Police Roundup

Three hurt in accident

Manchester police are investigating a Parker Street accident that occurred Monday at about 9:30 p.m.
Darrell Scott Fronda, 33, of Vernon, who was driving a Subaru, and his passenger, David Dorris, 27, of Vernon, were brought to Manchester Memorial Hospital, police said.
Fronda suffered fractured ribs, was admitted and was in serious condition in the intensive care unit, a hospital spokesman said. Dorris had multiple abrasions and lacerations and a right rib injury. He also was in serious condition in the intensive care unit.
The driver of the other vehicle, Anthony V. Tantillo, 34, of 227 Cup Cap Road in Tolland, was brought to Rockville General Hospital, police said. Tantillo, who was driving an Oldsmobile Cutlass, was treated and released from the hospital.
Police had no description of the accident and did not specify its location on Parker Street.

Thoughts

How would you react while in a group of respected peers, you heard them disparaging a parent, or sibling, or respected friend; not knowing your relationship? Would you fearfully remain silent, hoping they would not discover your kinship? Or would you feel compelled to speak up in their defense?
A certain type of lizard called a chameleon has the ability to change its color to blend in with its background. It can even develop spots or streaks to make its presence more difficult to detect. It is nature's gift to enable this creature to survive in the presence of its predators.
But we never meant to be moral when you consider yourself a religious person? How do you react to derogatory remarks by associates about God, Jesus, the Bible, the church? Do you quietly seek to blend in with the surroundings, hoping no one will know you are religious?
The Apostle Paul lamented: "At my first defense, no one came to my support, but everyone deserted me." 2 Timothy 4:18. Yet he commended one man because he oft refreshed me and was not ashamed of my chains." 2 Timothy 1:17.
"There is no fear in love. But perfect love drives out fear," 1 John 4:18.

Planning, zoning romance

MIDDLETOWN (AP) — Anyone who says the course of true love isn't planned hasn't met Earle V. Roberts Jr. and Elizabeth M. Rife. The couple is being wed on Saturday after meeting at a hearing of the Middletown Planning and Zoning Commission and having their first date at a party for planning and zoning buffs.

"People are meeting in grocery stores, too — I mean, what the hell," said Roberts, 43, a tool and die maker.

Roberts, a well-known, impetuous speaker at the hearings, and Rife, 36, who is more restrained, were introduced at the first March meeting by another regular, Charles W. Harris.

Low-interest home loans

ROCKY HILL (AP) — The Connecticut Housing Finance Authority said it will release $100 million in 8.375 percent fixed rate home mortgage loans, a plan the CHFA said will allow more than 1,000 moderate income families to own homes.

Financing of the mortgage loans comes from the first tax-exempt mortgage revenue bonds issued by the CHFA under the provisions of the Tax Reform Act of 1986. Those applying for mortgages for a principal residence must meet income requirements established according to county sales price and credit. Carol A. Montesi, a spokeswoman for the CHFA, an independent public utility, said Monday.

Legal system blasted

HARTFORD (AP) — U.S. Rep. Christopher Shays, R-Conn., has again taken aim and fired at the state's judicial system, criticizing accelerated rehabilitation given to a Waterbury attorney accused of coercing a judge.

Shays, who spent time in jail for contempt of court when he defied a judge's order to leave the stand and criticized the lawyer grievance procedure, Monday said he could not understand the leniency given to attorney Timothy C. Moynahan.

Driver had heart attack

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — A bus driver, who was killed that left at least four passengers hospitalized, suffered a heart attack moments before the crash, a spokesman for the state's chief medical examiner said today.

"We reached that (conclusion) on the basis of eyewitness accounts," said Pat Toman, assistant to Chief Medical Examiner Dr. Henry F. Ryan, who performed an autopsy Tuesday.

The driver, Dominic Boudreau, 42, of Biddeford, died of multiple injuries that he suffered when the bus veered off the highway on the outskirts of the state capital, rolled down an embankment and overturned, Toman said.

Weicker endorsement eyed

BERLIN (AP) — The state AFL-CIO Committee on Political Endorsement recommended Monday that the union endorse the re-election bid of Sen. Lowell Weicker Jr., R-Conn., the Weicker campaign announced.

It is the first time the committee has voted to recommend endorsement of a Republican for statewide office. The recommendation will come before the AFL-CIO's state convention in September.

Weicker's Democratic challenger, Joseph Lieberman, the state attorney general, called the endorsement a "preference for incumbency over performance."

Witness threatened

BRIDGEPORT (AP) — The brother of a man on trial on kidnapping charges has been arrested for allegedly threatening a witness' family member, police said.

Fioravante "Fred" Marrs, 37, of Bridgeport, brother of Thomas Marrs, was arrested Saturday and charged with tampering with a witness, first-degree hindering prosecution and two counts of threatening, police said.

He was ordered held in lieu of $250,000 bail following arraignment Monday in Superior Court, a clerk said. His case was continued until Aug. 3.

Fargo judge refuses to discard FBI tapes

HARTFORD (AP) — A federal judge has rejected the defense's request to throw out tape-recorded evidence obtained during surveillance of a Boston apartment by agents investigating the $7 million Wells-Fargo case.

In a 19-page ruling, U.S. District Judge T. Emmet Clarie said that while FBI agents may have released the tapes in violation of the law, the government was given permission in 1985 to tap the telephone of Anne Gassin, then the girlfriend of Wells Fargo defendant Juan Segarra Palmer. Authorities were also permitted to break into her Boston apartment and hide a transmitter.

Gassin is expected to testify for the prosecution when the trial starts. The ruling was the second major one by Clarie on defense challenges to about 190 tapes the government wanted to use during the trial. Last month he threw out about 50 tapes because the government had failed to have them sealed on time, dealing a blow to the prosecutors' cases against six of the 16 defendants.

In his latest ruling, Clarie said that while FBI agents may have listened to more private conversations than they should have, the eavesdropping was not "so pervasive as to taint the wiretap as a whole."

"The government was investigating a far-reaching conspiracy," Clarie said in his ruling, released last Friday. "The investigation focused on the activities of members and others associated with a highly sophisticated, clandestine terrorist group, Los Matcheros."

He noted that the government only intended to use at trial the 16 tapes in which Segarra Palmer can be heard talking about the Wells Fargo money.

Berlin man to receive a new trial

HARTFORD (AP) — The state Supreme Court has ordered a new trial for a Berlin man convicted of murdering his wife in 1983.

In a decision published Monday in the Connecticut Law Journal, the state's highest court said the trial court erred in admitting evidence that the defendant, Galet Plourde, invoked his right to remain silent during an interview with state police detective before his arrest.

Because the state's case against Plourde, who was sentenced to 40 years in prison, was based on circumstantial evidence, there was a reasonable possibility that such evidence contributed to his conviction, the court concluded.

Plourde was convicted of killing his wife, Ada Plourde, late on Dec. 15, 1983 or early in the morning of Dec. 16, 1983 after she returned from Christmas shopping with a friend.

Prosecutors alleged that Plourde strangled her in their home following an argument, put her body in her car, removed her jewelry and tore up the bags containing her purchases to make it look as if she had been robbed.

Plourde then allegedly drove his wife's car to the parking lot of a Cromwell bar and abandoned it, prosecutors said. The state charged that Plourde returned home on foot and called police several times to report his wife missing.

The state presented evidence that the couple, who had two young daughters, had had marital difficulties and that the defendant had become involved with another woman.

The court said in its decision that Plourde agreed to listen to police after he was searched at the Hartford state police barracks on Dec. 18 and "became visibly shaken" as police described the evidence linking him to the crime.

"His eyes began to redden, I could see tears welling up in his eyes and I could see him actually shaking," state police detective David Bates testified.

Plourde indicated that he would give a statement, but wanted to call his lawyer "to see if he could get the best deal," the court decision said. The lawyer picked him up an hour later, the court said.

The justices cited a U.S. Supreme Court ruling that said the impeachment of a defendant through evidence of his silence violates the constitutional principle of due process.

"From our review of the record, we conclude that that error was not harmless beyond a reasonable doubt," the justices said. "Since the state's case was based exclusively on circumstantial evidence, there was a reasonable possibility that the improperly admitted evidence of the defendant's silence in the face of police accusations contributed to his conviction."

Court: Towns can't regulate color of signs

HARTFORD (AP) — Local zoning boards are not empowered by state law to regulate the colors in signs, the state Supreme Court ruled.

In upholding a Superior Court ruling in a Greenwich case, the justices said in a decision released Monday that state statute allows municipalities to regulate the height, size and location of signs, but doesn't mention colors.

The plaintiffs, Fred M. and Caroline Capalbo, applied to the Greenwich zoning enforcement officer on March 20, 1986 to erect a sign with a white background and three bands of different colors — red, orange and purple surrounding a center portion made up of black lines representing latitude and longitude. The sign read, "Realty World."

The zoning officer denied the application because the sign contained more than three colors and therefore violated Greenwich zoning regulations. His decision was upheld by the zoning board of appeals, but reversed by the Superior Court.

The town appealed, arguing that state law authorizes municipalities to "promote health and general welfare."

The high court rejected that argument, saying the law implicitly states that municipalities cannot regulate anything more than height, size and location, as mentioned in the statute.

The town reminded the justices that federal courts have ruled that states and municipalities can regulate sign colors in the interests of aesthetics. But the state Supreme Court said that wasn't the issue raised in the Capalbo case and was irrelevant.

LINING UP A SHOT — Mary Neborski, 96, lines up a pool shot recently at the Atwater Senior Citizens' Center in New Haven.

Woman, 96, trades in cane for pool cue almost daily

By Larry Rosenhol / The Associated Press

NEW HAVEN — Every day Mary Neborski, 96, makes it into the Atwater Senior Citizen Center, she trades her cane for a cue stick and undergoes a remarkable transformation: from little old lady to pool player.

The men who use the pool room to play pocket billiards or gin long ago grew accustomed to the daily presence of Mrs. Neborski in their domain. But they still express wonderment at her playing ability and fanatical devotion to the game.

"At 96, even if you can pick up a cue it's something," said Duncan Corrier, a former pool hall operator in Hartford eager to give his assessment of the senior center's senior pool player, who is 10 years his elder.

Mrs. Neborski's hands are nearly as steady as a surgeon's, and her legs are still quite strong, although she holds onto the rail of her favorite pool table to steady herself as she moves into position for shots.

"The only trouble with me is my eyes aren't too good. If my eyes were as good as my hands, I'd really be good," she said.

Mrs. Neborski began playing pool regularly after her eyesight got so bad she could no longer pursue old hobbies such as sewing, knitting and punching rugs. Her late son gave her a table about a decade ago, and she has been a fixture at the senior center's tables for the last seven or eight years.

"I play for the exercise and the amusement. I'm not one for sitting and gabbing. I don't like gossip," she said, pounding the base of her metal cue on the linoleum floor for emphasis.

A Russian immigrant, she was once able to read and write both Polish and Russian, and served as a court interpreter for attorneys.

She now spends three to four hours daily in the senior center's brown and beige, sparsely furnished, poolroom, breaking only for lunch, which goes for $1.50.

Mrs. Neborski is a resident of a housing complex for the elderly. She said making the daily trip by bus to the senior center is sometimes difficult.

"A lot of times I don't feel so well, but my will power keeps me going. I tell myself, 'Go,' and I'm glad that I do."

She is now legally blind, and while she can make out the round shapes of the pool balls and differentiate between some of the lighter colors, she cannot make out any of the numbers or tell one dark-colored ball from another.

When playing eight-ball, she must rely on her opponent to tell her which ball she should be trying to sink. Despite her vision problems, she is able to make a significant number of her shots, including some difficult ones.

Much of the time, Mrs. Neborski plays by herself. When playing a game, she is a stickler for abiding by the rules.

"Now call that pocket," she reminds an opponent before he lowers his upper body to line up a shot.

"They don't play by the rules here," she said later, with a look of disgust. "Everything goes."

Mrs. Neborski is not afraid to speak her mind; some of the men she can be downright cantankerous.

"The only trouble with me is my eyes aren't too good. If my eyes were as good as my hands, I'd really be good," she said.

"Sometimes you've got off days when you're not shooting well. You can't be a shark every day."

Otto Koval, a poolroom regular. "She buys us off with candy every morning."

Said Mrs. Neborski: "At first when I started playing here they swore. They said I shouldn't be in here listening to them. I told them in no uncertain terms I didn't like that. Now they've got to where they respect me and I respect them."

Mrs. Neborski said it absolutely doesn't matter to her whether she wins or loses. "If they go in, that's all right. If they don't, that's all right, too," she said.

But what she doesn't like is when an opponent doesn't try his hardest. "Now come on, you've favoring me," she scolded a young visitor to the poolroom.

A frequent opponent, Louis Exposito, 80, said after beating her recently. "She's all right. Her eyes — that's the only problem she's got."

"You can't be a shark every day."

DEPUTY AT ENTRANCE — A sheriff's deputy guards the entrance to the Cocksackie Correctional Facility Monday afternoon. Prisoners took five guards hostage Monday morning.

Inmates release hostages, ending a 14-hour uprising

By Elizabeth Edwordson / The Associated Press

COXSACKIE, N.Y. — An uprising at a maximum-security prison ended peacefully early today after 14 hours when inmates, who had complained of being harassed by officers, released the last four of their five hostage guards.

Earlier, Plateau had said that some of the inmates had complained about verbal harassment by guards. "Verbal harassment was the (complaint) they mentioned most often, food complaints, things like that," Plateau said.

But he later said the harassment was not the major point being negotiated.

Outside the prison, which houses 951 inmates, guard Ralph Scott said inmates had been warning for weeks that there might be trouble. In the last two weeks, he said, prisoners' verbal and physical assaults on corrections officers had increased.

"Every so often you hear something might happen, and I had a feeling something was going to happen," Scott said.

At a news conference in Albany, 20 miles north of here, Cuomo said he did not think the generally crowded condition of New York state's prisons contributed to the disorder because "capacity is not a problem" at Cocksackie.

How the takeover occurred was being investigated, Plateau said. He said the inmates controlled the console that operates their unit's gates and doors, but did not control the door to the rest of the prison.

Guard David Pratt, 31, of Cocksackie, was listed in serious condition with abdominal injuries, said Albany Medical Center spokesman Peggy Pitcher.

The three other released this morning — Lewis Brown, 41, of Freehold; Douglas Roberts, 37, of Troy; and John Shipley, 32, of Scotia — were in good condition and were being treated for bruises, she said.

A guard released Monday night, Warren Agostinoni, 28, of Cairo, was in fair condition with cuts and bruises, said Pitcher.

Earlier, the inmates had led the hostages to stand one at a time before a plexiglass window, giving prison officials their first look at the guards seized more than nine hours earlier.

Forty police officers, including some with rifles, blocked the entrance of the prison during the siege.

Dangling from bridge, paraplegic eyes record

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 100 years after Stephen Brodie supposedly took his famous dive from the Brooklyn Bridge and lived to brag about it, a paraplegic dangled off the span in a wheelchair for a shot at the record books.

Ramond Masa, 40, carrying fireworks and samurai swords, lowered himself on a rope Monday morning from the middle of the bridge and dangled 75 feet above the East River for more than an hour.

Police finally persuaded him to lower himself further so he could be guided on to a police launch.

The Cuban refugee, who came to the United States in 1969, called himself "America's No. 1 Stuntman," although it was his first stunt. Masa claimed he had dangled from the 105-year-old landmark for seven hours.

Masa, who lost use of both legs after a shooting in 1977, said his making the Guinness Book of World Records would inspire other paraplegics. "They think that because they're in wheelchairs their life is ended," he said.

Masa was booked on charges of disorderly conduct, illegal possession of a knife and dealing with fireworks, said police spokesman Sgt. John Clifford.

Masa, who also uses the name El-Shah Muhammad El-Ratulil and has a minor criminal record dating to 1977, was given a summons to appear in court Sept. 19.

According to the legend, in July 1886, Brodie, a 23-year-old shoeshine man, took the leap from the bridge.

City defies judge's order, faces a contempt hearing

By Marlene Ajo / The Associated Press

YONKERS, N.Y. — City Council members forced a showdown with a federal judge by ignoring his threat to bankrupt the city and send them to jail if they failed to approve a housing desegregation plan.

At a raucous hearing, the council voted 4-3 Monday night to defy U.S. District Judge Leonard Sand's order.

Sand was scheduled to hold a contempt-of-court hearing today.

"I hope the judge sees some good faith," said Mayor Nicholas Wastisko after he voted in favor of the plan. He said he hoped Sand would delay action until the mayor could call another council meeting later this week.

"The rule of law has got to be respected," said the mayor, whose city has been struggling back from near-bankruptcy in 1984.

Sand has indicated that if he finds the city in contempt he will fine it $100 for the first day, with the fine doubling each day thereafter. By day 22, the fines would surpass the city's current $337 million operating budget.

Sand also said he would fine defiant council members $500 per day and impose prison terms if the defiance continued until Aug. 10.

The hour-long council meeting was punctuated by shouts and jeers from the 150 people inside the chambers and about 300 outside.

One person was arrested for disorderly conduct and one was ejected.

At issue are 800 units of affordable housing to be built by private developers.

In 1980, the U.S. Justice Department charged that Sand was violating state law by forcing the city to intentionally segregate its housing and schools for 40 years.

"I hope the judge sees some good faith," said Mayor Nicholas Wastisko after he voted in favor of the plan. He said he hoped Sand would delay action until the mayor could call another council meeting later this week.

"The rule of law has got to be respected," said the mayor, whose city has been struggling back from near-bankruptcy in 1984.

Sand has indicated that if he finds the city in contempt he will fine it $100 for the first day, with the fine doubling each day thereafter. By day 22, the fines would surpass the city's current $337 million operating budget.

Sand also said he would fine defiant council members $500 per day and impose prison terms if the defiance continued until Aug. 10.

The hour-long council meeting was punctuated by shouts and jeers from the 150 people inside the chambers and about 300 outside.

One person was arrested for disorderly conduct and one was ejected.

At issue are 800 units of affordable housing to be built by private developers.

In 1980, the U.S. Justice Department charged that Sand was violating state law by forcing the city to intentionally segregate its housing and schools for 40 years.

62 is best age limit for N. Elm

When residents who live near the North Elm Street site where housing for the elderly is being built asked for a meeting with town officials in early June to discuss the construction in progress, they got far less than they deserved.

The only person who came to meet with them was the architect for the project. No town officials were there. Understandably, the upshot of the meeting was frustration.

But the residents did get answers later to some of the questions they raised at that meeting.

And at a subsequent meeting July 12, Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr. was present along with Assistant Town Manager Steven Werber to hear the comments of the residents and to provide answers to their questions, where possible.

More recently, DiRosa has written a letter to those residents in which he provides a little more answers.

The situation is clearly improving, although it is not likely there will ever be satisfactory responses to all the criticisms of the project voiced by its neighbors.

It would have been better if the town had continued to consult the neighbors at every step along the way, as it did when the project was first proposed.

One of the neighborhood objections, for instance, was to the plan to use siding of the same color on all of the units. Now, the town responds that all of the siding was purchased before the first meeting with the neighborhood residents. If an earlier meeting had been held, the planners of the project might have been dissuaded from making that choice despite its economics. It is probably too late now to do anything about it.

It is not too late to consider the wishes of the neighbors, however, when the minimum age of tenants is set. Most of them would prefer to see that age set at 62 and not at 55, the minimum age for tenants at the town's Benet Apartments for the elderly. Their argument is that working people of 55 are likely to generate more automobile traffic at peak traffic hours.

They may have a point. But an even more compelling reason to set the higher age is that 62 is the minimum age for tenants at federally and state-subsidized housing that is managed by the Manchester Housing Authority, as the North Elm Street apartments will be.

Judging from the length of waiting lists for housing for the elderly, it does not appear there will be a lack of applicants at the higher age.

Also, I've got a great selection of medical school diplomas. How many would you like?

American Jews hostile to compromise

From Jerusalem, The Toronto Globe reported last week: "Many of Israel's most celebrated former army officers have entered the political debate over the future of the West Bank and Gaza Strip, saying that holding the territories has become more of a liability than an asset from a purely military point of view."

This was not a handful of left-wing officers, but 110 former generals and 150 colonels who created a "Council for Peace and Security" to argue for a swap of "land for peace" with Palestinians.

On the other side of the debate, leaders of the right-wing Likud party talk of the "mortal danger" of having Israeli forces withdraw from the "occupied territories," taken over in the 1967 war. They note that the West Bank is two miles outside of Jerusalem, north or south.

One result of the Palestinian "intifada," or uprising, now in its eighth month, is that Israel has moved right behind the Likud's tough-talking Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir who keeps saying "Judea" and "Samaria" (the old Biblical words for the West Bank) are parts of Israel.

But the generals say "territorial compromise" offers more security. To its great credit, the American Jewish Congress took real leadership by bringing four of those generals to the United States in June, and gathered leaders in 17 cities to hear them via closed-circuit TV.

"Many American Jews have heard again and again from people on the right side of Israel that giving up an inch of land is detrimental to Israel's security, but we felt it important to hear the point of view of four retired generals," said Robert Lifton, congress president.

One general said, "It is only a matter of time that Israel will find itself at war with the combined

Porter Library may be a victim

Now that the Booth & Dimock Memorial Library building committee has received voter approval, the true disposition of the Porter Library will slowly emerge.

Mr. Patrick Flaherty, the Porter Library will be open for a year after the completion of the new Booth & Dimock library, then the library board will decide, depending on public desire, if it will continue as a library branch or be converted to some other use, such as a senior center or a museum.

Mr. Flaherty, the Porter Library does not own the 16-foot-by-16-foot room it occupies. The room is part of the Second Congregational Church's Community Center, with perpetual use for a library, as long as it is the Porter Library. Furthermore, are you suggesting a further division between North and South with your suggestion of a second senior

Idea could save parking, money

If Main Street merchants want to save a hundred parking spaces, here's how.

Reconstruct Main Street, including plumbing, electrical, telephone, etc., according to the current proposal, i.e., one-half of the street at a time.

However, during reconstruction have one-lane, two-way traffic on Main Street. The current proposal calls for two-lane, one-way traffic. If we can have two-lane, one-way traffic, we can have one-lane, two-way traffic.

Using one-lane, two-way traffic on Main Street eliminates the need for a new bypass road at cost of a permanent loss of a hundred rear-lot parking spaces. It avoids the spending of $3 million to $5 million on proposed off-Main Street improvements.

Now we have a lower-cost, Main Street-only reconstruction with a saving of a hundred parking spaces for customers of Main Street merchants.

This proposal makes dollars and sense. What do you say?

To a world which has seen Israel defeat the Arabs in four wars, those words may seem incredible. But Syria has built a tremendous armada of tanks and planes with Russian funds, and the U.S. has armed all of the rest. Israel's unnecessary war in Lebanon and its brutal repression of the Palestinians have only deepened Arab hatred of the little country.

Maj. Gen. Yehoshafat Harkabi, the retired head of Israel's military intelligence, wrote in The Jerusalem Post, "Any future war will be disastrous because of the destructiveness and precision of weapons, and our ability to absorb losses is limited."

The longer an accommodation is postponed, the more inferior the terms we will be able to secure. Even now, they are worse than what we might have achieved in 1985. #### Insurance bill is not dead yet

The Kennedy Mandate health insurance bill is not dead. Kennedy's staff is rewriting his proposal and incorporating Michael Dukakis' ideas. It will be reintroduced this October.

Arkansas Sen. David Pryor states that he is concerned about small business. He said that in Arkansas 85 percent of the businesses have 16 or fewer employees. A representative of Sen. Kennedy on the Senate Labor and Resources Committee (which Kennedy chairs) admitted in June that "small business is opposed to the plan."

The free enterprise in health insurance would be gone. This plan would cost employers $1,000,000,000 per year. Employers should have the right to choose their own company.

Letters to Sen. Lowell Weicker, Sen. Christopher Dodd, and Sen. Kennedy might help to stop this bill. Their address is U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510. Letters to the street at a time.

But Sever claimed the company shut out an intended beneficiary of the Tongass subsidy — the workers. In May 1987, testifying before the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, Sever charged that Alaskan Pulp had persuaded the union to accept wage and benefit concessions so that the company could stay competitive. But he said the company renege on a promise to compensate the workers for their sacrifice when business picked up.

Sever, a negotiator for the United Paperworkers International Local 962, called for elimination of the federal subsidy in the Tongass National Forest. Sever recently told congressional investigators that the union thought the federal subsidy created a monopoly for a few companies and that repeal of the subsidy "would be the key to unlocking an open job market in southeast Alaska."

By the time Sever testified before Congress last year, the striking Alaskan Pulp employees had voted to disband their union. Sever then sent a letter to Alaskan Pulp requesting his job back. The company told him no.

National Labor Relations Board examiner, Jeannette Leino, investigated charges of unfair labor practices at Alaskan Pulp. She recently told a House subcommittee that she believed Sever's congressional testimony cost him his job. "I was absolutely shocked," Leino said. "To me, it was incomprehensible that you could be fired for writing letters to the editor or testifying before Congress."

Frank Roppel, executive vice president of Alaskan Pulp, told our associate Scott Sleek that Sever was not rehired because the company thought he found another permanent job. But he added that the company did not want Sever back on the payroll because of statements he made, particularly a scathing attack on the company in a letter to local newspapers. The letter was never published, but Sever sent a copy to the company.

Sever is not the only one critical of the Tongass subsidy. The General Accounting Office reported in April that the program grinds on in spite of the declining demand for timber. The GAO said the Forest Service spent millions of dollars to make timber available that no one wanted to cut. Environmentalists claim that the subsidy has led to unnecessary cutting. Supporters of the subsidy maintain that it guarantees jobs and that the timber market will rebound.

Loss of job small part of timber snafu

WASHINGTON — When Florian Sever and his co-workers went on strike against an Alaskan pulp mill two years ago, Sever used his spare time to expose what he saw as waste and injustice in the Alaskan timber industry.

In letters to newspapers, on television talk shows and in a Capitol Hill hearing room, Sever told this story: that the Alaskan Pulp Corp. exploited its workers and broke the local union, all the while getting federal aid to help keep the state's timber business afloat.

The strike eventually ended and the employees went back to work — all but Sever. The Alaskan Pulp Corp. told him he no longer had a job.

Now, a congressional subcommittee chaired by Rep. Sam Gejdenson, D-Conn., is investigating the possibility that Sever lost his job because he exercised his right to testify before Congress. Officials at the Alaskan Pulp Corp. deny it.

Sever's case sounds a personal note in a larger controversy — the use of federal subsidies to prop up private timber cutting in the Tongass National Forest in Alaska. Two companies, Alaskan Pulp and Louisiana Pacific, dominate the industry in southeast Alaska.

In 1980, Congress declared a large part of the Tongass National Forest a wilderness area, putting it off limits to timber cutting. At the same time, Congress established the Tongass Timber Supply Fund to make sure the wilderness designation did not put the timber companies out of business and the workers out of jobs. The U.S. Forest Service uses the fund primarily to build access roads to legal cutting areas. Congress mandated that the Forest Service must spend at least $40 million a year to make 4.5 billion board feet of timber per decade available to the companies, regardless of the drop in market demand.

But Sever claimed the company shut out an intended beneficiary of the Tongass subsidy — the workers. In May 1987, testifying before the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, Sever charged that Alaskan Pulp had persuaded the union to accept wage and benefit concessions so that the company could stay competitive. But he said the company renege on a promise to compensate the workers for their sacrifice when business picked up.

After protest at the Meadows, no easy answers

A woman whose husband is soon to be admitted to the Meadows Convalescent Center on Bidwell Street called me about a July 22 article I had written about a protest at the Meadows by nurse's aides.

The aides complained about "severe staffing problems" and "terrible" conditions and said the amount and quality of patient care was being affected. Meadows officials refused to comment on the charges.

The woman, who was almost in tears, asked, "Is it true? Are things really that bad there?" I told her that everything I knew was in the story. I suggested she contact the state Department of Health Services to inquire about any violations the center has received, something that, surprisingly, the organizer of the protest said she had never done.

Records of any violations for 1988 are not yet available, but records of inspections from the department during 1986 and 1987 do offer some insight into the situation.

Fatal temper was low point in the history of Congress

By Lawrence L. Knutson

WASHINGTON — On an evening in 1856, Rep. Philemon T. Herbert of California, one of the more obscure members of the House, was waiting for service in the dining room of the capital's preeminent hotel, The Willard.

Growing hungrier — and angrier — by the minute, he was resolutely ignored by a haughty waiter.

According to a new history of the House of Representatives, "Losing his patience, and perhaps feeling the snub more acutely than he had a right to do, Herbert pulled his pistol and shot and killed the man."

Herbert's rather extreme reaction to this unacceptable affront to his congressional dignity is recounted by House historian James T. Currie, who adds: "The House did not censure Rep. Herbert for his act, thereby giving a certain justification to it."

This was, perhaps, not a high moment in the history of the House or of its members. But Washington waiters ever since have been closely observant of the needs of hungry House and Senate members.

The temper tantrum of the ignored congressman and his fatal result is but a minor low point in a new volume sketching the 199-year history of the House, most of which is devoted to far more consequential affairs of state.

Currie's work, and a companion history of the Senate by its official historian, Richard Baker, have been issued to mark next year's celebration of the bicentennial of the Congress.

They set out the milestones of the nation's legislative history, with an occasional side look at some of the more unusual, and eccentric, people and events along the way.

For the most part, Baker's history of the Senate ignores the existence of the House. Currie's history of the House mostly ignores the history of the Senate.

In fairness, Baker notes that Sen. Thomas Hart Benton took exception to this, branding DeToqueville and his opinions as "elitist."

"The Missouri senator observed that most senators had originally been House members," Currie notes that Thomas Jefferson is said to have asked George Washington why the Constitutional Convention had created a two-house legislature.

Why wasn't one house enough? "Why did you pour your tea into that saucer?" asked Washington. "To cool it," replied Jefferson. "Just so," responded Washington. "We pour House legislation into the senatorial saucer to cool it."

Says historian Baker of his volume: "It's a hop, skip and a jump over the mountain tops."

purchase a fleet of new unmarked police cars to catch speeders and issue parking tickets.

Flustered by his inability to control spending, he is moving toward a most dangerous state in a free society: the use of a police force to collect taxes. Rather than trying to prevent crime, he is trying to profit from it.

It is proven fact that the best way to slow traffic on a highway is to have a visible police force; drivers slow down when they see the police on the side of the road. By using the police as tax collectors, the police will be out of sight, slowing traffic only by catching speeders. The visible officer will slow down thousands of cars in one hour, making the roads safer while the hidden cop will catch five speeders an hour.

Dukakis's inability to control his spending habit will lead to a police state. It will help to make the roads unsafe by promoting speeding to pay his tax bills. Is this the leadership that we want in the White House?

WASTE PROBE — Lt. Tony Rossano holds up syringes and blood vials found recently on New York area beaches. Illegally dumped medical waste has forced the closing of many beaches and Rossano is among the city sanitation police working on the case.

SCIENCE & HEALTH

Warm-up time important

NEW YORK (AP) — An aerobic dance class warm-up should take more than five minutes. The Reebok Aerobic Information Bureau says the purpose of a warm-up is to slightly raise the body's temperature so that the joints become lubricated, thus preparing the body for more strenuous activity.

A good warm-up includes gentle movements involving all of the body's large muscles, such as brisk walking, followed by a flexibility segment. Each should be performed for a minimum of three to five minutes, recommends Dr. Peter Francis, associate professor of physical education at San Diego State University.

It could be more than cold

ORADELL, N.J. (AP) — Persistent cold symptoms and unrelieved allergies may signal something more serious than just a common cold for children over 10. They may have a sinus infection, so parents should pay special attention to complaints of headache, severe daytime cough and even dental pain that lingers beyond 10 days. An X-ray exam is then recommended, says Diagnosis magazine, followed by antibiotics.

Cholesterol levels high

NEW YORK (AP) — Roughly one out of every four Americans has dangerously high blood cholesterol levels. That's the conclusion of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute's two-year National Cholesterol Education Program. Exercise and proper nutrition are two of the best ways to bring cholesterol figures down.

Docs diagnose fibrositis

ATLANTA (AP) — Researchers at the University of Illinois in Peoria have developed new criteria to help doctors in diagnosing fibrositis, says the Arthritis Foundation. Fibrositis, or fibromyalgia, a form of arthritis that often mimics other medical conditions, involves aching pain in the muscles and tendons, as well as various tender points throughout the body. The researchers pinpointed six specific pain symptoms and seven pairs of tender point locations that can help doctors make a more accurate diagnosis. Using these criteria, the researchers say they were able to diagnose more than 90 percent of the people studied.

Infectious waste in garbage

NEW YORK (AP) — More than half the city's 83 private and municipal hospitals have been sending infectious waste out with their regular garbage, the New York Post reported today. The city's Environmental Control Board has fined 50 hospitals a combined $481,000 between November 1985 and this May for the illegal practice, the Post said. Hospitals that have been fined lose their city pickup service for up to six months, forcing them to use more expensive private trash carters. U.S. Attorney Andrew Maloney said last week that his office is investigating whether "criminality in the carting industry" may be partly to blame for the medical waste that has been washing ashore for the past month.

Sphinx is coming apart

CAIRO (AP) — Deterioration of the Great Sphinx of Egypt continues to spark controversy here. The monument's noseless face is missing its upper lip as well as part of one eye. The monument is falling prey to excessive moisture which dissolves salts. The salty solution is then drawn to the surface where it recrystallizes, undermining surface stones which eventually crumble into dust. The 4,600-year-old sphinx is made from limestone, perhaps 50 million years old.

WASHINGTON — Children as young as 3 years old have been sexually abused by therapists, according to a survey by an American Psychological Association committee. Kenneth S. Pope, a clinical psychologist in Los Angeles and chairman of the American Psychological Association's ethics committee, said Monday that the committee's recent survey of what he called "distinguished psychologists" nationwide disclosed 82 instances of sexual intimacy between therapists and minor patients. "From the 90 who replied to the survey, 24 percent said they knew of instances where therapists abused minor patients," he said. "Five percent said they knew of hearsay accounts."

Of the 82 cases reported, he said, 56 percent of the victims were female and the rest were male. The ages of the male victims ranged from 7 to 16, with a mean age of 12.5.

Barbara Welsh, a University of Connecticut marine ecologist heading hypoxia research for the federally financed Long Island Sound Study, said Friday she expects to see a sharp drop in dissolved oxygen sometime soon after the plankton uses up all of its food supply, dies and falls to the bottom. Bacteria that decompose the dead algae also deplete the dissolved oxygen.

"The conditions are setting up," she said. "That's discouraging because we had been holding."

At last summer, a combination of man-made pollution and weather conditions contributed to the growth of the algae bloom. Last summer, a period of hot, calm weather and nitrogen compounds discharged from sewage treatment plants spurred the growth of the algae, which stretched across the whole sound in the Hempstead Harbor area and extended in huge rafts as far east as Bridgeport.

Last week, heavy rains flushed a lot of sewage into the sound from cities where the storm drains and sanitary sewers are combined. Welsh said the rains also poured large quantities of fresh water into the sound, forming a layer that floated on the denser salt water below.

The salinity barrier between the two layers prevented the sewage nutrients from mixing into the deeper layers. Instead it stayed near the surface where it fed the exaggerated growth of algae that appeared.

Meanwhile, the showers and thunderstorms that produced the wettest July in 17 years will give way to the hottest temperatures residents of the region have seen so far this summer.

Mei Goldstein at the Western Connecticut State University Weather Center in Danbury, said that 8.44 inches of precipitation fell during the month of July, the most since 1971. Goldstein said "the steam heat" is expected to return to the region today as the mercury and the humidity are both expected to climb in the "miserable" range.

The extended forecast calls for temperatures to reach near the 100 degree mark by the middle of the week with little or no relief in sight at least until Friday.

female, he said. One study showed that 25 percent of the women who have received doctorate of psychology degrees in the last six years admit to sleeping with their professors. Pope said therapy patients are particularly vulnerable to sexual advances because during the course of treatment they often come to believe they are in love with their therapists.

"It is very frequently a normal part of therapy," he said. "But therapists are supposed to be trained to resist, no matter how seductive the patient becomes."

He said sex with patients "is always prohibited. It is always unethical and there is no instance in which this is appropriate therapy. It is always the responsibility of the therapist to assure that there is no sexual act."

Three states — Colorado, Wisconsin and Minnesota — have made it a felony for therapists to engage in sex with clients or even former clients. The maximum penalties include 20-year prison terms and $20,000 in fines.

Barracks 'easy target'

LONDON (AP) — The government ordered a security review of all military bases after an IRA bomb killed one soldier and injured nine at a north London army barracks considered an easy target for a terrorist attack. Security was reported so lax at Ingila Barracks in suburban Mill Hill that the perimeter fence was riddled with holes and broken traffic barriers were still unrepaired after two months.

The barracks houses the Directorate of Defense Postal and Courier Services, where a staff of 250 handles mail for British armed services personnel around the world. It also houses some personnel from the Royal Engineers, the Royal Navy and the Women's Royal Army Corps.

"This was a soft target and this makes it an extremely cowardly attack," Archie Hamilton, minister of state for the armed forces, said Monday's blast. "We don't keep the military apart from the community but we will obviously now have to review our security arrangements."

Dissidents arrested

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — In a further crackdown on dissent, authorities in Burma arrested two prominent war heroes for allegedly plotting against the week-old government of President Sein Lwin, sources said today.

The arrests came as Amnesty International, the London-based international human rights group, criticized the hardline one-party government for arresting up to 25 other opponents in recent days.

The arrests of Ta Ya and Yan Nyang, who helped lead the fight for Burmese independence during World War II, is part of an apparent government attempt to root out potential threats, diplomatic sources in Rangoon said.

Meanwhile, the sources said about 500 students and some Buddhist monks gathered Monday at the Shwedagon Pagoda, Burma's holiest shrine and a traditional center for protest.

Bishops reach compromise

CANTERBURY, England (AP) — Anglican bishops from throughout the world agreed overwhelmingly that the thorny issue of consecrating women as bishops and ordaining them as priests should not splinter the Anglican Communion.

They voted Monday night for a carefully worded compromise resolution that was designed to keep their churches together despite deep divisions on the issue. The bishops, representing 70 million Anglicans in 164 countries, said the churches must respect one another's decisions and attitudes and maintain communications with other bishops regardless of gender or viewpoint.

The voting by a show of hands was 423-28, with 19 abstentions.

School dance planned

PURDY, Mo. (AP) — Students in this tiny Ozark town are getting ready for their first school dance now that a federal judge has ruled that a century-old ban on such festivities is unconstitutional.

"I want to get right on the stick and get it rolling," said 16-year-old Nancy Fox, president of the Purdy senior and junior high school council. "I think most of the kids are excited."

"It's wonderful," added Jonathan Clayton, who graduated from Purdy High School in May. "It's my dream come true."

Clayton and Miss Fox's parents were among 21 plaintiffs who sued the school board in 1986, claiming that the ban was inspired by religious beliefs. On Monday, U.S. District Judge Russell G. Clark agreed but didn't order the school to sponsor dances.

Aircraft safety improves

WASHINGTON (AP) — A frequent critic of federal air traffic control efforts says a new government report showing a reduction in near accidents is good news, but he says the system remains under severe pressure.

The FAA said there were 518 operational errors by air traffic controllers during the first six months of this year, an 18 percent drop from the 635 recorded in the first half of 1987.

U.S. bid to condemn Nicaragua fails

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — George P. Shultz and four Central American foreign ministers called for peace and democracy in the region in a watershed declaration lacking the denunciation of Nicaragua the U.S. envoy has sought. In fact, the document they issued Monday during the secretary of state's eight-hour stop did not even mention Nicaragua by name.

Only at a later news conference was the country named when Shultz expressed continued U.S. support for the Contra rebels, who after nearly 7 years of war reached a preliminary cease-fire accord in March with Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

Shultz flew today to Buenos Aires, Argentina, the second stop of a nine-country tour of Latin America, for a three-day visit.

The final version of the declaration — signed by Shultz and the foreign ministers of El Salvador, Honduras, Guatemala and Costa Rica after a seven-hour meeting — called for "peace, democracy, security, social justice and economic development" in the region.

In the statement, the parties "reaffirmed that authentic democracy requires, among other requisites, political pluralism, freedom of association, freedom of the press, an impartial justice system that guarantees due process, an apolitical armed forces, an honest and open electoral system and respect for human and individual rights."

The Sandinistas have been criticized for maintaining a political monopoly and suppressing dissent and talks with the Contras on forging a lasting peace have stalled.

Last week, President Reagan requested that Congress approve $27 million in humanitarian aid to the Contras and $28 million in stand-by military aid to be used only with express congressional authorization if peace efforts fail.

The last congressional appropriation for military aid ran out in February. It has not been renewed, largely pending the outcome of a year-old regional peace plan that has so far proved ineffective.

Shultz said the Contras "are an important element, expressing a strong desire for freedom and democracy in Nicaragua and we continue to support them."

"I didn't come here basically to discuss that subject, and we didn't have very much discussion of it, although I certainly hope that we will extend funding for the Contras."

Monday's 10-paragraph document differed sharply from an initial, 10-page draft that harshly criticized Nicaragua as failing to live up to the peace plan the Central American presidents signed Aug. 7, 1987.

The original draft, written shortly after Shultz's last visit to the four countries, was softened at the request of Guatemala and Costa Rica, which apparently felt tough language would encourage the

In Nicaragua, President Daniel Ortega on Monday accused the United States of trying to encourage anti-Sandinista aggression with Shultz's visit.

"We hope that common sense might prevail, because to want to sign a death sentence against Nicaragua, because the United States wants one, would be the equivalent of signing a death sentence against Central America," he said during a ceremony on the Sandinista air force's ninth anniversary.

Ortega expressed "hope that these (Central American) governments might be sufficiently reasonable and pragmatic so as not to fall in the trap that the United States is laying in Guatemala."

Elections cast shadow over Contra talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic senators are struggling to reach agreement on a new aid package for Nicaragua's Contra rebels that will keep pressure on the leftist government to negotiate with Democrats as well as among Republicans, and defuse the issue as a political weapon.

Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., said he hoped an aid package could be assembled by midweek when it's important to get an agreed-on policy everyone can live by pending bill or a Defense Department money bill. He said he then would take the Democratic plan to Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas and seek a bipartisan agreement. But he added: "We're not quite there yet."

Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., said a final aid plan "might include the opportunity for people to be able to have a vote (on military aid) under some circumstances, at some point in time."

Dole has proposed his own Contra aid package, which would send $27 million in new humanitarian aid to the rebels after a current humanitarian aid program ends Sept. 30.

The Dole plan also would set aside $20 million for new weapons for the rebels, but would release that money only if Congress authorized it in a separate vote.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the Reagan administration is encouraged that Democrats are working on an aid proposal, and would cooperate "to get an acceptable plan."

U. S. seeking explanation of Hussein's plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is sticking to its formula for Arab-Israeli peace talks despite a decision by King Hussein of Jordan to cut his ties to the West Bank.

The U.S. plan calls for a mixed delegation of Jordanians and Palestinians to negotiate with Israel. Even before Hussein's statement Sunday abandoning the West Bank to the Palestine Liberation Organization, the United States had made little progress in trying to promote negotiations.

Assistant Secretary of State Richard W. Murphy, who was heading toward the Middle East, already was scheduled for talks in Egypt, Israel, Jordan and Syria. Now he has the added job of seeking an explanation from Hussein and determine if prospects for peace talks are even dimmer.

In the meantime, the State Department asserted Monday there would be no immediate change in the U.S. approach to resolving the 40-year Arab-Israeli dispute.

"Our position on how to begin peace negotiations is unchanged, and we remain actively engaged," spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley said.

Hussein's declaration Sunday severed Jordan's "legislative and administrative links" to the Israeli-held West Bank that was ruled by Jordan between 1949 and 1967. Israel has controlled the territory and the Gaza Strip since winning a six-day war against an Egyptian-Jordanian-Syrian alliance in 1967. The population is predominantly Palestinian Arab.

"The king's announcement apparently did not take U.S. officials by surprise," said one official, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "We did not have a text, but we had an idea in general."

Dukakis, Reagan swap charges over poverty and opportunity

By Robert Greene
The Associated Press

Michael Dukakis continued efforts to win over former supporters of Jesse Jackson, affirming to a national civil-rights organization that government can help "transform the cycle of poverty into a ladder of opportunity."

President Reagan asserted the Democratic nominee for president would destroy that opportunity. Reagan's remarks Monday on behalf of a Senate candidate provided the only Republican campaign salvo. Vice President George Bush, who remained at the White House while continuing to work on choosing a running mate, was making a foreign policy speech today in Chicago.

Dukakis reiterated his opposition to U.S. assistance to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels just as Democratic senators worked in Washington to draft a compromise package of new aid to the rebels.

"It's a failed and illegal policy and it ought to stop," Dukakis said before leaving Boston for Detroit.

But Dukakis insisted he wasn't bothered by running-mate Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's support of Contra aid. The Texas senator spent most of Monday in private meetings in Washington in preparation for expected action this week on trade and plant-closing notification legislation. Jackson on Monday remained in Chicago, where he spoke by telephone with New York Mayor Edward I. Koch as part of an effort to make peace at least long enough to help Dukakis win the election.

Philippines, U.S. talk about bases

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — U.S. and Filipino negotiators unexpectedly resumed talks today on the status of American military bases, a week after the negotiations broke down in a disagreement over compensation.

Members of the two panels refused to talk to reporters as the talks said the Philippine panel entered the Department of Foreign Affairs for the afternoon session.

A Filipino source close to the talks said the Philippine panel expected the Americans to make a new offer on compensation for use of the six installations, including Clark Air Base and the Subic Bay naval base.

Earlier today, Foreign Secretary Raul Manglapus announced the resumption of talks but would not report on any significant breakthrough had been made.

Manglapus, the chief Philippine negotiator, broke off the talks one week ago over what he described as American inflexibility on the amount of compensation.

The United States currently pays the Philippines $100 million annually in exchange for the bases. Sources close to the Philippine panel said the Philippines wanted the amount raised to $1.2 billion, but the Americans refused.

The sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the Americans were willing to increase compensation only by $500 million.

Asked whether the Philippines would modify their demand, Manglapus said: "Our position has already been subjected to change and we are not about to change it again."

American negotiators, headed by Ambassador Nicholas Platt, have consistently refused to comment on the talks.

But sources close to the talks said the Americans were reluctant to agree to a drastic increase because of uncertainty over the status of the bases after their lease expires in 1991.

Any extension of the bases must be under a formal treaty ratified by two-thirds of the Philippine Senate, whose opposition to them is strong.

President Corason Aquino, whose term expires in 1992, has pledged to honor the current agreement but refuses to say whether she will support an extension.

In June, the Philippine Senate approved a bill banning nuclear weapons and nuclear-powered warships from Philippine soil.

Similar legislation is pending in the House of Representatives. Filipino sources say Washington has been lobbying against the bill.

The base negotiations, which began four months ago, are actually a review of a 1947 agreement giving the Americans right to operate military bases in the Philippines.

David Stansberry, who has been at McDonald's in Vernon for a little over two months, also said he likes his job. He recently was recognized as employee-of-the-month and given a gift valued at $25.

"Most of the customers are my friends," the Manchester resident said.

Stansberry works on the fryer where the Chicken McNuggets, fruit pies and fish filets are prepared.

"When I started, it took me a little while to learn the fryer," he said, adding that cooking is his favorite part of his job.

Washing dishes is another job training activity.

U.N. chief to set truce date in gulf

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. secretary-general says he will alone set a deadline for halting the bloodshed in the Persian Gulf, pressuring Iraq to return to the bargaining table and end its raids on Iran.

Javier Perez de Cuellar said late Monday that he expects to set a cease-fire date once his fact-finding team returns from the warring countries this week and he has consulted with the Security Council.

Iran said it would honor an immediate cease-fire in the 8-year-old war, Iraq had not made a similar reaction to members of the fact-finding team.

The experts' detailed report, released Monday, also mentions nine Iraqi soldiers poisoned in a battle zone, allegedly in a mustard gas attack by Iran.

Other U.N. reports have said Iraq used chemical weapons, which are outlawed under the 1925 Geneva Convention, and the Security Council recently condemned use of the illegal weapons in the war.

The chemical weapons report was prepared by two specialist physicians who visited both countries in early July.

"We deeply regret to say that on the basis of evidence gathered and in spite of repeated appeals by the United Nations, chemical weapons have been used in an intensive scale against Iranian forces," it said.

Some fighting and air strikes were reported Monday along the Iran-Iraq border while U.N.-mediated peace talks pressed on in New York.

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said he would announce a cease-fire date as soon as a fact-finding team returns this week and he consults with the Security Council.

The announcement appeared aimed at pressuring Iraq into dropping its demand that they agree to direct talks before a truce takes effect.

Ten days of talks sparked by Iraq offensives followed an announcement July 18 that it would accept a year-old U.N. resolution for a cease-fire in the nearly 8-year-old war.

Perez de Cuellar said a U.N. military team is now in Amman, Jordan, preparing its report. He said it is to receive it on Wednesday.

"I will be in touch with members of the (Security) Council and then I will decide on a D-Day," the secretary-general said.

The secretary-general said that once a date is decided, he will begin consulting nations that could provide about 250 military observers to monitor the truce and troop withdrawal.

Perez de Cuellar on Monday held his sixth meeting with Velayati since talks began last week.

He has met three times with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz, but Iraq said it was not prepared to enter into substantive talks with Perez de Cuellar until direct talks take place.

Iran also has not responded to a U.N. report concluding that it has frequently used and continues to use chemical weapons in the war.

Velayati said: "We think that especially after recent use of chemical weapons... now the Security Council should do something against Iraq."

The experts' detailed report, released Monday, also mentions nine Iraqi soldiers poisoned in a battle zone, allegedly in a mustard gas attack by Iran.

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran said seven rebels were publicly hanged and their group's attack crushed, but the rebels claim they had killed or wounded thousands of Iranian soldiers.

East Hartford bests Post 102 in finale

Same pair meets in Zone Eight playoff beginning Wednesday

By Jim Tierney
Manchester Herald

EAST HARTFORD — The top two American Legion baseball teams in Zone Eight, East Hartford and Manchester, previewed the upcoming Zone playoffs between the pair Monday night at McKenna Field.

In the Legion regular-season finale, a win would grant the victor the home field advantage in the best 2-out-of-3 playoff which runs from Wednesday through Friday (if necessary) will determine the Zone Eight representative to the State Legion tournament which commences next Tuesday in Niantic.

Thursday's game is scheduled for a 5 p.m. start at Moriarty Field. The ironic twist is that if a third game is needed, McKenna Field won't be available due to Twilight League playoffs. Tentatively, the game would also be played at Moriarty Field.

East Hartford, the visiting team, sped to a 3-0 advantage in the top of the first inning by two Manchester misuses. With two outs, Tim Cain lined a single to right which got past Joe Leonard and the former scampered to third base. Tylon Crump then laced a double up the gap in left center scoring Cain. After a walk to Matt Tierini, Post 102 first baseman Jim Kitsook mishandled a Kevin Lawrence grounder to load the bases. Jim Bidwell then singled up the middle plating two more runs.

"Two of them (runs) were unearned in the first inning and I put us in a hole," Post 102 coach Dave Morency said.

Righthander Keith DiYeso suffered the loss for Manchester but, more importantly, he went the distance which keeps Morency's pitching rotation intact.

"DiYeso did something for us tonight," Morency explained. "He threw seven innings without us having to use another pitcher. We may have lost this game but he's given us the chance to win the playoffs."

DiYeso blanked East Hartford over the next four frames while Post 102 battled back, eventually tying the game at 3-1 in the fifth on an RBI-double by Neal Schackner. East Hartford, however, tallied three runs in the sixth on an RBI-double by Neal Schackner. East Hartford, however, tallied three runs in the sixth on an RBI-double by Neal Schackner.

Manchester (4) — Price 3-1-0, Stortford 3-2-0, Laurinits 4-1-1, Leonard 1-1-0, Green 2-1-1-0, Profit 0-0-0-0, Stine 1-1-0-0, Daniels 0-0-0-0, 29-4-2.

Post 102 to gain a 6-4 win and the regular-season title. East Hartford winds up with a 17-3 record while Manchester finished 16-5.

Beginning this summer, the Zone was split into two four-team divisions with Manchester winning the National Division and Hartford garnering the American. The best 2-out-of-3 playoff which runs from Wednesday through Friday (if necessary) will determine the Zone Eight representative to the State Legion tournament which commences next Tuesday in Niantic.

After a walk to Matt Tierini, Post 102 first baseman Jim Kitsook mishandled a Kevin Lawrence grounder to load the bases. Jim Bidwell then singled up the middle plating two more runs.

"Two of them (runs) were unearned in the first inning and I put us in a hole," Post 102 coach Dave Morency said.

Righthander Keith DiYeso suffered the loss for Manchester but, more importantly, he went the distance which keeps Morency's pitching rotation intact.

"DiYeso did something for us tonight," Morency explained. "He threw seven innings without us having to use another pitcher. We may have lost this game but he's given us the chance to win the playoffs."

DiYeso blanked East Hartford over the next four frames while Post 102 battled back, eventually tying the game at 3-1 in the fifth on an RBI-double by Neal Schackner. East Hartford, however, tallied three runs in the sixth on an RBI-double by Neal Schackner.

Beginning this summer, the Zone was split into two four-team divisions with Manchester winning the National Division and Hartford garnering the American. The best 2-out-of-3 playoff which runs from Wednesday through Friday (if necessary) will determine the Zone Eight representative to the State Legion tournament which commences next Tuesday in Niantic.

Thursday's game is scheduled for a 5 p.m. start at Moriarty Field. The ironic twist is that if a third game is needed, McKenna Field won't be available due to Twilight League playoffs. Tentatively, the game would also be played at Moriarty Field.

Thompson upset with government

By Jim O'Connell
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — U.S. men's basketball coach John Thompson has already had some Olympic logistics problems and it is his own government that has him upset.

Thompson told a telephone news conference on Monday that he has had problems with American military officials concerning use of a gymnasium at an air base in Korea as a backup facility.

"It appears to me that I have to get an act from the President in order to use a United States facility and I kind of resent that," Thompson said from Washington. "I always get a kick out of people telling me this is our team, America's team."

"It is, until you're ready to use some facilities. We've had more problems with the U.S. Army and that facility than anything I've made a trip over to Korea for."

Thompson has expressed concern over the starting times of the games in the Olympics because they will be played in a time zone 13 hours from television prime time on the East Coast of the United States. That means for the game to start at 9 p.m. in the eastern United States. It would have to start at 8 a.m. in Seoul.

He has made trips to Seoul to make sure everything would go smoothly and securing practice facilities was a big part of those trips.

"The gym was a backup; it was not the primary place we would practice," Thompson said, his voice starting to rise. "What we wanted to do was know what we could do if the main practice facility that had been assigned to us had fallen apart. At least we would have had some where to go — and it was a U.S. military base for 45 minutes a day — without an act of Congress."

Thompson gave no further details of which military base was involved or how the situation was being resolved.

Thompson on Monday also confirmed published reports that Florida center Dwayne Schintzius was interviewed by agents from the Drug Enforcement Administration on the day he was released from the Olympic team.

Thompson emphasized the meeting came after he had decided to release the 7-foot sophomore and had nothing to do with his being sent home from the camp being conducted at Georgetown.

"What happened is that those gentlemen did come to Georgetown and I was requested to see Dwayne," Thompson said. "They were able to see Dwayne and talk to Dwayne after we did practice. It was not during practice."

"They were informed just as Dwayne was informed after practice that we had made some decisions to release some people."

University of Florida president Marshall M. Criser announced last week an investigation of possible illegal drug use on campus that may involve current and former Gator athletes.

Criser said the probe was sparked by a criminal investigation in Gainesville, Fla., of drug sales and use in the area. He did not name the law enforcement agency conducting the probe.

Schintzius, along with Randolph Keys of Southern Mississippi and Dyron Nix of Tennessee, was released after being among the final 20 players in quest of the 12 berths on the team, which will defend the gold medal in Seoul in September.

Thompson said the University of Florida said it was not possible for the school to release the coach Norm Sloan was out of the office Monday and could not be reached by telephone.

The reports of the meeting surfaced in Florida newspapers during the weekend.

Thompson said an administrative problem kept the three players at the Georgetown camp one day longer than planned. The camp runs through Aug. 6.

"The evening before, we were unable to get transportation for people simply because (the man) who arranges that was unavailable," Thompson said.

Thompson said he talked to the agents before he knew who would be interviewed.

"We informed the DEA without giving names that before you tell us who you want to talk to we have to let you know we are going to release three players," he said. "After we (Schintzius) finished his conversation with the people from the DEA, I spoke with and indicated to him that (being released) had nothing to do with his conversation with which I did not take part in and did not listen to... The two things are not related at all."

South Korea makes contact

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — South Korea made a move Monday to begin preliminary contacts with North Korea in a bid that could include the North in the Seoul Olympic Games.

National Assembly speaker Kim Chae-sun suggested in the letter, addressed to his North Korean counterpart, Yang Hyung-sup, that working talks be held next week at the trace village of Panmunjon.

Assembly officials suggested a date between Aug. 11 and 13 for the preliminary contacts to prepare for full parliamentary talks on a non-aggression pact and other tension-easing measures on the peninsula.

"We hope you will respond affirmatively to our proposal for holding Representatives' talks as soon as possible," Kim said in the letter, sent through the border village.

Kim said he has named 15 delegates and asked North Korea to do the same for the working talks, whose main business would be to prepare for full parliamentary talks on various tension-easing measures.

The South Korean delegates consist of six lawmakers from the governing Democratic Justice Party and nine from the three main opposition parties.

Rep. Park Jong-kyu, 63, a ranking member of the ruling party, is expected to head the South Korean delegation. Park, a 1950 graduate of Brown University in Providence, R.I., once served as acting chairman of former President Park Chung-hee's Democratic Republican Party.

The South Korean letter was in response to two North Korean proposals last month calling for a joint session of the two countries' legislatures to draft a non-aggression pact and to discuss Pyongyang's possible entry into the Olympic Games in Seoul.

HAPPY PIRATES — Teammates greet Pittsburgh's Mike LaValliere after he hit a two-run homer off New York Mets' pitcher Dwight Gooden in the sixth inning Monday night at Shea Stadium. The Pirates salvaged the finale of a four-game series, 7-2.

Pirates salvage finale, still in striking distance

By Ben Walker
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The Pittsburgh Pirates wanted to do better. Still, when pressed to perform, they stopped the New York Mets and stayed within striking distance in the National League East.

"I think it was a great series. The sad part is we didn't come out with a split with the way we pitched," Pittsburgh manager Jim Leyland said. "But we battled back."

The Pirates, limited to one run on 13 singles in losing three times to New York during the weekend, won the finale Monday night 7-2 by hitting Dwight Gooden and two relievers for 16 hits.

Pittsburgh ended New York's five-game winning streak and got within four games of the division-leading Mets. The Pirates won for just the third time in 10 tries versus New York this season.

"This was a big game. We had to win," said Mike LaValliere, whose two-run homer broke a scoreless tie in the sixth inning.

R.A. Reynolds, who had four hits and Sid Bream added RBI singles in the seventh that chased Gooden and Andy Van Slyke had a two-run homer in the eighth.

Gooden allowed 11 hits, matching his career-high, and four runs in 6 1/3 innings. The 16 hits were the most against the Mets this season.

"Doc did not have good stuff," manager Davey Johnson said. "But winning three out of four isn't bad."

Doug Drabek, 10-5, pitched six shutout innings and won his fifth straight start. Darryl Strawberry hit a two-run homer, his league-leading 28th, in the eighth off Jeff Robinson.

"We accomplished what we wanted in this series," Strawberry said. "We put two games on our lead."

The Pirates, who had been hitting just .181 while going through a 2-7 slump, broke loose before the Mets' largest crowd of 52,231 increased the total for the four dates to 199,547, the biggest ever at Shea Stadium.

New York, meanwhile, is not hitting. The Mets scored only eight runs in the series and relied heavily on their pitching staff, the best in baseball.

On Friday, the teams began a four-game series in Pittsburgh. Gooden, 13-6, is scheduled to pitch Saturday.

"Anytime Dwight Gooden goes out there, you expect him to throw a shutout or no-hitter," LaValliere said.

Jose Canseco hit 31 home runs for the Oakland Athletics last year, but his accomplishment was generally overshadowed by the extraordinary rookie year of teammate Mark McGwire, who had 49.

This year, Canseco is making some bigger news for himself with 31 homers so far — including five in the last four games. Homering in his fourth straight game Monday night, Canseco led the Athletics to a 10-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

"Basically, you get in a groove. Instead of hitting line drives, you hit them out," Canseco said. "They come in bunches. Sometimes you go a week without hitting a home run."

Canseco's 31 homers led the major leagues. His two-run homer in the first inning Monday night, incidentally, was the 100th of his career.

Canseco's homer against the White Sox not only matched his total for all of last year, but moved him within two of his 33-homer rookie year in 1986.

Dave Henderson also had a big night for Oakland by driving in four runs with a homer and a single.

Henderson singled home two runs in a four-run second inning in

Journeys to open Aug. 10

The Manchester Rec Department's 'A,' 'B' and 'C' division slow pitch softball tournaments will begin Wednesday, Aug. 10, at Charter Oak and Robertson parks and Pagani Field.

Twenty-four teams, eight in each division, will qualify for the double elimination play. The tournament runs through Aug. 24.

Games will be 6 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. The 'A' Division tournament will have the top four teams in each the Central and East Divisions. Games will be played at Charter Oak and Robertson parks. The 'B' division tournament will have the first and second place teams, and two best third-place teams, from the Rec League, Charter Oak League and Nike League. 'B' games will be played at Charter Oak Park and Nike Field.

The 'C' division tournament will have the league champions and runners-up from the Northern League, Dusty League, West Side League and Pagani League. These games will be played at Pagani Field and Robertson Park.

The 'A' and 'B' division finals will be played Tuesday, Aug. 23 at Fitzgerald Field with the 'C' division championship the same night at Robertson Park.

Gambling foes get recourse

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Motorists who don't like driving around with an advertisement for Churchill Downs on their license tags have a new legal alternative.

The twin spires which frame Kentucky license plates can be covered with decals available from county clerk offices. The decals, made from a clear reflective material as the plate's background, fit on the upper corners of the plate.

Decals are free if ordered when registering a vehicle with the county clerk. Motorists who have already renewed their registration may pay $1 for the decals.

Some vehicle owners have a very strong feeling about whether or not the twin spires should be on there," said Mark McDaniel, spokesman for the state Transportation Cabinet.

The measure that permits the plates to be altered was passed this year by the General Assembly and took effect July 15. The move was in response to complaints by gambling opponents and those who equate the twin spires with a state promotion of a private industry, one of the bill's sponsors told the Bowling Green Daily News.

"We had quite a few preachers in my area and across the state who disagreed with the twin spires on the license plate," Rep. Chester "Bud" Gregory, D-Elizabethton, said.

"In my area there were three or four preachers, but I was presented with two lists with over 200 names" of people objecting to the design, he said. "There were some county clerks selling truck plates for car plates so they wouldn't have the twin spires on them, and that's not quite legal. The decals are a way to get around that. You have a legal plate with no spires."

The new plates, which also bear the mare and foal logo of the Kentucky Horse Park and the words "Bluegrass State," began replacing the plain blue and white tags this year.

Churchill Downs President Thomas H. Meeker said the Louisville track had not pushed to have the spires put on the plate initially.

"We were very pleased, obviously, that the General Assembly saw fit to put the twin spires on the license plate," Meeker said Monday.

"I can see a situation where there may be people who for moral reasons don't particularly appreciate Churchill Downs, and I respect their feelings on the license plate," Meeker said. "If they believe the license plate is offensive for them to use, then maybe this is a good idea."

He said he was less sympathetic of the private industry argument because of the role of Churchill Downs and the Kentucky Derby in the state's economy.

The cabinet got a supply of about 10,000 sets, at 36 cents a set, to distribute. Ronnie N. Bingham, director of the Division of Motor Vehicle Licensing, said.

"The $1 fee that some motorists are having to pay to get the sets goes to the county clerk, and the Transportation Cabinet is absorbing the cost of making the decals," McDaniel said.

Gregory said the idea of the decals is right, but he thinks the way they look, without extending the blue line that carries the county name, is "awful. I'm around, I saw Andy slowing up and I knew it was in the ballpark."

"I didn't watch it at first because I thought he got it all," Drabek said. "But when I turned around, I saw Andy slowing up and I knew it was in the ballpark."

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Annulli club champion

Lon Annulli beat Tim McNamara 1-up last Sunday to claim his second Manchester Country Club Men's Club Championship. Annulli previously won the title in 1984. This is McNamara's second time as runner-up. He was second in 1979.

McNamara had a chance to even the match at the 17th green but missed a 2-foot putt. They both parred the 18th hole.

Starling to file protest

HARTFORD — Marlon Starling will formally protest his controversial knockout last Friday night and will request that he be reinstated as World Boxing Association welterweight champion. It was announced.

Starling met with consultant Mort Sharink and attorney Edward Rosenber in Hartford Monday to draw up protest papers to be filed with the WBA.

Whelton in Switzerland

Former East Catholic High and University of Connecticut basketball standout Joe Whelton has accepted a coaching position in the Switzerland basketball league.

The East Hartford native for the past four years coached Manchester United in the English Professional League. He just completed his duties as coach of the Great Britain team that advanced to the final eight in an Olympic qualifying tournament. Whelton's team placed sixth, the best finish ever for Britain.

Giants sign Moore

MADISON, N.J. — First-round draft pick Eric Moore of Indiana ended a two-week contract dispute and signed a four-year, $1,915 million contract with the New York Giants Monday.

The contract agreement was reached Sunday night and includes an $800,000 signing bonus. Mark Mottaz, Moore's attorney said in a telephone interview from St. Louis.

Moore, a 6-foot-5 tackle, signed the contract Monday at Giants Stadium and then reported to Fairleigh Dickinson at Madison, where he practiced in the afternoon, taking part in drills. He also stayed about 10 minutes after practice and worked with assistant coach Brad Benson.

Moore, who stayed at his home near St. Louis during his holdout, was the last of 14 Giants draft picks to sign a contract. Tight end Mark Bavaro, linebacker Carl Banks and punter Sean Landeta — each a Pro Bowler — are the only veterans still unsigned.

Celtics sign Lewis

BOSTON — The Boston Celtics announced Monday that second year forward Reggie Lewis signed a multiyear contract to begin this season.

Boston's 1987 top draft pick from Northeastern University played 49 games in his rookie season with the Celtics and averaged 4.5 points per game in the regular season. Three times during the season he scored 14 points.

Lewis graduated as the ninth-highest scorer in National Collegiate Athletic Association Division I history when he led the Huskies to four straight NCAA tournament appearances.

The 6-foot-7, 195-pound forward was the second selection overall in the 1987 draft. He appeared in 12 post season games for the Celtics, averaging 2.4 points per game.

The terms of the contract were not available.

Pincay is injured

DEL MAR, Calif. — Jockey Laffit Pincay Jr., thrown during a midstretch spill Monday at Del Mar, suffered a bruised lung and several broken ribs after the tumble in the second race and will be sidelined indefinitely.

He was unseated when his mount, Seal the Deal, swerved into the rail. Pincay landed on top of the inside rail, track officials said.

The 41-year-old Pincay was removed from his remaining mounts and taken to Scripps Memorial Hospital in La Jolla, Calif. where he was scheduled to be released late Monday.

A preliminary examination showed Pincay suffered cuts and bruises but X-rays revealed the more serious injuries.

Salary cap increased

NEW YORK — The NBA salary cap will increase 17 percent from $6,164 million per team to $7,202 per team for the 1988-89 season, the league announced Monday.

The salary cap applies to every team except for the Charlotte Hornets and Miami Heat, two expansion teams who will operate under a cap of $4.72 million.

In addition to the salary maximum, NBA teams also will be required to pay a minimum of $6,690 million for player salaries. The minimum amount ensures that players receive at least 53 percent of the NBA's gross revenues as required by the collective bargaining agreement.

Top three will play

MELBOURNE, Australia — Ivan Lendl, Wimbledon champion Stefan Edberg and defending champion Mats Wilander — the world's top three players — say they will play in the 1989 Australian Open. Tennis Australia president Brian Tobin announced Monday.

Tobin said the tournament would offer $2.4 million in prize money, an increase of around 33 percent over this year's purse.

"We now have a tournament where the world's best players are competing at the world's best facilities," Tobin said. "We are rapidly building up to meet the level of the other three Grand Slam tournaments."

The 1989 Australian Open, scheduled to run Jan. 16-29, will be played on synthetic Rebound Ace courts at the National Tennis Center for the second time. It previously was played on grass courts at nearby Kooyong.

Franco cited by NL

NEW YORK — John Franco of the Cincinnati Reds, who set a major-league record for 13 saves in a month, was named National League Player of the Week for July 25-31.

Franco appeared in four games and registered a save in each one. His record-breaking save came Saturday night, July 30, in San Diego and was his 12th save in his last 12 appearances.

Franco pitched 3-2 innings of scoreless relief on the week, allowing no runs on four hits, one walk and one strikeout.

Bucks sign Horford

MILWAUKEE — The Milwaukee Bucks signed 7-foot-11 center Tito Horford, their second-round draft choice, to a three-year contract Monday.

Horford, 22, elected to enter the NBA draft after his sophomore season at the University of Miami. Last season he averaged 14.2 points and nine rebounds a game for the Hurricanes.

Bulls sign Vincent

CHICAGO — Guard Sam Vincent and the Chicago Bulls have agreed to terms on a new contract, the NBA team announced Monday.

Vincent, 25, was a first-round draft choice out of Michigan state by the Boston Celtics in 1985.

In 29 games with the Bulls last season, Vincent started 27 games and averaged 13.0 points and 8.4 assists. He had a regular-season career-high 23 points against Washington. He also scored 31 points in a playoff game against Detroit.

For the entire season, he played 72 games and averaged 8.0 points and 5.3 assists.

Terms and the length of the contract were not disclosed.

Covert is out for six weeks

By The Associated Press

Offensive tackle Jim Covert of the Chicago Bears may be lost to the club for at least six weeks due to back surgery as injuries began to affect NFL clubs with a month still left before the start of the season.

Covert missed part of last season with a bad shoulder and other injuries, and he aggravated an old back injury in his first workout last week, the Bears said.

The arthroscopic surgery will be performed Wednesday.

"He's probably one of the top two or three tackles in the league ... and then to come back and have a thing like that happen," Coach Mike Ditka said. "But I hope he's not worried about Jim Covert. He'll do what he has to do. He'll be back."

"I don't foresee a problem," Coach Ron Meyer said. "But whenever it's a quarterback's throwing arm, there is concern."

Hogebom, who missed 21 games in the past two seasons because of injuries, actually might have injured the elbow in practice Saturday, the club said.

Coach Ron Meyer said, "But Hogebom still might be able to play in Saturday's preseason opener at Tampa Bay."

Turner traded: The Seattle Seahawks sent veteran wide receiver Darryl Turner to the Cleveland Browns for an undrafted free agent.

Turner finished 1987 with 14 receptions in 12 games, his lowest production since joining the Seahawks out of Michigan State in 1984.

The 6-foot-3, 194-pounder has one of the highest touchdown-per-reception averages in the NFL.

NFL Camps

with 36 touchdowns in 101 career catches.

"It appears that we have some depth at the wide receiver position," Seahawks Coach Chuck Knox said, "and that made this trade possible."

Ending holdouts: At Fullerton, Calif., veteran nose tackle Greg Meisner ended his holdout, reporting to the Los Angeles Rams training camp after signing a multi-year contract. The contract reportedly was for three years.

"I'm happy to be back," said Meisner, a starter for the Rams a year ago. "It's behind me. It's time to play ball."

The Rams also left with four holdouts: defensive lineman Doug Reed and Shawn Miller, tight end Greg Baty and guard Tom Newberry.

Offensive tackle Eric Moore, the New York Giants' first-round draft pick out of Indiana, ended his holdout, agreeing to a contract that included an $800,000 signing bonus. The contract is for four years and is worth $1,915 million.

Trimming rosters: At Oxnard, Calif., the Los Angeles Raiders cut eight players, including 11-year veteran offensive guard Mickey Marvin. Marvin, 32, was one of only seven Raiders remaining from the team which moved south from Oakland after the 1981 season. He played in 120 regular-season games and 13 postseason games, including starting in two Super Bowl games.

At Thousand Oaks, Calif., the Dallas Cowboys released 13 players, all rookie free agents, to cut their roster to 108, including 45 rookies.

At Flagstaff, Ariz., the Phoenix Cardinals lowered their roster to 107 by releasing free-agent wide receiver Alfred Dorsey. The 5-foot-7, 169-pound Dorsey played at Nicholls State.

Dolphins' defense in midseason form

By Steven Wine

MIAMI — The Miami Dolphins' defense against the run is in midseason form. That's bad news for coach Don Shula.

In an otherwise-impressive 27-21 victory over the San Francisco 49ers on Sunday in London, Miami allowed 207 yards rushing.

The Dolphins ranked 23rd among 28 NFL teams last season in defending against the run.

San Francisco gained much of its yardage by running outside. "Our linebackers had some problems getting up the field," Shula said Monday. "Their backs were chopping us down, and that's why we had trouble against their outside running game."

Archer completed six of eight passes for 74 yards. When asked whether his stock had risen, Shula said there's more evaluating ahead.

"As we go through the preseason each week, I'll make an evaluation as to how to play the quarterbacks and try to give everybody an opportunity to show what they can do," Shula said.

"They had some big plays against our defense, but our defense made some big plays," Shula said, including two sacks and a fumble returned for a touchdown. "Our concern is that they made some rushing yardage."

LOS ANGELES — Madison Avenue's executives of two major New York advertising agencies predict that NBC will keep a tight grip on first place in the Nielsen ratings.

TV Topics

Joel M. Segal, executive vice president and director of national broadcast for McCann-Erickson, also sees tough competition for second place.

BOTH AGENCIES published reports on the fall season as originally planned by the networks.

Although Segal was more optimistic about the end of the strike, both executives looked for a return to work that would enable the networks to get their new shows on by late November or early December.

Economic index shoots up 1.4 percent

Rebounding indicators show recovery in no danger of collapsing

By Martin Crutinger
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The government said today its chief forecasting gauge of future economic activity shot up 1.4 percent in June, the biggest increase in 18 months.

The big advance in the Commerce Department's Index of Leading Indicators provided fresh evidence that the current recovery, which has already lasted a peacetime record of 69 months, is in no danger of collapsing.

Economists said they were not concerned that the huge jump in June's figure was a signal that the economy was in danger of overheating.

They said the increase was in large part a rebound from May, when the index had dropped by a sharp 0.8 percent.

The June advance was the biggest one-month gain since the index rose 2.2 percent in December 1986. It was the latest in a string of reports reflecting better-than-expected economic growth this year.

The government said last week that the economy, as measured by the gross national product, expanded at a 3.1 percent annual rate from April through June. This robust growth helped to push the unemployment rate down to a 14-year low of 5.3 percent in June.

This performance was a far cry from the recession that many analysts were predicting in the wake of last October's stock market crash.

In June, the strength in the leading index was widespread, with seven of the available nine components registering advances.

The biggest source of strength came from a 5.7 percent rise in stock prices in June. The increase in the Standard & Poor's index of 500 stocks was followed by a slowdown in business deliveries, considered a sign of increasing demand; an increase in plant and equipment orders; a drop in unemployment claims; an increase in building permits; a change in raw materials prices; and a rise in the money supply.

One indicator, orders for consumer goods, was a negative factor on the index and one other indicator, the length of the average workweek, was unchanged in June.

The 1.4 percent rise left the overall index at 194.9 percent of its 1967 base of 100.

The economy has been bolstered this year by a boom in U.S. export sales and heavy business investment.

The GNP, the total output of goods and services, grew at an annual rate of 3.4 percent in the first quarter and 3.1 percent in the second quarter.

The Reagan administration, which began the year forecasting GNP growth for all of 1988 at a lackluster 2.4 percent, is now forecasting growth of around 3 percent, when measured from the fourth quarter of 1987.

This is in line with the view of many private analysts, who see the economy slowing from the 3.3 percent average rate in the first six months of the year.

David Wyas, an economist with Data Resources Inc., a Lexington, Mass., forecasting firm, said he expected the GNP would grow about 2.8 percent this year, about the same as DRI was predicting before last October's stock market crash.

Allstate bans smoking

NORTHBROOK, Ill. (AP) — Allstate Insurance Co. enacted a smoking ban Monday in its 5,800 buildings and agent offices nationwide, becoming one of the largest companies to do so.

The ban, announced in February, prohibits smoking by employees in any facility, including insurance centers in Sears outlets and property assessment offices. Allstate is owned by Sears, Roebuck and Co.

The company has not decided what action to take with customers who smoke. No-smoking signs will be posted in all offices, and there will be no ashtrays. But a spokeswoman said there is no order to tell customers who insist on smoking to refrain from doing so.

The company based in this Chicago suburb initially tried to establish no-smoking policies, said Ed Dixon, vice president of human resources, but later decided the compromise did not meet its needs.

Carol is a new woman

STAMFORD (AP) — They're making a new woman out of Carol Wright. She is now the fictional character whose cameo picture appears on packets of manufacturers' coupons mailed to millions of U.S. households each year.

Donnelly Marketing Inc. of Stamford has started a gradual transformation of Carol's 19-year-old image in response to a consumer survey that found she was outdated.

"They (consumers) said she looked like Beverly S. mother, but later she was too perfect in every way, and that she probably did windows while wearing an apron and pearls," said Joe Fenon, director of marketing for the Carol Wright coupon program.

Fenton said customers thought Carol Wright looked old-fashioned; her hairstyle was outdated, for example, and the wide collar of her blouse gave away her age.

Sears to sell other brands

CHICAGO (AP) — Sears, Roebuck and Co., the nation's largest retailer, said it will start selling appliances and home electronics made by other companies.

Sixty national brands, including Sears' Kenmore appliances, will be available Thursday at 13 Indiana stores, the company said Monday.

That is a first step in a plan to sell other brands at its stores nationwide, said Michael Botz, chairman and chief executive officer of Sears Merchandise Group.

Telephones, stereo equipment, televisions, electronic office equipment and kitchen appliances are among the products to be offered, said Marvin Stern, a company vice president.

Lydall promotes Tournas

Arthur Tournas has been promoted to vice president, international sales, of Lydall International Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Manchester-based Lydall Inc.

Tournas joined Lydall in 1986 as technical director and vice president of research and development of its Composite Materials Division. He has held various management positions within Lydall, most recently as vice president, international agent sales, at the company's Technical Papers Division in Rochester, N.H. Before joining Lydall, Tournas was product development supervisor at Pecon Inc. in South Hadley, Mass.

He received a bachelor's degree from Lowell Technological Institute and a master's degree from the University of Maine. He also studied at Cornell University and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

No recalls or rebates with these cars

By Geoffrey Haynes
The Associated Press

DETROIT — At the research and development offices of these automakers, pushing a test car to the limits means giving it a good shove around a 28-foot plastic proving ground.

In the U.S. toy car industry, Matchbox Cars U.S.A. is one of the Big Three. Last year, the Moonachie, N.J.-based company sold 72 million vehicles — more than Ford Motor Co., Chrysler Corp. and General Motors Corp. put together.

The other members of the tiny Big Three — Mattel Inc., maker of Hot Wheels, and the upstart Galoob Toys Inc., maker of Micro Machines, are heavy hitters in a business devoid of controversy and lawsuits.

"We've never had a recall, we have no smog problems, no safety problems," said Larry Wood, Mattel's top designer of Hot Wheels cars.

Wood spent three years designing cars for Ford Motor Co. in Dearborn, Mich., in the 1960s before joining the Hawthorne, Calif.-based Mattel and downsizing his designs for the pint-size customer.

When I worked in Detroit, I did a few door handles and tail lights. So far, we've done every Hot Wheel car since 1968," he said.

These days, Wood is designing Hot Wheels' 1990 line, trying to anticipate the car buyers' desires nearly as far into the future as Detroit automakers.

"I think they have gone a little more conservative in the last few years. Now kids seem to like the standard sporty cars," he said.

"I anticipate designs, Woods shifts through automotive trade mags that often offer an advance peek of what Detroit, Tokyo or Stuttgart plan to offer in upcoming model years.

"If Detroit or Japan or Germany come out with an exciting car or different profile, we take a look at it," Wood said.

Matchbox was so taken by Ford's Taurus-Sable design, that it copied the new-age look for its 1:64 scale die-cast miniature.

"If we see a trend developing in auto design, we'll stay with the trend and capture it in our cars," said Jim Walsh, Matchbox marketing director.

"Obviously, the Ford Taurus is a pretty sleek car, and its something that's caught on with the public."

In September, South San Francisco, Calif.-based Lewis Galoob will offer toy cars that change color in the sun. The new line strays slightly from Galoob's philosophy of keeping its Micro Machines realistic.

"Kids are not crazy for fantasy," marketing manager Marjorie Forrest said. "They don't want a car that doesn't look like a car. Kids today are very sophisticated. They know what a (Lamborghini) Countach is and what a Rolls Royce is."

Galoob expects to sell 45 million vehicles in 1988, just its second year in the market. Its Micro Machines are about 1/4 inches long, smaller than Hot Wheels or Matchboxes, Forrest said.

Sports cars and military and construction vehicles are the hot sellers among the rug-running

SMALL-TIME DESIGNER — Ken Hill, senior designer for Matchbox Cars U.S.A., works on sketches for 1989 versions of his company's miniature toy cars. Last year Matchbox sold 77 million vehicles, more than Ford, Chrysler and General Motors put together.

Basically, kids like things that are power oriented. The feeling of speed or power is what kids gravitate to," said Matchbox's Walsh.

Adults and children apparently split the purchase evenly, said Mattel's Walsh, who often choosing what they see on television. For instance, a miniature version of the white Ferrari Testarossa driven in "Miami Vice" is one of the most popular.

The children show some loyalty toward American-made cars, Walsh says, because that's what they often see on the streets. That loyalty can carry over into their adulthood, he said.

"If they happen to like four-wheel-drive cars as a kid, there's a strong possibility they'll like four-wheel vehicles as an adult," Walsh said. "In my opinion, if you like a particular type of car as a kid, you're apt to grow up and like them."

"That's good news for Detroit automakers, who usually charge no royalties to miniature automakers who replicate their cars."

"Anytime you get your product in the mind of the car buyer or a young person, you enhance your reputation," said Chrysler spokesman B.F. Mullins.

"We think it does a lot of good. You get involved in a lot of shelf space in department stores. It allows young people involved in your product. The bottom line is considerability of your product."

When Chrysler introduced its Caravan and Voyager minivans, it passed out Matchbox versions to the press as souvenirs, Mullins said.

Ford officials review miniatures modeled after their cars to make sure they measure up.

"We want it (a toy) to be very authentic," Ford spokesman Dave Krupp said. "We want it to be accurate in every detail. We consider this child a future car buyer."

And while children are the primary market, collectors also make up small fragments of their sales. Walsh says there are about 20,000 Matchbox collectors in the country, who trade and sell vehicles, some worth up to $200 each.

Overall, the miniature car industry is cruising steadily.

"This is a field that is growing. But do not expect dramatic growth from one year to the next," said David S. Leibowitz, a toy industry analyst for American Securities in New York City.

The cars usually take nine months to get from the drawing board to production, which is usually performed at mini assembly lines in the Orient, Wood said.

Leak scam has non-Wall Street casualties

By Rick Gladstone
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — A probe into possible illegal trading based on leaked Business Week stock tips has prompted the firing of one printing worker in Connecticut and suspension of another, the first non-Wall Street casualties in the growing scandal.

R.R. Donnelley & Sons Co. of Chicago announced the disciplinary actions Monday and said it was continuing to investigate whether other members of its staff helped purloin "Inside Wall Street" columns to share with stockbrokers.

Donnelley spokesman James M. Ratcliffe said the first production employee, who had worked at the firm's printing plant in Old Saybrook, Conn., admitted furnishing advance copies of the columns to William Dillon, 33, of Old Lyme, Conn., a former Merrill Lynch broker in nearby New London who was fired last week.

Ratcliffe also said the company suspended a worker in its Torrance, Calif., plant after cooperating with Fraudulent-Bache Securities Inc., which fired broker Brian Callahan from its branch in nearby Anaheim on Friday.

Dillon refused to comment on his firing when contacted at his Old Lyme home Monday afternoon. But in an interview with The Day newspaper of New London, attorney Henry Putzley of New York City spoke confidentially about his client's future.

"The facts in this case are going to show he did nothing wrong," Putzley said. He would not answer specific questions about the case while investigations are pending.

Advance trading in stocks mentioned in Business Week columns was the printing company's action marked the first time since the burgeoning scandal surfaced late last month that individuals outside the investment business were disciplined.

In addition, four more investment firms acknowledged Monday that they are probing trading activity surrounding the columns prior to their publication. That raised the total number of firms disclosing their investigations to at least eight, amid reports that more than two dozen firms were being examined, and increased the likelihood that the scandal is far more widespread than earlier believed.

Mary McGeachy, public relations director for Business Week, declined to comment on the Donnelley actions, calling them a matter between the company and its employees. SEC officials also declined to comment in accordance with agency policy regarding current investigations.

Leaking and using market-sensitive information for trading in securities before it becomes public knowledge is loosely referred to as insider trading and is a form of fraud under federal law.

Business Week acknowledged on July 21 that it long had suspected leaks of tips in its "Inside Wall Street" column, which regularly touts little-known stocks as good buys.

Besides Merrill Lynch and Prudential-Bache, the Hartford, Conn., brokerage, Advent Inc. has suspended one of its brokers, and Shearson Lehman Hutton Inc. says it has fired a broker from the Hartford branch of E.F. Hutton Group Inc. also may have been involved before Shearson acquired Hutton earlier this year.

Asked if he expected more dismissals or suspensions, Ratcliffe said, "I have no reason to think there's another one imminent."

He said he'd been out of town for
