The Princess of York is cradled in the arms of her mother, Britain's Duchess of York, as she leaves Portland Hospital in London Friday. It was the first glimpse that the waiting crowds and assembled media had of the latest member of the royal family.

Astrograph

August 14, 1988

In the year ahead you may get involved in a new venture almost by chance. It will have potential and could turn out to be a profitable second source of income.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A friend might come to you for assistance today. Do what you can to help, but stop short of making a loan or co-signing a legal document. Major changes are ahead for Leo in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A matter that you think you have presently under control could shake itself loose today. Take nothing for granted, especially if it affects your reputation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Optimism is an asset, unrealistic assessments are not. Today you may think you are using the former, while in actuality, you might be using the latter.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's best not to poke your nose into the affairs of another today. If you step in and make a blunder, this person will hold you personally responsible.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There is a chance today you might be intimate with someone displaying the trappings of power. This could induce you to needlessly put yourself in a subservient position.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your motto for today may be, "Don't do now what can be postponed until tomorrow." Unfortunately, it might be later than you think.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Even if you think you're holding a pat hand, don't raise the stakes. Where gambles are concerned today, you may be the one who just sweetens the pot for others.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Someone who does not have your best interests at heart might try to make a commitment for you today. Let this individual know you want to think for yourself and make your own decisions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It won't be easy to admit your failings today, because you might be too busy taking the motes out of the eyes of others instead of your own.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Today you may have to deal with the urge to splurge. You'll have regrets later if you overwork your credit card buying things you really don't need.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Any big deals you hope to gain from today will have to be closed as quickly as possible. Inclinations to overdo could severely weaken your position.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The road to Hades is paved with good intentions and today you might add some fresh brick and mortar of your own. If you make a commitment, follow it through.

FOCUS / Movies

'Midnight Run' offers 2 movies

MIDNIGHT RUN (R) Buddy action movies seldom have the rich characters that this Martin Brest ("Beverly Hills Cop") picture does. The "buddies" are a Mutt and Jeff pair handcuffed together on a cross-country train trip. Robert De Niro controls the handcuffs. He's a wiseguy bounty hunter hired to deliver a mobster's accountant (Charles Grodin) who jumped bail. In hot pursuit of this unlikely duo are a rival bounty hunter, ineffectual FBI agents and two goons who work for the mobsters.

Filmeter

Robert DiMatteo

Screenwriter George Gallo has peopled this complicated contrivance with an assortment of tough guys and sleazeballs, peppering the dialogue with pungent street language. De Niro and Grodin bring relish and subtlety to their roles. The former is at his surly best — all jive attitude and volatile charm. Yet the actor also locates his character's pain, especially in one poignant scene in which the bounty hunter is reunited with his ex-wife and daughter.

Grodin is contrastingly good, creating one of his genial, placid-on-the-surface oddballs. In fact, the character work in this movie is so satisfying that it can make one a bit impatient with the obligatory chase scenes and shootouts. There are really two movies here — one a standard slam-bang action flick, the other a darker, more idiosyncratic comedy-thriller. It's the latter movie that lingers in the movie. GRADE: *****

BIG TOP PEE-WEE (PG) How to explain Pee-wee Herman's charm? Some people don't get him at all. They see his childlike prancing manner as simple, obnoxious silliness. Fans think that silliness is more sophisticated than it first appears: Pee-wee is the nerdy kid a lot of us feared we were, except that his nerdiness is triumphant! He's a victoriously regressive — a sunny master of childishness.

The one thing, Pee-wee must never do is act grown-up. Alas, that's the problem of his second feature film, in which Pee-wee

(a.k.a. Paul Reubens) has two girlfriends and some sappy love scenes.

It's a mistake to ask us to accept this gangling oddity as a romantic leading man — even though it's clear that the movie intends some degree of mock-romance. Director Randall Kleiser ("Grease") lacks the effortless, surreal-pop touch that Tim Burton ("Beetlejuice") brought to "Pee-wee's Big Adventure," and so this film never explodes with gaga implishness the way the first one did.

It has its moments, though. The plot pivots on a traveling circus, which magically appears on Pee-wee's farm after a big storm. The circus mileau allows for a terrific bunch of sideshow freaks, including Susan Tyrrell, who plays the Thumbellina-tiny wife of ringmaster Kris Kristofferson.

There's a final musical number, set in the Big Top, which has a candied, sawdust-and-tinsel lyricism: It's like baby Fellini. And there are lots of animals, wild and barmy-tame, real and imagined. Chief among the latter is Vance the pig, who talks in growly voiced English, sounding a bit like a porcine Louis Armstrong. GRADE: ****

New home video

WEEDS (R) HBO, $89.98, Nick

Nolte is one of our best movie actors, a fact he proved again in this uneven but compelling 1987 picture based on the true story of ex-con Rick Cluchey.

Without succumbing to sentimentality, Nolte stars as an uneducated San Quentin con who writes a musical about his prison experiences, and then tours the country with other ex-prisoners in performances of the show. The movie studies the efforts of Nolte and his cohorts to slay clean while channeling their often hostile feelings into theater. GRADE: ****

SUSPECT (R) RCA/Columbia, $89.98. Loaded with trendy topical touches and attractive, talented performers, this suspense thriller nevertheless comes to naught. It alternates between talky courtroom scenes, convoluted plot developments, and several throat slasings.

Though not ideally cast, Cher stars warmly as a workaholic Washington D.C. lawyer assigned to defend a homeless, deaf-and-dumb Vietnam vet accused of murder. Dennis Quaid co-stars as a devious charmer on the jury. GRADE: ****

NO APPLE PEELER — This century-old gizmo is a pencil sharpener found in an old Manchester dwelling. Some rinky-dink part is missing, so it couldn't be put to the test. But it's worth a few dollars.

Pencil-sharpening devices: Some worked, some didn't

No, not another ancient gizmo for peeling apples — it's a pencil sharpener. What looks like a blade on the end of the argument is a fine-toothed file. We have a double-action here: As you turn the handle with the weird knob, the file will go back and forth and the pencil is made to rotate. Some rinky-dink part is missing so it could not be put to the test.

A look at the back shows us the words, "Dutcher Temple Co., Hopedale, Mass. Pat. Sept. 2, 1884."

This centenarian device belongs to Herbert Bengtson of 253 Gardner St. It had been found in an old Manchester dwelling purchased by his father. The wooden base is not original and the belt that turns the wheel that turns the pencil is also a replacement. With all its faults it still brought an offer of $100 from a dedicated collector of oldtime things that do things.

Another 19th-century production that tried manfully to prepare the writing tool by dragging it against a file was the "Perfect Pencil Pointer" made at Antrim, N.H. It had a long rod on a wooden base. The pencil was held in a wheel arrangement you had to shove along the length of the rod.

Collectors' Corner

Russ MacKendrick

Hardly worth the struggle. For going back more to basics like jackknife work, they had the "Handy Sharpener" that simply held the pencil at the proper angle while you worked a blade up and down.

A refinement on this was the "U.S. Automatic," patented in 1906 and '07. Here you would crank a shaft carrying three blades while the pencil feeds in, turning from above to get three snicker-snacks with each full rotation. The chips and lead would fall into a drawer. All very neat, but the pencil point was terrible. This we read in an article from the Antique Trader Weekly, where the writer sums it up by saying that the sharpener was obsolete before it reached the market.

It was about this time that the idea of helical cutting blades on slanted cylinders was being mullied by ingenious mechanics. Take a look at the innards of your Boston or Berol wall type. You will see a deucedly clever set-up: a large ring with gears on the inside to turn the cylinders. "Planetary," like the transmission on a T Ford. A step further is the plug-in electric, now perfected so that it no longer eats pencils alive. And also there's a cordless, on my desk now, that takes four C batteries. Just push in the pencil from above and — whizz — the world's most picky point.

We have some pricing for the oldies: The Pointer, the file-on-a-base, is valued at $150; the little Handy is $75 and the U.S. Automatic brings $50. Herb Bengtson's treasure, if we could find the missing part, would top them all.

TOMORROW: Meriden Stamp and Card Festival at the main ballroom of the Yale Inn. It is just off Route 66 and the East Main Street exits of Interstate 91 and the Wilbur Cross Parkway. Hours: 10 to 4. Free admission and parking.

People overcome fear of cameras

By Sandy Colton
The Associated Press

With so many simple-to-use, point-and-shoot cameras coming on the market every day, more and more people are overcoming their fear of taking pictures and buying cameras.

It's no longer necessary to memorize a whole bunch of "numbers and things" in order to take good pictures. The new cameras do all that for you. But there are some simple little rules you should try to remember that will greatly improve your picture-taking ability. Even the new "do everything" cameras can't cope with human error.

The first and foremost error made by most amateur photographers is punching the shutter release button too vigorously in their eagerness to capture the great moment.

You must learn to squeeze the shutter gently so that the camera doesn't move at the moment of exposure. There are a number of ways you can check to see if you're guilty.

Try placing the camera on a tripod or on a flat surface and shoot a picture of a non-moving object about 10 feet away from you. Next, pick up the camera and shoot with the camera handheld. When the pictures are processed and come back, compare them for sharpness.

Tape a small pocket mirror to the front of the camera and then, without film in the camera, stand so that the sun reflects off the mirror onto the side of a building in shade. Watch that reflection while you depress the shutter release and see if it bounces. You can do the same thing indoors, using a fixed flashlight or slide projector as the light source.

The important thing is to practice until you know that you are not jerking the camera when you depress the shutter release button, blurring the picture.

Another thing most amateurs do is not get close enough to their subjects. Try taking a photo of a person standing from about 10 feet away. Then take another of the head and shoulders of that person from as close as your camera manual says you can get. With most of today's amateur cameras, that's about 4 feet. Then compare the difference when the prints come back and you decide which is the better shot.

Watch that horizon. Make sure you hold the camera level so that the horizon doesn't slope off to the right or left.

Watch the background. Be sure to look beyond your subject. Pictures are only two dimensional. Whatever is in the background could appear to be otherwise. A group of tree branches, for example, could appear to be growing out of your subject's head. Look for clear, uncluttered backgrounds for your pictures.

Avoid placing your main subject squarely in the center of the picture. You'll find it more pleasing if your subject is slightly off-center, looking into the picture. Think of the rule of thirds. Imagine dividing the picture into even thirds both horizontally and vertically. Use the upper or lower thirds line for your horizon in case of a scenic shot and place an interesting feature at the intersection of one of the thirds lines coming into the picture.

For an example, picture a sunset at sea. The sea may take up two-thirds of the bottom of the picture. The setting sun would be placed at the upper left juncture of the thirds line. If you can get a sailboat coming into the picture at the lower right juncture of the thirds line, you'll have a winner.

There are some flash bugaboos, too. Most flash units on amateur cameras are not much good beyond 10 feet. Some night, take three friends out in the yard and have them stand in a line about 5 feet apart. Have your first subject about 5 feet from you; the second, 10 feet away; and the third, 15 feet away. Take a flash photo of all three. Chances are the first will be overexposed, the middle person properly exposed, and the last person underexposed.

Remember that when you try to take flash photos of a baseball game from the stands, it won't work! Remember, too, when using flash, to make sure that you do not have windows, mirrors or shiny surfaces directly behind your subject. The flash will kick right back into the camera, ruining the picture. If this is the case, stand so that the shiny object is at an angle and you won't get the kickback.

By the same token, when using automatic flash units, make sure that there is not something in the foreground, like a bowl of flowers, that will fool the camera flash into turning off too soon, underexposing your main subject.

More tricks next week.

Historical stamp historically wrong

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. Postal Service has done what Revolutionary War-era carpenters could not — rebuild Trinity Church by July 26, 1788.

The historic church on Wall Street in lower Manhattan burned down in 1778. Construction on the second Trinity began in August 1788. But on stamps issued July 27 in New York City, the church's spire stands tall above the date July 26, 1788 — when the building remained in ruins.

"The Postal Service has an obligation to posterity to depict the facts as they are," complained historian John Tauranac in a letter to Postmaster General Anthony M. Frank.

1988 may be Barbara Hershey's year

By Bob Thomas
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — After winning two consecutive best-actress awards from the Cannes Film Festival, Barbara Hershey seems ready for what her supporters believe is an overdue nod from the Motion Picture Academy.

It could have happened last year as the bayou mother in "Shy People," for which she won her first Cannes prize. But as she herself admits, nobody saw the picture.

This year Hershey was co-winner for her portrayal as the anti-apartheid activist in "A World Apart." That could be her run for an Academy Award. Or maybe, if the Academy voters dare, as Mary Magdalene in "The Last Temptation of Christ." Or maybe for a comedy role in "Beaches," which she is now filming with Bette Midler.

In any case, 1988 appears to be the year of Barbara Hershey. She has been in films since her debut in 1968 with Doris Day in "With Six You Get Eggroll."

Hollywood refused to take her seriously after she became Barbara Seagull during a free-form liaison with David Carradine, which resulted in a son, named Free. Still, she had a series of impressive performances in "Last Summer," "The Baby Maker," "Box Car Bertha" and "The Stunt Man."

Star Watch

Producers began to take notice with "The Right Stuff" and "The Natural." But her real turning point was Woody Allen's "Hannah and Her Sisters."

Typical of Hershey, she continues accepting non-mainstream films and devoting excessive time to research them. For "Shy People," she traveled to the backwater bayous of Louisiana and studied the Cajun speech and lifestyle. For "A World Apart," she interviewed relatives and friends of Ruth First, her character in the film.

First, a journalist and political activist, was imprisoned in 1963 under South Africa's 90-day Detention Act, the first white woman to be so punished. The script was written by Shawn Slovo, who is portrayed in the film as a 13-year-old girl. First remained an activist in exile, and in 1982 was killed by a letter bomb.

"She was a great woman, but she wasn't an easy woman to those around her," said the actress at the Santa Monica canyon home she shares with her son, now called Tom.

She's well aware of the growing furor over "The Last Temptation of Christ," which has been attacked by religious fundamentalists as being potentially sacrilegious and blasphemous.

"I guess it was the greatest experience of my life so far," Hershey said.

"I read the book by (Nikos) Kazantzakis when I was 20, and it became my favorite book. I was moved, as I never had been before, by the Christ story. I find it ironic that the fundamentalists would object. I find it a very tender and moving version of the Christ story."

She was born Barbara Herzst 40 years ago in Hollywood.

Even before graduation from Hollywood High she appeared in such TV series as "Gidget," "The Monroes" and "The Farmer's Daughter." At 20 she played a liberated young woman in "Last Summer."

Kevin, 13, says this game is worth the high price

By Larry Blasko
The Associated Press

Part of the pain of being an adolescent boy is that dragons are already extinct and your spoilsport parents wouldn't let you slay them anyway. But your parents may cough up $59.95 for an IBM or Apple copy of Ultima V: Warriors of Destiny.

Even if you're a 40-year-old adolescent boy, this adventure and role-playing game appeals to the warrior-quest section of male daydreaming and lets you fight evil in ways that won't get you arrested or make you late for dinner.

Your money to Origin Systems.

Inc., Londonderry, N. H., gets you a four-disk package with outstanding color graphics, plus a map, manual and other adventure paraphernalia. This is the fifth in a series of games. The plot is that you are summoned to the aid of Britannia, a middle-aged sort of place that got into trouble when its ruler, Lord Britain, disappeared on a quest and his regent, Blackthorn, turns tyrant at the behest of dark forces. You've got to find the king.

Playing the game requires and reinforces high-level reading, logic and problem-solving skills, so there's an educational content as well. It was reviewed on a Tandy 1000 SX with an RGB CM-5 monitor in 16-color display. It took about 10 minutes for a band of monsters to demolish the writer and his party, so the balance of this review is by 13-year-old Kevin, a game-player of greater experience.

"I have seen all the Ultimas but only purchased Ultima III and won that one. Basically what makes this game much better than the ones I've seen is that it is much more expanded and opened. The map must be at least 10 times greater than the one I saw in Ultima III. It also gives you a better choice of commands and spells to choose from, which makes it more fun.

"What also makes this good is that there are many details. When you walk past a mirror, you see a small reflection of your character, or when you open a treasure chest you see little money sacks and little shields, etc. I also liked the option of pitching camp and going to sleep or checking in at an inn. My favorite thing to do in the game was to talk to people or to fight. It was interesting to talk to people because you could say what you wanted to and they would give a logical response like talking to a real person.

"I also liked the battle scene. Even though it moves a little slowly, it is very interactive and it's fun to blow away a ghost, a sea serpent or a dragon. You have an array of weapons to choose from and enough armor to build a tank.

"Overall, I enjoyed the game very much and I would highly recommend it to anyone, especially those who have completed the other four quests."

The documentation says those who developed a character in the previous game, Ultima IV, can import it to Ultima V, where it can soldier on. The richly detailed graphics and the small touches make this one worth the otherwise-stiff asking price. For more information, contact Origin systems at 603-644-3360.

'Alaska' is a typical James Michener blockbuster

ALASKA. By James A. Michener. Random House. 868 Pages. $22.50.

James Michener's first novel, "Tales of the South Pacific," was published in 1947, when Michener was 40 years old.

In the years that followed, Michener wrote more than two dozen books, including "The Bridges at Toko-Ri," "Hawaii," "Chesapeake," "Space" and "Texas," establishing a reputation as an author who, when he writes about a topic, researches and writes about it most thoroughly.

His energy has not diminished with age. His latest novel, "Alaska," is more than 800 pages long.

In the acknowledgments, Michener gives an indication of some of the work that went into the book when he thanks "the intrepid aviators of Alaska who flew me into all corners of their state ... and especially the helicopter men who flew me into spots that would otherwise have been inaccessible."

"Alaska" is populated by hundreds of characters, some historical, some fictional, in a variety of Alaskan settings, some historical, some fictional.

The novel opens "about a billion years ago" and proceeds to the present day. Along the way, the reader encounters mastodons and mammoths; walrus and baby seals; Tlingits, Eskimos, Athapascans and Aleuts; Vitus Bering and Capt. James Cook.

Like the characters, the scenes are many. Michener writes of the physical beauty of Alaska, the life and traditions of its native people, and the state's rich history.

Despite the span of a billion years, the numerous fictional characters, and the variety of settings, Michener does a good job of sustaining the reader's interest throughout much of the book. There are dull moments. But the geography is fascinating, the adventures are many, and the history is broken down into manageable chunks that are fairly easy for the reader to digest.

Peter, Paul and Mary still singing and speaking out

By Mary Campbell
The Associated Press

Just as Peter, Paul and Mary's July 27 to Oct. 16 tour began, Warner Brothers released a compact disc of the 1962 "Peter, Paul and Mary," the folk trio's first recording.

Before the tour ends, Gold Castle will release Peter, Paul and Mary's newest album, "A Holiday Celebration," recorded in February. Closer to Christmas, PBS will air a seasonal concert by the trio and the New York Choral Society.

Warner Brothers plans at least five more CDs of early Peter, Paul and Mary recordings.

Peter Yarrow, who worked on the CDs with Lee Herschberg, who engineered some of the trio's mid-1960s records, was amazed at how much better the sound quality is on the CDs than on the early recordings.

"We recorded on three tracks," he says. "The quality of those original three-track masters is almost as good as direct-to-CD recording now. We had the best engineer around at the time, Bill Schartau.

"The technology was such, there was an enormous loss of quality in making that jump from three-track to two-track for the record. Now, because of new technology, we can hear exactly what we had on that original three-track. It's a stunning difference." Each voice had its own track.

Yarrow says, "Echo then was part of the whole rock 'n' roll sound, Elvis' voice, etc. We used very little echo, which gave us very little ambience.

"Today we have transparent echo. We can now put that on, sculpt the sound and bring out the voices. Now you can hear the real intimacy and nuances of the singing. I heard Mary's '500 Miles' and I was very moved by it.

"We're not putting in noise filters or hiding mistakes or taking out clicks. It's all as it was but you can really hear it.

"Doing this mix is like going back to high school and taking that physics exam you know you should have gotten 97 percent on but you didn't have some of the premises straight."

During a break in rehearsing at Yarrow's Manhattan apartment, the three are interviewed separately. Paul — now called Noel offstage — Stookey is suffering from back pain, walking about strutting his guitar.

"I like pretty chords on the guitar," he says. "I guess that's why I've always liked Latin chords.

"I used to accuse Peter of rampant literalism in his writing, not realizing that the ability of the audience to perceive immediately what the point was, while it may be less poetic, afforded them immediate access to participate in the event of a song.

PETER, PAUL AND MARY — The trio consists of Peter Yarrow, left, Mary Travers and Paul Stookey.

"I suppose Peter and I complement each other. I go for these lurking, hidden, subtle passages in Spanish music, which is connected to my fascination with jazz chords, and constant tugging at the hem of folk music. Peter is delighted in discovering still another way to make contact with an audience."

Stookey says, "My latest thing is Matt Quinn and me putting music to Clement Moore's 'A Visit from St. Nicholas.' It has a couple of musical versions but I don't think they've really nailed the spirit of the lyrics. Our song is called 'Twas the Night Before Christmas."

"I've long been involved in children's music projects. One of the longest standing has been 'The Sandman,' a radio show for 4- through 11-year-olds, where Matt Quinn was a keyboardist. We've collaborated on songs and created vehicles to stir children's imaginations. Now it appears 'The Sandman' is going to make its TV debut on 'The Imagination Station.'"

Stookey is working, with other people, on setting up a system with 800 telephone numbers where children can play games, get information and chat through computers, much the way they'd use a library. Perhaps, he says, computer terminals could be in public libraries.

Stookey's band, Bodyworks, has a new album, "Bigger than Live," scheduled for release by Gold Castle this fall. He calls it "low-key gospel" and says it's for caring people and also for "the overevangelized churchgoers who can only hear the cliché phrases of the Christian community so many times before they burn out."

Mary Travers says that for the summer tour, "Each of us gathered up new songs. We play them for each other, decide what we want to do. We think of old tunes to put back in the program.

"This year I think we'll do 'I Shall Be Released,' 'Tramp on the Water' and 'Because All Men Are Brothers.' It balances about half old and half new material."

She says, "When we're not together it doesn't mean we've got our feet up. 'I've been doing lecture-concerts on human rights where I sing out and speak out. Peter has been doing some."

Travers says that when she was in her teens, "you'd only see homeless if you went to the Bowery. They were drunks and bums, not families and women. Now they're part of city life across the country.

"The graying of America and the AIDS epidemic means the government is going to have to do something about health care: the private sector can't."

She adds, "We're going to have to face the fact that, because of poor education and lack of vitality in the industrial sector, America is becoming a two-class society, which is dangerous for democracy. Look at Latin American countries which have no middle class to see what happens to the political process when you have just the haves and have nots.

"You can defend a country two ways, from the outside and from within. The nation has, for the last eight years, spent only for defense for the outside, allowing the internal structure to decay.

"The American dream was for everybody to have a chance to make a better life for themselves. We have to put back the chance and the hope."

Programs can help seniors with housing costs and taxes

Editor's note: This column is prepared by the staff of the Manchester Senior Citizens' Center.

Senior Citizens

By Joe Diminico
Activities Director

Affordable housing, high taxes, high rents and high interest rates. Sound familiar? We hear it on the news/broadcasts and read it in the newspapers. The topics attract all of us, particularly seniors on a fixed income. Relief is in sight; please make note of the following programs:

1. RAM (Reverse Annuity Mortgage program) sponsored by the Connecticut Housing Finance Authority. This program is designed to provide income to homeowners 65 years or older. Individuals can receive up to $500 monthly for 10 years, based on home equity. The interest is a 7 percent fixed rate, with income guidelines, but no higher than $21,000 per household.

2. ACE (Apartment Conversion for the Elderly) is designed to provide income to seniors in the form of rental income. Qualified individuals will be allowed to borrow money either to convert part of their home to a rental unit or add on a rental unit. Applicants must be 62 years or older. For more information, call CHF A at 721-9501 or the Department of Aging at 566-7772.

Homeowners and renters take heed. New legislation has taken effect that changes the income guidelines allowing seniors tax and rental relief. The income guidelines are $13,500 to $16,200 for singles and $16,200 to $20,000 for married. Qualified homeowners will receive a reduction in their yearly taxes and renters will receive a rebate check at the end of the year. For more information, call the assessor's office at 647-3014.

DRIED FLOWER enthusiasts are asked to help harvest wildflowers such as goldenrod and joe-pye weed. Both are ready for picking now and are an integral part of an arrangement. Those with no space at home are welcome to bring the flowers to the center for drying.

Men and women golfers are reminded about the upcoming Arizona Scramble on Aug. 29. The ladies will be playing at Grassmere and the men will be playing at Twin Hills. The fee for the ladies is $7.50 (includes golf and lunch) and for the men $3 (includes lunch and prizes). Individuals are asked to make reservations Monday with league officers.

Don't forget: Next Thursday at 5 p.m. will be our last picnic. Irving Booker of Northeast Utilities will be on hand for energy bingo. Aug. 19 will be our last day for meals until after Labor Day.

Lastly, the senior center desperately needs volunteers to help with painting and cleaning in the last two weeks of August. Remember, it is your volunteer efforts that help keep the senior center in impeccable condition.

Hunters gather to roust grouse

LONDON (AP) — Hunters flocked to the heather-covered moors of Scotland and northern England on Friday. "The Glorious Twelfth of August" and the start of the grouse-hunting season popular with landed gentry and wealthy tourists.

But the hunters' gunfire was muted by declining stocks of the wild red grouse, due to a parasite and vigorous protesters who drove the birds away with a pre-dawn swoop on three grouse moors.

The Hunt Saboteurs Association, which opposes blood sports, said about 300 members beat the hunters to the bushes and roused the grouse at Stanhope and Gunnerside Moors in northern England and in an area near Muirshell Country Park in Scotland.

Ben Ponton, a spokesman for the protesters, said they would remain on the moors all day. He described their early success as the "most glorious day" in efforts to ban grouse-killing.

"It has become a 'Glorious Twelfth,'" he said. "We've saved birds lives and that's glorious."

Dukes and lords traditionally lead hunting parties on "The Glorious Twelfth of August" — not to be confused with "The Glorious Twelfth of July," when Protestants in Northern Ireland celebrate their victory over Roman Catholics in the Battle of the Boyne.

Markets uneasy about Fed move

By Chet Currier
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — As they have demonstrated anew in the past few days, Wall Street investors are a tough group to please on the subject of inflation. In the bond market, especially, inflation is public enemy No. 1 because it erodes the value of money invested in long-term assets with fixed face values. And when the bond market suffers from inflation fears, so usually does the stock market.

But what happens when the Federal Reserve and other central banks in leading industrialized countries take a militant stance against inflation, and back up their words with action? If you take Tuesday's increase in the discount rate by the Fed as a case in point, the markets react with dismay.

One prominent concern is that in their zeal to keep inflation in check, policy-makers will tighten credit enough to cause a recession at some point down the road.

But some optimistic forecasters don't buy that argument. They contend that a modest pinch now by the Fed could forestall the necessity for a crunch later on.

Statistics reported to date suggest that inflation in this country is creeping up, but not accelerating rapidly.

There was some uneasy reaction in the markets Friday when the government reported that the Producer Price Index rose 0.5 percent in July — 0.6 percent if you exclude food and energy prices, which are prone to erratic short-term fluctuations that don't indicate any lasting trends.

The big worry on the Street these days is that the robust pace of economic activity will soon quicken the pace of prices as it strains labor and production capacity.

However, some analysts contend that these fears are unjustified. "The economy is strong, but strong for the right reasons," maintains Michael Sherman at Shearson Lehman Hutton Inc.

"The inflation picture itself is still not a problem despite all the rhetoric.

"We think that inflation must be watched, but we do not see reasons for higher interest rates at this time, and we believe there may emerge forces that could bring long rates (e.g., on bonds) down from present levels."

As Edward Yardeni at Prudential-Bache Securities put it: "Growth is good. That's our motto.

"We're trying to recruit as many people as possible to repeat it 10 times each morning, so that it might become a self-fulfilling prophecy. Frankly, we need all the help we can get because the 'growth is bad' camp has many more believers."

Increase in wholesale prices brings more inflation worries

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices rose at a brisk annual rate of 5.7 percent in July despite smaller increases for food, the government said Friday in a report that intensified already deepening concerns about inflation.

The Labor Department said its Producer Price Index, which tracks prices for finished products one step before the retail level, rose 0.5 percent last month, compared with a 0.4 percent increase in June.

But what alarmed analysts most about the July report was that, unlike previous months, the biggest increases were not in the normally highly volatile food and energy sectors but across a wide spectrum of consumer and capital goods.

Drugs, men's clothing, tires, soaps, cosmetics, home electronic equipment, glassware, tobacco products and construction equipment all rose at annualized inflation rates in the double digits. In the past two months alone, auto prices have climbed more than 1.5 percent, close to double digits if annualized.

"These prices will slow down, but something else... will pick up the slack," said Donald Ratajczak, director of economic forecasting at Georgia State University. "There's a lot of inflation kicking around."

Ratajczak said the August figures when they come out next month will look even worse. He predicted a monthly increase of 0.6 percent or annual rate exceeding 7 percent as energy prices rebound and the impact of the Farm Belt drought wends its way through the food production process.

Consumer food prices on the wholesale level rose just 0.4 percent in July. The price decline was led by falling meat costs as drought-plagued farmers and ranchers rushed their herds to slaughter rather than continue feeding their high-cost grains.

The 0.4 percent gain compared with increases of 1.1 percent in June and 0.9 percent in May.

In July, beef prices dropped 2.5 percent; pork plummeted 10.5 percent; and fish prices edged down 0.7 percent.

Prices for other food products affected by the drought, such as fruits and poultry products, continued to rise but at a slower pace than in June.

Prices for fresh vegetables jumped 7.5 percent after declining 5.7 percent in June, and canned fruits and vegetables rose 1.3 percent, triple the rate of increase the previous month.

"The drought is still not a major factor at the finished goods level, but it will be," Ratajczak said. "That's what's worrisome. Peas are in trouble, corn's in trouble, and that is why you see these canned goods beginning to take off."

However, he said the effect of the dry weather on consumer prices overall for the year will be only about one-half of 1 percent.

On Thursday, the Agriculture Department said consumer food prices alone will be pushed about 1 percent higher than they would have been had it not been for the drought.

Energy prices, after dropping 1.6 percent in June, were stable last month as a 3 percent increase in the wholesale price for gasoline was offset by a 6.1 percent decline in home heating oil prices.

In a related report on the inflationary front, the Commerce Department reported Friday that business inventories rose 0.7 percent in June despite a 1.5 percent increase in sales.

"We're beginning to see some inventory buying as an inflation hedge," said Allen Sinal of the Boston Co., a New York economic consultant. "When that happens, it just adds to inflationary pressures. It's the old too many dollars chasing too few goods."

The June inventories plus the higher wholesale prices in July suggest that the economy is "ratcheting up to a new higher plateau of inflation — 5 percent to 6 percent at an annual rate — a good deal sooner than 1989, as most had expected," he said.

Liberty gets option for Keystone

HARTFORD (AP) — The Travelers Corp. announced Friday that it has granted an exclusive option to Liberty Mutual Insurance Co. to purchase the Travelers subsidiary Keystone Provident Life Insurance Co.

Financial terms of the option were not disclosed. The sale would depend on approval by regulatory bodies and on both parties signing a definitive purchase agreement.

Travelers spokeswoman Michele U. Farley said.

The transaction is expected to be completed by the end of 1988. Keystone Provident, which is part of the Keystone Group owned by Travelers, had assets of about $5 billion, equity of more than $260 million, and annual premiums of about $1.2 billion, the company said.

Keystone Provident, acquired by Travelers in 1979, is a leading provider of single premium deferred annuities.

Liberty Mutual, the fifth-largest property-casualty insurance carrier in the nation, with assets of more than $14 billion and annual premiums of more than $6 billion, Travelers said.

Travelers is one of the world's largest multi-line insurance, financial and health services institutions.

Shamrock ups bid for Polaroid

BOSTON (AP) — An investment firm controlled by a Disney family member said Friday it has increased its offer to buy Polaroid Corp., and the instant camera pioneer's board of directors held a special meeting to discuss the bid.

Shamrock Holdings Inc. of Burbank, Calif., controlled by Roy E. Disney, nephew of the famous animator, announced it has offered $40 a share plus the right to 40 percent of any settlement in Polaroid's $5.7 billion patent infringement case against Eastman Kodak Co.

Shamrock, which owns 6.9 percent of Polaroid, also rescinded its earlier requirement that made a deal contingent on Polaroid dropping a $190 million pension surplus plan. But it said it would continue to fight a recently announced employee stock ownership plan.

The investment firm last month offered a flat $40 per share for Polaroid and attached several contingencies to the bid.

Its new offer was made in a letter dated Thursday from Shamrock chairman Stanley

Gold to Polaroid president I. MacAllister Booth.

Polaroid spokeswoman Marcia Phillips said the company's 13-member board began meeting Friday morning at company headquarters in Cambridge. She declined to comment on the new Shamrock offer.

On Thursday, a federal judge in Boston cleared the way for a trial on Polaroid's $5.7 billion request for damages against Kodak, refusing to vacate earlier decisions by a judge whose mother-in-law owned Kodak stock.

Highlights of the week

By The Associated Press

Interest rates marched higher as the Federal Reserve Board boosted its discount rate to 6.5 percent from 6 percent and major banks raised the prime lending rate to 10 percent from 9.5 percent. The hike in the discount rate reflected Fed concerns about rising inflation.

The government reported producer prices rose 0.5 percent in July, for an annual rate of 5.7 percent. The government also reported retail sales rose a modest 0.5 percent last month.

President Reagan signed into law a $3.9 billion drought-relief bill designed to aid farmers and ranchers, while the Agriculture Department said it appeared this year's corn crop would fall 37 percent from 1987's harvest.

Attorney General Edwin Meese III allowed the Detroit News and Detroit Free Press to merge their business and production staffs under a joint operating agreement.

A former Merrill Lynch & Co. stockbroker agreed to plead guilty to fraud charges in connection with the probe of insider trading with advance copies of Business Week magazine. Meanwhile, the magazine fired its broadcast editor and printer R.R. Donnelley & Sons fired three more production workers in connection with the scandal.

A House committee approved a bill under which securities firms could face huge fines for insider trading by their employees and bounties could be paid to people who inform authorities about such deals. It was uncertain, however, whether the bill could become law this year.

Michael David, a young lawyer at the center of the insider trading ring known as the "Yuppie Five" was sentenced to four months in prison, nearly two years after he admitted his guilt.

Batus Inc. sweetened its hostile bid for Farmers Group Inc. to more than $4.9 billion from $4.5 billion in an apparent attempt to win a friendly agreement with the insurance company. In another takeover fight, the apparel and furniture manufacturer and retailer Interco Inc. rejected a sweetened $2.66 billion buyout offer from a Washington-based investor group.

Rio Grande Industries Inc. received government approval for its $1.2 billion purchase of the Southern Pacific Railroad from Santa Fe Southern Pacific Corp.

The House approved and sent to the Senate a free-trade agreement with Canada. The agreement, signed by President Reagan and Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney last January, sweeps away most tariffs and a wide array of other trade barriers.

American Airlines announced plans to base as many as 700 pilots and flight attendants in South Florida to capitalize on the troubles of Eastern Airlines. Meanwhile, Eastern's parent, Texas Air Corp., reported its second-quarter net loss widened sharply.

The Federal Aviation Administration moved to suspend a $3.5 billion contract awarded to International Business Machines Corp. to build an air traffic control system following a government decision to review the contract award.

The Postal Service said it was shelving a major portion of a contract with Texas billionaire H. Ross Perot that drew fire from Congress and private industry and spawned a court test of the service's purchasing rules. The contract was initially awarded to Perot's company without competitive bidding.

Business Week fires an editor as insider-trading scandal grows

NEW YORK (AP) — The burgeoning insider-trading scandal surrounding Business Week came home to haunt the magazine's own editorial offices Friday, after repeated assertions that its employees were not involved.

Business Week announced it fired its broadcast editor for violating the magazine's written code of ethics and possibly trading on advance knowledge of stocks mentioned in issues before they were released to the public.

S.G. "Rudy" Ruderman, who had broadcast market and business news for Business Week since 1981, failed to disclose "all the (stock) trades he made and the full extent of his holdings" in accordance with the ethics code, said a spokeswoman Mary McGeachy, reading from a statement.

All Business Week employees are informed as part of their orientation that they are obligated to disclose their stock holdings to the editor.

McGraw-Hill Inc., Business Week's publisher, learned late Thursday from the New York Stock Exchange's surveillance unit that Ruderman might have made four or five trades in 1988 involving stocks mentioned in the magazine's "Inside Wall Street" column, McGeachy said.

Shock reverberated through the magazine's editorial offices, where Ruderman shared quarters until he was confronted by McGraw-Hill and magazine officials when he arrived for work Friday. He was dismissed shortly after the meeting.

"It's deeply disturbing," said managing editor John Dierdorff. "I fervently hope this distressing incident is the end of it," but he said the magazine's own investigation was continuing.

Ruderman's firing came a day after the first criminal charge was filed in the scandal. A stock broker who had been fired by Merrill Lynch & Co. for suspicious trades was charged with mail fraud Thursday, and his lawyer said he would plead guilty.

Seven employees of Business Week's printer also have lost their jobs, as have two brokers at two other investment firms.

Ruderman, 62, did not report, write or edit stories for Business Week. But he broadcast a business news report several times a day from the magazine's office in midtown Manhattan to radio stations in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Fort Wayne, Ind.

All stations except Fort Wayne are owned by Group W Broadcasting and have suspended the Business Week program. "We've decided we weren't going to run any reports till get it all cleared up," said Warren Maurer, vice president of the company's AM stations. McGeachy had no comment on the Fort Wayne station.

Dierdorff said Ruderman regularly received a page proof of the "Inside Wall Street" column on Thursdays — hours before its official release to the public — to make sure companies mentioned in the column were not referred to in radio broadcasts. Ruderman also was free to use the information in his weekend reports, which were taped on Fridays.

Ruderman could not be reached for comment. He was not in the Business Week office, and both numbers at his home in suburban Scarsdale, N.Y., were answered by machines.

His lawyer, Alan Kaufman, said he was in the process of "gathering whatever relevant information exists... it's a matter that just arose this morning."

Magazine officials had maintained since the investigation into suspicious stock trading was made public last month that its editorial employees were not involved.

Decker-Slaney can't forget 1984 Olympics

By Bert Rosenthal
The Associated Press

Mary Decker Slaney would like to forget the 1984 Olympic Games. Circumstances, however, won't let her.

Four years ago at Los Angeles, Slaney, the best women's distance runner ever produced in the United States, had an ill-fated collision with Zola Budd during the 3,000-meter final.

Slaney was knocked off the track, onto the infield, and suffered serious hip and rib injuries.

After being helped from the Los Angeles Coliseum by her husband, 6-foot-7, 290-pound British discus thrower Richard Slaney, she cried on national television and castigated Budd for causing the incident.

Budd, a native-born South African teenager who was running for Britain, had idolized Slaney for many years.

She felt betrayed by Slaney's harsh comments, and for some months, the two engaged in a war of words.

Finally, they exchanged apologies. "As far as 1984 is concerned, it doesn't exist anymore," Slaney said recently. "I'm thinking only about 1988."

Her main concern for this year again is the 3,000, although Slaney also has qualified for the U.S. team in the 1,500 meters.

"The 3,000 is an incomplete scenario," she said.

So are the Olympics.

Although a world-calibre distance runner since she was 12, Slaney, now 30, never has won an Olympic medal.

In 1972, at 13, she was too young to compete in the U.S. Olympic Trials. In 1976, she was injured before the Trials. In 1980, the U.S.-led boycott of the Moscow Games prevented any Americans from competing in the Olympics.

And in 1984, the celebrated collision with Budd wrecked Slaney's dream.

Now, she is obsessed with completing an Olympic race and winning a medal.

"I want an Olympic medal - preferably a gold," she said. "Right now, it looks possible. I just hope it happens."

But she said, "At this point, just crossing the finish line will be an improvement over 1984."

Slaney soothed her 1984 pain in 1985 by winning all 14 of her outdoor races. In 1986, she took time off from track to have her first child, a girl, Ashley.

Last year, she was sidelined because of surgery on her right Achilles' tendon - another in a long series of injuries that have plagued Slaney's otherwise brilliant career.

Around the injuries, Slaney has managed to outdistance virtually all of the world's best women distance runners.

She is the American record-holder at all distances between 800 meters and 10,000 meters, and she owns the world record for the mile (4 minutes, 16.71 seconds).

She also was the world champion in the 1,500 and 3,000 meters at the 1983 World Championships - a feat she will try and duplicate at Seoul.

"In '83, all I wanted to win was the 3,000," Slaney said. "The 1,500 was icing on the cake."

Those races will be run in the same order in the Olympics - the 3,000 first, followed by the 1,500.

Four years ago, Slaney won both races in the U.S. Olympic Trials, but skipped the 1,500 in the Games because of a scheduling conflict with the 3,000. This time, there is no overlap, and she will attempt the difficult double again, like she did in 1983.

"I'm healthier than I've been in years," she said. "I've been doing harder training. I've been doing extensive track workouts ... longer runs. And there hasn't been any muscle soreness."

"The Achilles' tendon has taken a full year to become 100 percent ... It's felt a lot stronger and not as sensitive."

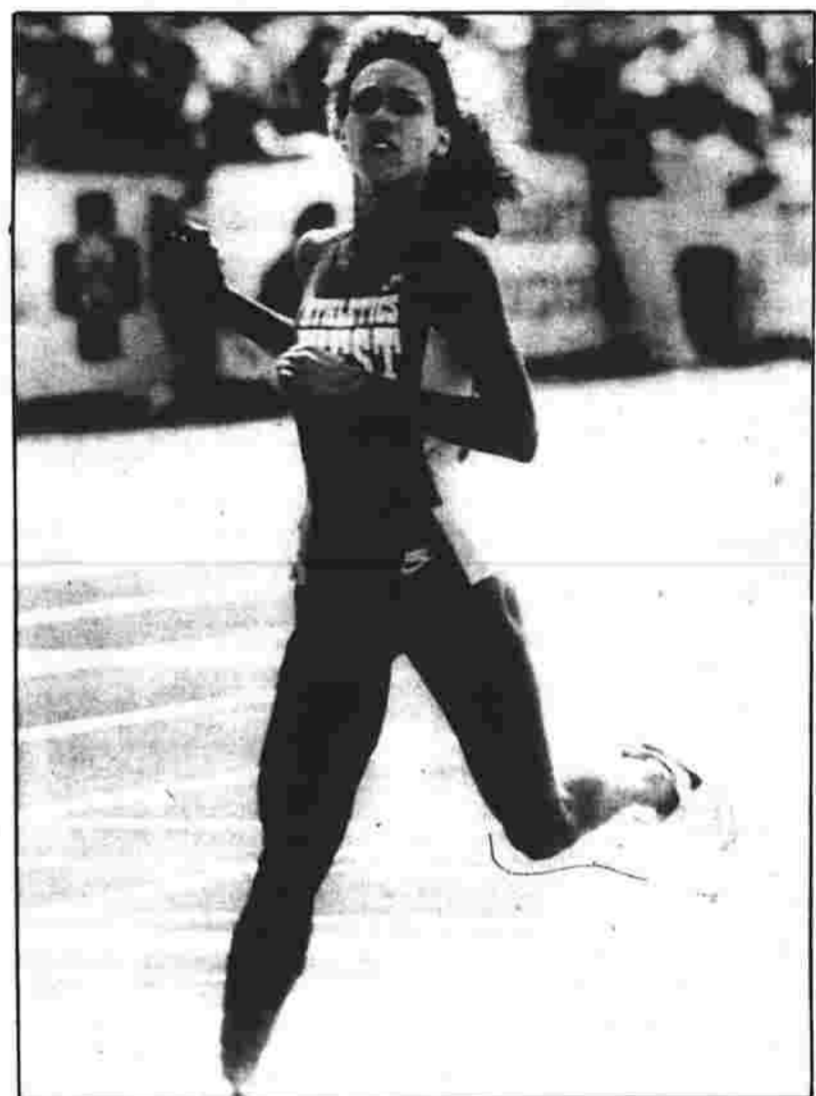

Sensitive is a word that characterizes Slaney's feeling about the 1984 Games.

"One thing a lot of people remember about the '84 Olympics is my fall," she said. "They'll be following the sport this time because they'll be interested in seeing what what happens to me."

"I know I am."

What happened to Slaney at Los Angeles is not likely to happen again at Seoul.

SEOUL-BOUND - Mary Decker-Slaney, shown here winning the 1500-meter final at the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials three weeks ago, is out to capture her elusive gold medal in Seoul, South Korea.

Marshall doesn't mind being 'other sprinter'

By Bert Rosenthal
The Associated Press

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. - Pam Marshall is "the other" sprinter on the U.S. Olympic women's track team - and that's just the way she likes it.

Marshall, 1986 national champion in the 100-meter dash and 1986 and '87 national champion at 200 meters, was virtually ignored during the U.S. Olympic trials, despite finishing second in the 200.

Gathering much of the publicity during the Trials was Florence Griffith Joyner, with her world record clocking of 10.49 seconds in the 100 and her American record of 21.77 in the 200.

Then there were Evelyn Ashford, 1984 Olympic gold medalist in the 100, who finished second in the Trials, and Gwen Torrence, who like Griffith Joyner, made the team in the 100 and 200, placing third in both events.

"It doesn't bother me," Marshall said about being overshadowed by the other sprinters. "I like being the underdog. No one knows who I am."

"I don't need the pressure. This way, I can go into the Games relaxed and take care of business. I like it."

"I have a lot of family and friends behind me, and I know what I have to do."

Many of those friends include members of the World Class Athletic Club, the group coached by Bob Kersee, which put seven athletes on the track and field team, more than any other organization.

Marshall, who joined the World Class AC in February, compared the team to the Pittsburgh Pirates' teams of the Willie Stargell era.

"We are like a family," she said. "Bobby (Kersee) motivates me, and everybody on the team motivates each other. Everyone wants to be good, and everyone wants everyone else to be good. Being part of the team brings out something in me."

Kersee welcomed Marshall into the club when she sought to join six months ago.

"I saw all the success he was having," Marshall said. "I wanted to be the best, and I thought he could bring it out in me."

"I'm lazy, and I needed someone to push me. He pushes me. He has no sympathy, but he knows when I've had enough."

Under Kersee, Marshall said she has become much stronger by lifting weights. Previously, Marshall had not done much weight training.

She also praises Kersee and the club's physical therapist, Bob Foster, for helping her make the U.S. squad, when it appeared that a stress fracture in the right shin and an injured right hamstring might prevent her from competing in last month's Olympic Trials.

The stress fracture occurred in March "from overtraining," and the hamstring injury, which first popped up in 1984, reappeared in June.

Sports in Brief

Jockey Cordero is a father

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Moments after being inducted into racing's Hall of Fame, jockey Angel Cordero Jr. completed one of the most successful daily doubles in his long career — his wife, trainer Marjorie Clayton, gave birth to their second daughter in New York.

"This is the most special day for me," said the 45-year-old Cordero, a native of Puerto Rico, who was elected to the Hall last spring after he reversed its policy of not choosing active jockeys.

"I am very proud. I am proud for my family and my country. I hope they are just as proud as me," Cordero, inducted Thursday along with trainer Angel Penna, said Clayton had told him she wanted him at the Hall of Fame ceremonies rather than at her side. She and the 6½-pound girl were both reported doing fine.

McKyer, Griffin end holdout

ROCKLIN, Calif. (AP) — San Francisco 49ers starting cornerbacks Tim McKyer and Don Griffin are close to ending their one-month holdout after reaching "a form of agreement" with the club, says Coach Bill Walsh.

McKyer and Griffin's agent, Steve Weinberg, said the players have verbally agreed to terms with the team and their return is imminent, according to a report in Friday's San Jose Mercury News.

Weinberg said the contracts might be finalized Friday, and Walsh said it was possible McKyer and Griffin could accompany the team to Denver for Saturday night's exhibition game.

The 49ers said they have been fine McKyer and Griffin $1,000 a day for the 26 days of their holdout through Thursday.

U.S. women rout Cuba

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Katrina McClain's 20 points led five players in double figures Friday night as the U.S. Olympic women's basketball team beat Cuba 119-58 in an exhibition game which nearly was postponed after the arena scoreboard crashed to the floor nine hours earlier.

The contest preceded a game featuring the U.S. men's basketball team and a squad of NBA all-stars.

1910 — In a unique statistical game, the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Pittsburgh Pirates played to a 9-9 tie. Each team had 38 of-bats, 13 hits, 12 assists, two errors, five strikeouts, three walks, one hit batsman and one passed ball.

1931 — Tony Cucinello of the Cincinnati Reds went 6-for-6 in the first game of a doubleheader at the stadium. Cucinello had a triple, two doubles and three singles and drove in five runs as the Reds won 17-3.

1948 — Satchel Paige, of the age of 42, pitched his first major-league complete game. Paige gave up five hits as the Cleveland Indians beat the Chicago White Sox 5-0.

1969 — Jim Palmer of the Orioles, plagued by arm trouble the year before, no-hit the Oakland Athletics 6-0 in Baltimore.

1978 — The Baltimore Orioles benefited from the rain-out rule. The Orioles were leading New York 3-0 after six innings but the Yankees scored five runs in the top half of the seventh. Heavy rains ended the game in the bottom half of the inning and the score was reverted to the end of the last completed inning, giving the Orioles the victory. This rule was changed in 1989.

1979 — St. Louis' Lou Brock reached the 3,000-hit plateau with an infield hit off Chicago Cubs pitcher Dennis Lamp in a 3-2 Cardinals' victory.

Huge scoreboard crashes

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A 40,000-pound scoreboard, worth $3.1 million, at the new Charlotte Coliseum crashed to the floor and shattered as it was being lowered from its perch in preparation for Friday night's inaugural basketball games, police said.

Charlotte police Maj. J.J. Kelly said there were no injuries in the 9 a.m. accident, which occurred after workers heard the 40-foot-wide scoreboard creak and groan.

Witnesses said the scoreboard, made by the American Sign Co., was broken into pieces. The accident occurred a day after the grand opening of the facility.

Kelly said there is a sub floor under the wooden floor that was hit, and Friday night's games should go on as scheduled. The U.S. women's Olympic team was set to meet the Cuban national team at 6 p.m., while the U.S. men's team was scheduled to meet a team of NBA players at 9 p.m.

Leyland fitting in with Pirates

By Alan Robinson
The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Jim Leyland never gave much thought to coaching or managing, until he realized a catcher who couldn't hit was never going to get out of Double-A baseball.

"All my life I'd just wanted to play ball, but I never had any ability," Leyland said. "I was lucky that I always had a manager who would keep me around because I could throw batting practice, warm up the pitcher, take care of the practice balls."

"When I was done as a player, I thought I'd try managing for a year to see how I liked it, until I decided what I wanted to do."

That was 18 seasons ago, and Leyland is managing to do just fine as the Pittsburgh Pirates' manager. He doesn't dominate a locker room like Tommy Lasorda, doesn't charm reporters with his acerbic wit like Whitey Herzog, but he is considered one of the best of the new breed of managers, player development experts capable of building winning teams with young talent.

"Jim hasn't gotten the attention he deserves... but he's the best manager I've ever played for, the best prepared, the best with his players," said pitcher Bob Walk.

Rebuilding a team that lost 104 games only three years ago didn't happen overnight for Leyland, 43, but then neither did his ascent to the big leagues.

He spent 21 years of literally beating the bushes in minor league baseball, of driving his own bus, of $4 a day meal money, of having only enough money to pay his rent and buy one pair of pants every month, until hooking on with the Chicago White Sox as a coach in 1985.

One year later, the Pirates gambled that this competitive, intense, emotional sparkplug, a career minor leaguer, was the best man to turn around what was then the worst team in baseball.

"When we interviewed him, I thought 'Here's our manager,'" said Pirates General Manager Syd Thrift. "He thought like me, he knew that you built good teams and kept them good through your farm system."

Leyland, the Pirates and the big leagues were a curious mix.

Here was a guy who hated to lose managing a team that lost 202 games in two years, a guy content to stay out of the spotlight hiding down one of the most high-profile jobs in sports. A hooligan no longer drank anything stronger than ginger ale trying to revive rapidly diminishing interest in baseball in a shot-and-a-beer town.

It wasn't easy. Youngsters such as Barry Bonds, John Smiley and Bob Kipper were rushed to the majors ahead of schedule, and Leyland and his young Bucs took their lumps and their losses. And before Thrift traded for Andy Van Slyke, Mike Dunne, Jim Gott and Jeff Robinson, Leyland had to try to win with Sixto Lezcano, Jason Thompson and Johnnie LeMaster.

With the frequent losses came frequent Leyland losses of temper, an upset food table in San Francisco, a wall splattered with milk in Pittsburgh, and plenty of post-game tirades delivered in his best longshoreman's language.

Leyland hated to lose in the worst way, but often he did.

"Things were a lot worse than I imagined when I got here in 1986, and I took it personal, real personal, when we lost," Leyland said. "It killed me to lose the way we were losing. We'd play good, but just good enough to lose."

"I finally said to myself, do you think you've done a good job, and I said, yes. I tried to focus on what we had to do to get better. Syd came through, got us some players, and I had my mind set on seeing this through."

After spending almost four consecutive seasons in last place in the National League East, the resurgent Pirates ran off 27 victories in their final 38 games last season to tie for fourth place.

They spent the first month of this season in first place, then settled into second place, just close enough to the heavily favored New York Mets to keep the pennant race interesting.

Fatigued Azinger leads PGA by one stroke

By Bob Green
The Associated Press

EDMOND, Okla. — Paul Azinger, although admitting to fatigue, shot a 5-under-par 66 Friday and took the second-round lead in the PGA National Championship.

Azinger, the 1987 Player of the Year and a winner earlier this season, reached the halfway point of the last of the year's Big Four events at 133, nine under par.

"I was getting pretty fatigued at the end of the day," said Azinger, who was bothered by back problems and muscle spasms earlier in the week. "I don't have a back problem any more — except when I try to sleep. But I haven't slept much since Thursday and I was really getting fatigued."

"We had a very welcome wait on the 17th tee, and that helped," said Azinger, who held a one-shot lead over club pro Jay Overton.

Overton, constantly chatting with a growing gallery, also had a 66 and was at 134.

"That's what club pros are supposed to do," the graying, 37-year-old Overton said of his on-course conversations with spectators. "If we're not nice, we get fired."

The Oak Tree Golf Club, ranked as the toughest par 71 course in this country but a tempting target in the absence of wind, was subjected to a record-setting barrage of low scores.

With a handful of players still out, 34 players had broken par for the day. The previous single-day record for subpar scores in the PGA was 31.

In addition to Azinger and Overton, Curt Byrum and Calvin Peete also had 66s. Dave Rummells came within one stroke of the PGA record with a 64 and Gary Koch shot 65.

"I can't believe how low the scores are," said Rummells, a third year touring pro who matched his career-high finish with a tie for fourth last week. "But the conditions are perfect for scoring; light winds and the greens are soft so you can throw it right in there," he said.

Rummells scored nine birdies, including five in a row on the front. In his course-record effort that, he said, could have been better.

"I felt like I could have shot in the 50s out there," said Rummells, who finished 36 holes at 137, five under par.

Ray Floyd, 45, a two-time winner of this title, was tied with John Cook at 136, three off the pace. Floyd had a second consecutive 68, Cook 69.

David Graham, 42, who won the PGA in 1979, shot a 67 and was tied with Koch, Rummells, Steve Jones and Tommy Nakajima of Japan at 137. Jones and Nakajima each had a 68.

Greg Norman also had a 71 and was in a large group at 139.

"I'm basically disappointed," said Norman, who hadn't played since injuring a wrist in the U.S. Open. "It was moving day this morning. The course played two shots easier than last year, but the scoring, however, did not extend to Seve Ballesteros and such aging stars as Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino. That quartet, with 36 major titles among them, all failed to qualify for the final two rounds."

Ballesteros, who won the British Open last month, took a 75 that included a triple-bogey 6 on the 13th hole where — among other things — he inadvertently bounced one shot off a stone wall and stubbed a chip, moving the ball only a couple of yards.

He had a 146 total. The 48-year-old Nicklaus, holder of a record five PGA titles, required 15 strokes to play the 15th and 16th holes, shot 79 and had a 161 total.

He 3-putted both the 15th and 16th and, on the par-5 16th, drove into a creek, hit into the woods and lost his ball and eventually made a 9 on the hole.

Palmer was 76-150 and Trevino 71-148. Defending champion Larry Nelson was 71-141 and Tom Watson was one shot better at 140 after a 68.

U.S. Open champ Curtis Strange shot 72-144 and first-round leader Bob Gilder went to a 75 and a 141 total.

Berkoff sets world record

By Bill Barnard
The Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas — David Berkoff, using a long underwater start, set a world record in the men's 100-meter backstroke, and Matt Biondi was the top qualifier in the 50 freestyle Friday at the U.S. Olympic swimming trials.

Berkoff's time of 54.95 seconds was .05 seconds faster than the world mark by Igor Poliansky at the Soviet Union Olympic trials on July 16.

It was the second world record of the five-day trials, along with Biondi's world mark in the 100 freestyle. Seven American records have fallen in the meet.

Berkoff, 21, of Willow Grove, Pa., swims underwater for the first 30-35 meters of the race.

"I like to pop up and get my stroke going about 35 meters out," he said.

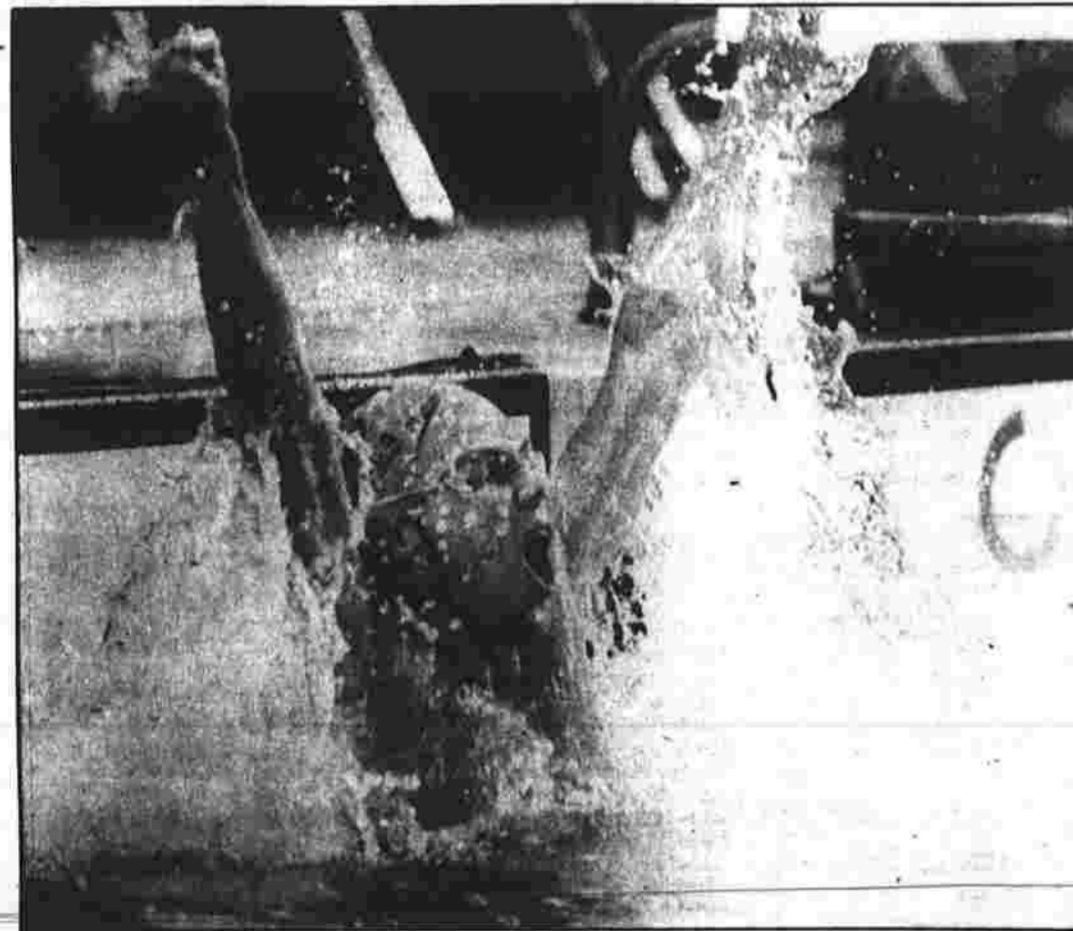

Despite his record performance, Berkoff, whose best previous time was 55.43, still needed to finish in the top two in Friday night's final to qualify for the Olympics.

"I'm happy, but not satisfied," Berkoff said. "I have to make the team first. I want to swim in Seoul."

His closest competition in the preliminaries was Jay Mortenson of Madison, Wis., in 55.63.

In other qualifying, Biondi, of Moraga, Calif., entering the final stage of his bid to swim in seven events at the Seoul Olympics, had the fastest prelim time in the 50 freestyle.

Biondi, who already has Olympic berths in the 100 and 200 freestyles, the 100 butterfly and two relays, swam the 50 freestyle in 22.50 seconds.

Myricks, Aouita winners in Hungary meet

By Salvatore Zanca
The Associated Press

BUDAPEST, Hungary — Larry Myricks continued his busy journey to the Olympics by winning the long jump at the Hungalu Grand Prix track meet Friday with a leap of 28 feet, 3 inches.

The American arrived in Budapest only hours earlier from Sestriere, Italy, where he competed Thursday night.

Morocco's Said Aouita won the 800 meters in 1 minute, 45.42 seconds, a workout for him after a two-week layoff.

Aouita is working on his speed or the 1,500 meters at the Olympics in Seoul, South Korea. He didn't need much to win Friday, taking the lead from Moussa Fall of Senegal in the final stretch after a first 400 of 52.69.

He plans to run in Zurich, Brussels and Berlin before leaving Europe.

Aouita won the 5,000 meters at the Los Angeles Olympics in 1984 and holds the world record in the 1,500, 2,000, two-mile and 5,000 meters.

He will compete in Linz, Austria, on Monday.

Myricks also will compete in Linz, the next stop in a busy summer for him. He said he didn't mind the heavy schedule.

Boggs' former girlfriend strikes out in court

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — The former girlfriend of Boston Red Sox star Wade Boggs struck out in court Friday when a commissioner ruled her $6 million lawsuit didn't meet legal requirements.

However, the commissioner said Margo Adams can stay in the legal ballgame by redrafting and refiling her suit, which alleges Boggs breached an oral contract to pay her expenses for accompanying him on Sox road trips over a four-year period.

Adams' lawyer, James McGee, said the suit will be refilled.

"Score one for Wade Boggs," exulted Jennifer King, attorney for the four-time American League batting champion.

Boggs, who was in Boston for Friday night's game against Detroit, said he was very pleased.

"It's a burden off my shoulders," he said during batting practice at Fenway Park. "This is good for me and my family. I was confident right from the start. I think we handled it the right way. ... I hope this is the end of it."

But the ruling by Orange County Superior Court Commissioner Eleanor Palk appeared unlikely to stifle the scandal brewing over Boggs' affair with Adams, a California mortgage broker.

The commissioner, who sits as a judge, sided with Boggs in rejecting the suit as being improperly grounded in law. The ruling means the suit remains alive, but must be rewritten in order to be reconsidered.

McGee, calling the ruling a minor setback, promised to refile the suit, perhaps as early as Monday.

"It's basically the parties jockeying for position," McGee said. "We more or less anticipated that this would be the ruling."

He said the oral agreement called for Boggs to pay Adams' expenses in return for various services from her, including arranging his transportation, meals and laundry.

Adams, 32, is a resident of Costa Mesa, Calif.

The suit contended that Boggs, 30, and Adams essentially lived together during Red Sox' road trips, and that by breaking off the affair, Boggs broke an oral contract that called for her to provide companionship.

King argued that if such a contract existed, it necessarily would have included sex. A contract for sex is illegal, invalidating any legal claim by any party to such a contract, she argued.

Boggs, leading the league in hitting again this season with a .359 average, has apologized to Deborah, his wife of more than a decade, and regrets the affair, King said.

"He and she have worked it out, and basically she's willing to accept his apology," King said before the hearing. "I think he's real sincere about his regrets."

The Boggs have a girl, 9, and a boy who will be 2 in November.

Boggs acknowledges taking Adams along on most of the team's road trips for two years. But he says he broke off the affair two years ago, according to his lawyer.

Adams has said she accompanied him on Sox trips for four years, and the suit details the couple's illicit travels for a total of 240 days over that period. Adams sought $500,000 compensation for lost wages during the trips, and $5.5 million in punitive damages.

Adams is planning a "kiss-and-tell" book about the affair and has signed a literary agent to try to sell the memoir to publishers.

Boggs, who had a lifetime batting average of .354 entering this season, won American League batting championships in 1983, 1985, 1986 and 1987.

Expos defeat Mets in 12th

NL Roundup

Expos 5, Mets 2

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Fitzgerald's sacrifice fly in the 12th inning led the Montreal Expos to a 5-2 victory over the New York Mets Friday night despite the combined four-hit pitching of David Cone, Roger McDowell and Randy Myers.

Myers, 5-2, who came in to start the 12th, walked Tim Lincecum and Andres Galarraga to open the inning. Hubie Brooks fouled out, advancing the runners, and Tim Wallach was intentionally walked before Fitzgerald filed out to right, snapping a 2-2 tie. Fitzgerald is 3-for-5 with 10 runs batted in when batting with the bases loaded this season.

Nelson Santovenia followed with a two-run single, the Expos' first hit since the seventh inning.

Montreal is 16-5 in extra-inning games this season.

Andy McGaffigan, 4-0, pitched two perfect innings in relief of Bryn Smith, who allowed five hits in seven innings, and Tim Burke, who allowed two hits.

Cone struck out 12 and gave up three hits in eight innings before McDowell pitched three hitless innings.

Phillies 9, Pirates 1

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Kevin Gross pitched a six-hitter and Juan Samuel drove in four runs Friday night as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 9-1 in the first game of a two-night doubleheader.

Samuel was hitless in 15 at-bats and 4-for-35 when he singled in two runs in the fourth. He doubled in two more in the sixth.

Cardinals 4, Cubs 0

CHICAGO (AP) — Joe Magrane pitched a one-hitter and Tom Brunansky homered as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Chicago Cubs 4-0 on Friday.

Magrane, 2-4, gave up a ground single to left field to Vance Law in the second inning and one out later, walked Jody Davis. Magrane, who spent two months on the disabled list earlier this season, then retired the next 22 batters in earning his first victory since June 17. He walked one and struck out six.

The shutout was the third of Magrane's two-year career and first since last Sept. 29 when he defeated Montreal 1-0 on three hits.

In the process, Magrane stopped two hitting streaks, 20 games by Rafael Palmeiro and 12 by Mark Grace.

WILD PITCH — Detroit catcher Mike Heath reacts to a wild pitch thrown by Doyle Alexander as Boston's Spike Owen waves teammate Wade Boggs over to third base during the third inning of Friday night's game at Fenway Park. The Sox won, 9-4, and recorded its 23rd straight home win which is a new American League record.

A crowd of 34,732, the 32nd straight time more than 30,000 fans have jammed Fenway Park, saw the Red Sox remain undefeated at home since June 24.

The Red Sox erupted in the third against Doyle Alexander, 11-7. Jody Reed led off with a single for Boston's first hit and scored on Wade Boggs' double one out later. Spike Owen, Evans and Greenwell followed with singles that put the Red Sox ahead 3-2.

After Todd Benzinger had an RBI grounder, Rice hit his ninth home run over the wall in left-center field. That knocked out Alexander, against whom Rice is 24-for-78 in his career.

Yankees 6, Twins 4

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Rickey Henderson hit a two-run single in the top of the ninth and Dave Righetti worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the bottom of the inning to give New York its first win of the season when trailing after eight innings, a 6-4 victory over the Minnesota Twins Friday night.

New York was 0-40 this season in games they trailed after eight innings. The Yankees snapped a four-game losing streak and moved to within four games of first-place Detroit in the American League East.

Steve Shields, 3-3, had seemingly allowed another New York opponent to win in the late innings when he gave up Randy Bush's 12th homer, a two-run shot, in the eighth for a 4-3 Minnesota lead.

But the Yankees, who have lost six games when they were just one out away from victory, stormed back against Twins' bullpen ace Jeff Reardon.

With one out in the ninth, Juan Berenguer walked Don Slaught and was relieved by Jeff Reardon.

Reardon, who has 36 saves, blew his sixth save opportunity.

WBA IGNORES STARLING

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The World Boxing Association said Friday it would crown Tomas Molinares as world welterweight champion despite the New Jersey State Athletic Commission's decision to void his victory over Marlon Starling.

"The Colombian Tomas Molinares, new champion of the welterweight division of the WBA, will be recognized by the authorities of this organization," the WBA said in a statement from its headquarters in Maracay, Venezuela.

The WBA said Molinares would be honored at a special ceremony "in which he will be presented with the sash that accredits him as the new world monarch at 147 pounds."

The statement said WBA President Gilberto Mendoza will go to Barranquilla, Colombia Saturday for the crowning ceremony.

In their July 30 title fight in Atlantic City, Molinares knocked out the American Starling, a resident of South Windsor, with a punch apparently delivered a fraction of second after the bell sounded to end the sixth round. Referee Joe Cortez declared the blow valid.

On Thursday, New Jersey athletic commissioner Larry Hazzard said Molinares' victory would not be recognized because the punch came late.

Red Sox win; set AL record

AL Roundup

Red Sox 9, Tigers 4

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox set an American League record with their 23rd straight victory at home, beating the Detroit Tigers 9-4 Friday night as Jim Rice's two-run homer capped a six-run third inning.

The Red Sox, winning the opener in a showdown between AL East leaders, surpassed the league mark of 22 set by the Philadelphia Athletics in 1931. The all-time home record is 26 by the New York Giants in 1916, followed by Pittsburgh's 24-game streak in 1978.

Dwight Evans went 3-for-4 and hit two of Boston's four doubles and Mike Greenwell drove in two runs as the Red Sox broke loose in its return to Fenway Park. Boston, leading the majors in batting and runs, is hitting .335 with 23 home runs and has outscored opponents 151-73 during its streak.

Boston moved back within 3 1-2 games of Detroit. The Red Sox were tied with the Tigers last week before a 2-7 road trip in which they batted only .229 and lost four times in Detroit.

Bruce Hurst, 13-4 this year but just 5-10 lifetime against the Tigers, won the opener of a three-game series that will be the final time the teams play this season.
