Social Security error may cost $50 a month

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten years of errors in federal records could cost the Social Security checks of 40 million recent retirees by $50 a month, a union says, and government auditors say there's a little chance of fixing the mistakes. Although a new agreement between two government agencies goes a long way toward preventing similar errors in the future, "early reconciliation results for past (error) backlogs are not encouraging," said Joseph F. Delicio, senior associate director of the General Accounting Office.

Crucial shuttle test is successful

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Space shuttle Discovery is on the launch pad today as NASA ignited its main engines in a crucial 22-second test leading up to the first U.S. manned space mission since the Challenger disaster 2 1/2 years ago. The firing, delayed five times in two weeks by leaks and other mechanical problems, checked modifications to the engines and other systems. It was critical to certifying the shuttle for the first post-Challenger launch.

Rate plan is last snag to 8th pact

By Alex Girelli and Andrew Yurkovsky Manchester Herald. Developing a sewer rate formula now is the only obstacle to a historic agreement between the town and Eighth Utilities District that portions of the two different approaches to a formula are proposed by the district. The Board of Directors' unanimous decision to accept the compromise sewer rate proposed by the district is contingent on the other side settling on a formula for future rates on Friday. The sewer rate issue has stalled approval of a historic accord that would settle long festering sewer and fire jurisdiction problems between the governments.

Law forced DEP to fund town plant

By Andrew Yurkovsky Manchester Herald. Manchester for funding those other projects. The state Department of Environmental Protection had no choice but to make up the $1 million in funding for the town's sewage treatment plant that is being withdrawn by the federal government, said the deputy commissioner today. Robert E. Moore, the deputy commissioner, said that under a special act of the Legislature that set up funding for the $27 million project, the EPA is committed to providing funding for a certain percentage of the project.

Judge dismisses charges

HARTFORD (AP) — Murder-related charges have been dismissed against one of four defendants in the slayings last year of two men after the victims broke up a late-night beer party.

Superior Court Judge Jonathan J. Kaplan on Tuesday dismissed two counts of conspiracy to commit murder against Bryan D. Patterson, 19, of Suffield in the July 11, 1987 shootings of Daniel A. Seymour, 25, of Suffield and William Price, 26, of Monroe.

Kaplan's decision supported one he had issued in May dismissing charges against Patterson for lack of evidence.

AIDS home to open

STAMFORD (AP) — Connecticut's first group home for AIDS victims is scheduled to open this November in a Stamford house that can accommodate up to eight people.

Local activists spent nearly a year searching for an affordable property before finding the three-story house that will be named for Stewart B. McKinney, the Republican congressman who died of AIDS complications in 1987.

He said the deal is expected to be completed in October, when the state Department of Human Resources releases $250,000 earmarked for the residence program.

Woman pushed from truck

ROCKY HILL (AP) — An 18-year-old Hartford woman was hospitalized with a broken collar bone, cuts and bruises after she was pushed from a pickup truck traveling at 60 miles per hour, state police said.

Authorities arrested George J. Stres, 44, of Wallingford in the incident on southbound Interstate 91 early Tuesday and charged him with first-degree assault and unlawful restraint, police said in a statement.

Police said Stres pushed the woman from the truck going 60 mph near Exit 23 after she opened the passenger door and threatened to jump because Stres would not stop and let her out. She had been picked up hitchhiking in Hartford.

Two projects delayed

BRIDGEPORT (AP) — Two construction projects are being delayed while the city hires an engineer to oversee the projects as required by a state law that resulted from last year's Ambiance Plaza building collapse.

The downtown Bridgeport Hilton parking garage addition and an East Side apartment building have been in since early June when a law went into effect requiring municipalities to designate independent engineering firms to monitor the construction of large buildings.

Plant to burn PCB oil

MONTVILLE (AP) — The Connecticut Light & Power Co. electrical generating plant here will begin burning oil containing low levels of PCBs, the toxic carcinogen used most often in electrical installations as a coolant and insulator.

An official of Northeast Utilities, the parent company of CLP, said Tuesday that about 6,000 gallons of oil containing low levels of PCBs, or polychlorinated biphenyls, will be disposed of here every two to three weeks. The plant generally burns 30,000 gallons of oil per hour.

Lawyer hits U.S. report on melee

HARTFORD (AP) — Lawyers suing the city police department say a federal official's report generating all but one unidentified police officer involved in a melee at a housing project was a whitewash.

"This was a one-lawyer-agency review of the actions of another law-enforcement agency," Wesley Spears, a lawyer representing a soccer coach in a lawsuit alleging police brutality in the incident, said Tuesday.

Spears told a news conference that the federal investigation was a rehash of an internal-affairs inquiry and did not break what he called "the conspiracy of silence" by police.

Federal investigators released a report last week concluding that one police officer, whose identity they could not determine, used excessive force in the arrest Aug. 12, 1987, of Timothy Moore, a 16-year-old suspect in an assault. They found no basis, however, for the allegations by two soccer coaches, Weldon L. Ricketts and Garnet Williams, who said they were brutalized by police when they intervened on Moore's behalf.

An unidentified officer struck Moore with a night stick after a lengthy foot chase. Four to six officers were present when the blow was struck. Police said Moore had assaulted a young woman with a chemical similar to Mace.

Ricketts, Williams and nearby soccer players approached the police, who said the coaches interfered in the arrest of Moore. The coaches said they were beaten. About 14 officers were called to quell the ensuing disturbance.

'Guidance' enough to halt beach debris

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration says "education and guidance" should be sufficient to halt the waves of dirty needles and other infectious debris that have made East Coast beach closures routine this summer.

Jeffrey D. Dent of the Environmental Protection Agency said Tuesday that the agency has no plans to impose regulations for medical waste disposal, despite a chorus of congressional criticism and public complaints.

He told a House subcommittee that educational efforts will remain the administration's key to fighting the medical waste problem and federal regulations will be used only if those fail.

But the congressional Office of Technology Assessment said continuing reports of hospital waste floating up on shores from Massachusetts to North Carolina are graphic reminders of a beleaguered system that lacks federal standards.

"No federal standards exist which comprehensively address the handling, transportation, treatment and disposal of biomedical waste," said Kathryn D. Wagner, an analyst for OTA, the technical research arm of Congress. She added that "less than a handful (of states) have truly comprehensive regulations."

OTA, in a preliminary assessment of the nation's biomedical waste problem, said the debris-ridden beaches are "symptoms of a deeper problem of inconsistency, confusion and a lack of coordination both at and between every level of management."

Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., chairman of the House Small Business subcommittee, on regulation and business opportunities, called the hearing in the wake of a recent spate of beach closings.

Beaches in New Jersey and New York have been the hardest hit, but hospital debris also has been reported in Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Maryland, North Carolina and on the Lake Erie shore in Ohio.

"This summer's medical waste problem is far more serious than the bloody syringes and vile specimens that have washed up," Wyden said. "These foul products are only the residue of a national waste management system that is broken and overloaded."

Wyden accused federal agencies of "bungling" the medical waste problem and attacked EPA for failing to set minimum standards for handling, transporting and disposing of medical wastes under the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act.

He also said the federal Centers for Disease Control have failed to recommend guidelines for waste handling and that the Occupational Safety and Health Administration has not acted to protect health care workers from exposure to AIDS and hepatitis.

But Dent said EPA rejects mandatory regulations.

Stamford still closed, but Fairfield is open

By The Associated Press

Public beaches in Stamford remained closed because of sewage washing ashore, but those in Fairfield were reopened after nearly two full days of combing for medical debris.

Health Director Dr. Andrew McBride said all four Stamford beaches would remain closed until at least this afternoon although tests indicated bacteria levels seemed to be going down.

McBride said he wanted to wait until the levels were consistently healthy before allowing bathing.

The Stamford beaches have been closed since last week when a mile-long sewage slick was discovered floating 100 to 500 yards off shore.

Fairfield's beaches were reopened Tuesday after sweeps by town crews found no more medical debris than the syringes discovered at three beaches on Sunday.

"There's no reason why we should be closed when none of the other beaches surrounding us is closed," Fairfield's acting health director, Arthur Leffert, said.

"Perhaps we're inspecting our beaches more closely than others, but there doesn't seem to be any reason for us to continue the swimming ban," he said.

One resident turned in a syringe Monday night that he said he found while walking at the west end of Saco Beach. Officials believe the five syringes found Sunday washed ashore from Long Island Sound, and Leffert said there is no evidence that the items were planted along the shoreline.

Democrats attack Weicker's TV ads

HARTFORD (AP) — State Democratic Party Chairman John F. Droney Jr. thinks U.S. Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr.'s shortcomings are best summed up by giving him a nickname like "Senator Snake Oil."

But to Clyde D. McKee, a political science professor and state politics expert from Trinity College, Droney's remarks on Tuesday sounded more like a calculated political gamble of a challenging party trying to unseat a popular incumbent.

"A party chairman has to be aware of how difficult it is to get into print and on television, so a premium is devoted to tricky little words, analogies and metaphors which are designed to get media space," McKee said.

"The danger is that one might misread the voters and the tactic might backfire."

Droney tossed out the ceremonial first barbs of the party's campaign to unseat Weicker during a news conference in his office at Democratic state headquarters.

"I'm going to begin calling him Senator Snake Oil because he seems more like a carnival pitchman, selling snake oil and empty promises," Droney told about a dozen reporters.

The press secretary for Weicker's Democratic opponent, Joseph I. Lieberman, Connecticut's attorney general, operated the remote control for a video-cassette recorder, stopping and starting as Droney pointed out what he considered inaccuracies in three Weicker campaign ads.

"I intend to call it like I see it and put (Weicker's) feet to the fire like they've never been before," Droney said. "He's not going to be in a pillow fight this time around."

Lieberman press secretary Maria Romash said afterward that Lieberman was aware a news conference was to be held but unaware of what Droney's specific comments would be.

Weicker is considered a solid favorite to retain his Senate seat for a fourth term. He has picked up traditionally Democratic endorsements from labor unions and the National Organization for Women. The most recent poll for The Hartford Courant, conducted in April, showed Weicker leading Lieberman 51 percent to 27 percent.

"You're seeing the traditional roles being played out," McKee said in a telephone interview from his office.

"When you find that type of gap, the challenging party will begin early and hit hard. That's to be expected," he said. "If you're an incumbent with the lead, what you want to do is contain the battle and keep a low profile."

Droney questioned one ad in which Weicker says he is "not here to represent Social Security" although the ad is paid for by the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee.

He said Weicker stretched the truth in a campaign commercial that says he helped establish the first Alzheimer's disease research center and helped save Social Security from bankruptcy.

"Weicker wasn't even a sponsor of the amendment that provided the funding for the (Alzheimer's) centers," Droney said. He also said that the three-term Republican missed a key vote on a bill that saved Social Security.

Weicker also drew Droney's wrath for a commercial focusing on his anti-drug efforts.

"I said he was lying, I said he was exaggerating, using Weickerisms. I'm not going to say a U.S. senator is lying," Droney said.

Jay P. Malenky, Weicker's campaign manager, said Droney's criticism didn't merit a point-by-point rebuttal. He also said Weicker wouldn't be drawn into negative campaigning, and added that he didn't think Connecticut citizens would look favorably upon such tactics.

"This kind of response is evidence of the level of frustration with their own campaign," Malenky said. "They're looking for anything to hang their hats on at this point."

Leftist becomes president

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — Leftist law professor Rodrigo Borja, who today replaces an archconservative as Ecuador's president, has pledged renewed ties with Nicaragua and an end to the nation's free market economy.

Borja, leader of the Democratic Left Party, succeeds Leon Febres Cordero, a bitter political rival and President Reagan's closest ally in South America.

A champion of free enterprise during his four-year term, Febres Cordero was barred from re-election by the constitution.

Demonstrations continue

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Demonstrators burned buildings and vehicles in the Burmese capital today and left the city barely functioning, diplomats said. The reported vandalism followed anti-government riots that left dozens dead.

Official Burmese media said at least 44 people had been killed and more than 100 wounded in rioting in the capital, Rangoon, and in 25 other areas of the country since Tuesday.

Peacekeepers sent to Gulf

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.N. officials say that unless withheld dues are paid, particularly by Washington, they'll be hard pressed to fund the force of international military observers monitoring a truce in the Iran-Iraq war.

A first contingent of five observers arrived in Tehran today, Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency reported.

Reagan to sign aid bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan plans to sign a $3.9 billion aid package for drought-stricken farmers that cleared Congress with overwhelming support in both the House and Senate.

"We have kept the faith," House Agriculture Committee Chairman E. "Kika" de la Garza, D-Texas, said Tuesday as the House approved the bill on a 383-18 vote. "Our promise has been kept."

Admiral rejects appeals

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — An admiral has rejected the appeals of four rescue instructors charged in the death of an airman who was dragged into a swimming pool while classmates sang to drown out his screams for help.

The decision means the instructors have exhausted their appeals.

The four had appealed the fines and reductions in rank they received in June as non-judicial punishment in the death of Lee Mirecki, 19, of Appleton, Wis.

Plan to ignore beggars

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Edward I. Koch has announced an advertising campaign to encourage people to give money to charities, rather than to panhandlers because, he says, most beggars are trying to rip people off.

The advertisements on subways will urge people to donate money to charities, so "they will know the money will go not for booze, not for drugs, but to provide maintenance for these people," the mayor said Tuesday.

8-8-8 comes a day late for N.Y. lottery fans

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Thousands of New Yorkers who took a cue from the date and bet the lottery number 8-8-8 on Monday weren't wrong. They were just early.

Eight-eight-eight was drawn Tuesday and paid out a total of $6,065,100 to thousands of people, a record payout for any three-digit or four-digit number in the lottery's history, said lottery spokesman George J. Yamin.

On Monday, the much-awaited 8-8-8, the winning number was an unremarkable 2-1-8.

Enough people carried over the previous record payout of $5,125,000 for the numbers 7-7-7, drawn in the last week of August 1987 in the Lottery's daily Wins-four game, Yamin said.

Officials were unsure how many individual 8-8-8 tickets were sold, Yamin said.

Demand for 8-8-8 in the numbers game was so great that the lottery stopped accepting bets on that number at 11:45 a.m. Tuesday, he said. On Monday, bets on 8-8-8 were halted at 9 a.m., he said.

The lottery limits the total amount that can be bet on any one combination of numbers to $10,000, capping the maximum total payout at $5 million normally, Yamin said. But a special promotion this week boosted the prize for a winning $1 bet to $600 from the usual $500.

MISTAKEN IDENTITIES — Parents of Wendy Liby, left, ended the life support for Kristine Bailor, right, who they believed was Wendy after authorities mistakenly identified her as their daughter following a car crash the two girls were in together Friday in Fort Wayne, Ind. Liby was killed in Friday's crash, while Bailor suffered massive injuries in the accident. Officials mistakenly identified Liby as Bailor, who died Saturday when Liby's parents terminated her life-support systems.

Bush likes latest poll showing 10-point gain

By Evans Witt The Associated Press

George Bush says he's gaining momentum after increasingly sharp exchanges with Michael Dukakis over image and issues, as a new poll gives Dukakis a smaller lead over the Republican vice president.

A Gallup Poll released Tuesday put Dukakis' margin at seven points over Bush, less than half of the 17-point edge the Massachusetts governor enjoyed coming out of the Democratic National Convention last month in Atlanta.

"I like it, I like it," Bush said Tuesday night in Philadelphia. While hastening to add he doesn't believe in polls any more, he said "it's a nice change" to narrow the gap.

Bush still has the Republican National Convention to come, beginning Monday in New Orleans, with its four nights of prime time partisanship designed to boost his standing with the voters.

Dukakis and Bush were both staying close to home today, with mostly private meetings in Boston and Washington, and the Democratic nominee was moving to blunt a stinging Republican attack on his support for a clean environment.

The Massachusetts governor will take part in the ground-breaking for a new sewage treatment plant on Boston Harbor, the first step in a $3 billion effort to clean up what the Environmental Protection Agency has called the filthiest harbor in the nation.

Bush had been getting some political mileage out of the harbor pollution. In his first term as governor, Dukakis opposed committing massive resources to the cleanup, a stance he now concedes was a

'Last Temptation' tempts criticism from reviewers

UNIVERSAL CITY, Calif. (AP) — "The Last Temptation of Christ," a film that is enraging segments of the Christian community for its reinterpretation of the Bible, is drawing mixed reviews as art on the secular front.

Included in the film is some nudity, Mary Magdalene playing her trade as a prostitute, and the scene that has most outraged its antagonists, in which the crucified Jesus hallucinates he marries her and has sex with her.

Film critics who viewed the R-rated movie in a Universal Studios screening room Tuesday, including Michael Medved of "Sneak Previews," Charles Champion of the Los Angeles Times and Bob Thomas of The Associated Press, said they were unimpressed overall.

"It's the height of irony that this level of controversy could be generated by a film this awful," said Medved.

"An intellectual exercise of the 'What if?' variety," Thomas said. "At times moving, often overwrought, and at least 40 minutes too long."

Daily Variety raved about the film as a work of fiction.

"A film of challenging ideas, and not salacious provocations," the industry paper's review said. And Time magazine's Richard Corliss wrote in his week's edition, "Those willing to accompany (director Martin) Scorsese on his dangerous ride through the Gospels may believe he has created his masterpiece."

Scorsese, who also directed "Taxi Driver" and "Raging Bull," defended the film Tuesday night on ABC-TV's "Nightline."

Regarding the sex scenes, he said, "It was important to show him go through all the steps of an ordinary life, to be married, to make love with his wife for the purposes of having children."

He denied any blasphemous intent.

"I'm a Catholic, raised Catholic," he said. "We have a right to explore God in our way."

As the critics watched, 150 protesters, none of whom had seen the film, rallied on another part of the studio lot to castigate Universal and its parent company, MCA Inc.

At the climax of the protest orchestrated by the Rev. R.L. Hyman Jr., a Baptist preacher, a mock crucifixion depicted a bloody waste of screaming as a man portraying MCA Chairman Lew Wasserman nailed him to a 10-foot cross.

"No disturberman, encountered later, would not acknowledge a reporter's questions.

Earlier protests have drawn protesters of anti-Semitism. Other Christian ministers denounced a march led by Hyman at a synagogue where he thought Wasserman worshipped.

There was no demonstration outside a New York screening.

Regarding the protests, Scorsese said, "I am not surprised if people being shocked by the idea of it. Not everybody's going to like it." But, he added, "I'm surprised at the anti-Semitism that's been brought around in the protesting."

"It's very important that people understand this film is not based on the Gospels. It's based on a work of fiction."

Scorsese said he was bothered by the Roman Catholic church's objectionable rating.

"It disturbs me I know but I do know the church has to protect what they feel is its flock. I do know that the book (on which the movie is based) is used in seminaries at times to open discussions."

The U.S. Catholic Conference said Tuesday it is urging the nation's 53 million Catholics not to see the film.

The furor is likely to boost the movie's fortunes, said Harold Vogel of Merrill Lynch Co. an entertainment industry analyst.

Richard Hirsch, director of communications for the U.S. Catholic Conference, acknowledged that dilemma, saying "It's a case of damned if you do and damned if you don't."

Bring Your Family to Manchester Community College

The Hillman family of Vernon did it. Grandmother, daughter and granddaughter graduated together in 1996; grandfather and another granddaughter followed in 1997. Age is no barrier to education at Manchester Community College.

For an inexpensive alternative path to earning a bachelor's degree, consider one or two years at MCC, then transfer to the college of your choice. For a degree in a special career field (over 40 to choose from), consider credit or non-credit courses at MCC.

We offer transfer, career, certificate and non-credit programs, with full-time or part-time schedules to fit your needs.

Walk-in Registration Now Open:

• Walk-in registration for credit courses is now in session every Tuesday and Wednesday, 9 a.m. - 7 p.m., and Thursdays, from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m., at the Registrar's Office in the new Lowe Building, West Campus. For a class schedule, call 647-6140 or 647-6141.

• Walk-in registration for non-credit weekend courses, and credit weekend campus and off-campus courses is being held Monday through Thursday, from 10 a.m. - 7 p.m., Friday, 9 a.m. - noon, in the Continuing Education Center on the East Campus. For a class schedule, call 647-6087 or 647-6088.

OPINION

Tenements not elegant, but needed

Rooming houses may not be the most elegant type of housing accommodation, but it appears clear that with the current shortage of affordable housing, allowing rooming houses that are in operation to continue will help provide a small amount of needed housing.

Obviously, the town's zoning enforcement officer had no choice but to order the owners of a building at 623 Main St. to stop using the third floor of the building for tenant occupancy. It does not satisfy the requirements for a tenement dwelling and, as far as the town can find in its records, was not licensed as a rooming house before zoning regulations were changed in the 1970s to prohibit the establishment of new rooming houses.

But another town official, John Salcius of the Health Department, contends that a rooming house is the best use of that third floor and that there is a need for rooming houses.

Salcius hopes the building owners will appeal the ruling of the zoning enforcement officer and seek a variance from the Zoning Board of Appeals to continue the operation.

To convert the place to meet the zoning requirement for tenements would probably involve heavy expenses and might not prove feasible.

The problem of illegal rooming houses is not new to Main Street. It has caused a good deal of ill-will in the past.

The ban on rooming houses in the zoning relations may have adequate justification, but in light of the housing and of the view expressed by Salcius, it might be well to take another look at the situation to see if some easing of the rules is advisable.

Delays Increase Main St. costs

To the Editor:

This is in reply to yet another letter addressing the Main Street plan and money-saving design deletions ("Open Forum," Aug. 2).

I need remind Mr. Lutz that this is where the problem first began? The last plan, with a projected cost of $6 million, was rejected several years ago in favor of a less costly design. The revised, "re-expensive" plan is now close to $15 million. Each delay results in higher construction costs. I say, let's move ahead before construction costs are prohibitive and Manchester Street is left unaided!

I would also like to clarify a misconception which was referred to in Mr. Lutz's letter: According to William Ginter of Fuss & O'Neill, the total projected number of parking spaces lost does not exceed 32.

I think all would agree that parking problems continue to plague downtown. The issue is being addressed by the survey of Main Street businesses. The results of this survey, currently being analyzed, will enable the Parking Authority to propose some long-term solutions. Indications are that the problem is one not for shoppers, but for full-time employees in the Central Business District using shoppers' spaces.

Capitol Comments

Bob Conrad

The real contest, however, was symbolically and practically between Flynn and O'Brien. In his endorsement of O'Brien, only a week or so before the convention, O'Neill talked of how loyal O'Brien had always been.

Now a lot has been said and written about liberals vs. the entrenched O'Neill organization, and about one union's man - Flynn - pitted against another's hero - O'Brien. Neither was the real issue all by itself.

In my opinion, the philosophical leanings of the candidates and their labor connections were only circumstances. This was, first and foremost, an exercise in political circumstances. The roles could have been reversed - make it a liberal governor and a conservative crowd knocking on the door - and the same dynamics would have applied. The people with the votes and the head man in charge of the candy store won.

Call it "revenge" by the governor if that satisfies an urge to explain what happened. But it was also a textbook example of how any "in" leadership must occasionally prune the tree. Nothing personal, understand.

Ironically, O'Brien didn't need the O'Neill endorsement. He had the votes he needed in hand. O'Neill's troops, working the convention floor after days on the phones, didn't need to apply a full-court press. "Just a half-court press," says State Chairman John Dronoy. But the perception within the party was that the proprietor of the candy store - or call it the power of the office - had carried the day in one more instance.

Political notes
Democratic State Chairman John Dronoy says, in reply to questions he heard, that the state convention could not have been scheduled to accommodate U.S. Senate candidate Joe Lieberman, who missed it because of his sabbath. The Hartford Civic Center had to be booked 18 months in advance, well before Lieberman became a candidate, Dronoy says.

Former State Tax Commissioner John Grogno of Winsted was back in the limelight last week, seconding the nomination of Bristol's Jim Griffin to challenge GOP Rep. Nancy Johnson of New Britain in the 6th Congressional District.

Memo delay could have cost her life

WASHINGTON - If not for government red tape, Carole Doster might be alive today.

In 1985, the 44-year-old State Department secretary wrote a memo asking security officers to keep her son out of the building where she worked. He was prone to fits of violence and Carole Doster feared for his life.

Nearly a month after Doster made her request, her 19-year-old son, Edward Steven Doster, smuggled a rifle and a knife into the heavily guarded State Department building in Washington. He shot and stabbed his mother to death and killed himself, just 120 feet from the offices of Secretary of State George Shultz.

The story behind the 1985 murder-suicide is that a piece of paper that might have saved Carole Doster's life was lost in a stack of paperwork until it was too late.

Steve Doster had a dependent's pass that allowed him entrance to the State Department building without going through metal detectors and without being searched. Because his mother was afraid of him, security guards in her building signed the paperwork to revoke that pass on June 21, 1985, but it was too late. She was killed that day, before the paperwork left the security office.

Steve Doster had walked into the building with a break-down 12-caliber rifle hidden in a canvas bag. Once inside, he assembled his weapon in a restroom.

Our associate, Scott Steck, has seen the recently declassified report of the State Department Inspector General's Office, which investigated the shooting. It shows that nearly two weeks may have passed from the time Doster wrote the memo to building security officials and the time she actually submitted it. The investigators also found that the memo may have sat on a security officer's desk for another 10 days.

The practice of giving passes to employees' family members dates back to the Iran hostage crisis, when defense families doing business at the State Department complained that they had trouble getting past security guards.

Steve Doster had been issued a dependent's pass at his mother's request in February 1985. While living with his mother, he displayed a violent temper. Steve Doster moved out of the apartment after she asked him to leave. Then, on May 30, Carole Doster wrote the memo requesting that her son's pass be revoked. She stamped her name on the memo, but for some reason did not submit it to the department's message center until the week of June 10. She may have been afraid of igniting her son's temper, or she may have been distracted by personal problems, the report said.

One June 11, Steve Doster showed up at the State Department carrying two knives. He was arrested by police on a prior assault charge.

After Doster's memo arrived at a security officer's desk, it sat unattended for more than a week. The officer told investigators that he routinely makes a quick check of all the mail before putting it in his "in-box" for later action. The officer didn't recall seeing Doster's memo in that basket until June 10. It may have been stuck or paper-clipped to another document which hid it, according to the investigators' report.

The officer, described in the report as meticulous, drafted an order to security personnel to revoke the pass on June 19. But he didn't sign the final order until June 21, the day Steve Doster used his pass for the last time.

Since the shooting, the State Department installed a computer-controlled pass system. Dependents must feed their fingerprints into a reader which then opens a turnstile to admit them to the building. The system can be quickly programmed to reject a pass. Employees must justify their request for a dependent's pass and the dependent is subject to an investigation.

Test results in, show no danger

DEAR DR. GOTT: I was subjected to a urinalysis and tested negative for everything but methanol with a level of 0.02. I've worked around solvents, but not for 18 months. I did recently paint some woodwork with enamel paint. What could produce this reading?

DEAR READER: Methanol (methyl or wood alcohol) is a toxic substance that can enter the body through the mouth or lungs. Methanol is a common industrial solvent that can cause illness. However, the upper limit of urinary methanol is 3 mg per deciliter. Since your level is well below that limit, I believe that you should have no worries about safety.

Unless you were using enamel containing methanol and working in a close space, I doubt that the point is the cause of the small amount of methyl alcohol in your system. This is more likely to have come from other vapors that you may have breathed inadvertently.

DEAR DR. GOTT: The word "paranoid" is being tossed around too much, I believe. Two parishioners referred to our minister as "paranoid." Well, if he is, he should leave his job and seek professional help, but if he's not, it's slanderous to use the word. Would you agree?

DEAR READER: Medically, paranoia refers to a mental disorder characterized by a complex system of delusional thinking in which the patient is convinced that he or she is being persecuted. Like many medical terms - such as "demented" and "retarded" - paranoia has entered our speech as a pop idiom, and it's often used incorrectly. Perfectly normal people who - for one reason or another - feel defensive are often labeled "paranoid" - although they are emotionally healthy.

The term is bandied about too much, but it's rarely meant to be seriously damaging. It's generally understood to be a slang description of someone who blames others for getting in his way.

However, people who use "paranoid" as part of their everyday speech might remember the term can be hurtful. All of us may act a little crazy and seem somewhat paranoid at times. However, true paranoia is said, destructive and requires professional help as you suggested.

Heads will roll

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater nearly lost his job during one of Nancy Reagan's fits of pique. Our sources in the White House say it happened earlier this year after ABC White House correspondent Sam Donaldson saw a memo he wasn't supposed to see.

The president's daily schedule includes a list of his appointments and "talking points" for each meeting - subjects to be covered, small talk and jokes. Someone left the suggested small talk in a packet of press releases and Donaldson read it on the air. The flummung first lady called Ken Duberstein, then assistant chief of staff. It was a blistering conversation and Duberstein promised that heads would roll. Fitzwater was home with the flu and couldn't explain how the leak happened.

Fortunately for him and any other staffers who might be fingered, the Panama crisis erupted hours later and the case of the leaked talking points was forgotten.

Smart Money

Bruce Williams

DEAR BRUCE: Last night as I was preparing dinner, I opened a jar of vegetables, and the most disgusting bug I've ever seen tumbled out into the colander when I drained off the liquid. Happily, nobody ate the thing, but the thought of that creature in my kitchen took away my appetite, and I'm still not able to eat comfortably.

When I told my husband I wanted to see the company that packaged this, he just laughed. He thought the whole incident was funny and said that there was no chance in the world of us getting any money from the company.

In fact, he thought it would be wrong to sue, because all we lost was a jar of vegetables. He is certain that the supermarket will give us a new jar. As a consumer, do I have to put up with such terrible product packaging for a while.

Also, there were no damages, so any action probably would be not sustained. Contact the manufacturer and tell them of your find. They may offer you some coupons for merchandise to make up for your difficulties.

DEAR V.E.: Sorry, but your husband and I see this thing about the same way. Fortunately, you were not

A little sweetheart to receive new beds

DEAR MR. ROSS: We're a family of five. For as long as I can remember, my little sister and my two older brothers have had to share a bed on the floor. That's because my mom can't buy us bunk beds, although she's a very good mom.

We always talk about how mom hides her hurt because she can't give us any better, but we love her and tell her it's all right - we understand. We're proud of our mom - she stayed by us even when our dad walked out.

Sometimes we have a hard time when it comes to keeping things going. We've seen times when mom wouldn't eat because there just wasn't enough and she'd say, "I didn't buy much some beds."

So that my mom can eat more meals with us, could you please help her get two bunk beds? We could really use your help and if we could get you forever. I sure hope I don't get in trouble for writing this. Mr. Ross - just don't think I'm a bad girl for asking.

M. MIDDLETOWN, N.Y.

Thanks A Million

Percy Ross

DEAR A.A. A bad girl? A little sweetheart is what you are! If you were here now, you'd get a big hug and not a scolding.

The check I've mailed your mom will cover two new sets of bunk beds, plus some extra for sheets. Thanks for the opportunity to help a most deserving family.

DEAR MR. ROSS: I'm studying Mortuary Science. Our department has an arrangement with several state institutions to embalm deceased indigents prior to their burial.

We prepare, embalm and dress these people - except for underwear. The clothing is donated by students and faculty, yet no underwear is available. Instead, we cut holes in plastic trash bags to serve this purpose.

DEAR MR. D.: Yours is not a question of being a legitimate request so much as it is a matter of true need. As I see it, we come into this world without underwear, so what's the big deal leaving without it?

Sorry, but I'm certain that when our Maker calls us home, there's no one posted at the front gate checking for proper attire.

DEAR MR. ROSS: I know you receive thousands of letters a week and many of those people are worse off than me. But I don't have anyone else to turn to.

Most of the time I go barefoot and I'm hoping you can help me out with just one pair of shoes that don't hurt to wear.

I know you're probably thinking why can't I get myself a pair. Well,

O'Toole gets custody

FREEHOLD, N.J. (AP) - Actor Peter O'Toole won custody of his 5-year-old son during school holidays in December and April and in the summer.

"I think she hoped to have been given the opportunity to co-educate the boy, but she will abide by the judge's decision," said her attorney, Gary Newman.

The Irish-born O'Toole, 56, met Ms. Somerville O'Toole, 36, six years ago when she lived in California. Ms. Somerville O'Toole was never married to the actor but took his name, now lives in Navesink, N.J., and New York City.

Arsenio Hall has show

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Arsenio Hall, who co-stars in the hit movie "Coming to America" with fellow comedian Eddie Murphy, plans to host a new TV talk show beginning next year.

"The Arsenio Hall Show," set to debut Jan. 2, marks Hall's second attempt at a nightly interview program. Hall had served as host of "The Late Show" on Fox Broadcasting until earlier this year when the program was replaced.

During a news conference Tuesday, Hall said his show "will try to do something different... Every night is going to be a party. We're going to have a lot of fun."

The one-hour program will be distributed by Paramount Domestic Television, and has been sold to eight of the nation's top 10 television markets.

Keaton earns praise

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Critics have liked Michael Keaton's dramatic portrayal of a drug addict in "Clean and Sober," but the actor says the praise shouldn't extend to his character.

"I thought there was nothing redeemable about this guy. There was nothing likeable about him," Keaton said of the movie that's being released today.

It was the second movie role Keaton accepted with reluctance, the first being the box-office hit "Beetlejuice."

It was also a dramatic departure for the star of "Mr. Mom," "Johnny Dangerously" and "Nightshift."

Studios to move

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - Universal Studios is moving to a new home, and who better to spread out the welcome mat than Norman Bates - Anthony Perkins, actually - in his latest "Psycho" movie?

In addition to "Psycho IV," new "Lassie" and "Beaver" television series will be shot when Universal begins production at its new Orlando home, the company said Tuesday.

Universal, competing with the new Disney-MGM Studios, said the 44-acre studio complex will begin filming 18 episodes of "The New Leave It To Beaver" for cable Oct. 10.

Discount rate hike is likely to mean other rate hikes

NEW YORK (AP) — The Federal Reserve's unexpected jolt to its key bank lending rate — to a 2 1/2-year high — likely will push other interest rates higher, including those on home mortgages, economists predict.

The Fed announced Tuesday it was raising its discount rate to 5 percent from 4 1/2 percent, to help curb inflation and to account for the recent rise of open-market interest rates.

The discount rate is the interest the central bank charges on loans to member banks. A change in the closely-watched rate is the most dramatic move the Fed can make in signaling its credit policies.

Because the banks set their interest rates based on how much it costs them to borrow money, many economists predict other rates will edge higher due to Tuesday's action. That likely will mean consumers will have to pay more for credit on houses, cars and items charged on credit cards.

"I wouldn't be surprised if we had another (bank) prime rate hike by Friday," said David Resler, chief economist for Nomura Securities Inc.

Financial markets reacted quickly to Tuesday's move, with the dollar soaring and stock and bond prices falling sharply.

The dollar jumped to 125.15 Japanese yen in New York from 133.725 yen late Monday, and rose sharply against other major currencies.

On Wall Street, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial fell 28.27 points to 2,079.13, amid speculation of further rate hikes.

In the credit markets, the Treasury's belated 30-year bond fell by about $10 per $1,000.

Insider trading bill gets committee OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House should get a chance to vote on a bill that would crack down on insider trading, but the rapidly dwindling congressional calendar is clouding the legislation's future.

The House Energy and Commerce Committee approved the measure on a voice vote Tuesday. The House is expected to vote on the proposal shortly after lawmakers return in September from their next recess.

Similar legislation has yet to progress very far in the Senate. With congressional leaders hoping for adjournment in early October, dramatic movement would have to occur for the measure to have any chance of becoming law this year.

Sponsor Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., called the legislation a "tough, common sense bill," and said it was justified because of the "stunning stories of greed" that continue to emanate from Wall Street in the form of insider trading cases.

Under the legislation, securities firms would be required to construct mechanisms for detecting insider trading by their employees. Companies could face fines if they do inadequate jobs of preventing the release of confidential financial information by their workers.

face amount, while its yield jumped to 9.19 percent from 9.10 percent late Monday.

A month ago, major banks boosted their prime lending rates to 8 1/2 percent, the highest level in more than two years, from 9 percent in response to rising interest rates in the credit markets, which had boosted the banks' cost of borrowing.

The prime is a key rate used to calculate a range of fixed and adjustable-rate corporate and consumer loans.

Many economists had expected the Fed to tighten its reins on the money supply this week, but few were expecting a discount rate hike.

"The (credit) markets have been screaming for a discount rate increase for quite some time; the surprise was in the timing of it," said Irwin Kellner, chief economist for Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co.

"Not only is the Republican convention coming up, but we're in the middle of a Treasury refunding," in which the government is auctioning off $22 billion in new notes this week to pay off its old debts, Kellner said.

I don't think inflation is any worse today than it was last year," said Kellner.

Robert A. Brusca, chief financial economist for Nikko Securities Co. International Inc., defended the discount-rate hike.

"It's the Fed's job to throw cold water on the economy when it starts overheating and that's what it appears to be doing right now," he said.

Among recent signs of economic strength are the July unemployment rate, which at 5.4 percent was near its 14-year lows.

People who provide the government with information about illegal insider trading could receive bounties which would be a portion of the profits that were earned illicitly.

The maximum jail term for insider trading convictions would be lengthened from five years to 10 years.

Another section would authorize the Securities and Exchange Commission to cooperate with foreign countries that are investigating insider trading cases, in hopes that this would encourage the other nations to help U.S. authorities pursuing similar cases abroad.

The government made no accusations of wrongdoing against any of the firms or banks whose assets have been frozen.

The district judge had barred the government from distributing copies of his freeze order pending a hearing on the appeal.

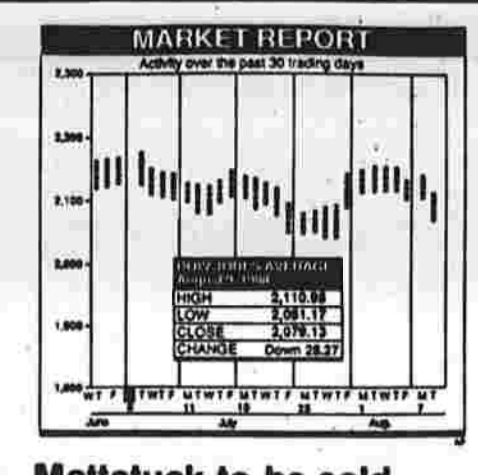

IN BRIEF

EB, union to meet
GROTON (AP) — Negotiators from Electric Boat and the Metal Trades Council will meet Thursday in Washington to try to settle a 41-day-old strike by 10,000 blue-collar workers at the submarine shipyard.

Leaders from both sides will sit down at 11 a.m. with the director of the federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, who confirmed the meeting Tuesday after phone conversations with union and company officials.

The meeting will be the second between the two sides since a strike began July 1. Negotiations held in Norwich on July 15 were unsuccessful.

"We're willing to do it," said Joseph W. Messier, president of the Metal Trades Council. "I'd like to see a breakthrough. I want to get this wrapped up as much as anybody does. Just hope we're not getting our hopes up for nothing."

GE sells to East Germany
EVENDALE, Ohio (AP) — General Electric Co. announced it is supplying $55 million worth of jet engines to power three aircraft for Interflug, East Germany's state-owned airline.

General Electric officials said Tuesday Interflug chose the GE-built CP8-40C2 turbofan engine to power three Airbus Industrie A310-300 jetliners. Delivery of the two-engine A310s is scheduled to begin in the first quarter of 1989.

In order to comply with U.S. export license requirements, the West German commercial airline Lufthansa has agreed to perform all aircraft and engine maintenance in Hamburg, West Germany, GE officials said.

In Waterbury, will be purchased by Teleflex Inc. of Limerick, Pa., which makes technical products for the aerospace, medical and automotive industries.

Mattatuck employs about 500 workers in Waterbury. Loggill has a workforce of about 40. Included in the sale are Mattatuck's two facilities in Virginia.

Mattatuck to be sold
WATERBURY (AP) — Mattatuck Manufacturing Co. and a sister company, Loggill Technical Plastics Inc. are being sold to a multinational corporation with headquarters in Pennsylvania, officials of the firms announced.

Mattatuck, a manufacturer of automobile cables, and Loggill, both based in Waterbury, will be purchased by Teleflex Inc. of Limerick, Pa., which makes technical products for the aerospace, medical and automotive industries.

Bypass benefits modest

BOSTON (AP) — Having a coronary bypass operation modestly improves the chances of long-term survival among heart disease patients who are considered at high risk, according to a study of more than 750 men.

During the years soon after the operation, bypass patients do considerably better than those treated with medicine alone. However, the differences between the two groups gradually fade as time goes by.

"The reasons for the loss of a beneficial effect of surgery after five years are unknown and merit further study," wrote the authors of the study, conducted in Europe.

Coronary bypass operations are often performed to relieve the symptoms of heart pain called angina. Whether the surgery helps people live longer is controversial. It is at high risk because of abnormal electrocardiograms and other signs of heart trouble.

Baby shows magic of monarchy

LONDON (AP) — She's only fifth in line to the throne, but the hospital crowds to the headlines, the birth of Britain's newest princess, the 378,900-circulation Independent, ignored or paid little attention to the birth of the queen's fifth grandchild.

"We are not much interested in minor royals, but we did record the event," said John Price, news editor of the Independent, which gave the story three lines on page 2. "The Independent's view is that these people don't matter."

It was a lonely view. Compared with the attention given to Europe's other major surviving monarchies — the Spanish, the Scandinavians, the Dutch and the Belgians — Britain erupted with royal fever.

The monarchs of Sweden, Denmark and Norway attract plenty of attention among their Scandinavian subjects, but not much elsewhere.

In the Netherlands, by the time former Queen Juliana's youngest grandchild, also Juliana, was born in October 1981, interest in royal babies had cooled. The little Juliana was the ex-queen's 13th grandchild. In Sweden, the birth in 1982 of a third child, Princess Madeleine, to King Carl Gustaf and Queen Silvia, dominated the local news but did not make world headlines.

The former Sarah Ferguson had no title, was a commoner, had two serious romances before Andrew, and pursued her career in a graphic arts company.

"From the literally thousands of letters we get — from Americans, Germans, Japanese — wanting information about the royal family, it's clear that royal-watching has become as much a hobby as stamp-collecting," said Brooks-Baker.

The birth of the Princess of York received more publicity in Britain than did the birth in 1947 of Prince Charles, heir to the throne, he said.

"This interest in things royal is a great snowball," interesting, and also terrifying," said Brooks-Baker.

Education choice Formula is questioned as an election ploy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hispanic Americans say they're pleased that President Reagan has finally named one of their own to his Cabinet, but many see it as a last-minute, election-year ploy.

"I'm sorry that it took so long. It's obviously a political move to ingratiate," said Jose de Lara, president of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

But, he added, "whether it's political or not political, we don't care. It's a giant step for Hispanic Americans."

Calling it "a proud day for all Americans," Reagan announced on Tuesday his selection of Lauro Cavazos, president of Texas Tech University, to succeed William Bennett as secretary of education.

Reagan took the action about a month after Vice President George Bush pledged to de Lara's group that he would put a Hispanic on his Cabinet if elected president.

Asked whether that played a role in his decision, Reagan said, "No, I'm just still working at the job here."

Of Cavazos, he said: "I selected him because he seemed to be the best-fitted man."

Henry Santestevan, a consultant to a Washington-based educational research organization, the Hispanic Policy Development Project, said, "I think it's high time and I'm sorry that it's so late that it now has the aspect of a strictly political move to affect the campaign."

Alicia Sandoval, spokeswoman for the National Education Association, called the nomination "just a ploy to help get Bush elected, and carry Texas. A classic case of tokenism."

"We are glad that the Reagan administration has finally appointed a Hispanic to the Cabinet, especially in the education field," Ms. Sandoval said. "However, we feel this particular announcement is politically motivated. Cavazos is like a substitute teacher. He won't have the clout to change anything in the little time he has."

Bush's pledge in July was a measure of the political importance of Hispanics, particularly in key battleground states such as Texas, California and Florida which have large Spanish-speaking populations.

Since 1980, the number of Hispanics in the United States has increased 30 percent, to 19 million, accounting for about 7.9 percent of the nation's population.

Cavazos, 61, appeared with Reagan in the White House briefing room and said, "This administration has clearly demonstrated that education is one of

OSHA halts fine hearings of L'Ambiance

BOSTON (AP) — Federal hearings concerning the $5.1 million in safety fines leveled against contractors involved in the L'Ambiance Plaza building collapse in Bridgeport have been temporarily halted.

Richard DeBenedetto, a federal administrative law judge in Boston, said Tuesday he ordered the stay in response to a July 25 request from government lawyers representing the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

DeBenedetto is presiding over hearings in which four contractors are contesting federal allegations that they employed unsafe practices, some of which may have led to the April 23, 1987 collapse that killed 28 workers at the Connecticut construction site. The companies are also challenging the fines, among the highest ever levied by OSHA.

DeBenedetto said he hopes the temporary halt in the hearings will aid efforts to reach out-of-court settlements in separate, civil lawsuits related to the building collapse. Those efforts are being directed by U.S. District Judge Robert C. Zampano in Connecticut.

Lawyers involved in the cases have argued that legal costs in the OSHA matter before DeBenedetto should be saved for possible use in the settlement effort.

Albert H. Ross, regional solicitor for the U.S. Department of Labor, which represents OSHA, said his office had not been asked to participate in the mediation efforts in the L'Ambiance case, but would do so if asked.

DeBenedetto said his order effectively halts the proceedings in Boston through Sept. 15, "so that the settlement process may be facilitated."

its highest priorities, and the initiatives that you have begun in this vital area will be of tremendous benefit to this nation and to this nation's future."

Cavazos, who has been president of Texas Tech in Lubbock since 1980, had announced in May that he planned to resign next July. He said he planned to take a leave and then return to teach anatomy in the medical school, where he is a tenured professor.

The educator is a native of South Texas, where his father was a foreman on the Santa Gertrudis division of the huge King Ranch. He and his wife, the former Peggy Murdock, have 10 children.

Cavazos received the National Hispanic Leadership award of the League of United Latin American Citizens in July for his efforts to reduce the dropout rate among Hispanic youth.

He is a former dean of the Tufts University School of Medicine. He began his teaching career as an associate professor of anatomy at the Medical College of Virginia.

At Tech, he headed a university and health sciences center with more than 24,000 students and 8,500 employees.

"His story is an American success story," Bennett said of Cavazos. "It is a tribute to his ability, to his hard work and to opportunity in the United States of America."

Cavazos is not a medical doctor, but received a Ph.D. in 1954 from Iowa State University. He earned his bachelor's and master's degrees at Texas Tech.

services from which it does not directly benefit. Attorney John D. LaBelle Jr., the district's lawyer, has said the town takes the approach that if it were running the Eighth District sewer service, it could do so for "X number of dollars."

LaBelle says the approach is unrealistic first because the town is not operating the district system and second because the assumptions it makes about how much it would cost to do so may not be valid.

In an effort to meet the Friday deadline the town has set for itself, Huestis will probably meet today with a representative of Lombardi Associates of Vernon, the consulting engineers for the district, DiRosa said today.

DiRosa said others who have been negotiating the agreement will not get involved until Huestis and the Lombardi representative have met.

While the town has set the Friday deadline for itself, the district's deadline for acceptance of its order is Monday, when the district directors are scheduled to meet.

If the agreement is completed by then, the district directors will not go forward with plans to seek bids for a firehouse to serve Buckland. Under terms of the agreement already reached, but not made public in detail, the district would acquire a town-owned firehouse on Tolland Turnpike.

At the Monday meeting, the district directors will hold a public hearing at which district residents are invited to comment on the sewer rates and on other aspects of the agreement.

The 95-cent rate agreed upon would replace rate of $1.26 cents originally set by the town's Board million cases of missing or discrepant employer wage reports that accumulated between 1978 and 1983," Neal said. "What SSA means, however, is that it considers these cases closed."

"Unfortunately, for hundreds of thousands of these cases, the agency made no effort to correct the records because the amount involved was, in its view, 'too small,'" Neal said.

Arthur S. Flemming, who heads another advocacy group called the Save Our Security Coalition, told the subcommittee that Congress should make it possible for workers to correct their own earnings records, even though a mistake may not be discovered until they retire. Present law generally permits corrections only within three years, three months and 15 days from the end of a tax year.

Norman Goldstein, chief financial officer of SSA, urged workers to use a new government form to make sure that their own Social Security earnings records are correct before they reach retirement age.

The form, SSA-7004, is available in Social Security offices or by calling 1-800-937-2000.

on Friday, allows the town to continue the expansion and upgrading of the secondary facility on wetlands in exchange for a fine of $300,000, to be split by the town and the project engineer.

Moore said that in negotiations toward that settlement, the DEP refused to let the EPA withdraw the funding for the Manchester project unless the EPA made it possible for the withdrawn money to be applied to other projects in the state.

"It's their (the EPA's) proposal," Moore said.

Paul Keough, the EPA's deputy regional administrator, could not be reached for comment this morning.

Funding for the upgrading and expansion of the sewage treatment plant was to be provided by a federal grant of $10 million and a state loan of $14 million.

2 men trapped after explosion

EAST GRANBY (AP) — An explosion at a construction site here today left two men trapped in a 20-foot ditch, according to a police spokeswoman.

The explosion occurred at 9:54 a.m., when the men, who have not been identified, were working with blasting caps in a ditch on School Street, according to Marcy Stamm, spokeswoman for the state police.

Highway closed by chemical spill

KILLINGLY (AP) — A tractor-trailer rig carrying a load of isopropyl alcohol overturned on Interstate 391 in Killingly today, forcing authorities to close the highway in both directions, state police said.

The rig, heading northbound on the highway, rolled over on the center median about 5:30 a.m., according to state police Sgt. Robert Slattery.

Troopers shutdown the highway in both directions between exits 91 and 93, Slattery said, and the state Department of Environmental Protection was called to the scene.

AUG 10 1988

Warmer weather tempts most of us out-of-doors—and away from heavy cooking. Appetites change, too, during the spring/summer months, giving cold or clear soups and colorful salads special appeal.

In keeping with the season—and today's trend towards lighter, more nutritious foods that please the eye as well as the palate—here's a selection of dishes that fill the bill in innovative ways. While offering fresh, often surprising ideas and combinations, all are simple to prepare with minimal kitchen duty and take advantage of three perfectly compatible ingredients including crisp, crunchy California Iceberg Lettuce, delectable California cling peaches in convenient canned form and three very adaptable, premium quality Norwegian cheeses.

Chock-full of vegetables with low-fat, high-protein chicken as a base, Chicken-Lemon Soup has a pleasantly tart, slightly Oriental flavor. Healthful California-grown cling peaches—they're lighter packed in natural juice or extra light syrup—marry deliciously with fresh ginger. Shredded Iceberg Lettuce, another gift from California, provides pleasing texture and, from Norway, mild nutty tasting Jarlsberg cheese mellows and complements the blend.

Try a zesty Mexican Stir-Fry Salad served warm, in contemporary style, over cooling lettuce, sumptuously finished with grated Jarlsberg.

Highlighting another cheese from Norway, subtly spiced Nokkelost—like Jarlsberg it's made from part-skim milk and melts readily—Hot Nokkelost Salad is sparked with an addictive Herbed Sherry Vinaigrette. Cling peaches give a luscious, refreshing accent... low in sodium, loaded with Vitamins A and C plus niacin, they carry a slim 50 calories per 1/2-cup serving.

A complete light meal, it takes just a few minutes to put together this pretty Pasta Salad In Lettuce Cups. Once again, you're starting with California Iceberg Lettuce—because nobody gets bored with it. Only 100 calories per average head (less than 20 per serving), Iceberg is also a source of Vitamins A and C, thiamine, fiber and vegetable protein.

And that's merely a sampling of the creative possibilities. For example, Cold Peach And Pea Bisque stands alone as a seductive warm weather treat, doubles as an elegant yet easy appetizer course for a gala dinner: unique, creamy Norwegian Gjetost cheese, with its touch of natural sweetness, enriches this wonderfully smooth, slightly minty soup. Served with hot, crusty bread, Warm Smoked Chicken Salad is a sophisticated yet uncomplicated lunch or supper main dish. Highly versatile Iceberg—also called Crisphead lettuce since the days when Christopher Columbus brought the first seeds to the New World—lends a fresh, delicate counterpoint as it does in so many different salads. Jarlsberg strips enhance the savory mixture.

CHICKEN-LEMON SOUP

- 2 full chicken breasts, skinned (about 1-1/4 lbs.)
- 1 carrot, peeled and chunked
- 1 stalk celery, chunked
- 4 cloves garlic, pressed
- 1 teaspoon whole black peppercorns
- 8 cups cold water
- 1 can (16 oz.) California cling peach halves in juice or extra light syrup, drained and diced
- 1/3 cup each thinly sliced green onions and chopped cilantro*
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 2 Tablespoons chopped, fresh ginger
- 1 Tablespoon each chopped, fresh mint and grated lemon peel
- 2 teaspoons instant chicken bouillon
- 1/4 teaspoon red pepper flakes, or to taste
- 3 cups shredded California Iceberg Lettuce
- 1-1/2 cups grated Jarlsberg cheese

Place chicken, carrot, celery, garlic, peppercorns and water in large pot. Bring to a boil; simmer 15 minutes, until chicken is cooked through. Remove chicken. Remove meat from bones; shred and reserve. Strain broth, discarding vegetables. Return strained broth to pot; add remaining ingredients except Iceberg Lettuce and cheese. Simmer 5 minutes. Stir in shredded chicken. Ladle soup into bowls; top with shredded lettuce and grated cheese to serve.

Makes 6 servings.
*Or 2 tablespoons freeze-dried cilantro.

MEXICAN STIR-FRY SALAD

- 1 can (16 oz.) California cling peach slices in juice or extra light syrup
- 6 cups shredded California Iceberg Lettuce
- 1 tomato, thinly sliced
- 1/4 cup vegetable oil
- 4 boneless, skinless chicken breasts, cubed (about 1-1/4 lbs.)
- 1 teaspoon each chili powder and ground cumin
- 1 can (4 oz.) whole, roasted green chiles, cut in strips
- 1 jar (4 oz.) roasted red peppers, drained and cut in strips
- 1/2 cup corn kernels
- 1/4 cup chopped cilantro
- 2 Tablespoons cider vinegar
- 1/2 cup grated Jarlsberg cheese

Drain peaches, reserving liquid for other uses. Arrange shredded Iceberg Lettuce and tomato slices on 4 plates; set aside. Heat oil in large frying pan. Stir in chicken; cook over medium heat until lightly browned. Stir in spices; cook 1 minute. Stir in chiles, roasted red peppers, corn, cilantro and reserved peaches; cook 1 minute. Stir in vinegar and remove from heat. Spoon chicken mixture over lettuce on plates. Top with Jarlsberg cheese to serve.

WARM SMOKED CHICKEN SALAD
(Not Pictured)

- 8 cups shredded California Iceberg Lettuce
- 1/4 cup parsley leaves
- 1 can (16 oz.) California cling peach slices in juice or extra light syrup
- 3 Tablespoons each vegetable oil and olive oil
- 1 shallot, minced
- 1 Tablespoon Balsamic vinegar
- 1/2 teaspoon Dijon-style mustard
- 1/4 teaspoon thyme
- 1/2 lb. small, new potatoes, cooked until tender, sliced
- 6 oz. smoked chicken or smoked turkey, shredded
- 1 cup green beans, cooked until tender-crisp
- 1/4 cup walnut pieces, toasted
- 1/2 cup Jarlsberg cheese strips

Arrange Iceberg Lettuce and parsley on 4 plates; set aside. Drain peaches, reserving liquid for other uses. Heat 1 tablespoon vegetable oil in small frying pan. Stir in shallot; cook until soft. Whisk in remaining vegetable oil, olive oil, vinegar, mustard and thyme. Heat, whisking constantly, until dressing is hot and emulsified. Stir in reserved peach slices, potatoes, shredded chicken or turkey, beans and walnuts. Stir gently to coat well. Spoon mixture over shredded lettuce on plates. Top with Jarlsberg cheese strips to serve.

Makes 4 servings.

HERBED SHERRY VINAIGRETTE

- 2 Tablespoons sherry vinegar
- 1 Tablespoon reserved peach liquid
- 2 teaspoons snipped chives
- 1 teaspoon chopped fresh thyme*
- 1/2 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1/4 cup each olive oil and vegetable oil

Whisk together all ingredients except oil. Whisk in oil in slow, steady stream. Makes 3/4 cup.
*Or 1/2 teaspoon dried chives and 1/4 teaspoon dried thyme.

LEMON-DILL DRESSING

- 1 cup plain yogurt
- 2 Tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 Tablespoon each peach liquid and chopped fresh dill
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel

Whisk together all ingredients. Chill until ready to use. Makes 1 cup.

HOT NOKKELOST SALAD

- 1 can (16 oz.) California cling peach slices in juice or extra light syrup
- 6 oz. Nokkelost cheese, sliced into 4 squares
- 4 thin slices French bread, lightly toasted
- 2 Tablespoons sliced natural almonds, lightly toasted
- 4 California Iceberg Lettuce "rafts"
- 1/2 English cucumber, thinly sliced
- 1 red pepper, cut in strips
- Sprigs of chives and thyme for garnish
- Herbed Sherry Vinaigrette (recipe left)

Drain peaches, reserving 1 tablespoon liquid for use in vinaigrette; save remainder for other uses. Place cheese squares on French bread rounds; sprinkle tops with sliced almonds. Bake at 350°F, 2-3 minutes, until cheese begins to melt. Meanwhile, place Iceberg Lettuce rafts on 4 plates. Arrange peach slices, cucumber rounds and red pepper strips on rafts in fan shape. Place a heated cheese crouton on lettuce raft; garnish with chives and thyme. Drizzle with Herbed Sherry Vinaigrette to serve. Makes 4 servings.

*One head of Iceberg Lettuce cut crosswise into 4, 1-inch thick slices.

PASTA SALAD IN LETTUCE CUPS

- 1 can (16 oz.) California cling peach halves in juice or extra light syrup
- 2 cups egg twist pasta
- 1 cup chunked California Iceberg Lettuce
- 1/4 lb. Nokkelost cheese, cubed (about 1-1/2 cups)
- 1 oz. prosciutto or smoked ham, cut in thin strips
- 1 red pepper, diced
- 1/2 cup frozen petite peas, thawed
- Lemon-Dill Dressing (recipe left)
- 6 California Iceberg Lettuce "cups"

Drain peaches, reserving 1 tablespoon liquid for use in dressing; save remainder for other uses. Cook pasta according to package directions, until just tender; drain and cool. Combine pasta, peaches, chunked Iceberg Lettuce, cheese, prosciutto, red pepper and peas in large bowl. Toss with Lemon-Dill Dressing. Spoon pasta salad into lettuce cups to serve. Makes 6 servings.

*Whole leaves lifted from a cored head of Iceberg Lettuce.

COLD PEACH AND PEA BISQUE
(Not Pictured)

- 2 Tablespoons butter
- 1/3 cup thinly sliced green onions
- 2 cans (14.5 oz. each) chicken broth
- 2 cups shredded California Iceberg Lettuce
- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen peas, thawed
- 1 can (16 oz.) California cling peach halves in juice or extra light syrup
- 1 small potato, peeled and cubed (about 1 cup)
- 1 Tablespoon each chopped fresh mint and chopped fresh dill*
- 1 cup grated Gjetost cheese
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 3/4 cup light cream
- 8 California Iceberg Lettuce leaves
- Mint and dill sprigs for garnish

Melt butter in large saucepan. Stir in green onions; cook over medium heat until soft. Stir in chicken broth, shredded Iceberg Lettuce, peas, undrained peaches and potato. Simmer 25 minutes until potatoes are tender; stir in chopped mint and dill during last 5 minutes of cooking. Remove from heat; purée mixture in food processor or electric blender. Pour mixture into a bowl. Whisk in cheese and lemon juice; stir until cheese is thoroughly melted. Stir in cream. Chill. Line 4 bowls with lettuce leaves. Ladle soup into bowls and garnish with mint and dill sprigs to serve. Makes 4 servings.

*Or 1 teaspoon each dried mint and dried dill.

Southern states have tantalizing food specialties

Southern cooking and southern hospitality are justifiably famous. The words of southern hospitality are, "You-all come back now, honey." Many a person from other sections of the country have indeed heard that phrase, and taken it very seriously.

One of the outstanding charms of our southern states is its tantalizing array of delicious food specialties. Southern cooking incorporates French, Spanish and American Indian food influences to produce a truly superb regional fare.

Otra, a staple in gumbo, is now available in many markets across the country. This green pod type vegetable has a unique flavor which blends beautifully with an assortment of other vegetables and spices. Most people prefer it combined with tomatoes which eliminates its otherwise slippery texture. We have included an outstanding chicken gumbo recipe which includes otra as one of its major ingredients.

Squash is another vegetable which is a classic vegetable used

Chicken okra gumbo

1/2 cup oil
1/2 cup flour
1 cup onion, chopped
1/2 cup celery, chopped
1/2 cup green pepper, chopped
1/2 cup green onion, chopped
2 tablespoons garlic powder
2 tablespoons parsley, chopped
2 tablespoons onions, tops, chopped

In a 4-cup measure, combine oil and flour. Cook on high power for 4 to 5 minutes, stirring once. Roux should be dark brown in color. Stir in onion, celery and green pepper. Cook on high for 2 minutes. Stir in remaining ingredients. Cook on high for 2 minutes. Makes about 2 1/2 cups of roux.

To prepare Chicken Gumbo
1 recipe roux
1 1/2 cups hot water
1 1/2 cups chicken stock
1/2 cup cooked chicken, diced
1 cup okra, cooked
1 can (28 ounces) sliced tomatoes

1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper
Hot sauce

Prep: 10 min. Cook: 15 min. In a 2 quart glass measure, stir in hot water, chicken stock, cooked okra, tomatoes and seasoning. Your roux is now ready to return to your table again. "real soon, honey?"

Squash casserole

1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup milk
1 egg, beaten
1/2 cup herb seasoned stuffing mix
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup yellow crookneck squash, thinly sliced
1 cup Cheddar cheese, shredded
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper

In a 3-quart bowl, melt butter on high power for about 1 minute. Stir in milk, egg, stuffing and onion. Blend well. Add the squash, cheese, salt and pepper. Pour into 8 x 8 inch round baking dish. Cover with plastic wrap and cook on high for 6 to 8 minutes, or until heated through. Stir once during cooking time.

Wilted greens

6 slices bacon, cut into 2-inch pieces
1/2 cup chopped green onion
1/2 cup red vinegar
1/2 cup water
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
6 cups fresh greens (spring or fall lettuce, spinach, mustard leaves, or a combination)

Place bacon on a microwave roasting rack in a 12 by 8 inch baking dish, cover with paper towel. Microwave at high power for 5 to 6 minutes, or until bacon is crisp. Remove bacon. Crumble and set aside.

Stir onion into bacon drippings, cover with waxed paper. Microwave at high power for two minutes. Add vinegar, water, sugar and salt. Microwave at high for two minutes, or until

Easy shrimp creole

1/2 cup onion, chopped
1/2 cup celery, chopped
1/2 cup green pepper, chopped
2 tablespoons oil
1 can 10% ounces tomato soup
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
1/2 cup water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 teaspoons chili powder
1 tablespoon parsley, chopped
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
5 dashes hot pepper sauce
1/2 pound shrimp, cleaned and deveined

In an attractive oval or round serving dish, just large enough to contain the recipe, saute onion, celery, green pepper and oil on high power for 5 to 7 minutes, until soft, stir once. Stir in remaining ingredients, except shrimp. Cover and cook on high for 6 minutes, stirring once midway through cooking time. Stir in shrimp. Cover and cook on high for 3 to 4 minutes, stirring once. Just until shrimp turns pink. Overcooking shrimp will make them tough. Serve on a bed of hot cooked rice. Yields two servings.

Chocolate pecan pie

2 tablespoons butter
2 ounces baking chocolate (unsweetened)
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup light corn syrup
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Melt butter and chocolate together in a microwave. Add eggs, corn syrup, sugar and vanilla. Beat well. Pour into a 9-inch pie shell. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes.

DOUBLED UP — Manchester Legion's Joe Leonard can't get back to first base in time after Jim Penders flew out to left field. It resulted in a double play in the second inning of Tuesday night's game in the American Legion State Tournament. Waterbury won, 8-2.

Canadians hurt, angry after trade

Gretzky's move to L.A. biggest sports deal ever

Profile of Gretzky - page 15

No Richter scale recorded it, but there was a major earthquake in Canada, and the shockwaves were felt all the way to Southern California.

The Great One, Wayne Gretzky, was traded Tuesday from the Edmonton Oilers to the Los Angeles Kings. In perhaps the biggest transaction in sports history, hockey's greatest player and Canada's leading personality announced he was moving to Los Angeles. He said he asked to be traded, in large part because he wanted to live and work in the same city as his wife of three weeks, actress Janet Jones.

Canadians, particularly those who live in Edmonton, were appalled that Gretzky would no longer be theirs. A lot of them expressed anger at the loss.

"We've had literally hundreds of calls from people upset," said Rod Phillips, the Oilers' play-by-play announcer on CFBN radio. "Everyone we talked to said, 'That's it, I'm never going to see another Oilers game.'"

CITV, an independent TV station that airs some Oilers games, got calls from as far away as Germany and Austria.

"The switchboard usually screens most of those calls, but people were getting through anyway," sportscaster Dan Falson said. Several callers assigned blame to Gretzky's wife and to Oilers owner Peter Pocklington.

Pocklington came in for more barbs from those contacting the Edmonton Sun.

Honey-roasted nuts crack market

Blue Diamond Honey Roasted Nuts, Almond and macadamia, 14-oz. for $2.89 for 14-oz. Or $1.89 for a 6-oz. can of almonds; $3.29 for a 3.5-oz. jar or 50 cents for a 1/2-oz. package of macadamias.

Carolyn: Considering how popular honey-roasted nuts are, it's a wonder that it's taken this long for someone to come out with a honey-roasted almond. At least it's a wonder until you taste them. For some reason salt tastes a lot better on an almond than sugar.

Blue Diamond's honey-roasted macadamia nuts are a lot better, lending credence to my own theory about fat and sugar going together.

Bonnie: Here's a new snack that I can recommend. Both of the honey roasted nuts are made from pure ingredients. Curiously, the honey roasted almonds are not as salty as the macadamias because by weight, the nuts are more calorie dense than sugar. This should give you some clue as to how high almonds and macadamias nuts are in calories and fat. So, eat them in moderation.

Carolyn: For years mankind has attempted to overcome flavors in individual plants and animals through cross-breeding. Now Sunshine has decided to do it with cookies. This mating of graham and animal crackers has resulted in a cookie with the good taste of graham and animal crackers has resulted in a cookie with the good taste of graham crackers without its crumbly consistency or unwieldy size. As far as I'm concerned this is the most successful pairing of desserts since cookies 'n cream.

Bonnie: Basically these cookies are a new version of animal crackers. Both are artificially flavored and have the same calorie level. The main difference is that Grahamy Bears are made from a less saturated fat. Given that fact, I'd choose the

Silent Post 102 falls to Waterbury

By Jim Tierney

EAST LYME — The one reliable thing that catapulted Manchester Legion Post 102 contestant into the State American Legion Baseball Tournament — hitting — betrayed the team in its opening-round game against Waterbury Tuesday night at East Lyme High School.

After last week's thrilling victory over East Hartford in the Zone 8 playoff series, against, arguably, the finest Legion pitching staff in Connecticut, Manchester seemed primed and ready to assault the state Legion tourney.

With its bats silent, Post 102 was never able to recover from an early 6-0 deficit and bowed to Zone 5 champion Waterbury, 8-2, in the opener of the double-elimination tourney. The nine zone champions are represented at the tourney.

Manchester will meet the loser of the New London-Berlin game this afternoon at 1 p.m. at East Lyme High School. The New London-Berlin game was suspended Tuesday night due to a town curfew with Berlin leading, 12-10, in the eighth inning. The game was being completed this morning. Righthander Pat Maguire will draw the mound assignment for Post 102.

SAFE AT SECOND — Manchester Legion's Neal Schackner slides safely into second base as Waterbury second baseman Rich Calabro drops the ball during the second inning of Tuesday night's American Legion game at East Lyme High School.

LAST OUT — Post 102's Keith Hobby, inserted as a pinch-runner in the ninth inning, walks back to the dugout after he was forced out at second base.

Post 102 committed four errors. Manchester collected six hits in the nine-inning affair. All state Legion games are nine innings. Righthander Mike Cleary went the distance for Waterbury, walking six and striking out four.

Post 102 southpaw Jim Kitsock incurred the defeat. Kitsock also went the full nine innings. He allowed 12 hits, walked six and struck out one. Kitsock, however, did pick off four runners with his nifty move to first base and would have had a fifth if the ball hadn't been thrown away in a run-down in the second.

"It was very simple for us tonight," Post 102 Coach Dave Morency said. "We didn't hit. That's what got us here and we didn't hit. Period."

Waterbury cleanup hitter Jason Canady led off the top of the second with a lazy fly ball to shallow centerfield with Manchester second baseman Marcus Mateya, centerfielder Dave Price and rightfielder Dom Lauritis in hot pursuit. Lauritis made a diving stab, but couldn't come up with the ball.

Kitsock picked off Canady, but first baseman Keith DiYeso threw the ball into centerfield, allowing Canady to scamper to third base. "Kitsock didn't have his good stuff but he came up big by picking guys off," Morency stated.

Rich Chance, who had two hits and three RBIs, then drilled a Kitsock offering over the 323-foot sign in left field and Waterbury led, 2-0.

The third began innocently enough for Waterbury with two groundouts. Cleary then began a barrage which, for all intents and purposes, put this game away. Cleary singled to left field. Canady followed with a sharp single to center. Chance, Patton Jarrell, Fritz Luedke and Bill Nelson followed with consecutive RBIs, singles and Waterbury plated four runs to increase its lead to 6-0.

"We won this game with two outs," Waterbury Coach Josh Dolan said. "We're not that great a hitting team. We got big hits, key hits. This kid (Kitsock) wasn't overpowering and that's why we lost."

In the bottom of the third, Manchester tallied both of its runs. With two outs, Rob Stanford singled to left. Lauritis then laced a single up the middle, moving Stanford to third. On an attempted pick-off play, Cleary threw the ball away, allowing Stanford to score with Lauritis racing to third. Lauritis scored when Keith DiYeso's routine fly ball to left was lost in the sun by Waterbury left fielder Eric Raymond.

Cleary must have had some secret weapon, because he induced nine pop-outs from Manchester.

"We swung at more pitches when the ball was away from our hands than I've ever seen before," Morency said.

Dolan felt Cleary was the difference. "Michael really dominated Manchester. Michael is one of the best pitchers in the state. Michael has been with us for three years and this is his second in the state tourney."

Luedke led Waterbury with three hits while Canady, Jarrell and Nelson added two each.

Red Sox three games behind Detroit

By Rick Gano

MILWAUKEE — Roger Clemens was the pitcher the Milwaukee Brewers couldn't touch, but they beat him at last.

Bob Stanley was one member of the Boston pitching staff the Brewers had banged around for years in their home park, but they couldn't conquer him this time.

Joey Meyer's homer, leading off the bottom of the ninth Tuesday beat Clemens in the first game of a doubleheader 3-2, ending the Boston right-hander's streak of seven straight victories against the Brewers, three of them this season.

In the second game, Stanley relieved Mike Boddicker and retired the final 13 batters in a 5-1 Boston victory that moved the Red Sox back into second place in the American League East, three games behind Detroit.

"After we lost the first game, we got a break when Detroit lost," said Red Sox Manager Joe Morgan, whose team had lost four of five games to the Tigers over the weekend. "Yesterday we inched down and today we inched back."

Stanley injured his hand Friday but was able to bail out Boddicker and end a Brewer threat in the sixth inning of the nightcap after three hits led to the only Milwaukee run.

Meyer's homer came with two outs in the bottom of the ninth. "I'm happy they didn't score any runs," said Stanley who picked up his fourth save.

"I popped scar tissue in my finger. The only pitch I can't throw is the palm ball. It can be a little painful but I've got to handle it," he said.

The Red Sox got a handle on the second game with a four-run fourth inning off Brewers starter Bill Wegman, 10-9. His throwing error aided the Red Sox' big inning.

Wegman faltered for a fourth straight game to pick up his 11th victory while giving up an RBI single and a homer to Rich Gedman.

Boddicker, 6-13, beat the Brewers for the second time since joining the field as Clemens dropped to 15-7. But he was in trouble most of the game because he gave up five hits and walked four.

"It was a frustrating night," Trebelhorn said. "It was a real close game, kind of flat and real quiet. It seemed like we were content with winning our first game."

"You couldn't blame the Brewers for being satisfied with a victory over Clemens, the major-league strikeout leader. He had but out Milwaukee twice already this season. Clemens struck out six, giving him 241 this season."

Meyer grounded out and struck out twice in his first three at-bats. He poked his homer to the opposite field as Clemens dropped to 15-7. The Brewers had tied the game with a run in the eighth on Robin Yount's RBI single.

"Clemens is awesome. I was overwhelmed in the beginning. I was not relaxing and not concentrating," Meyer said.

"I was swinging at bad pitches. I was overanxious. When I went up there the last time, I didn't want to strike out. I tried not to take a big swing and just get a base hit and the pitch was right there," he said.

"It was one of those things," Morgan said. "Meyer is dangerous and he's bound to get one of those sooner or later."

Milwaukee lefthander Juan Nieves, making his first start since coming off the disabled list in July, went 8-13 innings, allowing only six hits with five strikeouts.

Dishonest store practice a crime!

By Martin Sloane

United Feature Syndicate

DEAR MARTIN: I recently went to a supermarket in our area that was having a big sale on cleaning products. They offered the 23-ounce Fantastik cleaner for just $1.

There was a label on the bottle of Fantastik indicating that a 30-cent coupon was attached to the back. All of the bottles on the shelf were specially marked like this, but none actually had the coupons. I checked every one!

I was so angry, I didn't buy any!

This is not the first time something like this happened at this store. On several occasions I have seen cases of merchandise being opened and the coupons removed.

Isn't there some kind of law against this? If so, whom should I contact to report it?

NANCY P., OHIO

DEAR NANCY: It's hard to believe that the operators of this supermarket are foolish enough to rob the store's customers, as well as the manufacturers, right out from under their noses.

But that's what it looks like. They probably found the "use now" coupons on the backs of the Fantastik bottles and pulled them all off without noticing that these were specially marked packages that shoppers like yourself would notice.

The shoppers who patronize that store were entitled to use those Fantastik coupons. That is what the manufacturer intended when it distributed when it distributed specially marked packages. So shoppers were robbed of an opportunity to save money.

If the supermarket manager or owner tries to redeem those coupons that have not been used in connection with legitimate consumer purchases of the couponed product, this is a case of mail fraud. It is a federal offense, punishable by fine, imprisonment or both.

Airliner baby has home

NEW YORK (AP) — A baby girl born aboard a jetliner and abandoned in its restroom last month was handed over to the custody of her paternal grandparents Tuesday.

Alyssa LaCasto, accompanied by a child welfare worker, flew from California to New Jersey late Monday to live with John and Frances LaCasto, who were granted temporary custody last week.

The baby was found July 13 in the aircraft's restroom after it landed at San Francisco International Airport. She had been placed in the care of San Mateo County Clerk Christina LaCasto, who gave birth secretly in the restroom just before the flight left Newark, N.J., six years in prison to a charge of felony child endangerment.

"Alyssa is now in our home, healthy, happy and secure," said Frances LaCasto, reading a prepared statement in front of her home in the borough of Staten Island.

At a hearing Friday, San Mateo County Juvenile Court Commissioner Patricia Brees continued her July 22 ruling granting temporary custody of Alyssa to her paternal grandparents.

Louis LaCasto, 26, was traveling with his wife but was unaware she was pregnant and gave birth, according to lawyers in the case. The couple, Resort Properties, was traveling with the two daughters to visit relatives.

The mother could face up to six years in prison if convicted. She is free on $50,000 bail.

Topless battle heating up in Italy

ROME (AP) — The battle of the bare bodies has heated up in Italy this summer, with several towns and resort islands ruling that men and women must wear shirts in public or face penalties.

A Belgian man was even reported beaten up after he refused a request by a Rome subway attendant to cover his naked chest.

One southern town has made a notable break with the trend, guaranteeing that people can walk around topless. Agropoli's tourism chief has called on women to bare all, but the local priest is fighting back.

Topless bathing, popular in Italy for some time, now appears to be on the decline. One-piece suits, unthinkable a few years ago, have now become fashionable.

"It's necessary to return to the good taste of the past," Capri tourism commissioner Giuseppe Massa told the Italian news agency ANSA.

The famous island put into effect a new "cover-up" ordinance Tuesday that bars anyone from walking the streets with a bare chest or just a swimsuit. Penalties for offenders range from $70 to $350.

"According to Mayor Saverio Valente, the law was necessary 'for reasons not only aesthetic, but hygienic.'"

On the island of Ponza, about 65 miles to the north in the Tyrrhenian Sea, bathers are also barred from strolling the streets in swimsuits.

Mayor Francesco Ferraiuolo acted this month after receiving a note from local Roman Catholic priest worried about the practice, according to Italian press reports.

In Venice, meanwhile, a former director of tourism, Augusto Salvadori, is organizing patrols to advise tourists on how to dress and eat properly in the canals.

A clash of a different sort has broken out in Agropoli, where the tourism commissioner, seeing a new image for the town, has called on women to go topless whenever possible.

The parish priest claims the law will transform the town into a modern-day Sodom and Gomorrah.

"To admire the beauty of a body helps to elevate the spirit," said tourism commissioner Vincenzo Pepe.

Pepe gave his support for a topless fashion show scheduled last Sunday in the village.

About 500 people turned out for the show, but the women decided to wear clothes. Pepe has promised a topless show this Sunday, and Borrelli has said he will counter with a solemn Mass.
