DOWN AND OUT — George Parkhurst, owner of Fred's Package Store at 117 Spruce St., stands next to his broken Lotto machine before it was fixed Friday afternoon. Parkhurst says he lost about $1,000 worth of business after the machine failed Thursday. The sign hanging on the front of the machine is a spoof of the lottery advertisement, "You can't win if you don't play." Story on page 4.

Plant settlement forecast; dispute hinges on money

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Manchester Herald

(Mayor Peter P.) DiRosa expressed anger Friday over disclosure of details of the negotiations. He said he didn't know the source of the leaks but "if I find out, they're going to be one sorry puppy dog."

U.S. Attorney Stanley A. Twardy Jr. and Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr. said Friday that a settlement might be reached early next week that would resolve the dispute over a wetlands permit for the town's sewage treatment plant.

"Negotiations, discussions are ongoing, and we are guardedly optimistic that we will be able to resolve this short of litigation," Twardy said.

Twardy would not comment on details of the negotiations, but DiRosa said that the remaining bone of contention was "money." He said that would include a fine to be paid to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers as well as the costs for restoring affected wetlands or creating new ones. He said other issues had been pretty much agreed to in principal by the parties involved.

"I certainly think that Monday might be possible," DiRosa said. Twardy said that a settlement might be reached by the beginning of the week.

Neither Twardy nor DiRosa would confirm reports that Assistant U.S. Attorney Frank Santoro had proposed a fine of $500,000 to be paid to the Corps of Engineers for the illegal filling of wetlands. Sources have said that Santoro proposed at a Wednesday meeting of town and federal officials that a fine of $500,000 be split by the town and the consulting engineer for the project, Metcalf & Eddy.

The Corps of Engineers last month ordered the town to stop work on the secondary part of the sewage treatment plant because the town failed to get a wetlands permit from the Corps.

The town Board of Directors on Monday rejected a proposed settlement that would have called for the town to pay a fine of $1.5 million to the Corps of Engineers. A counterproposal was presented by the town on Wednesday calling for no fine, sources have said, and in response Santoro proposed the $500,000 fine.

DiRosa expressed anger Friday over disclosure of details of the negotiations. He said he didn't know the source of the leaks but "if I find out, they're going to be one sorry puppy dog."

DiRosa had said that the parties involved in the dispute had a gentlemen's agreement not to discuss details of the negotiations in public.

Nixon visits — mum's the word

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Nixon returned to the White House this week to meet with President and Mrs. Reagan and Chief of Staff Kenneth M. Duberstein, it was announced Friday.

Presidential spokesman Martin Fitzwater the four met for about an hour Thursday evening in the White House residential quarters. He said the meeting was requested by Reagan.

"I can't discuss the content of their conversations," he said.

John Taylor, Nixon's spokesman in New York, said Duberstein telephoned Nixon about 10 days ago to say that he would like to meet with him and to arrange a meeting with Reagan.

He said Nixon met with Duberstein on Thursday morning in addition to the later meeting with the president and first lady. He said he did not know what was discussed.

Deputy White House Press Secretary Leslie Arshat said the Nixon-Duberstein meeting was held outside the White House.

"It was a private meeting, and we won't have any further comment," she said.

Nixon was last at the White House for a meeting with the president early last year.

"The two presidents have had private visits on a number of occasions," Fitzwater said.

Lieberman victory assured; committee battle is brewing

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — As Connecticut Democrats readied to nominate Attorney General Joseph I. Lieberman for the U.S. Senate, an intra-party battle still raged over who will represent Connecticut on the Democratic National Committee.

The Democrats planned a day-long convention Saturday at the Hartford Civic Center, with the chief order of business being Lieberman's nomination to run against three-term Republican Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr.

Although conventions are usually to showcase the candidate in demonstrations and the traditional acceptance speech, Lieberman won't be there Saturday because of his religious beliefs.

An Orthodox Jew, Lieberman observes the Sabbath from sundown Friday to sundown Saturday.

His acceptance speech will be shown on videotape to the 1,305 convention delegates who are expected to nominate him by acclamation.

He has said during the campaign that his beliefs would not preclude him from attending Senate sessions on Saturdays should he be elected, because he would then be performing a service for others, something permitted in his religion.

Lieberman acknowledges he's the underdog in the race, but he claims his own polling shows him within striking distance of Weicker. Polling by The Hartford

Courant and the University of Connecticut released last week showed Weicker with a 16-point edge.

Lieberman says he's also encouraged by his fund-raising efforts. He has raised $1.3 million to Weicker's $1.8 million, according to the most recent reports.

But while the delegates are united in backing Lieberman, they are sharply divided on the election of three members to the Democratic National Committee.

The issue is the re-election of John J. Flynn of Avon and Mary Sullivan of Greenwich over challengers William J. O'Brien of West Hartford and Ellen P. Camhi of Stamford.

Koop renews battle cry on smoking

Smokeless cigarette 'a drug in a cigarette-shaped dispenser'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Surgeon General C. Everett Koop on Friday renewed his call for the nation to escalate the battle against smoking with the same fervor it devotes to illicit drugs, and he assailed a new smokeless cigarette as "a drug in a cigarette-shaped dispenser."

Koop and other anti-smoking witnesses told Congress that the Food and Drug Administration should regulate any sales of the "smokeless cigarette" being developed by the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., even though the agency does not have jurisdiction over regular tobacco products.

The surgeon general said: "Our nation has mobilized enormous resources to wage a war on drugs — illicit drugs. We should also give priority to the one addiction — tobacco addiction — that is killing more than 300,000 Americans each year."

Koop, as he has previously, declared that tobacco is as addictive as cocaine and heroin. And he told a House subcommittee that the FDA should regulate any sales of the so-called smokeless cigarette because it "contains nicotine, which is a drug in a cigarette-shaped dispenser."

Koop testified to the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on health and the environment about the 618-page, anti-smoking report he issued in May. "Careful examination of the data," he said, "makes it clear that cigarettes and other forms of tobacco are addictive. An extensive body of research has shown that nicotine is the drug in tobacco that causes addiction."

Charles O. Whitley, representing the Tobacco Institute, said the FDA barely has the resources to carry out its current duties without adding tobacco products to its jurisdiction. He also said Koop's report "is a political document."

"Its conclusions conform with the surgeon general's political goal of a smokeless society, and undoubtedly were reached long before the report was drafted," Whitley said.

R.J. Reynolds announced last September that it would market the smokeless cigarette, which contains tobacco. Unlike other cigarettes, the company says, it heats but does not burn the tobacco to deliver the nicotine.

MUD TUB — Chris Daly, 11, doesn't seem to be enjoying his mud bath that was part of a Parks and Recreation Department fun-in-the-mud obstacle course this week in Westwood, Mass. Other events included slides and jumps.

Several organizations, including the American Lung Association, the American Cancer Society and the American Medical Association, have petitioned the FDA to take jurisdiction over the proposed product by classifying it a drug.

Several bills have been introduced in Congress to give the FDA authority to regulate the proposed cigarette.

Currently most regulation of tobacco products is administered by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in the Treasury Department and the Federal Trade Commission. The FDA has authority over food products, drugs, medical devices and cosmetics.

FDA Commissioner Frank E. Young told the House subcommittee the agency is reviewing the petitions "to determine whether this product should be regulated under the FDC (Food, Drug and Cosmetic) Act."

"One can see that the agency must attempt to differentiate between the traditional tobacco product, marketed without medical claims, and therefore not regulated by FDA, and the newer innovations designed to deliver nicotine to satisfy nicotine dependence or otherwise to affect the structure or function of the body," he said.

$4 billion needed to bail out bank

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. said late Friday it was pledging $4 billion for NCNB Corp. of Charlotte, N.C., to take over First Republic Bank Corp. of Dallas in potentially the largest federal bank rescue ever.

The FDIC, which in March pumped $1 billion into banks owned by the ailing holding company, said it will infuse an additional $2 billion and expects eventually to have to pay out another $1 billion.

NCNB has agreed to pay between $210 million and $240 million to acquire a 20 percent stake in what will be called NCNB Texas National Bank. For five years, it will have an exclusive option to purchase the 80 percent of the bank which will be owned by the FDIC.

FDIC Chairman L. William Seidman said Texas billionaire H. Ross Perot had promised to support NCNB's share of the investment, but said he doubted that Perot's help would be needed.

The First Republic Bank deal rivals the 1984 rescue of Continental Illinois Bank & Trust Co. of Chicago, the largest bank bailout to date. In that case, the FDIC's initial outlay was $4.5 billion, although it expects to recover all but $1.7 billion of that.

Seidman he could not estimate the ultimate cost of the First Republic Bank transaction, but said "it is certainly possible this will be a more costly deal" than Continental Illinois. He said all of First Republic Bank's 41 subsidiary banks would remain open under their normal schedule, including those with Saturday hours. The banks will open under their new name on Monday.

Seidman said the transaction so far was an agreement in principle, and he said he expected it to be made final "somewhere in the next three months."

Until then, the FDIC has taken control of the banks under a bridge bank arrangement, a new legal device that is being used for only the second time. NCNB will manage the banks on the FDIC's behalf.

In order for the FDIC to take over First Republic Bank under bridge bank rules, the Comptroller of the Currency, the regulator of nationally chartered banks, had to first declare the banks owned by the holding company insolvent.

This leaves owners of the holding company's $1.2 billion in debt and preferred stock with little chance of being repaid.

Seidman said "it wouldn't surprise me if we see some lawsuits" from bond holders.

He said NCNB was chosen from among five bidders because it offered "the least costly alternative the FDIC believes was viable." The next best bid would have cost the agency nearly $1 billion more, he said.

Hospital pays $100,000

HARTFORD (AP) — Hartford Hospital, which was charged with violating the state Public Health Code after a patient in its kidney dialysis unit bled to death in April, agreed Friday to pay a $100,000 fine.

Under the agreement, announced by the state Department of Health Services, the hospital does not admit any violations of the code.

The agreement acknowledges the hospital's commitment to correct all of the alleged violations following the death of the dialysis patient on April 2. The fine will be paid to the state.

On July 11, the state formally charged the hospital with improper patient care in five violations of the code.

The agreement is signed by hospital President John Meehan, Health Commissioner Frederick G. Adams and Elizabeth M. Burns, director of the health department's hospital and medical care division.

Pit bull's owner pays for attack

By Andrew Davis
Manchester Herald

A pit bull owner was fined $80 after his dog attacked another dog Sunday, police said.

Michael DeLoreto, of 28 Williams St., was fined after his pit bull, Tank, bit a small dog on Hartford Road, said Gary Wood, police spokesman. Tank was roaming unattended when the attack occurred, Wood said.

DeLoreto was fined for allowing his dog to roam and not having a valid license, said Dog Warden Richard Rand.

No action will be taken against the dog because it bit another dog, Rand said.

The dog which was attacked, owned by David Lake of Simsbury, was taken to a local veterinary clinic, Rand said. Neither he or Wood knew which clinic the dog was taken to or the dog's current condition.

Lake was walking his terrier-poodle mix dog on Hartford Road about 1:30 p.m. Sunday when the pit bull attacked the dog, Rand and Wood said. Lake apparently tried to shield his dog by holding it in his arms, but the pit bull ripped the dog away, Wood said.

Lake was not hurt in the attack, Wood said.

LOTTO PREDICAMENT — Kevin MacKenzie, owner of M & S Mini Mart at 119 Spruce St., was glad to have his Lotto machine fixed Friday. It went down during a severe thunderstorm Thursday.

Lotto lovers are smiling again after service restored Friday

By Anita M. Caldwell
Manchester Herald

There are lots of smiles again at Fred's Package Store since the Lotto machine there was fixed late Friday afternoon.

George Parkhurst, owner of the store on Spruce Street, said his Lotto machine had been out of service since Thursday evening. After repeated calls, Parkhurst said he was finally told by Lotto repair service that the problem was not in the Lotto machine but in the telephone line.

Parkhurst said a serviceman from the telephone company arrived about 3 p.m. Friday to fix the problem, which turned out to be a fuse and other problems to the phone relay. Parkhurst said the loss of power was probably related to the storm on Thursday.

Meanwhile, the Lotto machine at M & S Mini Mart down the street from the package store also went down Thursday night.

Kevin MacKenzie, owner of the store, said a serviceman arrived shortly after 3:30 p.m. and told MacKenzie that a surge of power probably from the thunderstorm Thursday burned out components of the circuit board in the telephone junction box. MacKenzie's Lotto machine was out all day Friday, as well, the store owner said.

"There were a lot of irate people today and last night," MacKenzie said Friday.

While MacKenzie said he hasn't had any trouble with either the Lotto machines or the phone lines in the last seven years he has been a Lotto agent, he said it was upsetting that repair took so long.

"It draws a lot of business," he said. MacKenzie said he lost about $1,000 when the machine wasn't working.

Parkhurst also said he lost about $1,000. But Parkhurst said it's not just the loss of money that's disturbing.

"It isn't so much the nickel on the dollar," he said. "It's the inconvenience to the customer."

Parkhurst, who has been a Lotto agent since the machines were available, complained that the phone company doesn't consider the repairs on the phone connection to the Lotto machines a priority.

"It should be, especially on a Friday," he said. "Some of our customers come from across town."

Parkhurst said many won't bother returning for the Lotto tickets.

"It seems there's not a good rapport between the phone company and the Lotto people," Parkhurst said.

Employees at both the phone company repair service and customer service for the Lotto machines said no one was available to comment.

Dems will back rec merger plan

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Manchester Herald

Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr. said Thursday that a plan to consolidate the town Recreation Department and the Parks and Cemeteries Division of the Public Works Department would probably be supported by the Democratic majority on the town Board of Directors.

The board will be asked during its meeting next Tuesday to approve a job description for the head of the proposed new department.

The reorganization was recommended in a consultant's preliminary report on parks and recreation facilities that was presented to the Board of Directors last month. The preliminary report, prepared by Kenneth A. Rogala of Stonington, recommended that the present position of parks and cemeteries superintendent be split into two positions, which, with the new position of assistant recreation director, would be subordinate to a director of parks, recreation and cemeteries.

The reorganization is supported by Scott Sprague, the director of the Recreation Department, who said that he would want to be considered for the top job of the new department. But Robert Harrison, the superintendent of the Parks and Cemeteries Division, said that he wanted to see the final report before commenting on it.

Sprague said, "I think the reorganization is the proper way to go. I think it's the general trend in parks and recreation."

Sprague said that 90 percent of the parks and recreation departments in the state are combined.

Assistant Town Manager Steven R. Werbner said that the town was negotiating terms of the reorganization with the union representing Harrison and other supervisory workers. Those negotiations are being carried out together with regular contract negotiations with those workers, Werbner said. He said their contracts expired June 30.

MMH names head of medical records

Allen K. Liao has been named director of medical records at Manchester Memorial Hospital, announced Richard Werkowski, controller. Liao assumed his new position on Monday.

Prior to joining the Manchester Memorial Hospital staff, Liao worked at Boston University Medical Center in Boston where he served as senior project/system analyst. Prior to that, he served as director of medical record/quality assurance/utilization review services at University Hospital for nearly two years.

He had served as medical records administrator at Newton Memorial Hospital in Newton, New Jersey, as a registered records administrative supervisor at New England Memorial Hospital and as a PC specialist for Shared Medical Systems, Inc., a firm specializing in health care software development.

A Registered Records Administrator (R.R.A.) certified by the American Medical Records Association, Liao received his bachelor of science degree from Northeastern University in health record administration and a master of education degree from Boston University in computer-assisted instruction and administration. He also holds a certificate from Boston University's management development program for health care.

State & Region

Deposit bill opposed

HARTFORD (AP) — Beverage distributors are firmly opposed to a legislator's suggestion that the state seize unclaimed bottle and can deposits from them to help finance regional recycling centers.

Beverage distributors say the money they pocket when 5-cent deposits aren't claimed would not cover the costs of collecting the returned bottles and cans, and paying retailers to handle the returns.

They also say they don't know how many deposits go unclaimed.

"After eight years, it's not a windfall profit by any stretch of the imagination. We pay out more to the retailers than we keep," said Patrick J. Sullivan of Sullivan and LeShane, a Hartford firm that lobbies on behalf of beer and soft drink distributors.

State Rep. Mary M. Mushinsky, D-Wallingford, estimates that between $6 million and $12 million in funding could be realized from her proposal, although she concedes it's difficult to determine just how many bottles and can deposits are not claimed.

"It's like trying to put your hands on an eel; it's very slippery," said Mushinsky, co-chairwoman of the General Assembly's Environment Committee.

Whale's death probed

NEW HAVEN (AP) — A federal grand jury is investigating the killing of a beluga whale that was found in the New Haven harbor two years ago, a local fisherman said.

A local fisherman, Anthony Verderame of East Haven, said Thursday he has been summoned to appear before a grand jury that is apparently looking into the killing of the whale.

U.S. Attorney Stanley A. Twardy Jr. declined comment Thursday on the grand jury or its focus. He could not be reached at his office on Friday night.

Killing a whale is a federal offense and carries a maximum penalty of up to a year in prison and a $20,000 fine under the U.S. Marine Mammal Act.

Body of man identified

PARIS, Maine (AP) — A man whose decomposed body was found along the bank of a river has been identified as that of a former Connecticut man who had been working in Maine as a painter, state police said Friday.

Dana G. Stillwaggon, 28, formerly of Clinton, apparently fell about 75 feet to his death from a railroad trestle across the Little Androscoggin River in western Maine, police said.

His body was found by swimmers Wednesday about 50 feet from the bank.

Stillwaggon, who had been in Maine about seven months, was living in a camp he set up near his van, which was parked along the river. His employer, Daniel Allen of Oxford, said Stillwaggon sometimes sat on the trestle.

An autopsy revealed Stillwaggon died of trauma, according to Patrick Toman, assistant to Maine's chief medical examiner. He was last seen July 18.

Burned hitchhiker critical

BRIDGEPORT (AP) — A man remained in critical condition Friday after he apparently hitched a ride on the roof of a Metro-North Commuter train was burned when he came in contact with high-voltage power lines.

Darin Mills of Los Angeles suffered extensive burns below the waist and was taken to the Burn Center at Bridgeport Hospital after the accident Thursday.

Raymond Ramos, a security guard, said he saw Mills on top of the train as it pulled into the Bridgeport train station at 10:35 a.m.

"His clothing started to catch fire. ... When he fell off the train as it came to a stop, I jumped off the platform and ran across the tracks to put out the flames," Ramos said.

The incident led train officials to shut off power to the eastbound tracks and delayed the train's departure for 33 minutes.

Mills was listed in critical condition Friday at Bridgeport Hospital.

Suspension is rescinded but suit won't be dropped

HARTFORD (AP) — The legal director of the Connecticut Civil Liberties Union said Friday that a federal lawsuit filed against state officials by the fire chief at Bradley International Airport could reassess the constitutional right of free speech for all public employees.

"I think the important thing about the case is the issue of free speech rights for public employees," CCLU attorney Martha Stone said.

State Transportation Commissioner J. William Burns on Thursday rescinded a five-day suspension issued against airport Fire Chief Peter Buonomo for his criticism of administrative changes in the airport's fire department.

The suspension was lifted only hours after Buonomo and the CCLU filed a federal lawsuit against Burns and other state officials, protesting the suspension and a 1985 gag order.

Burns said Buonomo's salary during the suspension would be paid and that the suspension would be stricken from his personnel file. He said he was unaware that the lawsuit had been filed.

But Stone said Friday that the suit, filed in U.S. District Court in Hartford, would not be dropped because "there are many issues that still aren't resolved."

Those issues include the status of the gag order and damages sought by Buonomo, she said.

In addition to Burns and four other DOT officials, the lawsuit also names as defendants Bradley Airport Director Robert Juliano and Gov. William A. O'Neill.

Buonomo alleges that his criticism pertained to life-threatening staffing reductions and were of public concern.

"Just because you're a public employee, doesn't mean you give up your constitutional right to free speech," Stone said. "The central issue of this case is whether public employees shed the right to speak out on matters of urgent public concern."

Burns said that next week he plans to relax the department's policy on personnel speaking to the media. The current policy, adopted under orders of Bradley Airport Director Robert Juliano, restricts all such communications to Juliano's office unless otherwise directed.

However, Burns denied that Buonomo was under any gag order and said he lifted the suspension because it was issued for the wrong reason.

"It certainly will be effective," LaBianca said. "As a matter of fact, I think $1,000 is mild. They should also get a prison sentence."

Norwalk may increase fines for prostitution

NORWALK (AP) — Norwalk officials are considering raising the fine for prostitution to $1,000 to make the cost of doing business a little higher for the city's street walkers.

The ordinance committee of the Common Council has scheduled a public hearing for Aug. 25 on the proposal.

Councilman Edward Lyons, who heads the ordinance committee, said he wants "to try and make it not profitable to be a prostitute in the city of Norwalk."

The current municipal fine for those convicted of loitering for the purpose of soliciting is $99 per offense. On the state level, the fine is $199 and-or 30 days in jail, said Sara Oley, assistant corporation counsel.

She told the council members that it would be hard to implement a fine for more than the $199 because it would require a trial by jury for defendants, which the city can't do without a municipal court. State prosecutors could not prosecute cases that called for anything more than the $199 fine stipulated by state statute, Oley said.

Lyons said he is particularly concerned about the area around the newly opened Maritime Center, which Norwalk and state officials are touting as a tourist attraction.

"Everytime I drive by the Maritime Center in South Norwalk there are prostitutes down there," Lyons said. "The current fine is not effective because it doesn't affect the cost of them doing business."

Police Chief Carl LaBianca said he fully supported the measure.

"It certainly will be effective," LaBianca said. "As a matter of fact, I think $1,000 is mild. They should also get a prison sentence."

Beached medical waste traced to N.Y.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A study of winds and ocean currents released Friday shows that the medical waste washing ashore on Northeastern beaches probably was dumped near the mouth of New York harbor in mid-June.

The waste, including syringes, vials of blood and hospital equipment, began appearing on New York's Long Island and Massachusetts later in the month.

"These sightings are consistent with a release in the New York Bight in early June and subsequent transport by wind and currents toward the northeast over the next month and a half," University of Rhode Island oceanographer Malcolm Spaulding wrote in his report.

Gov. Edward D. DiPrete said he was sending copies of the report to Govs. Mario Cuomo of New York and Thomas H. Kean of New Jersey and urging them to crack down on waste dumping.

"It seems clear from this excellent scientific detective work that our beaches are being fouled by wastes from other states," DiPrete said in a statement accompanying the report.

Also Friday, Ronald L. DiOrto, DiPrete's policy adviser, said state officials had traced a second prescription bottle to New York.

The bottle, which washed up on a beach in Little Compton, was traced through a prescription number to a man whose friends said he worked in a New York hospital, DiOrto said. He declined to identify the man or the hospital and said Rhode Island officials had not yet interviewed him.

Earlier this week, DiOrto said state officials traced a prescription bottle found in Westerly to a New York City woman who also works in a hospital, but again, he declined to identify the woman or the hospital.

Spaulding said his study was based on meteorological data gathered by the National Weather Service. He said he used the wind and current data to both track the waste backward from where it was found and forward from potential sources.

Backward projections of the waste's travel from the Massachusetts and eastern Rhode Island beaches where it was found suggested that it was dumped near the coast of Long Island or northern New Jersey about 35 to 40 days before it was found, Spaulding's report said.

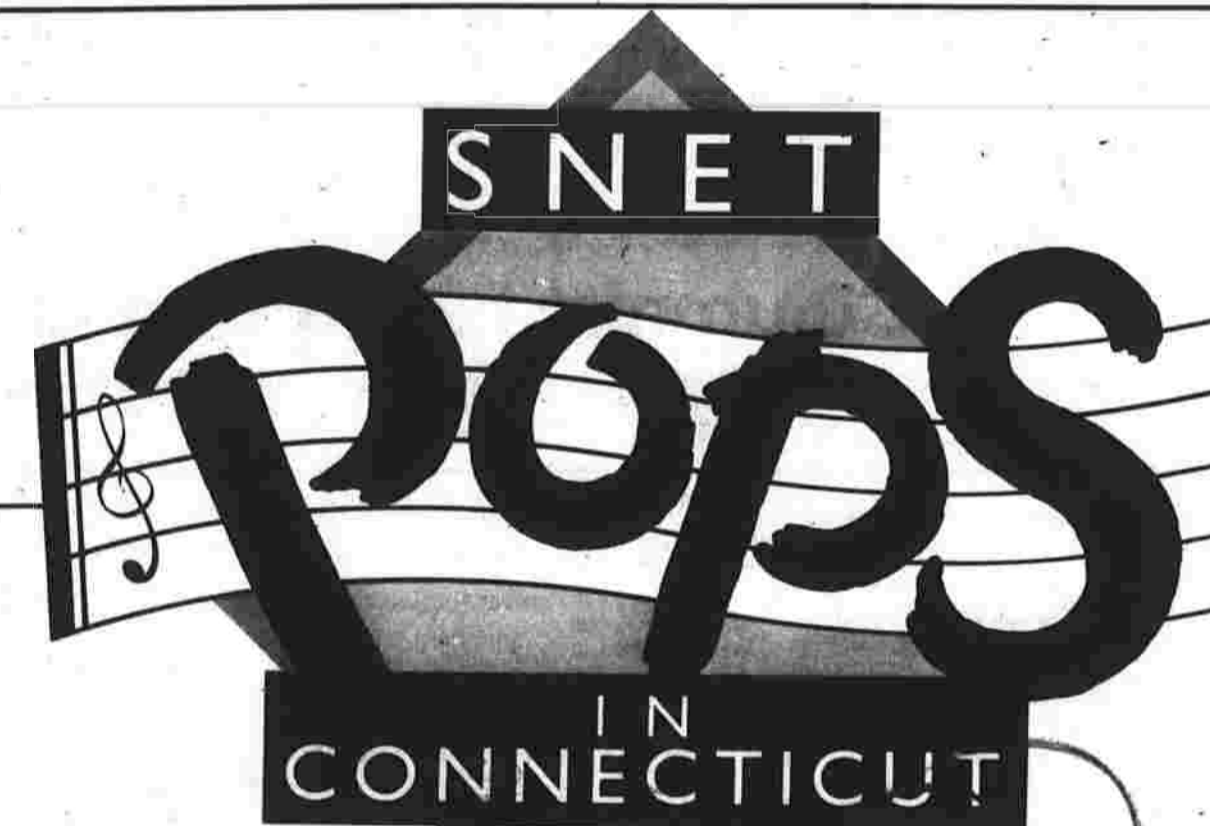

The report also forecast where waste would go if it was released in the New York Bight, the V-shaped section of ocean leading to New York harbor and bordered by New Jersey and Long Island.

"When released on 11 June, the model predicts the waste is transported to the southern Massachusetts shoreline," the report said. "Wastes are also observed to impact the southern Long Island shoreline, particularly the western half."

"If the release date is advanced to 16 June 1988, eight of the nine trajectories strand on the western end of the southern Long Island shoreline," the report continued. "Assuming an instantaneous release, this analysis suggests that the release date is probably between June 11 to 15, 1988."

Prevailing winds during the period would have carried the waste toward the southeast at first, then to the east and northeast, Spaulding said.

'Adult' radio rules vetoed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission must reconsider an order that broadcasters can air programs with "indecent" content only from midnight to 6 a.m., a federal appeals court ruled Friday.

The ruling said the FCC failed to make a case for those specific hours, but — in a victory for the agency — affirmed its right to regulate programming to protect children.

The unanimous three-judge panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals also upheld the commission's definition of indecent material on radio and television.

FCC Chairman Dennis R. Patrick said after the ruling, "I intend to respond promptly to the court's question regarding those specific times by recommending the initiation of a commission proceeding."

The commission's midnight-6 a.m. policy, adopted in 1987, was a change from a 1978 policy that only allowed programs with indecent material to be aired on television or radio from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. The FCC made the switch because it believed many children were still awake between 10 p.m. and midnight.

Broadcasters, program suppliers and public interest groups challenged the new time restraint, saying the programs with adult content could only be aired when most listeners were asleep. They said this violated the First Amendment by denying adults access to constitutionally protected material.

The petitioners also challenged the definition of indecent programs as too vague.

The court said that "in view of the curtailment of broadcaster freedom and adult listener choice ... the commission failed to consider fairly and fully what time lines should be drawn."

The judges said that in the three radio shows used as test cases, the commission cited population figures that estimated the number of teens in the total listening audience.

There was no indication of the size of the predicted audience for the specific radio stations in question, the court said.

Diabetes control found in study

BAR HARBOR, Maine (AP) — Studies in diabetic mice suggest that a drug that stimulates the immune system may stop the destruction of insulin-producing cells and thus prevent diabetes, a researcher said Friday.

Stress and viral infections also have been found to affect the development of diabetes, said Edward Leiter, a geneticist at The Jackson Laboratory in Bar Harbor.

Leiter said he and his colleagues had expected that an immune-stimulating drug would make diabetes worse in the mice they studied. Instead, it apparently brought the diabetes under control.

The form of diabetes that requires insulin injections is thought to occur when the body's immune system attacks its own insulin-producing cells, or beta cells, in the pancreas, Leiter explained.

The drug, a substance called interleukin-2 that occurs normally in the body in small amounts, activates the immune system cells and thus should have accelerated the destruction of beta cells, Leiter said.

It appears, however, that the drug activated some kind of immune cell that has the normal function of preventing the body's defenses from attacking the body itself. In the mice, it blocked the destruction of beta cells.

This finding — in mice specially bred to have diabetes — may not hold any immediate importance for humans, but it does shed light on the basic processes underlying the development of diabetes, Leiter said. Mice and humans share many genes and a variety of diseases.

BAD NEWS — Actress Jill Ireland is the center of attention as she is caught by photographers at a Beverly Hills, Calif., hotel prior to a news conference Friday where it was announced that the cancer she beat four years ago has reoccurred.

Ireland, the wife of actor Charles Bronson, said she learned of the malignancy this week and will undergo five weeks of radiation therapy in an effort to combat its spread. She is 52.

Columnist facing gun charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Syndicated columnist Carl T. Rowan, a longtime proponent of strict handgun control, has been charged with unauthorized possession of a weapon and ammunition after shooting a teen-ager who took an unauthorized dip in his backyard pool, court records show.

District of Columbia officials denied Friday that they tried to suppress public knowledge of the charges, even though they had told reporters that no decision had been reached a day after the paperwork was filed on Wednesday.

Rowan, 62, allegedly used an unregistered pistol and bullets to shoot a trespasser in his backyard June 14. The youth suffered a wrist wound and was treated and released the same day.

Rowan is scheduled to appear in District of Columbia Superior Court on Monday for arraignment on the misdemeanor possession charges, according to court records.

If convicted on both counts, the columnist would face a maximum penalty of two years in prison and a $2,000 fine.

When contacted in Reno, Nev., where he was scheduled to deliver a speech before the National Conference of State Legislatures, Rowan refused to discuss the legal developments.

"My lawyers are doing all the talking. I don't know all the details yet," Rowan said.

District of Columbia Corporation Counsel Frederick D. Cooke Jr., the city's top attorney, contended that an administrative filing error left him and other top attorneys unaware that the charges had been filed.

"The agreement we reached with Mr. Rowan's attorney was to file charges next week, since he (Rowan) was out of town," said Cooke. "There was never any intent to deceive the press or the public about what was going on."

Rowan's attorney, Raoul L. Carroll, confirmed Cooke's account of the matter.

Questions remained about the city's delays in handling the case. Rowan was charged nearly six weeks after the incident occurred, while Cooke acknowledged that the city usually decides whether to bring charges in such instances within three weeks.

Rowan was cleared last month of assault charges in the shooting incident after an investigation by the federal prosecutor's office. But U.S. Attorney Jay Stephens said at the time that he believed Rowan should be prosecuted for possessing an unregistered handgun.

Stephens deferred that decision to the city, which normally handles such cases.

After the shooting incident, pro-gun groups said Rowan was a hypocrite for owning a handgun after criticizing the practice numerous times in his column.

Rowan said he obtained the weapon only after receiving death threats, and was indirectly misinformed by police about the need to register it.

U.S./World In Brief

Kremlin OKs goals

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin leadership on Friday adopted broad goals for making government more responsive, and Mikhail S. Gorbachev urged pruning the Communist Party to exclude all but the best and brightest, Tass said.

The Soviet leader asked the Communist Party Central Committee to have the parliament meet in November to make constitutional changes allowing contested elections next March. But it was unclear from the report whether the committee adopted all of Gorbachev's proposals.

Gorbachev's proposal calls for multicandidate elections to a new 2,250-member Congress of Peoples' Deputies, which in turn would choose a full-time parliament of at least 400 members and a president with broad powers.

Another shuttle delay

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A critical launch pad test-firing of the space shuttle Discovery's main engines was delayed three more days Friday and it seemed almost certain the first post-Challenger shuttle flight would slip into October.

The postponement of the firing from Monday until Thursday, the third delay in a week, came while the launch team was pumping propellant into Discovery's huge external tank, the first time a shuttle had been fueled since Challenger exploded shortly after liftoff Jan. 28, 1986.

Once the liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen started to flow, engineers' worst fears were realized. Pumps, lines and sensors not used in 2 1/2 years began to fail.

Jackson keeps guards

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan extended Jesse Jackson's Secret Service protection 30 days to give Jackson time to arrange private security against death threats the former Democratic candidate says he has received, a White House spokesman said Friday.

Spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Jackson had asked that government protection be continued, based on the defeated presidential candidate's "assessment of threats against his life" and Jackson's plans to campaign for Democratic nominee Michael Dukakis.

MIA program vowed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Friday he will pass on to his successor a program for "the fullest possible accounting" of servicemen still missing from the Vietnam War, acting on the assumption that "some of our countrymen are alive."

Addressing the National League of POW-MIA Families, Reagan also called upon the government of Vietnam to move rapidly to determine the fate of the 2,394 American servicemen still missing or unaccounted for from the Southeast Asian conflict.

He urged the Cambodian government to return the remains of Americans that the Cambodians have said they are holding.

U.N. condemns kidnapping

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council on Friday unanimously condemned the kidnapping of U.S. Marine Lt. Col. William R. Higgins, a U.N. military observer in Lebanon, but did not mention his pro-Iranian abductors.

The resolution, adopted by a 15-0 vote, also demanded Higgins' immediate release and called upon U.N. members "to use their influence in any way possible to promote implementation" of its appeal for freedom.

Higgins was abducted Feb. 17 by a previously unknown group calling itself the Islamic Revolutionary Brigades. He is one of nine Americans and nine other foreigners held captive by pro-Iranian extremists in Lebanon.

Tapes detailing astronauts' last minutes to be released

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal appellate court panel ruled 2-1 Friday that the nation's space agency must release the audio tapes of the ill-fated Challenger shuttle flight.

The ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals here affirmed a lower court decision that the tapes should be made public under the Freedom of Information Act.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration had refused to give up the tapes, saying release would invade the privacy of families of the seven astronauts who died in the Jan. 28, 1986 disaster.

The judges said the tapes cannot be held back under a FOIA exemption that permits withholding of "personnel and medical files and similar files" that constitute "a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy."

NASA cited that exemption in refusing to release the tapes, even though it made public written transcripts of the astronauts' conversations. NASA said the tapes contain no new information on the flight.

U.S. Circuit Judge Spottswood W. Robinson III said in the majority opinion that the court had to decide whether the sound of the human voice, communicating non-personal information, should be considered a "similar file" that could be withheld.

The court concluded, "a file is not to be considered 'similar' unless at a minimum it contains personal information — information somehow related to an individual's life."

"To call the sound of a human voice 'personal information' distorts the plain meaning and common understanding of the phrase. As such, the tape recording of the voices of the astronauts ... without more, does not constitute a 'similar file' that could be withheld.

Robinson said that Congress intended that the exemption be designed to protect individuals from injury and embarrassment resulting from unnecessary disclosure of personal information.

"To accept NASA's ... argument would be to hold that every tape recording of audible human utterances, regardless of its content, is invariably a similar file because every person's voice is essentially unique," the ruling said.

U.S. Circuit Judge Harry Edwards concurred in the opinion. In a dissent, U.S. Circuit Judge Douglas H. Ginsburg argued NASA should have a chance to show that the tapes would invade the privacy of the astronauts' families. He said the court could not make such a determination based on the record as it now exists.

"I find it inconceivable that the sound and inflection of a person's voice during the last seconds of his or her life is not information that somehow relates to an individual's life," Ginsburg said.

"Whatever insights can be gleaned from their voices, whatever inferences can be drawn about their thoughts and feelings at the very moment of their deaths, they are not to be found in that transcript; if they are anywhere, they are in the tape."

OPINION

Modern phone perils abound

By Sarah Overstreet

There are few things I find more irritating than to be talking away to someone on a telephone and hear the "call-waiting" click.

It would be one thing if all that meant was that I'd have to hear the obnoxious blip throughout the rest of our conversation. But what it means is that I, I who have called first, am about to be stopped in mid-diphthong and made to sit quietly while the new caller is rewarded for his tardiness.

And they talk about television destroying our moral fiber!

"Call waiting" destroys every notion we've ever had about time and fairness — the early bird catches the worm, he who hesitates is lost, the fable of the grasshopper and the ant, all of that.

It's like going up to an ice-cream counter, taking a number, waiting our turn, and just as the clerk is about to place our scoop of Sticky Pecan atop the Blueberry Cheesecake, here comes someone else and the clerk yells, "Wait! I have another customer! Just stand over there till we're finished."

A close relative of "call waiting," and a rival on the irritability scale, is the "May I say who's calling?" phrase, uttered by a human just about to punch the "hold" button while he or she sees if the person you're calling will talk to you. You know this one. It's the phrase that makes you feel like a person you called is sitting at the other end, just weighing your importance to see if you're worth talking to.

I know a lot about that one, firsthand. I took a job as a consumer reporter for a TV station a year-and-a-half ago, and for a while, I pretty much talked to anyone within our viewership who ever bought a lemon or got a bad roofing job. Next, I started getting calls from all the people who hadn't seen the Lotto numbers we'd broadcast the night before, or — were upset that we'd pre-empted "Gerald" for the president's speech.

My boss decided I'd never get any work done if all I did was stay on the phone, and he assigned the newsroom secretary to screen my calls. I've always been kind of squeamish about buying an answering machine for my home, but I think I'd have preferred one in this case. I could have recorded a message, something like, "Hi, I really can't come to the phone right now or they'll fire me. This is my news director, and he'll tell you I'm not lying."

"Hello, this is Sarah's news director. If she doesn't get her script to the producer in five minutes, she's history. If you'll leave your name and phone number..."

My friends reacted in a variety of entertaining ways to being screened. My best friend, who's an attorney in a big city, the friend with the snippy secretary who not only makes me say who I am but what I'm calling about, went into a snit. "Some lady just called and wouldn't give her name and was real rude," my secretary relayed. "She said it was personal and she'd just call you at home."

I paid my friend back; the next time her secretary asked me, "May I tell her what this is about?" I said, "Yeah, it's about that time in 1972 when she drove my Volkswagen into a manhole. She never has paid the deductible."

Some of my friends reacted humorously: "It's her Aunt Fanny," or "Tell her it's the bank, she's overdrawn again." Some of them made snide comments, which at least gave me the opportunity to explain why my calls were screened. Some of them felt unimportant. They didn't leave a message and never called back.

Until someone thinks of a better system, I'll just keep on repeating the Phone User's Prayer: "God, give us the grace to accept with serenity the phone calls we cannot dodge, the courage to dodge the phone calls that should be dodged, and the wisdom to distinguish the one from the other."

"I've changed my mind. A cease-fire sounds like a marvelous proposition."

A perfect job for Jesse

By Chuck Stone

Two dramatic events happened in the same week, thousands of miles apart, and raised a possible future linkage.

Iran and Iraq declared their willingness to accept a United Nations-proposed cease-fire in their eight-year war.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, in a riveting convention speech, reaffirmed his candidacy as a Hegelian world historical individual.

We expected a William Jennings Bryan electrifying "cross of gold" speech, but Jackson's emotional rhetoric wasn't historic and only marginally eloquent. Meanwhile, his ego-tripping "massive exercises in futility," such as placing his name in nomination for president, seemed to contradict his words on behalf of party unity.

As a 24-year Jackson-watcher, I am never surprised at Jackson's phenomenal capacity to say one thing and do another.

But the world was surprised at the Iran's acceptance of U.N. Security Council Resolution 598, which demands an immediate truce, troop withdrawal and a peace plan.

The United Nations is still alive and well and living everywhere except among right-wing Reaganites. Without it, world peace shrivels. If the United Nations pulls off an end to the Persian Gulf war, it also will have removed a divisive political issue among Americans and stopped a senseless drain on our military budget.

Yet, the Reagan administration has supported the United Nations with all of the enthusiasm of a man waiting to be executed.

Currently, this nation is in a two-year arrearage on its annual 25 percent assessment of the United Nations' yearly budget of $758.2 million.

For 1987 and 1988, America already owes the organization $468 million.

When we pulled out of UNESCO in 1984, we were contributing $49.4 million annually.

Just as Richard Nixon ended America's isolation from the People's Republic of China and Ronald Reagan ended America's isolation from arms reduction talks with the Soviets, so must this nation now rejoin UNESCO and pay up our U.N. arrearages.

Then, I think, America should lobby for the appointment of Jesse Jackson as secretary-general of the United Nations.

This is contingent upon three "ifs" — if the Democrats win, if Jackson doesn't alienate Michael Dukakis, and if the Third World approves.

Until now, white headline writers, editorial writers and columnists have repeatedly insulted 26 million black Americans with the racist inquiry, "What does Jesse want?"

The question is based on a false premise. Not what does Jesse want, but what does he deserve? Jesse deserves a job.

Not any job, but the job sui generis, the job no black man has, the job no black man has ever had, the job no black man but he is uniquely qualified for.

The Jackson ego cannot be contained as only one of 299 black mayors (although he could win that election in Chicago with his eyes closed).

He won't accept a mere Cabinet post (except secretary of state, which would really complicate American foreign policy).

And his trail-blazing, tree-shaking mentality would shun previously titled folk, such as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

This may sound mercilessly elitist, but it is pragmatically egalitarian.

With all of Jackson's imperial unpredictability — his obsession for preeminence, his modus operandi that an agreement is an agreement only on his terms, and his Machiavellian propensity for talking out of one side of his mouth and doing the opposite — he still is one of the world's most compassionate and relentless peacemakers.

As secretary-general of the United Nations, he could bring international prestige to America, peace to the world, and solace to an ego that desperately wants to "keep hope alive."

Gorbachev's reforms fascinate Americans

WASHINGTON — The American people are fascinated over the democratic stirrings inside the Soviet Union. Readers have questioned us about Mikhail Gorbachev's reforms. Most are skeptical and they question the Soviet leader's sincerity.

"Is glasnost for real, or is it just another Russian trick?" asks a Nashville, Tenn., builder. A student in Flushing, N.Y., is hopeful: "I am beginning to believe that democracy is taking root in the Soviet Union. Don't you agree that democracy, like pregnancy, is hard to reverse?"

Here is the picture that is emerging from intelligence reports:

Clearly, Gorbachev has initiated some dramatic changes that are taking on the dimensions of an historic struggle. In a sense, he has unleashed a revolution against the entrenched bureaucracy. Apparently, he believes the party-government apparatus must be restructured before it suffocates the economy.

He can't afford an open revolt, so he is trying to keep the struggle within limits. His actions have alarmed party officials, of course. At the same time, he has sought to reassure them that there is no cause for alarm. Meanwhile, he is delicately going about the business of dismantling and streamlining the party structure.

If he is to have any chance of reforming the cumbersome, implacable communist bureaucracy, he must have the full support of the public. This is one reason he introduced glasnost, the policy of openness, which apparently was intended to lift censorship and unleash the media. An unbridled press, cautiously at first, began exposing bureaucratic excesses.

This fortified public opinion, which already indicated little sympathy for the overprivileged and underworked bureaucrats. But only the media and the intelligentsia are greatly enthused about political reforms. In the end, the populace will judge Gorbachev by the economic improvements his reforms bring.

Today, the shelves in the state stores are bare and the food in the pantries is meager. Gorbachev will succeed or fail according to the digestibles he puts on the tables and the consumer goods he puts on the shelves.

Party officials are confidently waiting for economic discontent to set in. This could create a backlash that would sweep Gorbachev out of power. He needs to improve Soviet living standards quickly. One way would be to decrease military spending and increase trade with the United States.

Several readers want an assessment of Yegor Ligachev's role.

There is no question that Ligachev has championed the embattled bureaucrats, defended their privileges and opposed Gorbachev's reforms. By all appearances, he is waiting expectantly in the wings to take over when Gorbachev gives up tilting at windmills.

Gorbachev has carefully refrained from attempting to purge Ligachev from the Politburo. This may be a measure of Ligachev's power; he remains the No. 2 man in the Kremlin and as the symbol of the party apparatus. But it may also be the wily Gorbachev's way of reassuring the bureaucrats and averting an open revolution.

Overreacting

The U.S. Postal Service took some criticism for the way it handled the aftermath of the Edmond, Okla., massacre in 1986. A postal employee shot 14 of his co-workers to death and wounded six others before killing himself. But now the Postal Service may be overreacting to that criticism.

The families of the victims later complained at a congressional hearing that the Postal Service was not as helpful as it could have been in helping them get their benefits. The General Accounting Office looked into the incident at the request of several congressmen and found it may have been a case of the Postal Service promising what it couldn't deliver.

In the emotional aftermath of the tragedy, Postal Service officials apparently promised the families that the agency would take care of everything. But other federal agencies are responsible for programs to compensate families of victims and they are strictly controlled by federal law.

The GAO has recommended that the Postal Service develop a crisis management plan to deal with future traumatic events. The agency already has plans for delivering the mail during natural disasters, but no plans for coping with the trauma of mass murder.

In the unlikely event that lightning will strike twice, or that the post offices of America will be besieged by traumatic events, this sounds like an overreaction to a one-time event. Common sense and crisis management plans are the same thing, except the former is free and the latter gathers dust on a shelf.

One management is best for plant

To the Editor:

For some time, Combustion Engineering has been concerned about the management structure of the Mid-Connecticut waste-to-energy plant and its effect on long-term operation of the facility. The plant has two parts, waste processing and energy production. Under the current set-up, Combustion Engineering manages the energy part, while the Metropolitan District Commission manages the waste-processing part.

When we agreed to manage the energy portion of the facility, the plant's owner, the Connecticut Resource Recovery Agency, required us to guarantee the amount of energy we would produce. Unfortunately, there were no similar guarantees required of the MDC on how much waste would be processed. That could be costly to participating towns.

If waste processing drops below the planned levels, participating towns would have to pay higher tipping fees. If the plant doesn't process enough waste, the CRRA would have to buy more coal to produce power. The authority also would have to pay higher landfill costs to dispose of the waste that didn't get processed. Both costs would be passed on to rate payers through higher tipping fees. We don't know that that will happen, but the point is, there's no guaranteed level of waste processing now.

We've been looking for an alternative that would provide the towns guaranteed processing levels and greater cost control over the life of the plant. We've looked at two basic options — a private buy-out of the plant, or a switch to single-party management.

The buy-out would involve getting a third-party investor to purchase the plant and lease it to Combustion Engineering. The private buyer would invest tens of millions of dollars in equity, thereby lowering the financing cost. The plant would then provide tax benefits to the private owner — all lower tipping fees for participating towns. But because of certain impediments posed by the project's bonding structure, which we discovered while investigating this alternative, a buy-out may not be feasible now.

The other alternative is to have a single management entity. In this scenario, Combustion Engineering would manage not only the energy operation, but also the waste-processing facility. If we were processing the waste, we would guarantee that our performance would not increase processing costs or decrease processing levels over the life of the contract, which could be up to 20 years. That would put the operating risk in our hands, instead of the towns' hands — and potentially save rate payers a lot of money.

We think there are some problems inherent in the current management structure, and some real risks for the participating towns and their taxpayers. We also think there could be many benefits to the towns if Combustion Engineering managed the entire plant operation:

- There would be guaranteed processing levels and costs, meaning less risk of increased tipping fees.

- There would be major economic incentives for CE to do better than its guarantees which would result in economic benefit and cost savings to the towns. No such incentives apply to the MDC now.

- There would be less potential for disputes — a natural result of having two organizations run a single facility.

- It's most efficient for a single management to operate a plant.

- The risk of inadequate performance — or even failure — would be on our shoulders, not towns and rate payers.

Recently the media have reported Sen. DiBella's concern that Combustion Engineering is looking for a way out of our obligations. This is totally untrue. The options we're investigating would be in no way lessen our responsibility to pass the remaining tests required in our construction contract. No matter who is managing the plant, we still have to pass all the same tests, we still have to do what we promised to do in our contract, and we fully intend to do just that.

But we believe the current set-up that Sen. DiBella is defending is unworkable and would hurt the member towns over the next 20 years. We further believe that inflammatory statements, such as those made by the senator in the newspapers, impede — rather than foster — a speedy arrival at a equitable solution. Finally, we believe his focus, and ours, should be on what's best for our towns and our taxpayers.

Coventry people welcome visitors

To the Editor:

I would like to thank the many people at the Coventry town hall who took time out of their busy schedules to welcome the Guy Paris family, visiting from Chalons-sur-Loire, France. They appreciated the tour, mementos, and having so many questions graciously answered about the running of the town and its police department.

You are special people; you don't hesitate to do those little extras, and this makes Coventry a warmer place to live.

Thoughts

I attend church regularly - because my absence — Would cause the reality of my Christian experience to be questioned and make me to be a pretender.

— Would imply that I regard my spiritual welfare and that of others as a matter of little importance.

— Would weaken the effect of the services of my church.

— Would make it more difficult for my pastor to minister.

— Would discourage those who look toward me for the help and encouragement I could give.

— Would offer to some a ready "excuse" for doing likewise.

— Would make it easier for Satan to attack me and God's worldwide program, and would make it more difficult to meet his subtle temptations.

I would not wish to think of Jesus Christ, whom I claim to be my advocate at the right hand of God, as representing me before God on the same basis on which I would thus be representing Him here on earth before men.

So, you can readily see I have an obligation toward my God, my church, my pastor, and toward all who are yet lost, and I will discharge my obligation before God and toward men in person, in presence, in purse, and in prayer.

"I rejoiced with those who said to me, 'Let us go to the house of the Lord.'" (Psalm 122:1)

Interfaith Day Camp closes books on wet, fun-filled time

This column is prepared by the staff of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches.

By Nancy Carr and Beth Harlow
MACC staff

The last hamburger has been flipped, the last bag of treasures claimed by an anxious small camper, the last hug (a slap me five for the older boys) exchanged and we've shut the books on the wettest Interfaith Day Camp in our history. Beth Harlow, our director, says it was wonderful in spite of all the rain.

"Not enough can be said to thank all the delightful young people who volunteered as counselors this year," Harlow said. "A rainy week at camp challenged our counselors to display a high degree of flexibility as our program plans adjusted to cope with the weather. Our teen counselors showed maturity and good judgment," she added.

Thanks to our staff, Jeanne Wright, assistant director and senior counselor Chris Owens who carefully coordinated camper/counselor matches. Assisting Christine Durrenberger with both indoor and outdoor sports and games were Frank Smith and Brian O'Loughlin.

Other adult helpers included: Lisa Sirog, Diane Custer and Helen Wittkotske, Ruth Evans and Annamarie Dionne.

The campers enjoyed an Indian program led by Austin Harlow and the clown program and face painting arranged by Hilda Partridge and the Hartford County 4-H. Clowns were Tim Sheldon (Stuppy), Karen Sheldon (Boggy) and Cindy Dubucque.

Thank you too to Jacob Lassow, age three, son of nurse Liza Mendel for sharing his video tapes with Interfaith campers.

Thank you Concordia Lutheran for the use of your building, sharing your VCR on rainy days, and the assistance and support from Concordia staff Barbara, Nancy and Lena. Thanks also to Maresa Easton, food coordinator, to the nine churches who provided delicious, nutritious lunches and snacks for campers, counselors and staff, namely Concordia Lutheran, North United Methodist, Center Congregational, Assumption, First Baptist, Emanuel Lutheran, St. James, Trinity Covenant and St. Bridget.

Those who sponsored children include Religious School, grade 7, Temple Beth Shalom, Florence Jackson, Linda Habernern, Concordia Lutheran. Also craft sup-

New staff member
Several months ago we welcomed a new director of Project Re-entry to our staff. Project Re-entry is a cooperative program of MACC and the Department of Corrections offering re-entry assistance to men and women returning to community life in Manchester after serving their prison sentence.

Barbara has come to us with a varied educational background. She has a bachelor's degree in psychology from the University of Connecticut, completed a Drug and Alcohol Rehabilitation Program and will receive her master's degree in Social Work next month from UConn. In addition to her academic background, Barbara has worked at the Institute of Living as a psychiatric technician for the past 7 1/2 years. All in all, she has extensive professional and academic experience that will enable her to understand and assist our re-entry clients, many of whom have mental health problems, problems with substance abuse or both.

She's a vibrant, bright, sensitive young woman who knows when and how to be tough when tough love is necessary.

So please refer ex-offenders you know or those in need of help with finding housing, employment or have other re-entry problems. Barbara can be of assistance to them if she can begin working with offenders before his or her release.

She is here to serve you and the community. Feel free to contact her with questions and/or concerns you may have concerning the criminal justice system. As time permits she welcomes the opportunity to speak to local clubs and organizations.

Because of the conference's commitment to community education, Barbara has dedicated considerable time to researching the overcrowding crisis in Connecticut correctional institutions for our Board of Directors. The results of her research will appear as a two-part series in the MACC column over the next two weeks. To put the series in perspective, let me just note that the problem of overcrowding is not unique in Connecticut. The July 26 issue of the Christian Science Monitor introduces a three-part series on state prisons.

Religion, politics 'must be separate'

JERUSALEM (AP) — The president of U.S. Conservative rabbis says religious parties should not be part of Israeli politics.

"The time has come for Israel to adopt the separation of synagogue and state as practiced in America," Rabbi Kassel Abelson of Minneapolis told a meeting of the Rabbinical Assembly.

"The latest crisis ... in U.S. prisons ... the most formidable ever, is the explosive growth in prison population that is ever overwhelming the unprecedented boom in prison construction."

The same week the Monitor hit my desk, the Herald published a cartoon on the editorial page (July 14) with the outline "Man, don't worry about your term. Everyday somebody is thrown out before his term because someone else is coming in."

The Connecticut Prison Association's June newsletter ran a commentary on overcrowding.

"Overcrowding in Connecticut's prisons and jails has put the Department of Corrections and the state's attorneys at an impasse. On one hand there have to be limits on prison population to ensure humane conditions and the safety of both inmates and correctional staff. On the other hand, we cannot allow reduction of sentences to endanger community safety."

Over the next few weeks our series on overcrowding will address these issues.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
Eugene Brewer

The population trend for years has been toward urban centers. Metropolitan areas are merging into megalopolises. Yet people are more alone than ever. More and more folks achieve middle-class economic status, but prove to be poorer for it.

Private and public agencies dedicated to human security have proliferated, yet society is filled with dreadful fear. People have more places to go, things to do, and the means of going and doing, yet find little satisfaction for their trouble. Religious variety is virtually limitless, yet men are starving for God.

These seemingly paradoxical circumstances reflect the folly of misguided priorities. After sampling every delectable worldly ambition, Solomon declared them ventry, concluding: "Fear God, and keep his commandments for this is the whole duty of man." (Ecc. 12:13).

Melvin R. and Myrna M. Siebold of 107 Tracy Drive announce the engagement of their daughter, Diana Louise Siebold to Bruce Ronald Giggle, son of Ronald C. and Barbara C. Giggle of Route 6, Andover.

The bride is a 1980 graduate of Manchester High School and attended Southern Connecticut State University. She is an assistant food and beverage manager at Bradley Ramada Hotel, Windsor Locks.

The prospective bridegroom is a 1984 graduate of Manchester High School and is a maintenance supervisor at Wickham Park, Manchester.

An Oct. 22 wedding is planned at South United Methodist Church.

Rehearse your vows

Most brides and grooms think that rehearsing their ceremony with their bridal party and family members the day before should be fine. Not true. It probably is not the best idea to schedule the rehearsal and party the night before the wedding. People may tend to drink more than they should; friends often wake the next day in no mood for a wedding ceremony. So try to set your rehearsal two or three days before the actual ceremony. This ensures that everyone will be bright-eyed and ready for a wonderful party. Ensure that everyone is on time, and dressed in casual, comfortable clothing. This is, after all, simply a run-through. You might choose to wear your wedding shoes, recommend Dinah Goss and Marla Schwartz, authors of "The Bride Guide." Wearing your shoes will allow you to break them in before you'll actually have to stand in them for any length of time.

"Your officiant will help you run through the paces of the ceremony, as well as practice your responses," write the authors. They recommend that you ask questions, ensuring that you won't be caught off guard by anything during the ceremony. Be sure that the officiant knows the correct pronunciations of all names.

Goss and Schwartz advise that very young attendants should practice, too. If you sense that a small tot will fidget once the processional is over, have him or her join parents until the recessional begins.

Discuss seating arrangements — will all the bride's family be on the left, the groom's on the right, or will guests be evenly distributed? Have a list of guests who will sit in special sections ready for the head usher.

Finally, assign certain ushers to arrange the ribbons, unroll the white aisle carpet, collect prayer books after the ceremony and direct guests to the reception.

Students flock to MCC courses

Over 400 go back to school

By Doris Whitbeck
Special to the Herald

More and more adults, many with college degrees, are discovering an easy way to fit additional education into their busy lives. Steven Ryan, president of Impact Plastics, is one of more than 400 students who spent the summer taking a credit-free course at Manchester Community College.

Ryan, an importer whose business frequently takes him to Germany, wanted to be able to speak German more fluently but didn't need college credits.

He found just what he was looking for at MCC's Continuing Education Center. Although he lives in Rocky Hill, Ryan made the trip to the Manchester campus one evening a week for an eight-week course in German designed for tourists, scientists and engineers.

"My next trip to Germany will be the later part of August, a few weeks after the course ends, and I'll be more confident when I speak German with the people I do business with," Ryan said.

Jack Gelting, a geologist with the state Department of Environmental Protection and a resident of Manchester, was taking a course in drawing to develop his artistic talent.

"It's relaxing," says Gelting, who also has taken a watercolor course and a computer course at MCC. His other interests include camping and hiking, traveling and keeping tropical fish.

Terrance Donnelly, who just graduated from Howell Cheney Technical School, was in the drawing class too because he plans to study art at MCC in the fall. Gelting and Donnelly were among 16 budding artists in the class.

Three special excursions to cultural centers in the Berkshires took place July 9, 16 and 23. Fees for the courses, starting from a low of $18, depend on subject matter and the number of times they meet. Most of the summer courses, which included ballroom dancing, are now over.

Erika B. Neumann, director of the Continuing Education Center's credit-free program, decides from surveys what subjects will interest students and finds the instructors to teach them.

courses this summer was taught by a feminist psychotherapist who majored in Religion and Psychology at Harvard Divinity School — Janet Hollis Beers of Manchester.

Her course, "The Goddess: Women and Spirituality," was to have been limited to 20 students but there was more interest so 23 women were enrolled.

"Women are struggling for a belief system that is relevant to their lives in today's secular culture," says Beers, who has been counseling women faced with crises in their lives for 13 years.

Among the students in her class was Laurel Andrews of South Windsor who found the course valuable because it "sharpened our view of how we have evolved."

In Neumann's search for the best persons to teach credit-free courses, she interviews "fascinating people who have a love of something and want to share it."

The instructor she found for the "Sprechen Sie Deutsch" course that ended last week is Gertrude MacDonald, a native of Germany who lives in Glastonbury. MacDonald came to this country in 1948 as the wife of a U.S. Air Force man. After her retirement as a nurse supervisor in the operating room at Hartford Hospital, she began working as a tutor at the Inlingua School of Languages in West Hartford.

The 10 students in the class she taught at MCC were "very enthusiastic, very absorbent," says MacDonald. Four of them are planning to visit relatives in Germany. "I'm having the time of my life," the German language expert says.

One of the students, Betty Tracy of Manchester, lived in the French sector of Austria when her husband was stationed there in 1951. Tracy, a teacher's aide at the Regional Occupational Therapy Center in Manchester, is taking the course in preparation for a return visit to Austria after her retirement.

Susan Stanat Kiss, who teaches basic drawing, has work in the Connecticut Academy of Fine Arts 78th annual show ending Sunday at UConn's William Benton Museum. Her work also has appeared in the Wintonbury Art League's 7th annual show at the University of Hartford's Joseoff Gallery. Kiss, an East Windsor resident, earned her bachelor of fine arts degree at UConn.

A session on how writers can get published will be given August 6 by John Bowman, a freelance writer and editor who is the author of 15 non-fiction books as well as many articles. Bowman, of Northampton, Mass., will give a hands-on workshop on writing a proposal to sell an idea for a book or articles to potential editors. The session will take place from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. at MCC.

Chalk lines vital to the job

By Andy Lang
The Associated Press

Properly installing resilient floor tiles requires that the center of the room be located first. Laying the tile without taking this step, which is sometimes done by novice do-it-yourselfers, produces a hit-or-miss result. If you miss, the tiles will not be lined up correctly.

Use the professional way of locating the room center. Coat a string with ordinary chalk or buy one already chalked. Hardware stores and home centers usually sell them. When that has been done, mark the centers of the two end walls of the room. Ignore irregularities of contour. Drive two nails into the floor just a bit, so that they extend only about an inch above the surface. Tie the chalked string on to the nails so that you have a taut line. If it is tight enough, it will leave a chalk mark on the floor as you snap it with your fingers. Do it more than once if necessary to get a clear line.

Repeat the procedure on the two opposite walls. Now you have two chalked lines that cross each other. The spot where they cross is the center of the room for your purposes. To be certain you have done everything right, make a test. Measure 4 feet from the center along one line and make a dot. Do the same toward the opposite wall and make another dot. The third time measure 3 feet from the center along a line going towards an end wall. Again make a dot. When you measure the distance between dots one and three, and between dots two and three, each should be 5 feet. If they aren't, you have made a mistake somewhere and must find out what it is before you proceed.

On the House

Your next move is to place some uncemented tiles on the floor, starting at the center and going towards one wall. Do the same going towards a wall in another direction, which leaves the uncemented tiles at right angles. Your objective is to see you leave similar borders at the walls. If not, make the necessary adjustments. You are looking for borders that will be more than two or three inches. This not only will assure you the tiles will have even borders but that they will be easier to cut and put in place. Without the method, which is a lot easier done than said, you might wind up with a large border on one side and a narrow, unworkable border opposite it. With cemented tiles, you leave the backing on during this procedure. If the floor is in bad shape, cover it with underlayment before laying the tiles. This can be either plywood or hardboard. Get the 4-by-4 size, since it is much easier to handle than the standard 4-by-8 sheets. Ask your dealer to sell you the special kind of nails required for the installation of the underlayment. The nails should be spaced about 6 inches apart, with about 1-16th of an inch between the underlayment material. Whether or not you use underlayment, be certain all loose boards are nailed down and all loose nails taken out and replaced.

Always follow the manufacturer's recommendations about whether the tile can be laid on floors below grade. If, for example, you are contemplating installing resilient floor tiles in a basement. Get that straight with the dealer before you purchase the tile. This is especially important if your basement floor is concrete in contact with soil. The kind of adhesive you need for the particular kind of tile you buy will determine whether the floor must be rolled. Buy your adhesive where you buy the tile and you will be sure of getting the right type.

You can get a copy of Andy Lang's booklet, "Installing Resilient Floor Tiles," by sending 75 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743.

Here's the Answer

QUESTION: We rarely use our attached garage and are contemplating converting it into living quarters. Is this a good idea?

ANSWER: Generally, yes. You have less trouble with code regulations and permits since the building is already in place. Converting a garage usually costs less than adding extra space onto your house. That's also true for the installation of heating and cooling equipment. The main thing is to be sure the garage is in sound condition.

Bluebirds get housing help

By Earl Aronson
The Associated Press

Bluebirds, suffering from a housing shortage, are getting help from school children and senior citizens in Washburn, Wis. For the past three years, Washburn fourth-graders and Senior Community Service Employment Program members have been building wooden boxes that are needed for survival of the songbirds.

"Bluebirds are cavity-nesters, preferring to build nests in dead trees and rotted fence posts," said John Budias, county coordinator for the Bluebird Restoration Association of Wisconsin. "But increased urbanization has destroyed so many natural nesting sites that bluebirds are having a difficult time finding places where they can breed successfully. The boxes we're building provide just the right home for the birds to raise families."

The inspiration for the project was Ralph Wikdal, a Wisconsin carpenter who died in 1970. During his lifetime, he built more than 1,300 nesting boxes for bluebirds and earned the name, "Mr. Bluebird."

Wikdal left $5,000 in his will to buy material for nesting boxes, which are branded with his initials, "RW," and "WPS," for Washburn Public Schools.

Weeders Guide

The boxes are located in the Moquah Barrens Wildlife Area of the Chequamegon National Forest where they are monitored by Forest Service personnel. A census indicated that the population of bluebirds, a declining species, is increasing in the forest.

Tougher trees may be developed for landscaping in the 21st century to withstand pollution, salt and herbicides, according to Frank S. Santamour, a U.S. Department of Agriculture geneticist.

Santamour says a new test of tree enzymes can help nurserymen begin "constructing city-tough and highly decorative trees for roadside plantings" through grafting.

Santamour's test pinpoints within a tree the particular set of enzymes that make lignin, a sort of strengthening glue. By matching sets of enzymes from different trees, he can predict if grafted trees will stay grafted.

Studying more than 2,000 trees, he found that each tree had only three or four major lignin-forming enzymes. Trees formed a solid graft when the stems and rootstocks had matched enzymes. Weak grafts resulted if the enzymes were different, even if the same species.

"We are really encouraged," he said. "The trees we tested — oaks, chestnuts, red maples and ashes — all have tremendous graft incompatibility problems. Yet, by matching up their enzymes, we grafted certain oaks to other kinds of oaks, chestnuts and so forth, and it works. The theory of matching enzymes to predict solid grafts is probably applicable to any broadleaf tree, but not trees with needles."

Potato plants with a built-in insect repellent have come from cell-fusion experiments by USDA Agricultural Research scientists.

They discovered a few wild potato plants from South America with high levels of leptine, an insect-repelling toxin. They fused cells from the wild plants with cells from a commercial potato. Then they grew the fused cells into whole plants that had leptine in their leaves.

The hybrid plants have built-in resistance to Colorado potato beetles, a voracious pest that costs $120 million annually to control.

Options abound in planning college education

Are you looking for a way to ensure you can cover the costs of sending a child to college in 10 or 15 years?

Sylvia Porter

Are you considering some of the tuition prepayment and savings plans that a growing number of banks, colleges and states offer today?

Interest in innovative financing techniques for college has exploded since the first of these plans appeared at Duquesne University and in the state of Michigan in 1985. Last year five states — Florida, Indiana, Maine, Tennessee and Wyoming — enacted college prepayment plans. Illinois and North Carolina created new programs to use tax-exempt revenue bonds. Twenty-two other states undertook formal studies to determine if they should sponsor new plans. Bills to create national prepayment and savings plans were introduced in Congress.

These new plans vary widely, but prepayment plans in general allow you to invest a flat fee now to cover the future cost of a child attending college. They usually guarantee that the child's education will be paid, regardless of tuition increases in the intervening years. If the child does not enroll or does not gain admission, the plans vary on how much of the investment will be refunded. Other plans fall into the savings category.

No one can be positive on how much a college education will cost in 10 or 15 years, but in the 1980s the price has been rising faster than general inflation. If an investment is to keep up with college cost hikes, it should earn an after-tax rate of return higher than the rate of inflation.

As with any financial decision, you should be sure to get answers to all relevant questions and compare the plan you're considering with other savings and investment options before you put money down.

ANSWER: If you had additional income after May 31, 1988 and before Sept. 1, 1988, your federal estimated tax payment is due Thursday, Sept. 15. If you are required to file an additional estimate thereafter, your final payment for 1988 will be due Tuesday, Jan. 17, 1989, unless you file your income tax return by Jan. 31, 1989. State and local estimated payments may be required on that income as well.

meet their responsibility for financing their child's education is to plan and save for college. Just as they would before purchasing a house or undertaking any other major financial obligation," said Haskell Rhett, vice president for student assistance services at the College Board.

To help parents and other evaluate these new plans, the College Board and other experts in college financing have developed a set of consumer guidelines, expressed in the form of questions. Before you sign up for college savings or prepayment plan, the guidelines suggest you ask:

■ Is there a minimum contribution required to enter the program? Are incremental additions possible?

■ Is there a minimum annual amount that can be contributed? Will any such maximum restrict the accumulation below a realistic projection of future college costs?

■ Can anyone in the family or an agent of the family contribute to the plan? Are there exclusions? Can proceeds from the plan be transferred to another family member if educational plans change?

■ Are there eligibility restrictions to a particular class of institutions, either within a state or within an institutional sector, such as independent colleges? Are there penalties associated with these restrictions?

■ Is the yield from the plan guaranteed? How is it guaranteed? How is the family protected from investment deficits below college cost levels?

■ Is the plan insured? Can the investment be recovered if the plan sponsor ceases operations? Does the plan cover all college costs, or just tuition? Are there any residency requirements for eligibility? What happens if the family moves during the plan years?

■ Are there restrictions or time limits on use? Do proceeds from the plan have to be used within a certain number of years after high school?

■ How many years of study are covered by the proceeds? Are there restrictions as to who might match funds contributed to the plan? Could an employer or state contribute?

■ What are the refunds conditions in the event of a student's non-admission to college, disability or death?

■ Does the family benefit from any investment surplus over the necessary cost levels, or is that a profit to the sponsor?

■ Will the plan benefits be taxable, either for federal or state taxes? Will any tax accrue to the contributor, plan sponsor or student?

Changing Times

■ THE COST OF EATING OUT: Restaurant owners first took it on the chin several years ago when Congress required them to track and report the tip income of their waiters and waitresses. Now that they also have to pay Social Security tax on that income, a number of proprietors are throwing in the towel.

To make bookkeeping easier, fancier restaurants have begun tacking service charges of 15-20 percent on their bills in lieu of traditional tips, and other restaurants are being urged to follow suit. "It would at least focus public attention on onerous tax laws," says Peter Berlinski, editor of Restaurant Business magazine.

The biggest obstacle: public resistance. By a margin of 92 percent to 5 percent, diners told the "Gallup Monthly Report on Eating Out" they'd rather determine the tip themselves than have it included in the bill.

If tips stay, would customers still feel the bite of the tax ruling when restaurants passed on the cost of the additional tax in their prices? Unlikely. This remains a very competitive industry and its market is not expanding. Menu prices are expected to rise a modest 4 percent or so this year.

■ WAGE INCREASES: Major collective bargaining settlements in private industry during the first six months of this year provided for wage increases averaging 2.2 percent a year, the government reports.

The Labor Department said that the last time these settlements were negotiated, generally in 1985 or 1986, the wage increases over the life of the contract averaged 2.9 percent.

The contracts negotiated in the first six months of the year involved 1.02 million workers. The report said that the average pay increase for the first year of the contracts was 2.6 percent, compared to a first-year wage boost of 2.3 percent the last time labor and management in these industries negotiated.

Meanwhile, in a second report, the department said that wage and benefit increases rose 4.6 percent for the 12 months ending in June. This compared to a 3.3 percent increase during the same period a year ago.

This increase included wages and benefits such as employee contributions to health and pension plans.

New job will affect benefits

QUESTION: I've been getting Social Security checks for the last six months but I just can't make ends meet. I've decided to go back to work full time for a couple more years. How will this affect me when I want to sign up for Social Security payment again?

ANSWER: Your benefits are refigured to take into account your extra earnings each year. If you're under age 65, you'll get credit for the time you weren't receiving checks. This will most likely result in a larger benefit check when you retire again. But a work of caution. Be sure to let Social Security know that you've returned to work, so that your checks can be stopped immediately. Then you won't wind up owing Social Security for checks you weren't eligible to receive.

QUESTION: Do I have to retire to get Medicare when I reach 65?

ANSWER: No, You can have Medicare protection at age 65 even if you continue working. You

Medicine causing problems?

DEAR DR. REINISCH: I'm male, 44, and had a heart attack about four years ago. I'm doing good, but lately keeping an erection. The medication I'm on is Cardizem, Persantine and aspirin.

Kinsey Report
June M. Reinisch, Ph.D.

Do you think he is telling the truth? I'm now so self-conscious that I wear shirts to make love. I cry about this at least once a day. It really hurts when you think your husband is comparing you to other women.

DEAR READER: Some women have very strong feelings about how their breast size negatively affects their lives. Research on a group of women seeking breast enlargement surgery found that these women were much more likely than other women to think that when people looked at them they were judging breast size, that men had a more positive attitude toward women with larger breasts and that their husbands or boyfriends considered breast size to be very important.

Could the medication be causing my problem, or should I see a urology doctor?

DEAR READER: It could be the medication or it could be something else entirely. Consult a urologist, or try to find a specialist in diagnosing men's erection problems by calling the nearest medical school or large hospital.

But in any event, do not stop taking the medications until a physician tells you to do so and monitors your condition.

DEAR DR. REINISCH: I'm flat-chested (31A) and wear bras that make me look bigger. Before I got married, I never told my husband that I was flat. I didn't intentionally deceive him; he just never asked. I asked him on our wedding night if he was disappointed, and he said no.

But to this day, he has never paid any attention to my breasts. When we're at the beach, his eyes watch all the nicely endowed women. I've asked him if he's unhappy about my size, and he still says no.

Many men honestly don't care about breast size, don't need to see breasts for sexual arousal, or don't include breast stimulation in their sexual touching. And, many men enjoy looking at women's bodies but don't do it to make comparisons. Eventually the two of you will need to talk about these issues, but not until you have achieved a much more positive view of yourself.

You may want to consider cosmetic surgery, having silicone forms inserted to enlarge the size of your breasts. Research on women who have had this surgery shows that most are pleased with the results. Of course, breast augmentation cannot solve any existing problems in marital relationship, even though many women secretly believe that it will.

Don't postpone finding a professional to talk to about this. You should not have to go through life burdened by these worries.

Your response: "What a great idea. Judge Wapner, move over."

Your readers may not know that there are alternatives to going to court to settle minor neighbor or family grievances. One alternative is to use a community volunteer mediation program. Disputes over fences, loud music, barking dogs, or between landlord/tenant or business/consumer can be settled for free or very inexpensively by the parties involved meeting with neutral, impartial mediators who assist them in coming to a mutually satisfactory agreement. As both parties have negotiated their disputes themselves, the compliance to the agreement is very high.

Sample letter shows how to lose friends

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "On the Seashore," who complained about well-heeled moochers, reminded me of the way my late sister dealt with those leeches. She had a plan that never failed. I've concocted a letter like the one she would use. The names are fictitious, of course:

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

"Dear Janice: Harry and I are thrilled to learn that you and Bob are planning to visit us. We look forward to seeing you and hearing about your latest trip to Europe. We know that you wouldn't dream of imposing on us knowing how cramped we are, but we will gladly make a hotel reservation for you. In keeping with your expensive taste, I recommend The Paymore Plaza. It may not compare with the Ritz in Paris, or the Excelsior in Rome, but you'll find it adequate and surprisingly reasonable with rates that start at only $165 a day. And for $20 per person, its limousine will pick you up at the airport. However, you may want to rent a car if you plan to do some sightseeing here. There are several car rental offices right at the airport — how convenient!

"It's so sweet of you to want to include us in your travel plans. Please let us know when you'll be here so we can make all the necessary arrangements for you. Love, Denise"

Abby, if this doesn't work, nothing will. I hope you print this, as many of your readers will want to keep it on their writing tables — or next to their phones.

HOPKINS, MINN.

DEAR SUE: Live and learn! Thank you for a helpful public service. Since the name can vary from community to community, another way to get in touch with your local volunteer mediation program is to telephone the local public defender's office and ask for the legal aid/mediation source in your area.

DEAR O.G.: Should anyone ever write a book titled "How to Lose Friends and Alienate People," your suggested letter should be included.

DEAR READER: You are referring to keloids — exaggerated scar tissue that forms at the site of a wound. This seems to be more common in dark-skinned people. It is not related to mineral deficiency. Keloids can be treated with cortisone injections (into the scar), surgical removal or laser therapy.

Cortisone and tennis elbow

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have been diagnosed with tennis elbow. The doctor tells me I must have cortisone shots. What exactly is tennis elbow? Would garlic extract help?

Dr. Gott
Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR READER: Tennis elbow is known medically as lateral humeral epicondylitis, a strain of the forearm muscles where they attach to the outer lower portion of the upper arm (humerus). This strain produces inflammation and pain.

Some experts believe that tennis elbow is an overuse syndrome or may result from muscle stress during improperly hit backhand shots. The ailment also affects non-tennis players who overuse their forearms in repetitive rotary movements, such as turning a screwdriver.

Treatment consists of stopping the offending activity. In severe or chronic cases, physical therapy with ultrasound or the use of cortisone injections will help relieve pain by reducing inflammation. Garlic extract is of no use whatsoever.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband, 42, has been seeing a physician for two months for help in losing 40 pounds. So far he's lost about 20 pounds with a change in eating habits, exercise and a prescription for an appetite suppressant (Melfiat — 165 mg.). Are there any side effects to this drug?

DEAR READER: Melfiat is a prescription appetite suppressant that is similar in action to amphetamines. It can cause multiple side effects, including restlessness, insomnia, tremor, headache, blurred vision, palpitations, hypertension, nausea, diarrhea and alteration in sex drive. In short, it can have dangerous side effects and, according to the manufacturer, should not be used for more than a few weeks. Even so, tolerance can develop, as can dependence and withdrawal symptoms.

I hope that your husband is looking for long-term solutions to obesity (such as diet) rather than short-term "cures." To help him, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Winning the Battle of the Bulge," which tells how to lose weight wisely — and keep it off. Other readers who want a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, Ohio 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the name of the report.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I know that olive-skinned people tend to scar more easily, but in my case, the slightest scratch or bruise will scar. Could this be a mineral deficiency?

DEAR READER: You are referring to keloids — exaggerated scar tissue that forms at the site of a wound. This seems to be more common in dark-skinned people. It is not related to mineral deficiency. Keloids can be treated with cortisone injections (into the scar), surgical removal or laser therapy.

'Die Hard' is well done but corny

Filmeter

Robert DiMatteo

A group of foreign terrorists takes over the ominously sleek building, holding hostage McClane's wife and other employees of a hot-shot Japanese corporation. McClane, meanwhile, eludes the terrorists and spends the rest of the movie playing a nasty cat-and-mouse game with them in various corridors and shafts. Eventually, the bumbling local police and the FBI are put on the job, but you needn't have seen many action flicks to know there's only one person tough enough to take on this crutinous (and vaguely motivated) bunch of terrorists.

At bottom, this is macho bunk of the most manipulative sort. Structured as one long, breathless climax, the movie presents the corniest hair-trigger escapes in up-to-the-minute fashion (though more brutally and slickly than usual). Then the picture gains a cachet of hipness by having Willis punctuate the gruesomeness with funny profanities and "Moonlighting"-style one-liners. At one point he even makes a joke about "Rambo," which doesn't diminish the fact that he is essentially a machine-gun-toting Rambo figure, too.

Yet, on its own questionably vicious terms, this is a well-crafted movie, crisply directed by John McTiernan ("Predator") and stylishly designed and shot. It smells like a big, big hit for Bruce. Less-than-bloodthirsty viewers be warned, though: Submitting to this sensationally mechanical collection of action-film clichés may indeed make you feel like you're being held by terrorists. GRADE: **½

LICENSE TO DRIVE (PG-13) At first, this summertime teen comedy has some playful, adolescent-nightmare quality that "Risky Business" had. Teenager Corey Haim nervously takes his driver's test, which turns out to be proctored by the most demanding drill-sergeant of an instructor in the whole world. When Corey flunks, he lies about it, and hoodwinks his parents (Richard Masur and the always deliciously loony Carol Kane) into letting him use his grandpa's prize Cadillac for the night.

The rest of the movie is one exaggerated, bone-crunching calamity after another. As the car scrapes pile up, one starts to feel sorry for the poor bashed-up star auto — which is more emotion than one ends up feeling for any of the people on screen. GRADE: ****

A perverse father figure to this callow kid, Gekko preaches the seductive ethic of greed. Countering Gekko is the Sheen character's natural father (played by Charlie's real dad, Martin) — a union rep and machinist for an airline company, who stands for the decency of the common man and stresses the value of things that money can't buy.

TO THE RESCUE — Bruce Willis plays John McClane, a cop who tries to save his estranged wife from terrorists in "Die Hard."

New home video

WALL STREET (R) CBS/Fox, $89.98. Oliver ("Platoon") Stone's glossy, slick melodrama about the American worship of capitalism brought an Oscar to lead actor Michael Douglas. The lantern-jawed star plays ruthless multimillionaire speculator Gordon Gekko, who takes a young broker (Charlie Sheen) under his slimy wing.

TAMPOPO (not rated) Republic, $79.95. This too-little-seen 1987 release was one of the best films of the year. It's an utterly original and charming Japanese comedy that pivots on a widowed luncheonette operator's search for — are you ready? — the perfect noodle soup recipe. The movie's director-writer, Juzo Itami, gives that search an epicurean grandeur and cockeyed wit, while providing lots of sensuous digressions on the linking of food, sex and appetite. GRADE: ****½

Wisecracking Carrie Fisher romps again

By Bob Thomas
The Associated Press

Star Speak

LOS ANGELES — Already a film legend as Princess Leia in the "Star Wars" epics, Carrie Fisher amazed the literary world last year by producing a book that not only won critical praise, but placement on best-seller lists.

"Postcards From the Edge," now released in paperback, is a novel about a film actress, Suzanne Vale, who enters a rehabilitation clinic to break her addiction to drugs and alcohol. Since Carrie Fisher is a film actress who almost overdosed in 1985 and underwent 30 days of treatment at a Century City detoxification center, interviewers ask whether the book is based on her life.

"A lot of books are partly autobiographical in nature," she replies. "If you don't write from what you know, then you're writing science fiction. Which maybe I'll try, but then they'll say I'm writing about 'Star Wars.'"

"The book is partly autobiographical. I did draw from certain situations in my life, but the book isn't (autobiographical)."

"I think it makes people more comfortable to think that it all happened, that I kept copious notes. I've certainly done enough movies, so there's my movie sequence. I was in a clinic. But I couldn't have kept notes in that situation: It was too traumatic to keep notes. You're barely there anyway. Most of the other characters are really fiction. It's probably half and half."

Her next book?

"It's going to be about a girl who is interviewed about a book that everybody says is autobiographical." Just kidding, as is her custom.

The new book is tentatively called "Surrender the Pink."

She says the new book is totally fiction and concerns "obsessive relationships, or weird love." She must deliver it next March.

With her newfound discipline, Fisher is likely to make the deadline. She is now working in "The Burbs" with Tom Hanks and Bruce Dern, and she takes her word processor to work with her. She is also scheduled to adapt "Postcards From the Edge" for a film by Mike Nichols. But the project has been shelved by the writers' strike.

The 31-year-old Fisher wisecracked her way through an interview at the hilltop home paid for with her "Star Wars" earnings.

She remarked that she came from "a long line of short people who are survivors."

Her parents are Debbie Reynolds and Eddie Fisher, stars of a major scandal of the 1950s. Carrie was too young to remember the headlined events when Fisher abandoned Reynolds for the love of Elizabeth Taylor, who ultimately left him for Richard Burton.

At 17, Carrie Fisher made her film debut in "Shampoo," graphically propositioning Warren Beatty. She dropped out of high school to appear in her mother's nightclub act. At 19, George Lucas chose her to play Princess Leia in "Star Wars." How did she land the role?

"I always like to say that I was in Schwab's drugstore wearing THAT hairstyle when Lucas walked in and said, 'What other jerk would look appropriate in space?'"

"I just tested for it," she said. "I read well with Harrison (Ford). The dialogue was bizarre but I have a weird Pac-Man way of talking that kind of charged through it. They were either going to go for pretty or whatever it is that I have. Which is sort of 'Star Wars' proved to be the biggest moneymaker up to its time (1977) and Fisher appeared in the two sequels. What did the films do for her?"

"Well, they made me financially OK — until I got business managers. They made me a household word, like Ajax. Only I wasn't a household word. Princess Leia was famous and I was sort of adjunct to her. It's an associated fame, sort of. Once again."

Fisher grew up famous, because of her parents. But she found nothing unusual about her upbringing, nor does she think it contributed to her drug problem.

"What happens (in Hollywood) is that you don't see your parents as much, but it's the same as having working parents," she observed. "So I had working parents, and there were divores."

But that happens everywhere.

"(Drug problems) can happen anywhere, too. My brother, Todd, had a similar background to me, and he was never a drinker or a druggie. It gets a lot of publicity in Hollywood, and maybe it is more part of this environment, but it's everywhere, though mostly in cities. Who wants to take cocaine and sit around and watch the crops fall?"

A few words about medals and the military

The circle of letters in the star reads: "Grand Army of the Republic 1861 Veteran 1866." On the back of the eagle, beneath the pin, are patent dates for May and June of 1886.

Collectors' Corner

Russ MacKendrick

This assembly was evidently made to look like the 1863 Medal of Honor as seen in the Time-Life Encyclopedia of Collectibles. There is the identical star with the trefoil points, the flag, and then the eagle winging it over crossed cannons with ammunition piled beneath. There are some differences but at first glance: "Hey, same thing!"

Here we have five figures within a circle, all expressing amity and concord. In the 1863 original there are just two figures, one suffering a KO punch. (The award was given to an officer of the 27th Maine Volunteers for his part in The Great Locomotive Chase where he cabaged a train and destroyed Confederate munitions.)

The first American medal was the Purple Heart, created by Gen. George Washington in 1782 for "singularly meritorious acts." Now it is an award for anyone wounded in action.

The Purps have banded together, 15,000 of them, to make up the largest USA group concerned with military decorations. There are only 100 members in the Medal of Honor Society and 700 in the Legion of Valor (Open to the holders of the Medal of Honor, Distinguished Service Cross, Navy Cross and Air Force Cross.) The law forbids the sale of U.S. decorations but by dint of barter and boot creativity many do get into the marts of trade.

Collectors if they wish may join the Orders and Medals Society of America. (209 W. Pittsburgh Ave., Wildwood Crest, N.J. 08260). This group was founded in 1949. They now have 1,400 members and a staff of 16. They maintain a library for the study of military and civil orders, decorations and medals of all nations, and also publish a magazine: "The Medal Collector." Their convention this year is in San Diego, Aug. 11-14.

Getting technical: "Decorations" are awarded for military service. A "Medal" as an honor, is for a lower level of merit. An "Order" is the insignia of a society whose members have a common tradition, such as the Knights of the Garter, or Napoleon's Legion of Honor.

Of course any metal-working firm with an artist on the staff can come up with a pin-on decoration. In the same collection as the piece shown here there is a two-part bronze with "1863-1913 New York-Gettysburg," and below there hangs a cross with profiles of Meade and Lee. It was contrived to note the 50th anniversary of the watershed battle. This month has seen the celebration of the 125th anniversary with everything reproduced in token except the old envelope with Lincoln's famous handwritten speech.

Some Antarctic squid species are known only from their undigestible breaks found in whale stomachs — and they include the largest animals in the world still unseen by man.

How to protect your equipment in hot weather

By Sandy Colton
The Associated Press

Camera Angles

A heat wave has been making life miserable for many in America these past weeks, causing water shortages and — ruining pictures and camera equipment.

You've no doubt heard of frying an egg on a sidewalk to demonstrate the heat. Most of today's cameras are black. Many are made of plastic. Black absorbs heat. When left out in the sun, these cameras can get so hot that they can melt. The film emulsion can also melt.

Lesson learned: Don't leave your camera in the car unless you take precautions against the ovenlike temperatures that can build up inside the vehicle.

When I'm traveling, I take along a small, insulated ice chest to store my film and cameras. It needn't be a fancy chest: inexpensive styrofoam chests work well. I also get a couple of bags of chemical ice that can be refrozen. These are kept in the chest.

When I stop for the night, I ask the motel manager if he will refill the bags of chemical ice. Meanwhile, the ice chest containing my film and cameras goes into the motel room with me and back into the car the next morning.

Do not try to substitute bags of chemical ice with plastic bags of frozen ice. These plastic bags can spring a leak, and if they do, you're likely to find your film and camera floating around in melted ice water.

There are some small insulated bags that zip shut and have a shoulder strap. These make nice camera bags. The insulation keeps your film and equipment cool, and the padding helps protect the equipment from hard knocks. Most are relatively waterproof, which will protect your equipment from sand, rain and saltwater spray.

Many years ago, I carried my equipment in such a case during a motorboat ride up the Mekong River in Cambodia. The bag was knocked over the side of the boat. To my surprise, it floated! When we picked the bag up, everything inside was dry and safe.

If you do take your camera to the beach or on a boating trip, take care to keep the camera out of the hot sun when not in use. If you do not have an insulated carrying bag, wrap a towel or other piece of cloth over the camera to keep it shaded. Avoid getting water, especially saltwater, and sand onto the camera, or you could wind up with a very expensive repair bill or a totally ruined camera or lens.

Take along a few plastic bags and some rubber bands for storage of your camera when it is not in use. If you want to shoot pictures in a situation where you might get some water or sand kicked up on your camera, try this trick:

If your camera will accept a screw-in filter on the lens, get a UV or skylight filter that fits the lens. Put the camera into a plastic bag facing the bottom of the bag and then screw the filter onto the lens with the plastic in between. This will cut the plastic. Take the filter off, remove the cutout plastic circle, and screw the filter back on again with the lens looking through the hole. Now you can operate the camera from the large opening while water splashes, and sand will land only on the plastic or the filter, not on the camera.

If your camera does not accept a screw-in filter, try cutting out a small hole in a plastic bag in front of the lens and then taping the plastic around the camera. Be careful not to put tape on the lens or any moving parts of the camera. If you do get water on the lens, carefully wipe it off later. If you find sand, brush it off with a soft brush, do not wipe it off. Wiping may scratch the lens.

Finally, if you're traveling, especially to a foreign land, be sure to take extra film and batteries. A nephew told me of being in the Bahamas on his honeymoon when the batteries in his camera went dead. No batteries, no pictures. Fortunately, a resourceful German tourist visiting the same resort came to the rescue. He had brought extra batteries with him.

A last word of caution: Do not

It's a shame home computers are getting easier

By Larry Blasko
The Associated Press

Home computers are getting good enough so you don't have to know how to program to use them — and it's a shame.

Not that computing should be denied to those who think a PEEK is sinful and a POKE an invitation to fight, but learning to write a program, usually in a manufacturer-supplied version of BASIC, often taught more about what goes on in a machine than any number of hours of book-reading.

Besides, until recently, having a knowledge of BASIC was just about the only way you could follow many of the articles in popular computing magazines, which devoted page upon page of typed listings of game and productivity programs that their readers either couldn't find elsewhere or couldn't afford.

You didn't just use a computer then, you ran a computer: told it what to do, when, how and sometimes sat back in amazement when it actually happened that way. Now home computers are sinking back to join the rest of the appliances, and the wealth that has been evolving for nearly 40 years. To the general public, the significance of the book may be lost but the book itself is fascinating.

a program disk.

Computer magazines are starting to reflect that change.

COMPUTE! (COMPUTE! Publications, $3), a general-interest computing magazine that will celebrate its 10th year in September, dropped type-in program listings in the May issue, citing reader interest elsewhere. Editor Greg Keizer wrote: "We've changed because we saw you changing. It's that simple."

Well, maybe not quite that simple, since Keizer is writing in the July issue that "We did not make the decision to drop type-in programs lightly," in response to mail from readers.

Family & Home Office Computing (Scholastic Inc., $3.25), still publishes type-ins, but they're in a magazine-within-a-magazine insert and a good number are aimed at some aspect of running a home business, mailing-label programs, for example, in the June (IBM) and July (Apple) issues.

Machine-specific magazines still publish type-ins, although the programs are also available at extra charge either on a disk or on magazine-run computer bulletin boards. The July issue of PC Magazine (Ziff-Davis, $2.95), for example, has a program to set communications parameters, which is free if you don't mind typing either the assembly-language source code or a 156-line BASIC version consisting mostly of numbers, both from a photographically reduced printout that will never win easy-reading awards. Otherwise, and assuming you have a modem and a charge card, PC MagNet is available at rates ranging from $6 to $12 an hour.

RUN (IDG Communications, $2.95) publishes listings for Commodore users and also has them available on ReRun, a bi-monthly disk. The Apple magazine inCider publishes programs and has them available for downloading without charge on its electronic bulletin board system.

If you like good science fiction, go buy this one

By William J. Castello
The Associated Press

PRELUDE TO FOUNDATION. By Isaac Asimov. Doubleday. 403 Pages. $18.95.

"Prelude to Foundation" is the missing link in the vast chain of Isaac Asimov's work. It is long-awaited and welcomed.

The Foundation novels have thrilled and entertained science fiction readers for many years. (The first publication of "Foundation" was in the May 1942 edition of "Astounding Science Fiction.") They involve the sociological evolution of humanity at a time in the distant future when the earth is just an ancient legend (not often believed) and mankind has migrated to every corner of the universe.

Another series of short stories and novels dealing with robots has materialized in bits and pieces from the 1940s to the present. These stories deal with the rise of robots to positions of power as mankind grows more dependent on them and is almost conquered by them. These pieces also introduce Asimov's "positronic brain" (totally independent artificial intelligence), which is the key to the power of robots. Altogether they formulate a running, if not totally consistent, future history of humanity.

Asimov has finally written the bridge between two major bodies of his life's work, and in doing so, he supplies some key pieces to the vast puzzle of creation.

This story moves through the complex societies contained within the protective domes of Trantor, the hub of the 25 million planets that make up the Empire. Trantor is the home of the Emperor and his great palace but is itself not ruled by the Empire. It is a vast number of individual, autonomous political units sharing one huge planet.

Hari Seldon is the father of psychohistory. He has been either written about or mentioned in all of the "Foundation" books as the founder of the Foundation. In most of the other materials that refer to him, he is seen as a god-like man of great knowledge, more legend than human. In this book, Seldon is seen as a fragile life in the midst of billions. He has finally been given a truly human character.

Seldon is pursued for the one weapon that would deliver ultimate power to its possessor:

psychohistory and its intrinsic property of predicting the future. He is guided by the mysterious Chetter Hummin and guarded by the beautiful and deadly historian, Dora Venabili. Together they flee from the clutches of the Emperor and seek the answer to the problems of making his theoretical science into a practical one.

To Asimov followers, this is a long-awaited chapter to a series of tales that has been evolving for nearly 40 years. To the general public, the significance of the book may be lost but the book itself is fascinating.

Bernstein helps Tanglewood celebrate 50 years

By Carolyn Lumsden
The Associated Press

LENOX, Mass. — Actresses Lauren Bacall, Betty Comden and Phyllis Newman are among performers in the birthday bash being thrown in August for conductor Leonard Bernstein at the music center where he got his start.

The Tanglewood Music Center also is celebrating the 50th anniversary of its Music Shed this summer with a special concert by the resident Boston Symphony Orchestra featuring the same music, Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, that inaugurated the building in 1938.

The Bernstein weekend alone, with tickets as high as $5,000 each, may bring in more than $1 million for the festival's endowment fund, according to Caroline Smedvig of the symphony.

"Because Tanglewood is so special for him and, conversely, he's so special to us, the combination will produce what we hope will be a unique event," she said.

The Leonard Bernstein Gala Birthday Performance is a four-day affair beginning on the composer's 70th birthday, Aug. 25, to raise money for the music center.

The Bernstein weekend alone, with tickets as high as $5,000 each, may bring in more than $1 million for the festival's endowment fund.

Beverly Sills, who announced last month that she will step down as general director of the New York City Opera, will be the host of the event. Bacall and soprano Barbara Hendricks will perform a movement from Bernstein's Symphony No. 3, "Kaddish."

Violin soloist Midori will play two movements from his "Serenade."

Dame Gwyneth Jones and Frederica von Stade will be among those performing highlights from "Fidelio" and other works to honor Bernstein's landmark opera recordings.

The concert will also celebrate Bernstein's accomplishments in popular music with excerpts from such works as "West Side Story" and "On the Town."

The orchestra opened the nine-week season with the special July 1 concert marking the first half-century of the Music Shed.

The season of classical music will be expanded with performances by such popular rock, jazz and folk artists as The Beach Boys, George Benson and Leo Kottke.

But the highlight of the new season is the celebration of Bernstein's birthday.

The BSO is even billing the birthday party as "one of the music world's great occasions" and is negotiating the television rights in the United States and Europe.

Among the conductor's friends who have been invited to the bash are pop star Michael Jackson and British Princess Diana, although Tanglewood officials say she has not yet received an answer from the celebrities.

Bernstein was a member of the original Tanglewood Music Center class of 1940, where he became a protégé of Tanglewood founder Serge Koussevitzky.

When Koussevitzky retired in 1949, he tried to have the young Bernstein named as his successor, but the BSO's trustees chose Charles Munch because they considered Bernstein too young and tainted by popular music.

He later wrote the score for the musical "West Side Story" and returned every summer to conduct and teach.

Conductors Seiji Ozawa, John Williams, John Mauceri and Michael Tilson Thomas will share the podium featuring some of his works on the night of his birth.

The following night, Ozawa and special guests will appear in a Music Shed concert for a performance intended to show Bernstein's influence on other musicians.

Aug. 27 will be given over to a performance of Bernstein's

"Mass" by a 250-member troupe from the Indiana University school of music.

The four-day celebration concludes with Bernstein conducting the annual Serge and Ola Koussevitzky Memorial Concert, including a performance of Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 5, on Aug. 28.

All proceeds go to the music center's endowment fund, and to a fund Bernstein established for aspiring young conductors. Ticket prices start at $20 for a space on the lawn and go up to $5,000 for front row seats for benefactors.

Other highlights of the new season include several major debuts, including that of Soviet pianist Vladimir Feltsman, who arrived in the United States last August after an eight-year battle to emigrate; a return visit by the Israel Philharmonic; and a recital by Irish flutist James Galway.

This summer is the second in a four-year jubilee of the festival's 50th anniversary. Events climax in 1990 with observances marking the 50th year of the music center, the festival's school.

Jimmy Cliff combines reggae and African music

By Mary Anne O'Callaghan
The Associated Press

When people think of reggae music, Bob Marley or Peter Tosh come to mind. Unfortunately, both are gone. But the man who introduced reggae music to the world, Jimmy Cliff, is alive and well.

He's currently touring in America and has just released his fourth album on Columbia Records, "Hanging Fire," which spotlights the Grand Zico Band of Africa and the African International Band of Zaire.

The music combines African rhythms with a reggae beat.

"African music is popular because people are always looking for something fresh," Cliff says. "There is a need for freshness in music. Newness enables you to create. That's why African music is slowly creeping into rhythms and melodies that people in the West are hearing."

Cliff is an artist who wants to expand reggae by integrating it with other musical styles.

He says, "Jamaican composers need to focus more on general themes instead of topics that are strictly Jamaican. In America, reggae is popular with an educated audience — college students. The foundation has been laid for reggae to be more international. I think in 10 years it will be in the mainstream in the United States and England."

"Hanging Fire" is the third collaboration between Cliff and Ronald Bell of Kool and the Gang. The record is international, having been recorded in Africa, Jamaica and New Jersey.

Music Makers

New Jersey?

"Yeah," Cliff laughs. "I'd been interested in working with African bands for quite awhile. I was in Zaire doing some concerts and listened to some local bands. I decided to record with them. We went to the Congo to record because the studios are better there."

"I sent the tapes to Bell and he added a few things. So we started recording with my band in Jamaica and then went to New Jersey to finish it off. I worked with three bands on the album. It took nine months to finish."

Cliff spends at least part of each year in Africa. He draws large crowds at his concerts.

"I go to either unwind or do a tour. The people are so warm and the hospitality is wonderful. The audiences give you a great reception. They don't get many artists on tour there, so from the moment you start, they are into the show."

"African audiences respond to reggae because the music addresses issues and conditions they live with."

Cliff emerged from Kingston, Jamaica, in the 1960s. He had recorded a few songs that had done well locally when the Jamaican government decided to send its local stars abroad.

A tour of Europe promoting the early "ska" version of reggae floundered, but Cliff's dynamic performances caught the public eye.

Cliff signed with Island Records in London and combined his native music with the familiar American rhythm 'n' blues. His song "Waterfall" was entered in a Brazilian song festival and became the first international reggae hit.

It wasn't until 1971 that Cliff got his first American top 10 hit with "The Harder They Come." The song was the title track of his first movie. He left Island Records shortly after that and joined EMI Records.

In 1985, Cliff received a Grammy award for his single, "Reggae Nights." The following year he toured with Steve Winwood and starred in the movie, "Club Paradise," with Robin Williams. He worked on the sound track of the movie with such collaborators as Elvis Costello.

"I enjoy making movies. I haven't pursued it as much because of making music. It's a much bigger project than a record," he says.

A whole new audience was introduced to Cliff's music when Bruce Springsteen recorded "Trapped," one of Cliff's earlier songs, for the "We Are the World" album.

"I liked Bruce's version," Cliff says. "It was totally different from mine. He did it his way."

Cliff gave a concert in Soweto in South Africa in 1980. It was an experience that left a vivid impression. "I am glad that I went there to see and hear things for myself. Of course, it's not cool to go there now."

"I didn't need a pass to travel. I went everywhere. One of the guys said to me, 'You know you are considered an honorary white person.' I said, 'Why not an honorary human being?' I hadn't known I was an honorary anything until he told me."

"It was good for me to go. It showed people there that someone on the outside was interested in their struggle. I would tell them, 'Your struggle is my struggle.'"

Where does he think Jimmy Cliff will be in 10 years?

He smiles. "I'll be at the peak of my creative abilities. I would like to be doing music and acting. I'm working on writing a movie script. I would also like to do Broadway but I'm not ready for that now."

Farmers got more money

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices paid to farmers for grain and other raw products rose 3.6 percent in July as drought continued to take a toll of 1988 harvest prospects over much of the nation, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

The department's Agricultural Statistics Board said in its preliminary report that higher prices for corn, soybeans and eggs contributed most to the July increase. Lower prices for oranges, cattle and hogs partly offset the rise in other commodities.

Compared with a year earlier, July prices averaged 10 percent higher. The report also included revised figures showing that the index rose only 2.2 percent in June, compared with the preliminary reading of 3.7 percent announced a month ago.

Singer division sold

STAMFORD (AP) — The Singer Co. announced Friday it has reached an agreement allowing Ruhrgas A.G. of Essen, Germany, to acquire the company's American Meter Division for about $132 million.

American Meter is the leading supplier of residential gas meters to the United States gas utilities and also produces and markets gas metering-regulating equipment for industrial and commercial applications. It is headquartered in Philadelphia.

Ruhrgas is the world's largest importer of natural gas and the largest gas company in West Germany. Paul A. Bilzerian, chairman and chief executive officer of Singer, said the agreement is favorable for both Ruhrgas and American Meter.

"Ruhrgas will acquire a business that has a long and distinguished history of innovation and customer service in the field," Bilzerian said. "American Meter's potential for future growth, in turn, will be enhanced as it becomes part of an organization with other major commitments in the industry."

Bhopal ruling postponed

BHOPAL, India (AP) — An Indian judge on Friday postponed an expected judgment on whether victims of the 1984 Bhopal gas tragedy could file individual compensation claims overseas against Union Carbide Corp.

Judge M.W. Deo postponed a hearing in the case until Aug. 24 to study a ruling by a Bridgeport court that said the Indian government could not restrict the right of Indian citizens to pursue individual claims in the United States.

The cases stem from history's worst industrial accident. More than 2,800 people were killed in December 1984 when toxic gas leaked from a pesticide plant in Bhopal owned by Carbide's Indian subsidiary.

GE Venture gets order

EVENDALE, Ohio (AP) — A joint manufacturing venture involving General Electric Co. and a French company has received an order worth more than $185 million to supply jet engines for a Canadian airline, officials said Friday.

The CFM International joint venture received the order to supply CFM56-5-A1 engines to power aircraft operated by Canadian Airlines International.

The order is to cover 17 jets, options to purchase 34 others and reserve aircraft. CFM International announced. The A320 jets are being produced by the Airbus Industrie manufacturer.

Orders for the CFM56-5-A1 engine from 14 airline and aircraft leasing companies now total more than $1.8 billion, officials said at General Electric's suburban Cincinnati headquarters for the jet engine division.

Brokers fired, suspended in Business Week probe

NEW YORK (AP) — Prudential-Bache Securities Inc. fired a broker Friday and Advest Inc. said it suspended one in connection with a widening probe of trading based on advance leaks of Business Week magazine articles.

Shearson Lehman Hutton Inc. also disclosed some former brokers may have traded on advance knowledge of the information as well.

The moves came a day after Merrill Lynch Inc. said it had fired a broker because of suspicious trades.

Prudential-Bache said it had dismissed Brian Callahan, a broker in its 33-member office in Anaheim, Calif., after it detected suspicious trading by him. The firm said it had notified the Securities and Exchange Commission, the federal agency that enforces securities laws.

Peter Costigilo, a spokesman at Prudential-Bache's headquarters in New York, said Callahan, 28, had worked for the firm for about 3½ years.

Executives at Prudential-Bache's Anaheim office referred all queries about Callahan to Costigilo, who said he did not know the whereabouts of the broker.

Directory assistance said there was no listing for a Brian Callahan in Anaheim.

Advest, which is based in Hartford, said the stockbroker it suspended worked in the firm's office in New London, where 10 brokers are based. Spokeswoman Martha Payne declined to disclose the broker's identity or career history.

"The suspension was the result of an internal investigation which we conducted," she said. "We've notified the Securities and Exchange Commission. The investigation is continuing."

Shearson said in a statement that an undisclosed number of ex-brokers in the Hartford office of E.F. Hutton Group Inc., which Shearson acquired last December, "may have accepted and executed trades based on advance knowledge of articles that were published in Business Week."

The statement said the questionable trades occurred prior to the acquisition and the brokers are no longer with the company. It said the SEC and New York Stock Exchange had been notified but provided no further details.

The disclosures widened to four the number of brokerages involved since Business Week, the nation's leading business weekly with a circulation of nearly 1 million, said last week that it was investigating whether stock trading was occurring based on leaks of its unpublished "Inside Wall Street" columns.

Evidence uncovered so far suggests that workers who print Business Week shared information about the market-moving columns with brokers before the magazine was available to the public.

Two of the four plants that publish Business Week are in Old Saybrook, near New London; and in Torrance, Calif., near Anaheim.

Merrill Lynch said Thursday it had fired broker William Dillon from its New London office after investigating a pattern of suspicious trading he conducted on stocks featured in "Inside Wall Street."

Dillon did not return phone calls to his home in Old Lyme, seeking comment.

People familiar with Merrill's internal probe, who spoke on condition they not be identified, also said a second broker in the firm's New London office, James Smith, was under investigation but no disciplinary action had been taken against him. Smith's secretary said he was unavailable for comment.

Operating income at Aetna dropped 32% in 2nd quarter

HARTFORD (AP) — Mixed results in its various businesses and its participation in a settlement with users of intrauterine devices contributed to Aetna Life and Casualty's 32 percent drop in operating income in the second quarter of 1988, the company said Friday.

Aetna reported second-quarter operating income of $153 million, or $1.34 per share, compared with $226 million, or $1.93 per share, in the same period of 1987.

The company attributed the drop in operating income partly to its participation in the A.H. Robins Co. bankruptcy reorganization plan.

The results reflect a $45.1 million after-tax charge resulting from the reorganization of Robins. The charge is in addition to reserves previously established by Aetna for insurance obligations for claims by users of Robins' Dalkon Shield intrauterine devices.

"Results for our various businesses were mixed in the second quarter," said Aetna Chairman James T. Lynn. "But overall, after adjusting for the Robins charge and differences from year to year in 'fresh start' tax benefits, our quarterly operating earnings were down only slightly from last year and were generally in line with our expectations."

Net income in the second quarter of 1988 was $136 million, or $1.19 per common share, and reflected a net capital loss of $17 million. In the second quarter of 1987, net income was $248 million, or $2.12 per common share, and reflected extraordinary tax benefits of $24 million from the utilization of operating loss carryforwards and $2 million of net capital losses.

For the second quarter of 1988, the net tax benefit resulting from the "fresh start" provisions of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 was $19 million, compared with $36 million a year ago.

Operating earnings for the first six months of 1988 were $281 million, or $2.44 per common share, compared with $408 million, or $3.49 per common share, for the same period in 1987.

Net income for the first six months of this year was $268 million, or $2.33 per common share, compared with $469 million, or $4.05 per common share, for the first half of 1987.

As of June 30, 1988, Aetna's total assets were $75.7 billion, 6 percent greater than a year ago. Shareholders' equity was $55.60 per common share, compared with $52.19 per common share a year earlier.

A federal judge in Virginia issued the confirmation order Tuesday for the bankruptcy reorganization plan of Robins. The plan includes its acquisition by American Home Products of New York for a $700 million exchange of stock, and establishment of a $2.475 billion trust fund for Dalkon Shield claimants.

The court also approved a proposed settlement of a class-action suit against Aetna Casualty and Surety Co. under which Aetna will contribute $425 million to the trust fund and be immune from further liability in the case. The suit was brought by claimants who challenged the amount of Aetna's contribution.

Highlights of the week

By The Associated Press

■ The government said the economy expanded at a healthy 3.1 percent annual pace from April through June, but rising food, energy and clothing costs pushed the inflation rate to 4.7 percent, its highest level in almost six years. Another quarterly report showed the price of imported goods rose 2.7 percent in the April-June period. Other reports showed big jumps in consumer spending and orders to U.S. factories for "big ticket" durable goods during June.

■ The Labor Department said major collective bargaining settlements in private industry during the first six months of this year resulted in wage increases averaging 2.2 percent a year, a slight decline from the average increases negotiated two to three years ago.

■ A real estate trade group said sales of existing homes rose in June to the highest level in a year and a half as buyers tried to beat out rising mortgage rates.

■ The most comprehensive banking bill since the Great Depression cleared a House committee but faced an uncertain future. The bill grants banks broad new securities powers but restricts their ability to enter real estate and insurance and imposes new obligations on them to serve the poor.

■ Congress, running the risk of bloating the budget deficit, overwhelmingly approved some $6 billion in aid for drought-stricken farmers.

■ Investors who jumped into the agricultural commodity markets in the early stages of the drought started bailing out as rains soaked the parched Midwest.

■ Troubled food giant Pillsbury Co. named Philip L. Smith, the head of rival General Foods Corp., as its new top executive, but the announcement drew a negative reaction on Wall Street because of Smith's limited experience in the restaurant business.

■ Mellon Bank Corp. said it would shift $1 billion in bad loans into a new independent bank to stabilize Mellon's shaky finances.

■ The nation's automakers said sales rose 4.3 percent in mid-July, as gains at Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. offset a slight decline at General Motors Corp.

■ Ford said its second-quarter earnings climbed 11 percent from a year earlier to $1.66 billion, setting an auto industry record for the second consecutive quarter. Chrysler reported a 24.5 percent drop in its earnings due to its attempts to cut prices and gain market share.

■ The big oil companies, including Exxon Corp., generally reported improved earnings for the second quarter, aided by gains in refining and chemical operations.

■ UAL Corp. and Delta said their profits rose strongly in the latest quarter from a year earlier, boosted by revenue gains generated by growth in passenger traffic.

■ Revco D.S. Inc. filed for bankruptcy protection, a month after missing a $46 million interest payment on bonds issued to fund a leveraged buyout of the drugstore chain. It became the largest buyout of its kind to fail.

■ A plan to resurrect MGM and United Artists as separate movie studios collapsed, when financiers Kirk Kerkorian and Burt Sugarman announced they couldn't agree on details of the $400 million deal.

■ The $660 million leveraged buyout of Koppers Co.'s chemicals business fell through, putting a hitch in Brian Beazer's plan to use the proceeds to help finance his $1.8 billion takeover of Koppers.

■ Amfac Inc. agreed to a $40 per share all-cash merger with the privately held real estate firm JMB Realty Corp. in a deal valued at $920 million.

■ Henley Group Inc., which had failed to gain control of Santa Fe Southern Pacific Inc., agreed to sell its Santa Fe shares to Itel Inc. in a deal valued at $1.2 billion in cash and stock.

Dukakis raps scandal; Bush pushes child care

By Tom Raum
The Associated Press

Democrat Michael Dukakis campaigned for blue-collar voters in Michigan Friday and promised not to allow defense dollars to "line the pockets of Washington consultants." George Bush accused his rival of trying to hide a "far-left philosophy."

Dukakis, reiterating his campaign pledge to work toward "full employment," made campaign appearances at two General Motors plants in Flint, Mich., a state that Jesse Jackson won in the primary campaign.

The Democratic nominee paid tribute to Jackson, saying after a private meeting with Jackson's Michigan supporters, "I want them; I need them; I want them to be a part of not only a great campaign but what I hope will be a great administration."

Speaking to 500 people outside a GM plant where Buicks are assembled, Dukakis took aim at Pentagon procurement practices, citing a recent report outlining abuses in the military acquisition program.

"We're not going to use our defense dollars to line the pockets of Washington consultants," Dukakis said. "In a Dukakis administration, we're not going to surrender our national security to greed and corruption."

The Democrat also toured a plant where light trucks are manufactured and walked along the assembly line, shaking hands with workers.

Later, he was traveling to Wisconsin, Illinois and Kentucky before returning to Boston Saturday night.

Bush, meanwhile, stayed close to home, visiting a child care center in a high-tech industrial park in Tyson's Corner, Va., to focus attention on his new $2.2 billion proposal to aid working families.

The vice president called his plan, which features a $1,000-per-child tax credit primarily designed for low-income working mothers, preferable to a $2.5 billion Democratic plan, endorsed in concept by Dukakis. The Democratic plan a more direct role for the federal government.

"You have to have choice, parental choice, family choice, and you have to have diversity," Bush said.

Bush domestic affairs adviser Deborah Steelman conceded that Bush's tax-credit plan, which in its first stages would only benefit families earning less than $12,000 a year, probably wouldn't be of much use to the middle-income parents who used that center, which charges about $100-a-week per child.

"The point of doing it here is it will help spawn more child care centers like this one," set up by companies for their employees without federal assistance, she said.

Bush tossed a foam ball back and forth with children at the center, pushed several youngsters on a tire swing and helped stock an aquarium with new fish, at one point telling the toddlers he had a special talent. "I can talk to fish," he said.

Bush told reporters the issues in the presidential campaign are still "all blurred out there right now."

"The Democrats had a good convention, but offered no specifics," Bush said. "My opponent's suggestion that ideology doesn't matter just masks over his far-left philosophy."

Fonda at Agent Orange event

MIDDLEBURY (AP) — Actress Jane Fonda posed for hundreds of snapshots at an amusement park Friday to help raise money for children who suffered birth defects because their fathers were exposed to the defoliant Agent Orange while in Vietnam.

"This event is a little bit like a dream come true," Fonda said during a brief speech.

Fonda and Robert DeNiro, who co-star in a movie now being filmed in nearby Waterbury, attended the benefit for the Brandie Schieb Children's Fund. About 1,200 people bought tickets for the event, which was tucked away from the hoopla of the amusement park. Hundreds of people waited in line in front of the stage, which was decorated with red, white and blue balloons, to have their photographs taken with the Fonda and DeNiro.

The fund's leaders say an estimated 64,000 children nationwide suffer birth defects linked to Agent Orange.

The event, called "An Evening With the Stars," at the Quassy Amusement Park featured area bands, food and rides. Admission was $10 for individuals, $25 for families. Photographs cost $15.

The fund's leaders estimated Friday that the event would raise about $10,000.

Fonda and DeNiro are starring in the movie, "Stanley and Iris," love story between a working class woman and an illiterate man she teaches to read.

"I'm happy to be here," DeNiro said. "It's for a good, good cause. A lot of people came back from Vietnam and are suffering ... that was bad enough, but when the children suffer what could be worse? As a parent, I can't think of anything worse," said DeNiro, who was greeted by cat calls and whistles.

Bush campaign manager Lee Atwater contended that the vice president's drop in the polls after the Democratic convention had just about bottomed out.

Bush planned to go on the offensive next week with speeches in Chicago on Tuesday and Corpus Christi, Texas, on Thursday on foreign policy and defense — an area in which the Bush campaign says Dukakis is the most vulnerable.

"He will keep discussing issues. And when the issues come in focus, the polls will start closing," Atwater said in an interview.

At the White House, meanwhile, presidential spokesman Fitzwater picked up on the same theme, accusing Dukakis of being "for a weaker defense."

Fitzwater spoke after a visiting West German conservative leader, Franz Joseph Strauss, said U.S. policy toward Western European countries will remain the same regardless of who is the next president.

"We have great differences with the Democratic nominee in terms of defense posture," Fitzwater said.

Bush was asked about reports that Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III would make his long-planned move to head the Bush campaign next week. "Jim Baker? A great fellow. He's still Secretary of the Treasury," the vice president said.

However, administration and campaign sources said that they expect Baker to resign by Aug. 5 to become Bush campaign chairman and that Reagan likely will nominate New York investment banker Nicholas Brady to serve out the rest of Baker's term at Treasury.

One last party marks end of Playboy Clubs

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The high heels, bunny tails and figure-shaping costumes that transformed cocktail-serving into a sexual fantasy are just a memory today. America's last Playboy Club closed Friday night.

The Playboy Club in a Lansing hotel invited former club members back for one last party Friday. The club had dispensed with memberships when a dropoff in business forced the owners to open the lounge to the public.

Today, the Playboy trappings — oversized posters of magazine covers and other memorabilia — were to be auctioned for charity.

The custom-fit bunny costumes, however, will not be on the auction block, said Playboy spokeswoman Terri Tomcsin in Chicago.

"Those go back to Playboy Enterprises," she said.

Hugh Hefner opened the first Playboy Club in Chicago in 1960 and the clubs had their heyday in the 1970s, when there were 22 around the world.

The company-owned clubs were closed in 1986, and the three remaining franchise contracts — with hotels in Des Moines, Iowa; Omaha, Neb.; and Lansing — were not renewed this year, Tomcsin said.

Thriving clubs remain in Japan and the Philippines, and Tomcsin said the company plans more overseas operations.

Tomcsin said she has been surprised by the media attention the Lansing closing received.

"We just had a big deal with the last of the company-owned clubs," she said. "That was different. We had been around for 26 years. We were very established. The Lansing club opened in '82 — you can't really compare."

Tomcsin said the media attention shows the Playboy philosophy had an impact on America. "We were more than just a fad," she said. "We had become an important part of American culture."

END OF AN ERA — Bunnie Kay, left, and Michelle, tend to business at the last Playboy Club in the United States in Lansing, Mich., which closed Friday night.

Britain prepares for a royal baby

LONDON (AP) — The Duchess of York, wife of Prince Andrew, will soon give birth to her first child following an active pregnancy that survived two accidents, a family scandal and a flood of rumors.

Buckingham Palace insists the birth is due in mid-August, but Britain already looks set for a fresh bout of royal baby hoopla, spurred by excited predictions in the tabloid press that the big day is imminent.

The Sun newspaper said Friday that the duchess' weight and other health problems may force a Caesarian delivery this weekend.

On July 22, the Star claimed the birth was likely to be artificially induced within 48 hours because the duchess feared losing the baby.

The Sun newspaper said Friday that the duchess' weight and other health problems may force a Caesarian delivery this weekend.

Every other day, Andrew is prematurely reported to have left his Royal Navy ship in Singapore to be at her side during the delivery.

But Buckingham Palace is sticking to its forecast and refusing to comment on the press reports.

The baby, to carry the title Prince or Princess of York, will be Queen Elizabeth II's fifth grandchild and fifth in line to succeed her.

"Complications which could endanger mother and baby have led her doctors to give up the wait for a natural delivery," the Sun reported Friday.

The newspaper said without attribution that the duchess' doctor had decided on a Caesarian section because she is suffering from high blood pressure and severe water retention, and because the baby is in a breech position, meaning it would be born bottom first rather than head first, as is normal.

The Star added that the "roly-poly" duchess has gained almost 50 pounds during the pregnancy.

The 28-year-old duchess, the former Sarah Ferguson, married Andrew, the queen's second oldest son, in July 1986. When she didn't become pregnant in the first year, the British media speculated that "Fergie" was being treated for infertility, although her family repeatedly denied it.

The duchess radiated good health during the early months of her pregnancy. She skied, performed a full calendar of royal engagements and worked at her publishing job until February.

ConnMap applications taken

This column is prepared by the staff at the Manchester Senior Citizens' Center.

By Joe Diminico
Activities Specialist

Applications are now available for ConnMap Cards (Connecticut Medicare Assignment Program). The ConnMap Program was established as a result of new legislation just recently passed by the Connecticut General Assembly requiring all physicians to accept "Medicare Assignment" to qualified individuals.

The program replaces the Hartford County Medical Courtesy Card program which was a voluntary program to participating physicians. Income guidelines are $19,950 for a single or $24,000 for a married couple.

Individuals possessing the Hartford County Courtesy Card or the ConnFace Card may use their cards for the remainder of the year.

Fitness enthusiasts are reminded that the upcoming program at Manchester Memorial Hospital entitled "Designing Your Own Walking Program for Optimal Fitness." The program will be presented by Susan Parker, MSN, RNC, director of Occupational Health at Manchester Memorial Hospital. The program is scheduled for Aug. 3 at 6 p.m. at the H. Louise Ruddell Auditorium.

The Senior Center Summer Meals Program is in full swing. Meals are being offered Wednesday, Thursday, Friday from 11:45 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. Picnics are held on Thursdays at 5 p.m. Entertainment for next Thursday's picnic will be the Silk City Chorus.

Effective immediately, the Senior Center will be offering a "Gold Card Special" to all new members. Individuals registering for a gold card will be given one free meal ticket. Current members are encouraged to pass the word along and perhaps have lunch at the center with a new member.

Congratulations to Cindy Crockett, former program assistant, and her husband Tom on the recent birth of their twin girls.

Lastly, the Senior Center is in desperate need of volunteers to help with painting and cleaning the last two weeks of August. Remember, it is your volunteer efforts that help keep the Senior Center in the impeccable condition it is in.

Small Business BIG OPPORTUNITY

Making a small business succeed is hard work. But small business is the lifeblood of the community. It stimulates jobs, individual enterprise, and local economic development.

That's why 7-Eleven is committed to the success of all its franchisees. We've set up a system that lends an uncommon amount of support to franchisees. From site selection, store construction and financing, to training and daily problem solving, we remain involved in a way that helps you run your business effectively and successfully.

Owning a business is a big opportunity. It's part of the American dream, and an experience we believe everyone should have an opportunity to pursue. There are currently franchises available in: Chicopee, Holyoke, South Hadley, Springfield and in northern Connecticut. If the idea of starting your own business with a reasonable initial investment is appealing to you, complete and mail this coupon today, or to talk to a Franchise Counselor call the phone number listed below.

Today's 7-Eleven. Where the good things come easy.™

The initial franchise fee may vary for each store. The method for computing the fee is fully disclosed in the Uniform Franchise Offering Circular. Fees or downpayment subject to change without notice. This material is not an offer or solicitation for the sale of a franchise. An equal opportunity organization.

Agassi overcomes Berger in Volvo net play

STRATTON MOUNTAIN, Vt. (AP) — Second-seeded Andre Agassi survived a second-set power failure and overcame No. 10 Jay Berger 6-1, 1-6, 6-3 Friday in the quarterfinals of the $601,500 Volvo International Tennis Tournament.

Agassi, the top-ranked American in the world at No. 5, will face 12th-seeded Dan Goldie in one semifinal Saturday. Goldie outlasted 17-year-old Jim Courier, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

The other two quarterfinals also went three sets. Ninth-seeded Darren Cahill of Australia eliminated Roger Smith of the Bahamas, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2, and Paul Annacone, the 13th seed, outlasted Marty Davis 6-4, 4-6, 7-5.

Agassi, who has won four tournaments and $401,000 this year, won the first four games of the match behind a smashing forehand that had Berger out of position for much of the first set.

Agassi was actually growling as he ran around backhands and whistled forehands from corner to corner.

He started the second set the same way, with a forehand winner and an ace to win the first game. But then, his shots suddenly lost their zip and Berger, ranked 21st in the world, dominated the rest of the set, winning the next six games, including two breaks when Agassi double-faulted away his serve.

"I actually felt strong in the second set, but I let it slip away," said Agassi, who blamed a lack of concentration.

"I thought it (the second set) was going to go the same way, especially after I won the first game," he said.

By the middle of the second set, he said, he was thinking ahead to the third.

"I knew if I could get my head together I could take him," he said.

As suddenly as Agassi's game disappeared, it returned.

He won the first nine points of the final set, breaking Berger in the first game with two forehand smashes and holding serve with two service winners.

Berger won the next two games before Agassi scored the decisive break in the fifth game when Berger made three errors and Agassi scored on a lob.

Agassi broke again in the final game. "There was absolutely nothing I could have done in the first set," Berger said. "I could have played much better, but Andre was playing tremendous double-faulted away his serve and was broken again in the 10th game when he missed two volleys.

But Smith, whose powerful serve helped him upset No. 1 Ivan Lendl on Wednesday, double-faulted twice in the fifth game of the final set and two more times in the seventh game for two breaks that put him behind 2-5. Cahill then served out the match.

Cahill also nearly let his match get away. After breaking Smith to go up 4-3 in the second set, he

Hoop player gives up car

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — New Mexico State University basketball player Steve McGlothlin says he wouldn't trade anything for his last year of eligibility, not even his first car.

The 6-foot-8 McGlothlin has agreed to give up the 1988 Nissan Sentra he won at a World Basketball League game July 13.

McGlothlin won the car by making a half-court shot at halftime. His program number was one of two chosen in a random drawing for the shot.

But the National Collegiate Athletic Association said McGlothlin won the car with his athletic ability, a violation of rules.

The NCAA said he could keep the car or his senior year of eligibility, but not both.

"It was my first car," McGlothlin said in a telephone interview Friday from his home in Fresno, Calif. "But I'd rather play basketball. I took the car back to the dealer about a week ago."

Induction a homecoming for Page

By Rusty Miller
The Associated Press

CANTON, Ohio — Twenty-five years ago Alan Page got a summer construction job in his hometown to help build the Pro Football Hall of Fame. On Saturday, Page will be enshrined in that Hall.

"It was just another dirty job on a hot day," Page said, remembering that summer when he was a high school football player looking to make some money.

Also to be inducted will be Mike Ditka, Jack Ham and Fred Biletnikoff, but for Page, the day will have a special meaning because he was born and raised in Canton.

"I don't if things have changed a great deal (back home)," said the former Minnesota Vikings and Chicago Bears defensive tackle. "Obviously, it's great to go home. It's going to be a fun weekend."

"From an emotional standpoint, it will be particularly emotional for my family. For me, it will be a great honor, but an honor that I've received for things that I would have done anyway."

The four inductees represent some of the greatest teams of the last 25 years. And they also represent the best of the Rust Belt.

Three came out of western Pennsylvania — Biletnikoff, Ham from Johnstown and Ditka from Carnegie. Canton is just across the Ohio line.

"Isn't that something that we all came from within 90 to 100 miles of Canton?" Page said. "That's something unique. That says something about the quality of football that is played in the area."

Ham said, "western Pennsylvania and Ohio have always been known for great football players. It's a nice coincidence that were going in together." Biletnikoff added, "I believe it when they say that the area's a great one for football. Sometimes people don't see where all the great players come from. This is just a coincidence but it says something."

Page went from Canton Central Catholic High School to Notre Dame and then to the Vikings, where he spent 1967 through 1978. He was the National Football League's most valuable player in 1971, the first defensive player ever to receive that honor. Four other times he was named the conference defensive player of the year. He spent the final 3½ years of his 15 seasons with the Bears.

While Page played in four Super Bowls with the Vikings, who lost each time, Ham was on the winning side in three Super Bowls. The Penn State graduate was all-conference or all-pro for seven straight years.

49ers look for route to success

LONDON (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers are hoping to take the same route to the Super Bowl as the Denver Broncos took last season — via London.

Last season the Broncos went to Wembley stadium for an exhibition game and went on to a Super Bowl date with the Washington Redskins in San Diego.

Now it's the 49ers' turn to face the Miami Dolphins in an exhibition match at Wembley on Sunday, and head coach Bill Walsh hopes his side can emulate the Broncos' achievement.

Walsh said the 49ers' appearance at Wembley represents something of a U-turn in their preseason planning.

"A year ago we weren't willing to come because we thought it would be a distraction," he said. "But after watching the game last year and seeing that the Denver team went to Super Bowl, we felt that we could accommodate the trip."

What Walsh didn't say was that the Broncos lost both games. They lost 28-27 to the Los Angeles Rams at Wembley and 42-10 to the Redskins in the Super Bowl.

Walsh and his Dolphins' counterpart, Don Shula, watched their teams conclude three days of practice Friday and pronounced them ready for action.

"We hope that we're well received and can put on a good show and be competitive," Walsh said.

Verplanck paces Buick Open field

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Scott Verplanck, who knew much success as an amateur but none as a pro, matched his first-round 66 Friday to take a two-stroke lead after two rounds of the Buick Open.

Verplanck, who has struggled as a pro after winning the 1985 Western Open while still an amateur, was at 12-under-par 132 after 36 holes. Howard Twitty was next at 134 after shooting a 65, the best round of the tournament.

The winner of the $700,000 tournament will earn $128,000 and use of a car for one year.

"I had the same amount of fun today as yesterday," Verplanck said. "I'm just happy I was able to go out and enjoy myself as much as I did yesterday. I enjoyed playing golf. This is actually kind of fun."

"I'd like to play the rest of my career without worrying about what I shoot. I'd rather have fun than just go out and play."

Fred Couples, one of six co-leaders with Verplanck after the first round, was at 135 with Mike Sullivan, Steve Elkington and Tim Norris.

Golf Roundup

"It sounds crazy. I hit a lot of good drives and a lot of bad drives," said Couples, who earned a fifth-place tie in the Masters, 10th-place tie in the U.S. Open and fourth-place tie in the British Open.

Nichols in front

CONCORD, Mass. (AP) — Bobby Nichols, who hasn't won a Senior Tour event in three years, shot a 5-under-par 67 Friday to take a one-stroke lead after the first round of the $300,000 Digital Senior PGA Classic.

Nichols, 52, ran off four straight birdies on the front side and added a fifth on the back nine in hot, humid weather that cut into the 72-man field.

Orville Moody, the tour's top money-winner this year, withdrew before the 54-hole event began and Julius Boros, one of the "Super Seniors" at age 68, pulled out after nine holes.

Two-time defending champion Chi Chi Rodriguez, shot a 68 and was tied for second with Al Geiberger.

Arnold Palmer, making his first visit in five years, shot a 70.

Dickinson sets pace

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Judy Dickinson, relishing the oppressive heat that hindered others, shot a 4-under-par 67 Friday to take a one-stroke lead over four golfers after the first round of the $225,000 Greater Washington Open.

Dickinson, seeking her first LPGA tournament victory since 1986, had six birdies and a pair of bogeys playing in temperatures that hovered around 95 degrees.

"If the weather stays like this, I'll be very happy," Dickinson said. "I like it when it's hot."

Beth Daniel, Jan Stephenson, Janet Coles and Susan Sanders finished with 68's while Ayako Okamoto, Lynn Adams, Miki Cheng and Mary Beth Zimmerman were two strokes off the pace.

Conley seeks judicial relief

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Triple jumper Mike Conley says he has evidence that his final effort at last week's U.S. Olympic track and field trials was measured inaccurately.

Conley, a silver medalist in the 1984 Olympics and a nine-time NCAA Indoor and Outdoor long and triple jump champion with the University of Arkansas from 1982-85, contends he didn't make the 1988 Olympic track squad because his final triple jump wasn't measured correctly.

Conley said Thursday he jumped farther at the trials than former Indiana jumper Robert Cannon. Cannon was third and got the final spot on the U.S. team behind trials winner Willie Banks and trials runner-up Charlie Simpkins.

Cannon's best jump was 57-10½. Conley's best was 57-9¼.

However, Conley said his final jump should have been measured at 57-11½ and not 57-7¼.

Conley got the 57-7¼ measure because one judge ruled that Conley's shorts scraped the sand. The 57-11½ measurement would have earned him a spot on the team.

Conley said an ABC videotape supports his claim. "Mike was robbed," Arkansas track coach John McDonnell said. "ABC showed us the tape. That mark was in the pit before Mike's feet ever landed in the pit. I saw the mark and Mike was over it as clear as ABC."

"I want some other people to look at those pictures," Conley said. "A lot is riding on it and you can't let it go by on a whim. They said the sand was cleared before I jumped, but who is going to say it wasn't? I don't want my future resting on a judge's pride."

No. 1 selection in Packers' fold

By The Associated Press

Sterling Sharpe, Green Bay's first-round draft choice, agreed to terms Friday, leaving just four of the NFL's 27 first-rounders unsigned.

Sharpe, a wide receiver from South Carolina, was the seventh player taken in the NFL draft. Terms of his contract were undisclosed.

The Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins, meanwhile, signed their last two holdouts, defensive tackle Darryl Grant and cornerback Barry Wilburn. Both are starters and Wilburn led the NFL in interceptions last season with eight.

Sharpe will not begin practice with the Packers until Sunday. After signing his contract in South Carolina, he flew to Georgia where he will speak to an anti-drug rally Saturday.

The only remaining unsigned first-rounders are offensive linemen Paul Gruber of Tampa Bay and Eric Moore of the New York Giants; tight end Keith Jackson of the Philadelphia Eagles and defensive back Ricky Dixon of Cincinnati.

Only Moore, the 10th player chosen, appeared near signing.

The Giants have offered a contract worth about $1.9 million over four years, which would put him between the ninth choice, Terry McDaniel of the Raiders and the 11th, Michael Irvin of the Cowboys.

The Rams and the Malt: Quarterback Jim Kelly, still recovering from an ankle sprain he suffered just before camp started, will stay behind when the Buffalo Bills meet the Cleveland Browns in a scrimmage Saturday. Coach Marv Levy said he will play the three quarterbacks behind Kelly — Frank Reich, Stan Gelbaugh and Brian McClure....

Running back Rueben Mayes will be held out of New Orleans' intra-squad scrimmage Saturday as a precaution against re-injuring his surgically repaired right knee. Several other players will also miss the scrimmage because of injuries, including guard Chuck Commiskey and running back Lydell Carr, the fourth-round draft choice. Punter Brian Hansen has a sprained right ankle and may be held out.

Legion in exhibition tilt

The Manchester Legion baseball team winds up its non-zone slate Sunday as it hosts Simsbury at 6 p.m. at Moriarty Field.

Moriarty's play pair today

Moriarty Brothers completes a busy week of Greater Hartford Twilight League action today with a split doubleheader. The MB's will visit the Vernon Orioles at 3:30 p.m. at Henry Park before returning home for a 7:30 p.m. affair with the same Orioles at Moriarty Field.

The Twilight League playoffs are slated to begin Aug. 5. They're tentatively scheduled to be played at McKenna Field in East Hartford and Palmer Field in Middletown.

Club title on the line

Tim McNamara and Lon Annulli will tee it up Sunday at 6:16 a.m. at the Manchester Country Club with the Men's Club Championship at stake. The pair will vie in a 36-hole match play final.

McNamara advanced to the championship round with a 4 and 3 win over defending champ Brad Downey while Annulli beat Jim Moriarty 1-up in their semifinal. Annulli won the club title in 1984 and was runner-up in '86.

Patriots sign Stephens

SMITHFIELD, R.I. — Two weeks after he was due to report to training camp, running back John Stephens, New England's first-round draft pick, signed Friday with the Patriots, the NFL club said Friday.

Terms of the three-year deal were not announced. Stephens was at the Patriots' Bryant College camp, which opened for rookies and free agents on July 15. Stephens was the last of the Patriots' 13 draft choices this year to sign.

Noah enters semifinals

BORDEAUX, France — Yannick Noah of France, playing his third three-set match in a row, squeaked into the semifinals of the $245,000 Bordeaux Grand Prix Passing Shot tennis tournament Friday. Noah, seeded No. 1, had it even closer than he did in the first two rounds. He was forced into two tiebreakers before prevailing over Lawson Duncan of Asheville, N.C., 6-7, 7-6, 6-4. Duncan was the No. 8 seed.

Evert Olympic nominee

NEW YORK — Chris Evert has been nominated by the United States Tennis Association to participate in the tennis competition at the Seoul Olympic Games, a USTA official announced Friday.

Evert replaces Elise Burgin, who withdrew from the team because she has not fully recovered from arthroscopic knee surgery earlier this year.

David Markin, chairman of the USTA selection committee and first vice president of the association, said Evert's nomination was submitted to the U.S. Olympic Committee and the International Tennis Federation.

Graf advances to semifinals

HAMBURG, West Germany — Steffi Graf of West Germany beat Raffaella Reggi of Italy 6-0, 6-0 Friday and advanced to the semifinals of the $200,000 Virginia Slims of Hamburg. Graf, who won her first Wimbledon title earlier this month, bounced back Friday after a poor showing in her win against Yugoslavia's Sabrina Goleis on Thursday.

In other matches Friday, Katerina Maleeva of Bulgaria beat Isabel Cueto of West Germany 6-2, 7-6 (6-5); Radka Zrubakova of Czechoslovakia beat Silke Meier of West Germany 6-2, 6-1; and Bettina Fulco of Argentina beat Sandra Cecchini of Italy, 7-5, 6-1.

Labone leads qualifying

TALLADEGA, Ala. — Terry Labonte led second-day qualifying Friday for the Talladega 500, improving by more than 3 mph from his first-day effort.

The 1984 Winston Cup champion earned the 21st starting spot in the 42-car field by turned a fast lap of 190.962 mph on the 2.66-mile, high-banked oval at Alabama International Motor Speedway.

That was considerably better than the 187.599 that left him 38th after the first round of time trials. Starting right beside Labonte in Sunday's 500-mile race will be current Winston Cup points leader Rusty Wallace, who improved from a first-day lap of 188.067 to 190.226.

The Winston Cup cars will hold their final practice sessions on Saturday, sandwiched around the ARCA Permaste 500-kilometer late model stock car race at 1 p.m. CDT.

Manchester Legion drops second in a row

SOUTH WINDSOR — Timing can be everything and the Manchester Legion baseball team has picked the wrong time to go into a slump. The Post 102 contingent dropped its second Zone Eight affair in a row, 6-2, Friday night to South Windsor at South Windsor High School.

The loss drops Manchester to 16-4 in the Zone and 23-11 overall and is on the heels of a streak in which it won 11 of 12 decisions. "We got bet so quick it was unbelievable," said Manchester Coach Dave Morency. "We're flat, as flat as paper is. We had a little heart to heart (talk after the game). We have to get back to what we're capable of doing. We did it in the first inning when we scored a run. But we couldn't force the action because we didn't get anyone on base."

Winning pitcher Mike Dixon scattered five hits. He struck out four and issued two walks. Jim Kitecock went the distance for Manchester. He allowed eight hits, walked three and struck out one.

Manchester scored single runs in the first and second frames. In the first, Keith Hobby singled, Dom Laurinitis singled him to third from where he scored on a Dixon wild pitch. Don Sauer doubled and scored on an RBI single by Kitecock in the second.

South Windsor took the lead for good in the home second inning, scoring on a walk, two singles and four Manchester errors.

Manchester has an exhibition game Sunday at 6 p.m. against Simsbury at Moriarty Field before winding up its Zone slate on Monday against East Hartford at McKenna Field.

Hall of Fame getting a new pop on Sunday

By Jim Donaghy
The Associated Press

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. — The Hall of Fame family is getting a new pop. Willie Stargell has the stage to himself Sunday as he takes his place next to baseball's all-time greats.

"To be in the same room as Babe Ruth, Hank Aaron, Ernie Banks and Roberto Clemente is a great honor and a wonderful feeling," Stargell said.

Stargell hit 475 homers with 1,540 runs batted in and a .282 batting average in 21 seasons with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

He was equally regarded for his qualities as a leader on the field and in the clubhouse and was affectionately known as "Pops" to his teammates in the 1970s.

Last Jan. 12, Stargell became the 17th player to be elected in the first year of eligibility. He was named on 332 of 427 ballots (82.4 percent) returned to the Baseball Writers' Association of America. In order to be elected, a player must be named on 75 percent of the ballots, which this year was 321.

Jim Bunning, who won 100 games in each league, almost made it. After missing by 21 votes last year, the Kentucky congressman fell four votes short with 317 (74.2 percent) in his 12th year of eligibility.

After Bunning, Tony Oliva was third in the voting with 262, followed by Orlando Cepeda 199 and the late Roger Maris with 184. It was Maris' 15th and last year of eligibility.

Next year, Johnny Bench and Carl Yastrzemski are eligible and are expected to make it the first time. Gaylord Perry, Jim Palmer, Rod Carew, Tom Seaver and Pete Rose are among other top candidates who will come up for election in the near future.

For the first time since 1956, the Veterans Committee failed to elect anyone to the Hall, again passing up such former stars as Phil Rizzuto, Leo Durocher, Joe Gordon and Gil Hodges. None of the 29 candidates was able to garner 75 percent of the vote required for election last March.

But while election to the Hall of Fame is a singular honor, Stargell was not a soloist. He was a team player, a team leader who grew in stature and ability as he aged.

Stargell was 38 in 1979 when he led the Pirates back from a 3-1 deficit in the World Series against Baltimore. He was selected the Series MVP and shared the National League MVP with Keith Hernandez, then with St. Louis.

In the decisive seventh game at Baltimore, Stargell hit a two-run homer, two doubles and a single.

It was a strange repeat of history. In 1971, Stargell scored the winning run in the Pirates' seventh-game victory over the Orioles at Memorial Stadium.

"That (1971) was Roberto Clemente's series," Stargell said of the Pirates' Hall of Fame outfielder. "He was the greatest. It was Roberto who started the Pirate spirit."

And it was Stargell who kept it going.

Clemente, who batted 414 in dominating the 1971 World Series with his bat and glove, died on Dec. 31, 1972, in the crash of a small plane on a mission of mercy to earthquake-shattered Nicaragua.

After Clemente's death, Stargell took over as team leader and kept the Pirates a winner.

In the 1979 Series, Stargell had 12 hits in 30 at-bats for a .400 average. He had a record seven extra base hits including three home runs, and his 25 total bases tied the Series record set by Reggie Jackson in 1977.

Honeyghan wins

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Lloyd Honeyghan retained his World Boxing Council welterweight title Friday night when challenger Youngkil Chung was unable to continue after being hit by a low blow in the fifth round.

Honeyghan was awarded a technical knockout 42 seconds into the round, while most at ringside tried to figure out what was going on.

Honeyghan, of London, seemed in control of the fight when the low blow was landed, sending Chung to the canvas after what seemed like a split second delay.

The South Korean rolled on his back and then onto his stomach as referee Tony Orlando directed Honeyghan to a neutral corner.

Arrigoni silences MB's bats

HARTFORD — The power was turned off in the Moriarty Brothers' lineup Friday night.

The MB's, leading the Greater Hartford Twilight League in the home run department with 46 and the standings, were blanked for the first time this campaign by Society for Savings' Scott Arrigoni, 3-0, at Trinity College.

The loss drops the MB's to 20-4 while the win was only the seventh for the last-place Bankers. Moriarty's has a unique doubleheader on tap today with a 3:30 p.m. clash against the Vernon Orioles at Henry Park and then a 7:30 p.m. contest at Moriarty Field between the two sides.

Arrigoni didn't strike anyone out or issue a walk, but limited Moriarty's to three harmless safeties. Mike Charter, Chris Petersen and Rick Murray (double) had the lone blows for Moriarty's. "We just didn't hit the ball tonight," MB Manager Gene Johnson said. "Our bats were real quiet."

Society plated its only runs in the fifth inning on a hit, sacrifice, two more hits and sacrifice fly. Dave Janetti pitched well in defeat for Moriarty's. He walked two and struck out three.

Moriarty's, after its Saturday twinbill, has a big doubleheader on tap Monday against second-place Malloves Jewelers at Palmer Field in Middletown. Moriarty's has yet to clinch the regular-season title. "We have to win a couple more. And we don't want to back in," Johnson said.

Bosox bolster staff in deal for Boddicker

By The Associated Press

BOSTON — The Boston Red Sox moved to bolster their pitching staff Friday by acquiring veteran right-hander Mike Boddicker from the Baltimore Orioles in exchange for minor league outfielder Brady Anderson and pitcher Curt Schilling.

Boston general manager Lou Gorman said Boddicker will report Saturday and probably will start against Milwaukee on Sunday.

"Boddicker is a competitor, he's aggressive," Gorman said. "We think he'll add depth to our pitching staff."

To make room on the roster for Boddicker, the Red Sox put right-hander Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd on the 15-day disabled list because of tendinitis in his right shoulder.

Before completing the deal, the Red Sox signed Boddicker to a two-year contract through 1990. Boddicker would have been eligible to become a free agent at the end of this season.

"Going to a winning club and into a pennant race, that's exciting," Boddicker said in Baltimore after being told of the trade.

"You hate to give up a player like Mike Boddicker. He's a real Oriole," Baltimore vice president Roland Hemond said. "He's pitched extremely well here this year. He deserves better than what we've provided him in terms of wins and losses."

Boddicker, who will pitch on Aug. 23, has a 6-12 record and a 3.66 earned run average in 21 starts this year. He lost his first eight decisions this season. He has a 79-73 lifetime record, including a 20-11 record in 1984.

"It's a feeling of relief and sadness," Boddicker said. "It's hard saying goodbye. This is a great bunch of guys, a great city and great fans."

"It's going to be like leaving home for the first time. That's what Baltimore has been to me."

The Red Sox, who entered Friday night's action 2½ games behind first-place Detroit in the AL East, had been reluctant to trade Anderson, an outstanding prospect who started the season in Boston.

However, with a shot at the division title, the Red Sox relented.

"We're not concerned about Brady

Anderson becoming a great player," Gorman said. "We're concerned about winning the pennant."

Anderson, 24, hit .230 with no homers and 12 RBI in 41 games for the Red Sox before being sent to Pawtucket in early June. He is hitting .287 with 4 homers and 19 RBI in 49 games at Pawtucket.

Hemond called Anderson "a player with a lot of tools."

"He can run, throw, he goes and gets the ball," Hemond said. "He's an aggressive young player. He's going to help our outfield defensively and he'll give us speed, which we've been trying to acquire."

Schilling, 21, is 3-4 with a 2.97 ERA in 21 games for New Britain of the Class AA Eastern League.

Ojeda, Elster lead the Mets

NL Roundup

NEW YORK (AP) — The longer Bob Ojeda and John Smiley duled, the more the New York Mets and Pittsburgh Pirates knew the most important game in the National League East so far this season would be decided by one pitch.

"This type of game, I thought it would take a home run to win," Kevin Elster said. "I just didn't think it would be me."

Elster, the number-eight batter in the Mets' lineup, hit a home run in the eighth inning Friday night that broke up a tense matchup and gave New York a 1-0 victory.

A crowd of 49,584, the largest this year at Shea Stadium, saw the Mets win the opener of a four-game series and extend their division lead to three games over Pittsburgh.

The Mets and Pirates are the two highest-scoring teams in the league, but no one would've known as Ojeda and Smiley each pitched three-hitters. Smiley had retired 19 straight batters before Elster connected with one out in the eighth, only the second Mets' hit.

"I went up there looking for a changeup. I knew he likes to get ahead with his changeup and off-speed pitches," Elster said. "I used a heavier bat than my previous times. That was as hard as I could hit it."

Elster, batting only .216 entering the game, connected for his first homer since June 29. He has homered in each of the Mets' last three games with Pittsburgh, all victories.

"Maybe he was sitting on that pitch. Elster looked bad on changeups the first two times up," Smiley said. "The pressure was building as we both kept runners off the bases."

Ojeda's shutout was the Mets' 15th, most in the majors. Elster's homer was the Mets' 91st, tops in the league. That's what it took to outduel Smiley in a matchup of off-speed left-handers.

Ojeda, 8-8, increased his career record against the Pirates to 8-2. He struck out six and walked one in his third shutout of the season.

Cardinals 7, Expos 5

MONTREAL (AP) — Tony Pena hit a two-run homer and Willie McGee had four hits and stole three bases Friday night as the St. Louis Cardinals beat Montreal 7-5, snapping the Expos' five-game winning streak.

Cubs 6, Phillies 3

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Vance Law drove in four runs on two homers and Rick Sutcliffe ended a personal four-game losing streak Friday night, leading the Chicago Cubs past the Philadelphia Phillies 6-3.

In the opener, Bruce Hurst, 11-4, won for the eighth time in nine decisions at home this season. The left-hander allowed only three hits through the first six innings but was relieved by Stanley after Rob Deer walked and Greg Brock doubled to open the seventh.

Blue Jays 7, Yankees 1

TORONTO (AP) — Jeff Musselman scattered six hits in 7 2/3 innings and Fred McGriff had three RBI with a two-run homer and a sacrifice fly as the Toronto Blue Jays defeated the New York Yankees 7-1 Friday night.

The Yankees entered the game trailing the Detroit Tigers by one in the American League East. Musselman, 3-0, won for the third straight time since being activated July 14 after recuperating from offseason shoulder surgery. He walked two and struck out seven in lowering his earned run average to 0.87. Duane Ward closed.

Toronto took a 4-1 lead with three runs in the second. Ernie Whit led off with a walk and McGriff hit the first pitch from Richard Dotson, 8-4, for his 23rd home run. Jesse Barfield singled, advanced to third on a single and a bunt sacrifice, and scored on Tony Fernandez's sacrifice fly.

Indians 7, Twins 0

CLEVELAND (AP) — Greg Swindell pitched a five-hitter, retiring 19 straight batters during one span, and Ron Kittle and Joe Carter each hit two-run homers Friday night as the Cleveland Indians beat the Minnesota Twins 7-0.

Swindell, 12-9, gave up two singles and his only walk with one out in the first, but set down the next 19 hitters in winning for the second straight time after a personal eight-game losing streak. He has three shutouts and nine complete games this year.

Tigers 3, Rangers 2

DETROIT (AP) — Alan Trammell hit a two-run homer with one out in the ninth inning as the Detroit Tigers won their fourth straight by defeating the Texas Rangers 3-2 Friday in the first game of a doubleheader.

Royals 6, Orioles 2

BALTIMORE (AP) — Bret Saberhagen allowed three hits in seven innings to win for the first time in six starts and George Brett and Bo Jackson homered as the Kansas City Royals defeated the Baltimore Orioles 6-2 Friday night and snapped a four-game losing streak.

STARLING LOSES CROWN

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Marlon Starling, who has had a star-crossed professional boxing career, saw his World Boxing Association welterweight championship slip away as challenger Tomas Molinaros scored a controversial fifth round knockout Friday night at the ballroom of the Atlantic City Convention Center.

Molinaros floored the Hartford native with a punch that some said came after the bell. Referee Joe Cortez ruled the punch was delivered while the bell sounded and said he had to continue the count. Starling, dazed by the punch, was counted out in another controversial ending to one of his bouts.

In Starling's last fight, his second defense of the WBA crown, he fought to a controversial draw with Mark Breland. Starling took the championship from Breland by a knockout.

There was confusion at the end of the fight. Starling's handlers said they plan to appeal the decision.

Starling said afterward he didn't remember the punch. The loss drops Starling to 43-5-1. Molinaros is undefeated in 23 fights and has won his last 11 by knockout within the sixth round.

Bosox sweep doubleheader

AL Roundup

BOSTON (AP) — Todd Benzinger hit a two-run homer in the third inning and then broke a tie with an RBI single in the eighth Friday night as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Milwaukee Brewers 5-4 to sweep a doubleheader and win for the 18th straight time at home.

The Red Sox improved their record to 15-1 under new manager Joe Morgan since the All-Star break. Boston's winning streak at home is the team's second longest ever. The Red Sox won 21 straight at Fenway Park in 1949.

Jody Reed, who had four hits and a walk in Boston's 6-4 victory in the first game, scored the tie-breaking run after beating out an infield single, his third hit, and advancing to second on Paul Molitor's throwing error.

Reliever Dennis Lamp, 5-3, blanked the Brewers on three hits for 3-2-3 innings. Bob Stanley earned his third save by pitching the ninth. Chris Bosio, 6-13, making his first appearance of the season as a reliever, lost his 10th straight game to tie Danny Darwin's club record.

Molitor triggered a three-run first inning in the nightcap by hitting Mike Smithson's first pitch of the game for his fifth homer.

The Brewers added two more runs on RBI singles by B.J. Surhoff, who had four hits, and Joey Meyer. Boston picked up a run on Wade Boggs' sacrifice fly in its half of the first and then tied the score in the third on Benzinger's seventh homer, a two-run drive into the Red Sox' bullpen in right center.
