 1: $1.3 million surplus.

Medicaid was again blamed.

Feb. 1: $1 million surplus.

March 1: $979,000 surplus.

O'Neill budget chief Anthony V. Milano blamed faltering corporation tax payments on federal tax reforms and O'Neill said it was "still too soon to know exactly whether it's going to black or red come the end of June. We still believe we're going to come through this year in the black."

April 1: $200,000 surplus.

May 1: $787,000 surplus.

June 1: $782,000 surplus. At least, O'Neill said, "we're still showing black ink instead of red ink."

June 29: $77.5 million deficit.

O'Neill and Milano blame federal tax payments, which were off by $60 million compared to previous estimates.

Lawmakers call for moratorium on shipyard strike

GROTON (AP) — Electric Boat shipyard officials say it would be useless to extend contract negotiations with the union representing 10,200 submarine builders, whose vote today will determine whether they strike at midnight.

Attempts to avert the region's largest strike in more than a decade intensified Wednesday when a group of 16 Connecticut politicians, including the state's two U.S. senators, appealed for a 30-day strike moratorium.

But talks between Electric Boat and the Metal Trades Council were at a standstill throughout the day and the shipyard said it would be pointless to extend negotiations on a three-year contract to replace one that expires at midnight tonight.

Joseph W. Messier, president of the union, said at 8 p.m. that he had not yet seen the proposal from the legislators.

"We will consider it more tomorrow," he said. "Right now it seems the key event is the vote. We have to see what our members want to do."

The MTC and the company, a division of General Dynamics Corp., have been trying since November to agree on terms of a new contract.

But the company, stressing the need to compete for Navy contracts, has denied union demands for wage increases, offering instead lump-sum bonuses. The company has cited increased competition from the only other submarine shipyard in the country, the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co. of Virginia.

Newport News, which pays its workers 60 cents an hour less than Electric Boat, recently won two contracts for 688-class attack submarines after it underbid Electric Boat.

Newport News last year also bid for the first time on a Trident contract, although Electric Boat won the competition.

Electric Boat's final proposal calls for bonuses, but no pay increases, including a $500 payment to each worker immediately following contract ratification. Lump-sum bonuses worth 5 percent of a worker's salary during the first year of a contract, plus 4 percent bonuses in each of the following two years, and two $250 holiday bonuses to be paid in December 1989 and 1990.

Thomas Sotir, the company's vice president of human resources, said the bonuses total $4,250 for a first-class mechanic who makes $12.69 an hour.

On May 12 MTC members voted 6,756-546 to authorize union leadership to call a strike if necessary.

GOP sees relief in compromise

The compromise that ended the dispute in the state Republican Party over who will head the resolutions committee for the Republican State Convention should come as a relief to Republicans.

The fight had gone on long enough to produce divisiveness. If it had continued into the bloodbath it was promising to produce, only the Democratic Party could have gained anything from it.

After a stormy meeting of the Republican State Central Committee Tuesday night, the principals in the battle, over whether the influential resolutions committee would be headed by conservative state Sen. Thomas Scott of Milford or by Cynthia R. Rubicam of Greenwich, reached a compromise under which both will serve as co-chairman. Each had been elected at a different meeting, with the legality of each meeting in question.

Among those who had proposed such a compromise was Curtis Smith of Manchester, a former Republican town chairman and now a member of the resolutions committee for the state convention.

Smith said he had no ax to grind in the dispute between Scott and Republican State Chairman Robert Polner. Polner was backing Rubicam, who, like Polner, is a supporter of U.S. Sen. Lowell Weicker. But Smith was concerned that the move to oust Scott would produce winners and losers within the party instead of a division between conservatives and moderates whose differences could be resolved on the convention floor.

"I think we will have a very unified convention," Smith said after the compromise was reached.

Geoffrey Naab, who is Manchester coordinator in the Weicker campaign, said he could not speak for Weicker, but his own view of the compromise was a good move. "It makes sense to agree," he said.

It certainly does not make sense to prolong interminable squabbles when you are trying to beat the other party.

"Too bad we don't have a bottle of vodka. I hear the water in this pond has more acid than tomato juice."

Reagan policy fails in Central America

It should now be clear to even the most ardent supporter of Ronald Reagan that some of the president's key appointees have served both him and the nation badly.

One of the most dramatic examples of this is Elliot Abrams, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs. It is difficult to imagine a public official making more major mistakes than Abrams has in a few years' time. His errors appear to be the result of a wrong-headed view of the world, an incredible arrogance toward the opinions of others, and a contempt for the law and our constitutional system of checks and balances.

Abrams was a prime architect of the administration's attempt to overthrow the Nicaraguan government by means of CIA-instigated mercenary forces. He admitted lying to Congress about the illegal diversion to the Contras in Nicaragua — of funds from the sale of arms to Iran.

Despite his loss of standing with Congress and the urging of congressional leaders that he step down, Abrams has clung to his office. It's as though the respect of Congress and his own respect for the law mean nothing to him. He has insisted on holding office even after congressional committees took the unusual step of refusing to permit him to testify before them in the future.

It is now clear that in addition to misleading Congress, Abrams was a key player in the current

Officials ignore the Town Charter

To the Editor:

Manchester is a city in crisis. Its Board of Directors is using every possible trick it can get around the Town Charter. The charter states that all bond issues must be approved by the town electors. But since November we have seen how our elected officials have got around this.

1. The case of Manchester Lumber. The builder needed to build a storm sewer along New State Road to remove ground water. The town chose to give the builder a tax break rather than put the issue to bonding referendum.

2. The case of the Buckland mill. The Board of Directors has not only encouraged the development of land over our biggest aquifer, it has induced it.

3. The case of North Elm Street. The project did go to referendum. It did pass. But the people were made to believe that the project would pay for itself without the taxpayers subsidizing the project.

4. The case of the money needed to fix town dams on our watershed land. Instead of going to the electors for a bond issue, the town is borrowing the money using a series of one-year notes, renewable over a 10-year period. — Just to get around the Town Charter.

5. The case of redoing Main Street. The town's share of the project will be over $2 million. Mayor DiRosa has said he doesn't believe this will pass in a referendum. He has pledged to the Main Street merchants that he will find another source of money. These are the people who have pledged to uphold the Town Charter.

In the case of the failed revaluation, this cost over $350,000. The failure to take out wetlands permits cost millions. Nobody is minding the store, yet things still go on their merry way.

Last November we were told that the development of the Buckland area would not cost any new police personnel. Now we find we need a new police station. They want a new town hall. They want to build a new police station. They want to build a new police station. They want to build a new police station.

The Board of Directors has not only encouraged the development of land over our biggest aquifer, it has induced it.

Complaints continue to plague Audi

WASHINGTON — The 1980s brought a new wave of automobile horror stories — cars with minds of their own that trigger sudden, unwanted accelerations.

The Reagan administration has apparently sided with the car makers who claim their cars only lurch into trees, people or other vehicles if the driver confuses the gas pedal with the brake.

This mistaken-pedal syndrome has run so rampant among Audi 5000 drivers that some parking garages in New York posted signs: "No Audis." The New Jersey Department of Motor Vehicles only recently rescinded a rule that no driver tests could be taken in Audi 5000s.

Despite three recalls to tinkers with Audi 5000s, the complaints continue to pile high. More than 1,800 complaints of runaway Audis have been filed since the car's introduction in 1982. All involve models with automatic transmissions.

Rep. George Hochbrueckner, D-N.Y., can't swallow the explanation of driver error. He asked the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to probe deeper. Hochbrueckner, a former aerospace engineer, thinks NHTSA is reluctant to challenge the claim of the West German auto maker that the problem sits behind the wheel, not under the hood.

Audi recalled the 5000 model in 1986 and installed a shift-lock mechanism, which forces the driver to step on the brake before shifting into gear. Most of the incidents occurred when the driver shifted into gear. Now, a spokesman for Audi of America says, "There's nothing left to investigate."

Hochbrueckner is not so sure. In March, he pressed NHTSA to force Audi to make public the complaints, including 400 from owners of Audis with the shift-lock protection. Our associate Jim Lynch reviewed some of those documents.

Last June, Anita Gallison backed her Audi 5000 out of her carport in Humphrey, Mich., and the car lurched in reverse. It sideswiped a tree and bashed into another before coming to a stop.

Audi talked to Gallison, inspected her car and filed this report: "We must conclude the driver was startled by the scraping of her vehicle's mirror against the house and inadvertently applied pressure to the accelerator pedal."

This is the way Gallison described it to us: "It was like I was shot out of a cannon. I heard a sound like the engine was shifting gears and then it took off. I had both feet on the brake. I couldn't make the car go that fast." Gallison claimed her Audi 5000 hit 40 miles per hour before the trees got in the way. Her car was totaled.

Hochbrueckner is so unhappy with NHTSA's work that he has launched his own study of Audi's problem. He argues that the premise of driver error doesn't make sense because there are more sudden-acceleration complaints about Audi 5000s than there have been about any other car in NHTSA's 28-year history. The NHTSA "should take its blinders off," Hochbrueckner says.

He suspects a high-tech electronics malfunction, possibly computer failure, in the Audi's cruise control.

An NHTSA spokesman said the agency has already examined the possible role of electronics and continues to study the Audi 5000. The agency also has investigated sudden-acceleration complaints in nine other car models besides the troubled Audis.

Hochbrueckner's investigation is supported by the Center for Auto Safety, a consumer group that accused the Reagan administration of being soft on auto safety.

Meanwhile, with more than 100 court cases pending against Audi, the company has proposed a settlement that would give $90,000 current Audi owners up to a $2,000 rebate on the purchase of a new Audi.

At least one of the seven plaintiffs named in the class action suit representing the $90,000 owners is outraged at the settlement offer. He told us, "It's an insult. The last thing I want to do is buy another car from Audi. I'd rather get $1 in a settlement than credit toward another Audi."

Don't let incident affect hoop play

To the Editor:

In response to the article that ran in Thursday's Herald, June 23, about the fight at a recent summer league basketball game:

I feel that the Manchester Recreation Department summer league basketball program is one of the best-run leagues in the state.

It is unfortunate that an incident that happened Tuesday night, a fight involving two players, with one player getting seriously injured, has to give the whole summer league program a black eye (no pun intended).

I truly believe Manchester has some of the most competent referees around.

Being present at the game Tuesday night, I saw that the fight was so quick to happen that the referees had no chance to sense

For the past several years, Willis J. Lodge of Bellevue, Ohio, has been trying to locate a 111 lb member of the USS Monterey in the Pacific Theater during World War II.

The only known address of these members are in a squadron diary now 43 years old and made up following our return to the States in October 1945.

Among those being sought is John Learned of South Manchester.

The search, sadly, is over. Learned died in Coventry on the last day of 1964, according to Manchester Herald files. A Feb. 5, 1946, story announced his discharge from the Navy after serving as a lieutenant commander in the Pacific for three years, including a tour aboard the Monterey with Torpedo Squadron 34.

Another clipping revealed Learned was an eyewitness to history, being aboard the Monterey in Tokyo Bay when the Japanese surrendered.

Learned also was a witness to a lot of Manchester history, specifically the Cheney influence on the town. The Herald story about the discharge also announced his return to Cheney Bros., where he was an executive for 20 years before the war.

Other clippings chronicle his work in developing many new techniques while superintendent of the dyeing and finishing departments. He became a director of Cheney Bros. in 1948 but left the company in 1955. He is buried in the Cheney section of East Cemetery.

A brother, Horace, was vice president of Cheney Bros. until his resignation in 1956, less than two months after LaFrance Industries bought the silk manufacturer. Cheney President Ward Cheney resigned at the same time.

Working for Cheney Bros. was a family tradition for John and Horace Learned. Their mother, Emily Cheney Learned, was the eldest of the 12 children of Col. Frank W. and Mary Bushnell Cheney. She was the grand-daughter of Charles Cheney, one of the eight brothers who founded the company in 1838.

Sad ending to a search for a World War II shipmate

OVERHEARD IN THE MARKET — A young man, obviously considering a job change, was chatting with a friend in the checkout line of the Super Stop & Shop the other day.

I don't see why I should leave, now that I'm completely antiquated with the set-up," he said.

Maybe he meant it was time for some modernization.

It would be super if there were enough grocery workers available to keep all those checkout lines open and moving.

MYSTERIOUS WAYS — Residents who attended the Zoning Board of Appeals Monday learned their property is not their own when the state Department of Transportation will grow from 29,000 square feet to a 50,000-square-foot "Future." It's part of a $5 million expansion of the plaza.

Meanwhile, just over the town line in Vernon, two more "super" stores are on the drawing boards. The Finast at Tri-City Plaza has plans to expand to its right. A bakery and a drug store have already moved to provide the space. And there are plans for a Super Stop & Shop down the road, off Route 83 between Flower Time and Vernon Lanes, but neighbors are fighting the proposal before the town's Planning and Zoning Commission.

FIFTY YEARS AGO — From the Manchester Evening Herald of Thursday, June 29, 1938: The Board of Education, which in its budget for the coming year has provided sizeable salary increases for a large number on its teaching staff, has found a way to economize and expend at the same time ... It appears that the pay of teachers is to be raised and the pay of janitors is to be cut.

Lawrence and Edward Mooney are among those who are selling fireworks in Bolton. They have their stand on the old turnpike road, opposite the William B. Martin Place, which is just over the Manchester line.

Counsels get green light

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court's resounding endorsement of the special prosecutor law dispels any doubt about the authority of independent counsels investigating alleged wrongdoing by past and present Reagan administration officials.

The high court's 7-1 decision Wednesday removes a cloud from the Iran-Contra conspiracy case, and it clears the way for the sentencing of former White House aide Michael K. Deaver for lying under oath about the lobbying business he formed after leaving President Reagan's staff.

The ruling also removes the special prosecutor issue from former White House political director Lyn Nofziger's challenge to his 90-day sentence and conviction for illegally lobbying former administration colleagues.

Duke parries attack

Michael Dukakis came under attack from President Reagan, who finally joined the campaign on behalf of his vice president, and a Senate right-to-life advocate is threatening a walkout at the GOP convention in August.

Vice President George Bush, meanwhile, had some welcome news in the form of a poll putting him in a dead heat with Dukakis, his certain Democratic rival, and a second survey suggesting Dukakis' lead had narrowed.

Previous polls had been giving Dukakis double-digit leads.

Reagan, in Florida for a GOP fund-raiser on Wednesday, charged that the Massachusetts governor "has spent every dime and more of the revenue generated in his state by the Reagan-Bush recovery."

Court ruling hailed

UNITED NATIONS — The United Nations and the PLO hailed a federal court decision that blocks a congressional attempt to ban the PLO's U.N. Mission from the United States.

Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said Wednesday he was "gratified by this judgment, which demonstrates the respect of the U.S. courts for the international obligations of the country."

Zehdi Labib Terzi, the Palestine Liberation Organization's ambassador to the U.N., called the ruling a victory for international law.

"The United Nations now has no fear that the host country, or any host country, can violate its legal obligations and get out scot-free," he said.

U.S. District Judge Edmund Palmieri ruled that the 1947 agreement that brought the United Nations to the United States prohibits the government from closing the Palestine Liberation Organization's observer mission.

'Exorcist' convicted

BATON ROUGE, La. — A jury took 20 minutes to convict a woman of gouging out a 16-year-old boy's eye to purge demons from his body, but her attorney said she has a "snow-white" record and should get a light sentence.

A six-member jury Wednesday found Andrea Cowan guilty of cruelty to a juvenile, which carries a maximum sentence of 10 years in jail. District Judge Mike McDonald released her on her original $10,000 bond.

Attorney John Calmes, who argued Wednesday that Darrell Washington had plucked out his own eye while he was in a psychotic state on March 23, 1987, said he may appeal the verdict if Cowan gets a harsh sentence at a hearing scheduled for Sept. 3.

Cowan has a "snow-white" record and is hoping for a light sentence, he said.

Cowan, 26, sat calmly with her hands clasped as the verdict was read to the crowded courtroom. Washington, now 17, sat two rows behind her.

Laws target AIDS

Rhode Island will tax rolling papers to discourage marijuana use under new laws effective Friday, while Georgia and Washington state will begin testing sex offenders for AIDS, and Colorado will require tests even before conviction.

Washington state, Indiana, Idaho and Georgia are making it a felony for an AIDS carrier to knowingly transmit the disease.

In other legislation effective July 1, motorists will pay higher fuel taxes in Connecticut and New Jersey. Georgia will bar executions of murderers who are mentally retarded, Indiana, Mississippi and Georgia will impose regulation on sports agents, and many Kansas taxpayers will begin paying lower rates.

Georgia's new law requires AIDS tests of anyone convicted of crimes involving sex or drug abuse and, eventually, of all inmates in state prisons. Beginning Friday, an AIDS carrier who engages in AIDS-transmitting behavior in Georgia without informing his or her partner will be guilty of the felony of reckless conduct.

Bakker tries to buy PTL

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Jim Bakker presented a $100 million offer for the failing PTL ministry during a bankruptcy court session in which his wife, Tammy, sobbed when the judge ordered the sale of the Bakkers' former parsonage.

PTL trustee M.C. Benton, who said he has received four offers, one for $200 million, to buy the ministry, promised that the former television evangelist's proposal "will be considered along with everyone else" if he can back it up.

"We are ready to go forward with earnest negotiations," Bakker told reporters Tuesday outside U.S. Bankruptcy Court. But he refused to identify who provided him with the $100 million line of credit to buy PTL.

Little cheer is in store for dry areas

By Randolph E. Schmid
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The hot, dry weather plaguing America is likely to shift East and South in the next month, and forecasters offer little hope that the widespread drought will be broken.

The 90-day outlook issued by the National Weather Service on Wednesday does indicate a chance of more rain than normal in some western sections of the Great Plains by the end of September.

But in the nearer term, the watchwords were for more of the same weather that has been parching fields and reservoirs, stalling river traffic and baking crops and livestock.

The six- to 10-day outlook is "very close to holding stationary the pattern of the last few weeks," Donald L. Gilman, head of the Long Range Predictions Group at the National Weather Service, said at a news conference.

And the 30-day prediction shows "only subtle changes," Gilman added.

"Unfortunately, reliable predictions of the drought's end, its geographic spread, or changes in severity, cannot be made today," the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration cautioned in an accompanying statement.

The agency noted that while the current drought is severe, it is not yet comparable to the damaging dry spells of the 1950s and 1980s. This dry period is "neither unprecedented nor unexpected from a climatological perspective," the agency said.

Nonetheless, Dr. Michael Hudlow, director of hydrology for the weather service, said, "It's likely to get worse before it gets better."

The river level at Memphis, Tenn., where Mississippi barge traffic is already stalled, could drop another foot in the next 10 days, he warned.

High-altitude jet stream winds that normally sweep across the northern tier of states have split, the north and south, Gilman said, holding the drought conditions in place between them.

GREEN GREENS — The effect of the drought in Columbus, Ohio, shows at Thornapple Country Club on the west side of Franklin County.

Gilman's six- to 10-day outlook calls for much above normal temperatures in Montana, Wyoming, the Dakotas, Nebraska, Wisconsin and Iowa.

In addition, above-normal readings are expected in much of the rest of the nation except the Columbia River valley, West Texas and along the Atlantic Coast from North Carolina through Georgia and northern Florida.

In the short range the rain forecast is "patchy," said Gilman. He said no precipitation is likely in Oregon, California, Nevada, southern Idaho, western Utah, western Arizona and Texas.

There is a chance of some scattered moisture from the Gulf of Mexico causing rain here and there in the Midwest, but only Kansas, South Carolina and Georgia seem likely to have more rain than normal for the period.

In July, above-normal heat is expected throughout most of the northern Plains and upper Midwest, Gilman said, while the outlook for rain is "very uncertain."

The greatest chance of hot weather is in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee, Gilman said. He gave that region a 65 percent chance of being hotter than normal for July, an unusually high ranking for a summer forecast. Typically, the 30-day outlooks are considered only 55 percent likely in summer.

Papers destroyed in Pentagon probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — People implicated in the Pentagon bribery probe have destroyed documents on at least two occasions in the past two weeks, according to prosecutors who say making key information public would trigger a cover-up by "major felons."

In the short time since the execution of the search warrants became public (June 14), the government has already become aware of several incidents of destruction of documents related to this case," U.S. Attorney Joseph Aronica said in a court brief released Wednesday.

In an affidavit, Assistant U.S. Attorney Joseph Aronica said prosecutors have learned of two incidents of document destruction.

On Capitol Hill, members of Congress called on Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci to make a "dramatic move" such as halting the Pentagon contract to win back public credibility in the wake of the bribery probe.

"We're fighting a credibility problem here and it seems as though tough action is required," said Rep. John Kasich, R-Ohio.

Hudson, in his court brief, discussed the possibility of further document destruction in arguing against release of sealed court documents.

"Revealing the precise contours of the government's intentions and current information may well encourage document destruction and other acts" which "would have the practical effect of putting major felons beyond the reach of justice," said Hudson, the U.S. attorney in Alexandria, Va.

Newday Inc. is asking U.S. District Judge Edward Korman in New York City to lift the seal on several search warrants and supporting affidavits in the probe: for Unisys Corp.'s plant in Great Neck, N.Y.; Charles Gardiner, a defense consultant to Unisys and former Unisys vice president; Dennis Mitchell, an employee at the Great Neck Unisys plant; and the Hazeltine Corp. in Greenlawn.

Newday said the seals should be lifted because the investigation has been extensively reported in the media, but Hudson discussed the possibility of further document destruction in arguing against release of sealed court documents.

The new party leaders of Armenia and Azerbaijan urged government and constitutional reforms to end a violent dispute over control of Nagorno-Karabakh, a predominantly Armenian region within the borders of neighboring Azerbaijan.

Abdul Rahman Vezirov, named Azerbaijan party chief May 21, said the dispute over Nagorno-Karabakh had taken on a "socially dangerous character" that has destabilized both republics.

His Armenian counterpart, Suren Arutunyan, said, "I tell you openly that we still cannot normalize the situation in the republic."

SURROUNDED — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev is surrounded by delegates to the Communist Party conference in Moscow Thursday as he chats informally with members outside the meeting hall. The meeting is its third day at the Congress Palace in the Kremlin.

Steelworker says Soviet reform is not working

MOSCOW (AP) — In a stinging critique of the Soviet reform program, a steelworker told the Communist Party conference today that three years after it was launched his town still doesn't have meat and consumer goods have vanished.

Veniamin A. Yarin, a middle-aged mill operator at a huge industrial complex in the Ural Mountains, told his 5,000 fellow delegates at the extraordinary gathering that despite promises to reward workers for increased productivity the government has cut housing subsidies.

And although Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's program of "perestroika," or restructuring, is supposed to provide incentives by making enterprises operate on their own finances, the government still takes his factory's profits, Yarin said.

"Workers are asking straight out: 'Where is the 'perestroika'?' he said. "For example, in stores, the way it was before with food products is the way it still is. On top of that, they have introduced rationing for sugar. There wasn't any meat, and we still don't have any. Consumer goods have vanished completely."

Addressing the third day of the conference Gorbachev called to assess his reform program and set a course for the future, the steelworker from the city of Nizhny Tagil, 900 miles east of Moscow, demanded that top officials be held accountable for the failure of programs under their control.

Directing his remarks to the top Soviet leadership, whose members were sitting behind him on a dais in the Kremlin's Palace of Congresses, Yarin said, "It's high time the Central Committee should apply its power."

tainly be looking for an awful lot more than $150,000" in fines for work already done.

Town Attorney John W. Cooney, commenting on the Hartford meeting after it broke up, said, "They're not negotiating a resolution. They're negotiating the process of a resolution."

However, Richard Roach, the chief of enforcement of the Corps of Engineers' New England division, said that he believed that a consent agreement on fines would be worked out by the town and the Corps. "We're making progress," he said.

Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr. said Wednesday that he, too, was optimistic about a resolution. "I have to still believe that the prognosis is favorable to the community," he said.

The Board of Directors met in a closed executive session in the Lincoln Center hearing room later Wednesday to discuss the meeting in U.S. District Court. When the board came out of executive session, Cooney, reading from a prepared statement, said that the town hoped to seek some kind of resolution with the Corps of Engineers within the next 10 days.

"Over the next 10-day period there will be efforts to come to some kind of resolution on whether or not this situation can be remedied," Cooney said.

The 10-day deadline was decided on by a consensus of those attending the meeting in Hartford, Cooney said.

Twardy would not comment Wednesday on the Hartford meeting. "The matter is a matter of a potential litigation upon which I have no comment," he said.

visited the house on April 29 and May 1 1986 and was told both times by Louis Lamprecht that his mother had gone to the friends in West Hartford, according to the affidavit.

Police said the ombudsman became suspicious and called them because of the condition of the house and Louis Lamprecht, who reportedly could not care for himself.

Police said Louis Lamprecht, who has a history of mental illness and violent behavior, had been living with his mother in the house without heat for a number of years.

Manchester police Sgt. John Matson went to the house May 2, 1986 to see how Louis Lamprecht was taking care of himself. Lamprecht told Matson he had been eating peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, Matson looked in the refrigerator and found the remains.

Police obtained a search warrant and found part of the skull in the fireplace and the remains of the body, which police said were fully clothed, in the refrigerator. The refrigerator was not working and the remains were so badly decomposed it took two inspections by police to determine the remains were human.

The vermin-infested house was exterminated and demolished in July 1986 and the property appraised at $74,000.

ahead. Excommunication is automatic for him and the four bishops. The Holy Father has done everything he could to prevent it. The status of the followers of Archbishop Lefebvre has yet to be decided. He has set up a schismatic movement."

The Rev. Emilio P. Padelll, co-pastor of St. Bridget Church in Manchester, said, "It is very sad. He (Lefebvre) implies that he is sticking to tradition where the Pope is not. It is a mistake because tradition changes with the times. It is sad that he has caused a split."

The Rev. Robert W. Barnes of St. Mary's Church in Coventry said of the excommunication: "That is the rule. He's a heretic. It is disobedience to the Holy Father."

Some Manchester priests contacted declined to comment. Among the four bishops consecrated by Archbishop Lefebvre was Richard Williamson, 48, English-born head of a seminary in Ridgefield.

Man charged in burglary

A man was arrested Tuesday on burglary and larceny charges in connection with a September 1987 incident at a local carpet store, police said.

Eric Counts, 18, of 94 West St., Rockville, was charged with second-degree burglary and fifth-degree larceny when he and another man, Robert Lee Fisher, 19, of 10 Homestead Street, took $330 from the safe of the store at 249 Broad St., police said.

In late September, Counts was helping a store employee unload some linoleum in the evening. While Counts was helping the employee, Fisher went inside the store without the employee seeing him, police said. Fisher hid in the bathroom ceiling until the employee and Counts left the store, police said. Shortly after, Fisher left Counts back inside and the two opened the safe, police said.

In mid-October, Fisher turned himself in to police headquarters, police said. He was charged with second-degree burglary and fifth-degree larceny and held on $3,500 bond.

Counts was charged Tuesday and appeared in court that day, police said. His case was continued until July 12, a clerk at Manchester Superior Court said.

Fisher was found guilty of third-degree burglary in February of this year and was given a suspended jail sentence of one year, a court clerk said. He is on two years probation.

Five at White House use drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prosecutors are reviewing possible criminal charges stemming from a cocaine investigation in which two National Security Council employees have been fired and three members of the uniformed Secret Service placed on leave.

Evidence has been turned over to the U.S. attorney's office and the investigation is still going on, Robert R. Snow, spokesman for the Secret Service, said Wednesday.

"Several months ago the Secret Service initiated an investigation into allegations that there was drug use among some members of the uniformed division," said Snow, who declined to discuss details of the probe.

Liz Murphy, a White House spokeswoman, said two NSC clerical employees "admitted drug use and were separated from the NSC."

"We are not giving out specific details of the investigation, but the information has been turned over to the U.S. attorney, who is reviewing it for possible criminal charges," said Snow.

Presidential spokesman Martin Fitzwater, quoted in today's editions of The Washington Post, said the White House was told "there were no breaches of security found in connection with the NSC workers."

"We are advised at this time that there was no sale or use on White House grounds," Fitzwater said.

Fitzwater and Murphy declined to describe the duties of the two women who worked at the NSC. Names of the women and the Secret Service officers were not released.

The school is currently undergoing a nine-classroom, $2.2 million extension, which should be completed by the fall, Thompson said.

The school, located at 236 Main St., is sponsored by the Church of the Nazarene.

The transcontinental race is for pre-1977 vehicles. First prize is $50,000 out of the $250,000 total in prizes to be awarded.

Tuesday, Shorts finished in 55th place, 4.58 minutes off perfect time. Reed was two places ahead of Shorts as he was 4.33 seconds off.

Shorts said he was disappointed in the times, but being a first-time racer, there was little he could do. Tuesday, the racers drove from Salina, Kan. to St. Charles, Mo.

Cornerstone School earns accreditation

By Andrew J. Davis Manchester Herald

Cornerstone Christian School received accreditation for the first time in its seven-year history, said a school official.

John D. Thompson, school director and development and finance, said Wednesday that school officials were notified last week that the school's application for accreditation had been approved. The school is now accredited by the Association of Christian Schools International.

"I think it's a big accomplishment," said Thompson. "This is quite an accomplishment for a school only seven years old."

A school can only apply for accreditation from the association after being in existence for seven years, he said.

Gaining accreditation is a "landmark event" because it verifies the quality of the school, Thompson said. "For a Christian school, it also represents a real mark of blessing from God. We give God the thanks and praise for this."

A team of educators visited the school in May. The school had prepared for the accreditation visit for the last year, he said.

School officials prepared course curriculums as well as reports on facilities, transportation, food service and school philosophy for the visit, Thompson said.

Marcia Kirby, school principal, said in a prepared statement that she was pleased by the accreditation. She said the decision to seek accreditation was made several years ago as a way to give the school credibility.

Kirby is on vacation and could not be reached for further comment.

Post 102 wins in battle of Zone titans

By Jim Tierney Manchester Herald

It was a battle of the two unbeaten titans of Zone Eight Legion baseball.

Manchester and East Hartford, the Zone champions a year ago, clashed Wednesday night at Kelley Field.

Behind the three-hit pitching of right-hander Pat Maguire and a five-run first-inning outburst, Manchester shut out East Hartford, 8-0, to remain unbeaten in the Zone at 7-0. The game was called after 5 1/3 innings due to the inclement weather.

Manchester dropped two one-run outings to East Hartford last year.

Post 102 is 10-5 overall while East Hartford slips to 6-1 in Zone play. Manchester's next outing is Friday night at 8:45 when it hosts Windsor in Zone play at Kelley Field.

"It's a big win. Pat Maguire just came up big tonight," Manchester Legion Coach Dave Morency said. "He was throwing strikes and he kept our defense because they knew there wasn't going to be a long wait out there. He came up big with the strikeouts when he needed them and the defense came up big."

Maguire went the rain-shortened distance, walking five and striking out five. Paul Caccavale, East Hartford's starter and loser, surrendered 11 hits, walked one and struck out three. Coming off a fine freshman season at Central Connecticut State University, Caccavale was never in control.

"East Hartford is a really good team. They came out flat tonight," Morency said. "Paul (Caccavale) didn't have his best stuff tonight. He was just not there. He didn't have it and we took advantage of it."

Dave Price led off the Manchester first with a single to left field. With the hit-and-run on, Rob Stanford, who was 3-for-4, drilled a single to center with Price scrambling to third. Dom Laurinitski followed with a swinging bunt single to lead the bases. Keith DiVeso lofted a sacrifice fly to right scoring Price with the first run and chasing Stanford to third.

Laurinitski stole second and when Post 77 catcher Jim Bidwell tried unsuccessfully to nail him at second, Stanford came home with the inning's second run. Following a free pass to Neil Schackner, Jimmy Penders blooped a single behind first to reload the bases.

A sacrifice fly by Joe Leonard scored Laurinitski. East Hartford shortstop Kevin Pelzar then let a Marcus Mateya grounder get through his legs allowing Schackner and Penders to come around with the final two runs of the inning.

Everyone in the ballpark expected us to lose," Morency said. "The pressure was all on them. Being able to get up in the score early, we were able to take our game to them."

Stanford led off the second with a triple to right center and scored on another error by Pelzar. Mateya added an RBI single in the fifth. Laurinitski, Penders and Leonard each collected two hits while Stanford was a defensive stand-out.

"Robbie Stanford played an excellent game, hitting and at shortstop," Morency lauded. Manchester played errorless ball while East Hartford committed four miscues.

Mets exhibit championship style in besting Pirates

By Hillel Hottle The Associated Press

Playing in front of post-season crowds at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium, the New York Mets gave a performance of championship caliber.

The Mets won twice in a series that drew a total attendance of 127,717, the highest ever for three games in Pirates history. New York trailed 7-6 in the ninth inning Wednesday night, but Howard Johnson homered on a 1-2 pitch with two outs and the Mets went on to score in the top of the 11th and win 8-7.

New York now leads the second-place Pirates by six games in the National League East.

"You can look back and say we were lucky, but I'd say it's talent and not panicking," said Johnson, whose 14th homer came off reliever Jim Gott. "I heard the pep talk yelling and it was loud, like a playoff game. But that's the kind of matter we are, we never give up no matter how bad it looks."

The Mets had blown leads of 4-1 and 6-5 and appeared to be beaten when Gott, who had saved Monday night's game, set down Kevin McReynolds and Darryl Strawberry to start the ninth.

"Sometimes when you think it's easy, it's impossible. Sometimes when it looks impossible, it's Mets manager Davey Johnson said.

After Johnson's homer put the Mets back in the game, reliever Roger McDowell took over. The right-hander worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the bottom of the ninth and doubled and scored the winning run in the 11th.

"It was like Little League on Saturday morning. I got hit and field and pitch and everything," said McDowell, 4-1, who allowed one hit in three innings.

Andy Van Slyke, whose 12th homer highlighted a four-run Pittsburgh rally in the fifth, was pleased with his team's performance but acknowledged the difficulty of beating the Mets.

"At the end of the credit, I give it away," Van Slyke said. "We had 'em down three times, but they've got a lot of talent and are capable of scoring a lot of runs, and they proved that tonight."

Phillies 4, Cubs 2
Juan Samuel, pinch-hitter Bobby Derrier and Von Hayes hit consecutive run-scoring singles in the seventh inning as Philadelphia ended Chicago's four-game winning streak.

Mike Maddux, 2-0, allowed seven hits in six innings. Steve Bedrosian retired the final two batters to earn his 13th save.

Dodgers 2, Astros 0
Los Angeles' Orel Hersher pitched a two-hitter for his fifth consecutive victory, outdueling Houston's Nolan Ryan.

The victory enabled the Dodgers to extend their NL West lead to six games over second place Houston.

For Hersher, 12-3, it was the fifth two-hitter of his major league career. The right-hander walked one, struck out six and allowed only a single to rookie Craig Biggio in the bottom of the third and an infield hit by Billy Hatcher in the fifth.

Ryan hit his fourth straight decision despite allowing only four hits and striking out 10 batters for the 17th time in his career. He leads the league with 118 strikeouts.

Giants 7, Braves 2
Don Robinson allowed two hits in six innings in his first start in decision despite allowing only four hits and striking out 10 batters for the 17th time in his career. He leads the league with 118 strikeouts.

Expos 3, Cardinals 2
Ottie Nixon tripled to lead off the top of the 10th inning and Herm Alomar hit his sixth homer in the fifth inning off Tim Lincecum, 0-1, who was making his first NL start.

St. Louis
The Cardinals have lost 14 out of 19 and have four extra-inning losses in their last six games. The Expos are 10-3 in extra-inning games this season and 22-4 over the last two years.

Jeff Parrett, 7-2, pitched two hitless innings for the Expos. Nixon opened the 10th against Todd Worrell, 3-4, with a drive to right-center and scored on Winfield's fly to left.

Padres 3, Reds 2
Roberto Alomar hit a tie-breaking two-run homer and Eric consecutive run-scoring singles in the seventh inning as Philadelphia ended Chicago's four-game winning streak.

Mike Maddux, 2-0, allowed seven hits in six innings. Steve Bedrosian retired the final two batters to earn his 13th save.

Dodgers 2, Astros 0
Los Angeles' Orel Hersher pitched a two-hitter for his fifth consecutive victory, outdueling Houston's Nolan Ryan.

The victory enabled the Dodgers to extend their NL West lead to six games over second place Houston.

For Hersher, 12-3, it was the fifth two-hitter of his major league career. The right-hander walked one, struck out six and allowed only a single to rookie Craig Biggio in the bottom of the third and an infield hit by Billy Hatcher in the fifth.

Ryan hit his fourth straight decision despite allowing only four hits and striking out 10 batters for the 17th time in his career. He leads the league with 118 strikeouts.

Giants 7, Braves 2
Don Robinson allowed two hits in six innings in his first start in decision despite allowing only four hits and striking out 10 batters for the 17th time in his career. He leads the league with 118 strikeouts.

Expos 3, Cardinals 2
Ottie Nixon tripled to lead off the top of the 10th inning and Herm Alomar hit his sixth homer in the fifth inning off Tim Lincecum, 0-1, who was making his first NL start.

St. Louis
The Cardinals have lost 14 out of 19 and have four extra-inning losses in their last six games. The Expos are 10-3 in extra-inning games this season and 22-4 over the last two years.

Jeff Parrett, 7-2, pitched two hitless innings for the Expos. Nixon opened the 10th against Todd Worrell, 3-4, with a drive to right-center and scored on Winfield's fly to left.

Padres 3, Reds 2
Roberto Alomar hit a tie-breaking two-run homer and Eric

Clemens at dominating best as Bosox clip Tribe

By Dove O'Horo The Associated Press

BOSTON — In defeat, Cleveland Manager Doc Edwards thought his Indians played "a good game."

"I just think that Roger Clemens was better than us. I have to give him the credit," Edwards said Wednesday night after the Boston Red Sox 5-1 victory over the Indians.

Despite a slight muscle tear in the groin area suffered last Friday, Clemens was at his dominating best as the Red Sox moved into third place ahead of Cleveland with a fifth consecutive victory.

Clemens allowed just three ground singles and struck out 10 in seven innings before retiring because of a 73-minute thunderstorm delay.

Clemens, 11-5, credited mental toughness and his tolerance of pain as much as his fast ball and control for snapping a personal four-game losing streak in Little Fenway Park.

"I hate sitting around," he said after striking out 10 in a game for the eighth time this year and the 29th time in his career.

"They're paying me to pitch and if I'm able to want to be out there," the two-time Cy Young Award winner said. "I felt I was able to pitch and I could win."

"He's some kind of competitor," Boston Manager John McNamara said. "He knows his body and he knows what he can do. He's a little sore right now, but that's to be expected."

With the rain delay, McNamara took no chances with his ace. He called in Lee Smith at the start of the eighth and the big reliever allowed just one infield hit and struck out two in two innings for his 11th save.

AL Roundup
Ells Burks gave Clemens all the offensive support he needed with a three-run homer, his eighth.

Rich Gedman had two doubles and a single and Marty Barrett had two RBIs again," said Clemens. "The key to Boston's eighth victory in the last 10 games."

"I wanted to give the team a strong performance before we go on a road trip," Clemens said. "I was a little sluggish, maybe a little tentative, starting out."

"Then I got really loose and in the flow. I was able to push off with my right leg, unlike the other day. I had pretty good location of my pitches going with my velocity."

"My last few times out here I was not really concentrating. I zoned in more tonight."

"He's outstanding," said Edwards, a former catcher. "He's got outstanding stuff. That's what makes him so difficult."

Although the Red Sox had 13 hits in completing a three-game series sweep against Cleveland, Mike Greenwell went 0-4. That ended his 19-game hitting streak, the third longest in the major leagues this season.

Yankees 7, Tigers 3
The New York Yankees backed up their boast and finally looked like a first-place team. The next time they play the Detroit Tigers, it might determine who finishes there.

"Hopefully, this will turn us around," Yankees manager Lou Piniella said when his team beat Detroit 7-3 Wednesday night, their first victory in six games against the Tigers this season.

The victory came one day after Piniella flatly stated the Yankees were better than Detroit and that it would be proven over the whole season. "This time the triumph only prevented the Tigers from their first three-game sweep in New York since April 6-12, 1966."

"Pennants are not won in June or July or August. They're won in September, and that's when we play the Tigers again," said Claudell Washington, who drove in three runs with a single, double and triple.

The next meeting between Detroit and New York is Sept. 8 at Yankee Stadium. The teams close the season with three games in Detroit.

"To me, you should just forget about the Yankees for now," Tigers manager Sparky Anderson said. "You don't see them for two and a half months. I just won't bother with them for now."

The Yankees won by combining 12 hits with seven walks. They also hit in the clutch, getting three key hits with men in scoring position through five innings after being just 6-for-42 in similar situations against Detroit this year.

Jack Clark hit his 18th home run and two singles for the Yankees, who pinned the loss on Walt Terrell, 3-5.

New York starter Richard Dotson was knocked out in the third. He has allowed 20 earned runs in his last 17 innings.

The Yankees' bullpen, which has blown one-third of its save opportunities this season, was wonderful this time.

Steve Shields, 1-2, pitched 2 1-3 innings for the victory. Neil Allen and Cecilio Guante finished up as all three combined to shut out Detroit for seven innings.
