OPENING DAY TEARS — Linda Brown, a first-grade teacher at Bolton Elementary School, comforts her student Jason Lachapelle on the first day of school this morning. Lachapelle, 5, lives at 81 Johnson Rd.

Some Bolton classes shifted as school opens to students

By Andrew J. Davis Manchester Herald BOLTON — A day after school bells rang for the first time this year in Manchester, students here were back in the classrooms in an uneventful day, school officials said. "It's unbelievably smooth," said School Superintendent Richard E. Packman this morning of opening school day. "A very smooth opening. No major problems." Bolton High School was the first to open its doors as school started at 8 a.m. Bolton Elementary School and Coventry High School began classes at 8:30 a.m. "Very smoothly," said high school Principal Joseph Fleming when asked about the opening. "Our kids were excited about returning and seeing their friends." Fleming and Packman both reported no problem with bus delays today. Anne Rash, K-8 principal,

Coventry opening goes well

Barbara Fry, secretary to Principal William Carpenter at Hersey Robertson School, said there were no problems there, either. She said Carpenter was greeting students as they arrived on buses. "The buses are arriving and that's a good sign," said Fry. Fry said enrollment at Robertson was at 275 pupils, the most students that had ever attended the school. Last year, 252 students were enrolled there. Things also went off without a hitch at Coventry Grammar School, according to the secretary, Joan Wolf. "So far, so good," said Wolf. The school's principal, Mary Margaret Edwards, had bus duty and was unable to comment this morning. Wolf said enrollment at the grammar school was up to 420 students from 408 students last year.

Delta 727 crashes on takeoff

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — A Delta Airlines jetliner carrying 104 people crashed and burned on takeoff today at Dallas Fort Worth Airport, killing at least 15 people, officials said. Witnesses said the plane went down in hazy sunshine, broke into two and burst into flames on a flat, grassy field near the runway. The fire was brought under control quickly, but the partially blackened, split-open fuselage smoldered more than an hour after the 9:03 a.m. accident. Delta said the Boeing 727 was Flight 1141 en route to Salt Lake City, carrying 97 passengers and seven crew members, said Jim Landy, a Delta spokesman in Atlanta. The flight originated in Jackson, Miss. Delta spokesman Bill Berry said at least 15 people were killed. Investigators have no immediate indication of the cause of the crash, said Michael Benson, a spokesman for the National Transportation Safety Board. Benson said at least 20 people survived. "There are probably more survivors," he said. "We don't know for sure."

Chinese plane skids into sea and breaks up

HONG KONG (AP) — A Chinese jetliner with 89 people aboard skidded off a runway while landing in heavy rain today and broke apart in the sea. Officials said seven people were killed, including six crew members trapped in the submerged nose section. Fifteen people were reported injured, and 13 of them were taken to hospital for minor cuts and broken bones. Clive Lane said he saw the plane from his window before it crashed.

S. Windsor plans won't affect mall

By Nancy Connelman Manchester Herald Planning Director Mark Pellegrini said today a retail and office complex proposed for the former site of the Plaza at Burr Corners. The proposed 400,000-square-foot center, to be located on land that lies in Manchester and South Windsor, will have to provide different types of goods and services to a different segment of the market than the other two retail centers, Pellegrini said. "The shoppers will just sort of pingpong around there," Pellegrini said. Dennis Morin, president of the Farmington firm that is expanding and renovating Burr Corners, said the mall center will benefit from the mall traffic. He could not be reached for comment this morning. Partners in Downeast Associates, developer of the Winchester site, also could not be reached for comment this morning. Pellegrini said Downeast Associates brought rough plans into the Manchester Planning Department a few months ago that showed a retail strip center lying primarily in South Windsor and free-standing office buildings. Plans showed a couple of buildings and a parking lot in Manchester, Pellegrini said. Downeast Associates, which consists of Bronson & Hutensky of Hartford and Melvin Simon & Associates of Indianapolis, Ind., have not submitted any formal applications to the Manchester Planning Department, Pellegrini said. The proposal is similar to the more-than-900,000-square-foot Buckland Hills project, which was abandoned in 1986 after approvals were given for the 785,000-square-foot Pavillons at Buckland Hills, which lies west of the Winchester site. Melvin Simon & Associates Inc. is also a member of the Mall at Buckland Hills Partnership, which includes the Home Depot Development Co. of Chicago, the Pavillons developer. Downeast Associates and the Mall at Buckland Hills Partnership are two of three developers who are negotiating with the town of South Windsor over road improvements in that town.

About Town

Club to elect officers

Widows and Widowers Associated, Chapter 11 of Manchester, will meet Sept. 11 at 2 p.m. at Emanuel Lutheran Church, 60 Church St.

There will be election of officers and a Board of Directors for 1988-89. Cynthia Bartholomew of Voluntary Action Center, Capitol Region, will discuss Big Brothers and Big Sisters. Refreshments will be served.

On Sept. 25 at 1 p.m. the group will sponsor a luncheon at the Lakeside Cafe and Lounge, 50 Lake St. Country music will be presented at 2 p.m. For reservations and more information call 643-7576. All widowed persons are welcome.

Red Cross offers program

Connecticut Valley East Branch, American Red Cross, will offer a training program in first aid for children, Sept. 7 and 8 at Red Cross headquarters, 20 Hartford Road from 6 to 10 p.m.

This program is approved by the State of Connecticut for day care personnel. It is also appropriate for parents and grandparents. The course includes information on how to administer first aid, prevent accidents and to recognize communicable diseases in children.

Those interested in participating should register early as there is limited seating before taking the course. The cost is $30. For more information, or to register, call the Red Cross office, 643-5111.

Blood pressure clinic set

A blood pressure clinic will be conducted at the Senior Center on Sept. 7 from 9 to 11 a.m. for those whose last names begin with A-K.

A representative of the Cancer Society will be available at that time to answer questions and give information concerning the methods and value of cancer detection in the older woman.

There will also be blood pressure clinics Sept. 12 from 9 to 10 a.m. at Westhill Gardens, 24 Bluefield Drive and at Bennet Housing, 1146 Main St. from 10:45 to 11:30 a.m. A representative from the Cancer Society will be at both sites.

Penney High reunion set

The class of 1968 of George J. Penney High School, East Hartford, will hold its 20th class reunion on Oct. 8 at Jester's Court, 748 Tolland Turnpike.

The affair will begin with a cocktail hour starting at 6:30 p.m., followed by a buffet dinner, dancing and entertainment. Tickets are $40 per person.

Any class member who hasn't received mailings about the reunion and who would like to attend should call any of the following committee members: Linda (McCann) Belanger, 568-3131; Paula (Arnone) Billard, 228-4019; or Beatrice (Loose) Piersa, 568-4778.

An "ice-breaker" party is planned for Oct. 7 from 8 to 11 p.m. at the former Penney High School from 8 to 11 p.m. to help former classmates get re-acquainted.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — George S. Richardson, an engineer who designed some of the most prominent bridges in Pittsburgh, died Friday of a heart attack. He was 92.

Richardson's designs included the Fort Pitt and Fort Duquesne bridges and numerous other spans over Pittsburgh's Ohio, Monongahela and Allegheny rivers.

Police Roundup

Business owner charged with failing to pay wages

The owner of a Manchester remodeling business who was charged earlier this year with issuing a bad check was arrested Friday on a charge of failing to pay wages, police said.

Police said that the arrest of John Perkins, 29, of Colchester was made on a warrant from the State Labor Department for an incident on Nov. 22, 1987. No information on the amount of wages involved was available.

Perkins is the owner of Family Home Remodelers, 31 W. Middle Turnpike, police said.

Perkins was also charged Friday with first-degree failure to appear and second-degree failure to appear in connection with the bad check charge, police said. That charge stemmed from an incident in which Perkins wrote a check of $6,000 to a Hartford store on an account that had been closed, police said.

Perkins was released on a $3,500 bond and was to appear in Manchester Superior Court today.

Elderly man arrested in kiss-blowing incident

A 76-year-old man who stuck his head out of a car window and blew kisses at a 16-year-old girl was arrested Tuesday on a charge of breach of peace, police said.

Police said Sylvester S. Lamay, 24 Madison St., has been arrested for the same offense in the past. Police said Lamay followed the girl along Center Street Tuesday from the parking lot of the Food Bag convenience store in his grey truck. According to the police report, Lamay apparently stopped to blow kisses at her on the corner of Chestnut and Garden streets.

When police stopped Lamay, they said he denied following the girl. Police said Lamay did say he had recently left Food Bag's parking lot.

The girl told police that she had seen the same man several times before the incident, according to the report.

Lamay was released on a $250 bond and is to appear in Manchester Superior Court on Sept. 14.

Thoughts

Talk with God
The thought of meditating or prayerful meditation scares many a person. We tend to relegate this mental process to saints and maybe the clergy. Where are the roots of this false conclusion? Meditation is for everyone and it is easier than talking to ourselves, an exercise we seldom admit to but occasionally practice. It is easier because one addresses thoughts to God. The discussion need not be on the great mysteries. Those who do indulge in meditation dialogue about the daily trials and tribulations or the worrisome near future.
Listen to the evening prayer of a young child asking God to protect moon and dad and at the tail end, the puppy too. The child's thankfulness for her playmate or new toy is not of mystery. It is the simplicity of a young child talking to a loving and caring Father, our God.
Meditation progresses from the request and thanksgiving stage to higher planes with practice and insights.

50 debate Bolton charter revision proposals

By Andrew J. Davis
Manchester Herald

BOLTON — A proposal to switch to a town manager form of government attracted both opposition and support among 50 residents who attended a public hearing Tuesday on a report of the Charter Revision Commission.

"It's more efficient for someone to be here on a full-time basis," she said.

Others, including selectman Douglas Cheney and finance board member Robert Campbell, were against the proposal, saying it was an unnecessary step.

"The problem we have is a fly and what we're killing it with is an elephant gun. It's not an argument to change the government. It is to change people."

— Robert Campbell
Board of Finance

Some residents also voiced their opinions about changing to a town manager.

"It's the ideal way to go, but what we saw at the last budget meeting, it's not going to happen" since people may not support any increase in salaries, said Don Costello. "Would the money be better spent on two good administrative assistants?"

Committee vice chairman Robert Lessard has said a town manager could be hired for around $32,300 total, most of the money for that position is already there, he has said.

"Bolton is a town that's growing," said Hank Kelsey. "We need more expertise. I think we

8th voters will have final say on historic accord with town

By Alex Girelli
Manchester Herald

Negotiators for the town and the Eighth Utilities District have begun to draft specific terms of an agreement over fire and sewer jurisdiction, but there is no possibility that the agreement can be implemented quickly, Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr. said today.

DiRosa said logistic problems, such as when to effect transfers of assets and responsibilities, have to be worked out, and nothing can happen at any rate until the agreement is approved by electors of the Eighth District.

John D. LaBelle Jr., the district's legal counsel, has not yet said what approvals will be required by district voters or what the district voters would vote in an election or at a district meeting.

DiRosa said today that the proposed agreement contains very little that is not "positive" for the district, and for that reason he expects the district voters to decide in favor of it.

It was the vote of district residents last November that defeated a previously negotiated agreement.

One reason for a delay in implementing the agreement, DiRosa said, is that the General Assembly will not meet until spring to act on Public Act 200, a 1983 act that clearly gave the district the right to provide fire protection and sewer jurisdiction north of the Middle Turnpike.

DiRosa's mention of Public Act 200 is the first indication that figures in the agreement currently being worked out. One of the provisions of the earlier agreement was that the town was to provide that neither the town nor the district could provide service in the territory of the other without approval from the other.

DiRosa also said one problem is working out terms of when district residents connected to the agreement will be made. He said the financial arrangements do not constitute a budgetary "wash" like that of the former agreement in which the district would have bought a town-owned firehouse and sold its sewer assets for the same price.

Lawyers for the two sides met Monday.

After the meeting, attorney Kevin O'Brien, who represents the town, said there were still

Fund swap won't hurt Route 6

By Nancy Conzelmann

Enough money will be available for the proposed reconstruction of Route 6 even if the Department of Transportation takes $22 million from an account that funds the project, a DOT official said today.

James Sullivan, deputy commissioner of planning for the DOT, said the money for Route 6 will come from the federal interstate trade-in program, which allows states to use funds from canceled highway projects in other roads.

The DOT is planning to take up to $22 million from the trade-in fund and use it to ward off other road improvements.

Plans to build Interstate 84 from East Hartford to Providence, R.I., were abandoned by the Rhode Island transportation department and funds for the project were traded in about four years ago, Sullivan said.

Sullivan said about $404 million available now from the cancellation of an Interstate 84 project several years ago, leaving plenty of money for Route 6 and 12 road-improvement projects in the eastern part of the state.

The Route 6 project is "top priority," he said, while the road improvements are third on the DOT's list.

"There will be no impact at all on Route 6," Sullivan said.

"Meanwhile, the DOT is still waiting for word from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers on a permit that will allow the DOT to fill in 77 acres of wetlands to rebuild and widen 11.7 miles of Route 6 between Bolton and Windham.

"Sullivan said construction on Route 6 was originally scheduled to begin this year, but the earliest it could start now is spring 1989.

"The 12 improvement projects involve mostly spot improvements that can be done quickly," Sullivan said. They range in price from about $130,000 to $4.1 million.

"The projects are in Coventry, Windham, Killingly, Wintonburg, Eastford, Pomfret, Plainfield and Canterbury.

combining the Planning Commission with the Zoning Commission. First Selectman Sandra W. Pirog was also public official who supported the idea of a town manager. She said it was time for the town to move into the "20th century."

Some residents also voiced their opinions about changing to a town manager. "It's the ideal way to go, but what we saw at the last budget meeting, it's not going to happen" since people may not support any increase in salaries, said Don Costello. "Would the money be better spent on two good administrative assistants?"

Werkhoven upset over delays in repair of town's culvert

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Manchester Herald

Director Theunis "Terry" Werkhoven wants to know why it is taking the administration so long to repair a deteriorating town-owned culvert that has been causing damage to the back yard of an East Middle Turnpike home.

Werkhoven on Tuesday expressed impatience over what he called the slow progress made by the administration and said that he would ask for a full report on the problem from Town Manager Robert B. Weiss by next month.

Thomas and Sandra Pascinelli have been unable to use their yard at 312-314 East Middle Turnpike since March, when the problem with the sink holes caused by the culvert became more serious. The Pascinellis say they have had problems with the sink holes during the entire 11 years they have owned their home.

The concrete floor of the culvert has deteriorated, and water seeps beneath the culvert walls, eroding the soil. "I would have liked to have seen the project completed by now," Werkhoven said. "I don't know why it has not taken a higher priority."

William Camosci, the town's director of engineering services, said the town was still awaiting word from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers on whether a wetlands permit would be needed for repair of the culvert, which would consist of replacing the culvert floor. He said he had wanted to go out to bid on the project by now.

The need for wetlands permits for all town projects is being reviewed in light of the town's failure to get a wetlands permit for work on the sewage treatment plant. That oversight cost the town a $150,000 fine levied by the Corps.

The work on the culvert will be done as part of repairs to the Bigelow Brook drainage system. The repairs will be paid for through money in a $4.6 million bond issue approved by voters in 1984.

some unresolved issues. "I'm confident they will be resolved," he said.

LaBelle could not be reached for comment this morning.

O'Brien said one task is to prepare maps and graphs that will accompany a draft of the agreement.

DiRosa said the negotiators are now facing the "tedious" part of the task in drafting the details and "making sure there is nothing in the agreement that will create problems in the future."

As an example of a problem in logistics, DiRosa said the town will have to decide how it will provide fire protection in areas now served by the fire station on Tolland Turnpike that would be bought by the district under the agreement.

"While details of the agreement have not been made public, it has been made clear that the district would buy the firehouse and sell the town the right to construct and maintain a trunk sewer to serve the mall being developed by Buckland. The town would also construct a sewer in Slater Street, part of it to be maintained by the town and part by the district."

Werkhoven said he had had no contact with the fire station on Tolland Turnpike that would be bought by the district under the agreement.

State confident Coventry taking action on AIDS

COVENTRY — An official at the state Division of Occupational Safety and Health says the agency reduced a fine against the town for failure to provide AIDS prevention training for lifeguards because it is confident corrective action is being taken. "The fine was amended because OSHA is confident the town through the town manager is taking prompt and corrective action," Richard Ficks, state Labor Department spokesman, said. The fine was reduced from $300 to $100 Monday. The $300 fine was issued after an Aug. 21 inspection at Laticke Beach. The town was cited for not having masks for lifeguards to put over victims' mouths to avoid direct contact and for failing to provide training for the guards in an alternate resuscitation technique using the masks. Rubber gloves, another preventative measure, were present in the lifeguard first aid kit. Ficks said the agency felt the $200 saved by the town from the fine reduction would be better used to purchase the "appropriate equipment to obey the ruling."

Coventry ends tree-cutting ban

COVENTRY — A three-month tree cutting moratorium placed on Connecticut Light & Power Co. is officially over, according to Town Manager John Elseser. "Yes, it's official," Elseser said Monday. The Town Council voted to impose the moratorium May 2 after a resident complained that a contractor working for the utility chopped down 94 maple trees near his home without his approval. The resident Anthony Felice, owner of Maple Hills Farm, a bed and breakfast inn, said the contractor, Alpine Tree Care of White Plains, N.Y., chopped down the 94 maples, adjacent to his property on Goose Lane. The trees had provided privacy and noise screening from the road, he said. The trees were actually on town property. In an agreement with the town to make amends, Alpine Tree Care will plant four dogwood trees at Laticke Beach and also put up a park bench there. In addition, CL&P has agreed that any trees over 6 inches in width and 4 feet in height that need to be cut must first be posted by the town tree warden. Adjoining property owners will be notified in case they want to contest the cutting. In an independent agreement, Felice will receive six white pines as a replacement for the maples. CL&P said it had a release to work on the trees, which were cut to prevent branches from interfering with power lines.

E. Haddam planner endorsed for Coventry planning post

By Jacqueline Bennett
Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — An East Haddam official is likely to be appointed as the new town planner, officials say. Jonathan Kreisberg, chairman of the Planning and Zoning Commission, said Tuesday that Dianne Blackman, who is the East Haddam town planner, has been chosen to fill the spot left vacant by the resignation of Robert Isner in June. Isner held the position for less than a year. The Town Council will vote on the appointment of Blackman at a meeting Tuesday.

"I find that I'm enjoying working with small towns and this is an excellent opportunity. It's a chance to bring my background in planning and the environment together," she said. Blackman was chosen from the two top candidates picked out of a number of applicants, Kreisberg said. The selection process involved an evaluation of the applicants by a panel consisting of members of the PZC, the town Economic Development Committee and an outside planner. The panel narrowed it down to two candidates, both from Connecticut, and then turned things over to Town Manager John Elseser. Elseser interviewed the two over the past week. His recommendation for filling the spot now goes to the Town Council for a vote to confirm the appointment.

"Under the Town Charter I make the recommendation and the Town Council votes on the appointment," Elseser said Tuesday. "I have chosen someone and they accepted." Elseser refused to disclose his choice. Kreisberg said Blackman, a Marlborough resident, will start the job in October if she is approved by the council. Michael O'Leary, town planner for Avon, is acting as interim town planner. Councilwoman Rose Fowler, who opposed the appointment of Isner because of what she called his insufficient experience, said she had not yet received any information about Blackman and could not voice an opinion on the choice until she did. Blackman said today she had been the town planner in East Haddam a little over a year. She said she also worked for the Hartford County Soil and Water Conservation District and was director of the Connecticut Chapter of the Sierra Club. She is originally from Massachusetts. She said she received her bachelor's degree in geography from Worcester State College and a master's degree in earth science from Central Connecticut State University.

Alternate teachers begin jobs in Connecticut schools

HARTFORD (AP) — Some members of the state's first class to complete alternate teacher certification program will head to classrooms this week to begin two years of on-the-job training. As of Tuesday, 49 of the 106 graduates of an intensive summer program had found jobs in state schools, which open this week and next, said Debra Korset, administrative coordinator for the Higher Education Department's Institute of Effective Teaching.

The state program was designed to attract bright liberal arts graduates or people in successful careers to teaching by removing the normal requirements for certification that call for years of college training. This year's participants completed an eight-week course at Wesleyan University, but still must complete two years of on-the-job training, including supervision by a mentor teacher. The program has come under fire by teachers' unions, which have argued that more training is necessary. But Edward R. Dorsett, president of the Connecticut Education Association, said his group would take a "wait-and-see approach" and keep track of the new teachers. Jerry Hurley, 44, of Bethlehem, a graduate of this year's class, said he wasn't concerned about the union complaints and he has found most teachers to be supportive of the program. Hurley will teach computer science to 6th, 7th and 8th graders in Plymouth. His previous experience included six years in public relations and 14 years working with computers. Hurley had first considered becoming a teacher while a boy and was taking education courses when the state initiated the alternate certification program. "I thought it was tremendous," he said. "It was a real experience sharing knowledge." Also among the towns hiring a program graduate is Greenwich, whose superintendent of schools, Ernest B. Fleishman, was chairman of the state committee that designed the alternate certification program. Greenwich offered a job to two graduates, and one accepted a position as a junior high school Spanish teacher, while the other accepted another town's offer.

The town also was looking at a third graduate of the program, Fleishman said. He said the teacher hired from the program has previously taught Spanish in high school and college, and also taught in Mexico. In addition, the new teacher has experience as a journalist and writer, he said. Fleishman said he never had a doubt about offering jobs to applicants still working toward teaching certificates. "We've talked about the alternate route and I indicated to our personnel staffer that our standard is only one: Hire the very best people we can," he said. "And the fact that they don't have some kind of initial license in no way is a constraint for us. As far as we're concerned, it can open up a richer pool of talent." Traci Bliss, director of the Institute of Effective Teaching, said her office conducted job fairs and has become a clearinghouse for teaching jobs across the state as it sought to help the graduates find work. If 50 percent of the graduates get jobs "we would have done extremely well considering this is the first year of the program," she said. "It's a very good start." Each of the graduates paid $1,500 tuition for the program at Wesleyan, unless they had a scholarship, but none was guaranteed a job upon completion of the course. For some of the graduates, who ranged in age from 22 to 58, that meant risking jobs as lawyers, financial analysts and researchers. "This creates a wonderful coming together of theory and practice," she said. About 60 percent of the class already had other careers before deciding to become teachers. Bliss declined comment on whether there were any problems with the program, saying department officials and an outside consulting firm were still working on their reviews of the eight-week course. Of the first class of 107 participants, only one failed to complete the program, she said. Bliss said the strong points of the summer program were the "enthusiasm and commitment of the students," and the strong faculty that included both college professors and experienced teachers.

Werkhoven investigates mill odors

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Manchester Herald

Unpleasant odors at the grain mill in the town's North End may be the result of the process the mill uses to make feed pellets for cows. Director Theodore "Terry" Werkhoven said Tuesday. Werkhoven, who has visited the mill since he received complaints about it in July, said that next week he would discuss his findings with the mill's general manager, Emanuel Hirth, and Town Manager Robert B. Weiss. The mill, located at 10 Appel Place, is operated by the Central Connecticut Cooperative Farmers Association. Hirth today denied that the pellet-making operation was the cause of the odors. He said that the problem had been corrected through a cleanup around the mill.

(Werkhoven) is an expert and he knows, let him show me," Hirth said. In July, residents in the area of the mill submitted to Werkhoven a petition, reportedly containing 91 signatures, asking for the Board of Directors to stop what they said were unpleasant odors and excessive dust emanating from the mill. The state Department of Environmental Protection cited the mill for objectionable odors and dust in April, and a DEP inspector found an objectionable odor again during an inspection in July.

Werkhoven said that steam exhaust from the pellet-making process and residue in the stacks from which the exhaust is emitted appear to be the cause of odors at the mill. He said that he was consulting with a professor at the University of Connecticut to find out whether a water-washing system could be installed in the exhaust system to contain the odors. A DEP engineer, Joseph Cotler, said today that he would have a DEP field inspector look at the pellet-making operation during a future inspection of the mill.

Prosecutor praised on departure

Assistant State's Attorney Robert J.T. Britt, one of the youngest lawyers to be made a prosecutor, ended his last day on the job Tuesday to enter private practice after 3½ years at Manchester Superior Court. Britt, 29, who joined the state's attorney's office out of law school in March 1985, will begin his new job at the Hartford law firm of Hoberman and Pollack starting next week. His position will include the practice of commercial litigation and some criminal law.

The young prosecutor, who is taking a short vacation on a 12-foot fishing boat on the shores of Westbrook, opted to go into private practice following a new marriage, said Assistant State's Attorney Cornelius Shea. Austin McGuigan, a partner in the firm's litigation department, said the company is "extremely optimistic" about having the young prosecutor on board. "He's a great addition," McGuigan said. "At age 29 he's got experience at the state level and has worked with some excellent prosecutors."

Britt's departure leaves the state's attorney's office — already burdened by a backlog of cases — short one prosecutor. "He is a very dedicated, hard-working young prosecutor and we'll miss him," Shea said. The state's attorney said he will begin interviewing prospective replacements next week and hopes to have a new prosecutor in place by October.

OPINION

Recycling obligation ours, too

Discarded domestic appliances have joined the list of bulky things, like junk cars, that are becoming difficult to get rid of.

At the Manchester landfill, the appliances, mixed with other metal objects, are piling up while the town waits to find a way to dispose of them. In some other parts of the state, communities are refusing to collect them from residents and even refusing to accept them at landfills.

In some places, residents, and perhaps commercial trash haulers as well, are dumping the appliances in unauthorized places where they will clutter the landscape until they are finally picked up by municipalities at high cost to taxpayers.

The problem with the old appliances is that they include electrical components with insulating material that is suspected of causing cancer, so they should be disposed of as hazardous waste.

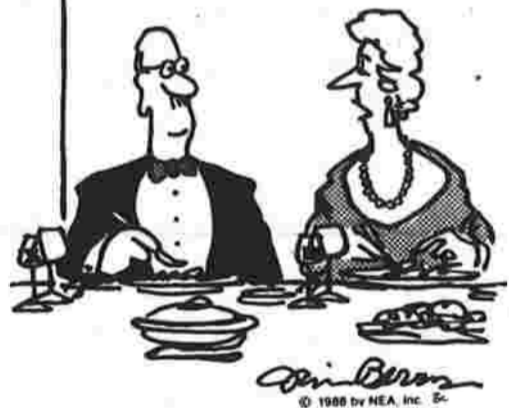

It is not safe to shred the metal from the appliances for recycling or to bury them unshredded without removing the hazardous components.

Obviously, some way has to be found to make it possible for shredding contractors to recycle the voluminous mass economically and safely, and the burden will probably fall on municipalities.

The task of removing the components is reportedly not a difficult one, at least for people who know what they are and where they are. Towns, with the help of the state Department of Environmental Protection, will probably have to train employees to do the job.

Appliance dealers can help the cause by removing the parts, called capacitors, from old appliances when they deliver new ones. Manufacturers can help by distributing information on what old appliances contain the offending capacitors, where they are, and what is the easiest way to get at them.

But, as with all recycling projects, some of the burden may have to borne by consumers. For instance, it might make good sense to separate appliances from other metal refuse in the beginning by having separate areas at the landfill for each. Residents who do their own dumping now sometimes have to stop at a couple of different areas of the landfill. Another stop won't be an unreasonable burden.

"There are two things I DO NOT discuss. One is politics, and the other is 'The Last Temptation of Christ.'"

Lieberman gets rid of 'Mary Pickford'

Joe Lieberman's next series of television commercials on his run for the U.S. Senate will be airing shortly, but those "Mary Pickford" poses by Lowell Weicker, his opponent, won't be in them this time if Joe can help it.

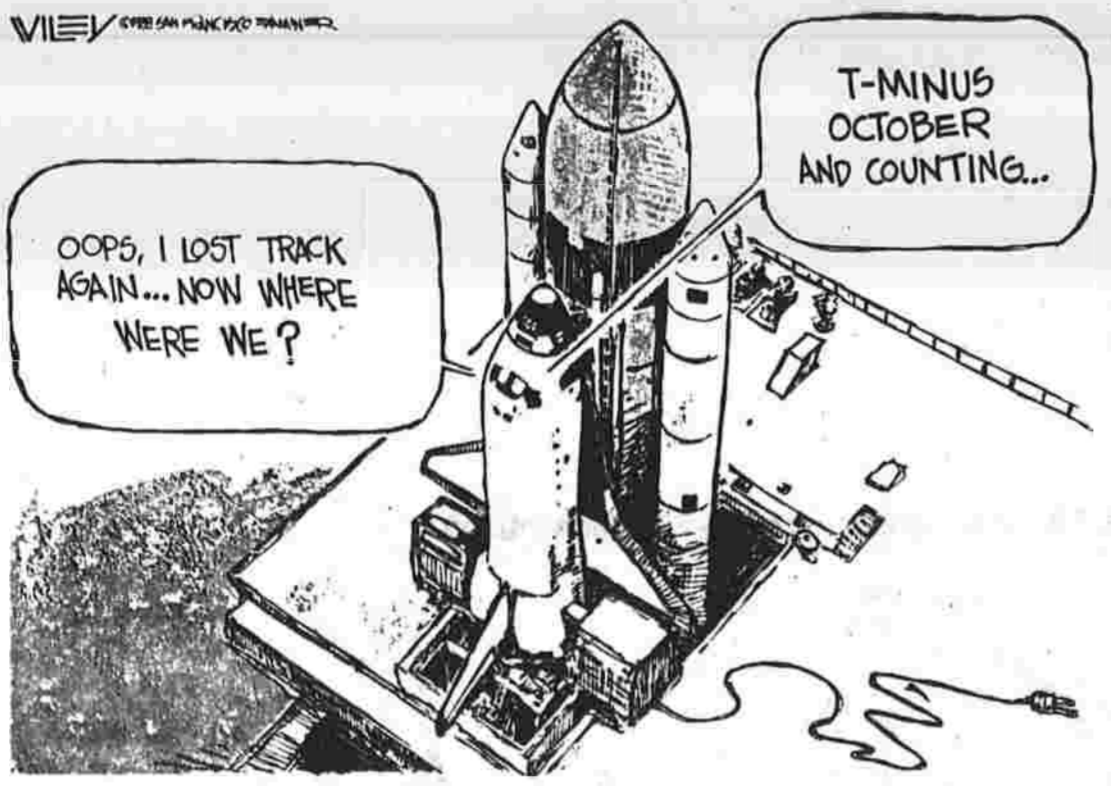

There will be more of Lieberman, the Democrat challenging Weicker, and less of the GOP incumbent as Joe gets serious about the stretch drive leading to the November election.

It was Lieberman's ad agency, after all, that produced the earlier series with one of Weicker's kisser, taken from his own commercials, as a target for put-downs of Weicker's claims. Lieberman took so much flak about them, including some by me, that he flagged his agency to kill so much of a Weicker freebie. His staff coined the "Mary Pickford" label.

Lieberman is convinced by now that voters are coming his way and paying attention as he harps on a few bread-and-butter issues: better day care for children, better health care universally, reductions in nuclear weapons, affordable housing, tougher anti-pollution measures - most with the postscript that Weicker is weak on them.

Lieberman got good news last week when he stuck to his favorite issues in East Lyme and Putnam. Earlier, at a Torrington senior center where I caught his performance, the Democratic back-up troops did their part to cheer him on. That included the grand name of party politics in that area, Gertrude O'Sweetall; Sheriff Carolyn Wakefield; Doris Sweetman; and up from North Haven, Carmen Romano.

But that was typical of what Lieberman is finding as he hits the campaign trail. Friendly Democratic faces are usually there, demonstrating how solidly the party is with this latest challenger of

Kids came first, winning second

To the Editor:

Manchester has lost a great sports figure. I had the pleasure of knowing Dennis Carlin all during his work with Little League and Midget Football. In Little League he was a coach. I was a volunteer umpire. I always enjoyed umpiring the games Denny coached. He never got upset when a bad call was made against his team. If he questioned the call, he'd call for a time out, approach the head umpire and discuss the call in a mild manner, then just walk back to the bench without making a big fuss if the call was still ruled against him. He also controlled the parents and fans of his team whenever they started sounding off at the umpire.

Speaking of parents, what I really admired about Denny was the fact that all players on his team, got to play in the game. I saw him stand up to irate parents (those that wanted to win at all cost), when he put in a new player and the youngster either struck out, misjudged a fly ball or made an error. Denny's philosophy was that there were 8- to 12-year-old boys just starting in organized baseball and as long as they were picked to play on his team, they were going to play. How else were they to learn. Denny would say, "His team won their share of games and championships. Because these boys got to play they gained a lot of experience which I'm sure helped them to be better players when they reached high school and perhaps went on to play in the Twilight League."

Denny had no children of his own, but treated all those boys like they were his.

A lot of credit should also be given to Denny for the development of Leber Field. He was one of a committee of two chosen to look for a Little League site. After the site was found, Denny, despite his handicap, was at the field every

Lutz road race was a success

To the Editor:

As a member of the Lutz Fun Run Committee, I would like to thank the Manchester Herald for its coverage of our recent road race. The committee was very pleased with the turnout of over 100 runners who ran the 1.5- or 3-mile courses. We would also like to thank Highland Park Market, which so generously sponsored the day's events.

Congratulations to the individual winners and to all the participants who successfully completed the race course. We hope that next year even more people will be aware of the annual Fun Run and will join us for running, games for children, and refreshments.

The profit we realize from the Fun Run goes to sponsor programs at the Lutz Children's Museum, so we thank everyone who made this road race a success!

Letter degrades the Boy Scouts

To the Editor:

In the past I have enjoyed the letters Mary Jarvis has submitted to the Manchester Herald. Her letter of Tuesday, Aug. 30, was degrading to the Boy Scouts of America. To say that they are too simple to become vice president of the United States is a poor choice of words.

Boy Scouts are taught citizenship in the community, state and nation, and practice what they have learned from these lessons. I am sure that any of the Scoutmasters of the many troops here in Manchester would be happy to give you names of hundreds of Scouts who have served their country in one of the branches of the armed services from World War II up until now.

We do more than helping little old ladies crossing streets, we love the honor of serving our country.

three-term Lowell Weicker. Toby Moffett should have had it to his good six years ago.

Lieberman knows, however, he's still the underdog. His own pollster puts more emphasis on Weicker's "vulnerability" than on Joe's outlook. Lieberman takes that approach, too, on tour. He says Weicker's record on the environment stinks, so he can and should be beaten.

He says Weicker voted repeatedly against Social Security, a line that he stresses at senior citizens' centers. When pressed, he explains that Weicker voted against cost-of-living increases, adding that it amounts to the same thing. On day care, Lieberman recalls the days when he came home from school for lunch ("chicken soup, often") and heads nod in the audience.

Lieberman is using a leased car these days for campaigning. Son Matt says his dad doesn't think it would look good to take the car that goes with the office of attorney general. But he can't separate his job and his candidacy, nor does he want to.

Drug cartel tried hard to kill Schultz

WASHINGTON - Classified accounts contain grim new evidence that the cocaine-smuggling Medellin Cartel of Colombia came within seconds of assassinating Secretary of State George Shultz in Bolivia on Aug. 8. His entire entourage, including his wife, Helena, narrowly escaped death in a bombing incident that was later downplayed by the State Department.

The cartel depends heavily on Bolivia for the raw coca leaves that are refined into cocaine in Colombia. But the U.S. government has pressured the Bolivian government to crack down. Washington also supplied evidence that led to the arrest of the cartel's top man in Bolivia, Robert Suarez.

On Aug. 8, a few days after Suarez was arrested, Shultz arrived in Bolivia on his latest Latin American peace-making mission. Intelligence sources tell us that the cocaine cartel learned the route he would take from the airport and set up an ambush.

As Shultz's convoy moved and headed for the drug bomb and placed it against the base of a lamp post along Shultz's route. He strung a wire up a grassy hillside where he waited behind a knoll with the triggering device.

The assassination reportedly was assigned to an explosive expert who rigged a powerful dynamite bomb and placed it against the base of a lamp post along Shultz's route. He strung a wire up a grassy hillside where he waited behind a knoll with the triggering device.

The security escort sped up the convoy, veered off the scheduled route and headed for the U.S. embassy. The impeccable Schultz, according to witnesses, didn't even change his expression during the incident.

At the embassy, he insisted on going ahead with his schedule. "I don't want to win," he said grimly.

This brazen attempt on Shultz's life has stimulated angry discussions in the back rooms of Washington on how to retaliate. U.S. military strikes have been ruled out. Intelligence experts say the cartel's jungle processing plants are too hard to find and too easily replaced.

Washington is already encouraging Latin American governments to raid the cartel's facilities. Some reports have caught the cartel by surprise, but all too often, the drug lords are tipped off in advance by friends in high places.

The Justice Department would like to indict and extradite the cartel's leaders, one by one. If they can't be extradited, the special forces might send Israeli-like commando teams to grab them and bring them to justice.

But the best way to fight the Medellin Cartel, the policy makers agree, is to shut down the drug traffic and stop the flow of dollars that subsidize the killing and corruption. The cocaine cartel has sucked hundreds of billions of dollars out of American pocketbooks.

The nation's police chiefs, in desperation, are calling on all Americans to fight the drug cartel before it corrupts and undermines the U.S. government as it has done on Colombia, Panama, Haiti, Jamaica and other countries. Those who are using cocaine must stop; those who are not should band together to keep their neighborhoods drug-free.

The police chiefs are developing a national hot line that is already used in many cities to receive anonymous tips. They are also offering an education program called "Going Straight" to help parents turn their children away from drugs.

Footnote: For information about this neighborhood crusade, contact the National Association of Chiefs of Police, P.O. Box 18645, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Mini-editorial

Oregon has pounded one more nail in the coffin of the tobacco industry. Beginning in 1989, Oregon death certificates will include a question about whether the death was tobacco-related. It's a small nail, maybe just a tack, but other states will follow suit and eventually, the volume of evidence will be too great for Americans to ignore.

BRIDGEPORT VISIT - Curtis Siwa, head of the New York-based crime-fighting group called the Guardian Angels, inspects the Twin Towers housing project in Bridgeport Tuesday. The Angels were invited by residents who fear an increase in crime at the subsidized project.

Project residents hope Angels help

By Linda Stowell
The Associated Press

BRIDGEPORT - Doris Leach, 71, peers out her door every morning before taking her garbage outside because she's afraid that the man who knocked out her front teeth and robbed her three weeks ago will be back.

"He grabbed me from behind and punched me in the face," Leach said Tuesday. "He said, 'Money, money.' I'm lucky I only had $23 but that's a lot when you're living on Social Security."

Leach is one of the residents at a housing project for elderly who hope the Guardian Angels will help her.

Curtis Siwa, founder and head of the New York-based Guardian Angels, headed a team of seven members who met Tuesday with residents of the Twin Towers apartments for the elderly and handicapped.

Mayor Thomas W. Bucci, and residents of two low-income housing projects. "I live alone and I think it's wonderful that they're here," Leach said.

Siwa said the Guardian Angels, a citizens' anti-crime group whose members patrol streets unarmed and wearing signature red berets and white T-shirts, have attempted to start Connecticut chapters in the past, but they have been discouraged by negative public reaction.

He said Connecticut residents must be warned that New York drug dealers look upon their state as "the land of milk and honey."

"They will influence the youth with displays of wealth, like Mercedes-Benzes and gold chains," Siwa said at his first stop, the Twin Towers.

Oakdale to expand

WALLINGFORD (AP) - A public outcry has prompted the Oakdale Theater's new owners to scrap plans to raze the facility and plans are now under way to expand it into year-round musical theater with 4,800 seats, according to Oakdale Vice President Beau Segal.

The Oakdale Theater, which now has 3,184 seats under an open-sided, wooden canopy, and will be second in size in the East only to Radio City Music Hall in New York City, Segal said.

HAMDEN (AP) - The killer of a Georgia man who was shot in the chest when he answered the doorbell at his cousin's home remained at large the day after the shooting, police said.

Ronald T. Elliott, 27, of Augusta, Ga., was "answering a doorbell when an assailant shot him point blank in the chest" at about 10 p.m. Monday, said Detective Sgt. Lewis Perry.

Elliott died at about 11:30 p.m. at Yale-New Haven Hospital, Perry said.

Homes need nurses

HARTFORD (AP) - Representatives of the state's nursing home industry have asked the governor and General Assembly for immediate help with a shortage of nurses by regulating the prices charged by temporary placement agencies.

In addition, members of the Connecticut Association of Non-Profit Facilities for the Aged have asked that the state relax controls on rates charged at nursing homes so they can match the rapid rise in nursing pay in hospitals.

Meehan isn't sorry

BERLIN, Conn. (AP) - The state's largest utility company has asked for an apology from the state's consumer counsel, who accused the company of attempting to "steal" money from its customers.

But Consumer Counsel James Meehan said Tuesday he has no plans to apologize for the Aug. 3 remark about Northeast Utilities.

Meehan said earlier this month that the Berlin-based utility was attempting to "steal" $3.9 million from its customers by requesting permission to give shareholders some of the profits from out-of-state sale of power.

NU officials said the term "steal" is not an accurate description of their request.

Ticket dates wrong

HARTFORD (AP) - A "software glitch" resulted in the wrong dates being printed on an estimated 200 lottery tickets sold in the state's Daily Numbers game, officials said.

The date printed said Wednesday, Aug. 30, while the proper date was Tuesday, Aug. 30.

The incorrect dating resulted in the state closing of the Daily Numbers game for 2.5 hours Monday night, from about 8:30 p.m. through 11 p.m., the normal end of the business day.

Overnight, General Instruments Corp. of Maryland was able to correct what state lottery spokesman Edward J. Harrigan called a "software glitch."

The Daily Numbers operated normally on Tuesday.

Heavy traffic dead

STAMFORD (AP) - The heavy traffic on Stamford's downtown streets claimed three victims in a two-hour period as an elderly woman, a waitress on an errand and a 15-year-old girl were struck by cars and injured.

There were no arrests in any of the accidents.

Vincent Akhimie, director of the city Traffic Department, said, "I think there is a problem, and we are trying to address it."

Steroid addiction possible

BOSTON (AP) — Athletes who take high doses of steroids may risk addiction similar to narcotic abuse, doctors warn.

In a letter in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine, doctors report a case of steroid dependence in a man who regularly took four kinds of steroids.

The 23-year-old body-builder told doctors he could not stop taking anabolic steroids without experiencing withdrawal symptoms, depression and disabling fatigue. He said he sometimes felt uncontrollably violent, paranoid and suicidal.

After a week of steroids, he told doctors that he couldn't bear his depression, fatigue and drug craving and intended to resume taking the drugs.

"Some of the clinical features of this patient resemble those frequently observed in cases of opiate dependence," the doctors wrote.

Yale experiments get OK

HARTFORD (AP) — Yale-New Haven Hospital has won approval from the state Commission on Hospitals and Health Care to become the second hospital in the country certified to perform lung transplants without the heart attached.

The procedure, considered highly experimental, is the only cure for interstitial pulmonary fibrosis, an irreversible stiffening and contraction of the lungs' air sacs. An estimated 89,000 Americans suffer from the disease, which is ultimately fatal.

The commission also gave the hospital permission to add heart-lung transplants to its organ transplant program, which already includes heart, kidney and liver transplants.

The commission also voted to permit the hospital to buy an experimental machine for breaking up gallstones with mechanical shock waves, a procedure which can eliminate the need for gallbladder surgery.

Pollen worse than normal

BOSTON (AP) — New Englanders are in the midst of a worse than normal pollen season, but allergists say improved drugs are making life easier for hay fever sufferers who face several months of misery each year.

Doctors also are predicting that the recent rain and a possible early fall may signal a shorter than usual pollen season.

But despite the optimism, many people have been miserable since mid-August, typically the start of the pollen season.

Their noses itch. Their eyes water. They wheeze. They sneeze and often find it hard to get relief.

"It's an incapacitating syndrome," said Dr. Albert Sheffer, allergy chief at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston. "They itch in places they can't get to — you often see people with hay fever using their tongues to try and scratch the back of their throats. There's a general lack of a feeling of well being."

Discovery crews hold final rehearsal

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The simulated failure of space shuttle Discovery's right engine forced astronauts to shift their craft into a low orbit as part of a final rehearsal for the first post-Challenger mission.

The 56-hour simulation began Tuesday and involved about 500 people at Johnson Space Center.

"The first thing after launch, when they were going into orbit, the right engine failed so that they had to do what's called 'abort to orbit,'" NASA spokeswoman Barbara Selby said.

"That means the shuttle can still make it into orbit, but lower than planned, so they have to adjust their activities," Ms. Selby said. "They did achieve the ATO, as we call it, and made the necessary adjustments to continue the mission."

The shuttle crew faced another problem later Tuesday when they tried to deploy the $100 million communications satellite.

A tilt table used to deploy the satellite stuck at a 24-degree angle. Two crewmen were to go outside the orbiter today to manually adjust the table to the needed 30-degree angle, Ms. Selby said. That simulation was to take place under water.

Discovery's four-day mission will be the first shuttle flight since the Challenger explosion 2½ years ago.

Commander Rick Hauck, pilot Richard Covey and mission specialists David Hilmers, Mike Lounge and George "Pinky" Nelson are expected to face about 150 simulated problems during the test, which is to be completed Thursday evening.

As many as 200 others are taking part in the rehearsal in New Mexico and California, spokesman Brian Welch said.

The launch of Discovery is slated for late September or early October, if sluggish oxygen valves and a hydrogen leak are repaired in time.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt dedicated the Jefferson Memorial in Washington in 1943.

NASA backs up project schedule

WASHINGTON (AP) — Delays in getting the space shuttle back into operation have led NASA to postpone its most ambitious scientific mission, the launch of the $1.5 billion Hubble Space Telescope.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Tuesday that by moving the telescope launch from June 1 next year to Feb. 1, 1990, it can stay on schedule for launching three major scientific probes that are dependent on planets being in favorable position.

Those launches are: Magellan, which will map the planet Venus in April 1989; Galileo, a U.S.-German project to survey Jupiter and its moons, scheduled October 1989; and Ulysses, a cooperative project with the European Space Agency, in October 1990.

The first space shuttle flight since the Challenger exploded in January 1986 has been postponed five times. NASA said it won't set a new date until after a flight readiness review on Sept. 19-14, but that it hopes to make the flight late next month or in early October.

The space telescope is in storage, but is costing the space agency $7 million a month to keep it in working order. In space, the telescope is expected to be able to look at objects 14 billion light years away — almost to the beginning of the universe.

Ground-based observatories, which must look through Earth's atmospheric veil, can only see light that originated about 2 billion light years ago.

 Gil Salk, Prop.

By Jim Byk
 As appeared in The Journal Inquirer 8/23/88

"I'm not sure if you can help me," a customer says as he walks through the towering aisles of Books and Birds, a store that sells used books. "I'm looking for a recent book. It's called 'Les Misérables'."

Although that title is hardly recent, Gil Salk, the 45-year-old owner and proprietor of Books and Birds, which moved several weeks ago to Manchester, searches his expansive shelves, and discovers three editions of the Victor Hugo classic.

A minute earlier, Salk was unsure if he had a copy of "Les Misérables" to sell to the gentlemen, but he says that he is always surprised by what he finds on the shelves. The store features more than 25,000 books ranging from Hems dating from the 1700s to last year's best seller.

"I love books," Salk says, "and I like people who love books, because they are interesting to talk to. With this job, you learn something new every day, because people will come in excited about finding something that you know nothing about."

Salk moved to Connecticut in the mid 1970's with 100 cartons of books, among his other possessions. He was married at the time, and says that he was continuously filling up the house with books, much to his ex-wife's dismay.

"My wife kept on saying 'Get rid of some of these.' But I said that someday I would open a bookstore to sell them," Salk says.

Salk has held many jobs in the last 20 years, ranging from running a draft counseling program during the Vietnam War, to serving as the fund-raising director for the American Heart Association in Hartford during the mid '70s. But after his divorce, Salk decided to devote himself full-time to a used bookstore he was operating on the weekends in a former wool mill in Coventry.

"It started off as a weekend hobby, and I made a little bit of money," Salk says. "After my divorce, I said, well, let's see if we can make a living out of it."

In 1984, Salk moved his store to Vernon, where his business prospered for four years. He moved his bookstore to the former Gibson's Gym building in Manchester after his operation outgrew the Vernon store. The new Books and Birds opened on August 1, and Salk says that the move took place none too soon.

"On a good day, I can sell 100 books," Salk says. "But I could easily buy 150 or 200 on that same day, which is why I keep needing larger space and why I moved here. Whenever I have a spare dime, I go out to buy books to add to my collection or to the stock. Some people may be able to make money in this business, but most of us keep coming back to buy more books."

Salk also finds that, in Manchester, his store is filling a need that has been neglected since Collector's Corner left town with the demolition of the Oddfellow's Building in 1980.

"There hasn't been anything like it since then," Salk says. "But I think that economically, intellectually and in terms of varieties of interests, Manchester is a good community for this kind of store."

Salk's inventory does cover a wide range of subjects. The name of the store makes reference to Salk's love for bird-watching and bird paraphernalia. Salk says that his collection of bird books is one of the largest in the state.

Some of the other popular categories include literature, military subjects, hunting and fishing, nature, religion, cooking, children's books and books about Connecticut history. Salk also belongs to a national search service that for a fee, will track down particularly hard to find items.

"But with 25,000 books in stock, I cover most of the bases," Salk says. "I would like to improve the quality of the books, more than the quantity. The stock of books coming in is like a tidal wave, and it's hard to keep up with the real high quality ones. It's easy to keep mediocre books on the shelves, but the really good ones do not last for very long."

Although Salk says he has been pleased with the traffic in his store since the move, he does say that selling used books is a difficult way to make a living.

"It takes a long time to build up a steady flow of customers," he says. "I have a friend who was in the business for a year. She asked some dealers, 'When do you start making money?' And they told her, 'When you sell the business.'"

"But I still love it. There has never been a day where I say, 'Oh dear! I've got to go to work today.' I'm not going to put a tax on it, but that's worth $20,000 all by itself."

Walesa meeting with communists

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity leader Lech Walesa met today with communist officials for the first time since the independent union movement was banned in 1982.

The extraordinary meeting was aimed at solving Poland's strongest wave of strikes since the 1981 martial law crackdown.

Ten enterprises across the country remained idled by strikers demanding reinstatement of Solidarity and higher wages to offset 60 percent inflation.

The Polish government did not announce the meeting had started, but Jack Ambrosiak, a lawyer at the headquarters of the Roman Catholic Church, confirmed it had begun. "It started at noon," he said.

Li. Col. Wieslaw Gornicki, an aide to Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, also confirmed the talks began in the city center, but he refused to say more specific on the location or details of the meeting.

Walesa was to confer with Interior Minister Gen. Czeslaw Kiszczak, Bishop Jerzy Dabrowski of Warsaw and a member of a pro-reform group backed by the government.

Government spokesman Jerzy Urban said Stanislaw Ciolkosz, a secretary of the official national unity organization PRON, which stands for Patriotic Movement for National Rebirth, was set up by the government shortly after martial law.

Walesa, who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1983, went to church headquarters after arriving from Gdansk.

"I'm like a cook preparing this meal, but I can't tell yet if it is going to be a good pie or a rotten one," said Andrzej Stelmachowski, a senior mediator affiliated with the church. Authorities communicate with the opposition through the church, and Stelmachowski has played a key role.

The government demanded in exchange for the talks that Walesa end a strike at the Lenin shipyard in Gdansk.

When asked by reporters if he would do this, Walesa replied, "I don't have the powers. When asked if that meant he would not call off the strike, the Solidarity chairman said, "I did not say so."

Asked earlier what he would discuss with Kiszczak, Walesa said, "How to make up for the past seven years."

Records signed at the Gdansk shipyard on Aug. 31, 1980 after a nationwide strike made Solidarity the only independent labor union ever recognized in the Soviet bloc. It was suppressed with martial law in 1981 and banned the next year.

The Communist Party's ruling Politburo issued a statement late Tuesday saying it endorsed a proposal by Kiszczak for "round-table" discussions on strikers' grievances.

The strikes began Aug. 16 in the coal fields of Silesia, in southern Poland, and spread to Solidarity's traditional stronghold in the ports and shipyards of the Baltic coast.

At their peak, they affected 200,000 people.

A strike at the huge steel and heavy machinery plant in Stalowa Wola, in southeastern Poland, intensified this week.

Polish strikes test U.S.-Sov relations

By Bryon Brumley The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — U.S.-Soviet relations were in a whirlwind of confusion even before Polish workers staged their latest occupation strikes.

The United States is engaged in the always disorienting process of choosing a new president.

And the Soviet Union is emerging from a tumultuous Communist Party conference filled with boisterous calls for economic reform and greater democratization.

"Not only is it a period of great flux, but as far as the Soviet Union is concerned, it is in the most fluid state since the (1917 Russian) revolution," said Madeleine Albright, the chief foreign policy adviser to Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis. Ms. Albright, born in Czechoslovakia, is an expert on East-West relations and a professor at Georgetown University.

The latest Polish upheaval poses, loud and clear, one of the unanswered questions about the reform program of Kremlin leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev: How much political power are communist authorities willing to hand over to their people in return for a popular commitment to invigorate the economy?

The wrong answer from Moscow or Warsaw to that question will present the next American president with a dilemma.

"The problem that the next president is going to have to decide is whether to continue to demand perfection from the Soviet bloc, or whether to just declare victory and accept any change for the better. And there is no question that things are getting better," said Jerry Hough, a Soviet expert at Duke University.

"It seems that everybody is holding his breath," said Charles Fairbanks of the Johns Hopkins center for advanced international studies. "There is a marked movement toward detente, but no one is sure how much momentum it has."

Two weeks ago Polish workers, with their backs to the economic wall, began a second wave of occupation strikes this year, demanding that the government recognize and negotiate with the banned Solidarity trade union.

Fires still spreading

California firefighters battled more than 170 fires, while gusts in Yellowstone threatened to fan a 90,000-acre blaze toward 600 cabins and the park superintendent said there was no end in sight to this summer's wildfires.

Montana ranchers prepared for possible evacuation today, and crews fought woodland blazes in Idaho, Oregon, Washington, Nevada and Utah.

In California, nearly 9,500 lightning strikes Tuesday sparked scores of blazes a year after a similar barrage spawned devastating fires. Firefighters said more than 4,600 acres had burned, but they held most of the blazes to an acre or less in the drought-parched wildlands.

Crews were hampered by 100-plus-degree temperatures, winds and lightning in some areas. The unfavorable conditions were expected to continue today.

GUTTED BY FIRE — A firefighter walks by one of five houses gutted by a wildfire burning out of control Tuesday afternoon in the Orinda, Calif., hills.

Protests erupt in Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Anti-government protesters clashed with riot police across Chile after the military junta nominated President Augusto Pinochet to rule until 1997. One demonstrator was reported killed and scores were wounded.

Pinochet promised a move toward democracy after being named Tuesday as the only candidate in an Oct. 5 referendum.

The right-wing general, who has run Chile since taking power in a bloody 1973 coup, made the selection with the junta's other three members.

Nixon tapes explained

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Nixon's former top aide says the 37th president not only was reluctant to install an extensive taping system in the White House, but that he quickly lost awareness that his every conversation was being recorded.

"The historiography of the Nixon administration will eventually be much the richer as a result of Richard Nixon's decision to tape-record his meetings and telephone conversations," writes H.R. Haldeman, Nixon's onetime chief of staff. "Nixon was not thinking of historians when he made this decision, but they will be the ultimate beneficiaries."

Haldeman discusses the origin of the taping system, which provided the evidence that eventually drove Nixon from office in the Watergate scandal, in the summer issue of Prologue, the quarterly publication of the National Archives.

Loved ones missing

RAMSTEIN, West Germany (AP) — Family members searched for loved ones missing after an air show crash that killed 49 people. Injured children lay unclaimed in hospitals as officials tried to determine if their parents were among the dead.

By late Tuesday, only 11 spectators who died in Sunday's disaster had been identified and officials said that of the 282 people still hospitalized, 20 to 30 might not survive.

Scores of people were badly burned when three of 10 jets in an Italian air force stunt team collided.

Bush and Dukakis snipe on defense, Iran-Contra case

By Robert Greene The Associated Press

George Bush turned Michael Dukakis' 25-year-old snowblower on him to argue that the frugal Massachusetts governor would shortchange national defense, while Dukakis said the vice president failed a vital test of judgment by letting the Reagan administration's arms to Iran.

The sniping took place Tuesday as the Dukakis presidential campaign planned an early battery of television commercials and pointed to organizational successes in establishing strong, well-financed, grassroots organizations in nearly every state.

But there still was lingering tension between the Dukakis camp and Jesse Jackson over how the civil rights leader and former Dukakis opponent would campaign for the Democratic ticket.

Sources who spoke only on condition of anonymity said Jackson resisted attempts to limit the states in which he campaigns, but it was still unresolved where and when Dukakis and Jackson would appear together.

Bush ridiculed Dukakis' snowblower — the prized emblem of the Democratic presidential nominee's budget-consciousness — during one of several appearances in which he continued to criticize Dukakis as weak on defense.

"If he doesn't want to modernize his snowblower, that's his concern," Bush said at Fort Campbell, Ky., referring to the 25-year-old snowblower that figured prominently in a film about Dukakis at the Democratic National Convention. "But if he doesn't modernize our weapons systems, that puts the national security of the United States in considerable risk."

The vice president also was trying to broaden his campaign beyond traditional Republican themes by highlighting environmental issues today.

Bush was traveling to Michigan, where his schedule included a speech next to Lake Erie to environmentalist groups. Later in the week, Bush, who has proposed a ban on ocean dumping, will visit several beach sites in New Jersey and New England.

Aides said he also may make a foray deep into Dukakis territory — a campaign event on polluted Boston Harbor, an environmental disaster that has been a political embarrassment for the Massachusetts governor.

Bush's running mate, Indiana Sen. Dan Quayle, will be traveling to Louisiana with his wife, Marilyn, as part of a five-state southern swing.

Dukakis, resurrecting the Iran-Contra arms and money scandal as a campaign issue, said Bush was head of an anti-terrorism task force that had issued a report denouncing any concessions to terrorist nations.

"The president and the vice president and a number of other people, over the opposition of the secretary of state and the secretary of defense, by the way, proceeded to do precisely what that commission said you should never do," Dukakis said at a news conference during a tour of Western Massachusetts.

"Making tough decisions is a test of leadership," Dukakis said. "George Bush endorsed the decision to sell arms to Iran and in doing so he failed that test."

Terminal developer lures air shippers

WINDSOR LOCKS (AP) — The developer of a planned $24 million air cargo complex at Bradley International Airport is already busy trying to lure freight shipping companies to fill it.

The complex, which could take up to eight years to build, is to be constructed on a state-owned 31-acre parcel in East Granby by Airport Systems of Rochester, N.Y., which would also manage the facility.

Airport Systems President Anthony J. Costello said earlier this week that he has secured enough verbal commitments to fill "two cargo buildings and the better part of one office building" at the facility.

Costello declined to identify the companies, either domestic or international, but said he was now confident of renting at least two-thirds of the cargo space and nearly 30,000 square feet of office space.

Costello said that Emery Worldwide and Federal Express — two of the top three operators at the airport — might be convinced to participate in the new project.

The state would own the buildings and collect a land-rental fee from Airport Systems, a privately-held corporation that has developed similar facilities at airports in Rochester, Minneapolis-St. Paul and Bakersfield, Cal.

The complex would include 170,000-square feet of rentable cargo facilities, which represents more than three times the air freight space currently provided at a 50,000-square-foot building constructed several years ago on the east side

Dispute mars computer 'virus' fight

By Peter Coy
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Rivals in the fight against computer "viruses" are spending much of their time battling each other instead of their common enemy: the software invaders that can secretly destroy computer data.

The dispute concerns which of two groups has the qualifications and impartiality to evaluate anti-virus software for customers. The competition could slow progress in combating the viruses.

"I personally know most of the people in this industry and I have never seen this kind of animosity," Brian Camenker, head of the PC users group of the Boston Computer Society, said Tuesday.

The battle centers on products — called "vaccines" — that are designed to combat viruses. Viruses are tiny pieces of computer code that pranksters or others slip into normal programs to "infect" computers when used.

Although they are rare and have done limited damage so far, viruses are feared because of their potential to be spread from one computer to another, wiping out millions of dollars' worth of data in minutes.

Publicity about recent viruses — including those dubbed the "Christmas Virus," the "Black Friday Virus" and the "Pakistani Brain" — led to anti-viral software products, but there is no easy or reliable way to know whether they work.

Customers and producers agree on the need for an independent panel of experts to review the software. The question splitting the industry is who should be in charge.

Pitted against each other are the 2-month-old Computer Virus Industry Association, based in Santa Clara, Calif., and a loose collection of other computer experts led by Jon R. David, a consultant in Tappan, and Harold Highland, editor of Computers & Security magazine in Elmont.

The controversy heated up Monday with the publication of a front-page article on the debate in MIS Week, a trade newspaper.

Each side accuses the other of using sloppy techniques and manipulating the testing process for its own purposes. The intensity of the debate has left some software developers disgusted with the whole business.

An independent testing panel is essential because most computer users have never seen a virus. If they had a useless defense, they would not know it until a virus caused problems.

"This kind of testing needs to be done professionally and carefully, particularly if other people are going to place reliance on it," said Robert V. Jacobson, president of New York-based International Security Technology Inc.

Jacobson has cautiously thrown his support behind the Computer Virus Industry Association, which was formed in June by a group led by John McAfee, president of IcarusPath Corp. of Santa Clara.

The association is assembling an independent university testing panel composed of people from three New York-area colleges: Pace University, Adelphi University and Sarah Lawrence College. The panel is headed by John Cordani, who teaches computer science at Adelphi and Pace.

David and Highland say Cordani and the three schools don't have the necessary credentials. They also say McAfee's InterPath products will have an advantage in the testing because McAfee invented a virus simulator that will be used as a testing mechanism.

Highland is getting money from his magazine's British-based publisher, Elsevier Advanced Technology Publications, for his own review of anti-viral software. But Highland said he is not interested in operating an ongoing software review board.

For all the controversy over anti-viral products, computer security experts agree that the best protection is prevention. That means being extremely careful about dangerous practices — such as using software that is offered free on computer bulletin boards.

Corcap restates income

Sales and earnings for Corcap Inc., formed as a result of the restructuring of Lydall Inc., increased in the second quarter of 1988 to $9.7 million, compared to $9.1 million for the second quarter of 1987, but restated results include an operating loss of about $95,000.

The company experienced a loss in the second quarter of 1988 of $214,000, compared to a loss of $157,000 in the second quarter of 1987. Those figures exclude restructuring costs.

Corcap's share of ComputDyne's losses for the six months ending June 30, 1988 was $1.9 million, compared with a loss of $42,000 for the six months ending June 30, 1987. Corcap's portion of ComputDyne's net loss for the second quarter of 1988 was $658,000, compared to a loss of $31,000 for the same period last year.

New generator at Arbors

The Arbors at Hop Brook retirement community at 403 W. Center St. recently added an emergency generator to serve the facility when power goes out.

The Cummins diesel generator completes the Arbors power plan, which was designed by Burton and Van Houston Engineers of West Hartford and installed by Wilson Electric of Manchester. The plan requires 300,000-watt auxiliary electrical source for emergency power.

Dunne's moves to Hebron

Patti Dunne's School of Gymnastics, formerly located in the Cheney Bros. Yarn Mill at 210 Pine St., has opened a new facility at 38 Pendleton Drive, Hebron.

Classes offered at the school include preschool movement and fitness and boys' and girls' gymnastic classes.

Murdoch's earnings drop

NEW YORK (AP) — News Corp. Ltd., a communications conglomerate with holdings that range from British newspapers to the Fox Broadcasting Co., reported a 67.3 percent drop in fourth-quarter earnings Aug. 25, attributing the results to Fox startup costs and a big decline in asset sales.

Excluding those factors, News Corp. said, its earnings rose 41 percent from the comparable period a year earlier.

The company, based in Sydney, Australia, and controlled by Rupert Murdoch, earned $128.1 million in the three months ended June 30, vs. $394.4 million a year earlier.

Block buys software firm

BOSTON (AP) — The purchase of Access Technology Inc. by H&R Block Inc. in a $86.8 million stock swap will mean no changes for Access Technology's 175 employees, officials said.

In a statement, H&R Block also said founder Allen Z. Kluchman will remain as chief executive of Access Technology.

Access will become the largest unit in the software products division of ComputServe, an H&R Block company. Access, which has about 30,000 licensed customers, makes spreadsheet software called 20-20, which can be used on multiple types and brands of computers.

Factory orders drop in July

WASHINGTON (AP) — Orders to U.S. factories for manufactured goods, dragged down by a sharp decline in military orders, fell 3.5 percent in July, the steepest decrease in 18 months, the government said Tuesday.

The Commerce Department said orders for both durable and non-durable goods fell $7.9 billion last month to $22.2 billion.

The steep drop, the worst since a 3.6 percent decline in January 1987, was anticipated by economists, who had said some rebound from a large increase in June was likely.

The government said orders rose a revised 5.4 percent in June, the largest monthly increase in more than 17 years.

PLEA TO KEEP HOUSE — Paul Derbacher, 79, and his wife, Ruth, 82, of Hamden, leave U.S. District Court in Bridgeport Tuesday. The couple said they were unaware until a police raid last

Elderly couple deny knowing their home was a drug base

By Larry Rosenthal The Associated Press
BRIDGEPORT — An elderly couple testified in federal court they did not know their home had been turned into a base for drug trafficking, even though a raid turned up drugs or drug paraphernalia in virtually every room.

Ruth Derbacher, 82, and her husband, Paul Derbacher Sr., 79, a retired accountant, were the final witnesses Tuesday in a non-jury trial that will determine whether the couple will be able to remain in their Hamden home of 37 years.
The government contends that drug activity took place in the Derbachers' home with their knowledge and consent and that their house is therefore subject to forfeiture.

"We did nothing wrong. We were not involved in anything," testified Mrs. Derbacher in an often barely audible voice.

U.S. District Judge Warren Eginton did not issue an immediate ruling.
Police testified the couple were surprisingly cool and calm when their home was raided, but Mrs. Derbacher, turning to face the judge, said, "We were devastated. I don't know how they could say that."

The couple's son, Paul Jr., 46, and their grandson, Julian Derbacher, 23, were the targets of the investigation that led to the raid. Paul Jr. used his parents' home as a "stash house" for his drugs, according to a court affidavit, but he has not been charged in the case.

The couple said they knew their grandson, who was living with them, had an alcohol problem but did not suspect he was also involved with drugs. Julian Derbacher has already pleaded guilty to drug distribution charges as a result of the raid, and is awaiting sentencing in a state court.

Drug distribution charges are also pending against Ruth and Paul Derbacher.

During their search of the Derbachers' home, police found two suitcases stuffed with 15 pounds of marijuana. One was in the hall closet and the other in a spare room where police also discovered three bags of marijuana in plain view, drug transaction records and scales.

In Julian's bedroom, police recovered about $400 in cash they said was "laying about in plain view." A bag containing a small amount of cocaine was also found in one of his coats.

In the couple's kitchen, a search turned up a vial with cocaine residue in the drawer where Mrs. Derbacher kept her dish towels, and a bag of marijuana protruding out of a mug on a shelf.

fall of any drug activity in their house. The federal government is trying to take their home because it was allegedly used by their grandson for drug trafficking.

smell of either unburned or burned marijuana. Hamden police Sgt. Jack Kennedy testified that about eight years ago, he had shown the Derbachers marijuana that had been confiscated from their grandson.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Derbacher denied the witness stand that Kennedy had ever shown them the drug. Mrs. Derbacher acknowledged, under questioning from Assistant U.S. Attorney Leslie Ota, that before the raid, she did know what marijuana looked like.

Feds told not to prosecute firm in L'Ambiance crash

HARTFORD (AP) — The chief federal prosecutor for Connecticut says he has recommended that the U.S. Department of Justice not pursue criminal prosecution of a Texas construction company for its role in the L'Ambiance Plaza building collapse that killed 28 workers last year.

U.S. Attorney Stanley A. Twardy Jr. said today that after a five-month investigation, his office concluded that it couldn't prove a criminal case against Textar Construction Corp. of San Antonio, Texas.

"It is our conclusion that there is insufficient evidence, at this time, to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that a willful violation of an OSHA construction standard caused the death of the workers," Twardy said in a statement.

His recommendation goes to the criminal division of the U.S. Department of Justice in Washington, D.C.
The department can approve, reject or modify the recommendation before sending it to the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration. But sources, who cited the confidential nature of the investigation in requesting anonymity, told The Hartford Courant they doubt Twardy's recommendation will be altered.

Tests performed by the bureau of standards established that the lifting angles used on the project became deformed and failed at loads below the safety standards set by OSHA, Twardy noted.

Twardy said his office examined the federal requirement that the lifting angles be designed and manufactured so they could withstand 2.5 times the anticipated load. Then prosecutors tried to determine whether the available evidence would establish beyond a reasonable doubt that failure to comply with this requirement caused the collapse, he said.

The U.S. attorney's office also investigated whether evidence now existing could establish beyond a reasonable doubt that Textar had been indifferent or carelessly disregarded employee safety, which was a second criteria that had to be proven to succeed in a criminal prosecution.

Fire engines crowded onto Kai Tak Airport's solitary runway, which juts into the harbor. "It fell into the sea at the end of the runway," police spokesman Tony Leung said of the jetliner.
Tsu Hin-Chau, one of those overseeing the search and rescue operation, told reporters the six who died were trapped in the plane's nose section.
The plane, carrying an 11-member Chinese crew, is owned by the Civil Aviation Administration of China, that nation's flag-carrier.

Earlier, small rubber rafts with rescue personnel bobbed around the partially submerged wreckage of the British-made Trident jet, which had arrived from Canton, capital of China's Guangdong province 90 miles to the northwest.

The bodies of the six crew members were found in the front part of the plane, according to Tsui Hin-Chau, division commander of the fire services department. Officials said a passenger, a Hong Kong resident identified only by his surname Fung, died of head injuries.

Taylor isn't worthy of fan support

So, Lawrence Taylor is suspended for "substance abuse."
What did you expect of the "star" linebacker of the New York Giants?
Once a jerk, always a jerk.
Taylor, golf fans of the Greater Hartford Open will recall, created quite a stir a year ago. He was, admittedly, doped by a large group of fans who wanted him to sign autographs. Many wore Lawrence Taylor hats and Lawrence Taylor jerseys, and many carried other paraphernalia that identified them as fans of the 1986 Super Bowl champs.

Ye Taylor refused to sign autographs.
"I'm here to play some golf, nothing more," Taylor growled at reporters and his adoring fans.
"This was at the Wednesday celebrity pro-am, mind you. It was the day for the fans, not the touring professionals who were to begin the tournament the next day. And it certainly was not for the celebrities, who brought the fans to the Tournament Players Club of Connecticut in Cromwell.

One frustrated fan yelled at Taylor, wondering loudly why the Giant "star" wouldn't sign for his faithful followers. Taylor made a beeline for the ropes and threatened the young man with bodily harm, although nothing else happened.
"And believe it or not, Taylor was invited back for the '88 GHO celebrity pro-am. But previous commitments forced him to be a no-show."
As Channel 5's Dave Smith, an ardent Giants' fan who, like this writer, wants to see the team do well, said early Tuesday evening, good riddance to Taylor.
"The seven-time all-pro linebacker is letting himself down, but mostly he is letting his teammates down. They, like unsuspecting fans, had looked to him for leadership — for some crazy reason.
Taylor is not to be admired. He is not someone youngsters in school should idolize. Yes, everyone is entitled to a mistake or two in their life. But professional athletes can't walk the streets without being noticed. They're role models for the youth of America.
Taylor deserves whatever criticism is directed at him. He does not deserve pity. He does not deserve our applause when, and if, he returns to the Giants' lineup in five weeks.

How do Connecticut's American Legion baseball teams rate against those in the rest of the country?
If you ask New London Legion Coach Jimmy O'Neill, who has guided two teams to national tournament berths in the 1980s, Nutmeg contingents are not far off the mark.
"We're not that far away," O'Neill said while talking in the action at the Legion World Series at Palmer Field in Middletown last week. "My experience is that on both occasions there were a few teams we were on a par or better than. And then there were a couple on different levels," he said.
O'Neill said his club, state champion Danielson, could have made a respectable showing in the national tournament.
And if you wonder how good the talent can be in the state, look no further than the U.S. Olympic team that is heading for Seoul. Two of the team's members, pitcher Charlie Nagy and outfielder Bill Masse of Manchester, are from Connecticut.
That's proof of what this state has to offer.

Williams hits 70
BOSTON (AP) — Ted Williams celebrated his 70th birthday Tuesday, an event that caused fans of the Boston Red Sox to look back and remember baseball's last 400 hitler.
"He's a kid forever as far as I'm concerned," said Ed Stack, president of the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y. "Ted's very much a young person. He's never going to be old; he's that type of guy."
Making the team isn't disappointing, Deal said. "But maybe I can make retribution for the entire season at Seoul. Maybe I can turn a disappointing season into a good one."
Deal is disenchanted because, for the first time since he began throwing the hammer seriously in 1984, he has not shown marked improvement.
As a senior at Montana State four years ago, his best throw was 205 feet, 1 inch. In 1985, after

A's shoot down Rocket; Red Sox still game out

OAKLAND, Calif. — Dave Stewart got one run to work with thanks to Carrey Lansford's daring but alert baserunning and a perfect bunt by Glenn Hubbard in the sixth inning.
"I was hoping we could get at least one or two more, a little cushion. But when I saw that was going to be it, I had to bear down a little more," the Oakland pitcher said Tuesday night after his 1-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox, highest scoring team in baseball.
Stewart got his 16th victory, his sixth since joining the A's in 1987. He was coming up, because I know him pretty good. But Dave didn't want to talk. He knew what he wanted to do," third baseman Lansford said.
After fouling off several pitches, Rice went down swinging.

Thrower hopes right Deal shows up at the Olympics

moving to Eugene, Ore., and coming under the tutelage of Stewart. Together, he improved nearly 20 feet, throwing 224.5 feet. Deal improved nearly another 20 feet in 1986, with a best of 244-11, and last year, he reached 249-2.
This year, however, his best is only 248-2.
Deal blames a back injury on his failure to add to his personal best, and says the 250-foot barrier is no mental block.
"I've had back problems all year and I haven't gotten as strong as usual," he said.
The injury, he said, prevented him from lifting weights (or more than a month).
Since last month's U.S. Olympic trials, however, the back has been fine, and Deal has been

Collusion ruling set for today

NEW YORK — Did baseball owners conspire against signing Tim Lincecum, Andrew Dawson, Jack Morris, Lance Parrish and dozens of other free agents after the 1986 season?
We'll know the answer today.
After five months of deliberation, arbitrator George Nicolaou rules on the Collusion II case. Nicolaou, baseball's impartial arbitrator, will meet with Don Fehr, executive director of the Major League Players Association, and Barry Ron, executive director of the owners' Player Relations Committee, in late March.

Yankee slide still lingering

SEATTLE (AP) — On Campbell's Soup Growth Chart Night at the Kingdome, Mike Campbell showed just how much he has grown as a major league pitcher.
He combined with lefthander Bill Wilkerson on a five-hitter, and Scott Bradley and Darrell Coles homered as the Seattle Mariners handed the New York Yankees their sixth consecutive defeat 7-1.
Two-thirds of the way through a 10-game road trip, the Yankees have been outscored 52-16 and have lost six in a row, their longest losing streak since an eight-game skid in September 1985.
They were held to four hits and one run in 7-3 innings by Campbell, a 6-foot-3 righthander who won his second straight game since being recalled Aug. 15 from Calgary. He had been dispatched to the Mariners' Class AAA farm club in June after a 3-8 start.

Drug policy no good if justice is uneven

The mandatory preseason drug tests are staggered — some teams test in July, some into mid-August. Manley, Robb Riddick and Greg Townsend got caught in regularity with the Redskins. Bills and Raiders were in the first group; Taylor got caught later because the Giants tested Aug. 15.
The NFL says the 30 days aren't punitive, they're rehabilitative.
To a point that's true — Manley, Taylor and the others must undergo treatment and check in regularly with the league's doctors. And Taylor, who wrote in his autobiography "the golf course was my detox tank," will, in fact, undergo drug rehabilitation, according to his agent, Gary Kovach.
Giants coach Bill Parcells, who in 1982 took over a drug-ridden team and not only solved most of the problem but built a Super Bowl winner in the DESPONDENT — New York's Mike Campbell shows the frustration on his face in the fourth inning as the Mariners handed the Yankees their sixth straight loss, 7-1, Tuesday night in Seattle.

Thompson pares U.S. hoop squad down to size

By Jim O'Connell
The Associated Press

FULLERTON, Calif. — The final roster is set. The exhibition tour is over. It's on to Seoul and defense of the gold medal for the U.S. men's basketball team.

Coach John Thompson reached the 12-player limit for the Olympics on Tuesday when he cut Cal-Santa Barbara point guard Brian Shaw.

On Tuesday night the team ended its nine-game exhibition tour with a 91-71 victory over Athletes in Action at Fullerton State.

Thompson has arranged for three controlled scrimmages against AIA and the team leaves on Sunday for Seoul where it will attempt to match the feat of the 1984 team, which walked to the gold medal under Bob Knight winning its games by an average of 30 points.

Thompson praised Shaw, who was allowed to play Tuesday night and didn't score in three minutes, as he has each of the players he had to release during the selection process which began with over 100 players in Colorado Springs.

"Brian has worked extremely hard and is a very fine player," Thompson said of the first-round draft choice of the Boston Celtics. "It's very difficult thing to let go a player like that. It became a point of numbers."

Thompson will go with two true point guards — Blimbo Coles of Virginia Tech and Charles Smith of Georgetown — while a number of the other guards and some forwards can also play the position.

"We can use Willie Anderson and Danny Manning there depending on the matchup when size can be to our advantage."

Thompson said.

Shaw had no complaints with the system or the coach.

"I think I worked hard and I know I improved myself a lot," he said. "I'm not going to hang my head. I did my best. I didn't have any problems with what Coach wanted."

Thompson got what he wanted against AIA as the Olympians played their only game against non-NBA players.

"The NBA players were strong and physical and Athletes In Action is not as strong but they have more of a system and it's very important for us to work against that," Thompson said.

The other Charles Smith, the forward from Pittsburgh, J.R. Reid and Coles each scored 14 points to lead the Olympians who improved their record on the tour to 7-2.

The Olympians finished the game shooting 54 percent, 39 of 72, buoyed by a 24-for-34 effort in the second half.

Smith also had 11 rebounds and Reid had eight as the much deeper U.S. team finished with a 50-27 advantage on the boards.

"The last three games J.R. has really stepped himself inside," Thompson said. "He's the kind of player who could have a big Olympics because international teams aren't used to seeing a player that bulky, powerful, and quick. He's a unique player."

The remaining players on the Olympic squad are David Robinson, Mitch Richmond, Hersey Hawkins, Dan Majerle, Jeff Grayer and defensive specialist, Slacey Augmon.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Final midget registration

Final registration for the Manchester Midget Football League will take place tonight, Thursday and Friday from 6-p.m. at Charter Oak Park. Boys ages 10-14 are eligible to play and must bring a birth certificate with them to registration. There is a $15 fee for players, $10 fee for cheerleaders.

Cheney needs coach

Cheney Tech is in immediate need of a cross country coach for the 1988 season. Practice was scheduled to begin Monday. Anyone interested in the position should contact Athletic Director Manny Gonzalez at the school at 649-5396.

UConn hosts Textiles

STORRS — The University of Connecticut men's soccer team launches its 1988 season Thursday at 4 p.m. at the Connecticut Soccer Stadium against Philadelphia Textiles. Following this game, UConn hosts Old Dominion on Sunday at 2 p.m.

Gates wins Alumni run

Steve Gates won the Manchester High School Alumni 3.0-Mile Fun Run Tuesday night at Wickham Park. Gates' winning time was 14:25 while Sean Toland finished second in 14:38. Paul Toland was third in 14:55 while Tim DeVale, Jim and Mike Roy finished fourth and fifth, respectively. A total of 34 runners participated.

Napolski with Patriots

Foxboro, Mass. — Ex-University of Connecticut football player Eric Napolski cleared waivers Tuesday and was assigned to the New England Patriots. The 6-foot-2, 230-pound linebacker is listed as a backup to All-Pro left outside linebacker Andre Tippett. Napolski is one of 10 rookies the Patriots kept in their final 47-man roster for Sunday's opening game with the New York Jets.

Myers to get hearing

AMERICUS Ga. (AP) — Swimming star Angel Myers, disqualified for the U.S. Olympic team, will get an arbitration hearing Thursday before U.S. Swimming Inc. The sport's governing body in the United States. Family spokeswoman Mary Ann Fennessy and U.S. Swimming executive director Ray Essick said Tuesday the hearing would be held by conference-call telephone.

Yanks gets Morhoric

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers sent Dale Morhoric to the New York Yankees Tuesday night in exchange for Cletis Guante in a trade of right-handed relief pitchers. Morhoric, 32, is 2-6 with five saves and a 4.85 earned-run average in 52 innings over 43 games. He has 28 career saves in 178 appearances.

Jack Clark wants out

SEATTLE (AP) — Jack Clark, the slugger who signed a two-year, $3.8 million contract as a free agent only last January, says he would be happier away from the New York after this season, a published report says.

U.S. nine is unbeaten

MINNI, Minn. (AP) — Andy Benes struck out six and allowed only four hits in six innings as the United States defeated Canada 6-1 Tuesday night to remain undefeated in the World Baseball Tournament.

Schmidt career threatened

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Schmidt, who has hit more home runs than any other baseman in major league history, may have played his last game. Schmidt hopes that isn't the case, but admits that more bad medical news could mean the end.

Brian Shaw is final cut

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Brian Shaw, the first-round draft choice of the Boston Celtics, was the final player cut Tuesday as the U.S. Olympic men's basketball team reached its 12-player limit.

Ojeda doesn't kid around

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets have scored so few runs for Bob Ojeda this season. It's become a clubhouse joke. With mock seriousness he says Ojeda threatens his teammates with, "You guys better do something today or I'll do it myself. If you force me, I'll open up and send one deep."

Ojeda, hitting .176 with no homers in 53 at bats, didn't need to send one deep Tuesday night. He received his own run of support — Gary Carter's RBI single in the seventh inning — and made it stand up, pitching a six-hit shutout and giving the Mets a 1-0 victory over the San Diego Padres.

The win increased the Mets lead to 7 1/2 games over the second-place Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East. It was the straight complete game shutout, with right-hander David Cone one-hitting the Padres Monday night.

"I don't want to be labeled a hard luck pitcher even though I have been," he said. "You get tired of people telling you that you pitched well and it's too bad you lost. You get that pat on the back, but it still doesn't feel good. Only wins feel good."

There's no guarantee Taylor will be back quickly

By Tom Conovan
The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Lawrence Taylor could begin substance abuse treatment this weekend, but his agent and the team say there is no guarantee the New York Giants' All-Pro linebacker will return to the field when his 30-day suspension ends.

Giants owner Wellington Mara said Tuesday that Taylor would not be allowed to play until doctors running his rehabilitation program are satisfied he has successfully completed it.

"We owe it to Lawrence Taylor to be as hard on him as we possibly can," Mara said. "That's his only chance to lick this. To be easy on him would be unkind. He has to follow the program 100 percent."

Taylor, a seven-time All-Pro who has been one of football's dominant players this decade, was suspended Monday for 30 days by the NFL for violating the league's substance abuse policy for a second time.

Meanwhile, the New York Daily News, citing unidentified team and league sources, reported today that Taylor failed a drug test following the 1987 season. But the newspaper said Taylor was allowed to take another test, which he passed, a few days later.

Because he passed, the newspaper said, the matter was brushed aside. There was no fine, no rehabilitation and no publicity.

Regardless of what may have happened last season, Taylor may not be given the opportunity to return at the end of his 30-day suspension.

"From what I have read, there is a misconception," Mara said. "This is not a 30-day suspension. This is a 30-day minimum. In order for him to come back, he must follow a rigorous program... I think no half treatment is called for."

Taylor has every intention of complying with NFL rehabilitation guidelines and plans to meet with league officials by Friday, said Gary Kovach, Taylor's agent.

"What we are doing is waiting for the NFL to give us our lead and go from there," Kovach said, adding Taylor could begin rehabilitation this weekend.

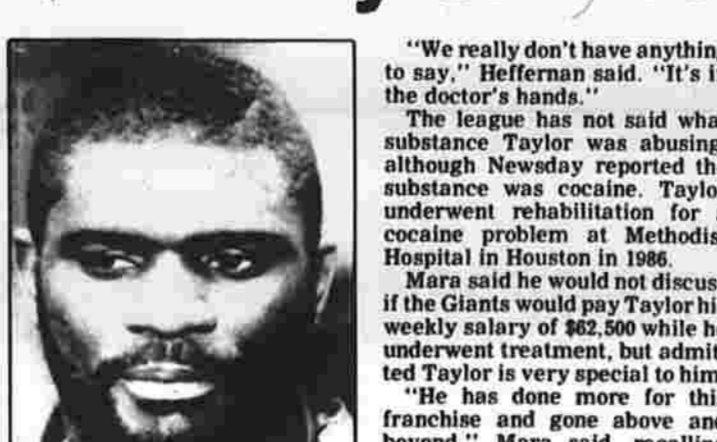

Kovach said in a telephone interview from his Houston office that league officials would outline the type of rehabilitation program they wanted Taylor to undergo. He did not know where Taylor would go for treatment.

Taylor's treatment will be supervised by Dr. Forest Tennant, the drug adviser to the league.

Tennant would not discuss the NFL drug program, his secretary said.

NFL spokesman Jim Hefeman could not confirm whether Taylor would meet with league officials by Friday, other than to say they will meet. He said the league does not disclose where it sends players for substance abuse treatment.

LAWRENCE TAYLOR ... out for awhile

"We really don't have anything to say," Hefeman said. "It's in the doctor's hands."

The league has not said what substance Taylor was abusing, although Newday reported the substance was cocaine. Taylor underwent rehabilitation for a cocaine problem at Methodist Hospital in Houston in 1986.

Mara said he would not discuss if the Giants would pay Taylor his weekly salary of $82,500 while he was under treatment, but admitted Taylor is very special to him.

"He has done more for this franchise and gone above and beyond," Mara said, recalling Taylor's magnificent performance in last year's third replacement game during the strike against Buffalo. Taylor broke the picket line to play in that contest.

"He walked up to Bill Parcells before the game and said, 'I don't know if any one man can win a game, but I'm going to try,'" Mara said. "In all my years in football I don't know if I have ever seen a player put forth such a concerted effort for as long as he did."

Mara was just as quick to say he was not happy with the current state of events.

"You have to have hatred for the crime and compassion for the criminal," he said.

LICENSED BY STATE OF CONN. FOR ALL AGES SINCE 1971

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Veterans Eason and punter Rich Camarillo topped the list of players moved Tuesday by the New England Patriots to reach the regular-season limit of 47 players.

Eason, a sixth-year veteran and starter for three years before last season, was placed on the four-week injured reserve list with nerve damage in his right elbow. Camarillo, whose seven years of play in New England included a Pro Bowl season in 1985, was waived.

The Patriots had announced their intentions to shelve Eason last week, but the release of Camarillo in favor of rookie Jeff Feagles was apparently a difficult decision for Coach Raymond Berry.

"Several teams called us about possibly trading for him because they knew we had two NFL-caliber punters," Berry said, but a lot of them dropped out of the running in the last couple of weeks. I just hope he gets a job with someone else, and I think he will.

NEW YORK — Men's tennis players are mad and they're not going to take it anymore.

By 1990, the Association of Tennis Professionals plans to run its own tour. A dispute over control of the sport — the ATP claims it doesn't have enough say on the Men's Tennis Council — has forced the revolt.

"It's something that has to be done now," Wimbledon champion Stefan Edberg said Tuesday. "We need to do something. We are going to let ATP take control of the game now."

"That is something we thought about for a long time because there has been trouble with designations and having people tell you where to go instead of controlling your own destiny."

"It will be good for all the players. That could be the best thing for tennis. Tennis may become better if ATP takes control of it."

The International Tennis Federation and the organizers of the four Grand Slam events apparently don't think so.

On Monday, the ATP's proposal to restructure the Council, which oversees the sport, was rejected by the ITF representatives on the council.

"We hoped to stimulate debate and lead to reform," ATP chief executive officer Hamilton Jordan said. "Instead, our proposals were rejected out of hand."

The ATP asked to change the makeup of the Council, which currently has three ATP representatives, three tournament representatives and three members of the ITF. The union plan called for four ATP officials, three from tournaments and two independent businessmen on the Council, thus eliminating any ITF representation.

A feud that would keep the top players out of Grand Slam events could do nothing but hurt the sport.

"I do not think they will go that far," Edberg said. "They are independent for the moment. There is a lot of other tournaments. It's not just the Grand Slam. It's the other part of the tour that ATP will take control of."

A small price to pay for happiness

DEAR MR. ROSS: I work in a home with 15 mentally handicapped residents. One of their favorite pastimes is to fish. We live on the river and have use of a pontoon boat, so we try to go as often as possible.

The only problem is that their fishing rods are in sorry shape — definitely in need of replacement. If you could only see their faces light up when they catch a fish. I know you'd see it in your heart to help them out.

I figure $25 a piece would put a smile on their faces for a long, long time. Personally, I think this is a small price to pay to see so much happiness. Your time and concern will be greatly appreciated.

Thanks A Million
Percy Ross

MRS. M.H. OCALA, FLA.
DEAR MRS. H.: That's what it's all about — making a difference. I can't erase the past which led to this point for your great nephew, let alone promise him a rose garden for tomorrow.

But I can make a difference in his life today by sending your brother a check with which to purchase a new bike with his grandson. And I do so with a full heart and my best wishes for whatever the future may bring.

DEAR MR. ROSS: Perhaps you'll find the following case one you can help. I wish I could, but for now I can't.

There is a man in Oklahoma, in his 60s, whose glasses are in terrible shape. He lacks an education and can't read or write. He's always been a hard worker as a farm hand. His salary is very little and he barely makes ends meet — but he's determined to not be on welfare.

The glasses this man has are held together on the nosepiece by tape. He has a string to hold them on his head because the earpieces are broken. I have no idea what they would cost, but I know he has thick lenses.

DEAR MR. ROSS: There's a little fellow I know who is most deserving of a bicycle.

His mother didn't want him, so his widower grandfather adopted him at the age of 2. He calls his grandfather "Dad," as he's the only dad this boy has ever known.

They live in a very poor project area and someone stole the boy's bike. His grandfather took two old bicycles from green trash dumpsters and tried to put together a bike. No need to tell you how he looks or how it rides.

Since his grandfather doesn't have a car, he has to walk this little guy to and from school everyday.

I think it's only fair to tell you my brother and he'll be 78 before year's end. Maybe you'll see the way.

DEAR MR. S.: The amount of $375 seems a bit steep for fishing rods, but the mentally handicapped have as much right as anyone to a happy productive life. And you should be applauded for your concern. I'm springing for the whole amount without reservation. My check is on the way.

Pet fur flies as newlyweds battle over the marriage bed

Dr. Gott
Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR ABBY: Peter and I have been married for less than one year, and I am now faced with a problem that is threatening to break up our marriage. We are not kids.

Peter is 47. He absolutely will not allow any of our pets in bed with us. (We have a dog and two cats.) Peter is extremely fastidious and says it's a matter of "cleanliness."

Abby, our pets are well-groomed and they are just as clean as people. I had these pets before I married him, and they were always permitted on my bed, so now they are confused and hurt when they are not allowed on my bed.

Is there a solution? Am I wrong to argue this point? I love my husband, but I think he's being unreasonable. Please help me. My pets are so angry, they won't even look at me.

ANIMAL LOVER
DEAR ANIMAL LOVER: I hope you love your husband more than your pets because you may be forced to make a choice. Although some animals are cleaner than people, a man who is not accustomed to having pets in his bed is not likely to change. Your poor pets are understandably confused to find that a part of their comfort is suddenly off limits. However, the word from here is: Retrain your pets. They may resist at first, but it can be done. Dumb animals are not so dumb.

DEAR ABBY: Recent studies have shown that there is a dramatic decrease in automobile accidents when people drive with their lights on in the daytime.

Drivers have been a little slow to pick up on this. We have just returned from Canada, where we noticed about 75 percent of the drivers were driving with their lights on during the day. When I asked my Canadian nephew about this, he said Canada has just passed a law that will require headlights to be turned on when you start your car.

LARRY WILSON BARTLESVILLE, OKLA.

DEAR LARRY: Many others wrote to stress the safety advantage of daytime driving with the lights on. It is the law in Sweden and Denmark. Thankfully, we are beginning to see the light.

DEAR ABBY: I was very much interested in your advice. "Do not transfer medicine from its original container to another." I have to, with Anacin. In their effort to make the bottle child-proof, the makers of Anacin made it "elderly-proof," too. I am in my 80s, and with my arthritic fingers and poor eyesight, I find it very hard to line up the arrows and pry off the lid.

Please let Anacin people know this. Their product is very good — once you get to it.

FRUSTRATED IN RICHMOND, VA.

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Have you ever told your pharmacist that the child-proof lid on the Anacin bottle is giving you an Excedrin headache? If not, please do, and you will be provided with the easy-to-open kind.

Work change causes worry

DEAR DR. GOTT: It's rumored at work that management is trying to get rid of the chairs. The machines will be raised and we will have to stand up all day. Is there any medical evidence to indicate this is a poor idea?

DEAR READER: For the average healthy adult, standing all day is not harmful. I am not sure in what way chairs are used in your work, but all things being equal, I can see no particular medical contra-indication to your workplace modifications.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please tell me what you can about the most current treatments for Agent Orange. My husband has skin rash, skin abscesses, night sweats and periodic swelling of the lymph glands.

DEAR READER: Agent Orange is a military code name for two defoliants, 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T. The mixtures contained the poisonous chemical dioxin, which has been linked to cancer and birth defects in certain animals. According to an article in Scientific American magazine, no study has yet shown that the compound causes "severe chronic human effects." According to the article, not a single death has been attributed to dioxin. Therefore, to my knowledge, no treatment has been proposed for dioxin exposure because, apparently, no treatment is necessary. The issue of human damage from Agent Orange remains controversial.

I suggest that your husband check with his doctor for alternative explanations for his symptoms. To help him to find treatment, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report, "Medical Specialists." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 1368, Cleveland, Ohio 44110-3368. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I cry very easily. It's embarrassing for me and other people. It infuriates my husband, but I can't control my tears. What sort of help is available?

DEAR READER: Many people cry easily; they are moved by beautiful music, sad thoughts and so forth. This is a personal peculiarity that I do not view as abnormal.

If you believe that your temperament is getting in the way of leading a normal life, you might be aided by counseling. A psychologist or trained social worker may help you to work through some of the emotional peaks and lows that you have, in order to enable you to control yourself more effectively. Ask your doctor for a referral.

Springsteens splitting up

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Julianne Phillips, looking to give "The Boss" the boot from their 3-year-old marriage, has claimed "irreconcilable differences" with rock superstar Bruce Springsteen.

Phillips' one-page divorce petition filed Tuesday in Los Angeles Superior Court seeks unspecified spousal support and says property rights will be determined later, said her attorney, Arlene Colman-Schwimmer.

The Springsteens maintain a home in the area, Colman-Schwimmer said. "Starting the divorce is simple. It's the complications that arise later that are the problems," she said.

A spokesman for the singer could not immediately be reached for comment.

Springsteen, known as "The Boss," has recorded such rock hits as "Born To Run," "Thunder Road" and "Tunnel of Love," which was dedicated to Phillips.

The couple, who met backstage at one of Springsteen's concerts, were married May 19, 1985, in Phillips' hometown of Lake Oswego, Ore.

They have no children, and a spokeswoman for Springsteen, 38, has previously denied reports he and Phillips, 28, separated over the issue of starting a family.

Singer's duds dazzle fans

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The handmade duds of country singer Holly Dunn dazzled fans and led to requests for custom togs from her band.

Dunn, whose hit song, "Daddy's Hands," was nominated for a Grammy Award last year, creates trappings for her Western-style stage wear while the band tours.

"I'm going to get a sewing machine for the tour," bus. Right now I do everything by hand and it's tedious," the songwriter and producer said recently. "I Dale-Evans' em up."

Dunn said she learned to sew in seventh grade home economics class in Abilene, Texas, and prowls fabric shops in her spare time along the tour.

Pittsburgh invites Charles

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Britain's Prince Charles will be invited to return here in 1991 to view the evolution of steelmaking towns since he endorsed their revitalization at an urban planning conference.

David Lewis, an architect and organizer of the Remaking Cities Conference, announced the plan Monday night at a meeting of the Pittsburgh Institute for the Future.

Following a whirlwind, five-day study of communities struggling to survive the decline of steelmaking in the region, an international team of 17 architects and planners recommended that former mill sites be secured quickly for development in the coming years.

Prince Charles, who has become known as a critic of contemporary city planning, endorsed a plan to revamp aging cities during a keynote speech at March's conference.

Greek chicken salad

3 cups cubed cooked chicken breast (about 3 chicken breasts)
2 medium cucumbers, peeled, seeded and chopped
1/4 cups crumbled feta cheese
2/3 cup sliced pitted ripe olives

1/4 cup snipped parsley
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/4 cup plain yogurt
1 tablespoon dried oregano, crushed
3 cloves garlic, minced
Lettuce leaves

In a large mixing bowl combine chicken, cucumber, feta cheese, olives and parsley; set aside. In a small mixing bowl stir together mayonnaise, yogurt, oregano and garlic; add to chicken mixture. Toss to coat. Cover and chill. Serve on lettuce leaves. Makes 6 servings.

Nutrition information per serving: 466 cal., 27 g. pro., 7 g. carb., 39 g. fat, 102 mg. chol., 880 mg. sodium, U.S. RDA: 10 percent vit. C, 20 percent riboflavin, 51 percent niacin, 50 percent calcium, 30 percent phosphorus.

Raisin granola mini-bites

1 cup raisins
One 8-ounce can frozen apple juice concentrate
1/2 cup margarine or butter
1 egg
1/4 cups all-purpose flour

1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon finely shredded orange peel
2 cups granola, slightly crushed

In a medium saucepan heat together raisins, juice concentrate and margarine until melted. Remove from heat; cool. Beat in egg. In a small mixing bowl combine flour, baking soda and cinnamon; stir into egg mixture. Stir in granola and apple juice. Let dough stand 1 to 2 minutes or until granola absorbs some of the liquid. Drop by rounded teaspoons 2 inches apart onto ungreased cookie sheets. Bake in a 350-degree oven about 10 minutes or until lightly browned on the bottom. Remove and cool on a wire rack. Makes about 5 to 6 dozen cookies.

Nutrition information per cookie: 54 cal., 1 g. pro., 8 g. carb., 2.4 fat, 4 mg. chol., 44 mg. sodium.

Easy cheesy fudge

1 cup margarine or butter
One 8-ounce package sugar spread, cut up
2 pounds powdered sugar
1/2 cup unsweetened cocoa powder

2 teaspoons vanilla
1 cup coarsely chopped nuts, candy-coated peanut-butter flavored pieces, or chocolate covered butter-flavored candy bar (Butterfinger)

In a large saucepan over medium heat melt margarine and cheese, stirring frequently. Remove from heat. Stir together powdered sugar and cocoa; add to cheese, mixing well. Stir in vanilla and nuts or candy. Turn into a buttered 9- by 9- by 2-inch pan. If desired, press additional nuts or candy on top. Chill until firm. Cut into 1-inch pieces. Makes 3 pounds, 81 pieces.

Nutrition information per piece: 139 cal., 1 g. pro., 20 g. carb., 7 g. fat, 3 mg. chol., 115 mg. sodium.

Giant strawberry tart

1 package piecrust mix (for 2-crust pie)
Cream Cheese Filling (recipe below)
2 cups halved strawberries
One 8-ounce can peach slices, drained

1 small banana
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
2/3 cup orange juice
1/2 cup currant jelly

Cream Cheese Filling: In a small saucepan stir together 2 cups milk and one 3-ounce package custard dessert mix. Cook and stir until mixture comes to a full rolling boil; remove from heat. Stir in one 8-ounce package cream cheese, cubed, add 1/2 teaspoon vanilla. Using a rotary beater, beat smooth. Cool 10 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Prepare crust according to package directions. On a floured surface roll pastry into a 13-inch circle; fit into a 12-inch pizza pan. Trim and flute edges; prick pastry. Bake in a 450-degree oven 12 to 14 minutes. Cool. Spoon Cream Cheese Filling on top. Sprinkle with 1/2 cup peach slices. Cook 2 minutes. Cool. Spoon over tart. Chill. Varies 10 servings.

Parmesan: Domestic, imported differ

Supermarket Sampler
Carolyn Wyman
& Bonnie Tandy Lebling

SUPREMA 100 PERCENT FRESHLY GRATED PARMESAN CHEESE, $2.99 to $3.19 a 10-ounce plastic container.

Bonnie: The difference between Suprema's grated cheese and the one in the green container from Kraft is that Suprema is made from imported Parmesan cheese and Kraft, from domestic. Besides being able to see the cheese in Suprema's see-through container, the only difference is in the taste; imported Parmesan cheese has a sharper flavor than domestic.

Like all other packaged grated cheeses, Suprema has half of its moisture removed to make it shelf-stable. This prevents the growth of bacteria and mold, yet dulls its flavor. For really fresh-tasting cheese, you will still need to purchase and grate your own. Well-wrapped in the refrigerator, hard cheeses like Parmesan can last three seasons of spaghetti dinners.

Carolyn: Bonnie claims that imported Parmesan cheese tastes different than domestic and that freshly grated is better than the kind on the shelf. But in the small quantities I've always used on my spaghetti, I've never been able to tell the difference between real and imitation Parmesan cheese. If I were you, I'd buy the imitation and save your money for a new car.

WITH CHOCOLATE FLAVORED CHIPS, $1.99 a 14-ounce pan, in the refrigerator case.

Carolyn: The main problem with most microwave desserts on the market today is the amount of preparation time required. But Pillsbury's new Ready to Microwave Fudge Brownies are as convenient to prepare as any frozen dinner. It comes premeasured in its own pan so all you have to do is shove it in a microwave oven. The results are fudgy, moist, delicious brownies of the hardy cookie variety. Eating them all at one sitting is more than a temptation—it's a recommendation. The texture and taste is not quite as good when these are cold.

Budget Gourmet also compared quite favorably to other frozen and canned ravioli products with sauce except when it comes to sodium. One of these entrees contains 900 milligrams, or almost twice the amount in a similar serving of Weight Watchers Baked Cheese Ravioli.

Charity coupons tempt the fraudulent

By Martin Sloane
United Feature Syndicate

DEAR MARTIN: We operate a retail auctioneering business. Approximately two years ago we were approached by a salesman who offered to sell us national-brand coupons at a reasonable price. He told us that they were given away by charitable groups and most of the purchase price would go to these organizations. We didn't do anything about the offer at the time, but we would now like to reconsider using coupons as an incentive at our auctions.

Unfortunately, we have lost track of the man who offered us the coupons. I wonder if you could provide information on charitable groups selling coupons.

This offer does not require a refund form. M&M's Watch Offer. P.O. Box 214, Young America, MN 55359. Receive an M&M's Quartz Watch. Send three wrappers from M&M's Plain or Peanut Chocolate Candies, along with a check or money order for $9.95 for each watch ordered. Include your name, address and ZIP code. Expires Sept. 30, 1988.

These offers require refund forms:
CADBURY'S Offer. Receive a free 5-ounce Cadbury's Chocolate Certificate (up to a $1.50 value). Send the required refund form and two labels from Cadbury's Chocolate Bars (5-ounce). Expires Oct. 1, 1988.
CAMPBELL'S Special Request Offer. Receive a coupon good for two free cans of Campbell's Special Request Soup (maximum value $1.39). Send the required refund form and five front label panels from any variety of Campbell's Special Request Soup. Expires Sept. 30, 1988.
CARE-FREE Sugarless Gum Radio Offer. Receive a General Electric FM Radio Headphone (a $34.95 suggested retail value). Send the required refund form and three brand seals from Care-Free Sugarless six- or eight-packs, or Big Packs, along with $19.95. Expires Sept. 30, 1988, or while supplies last.
TRIDENT Toothbrush Offer. Receive a free Butler G-1-M Toothbrush. Send the required refund form and two Trident Val-u-Pak wrappers, including the Universal Product Code symbol, from any flavor of Trident Sugarless Gum. Expires Oct. 31, 1988.

DEAR AUCTIONEERS: I have discouraged charitable groups from collecting coupons and trying to sell them, especially to groups in a retail business. As you seem to suggest, retailers could use them as a sales incentive. For example, for every $100 spent at your auction, a purchaser might receive $10 worth of coupons, or even $100 worth of coupons.

There is always the danger that the charitable group would sell the coupons to a retailer for a few pennies each, and that retailer would then send them in to the manufacturers for their full face value plus the handling fee. For some retailers, especially small grocers, this is a temptation. But it is also a fraud—a crime punishable by fines and imprisonment. At the very least, the charitable groups acting as accessories to the crime would suffer severe embarrassment. So, my best advice is to leave manufacturers' coupons where they were destined to be used—in the supermarket—and find something else to give away at your auctions.

DEAR MARTIN: A short time ago I sent in proofs of purchase to receive $1 worth of coupons for Lender's new Big 'n' Crusty Bagels. What I received was a sheet of four coupons, each expiring at two-week intervals. The first expired three days before I received them. As a senior citizen with limited frozen food space, I don't need to buy two boxes of bagels every two weeks! But what bothered me most was the value of the coupons. I was expecting 25-cent coupons, each good for the purchase of one package of bagels. Instead, the coupons are good for 25 cents off two packages. I don't consider that much of a bargain.

EDWARD McBRIDE ASBURY PARK, N.J.

DEAR MR. McBRIDE: I agree with you. When you can pick up any newspaper and find Lender's coupons worth 20 or 25 cents, why bother to send for coupons that are worth about 12 cents off?

But I called Lender's, and there seems to have been a mix-up with their coupons. You received the wrong ones. The offer you sent for was, in fact, for coupons each worth 25 cents on a single package.

Thermometers tell cooking temperatures

NEW YORK (AP) — When it's hot, it's hot, or maybe it's not hot enough. For best cooking results, use a thermometer to check food temperatures. There are different kinds to serve different cooking needs.

CANDY: Both temperature and degree of doneness (soft ball, hard crack, etc.) are marked on a candy thermometer. Some include candy-deep-frying markings as well. Test your candy thermometer for accuracy before each use by submerging the tip in boiling water. If the thermometer registers above or below 212 degrees, add or subtract the same number of degrees from the recipe temperature and cook to that temperature.

MEAT: Unless you like surprises when you carve a roast, use a meat thermometer to be sure the meat is cooked to the doneness you prefer. This thermometer indicates the temperature for different meats and their levels of doneness. Some thermometers are inserted in the center of the largest muscle of the meat before cooking; others plug into the meat for just a moment for an instant reading.

OVEN HEAT: When cakes or cookies burn, it may be a signal that the oven temperature is running higher than the setting. Use an oven thermometer to verify.

Mexicali scrambled eggs

4 eggs
1/4 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon pepper
Several dashes bottled hot pepper sauce
Dash salt
1/4 cup diced fully cooked ham, chicken, beef or pork

One 2-ounce can mushroom stems and pieces, drained
2 tablespoons canned chopped green chili peppers, drained
1/4 cup shredded cheddar cheese (1 ounce)
Dairy sour cream or salsa

In a microwave-safe 1-quart casserole combine eggs, milk, pepper, hot pepper sauce and salt. Beat with a fork until yolks and whites are well mixed. Stir in meat, mushrooms and chili peppers.

Cook, uncovered, on 100 percent power (high) 3 to 5 minutes or until eggs are almost set, pushing cooked portions to the center after 1 1/2 minutes, then every 30 seconds. Season to taste. Sprinkle with shredded cheese. Let stand until cheese starts to melt. Serve with sour cream or salsa. Makes 3 servings.

Nutrition information per serving: 146 cal., 14 g. pro., 4 g. carb., 12 g. fat, 282 mg. chol., 425 mg. sodium, U.S. RDA: 11 percent vit. A, 26 percent vit. C, 11 percent thiamine, 20 percent riboflavin, 14 percent calcium, 10 percent iron.

Preparing fish is easy in microwave

Microwave Kitchen
Marge Churchill

Do yourself a healthy favor and serve fish for dinner this week. A 3 1/2-ounce portion of lean fish contains only 100 calories; the same amount of beef or pork has 300 calories. Fish is an excellent source of protein yet contains no cholesterol. Iron, calcium and B vitamins are also abundant in fish, and saltwater varieties are high in iodine.

Americans have never embraced fish as much as people in other countries, mostly because we don't know how to prepare it properly. The microwave oven solves this problem. It is an ideal way to cook fish, yielding a lovely texture and speedy results.

Note: The size of the scallops affects the cooking time. Use sea scallops that measure about 1 inch. Cut up larger scallops.

Stir sauce into scallop mixture. Spoon into 4 individual ungreased casserole dishes.

For a topper, in a 1-cup glass measure, cook 2 tablespoons butter on high power for 30 to 45 seconds, or until melted. Stir in bread crumbs and parsley. Sprinkle over top of each casserole. Microwave uncovered for 30 seconds. Yields 4 servings.

Salmon steaks Limone

1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon lemon juice
4 salmon steaks, cut 1-inch thick (about 2 pounds)
1/4 cup mayonnaise
1/2 cucumber, peeled and finely chopped

Combine butter and lemon juice in a custard cup. Microwave on high for about 1 minute, or until butter melts. Arrange salmon steaks in a 12x8-inch baking dish with the meatiest portions to the outside of the dish. Brush with lemon butter. Cover with plastic wrap and microwave 14 to 16 minutes on medium (50 percent) power, or until fish flakes easily. Let stand for 5 minutes, covered. Mix mayonnaise with chopped cucumber. Arrange salmon steaks on platter for serving, top with sauce. Garnish with lemon twists and fresh parsley. Yields 4 servings.

Sole Florentine

6 fresh or frozen sole or flounder fillets
2 cups chopped fresh spinach
1 cup frozen broccoli, chopped
2 tablespoons water
1 stalk celery, sliced (1/4 cup)
3 small onions, chopped (1/4 cup)
2 fresh mushrooms, sliced
3 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup herb-seasoned stuffing mix

To thaw frozen fish: In an 8x8x2-inch dish, cook frozen fish fillets for 3 to 5 minutes on high power, or until nearly defrosted. Separate and rearrange fillets once. Rinse under cold water, and let stand for 5 minutes.

In a medium-size microwave mixing bowl, combine spinach, broccoli, and water. Cook, covered, for 4 minutes on high power. Drain well. If necessary, cut large chunks of broccoli in half. Add celery, onion, mushrooms and 1 tablespoon butter. Cook, covered, on high power for 3 minutes. Stir in stuffing mix. Cover and let stand for 2 to 3 minutes to absorb moisture.

Place about 1/3 cup of the stuffing mixture in the center of each fish fillet. If your fish fillets are small, overlap two fillets before filling. Roll ends over stuffing; secure with a wooden stick. Transfer fish rolls, seam side down to a 8x8x2-inch microwave baking dish or casserole. Cover with clear plastic vent, and microwave on high power for 6 to 8 minutes, or until the fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Let stand while preparing sauce.

For sauce, in a 4-cup measure cook the remaining butter on high for 1 minute. Stir in flour, bouillon granules, nutmeg and a dash of pepper. Add milk. Cook, uncovered, on high for 2 to 3 minutes, or until thickened and bubbly, stirring twice. Cook for 30 seconds more. Transfer fish to a serving platter and top with sauce. Sprinkle with paprika for garnish. Yields 6 servings.

Scallops Newburg

2 cups sliced or frozen sea scallops
1 pound fresh or frozen mushrooms
4 green onions, sliced
1/2 cup dry white wine
1/4 cup butter, melted
3 tablespoons flour
1/4 teaspoon dried thyme, crushed
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/4 cup milk
1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Place 1 frankfurter in each uncooked maniccotti shell. Place the filled shells, so they are not touching, in a 12- by 7 1/2- by 2-inch baking dish. Slowly pour boiling water into the dish around the entire inside edge. Stir together chili and taco sauce. Spoon on top of the filled shells. Sprinkle with cheese. Cover tightly with foil. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 60 to 65 minutes or until shells are done. Let stand, covered, for 10 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Nutrition information per serving: 647 cal., 29 g. pro., 39 g. carb., 27 g. fat, 84 mg. chol., 2,280 mg. sodium, U.S. RDA: 19 percent vit. A, 12 percent vit. C, 20 percent thiamine, 27 percent riboflavin, 31 percent niacin, 21 percent calcium, 29 percent iron.

Mexican maniccotti

10 frankfurters (1 pound)
10 maniccotti shells
1/2 cup boiling water
Two 15-ounce cans chili with beans

Place 1 frankfurter in each uncooked maniccotti shell. Place the filled shells, so they are not touching, in a 12- by 7 1/2- by 2-inch baking dish. Slowly pour boiling water into the dish around the entire inside edge. Stir together chili and taco sauce. Spoon on top of the filled shells. Sprinkle with cheese. Cover tightly with foil. Orange chicken with jicama

2 whole medium chicken breasts (about 1 1/2 pounds), skinned, boned and split lengthwise
1 1/2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon finely shredded orange peel
1 cup orange juice

2 tablespoons cooking oil
1 medium jicama (about 10 ounces), peeled and cut into thin strips (1 1/2 cups)
One 8-ounce package frozen pea pods, thawed
Hot cooked rice

Cut chicken into 1-inch pieces; set aside. Combine soy sauce and cornstarch; stir in orange peel and orange juice. Set aside.

Heat 1 tablespoon of the oil in a wok or large skillet over high heat. Add jicama and pea pods; stir-fry 1 minute. Remove vegetables from wok. Add remaining oil. Add half the chicken to hot wok; stir-fry 2 minutes. Remove from wok. Add remaining chicken; stir-fry 2 minutes. Return all chicken to wok. Stir orange juice mixture; stir into chicken. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Stir in jicama and pea pods. Cover; cook 1 minute more. Serve with rice. Makes 4 servings.

Clear thinking guides defense

By James Jacoby
There's no pun intended, but a subtle defense of a bridge hand is a tricky business. There's certainly no doubt that West got off to the correct opening lead with the queen of hearts. When declarer won the heart ace and forced out the ace of diamonds, it might look easy to West simply to continue with a second heart. But doing so would represent lazy thinking. West has the responsibility of analyzing South's bidding. The bid of two no-trump was only invitational and should show 10-12 high-card points.

Alligator hunters hone their knives

By Brian Murphy
The Associated Press

CORSCREW, Fla. — Drawn by adventure and hopes of big profits, Florida's 23 new licensed alligator hunters are getting ready to begin the state's first legal alligator hunt in 26 years. More than 5,000 novice and skilled hunters alike scrambled to apply for the permits after game officials announced the hunt, designed to trim an alligator population that was once threatened by poachers but is now an estimated 25 million. Wide-eyed amateurs will be stalking freshwater swamps, lakes and streams with hopes of cashing in on their catch, which can bring as much as $1,000 for a 10-foot gator's skin and meat.

Some experts are wondering if the permit holders really know what they're in for. "You got to laugh when you hear these people say they're going to make money off this hunt," said 37-year-old Dan Dunaway, who operates one of Florida's few alligator processing plants.

"They don't figure in the time, expenses — and don't forget the danger," Dunaway said Tuesday. "It's like to see some people's faces the first time a gator takes a bite at their airboat."

For 30 days beginning at sunset Thursday, the randomly selected permit holders will be allowed to hunt in designated areas where the gator population is extraordinarily high.

Waterfront residents all over Florida called for a hunt against the carnivorous reptiles after a 10-foot bull gator killed 4-year-old Erin Glover in the Gulf County community of Englewald in June.

But game officials have placed tight restrictions on the hunt. Permit holders will be working at night, when flashlights make the reptiles' eyes glow eerily red. And they are not allowed to use guns, relying on clubs, traps and hooks attached to poles.

The harvest is limited to up to 3,455 gators, with each hunter limited to 15 gators each.

Skinning an average alligator is a full day's work, Dunaway reckons.

First he plunges his hunting knife through the gator's thick hide at the tip of its tail. Then, it's a slow and difficult cut to the snout.

"You got to look at it as an hour a foot to properly skin and gut a gator," said Dunaway. "There's no way around it. It's hard work, you best."

Some of the experienced hunters will be permitted to use the equipment at the gator house, a cement frame enclosed by screen wire and decorated by deer antlers.

But the novice trappers will have to sit and watch their catch be pried apart.

Alligators are cut up the back to preserve the valuable hide covering the belly and underarms, said Dunaway. The hide, which sells for about $42 a foot to foreign manufacturers, is submerged in a brine solution for about a week.

The excess flesh is then scraped off and the skin is sun dried.

"And we bury the innards as far away as possible," said Dunaway. "You got a powerful smell and if you ever cut open the stomach you better start running."

The meat, which Dunaway says makes a nice addition to spaghetti sauce, must be frozen within hours after the alligator is killed.
