'Progress' reported in plant flap

By Andrew Yurkowski
Manchester Herald

Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr. said today that progress had been made during a meeting Wednesday at which town officials presented a counterproposal to a proposed $1.5 million settlement of the dispute over work on the sewage treatment plant.

"I would classify it as progress," DiRosa said of the meeting.

Work was ordered stopped on the secondary part of the plant last month because the town failed to obtain a wetlands permit from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The town presented the counterproposal Wednesday during a meeting in U.S. District Court in Hartford with officials from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

Officials would not disclose the counterproposal or the substance of the discussions. The town Board of Directors met behind closed doors in a special session Wednesday evening to discuss the results of the Hartford meeting, but the directors would not comment on the counterproposal.

Officials said that negotiations were ongoing and that future talks would be held.

Director Geoffrey Naab abstained during the vote by directors to go into executive session to discuss the meeting. He said

Deadline agreement expected

By Andrew Yurkowski
Manchester Herald

The town may be able to work out an agreement with federal and state officials for an extension of the deadline for upgrading the sewage treatment plant if work on the plant is delayed much longer, Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr. said today.

Manchester's sewage treatment plant is one of 11 in the state that missed a July 1 deadline for compliance with the Clean Water Act. But a stipulated agreement with the state Department of Environmental Protection actually gives the town until Aug. 1, 1990 — the date the upgrading of the plant is to be completed — to meet the standards under the act.

A DEP official said today. Work on the secondary part of the plant was halted last month after the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers issued a cease-and-desist order to the town for failing to get a wetlands permit.

Robert J. Young, the administrator of the town's Water and Sewer Division, said the town is under a court order to complete work on the upgrading and expansion by Aug. 1, 1990, to comply with the federal Clean Water Act. That order was part of the stipulated agreement reached between the town and the DEP.

Young said he didn't know what penalties would be imposed for failure to meet the 1990 deadline, although he added that the DEP might file suit against the town.

DiRosa said it was unlikely that the plant would be finished on time if the summer construction

He was at Manchester High School's Kelley Field Wednesday night watching a Legion baseball game between Manchester and Enfield.

The travel-weary Masse has seen his share of airports and the insides of hotel rooms and wouldn't trade his experiences for anything in the world.

"You're usually on a bus or a plane. It's not all glory. You'd come home from a game at midnight, 1 a.m., and get a wake-up call at 5 a.m. and fly to another city. But once you get to the ballpark you'd instantly wake up."

"There would be 10,000 fans a game waving flags and chanting 'U.S.A., U.S.A.' It was like that every game. You'd be tired but mentally there was no way you could be tired."

It was quite an experience, said the weary-looking Masse, who admits to having lost some weight and muscle from his 6-foot-1, 190-pound frame.

Hillstown-Spencer road work urged

By Nancy Concelman
Manchester Herald

A $12,000 study of the traffic in southwest Manchester says the intersection of Hillstown Road and Spencer Street is operating over capacity, has a high number of accidents and should receive top priority for improvements.

Susan Smichenko, a traffic engineer with Fuss & O'Neill Inc., which conducted the study, said the firm "highly recommends" improvements to the intersection.

"It has an extremely high incident of accidents," she said. Although no cost estimate was available today for work on the intersection and other improvements suggested in the study, one town official says most of the suggested improvements are relatively inexpensive compared to improvements related to the Buckland mall suggested in a 1986 study of traffic in the North End.

The Buckland mall road and utility work is estimated at $15 million.

"We're not looking at any where near (that) magnitude of improvements," Planning Director Mark Pellegrini said after a presentation today on the study. "We have upgrading, but no new (traffic) systems."

The preliminary results of the study were presented to town officials and one interested resident at a workshop. Members of the Planning and Zoning Commission, Board of Directors, public works, engineering and planning departments attended the meeting in the Lincoln Center hearing room.

The study was proposed more than a year ago to identify potential traffic problems and improvements that may be necessary, especially with the opening of the Interstate-384 corridor.

Study results were based on the peak hours of 7 to 8 a.m. and 4 to 5 p.m. and showed the Hillstown Road-Spencer Street intersection operating at over 100 percent of its capacity during the evening peak hours for both the base condition and full development conditions.

Smichenko said the base condition is a combination of estimated traffic figures for the year 2000 and estimates for development that has been approved but not yet built. The full development condition is a combination of the base figure and projected future development based on the town's Plan of Development.

The recommended improvements were listed according to the seriousness of the problem and the ease of implementing improvements, Smichenko said.

Results of the study suggested restriping the I-384 off ramp at South Main Street to improve the merge northbound as one of the improvements suggested.

But, Sieffert said, "southbound is the real Russian Roulette area."

Town Director Geoffrey Naab, and PZC alternate Josh Howroyd agreed.

"I think striping (South Main Street) might be a good short-term solution," Howroyd said.

At least one suggestion included in the report didn't meet with approval from the owner of the Western Pharmacy at 455 Hartford Road. The ninth highest priority for improvements on the study's list of 16 was a recommendation that parking in front of the pharmacy be prohibited because of the problems created by cars backing onto Hartford Road.

Pharmacy owner Robert Bassett said he knew it was a problem, but said it was no worse than cars backing out of parallel parking spaces on Main Street.

"People have been parking there (in front of the pharmacy) for 40 years," Bassett said.

Allen Lutz, head of Town Residents And Friends For Infrastructure Control, said he was pleased with the study, but criticized the engineer's use of "base" and "full development" figures for counts.

Smichenko said base figures are a combination of estimated traffic figures for the year 2000 and estimates for development that has been approved but not yet built. The full development condition is a combination of the base figure and projected future development based on the town's Plan of Development.

"I would like to see the current situation," Lutz said. "There's nothing in there about today."

Adopt a pet: Tara and Alice

By Barbara Richmond
Manchester Herald

How could anyone resist the sad, sweet face of this week's featured pet? She's a 9-week-old shepherd cross and is healthy. She's been named Tara. She was found roaming on Center Street on July 23 and, if not claimed by her owner, she'll be ready for adoption in a few days.

Patches, last week's featured pet, has been adopted by a Manchester family. The 9-week-old black and white terrier, mentioned in last week's column, has been adopted by an Enfield family.

The handsome shepherd-husky cross, that was found on Wetherell Street a few weeks ago, is still waiting to be adopted. He is wearing a choke chain collar when found. The female golden retriever cross, also mentioned in past columns, is still waiting to be adopted. She's about 2 years old and was found on Broad Street on July 7.

The other dog still waiting is a male shepherd cross, a very handsome dog, found on Middle Turnpike on July 9.

As of Tuesday, there were two other new dogs at the pound. One is a reddish color female Chow with a beautiful face. She's about 1 year old and was found roaming on Birch Street on July 25.

The other is a chocolate Labrador retriever, dog Warden Richard Rand said he found her tied to the fence at the pound when he arrived there on July 26.

The dog pound is located on town property near the landfill area off Olcott Street. The dog warden is at the pound week-days from noon to 1 p.m. There is also someone at the pound from 6 to 9 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

The phone number at the pound is 643-6642 or call the police department, 646-4555 and they will get in touch with the dog warden.

There is a $5 fee to adopt a dog and the new owner must have the dog licensed. Before being licensed the dog must have its rabies shot.

Aid to Helpless Animals Inc. has many cats and kittens waiting to be adopted. This week's featured kitty is a very beautiful grey tiger female named Alice. She was recently spayed and has had her shots.

The organization is always looking for good homes for all of the cats and kittens they rescue. Unless a cat is too young, all are spayed or neutered and given their first shots before they are adopted.

For more information call any of the following numbers: 666-7000, 623-0485, 232-8317, 262-2156, or 693-4128.

The Gloucester unit of Protectors of Animals also is seeking homes for the many cats and kittens, and some dogs, that the group takes in. The phone numbers to call are: 633-2164 or 659-3106.

Police Roundup

Woman faces drug charges

A woman was arrested on drug charges Tuesday when the Manchester reposition company which had her car found narcotics paraphernalia in the trunk, police said.

Lynda A. Colestos, 28, of 128 Fresh Meadow Drive, Trumbull, was charged with possession of cocaine, operating a drug factory and possession of drug paraphernalia, for the evidence found in the trunk of her 1983 Honda, police said.

Police said when Colestos was called by the reposition company to claim her car, the officers found narcotic paraphernalia typically used for measuring and diluting cocaine to increase the volume for profit. Police said a simple cocaine user would not use such items.

Police seized the car for federal forfeiture proceedings. Colestos was charged and released on $5,000 bond. She is scheduled to appear in Manchester Superior Court Monday, Aug. 8, police said.

Cops investigate burglaries

Cops are investigating an apparent burglary on Birch Mountain Road and an attempted burglary on Bolton Center Road, reports say.

Police responded to 688 Birch Mountain Road Wednesday afternoon where a suspect was believed to have entered the home through a porch window, police said. Police said the suspect searched through desk and dresser drawers, took a VCR and a purse and some cash.

At 58 Bolton Center Road, police reported an attempted burglary where the suspect was believed to enter through the kitchen door. Police say nothing was missing from the house.

He is a 1988 graduate of Manchester High School and is scheduled to leave for basic training at Lackland Air Force Base in Texas on March 16.

Takes early enlistment

Airman Jonathan F. Dixon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Dixon of 148 Deer Run Trail recently entered the U.S. Air Force under the delayed enlistment program.

He is a 1988 graduate of Manchester High School and is scheduled to leave for basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, on April 25.

Receives parashutist badge

Pvt. James F. Damato, son of James F. Damato of 441 S. Main St. and Patricia H. Gaskell of 80 Deer Run Trail, recently received the parashutist badge upon completion of the three-week airborne course at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga.

He is a 1987 graduate of East Catholic High School.

Enlists in Marine Corps

Glen A. McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred McDonald of Manchester has enlisted in the U.S. Marine Corps. He left June 27 for recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C. He is scheduled for additional training in the field of general services.

Trains at Fort Dix

Pvt. Michael S. Markstein, son of Claudia C. and Michael R. Markstein of 27 Leo J. Lane, has completed basic training at Fort Dix, N.J.

Thoughts

Scientists were horrified when they learned about the possibility of White House decisions being based on astrology. Andrew Fraknoi, an astronomy professor at San Francisco State University, told the Associated Press that two scientists had examined 3,000 predictions by astrologers. They found the astrologers wrong more than 98 percent of the time. Fraknoi concluded, "That's not the type of guidance we need from the government."

Again and again in the Holy Bible, God's people are warned against the evils of this ancient cult. (Deuteronomy 18:10-12). In astrology men are encouraged not to consult God for their guidance but rather to consult the stars and planets. They are no longer forbidden to pray to God and God's Word.

God has not promised to reveal to us all we want to know; but He has told us He will show us all we need to know. We don't look to the stars but to the Creator of the worlds and the stars. The Bible is God's revealed word to mankind and the only guidance worth following. Jesus said of the Holy Spirit: "He will guide you into all truth... He will tell you what is yet to come." Stiffer rules are proposed for use of Coventry landfill

By Jacqueline Bennett
Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — Members of the Solid Waste Study Committee and Council Steering Committee began drafting this week a stiffer ordinance for use of the town's landfill on Route 31 in South Coventry.

Town Manager John Ellessier said Tuesday, "The whole intent of this is to preserve one of the town's valuable assets."

Under the new ordinance which Ellessier would like to see in place by Jan. 1, 1989, there will be a clearer definition of and distinction between residential, commercial and developer dumping plus a dumping fee.

Ellessier noted that currently the nearby town of Windham has a $22 per ton dumping fee and Hartford charges $30 per ton.

"Right now we're free (for residential users)," Ellessier said. Commercial and developer dumping permits are available at a cost of $25 a week, he said.

A problem in the past, he said, has been commercial or developer dumping under the guise of residential. Ellessier says a goal in the new ordinance is to eliminate that problem.

However, he anticipates it won't be easy in the case of homeowners doing their own building improvements.

"That will be the sticky area," Ellessier said.

The value of the landfill has been estimated at $24 million, in light of how costly it would be to transport waste. Currently the life of the about 6-acre site is estimated at eight years. An engineering study at a cost of $15,000, approved in this year's budget, will be underway "as soon as possible" to estimate the life and see how that can be extended, Ellessier said.

The study will include mapping of the area to determine the best spot for bulky waste dumping, appliance dumping and a possible caretaker but.

Ellessier said it will also help officials decide if investment in scales or other equipment for the site is worth it, dependent upon how long the town can continue to use the landfill.

Stiffer fines for non-resident dumping are likely to be proposed, Ellessier said, adding that the town will begin now to penalize violators with fines already on the books.

Officials are also studying other aspects of solid waste management.

Currently, the town is part of the Windham Regional Recycling Plan, but whether the town will stay with that or join another program will depend on the results of a study on the plan being conducted by officials in the region.

The Solid Waste Study Committee also has asked Ellessier to re-establish contact with the six resource recovery projects in New England that the town might join, located in Windham, Hartford, Bristol and proposed plants in Lisbon, Middletown and Webster, Mass.

"I welcome you to Coventry, which is not only the birthplace of Nathan Hale, but also proved last night by 150 votes that we are still literate," Walsh said referring to voters approval of additional money for a town library expansion project in a referendum on Tuesday.

Business quickly moved to the nomination of Herbst by John Boland, chairman of the Democrat Town Committee in Pomfret, one of the 14 towns included in the 35th District.

"I am proud to nominate Marie Herbst, who has revitalized the state senate position in this district," Boland said.

He continued to praise Herbst for her work on and support of extended funding of the state Education Enhancement Act, which among other things increases starting salaries for teachers over a three year period ending in 1989. Boland set up so that representatives from each town in the 35th could meet together made her accessible to the people and helped unite the district.

"I see Marie as a live wire, with a lot of sparks left in her, so let's send her back for a second term," said Boland.

After a roll call vote of the 33 delegates, Herbst got up to speak. She talked of the need to support continuing education enhancement money so that children in

School aid cuts possible

But Kennedy says towns shouldn't worry

By Andrew J. Davis
Manchester Herald

Local school districts should not be worried about proposed reductions in the 1989-90 state education budget because local funding is guaranteed by law, said Manchester School Superintendent James P. Kennedy.

The proposed $1.31 billion budget could be cut by more than $152 million because of recent budget reduction orders issued by Gov. William O'Neill. State agencies will be required to submit current services spending plans by Sept. 1, and further cuts in October, said Kathy Frega, spokesman for the state Department of Education.

The reduction order came after state officials predicted a state deficit of $77.5 million.

The first round of cuts could total up to $129 million, while the October cut would result in an even higher cutback, she said.

Department officials have not yet determined where the cuts will be made, Frega said. The department will review non-committed funds such as grants, but no final decisions have been made, she said.

"We haven't even sat down yet to determine how to do this," Frega said. "We don't know if it's going to happen. It's just prudent planning."

Money earmarked for local school districts under the new state aid formula will be one of the last items touched, if at all, Frega said. Since that money has already been promised to the districts while other funds have not, it would behoove the education department to seek other cuts, she said.

"I would expect everyone would understand that if the locals are planning their budgets around it, cuts could be found elsewhere, she said.

Local officials said they are not worried about losing state aid since funding levels were passed into law by the Legislature in May, said Kennedy.

Manchester will receive more than $12 million in state local education funding in 1989-90, and Bolton will receive more than $1.2 million, according to estimates provided by state Sen. Michael P. Meotti, D-Glastonbury. Coventry will receive about $4 million in aid, Coventry officials have said.

"I haven't heard of any plans to cut the entitlement (funds)," Kennedy said. "It's all in the law. It would require a change in law."

Kennedy said the state department may be forced to make in-house cuts because local funding cannot be touched without a change in the law.

Marion Leber, Coventry business manager and acting superintendent, reserved comment because the Board of Education has not discussed the issue. However, she did say it was a topic that the board will watch for developments.

"It's just one of the things we'll keep our eye on. I'm sure the board will be very interested," she said. "I think right now it would be a little premature to make statements."

'It's a rematch' as Meotti gets nod to oppose Zinsser

By Alex Girelli
Manchester Herald

State Sen. Michael Meotti, D-Glastonbury, was nominated by acclamation Wednesday night to be "re-elected as senator," as Manchester Democratic Town Chairman Theodore R. Cummings, moderator of the 4th Senatorial District convention, put it.

In accepting the nomination, Meotti said he will campaign "door-to-door, door-to-door, and store-to-store" in his bid for re-election in the 4th Senatorial District, which includes Manchester, Glastonbury, Bolton, Hebron and Columbia.

Meotti will be opposed by Republican Carl Zinsser of Manchester, who was defeated by Meotti in 1986 after having served three terms in the Senate.

And he listed future goals that include making a recycling program work and achieving excellence in education in return for the investments that have been made.

Meotti was nominated by Manchester town director Kenneth Tedford, who said Meotti finds time to visit all of his constituents and keep them informed of what is going on in the Senate.

He said Meotti's campaign slogan two years ago was "Because it matters." "Because it still matters, I offer the name of Michael Meotti as senator from the 4th District," Tedford said.

Seconding speeches were made by representatives of each of the other four towns in the district. Helen Stern of Glastonbury praised his work in education as a member of the Glastonbury Board of Education, of the Town Council and of the state Senate.

Michael Ziska, a Bolton selectman, said his town has seen more of Meotti than of all its recent past senators and representatives.

Mary Ann Hanley of Hebron said, "His work does not frighten Michael Meotti and his supporters."

Danny Moore of Columbia said that Meotti started out in the Senate as a freshman, but "his performance is that of a veteran legislator."

Meotti was nominated by Manchester town director Ken-

in the 35th District.

"I am proud to nominate Marie Herbst, who has revitalized the state senate position in this district," Boland said.

He continued to praise Herbst for her work on and support of extended funding of the state Education Enhancement Act, which among other things increases starting salaries for teachers over a three year period ending in 1989. Boland set up so that representatives from each town in the 35th could meet together made her accessible to the people and helped unite the district.

"I see Marie as a live wire, with a lot of sparks left in her, so let's send her back for a second term," said Boland.

After a roll call vote of the 33 delegates, Herbst got up to speak. She talked of the need to support continuing education enhancement money so that children in the somewhat economically depressed eastern part of the state will have an opportunity for the same quality education as those in wealthy Fairfield County.

Herbst, who is a teacher, also supports increased student financial aid.

Herbst spoke of her work for pre-natal and infant care programs to ComPace and affordable housing for seniors. She is advocating that towns set up individual housing committees to determine where the housing needs are.

"We need affordable housing not only for seniors but for our volunteer fire fighters, our teachers, our municipal employees," Herbst said.

The 35th District includes Andover, Ashford, Brooklyn, Chaplin, Coventry, Eastford, Hampton, Pomfret, Tolland, Union, Vernon, Willington, Woodstock, and part of Mansfield.

Fonda protesters charged

WATERBURY (AP) — Four people including a former National Guard major general have been arrested during demonstrations protesting the filming of a movie starring actress Jane Fonda, who angered veterans by visiting Hanoi during the Vietnam War.

The movie, "Stanley and Iris," began filming in Waterbury on Tuesday. The four men arrested Wednesday included Gaetano A. Russo, a former major general in the Connecticut National Guard who has led protests against Fonda.

Russo, 69, of Waterbury, and Anthony E. Porto, 33, of Prospect, were both charged with disorderly conduct, according to Waterbury police Sgt. Francis Woodruff.

Richard W. Jones, 43, of Shelton, and Edward F. Grickis, 45, of Naugatuck, were both charged with breach of peace, police said.

Contractor sues Helmsleys

GREENWICH (AP) — An attorney for a New York contractor says he will press to recover $30,000 that he said was never paid for painting the driveway at the Helmsley mansion red for Leona Helmsley's birthday. Griffith Trow, a Stamford attorney who represents contractor Daniel F. MacNamee & Co. Inc. of Parsippany, N.Y., has filed a foreclosure suit against the corporation that owns the Helmsley mansion.

He said Wednesday that his client won a $30,000 judgment last month in Stamford Superior Court and the lawsuit was filed last week to collect the money.

Leona and Harry Helmsley, who bought their estate for about $9 million in 1983, have an empire in hotels and buildings.

Little hope of repayment

DANBURY (AP) — Many people who were embroiled out of millions of dollars by a late Danbury attorney, may never see that money again, a Superior Court judge said.

Richard L. Nahley, a former Danbury probate judge, is suspected of having embezzled at least $3 million in clients' funds. Nahley committed suicide in a Washington, D.C., hotel room in November.

"I wish I could tell you you're going to get 100 cents on the dollar. Many of you are not," Judge Robert K. Killian said on Wednesday during a hearing in Danbury.

Jai alai players won't deal

HARTFORD (AP) — Despite an offer by Hartford Jai Alai officials to rehire 25 striking jai alai players, an attorney says there will be no deal unless all players are taken back.

On Wednesday, jai alai spokesman Aaron Carbone said management would be willing to rehire 25 players but not 11 others and two basket repairmen.

Carbone said it would not accept the 13 employees back because they had engaged in misconduct during the professional Jai Alai Players Association strike that began on April 14.

Some of the misconduct — none of which was characterized as serious — is the subject of a National Labor Relations Board complaint by the fronton, Carbone said.

Two killed in plane crash

MOUNT PLEASANT, N.Y. — Two Greenwich, Conn., men killed when their plane crashed into a wooded area were determined to get from Block Island to Westchester County Airport despite bad weather, a Block Island, P.I., airport flight attendant said.

Police Sgt. Robert J. Gardiner identified the crash victims as Peter V. Church, 31, and John A. Griffin, 39. Their bodies were found in the wreckage of their small airplane Wednesday after distress signals were detected by the Coast Guard, authorities said.

Landlord faces charges

NEW BRITAIN (AP) — A landlord, whose buildings have been cited for more than 100 safety violations, has surrendered to police in connection with a charge stemming from the conditions in one of those buildings.

Alfred J. Prestia was arrested Wednesday because of nine state fire-code violations at 59 Beaver St., a building where 12 tenants live in conditions housing court prosecutor Vicki O'Donnell called the worst she has ever seen. He has been charged with reckless endangerment.

Deputy Fire Marshal John Dinda said Prestia was arrested after he ignored warnings to improve fire exits in the three-story wooden building. The structure is one of four Prestia buildings on Beaver Street recently cited for more than 150 building-code violations.

Many help disabled vendor

HARTFORD (AP) — Hartford area residents have rallied around a disabled man who was robbed of about $700, pledging nearly $3,000 to buy him a new wheelchair.

Pete Stone, who sells candy in the Hartford Civic Center, was robbed Tuesday as he traveled near the State Armory, Hartford police said.

Stone, 44, who has cerebral palsy and uses a wheelchair, was approached by a man who took a gym bag containing the cash about 1:45 p.m. Tuesday in front of 10 Ford St., police Sgt. Richard Grocki said.

Listeners of radio station WHCN in Hartford pledged $3,000 Wednesday to pay for a new wheelchair for Stone, the station said.

The Greater Hartford Chamber of Commerce's small business council also set up a fund Wednesday to help Stone.

Pollution plagues beaches

By The Associated Press

Connecticut ocean bathers are continuing to suffer as a result of pollution problems, with two beaches in Fairfield remaining closed while officials tested the water for bacteria. Meanwhile, beaches in Stratford and Milford that were closed last weekend because of problems with a sewage treatment plant were all reopened by Wednesday.

George Standing, Fairfield's sanitation, said the Penfield and Jennings beaches were closed at noon Tuesday because of a film in the water suspected of being partially treated waste.

Standing said he didn't know where the film came from. The town's three other beaches were open, he said.

"We'd rather be safe than sorry, with all the overflows that have occurred lately. It just didn't look right," said Fairfield Waterfront Director George Tatorian.

Stratford officials said a problem in the plant's chlorination system forced beaches in Stratford and Milford to close Monday and Tuesday.

partially treated sewage were spilled into the Housatonic River, which flows into the sound, from the Stratford treatment plant, forcing the beach closings in that town and Milford.

Also, the state Department of Health Services on Tuesday closed shellfish beds because of high amounts of bacteria in Long Island Sound.

A spokesman for an environmental group suing Stratford for problems with its sewage treatment plant said Tuesday that the sewage spill adds to evidence of problems with the plant.

Stratford has become well known for its repeated problems at the treatment plant, said Katharine Robinson, senior staff attorney for the Connecticut Fund for the Environment.

More than 1,249 violations of the plant's permit have been reported by the town in the past six years.

Heavy rainfall improves farmers' outlook

HARTFORD (AP) — Near-record rainfall in the past two weeks has helped rejuvenate Connecticut crops, bringing much-needed relief to farmers and their parched fields and orchards, a state agriculture official says.

"The rain in the last week and a half for the entire month of June — will help rejuvenate crops," said Gabe Moquin, executive assistant to state Agriculture Commissioner Kenneth B. Andersen.

The rain "will help the corn crop and the tomato, cucumber and pepper crops immeasurably. It will help some other crops, such as pumpkins and winter squash, to get back on schedule," Moquin said.

Officials claim chemical waste no big concern

By The Associated Press

Millions of pounds of toxic chemicals were discharged into the air and water last year by some of a National Labor Relations Board 200 Connecticut companies, but state and corporate officials said residents shouldn't be alarmed by the figures.

"You can't make things without having waste materials, and this isn't something people should be totally surprised about," said Leonard Bruckman, director of the state Department of Environmental Protection's air compliance unit.

"The numbers may be high, but just because something's coming out of a plant doesn't mean that's what you breathe in."

The Journal Inquirer reported in a copyright story Wednesday that the pollutants discharged by the companies included chemicals, gases and heavy metals known or suspected to cause cancer, genetic mutations, malformed fetuses, birth defects, liver damage, nervous system disorders and metabolic problems.

The newspaper obtained its information from newly required reports the corporations submitted to state and federal authorities. The reports are the first public documents that comprehensively reveal both routine and accidental toxic discharges by industry, the newspaper said.

State environmental and public health officials said the discharges were most likely permitted under the companies' state permits, but the officials said they have neither the time nor the resources to review each report.

The documents show that the state's biggest polluters. They include General Dynamics Corp.'s Electric Boat Division in Groton, The Stanley Works in New Britain, Kaman Corp. in Bloomfield, and four divisions of United Technologies Corp.

The reports reveal that Electric Boat released more than 361,000 pounds of toxics into the atmosphere, that The Stanley Works' hardware and tools divisions discharged more than 109,000 pounds into the air that Kaman Aerospace accounted for more than 56,000 pounds of air emissions.

Several smaller companies also reported releasing quantities of toxics that dwarfed the amounts discharged by larger manufacturing operations.

Upjohn Co.'s Fine Chemicals Division in New Haven, for example, reported sending 81,000 pounds of benzene, a proven human carcinogen, into the air. Another pharmaceutical company, Pfizer Inc., stated that it released as much as 13.7 million pounds of pollutants into the Thames River in Groton, the newspaper reported.

The state's biggest private employer, United Technologies, is also its largest corporate polluter, according to reports received as of July 1 by the DEP.

"That shouldn't surprise anyone, since we're the largest operation in the state," said Jack Braddock, a senior industrial hygiene and safety consultant at UTC's corporate headquarters in Hartford.

More than 6.8 million pounds of toxics into the air by UTC's Pratt & Whitney facilities in East Hartford, North Haven, Rocky Hill and Southington; Hamilton Standard in Windsor Locks; Sikorsky plants in Bridgeport, Shelton and Stratford; and Norden Systems operations in Norwalk.

Attorney in Waterbury gets special probation

WATERBURY (AP) — A special prosecutor said a special form of probation was a "suitable" way to resolve the case of a Waterbury defense attorney accused of improperly trying to influence a judge on a client's behalf.

Attorney Timothy C. Moynahan was ordered to perform 100 hours of community service as part of a special probation granted Wednesday.

Special Prosecutor Bernard Green said Moynahan had "suffered greatly as a result of this prosecution" and that accelerated rehabilitation "is a suitable way to have this matter adjudicated."

Superior Court Judge William Lavery granted Timothy C. Moynahan accelerated rehabilitation, which is only available to first-time offenders and clears their record if they complete a period of community service satisfactorily.

As part of a plea bargain agreement Moynahan was required to issue a statement concerning his alleged attempt to improperly influence Superior Court Judge Anne C. Dranginis. The agreement was presented to Lavery by attorneys for Dranginis and Moynahan and the special prosecutor in the case.

Moynahan's statement was read in court Wednesday by his attorney, Paul J. McQuillan.

"I have never had any reason to believe that (Dranginis) would be susceptible to any attempt to threaten or intimidate her."

"Upon reflection I recognize, however, that in the circumstances under which I spoke with her on that morning, it was reasonable for her to have assumed improper intentions on my part."

"I now realize that none of this would have occurred if I had respected the requirement that all matters concerning a case be discussed in the presence of opposing counsel and had arranged to have the state's attorney present during my talk with Judge Dranginis."

Lavery said the settlement should satisfy any grievance aspect of the case. Both sides said they were not aware of any plans to pursue a grievance against Moynahan for any violation of the attorneys' code of conduct.

Drug dealers join execs on rails

NORWALK (AP) — A drop-off in the price of narcotics in New York City coupled with increased police pressure is driving drug dealers to play their trade in Connecticut, police said.

Norwalk police Sgt. John Suchy said a $10 bag of heroin in New York sells for $20 in Connecticut.

"With the amount of drugs available, we're now finding that people from outside of Norwalk, particularly New York City, are commuting here to play their trade," John Suchy, commander of the department's anti-drug unit.

"They take the train from 125th Street and get off in South Norwalk. It's about $5.75 each way, and they can make more than make up for their expenses," Suchy said.

Police in Waterbury and Norwalk blamed New York-based dealers for the deaths of two Norwalk bystanders in drug-related gun battles in last week's Connecticut cities last week.

Paul Salute, agent-in-charge for the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration in Connecticut, said Fairfield County "has much of its problems because of its proximity to New York."

The presence of major arteries, such as Interstate 95 and the Metro-North Commuter railroad, makes Norwalk easily accessible, Salute said.

Suchy noted that crimes committed by out-of-state criminals are more difficult to solve, because the suspects are rarely well known by local residents and information on their whereabouts is harder to come by.

Victoria Perry, 22, who lives in the apartment with her four daughters, ages 2 to 6, said she was in the apartment when police arrived. While she stood outside her apartment, her youngest child ran back inside.

"She got frightened by the police. She ran back inside. They would not let her out," she said.

Secluded bishop of Shanghai learning of modern-day church

STAMFORD (AP) — The bishop of Shanghai, a symbol of resistance to the Chinese government's religious intolerance during the 30 years he spent in a Shanghai jail is living in seclusion in Stamford where he says Mass in Chinese daily and is learning the modern ways of the Roman Catholic Church.

Ignatius Kung, who the Vatican recognizes as the Bishop of Shanghai, came to Stamford to convalesce and learn about the church. The Chinese government exiled him from in 1955.

Kung's Stamford relatives have kept his stay private while he waits for permission from Pope John Paul II to return to China.

Kung declined to be interviewed, but his nephew, Joseph Kung said there is no timetable for the pope's decision. The bishop, who will turn 88 on Aug. 2, hopes to again serve as the spiritual leader of the Diocese of Shanghai. He was imprisoned because he refused to renounce the pope.

"He is the Rightful Bishop of Shanghai, period," Joseph Kung said. "My uncle wants to go back, but before he goes back he wants the pope's blessing."

Kung, a Stamford accountant and one of the bishop's 20 relatives in the United States, negotiated his uncle's medical visa with Chinese authorities during a visit to Shanghai in February, when they were reunited after a 35-year separation. He declined to comment on when the visa expires.

The bishop, who has cataracts and suffered a heart attack last winter, has improved since he arrived here in May. Kung said Wednesday.

Kung said the bishop says Mass in Chinese at 6:45 a.m. daily at a private Stamford chapel.

"Before he was living in a compound, isolated from the world," Kung said. "He is recuperating at this time, but he is excited about learning about the world and the church he has missed."

He has met with foreign journalists three times since he was released on a "parole" by the Chinese government in July 1985, but has never spoken at length about his imprisonment or his relationship with the Chinese government and the Patriotic Catholic Church.

Millionaire plans to adopt poor family

MIAMI (AP) — A millionaire who felt compelled to take direct action in the fight against poverty has offered a welfare mother a job, an education and a home for her five children.

"I kept driving by and seeing the homeless," businessman James Giscclair said Wednesday night. "It started to really bother me. I honestly became consumed by the urge to do something about it."

For 28-year-old Anita Hunter, struggling to raise her children, including a month-old son, in a drug-ridden inner-city Miami neighborhood dubbed "The Hole," his offer is a "fairy tale" come true.

"I can't believe this is happening to me," she said. "It's just a miracle from God. I've struggled and hoped for so long to get my children out of this neighborhood and into a safe environment."

Giscclair, a 43-year-old New Orleans native and principal owner of six Boca Raton enterprises, including a real estate management company and a restaurant, found the family through Livia Garcia of Miami's Community Development Department. He told her he wanted to help real people he could see and talk to.

"My idea is to see exactly where my money is going and be able to measure its success," said Giscclair, who has four children. "The idea is to get Anita to become self-sufficient to the point where she can pay her own rent on the house, pay her own bills and do everything on her own someday. I plan to pay for everything until she reaches that point."

He said he would find a home for the family in Boca Raton, Delray Beach or Deerfield Beach, about 100 miles north of Miami. Ms. Hunter would work during the day and attend Florida Atlantic University at night, so she could pursue her goal of becoming an accountant.

It's not the first time Giscclair has tried the idea.

An earlier effort to help a welfare mother with four children failed because "she was totally unwilling to participate," Giscclair said.

"And then one day she asked me to pay half of her rent because her ex-husband didn't come through with the money. I volunteered to pay it directly to her landlord, but she said, 'No, send it to me. That was enough for me to realize I was being conned.'"

That's why Giscclair's has attached some conditions.

Next-door neighbor Eunice

Daly said she was watering her garden when she heard an explosion and saw smoke rising from the Borsi home Wednesday morning.

"My first thought, as I ran to call 911, was, 'He's done it. He's killed them and set a fire in the house, just like he said he would,'" she said.

She said Mrs. Borsi told her last week that her husband became abusive and threatening when he drank. She said the woman was considering filing for divorce.

Coroner's officials identified the dead man as Jozsef Borsi, 35, but withheld the names of the woman and child pending notification of relatives. However, neighbors said the girl was Judith.

Borsi, 35, apparently shot and killed his 48-year-old wife, Maria, and his daughter in the house, doused their bodies with gasoline and set them on fire before going to the garage and shooting himself in the head with a 32-caliber pistol, investigators said.

Secretary-general presses Iran on issue of hostages

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The secretary-general pressed Iran's foreign minister on Western hostages held by pro-Iranian extremists in Lebanon, and said he was "very sober" on prospects for securing a truce in the Iran-Iraq war.

In his first full day of separate truce talks with the belligerents' foreign ministers, Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar met with Tariq Aziz of Iraq and Ali Akbar Velayati of Iran.

Aziz said Iraq, which has continued attacks on Iran despite Tehran's acceptance last week of a year-old U.N. cease-fire resolution, still wants face-to-face talks with Iran and will not be "stamped" into a settlement.

Iraq announced that it would honor Resolution 598 almost immediately after the Security Council passed it last summer.

Perez de Cuellar said he raised Velayati on Wednesday the issue of the 18 foreign hostages, half of them American, believed held by pro-Iranian Shiite Muslim militants in Lebanon.

"This is a question on which one has to be very discreet," he told reporters afterward. "I raised it very, very specifically."

He did not disclose the Iranian envoy's response, and Velayati did not answer questions about the hostages.

Earlier Wednesday, the U.N. chief told reporters he thought the Iranians "might assert their possible influence in order to have this problem out of the way" for "humanitarian and political" reasons.

The Persian said he presented to both sides Wednesday the same ideas for implementing a cease-fire in the 8-year-old war, and was "very sober" in his assessment of progress. No formal meetings were scheduled for today.

Perez de Cuellar said he could not require direct talks if Iran, which has refused face-to-face negotiations but has left the door open to a request by the secretary-general.

Aziz said that if Iran does not accept direct talks "that means that they are not sincere about peace."

Some diplomats, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Iraq's stubbornness, its continuing military offensive and its alleged use of outlawed chemical weapons were hampering negotiations.

They noted that Aziz described his official visit with the Iranian minister as a "courtesy call," while U.N. officials said it was "substantive."

Iranian Ambassador Mohammad Jafar Mahallati charged that Iraq was procrastinating and sabotaging U.N. peace efforts. He said Iraq was using chemical warfare, and he lodged a protest with the Security Council.

"How can we take the Iraqis seriously when... they are using chemical weapons?" Mahallati told reporters.

The Iraqis frequently accuse Iraq of using chemical weapons, which are banned under the 1925 Geneva Convention. Iraq has acknowledged their use, but contends Iran introduced chemical weapons to the war.

Iran's parliament speaker and military commander, offered on Tuesday, to help get the nine American hostages freed if the United States releases Iranian assets frozen since 1979.

Firemen protect Old Faithful

Crews using flame throwers fought fire with fire as a blaze burned within six miles of Old Faithful, and authorities said arson caused a South Dakota wildfire that destroyed 22 buildings and forced 2,000 people to flee.

Wildfires also chased hundreds of people from their homes in Idaho, while in Alaska 1,200 firefighters battled wind-fanned blazes that consumed 1.3 million acres, an area larger than Delaware.

Large fires, many of them kindled in drought conditions aggravated during a hot, dry summer, also blackened regions in Arizona, Oregon, Utah, Washington state and Montana.

Dukakis begins tour

Michael Dukakis celebrated his Greek roots before embarking on a second campaign swing as the Democratic presidential nominee, as Vice President George Bush added former rival Jack Kemp to his list of possible running mates.

Dukakis began his seven-state tour today after attending the 30th annual convention of the Pancreatic Association of America, a group of Greek-Americans who trace their roots back to the island of Crete.

The first day of his trip takes him to New Jersey and Ohio as the campaign follows its strategy of contesting all 50 states.

Before leaving the Statehouse on Wednesday, Dukakis continued his duties as Massachusetts governor by signing a number of bills, including crime legislation and the final piece of a plan to balance the 1988 budget.

FBI link to be eyed

MIAMI (AP) — FBI files have turned up documents stolen from a television reporter who has accused U.S. officials in a Nicaraguan political bombing, but the agency denies knowing the material was taken illegally.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., chairman of the FBI oversight committee in Congress, said he will look promptly into how the agency obtained the stolen documents from Tony Avirgan, a free-lance cameraman who worked for CBS-TV.

"We've been looking into over 100 break-ins over a period of several years," Edwards said Wednesday. "They all have a Central American angle, all relating to Salvador, in some cases Nicaragua."

Cambodia, guerrillas clash

BOGOR, Indonesia (AP) — Cambodia's Vietnam-installed government and delegates of the Khmer Rouge guerrillas clashed at peace talks that ended today, and a settlement of the 9-year-old civil war remained elusive, participants said.

One participant, Foreign Minister Supphan Dhanabalan of Singapore, said the two Cambodian factions remained "quite far apart" after four days of informal talks.

The talks brought together Vietnam, the nominal coalition of three guerrilla groups opposing its occupation of Cambodia, the Phnom Penh government, and Vietnam's close ally, Laos.

Retreat topic of visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The pace of the Soviet troop withdrawal from Afghanistan and U.S. hopes for fair elections in Pakistan were topics for discussion today between senior Reagan administration officials and Pakistani Foreign Minister Sahabzada Yaqub Khan.

There are an estimated 115,000 Soviet troops in Afghanistan. Half are supposed to be withdrawn by Aug. 15. Pakistani President Mohammad Zia al-Haq raised concerns last week that the Soviets were replenishing them with new troops.

Through Pakistan, the United States arms Afghan rebels fighting the Red Army and the pro-Soviet government in Kabul.

Hearings ask if smuggling was condoned

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House panel is opening hearings on whether the Reagan administration condoned drug smuggling and other criminal activities to further its Central American policy.

Chairman William J. Hughes said his House Judiciary subcommittee on crime will examine "allegations of drug smuggling, racketeering and money laundering between Central American and the U.S. — and the role our government played in ignoring or even encouraging the criminal activities."

Hughes said the series of hearings will "demonstrate there were other motives driving drug law enforcement, like votes on Contra aid."

President Reagan has been a strong opponent of Nicaragua's Sandinista government and steady supporter of the Central American nation's Contra rebels. At various times, both sides in the Nicaraguan conflict have been accused of aiding or taking part in drug smuggling.

Hughes said the first hearing today would examine allegations that members of the Sandinista government cooperated with the Colombian drug cartel to import cocaine into the United States in 1984.

The committee is to hear testimony on flights to Nicaragua and other locations in South and Central America by convicted drug pilot Barry Seal, who became a government informant in a federal sting operation.

The Seal operation, designed to trap cocaine smugglers, was compromised and ended early because of leaks to the news-media from sources familiar with the plan.

Hughes said a CIA witness was invited to testify on the agency's role in the operation, but he notified the committee he would refuse to cooperate on Fifth Amendment grounds of self-incrimination.

More than 100 subpoenas have been issued for witness testimony and the production of documents, Hughes said. Judicial grants of immunity have been obtained to compel testimony of six persons who refused to cooperate, invoking their Fifth Amendment privilege.

No immunity grant has been issued for the CIA witness, and Hughes said there has been no decision on pursuing the agency's testimony.

17 of 37 vehicles flunk feds' crash tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly half the 37 cars, vans and light trucks that have been crash tested by the government this year would likely cause severe head injuries or death to their drivers in a 35 mph collision.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration on Wednesday released its final report on 1988 crash tests with results showing drivers of vans and light trucks were at high risk of severe head injuries in a crash.

Drivers of compact cars were least likely to have severe head injuries, the agency's figures showed.

NHTSA reported the likelihood of injury as an index called the head-injury criterion. The agency derived the index from monitoring dummies strapped into vehicles that were crashed into a fixed barrier at 35 mph.

Seventeen of the 1988 vehicles tested produced a head-injury criterion above 1,000, levels that show a high chance of severe head injury or death.

NHTSA cautioned it tested only one vehicle of each model, and additional tests could produce varying results "due to slight differences in the way vehicles are manufactured and equipped, or due to slight variations in test conditions."

Small differences in the test results should not be considered significant, NHTSA said.

The Chevrolet G-20 van showed the greatest likelihood of head injury to the driver, with an index of 3,665. The Mazda 929 4-door car, a large and mid-size model, showed the least likelihood, with an index of 273.

Tests of nine subcompact cars found five with an index of more than 1,000. The average for the nine vehicles was 966.

TEARFUL REUNION — Carolyn MacLean, center, weeps as she is embraced by her mother, Kathy MacLean, after they were reunited Wednesday in San Diego. Carolyn and her husband, Scott Swanson, left, are newlyweds.

Love blinded lost newlyweds

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A newlywed says she and her husband were "blinded by love" 3½ months ago when they disappeared from Chicago, sparking a manhunt after their deserted car was found ransacked with its engine running.

Scott Swanson, 23, and his wife, Carolyn, 22, said they dashed off to San Diego shortly after they eloped because some relatives apparently disapproved of their skipping a traditional marriage ceremony. They also said they just wanted to spend time together.

"Call it shortsighted or call it what you want to, but love is blind and I know that sounds trite," Ms. Swanson said at a news conference after being reunited with her parents, Jim and Kathy MacLean of Haddonfield, N.J.

"So much has come out of it that has been great, but then to see the look on my mother's face... and my dad's face... I mean, I can't stand the hurt that I've caused," she said tearfully.

The newlyweds vanished April 2 without telling relatives or classmates at a suburban Evangelical college.

During a resulting three-state police investigation, friends at Wheaton College held prayer vigils, put up posters and questioned people at roadside restaurants and gas stations.

"We are tremendously sorry for the hurt and the pain we've caused to our families, to our friends and loved ones and relatives," Swanson said. "We never realized that the story would have the ramifications it has."

The couple left their car near a police station with the keys under the mat and their identification cards, Swanson said. "We didn't want to be traced."

The BMW was found ransacked in an alley, its motor running.

Police eventually determined that the couple had planned to vanish, but families and friends feared foul play.

The MacLeans said they followed the uproar over their disappearance through front-page stories in Chicago newspapers at a university library. Meanwhile, they both got jobs at a suburban La Jolla delicatessen.

They were not seen or heard from until they sent letters to their parents and contacted the MacLeans by telephone Tuesday.

Large and mid-size cars with head-injury criteria exceeding 1,000 were the Renault Medallion 4-door, 1,656; Buick Park Avenue 4-door, 1,467; and the Chrysler New Yorker, 1,362.

The agency tested 10 vans and small trucks and found seven with head-injury criteria exceeding 1,000. The average index for the vehicles was 1,491.

Trucks and vans showing the greatest likelihood of head injury were the Chevrolet G-20 van, 3,665; Isuzu Spacecab pickup, 1,873; Chevrolet Astro Van, 1,663; Nissan LEV pickup, 1,528; Mitsubishi Montero 4x4, 1,320; Volkswagen Vanagon, 1,320; and the Ford F-150 pickup, 1,074.

afterward that what had been discussed in executive session could not have been discussed in public.

DiRosa said today that the board always goes into executive session to discuss negotiations. He said the parties involved in the dispute "have a gentlemen's agreement not to discuss the negotiations in public so that nobody's position is jeopardized at this time."

Monday the Board of Directors rejected a proposed settlement of the dispute that would have allowed the town to continue work on the secondary facility where wetlands are located, if what had been described as a "substantial" fine had been paid. Although officials had earlier refused to disclose the fine, DiRosa said today that the fine proposed was $1.5 million. He said that that amount was recommended by the federal Environmental Protection Agency and presented by the U.S. Attorney on the EPA's behalf and the behalf of the Corps.

All the directors present at Wednesday's meeting except Naab voted to go into executive session. They were DiRosa, Stephen T. Cassano, Kenneth N. Tedford, Ronald Oella and Theodore "Terry" Werkhoven.

"Mr. Chairman, is that necessary?" Naab asked DiRosa before the vote.

"Yes it is, absolutely," DiRosa said.

season was lost. He said that the town might seek an extension of the deadline as a part of negotiations being carried out for settlement of the wetlands violation.

Town Manager Robert B. Weiss had said last month that loss of the summer construction season would mean a year's delay in the plant's completion.

Young would not speculate on when the town would have to resume work on the secondary facility in order to complete the project on time. But asked whether the town would be able to meet the deadline, he said, "I would say at this point, probably yes. If we can get moving in the very near future."

Federal Environmental Protection Agency officials said Wednesday that 82 percent of the major municipal sewage plants in Connecticut met the requirements for water quality. The nationwide average was 86 percent.

Eleven Connecticut plants did not meet the standards. Eight — including Manchester — have a final schedule when they will come into compliance. Besides Manchester, the plants include those in Bethel, Cheshire, Danbury, New Haven, Seymour, Suffield and Winchester.

Three others have no final schedule, according to EPA. They are Mattitohock, North Haven and Plymouth, although state officials in Hartford said a final date has recently been established for Plymouth.

But Robert Norwood, engineer of the water pollution control division of the DEP, said today that the eight plants that have schedules for compliance are for practical purposes not violating federal regulations. He said that or variety of reasons far HBO's "All Star Salute To The Improv."

The nominations were announced from more than 4,500 entries.

"Beauty and the Beast" was nominated for best drama series and Ron Perlman was nominated as best lead actor for his role as the half-man, half-beast who lives beneath the streets of New York and carries on a unrequited love affair with a beautiful woman lawyer.

CBS' "Cagney and Lacey" was a previous Emmy winner that was recently canceled by CBS, received two nominations, both for lead actress for co-stars Sharon Gless and Tyne Daly. Both have won that award in the past.

The "Golden Girls," winner in the past two years as best comedy series, was nominated again along with stars Rue McClanahan, Bea Arthur, and Betty White, all for lead actress. Estelle Getty was nominated for best supporting actress in a comedy series.

Condemned attack dog recaptured

NEW BRITAIN (AP) — A pit bull that had escaped the pound 10 days before it was to be destroyed has been recaptured more than a year later, officials said.

The dog, named Cookie, had attacked 8-year-old Jennifer Paris on May 2, 1987. The girl suffered a broken right leg and bites to her left leg that required 40 stitches.

The 2-year-old dog, scheduled to be destroyed later in the month, was taken to the pound but disappeared on May 16 without any signs of forced entry or exit, police said.

The dog was recaptured Tuesday after police received an anonymous telephone call that it was at the home of its owner, John Arroyo. It was being held at the Newington dog pound "so it won't escape from the dog pound again," said New Britain Det. William Kilduff.

Kilduff said Wednesday that it is unclear whether the destruction order handed down in May is still valid. The city dog warden, Jill McKenna, is seeking another destruction order.

Arroyo, 20, said he had nothing to do with Cookie's disappearance from the dog pound. He said he found Cookie about seven months ago in the possession of some teenagers in the east end, who said they bought the dog for $200.

But Susan Paris, the girl's mother, said Wednesday that Arroyo told her in a telephone conversation Tuesday night that he crawled under the fence at the dog pound and stole the dog. Paris said she signed a police affidavit stating he told her that.

Dino's bones among oldest

EAST WINDSOR (AP) — A curator at Yale University's Peabody Museum has now determined some dinosaur bones in the museum's collection are from the world's oldest dinosaur discovery.

John Ostrum said Wednesday the bones were taken from a site in East Windsor in 1918. He said his conclusion was based on information brought to him by state geologist Sidney Quarrier and others.

Ostrum said he plans to walk the site where the bones were recovered and take samples of sandstone.

The bones were found two years earlier when what is now regarded as the earliest dinosaur bone find, England had claimed to make the earliest dinosaur bone discovery in 1920. Those bones were on display in British museums.

"The British have a great tradition in history of uncovering and discovering and reporting curiosities," Ostrum said. "To learn they did not come first in the line, but come second after the colonists, is amusing, especially for Angliophiles," Ostrum said.

The East Windsor bones were uncovered when Solomon Ellsworth Jr. was digging a 20-foot well at the home his ancestors had built in 1757, Ostrum said.

Not knowing what the bones were, Ellsworth took them to a Yale professor. But it was decades before the word dinosaur was coined in 1841.

The Governors Award this year will go to William Hanna and Joseph Barbera, of Hanna-Barbera, for their many animated shows, including "The Flintstones," "The Jetsons," and "The Smurfs."

"The cable industry is pleased with the number of entries this year," said Jim Boyle, a spokesman for the National Academy of Cable Programming. "Our hopes are very high for nominations and winners. We think talent will be recognized."

CONNECTS — Manchester's Neal Schackner connects with a pitch during Zone Eight play against Enfield Wednesday night at Kelley Field. Schackner

One good inning powers Legion nine to Zone win

By Len Auster Manchester Herald

All it took was one good inning — this time — as Manchester Legion exploded for six runs in the bottom of the second inning for a 6-4 victory over Enfield Wednesday night at Kelley Field.

The Post 102 contingent, winners of four straight and 11 of 12 is now 16-2 in the Zone and 23-9 overall. It is back in action today at 5:45 p.m. on the road against Windsor Locks at Southwest Park in a makeup game. The teams played a 4-4 deadlock Monday night.

We had one good inning tonight, Manchester Coach Dave Morency aptly pointed out. "And Kenny Gancarz came up so big for us tonight," he added.

Gancarz relieved struggling Manchester starter Pat Maguire in the second with Enfield, which dips to 10-7 in the Zone and 14-9 overall, having scored three runs. He got out of the inning without further damage, and was touched for a lone marker in the fifth.

That's two good outings for Gancarz in a row. He threw well against Simsbury. He's a fighter for us. He and Rob Stanford we look to now to be our stoppers," Morency said.

Gancarz, in 5 2/3 innings, yielded just two hits — both in the fifth — while striking out four and issuing two free passes.

The visitors from Post 80 chased Maguire from the hill in the second with Neil Roeder's line-drive single capping the scoring. Gancarz took over the mound duties and sandwiched a pop-out and line-drive out around a harmless walk.

Manchester, in a race with East Hartford for the best record in the Zone and the homefield edge in the end of season best-of-three series that will determine the representative to the State Tournament, erupted in the bottom of the second.

Jim Penders drew a leadoff walk and Joe Leonard followed with a single. Maguire was hit by a pitch to start the inning. Rob Stanford singled hard up the middle to plate Maguire with the equalizer, and when the ball rolled free, Price scampered home for the inning's fourth run.

Keith DiVeso and Neal Schackner also lashed RBI singles to cap the stanza.

"It's vital for us (to keep on winning) and to go into the playoffs with a positive attitude," Morency said. "To say these guys are on top of their game is not feasible. It was enough to win."

Price and Stanford each collected three hits and Leonard a pair for Manchester.

Manchester and East Hartford, leaders in the respective divisions, finish out the Zone Eight schedule against each other at McKenna Field in East Hartford on Aug. 1. It could mean home-field edge as far as the playoffs, although East Hartford, according to Morency, may not have access to McKenna after August 5. "That's the last we've heard," he said. The regular-season finale

MB's rally to down Herb's

BLOOMFIELD — Coming from behind in the fifth and sixth innings, Moriarty Brothers began a hectic stretch with a 4-3 victory over host Herb's Sports Shop at Bloomfield Hill in Greater Hartford Twilight League action Wednesday night.

The MB's, who've clinched the Twilight regular season title and are now 20-3, have a doubleheader tonight at Moriarty Field. It begins with a makeup pitch against Herb's at 6 p.m. followed by the regularly scheduled game against Malverns/Jewellers at 7:30 p.m.

Moriarty's went into the fifth inning trailing, 2-1, before Todd Reynolds tied it with a home run. Ralph Glansanti reached on an error, stole second, took third on a fielder's choice, and scored the game-winner on a Ray Gilha sacrifice fly.

Moriarty's added an unearned run in the top of the sixth, and that proved pivotal as Herb's, 5-7, scored in the bottom of the inning.

Kenny Hill went the distance to pick up the victory on the mound for the MB's. He yielded eight hits, struck out two and walked one. Reynolds slapped two of Moriarty's seven hits.

Starling faces action if he fights Molinares

Section 2, Page 11 Thursday, July 28, 1988

NEW YORK (AP) — Marlon Starling will be stripped of his World Boxing Association welterweight title if his fight with Tomas Molinares is not sanctioned, a WBA official said Wednesday.

"The fight has not been sanctioned. If it takes place, we will declare the title vacant," Elias Cordova, head of the WBA championships committee, said Wednesday.

Starling is scheduled to fight the Colombian challenger Friday night in Atlantic City, N.J.

"The promoters have not met with any of the requirements of a championship fight. They have not asked our committee to sanction the fight, they have not sent a copy of the contracts, and they have not paid the WBA sanctioning fee," Cordova said.

"Officially, we don't know if the fight goes on. Starling will be stripped of his title, regardless of the result. When a champion exposes his title in a fight that has not been sanctioned, he is automatically stripped and the first two ranked boxers fight for the vacant title."

The promoters of the fight are Dan Duva and Cedric Kushner. Cordova said they still have time to meet the requirements of a title fight, but they would have to telegraph the sanctioning of the bout, and they would have to deposit WBA's fee before the fight.

Kushner said Wednesday in Atlantic City, "It's rubbish. They (WBA) have the contracts. You are only stripped (of your title) when you're in violation of something. Marlon Starling has not done anything wrong. Cedric Kushner Productions has filed contracts and sanctioning fees for everybody," Kushner added.

"People have so much in common," he said. "You will notice the development of glasnost in our country. We would be glad to see you bring that feeling home."

Hall of Fame pitcher Whitey Ford told the team: "Just play your best and show the people in Russia what a great game of baseball is."

Culhane noted the diversity of backgrounds among the players on the Ambassadors.

"Two are Puerto Rican, one is Dominican Republic, five are Irish, three are Irish and three blacks," he said. "They all get along very well together."

With one exception, all are from Hoboken and most attend Hoboken High School. Derrick Casius is a 15-year-old pitcher from Cresskill, N.J., who struck out 10 of the final 12 batters to lead the team into the Kofax World Series last year.

"I'm very anxious, looking forward to going," England said of the trip. "Not many people, let alone teams, have gone to the Soviet Union."

He said his parents, Richard and Delores England, and others also will make the trip.

It won't be the first European trip for England and five other members of the team. In April they won a tournament near Bordeaux, France, holding the opposition to one hit and no runs in five games.

Wilson moved the team within six yards of a possible Super Bowl berth in a 17-10 NFC championship game lost to the Washington Redskins.

The Vikings' season was over, but Kramer's had never really begun.

He was charged with drunken driving just before the start of training camp, and he checked himself into an alcoholism rehabilitation center.

In his first game, a preseason contest against the New England Patriots, he fumbled four times. On the fourth, he dived for the football, was crunched and a nerve in his neck was pinched.

The injury affected the strength and durability of his passing arm. His status was re-evaluated every week, which led to a quarterback situation that was more comedy than controversy.

Burns, a liability as a "Kramer man," would choose Kramer to start games. But the first time Kramer would take a hit, the coach would have to go to the bench for Wilson. And when Burns would give Wilson a start, Wilson would have to go to the bench for Kramer.

Heading West and enjoying the scenery

WEST YELLOWSTONE, Mont. — We're here, along with my wife, Joyce, and good friends, Chris and Bill Senecal of Monson, Mass. We arrived after a five-day, two-car convoy across our great country, averaging about 500 miles a day.

We had picnic breakfasts, and lunches and dinner at restaurants wherever we stopped for the night. Some dinners were good, some fair, and one was lousy. That's not bad for five days on the road.

Here's some observations as we crossed each state. We'll skip Connecticut and New York since they're so close to home.

Pennsylvania: Traveled on I-84 to Scranton, then south to U.S. 80 for the longest ride of the trip. U.S. 80 has everything: hills, mountains, and monster repair work. The repairs forced us into single lanes, making everyone very happy to finally stop for the first night in Youngstown, Ohio.

Ohio: Drove on U.S. 80. Road flat and straight into Indiana.

Indiana: Still on U.S. 80 to South Bend, then we picked up U.S. 90. We started to see the effects of the drought here: land flat, water holes dried up, crops looking meager, and parched, in certain areas.

Illinois: More of the same. It was a rough ride around Chicago. The land started to undulate at the Wisconsin border.

Wisconsin: A lovely state of mostly wooded and farm land with gently rolling hills, pretty lakes, rivers, and streams. The farms are neat and contour plowed. We stopped the second night in Madison, the capitol, a nice city.

Minnesota: We crossed from Wisconsin into Minnesota over the Mississippi River to more wooded rolling hills, and farms. The farms in Minnesota and Wisconsin seemed to be little affected by drought.

South Dakota: Still on U.S. 90, crossed just before Sioux Falls. The land started to change, becoming more arid, marred with a conglomerate of billboard signs. The third night was spent in Mitchell, S.D., which is noted for its Corn Palace, a large auditorium-type building, decorated on the outside with murals made of corn cobs and corn kernels. The next day we moved on to Wall, S.D., with the land becoming more arid and more like range land. We spent the fourth night in Wall, a tourist town. However, we spent a good part of the day in the Badlands National Park around Wall. Awesome! If you are ever out this way, don't miss it.

Wyoming: We left Wall and moved into the Black Hills of S.D. and Wyoming, skirting a large forest fire near Mount Rushmore. The only rain we saw the entire trip was back in Wisconsin for about 20 minutes. The Black Hills in Wyoming are neat, then large areas of semi-arid range land, across the Big Horn River into Cody. In Cody, we found the Buffalo Bill Historical Center. It's one of the finest museums I've ever seen. We spent the fifth night in Cody, and then moved on to West Yellowstone, Mont.

The trip to West Yellowstone from Cody was absolutely marvelous. We climbed mountains, via switchbacks through the Bighorn National Park. The scenery and vistas from top of mountains was just great. Then we moved down the mountains and drove into the East Gate of Yellowstone National Park and began climbing once again. The trip through the park was breathtaking. The scenery is absolutely fantastic. The 125 miles from Cody, through the park to West Yellowstone is a glimpse of a real Eden. Besides the awesome vistas, the sight of buffalo, elk, deer, and moose along the roadway, in their natural state, and environment, makes for a photographer's paradise.

Speaking of animals, I know some of you will ask, did I take Beau, our infamous Labrador along with me? The answer: No. He's home being spoiled by sons Scott and Peter.

I'll be sending more reports, especially about the fishing.

Seoul open to moving events

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Olympic host Seoul remains ready to let North Korea stage some events of the 1988 Games, although time is running short to reach agreement. South Korea's top Olympic official said today.

But Seoul Olympic Organizing Committee President Park Seh-jik declined to say whether agreement appeared more likely following North Korea's expression of this week of willingness to discuss Olympic questions with South Korea's National Assembly.

"I think any dialogue to promote the relationship between North and South is fruitful. I hope very much it will contribute to better understanding and eventually the possibility of (North Korea) participation in the Seoul Olympics," he told a news conference on the 50th day before the Games open on Sept. 17.

Park also reiterated his willingness to visit Pyongyang "if it will contribute to the successful Olympic Games in Seoul."

Asked about the possibility of phone contact with the head of the North's Olympic committee, he said that "to have one or two calls with him would not be a bad idea."

North Korea has said it would boycott the Games in Seoul unless it was made a co-host, with its own opening and closing ceremonies and a share of television revenue.

GRAND SLAM — Boston's Ellis Burks, left, is congratulated by teammate Todd Benzing and others at home plate after hitting a grand slam in the sixth inning against the Rangers Wednesday night in Arlington, Texas. The Red Sox won, 10-7.

Burks' vivid demonstration leads Bosox over Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Boston Red Sox centerfielder Ellis Burks demonstrated Wednesday to family and friends why he's one of the most exciting young players in the American League.

Burks blasted a sixth-inning grand slam and started a three-run rally that eventually capped a Boston comeback to lead the Red Sox to their 13th victory in their last 14 starts in a 10-7 win over the Texas Rangers.

"It's nice being in the right place at the right time," Burks said. "We're hitting the ball, we've been getting great pitching, and great relief pitching. That's what you have to do to win."

Burks had a small but vocal group of supporters Wednesday night. He lives in nearby Fort Worth, during the off-season and went to high school in Eyerman. "There were 20 to 25 in the stands to see me play. It was a great feeling to do well and win," Burks said.

"Burks is a terrific player," said Rangers manager Bobby Valentine. "He can do everything you have to do in this game."

Kevin Romine, a seventh-inning defensive replacement, drove in the go-ahead run with an eighth-inning single. Romine has four RBIs this season, three game-winners.

Boston got to Texas bullpen ace Mitch Williams, 1-4, for two consecutive run-scoring hits during a three-run eighth as the Red Sox took the deciding game of the three-game series.

Burks started the two-out rally with a single and Todd Benzing followed with a run-scoring double off Ed Vande Berg. Williams relieved, yielding an RBI double to Jim Rice and Romine's game-winning hit.

"We came here to win two out of three and we did it," said Red Sox manager Joe Morgan. "We had a chance to show them how good we were, something we haven't been able to do in this place." Bob Stanley, 4-0, allowed two earned runs in the seventh but qualified for the victory.

Lee Smith, who suffered a slightly strained back while jogging in the outfield before the game, worked out of a two-out, two-strike jam in the eighth and pitched a perfect ninth to pick up his 16th save.

Texas had rallied for four runs in the seventh inning, helped by Burks' fielding error in center.

Texas won a 9-8 thriller Tuesday night.

"Our offense is going well," said Rangers left-fielder Pete Incaviglia. "We keep scoring seven, eight, nine runs a game and we'll win a lot more than we lose."

"That's a lot of runs for two games," Valentine said. "Good games to watch for most people. I enjoyed last night a little more than tonight."

Rangers starter Jeff Russell allowed only one hit over the first five innings and took a 3-1 lead into the sixth before getting into trouble. Russell yielded two walks and a single then Burks crushed a fastball 410 feet into the right-center field stands. It was Burks' 13th homer of the season, fourth career grand slam and second this season.

"I figured if the pitch was there I was going to try and hit it hard," Burks said. "It was low and away and I just got the good part of the bat on it."

Burks' second grand slam of the season tied him for the American League lead with Gary Redus of Chicago and Pat Sheridan of Detroit.

Manley out for 30 days

By David Ginsburg
The Associated Press

CARLISLE, Pa. — Washington Redskins defensive end Dexter Manley, suspended for 30 days by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle for violating the league's substance abuse act, may not miss a football game this season.

"I have instructed Dexter Manley to remain out of the Redskins' training camp until Aug. 26," Rozelle said Wednesday in a statement issued through spokesman Joe Browne. That would make Manley eligible to play Sept. 5 when the Redskins open defense of their Super Bowl championship against the New York Giants.

Manley said "there's no question" he'll be ready by that time, and the Redskins' coaching staff also expressed optimism that he would be ready to go by then.

Manley, 30, missed most of training camp in 1986 as a holdout, but returned shortly before the regular season and went on to notch 18 sacks and earn a trip to the Pro Bowl for the only time in his seven-year career.

But while Redskins officials and Manley's teammates will welcome him back with open arms, they still are anxious for the troubled veteran to get his off-the-field life together.

"My personal hope and the Redskins' hope is that Dexter can get his personal problems and his life straightened out," Washington general manager Bobby Beathard said. "All we'd like to see is for things to turn out well for Dexter."

Defensive tackle Dean Hamel, who has played beside Manley, said, "You only play football for 10 years. When he's out of the public eye, then what's he going to do? He's not going to get pampered... I just hope he gets his life straightened out."

While the league did not characterize the move as a suspension, Browne said that Manley had been notified that he had involuntarily been placed on the team's non-football injury list.

In 1987, Manley underwent treatment for alcohol abuse at the Hazelden Institute in Minnesota. He met with Rozelle last Friday after it was reported that an illegal substance turned up in a drug test. Neither the league nor Manley has been willing to reveal specifics of the test.

"People are going to make rumors, and that's OK with me," Manley told a television station in a paid interview. "But I know what the situation was, and I know that everything is behind me."

Manley's attorney, Bob Woolf, said his client would not have to undergo rehabilitation as part of the condition of the suspension.

Mets in form against Phils

By Ralph Bernstein
The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — After Darryl Strawberry and Kevin Maize's clutch drive in five runs and Dwight Gooden's stymied Phillies, New York Mets' manager Dave Johnson said that's the way it's supposed to be.

When asked, "It was low and away and I just got the good part of the bat on it," Johnson said, "That's the way it's supposed to be. Maize and Gooden are the Mets make it look like that."

Things haven't gone so smoothly lately for the Mets, who have lacked consistent hitting. Gooden, meanwhile, put together consecutive victories for the first time since May 16 and 21.

Johnson said his players have been swinging the bats better since the All-Star break. He got a scare in the ninth inning when Gooden slipped on a wet mound during a blinding rainstorm.

At first it was thought the pitcher was hurt, but he wasn't. Johnson, however, took no chances. He relieved Gooden with Edwin Newhouse. Gooden lost his chance for his third complete game.

Gooden, who said he threw mostly fastballs to get ahead of the hitters, was pleased with getting two wins in a row.

"I have been consistent," he said. "The Mets headed home for the start of an important four game series Friday against the Pittsburgh Pirates. New York holds a two-game lead in NL East over the second-place Pirates, who beat St. Louis last night, 3-2, in 10 innings."

Johnson plans to start Bob Ojeda, 7-8, against John Smiley, 9-4, Friday. He'll follow with Sid Fernandez, 5-8, vs. Brian Fisher, 6-7, Saturday. Ron Darling, 10-7, against Bob Walk, 11-3, Saturday, and Gooden, 13-5, against Doug Drabak, 9-5, Monday night.

"Just another day at the office," said Strawberry after he and McReynolds blasted Philadelphia starter David Palmer, 5-8, and relievers Bill Scherzer and Kent Tekulve.

"The offense of winning," Strawberry described it. The Mets won two of a three game series in Philadelphia.

"It was a night everything was put together by the part of the lineup Davey wants to produce," Strawberry said.

McReynolds had a pair of singles, a double and a three-run homer.

Strawberry stroked a bases loaded single and double, driving in two with the first hit and unloading the bases with the double. He had another double and scored three runs.

Gooden struck out four and walked one on the way to his 13th win.

The triple error tied John with Jim Bontley "Cy" Seymour of the New York Giants for the major league record of most errors by a pitcher in one inning. Bontley's miscues came in the sixth inning on May 21, 1888.

"Oh, good old Cy," Johnson said of the left-hander who died in 1919.

"Yeah, I think I once pitched against him the Eastern League."

The Yankees' run and hit total were the most followed by the Brewers this season.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Moriarty's back in action

Moriarty Brothers resumes a busy week of Greater Hartford Twilight League baseball action tonight as it has a doubleheader at Moriarty Field. The MB's a 4-3 winner over Herb's Sports Shop on Wednesday, host Herb's in a makeup at 6 p.m. followed by a regularly scheduled game with Malloves Jewellers.

Mariners fire Balderson

SEATTLE — Dick Balderson was fired as general manager of the last-place Seattle Mariners and replaced by former Philadelphia Phillies executive Woody Woodward.

Woodward, 45, a former general manager of the New York Yankees, was dismissed by Phillies president Bill Giles on June 7 after seven months as director of player development. Both men blamed the firing on philosophical differences.

Ripken signs new contract

BALTIMORE — Six-time All-Star shortstop Cal Ripken, whose name has been the subject of numerous trade rumors this year, signed a multiyear contract with the Baltimore Orioles.

The contract is for three years and will be worth in excess of $6 million. The package also includes an option year.

Blue Jays bench Bell

MINNEAPOLIS — Toronto outfielder George Bell was benched, less than 24 hours after he and manager Jimmy Williams got into an argument during a 6-3 loss to Minnesota.

Williams confronted Bell, the 1987 American League Most Valuable Player, after the left fielder's three-inning stint on the bench. Williams over the head of catcher Ernie Whit, keying a three-run Minnesota sixth inning.

It was Bell's 13th error of the season, his sixth in seven games and third in two games. Williams immediately removed Bell from the game.

Lendl an upset victim

STRATTON MOUNTAIN, Vt. — Roger Smith, an unknown outside of his native Bahamas, scored the biggest victory of his brief pro career when he upset Ivan Lendl, the world's top player, 6-2, 6-3, in the Volvo International.

Second-seeded Andre Agassi, 18, ranked No. 5 in the world, advanced with a 6-4, 6-2 victory over Greg Holmes.

Three other seeds lost — No. 4 Amos Mansdorf of Israel, No. 6 David Pate and No. 14 John Frawley of Australia.

Graf breezes in net play

HAMBURG, West Germany — Steffi Graf, playing her first match since winning Wimbledon, breezed into the third round of the $200,000 Hamburg Virginia Slims with a 6-0, 6-3 victory over Regina Marikova of Czechoslovakia.

Graf had a bye in the first round and next will meet Sabrina Goleš of Yugoslavia. Goleš, seeded 12th, advanced to the third round with a 6-2, 6-3 win over Laura Golarsa of Italy.

Other seeds advancing were No. 2 Katerina Maleeva; No. 3 Sylvia Hanika; No. 4 Sandra Cecchini and No. 5 Arantxa Sanchez.

Witt pact for $3.78 million

BERLIN — East German figure skating star Katarina Witt's contract with the American-owned Holiday on Ice show is worth about $3.78 million, sources in East Berlin said Wednesday.

The 22-year-old retired two-time Olympic champion will receive about 20 percent of the sum, said the sources, who were close to negotiations between Holiday on Ice and East German sports officials.

The sources, who requested anonymity, said Witt's fee is expected to be about $750,000, although only about 20 percent of that sum would be paid in Western currency.

The rest of the money will go to the East German Sports Federation, the sources told The Associated Press.

Eagles sign Cunningham

PHILADELPHIA — Quarterback Randall Cunningham ended his holdout Wednesday by signing a three-year contract believed to be the richest in the history of the Philadelphia Eagles.

Eagles president Harry Gamble would not reveal any other details.

Well-received Mike Kelly two years ago signed for the previous high, $750,000. Cunningham, whose deal includes incentive bonuses, had sought $1 million plus per year.

Cunningham appeared at a news conference, then joined his teammates at their West Chester, Pa., training camp for the second day of preseason training.

Cunningham was obviously pleased with the raise from the $190,000 he received last year, his third in the league and first as a starting quarterback.

Nelson not doing too well at the Giants' training camp

By Barry Winer
The Associated Press

As if Karl Nelson hasn't had enough problems, he's now got his coach on his case.

Nelson, a starting tackle for the New York Giants in the team's Super Bowl year, missed last season while battling Hodgkin's Disease. The disease was diagnosed when Nelson was sidelined by shoulder problems that required surgery.

The 28-year-old Nelson has fought his way back from those troubles. But he hasn't impressed Giants coach Bill Parcells during training camp. Parcells has criticized Nelson's performance.

"I told him this morning," Parcells said Wednesday. "I'm tired of coaching you. I got this whole team to coach. I'm spending too much time with you."

"I can't make him do it," Parcells said. "He has to want to do it. But right now, he's only doing it half the time. You don't get gold medals for trying hard. You're supposed to try hard all the time."

"I've got to find out this week if he can do it," Parcells said of Nelson, whom he called his best offensive lineman when the Giants won the 1987 NFL title.
