One survey done, another due on Main Street

By Nancy Concelman
Manchester Herald

After Labor Day, Main Street shoppers can expect to find survey forms in the stores asking them to identify downtown Manchester's strengths and weaknesses to help downtown compete with the Pavilions at Buckland Hills.

Meanwhile, Planning Director Mark Pellegrini said today a separate survey of Main Street business owners and landowners is complete but the results haven't yet been tabulated.

A presentation on the survey, sponsored by the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce and the Downtown Manchester Association, will probably be scheduled for next month, said Veronica Pastorelle, coordinator for the downtown association.

The surveys and other strategies for Main Street are based on a national program created to aesthetically and economically upgrade Main Streets in areas where large malls exist, Pellegrini said.

The "Main Street Approach," sponsored by the National Trust for Historic Preservation, is a 10-year-old program designed to revitalize and promote downtown. Although Manchester isn't directly involved with the program, "We're using their approach right now," Pellegrini said.

With the $70 million Pavilions at Buckland Hills scheduled to open in spring 1990, strategies to help downtown compete with the mall are increasingly important. The reconstruction of Main Street is also scheduled to begin in spring 1990.

The Main Street Approach began as a pilot program in three towns and now is used by more than 400 municipalities in 29 states.

The program begins with organization to bring merchants, business owners, town officials and civic groups together.

The second step of the Main Street Approach program is to launch a public relations campaign to draw shoppers' attention to downtown. A directory of downtown Manchester businesses was completed last week and is available to the public, Pastorelle said.

One part of the Main Street Approach program that Pastorelle said she would like to see Manchester adopt is improving the appearance of downtown by upgrading buildings, storefronts, signs and landscaping.

Pellegrini said there are currently no plans to renovate any of the buildings.

"Restoring the buildings is always important, but the question is that the most important thing right now," he said.

Pastorelle said she would like to see some work on the buildings in the future, but for now, work on Main Street's appearance will be confined to keeping the downtown area clean and continuing with the chamber's Main Street planning program.

Family OK after fire in Bolton

By Andrew J. Davis
and Andrew Yurkovsky

BOLTON — The cause of a fire that forced a family from their West Street home Sunday night is still under investigation, Fire Marshal Peter Massolini said today.

The fire, which was reported at 10:24 p.m., caused extensive smoke and structural damage throughout the house at 33-35 West St. and left it uninhabitable, Massolini said. No one was reported injured.

The fire was brought under control about 1½ hours later, and firefighters left the scene at 12:02 a.m., Massolini said. Firefighters from Andover, Hebron, Vernon, North Coventry and South Coventry provided assistance, he said.

"It needs quite a bit of work," Massolini said. "It needs cleaning throughout."

At home at the time of the fire were George and Deborah Catalane and their 4-month-old son, Craig, and 5-year-old daughter, Keira, Massolini said. He said a teen-age son, Datson, was not home at the time of the fire.

Deborah Catalane reported the fire. Contacted today at the Manchester residence of her father-in-law, George D. Catalane, said the fire caused heavy damage to the second floor, attic and roof.

The fire began in the back bedroom of the second floor and spread to the attic and roof, Catalane said.

The first floor does not have structural damage, but there is heavy smoke, water and heat-related damage, she said.

"Flames started engulfing the house," she said. "No one was hurt, (but) you can't live in the house. We really don't know how the fire started."

Massolini concurred that the fire began in the back bedroom on the second floor. He said that the cause of the fire had not been determined and that authorities would investigate the scene today.

a 1930s dress that Narkon wore in a film called "Mr. North" that opened in Hartford last week.

How an old dress helped land a movie role

Some people might aim for a glittering, high-tech look when trying to impress a film director.

But Virginia Narkon of Dartmouth Road got her Hollywood break looking as out-of-date as possible. She stepped into a 60-year-old gray crepe dress that belongs to her mother, Barbara Yench, added long gloves and a hat, and landed a walk-on role in "Mr. North," a picture which opened last week in Hartford.

For three very hot days last summer, Narkon spent 11 hours a day in what she describes as "a fairy world," as an extra in the film featuring Anthony Edwards, Lauren Bacall and Robert Mitchum, which was being shot in Newport, R.I., where her family has a second home.

Narkon, a friendly looking grandmother, said she had never been particularly attracted by the glamour and glitter of "Tinseltown." "That's why everyone is so surprised that I did this," she said. "It's really so strange, it's the first thing I've ever tried out for. But I'm really interested in the old days, and this picture, it's set in 1926, so it really caught my imagination. I decided I had to go for it."

Solidarity starts strike at shipyard

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — About 400 workers carrying Polish flags and chanting "Solidarity" seized control of the Lenin shipyard today, joining a wave of strikes that poses the most serious challenge to communist authorities since 1981.

The Lenin shipyard became the 13th enterprise in a week to go on strike for higher pay and government recognition of Solidarity, the trade federation that was suppressed under martial law in 1981.

At least 10 coal mines in southern Poland and transit and dockworkers in Szczecin remained on strike on the seventh day of the labor unrest, which has idled more than 76,000 workers.

Some Gdansk port workers also were striking as of today, according to reports from Western journalists. A Solidarity spokesman, Jacek Kuron, said 3,000 Gdansk dockworkers were on strike.

Aside from the shipyard, which employs 10,000 people, no new strikes were confirmed by authorities today. But there were many opposition reports of labor unrest nationwide.

Activists in Warsaw reported an attempt to start a strike at the 14,000-worker Ursus tractor plant outside the city. A rally at the plant was dispersed by police during the morning shift, resulting in three detentions, said activist Maciej Jankowski. But he said workers laid down tools in some departments.

A management spokesman at Ursus who did not give his name confirmed an unsuccessful attempt to strike at the plant, but made no mention of police and said work continued normally.

In southeastern Poland, Solidarity organizer Ewa Kuberna said workers rallied at the 18,000-employee Stalowa Wola steel mill and heavy machinery plant, and a strike was launched by 2,000 of the workers.

Government spokesman Ryszard Straus said people might be standing around at Stalowa Wola but it did not necessarily mean a strike.

Opposition spokesman Wojciech Maziarzski also reported new strikes or partial strikes at the Cegielski turbine works in Poznan, the Huta Warszawa steel mill in Warsaw and the Railroad Construction Enterprise of Szczecin.

A spokesman for Huta Warszawa mill, technical director Stanislaw Zalesny, said about 50 people tried to mount a strike but it failed. Straus said he had no information about any stoppages at Cegielski or the Szczecin railroad enterprise.

There was no police interference as workers marched around the Gdansk shipyard carrying Polish national flags and took

One-third of Nepal devastated by quake

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Rescuers searched through debris today for victims of an earthquake that ravaged one-third of this country's territory and parts of India, killing at least 650 people and injuring thousands.

The death toll was expected to climb from Sunday's pre-dawn quake on the India-Nepal border, which triggered landslides and floods and was the mountainous region's deadliest in 38 years.

Officials in both countries said they had yet to receive reports from the remote Himalayan areas hardest hit by the temblor, which knocked out power and communications and was said to injure at least 3,000 people.

Niranjana Thapa, Nepal's minister of state for home affairs, told a news conference at least 450 were dead and up to 1,000 injured. He said officials expected the numbers to climb.

Indian officials reported at least 200 people dead and more than 2,000 injured, most by debris from collapsing buildings.

The quake, centered almost on the India-Nepal border, registered 6.5 on the Richter scale.

Indian television today showed the devastation in the Indian state of Bihar: crumbled buildings, makeshift morgues lined with rows of bodies wrapped in white shrouds, damaged hospital wards packed with survivors.

Medical teams in India carried medicine and other supplies to overcrowded hospitals and the army was deployed to help search

Coventry library backers celebrate

By Jacqueline Bennett
Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — If at first you don't succeed, try again. The Board of Trustees of the Booth & Dimock Memorial Library did just that and the result was a ground-breaking ceremony at the site Saturday for a $1.7 million renovation and expansion project on the 75-year-old Main Street building.

"I want to thank you all for coming out on this auspicious occasion ... I also want to thank the Town Council for their continuing support for this project which gave us the courage to keep trying," said Michael Donahue, president of the library board. His remarks came before he, state Rep. Edith Prague, D-Columbia, and contractor Gregory Zlotnick pitched shovels into the library lawn signaling the start of the project.

"This is a wonderful expenditure of money. It is an investment in the future. Coventry is growing and lots of good things are happening," Prague said to the group of about 25 people who attended.

Donahue credited Prague, who represents the 8th Assembly

District, and state Sen. Marie Herbst, D-Vernon, of the 35th Senatorial District, for helping to secure a state and federal grant of $450,000 for the project. The improvement grant requires the town to supply the rest of the necessary funds.

Councilwoman Rose Fowler spoke on behalf of the Town Council. "This is a project that's benefit transcends all ages," she said.

Also present were the architect for the project, Felix Drury of New Haven, Councilmen Mark Soltys and James Sullivan, Board of Education members Kathleen Ryan and Chairman Lawrence Mickel, Town Manager John Elssesser and other library trustees and employees.

Originally estimated at a cost of $1.4 million, the project was first approved by townspeople in a February 1987 referendum. However, library trustees found the cost of the expansion had been underestimated and the actual cost of the project would be $1.7 million. In a May 1988 referendum, voters turned down a request from the library trustees for the additional $300,000 they

IN BRIEF

Bridge Inspections

Routine inspections of 10 state bridges, including five in Manchester, will take place this week, the state Department of Transportation has announced.

Inspections were scheduled for today of the bridges on Interstate 84 over Hop Brook, I-384 over Hop Brook and I-384 over Hillstown Road.

On Tuesday, an inspection will take place of Route 83 over I-384. On Wednesday, an inspection of a bridge on I-384 over Wyllys Street will be conducted.

On Thursday an inspection of a bridge on I-384 over Camp Meeting Road will take place. The inspections will require that certain lanes on the affected highways be closed between 9 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Other inspections will be held in Hartford, Middletown, Madison, and Plainville.

Route 6 decision delayed

It could take several more months for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to decide on whether to issue a wetlands permit for work on the proposed Route 6 expressway, a senior project manager for the Corps said today.

"We're kind of put that on the back burner," Godfrey said. She said that the state Department of Transportation has decided that two other highway projects, Interstate 91 and the Central Connecticut Expressway, are higher priorities.

The DOT wants to fill in 77 acres of wetlands for the expressway, which would run 11.5 miles from Bolton to Windham.

Godfrey said that a decision might not be made for two, three or even six months. Lt. Col. Stanley J. Murphy had said during a hearing on the expressway in March that a decision might be made six months from then.

Charter Oak work

Beginning tonight, two lanes of Interstate 91 northbound just south of the Charter Oak Bridge will be temporarily closed for one week to begin widening the expressway, according to the Department of Transportation.

Two lanes of I-91 northbound will open through the work area and state police will direct traffic.

In addition to I-91, one lane of routes 5 and 15 northbound just south of the merge area will be closed at the same time. The lanes will be closed from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. Monday through Thursday and on Friday beginning at 11 p.m.

Beginning on about Sept. 15, the expressway will be paved in these areas. Traffic will be shifted onto the new road.

The work is part of the construction of the new six-lane Charter Oak Bridge.

Jennings updated delegates on the Stafford-Hawkins Elementary and Secondary School Improvement Act, an $8.5 billion bill signed into law in May.

But she added that the nations are still threatened by the Soviet policy of Russification. She noted that the percentage of ethnic

Beginning tonight, two lanes of Interstate 91 northbound just south of the Charter Oak Bridge will be temporarily closed for one week to begin widening the expressway, according to the Department of Transportation.

Two lanes of I-91 northbound will open through the work area and state police will direct traffic.

In addition to I-91, one lane of routes 5 and 15 northbound just south of the merge area will be closed at the same time. The lanes will be closed from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. Monday through Thursday and on Friday beginning at 11 p.m.

Beginning on about Sept. 15, the expressway will be paved in these areas. Traffic will be shifted onto the new road.

The work is part of the construction of the new six-lane Charter Oak Bridge.

Principal at conference

Ludes Iules III, secretary of the Connecticut Association of Secondary School Principals and Manchester High School principal, recently attended a three-day seminar in Virginia to discuss key national issues in education.

Ludes was one of 50 educators who met with Jack Jennings, counsel for the House Committee on Education and Labor, during the National Association of Secondary School Principals leadership workshop for officers, held in Reston, Va.

Jennings updated delegates on the Stafford-Hawkins Elementary and Secondary School Improvement Act, an $8.5 billion bill signed into law in May.

TREASURED POSSESSION — Lida Cannon of Bolton is shown painting a portrait of her father, Lida Cannon. Her father, who was imprisoned by the Soviet authorities after World War II, had a fellow prisoner paint the picture from a photograph. Laidus lives in Manchester.

After 49 years, they still remember their homelands

For some, ethnic identity is little more than a last name. But it's much more for immigrants from Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

They say that the very existence of their languages and cultures is threatened by the policies of the Soviet Union, which has ruled the three nations since the end of World War II.

Immigrants from the Baltic republics of the Soviet Union will mark the 49 years since their native lands lost their independence during an hour-long rally at the Capitol in Hartford at noon on Monday. Among them will be Lida Cannon, a Bolton resident who fled Estonia with her mother, two sisters and brother just before the end of the war.

Cannon, 50, of 2 Fernwood Drive, said that changes brought about by Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev hold out the hope of greater autonomy by the three republics, which are located north of Poland and on the Baltic Sea.

"He realizes that Russia is going to remain in the Middle Ages if it doesn't open up, reform and adopt some of these Western ideas," Cannon said.

But she added that the nations are still threatened by the Soviet policy of Russification. She noted that the percentage of ethnic Estonians, Latvians and Lithuanians living in the Baltic region is declining as Russians and other ethnic groups move in.

"They're on the verge of becoming a minority in their own country," she said. "They're being Russified."

Forty-nine years will have passed on Tuesday since the Soviet Union and Nazi Germany, on Aug. 23, 1939, signed a non-aggression pact that many historians believe contained a secret agreement to divide the Baltic nations between them.

Cannon said that immigrants from around the world mark the signing of the pact as Black Ribbon Day.

Tuesday will be the first time that Black Ribbon Day will be marked in Hartford, Cannon said. Cannon's ties to her native Estonia remain close. She has visited the country several times since the war and teaches the Estonian language at the University of Connecticut.

She fled Estonia with her mother, two sisters and brother in 1944, just before the end of the war. They arrived in the United States in 1950, after spending time in relocation camps in Europe.

The family lived in Pittsburgh for two years, then moved to Willimantic, where Cannon grew up. She has been a resident of Bolton for the past 17 years.

Cannon's father was sentenced to a 20-year prison term in Siberia for fighting against the Soviets during the war. When he was allowed to return to his native Estonia after Stalin's death in 1953, Cannon's younger sister visited him there. "They're being Russified."

Besides teaching, Cannon works at a travel agency in Manchester and has been active in the Bolton Democratic Town Committee. She is the Democratic registrar of voters and serves as the town's welfare director.

About 30,000 residents of the state are of Baltic ancestry, Cannon said. A number of immigrants from the region have settled in the area, establishing the Latvian Lutheran Church of Manchester and the Lithuanian Hall on Golway Street in Manchester. In Andover there is a park owned and run by people of Estonian descent.

The rally Tuesday is organized by the Estonian, Latvian and Lithuanian Alliance of Connecticut. The group was formed last year to commemorate the 70 years since the three nations gained their independence.

The nations were independent for only 21 years before being taken over by the Soviet Union in 1944.

One letter costs $500

STAMFORD (AP) — Missing one letter has cost a New York woman $500 dollars and the cruciverbalizing championship, that is, a crossword puzzle title.

Douglas Hoylman of Chevy Chase, Md., took 10 minutes and 44 seconds Sunday to perfectly fill in a giant plexiglas puzzle and claim the top cash prize and championship of the 11th Annual American Crossword Puzzle Tournament.

Hoylman, was one of three finalists in the playoff round of the competition that drew some 136 puzzle aces from around the country, according to Will Shortz, the tournament director.

The three finalists reached the playoff round after scoring points based on accuracy and speed in earlier rounds.

Ellen Ripstein of New York had scored the best time of 7 minutes 19 seconds, but she erred when she tripped over one clue.

Group flights movie

BOSTON (AP) — An opponent of the movie "The Last Temptation of Christ," which has not played in the Greater Boston area, said her group would invoke the ancient anti-blasphemy state law to keep the film out of the area.

Joan Chiavari of Framingham said Roman Catholics would seek to block any screenings by invoking Massachusetts' 1697 anti-blasphemy law. If that failed, she said, they would picket the theaters.

The anti-blasphemy law says that "whoever willfully blasphemes the holy name of God... shall be punished by imprisonment in jail for not more than one year or a fine of not more than $300."

About 125 people rallied Sunday on the Boston Common in opposition to any showing of the movie in the Catholic archdiocese of Boston, the second largest in the nation.

FATAL FIRE — New York firefighters rush a burned man to an ambulance during a fire at a Bronx social club Sunday afternoon. The five-alarm blaze erupted in the basement of the illegal club, located among abandoned buildings. Five bodies were found at the club and two people died later. More than 30 others were injured.

Prof's body found

GUILFORD (AP) — The body of Yale University cardiology professor Allan V. Goodyer, who had been missing for nearly a week, was found Saturday in Long Island Sound near Hammonasset Beach State Park, police said.

Goodyer, 69, had been reported missing last Monday after he failed to return from a solo afternoon sail in his 19-foot boat, Allemania, according to Guilford police officer Keith Putzell.

His sailboat washed ashore Tuesday morning in Greenport, on Long Island, according to Coast Guard petty officer Steve Carney.

At 8:30 a.m. Saturday, passengers on a pleasure boat called the Coast Guard to say they had seen a body.

Largest shake ever

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Sponsors of Taste New Haven ordered up samplings of food from many of the city's restaurants and a large chocolate shake. In fact, they claim it was the largest shake on record.

At 4 p.m. Saturday, a 46-foot dairy truck brought 1,500 gallons of milkshake to the annual festival.

The giant shake was intended to top the 56-gallon record set in 1988 and the record of 230 gallons that will appear in 1989 editions of the Guinness Book of World Records.

The confection was donated by Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream to be sold at $1 per 16-ounce serving, with the proceeds going to two other West Haven police officers.

Police find mother of abandoned baby

SIMSBURY (AP) — Police say they have located and interviewed the mother of a healthy newborn girl discovered in a trash bin in Simsbury.

Police Sunday would not disclose the woman's name, but said charges are being considered in the incident when the baby was found Friday by a Farmington man.

Peter J. LeGrande was having a cellular telephone conversation in his car in the Farmington Valley Mall's parking lot when he heard what he thought was a cat crying inside the trash container at about 1:45 p.m. Friday.

The dirty and blood-covered baby thrust her forearm and fist up through the trash when LeGrande opened the bin.

The baby was in good condition this morning at the University of Connecticut Health Center in Farmington.

The baby with short, dark brown hair was born at full term, weighing 6 pounds, 4 ounces, health center spokesman Ivan Robinson said. She was placed in the intensive care unit as a precaution.

Dr. Philip Stent, medical director of the health center's emergency unit, said the girl was probably born 10 to 40 minutes before she was found.

Robinson said a healthy, full-term newborn usually stays in the hospital for two to three days. He said the state Department of Children and Youth Services has been notified and will go to court Monday to apply for temporary custody of the baby and to find a foster home for her.

Trooper's assailant paralyzed by bullet

NEW HAVEN (AP) — The assailant who allegedly shot and critically injured a rookie state trooper was reportedly paralyzed by a bullet wound to the spine that ended his shooting rampage through a wooded area of West Haven last week.

State Trooper John R. Kucan Jr., 24, was shot near the right eye Friday evening as he handcuffed the suspect, who had led troopers on a car chase into Interstate 95 and then a foot chase into a wooded area just off the highway.

The suspect also shot West Haven Detective Keith Sweeney before he was shot down himself by two other West Haven police officers.

Kucan remained in critical but stable condition in the neuro-intensive care unit Sunday and Sweeney was listed in fair condition with a bullet wound just above his right ankle, Yale-New Haven Hospital officials said.

Hospital officials would only say that the suspect, whom they identified as 43-year-old Joseph Warga, was in guarded condition, but police sources told the New Haven Register that he was paralyzed.

Sources also told the newspaper the attack case found in his car contained several thousand dollars in cash, a small quantity of cocaine and another pistol. Two grams of a white substance believed to be cocaine was found on the suspect, state police said.

State police Sgt. Scott O'Mara said the suspect has a record of two prior drug convictions and other convictions in Bridgeport.

Trash-plant parties drop suits, bargain

HARTFORD (AP) — The Connecticut Resources Recovery Authority and Combustion Engineering Inc. have agreed to suspend legal proceedings against each other and begin negotiations to resolve disputes involving the Mid-Connecticut trash-to-energy plant.

"Protracted legal disputes are in one's best interests," said the Authority's Combustion Engineering's or the towns," CRRA President William R. Darcy said. "Negotiation is the most practical way to get a timely resolution of our differences."

CRRA declared Combustion Engineering to be in default of its contract last Tuesday because of delays and design deficiencies. The plant, which serves 44 Hartford-area communities, was to have been in full operation by June 21. Since then, CRRA and C.E. have been at odds over whether the plant is ready to operate.

The default action came a day after Combustion Engineering sought arbitration to resolve its disputes with the agency. The plant is supposed to take 2,000 tons of trash a day and the company said it has been performing close to that level since June 8 with a few exceptions.

Under an agreement announced Saturday, the plant will continue to operate with CRRA supplying trash from the towns to Combustion Engineering's Resource Recovery Systems unit and C-E will continue to suspend testing at the plant, pending the outcome of negotiations.

The agreement also gives either party the right to end negotiations with 48 hours notice.

"The plant is more than bricks and mortar. The arguments are about more than just money. That's why we want to work through the issues and move forward to assure the environmentally sound disposal of solid waste from the 44 Mid-Connecticut towns," Darcy said.

Treatment programs swamped

WATERBURY (AP) — Increasing cocaine and crack use, an increasing number of people sent to drug treatment rather than jail and the fear of AIDS are contributing to a shortage of beds in community drug treatment facilities, experts say.

Residential drug treatment programs are being swamped with requests from people who want to get off drugs and are having to put addicts on ever-growing waiting lists, those running the programs say.

"There is a shortage. The biggest shortage is for cocaine and other drug beds for people who are uninsured," said Ruth Copes, prevention coordinator for the Alcohol and Drug Council of the Central Naugatuck Valley Alcoholism Sanatorium.

The problem, experts say, isn't totally a lack of programs because treatment is available, but not necessarily for those who have neither money nor insurance.

"I don't remember a year like this past one, where consistently we've had a waiting list," said Edward Dempsey, executive director of Help Inc., a 25-bed residential treatment center in Waterbury.

Currently, 70 drug users are waiting to get into Help Inc., a non-profit program funded by the Connecticut Alcohol and Drug Abuse Commission, CADAC, Dempsey said.

Stephen Glass, of CADAC, said waiting lists at three facilities run or financed by the commission range anywhere from three weeks to three months, depending on such things as the time of the year and whether a big police sweep has reduced the supply of drugs.

Some of the pressure on treatment facilities is coming from the criminal justice system which increasingly is sending drug users into treatment programs rather than sending them to jail to avoid overcrowding the prisons, Glass said.

Superior Court Judge William J. Lavery, in Waterbury, said he's a strong believer in providing drug treatment to offenders when it appears they would benefit from it.

"We have good programs in Connecticut, but there's so much drugs and so few programs and beds that it exacerbates the problem," Lavery said. "Crack has made a terrible problem and epidemic, a catastrophic problem. It's not that the cure costs money."

Eileen Helton of the APT Foundation in New Haven said that even APT's outpatient treatment program has a waiting list.

APT, which sends its adult drug users to Daytop Inc. in Newtown for residential treatment, has only one program that doesn't have a waiting list, its Park Institute outpatient facility, Helton said.

"The only reason that doesn't have a waiting list is it's a full-pay clinic. You have to either pay the full treatment or have insurance," she said.

Vincent Nuzzo, clinical director at the 55-bed Daytop facility, said his program now has some openings, but it's interviewing for them and will be full again in a few weeks.

Jail chief says guards need AIDS knowledge

HARTFORD (AP) — Connecticut Correctional Commissioner Larry R. Meachum says that, despite privacy concerns, there are times when a prison guard has a right to know when a prisoner has AIDS.

At the same time, he adds, guards should take routine precautions whenever they're dealing with any inmate.

The issue arose again last week when it was announced that the Connecticut Civil Liberties Union had filed suit against the Department of Correction. The suit charges that inmates carrying the AIDS virus are harassed, get inadequate care and that little protection is given to their privacy rights, allowing their conditions to become common knowledge.

Meachum would not discuss the allegations specifically because the case is pending in federal court.

But he acknowledged that in the past, it has been easy to find out which inmates have AIDS, or any other communicable disease.

"When it comes to knowing which offender may have a communicable disease, or one that may be infectious, our problem is that we have a policy that was open, so that anyone who wanted to know, could know," he said.

"People know that you can transmit AIDS through illicit sex and illicit drugs, and then there's talk about transmitting AIDS through bodily fluids," Meachum said.

"From what we can tell, as long as we use necessary precautions — gloves and disinfectants — there should be minimal risk to our personnel," he said. "We would want all of our personnel to treat body fluids with precaution."

Newspaper's spot check finds court security lax

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Reporters sneaked a briefcase containing a 3-pound block of steel into 24 of 35 state courthouses without getting searched by guards during a random, five-month investigation.

At 12 of the Superior Court entrances there were no metal detectors in use and at the others the briefcase was not searched, usually because of inattentive or uncooperative guards, the New Haven Register reported in its Sunday editions.

The briefcase was searched in 11 courthouses outfitted with metal detectors.

"It's a very serious problem," said Superior Court Judge Aaron Ment, the state Judicial Department's chief court administrator. "We have a lot of security problems. Frankly, in the past, we have not been able to meet our challenge in this area."

The alarm at Norwich Superior Court sounded when tested August 20, but a guard waved a reporter through, saying, "You're all set."

The block of steel, used because it is the same weight as a 44-caliber Magnum, failed to trigger the alarm at the Church Street Superior Court in New Haven on July 20. Tested again on Aug. 18, the alarm sounded but the briefcase wasn't searched, according to an official.

"I have known for some time that the attentiveness and professionalism of the (deputy) sheriffs varies from courthouse to courthouse," Ment said, noting that a task force has been appointed to study security issues.

Ment said that, from his experience, guards have often "made the assumption that suit and tie equals lawyer, and then made the further assumption that lawyers are not likely to carry guns."

Low pay and incentive for deputy sheriffs may be part of the problem, Ment said.

Roger Eddy peddles gadget during GOP convention stay

By Brent Lovmon
The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — Roger Eddy came South for the Republican National Convention, but he's too much of a Yankee peddler to let a new market for his pop-up and Audubon Bird Call go untapped.

The Newton, Conn., farmer, writer and inventor spent part of his stay in New Orleans hawking the gadget at prime tourist spots and got orders for a dozen each at Longue Vue gardens and the happily named Audubon Park zoo.

"Wherever I go, I sell 'em," Eddy said Saturday as he waited in the Marriott hotel lobby to board a bus for the airport.

"It's one thing when you make something, but the selling of it is what matters," he said. "When I have an opportunity, I don't waste it."

Eddy, 66, a second-generation farmer who has also published four novels and unsuccessfully ran for U.S. Senate two years ago, invented the bird call some forty years ago.

It consists of a rotating power plug inside a birch cylinder that chirps when twisted back and forth.

He sells 100,000 to 150,000 a year, mostly in catalogue sales through mail-order companies like The Nature Co. in Berkeley, Calif. and Recreational Equipment Inc. in Seattle.

He also wholesales them to more than 600 stores around the country for $1.65 apiece. They retail for about $4 apiece.

"Louisiana is a birder's paradise," he said of his latest market. "It's not all suburban. The birds still live more or less the way they have for all eternity."

Besides, how could he miss at a place called Audubon Park?

"That's what I told them: 'How could you not have this thing?'" Eddy said.

He got the inspiration for the bird call when he was living in Italy after World War II and trying to make his way as a writer.

He occasionally went hunting with Italians, who thought nothing of shooting song birds — something Eddy now recalls with dismay. They attracted their prey by rubbing a piece of meat on a piece of hard wood.

He patented his bird call in 1952 and took out a trademark on the name Audubon Bird Call, to the dismay of the Audubon Society, which had never bothered to lay legal claim to the name.

Eddy describes himself as the endlessly moving conveyor belt in his manufacturing operation, picking up the component parts from five or six suppliers and assembling the bird calls on his Newton farm.

As part of his sales pitch in New Orleans, where few people had heard of the Audubon Bird Call, Eddy mentioned that he's sold about 3.5 million over the years.

"That usually perks up their attention," he said. "Then I demonstrate it and that really perks up their attention. ... It attracts everything from dogs to birds but particularly people."

But Eddy is not above a little gimmickry in the tradition of the Connecticut bucksters who once traveled the country hawking phony wooden nutmegs and other wares.

He wore an open collar blue work shirt and black converse tennis shoes and carried a canvas-and-leather rucksack on his sales calls, playing the part of the rustic.

"I don't dress like a salesman and I usually carry a bag like this," he said. "What I don't do is pull out a briefcase with brochures."

"Early on, somebody told me what you should have as a salesman is a creeper... something that attracts attention before you do," Eddy said. "A salesman should come in and everybody should say, 'What's that he's carrying?'"

I do well enough without pushing to hard," he said. "I just don't like to have it if I know it's going to hang around, because it's bad for business if they don't sell it."

Confusion in rules for lifeguards

It would be much easier, and perhaps more economical, for Coventry to pay the $300 fine levied against it for not having given its lifeguards the training in AIDs protection that new state regulations require.

But the chagrin of Coventry Town Manager John Ellessor over the fine is understandable. Last week, the Town Council gave Ellessor the authority to contest the fine legally. He insists that it was never made clear that lifeguards were included in the types of public employees who now have to be trained in alternate methods of resuscitation to protect them from AIDS.

The key to the confusion apparently stems from the fact that the state's Occupational Safety and Health Division considers lifeguards Emergency Medical Technicians within the meaning of the directives it sent to municipalities.

Ellessor says he contacted several other town managers who were similarly unaware that the new directives applied to lifeguards.

Because Hartford is also being fined by the state for the same violation, it is apparent there has been a breakdown in communication.

Similarly, Manchester, which has met the requirement for AIDS prevention training of lifeguards, failed to provide the guards with safety masks to use in resuscitation.

Common sense, which is a always obvious in retrospective focus, indicates that lifeguards are in as much danger of contact with AIDS when they use resuscitation methods as anyone else who might be called upon to resuscitate a victim.

But in light of the fact that the situation was not made clear to all municipal officials, it seems a bit high-handed to levy fines.

It would be more productive at this point to make the regulations crystal-clear to everyone involved.

Special people at the hospital

To the Editor:

I want to express my deep appreciation to the Manchester Memorial Hospital staff in the Special Care Zone or Flex 1216 for all their kindnesses, the gentle handling and manner, the wonderful nurse who stopped at bedside and said, "Do you want to talk about it," and I could unburden myself to her. Compassionate. You bet! Efficiency along with humor, pride in their work, love and caring.

I would love to name each one of them, but I don't know all their names. They are special people who have a special place in my heart.

Dial 911 to get immediate help

To the Editor:

Many thanks to the great guys who responded to my cry for help the night of July 26. When a crisis situation happens, the need for help is immediate. Knowing all I had to do was dial 911 and help would arrive within a few minutes was great. The relief when they arrived was indescribable. They took control immediately. They know what they are doing, and it's all done with caring and understanding.

We are so lucky to live in a town where 911 is available. Again — my sincere thanks to you all.

Bowers delay: what it means

To the Editor:

The recent announcement concerning the consequences of the delay of completion of renovations at Bowers School has caused me, and I am sure other parents of kindergarten students, to consider what this means for my child.

What could happen to my 5-year-old in junior high?

1. My child may learn to adjust easily to a new situation.

2. My child may learn to make the best of an alternative situation.

3. My child's teacher will be flexible.

4. My child's teacher will be creative in order to make the substitute kindergarten room a child's place.

5. My child's teacher will be loving and accepting, able to ally the students' (and parents') worries.

6. My child may become friends with students in the child development classes at Illing who could help in the class.

7. The parents may be more active and willing to help in the temporary classroom.

Cartel makes Colombia a 'Lebanon'

WASHINGTON — The filthy rich Medellín drug cartel is fast turning the sad country of Colombia into another Lebanon — a lawless haven for terrorists and thugs.

That is what the Central Intelligence Agency says in one of the most recent documents it produces, the National Intelligence Daily, the NID, as it is known, is a spy summary given to President Reagan and fewer than 100 top government policy makers. The NID is routinely classified higher than "Top Secret."

The cautious analysts who compile the NID try to avoid raising premature alarms. They don't want an reputation for predicting coups and wars that never happen. But they have been raising red flags about Colombia since January, when the cartel murdered Colombia's most prominent drug fighter, attorney general Carlos Hoyos.

The CIA regularly calls Colombia "another Lebanon." The ultra-secret NID and other intelligence documents refer to "the Lebanonization of Colombia."

What does this mean? It means a country with an impotent central government, and no real law and order, where justice is meted out by death squads and criminals of all persuasions. It also means providing a safe haven and logistical necessities for the export of terrorism and drugs.

The CIA has turned up some highly sensitive information that suggests the Medellín Cartel was behind the attempt to bomb Secretary of State George Shultz's car in Bolivia on Aug. 8.

The cartel gets most of its raw coca from Bolivia and Peru for refinement into cocaine in Colombia. Cooperation between the United States and Bolivia threatens to crimp the supply and, assuming the cartel is behind the bombing, it was sending a message to Shultz to mind his own business. Only days before, a top figure in the Bolivian drug trade, Roberto Suarez, was arrested primarily on evidence provided by the United States. He has been linked by U.S. intelligence to the Medellín Cartel.

The mafia-like Medellín Cartel was formed in late 1981 by four drug bosses who saw strength in the way they ran their operations. They are now taking to the streets on the 20th anniversary of the Soviet-led invasion that crushed the "Prague Spring."

The marchers chanted demands for freedom, the withdrawal of Soviet troops and support for Alexander Dubcek, the ex-Communist Party leader who pioneered the reforms of 1968.

The size of Sunday's spontaneous, biggest since 1969, took foreigners and residents by surprise. Witnesses saw at least eight people detained around the city, including Jan Urban, spokesman for the human rights group Charter 77.

About 100 demonstrators held a second rally later Sunday along Moscow's Arbat shopping mall, said Democratic Union member Alexander Chuyev. He said police chased them and arrested an unspecified number who resisted.

The protests marked Aug. 20-21, 1968, when this nation's troops were taken away, but the exact number was not known. No injuries were reported. The protest was called by the Democratic Union, an unsanctioned political party that advocates the withdrawal of Soviet troops from central Europe.

Dubcek had that April declared his intent to create a democratic socialist system that would guarantee free speech and assembly, introduce multiple choice secret ballot elections and effect economic reforms.

Czechoslovak authorities have lately allowed independent activists a little more leeway but Sunday's police response suggested to crush what the official media called the danger of counter-revolution and Czechoslovakia's withdrawal from the Warsaw Pact.

In fact, the reformists under Dubcek had that April declared his intent to create a democratic socialist system that would guarantee free speech and assembly, introduce multiple choice secret ballot elections and effect economic reforms.

Quayle defends past

NEW YORK (AP) — Dan Quayle reasserted today that he broke no rules nor did anything unfair to get into the Indiana National Guard during the Vietnam War.

Appearing on two television talk shows, Quayle also said he did not think it was hypocritical for him to strongly back the war effort and opt to join the Guard at the same time.

And he said he is convinced the furor will die down and can't wait for that to happen.

"Right now, I just sit there and answer questions," Quayle said on ABC's "Good Morning America."

Asked about "the question of hypocrisy," Quayle said: "I don't think it's hypocritical. There were a lot of people that were in the National Guard in my National Guard unit that supported the goals of fighting communism in Vietnam, but were in the National Guard."

He said he is convinced the furor will die down and can't wait for that to happen.

Terrorism increases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Afghanistan's Soviet-backed government was responsible for repeated attacks on civilian targets in Pakistan in 1987 and carried out well over half of all incidents of state-sponsored terrorism worldwide in that year, a State Department report said today.

The report, titled "Patterns of Global Terrorism: 1987," was compiled before the incident last Wednesday in which a Pakistani C-130 crashed, claiming the lives of President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq, U.S. Ambassador Arnold L. Raphel, Brig. Gen. Herbert M. Wasson and 27 others.

Pakistani officials believe terrorists were responsible and a U.S. official said Afghan agents have to be "among the suspects" because of the stepped up campaign Afghan authorities are alleged to be carrying out against Pakistan.

U.S. officials in the Panamanian capital said Sunday that U.S. personnel have reported at least 240 incidents of harassment by Panamanian authorities this year, including attempts to extort bribes for traffic violations and the stoppage of mail.

The National Committee to Preserve Social Security led the investigation. It reported that the House and Senate, represented a 4.5 percent increase from 1986, when a massive overhaul of the national income tax laws spurred big spending by registered lobbyists.

The 1986 total of $60.87 million by some 9,500 individuals and organizations was up from $49 million in 1985 and at the time was the highest total since The Associated Press began compiling the figures in 1983.

Clashes claim 5,000

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Authorities in the tiny central African nation of Burundi said today that at least 5,000 people were killed in ethnic clashes that sent 35,000 people fleeing across the border.

"They've been able to get back into the hills and determine the extent of the massacre," a senior Western diplomat told The Associated Press in a telephone interview from Burundi's capital, Bujumbura.

Is this a neighborhood or a war zone?

DEAR BRUCE: We have a problem with our neighbors. The family — or, I should say, group — residing next door lives like animals. Nobody bathes, the children don't attend school, and garbage builds up in the yard. In short, the place is an absolute war zone, a disaster.

Smart Money
Bruce Williams

All of my neighbors are as upset as I am, yet municipal officials say these people are breaking no laws other than health regulations, the city can cite them for the latter, but that's all they can do.

You can imagine what this has done to property values. I couldn't give my house away right now, and, frankly, I'm almost at the point that I'd like to! I don't want to call this problem to the attention of our local newspaper because my husband and I both agree that doing so would only exacerbate the situation. Short of going public with this, what can you suggest?

A READER: First of all, I sympathize with you, and I do not agree that there is nothing that local officials can do. They may be intimidated or may not want to act on this for fear of bad publicity. But, clearly, if the situation is as you've described, many local ordinances are being broken.

There is no reason that I know of why summonses cannot be made, and contempt-of-court citations or even arrest warrants be issued if those summonses are not acknowledged and discharged.

In the event that your local officials refuse to act, I would gather my neighbors together and petition the state health authorities to move in. There is no reason why anyone must put up with this sort of inconvenience and attack on local values. What is probably most distressing is that spineless attitude of the government officials involved.

DEAR BRUCE: I've worked for a company for almost three years. Yesterday we were all told that this Friday would be our last day, because the company was in a serious financial position and was about to enter Chapter 11 bankruptcy.

My boss did say that there is a possibility of avoiding bankruptcy if negotiations with the company's creditors proceed favorably. In any event, the payroll has been cut to the bone and I am a casualty.

Am I entitled to severance pay? They are paying me through the end of the week, and that's all.

N.R.
HOUSTON

DEAR N.R.: If you are working under a collective bargaining agreement, your contract will spell out your severance pay. In the absence of such a contract, it's very unlikely you are entitled to extra money.

An employer, in most cases, is free to terminate your employment because of financial problems or your performance without giving you special compensation. But by all means contact your state department of labor to be sure that this is true in your region.

You may be eligible to remain in your current medical insurance program paying the group rate. This requires that you actively work with your supervisor or personnel office. Waiting too long could cost you an important benefit.

Monkees' fans go ape

CHICAGO (AP) — It's been two decades but fans still go ape for the Monkees — the musicians, not the primates.

A new generation of fans gathered by the thousands this weekend to pay homage to the group at the 1988 Official Monkees Convention.

"I have practically memorized every show," said Lisa Mason, 15, of Portsmouth, Va., about the television series that showcased the madcap Monkees.

"I have a crush on Mike (Nesmith) because he's the strong, silent type."

The band, which had six Top 10 hits during the series that ran from 1966 to 1968, is enjoying a revival of its show on cable television.

"I'm closer in spirit to their ages now," guitarist Peter Tork, 46, said Saturday before performing at convention. "I thought I was older then."

Tork was joined by fellow Monkees Micky Dolenz and Davy Jones at the convention, but Nesmith declined to attend.

New album worries Julio

NEW YORK (AP) — Spanish crooner Julio Iglesias says his new album, Nonstop, was a source of non-stop worry for him.

"The more I listened, the more insecure I got," Iglesias said in an interview in this week's People magazine.

"I had a big depression and all kinds of psychosomatic problems," he said. "My new album is like a beautiful candle without a fire. Now I have to find a way to put the fire in the candle."

"Nonstop," his second English-language album, was released in May and stalled at No. 52 on U.S. pop charts.

"If I go to France or Italy, I am established for a whole generation," said Iglesias, 44. "But in America, they know me for selling too many records and making love to too many women."

Bulging with trophies

PETERBOROUGH, N.H. (AP) — Author William Styron expressed ambivalence about adding the prestigious Edward MacDowell Medal to a room already bulging with trophies, honorary cups and plaques.

"I am a Gemini with a bifurcated ego," Styron, author of "Sophie's Choice" and "The Confessions of Nat Turner," said Sunday at the MacDowell Colony for artists.

"One branch ... delights in being stroked, while the other emits howls."

Joining the ranks of 28 previous medalists including Leonard Bernstein, Georgia O'Keefe, Alexander Calder and John Updike, Styron questioned whether awards and medals might actually hinder an artist's progress.

Western Walk indicts two

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dale Robertson and Doug McClure now can saunter down the Western Walk and find their names gracing the lineup of Western luminaries.

Robertson, the 65-year-old rugged star of Western films and television series, and McClure, 53, a leading man in television Westerns, were inducted Saturday in the Western Walk of Fame.

The two were honored along with the late Hoot Gibson at a ceremony that drew 600 Western buffs and some past inductees, who celebrated with a barbecue and square dance.

The Western Walk was started in 1981 and is modeled after the famous Hollywood Walk of Fame, in which star's names are imbedded in the sidewalk.

Doctor should double-check

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 60 plus, go to the doctor every three or four months for checkups, have never been sick and have been married to the same wonderful man for 45 years. I recently had my last medical exam when my doctor told me I had syphilis and prescribed penicillin. My mother's sister told my older sister that our father gave our mother this disease when she was pregnant with my older brother, but they are all dead now so I don't have any way of finding out the truth. Can syphilis lie dormant for so long?

DEAR READER: Congenital syphilis can remain dormant for years, although such a case would be unusual. Most states require a blood test for syphilis before two people can marry. I suppose that your condition could have slipped by unnoticed 45 years ago.

However, I worry more that you may be showing a biological false positive reaction. Some people with a variety of diseases, such as lupus, may test positive for syphilis even though they never had it. Obviously, the underlying disease — not "syphilis" — would need to be addressed in this instance.

Ask your doctor whether he made absolutely sure that you had syphilis by using one of the newer confirmatory tests. If he did, and you have syphilis, your husband and your children should be checked as well. On the chance that you do not have this condition, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report, "Lupus: The Great Imitator." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 73. A ring of skin on my penis has gotten hard and shrunken. It makes urination difficult. Circumcision could cure it, but I have a serious heart condition, so I'm reluctant to undergo surgery. What should I do?

DEAR READER: Although circumcision on an adult is uncomfortable, it is a simple operation that can be performed under local anesthesia. Despite your age, the risks of not having circumcision (to relieve your urinary problem) may exceed the risks of having it done. Ask your doctor to refer you to a qualified surgeon or urologist for an opinion.

Credit unions have lots of advantages

Need a car loan? Credit card? Home equity line of credit? If so, consider a credit union as your source of funds and thereby join the record-breaking 57 million Americans who have already signed up as members. Membership is up more than 6 percent from the 1986 level and has jumped 30 percent since 1980.

Sylvia Porter

Credit unions usually offer financial services at lower costs, since they are non-profit organizations. According to Jerry Karbon, the public information manager for the Credit Union National Association, "Credit unions tend to pay a bit more in interest, and charge a bit less on loans."

That "bit" can help take the bite out of monthly payments you would otherwise send to a mortgage company, commercial bank or thrift.

Look at credit cards, for example. The Bank Credit Card Observer reports that banks included in its survey charged an average credit card interest rate of 17.4 percent, with an annual fee of $16.83. Savings and loans charged 17.35 percent with an annual fee of $16. Credit unions registered an average 14.86 percent rate with the average annual fee of $5.10, and several charged no annual fee at all.

In addition to competitive rates, another major factor fueling "credit union-mania" seems to be the increase in services credit unions are offering. Today, in addition to savings and checking accounts, large credit unions offer services ranging from mortgages to automatic teller machines. Other services include travelers checks, Individual Retirement Accounts, debit cards, money markets and CDs.

While membership has been surging, the number of credit unions has actually been decreasing in recent years due to mergers, according to Cheryl Umbel, spokeswoman for the National Credit Union Administration.

There are more than 16,000 credit unions nationwide, a 4 percent drop from last year. Despite this decline, the vast majority of credit union members have access to a wide array of services.

For instance, while only 37 percent of credit unions offer personal checks — known as share drafts — 82 percent of all credit union members have access to personal checking. About 20 percent of credit unions offer credit cards, but two-thirds of credit union members are able to get credit cards. Although only 29 percent of credit unions offer first mortgages, about two-thirds of all members can obtain this service. And while only 24 percent of credit unions offer home equity loans, that represents 62 percent of all members.

The most common service is making auto loans. Ninety percent of credit unions offer them, representing 98 percent of all members.

Credit union members were the most satisfied consumers of financial services in 1987 for the fourth year in a row, according to a consumer survey by the American Banker, a daily financial publication.

When asked if they are "very satisfied" with the service, 75 percent of credit union members said yes, as compared to 59 percent of bank customers and 60 percent of thrift customers. Compared to bank and thrift customers, twice as many credit union consumers reported they are more pleased with their main financial institution than they have been in the past.

So why doesn't everyone join?

First, you may not be able to. Members share a common bond — either occupational, residential or through an association or organization. But, according to Karbon, an estimated 50 percent of Fortune 500 companies offer credit unions for their workers.

The recent launching this May of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) credit union, with a potential membership pool of 29 million, has attracted much attention — particularly from some banks and thrifts who see this venture as a threat to their business. But a few more numbers provide a bit of perspective:

- Of the total consumer installment credit in the U.S., 45 percent is from banks, 23 percent from finance companies, 11 percent from savings institutions, and 13 percent from credit unions.
- For auto loans, 41 percent originate from banks, 38 percent from finance institutions and 16.2 percent from credit unions.
- Of total household savings in the U.S., 46 percent is in banks, 35 percent in other savings institutions, and 6 percent is deposited in credit unions.

Workers find other jobs as Electric Boat strike drags on

GROTON (AP) — Electric Boat shipyard is trying to get some of its 10,000 striking workers to cross picket lines.

But union leaders say many of the men and women who walked off the job 54 days ago have already found new work in the labor-starved region and probably won't ever return to the giant submarine builder.

"Some of the (workers) come into my office and say they're making too much right now and aren't ready to go back," Metal Trades Council President Joseph Messier said. "Many of these guys will probably never go back."

Union negotiators rejected a 3 percent pay raise over nearly four years during an Aug. 12 negotiating session in Washington, saying the offer would not come close to keeping up with the rising cost of living.

EB, angry that the union didn't take the offer to membership for a vote, took out full page ads in local newspapers last week declaring, "We did what we could and are now resigned to a very long strike."

"They asked us for a fundamental change and we did a fundamental change, and it is a change that we feel the union officials ought to take the members for a vote ... but it doesn't seem like that is on the horizon," said Tom Kelly, EB's chief negotiator.

Countered Messier, "When we get a good deal, we'll tell them."

Kelly last week announced EB was adopting a long-term strike strategy that involves hiring private contractors to replace 170 custodians and some metal fabricators and shifting some work to other plants owned by EB's parent company, General Dynamics Corp.

Kelly said the strategy would enable the company to stay on schedule with several submarines that are near completion.

"We've seen this propaganda before," Messier told the New Haven Register. "They are trying to break the strike, but it hasn't worked in the past and it won't work now."

Messier said that hiring outside contractors could prolong the strike further because it adds a new issue that must be resolved before the workers return.

"It won't split the union ... but it could very well hang us up and make the strike longer," he said. "This strike won't be over until everyone goes back to work."

However, about 700, or 7 percent, of the workers are already crossing picket lines.

"There are a couple of cry babies, so to speak, but we're hanging tight," said pipe fitter Kerry Tilton. "There are always a few misfits. They're the same dead wood we got to deal with in the yard every day."

Shipfitter Sean Dugan said the people "returning to work can't make it doing anything else."

"The bottom line is most of us are set for the strike. The way the economy is, you can always find work," he said.

Messier said Electric Boat was having difficulty attracting competent workers before the strike and that situation is likely to get worse the longer the strike goes.

"For the life of me I just can't understand their logic," he said. "If you lose any $50 to 1,000 people, and I don't think that's an off-the-wall number ... where is the company going to get them?"

IN BRIEF

Ferreira promoted

Luis M. Ferreira was recently named vice president of Mechanics Savings Bank of Hartford.

Ferreira joined the bank in 1967 as a part-time teller while attending the University of Connecticut, where received his bachelor's degree in political science.

He was assigned to the bank's branch system for 10 years, first as a manager and later as assistant treasurer. In 1986, he joined the Mortgage Department and was appointed assistant vice president.

Ferreira was commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Army Reserve in 1971 and now is a major.

He lives in South Windsor with his two daughters, Christina and Kimberly.

Rogers taps Mikulak

Raymond J. Mikulak of Willington has been named manager of Rogers Corp.'s Molding Materials Division in Manchester.

He will be responsible for coordination of the manufacturing, engineering, sales and marketing efforts of the division.

A nine-year Rogers employee, Mikulak started at the Molding Materials Division as engineering manager. In 1980 he was promoted to operations manager.

Mikulak received his bachelor's degree in chemical engineering from Clarkson College of Technology, Potsdam, N.Y., in 1968. He is a member of the American Institute of Chemical Engineering, the Society of Plastics Engineers and the American Society of Quality Control. He is a certified quality engineer and a licensed professional engineer in Connecticut.

Two types of investors

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — There are two types of investors in the chemical industry today, the corporate raider and the "patient capitalist," according to Harry Corless, chairman of ICI Americas.

The raider, he says, is looking for a quick payoff. The other is willing to wait a reasonable length of time for a payoff.

Corless says his firm adopted a "patient capitalist" strategy when it acquired Atlas Chemicals in 1971. ICI's business in the United States has developed steadily over the years and sales have gone from $200 million in 1971 to more than $3 billion today.

About 35 runners race at Martin School Saturday as part of the Lutz Children's Museum's 1.5-mile Family Fun Run.

Lindsay Pilver, 6, of 143 Florence St., stretches before running.

'Fun Run' raises $600 for museum

The Lutz Children's Museum raised about $600 Saturday during the annual Family Fun Run at Martin School, said Robert Digan, chairman of the race and treasurer of the museum. This year, the organizers added a 1 1/2-mile race to go along with the 3-mile race, Digan said. With the additional race, about 100 runners participated, which is about 30 more than in the last two years, he said. The extra race was added because the shorter distance is easier for children to handle, Digan said. This is the third year the event has been run, he said. The purpose of the event, in addition to raising funds, is to let people know about the existence of the museum, Digan said. With more and more people entering the race, he said he hoped that more people would become involved with museum activities. Highland Park Market sponsored the event. The event was run in conjunction with the Manchester Sports Hall of Fame. Winners in the 1 1/2-mile race were: 8 and under: Ryan Zawistowski; 9 to 16: Matt Brandt (first overall); Open: John Lenehan; Open female: Mary Digan. Winners in the 3-mile race were: 16 and under: Todd Liscomb; 17 to 39: Sean Toland (first overall); 40 and over: James Wall.

Andrew and Fergie name the baby: Beatrice Elizabeth Mary

By Edith M. Lederer The Associated Press

LONDON — The Duke and Duchess of York named their two-week-old daughter Beatrice Elizabeth Mary, Buckingham Palace announced today. The baby, who is fifth in line to the throne, will be known as Her Royal Highness The Princess Beatrice of York, the palace said. She is the first child of the former Sarah Ferguson and her husband, Prince Andrew, the second son of Queen Elizabeth II.

Britain's newest princess is currently at Balmoral Castle, the queen's summer home in Scotland, with her parents and grandparents. She was born Aug. 8, 1988 at 8:18 p.m., considered one of the luckiest moments of the century by Chinese astrologers, and flew to Scotland hours after leaving Portland Hospital in London with her parents on Aug. 12. The name Beatrice — which means bringer of joy — has royal roots. The youngest of Queen Victoria's nine children was named Princess Beatrice. While the duke and duchess were deciding on a name, British gamblers had a few ideas as well. But their top favorites, Charlotte, Victoria, Annabel and Elizabeth, all turned out to be losers. The tabloid Sun, Britain's largest-circulation paper, hit the mark last Friday with a front-page banner headline revealing all three of the baby's names correctly. The paper said Annabel was Andrew and Sarah's first choice but the name was rejected by the queen as "too yuppie." It said the queen suggested the name Beatrice during a family gathering at Balmoral. "It was agreed to be the perfect compromise — unusual enough to please Fergie, but royal enough to please the queen," The Sun said. Princess Beatrice's second name, Elizabeth, is after her grandmother, the queen, and her great-grandmother, Queen Mother Elizabeth, who just celebrated her 88th birthday. The baby's third name, Mary, is the middle name of the duchess's mother, Susan Barrantes, wife of Argentinian polo player Hector Barrantes. It is the name of Andrew's great-grandmother, Queen Mary, wife of King George V. Taking two weeks to choose a name is not unusual in the royal family. The queen's daughter, Princess Anne, and her husband Mark Phillips, took more than three weeks to name their son, Peter, and almost four weeks to name their daughter, Zara.

Prince Charles and his wife Diana were comparatively quick to name their children. Prince William, who is second in line to the throne behind his father, was named eight days after his birth and his younger brother, Prince Harry, who is third in line, was named after 24 hours. But Charles himself was referred to as the "infant son" for about a month after he was born on Nov. 14, 1948. His name was announced the day before his christening on Dec. 14 of that year.

over the main gate at 8:35 a.m. Late this morning, however, riot police cordoned off approaches to the shipyard. Strikers chanted Solidarity slogans and posted strike banners on the shipyard fence, helping some supporters who had been locked out to scramble over the gate. A short time later, Solidarity national chairman Lech Walesa arrived. "We must fight for reforms. We must fight for Solidarity. There is no other way," Walesa exhorted strikers in a 20-minute rally at the gate. "Everything is closed and the whole shipyard is on strike," Walesa said later by telephone from his Gdansk home. He said the enthusiasm of the young strikers surprised him. "This youth have there is just incredible." Walesa blamed the strikes on authorities, whom he said have refused to engage in dialogue with workers. "I wanted to avoid strikes," he said. "We shouldn't be striking. We should be working. But there was no other choice. ... We are still waiting for serious talks." None of the shipyard's towering cranes appeared to be operating, and a foreman speaking through a fence stated that all departments were shut down. Workers could be seen strolling, taking naps or perching on fences and walls around the yard. Straus confirmed that the government considered the shipyard on strike. "If you work only eight hours a day, you make 40,000 zlotys ($80) a month, and that's not enough to make a living," said one man in his mid-20s, asked why he joined the strike. The shipyard, where Solidarity began eight years ago this month, also was the scene of a strike in May that ended inconclusively. In Poland, striking workers generally go to their plants but do not work. "Not since the labor unrest that led to the 1981 military crackdown on Solidarity have authorities had to confront strikes on such a scale. In spite of her insistence that she'll never have stars in her eyes, Narkon has enjoyed the hoopla surrounding the opening of the film. She attended Newport for the premiere showing, had a reunion with her friends from the cast, and has seen the movie in Hartford, as well. "But that's it. No more movies for me. I'm sure of that," said Narkon. "At least, I think I'm sure."

Trustees felt the request was defeated because of inaccurate information being given to the public, but according to state law the same question could not be a vote more than once. However, Elisser found the Library Building Committee overestimated the cost of a construction overseer for the project by $10,000. The library board then decided to try again. The question went back to the voters with a request for an additional $200,000 for the project and won approval in a referendum held July 26. According to Zlotnick, owner of Zlotnick Construction of Mansfield, work will begin this week and continue through the winter. The project is likely to be done by June 1989, he said. In the meantime, Booth & Dimock will be operating out of two outlets, one at the Cove Plaza and the other at the Porter Library on Route 44.

Arson burns apartments; 14 homeless in Hartford

HARTFORD (AP) — Fourteen people were left homeless today when an arson fire heavily damaged an apartment house in Hartford's South End, a fire official said. The blaze was reported in a three-story brick building on Franklin Avenue at 12:16 a.m., according to Lt. Willie Barrow of the fire marshal's office. "The cause of the fire was incendiary. It was set. It was arson," Barrow said today. He said the fire was started in the front stairwell, preventing residents of the four households from using that exit as an escape.

Narkon says she figured everyone at the audition would be trying to look glamorous, and that she needed a different look. "I felt like the best way to get a part would be to fit in with that era," she said. "I thought if I wore my mother's dress, I would catch (the director's) eye. That dress is my good-luck dress." But her husband, Norman, didn't think this was wise. "First, he didn't believe I was really going to try out for the film," Narkon said. "Then I came out, all dressed, and he said, 'You're not really going out in that get-up, are you?' But when I came home, I was grinning from ear to ear. He said, 'You got the part,' and I said, 'The dress got the part.'" Narkon was entitled to credentials to cross roadblocks, $50 a day and a sumptuous buffet lunch. "And it wasn't until you had to start in your costume and makeup, from 7 a.m. until 6 p.m.," Narkon said. In her case, the costume was the gray dress which she wore in "Disneyland." Narkon reminisced last week. "We were in a park, and the director wanted all the contemporary cars removed, and replaced with vintage cars. So he snapped his fingers and when you blinked your eyes, it was done." The best part of being in the film, said Narkon, was the people she met. "It was really a fantastic experience. I made such good friendships," she said, pulling out envelopes stuffed with snapshots of some of them. Some of these friends are "film followers," who audition for bit parts in any film being shot within a day's drive of their homes. Some of them called to encourage Narkon to audition for the Jane Fonda movie, "Stanley and Iris," being filmed in Waterbury. "But I didn't want to do that. I'm not going to turn into some kind of film star. I was only interested in 'Mr. North' because it was set in old times," Narkon said.

FRUSTRATION — New York's Don Mattingly reacts after losing a fourth inning fly ball in Sunday's game with the Mariners at Yankee Stadium. After the Yanks lost, 4-2, the usually resilient Mattingly popped off to the press about his frustration with the season.

Angry Mattingly vents frustration

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees star Don Mattingly, in a rare display of emotion, lashed out Sunday and indirectly blamed owner George Steinbrenner for the team's recent slide in the American League East. "The players get no respect around here. They give you money, that's it. No respect. Money is not respect. There's never been respect here, and it's not going to change," Mattingly said after a 4-2 loss to Seattle. The Yankees, who held first place from May 3 to June 19, have lost three in a row and nine of 13. They fell six games behind division-leading Detroit, their biggest deficit this season. Mattingly spoke for 15 minutes after the game, never mentioning Steinbrenner by name, but making the implication clear. He was controlled, even though his sentences were laced with expletives. "You can call us babies, you can call us complainers, you can call us anything you want, but treat us with some respect," Mattingly said Sunday. "I'm not giving up on this year," he said. "We haven't played well, that's a fact. We haven't deserved to win many of the games lately. But there has to be a reason, there has to be." "I don't have any respect for me. I don't have any respect for you and I don't want to play here," Mattingly said. "I have fun playing somewhere."

Americans in favor of federal funding for Olympic athletes

By Gary Langer The Associated Press

NEW YORK — A broad majority of Americans favor federal funding for Olympic training, something the government and the U.S. Olympic Committee long have resisted, a Media General-Associated Press poll has found. Sixty-seven percent of the 1,223 adults polled in the national survey supported federal funding for U.S. Olympic athletes, while just 27 percent were opposed. The team receives no money from the government now.

With the Summer Games to begin in Seoul, South Korea, in three weeks, the poll also found sharp divisions of opinion on the participation of professional athletes in some sports. A plurality, four in 10, wanted no professionals, but nearly as many favored allowing professionals in all Olympic sports.

Most respondents viewed the Games as a contest among nations as well as among athletes. Six in 10 said it was of some importance or great importance to them that the U.S. team wins more medals than any other nation's team.

But rivalries between nations notwithstanding, and despite political boycotts of the Games in recent years, 78 percent said they believed the Games encourage international cooperation, the stated goal of the Olympics.

— Six in 10 respondents said they believed judged events, such as gymnastics, are scored fairly; 28 percent said not and the rest were unsure. Of those who said judging is unfair, 90 percent said it was influenced by political considerations.

— By an overwhelming 85 percent to 11 percent, respondents favored continuing to hold the Games at a different city every four years, rather than installing them at a fixed location.

— Interest in the Games was virtually unanimous: Ninety-two percent said they were interested. Six in 10 said it was of some

Kimball fails to make team, saves U.S. embarrassment

By Hal Bock The Associated Press

Bruce Kimball saved the U.S. Olympic Committee's considerable embarrassment by finishing fourth in the platform trials and failing to qualify for America's diving team. He could have saved himself even more embarrassment by not showing up for the competition in the first place. Wearing the red, white and blue colors of the United States in the Olympics, representing America in the international theater, is a privilege. One wonders if Bruce Kimball did not surrender that three weeks ago today, when he drank four beers and then went out for a drive in Brandon, Fla. Two teen-agers wound up dead and six others were injured in the ensuing accident.

PLATFORM OLYMPIANS — Patrick Jeffrey, left, and Greg Louganis celebrate making the U.S. Olympic team in platform diving at the U.S. Olympic Diving Trials in Indianapolis Sunday.

Kimball faces five felony charges, including two counts of driving under the influence, manslaughter. If convicted, the charges could mean 45 years in prison for Kimball, a silver medalist in the 1984 Games. America's system of justice says you are innocent until proven guilty and so, having posted the requisite $10,000 bail, Kimball was released, pending trial which is not expected until December. And since he had nothing else on his immediate agenda, he decided to go to Indianapolis and try out for the Olympic team. Right then and there, a red flag should have gone up. USOC has rules and regulations for its athletes or federations might choose to do. For example, it scrupulously protects the misuse of the sacred Olympic rings as if they were carats in the Hope diamond. But misuse of a vehicle by a world class athlete apparently doesn't fall under its jurisdiction.

Attorney Robert Helmick, president of USOC, harumphed his way through a statement that should get the idea that I'm getting all these saves on my own. With a major league-leading 35 saves, in 40 opportunities, Eckersley is within one of the club record set by Bill Caudill in 1984. And four of the saves have been in Oakland's 6-3 record against Boston this season. The Red Sox just happen to trail first place Detroit by four games in the AL East. Eckersley pitched a no-hitter against California while with Cleveland in 1977. Traded to Boston in a multiplayer deal in 1978, he had a 20-8 record. ## Eckersley saves day against Bosox

By Dave O'Hara The Associated Press

BOSTON — Dennis Eckersley has pitched a no-hitter. He has been a 20-game winner. Now he's on the verge of setting an Oakland record for saves. That leaves him with just one major goal to add to his 14-year major league resume: to pitch and win in the World Series. Eckersley pitched a no-hitter against California while with Cleveland in 1977. Traded to Boston in a multiplayer deal in 1978, he had a 20-8 record. But the Red Sox lost a single game playoff to the New York Yankees for the division flag. The Red Sox swapped Eckersley to the Chicago Cubs for Bill Buckner in 1984. The Eck got another shot at a championship ring, but came up empty. The Cubs were beaten by San Diego in the National League playoff. "Now I want a (championship) ring," said Eckersley, who had 16 saves after being converted to full-time relief last year. "The big thing is that my arm feels good and I'm throwing strikes. Nobody

When the game is on the line, it's in his hands," said veteran slugger Don Baylor. "Once he has a lead it's over with." "What can you say. It went to the wire," Boston Manager Joe Morgan said after the A's ended a three-game losing streak and salvaged the win of a three-game series. "Eckersley is tough. When (Marty) Barrett and (Dwight) Evans got on, I thought we might beat him, but he's tough." With the victory, the A's improved their record to 78-47, best in the majors. It also was their 40th road win, tops in the majors and the club's most since it had 44 in 1975. "Coming back to Fenway is weird for me," he said. "I'm emotional anyway when I pitch, but coming here makes me more emotional."

WINNING RUN — Oakland's Carney Lansford scores the winning run despite the effort of Boston catcher Rick Cerone in the eighth inning Sunday at Fenway Park. The A's rallied for a 5-4 win.

Polonia's first game-winning hit of the season was the first hit off Smith in seven games since July 24. The hitless span covered 9 2/3 innings. "The guy really looks like a monster up on the mound," Polonia said of the 6-foot-6, 245-pound Smith. "He's a big guy, a strong guy, but he has to throw the ball for a strike like every other pitcher."

Hospital spokeswoman Mary Donnelly said Sunday doctors won't be able to tell if the paralysis in his right arm and leg is permanent until Rooney is taken off the respirator, which should be accomplished within the next day or two. Rooney was sleeping less, an indication that swelling on the left side of his brain is going down, Donnelly said. He is fed intravenously.

Thompson unfazed by setback to pros

By Jim O'Connell
The Associated Press
AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — John Thompson had only to look at his collegiate program to erase any doubts about the 1988 men's U.S. Olympic basketball team after their first loss. "I never went undefeated at Georgetown and losses in December never bothered me anyway. The tournament is played in March," Thompson said Sunday after the Olympic finalists lost to a group of NBA players 90-83, their first loss in five games against teams of professional players. "We have a goal at the end of the year. We want to win the gold medal in Seoul. Thompson was not fazed by the setback to pros. "The pace wasn't good for him today," Thompson said. "I thought another day would make things a lot better."

"They were very physical and I was glad to see that. We had to find out about these guys. You can't go in with a lot of clay heroes."

Rahal survives crashes at the Quaker State 500

Just as he has all season, Rahal finished, and in completing his 10th race in the series, he was spinning in a cloud of smoke, both winding up slamming hard into the outside wall. Sullivan braked too late, losing control and backing his car into the wall. None of the three suffered any injury worse than bruises, but Sullivan and Sullivan were furious. "He (Simon) was in the way all day," Andreotti said. "I'm sure he never saw me. That's totally irresponsible driving as far as I'm concerned."

Dispirited Yankees shut down by M's Bankhead

NEW YORK (AP) — Scott Bankhead may not have had his best stuff, but it was more than enough to shut down the New York Yankees, who are beginning to seem dispirited. "He didn't have his 'A' stuff today," said Seattle catcher Scott Bradley after Bankhead, 7-7, held the Yankees to five hits over seven innings in the Mariners' 4-2 victory over New York Sunday. Bankhead struck out eight to give Seattle pitchers 33 strikeouts in 37 innings as the Mariners won three of the four weekend games against the Yankees and pushed unhappy Yankees behind Detroit in the American League East, the Yankees' biggest deficit of the season.

Bankhead did allow an earned run after walking Claudiell Washington to lead off the eighth, snapping his streak of 21 innings without allowing an earned run. New York has now lost 15 of its last 23 games, which prompted a post-game outburst from first baseman Dave King. "I've had to fight myself every day to play the game," said Mattingly, adding that "there are a lot of unhappy players" in the Yankees' clubhouse.

"This club this year is as bad as I've seen it," Mattingly said. "You come here and you get no respect. You get money and that's it. They give you money, but money's not respect. "If you don't treat me with respect, I don't want to work for you," Mattingly said in an indirect reference to recent blasts as the team by principal owner George Steinbrenner. Seattle took a 3-0 lead in the first off Rick Rhoden, 7-10, on an RBI double by Harold Reynolds and Bradley's two-out single, which scored Reynolds. Rhoden pitched his first complete game since opening day after 20 consecutive starts without finishing. New York scored an unearned run on Jim Presley's throwing error in the second inning to make it 2-1, but the Mariners scored on Presley's RBI single in the fourth and again in the sixth on a double-error by Yankees' second baseman Randy Velarde to make it 4-1.

With Alvin Davis at bat in the fifth, home plate umpire Larry Barnett issued a warning to Rhoden for allegedly scuffing the ball. "I found a ball with a scuff on it. It was scuffed in a manner which I had seen before in the league office," said Barnett, who indicated that league officials had shown him Rhoden balls. "I gave him a warning. If I found any more such balls, he would be ejected," said Barnett, who also examined Rhoden's glove and discussed the matter with New York manager Lou Piniella. "I asked to check his glove, which he doesn't have off, and he took his glove off and let me check it. It was a very nice discussion with him and Lou," Barnett said. Jay Buhner, traded by the Yankees to Seattle on July 21 for Ken Phelps, doubled and scored Seattle's fourth-inning run. Reflecting on his return to New York, Buhner said, "I didn't get pelted by rocks or pebbles or anything. People were cheering for me, which was kind of nice."

After Bankhead walked Washington to open the eighth, reliever Bill Wilkerson walked pinch-hitter Ricky Henderson and both runners advanced on Mattingly's infield out before pinch-hitter Jack Clark hit an RBI grounder that scored Washington. Mike Schooler earned his ninth save, but before leading the bases with two out in the ninth on singles by Rafael Santana, pinch-hitter Gary Ward and Washington. But Schooler then induced Henderson to hit into a game-ending forecourt.

SAFE AT HOME — Seattle's Scott Bradley slides past a late tag by New York Yankee catcher Joel Skinner, right, as he scores in the sixth inning of Sunday's game at Yankee Stadium. The Mariners won 4-2, to take three of four from New York. The setback drops the Yankees six games behind the American League East Division-leading Detroit Tigers.

Slumping Mets slam-dunked by Padres' pitching

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The San Diego Padres don't fear facing the first-place New York Mets, though Manager Jack McKeon readily admits they're a better team. "They dread the Atlanta Braves, who are last in the National League West but only one step behind the Padres. "Man for man, they're still a better team," said McKeon of the struggling Mets after the Padres beat New York 1-0 Sunday afternoon. "They've got more experience than we did. But we played them well."

Gwynn was moved to center field for the first time Sunday, making room for Carmelo Martinez in left field. John Kruk in right field, and on the bench for ineffective Stanley Jefferson. For the Mets, it was their fourth consecutive loss and eighth in their last 11 games. They maintained their 3 1/2-game lead in National League East over second-place Pittsburgh, who lost in 14 innings to Houston. "We haven't been hitting too much of anybody," New York manager Davey Johnson said. "We've had guys you never heard of slam-dunk our bats. There's not a whole lot you could say about it. We're just not scoring. There are a few other clubs in the same way." The Mets, despite many opportunities, have scored just three runs in their four consecutive losses, which have included two shutouts. "I know everybody is trying out

Healthy Doehring is ready

BY Bert Rosenbhal
The Associated Press
SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — Seven years ago, Jim Doehring was immobilized in a hospital bed by his jaw wired, his back broken — and his promising shot put career apparently ended. Now, Doehring, 26, is healthy following a courageous recovery and is a member of the U.S. Olympic team.

Saturday, he produced his longest throw of the year, 49 feet, three-quarters of an inch, in a pre-Olympic track and field meet at the University of California-Irvine. "Seventy feet is getting close," said Doehring, whose career best is 69-10 1/4, in 1986. "I was a little off-balance today," he said. "I'm working on that, and I hope to have the meet of my life in the (Olympic) Games."

It is a miracle that Doehring still can throw the shot put, following his terrifying accident in July 1981 when his new motorcycle and a work truck collided on Newport Boulevard in Newport Beach, Calif. Both vehicles were totaled. "It was his fault," Doehring said, "but I wound up in the hospital with a broken jaw and a broken back."

The accident occurred only about a month after Doehring had won the U.S. Junior Championship with a heave of 60-2, a national junior record at the time. "They (doctors) wired my jaw and fused three vertebrae in my lower back," Doehring said. "They stuck rods in there (the back), and they were in there for nearly a year — until the bone graft got hard. "The doctors said I could have been a quadriplegic. They were so surprised I recovered. "My doctor said he did four operations of the fusion of the spine like mine in one month, and I was the only one who made it. "He made it, but it was a long, hard road back. "I didn't know how long it would take, but Doehring, who remained in Hoag Hospital in Newport Beach for about two months before being sent home to recuperate. "But I knew I could come back."

During Doehring's rehabilitation period, he swam and rode a stationary bike. "I was trying to take the stress off my joints and my spine," he said. "I was doing a lot of things that wouldn't compress my spine, things that wouldn't hurt. "Doehring's first day back in training was torturous mentally and physically.

Nose makes the difference for Stephens at the Travers

BY Chris Corallo
The Associated Press
SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. — What a difference a nose makes. On Saturday, a nose was the difference between the $1 million Travers Stakes at Saratoga. A day later, it was the difference between congratulations and condolences.

At Barn 30, trainer Woody Stephens accepted congratulations for Forty Niner's victory over Seeking the Gold in the 119th Travers — the first in six tries of the Hall of Fame trainer. Five times since 1955, Stephens had sent money to the Travers, and three times they finished second. Though Forty Niner gave Stephens just about the only prize he lacked in a 50-year career, there wasn't much celebrating Saturday night. "I was tired. I had a couple of drinks and went to bed," said Stephens. "I was in a sharp contrast to Stephens' Travers disappointment was reflected in the scrunched-up face of Ambrose, Phipps' English bulldog, who

Sindelar deserving of International title

BY The Associated Press
CASTLE ROCK, Colo. — Golf purists, scoring the Stabelford scoring system, insisted that Jose Sindelar deserved to win the inaugural International tournament two years ago. On Sunday, Sindelar won the International no matter what scoring method was used to use. Hitting the ball prodigious distances and wielding a hot putter, Sindelar fired an 8-under-par 65 to win the tournament-record 17 Stabelford points and a 4-point victory over Dan Pohl and Steve Pate. "Today, let's say you don't need to hit it perfect when the putter is working," Sindelar said. "The cup just kept jumping in the bowlers of the tournament was good, but my putting was A-plus."

Sindelar had nine birdies, 11 one-putts and just 25 total putts in a round that earned him a $180,000 check and vaulted him ahead of Chip Beck into first place in the tour's money list with $672,212. It was his second victory of the season and fifth of his five-year career. "This was the biggest win by far of the five I have," said the stocky, 30-year-old Sindelar. Of his No. 1 money ranking, he said, "Playing on the Asian tour six years ago, I could never have imagined this."

Sindelar, who lost out to Ken Green in this event in 1986 despite having the lowest 72-hole medal score, had the best medal score this year of 15-under 273. He also would have won on the basis of cumulative Stabelford points (38), although points don't carry over from day to day under this format. Sindelar also made it the final day last year and had the third-best medal score. "You're never due," he said. "Don't ever think that in the game of golf. It's just an awful lot of fun when it happens."

Pohl and Pate, both at plus-13, earned $88,000 apiece. Mark Wiebe was at plus-12 and pocketed $48,000, while Chip Beck wound up at plus-11 and won $40,000. "I was making a lot of birdies out there, but the last time I looked at the scoreboard Beth Daniel was 10 under par," Inkester said. "So I was playing for second."

What Inkester didn't know was the Daniel was hurting and tiring under the strain of playing 27 regular holes — including the back nine of her second round, which was suspended by darkness Saturday. "It might have not been a problem in any other year, but Daniel was sidelined from March to late June because of mononucleosis and had not played more than 18 holes on any day since. "I ran out of gas," said Daniel, who had tears in her eyes throughout a news conference. "I think I did. I was hurting about the sixth tee of the afternoon round."

Debbie Massey, Martha Nause, Rosie Jones and defending champion Betty King all finished tied for third place at 210, four shots behind the leaders. Sally Quinlan was alone at 211.

MOODY ON TOP
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — For Orville Moody, plenty of money adds up to plenty of incentive on the Senior Tour. "I've been trying to stay on top of the money list," Moody said Sunday after winning the $37,000 top prize at the $250,000 Greater Grand Rapids Open Sunday at the Elks Country Club course. Moody, who shot a 1-under-par 70 in the final round for a 10-under 203 over 54 holes, now has won four tournaments and $255,187 on the Senior Tour this season. He now trails top money-winner Bob Charles by just $2,576. Charles took the weekend off. Moody finished with one stroke ahead of Gary Player, who shot a 66 Sunday. Chi Chi Rodriguez, who had a 70, and Chick Evans, who shot 67.

INKSTER FORTUNATE
SOMERS POINT, N.J. (AP) — Phipps' English bulldog, who finished second at Saratoga, was the 28th that kept her three-year winless streak intact. Juli Inkester came from out of nowhere with a tournament-best 6-under-par 65 Sunday to force a playoff with a worn-out Daniel, and then parred the first extra hole to capture the $25,000 PGA Atlantic City Classic. Making the victory even more improbable was that Inkester at one point trailed Daniel by 10

Redskins will find title defense uphill climb

Eight games in the rugged NFC East Division won't be a picnic

By David Ginsburg
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The problems associated with defending the Super Bowl title do not concern Washington Redskins coach Joe Gibbs as much as the brutal schedule that comes with capturing the NFC East crown last year.

The eight games within the division will be tough enough. But beginning Oct. 30, the Redskins go through a stretch in which they play five consecutive games against playoff teams that finished a combined 54-20.

"Our first goal is to make the playoffs," Gibbs said. "Then, we'd like to get a home playoff game to get the upper hand. Our third goal is to win the Super Bowl, but with our schedule it'll be tough to do."

In contrast, the New York Giants bid to bounce back after last season's last-place finish will be aided by a schedule that includes two games against the Detroit Lions (4-11 last year) and games against Kansas City (4-1), Atlanta (3-12), and the New York Jets (6-9).

Still, the Redskins have the talent to win the NFC East and become the first team to win consecutive world championships in the 1980s. Rather than play a pat hand after its 42-10 Super Bowl victory over the Denver Broncos, Washington will have Super Bowl performance coach Doug Williams to bolster its defense that last year ranked 18th in terms of yards surrendered.

The defensive line will once again be anchored by 38-year-old tackle Dave Butz, the oldest player in the league. And opposing quarterbacks will have to face the comeback tandem of three-time Pro Bowler Darrell Green and Barry Wilburn, who last year led the NFL in interceptions.

On offense, quarterback Doug E. Pickett (4), who has been a backup since last year's Super Bowl, will retain the starting job.

LIFT OFF — Joe Morris (20) of the Giants is stopped in his tracks by Pittsburgh's Tyrone Stone in their NFL exhibition game Saturday night at Giants Stadium. The Redskins will find the title defense uphill climb.

Seminoles have history on their side

By Herschel Nissenson
The Associated Press

Southern Mississippi on Sept. 10, they visit Clemson, the defending Atlantic Coast Conference champion, on Sept. 17 and play host to Big Ten king Michigan State the following week.

"We could be in or out of it this September," Bowen said. "You have to play every second game. It's a dangerous position, but one we're flattered to be in."

This is such an important game that Bowen has closed his practices, something he rarely does.

"We've never opened with Miami before," he said.

At least not since Bowen arrived in Tallahassee in 1976. Florida State, under Coach Bill Peterson, opened with Miami in 1965 and 1966, winning 24-0 and 14-0. Miami won last year's early-October meeting 26-25.

With 10 teams expected at least one first-place vote, Florida State has a runaway preference choice for No. 1 over Nebraska. The Seminoles received 44 of 60 first-place votes and 1,161 of a possible 1,200 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

It's the first time Florida State has ever been ranked No. 1. The previous high was last year's runner-up finish, as well as No. 2 ranking in the final 1980 regular season poll.

Florida State returns 13 starters and 43 lettermen. Bowen

Coach Bobby Bowen, whose Florida State Seminoles have been ranked No. 1 in the Associated Press preseason college football poll, doesn't mind opening against defending national champion Miami.

History is on his side.

Since the AP took its first preseason poll in 1956, only four preseason poll winners have failed to win their opening game. Nebraska lost to UCLA 20-17 in 1972. The Cornhuskers were tied 6-6 by LSU in 1976. Michigan lost to Wisconsin 21-14 in 1981 and the 1984 Auburn team lost to Miami 28-16 in Kickoff Classic II. Miami was the defending national champion that year, too.

"We've got to play them sooner or later," Bowen said of the Seminoles' visit to Miami on Saturday night, Sept. 3. "Let's find out what we're both got."

Although Miami is No. 8 in the preseason rankings, Bowen said that "to me, Miami is No. 1. The Seminoles received 44 of 60 first-place votes and 1,161 of a possible 1,200 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

It's the first time Florida State has ever been ranked No. 1. The previous high was last year's runner-up finish, as well as No. 2 ranking in the final 1980 regular season poll.

perfect offense line. When he's not handling off to second-year running back Timmy Smith, who inherits the job from George Rogers, Williams will throw the line receiving corps of Art Monk, Gary Clark and Ricky Sanders.

But strange things happen to teams trying to defend a Super

'Frank's Place' in need of fans

By Kathryn Baker
The Associated Press
LOS ANGELES - When CBS' "Frank's Place" picked up an award from the Television Critics Association as best comedy of the season - an honor shared with ABC's "The Wonder Years" - it was recognition from the one group "Frank's Place" doesn't need to win over.
A cheer went up in the room when the award was announced at the recent television critics convention here. But what "Frank's Place" needs now is viewers, not more accolades from the press, and there have been plenty of those. Despite the show's "Frank's Place" hasn't found a very large audience, because it's a kind of non-formula show that takes a while to build, and it has been in six different time periods in its one season on the air.
It isn't on CBS' fall schedule. CBS Entertainment President Kim Masters said he couldn't find a good enough time slot for it. Instead, it's being held as a midseason replacement.
Meanwhile, there are some awards being given out this Sunday that could translate into viewers for the stylish, sophisticated, warring series. Its cast and crew were surprised and delighted when it was nominated for nine Emmys, including best comedy.
"I was wonderful," said series star Tim Reid, who was nominated as best lead actor in a comedy. "I felt very ..."

monologue by the widow when she finally admits that her laborer husband had staged his death. He was really dying of cancer, but had read that a person could use a bar over a drunken-driving death, and he hoped to leave something to his family that way.
Wilson's account of Richards' performance sounds like a plot for "Frank's Place."
"I knew she had the big speech at the end, and if it wasn't wonderful, that was big trouble," Wilson recalled.
"She came in, and we were about three hours late, and she just sat over in the corner and smoked Salams," he said. "The set was very quiet because of the subdued nature of the material, and everybody was thinking, 'If this woman isn't any good, we're gonna be in a cold, ugly place.'"
"She came in and started to rehearse, and I said, 'Whoo, whoo, wait a minute.' She said, 'Do you want me to do something different?' I said, 'No, I just want to shoot this.'"
"So we shot it, long shot, medium, closeup, did it three times, and she cried in the same place each time. Harper was having trouble doing his lines 'cause he was so blown out by her."
"She did it, then we turned around and did it for Harper. She said, 'Thank you very much, got up, and the crew burst into spontaneous applause, and she walked off.'"
HEPBURN WRITES - ABC has given the green light to a television special next season known only as "The Katharine Hepburn Project." Hepburn has written and will star in a movie based on her own life, co-starring a character based on her real-life, longtime companion and assistant, Phyllis. "It's a tough film to describe," acknowledges ABC vice president for motion pictures, Allen Sabiston. "It's a very quirky, almost episodic look at Kate's life over a couple of months as she takes us into her confidence. ... She talks directly to the camera, which is a very unusual device for a movie."

Takeout double in action
So South jumped to two spades after North doubled one heart. North was sure the heart queen was worth anything, but his game anyway. West led K-A of hearts and then switched to a low club. Declarer won in dummy, trumping with the queen appeared. Had he now played without foresight, he would have led a low diamond back to his 10. West would win the jack, continue with another club and eventually take the setting trick with the diamond king. But South knew about end-play. He first played the remaining high clubs. When he finally led to his 10 of diamonds, West had to either play back into the A-Q or lead a heart to allow declarer to trump in dummy while discarding the queen of diamonds from his hand.

It's a season of discontent

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Many people suffer through the February "bluhs" each year but recent research indicates just as many people may be affected by a summer counterpart period.

Health magazine says a study shows seasonal mood swings could be an organic mental disorder called "seasonal energy syndrome (SES)." It affects some people in the winter months (causing lethargy, overeating and oversleeping) and others during the summer (causing anxiety, agitation and insomnia).

Researchers have had some success in treating SES patients with seizure-control drugs most commonly used on epileptics, who show many of the same symptoms.

PERFECT FIT—Professor Denise Lee of the University of Michigan shows a piece of prosthetic atristry that can be worn simply by applying the patch with an adhesive daily. The university's medical sculpture department can replace ears, eyes or fingers without surgery.

Many eat four meals a day

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans nibble the equivalent of a fourth meal a day, according to Nutri-System.

It says a survey by MRCA Information Services showed that 80 billion snacks were consumed in 1986. Other findings showed beverages comprise 36 percent of between meal indulgences and sweets make up another 30 percent.

"Healthy" snacks account for only 16 percent and are favored by adults over 55.

Beard growth measured

BOSTON (AP) — A man's beard grows an average of 5 1/4 inches a year, according to Gillette Safety Razor Division.

The beard covers about a third of a square foot on his face and contains some 15,500 hairs.

Students from 21 countries pursue their dream of space

By Stefan Fatsis
The Associated Press

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — A 22-year-old aerospace engineering student from France sat hunched over architectural drawings of a lunar base module, sketching the future of the final frontier.

Richard Fourier's drawings won't stand as monuments to progress in space development. But where they were done just might.

Fournier of Toulouse was one of 104 students from 21 countries including the Soviet Union who assembled on the campus of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology this summer in the first session of the International Space University space law and problems of deep deacceleration in space.

The university, the first of its kind, wants to "set forth an agenda for space exploration and create a 'coherent space culture,'" said Todd B. Hawley, its 27-year-old co-founder.

"Our goal is there will be a global space culture and there has to be an understanding of what is possible on an international basis," Hawley said.

Since a founding conference at MIT in April 1987, Hawley and Diamandis have raised more than $1 million from government, private and corporate sources including $100,000 from the Soviet Union to enroll a 12-student delegation. About a third of the students and professionals from around the world who applied for this year's course were accepted and their home countries paid the $10,000 fee.

"We are the countries with the highest technology and we must cooperate," said Alexander Prokhorov, a graduate student at the Institute of Aircraft Technologies in Moscow. "All peaceful co-existence in space is a better alternative than the Strategic Defense Initiative. It's better to go to Mars or Venus together."

During the nine-week session that ended Saturday, students tested space shuttle suits, operated a robot that performed a simulated scavenging of the Strategic Defense Initiative, and lunar mining vehicles and tested them in sandboxes.

The 84 lecturers from 14 countries were drawn from the world's top space organizations, including that National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, the European Space Agency, the Soviet Cardiology Research Center and the International Telecommunications Satellite Organization.

The point the university makes is that, with the decline of the American space program following the 1986 explosion of the space shuttle Challenger, the future of space exploration and development of space necessarily must be an international venture.

"There's no point in America going to Mars and the Soviet Union going to Mars," said Russell Hannigan, 24, a spacecraft systems engineer with British Aerospace in London. "It's a waste of national resources just to do national programs."

"Space programs are very expensive," added Fabian de Oliveira, 34, of Brazil's Institute of Space Research, which is launching its first data collection satellite next year. "As a developing country, we have no way of really going for space programs without international cooperation."

The university will remain a summer school until 1992, when the founders hope to begin a five-year degree program with a permanent faculty, a main campus and satellite campuses at the world's top space centers. Next year's program will be in either France or West Germany.
