Thousands seek high ground as Florence hits Gulf Coast

VENICE, La. (AP) — Thousands of Gulf Coast residents from Florida to Louisiana fled to higher ground Friday as Hurricane Florence unleashed 90 mph winds along the Louisiana coast. An Alabama man preparing for the storm drowned while trying to tie down a boat.

"When it's a hurricane I get out," said Melodia Buras, of Boothville, La., who joined about 500 others Friday night at Belle Chasse High School, which was opened as a shelter for Venice and other Plaquemines Parish towns in coastal Louisiana.

Forecasters warned coastal residents to prepare for 100 mph wind, 9-foot tides and up to 10 inches of rain. Wind speeds at the mouth of the Mississippi River were reported at over 90 mph Friday night.

The center of the hurricane was expected to reach New Orleans by midnight CDT. A Coast Guard helicopter had to abandon plans to rescue four men on work barges trapped at the mouth of the Mississippi River, said Coast Guard spokesman Dan Dewell. "It looks like they're going to have to ride it out. The hurricane, as well as I can make out, is right about there," said Dewell. Earlier, a Coast Guard helicopter rescued two fishermen who got into trouble while running their crab traps, also near the mouth of the river.

In Alabama, police in the coastal community of Orange Beach said a 32-year-old man drowned Friday afternoon when he fell into the water as he was trying to tie down a boat in windy, rainy conditions.

"They were trying to secure a boat and one of their lines got caught up underneath it," Cpl. Marvin Glass said. He said the man, who could not swim, lost his balance tugging on the snagged line and fell into a bayou, about half a mile from the Gulf. Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis postponed indefinitely an outdoor rally at New Orleans' Jackson Square in as well as two indoor fund raisers — a $1,000-per-couple cocktail party and a $10,000-per-couple buffet.

Florence, which had been stalled in the Gulf of Mexico, suddenly strengthened into a hurricane Friday morning and began churning northward at 15 mph, the National Hurricane Center reported.

Hurricane warnings were posted from Pensacola to Cameron, La. The center of the 250-mile-wide storm was expected to be on land by Friday night.

At 8 p.m. EDT, Florence's center was located near latitude 28.8 degrees north and longitude 89.4 west, or about 90 miles south of New Orleans, heading north at 15 mph.

Maximum sustained wind speed near the storm's center was 80 mph at 3 p.m.

Gusts feed Yellowstone fires

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP) — Firefighters and equipment were redistributed Friday to prepare for wind gusts up to 60 mph, while fires kept two small towns evacuated and the oldest national park mostly closed to visitors.

Saturday "may be the worst day since this entire episode began," U.S. Forest Service official Brian H. Avery said Friday. "We're trying to prepare for that today, because tomorrow will be too late to prepare for it." Elsewhere, a firefighter batting a blaze that doubled overnight to 27,500 acres in Glacier National Park and adjacent forest in northwestern Montana was killed by a falling, burning tree, becoming the first death directly attributable to this year's forest fires.

That blaze destroyed 15 homes and dozens of outbuildings and burned structures at two ranger stations, a bridge and several historic cabins.

Last month, a helicopter involved in battling a blaze in Wyoming's Bighorn National Forest crashed after losing power, killing a passenger, a Bureau of Land Management technician.

Meteorologists had been predicting that an advancing weather front would produce extremely high winds during the weekend in Yellowstone but might also bring some rain or snow by Monday.

A revised forecast Friday no longer anticipated any rain or snow, Avery said at a briefing on fire conditions.

The weather for the first day of the fourth annual Feast Fest on Friday was just as a psychic had predicted it would be — cloudy and cool.

But the Fest got anything but a cool welcome from the public, organizers said. It is open 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. today and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Despite the overcast skies, the Fest, which is organized by the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce, enjoyed the best lunchtime crowd for a Friday, said Anne Flint, the organization's president.

"What it looks to me is this thing has got a long life," she said.

Fest organizers have known for more than a month that the weather for this year's opening day was not going to be the greatest. A psychic told Bobbie Beganny, a Chamber vice president, that Friday would be partly cloudy with a temperature of 72. The psychic made his prediction before a gathering of 250 at a management conference Beganny attended in Delaware on Aug. 1.

And the weather Friday was just as the psychic predicted, Beganny said. She said the thermometer at the Savings Bank of Manchester stayed at 72 most of the day.

Beganny said the psychic offered no prediction on the weather for the remainder of the weekend. But the forecast by the National Weather Service calls for sunny skies and warm temperatures today and Sunday.

Flint had no estimate of the number of tickets sold Friday night. She said figures would not be available until today.

Those attending the Feast Fest gave it a warm review, although restaurateurs offered a mixed reaction.

"(It's) Just a nice night for my family," said Debbie Gurski of 48 Winter St. "It's nice to see something going on at night in Gurski, who has been to two previous Feast Fests, attended this one with her 2-year-old daughter and her 5-year-old son. She said the best part of the Fest was watching the people.

Frank Armentano of 154 New Bolton Road, who attended his second Fest Friday, said that he had to go because his wife was going. He said there really was no choice.

"Either that or starve at home," he said.

Ten-year-old Michael Capodicasa of 95A Sycamore Lane, a connoisseur of Antonio's pizza, said he planned to return to the Feast Fest today for seconds.

"I'm going to ride down here again," Capodicasa said.

Darin Leeman, a helper at the booth for Steve K's, at 829 Main St., said the seafood chowder was a popular item Friday night. This is the first year Steve K's has participated in the Fest.

"Oh it's been great," Leeman said of the crowd. "Chowder's been going good."

Tony Scarpace, the owner of Adams Mill Restaurant, 165 Adams St., said that the Feast Fest is "a tremendous spirit-raiser for the staff."

But Joyce Sorenson, a co-owner of the Three Penny Pub, 384 W. Middle Turnpike, reported that the sausage and peppers her restaurant was serving were not selling as well as last year's steak sandwiches.

"I don't think we'll do as well as we've done previously," said Sorenson, whose restaurant has served food at the Fest two other years.

And Claudio Gurrera of the Mill on the River at Glastonbury also reported a slow day. "It's been really quiet."

Woman injured after accident

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Manchester Herald

A South Windsor woman was listed in critical condition at Hartford Hospital early this morning after an accident Friday night on Gardner Street in which her car was struck by a truck, police said.

The woman, Naomi Peck, 53, suffered head and leg injuries, said Lt. John Mott, who was at the scene Friday. Peck was rushed from the scene of the accident to Hartford Hospital by Life Star helicopter Friday. The driver of the truck was identified by police as Curtis L. Slaughter, 30, of Hartford.

Mott said that the Slaughter, whose truck was headed west on Clover Street, failed to yield to the car, which was traveling south on Gardner Street. But he said the accident was still under investigation and said that no charges had been brought against Slaughter.

Neither the corner from which the truck was headed nor the corner from which the car was headed has a stop sign. The accident occurred at about 8:45, Mott said.

The Life Star helicopter landed in a yard near the accident scene. At about 9:15 it left the scene and transported the woman to Hartford Hospital.

Slaughter said he injured his arm as a result of the accident. A passenger in the truck, Ken Klines, 19, of New Britain, said he injured his hip. Neither Slaughter nor Klines was brought to a hospital for treatment.

The truck Slaughter was driving is owned by Edart Truck Rental Corp. of Hartford, police said.

The truck caused damage to the left portion of the car's engine compartment, and the truck's bumper was slightly bent.

Slaughter said that he was in the midst of making a right turn from Clover Street into the northbound lane of Gardner Street when he first saw the woman's car headed for the intersection.

Slaughter said he had turned wide to get into the northbound lane, pulling out slightly into the left lane. He said he was traveling between 10 and 15 miles per hour at the time of the accident.

GETTING READY — Gene Crowley, of Portland tests the "Paratrooper" ride in preparation for the opening of the Hebron Harvest Fair Friday. Organizers expected record crowds today.

Largest crowd ever expected at 18th Hebron Harvest Fair

By Michele Noble
Manchester Herald

At 3:30 p.m. Friday, when the clouds were graying the skies and the rain was creating mud puddles in the grass, the only thing that could be heard at the Hebron fairgrounds was an occasional "moo" or a loud "cockle-doodle-doo."

But that was to change as people poured into the fairgrounds later Friday. Even more were expected to attend the Hebron Harvest Fair today and Sunday.

The event, sponsored by the Hebron Lion's Club, drew about 150,000 people last year. This marks the 18th year of the Harvest Fair.

"This year the attendance level has already broken all-time records and has jumped up 54 percent from last year," said Michael Macbryde, the fair's superintendent.

"Last year we were going strong and breaking all kinds of records," Macbryde said. "But Sunday was a total rainout, and that always hurts.

"God willing there'll be no rain this year. I say as I sit here getting wet in the rain. Well, even if it does rain, they'll be here."

The fair, which is considered one of the fourth largest in the state, features continuous stage acts, hordes of livestock - including petting zoos - numerous amusement rides, produce displays, arts and crafts, and, of course, lots of candy apples, cotton candy, ice cream and other treats.

"Saturday is usually considered our premier day," Macbryde said. "We're expecting a huge turnout."

The main stage acts today will include Bill Haley's Comet at 3 p.m. and 8 p.m.; The Junior Colonial Fife and Drum Corp. of Westbrook at 5 p.m.; the Richard Risley Dancers at 6 p.m.; and comedian Wayne Lertz at 9 p.m. Other acts throughout the day will include magicians, ventriloquists, clowns, mimes and musicians.

On Sunday, the acts will include Donna Fargo at 1 and 6 p.m., the Cadillac Cowboys at 1 p.m., and the Old Fiddlers Club of Rhode Island at 5 p.m.

According to Fred Rossitto, owner of Brownstone Amusement, who has been with the fair since its inception 18 years ago, the 130-acre fairground was not always as large as it is today.

"When we started we were just a little pumpkin fair," Rossitto said. "Now it's a gigantic major fair that's only going to get bigger."

Rossitto said the last he knew the fair had grown about 40 percent bigger in the past two years.

The fair — at the Lions Fairground, Rt. 85 — is open today from 9 a.m. to midnight and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Admission is $4 general, $2 senior citizens, and children age 12 and under are admitted free. Parking is also free.

State funding for waste day could fall short

By Nancy Concelman
Manchester Herald

The Conservation Commission may have to pay $15,000 of the approximately $16,000 it has left in its budget for the Community Household Hazardous Collection day if budget cuts proposed by Gov. William A. O'Neill reduce the state fund that would help cover the cost, the chairman said Friday.

Commission Chairman Arthur Glaeser said the contract for the pickup has already been awarded to Radiac, a New York City firm that specializes in handling hazardous waste. The contract has not been signed yet, Glaeser said.

Manchester's collection day is scheduled for 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Oct. 22 at the Manchester landfill off Olcott Street.

Glaeser said he hopes to get at least 25 percent of the $15,000 from the state, but O'Neill's proposed 3 percent cut in spending from the $6.3-billion 1988-89 budget could diminish the collection day fund.

The cuts, estimated to save the state about $65 million, have been proposed to reduce the $121 million budget deficit.

Leslie Lewis, citizens participation coordinator with the Department of Environmental Protection, said the collection day fund was originally set at about $274,000 this year for the state. So far, 22 collection days serving about 40 communities have been scheduled.

The amount of the fund has gone up and down since the program was created in Connecticut in 1984, Lewis said, but in most cases, the DEP was able to give participating communities about 50 percent of the cost of the collection. She said she won't know how much the current fund will be reduced until the middle or end of next week.

"Until I know what's been cut from the budget, it's difficult for me to make an estimate," Lewis said. Meanwhile, the Conservation Commission Thursday authorized Glaeser to use the full $15,000 if necessary. The commission voted to appropriate additional money for advertising.

The only other collection day, held in 1985, yielded about $7,000 worth of hazardous waste. Glaeser blamed the poor turnout on Hurricane Gloria and poor publicity, but said this year's should be better.

For this year's collection, notices will be given to Manchester school students containing general information on hazardous waste and on the collection day. Notices will also be mailed out and advertisements will appear in local newspapers and on bulletin boards throughout the town.

Residents with hazardous materials may bring them to the landfill the day of the collection, where town staff and Conservation Commission members will take their names and information on the materials.

All hazardous materials must be handled by Radiac personnel, who wear and use special equipment, Glaeser said. Although the Town of Manchester Fire Department will be on call to handle any problems, Radiac has its own emergency procedures, he said.

Material collected must be specially packaged and hauled off the site that day because the Manchester landfill doesn't have a permit to handle hazardous waste, Glaeser said.

"They take all kinds of safety precautions," Glaeser said. "It's a very elaborate procedure. That's why the cost is so high."

Hazardous materials that will be collected include car batteries, pesticides, some herbicides, oil paint, thinners, acids and other materials, he said. Information is available through the town Health Department.

A chemist from Radiac will examine the materials and if they can't be identified, they won't be accepted, Glaeser said.

Lewis said about 45 states participate in the collection program nationwide, and the number has been growing.

A mall named after Weiss? Time will tell

By Andrew J. Davis
Manchester Herald

The Robert B. Weiss School or perhaps the Robert B. Weiss Mall? Maybe the Robert B. Weiss Town Hall would be appropriate.

If history repeats itself, such titles in honor of Weiss, who announced his retirement earlier this week, may not be a far-fetched idea. Weiss, who has been manager for more than 20 years, will retire effective in June.

Though no decision, or serious discussion, has taken place about renaming a building or naming some yet-to-be-built structure after Weiss, the thought of it is at least interesting, said Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr.

"That's probably the most interesting thing anyone's asked me yet," DiRosa said, laughing. "Maybe I'll ask him ... since he's still around to decide."

There are several possibilities about naming a building after Weiss. If Weiss shares the experience of the first town manager, George Waddell, or the second town manager, Richard Martin, he'll have a school named after him.

James P. Kennedy, school superintendent, said renaming a school after a person is a serious matter with the Board of Education. He said any proposal to rename a school could "give rise to offense very quickly."

Kennedy said he had "no problem" with considering the idea since, in his book, Weiss "deserves the honor."

The George H. Waddell School is one of two schools named after a town manager. Located at 163 Broad St., the school was informally known as the Broad Street School until dedicated in the memory of Waddell in 1953.

Waddell died in office Dec. 12, 1951. He had been a former clerk of the Board of Selectmen.

At ceremonies dedicating the school in October 1953, Mayor Sherwood G. Bowers represented the town. Bowers School is at 141 Princeton St.

Arthur H. Illing was school superintendent at that time. Illing Junior High School is located at 229 East Middle Turnpike.

On May 22, 1968, the Board of Education dedicated the newly-built Richard Martin School. The school, located off Dartmouth Road, was known informally as the Globe Hollow School until dedicated to Martin.

Martin, a former reporter for the Manchester Herald who became a public administrator, was one of the people who convinced residents to change to a town manager style of government.

But maybe renaming a school is not the answer. DiRosa informally suggested naming the planned Pavilions at Buckland Hills the Robert B. Weiss Mall. The mall is scheduled to open during the spring of 1990, and preliminary approval has been given to development around the site, including 1,000 apartments and an industrial research and development complex.

Another possibility is naming the proposed new town hall after Weiss, but whether that facility will ever be built is still up in the air, DiRosa said.

The Board of Directors is considering building a $13 million, six-story municipal building at the edge of Center Springs Park to replace the existing municipal building on Center Street.

Hart teacher to be guest

Nancy LaMarch, a voice teacher at the Hartt School of Music of the University of Hartford, will be a guest at Illing Junior High School Monday. She will discuss singing and perform choir selections for the 150 choir members at the school.

LaMarch is a member of the group, "Underground Opera," which is planning a Bach Cantata series in Manchester in the spring. She plans to return to Illing for follow-up session later this year.

Defectors to perform at the Shrine Circus

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Manchester Herald

Two former members of the Moscow Circus will be among performers in the 56th Shrine Circus at the Bushnell in Hartford this weekend.

The couple, Yuri Krasnov and Lubov Pisarenkova, defected from the Soviet Union two years ago while performing with a music hall company on the island of Seychelles in the Indian Ocean.

Krasnov, speaking during a break from preparations for the show on Thursday, said that the reason for their departure from the Soviet Union was simple.

"To get more freedom," he said. "Freedom to move, freedom to create on the stage."

Krasnov does a hand-balancing act in the circus, while his wife performs aerial gymnastics. Both are graduates of the Moscow Circus School.

Since their defection, Krasnov and Pisarenkova have been made their home in Fort Wayne, Ind.

Krasnov, who speaks English, said that it was difficult to talk about the liberalization now taking place in the Soviet Union because he and his wife no longer live there. But he said that "it's better than it was."

Both Krasnov and Pisarenkova agreed, however, that things have not improved to the extent that they would consider returning to their native country.

"I can't say that there's enough freedom," Krasnov said.

The Shrine Circus will perform today and Sunday at the Bushnell. Performances are at 2 and 7:30 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Bill Carpenter, potentate of the Newington Sphinx Temple, said Thursday that tickets were still available.

This weekend will be the first time since World War II that the Shrine Circus has performed at the Bushnell, Carpenter said. He said the circus had been forced to move from its usual location, the Hartford Armory, because fire officials had cut back on the capacity of the Armory.

Seating capacity for the Bushnell is 2,700, while at the Armory it would have been about 1,200, Carpenter said.

Besides performances by Krasnov and Pisarenkova, the circus will feature a trapeze act and performances by elephants, dogs, chimpanzees and a kangaroo.

Emergency response dwindling

By Michele Noble
Manchester Herald

The number of times Manchester ambulances were unable to respond to emergency medical calls has doubled this year over last, but town paramedics still are responding to all but about 4 percent of the calls, a study says.

A report presented to the Emergency Medical Service Council Thursday also says that more than 10,000 people will have received medical care from Manchester ambulances in a five-year period beginning in 1984.

The report says that as of July 1, the service has provided pre-hospital emergency care to 8,832 people. And with approximately 168 people serviced each month, the final number is expected to go well over the 10,000 mark, said Irene Smith, EMS coordinator for Manchester Memorial Hospital.

The report also shows that the number of people calling the service for aid has increased significantly over the past five years and that the number of times the ambulances have been unable to respond to calls has nearly doubled.

In 1987, the number of times the service was unable to respond was 34, the report indicated. In 1988, the number jumped to 60. Back-up emergency medical service was provided to those Manchester ambulances could not assist.

Smith said, "Considering the number of calls we're receiving, there is no way we can service everybody at the same time."

In 1984, the number of times people called the 911 emergency number for medical care was 1,515. In 1985 it was 1,696; in 1986 it was 1,775. In 1987 it was 2,056; and this year to date the number has already reached 1,046.

Smith said she had no explanation for the increases, only that they are usually expected as the years go on.

Crafts granted public defender

HARTFORD (AP) — A judge on Friday approved a request that a public defender represent Richard B. Crafts, accused of killing his wife and disposing of her body using a chain saw and wood-chipping machine, as he awaits a second trial.

Crafts maintains that he can't afford to pay an attorney for another trial. His home and other property in Newtown are the subject of a lawsuit filed by his sister and are not accessible to him, said his attorney, Thomas Farver.

Public defenders are paid by the state. State's Attorney Walter D. Flanagan did not object to Crafts' request for a public defender.

Crafts' first trial lasted more than three months and ended in a mistrial in New London in July when one of the jurors refused to continue after 17 days of deliberations.

Crafts, 50, a pilot for Eastern Airlines, is being held in lieu of $750,000 bond in the Montville Correctional Center.

His Danish-born wife, Helle, a stewardess, was last seen in November 1986 after she returned from her overseas trip.

No body was ever found. Investigators did, however, find pieces of bone and tissue along a river in Southbury and said they were parts of Helle Crafts body.

Superior Court Judge Barry R. Schaller on Friday appointed Gerard A. Smyth as Crafts' public defender.

Death request goes higher

HARTFORD (AP) — A judge on Friday granted prosecutors' request that the state Supreme Court determine whether a man convicted of murdering a Plainville police officer can be executed for the slaying.

Superior Court Judge Thomas H. Corrigan ruled Friday that the high court will decide whether Gerard "Gary" Castonguay can be executed for the murder of Officer Robert Holcomb.

Castonguay, 44, sat impassively with his legs shackled as the judge granted the state's request.

In a written opinion issued Feb. 25, Corrigan had ruled that Castonguay could not face the death penalty if convicted for a second time for the Nov. 21, 1977, shooting death of Holcomb. He reiterated that ruling following Castonguay's conviction in early July and again two weeks ago when he sentenced Castonguay to 50 years to life in prison.

Letter key in murder case

STAMFORD (AP) — Handwriting experts are poring over a writing sample from the adoptive son of a Darien couple killed last year to see whether he penned a letter describing the murders.

Patrick Campbell, 21, is charged with one count of capital felony, two counts of felony murder and two counts of murder in the bludgeoning deaths of his adoptive parents, Kenneth and Anna May Campbell, at their home.

The state believes Campbell wrote the letter to a friend who lived in Norwalk days after the July 1, 1987, murders. Darien police obtained the letter on July 17, 1987, says Assistant State's Attorney Bruce Hudock.

The state requested a sample of Campbell's handwriting Thursday in Superior Court in Stamford and asked that it be analyzed along with the letter.

Truck overturns on ramp

HARTFORD (AP) — A tractor-trailer driver hauling "liquid plastic" was trapped in his rig overturned Friday on a ramp connecting northbound Interstate 91 to the Founders Bridge, state police said.

Some of the cargo was leaking and was being treated as if it were hazardous, a state police dispatcher said. The exact nature of the substance was not immediately known.

Crews tried to free the unidentified driver from the vehicle and pollution control workers were on the scene from the state Department of Environmental Protection, the dispatcher said.

Law school starts expansion

BRIDGEPORT (AP) — Groundbreaking for a new classroom building on Friday marked the start of a $7.5 million expansion at the University of Bridgeport Law School.

The ceremony "really marks the emergence of the law school into the Connecticut legal community," the school's dean said.

"We are finding University of Bridgeport law students in every important nook and cranny of Connecticut's legal and civic life, in major corporations, in big law firms and small," Dean Terence H. Benbow said Thursday.

The school has 750 students and is slightly larger than the state's two other law schools at the University of Connecticut and Yale University.

Slain mother's baby dies

NORWALK (AP) — The infant delivered from a woman who was shot to death in a Norwalk housing project in July has died in Norwalk Hospital, officials said Friday.

The 7-week-old baby, named Everne Diamond Johnson by her mother's sister, died Tuesday in the hospital's neo-natal intensive care unit.

She was delivered by Caesarean section after her mother, Everne Johnson, 25, was shot in the chest July 18 during a gun battle in an incident police said was drug related.

WILDCAT STRIKE — As Elbert Barham, a machine operator for the Metro-North railroad, pickets New Haven's railroad station Friday, frustrated commuters leave after learning that no morning trains were running.

Judge's order ends wildcat rail walkout

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Commuters turned to buses and cars or simply stayed home Friday when a wildcat strike by 780 track workers temporarily shut down the Metro-North rail lines to New York City.

A federal judge ordered the workers back on the job within a few hours and union officials complied, satisfied by then that they had made management — and 95,000 New York and Connecticut commuters — aware of workers' displeasure over forced overtime.

"In view of that fact, the picket lines will be removed," said John Mahoney, secretary-treasurer for Teamsters Local 808, which represents track workers on the Metro-North Commuter Railroad.

Many commuters apparently learned about the wildcat strike, called at 4 a.m., as they woke up and never went to Connecticut rail stations, which were largely deserted.

Still, there were some commuters who were caught by surprise.

"The train problem today is a surprise to me. I wasn't even listening to radio or TV, and now I'm going to take wheels, I guess, to Stamford," said Jim Grant at the South Norwalk train station. He said he planned to hop a Norwalk Transit District bus to work.

Jail return illegal, says stab killer

HARTFORD (AP) — A man convicted of killing a medical school classmate in a brutal stabbing claims that the state illegally returned him to prison after he spent eight months in a home-release program, working for an insurance company.

During a hearing on an appeal of the decision Thursday in Hartford Superior Court, the lawyer for Steven M. Asherman raised questions about correction officials' grounds for returning Asherman to prison, including an alleged violation of the rules of supervised home release.

Asherman, 39, who was regarded as a model inmate, was released after serving fewer than three years of a seven- to 14-year sentence in the death of Michael Aranow, 27.

Asherman was released to a Hartford halfway house in January and then placed on supervised release in West Hartford until Correction Department officials ordered his return to prison last month. Asherman had been working at the Cigna Corp. in Bloomfield as a computer analyst during his release.

Home release is a program used by the Correction Department to relieve prison overcrowding.

Commissioner of Correction Larry Meachum had said he based his decision to return Asherman to jail partly on the a state board's decision to deny him parole and on a review of records.

State officials said Asherman was returned to prison because he violated a provision of supervised home release. His lawyer, William J. Tracy Jr., said a disciplinary report said Asherman refused to participate in hearings on his release status.

But, in testimony Thursday, correction officials said Asherman was returned to prison because of a change in inmate classification, not a disciplinary problem.

Todd Fisk, director of inmate classification services, said Asherman's status was changed because of the parole board decision, his conviction and a refusal to submit to a psychiatric evaluation in August.

Tracy said Asherman never refused to go through an evaluation, but rather refused to discuss the details of his conviction.

Fisk said he advised Meachum not to put Asherman on supervised release because of a shaky psychiatric evaluation in July 1987.

Asherman was convicted of manslaughter in 1979 for killing Aranow, whose body was found on his parents' property in New Hartford in July 1978. Aranow had been stabbed 108 times.

Asherman, who has never admitted guilty, didn't enter prison until 1985 because of appeals.

'Fence viewers' called in

FAIRFIELD (AP) — A gentleman farmer dedicated to keeping his property much as it has been for hundreds of years reached into the 19th century for a solution to his dispute with neighbors who disturbed an old stone wall dividing their property.

The law calls for town selectmen to become "fence viewers" and settle such disputes for a fee of $2 each to be paid by the state.

Fairfield's three selectmen went out earlier this week to take a look at the old stone wall dividing the farm land of Robert T. Vanderbilt and the property of Jack and Nancy Oken, owners of a home in a new subdivision.

David McHugh of Westport, Vanderbilt's attorney, said some people, the selectmen included, have found the whole matter a little amusing. But, he said, the wall is quite important to his client, who employs caretakers for his farm and lives most of the time in Europe.

Petition seeks English only

ENFIELD (AP) — A Republican trying to unseat an incumbent state senator has launched a local petition on a proposal to make English Connecticut's official language.

H. James Anderson of Somers, who is running for the 7th Senatorial District seat now held by Democrat Cornelius P. O'Leary, brought state Sen. Thomas Scott, R-Milford, the champion of the "English only" campaign, to town Friday for a campaign appearance.

Scott's efforts to make English the state's official language were killed in the General Assembly in 1987 and 1988.

Scott and Anderson said they thought their petition drive in the senatorial district would show legislators that people support the idea.

O'Leary, the Senate's majority leader, said he wasn't opposed to the "English only" proposal and might support it.

MVD report says employees intimidated into check scheme

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — A report released Friday quotes Motor Vehicle Department employees who said they were intimidated into cashing checks for ousted MVD Deputy Commissioner Edwin X. O'Dea, including one worker who said she was threatened with having her legs chopped off.

The report is the culmination of a month-long investigation of O'Dea, whom Gov. William A. O'Neill fired last month following revelations O'Dea routinely cashed personal checks at MVD offices in Waterbury and Wethersfield and sometimes ordered that they not be deposited immediately.

O'Dea's practices remain under investigation by the chief state's attorney's office.

The practices were concealed by workers who used cash from one day's receipts to cover the previous day's deposits, according to the report.

O'Neill ordered the MVD to conduct its own investigation.

The report by MVD Commissioner Lawrence F. DePonte contains statements from several agency employees, one of whom said she had cashed 30 or 40 of O'Dea's checks since he was appointed deputy commissioner in 1983.

But the most revealing statement came from Susan F. Serkey, the now-retired Waterbury branch manager who blew the whistle on O'Dea's practices and said she was threatened by him when she confronted him about one $2,300 check he cashed and ordered not to be deposited.

"I was threatened by the deputy to be sent east of the river and cut my legs off at the knees," Serkey's statement reads.

This happened during a meeting with O'Dea and Deputy MVD Commissioner Biagio S. Ciotto,

"I was threatened by the deputy to be sent east of the river and cut my legs off at the knees."

Serkey said.

"I was informed that the deputy (O'Dea) was a public official and it was his prerogative to do what he pleased," she said in the hand-written statement.

The inch-thick report includes a photo-copy of the $2,300 check that is dated "July 1988" without a day specified.

DePonte, in a summary of the report to O'Neill, states that the practices were clearly in violation of agency policy, but that some employees thought perhaps the policy didn't apply to high-ranking agency officials.

"The reasons given for assisting Mr. O'Dea centered on his high position and the fear of falling into disfavor with him," DePonte wrote.

"Other employees interviewed referred to (O'Dea's) forceful personality or gave the rationale that existing check-cashing policy was meant to be followed as a general rule but could be abrogated by an official of Mr. O'Dea's rank on a particular occasion."

DePonte also said there had been no loss of money to the state since the checks were eventually either covered by cash or deposited in MVD accounts and cleared.

DePonte said possible discipline against other agency employees was still under review.

As a result of the O'Dea affair, DePonte said he had ordered a tightening of policies and proposed two new regulations.

One gives "the force of law" to policies governing the handling of cash and leaves "no doubt that the same rules apply to everyone, regardless of rank," DePonte said.

The second spells out procedures for accepting checks and states that no cash refunds will be made and that no third-party checks are to be accepted.

DePonte said he was also ordering all managers to familiarize themselves with the state's whistle-blower law.

"We intend to foster a climate that will discourage anyone from taking advantage of subordinates in the way that unfortunately occurred," DePonte said.

Senate OKs import curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate approved new curbs on textile, clothing and shoe imports Friday, defying the threat of a presidential veto just weeks before the November elections.

"We ought to pass this now and not put it off and deprive American workers of jobs they could have," Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said minutes before the Senate approved the measure 57-32.

The bill, aimed at protecting American manufacturers from foreign competition, would freeze this year's imports of textiles, apparel and non-rubber footwear at 1987 levels and limit their growth to one percent annually thereafter.

It also would bar foreign manufacturers of non-rubber footwear from increasing their share of the American market beyond existing levels.

It's easy going for nominee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lauro F. Cavazos appeared headed Friday to an easy confirmation as the next education secretary, with the Democratic chairman of the Senate committee pledging his support and Republicans describing him as a hands-on educator with "gilt-edged" credentials.

"It seems like you're the type of person who can come in here and heal any wounds that might exist, and build that consensus," said Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, during the confirmation hearing before the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee.

President Reagan last month nominated Cavazos, the president of Texas Tech University, to replace often-confrontational Education Secretary William J. Bennett. Confirmation of Cavazos, a registered Democrat, would make him the first Hispanic to serve in a president's Cabinet.

Troops round up Palestinians

KFAR MALIK, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Israeli troops arrested 225 Palestinian activists in the occupied territories Friday during a crackdown that smashed a Gaza Strip network accused of organizing subversive activities.

Fights broke out between Islamic fundamentalists and supporters of PLO chief Yasser Arafat throughout the West Bank and Gaza, where the fundamentalists mounted a strike to challenge the pro-PLO uprising leadership.

The strike called by Hamas, which means zeal, shut down businesses and transportation in most of the occupied lands and stopped workers from going to jobs in Israel.

The militants oppose any negotiated settlement with the Jewish state while supporters of the PLO have been urging peace talks.

Police, meanwhile, said an Arab who allegedly collaborated with Israel was assassinated in Jaffa. Twelve Palestinians, including two 14-year-olds and a 13-year-old, were wounded in clashes with troops in Gaza City and the West Bank city of Nablus.

Hostage tells of beating

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — An American who was held hostage on a TWA jet testified Friday that Mohammed Ali Hamadi led the hijacking, shouted "one American must die" and beat him so hard with an iron bar he prayed for death.

Kurt Carlson, 41, of Rockford, Ill., said that at one point in the June 1985 hijacking, Hamadi tied him up and gave him 15 minutes to live.

Hamadi, arrested at Frankfurt airport in 1987 after explosives were discovered in his luggage, is on trial on charges of air piracy and murder.

U.S. Navy diver Robert Stethem was killed in Beirut, and 39 Americans were held hostage for 17 days.

Hamadi has admitted that he was one of the hijackers but has insisted that he was not the leader. He has said he tried to prevent an accomplice from shooting and killing Stethem.

Post offices restore hours

WASHINGTON (AP) — Window service at the nation's post offices, cut last February to save money, is being restored starting Saturday.

Most post offices cut hours by about a half-day a week to help cope with $160 million in congressionally imposed spending cuts. The service reductions came two months before postage rate hikes, which took nearly a year to put into effect, were instituted to cope with a rising deficit by the Postal Service.

The unexpected spending reduction came as part of overall cuts in government expenditures aimed at reducing the budget deficit, even though the Postal Service no longer receives a taxpayer subsidy.

While the postal window hours will be restored, the new hours will not necessarily be the same as those that were in effect at each office before the closings were imposed, officials said.

Local managers were given the option to adjust hours to suit the needs of their communities. For example, Saturday hours will not be restored in heavily Jewish sections of New York City, where little business was done on that day anyway because of observance of the Sabbath. Instead, managers will experiment with staying open later some days or perhaps having some Sunday office hours.

In other areas, instead of extending hours overall, managers will add more clerks to handle business during peak times.

While the hours of window clerk service are returning, other money-saving cuts imposed in February remain in effect, including the curtailment of Sunday mail-sorting and the moratorium on construction of new post offices.

Congress, meanwhile, is considering bills to remove the Postal Service from the federal budget, as a means to avoid

Bush hits Duke on Star Wars

George Bush said Friday Michael Dukakis must explain how he could say he would consider deployment of Star Wars after denouncing the proposed missile defense system as "a fantasy in the sky." Dukakis called Bush's attacks on him McCarthyism and said voters "can smell the garbage."

Meanwhile, Bush's Republican running mate, Indiana Sen. Dan Quayle, was peppered with new questions about his entry into law school.

Bush, speaking to GOP women in Rockford, Ill., said of Dukakis and the Strategic Defense Initiative: "Calling it a fantasy one day, something he won't rule out the next... suggests a confusion in my view on the basic facts, a confusion in terms of what he really believes and where he would take this country."

"The governor's going to have to explain himself," he said.

The Democratic nominee said this week he supports continued research on a space-based missile defense system and would back deployment if it were shown to be feasible and essential to the national interest.

Dukakis was campaigning in Texas after attending a $5 million Democratic fund-raiser in New York at which he told the black-tie audience, "I won't kid you, this is not going to be an easy 60 days."

The Massachusetts governor was striving to regain momentum in the face of recent polls that have said Bush had surged into the lead in the presidential race.

Speaking at East Texas State University, the alma mater of the late House Speaker Sam Rayburn, Dukakis said that Republicans once attacked Rayburn as a communist.

"Sam Rayburn knew that when you fight for the real people, the other side will attack your patriotism," Dukakis said. "He saw it again in the 1950s when the Republicans cheered as Joseph McCarthy slandered good Democrats as communists."

"And those Republican tactics haven't changed. Just as they did to Franklin Roosevelt and Sam Rayburn, they're now attacking my patriotism. And just as they did in the 1930s and the 1950s, the American people can smell the garbage."

Both the cockpit voice and flight recorders were retrieved in excellent condition, said Maj. Gen. Sopol Savigamin, the regional commander who led the rescue effort.

Ousted leader tries again

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — Former Prime Minister U Nu, Burma's last elected leader before the military ousted him 26 years ago, defied the country's authoritarian rulers Friday and announced the formation of a rival government.

About 500 soldiers mutinied and joined the massive movement for an interim government and full democracy in the first major defection of troops to the opposition.

More than 200 dependents from several diplomatic missions, including 46 Americans, left Burma as a precautionary move, leaving about 400 others still to be evacuated.

In a letter to embassies, U Nu called for general elections Oct. 9. He announced a 26-member Cabinet with himself as prime minister, former President Mahn Win Maung as president and retired General Tin Oo, a vocal critic of the current authoritarian regime, as defense minister.

Jet explodes after crash

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A Vietnamese jetliner crashed during a thunderstorm and exploded three minutes before its scheduled landing Friday. Officials said 75 people died and the other six aboard were critically injured.

The Soviet-made, Tu-134 jet blew up after hitting a rice field about four miles north of Don Muang International Airport, said air force spokesman Sommat Sundaravej.

The cause was not determined. But one of the pilots reported the plane was struck by lightning, said Tran Van Viet, third secretary of the Vietnamese Embassy. The pilot, Khong Din Phuong, was the only survivor who remained conscious.

Both the cockpit voice and flight recorders were retrieved in excellent condition, said Maj. Gen. Sopol Savigamin, the regional commander who led the rescue effort.

Pravda acknowledges Trotsky played key role in revolution

MOSCOW (AP) — In a stunning reversal of a half-century of Communist orthodoxy, Pravda on Friday acknowledged that Leon Trotsky played a key role in the Russian Revolution before he was purged by Stalin and murdered in exile.

"During the years of revolution and civil war, the most popular leader after Lenin was Trotsky," declared Soviet historian Col. Gen. Dmitri Volkogonov using language that might once have cost a Soviet citizen his life.

The full-page article in the Communist Party newspaper, an excerpt from a biography Volkogonov is writing of Stalin, is the latest example of the Kremlin's new willingness to confront long-hidden aspects of Soviet history. It represents a significant change in the official media's treatment of Trotsky, the golden-tongued, hot-tempered revolutionary who was long reviled officially as a traitor and accused of heading an anti-Soviet plot.

But the title chosen by Pravda for the article — "The Demon of the Revolution" — showed that Soviet officialdom still apparently opposes any full rehabilitation of Trotsky, who was killed in 1940 in Mexico City, reportedly on orders of Josef Stalin.

In a forward, Pravda pointedly noted that Soviet founder Vladimir I. Lenin called Trotsky a "Judas" in 1911 and that he joined Lenin's Bolsheviks only in 1917, the year they seized power after the overthrow of the Russian czar.

But Pravda added: "Having his share of the abilities of a publicist, orator, and organizer, Trotsky played a well known role in the October armed uprising, and in the years of the civil war, when he was people's commissar for war and naval affairs and chairman of the Revolutionary Military Council."

He is known as the main advocate of the "Theory of Permanent Revolution," which held that the Russian revolution was a prelude to a rising by the

LEON TROTSKY... photographed in 1921

That "well known role" was expunged from the official Soviet record during Stalin's 29-year rule, when documents and even photographs that showed Trotsky at historic events or at Lenin's side were doctored to remove him.

Under Stalin, those suspected of being "Trotskyites" — the most loathsome appellation in the Soviet political lexicon — were hunted down, and then imprisoned or killed.

Trotsky, the son of a prosperous Jewish farmer, helped direct the 1917 coup that brought the Bolsheviks to power in Russia. As a deputy to Lenin, he was first commissar for foreign affairs, then commissar for war, creating the Soviet political lexicon — were hunted down, and then imprisoned or killed.

He is known as the main advocate of the "Theory of Permanent Revolution," which held that the Russian revolution was a prelude to a rising by the proletariat throughout Europe. Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev, in a major speech last Nov. 2, became the first Soviet leader in decades to mention Trotsky publicly, but he condemned the call for world revolution.

"This was essentially an attack on Leninism all down the line," Gorbachev said. "The party's leading nucleus headed by Josef Stalin safeguarded Leninism in an ideological struggle."

Since Gorbachev's speech, however, the Kremlin's policy of "glasnost," or openness, has been broadened to include sharper attacks on the political terror and rigid centralized management system that were hallmarks of Stalin's rule.

Some other prominent Stalin foes killed in the 1930s purges, like Nikolai Bukharin, whose ideas are similar to those advocated by Gorbachev, were cleared this year of the criminal charges used to justify their executions.

Volkogonov wrote: "There are grounds to consider that Trotsky, during the years of his most active participation in party life (1917-24), was not an enemy of the revolution and of socialism. But already at that time, he was an enemy of Stalin."

After the death of Lenin in 1924, Stalin rallied his forces under the slogan of "Socialism in One Country." He argued against Trotsky that a socialist state should be created first in the Soviet Union without waiting for worldwide revolution.

Antihistamines usually have a sedative effect, yet some people, especially children, may become restless, unable to sleep, even mentally disturbed for a few hours. Antihistamines may also affect the nervous system, making the passing of urine difficult.

Women taking oral contraceptives should also realize that antihistamines may interfere enough so that pregnancy could occur. Furthermore, when taken during pregnancy, antihistamines can cause cleft palate as a birth defect. Discuss all drugs you contemplate with your pharmacist.

Things seem ripe again for Wall Street crash

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Ten committees and subcommittees of Congress and a presidential panel are investigating the stock market crash of last October, but, to date, all of their fusing has done little to prevent the market from a similar disaster.

In fact, conditions are ripe for another boom-and-bust cycle, and they will not change until Washington bureaucrats stop wasting their energy on turf battles and start cooperating for the public good.

We have interviewed top Wall Street and regulatory officials, and their conclusions are all the same. As one expert told us, "Stock markets are headed for a repeat of Oct. 19, and this time we will do it faster because we can handle more volume quickly."

One factor predicted to push the market up is the return of individual foreign investors. Foreign corporations have continued to buy on the New York Stock Exchange, but their aim is to get a foothold in American corporations. Individual foreign investors were a major factor in the booming markets of 1986 and 1987. But after the crash, they cashed out of the market and went home. Wall Street money men expect to see those individuals return in the very near future.

The flow of foreign money could give the market a push that could send the Dow Jones Industrial Average to about 2,500. Currently, about 42 percent of the money invested in world stock markets is in the Tokyo Stock Exchange and 32 percent in the New York Exchange. Our sources are watching for foreign investors to begin pulling their money out of Tokyo and putting it in New York.

With the indicators pointing toward another boom-bust disaster, the federal effort to put some brakes on the market is floundering.

There is little political motivation in Washington to reform the system. The inter-agency regulatory panel appointed by President Reagan is hobbled by the egos of agency heads who don't want to give up an inch of their power to a cooperative effort. The Chicago Board of Options and the New York Exchange are arguing over who should handle the futures trading. Much of the blame for the October crash has heaped on the Chicago market.

Congress itself, with its 10 committees and subcommittees working on the issue, is more interested in looking for someone to blame if the market collapses again than in coming up with reforms to prevent another crash.

Recruiting spies

The case of Clyde Conrad, the former U.S. Army sergeant suspected of spying in West Germany, is just the tip of the iceberg. Our Pentagon sources fear that many other American soldiers have been lured into espionage by the Soviet bloc.

Soviet and satellite intelligence services have dangled bait in front of thousands of American servicemen in a massive effort to recruit spies from the U.S. armed forces.

Here is how the recruiting often works. It will begin with a letter from some front group, with a West European address, offering money for "research." If the serviceman bites the hook, the research will start out innocently enough with classified material. But gradually, the serviceman will be paid to move into classified areas, until the research turns into espionage.

Our sources believe there are dozens of servicemen supplying the Soviet bloc with classified information.

4th FBI director is tough and fair

By Chuck Stone

His steel-blue eyes radiate an uncompromising sternness as he rattles off details of the federal task force's war on drug trafficking. Those same eyes then twinkle as a photographer snaps his picture. "You can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear," he says with a self-deprecating chuckle. Later, in a rare moment of contained passion, the former federal judge exalts the courts and expresses his faith in them as the final arbiter in the charges of racism against the FBI.

The three moods capsule the personality of William Steele Sessions, the Federal Bureau of Investigation's fourth director.

It has only been 10 months since he took charge, and he graciously credits his colleagues for "a great deal of energy and willingness" in getting his programs in place. But if, as Supreme Court Justice Joseph Story once observed, "the law is a jealous mistress," it's also a tough taskmaster.

In an exclusive interview in his office in the J. Edgar Hoover building, the ramrod tall, white-haired 58-year-old Texan ticked off the changes he has made during his first 10 months in office with a spartan crispness. They include:

- Accelerating the FBI's war on drugs.
- Tightening the FBI's close working relationship with the Drug Enforcement Agency.
- Setting up a joint drug plan to attack drug trafficking and money laundering operations in six major cities.
- Working closer with foreign countries on counter-intelligence operations.
- Cracking down on "more and more government fraud and financial-institution fraud."
- Attacking the obscenity and pornography rackets.
- Setting up 13 initiatives to strengthen the FBI's equal employment-opportunity efforts.

Those initiatives for increasing the recruitment and promotion of minorities already had been in place when 311 of the FBI's 437 Hispanic agents filed a lawsuit charging racial bias in assignments, and a black agent filed a lawsuit alleging racial harassment.

"I can make no comment on litigation," Sessions said, "but from the moment I stepped across the door, I began to do those things — no matter what the outcome of the lawsuit — to keep the fabric of the FBI intact. The FBI is not a racist organization. We are a law-abiding agency.

"Our hiring and promotional policies are sound. We want to recruit in such a fashion as to reflect the (country's) ethnic makeup." He paused. "It'll happen."

It has already started. Minorities (blacks, Hispanics, Asians and Indians) make up 10 percent of the bureau's 9,400 agents. Women comprise about 8 percent. Has any woman been appointed as a special agent in charge?

Sessions smiled. "Not yet. But there will be."

One statistic confirms his confidence in the inevitability of change. "In my time, we'll lose 50 percent of the special agents through eligibility for retirement. That means from this time forward, I have an opportunity," to increase the number of minority agents.

Meanwhile, he is also exercising the opportunity to strengthen law enforcement at another level — cooperation between the FBI and other agencies, such as the Drug Enforcement Agency.

"I've heard the phrase, 'turf wars.' But the DEA chief and I got together and developed the joint drug plan for six cities. We capitalized on the FBI's natural abilities in training and gathering information. They're involved on the street level; we're involved in trying to gather evidence.

One day, America will win its many-fronted wars against drugs, government corruption, terrorism and racial bigotry. When it does, history will honor the contributions of a West Texas judge whose dedication helped make victory possible.

What's Quayle really saying?

By Sarah Overstreet

George Bush says the "Quayle Flap" has died down, and in one respect, he's right. Prospective voters can only take so much stimulus, whether it's hard driving of facts and platforms, or daily revelations in the press that smell up a candidate.

We tend to divide into two camps when a candidate comes under the kind of scrutiny Dan Quayle did: The first camp concludes he's a jerk and loses respect for Bush for failing to jettison him early; and the second believes nobody can be that bad, and decides he's being picked on unfairly.

But the basic "flap" is, essentially, over. Bush hopes his gamble paid off and the numbers in the "you're-picking-on-my-man" camp will be enough to preserve his reputation and give him a victory. Those of us in the other camp can only hope now that the period of rapid-fire, headline-making revelations is over, a clear picture of the man who could end up president will emerge.

What kind of guy is Dan Quayle? Well, even if he did use his family influence to go into the National Guard and avoid going to Vietnam — and it sure looks like he did — that doesn't make him unfit to lead. It makes him one of thousands of young men faced with losing their lives in an unpopular war a lot of U.S. citizens didn't believe in.

But that decision, as has been pointed out numerous times already, does illustrate a basic inconsistency in Quayle's philosophy: At the time he chose National Guard service, he was a right-wing proponent of the Vietnam War. What his choice says is, "We all need this war, but you guys go fight it." His rationalization 20 years later is just as inconsistent: He said it wasn't that he didn't want to go to Vietnam, he just wanted to go to law school. Which is to say: "I'm not chicken. I'm just busy. But you guys don't have anything as important to do, so you guys go."

Something that didn't get as much media attention as Quayle's war avoidance, but which shows me more about his character, is his Senate voting record on veterans' issues. He voted against the following proposals:

- To allow veterans to challenge decisions of the Veterans Administration in court.
- To elevate the administrator of the Veterans Administration to a Cabinet-level post (he was one of only 11 senators to vote against this bill).
- To appropriate money for job training for veterans, and to preserve 186 counseling centers for Vietnam veterans.

There were a few other veterans' bills he didn't support, but none seem more important to me than these two: his opposition to compensating Vietnam veterans for cancers caused by Agent Orange, a toxic defoliant sprayed on the jungles of Vietnam by our own government; and granting disability payments to American soldiers disabled by radioactive fallout from exposure to atomic bombs and testing during World War II.

This adds another dimension to Dan Quayle, senator and "veteran."

"Hey, you guys go over there because I'm busy and have more important things to do. But don't expect any sympathy from me if you have to crawl around in stuff that will kill you and deform your children. And don't be coming back 40 years later and complaining you were 'nuked.'"

"Couldn't you guys have joined the National Guard and saved your government some money?"

Docs form rock band to counter daily stress

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Local doctors who have banded together to jam out rock'n'roll tunes believe the music of the Beatles, Rolling Stones, the Animals and the Yardbirds is a good antidote to their daily stress.

"The rock 'n' roll really helps to relax me. It was something I really liked as a kid and I missed it," said Dr. Robert Falcone, 38, director of LifeFlight Trauma Services at Grant Medical Center.

"Some people find it a little hard to believe, but once they hear us, they see that we can play," said Falcone, who moonlights as guitarist and singer for the Bruise Brothers band.

"I love music, like playing in front of people and enjoy having a good time. It's fun and always has been."

Other band members and their musical specialties include Dr. Anne Miller, a plastic and reconstructive surgeon at Grant, keyboards; Dr. Wallace Adamson, a family doctor and director of Grant Fitness Center, drums; Dennis Smith, vice president of ancillary services at Grant, lead vocalist and rhythm guitar; and Tom Baxter, founder and former program director of the LifeFlight program, lead guitar and backup vocals.

Helping with lights and sound are Dr. Thomas Standeford, an emergency room physician at Grant, and Greg Poppel, an employee of Harris-Lanier Business Systems.

The band was organized to take part in a talent show at Grant last year, which was successful enough to encourage the group to continue. They charge $600 for a night's work.

Beepers band members usually carry often strike dissonant chords during practice sessions. But during performances, the doctors have their partners cover their medical duties.

The band members are pleased with the support from colleagues. They book their own events, but do not advertise the fact that three are doctors.

Their attire does not give away their professional identities, either. The Bruise Brothers dress for the occasion. Usually T-shirts and jeans suffice. For formal occasions, they wear tuxedo jackets — over T-shirts and jeans.

Sieffert-Martin

Alfred W. Sieffert of Manchester and Ruth N. Sieffert of Vernon, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sheryl Lynne Sieffert to Daniel Joseph Martin, son of James P. Martin of Watson, Okla. and Dorothy E. Martin of Oklahoma City, Okla.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Bay Path Junior College and Central Connecticut State University with a bachelor of science degree in elementary education. She is employed by Continental Airlines.

The prospective bridegroom is a graduate of Oklahoma State University, Phi Kappa Phi with a bachelor of science degree in business management. He is a captain for Continental Airlines and is a commander in the U.S. Naval Reserves.

A Sept. 23 wedding is planned at Concordia Lutheran Church.

MADE TO LAST — The chairs from the Capitol Barber Shop, which are about 60 years old, are made of porcelain-covered metal. Domineck Zipoli says that the chairs are more sturdy than their modern counterparts.

Patrick Flynn/Manchester Herald

OLD MEETS NEW — Domineck Zipoli stands in front of his grandfather's barber shop, which he has recreated in his Rockville beauty shop, La Moda Salon. His late grandfather, Domenick Reccia, ran the old Capitol Barber Shop on Main Street in Manchester.

This barber transplants history

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Manchester Herald

A small piece of Manchester history has been transplanted to the Rockville section of Vernon.

The late Domenick Reccia's barber shop, which used to be located above the former Worth Department Store on Main Street, is enjoying a new life in La Moda Salon. Reccia's grandson's beauty shop on East Main Street in Rockville.

Tucked in the back of the Rockville salon are the chairs and fixtures from Reccia's shop, which was known as Capitol Barbers.

Reccia died in 1985 at the age of 91, after barbering at his Main Street shop for about 45 years. Domineck Zipoli, his grandson, said that he decided to install the fixtures in his own shop as a memorial to his grandfather. He also did it to give the salon a new look.

"I wanted to mix the old with the new," Zipoli, 29, said.

The window from the door of the old shop has been framed and hangs from the ceiling, marking off the rest of the salon from the barber shop. It reads, "Capitol Barber Shop. Special Haircuts for Ladies and Children."

On one side of the sign are larger-than-life photographs of models with fancy hairdos; on the other are two antique porcelain barber chairs and dark oak cabinets with marble tops.

Old clippers and bottles of hair tonic are arranged on the tops of the oak cabinets. Ice cream parlor chairs stand against one wall, together with a table of old Life magazines and comics. There is a plaque from the Connecticut Barber's Association naming Reccia the 1984 Barber of the Year for all his years in business.

Zipoli pointed out that the quality of the old fixtures is higher than that of the newer ones in his salon. For example, the chairs, which he estimates are about 60 years old, are more solid than the newer ones. They also have a smaller chair attached that allows the barber to swivel around the customer and work while seated. There's no such convenience on the newer chairs.

The relocation of Reccia's shop in Zipoli's is a meeting of the old and new in more ways than one. Zipoli noted that many of the techniques used by barbers such as his grandfather — pomading and clipper cuts, for example — are now being employed in beauty salons like his own.

Reccia provided much of the inspiration for Zipoli to become a hairstylist, Zipoli said. But while he and his grandfather shared an interest in haircutting, they had different tastes in hairstyles. Reccia wore his hair very short, while Zipoli's hair reaches to his shoulders.

"He didn't understand it, but he accepted it," Zipoli said. "But I used to go up (to Manchester) when I was hairdressing to have him trim my beard."

The fixtures from the old shop are not in use right now, but Zipoli plans to begin serving customers in the re-created barber shop sometime in the future.

"Everybody's excited about it," Zipoli said. "They keep asking, 'When are you going to start using it.'"

Here's the Answer

QUESTION: I recently began using power tools. Most of them seem to work very well, but I always have trouble with the power sander. The wood I sand looks very smooth for a moment, but when I look closely I find it has marks on it, as though the sanding machine had caused them? Can you tell me what I am doing wrong?

ANSWER: Very difficult to analyze at long range, but it sounds as though you may be starting the motor after the sander is in contact with the wood. You should always pull the trigger switch or whatever starts the motor before the sandpaper is in contact with the wood. Placing the sander against the wood and turning it on can cause such marks. However, that also could come from shutting off the motor while the sander is against the wood. First remove the machine from the wood's surface, then shut it off. Other things to watch: If the turn-on, turn-off routine is not at fault, you may be falling to sand with the grain, stopping the sander for a moment while it is touching the wood, or even using the wrong type of sander.

QUESTION: I saw an advertisement for rubble masonry. I plan to do some masonry work soon and wonder whether it will be advisable to use rubble masonry?

ANSWER: Rubble masonry is a term used for stones which are not cut to shape. You would use it only if the project you are planning calls for irregular stones.

New products on market

By Andy Long
The Associated Press

What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT: A seven-day lamp-appliance timer. Manufacturer's claim — That the timer can be controlled to turn lights and appliances on and off 14 times a week ... that it plugs into standard wall outlets and can be used with television sets, radios and all lamps and appliances day and night ... that it will function for a minimum "on" time of three hours and a maximum "on" time of six days and 21 hours ... that it has a manual override on-off switch for operating during non-scheduled hours ... and that it gives unoccupied houses the appearance of being "lived in" without the predictable timer-controlled look.

THE PRODUCT: A remote control to open and close draperies.

Manufacturer's claim — That this control can be used with any draw-cord drapery or curtain no matter what its size ... that the drapes or curtain can be opened or closed smoothly and quietly to any position ... that all the operation requires is to touch a button ... that it can be used with patio doors, large picture windows and other glass expanses where remote control is desired ... that it can be installed in less time and with the same tool required for the installation of a drapery rod ... and that the power unit can be mounted on the wall or on the baseboard.

THE PRODUCT: A self-drilling wallboard anchor.

Manufacturer's claim — That this anchor has deep threads that provide strong engagement in different sizes of gypsum board ... that it is easily installed with a Phillips screwdriver without the necessity of using an electric drill or other tool ... that its unique tri-cut point self-drills a clean small hole ... that it is made of zinc and is corrosion resistant ... and that it has a breakaway point that can be broken off behind the wallboard if the wallboard is too shallow.

THE PRODUCT: A device that simulates an alarm system control panel.

Manufacturer's claim — That this device is installed in seconds, is operated by a key and emits a bright, flashing red light visible from the street ... that it is powered by AAA batteries which keep it operating for up to three years ... and that professional security personnel, in a series of tests, were not able to tell it from the real thing.

The seven-day timer is manufactured by Intermatic, Intermatic Plaza, Spring Grove, Ill. 60081; the remote control by TEP Inc., P.O. ## Sprouting seeds can be fun

By Earl Aronson
The Associated Press

Although sprouts from alfalfa and mung bean, among other seeds, are available at supermarkets and health food stores, sprouting your own seeds is more fun.

What's more, editors at Harrowsmith magazine report that sprouting your own seeds provides a wider variety of textures and flavors.

Rated best by Harrowsmith tasters were garbanzos (chick peas), with peanuts and sunflowers a close second in flavor and texture. Also rated good were black-eyed peas. Radish sprouts are hot and provide zing to salads, as does cress, which is spicy with a peppery aftertaste.

Also lending themselves to sprouting are buckwheat, cabbage and Chinese cabbage. But the tasters flunked kidney beans, brown rice, flax, kale and pumpkin sprouts. They found spinach and millet difficult to sprout.

You don't need sophisticated equipment for sprouting. Seeds may be obtained from health food stores or mail-order sources that specialize in untreated seeds. Seeds treated with fungicides should not be used.

Sprouts, I was told, thrive in temperatures of about 70 degrees. Start with a small quantity — a tablespoon of small seeds and a quart-size mason jar. Use a quarter of a cup for larger beans. Place seeds in the jar, cover them with water and leave overnight. Cover the jar with cheesecloth the next day, secure with a jar ring, then drain the liquid, rinse the seeds and drain again.

Keep the jar in a dark place and rinse daily. Sprouts should be ready in about five days.

One producer I visited — he was supplying a few stores — had collected several bathtubs for his sprout project and set them up in a room in his house.

Raising sprouts is actually hydroponic gardening, that is, gardening in water.

Want to try sprouting some beans? You'll want mung or soy beans, a screw-top jar and water. Wash a half cup of beans and soak them overnight in cold water. Drain off water. Punch holes in the lid of the jar, put in beans, and screw on lid. Put jar in dark place. Rinse beans with water and drain two or three times a day. Put the jar back in a dark place each time.

Sprouts are good in salads, or cooked with other vegetables. Bean sprouts are only the beginning of plants. If they were to grow bigger and develop leaves and stems, they would need light, air and soil.

WHAT'S NEW? A new sterile vial that is easy to open and close with one hand, and is airtight, leak-proof and non-shattering, has been developed for testing milk and other food samples, and would make a good seed storage container.

The producer, FISHERbrand Multipurpose Sterile Vials, (Capitol Vial, Box 611, Fonda, N.Y.) says the unit is easy to use in the field; the opening and closing design prevents contamination; the translucent compound won't crack, puncture or break; the permanently hinged cap ensures accurate identification; the flat top holds no moisture; and no ethylene oxide gas is produced.

The vials are made of durable, food-grade polypropylene, certified by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for contact with food samples.

The multipurpose containers are used for collecting and storing food samples and fruit juices.

The vials are available in several sizes, and in colors or clear.

DESERT WILLOWS: The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station reports three drought-tolerant, deciduous shrubs for arid regions. They are the Alpine Desert Willow, which has large leaves, upright growth habit, and white and amaranth flowers; Maria Lace Desert Willow, which has a large bush and pink and rose flowers; and Texas Desert Willow, with open growth habit, and large rose-pink and amaranth flowers. All three grow to heights of 33 feet.

Baked potatoes gain popularity

STAMFORD (AP) — French fries continue to be the most popular potato side dish, followed by baked potatoes, which for the first time have moved ahead of mashed potatoes, a new national study reports.

"Baking a potato, which once required up to an hour in baking time, now takes just 10 minutes in the microwave," says Edmond Mozes, vice president and general manager of MCRA's Consumption Information Services.

"However, despite higher preparation time and lower nutritional value, Americans love french fries and are not likely to give them up," adds Mozes, "although their usage slipped marginally in the past five years."

Social Security

QUESTION: I understand that in order to get Social Security disability benefits your disability must be expected to last a year. Does that mean that you have to wait a year after being disabled before you can get benefits?

ANSWER: You're right about the disability being expected to last a year. But a person is also eligible if his or her disability is expected to result in death. In either case, benefits begin after a 5-month waiting period — that is, with the sixth full month of disability. The 5-month rule ensures that people who are only temporarily disabled do not collect benefits.

QUESTION: My two children and I have been getting survivors' benefits ever since my wife died. Will the benefits continue if I remarry?

ANSWER: Your remarriage would have no effect on the benefits being paid to your children. If you get benefits only because you are caring for the children, your benefits would end at the time of your remarriage unless you marry someone who is receiving Social Security retirement, disability, widow's, mother's, parent's, or childhood disability benefits.

QUESTION: I found a few old medical bills that I forgot to submit to Medicare for payments under my medical insurance. Can I submit them now or is there a time limit on when claims must be submitted?

ANSWER: You always have at least 15 months to submit medical insurance claims. Claims for services received between Oct. 1, 1985, and Sept. 30, 1986, had to have been submitted by Dec. 31, 1987. Claims for services you received between Oct. 1, 1986, and Sept. 30, 1987, must be submitted by Dec. 31, 1988, and your claims for services received between Oct. 1, 1987, and Sept. 30, 1988, must be submitted by Dec. 31, 1989.

Getting away from it all requires a thorough hunt

Yearning for a place in the country, far from the crowds, noise and pollution of life in the big city?

You might be better able to afford such a retreat if you're willing to travel just a little farther on weekends to get there. Some of the best land and country home values are to be found just a few miles beyond the areas where prices have recently escalated.

Property three or four hours from a major city offers "tremendous investment potential," particularly if you're prepared to hold it for some time, says Stephen M. Raphael, of Raphael, Marsk & Goldman, a New York law firm specializing in real estate.

Only a few years ago, the average distance most Americans would travel to a weekend retreat was about 100 miles, the "normal" equivalent of two hours' driving time. Today, it's almost double that, Raphael says, and the key is affordability. The land boom in Columbia County, New York, for example, followed on the heels of a similar boom in Dutchess County, which lies immediately to its south and 30 minutes to an hour closer to New York City.

In addition to distance from a major city, two other factors that influence land and country home values include the scenic quality of the area and the quality of its housing stock. Other factors being equal, prices are likely to rise slowly in areas where there are a lot of poorly constructed or undistinguished houses.

One of the reasons prices have tripled since 1980 in Columbia County is its large number of 18th- and 19th-century dwellings. The county offered frantic professionals working in New York City both rural solitude and a large number of fine old houses that could be purchased reasonably, then renovated.

Real estate operators in other parts of the country say land values in general are in the increase, according to George Lee, president of Arthur Lee Realty in East Chatham, N.Y.

Ralph Bear, a veteran land salesman for Eugene Brown Realty in Kansas City, Mo., expects 1988 to be a good year for land sales to both city dwellers and farmers.

"The land market bottomed out in 1986, according to what I'm hearing from buyers, sellers, brokers and lenders," Bear says. Higher soy bean and other farm prices, plus increased beef consumption, are contributing to the trend toward higher prices, he observes.

In Oregon, farm and recreational properties sold for $350 to

Sylvia Porter

$1,000 an acre in the 1950s and early 1960s, according to Mel Rogerson, sales manager for ERA Summit Realty in Bend, a small city in central Oregon. "Most of the land around here is now subdivided into small building sites," Rogerson says. "I recently sold a three-and-a-half-acre lot in Sisters, down the road from here, for $33,000." Even at prices of up to $10,000 an acre, adds Rogerson, 1988 has so far been an excellent year for land sales.

All three seasoned real estate operators agree that urban Americans' thirst for a country place, and the weekend peace and quiet it represents, is a growing phenomenon.

Land also is one of the classic hedges against inflation. Assuming continuing inflationary pressures in the U.S. economy, property values are likely to be pushed up to keep pace.

Another pressure on the price of land, "is the fact that it is becoming increasingly difficult in some parts of the country to find raw land that is not already part of an existing development," observes Lee.

Before buying raw land or a country home, it's essential that you become familiar with the market, and the best way to do that is to spend time looking. Contact several real estate brokers in the area that interests you. Ask them to show you what's available in your price range.

Then look at properties for sale at comparable prices in adjacent areas, and talk with local bankers and others who know land values in the region. Careful research is imperative and will mean fewer, if any, regrets later on.

Tax Adviser

By George W. Smith

QUESTION: We just got married this year and look forward to filing our first joint income tax return. What will the standard deduction be for 1988?

J.G. LANCASTER, PA.

ANSWER: The standard deduction for filing a joint return for 1988 is $5,000 — up from 1987 when the amount was $3,750.

QUESTION: My doctor said that I had to take a month's leave of absence from my job because of depression. It was, and still is, quite serious. Can I deduct the cost of my trip to Arizona where I was convalescing? I can attach proof to my tax return — the letter from my doctor which advised me to go.

M.L. QUINCY, ILL.

ANSWER: The IRS says that a tip taken for a change in environment, improvement of morale, or general improvement of health is not deductible, even if you make the trip on the advice of your doctor.

QUESTION: I have read something recently about electronic filing of income tax returns with the Internal Revenue Service. What is this all about? Will it save me any time?

B.M. KALAMAZOO, MICH.

ANSWER: Starting next year, there will be 35 states where taxpayers can electronically file their federal income tax returns. Electronic filing is a method by which qualified filers can transmit tax return information directly to an IRS service center by computer over telephone lines. Only returns that have refunds can be filed electronically at the present time. Initially, only commercial tax preparers will probably have the resources and the expertise to file this way.

QUESTION: I've been traveling extensively for our temple during the past few months. What can I deduct for travel?

A.B. GREENBELT, MD.

ANSWER: You have a choice when it comes to driving for charitable causes. You may take the easier route, the 12-cents-a-mile mileage deduction, or keep track of your actual out-of-pocket parking fees and tolls. However, you cannot include other costs such as repairs, general maintenance, insurance or depreciation. The IRS says that's a no-no.

FOCUS / Advice

Medication can affect sex

DEAR DR. REINISCH: I am 64 and about 95 percent sexually impotent. When I have an orgasm more than once a week there is little or no semen discharged. I have high blood pressure and take Inderal and Maxide. Could my impotence be caused partially or entirely by the medicine? Could the lack of semen be caused by the medicine? Or is it just my age?

Kinsey Report
June M. Reinisch, Ph.D.

DEAR READER: Many medications for high blood pressure can affect sexual functioning, but do not stop taking these medications on your own. It's not clear what you mean by "impotent." Most people use this word to mean that a man can't get an erection or function at all sexually. From your letter it sounds as though you do become erect, have orgasms and ejaculate, but that your major concern is about the volume of the semen or that you don't have sex as frequently as you would like. Scientists and physicians no longer use the word "impotence," because it's too vague to describe particular problems. It's better to talk specifically about each separate process of sexual functioning and sexual satisfaction in order to more clearly describe what is happening. For example, let's first focus on your concern about the amount of ejaculate, especially when you have sex more than once a week. This can be related to some medications, but is not listed as a frequent side effect of the two drugs you take. It can also be a part of the normal aging process. Some men gradually produce less ejaculate as they get older and require a longer period of time between sexual episodes (the refractory period). There is no danger to having an orgasm without any ejaculate being produced.

In contrast, your concern about reduced frequency may be more closely associated with the medications. Both are noted to sometimes reduce sexual desire and/or cause difficulty with getting an erection. Desire and erectile ability can also be gradually reduced as a man gets older. Have you mentioned your changes in sexual functioning to the physician who prescribed the drugs? It's worth doing to see if the dosage can be safely reduced or if you can try other high blood pressure medications. If changes in your medication do not improve your functioning (this does help many men, when desire or erection problems are involved), ask your physician to help you locate a specialist in diagnosing male sexual dysfunctions. It may require traveling to a medical school or larger city, but trying to figure out exactly what is happening to you may require special tests and experience with sorting out medication and aging effects. This specialist will also be able to propose various treatment options, and most can be easily managed or monitored by your local physician. You are much too young to ignore these changes or accept them as an inevitable part of aging. Start by calling for an appointment with your physician today. If you have difficulty talking about sex (and many people do) hand your doctor this column when you go to the appointment.

DEAR DR. REINISCH: During masturbation I ejaculate in about 30 seconds. My friend told me it takes him 3 to 4 minutes. Which is normal?

DEAR READER: Your timing is normal for you and your friend's is normal for him. There are no standards or goals for this because each person develops a pattern that suits himself or herself. The length of time may also vary from one event to the next for the same person, depending on many different factors such as how long it has been since the last ejaculation and the level of psychological arousal before beginning to masturbate.

Honest son puzzled by reaction to deed

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My son (11) call him John) was at Santa Anita Race Track on one of the busiest days when he saw a gentleman attempt to put his wallet in his inside jacket pocket. The wallet missed his pocket and fell to the ground. John picked up the wallet as the man hurried away. He looked inside the wallet long enough to see that there was more than $2,000 in it.

John chased the man, caught up with him, and handed him his wallet. The man looked bewildered, didn't say a word, not even a "thank you," and disappeared in the crowd!

When John returned to the area where he had been standing when all this began, some of the people who witnessed the whole thing asked him if he kept any of the money — or if the man offered him a reward. He told them he kept none of the money, and the man didn't offer him any reward. Everyone told John that he was "nuts" for being so honest. None of them said they would have given the money back — let alone the wallet.

When John came home and related this story to us, my husband and I told him he did the right thing. The guests in our house said he was "crazy" to give the money back. Later, his friends told him he should have kept the money and returned the wallet.

John is hurt and confused. We live in a small town, and the word has spread like wildfire. Now, everywhere he goes, someone has something to say to him — and it's not very nice. He is beginning to think he is the only honest person around. What do you think?
HONEST JOHN'S MOM

DEAR MOM: Does your son really need confirmation that he did the right thing in returning the wallet and the money? If all "his friends" told him he should have kept the money, he needs new friends. And the same goes for the "guests" in your home who said he was "crazy." I think your son should have received some kind of reward — but virtue is its own reward.

DEAR ABBY: Bravo! Your response to the church secretary who labeled a $3 contributor a tightwad is right on target. A few years ago, a man sent $3 to WAIF (World Adoption International Fund). We thanked him gratefully, as we would any contributor. He sent us $3 the next week as he has every week since. His contributions are pooled with others to help find adoptive families for older and handicapped children.

One such child is "Paul," who came to a recent WAIF adoption party. Paul is 16, legally blind and has no legs. Paul found a family through WAIF and came back to thank us. WAIF is not the hero of this story; Paul and his family are, as are all of WAIF's contributors who, together, turned Paul's dreams into reality. Our $3 contributor is just as responsible for Paul's new family as any other contributor whose support would be welcomed by WAIF and our very special children.

Standing up to a new job

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 45 and, until two months ago, had a sitting-down job. Now, the job I have requires standing for nine hours a day. I have to soak my feet for a half hour when I get home. My legs, feet and hamstrings hurt so badly I can barely move. Is there anything I can do?

Dr. Gott
Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR READER: The change from a sitting to a standing job can require tough adjustments. Unless you are an active person in your spare time, your legs and feet will suffer from extended standing. With time, your body will probably adapt. Until then, try the following:
■ Make sure you are wearing comfortable shoes. They should be soft, yet give proper ankle support.
■ Consider obtaining a cushioned footmat if you work at a particular station. Again, this will relieve pressure on your feet.

are available in most drug stores and will prevent pooling of blood in the legs.
■ Massage will help stiffness.
■ Ask your coworkers, who also stand at work, if they have discovered any tricks that might aid you. It's often surprising how much sound advice can be obtained from folks who have experienced discomfort similar to yours.

■ Have an examination by a podiatrist. This type of foot specialist may be able to give you valuable advice, such as exercises and orthotic devices. For instance, an arch support might help your problem.
■ Continue to use heat after work. In addition, over-the-counter pain medicine, such as acetaminophen and ibuprofen, may relieve much of the discomfort and irritation in your lower extremities.
■ Some people who work in a standing position are helped by wearing elastic stockings. These

FOCUS / Movies

'Last Temptation' unlike other religious epics

THE LAST TEMPTATION OF CHRIST (R) The controversy surrounding Martin Scorsese's rendering of Nikos Kazantzakis' 1955 novel has tended to obscure the movie's real strengths and failures. Scorsese's film is a meditation on Biblical themes — especially on the split between the sacred and the profane in human consciousness. It is the movie's conceit to portray Christ (Willem Dafoe) as the living embodiment of this split. If such a conceit offends you, skip the movie. The more open-minded, however, will find plenty of food for thought and some remarkable, moving sequences.

Filmeter

Robert DiMatteo

Scorsese has intriguingly cast his film with actors known for their offbeat contemporary qualities. Dafoe manages the almost-impossible task of making Jesus both a flesh-and-blood character and a spiritual force. Harvey Keitel makes a strange, yet somehow credible, Judas. David Bowie is Pilate, and Barbara Hershey is a freshly imagined

Mary Magdalene.

At 160 minutes, the movie's a long haul, and it's very serious — sometimes oppressively so. But you come out of it knowing that you've seen something, and it's certainly not like any other Hollywood religious epic ever made. GRADE: *****

BETRAYED (R) Greek director Costa-Gavras, master of the political thriller, tries his hand at an American setting in this intermittently powerful, ultimately overblown movie.

Debra Winger stars as an undercover FBI operative who infiltrates a Midwestern white supremacist group. Winger's entry into the group is through an attractive, deceptively nice-guy farmer (Tom Berenger). She must determine if the farmer is actually one of the most rabid racists — and the murderer of a liberal Chicago talk show host. Winger is ultimately seduced by the farmer's good 'ol boy charm. Having gotten in over her head, she asks her boss at the bureau (John Heard), an ex-lover, to remove her from the case. Instead, he pushes her deeper into danger.

Costa-Gavras has tackled a potent, disturbing subject — the rise of anti-black, anti-Jewish violence in the conservative backlash of the '80s. They've come up with at least one shocking and convincing scene to illustrate this violence: A half-dozen white guys convene in the woods at night to stalk a blindfolded black man as if he were no more than an animal.

There's also potency to Winger's dual life — especially in the tension created by her divided loyalty to the two men. The movie allows for some shades-of-gray complexity here: After a while, the methods of the FBI and the racists start to look almost equally corrupt.

But the film goes too far, giving the white supremacists too much power, and suggesting a conspiracy that extends to other levels of society. In the past, Costa-Gavras has shown a sometimes limited, largely negative understanding of the United States. Here, it gets out of hand. After working up a full head of steam, the movie falls apart in the second half, as Winger puts herself in compromising situations that make her seem downright stupid. GRADE: **½

New home video

HAIRSPRAY (PG) RCA/Columbia, $89.95. From John Waters ("Pink Flamingos") comes this comedy of teens in 1962 Baltimore. The result is a deliciously campy musical satire. Waters' casting of the lead role is inspired: Bubbly Ricki Lake makes her screen debut as Tracy Turnblad, an overweight miss who becomes the hottest mover on the local TV dance party "The Corny Collins Show," and the leader of a protest against the all-white policy of the show.

In this, his last movie, the late Divine is triumphantly funny. He plays two roles: Tracy's mountain-chested, perpetually ironing mom, and the slimy male owner of the TV station. GRADE: ****½

PROMISED LAND (R) Vestron, $89.98. A coming-of-age movie that was developed at Robert Redford's Sundance Institute, this is an earnest, lyrical portrait of four Middle-American kids (Meg Ryan, Kiefer Sutherland, Jason Gedrick and Tracy Pollan) after high school. It's meant to be a study of a generation growing up without a clear sense of the future, but a lot of the evidence seems familiar and melodramatic. GRADE: **½

Summer films set box-office records

By John Horn
 The Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD — This year's summer movies, attacked for being everything from blasphemous to reactionary, nevertheless shattered box-office records, with a cartoon bunny and an African prince leading the way. While critics debated the alleged evils of "The Last Temptation of Christ" and "Rambo III," moviegoers plunked down approximately $1.7 billion for tickets.

That beats the previous summer record of $1.59 billion, set in 1987. "People are movie-minded and they're going," Bob Selig, president of the National Association of Theater Owners in California, said this week. "People are not just going to stay at home every night regardless of what they have there." Videocassettes and cable television, though increasingly popular, didn't keep fans from "Who Framed Roger Rabbit" and "Coming to America," each of which grossed more than $110 million.

The summer season, which began in late May and concluded on Labor Day, was not dominated by any movie, as "Beverly Hills Cop II" and "Top Gun" had done in 1987 and 1988, respectively. Indeed, four separate movies led this summer's box-office tally.

Disney's "Roger Rabbit," an unusual comedy merging animation and live action, was the season's No. 1 hit, followed closely by Paramount's "Coming to America," featuring Eddie Murphy as an African prince in search of an American bride. Not far behind was Paramount's "Crocodile Dundee II," the fish-out-of-water adventure story that took in more than $100 million, and "Big," 20th Century Fox's comic look at a child trapped in a man's body, which is close to passing the $100 million mark.

"To have four movies over $100 million is unusual. I believe it's only happened once before," said Barry London, president of marketing and distribution for Paramount Pictures.

London said the quantity of good movies this summer "created an environment" for audiences. "The public's having a good time with one movie makes them want to come back again," London said.

"It's been a good, diverse product mix," said Peter Farwell, vice president of corporate relations for General Cinema, the country's fourth-largest theater chain. "It seems we've had movies that appeal to all segments of the population — there's been something for everybody."

Film reviewers apparently had little impact on which movies became hits: "Coming to America" met with mixed reviews and MGM's "Willow" and Disney's "Cocktail" both panned, still brought in more than $50 million apiece.

At the same time, the controversies surrounding "Last Temptation" and "Rambo III" appeared to have little to do with their box office performance. "Last Temptation," which probably wouldn't have been a box-office hit under any circumstances, collected more than $2 million after being blasted by conservative Christians for its depiction of a Jesus with human weaknesses.

"Rambo III," the violent Soviet-bashing saga about its invasion of Afghanistan that opened the week the Russians began pulling out of the country, grabbed only $55 million in the nation's theaters, down sharply from the $150-million success of "Rambo: First Blood Part II" in 1985.

Summer flops included "The Big Blue," "Big Top Pee-wee," "Mac & Me," "The Rescue" and "Monkey Shines."

'Holy Drinker' best in Venice

VENICE, Italy (AP) — The Golden Lion award for the best film at the Venice Film Festival was awarded Friday to "La Leggenda del Santo Bevitore" (The Legend of the Holy Drinker) by Italian director Ermanno Olmi.

The film is based on a story Austrian novelist Joseph Roth finished just before he died in 1939. It tells of miracles that happen to an alcoholic bum named Andreas. Every time he needs money, he finds it falling out of the sky.

The best director award went to Theo Angelopoulos of Greece for his film "Topio Stin Omihli" (Walk In The Fog). The film is about two brothers, five and 11 years old, who set out on a journey to find their father. They have been told he is in Germany but actually no one knows who he is.

The international jury also decided to divide the prizes for best performances between two actors and two actresses. Don Ameche and Joe Mantegna shared the award for best actor and Isabelle Huppert and Shirley MacLaine both won best actress. Ameche and Mantegna were chosen for their performances in "Things Change," a comedy directed by David Mamet.

In the film Ameche, the veteran American actor, plays a shoeshine man who agrees to go to jail for someone else in exchange for money.

Huppert won for her performance in Claude Chabrol's "Une Affaire de Femmes" (An Affair of Women), where she plays a woman condemned to die because she performed an illegal abortion that killed another woman.

Ms. MacLaine won for playing the title role of a maniacal, possessive piano master, in John Schlesinger's "Madame Sous-trika."

The jury also decided to award the "jury's grand prize special" to the film "Camp de Thiaroye," by Sembene Ousmane and Thierno Faty Sow.

AWESOME — This creature, dispensing matches one at a time, may be a woodpecker.

Match safes, action 'toys' are popular with collectors

This awesome creature is apparently poised to strafe any attempt to tamper with the contents of the box. Appearances deceive — the needle-nosed bird is actually user-friendly, up to a point.

Collectors' Corner

Russ MacKendrick

The whole thing is a gimmick to dispense matches one-to-a-customer. The cast-iron assembly is hinged so that when the head goes down the beak will impale just one wooden match and bring it into the open.

We have seen match safes meant to go on a journey, and others made for a kitchen wall, this type belongs on a hotel counter or a showcase. When a drummer, about to go on his way with the snake oil or wooden nutmeg route, stops to light up a seegar, he could get a match all right, but was not tempted to flich a handful for the road.

Action "toys" like this, monkey-and-coconut banks and so forth, are always popular with collectors. This item was bid off at a recent auction for $60 and found a new owner in no time flat for $75.

In John Mebane's "What's New

That's Old" (subtitled "Offbeat Collectibles"), we find an illustration with this identical construction and artwork. They call the picture was in an 1884 catalog from the Sargent Co. of New York and New Haven. The item is said to have been popular for many years.

We see again in the Time-Life Encyclopedia with a match stuck onto the beak. "To work this safe, the smoker in need of a light lifted the tail." Can't see it that way. Better a push with pizzazz and follow-through on the back of the neck.

The heyday for match safes was in the years 1875 to 1910. Creativity ran hog-wild, especially for the designs of the portable types. Mebane's book shows about 150 pix of containers made to fit nicely into a pocket or knapsack.

Change in routine can upset your cat

QUESTION: My cat is sitting next to her litter box, not in it. She is eliminating normally — her stools are formed and she urinates the same amount of times she always did. What's causing this?

Pet Forum

Allan Leventhal, D.V.M.

ANSWER: From your description of normal elimination, my first thought would be that this is an emotional problem. First, have you changed anything in her routine? Time of feeding, type or brand of cat food, location of her litter box? Do you keep it cleaned regularly? Are there any other changes in the house — a new mate, a new baby, Aunt Martha staying for a prolonged visit, the introduction of another pet? Or a separation or divorce? In short, anything that can emotionally upset your cat. Sometimes all it takes is the view of a strange or threatening neighborhood cat through a window to precipitate this behavior. If this is so, curtain the window.

To be on the safe side have your veterinarian do a physical exam on your cat, including a stool check and urinalysis, in order to rule out an organic reason for this aberration. If this is normal, consider the emotional aspect and play detective. If the reason becomes obvious, try to remedy it if possible. Show Kitty more attention and affection and perhaps the problem will be resolved. Other possibilities (that you haven't mentioned) are the cat's sexual status and age. If she is not spayed, heat periods may cause disruptions and I urge you to spay her. Once spayed, if this behavior continues there are hormones available from your vet that may solve the problem. Tranquilizers may also help but need to be administered twice daily usually. And lastly, if she's aged, senile mental changes could be responsible and this may be difficult to change.

A tip for keeping down the odor of cat litter boxes: Mix several tablespoons of baking soda (sodium bicarbonate) and this will greatly reduce objectionable odor until you can clean the box or change it.

Allan A. Leventhal, D.V.M., is a Bolton veterinarian. If you have a question you'd like to see answered in this column, write to: Pet Forum, Manchester Herald, P.O. Box 591, Manchester 06040.

Pygmy goats as pets interesting and playful

FLETCHER, Okla. (AP) — Pygmy goats are just a bunch of little kids at heart.

That's what Laudell Hill of rural Fletcher discovered when her husband, LaRue, bought her a pair three years ago.

"My husband kept asking me what I wanted for a Christmas present, and I kept saying I didn't know, and he said, 'You're going to be sorry,' and got me these pygmy goats," Mrs. Hill says.

Mrs. Hill was very surprised, but she wasn't sorry at all. "We enjoy watching animals. My husband should have been curator of a zoo. He'd collect everything if he could," she says.

Their six children and eight grandchildren, who come in to visit from New Mexico, Arizona, Illinois, Texas and Europe, also find the goats fascinating to watch.

"You can be depressed and go out and sit down and watch them and forget all about what you were worried about when you went out there," Mrs. Hill says.

Pygmy goats are mischievous as children. They love to untie shoes and play on their slides and teeter-totters. When Mrs. Hill put out grain for them at the top of the slide, one little goat made five or six dashes up the incline until he finally got up enough momentum to reach the food.

Once there, he played "King of the Hill" and nudged away a would-be diner who tried to horn in on his meal.

The goats are not only fun but profitable, too. Registered with the American Goat Association and the National Pygmy Association, they sell for $75 each. The Hills sold four recently, still had 20 the next day and had a goat expecting a litter at any time. The pygmies may give birth to up to six offspring at a time, but any over four must be bottle-fed.

People buy them for pets. In addition, says Mrs. Hill, "they sometimes use them in California, Florida and Illinois for 4-H projects because an 8-year-old child can handle them easier than a steer ... They're very lovable animals, so the kids can get close to them, where they'd be afraid of a larger animal."

Atari line a compromise, but the price is right

By Larry Blasko
The Associated Press

If your computing tastes run to champagne while your computing budget only supports beer, check out the Atari line of computers, especially the 520 STFM and the 1040ST.

Right up front, there's some compromise involved: In a business and educational world increasingly divided between MS-DOS (IBM PC compatible) and Apple machines, the Atari computers march to their own drummer. That will sometime leave you wanting some particular piece of advertised software that just isn't available for the Atari machines. But there is software available for just about any sort of task, and if it involves sound and graphics, the ST computers deliver great performance at good prices.

The Atari 520ST, and it's big brother, the 1040 ST are computers of great power, based on Motorola's 68000 microprocessor humming along at a clock speed of 8 megahertz.

The 520 ST comes with 512,000 characters of memory, a built-in 3.5-inch floppy disk drive storing 360,000 characters and a 12-inch monochrome monitor for $799. The no-monitor list cost is $599.95. The monochrome resolution is 640x400 pixels (picture elements). If you want a 12-inch RGB color monitor, make that $999.95 and get a 640x200 resolution displaying four colors, or a 320x200 resolution displaying 16 colors. Your color choice is from a palette of 512 colors.

The 1040 ST comes with 1 million characters of memory and a built-in double-sided 3.5-inch floppy disk drive that holds 720,000 characters. A mono system lists for $999.95 and a color system comes in at $1,199.95. The resolution specs for the 1040ST are the same as those for the 520ST.

Both the 1040 ST and the 520ST come with an operating system by Atari called TOS for The Operating System in ROM (Read-Only Memory). You also get GEM, the icon-and-window-oriented operating environment from Digital Research. (A "window" is an area of the computer screen where you can do something independent of other areas on the screen.) Atari includes its version of the BASIC language, ST BASIC.

Both systems include a mouse and have two joystick ports, one of which doubles as the mouse port. They also include a parallel printer port and a serial port for a modem or other device. A port for a second floppy drive and a hard-disk drive port are included as is a MIDI port.

MIDI is "Musical Instrument Digital Interface," an industry-wide standard for connecting computers and machines that make music. Both the 520ST and the 1040ST come with three-voice sound, making them nice music machines in their own right.

Both computers come with a 94-key keyboard that includes 10 function keys and variable autorepeat and key-click response, which means you can adjust how the keyboard behaves to suit your preferences. The warranty on the systems is 90 days.

Here's how the costs would stack up for two-drive systems with a color monitor:

Atari 520 STFM with 12-inch RGB Monitor, $999.95; Atari SF354 second 360K disk drive, $199.95. Total: $1,199.90

An endless number of possibilities

BOBBIE ANN MASON
... second novel out

NEW YORK (AP) — There are no sure things in Bobbie Ann Mason's stories, just endless possibilities.

"I think in terms of possibility. It's part of my heritage," said Mason, whose second novel is called "Spence & Lila" (Harper and Row, $12.95).

Spence and Lila Culpepper are a couple in their 60s who live on a farm in western Kentucky. They are brought together with their three children, Nancy, Catherine and Lee, when Lila is diagnosed as having breast cancer and must undergo surgery.

Mason, a native of western Kentucky, contrasts the lives of Spence and Lila, who have spent most of their lives on the farm, to those of the children, who have moved away.

"It's a very confusing time for people of that (the children's) generation," the author said. "They're subject to so many influences and problems because of all the choices. They can get divorced; their parents couldn't do that. So many influences, so much more money."

While the children move around the country trying to find themselves, Spence is perfectly happy to stay on the farm.

Mason, born in 1940, can relate well to the Culpepper children. She grew up on a dairy farm near Mayfield, Ky., and was the first member of her family to go to college, taking journalism classes at the University of Kentucky.

She has also done her share of moving. After college, she lived in New York and went to graduate school at the State University in Binghamton, N.Y., and the University of Connecticut. She now lives with her husband in rural Pennsylvania.

Mason's first story was published in 1986. Two years later, she released "Shiloh," a collection of short stories that won the PEN-Ernest Hemingway Award for first fiction.

In 1985, she came out with her first novel, "In Country," the story of Sam Hughes, a teen-ager trying to learn more about her late father, a Vietnam soldier killed before she was born.

"In Country" was a best seller. A film adaptation, starring the English actress Emily Lloyd as Sam and Bruce Willis as her uncle, is in progress.

Mason writes sparsely, leaving much of the interpretation to the reader. She has been compared to such contemporary writers as Ann Beattie and Raymond Carver, who have been called minimalists.

Mason notes that the real meaning of her stories can be learned from the pacing of her writing, rather than the words.

Kinks' Davies isn't pigeonholed

By Mary Campbell
The Associated Press

Earlier this year, the Kinks brought out "The Road," a collection of songs, mostly from the 1960s, recorded live during a 1987 U.S. tour.

Now, Kinks songwriter Ray Davies is in California, where a musical comedy he composed, "80 Days," is playing at the La Jolla Playhouse.

The album, the British group's second for MCA Records, was taped in Columbia, Md., and Philadelphia. The title song was recorded in a studio. The song "It" is new, composed by Davies as a dance for his wife, Pat Crosbie, formerly with the Irish National Ballet. He'd like to expand it so it becomes one side of an album.

Recently, the Kinks did some recording for the next album, but that has paused while Davies works on "80 Days."

"I had seen the movie 'Around the World in 80 Days' when I was a kid," Davies says. "I wasn't that interested in it. But the show is really more about Jules Verne himself. He was the Steven Spielberg of the Victorian era."

"The director, Des McAnuff, who did 'Big River' (based on 'Huckleberry Finn') sent me a telegram saying, 'Broadway needs you,' which I thought was rather a nice introduction to the project."

"He sent me a draft script somebody had done. We got talking about it. I wrote what I thought a few good tunes would be. He liked them. He got a book writer. I wasn't interested in doing David Niven (star of the movie) with music. This project has been going on for four years. You can't rush these things." Davies wrote one previous musical, which was rushed, for a small English company in 1982. "I had to write it in two weeks. It was a bizarre plot of out-of-work women in east London kidnapping Prince Charles. It was commissioned by the National Theater, by Sir Peter Hall. He wanted a modern version of 'The Poet and the Women,' where the women kidnap Aristophanes."

... off the road

"It was good writing the song for Prince Charles, a patriotic song about England. It was off-Broadway style, fun and campy. It was a daunting task to write it in two weeks."

He wrote music for the films "The Virgin Soldiers" and "Percy." He says, "We fired our manager just after that. We had a top-10 hit in America, 'Lola,' at the time. Instead of putting us on tour here, he said we should do the 'Percy' soundtrack. I wrote a fantastic piece of music. The producer got a knife and cut everything. My music was completely butchered."

"The best way I did it was a TV film I wrote, directed and did the music. 'Return to Waterloo.' A few art-type cinemas showed it."

"I was approached to write an experimental play with music. So I wrote a play where the lead character didn't speak. I ended up directing Kenneth Colley a Shakespearean actor, using sign language, exploiting every facet of his face. I felt it was like doing a silent movie."

"They wanted me to direct something else after 'Return to Waterloo' but I had other things to do, like finding a record company. I always admired the Beatles because they stayed with the same company. The Kinks have been with four labels. With no disrespect to the companies I've been with or am with, I'd rather my career had been cataloged with one record company."

In the 1960s, when the Kinks had strings of hit singles, they'd put all their equipment into a truck and tour in Britain on weekends.

Now, Davies says, "Bands like Def Leppard tour 18 months and never make a record for four years. They're completely exhausted."

"And I can't decide to go play in Truro and get equipment together. I have to hire about 30 people and it's all a big deal."

"We still play requests, which sends the light and sound crew mad. They like to have the show rehearsed."

The Kinks were formed in 1964 with Davies as lead vocalist and guitarist, Dave Davies on lead guitar and vocals, Peter Quaife on bass and Mick Avory on drums. The current lineup is the Davies brothers, Ian Gibbons, keyboards, Jim Rodford, bass, and Bob Henrit, drums.

Davies says, "It would be nice for the Kinks to be on Broadway for a week and do a week in Boston rather than doing one-nighters. Next year will be our 25th year."

"The concert we did in London Dec. 22 was one of the best ever. We played three hours solid, with no intermission and no popcorn. We used some of that footage in the 'Road' video."

"I've got enough footage to make an 8-hour film about the Kinks. I'll settle for an hour and a half."

Davies believes that the best ballad he ever wrote was "Waterloo Sunset" and the two best rockers were "You Really Got Me," which Van Halen covered, and "All Day and All of the Night," which the Stranglers covered. "Now when we play 'You Really Got Me,' new audiences think we're covering the Van Halen song."

Asked whether he has mellowed with age, Davies recounts a letter from a nephew stating he was angry, discontent, ambitious, jealous, wants to achieve everything and feels there's no time. It ended: "Uncle Raymond, what are you like?"

He says, "I wrote a note back saying, 'Ditto.' I'm still as hungry for success. It takes failure hard. I'm competitive. That's the one aspect of my personality I try to fight against."

Cash plays Crockett

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With a coonskin hat, country music star Johnny Cash will play frontiersman Davy Crockett in a new multipart adventure tale for NBC's "The Magical World of Disney."

Cash plays Crockett at the age of 50 in the opening two-hour episode. He will recall his earlier exploits, with Tim Dunigan playing the younger Crockett.

Dunigan was selected from among 1,000 actors for the role created by Fess Parker in ABC's "Disneyland" in 1954-55. The highly popular Davy Crockett series on "Disneyland" was television's first miniseries. Coonskin hats and Davy Crockett T-shirts were a rage with children, as was the song refrain "Daaaavvvv. Daaaavvvv Crockett, king of the wild frontier!"

The role of the older Crockett was offered to Parker, who now owns a hotel in Santa Barbara, but he declined. The new Crockett series will probably debut in November.

Good reviews for Mehta

PARIS (AP) — The New York Philharmonic, conducted by Zubin Mehta, had a noteworthy success for a U.S. orchestra during its 12-city European tour.

It received good reviews. Francis Little, a spokesman for the orchestra, said the good reviews throughout the tour for Mehta and his musicians were "unusual for a traveling American orchestra."

A highlight of the tour, he said, was a surprise appearance in Amsterdam by violinist Isaac Stern with the philharmonic, which was to end its tour Friday night in Paris.

Guitar for his birthday

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The next time songwriter Harlan Howard strums his guitar he'll have country music singer Buck Owens to thank.

Owens gave one of his trademark red, white and blue guitars to Howard as a birthday present Thursday.

Howard wrote the hit "I've Got a Tiger by the Tail," which Owens recorded 20 years ago.

The presentation was made at the fifth annual Harlan Howard Birthday Bash and Guitar Pullin' at a parking lot on Music Row. More than 1,500 people attended, listening as songwriters sang the songs they have written.

First lady of the month

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Grand Ole Opry singer-songwriter-humorist Johnny Russell says if he's elected president he'd hold yard sales on the White House lawn and have a First Lady of the Month club.

Russell, who wrote the hit song "Act Naturally," is forming a political party, which will have its first convention of sorts this month at a nightclub.

He is offering himself as a presidential candidate on the US Party ticket. Its members will gather Sept. 20 at the Nashville Palace nightclub.

Activities

The Senior Center Meals Program began Tuesday and will operate five days a week. Meals will be served from 11:45 to 12:15 at a cost of $1.25 except Thursday when the cost is $1.75. Please note that tickets for Thursday's program must be purchased by Tuesday at noon.

Classes are beginning to fill, so don't wait until the last minute to register or you will be disappointed. The same applies for trips. The trips to the Big E, Rockingham Raceway, and the Coachlight are filled. Waiting lists have been established.

Our calendars, which highlight all programs, are available at the front office. You may pick one up and use it as a reference.

A session on Microwave Cooking will be held Sept. 21 from 9:30 to 11:15 a.m. Call the center to register.

The Senior Center will sponsor an Open House on Oct. 5 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., giving seniors the opportunity to tour and learn more about the center's programs and services. Booths will be set up so that individuals can receive information and ask questions in their areas of interest. A free lunch will be served to all new participants. This is a golden opportunity to find one's place at the center. There will be a booth on volunteer opportunities where you can get involved in activities inside and outside of the Senior Center setting. The Health Department will provide blood pressure screenings free of charge. This is also a good opportunity for children of elderly parents to find out how they can get their parents involved.

Please mark Oct. 29 on your calendar, the day of the Senior Center's Annual Arts & Crafts Fair. More details will follow soon. Best wishes to Evelyn Slater who is still recuperating at home.

The Visiting Nurses Association and Home Care of Manchester will hold their Alzheimer Support Group meetings September 14 and 28, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the Conference Room of the Mental Health Wing in Manchester Memorial Hospital.

Thoughts

We are living in times of economic uncertainty and, for some, of economic hardship. More than ever before, we need to learn and apply the principles of economic self-reliance. One of the first principles revealed to Adam when he was driven out of the Garden of Eden was "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground." (Genesis 3:19) This clearly conveys that the Lord expects each one of us to individually provide for our own temporal needs. We should not, while physically able, voluntarily shift to another the burden of our support. All we obtain in life of a material nature should come as a product of our own labor and the providence of a loving God. Our personal work alone produces life's necessities.

We do not know when a crisis of sickness or unemployment may affect our circumstances. We do, however, know that the Lord has decreed calamities for the future and has warned us to be prepared. For these reasons we have been counseled to be thrifty and self-reliant, to avoid unnecessary debt, to be industrious, to live within our means, and to prepare in times of plenty as did Joseph in Egypt of old. (Genesis 41)

Energy costs fuel inflation; food prices begin recovery

By Dave Skldmore
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A late-summer surge in gasoline prices fueled wholesale inflation in August at a pace matching the highest level of the year, even though food prices began recovering from the drought, the government said Friday.

The Labor Department said its Producer Price Index for finished goods rose a seasonally adjusted 0.6 percent last month, the highest increase since an identical rise in March.

If that rate held for 12 consecutive months, inflation at the wholesale level would amount to 6.9 percent, more than triple the 2.2 percent price rise for 1987. For the first eight months of 1988, wholesale inflation was running at an annual rate of 4.3 percent.

White House officials said they were unconcerned about the news.

"Fluctuations of this size are commonly observed," said spokesman Marlin Fitzwater. "We still believe inflation is under control."

The steep August increase did not disturb financial markets because, when volatile food and energy categories were excluded, the index rose a modest 0.3 percent, just half the July rate.

Most analysts look to other prices than food and energy as a better indication of underlying inflation.

Passenger car prices, which had risen steeply early in the summer, were up a moderate 0.3 percent last month. Clothing costs, after soaring earlier in the year, were down 0.4 percent for men and boys and up a slight 0.1 percent for women and children.

"It's not as bad as one might have feared and the markets have taken it that way. ... There were no surprises and no reasons for increased alarm," said David Jones, an economist with Aubrey G. Lanston, a government securities dealer in New York.

Much of the price pressure in August stemmed from a 2.2 percent rise in energy costs, the biggest leap since April. Gasoline prices rose 3.8 percent, even though crude oil prices fell 1.7 percent. The price of natural gas rose 3.6 percent while fuel oil edged down 0.2 percent.

Donald Ratajczak, an economist at Georgia State University, said a shortage of unleaded gasoline at the peak of the summer vacation season contributed to the energy price boom. "We've had a very strong driving season and heavy demand for gasoline. That has kicked up the price of gasoline relative to petroleum. We expect that to fall off as soon as the driving season ends, which traditionally is after Labor Day," he said.

However, he warned that natural gas prices probably will continue rising as the weather turns colder.

Food prices one step short of retail stores rose a moderate 0.4 percent last month for the second month in a row. They had shot up 0.8 percent in May and 1.1 percent in June in reaction to the widespread summer drought.

A sharp 12.6 percent price rise for eggs and a 9.6 percent gain for vegetables were offset by a 6.4 percent drop in fruit prices and declines for rice, chicken and beef.

Analysts said fruit trees hit by summer heat had produced their fruit early. As for meats, the 0.6 percent dip in beef prices was less than the 2.5 percent July decline as pastures began to recover from the drought and farmers sent fewer animals to slaughter.

"We have another month of fairly significant food price increases ahead of us, but after that the number's should start to calm down," said Ratajczak, who conducts his own price surveys.

He said winter livestock shortages likely to follow the drought-induced slaughtering will drive meat prices up next year.

Wholesale prices for intermediate goods rose only 0.4 percent, their smallest gain since February. Raw material prices were up a sharp 1.1 percent but had fallen by the same percentage in July.

Trade stats may confuse market

By Chet Currier
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — When Wall Street has its monthly confrontation with the government's trade statistics next Wednesday, a new wild card will be added to the game.

The Commerce Department is adopting a new format for reporting the figures, and analysts say it may create more than the usual confusion in the financial markets.

Along with a number comparable to those of past months, the department will calculate the nation's trade deficit excluding the cost of freight and insurance for imports.

This so-called Customs value method of figuring the balance between imports and exports typically produces a deficit total about $1.5 billion lower than otherwise, analysts note.

Previously, the Customs value trade balance had been reported at least two days later than the original, unadjusted figure, and commanded almost no attention from stock and bond investors.

As Charles Taylor at Prudential-Bache Securities asserted, "the July merchandise trade deficit will be about $1.5 billion lower than it otherwise would be."

"But this is a cosmetic improvement only. The current-account deficit, and therefore the dollar-financing requirement of the United States, will not be affected one iota."

Some say that kind of assessment is too harsh. After all, they say, the subject of the data is the "merchandise" trade deficit, and insurance and freight are not merchandise, but services instead.

Commerce Department officials have said that the change in procedure, which was mandated by the trade bill enacted in August, is intended to put proper emphasis on those numbers that most accurately depict the situation.

Still, Wall Street analysts say, it may well introduce a new element of uncertainty to markets that are highly sensitive to economic statistics like the trade data.

"Two different numbers on the same day will initially generate some temporary confusion and possible cynicism about government tampering with statistics before elections," said Harris.

Highlights of the week

By The Associated Press

The Securities and Exchange Commission, in a long-awaited move, filed extensive civil insider-trading, fraud and stock manipulation charges against the investment firm Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc., Michael Milken, the head of its junk bond trading unit, and others. All defendants denied the charges, which stemmed from an investigation tied to convicted stock speculator Ivan Boesky.

In a similar case, Stephen Sui-Kuan Wang Jr., a former Morgan Stanley & Co. rookie analyst, pleaded guilty to the first criminal charges stemming from what the government has called the second largest insider trading case in Wall Street history. And William Dillon, a fired Merrill Lynch & Co. stockbroker, pleaded guilty to fraud after admitting he traded securities based on advance knowledge of stock-touting columns in Business Week magazine.

The Senate approved new limits on imports of textiles, clothing and shoes, defying the threat of a veto just weeks before November elections.

The Labor Department said its Producer Price Index for finished goods rose a seasonally adjusted 0.6 percent last month, the highest increase since an identical rise in March.

The government reported that the nation's commercial banks earned $10.5 billion in the first and second quarters of this year, their most profitable six months on record.

Automakers said car and truck sales fell 10.7 percent in August, compared with the same period a year ago when incentives prompted quicker buying decisions by consumers.

A Commerce Department report found that U.S. businesses plan to spend a record $429.4 billion this year for plant and equipment spending.

The Federal Reserve Board said Americans took out $2.6 billion more in consumer credit than they paid off in July, marking a sharp slowdown from the pace of growth during the first half of the year.

A report by the International Monetary Fund predicted inflation-adjusted growth of 3.8 percent for major industrialized nations in 1988.

The Agriculture Department said the Soviet Union bought an additional 802,400 metric tons of U.S. corn for delivery during the 1988-89 marketing year which began on Sept. 1.

Shamrock Holdings Inc. launched a hostile bid for Polaroid Corp., upping its offer to $42 a share, or a total of $2.4 billion for the Polaroid shares it does not already own.

A federal judge issued a restraining order temporarily blocking the $2.5 billion merger of Lucky supermarkets into American Stores, saying the combination threatens serious irreversible harm to Californians.

Britain's Carlton Communications PLC agreed to buy Technicolor Inc., the film duplicating company whose trademark appears on many top movies, for $780 million.

Campeau Corp. agreed to sell all 76 of its Gold Circle and Richway stores for more than $325 million.

Trans World Airlines Inc. shareholders overwhelmingly approved Chairman Carl C. Icahn's proposal to buy their shares and take the nation's seventh largest airline private.

The latest Transportation Department figures found that about four of every five flights by major U.S. airlines arrived on time in July.

Box-office results showed that this year's summer movies shattered records, with roughly $1.7 billion in tickets sold, up from last year's summer record of $1.59 billion.

Kodak ends 13-month year

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Starting in 1990, Eastman Kodak Co. employees will stop working 13 months a year.

Kodak is abandoning the 13-month calendar developed by founder George Eastman in 1928. The change follows a task force report that concluded, "It's time to harmonize the calendar."

The change actually makes little difference to Kodak employees, except that department heads who make out 13 financial reports a year now will fill out only 12.

Eastman, a busy man, probably wished he could cram more than 24 hours into a day or seven days into a week. But his 13-month calendar was intended to smooth out variations in the standard calendar, in which months can be anywhere from 28 to 31 days long and have four and sometimes five weekends.

Pension fund offers clout

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — If you are one of the 50 million Americans with company retirement benefits, your pension fund gives you economic clout in corporate boardrooms and the stock market, says Clifford W. Smith.

Smith, a professor of finance at the University of Rochester, says pension funds and other institutional investors vote more actively than individuals on antitakeover amendments and management proposals that would harm shareholder interest.

Pension funds with assets of over $2 trillion also account for about 40 percent of trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

"Your average large fund holds some of nearly all securities traded in U.S. capital markets," Smith says.

Pitney Bowes pays settlement

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Pitney Bowes Inc. agreed to pay $75,000 to the U.S. government rather than face potential claims stemming from a contractual dispute over the sale and rental of copying equipment to U.S. agencies, officials said Friday.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Jeremiah Donovan said the General Services Administration and Pitney Bowes disagreed over the interpretation of a 1984-85 contract worth $1.95 million to the Stamford-based manufacturer of office machines.

Officials said the contract was awarded under the GSA's multiple award schedule program in which GSA negotiates contracts with a number of vendors who may then sell covered products to participating federal agencies at prices established in the GSA contract.

The contract gave the U.S. government "favored customer" status and entitled it to the lowest prices available to anyone for copying machines, equipment and supplies, Donovan said.

He said the government thought Pitney Bowes didn't live up to that part of the contract. "If any other customer gets a lesser price, then we're entitled to it too," Donovan said.

John O'Mahoney, a Pitney

Bowes spokesman, said the company maintains that the terms of its contracts with customers other than the government justified charging them lower prices.

"The GSA had claimed it was entitled to more favorable pricing as a result of certain contracts. We maintain the differences in the terms and conditions of other contracts justified the pricing," O'Mahoney said.

"But rather than dispute the GSA's claim, Pitney Bowes decided to settle the matter in the interest of satisfying an important customer."

The government said it never filed a lawsuit or administrative charges against Pitney Bowes over the contract dispute. It characterized the $75,000 payment as being made "in settlement of potential civil and administrative claims or causes of action" against the company.

Donovan said $75,000 was "a compromise between what we thought we should have been charged under the contract and what Pitney Bowes thought should have been charged."

Woman wins IUD case

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A federal jury on Friday awarded nearly $9 million to a woman, saying G.D. Searle & Co. was negligent in testing the Copper-7 intrauterine device and misrepresented it, which was a cause of the woman's sterility.

The jury awarded Esther Kociemba, 30, of Elk River $7 million in punitive damages, $1 million for emotional distress and $750,000 for pain and disability.

The jury decided Mrs. Kociemba's husband, William, did not experience the loss of consortium as a direct result of his wife's use of the Copper-7 and did not award him damages.

Jurors also concluded that the Chicago-based Searle was not negligent in its design or manufacture of the Copper-7 worn by Mrs. Kociemba.

Jurors refused to comment on the verdict. Searle attorney Paul Strain of Baltimore said the verdict will be appealed.

Diabetics need foot care

ORADELL, N.J. (AP) — Diabetics should look at their feet every day for early identification of small lesions so as to prevent future problems.

Even so, there may be times when a diabetic will have to remain completely off his feet because of a foot infection, says Patient Care magazine. Moderate exercise with good foot support can help improve circulation. Wear cotton or wool socks and good leather shoes that fit well. Never go barefoot, wear cheap plastic shoes or socks with holes.

These tips will help the diabetic's sub-par blood circulation and skin defenses, not just in the foot but around the entire area below the knee.

Yale study suggests best ways to cope with pangs of jealousy

O' beware, my lord, of jealousy: It is the green-eyed monster, which doth mock The meat it feeds on — Shakespeare's "Othello"

By Larry Rosenthal
The Associated Press

NEW HAVEN — Pangs of jealousy can best be overcome by maintaining your normal daily activities and sticking to your goals rather than by trying to "get in touch with your feelings," research by two Yale psychologists has found.

The psychologists say their research also showed that thinking positively about ones good qualities and doing nice things for oneself, a defense strategy they term self-boasting, does little to stave off jealous despair.

The psychologists, who have been studying jealousy over the past five years, based their latest findings on an examination of how 95 Yale undergraduates coped with both jealousy and envy.

"We like to think getting in touch with your feelings is a good thing, that exploring how you feel will make you feel better," said Peter Salovey, assistant professor of psychology, in a recent interview. "But we found that strategy actually made you feel worse in jealousy-producing situations."

"Ignoring your feelings and getting on with your daily work and striving even harder... for what you want works better," he said.

The psychologists term that coping strategy self-reliance. Victims of jealousy may long to curl up at home with a bowl of ice cream while recalling every word of praise ever uttered by family, friends and acquaintances, Salovey said.

Such a strategy may appear to be the best way to help bolster bruised self-esteem, but he said the research found it does little to reduce the pain of jealousy.

The study by Salovey and Judith Rodin, a professor of psychology, medicine and psychiatry, is to be published in the fall issue of the Journal of Social and Clinical Psychology.

In the study, conducted during the 1986-87 academic year, students rated the frequency with which they experienced jealousy-provoking situations in four "life domains," the amount of jealousy experienced and the way they coped with each situation.

While self-boasting is not an effective way to prevent envy or jealousy, it was the only coping strategy that kept students from becoming depressed once they were already jealous.

The psychologists described a third coping strategy as selective ignoring. In employing this defense, a person says, "Ah, it's not so important to me anymore anyway," Salovey said.

"But I suppose there is a limit to how many times you can do that. Nothing is going to be important to you... if you employ it all the time," Salovey said.

From their studies, the Yale psychologists have found that in the normal course of human relationships people are going to experience envy and jealousy, and "to the extent they do not run your life, they may be healthy and helpful," Salovey said.

The researchers found in their study of the Yale students that there are very few situations where anyone would feel jealousy or envy. To predict when someone will feel envious or jealous, "you have to figure out what they stake their sense of self on," Salovey said.

Conner easily sinks the New Zealanders

By Sid Moody
The Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — Dennis Conner won his third America's Cup on Friday in a breeze, completing a 2-0 whitewash of New Zealand. But the angry series is headed for a final decision in a courtroom.

Sailing at times faster than the wind, Conner drove his 60-foot catamaran across the finish line miles ahead of his Kiwi rival.

The race was a repeat of the first match Wednesday with the 132-foot New Zealand monohull hopelessly out of it after the first few minutes.

New Zealand's owner, Michael Fay, who sued twice to become challenger in a race the Americans did not want, said before Friday's race he would go back to court regardless of the outcome. He claims America's Cup rules outlaw a match between a catamaran and a monohull.

Conner won the start by a whopping 39 seconds and lengthened his lead as a light westerly picked up as the race progressed.

Conner drove Stars & Stripes over the line to a horn-blowing salute from some 1,000 spectator yachts. New Zealand, with Fay aboard as part of the deck ballast gang, finished an anticlimactic 21 minutes, 8 seconds, unofficially, in Conner's wake.

Conner easily took a 1-0 lead in the best-of-three match Wednesday. The man who won the Cup in 1980 and again in 1987 after losing it in 1983, the first American to do so in the Cup's long history, was a no-bets choice barring a breakdown aboard his intricate speedster.

The weather over the 39-mile triangular course out on the Pacific Ocean was far calmer than events ashore. During a stormy news conference after the race, Kiwi tactician Peter Lester accused Conner of "making a mockery" of the race by not sailing Stars & Stripes at top speed.

Conner replied angrily: "I guess when he's won four America's Cups he can tell me how to do it."

While not saying as much in so many words, the Kiwis apparently think Conner is sailing just slow enough to avoid proving Fay's protests that the cat-monohull encounter is a mismatch illegal under the ancient Cup rules.

Conner's cat is the first ever to race for the Cup. It probably will be the last. Past and present Cup holders reached a landmark agreement Thursday on procedures they hope will stop the rancor that has marked this series before, during and most certainly after.

STARTING MANEUVERS — The Stars and Stripes hard-sail catamaran and the New Zealand challenge yacht maneuver for position at the start of Friday's race. Dennis Conner sailed to an easy victory.

Parcells has headache in preparing for 49ers

By The Associated Press

The troubled state of Joe Montana's elbow has left Bill Parcells in a troubled state. He doesn't know whether to prepare for Montana or Steve Young when his New York Giants face the San Francisco 49ers Sunday.

"We've got Randall Cunningham in our division, so I think our players kind of know what you have to do to defend against guys like that," Parcells says of the mobile Young, who will replace Montana if his sore elbow leaves him unable to start.

"But you've got two sets of problems there," he adds. "When Young comes in, he runs some bootlegs. They spread the field a little bit more. And since he's left-handed, they run more to the left side."

Both the Giants and 49ers enter the game following opening-week victories over key division rivals. The Giants beat the Washington Redskins 27-20 Monday night, a day after San Francisco had beaten New Orleans 34-33.

In other games Sunday, Chicago is at Indianapolis.

UCLA gets another shot at turning tide on Nebraska

By Herschel Nissenson
The Associated Press

There have been a number of sure things in college football recently — Miami will beat Oklahoma, Oklahoma will beat Nebraska, and Nebraska will beat UCLA.

Fifth-ranked UCLA gets another chance to do something about that Saturday when the Bruins meet second-ranked Nebraska in the Rose Bowl (9 p.m., EDT, ABC-TV).

The day's only other pairing of Top Twenty teams finds ninth-ranked Michigan at No. 13 Notre Dame (9 p.m., EDT, CBS-TV).

Nebraska, which trailed the series 3-0 after UCLA ended its 32-game unbeaten streak in the 1972 opener, has had the Bruins' number since Tom Osborne became head coach in 1973.

Top-rated Miami is idle this week, while third-ranked Clemson entertains Furman, No. 4 Oklahoma opens at North Carolina, sixth-ranked Southern California visits Stanford, No. 7 Auburn plays host to Kentucky, eighth-ranked Georgia is at home against Texas Christian and 10th-ranked Florida State, No. 1 a week ago, tries to rebound from its 31-0 embarrassment at the hands of Miami by hosting Southern Mississippi under the lights.

In the Associated Press Second Ten, Fullerton State is at No. 12 West Virginia, No. 14 Alabama at Temple under the lights, Rutgers' at No. 15 Michigan State, Western Carolina at No. 16 South Carolina at night, No. 17 Iowa at Kansas State, No. 18 Penn State at Virginia for a night game.

The Giants have already placed punter Sean Landeta and backup left cornerback Wayne Haddix on injured reserve. Mark Collins, the regular left corner, has a sprained ankle, although he's expected to start.

NFL Roundup

lis, Miami at Buffalo, New Orleans at Atlanta, Pittsburgh at Washington, the Los Angeles Raiders at Houston, Tampa Bay at Green Bay, San Diego at Denver, the New York Jets at Cleveland, New England at Minnesota, Detroit at the Los Angeles Rams, Kansas City at Seattle, and Cincinnati at Philadelphia.

Both the Giants and 49ers enter Sunday's game banged up.

In addition to Montana's sore elbow, which has left him 50-50 for the game, the 49ers will probably be without free safety Ronnie Lott, who has a strained left hamstring.

"Ronnie hasn't been healthy for weeks," Coach Bill Walsh said. "He's probably going to be out for two or three weeks. We have to rest him to get him healthy."

The game also marks something of a scheduling oddity. It's the fourth time in three years the Giants have faced San Francisco and Washington in consecutive weeks. They beat the Redskins and 49ers in succession two times in 1986 — in the regular season and the playoffs — then lost two in succession last season in strike replacement games.

New Orleans, meanwhile, will try to get back on track against what figures to be an easier opponent — on the road against the Atlanta Falcons, who lost 31-17 to Detroit last week.

"Our defense didn't play well at all," Saints coach Jim Mora said after the 49ers ended New Orleans' 12-game regular-season winning streak. "Any time our offense scores 33 points, I would hope that we would win the ball game."

Bosox widen lead as Yanks trim the Tigers

BOSTON (AP) — Mike Greenwell hit a two-run triple in the first inning and Wade Boggs had his 55th multihit game with a homer and a double as the Boston Red Sox beat the Cleveland Indians 7-4 Friday night to take a 2 1/2-game lead over Detroit in the American League East.

The second-place Tigers lost to the New York Yankees 3-2.

Dwight Evans also homered, his 15th, as the Red Sox won for the fourth time in their last five games and improved their home record to 46-23, best in the majors.

Staked to a six-run lead, Mike Boddicker, 11-15 overall and 5-3 since being acquired from Baltimore, got the victory.

Boggs, aiming for his fifth batting title, also drew his 104th and 105th walks in addition to his 186th and 187th hits of the season. He needs just 13 more hits with 22 games left to become the first player in this century to reach 200 hits in six consecutive seasons.

Boggs began the first with a walk off Rich Yett, 8-5, and one out later Dwight Evans singled. Greenwell then lined a triple to the 420-foot mark in center for his 108th and 109th runs batted in. When shortstop Jay Bell's relay throw to third went into the Cleveland dugout, Greenwell scored for a 3-0 lead.

Boggs led off the third with a line drive into the left-field screen for his fifth homer, his first since July 17.

The Red Sox made it 6-0 in the fourth, chasing Yett. Jody Reed grounded a double inside the third base bag and scored on a single by Rich Gedman. Boggs doubled off the scoreboard in left and right-hander Mike Walker made his major league debut, replacing Yett.

Walker walked Barrett on four pitches, then walked Evans on a 3-2 count, forcing home Gedman. Walker checked the Red Sox through the sixth, then gave way to Don Gordon, who was greeted in the seventh by Evans' homer high into the screen in left.

Boddicker allowed eight hits but only one run before giving way to Dennis Lamp after Andy Allanson and

AL Roundup

Bell started the seventh with singles. Lamp gave up an RBI single to Julio Franco to center and, after retiring Terry Francona on a bunt, surrendered a two-run single to Joe Carter and was replaced by Bob Stanley.

Stanley ended the rally, but then was replaced by Lee Smith after Brook Jacoby led off the eighth with a single. Smith finished for his 24th save.

The Indians scored a run in the fifth on singles by Allanson and Bell, a walk, and Francona's double play grounder to second.

Yankees 3, Tigers 2

NEW YORK (AP) — Claudell Washington led off the ninth inning with a home run, just New York's second hit of the game, and the Yankees beat the Detroit Tigers 3-2 Friday night in a matchup of two teams trying to stay alive in the American League East race.

The loss dropped the second-place Tigers 2 1/2 games behind Boston as the Red Sox beat Cleveland Indians, 7-4. It was the Tigers' 15th loss in their last 18 games.

Washington hit his eighth home run on a 3-1 pitch from Walt Terrell, 7-13. The Yankees, held to Rickey Henderson's triple in the sixth inning, won for only the fifth time in 15 games and remained 4 1/2 behind the Red Sox.

Dale Mohoric, 3-7, shut out Detroit on one hit for 2 2-3 innings for the victory.

The Yankees beat the Tigers 7-4 in 10 innings Thursday night when Gary Ward hit a three-run pinch homer.

Terrell held the Yankees hitless until the sixth when Henderson got his one-out triple on a drive that barely eluded right fielder Dwayne Murphy. Henderson then scored the tying run when he jarred the ball loose from catcher Matt Nokes after Washington's grounder to shortstop Alan Trammell.

Blue Jays 8, Orioles 1

BALTIMORE (AP) — George Bell drove in four runs and Jim Clancy allowed seven hits in eight innings Friday night as the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Baltimore Orioles 8-1 for their seventh victory in eight games.

In his last seven games, Bell has three four-RBI games. It was the third straight victory for Clancy, 9-13, who has won five of seven decisions since the beginning of August. Tony Castillo got the last three outs for the Blue Jays.

Twins 1, White Sox 0

CHICAGO (AP) — Fred Toliver allowed one hit in eight innings and Dan Gladden drove in the game's only run with a double in the third inning, leading the Minnesota Twins over the Chicago White Sox 1-0 Friday night.

Toliver, 7-3, took a no-hitter into the seventh inning when Steve Lyons lined a clean single to center field.

Jefferies, Mets continue onslaught on NL pitchers

MONTREAL (AP) — Greg Jefferies walloped a two-run homer in a three-hit game and Howard Johnson and Mookie Wilson added solo shots to power the New York Mets to a 7-3 victory over the Montreal Expos Friday night.

Jefferies added a double and triple, pacing a 14-hit attack, as he raised his batting average to .422 since being called up from Triple-A Tidewater on Aug. 25. It was the second game in which Jefferies collected a homer, double and triple.

With the victory, the NL East-leading Mets maintained their nine-game lead over Pittsburgh and reduced their magic number for winning the division title to 15.

Terry Leach, 7-2, pitched 2-3 innings in relief of starter Sid Fernandez to gain the victory. Roger McDowell pitched the final three innings for his 15th save.

Brian Holman, 3-7, took the loss. Johnson's 24th homer tied the game in the fourth, but Nelson Santovena replied with his eighth homer in the bottom of the inning to give the Expos a 2-1 lead.

Jones singled and stole second and third before scoring on Hubie Brooks' single to make it 3-1 in the fifth.

NL Roundup

The Mets took control in the sixth when they exploded for five runs on five hits.

Wilson started things with his seventh homer and Gary Carter singled before Dave Magadan and pinch hitter Tim Teufel followed with RBI doubles. One out later, Jefferies hit his fifth homer off reliever Rich Sauveur.

New York's final run came in the seventh when Wilson singled home Darryl Strawberry.

Pirates 5, Phillies 2

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mike Dunne won for the first time in two months and the Pittsburgh Pirates tied a National League record with four sacrifice flies to beat the Philadelphia Phillies 5-2 Friday night.

Dunne, 7-11, ended a four-game losing streak that covered eight starts since the All-Star break. His last win was over the Los Angeles Dodgers on July 9.

He gave up five hits before needing relief help in the eighth from Jim Gott, who posted his 28th save. Dunne, Andy Van Slyke, Barry Bonds and Glenn Wilson all hit sacrifice flies as the Pirates became the sixth National League team to get four in a game. They fell one short of the major league record set last month by the Seattle Mariners.

Cardinals 6, Cubs 2

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Two-run doubles by Ozzie Smith and Pedro Guerrero keyed a five-run rally in the sixth inning that gave the St. Louis Cardinals their fifth straight victory, a 6-2 decision over the Chicago Cubs Friday night.

The Cardinals rallied against Calvin Schiraldi, 3-11, who retired St. Louis' first 15 batters. Greg Mathews, 4-5, helped set up the Cardinals' rally with a one-out bunt single.

Jose Oquendo opened the Cardinals' sixth with a single, and one out later Mathews beat out his bunt toward first base.

Vince Coleman next singled to load the bases. Smith followed with his double into the right-field corner, and Guerrero doubled off the left-field fence. St. Louis' fifth run scored when Chicago third baseman let Denny Walling's grounder get past him for a two-base error.

It was St. Louis' 11th victory in its last 14 games. Chicago has lost eight of its last 11.

Sports in Brief

Husky gridders open today

STORRS — The University of Connecticut football team will kick off its 1988 season today at 1 p.m. when it hosts the University of Richmond in Yankee Conference action at Memorial Stadium.

Both UConn and Richmond are ranked in the preseason Division I-AA national poll. UConn is ranked 20th while Richmond is seventh. The Huskies were 7-4 a year ago while Richmond earned a share of the Yankee Conference title with a 6-1 league mark and 7-5 overall.

UConn, led by junior quarterback Matt DeGennaro, defeated Richmond, 21-14, last year. Scott Vibberts, a 1986 East Catholic graduate, will start at fullback.

MCC soccer kicks off

The Manchester Community College men's soccer team will open its season today as it will take part in the two-day Greenfield (Mass.) Community College Tournament. MCC will play Vermont Tech today. The Cougars' first home game will be Sept. 17 against Becker Junior College at 2 p.m.

Bolton volleyball starts

BOLTON — Bolton women's volleyball begins Wednesday at Bolton High School. It will be held weekly from 7-9 p.m. and ends Nov. 9. Rec cards are required and can be obtained at the community hall. For further information, call Joyce Crayco at 649-0594.

Felke sets world mark

BERLIN (AP) — Petra Felke of East Germany set a world record in the women's javelin Friday with a throw of 262 feet, 5 inches — improving her old mark of 258-10 set last year.

Felke broke the mark in her last throw at East Germany's final track and field tuneup in Potsdam before the Olympic Games in Seoul later this month.

Sports in Brief

Tyson in Soviet Union

MOSCOW (AP) — Undisputed heavyweight champion Mike Tyson arrived in the Soviet Union on Friday at the start of a working trip for his wife, actress Robin Givens, and a vacation for him.

But before he could begin relaxing, Tyson had to answer more questions about the car wreck in New York on Sunday that left him with a concussion and had one newspaper reporting that he threatened suicide shortly before the wreck.

"I don't want to kill myself," Tyson, 22, said when asked about the newspaper report. "I feel great," he said of the injuries he suffered when his car struck a tree in the driveway of a friend.

O's rehire Robinson

BALTIMORE (AP) — Hall of Famer Frank Robinson, the only black manager in major league baseball, will be back in the dugout running the Baltimore Orioles next season, the club announced Friday.

Robinson, 53, who also became the first black to manage a major league team 13 years ago, signed a year-to-year rollover contract, which assures him of a position in the club's front office should he be replaced as manager.

Texas A&M on probation

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M University's football team was barred from bowl games after this season and placed on two years' probation Friday after the NCAA found the school violated at least 25 rules.

The penalties, outlined in a 12-page single-space order from the National Collegiate Athletic Association, also cut the number of scholarships the school may offer incoming players next year, cut the number of visits recruits may make to the school's campus and trimmed the number of coaches who are allowed to make recruiting visits.

Jackie Sherrill, the athletic director and football coach, also was placed on administrative probation for two years. University president William H. Mobley said it was unlikely the school would appeal the decision.

Walker, Sanders in front

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Colleen Walker and Susan Sanders shot 4-under-par 68's on Friday and took a one-shot lead over Cathy Johnston in the opening round of the $250,000 Cellular One-Ping Golf Championship at Riverside Golf and Country Club.

Walker's 68 marked her 27th sub-70 round of the year, tying a Ladies Professional Golf Association record. Muffin Spencer-Devlin led a group at 2-under-par 70.

U.S. leads amateur golf

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Veteran Anne Sander of Seattle scored an even par 73 in one of the last groups Friday to give the United States a one-shot lead midway through the women's World Amateur Golf Team Championships.

Earlier, Pearl Sinn of Bellflower, Calif. posted a 71 for a combined U.S. 36-hole total of 291, 1-under par. Carol Thompson of Sewickley, Pa., the third U.S. team member, had a 75 in the morning. Only the two in each round count in the standings.

Gallagher, Barr in tie

FRANKLIN, Wis. (AP) — Jim Gallagher, who had to win a playoff in the qualifying round to enter the tournament, shot a second straight 67 Friday to tie Canadian Dave Barr for the lead after two rounds of the $700,000 Greater Milwaukee Open.

Gallagher and Barr, who shot a 68, were tied at 10-under-par 134 after two trips around the 7,030-yard Tuckaway Country Club course. David Ogryn, also seeking his first Tour win, was third at 136 after shooting a 66.

Donnie Hammond, who had a 69, Chip Beck, who shot a 67, Mike Sullivan, who had a 68, and Mike Bender, with a 69, were next at 137.

EC runners are thinking of good year

By Jim Tierney
Manchester Herald

After a rebuilding season a year ago, the future looks brighter for the East Catholic High boys' cross country team as it heads into the 1988 campaign.

The Eagles endured a 2-3 dual meet record last year, finished fifth in the All Connecticut Conference and fourth in the state Class MM meet. Second-year Coach Paul Haggerty feels positive as his club heads into this season.

"They're stronger than last year," he said. "It'll still be a tough year in the ACC. You can't really expect to do a lot in the ACC with Xavier, St. Bernard's and Notre Dame of West Haven. We'll do a lot better than last year."

Topping the list of returnees is junior Dan Feehan, sophomore Chris Ray, and seniors Tom Carlson and Pete Lopatka. Others looked upon for scoring will be sophomores Greg Claglo and Craig Damaschi, seniors Ed Baronecni, John Mulligan and Len Quesnette along with impressive freshman Dan Thiery. Haggerty's main goal is to make the State Open Meet.

"We want to be first or second in the MM meet and make the Open," he said.

Schedule: Sept. 15 Notre Dame/Manchester A, 17 Windham Invitational, 20 St. Bernard's/Waterford A, 24 Guilford Invitational, 27 St. Joseph H.

Oct. 1 St. Anthony's (N.Y.) Invitational, 4 Xavier/Fairfield Prep H, 8 Wickham Park Invitational, 11 Northwest Catholic A, 15 Brown Invitational, 21 ACC Championship (Norwich Golf Course), 29 Class MM Meet, Nov. 4 State Open Meet, 12 New England Meet.

East swimming has more depth

By Len Auster
Manchester Herald

There won't be any superstars who'll score points consistently, but the East Catholic High girls' swimming team will be able to reach deeper into its ranks for points in 1988.

"We don't have any star swimmers, those who'll take every event they're in. But we have more depth than last year," said East fourth-year coach Jim Neff.

The Eagles were 2-11 in dual meet action a year ago. They dive into the '88 campaign on Friday when they visit Middletown High School at 4 p.m.

Among the top prospects on the Eagles' 25-girl roster are senior Tricia McGuinness (freestyle), junior Lynn Krawczyk (backstroke/freestyle) and junior Leslie Caromile (breaststroke/individual medley). Sophomore Stacey Luoma and her older sister Kerry, a senior, are also among the top point contenders. Stacey will compete in the freestyle events with Kerry in the butterfly along with freestyle.

Sophomore Chris Dube leads the East divers while among the freshmen, Kerry Murphy could lend support in the IM.

"We'll have more depth in most events. We should improve (record-wise)," Neff said.

Schedule: Sept. 16 Middletown A, 20 E.O. Smith H, 22 Hamden A, 27 Glastonbury A 7 p.m., 30 Winsted H, Oct. 3 St. Joseph H, 7 Wethersfield A, 14 Haddam, Killingworth A, 18 Windsor A, 25 Manchester A 7 p.m., 28 Windsor Locks H, Nov. 12 State Qualifying Meet. Home meets at the Manchester High School pool. Most meets at 7:30 p.m.

East girls thinking positive

By Jim Tierney
Manchester Herald

A positive attitude will be the prevailing theme as the East Catholic High girls' cross country team heads into its 1988 campaign which begins with a dual meet at Sacred Heart in Hamden on Wednesday.

East will be under the guidance of first-year coach Kathy O'Neill who replaced Kathy Kittredge at the helm. O'Neill, a 1983 graduate of East Catholic, directed the Northwest Catholic girls' squad to the Class SS title last year.

The Eagles experienced a fine season a year ago finishing second in the All Connecticut Conference, second in Class MM, third in the State Open and ninth in the New England Championships.

East's main nemesis, as it was a year ago, will be St. Bernard's of Uncasville which garnered the ACC, Class MM, and State Open titles in 1987. St. Bernard's also secured fourth in the New England.

"My goal is to have my girls reach their potential," the 23-year-old O'Neill said. "With our full potential, I think we'll give St. Bernard's a good race." East faces St. Bernard's in a tri-meet with Waterford High in Uncasville on Sept. 20.

Topping the list of returnees is sophomore Nancy Byrne who had an outstanding freshman campaign, is looking for a big sophomore season with the East Catholic High girls' cross country team.

grader, will be the Eagles' fifth runner.

"Noel and Sarah could both be All-State," O'Neill said.

Other key personnel for East will be seniors Lesley Perlmann, Colleen Madden and Lisa Sheridan, junior Liz Carriera, sophomores Jen DeMarco and Allison MacDonald, along with freshman Katie Litke.

Schedule: Sept. 14 Sacred Heart A, 17 Windham Invitational, 20 Waterford/St. Bernard's A, 24 Guilford Invitational, 27 St. Joseph H.

Oct. 1 St. Anthony's Invitational (N.Y.), 4 Mercur H, 8 Wickham Invitational, 11 Northwest Catholic A, 15 Brown Invitational, 21 ACC Championship (Norwich Golf Course), 29 Class MM Meet (at Wickham Park), Nov. 4 State Open (at Wickham Park), 12 New England Meet.

Bolton girls need some work

By Len Auster
Manchester Herald

BOLTON — A team older in experience, yet still young as far as knowing the game will take the field for the Bolton High girls' soccer team in 1988.

"Last year we had a junior-freshman team, so as far as experience it's an older team having played one year," says Bulldog third-year coach Mike Landolphi, "but we still have a lot of work to do. We have to work more on the basic skills. The other programs always have a good nucleus and good feeder system. I have to spend more time with the basics so I know it'll take awhile."

The Bulldogs, 5-7-2 a year ago, suffered a blow before their Thursday home opener against Hale-Ray of Moodus when senior Leah Dinocenza was injured in a scrimmage. The '87 all-Charter Oak Conference fullback will be out 10 days with a bruised foot. "Having Leah out is going to hurt us," Landolphi said.

Bolton can least afford an injury on defense, inasmuch as Landolphi foresees continued problems on offense. The Bulldogs scored only 11 goals in their 14 games last year. "I can see that (scoring) as a problem," Landolphi said.

Either sophomore Danielle Curlyo or freshman Maureen Griffin will open in goal for the Bulldogs. Landolphi hopes to get Curlyo out as a field player eventually. The back line should include sophomores Lisa Williams and Stacey Beyor, the latter a transfer from Windham High, and senior Sara Lewis. The latter will be used defensively until Dinocenza returns.

The midfield slots are open for the taking. Lewis, seniors Meg Matyia and Lauren Clark and sophomore Rebecca Carrier are among the candidates. There are also six inexperienced sophomores who may see time in this area.

Senior Jen Maneggia, who led Bolton a year ago with three goals, will see action up front at either striker or wing. Senior Amber Alteman and sophomores Anna Depold and Jessica Braheena will also be on the attack line.

"We have to work more on skills and working together. Part of that is I've done a lot of substituting in the scrimmages," Landolphi said.

Until that happens, Bolton may struggle.

Schedule: Sept. 15 Hale-Ray H, 17 Colchester H 11 a.m., 21 Parish Hill H, 23 East Hampton H, 26 Bacon Academy A, 29 Portland H, Oct. 3 RHAM H, 6 Cromwell H, 11 Waterford H, 13 Coventry A, 17 Rocky Hill A, 20 East Hampton A, 24 Bacon Academy H, 27 Portland A, 31 RHAMA 3 p.m. Games not noted 3:30 p.m.

Dent gets favorable NFL ruling

By Lindsay Tanner
The Associated Press

CHICAGO — The NFL lifted Chicago defensive end Richard Dent's 30-day suspension Friday for violating the league's drug policy and ruled he could play in the Bears' game on Sunday.

Michael Coffield, a lawyer representing the NFL, made the surprise announcement Friday before a Cook County Circuit Court hearing scheduled on a lawsuit Dent filed in a bid to overturn his suspension.

Dent dropped his suit when the NFL agreed to allow him to play in Sunday's game and to give him a hearing before commissioner Pete Rozelle next week. Coffield said the hearing would be scheduled at a time convenient to both sides.

"I am very pleased ... to say that Richard Dent will play on Sunday," Coffield announced in court, noting that he is a Bears fan.

The ultimate decision on whether Dent will play against the Indianapolis Colts game is up to the Bears, said Mitchell Pawlan, a lawyer for Dent. The Bears had planned to move Al Harris into Dent's spot.

"Richard Dent will accompany the team to Indianapolis, and will dress and will be in uniform for the game against the Colts on Sunday," Bears spokesman Ken Valdiserri said.

But he said he didn't know when a decision would be made on whether Dent would actually play.

Valdiserri said the team had no comment on the NFL's action Friday.

Dent's lawyers filed the lawsuit Thursday in an unprecedented challenge of the NFL's two-year-old drug policy. Dent was suspended for 30 days earlier in the week by the NFL after he refused to take a urine test, a violation of the league's drug policy.

Dent's lawsuit sought an injunction to bar his suspension "until such time that the NFL demonstrates the validity and integrity of all of Dent's prior (drug) tests."

Dent's lawyers also sought an emergency order to allow the defensive end to play Sunday.

Pawlan said the issues to be resolved are "the propriety of Richard Dent refusing to take the test" and Dent's contention that he did not receive proper written notice of previous tests.

MHS looks to make amends

H.S. Preview

By Jim Tierney
Manchester Herald

Following a frustrating 1987 campaign in which it went 3-8-5 and totaled only 14 goals, the Manchester High School boys' soccer team is out to make amends for past disappointments.

An experienced senior group highlights the Manchester roster under ninth-year Indian Coach Bill McCarthy, who is hoping for a successful season.

"The majority of the team is back from last year," McCarthy said. "We have a lot of experience and they are in great shape. The whole team is anticipating a good year." Manchester kicks off its season Thursday at home against Rockville High.

Senior Jeff Bernier will be back in goal for the Indians with seniors Glen Jensen at sweeper-back and Doug Harvey at stopper-back anchoring the defense. Seniors Jonas McCray and Dan Kelsey will be the outside fullbacks. Sophomore Mike Milazzo will be the reserve goalie.

Patrolling the midfield will be senior Jeremy Dieterle at center halfback. Dieterle led the Indians in scoring with just three goals last season. Senior Mike Sardo and junior David Stephenson will flank Dieterle in the midfield.

With a solid and experienced defense and midfield, a sound offense will carry the Indians a long way. McCarthy addressed the offensive question marks on his squad.

"We're going to put more pressure on the (opponents) backs this year," he said. "With our experience, we'll be able to do more things in the opponent's half of the field. I think it (the scoring) will be spread around. They feel good about it this year."

McCarthy has been impressed with his squad's scrimmage matches thus far. "It's been a pleasant preseason," he said. "Maybe looking back at the record last year motivated them over the summer."

Key reserves for Manchester will be seniors Jim Melesko, Mike Callahan, Eric Fleming, Ted Miller and Greg Murray, juniors Corey Craft, Eric Wolfgang and Dave Campbell along with sophomores Dwayne Goldston, Nigel Cooper and Illing freshman Bill Kennedy.

McCarthy sees a tight CCC

East race with East Hartford as the favorite along with Enfield, Fermi, Windham and Manchester. "It'll be a real dogfight," he said.

Schedule: Sept. 15 Rockville H, 17 Wethersfield A (10:30 a.m.), 20 Fermi A, 23 Windham A, 27 South Windsor H, 30 Hartford Public H, Oct. 4 Enfield A, 4 East Hartford A (7 p.m.), 11 Rockville A, 14 Fermi H, 18 Windham H, 21 South Windsor A, 25 Hartford Public A, 28 Enfield H, 31 Noll H (3 p.m.), Nov. 2 East Hartford H (3 p.m.). ## Something has to give in Lendl-Agassi match

By Barry Wilner
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Ivan Lendl hasn't lost at the U.S. Open in 26 matches. Andre Agassi hasn't lost anywhere in 23.

On Saturday, something will give — either Lendl's run for a fourth consecutive Open crown or Agassi's charge for a fourth straight tournament title this summer.

Lendl, the top seed, and Agassi, rated fourth, will meet in the semifinals. Mats Wilander, the No. 2 seed who is seeking his third Grand Slam crown this year, plays unseeded Darren Cahill of Australia in the other match. The winners meet Sunday. Agassi comes off an emotional whipping of Jimmy Connors in what many have called the passing of the torch in American men's tennis. The 18-year-old Agassi lost his only official match with Lendl in 1987 at Stratton Mountain, Vt. They also split a pair of exhibitions this year.

"I think that we both learned more about each other's games, but you can never really count on exhibitions much," Agassi said. "We played in L.A. and he beat me 6-4, 6-2. Then we played in Reno and I beat him 7-6, 6-3."

"You just have more of a feel for what he might do. It's not so much that you learn a weakness, because nobody is going to be No. 1 with a weakness."

Agassi is making his second Grand Slam semifinal appearance this year. He lost to Wilander at the French.

"I don't mentally believe I could have won that match against Wilander because it was the first time there," he admitted. "Against Wilander, I was more motivated to just go out there and have a good match. With Ivan, I want to go out there and try to win."

Lendl struggled early in this event, but was overwhelming against Derrick Rostagno in the quarterfinals. "This was an indication that the next couple of days, my timing will be good," he said after that match.

This has not been a particularly satisfying year for Lendl, even though he's remained atop the rankings. He has not won a Grand Slam crown this year.

"There is always the next Grand Slam title," Lendl said. "When I lost the Australian, I knew there was the French. And after the French, I knew there was Wimbledon. And after Wimbledon, I knew there was one more left — here. And if not, there is always 1989."

"It's not going to be a fantastic year for me, even if I win here. A great year is to win two Grand Slam titles."

EVERT HAS TO PULL OUT

Graf in walkover into Open finals

By Rick Warner
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Chris Evert pulled out of her U.S. Open semifinal against Steffi Graf Friday because of a stomach virus, moving Graf to within one victory of the Grand Slam.

"My body feels like it's been through a war," Evert said in a statement released by the Women's International Tennis Association.

"Every muscle and joint aches. Physically, I couldn't go out and play. I don't have any energy."

Graf, who is trying to become the first Grand Slam winner in 18 years, will play her doubles partner, Gabriela Sabatini, in Saturday's women's final.

Sabatini, the fifth seed, beat No. 11 Zina Garrison 6-4, 7-5 in the semifinals Friday.

But the match was overshadowed by the withdrawals of Evert and Rick Leach, who was forced to pull out of the men's doubles final because of a similar virus. Leach and Jim Pugh had to default their match against Sergio Casal and Emilio Sanchez of Spain.

Graf, who had beaten Evert six straight times, said she was disappointed by the walkover.

"I was very up to play today," she said at a news conference. "I wanted to play very badly. Now I have to think about tomorrow."

Tournament physician Gary Wadler said Evert withdrew "with great trepidation and sadness, but we both agreed there was no way she could play today."

Wadler said Leach had a 103-degree fever, while Evert had a temperature of 101. The doctor said both players were also suffering from vomiting and diarrhea.

Biondi gets run for his money upon arrival in Seoul

SEOUL, South Korea — Matt Biondi's gold medal grind reached this Olympic city Friday night when the American swimmer raced uneasily through a crush of cameramen after arriving at the airport.

While his coaches tried to lower high expectations, the media besieged Biondi as if he was a favorite to win all seven events he is entered in and match Mark Spitz's 1972 cache of seven swimming gold medals.

"I don't think seven gold medals is realistic," Nort Thornton, his coach at the University of California, said in the darkened parking lot after Biondi had battled his way to the team bus. "I think it's ridiculous."

"It's not fair" to expect Biondi to do that, said U.S. swimming team coach Richard Quick.

Yet many media members, who weren't even sure they could recognize Biondi before he emerged from the customs check and stepped before their spotlights, treated him as if he already were an Olympic star. His first race still was eight days away.

Pushing a luggage cart as he ran the gauntlet, the 6-foot-7 Biondi stayed hunched over beneath a straw hat and remained silent as photographers backpedaled in front of him while stern-faced policemen tried to clear a path.

Once on the bus after struggling to survive his first race of the Olympics, Biondi wore a disbelieving smile and occasionally shielded his face with his hat to confound cameramen shooting through the window. A man with a tape recorder boarded the bus and went up to Biondi but was quickly ejected as the swimmer clapped.
