Chemicals crisis plan up for OK

By Andrew J. Davis
Manchester Herald

The Local Emergency Planning Committee is poised to accept the most comprehensive plan ever developed to handle chemical emergencies in Manchester, but some companies have yet to report what chemicals they store.

Fred Weill, committee staff assistant, said today that the majority of companies in town storing highly hazardous chemical materials have reported what chemicals they store. But he said there may be others the committee does not know about.

Eight companies have reported to the committee that they store highly hazardous materials, and there are "one or two" companies that the committee knows about and must obtain information from, Weill said.

But there may be a number of other companies that have not reported to the committee because the committee is unaware either of their existence and their use of chemicals, and the companies do not know they have to report.

"I believe we have all the... companies that we are aware of." Weill said. "There may be others that have not informed us."

The comprehensive emergency response plan will be submitted for committee approval Thursday, Weill said. The report, which defines what chemicals are stored at certain companies, must be submitted to the state in a month.

Richard Kraatz, town health director, is chairman of the committee. The committee is comprised of town health, fire, and police officials as well as representatives from some of the major corporations in town such as the Donwell Co., Purdy Corp. and Rogers Corp.

"You can't suddenly respond to (emergencies)," Kraatz said. "You have to be prepared."

The emergency response plan is a result of the federal Superfund Amendments and Reauthorization Act of 1986. The act also required businesses to report the use of certain types of chemicals used at their sites to local, state and federal governments.

While the state, which is coordinating local planning efforts, does not have a computer system to maintain chemical storage information, Manchester will have one soon. The $18,000 IBM computer and software package has been ordered, he said.

The town is still looking for an emergency information manager to maintain reporting requirements that will go into the computer. Kraatz said. That job will become very important next year when reporting requirements become broader and more chemicals will have to be reported, Kraatz said.

Whether special chemical-lighting equipment will have to be purchased, and such a decision would not be made until the completion of the report, Kraatz said. Currently, firefighters have air bags and protective suits to deal with emergencies, he said.

What would happen if a disaster strikes?

By Andrew J. Davis
Manchester Herald

A truck barrels down Main Street on an ordinary afternoon. In its cargo is a hazardous chemical that, if released, could pollute the air around the center of town and place residents in jeopardy.

If an accident occurred and the chemical was released, what would town officials do? Who would be in charge? Firemen, police or the town manager? Where would people be evacuated?

First, the accident would have to be evaluated. A Type III accident, the most serious of three levels, would call for evacuation and require the combined expertise of local, state and possibly federal officials, according to the town's Interim Emergency Response Plan.

Ronald Kraatz, town health director and chairman of the town Local Emergency Planning Committee, said a Type III incident does not happen very often.

"Those are rare," he said. "It's not likely to happen very often. At the same time, we know the potential is there."

An example of a Type III incident would be the recent chlorine factory fire in Springfield, Mass., which is about 30 miles from Manchester, he said.

According to state law, the fire department is in charge of all such emergencies, Kraatz said. On the other hand, the fire department would be dependent on the knowledge of state officials, who have most of a background in dealing with such incidents, he said.

After the chemical is identified through such sources as shipping papers or through the help of the responsible company, the town manager, currently Robert B. Weiss, would determine whether the incident requires an emergency response, according to the response plan.

If people needed to be evacuated, the Senior Citizens' Center would be the first place they are sent to, while Manchester High School would be the second choice, Kraatz said.

The senior center can accommodate 160 people for sleeping and 400 for interim relocation, while the high school can handle 940 people for sleeping and 3,500 for relocation, according to the response plan.

The Red Cross would staff the facilities, Kraatz said. School buses or private automobiles would be used to transport people to the evacuation sites.

Hurricane packs winds of 175 mph

By Chris Angelo
The Associated Press

MERIDA, Mexico — Hurricane Gilbert slammed into the resort island of Cozumel with 175 mph winds today, and thousands of people on the nearby Yucatan Peninsula fled coastal areas for the interior.

Residents along the Gulf coast of Mexico, 560 miles to the north, stockpiled food and supplies and prepared to evacuate. The hurricane, one of the strongest in history, is "extremely dangerous," the U.S. National Weather Service said.

Oil companies evacuated thousands of workers from rigs in the Gulf of Mexico, according to reports from New Orleans.

The National Weather Service in Miami said the eye of the storm was near the island, 12 miles off the Yucatan coast, at 9 a.m. EDT. Gilbert was reported at latitude 24.4 north

Race in 4th may be only local contest

More than a week after Labor Day, when election campaigns usually begin in earnest, the local races remain dominated by the contest between Democrat Michael Meotti and Republican Carl Zinsner. That contest is likely to continue to be the most provocative and energetic one in the picture.

Much of the exchange between the two candidates seeking election as state senator from the 4th Senatorial District has centered on the mechanics of how they will debate each other, but their apparent disagreements on debate procedures have been about matters more important than whether they would be sitting down or standing up during the debates.

And beyond that, they have indeed been debating some substantive policy matters through news releases and responses to news releases. They have made it obvious they will be disagreeing in the next few weeks on whether the Democratically controlled General Assembly acted responsibly in adopting a state budget for the current year and whether the change in the formula for granting state aid to education did or did not treat some towns in the district unfairly.

In Manchester's 12th Assembly District, the Republican Party has been unable to come up with a candidate, making the re-election of Democrat James McCavanagh a foregone conclusion.

Duke hits Bush's liability

By Donald M. Rothberg

WASHINGTON - Michael Dukakis relishes running against Dan Quayle. "Is there anybody here today," he recently asked - a shirt-sleeved orator in Portland, Ore. - "Is there any citizen in the United States of America, who thinks Dan Quayle is qualified to be the nation's drug czar?"

Loud cheers and hoots from the partisan crowd. A week later, Dukakis was in Chicago to deliver an address on his view of U.S.-Soviet relations, the kind of speech aides were quick to describe as "major."

Dukakis has as great a dilemma and fewer options on the other principal target of his stump speeches - Ronald Reagan. Twice now - in 1980 and 1984 - the Democrats took their best shots at Reagan. The total score: Reagan '83 states, Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale '79.

U.S. mission was botched by middleman

WASHINGTON - Secret Iran-Contra papers, still under court seal, describe in depressing detail how a middleman, Manuchur Ghorbanifar, botched a 1986 White House mission to Iran, and then double-crossed both sides.

The White House depended on Israel to slip a U.S. delegation into Iran through the back door. The Israelis, in turn, placed too much trust in Ghorbanifar. CIA professionals warned that he was unsavory and unreliable. They monitored his telephone calls, confirming the assessment. In addition, they gave him a five-hour polygraph test, which he flunked.

Nevertheless, the late CIA director, William Casey, had so much confidence in the Israelis that he pushed ahead with the mission. It was left to the dubious Ghorbanifar to arrange for the Americans, led by former National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane, to visit Iran. On May 25, 1986, the Americans arrived in Tehran. Incredibly, there was no one to meet them.

They carried suitcase communications equipment, but no scramblers, so they could keep in close contact with the White House. Their first message was several hours late. "This is not going the way we expected," they reported urgently from Tehran. "Ghorbar (Ghorbanifar) doesn't have this thing organized."

When the Democratic nominee wants to attack the record of the past seven and a half years, he is doing what Democrats had hoped they would never again have to endure - he is campaigning against Ronald Reagan.

There is no easy way out of that dilemma. To win, Dukakis must convince voters that it's time for a substantive change whether they agreed or not with the policies of the Reagan years.

That's not an easy case to make when most economic statistics are favorable and the outgoing president remains very popular. Twenty-eight years ago, John F. Kennedy defeated Richard M. Nixon. But the country had just been through a recession and the U.S. economy had led to a sharp downturn in U.S.-Soviet relations.

Small-business owners need typewriters

DEAR MR. ROSS: My husband and I own a small "Ma and Pa" business selling antiques. We hand strip, repair and restore old furniture. We do quality, guaranteed work.

Thanks A Million
Percy Ross

We've worked so long and hard to get this far, but now we could lose our entire business. We were hard hit financially due to a sledge in my health. Thank God I'm OK now.

Business has fallen off terribly this season. We were scheduled to do furniture work for several families, but they're now cancelling as they've been afflicted by this awful drought.

We must pay our workshop rent or we'll lose our business. However, I'm not writing for rent money. If I had a typewriter I could do typing for local, small businesses at home.

We can't go to anyone else for help — so I'm asking you. We never, ever want to be in this terrifying bind again. We're already so embarrassed by being forced to ask your help.

Should our name appear in the newspaper, it would add another blow to our self-esteem. So, I ask that you please keep our name confidential.

MRS. S.O.,
MADISON, WIS.

DEAR MRS. O: I respect your wish to remain anonymous. In fact, I even changed your initials and city. However, who is "forcing" you to ask my help?

DEAR MR. ROSS: I'm not much on writing letters. It seems like a chore, because letters have to be more exact than conversation, but here goes:

I'd like to go on a travel group tour to New Orleans to recover buried treasure of $500,000.

What I need is money for transportation and three days lodging in order to retrieve it. I would appreciate anything you can do for me.

MR. L.S.,
KANSAS CITY, KANSAS

DEAR MR. S: Then I hope you'll appreciate my assistance even though it comes in the form of advice. Don't Waste Your Time! Think about it. If it all took to get $500,000 was transportation to New Orleans and a few days lodging, don't you think the rest of us would have already been there and back?

I realize this is a small problem, but it's very important to me. Sir, I have no family so I thought I'd take a chance on asking you.

Within a month, by God's grace, I should have found new employment. Thank you for extending any help my way.

MR. E.R.,
BRONX, N.Y.

DEAR MR. R: I'm not sure what caused your stomach ulcer to start off with, but I'm sure being unemployed isn't helping any. So let me hand you some news that's easy to stomach. You'll have one less thing to worry about, on the outside chance you don't find employment in 30 days. My forthcoming check will cover a three-month supply of medication.

Scabies sores keep returning

DEAR DR. GOTT: My sister is 87 and lives in a retirement home. She has had scabies for a year. She takes oral medicine and the nurse appoints her the sores repeat. What else can we do?

DEAR READER: Scabies, a skin condition marked by intense itching, is caused by the itch mite, a parasite that burrows into the skin and deposits her eggs. It is highly contagious but easily treated with Kwell lotion. Your sister may be experiencing repeated infections, courtesy of any nursing-home residents or workers. I believe that she will continue to have symptoms until the environmental sources of the mites are eradicated.

Speak to her doctor about this problem because she will have to deal with more than your sister to prevent recurrences.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My son stepped on a nail and developed secdosporium inflatum. He's had two hospitalizations for intravenous antibiotics, three operations on the foot, and it still persists. He's only 7, and is losing bone. What is our next step?

DEAR READER: Secdosporium is now known as monosporium, a type of fungus that can cause deep tissue infection. Your son appears to have contracted a rare infectious disease of the foot, called maduromycosis or madura foot. This serious chronic condition is caused by more than 20 different micro-organisms, of which monosporium is one.

The problem with madura foot is that the fungus (and secondary bacterial contamination) are difficult to treat. The inflammation penetrates deeply, antibiotics may give only temporary relief, and surgical drainage may be necessary. In advanced cases, amputation may be the only method of stopping the infection.

Fortunately, maduromycosis progresses very slowly, and modern anti-fungal drugs, such as amphotericin B, are often effective. I think that your son needs the combined expertise of an orthopedic surgeon and an infectious disease specialist. Working together, the two doctors can advise you further.

Congratulations to husbands who lift their wives' careers

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Gretzky's move has special significance for me because my husband did the same thing for me 16 years ago, when I was an energetic young executive employed by a large national organization with offices in every major city in the country. I was offered a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity that would necessitate moving from Los Angeles to New York. My husband was doing well at the time with a California law firm. I didn't even have to ask him. He offered to move to New York to further my business career.

The word "wimp" was not even in the language then, but he was called "weak," and a few other things that are not printable.

As it turned out, it was a great move for both of us. I'm sure this is not so unusual today, but 16 years ago, I took a real man to subordinate his career to his wife's.

Homeowner needlessly fears zoning officer

Smart Money
Bruce Williams

DEAR BRUCE: I am renting one bedroom in my house to a family member, a cousin. The neighborhood zoning law does not allow for roomers, and some of my neighbors say the infraction penalties are going to be in trouble with the zoning officer if they find out.

One of my friends commented that I probably don't have the proper homeowners' insurance to cover my renter. Now they've got me so worried that I'm about to ask my cousin to leave.

My husband recently passed away, and I have nobody else to turn to. Can you help?

part of Florida. I recently made a trip to Germany, my native country, after many years. Naturally, I visited relatives and friends. I stayed one week with a close girlfriend friend — the mother of three grown children. She was very good to me and knows that she is welcome here at any time.

Well, she had written to me that her 25-year-old unmarried son, whom I met for just a few minutes, is coming to America to stay for several months. She informed me that she had given him my address and phone number, and I should "expect" him.

Abby, I know that he was well-raised, but I am old-fashioned and the thought of having this young man as a guest for several months is not pleasing to me. What shall I do?
OLD-FASHIONED
DEAR OLD-FASHIONED: I think you should write to this "close girlfriend friend" and tell her quite honestly what you have told me, that you would not be comfortable having her son stay with you for several months.

DEAR BRUCE: First of all, I wouldn't worry at all about the zoning officer. There is nothing to prevent you from having a family member live in your home, and there is nothing to prevent you from having that person pay you for the cost of room and board.

makes mistakes in grammar? I only want to help him and he knows it, but he can't take any kind of criticism. Please tell me how to handle this.

DEAR MEANS WELL: I hope you do not correct him in the presence of others. If you do, he will react in a hostile manner. When he's in a good mood, have a heart-to-heart talk with him. Tell him you love him and ask him if he wants to be corrected (privately, of course) when he makes a mistake in grammar. If he doesn't, bit your tongue and let it go.

DEAR READERS: In celebration of his 100th birthday, the National Geographic Society commissioned Gallup — the Rolls-Royce of pollsters — to find out what Americans know about geography.

The results were startling: One in five of those polled could not name one country in Europe. Three out of four could not find the Persian Gulf on a map. One in four could not find the Pacific Ocean. One in two could not locate South Africa. Worse yet, 50 percent could not find New York State on a map, and 14 percent could not even find the United States.

Swimmer pulls out

AVAILON, Calif. (AP) — Ashby Harper, who is the 25-year-old swimmer on the English Channel and around Manhattan, had to stop a 19.1-mile ocean swim midway between Santa Catalina Island and the mainland when he fell ill.

Harper, who plunged into the water at the island's Emerald Cove at 1 p.m. on Monday, was forced to quit at 5:45 a.m. "I feel fine physically," he said in a 10-page shore telephone interview about an hour after he climbed aboard his escort boat, the Golden Greek. "But I'm naturally disappointed."

He doesn't plan to try the endurance swim again this summer. "If I do try again, it will be next summer," I think," said Harper, adding, "I'm only 71, you know."

Ives to play poet
Buri Ives

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Buri Ives, the 79-year-old poet, will play Whitman's poetry during a recent interview with the Minneapolis Star-Tribune.

Ives, 79, who won an Academy Award for best supporting actor for "The Big Country" in 1958, and wife, Dorothy, chose to write the script for "The Mystic Trumpeter" — Whitman's poem that was familiar to Whitman's works as they were.

Ives, whose white-bearded appearance is strikingly similar to Whitman's, begins his appearances as the poet Thursday at the Lobero Theater here.

SCIENCE & HEALTH

Lab license bill OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP) — A move to require all medical laboratories to be licensed by the federal government won approval in the House.

The laboratories, including nearly 10,000 such labs in doctors' offices nationwide, perform four billion to six billion tests a year for diagnosis and monitoring of disease, and some have been criticized because of rushed procedures that can lead to mistakes.

Under the bill, passed Tuesday on a voice vote, all medical labs would have to meet quality control, personnel and equipment standards and would be subject to penalties for violations.

Current law subjects hospital and independent laboratories to regulation, but physicians' offices are free from scrutiny.

IUD award approved

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A federal judge approved nearly all of an $8.75 million jury award to a woman whose lawsuit against G. D. Searle & Co. said the manufacturer's Copper-7 intrauterine device left her sterile.

However, in his ruling Tuesday U.S. District Judge Robert Renner lowered the award to Esther Koeciema for emotional distress from $1 million to $400,000, based on state law limiting such awards to the lower figure.

Renner upheld a $7 million punitive damage award and a $750,000 damage award for pain and suffering.

In its verdict Friday, the jury found that the Copper-7 was not properly tested, that Searle failed to warn about risks connected with the birth-control device and that the company intentionally misrepresented the IUD.

The jury found that Searle was not negligent in designing or manufacturing the Copper-7.

Oras are quite noisy

TRADELL, N.J. (AP) — Respiratory noises that children may range from soft gurgles to full-blown wheezes, snoring and snorting.

Most can be distinguished by history and physical examination and even by a doctor listening to the child's breathing over the telephone. A common source of parental concern is a "snurgle" — a sound produced by infants as they inhale through loose mucus in the nose.

But such breathing, while noisy, is normal and will disappear as the baby grows.

The constant coughing and sniffling prevalent in young children is, by contrast, mostly habitual and can be broken by a patient doctor using some behavioral modification techniques.

BOY IN A BUBBLE — Sean Barrett, 5, of Dover, N.H., sits and holds his breath inside a soap bubble Friday during the Bubble Festival at the Children's Museum in Portsmouth, N.H.

This failure is particularly striking since we now know that the majority of these people can be successfully treated and rehabilitated," said the two advocacy groups, adding that the major responsibility lies with the states.

"Rehabilitation services and housing for the seriously mentally ill remain on the best of days seriously deficient and on the worst of days abysmal," they said.

But the report also said that in general, it can be said that hospital care for the seriously mentally ill in state mental hospitals is "somewhat worse than it was two years ago while outpatient services are modestly better."

The report said conservative estimates suggest there are almost 2 million people in the United States who are seriously mentally ill.

Panel mulls study using fetal tissue

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — A National Institutes of Health advisory committee is considering new medical experiments that would require freshly aborted fetal tissue even as the White House is proposing to ban such emerging research.

The committee was to begin a three-day meeting today, less than a week after it was revealed that a proposed executive order from the White House — not intended for public disclosure — would prohibit experimentation with fetal tissue.

Some members of the advisory panel, which includes doctors, researchers, lawyers and medical ethicists, were offended that the White House had proposed a ban on the use of fetal tissue without consulting them. The White House had a chance to meet with the committee.

The session was to begin with opening remarks from NIH Director James B. Wyngaarden, who appointed the committee on the instructions of Dr. Robert E. Windom, the assistant HHS secretary for health.

The issue surfaced last April when NIH sought clearance for experiments in which brain cells from a fetus would be transplanted into patients suffering from Parkinson's disease.

Windom denied permission, saying new questions raised by such research warranted careful review.

Researchers are hopeful the new techniques will prove useful in treating Parkinson's and a variety of other diseases such as Alzheimer's and juvenile diabetes.

However, the treatment involves use of fresh brain cells, virtually requiring that they be obtained from planned, induced abortions, rather than natural miscarriages.

The moral and ethical questions raised are illustrated by an expressed desire by some women to become pregnant so they can produce an aborted fetus to use in treating relatives.

Senate scraps proposal for Medicaid abortions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate abandoned an effort to expand federal coverage for Medicaid abortions in the face of strong opposition from the House and the White House.

The Senate in July had voted 73-19 to allow federal financing for Medicaid abortions for women who are victims of rape or incest, but it backed down on Tuesday in a row to political reality.

Under current law, federal spending for Medicaid abortions is permitted only if the procedure is needed to save a woman's life. The House reaffirmed its support for that policy last week, and in the process rejected the Senate's strong opposition for rape and incest exceptions.

President Reagan had promised to veto a $140-billion spending bill containing all the fiscal 1989 money for the departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education if it came to him with the Senate's abortion provision.

"We're going to see how politically expedient we want to be, added Sen. James Exon, D-Nebr., sponsor of the provision adopted by the Senate in July.

Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., chairman of the subcommittee that has sponsored the spending bill told his colleagues it would be futile to resist the will of the House and White House.

It took Chiles two tries to kill Sen. Exon's motion insisting on the expanded Medicaid coverage. He lost the first vote 46-44 but prevailed on the second, 47-43.

State among leaders in care of mentally ill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although Connecticut officials welcomed the news that the state has been ranked among the top six states in providing services to the mentally ill, they said a lot of work still needs to be done.

The survey, released Tuesday by the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill and the Public Citizen Health Research Group, concluded that Rhode Island, Wisconsin, New Hampshire, Maine, Vermont and Connecticut are the best at providing services.

"I am very pleased that Connecticut's progress in improving services for our mentally ill citizens has been recognized," said Michael F. Hogan, the state's commissioner of mental health.

However, Hogan said, the deficiencies in the system are "sovereign."

Develop a service system that is truly and uniformly responsive to individuals who live with serious mental illness, and their families," he said.

"A great deal remains to be done, especially in the areas of improved housing and community support services, including case management and crisis intervention."

Public Citizen Health Research Group and the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill held a news conference in Washington to discuss the results of their joint survey.

Lowest-rated in this year's survey were Hawaii, Arizona, the District of Columbia, Delaware, Wyoming, Idaho and Mississippi.

The two public health groups concluded that inadequate care for the seriously mentally ill is "the major failure of American medicine and social services."

Nicholas DeMichael of Hamden, president of the Connecticut Alliance for the Mentally Ill, said, "We have a long way to go to

Some ask repeal of needle law

HARTFORD (AP) — In response to the AIDS epidemic, some Connecticut health officials are advocating the repeal of a 17-year-old law that forbids the sale and possession of hypodermic needles and syringes without a prescription.

"I favor abolishing that law. I do absolutely," said Donald J. McConnell, executive director of the Connecticut Alcohol and Drug Abuse Commission.

Contaminated needles are one of the chief means of transmitting the disease among intravenous drug users.

McCannell and other health officials believe repealing the law would be a more workable alternative than a needle exchange program in which drug addicts would be allowed to turn in used needles for clean ones.

McCannell said he isn't convinced rolling back the law would prevent addicts from sharing needles, since that's large part of the drug culture. But, he said, it was worth trying.

The Manchester Symphony Orchestra & Chorus

Dr. Alvarez, presently interim Dean of Academics at Hart College and Music Director and Conductor of the Hart Symphony Orchestra, was chosen from a field of approximately fifty candidates to succeed Dr. Paul C. Phillips of the University of Connecticut.

The M.S.O.C. has an exciting season of programs planned, blending symphonic "Classics" by Dvorak, Tchaikovsky and Brahms with more contemporary "Classics" by Bartok, Respighi and Griffes.

Featured guest artists this season appearing with the M.S.O.C. are Alan Spritzerbach, guitarist and Mary Ellen Jacobs, flutist, both highly acclaimed and renowned musicians from the Hartford area.

The orchestra concerts of Nov. 5, 1988, and January 28, 1989, as well as the April 10 orchestra and chorus combined concert, will also include Manchester High School students participating in the performance as well. The Jan. 28, and April 10 concert will also be held at 8:00 P.M. at the Manchester High School Auditorium.

David Cyle Morse, returning for his fifth season as Director of the Manchester Symphony Chorus, takes charge of the podium Dec. 2, at 8:00 P.M. to conduct the Chorus in a program of Christmas music including selections from Handel's Messiah at St. Mary's Episcopal Church, 41 Park St., Manchester. The unusual Friday night setting for the concert date is because the Chorus leaves the following day, Dec. 3, for a concert performance to be given at 4:00 P.M. at the Old North Church, Boston, Mass.

The chorus joins the orchestra on April 10, 1989 in an all Brahms program featuring a performance of the Requiem, Op. 45.

The M.S.O.C. concert season closes with a preliminary festival to all, "An Evening At The Pops" on May 19 and 20, 1989. The program will be presented at the Lower Program Center on the Manchester Community College campus, Bidwell St., Manchester.

Cool and wet weather helps control wildfires

By The Associated Press

Firefighters battling Western blazes got a helping hand from weather so cool and wet that a crew was pulled out of the wilderness near Yellowstone National Park for fear they'd be trapped by snow. "Things are real calm," said spokesman Greg Kroll. "We've had some pretty good precipitation." Fires also burned in California, Utah, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, Alaska and Washington state as the worst fire season in 30 years continued. Calmer 5-7 mph winds, lower temperatures and higher humidity were a blessing to California's Gold Rush country, where a fire has burned 52 square miles since Sunday and destroyed 97 homes and 60 other buildings. Firefighters had surrounded 90 percent of the blaze today. The thousands of residents evacuated Sunday or Monday were allowed to return to the homes. About 30,000 firefighters battled 32 fires in eight Western states, said White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater. President Reagan received a briefing Tuesday from a Cabinet-level team that toured Yellowstone.

Reagan policy: No debate now, just douse 'em

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's spokesman says no time should be wasted now arguing over the controversial "let burn" forest fire policy and that the government's attention will be focused on snuffing out blazes raging in eight states. The comments came after President Reagan was briefed Tuesday at the White House on the fires, which have charred some 4 million acres during the summer. Reagan was told there was no way to predict when the fires will be put out, but that the administration has dedicated "every resource available" to doing so, said spokesman Martin Fitzwater. Asked about the harsh criticism that has erupted over the Park Service policy of letting naturally occurring fires burn, Fitzwater contended it was not the time for such a debate. He noted that the policy had been suspended in July and that any new fires that erupt will be fought for the remainder of this year's fire season. "It doesn't serve anybody to get into discussions about policy disputes," he said, adding, "We're in the middle of a fire situation of serious proportion and we're fighting it with everything at hand." Noting that the nation hasn't seen such fires in its history, he did acknowledge that the situation calls "for some review of the policy."

FIRESTORM SURVIVOR — Don LaLonde sifts through the remains of his fiancée's parents' home Tuesday in Lake Wildwood, Calif., after a firestorm swept up a hill and consumed the house and a fire truck. LaLonde and several others were temporarily trapped by the fire when the truck failed to start.

Bush, Duke battle on farms, defense

By The Associated Press

Republican George Bush charged that rival Michael Dukakis wants to control farmers' lives with an outdated agriculture policy. The Democratic nominee hammered away on the defense issue as he promised to improve America's conventional strengths, and maintain a strong nuclear deterrent.

The vice president's criticisms of Dukakis, including the nominee's attacks on his economic and agriculture policies, appear to have paid off — at least according to two public opinion polls. A Gallup survey found Bush leading by an 8-point margin, and Dukakis suffering his highest negative rating of the presidential race. A CBS News-New York Times poll also showed the Democratic nominee trailing by 8 points, and Bush capitalizing on defense issues.

A Los Angeles Times nationwide poll released today showed Bush's lead on the defense issue. Among all registered voters surveyed, 54 percent identified Bush as the candidate who would best strengthen a strong defense while only 26 percent answered Dukakis.

Dukakis continued to respond to GOP complaints that he is weak on defense with a foreign policy speech today at Georgetown University in Washington and a visit to Annapolis, Md. Bush planned to tour a farmer-owned cooperative in Fresno, Calif., and visit San Francisco's Chinatown. President Reagan planned a foray into Missouri today to stump for Bush with speeches on his administration's economic successes and the nation's military strength.

Democratic vice presidential candidate Lloyd Bentsen looked to reinforce Dukakis' defense stance as the former pilot inspected World War II aircraft today and toured a defense contractor in Texas. GOP candidate Dan Quayle planned a visit to NORAD, the North American Aerospace Defense Command, in Colorado. Campaigning in Missouri on

NATION & WORLD

Paying past-due dues

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is releasing $188 million in overdue U.S. payments to the United Nations after becoming convinced that the world body has reformed some administrative and budgetary procedures. At the same time, the White House said Reagan told the State Department to work out "a multi-year" repayment plan involving some $520 million in arrears that have piled up in recent years because of U.S. dissatisfaction with the way the U.N. was run. "In announcing these decisions, the president called on the United Nations to continue progress in areas where reform remains incomplete," spokesman Martin Fitzwater told reporters. "The president reiterated the commitment of the U.S. to assist the U.N. in its reform program as well as in its new peace keeping efforts," he said. In addition to the roughly $520 million in late dues payments, the United States is in arrears to the tune of $11.8 million in the assessments it is supposed to pay toward the separate U.N. peace keeping budget.

KISSING THE GROUND — Pope John Paul II kisses the ground Tuesday on his arrival at Sir Seretse Khama Airport in Botswana. The pope is on a 10-day trip to five south African nations.

Pope visits South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Pope John Paul II, who had planned to bypass South Africa on his tour of the region, landed in Johannesburg today after bad weather diverted his scheduled flight to Lesotho. The pope, an outspoken critic of South Africa's racial segregation policies, did not kiss the ground, as he customarily does the first time he visits a country. Officials at the Vatican and in Lesotho announced a convoy was organized to drive the pope and his delegation 270 miles across South Africa to Lesotho, a mountain kingdom completely surrounded by South Africa. In Maseru, Lesotho, police using helicopters and armed vehicles today surrounded a bus filled with 60 nuns, school girls and other pilgrims after guerrillas hijacked the vehicle en route to a Mass the pope was to celebrate. A nun today said some of the 60 captives had been released.

Suspect blasts witnesses

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Mohammed Ali Hamadi today accused witnesses at his trial of failing to tell the truth a day after they testified that Hamadi gloated over the killing of an American passenger during the hijacking of a TWA jet. Hamadi, a Lebanese Shiite Moslem, is accused of murder and air piracy in the June 1988 hijacking. U.S. Navy diver Robert Stethem was killed and 39 Americans were held captive for 17 days. "The testimony very often deviates far from the truth," Hamadi told the court today. On Tuesday, flight engineer Benjamin Zimmerman described how Hamadi pointed with pride to bloodstains of the murdered U.S. hostage and earlier, pilot John Testrake identified Hamadi as the hijacker who shot Stethem to death and said he was the leader of the operation.

U.S. monitors test

SEMPALATINSK, U.S.S.R. (AP) — U.S. experts for the first time monitored a Soviet nuclear test explosion today at this long-secret testing ground in the republic of Kazakhstan, the official Tass news agency reported. At 100-150 kilotons, the blast had a force several times more powerful than the bomb that devastated Hiroshima, Japan, at the end of World War II, Tass said. The Hagfors Ob observatory of the Swedish Defense Research Establishment said it measured the explosion at 50-150 kilotons. Buried in a hole more than 2,000 feet underground, the nuclear explosion was not expected to have a noticeable impact at the observation site about 30 miles from the site in the vast, sparsely populated region 1,700 miles east of Moscow.

Wisconsin Democrats prefer new candidate

By The Associated Press

Wisconsin Democrats dashed the comeback hopes of a former governor by nominating a millionaire sports club owner to succeed Sen. William Proxmire, while a Republican legislator became the first woman chosen by either party for a Senate seat this year.

Elsewhere in six state primaries Tuesday, two Republican congressmen from New England passed the first hurdle toward higher office. Vermont Rep. Jim Jeffords won the right to face Democrat William Gray, a former U.S. attorney, for the seat of retiring GOP Sen. Robert Stafford. New Hampshire Rep. Judd Gregg, son of a former governor, captured his party's nomination to succeed Republican Gov. John Sununu and will run against Democrat Paul McCaighern.

In Arizona, Republican candidates loyal to Gov. Evan Mecham were having mixed results in primary challenges to more than a dozen legislators who voted to impeach or convict Mecham last spring. Senate President Carl Kunasek was defeated by Mecham supporter

Chemical emergencies

There are three levels of disaster the town must be ready to deal with, Kraatz said.

A Type I accident happens the most often. Kraatz said. It usually is something as simple as a gasoline spill and is easy to clean up, he said.

A Type II incident happens much less frequently, maybe once every few years, and is more hazardous, he said.

An example of a Type II incident would be the ammonia leak at Manchester Ice & Fuel Inc. last year, which required the evacuation of residents, Kraatz said. The second leak was caused by an equipment failure in a high-pressure line that maintains low temperatures in a cooler, fire officials said.

people, he said.

If more people needed to be evacuated than the town could handle, mutual aid plans worked out with neighboring towns would go into effect, Kraatz said.

The evacuation of Manchester Memorial Hospital and local convalescent homes would be contingent on where the accident occurred and whether people would be put in a greater danger by not evacuating them, Kraatz said.

"You don't evacuate those facilities unless in dire need," he said.

The police department would handle the evacuation, control the crowd, and support rescue vehicles, Kraatz said. Ambulances would also be available, if needed, he said.

The state also would provide assistance with controlling the accident, with clean up and getting the responsible company to pay for cleanup, said Charles Ziemiński, principal emergency response coordinator for the Department of Environmental Protection.

The town has never had a Type III incident.

8 firms report chemicals

Eight companies in Manchester have reported the existence of extremely hazardous chemicals at their plants to the Local Emergency Planning Committee. The committee will review a report on efforts to deal with chemical emergencies at its Thursday meeting.

The companies and the chemicals stored are listed below. The report includes how the town will deal with emergencies and evacuation plans since the companies are close to residential neighborhoods, schools, nursing homes and Manchester Memorial Hospital.

The effects of the chemicals range from the respiratory problems and burns associated with chlorine to respiratory problems, burns or possibly death if hydrofluoric acid is inhaled.

The eight companies with hazardous chemicals are:

- Rogers Corp., Mill and Oakland streets, bromine, chlorine, phenolic resin.
- Manchester Ice & Fuel Inc., 51 Bissett St., ammonia.
- Purdy Corp., 586 Hilliard St., hydrofluoric acid, nitric acid.
- Tycos Inc., 50 Harrison St., chlorine, sulfuric acid, sodium hydroxide.
- Manchester Water and Sewer Division, 125 Spring St., liquid chlorine.
- SNET Co., 50 E. Center St., sulfuric acid.
- Northeast Utilities, Olcott Street.
- United Technologies, 140 Progress Drive.
- Northeast Utilities and United Technologies have not completed reports identifying specific chemicals, said Fred Weil, committee staff assistant. The reports, though, will be ready by next month, he said.

Seven other companies which store less hazardous chemicals also have reported to the committee.

They are:

- Empire Tool Tool & Manufacturing Co., 180 Olcott St.
- Gas Turbine Corp. of Manchester, 80 Colonial Road.
- Globe Hollow Water Treatment, Spring Street.
- 1MO Delaval Inc., 80 Sheldon Road.
- Manchester Herald, 16 Brainard Place.
- Sinclair and Valentine, 275 Progress Drive.
- Syndet Products Inc., 201 Boston Turnpike, Bolton.

Second time around

NEW YORK (AP) — A third of the women who married in 1987 were making a return trip to the altar, according to Modern Bride magazine, which reports that of 2,421,000 marriages last year, 823,000 were remarriages for the bride.

Church fair set to begin

By Michele Noble
Manchester Herald

After 11 months of planning, the St. James Ninth Annual Fall Festival is ready for its Thursday kickoff.

The annual three-day festival, which is expected to draw more than 8,000 participants, will include 30 booths, numerous rides for the children, a giant tag sale, three sit-down dinners under a tent each night, and a raffle drawing that includes a 1988 Mercury Tracer. The festival will be held on the church grounds at 896 Main St.

Fair-goers will also be able to enjoy free evening entertainment, which includes music by guitarist Carl Henry of Newington on Friday and polka with Johnny Prytko and The Good Time Band on Saturday.

"We are discovering that we don't have to work as hard at reminding people that we exist," said Arlene S. White, the church's publicity coordinator. "It has become a town tradition."

Terry Parla, the festival's chairman of the booths who began planning the event last November, said the festival, which will be open each day from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m., sells more than 500 dinner tickets each night and expects this year's sales to increase substantially from 1987.

"Last year we were completely rained out except for one day," Parla said. "But financially we still did better than previous years. So this year, if it doesn't rain, we expect it to be fantastic."

Man admits embezzling cash

HARTFORD (AP) — A Middlebury man Wednesday pleaded guilty to embezzling more than $10,000 from the Waterbury post office where he worked, said U.S. Attorney Stanley A. Twardy Jr. said.

Peter F. Lawlor, 50, pleaded guilty to embezzling postal funds before U.S. District Judge Peter C. Dorsey.

Lawlor could receive a prison term up to 10 years, or be fined as much as $10,010, the amount he embezzled, when he is sentenced Nov. 14, Twardy said.

Hurricane

Cancun, but that government figures estimate between 40,000 and 65,000 a month. Cancun has a population of about 100,000 to 150,000, she said.

High winds also were reported in Valladolid, a city of 80,000 located 80 miles southwest of Cancun, said Jose Joaquin Martil, local Red Cross president.

Jamaican Prime Minister Edward Seaga said late Tuesday that at least six people were killed, and an estimated 60,000 were left homeless in "the worst natural disaster in the modern history of Jamaica."

"Everything is a disaster," said Grace Morris of Kingston. "We have to build a complete new Jamaica."

The hurricane center said Gilbert was the most intense storm on record in terms of barometric pressure. It said by 8 p.m. EDT Tuesday it was measured at 26.13 inches, breaking the 26.35 inches recorded for the 1935 hurricane that devastated the Florida Keys.

Trade deficit

cline as proof that the administration's economic policies were working.

"This is great news," Commerce Secretary C. William Verity said in a statement.

"Compared with the same seven months of last year, exports surged 28 percent while imports rose less than 1 percent," Jay Goldinger, an economist with Capital Insight, a Los Angeles investment firm, predicted that the deficit figure would likely remain in the single-digit range in coming months as U.S. manufacturers continue to reap the benefits from the decline in the value of the dollar.

"Our exports continue to climb because our goods are cheaper and imports are declining because we have finally found a price high enough to stop consumers from buying imported goods," he said.

A weaker dollar, in addition to making U.S. products cheaper on overseas markets, makes imports more expensive for American consumers.

For the first seven months of this year, the U.S. trade deficit has been running at an annual average of $17.5 billion, down 19.3 percent from the record $17.3 billion deficit suffered in 1987.

FOOD

Oaty crunch

2 to 3 tablespoons margarine
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup all-fruit straw-berry or apricot preserves
2 cups uncooked quick or old-fashioned oatmeal (not instant or flavored oatmeal)

Combine margarine, sugar and preserves in a large saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until well-blended and smooth. Remove from heat. Stir in oats, nuts and seeds until all are thoroughly coated. Spread mixture into an ungreased shallow baking pan. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven for 35 to 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add raisins, dates or apricots. Mix well. Turn mixture out onto an ungreased cookie sheet to cool. Loosen from pan, but allow clumps to remain. Store in tightly covered container in a cool, dry place.

Yield: About 6 cups.

Chicken Waldorf

2 cups cooked, leftover chicken, diced
1 small unpeeled red apple, in bite-sized pieces
¼ cup chopped celery
¼ cup plain yogurt
2 tablespoons coarsely chopped walnuts
Grated peel of ¼ fresh lemon
1 teaspoon freshly squeezed lemon juice (optional)
Pinch ground cinnamon

Combine all ingredients in a bowl. Spoon into pita bread, onto raisin or whole wheat bread, or serve on a plate with crisp lettuce leaves.

Yield: ¾ cups salad.

Bacon-cheese muffins

1 cup quick-cooking oatmeal
1 cup milk
1 egg, sifted all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup shredded Jarlsburg or other Swiss cheese
¼ cup crisp-cooked, crumbled bacon
3 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 egg, lightly beaten

Combine oatmeal and milk in a medium bowl. Let stand at room temperature for 30 minutes. In a large bowl, combine flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Add all at once to dry ingredients. Beat with a fork. Batter will be lumpy. Spoon into greased muffin cups, filling each two-thirds full. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 minutes, or until golden. Remove from pan.

Yield: 1 dozen muffins.

Mothers can conquer the brown-bag blues

By Nancy Pappas
Manchester Herald

This is the week when many parents start singing the brown bag blues. Those resolutions made in July and August — the ones about making exciting lunches each morning — are beginning to wear thin.

In their place is the seemingly endless question, "What's going into the youngsters' lunch boxes today?"

Bologna and cheese? Roast beef on rye? Oh, no, not peanut butter again!

After a quick inventory of the refrigerator and cupboard, you must determine whether the kids will eat, trade or toss that tuna on toast, or pepperoni in a pita.

If it's any comfort, you're not alone in this dilemma. A nationwide survey company, Roper Inc., has determined that 25 million American children carry lunches at least a few times each week. In the course of a single year, they figure that more than 3 billion lunches are carried to school. That's an awful lot of little plastic sandwich bags!

like, such as plain yogurt flavored with an herb mix or cream cheese and chives softened with a little milk. Save small, firm plastic yogurt containers, and spoon dip into them. Pack in the lunch box with raw vegetables and whole grain crackers.

To many children, breadsticks and cheese chunks, packed separately, will seem more like snacks than a "real lunch." Nothing wrong with that, since every parent knows that kids are always more enthusiastic when chomping on snacks.

Some youngsters love pizza so much, they're happy to find slices of it, at room temperature, in their lunch bags. Wrap well in foil, and don't use pizza topped with hamburger meat. The meat may spoil.

Even kids who like yogurt will often object to the whey, or clear liquid, which forms on top as the yogurt warms up. Use an insulated cloth lunch bag, if possible, and pack a frozen juice box to keep everything chilled.

Toss hot, freshly-popped popcorn with a little grated cheddar or parmesan cheese. It will melt against the popcorn, boosting nutrition while replacing butter and salt.

Everyone who packs lunches needs to get out of the sandwich rut once in a while. Here are some ideas to consider:

No joke, no gimmick: It's orange cauliflower

By Randolph Picht
The Associated Press

GENEVA, N.Y. — Look! ... On the plate! ... It's a carrot. It's a Sweet Potato. ... No, no, it's cauliflower!

That's the cry that someday may be heard in American households that are already trying to deal with purple broccoli, yellow peppers and red bananas. Pretty soon, the list may include orange cauliflower.

"It's no joke. It's not a gimmick. It's something Michael Dickson, a plant breeder at the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station, has spent eight years working on."

"I think people are always interested in something that's different or a new color," said Dickson, who has been growing orange cauliflower for the past several years.

There's a growing interest from consumers to try exotic and unusual fruits and vegetables, said Carol Bowman-Williams, a spokeswoman for Frieda's Finest, which claims to be this country's largest seller of specialty produce.

"More and more people are out looking for the foods they may have tried in another country or read about in a food magazine or tried in a fine restaurant," Bowman-Williams said.

Frieda's Finest, based in Los Angeles, has seen sales rise steadily each year since opening in 1981, and this year the company expects sales of $15 million.

Bowman-Williams said the company would certainly consider adding orange cauliflower to its long list of produce which includes 250 different items including red bananas and purple potatoes.

"We have an open door for anything new and different," she said.

The new cauliflower, which looks like its been thoroughly drenched in cheddar cheese sauce, also is easier to grow, has a longer shelf life than cauliflower now available and is more nutritious.

It tastes just like white cauliflower, Dickson said.

The orange color comes from a high concentration of carotene, the hydrocarbon that gives carrots their color and is converted into vitamin A by the body.

"It's not as high as a carrot or tomato, but it has 300 times the amount of carotene in white cauliflower," said Dickson, a native of England who grew purple broccoli in his family garden as a boy in London.

So far, the orange cauliflower has only been grown as an experimental crop at the agricultural station, although Dickson did take a local market two years ago to see how they would sell.

"I sold out pretty quickly and people were apparently asking for more. Every time I see the owner of that farm stand he asks me to get him some more," Dickson said.

Now, Dickson and researchers at six or seven seed companies are working to come up with a commercially viable seed, a laborious process that involves cross-breeding different cauliflowerers to come up with the strongest hybrid.

"If I or they are lucky, we could have seed out next year. That would be a fluke," Dickson said. "I hope within three or four years we might have some seed on the market."

Dickson, who is conducting several unique research programs for cauliflower, is also trying to come up with a white cauliflower that will grow and stay white for a long period of time.

That research could lead to big savings on the farm, where workers now must go out into the field and tie up the leaves of cauliflowerers to prevent the sun from turning the vegetable brown.

Orange cauliflowerers also don't need to have their leaves tied.

All Facchini wants to be is just himself

Ray Perkins never did fill Bear Bryant's shoes at Alabama. Phil Bengston, Forrest Gregg and Bart Starr couldn't pull off what Vince Lombardi did with the Packers in Green Bay. No one really has replaced Scotty Bowman in Montreal. And Notre Dame is still looking for someone to fill the void left by Ara Parasagian.

Replacing a living legend is a difficult proposition, to say the least. So why is 33-year-old Leo Facchini jumping into the fire at East Catholic High School where Jude Kelly left a major footprint?

"I always wanted to be a head football coach," Facchini said during a recent interview. "And like I said, somebody had to take the job. Jude left, and the job wasn't going to be frozen into a time warp and no one was going to take it."

Isn't that the truth? Besides, if you talk to the man who replaced Facchini, he doesn't want to be the Second Coming of Jude Kelly.

Facchini has been training for a head coaching position since 1979 when he was appointed an assistant coach by Jim McLaughlin at Waterford High School. McLaughlin is the new head coach at cross-town Manchester High School.

"When I started coaching, I didn't know how much was involved in it," Facchini admitted. "Jim was good because he was so organized and so thorough. I couldn't have had a better guy to be initiated under," he said.

Facchini is well aware of the enormous job he's taking over. In nine years at East Catholic, Kelly had a 60-33-2 non-losing record with seven shared or outright conference titles. Eagle teams won state titles in 1985, '86 and '87, with the last two championships via the shootout route. East was the No. 1-ranked team in the state a year ago, ranked in the top 20 nationally by USA Today, and the Eagles go into the '88 campaign with the longest winning streak in the state — 16. East, now No. 3 in the prep scholastic poll, hasn't lost since a 28-16 reversal to Notre Dame of West Haven midway through the '86 season.

"Whether people like it or not, win streaks do come to an end," Facchini said. "My wildest dream is to go 10-0 again. We'll pursue that endeavor to the fullest. But I'm also prepared for the eventuality that you can lose. And if that happens, we'll just roll our sleeves and go back to the drawing board and do whatever it takes to do win."

There will be no shortcuts for success for Facchini or the Eagles. He has great respect for those who have done it before him in the All Connecticut Conference. "The level of coaching in the conference is second to none," he applauds. "You're going up against guys who are football-savvy, guys like Earl Laverly (Fairfield Prep), the winning coach in the state. All the guys have extensive coaching background."

"I know if I don't want to go home an unhappy camper, I have to do my homework. I'll do what I need to formulate good game plans against them," Facchini said.

Facchini said the tone for '88 in the summer. That's when he drove two or three times a week from his Niantic home to East Catholic to run a weightlifting program. Before that, he had spring practice. "That was important to get to know them and to have the summer weightlifting so the kids could get to know me better."

Maybe it'll be week one, or week seven, but Facchini is prepared for those who'll compare. "You follow a guy like Jude who did such a great job and people are going to compare you to him. But I'm the guy who goes home and has to look at himself in the mirror. I feel I have a hard enough exterior that if I don't live up to expectations of those other people, I'll be able to deflect those criticisms."

All Leo Facchini wants to be is Leo Facchini. That should be more than good enough.

ND one of last bastions where 'redshirting' is a dirty word

By Herschel Nissensohn
The Associated Press

"Redshirting," like "Miami," is a dirty word at Notre Dame. The Notre Dame roster for 1988 includes only three redshirts — fifth-year seniors Flash Gordon, Wes Fritchett and Frank Stams, all linemen.

Gordon was granted an extra year of eligibility after a series of injuries prevented him from playing in 1984. Fritchett was not in school during the spring of 1985 and needs this semester to complete his degree requirements. A nagging thigh problem limited Stams to 16 seconds of action in 1986 — ergo, an extra year.

Endowment targets Yale post

NEW HAVEN (AP) — A Yale University alumna who donated $1 million to endow the 1987 football coach's position at the Ivy League school never played varsity football as an undergraduate, but loved the game all the same.

"I love Yale and I love football," said Joe E. Smilow, a 1954 Yale graduate and chairman, president and chief executive officer of Stamford-based Playtex Inc., said Tuesday after the university announced his gift.

"Excellence in football is not a core objective of Yale or any other great institution of higher education," said Smilow, whose college football career was limited to intramural touch football.

"However, it is my belief that football is an integral part of the very broad objective of attracting, educating and motivating persons with the potential to become tomorrow's leaders, irrespective of the field of endeavor which they choose to pursue," he said.

As an undergraduate, Smilow broadcast Yale football games as sports director for WYBC, the college radio station, and said during a telephone interview that his secret ambition had been "to be a Brent Musburger," the sports announcer for CBS.

The Joel E. Smilow Coach of Football position is the first endowed position in the athletic department, according to university spokesman Walter Littell.

Carm Cozza is entering his 24th season as Yale's head football coach. He was a 1968 graduate who played for the Miami Dolphins.

Yale also has more football victories than any other college in the nation — 743, followed by the University of Michigan's 694. Yale also has had 116 players named All-Americans.

Endowed coaching positions are apparently rare, though not unique. Cornell University's football coach's position was endowed in 1982 with a gift from a 1961 graduate and a University of Rochester received a $1-million gift to endow an assistant football coach's position about a year ago.

Smilow, a Westport, Conn. resident, also has a degree from Harvard Business School. He became president of International Playtex Inc. in 1969 and led a management team that bought the company in 1986 to form Playtex Inc.

Smilow's gift "will help carry forward the glorious tradition of varsity football at Yale."

But the gift provoked mild disapproval among several Yale students questioned at random.

"It doesn't surprise me one bit," senior Kirk Semple said. "There is a never-ending supply of funds going in that direction. I wonder if the money could be more wisely spent. I think other departments are wanting for funds."

Sophomore Richard DuBois said it was easier to imagine the gift being made at "a place like Nebraska or UCLA — not a place like here."

Junior Elizabeth Archey said: "The money could go to something else... I can't see what else Carm Cozza could do that would warrant such money."

Smilow brushed aside the criticism, saying the gift would allow the university to use money from the coach's salary in other areas.

Smilow said he was more important at a place like Yale than at a place like Nebraska, because at a place like Nebraska, a strong football program is a given."

SUMMER OLYMPICS '88

At last, an Olympics with all the track world there

By Berl Rosenhoft
The Associated Press

If the Seoul Olympics were a game show category and everything went according to plan, the answers and questions might go like this:

Carl Lewis — Who was the first sprinter to successfully defend his Olympic championship? Ben Johnson — Who, as the 'World's Fastest Human,' spoiled Carl Lewis' attempt to win four gold medals for a second straight Olympic Games?

Jackie Joyner-Kersey — Who was the superwoman who won both the heptathlon and the long jump? Sergei Bubka — Who was the first to break pole vaulting's 20-foot barrier and the first Soviet to win the event in the Olympics?

Edwin Moses — Who won an unprecedented three gold medals in the 400 hurdles between the 1976 and 1984 Olympics? Mary Decker Slaney — What American woman had to beat her own bad luck before finally beating her opponents for an Olympic medal?

Florence Griffith Joyner — What American, known for her striking outfits as well as times, became the first woman since 1972 to win both the 100- and 200-meter dashes? Daley Thompson — Who became the only man to win the decathlon for three straight Olympics?

East Germany and the Soviet Union — What countries finished 1-1 in medals? Puzzles abound for track and field competition beginning Sept. 23 and running through the final day of the Games, Oct. 2, with one off day, Sept. 27.

This being the first Olympics since 1976 with the participation of the Soviet Union and East Germany all competing, the medal count will be watched almost as closely as the individual performances.

Most recently, the three met in the 1987 World Championships at Rome, where East Germany dominated.

The East Germans won the most medals, 31; the most golds, 10; the most silvers by women, 23, and the most golds by women, six.

The Soviet Union finished second in total medals with 25, but the United States was second in golds with nine. The American men also had the most medals, 13, and the most golds, six, in their total of 19 medals.

While the medals table will be closely scrutinized, the individual performances will come under a more powerful microscope. Occupying center stage will be Lewis.

Only he, Jesse Owens in 1936 and Alvin Kranzlein in 1900, have won four track and field gold medals in one Olympics. No one has won four twice in a row and no one has won the 100, 200 or long jump twice.

Lewis will begin his quest for gold in the 100, then compete for the 200 and long jump, and complete an attempt for another sweep in the 400-meter relay, in which he will anchor the U.S. team.

"Anything I do in these Games will be historic," Lewis said. "I have the capability of winning the 100, 200 and long jump. I won't say I will win them, but I can."

consecutive races at various distances on the track before finishing second in a 3,000-meter steeplechase last year — the first time in eight years he had run the event.

Auaita may try both the 800 and the 1,500 at Seoul. Soviet Coach Igor Ter-Ovanesyan calls the pole vault "a complicated event," but he said Bubka "makes it look easy."

At the rate the stolid Bubka is progressing, having raised the world record to 19 feet, 10 1/2 inches, he is considered the No. 1 threat to reach the 20-foot barrier.

The magnanimous Moses also is a world record-holder, with a time of 47.02 in the 400 hurdles, and an athlete with a magnificent winning streak. He had a 10-year string of 122 victories, including 107 finals, before losing last year.

Slaney, world record-holder in the women's mile and the American record-holder at all distances from 800 meters to 10,000 meters, has set to strike Olympic gold — or even Olympic medal, mainly because of injuries or accidents.

In her only Olympic appearance, she collided with Zola Budd during the 3,000-meter final at Los Angeles in 1984 — an incident that became the Games' cause celebre.

Griffith Joyner raced into worldwide prominence during last month's U.S. Olympic trials with a spectacular series of performances in the women's sprints, including an electrifying world-record clocking of 10.49 in the 100.

The African distance runners showed their durability at the World Championships, with victories by Kenyans Billy Konchick and Peter Kipkoech, and by runner Douglas Wakihuru in the marathon, by Abdi Bile of Somalia in the 1,500 and by Auaita in the 5,000.

In addition, the African Olympic contingent will include marathons Ibrahim Hussein of Kenya and Juma Ikangaa of Tanzania. 5,000-meter runner John Ngugi of Kenya, and 3,000-meter steeplechasers Julius Kariuki, Peter Koech and Julius Korir, all of Kenya.

Track and field, the blue-ribbon event of the Games, also will feature several other world record-holders, world champions and Olympic gold medalists.

And getting through the airport will be just the first step in a maze of security precautions that will make getting around the Games almost an Olympic event for spectators.

First, arriving passengers go through a metal detector and luggage X-ray check similar to what they underwent before boarding the plane to Seoul.

Baggage is then subject to thorough searches by customs inspectors. The troops are in the lobbies and just outside the airport terminal, marching in small squads, paratroopers in helmets and commands in green berets. Combat police also stand guard.

Meanwhile, other metal detectors, killing fire people. South Korea blamed North Korea for the attack.

No incidents occurred during the actual games, when troops patrolled the airport and some of the sports complexes with their submachine guns leveled straight ahead. They now point them slightly downward.

At the rate the stolid Bubka is progressing, having raised the world record to 19 feet, 10 1/2 inches, he is considered the No. 1 threat to reach the 20-foot barrier.

The magnanimous Moses also is a world record-holder, with a time of 47.02 in the 400 hurdles, and an athlete with a magnificent winning streak. He had a 10-year string of 122 victories, including 107 finals, before losing last year.

Slaney, world record-holder in the women's mile and the American record-holder at all distances from 800 meters to 10,000 meters, has set to strike Olympic gold — or even Olympic medal, mainly because of injuries or accidents.

In her only Olympic appearance, she collided with Zola Budd during the 3,000-meter final at Los Angeles in 1984 — an incident that became the Games' cause celebre.

Griffith Joyner raced into worldwide prominence during last month's U.S. Olympic trials with a spectacular series of performances in the women's sprints, including an electrifying world-record clocking of 10.49 in the 100.

The African distance runners showed their durability at the World Championships, with victories by Kenyans Billy Konchick and Peter Kipkoech, and by runner Douglas Wakihuru in the marathon, by Abdi Bile of Somalia in the 1,500 and by Auaita in the 5,000.

In addition, the African Olympic contingent will include marathons Ibrahim Hussein of Kenya and Juma Ikangaa of Tanzania. 5,000-meter runner John Ngugi of Kenya, and 3,000-meter steeplechasers Julius Kariuki, Peter Koech and Julius Korir, all of Kenya.

Track and field, the blue-ribbon event of the Games, also will feature several other world record-holders, world champions and Olympic gold medalists.

And getting through the airport will be just the first step in a maze of security precautions that will make getting around the Games almost an Olympic event for spectators.

First, arriving passengers go through a metal detector and luggage X-ray check similar to what they underwent before boarding the plane to Seoul.

Baggage is then subject to thorough searches by customs inspectors. The troops are in the lobbies and just outside the airport terminal, marching in small squads, paratroopers in helmets and commands in green berets. Combat police also stand guard.

Meanwhile, other metal detectors, killing fire people. South Korea blamed North Korea for the attack.

No incidents occurred during the actual games, when troops patrolled the airport and some of the sports complexes with their submachine guns leveled straight ahead. They now point them slightly downward.

Olympic visitors staying in the major hotels meet their next security check, including a search of their luggage, in the hotel lobby. Police will be stationed on every floor during the Games.

Such thorough measures are not expected to apply, however, at small hotels where there are no Olympic VIPs staying. There will be more metal detectors at the main gates at Seoul's sports complexes and at the entrances to the stadiums. Guards will search hand luggage and demand one picture be clicked off on all cameras to prove they are cameras.

FAST FLORENCE — Florence Griffith Joyner of the U.S., shown in a file photo, will be a medal threat in the 100- and 200-meter dashes at the Summer Olympics in Seoul, South Korea.

In addition, the African Olympic contingent will include marathons Ibrahim Hussein of Kenya and Juma Ikangaa of Tanzania. 5,000-meter runner John Ngugi of Kenya, and 3,000-meter steeplechasers Julius Kariuki, Peter Koech and Julius Korir, all of Kenya.

Rutgers finally gets some attention in home state

By Tom Connon
The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Sometimes timing is everything. Rutgers' shocking season-opening victory over No. 15 Michigan State could not have come at a better time for the Scarlet Knights.

back, get some interviews and it was a national attention," said Anderson, now 21-21 in his fifth season. "It was a help. It certainly got Rutgers' name across the country, in particular in the Midwest."

Because the afternoon game in East Lansing, Mich., was the only major upset on the opening weekend, it became the lead story on several broadcasts. Anderson also was able to fly home to New Jersey in time to take a limousine to New York City and to appear as a halftime guest on CBS' broadcast of the Michigan-Notre Dame game.

"For at least one day we're bigger than (Bruce) Springsteen in the state of New Jersey," Anderson said in ending an interview at Rutgers' name across the country, in particular in the Midwest.

That might be an exaggeration of Anderson's part, but there can be no denying the importance of the victory for Rutgers. The impact was immense for a program that cannot get the state's best high school players to stay home and one that more often than not has been the butt of the question: "What's a Rutgers?"

A Detroit newspaper asked the question again on Saturday morning.

Against Michigan State, the Scarlet Knights were playing a 28-28 tie against No. 1 Florida in the 1985 season opener and knocking off then-No. 17 West Virginia 23-19 in 1984.

Anderson would not speculate on whether the victory would help the school in recruiting, but he said it certainly could not hurt.

There is, however, at least one problem that probably won't go away for at least a few more days.

"You've got people out there who are going to want to talk questioned how big an upset it was because his team knew it could win if it played well.

Rutgers has posted some major upsets in Anderson's tenure, playing a 28-28 tie against No. 1 Florida in the 1985 season opener and knocking off then-No. 17 West Virginia 23-19 in 1984.

Anderson would not speculate on whether the victory would help the school in recruiting, but he said it certainly could not hurt.

There is, however, at least one problem that probably won't go away for at least a few more days.

"You've got people out there who are going to want to talk about it all week long," Anderson said. "You've got the students, the professors and the media who want to talk about it and we can't do that. We've got to get ready for the next one."

History supports that view. The week after Rutgers led Florida in 1985, the Scarlet Knights went to West Point and dropped a 20-16 decision to Army.

Rutgers' next game is Saturday at Giants Stadium against Vanderbilt, which defeated the Scarlet Knights 27-13 last season.

Anderson is not looking for history to repeat itself.

Enrollment drop won't alter Highland Park plan

By Andrew J. Davis
Manchester Herald

The number of Manchester school students has dropped by 254 students compared to last year, according to preliminary enrollment figures released by School Superintendent James P. Kennedy.

School board members said today, however, that the decline does not leave them with any problems and the Headstart program, Kennedy said.

There are three more students at the elementary level, he said. The drop in enrollment were shown at Bowers School (plus 25 students), Buckley School (plus 18 students), Martin School (plus 18 students) and Verplanck School (plus three students). All remaining schools show a decline, according to the data.

School board members Terry debut about the planned reopening of Highland Park School next school year.

Kennedy announced the 3.6 percent drop at the Board of Education's Wednesday night meeting. The numbers are a comparison of the fifth day of classes this year to the fifth day of classes last year. The figures show 6,847 students enrolled this year compared to 7,101 last year.

Final enrollment figures will not be available until the end of the month, Kennedy said.

Out of the 254 students, a drop of 221 students occurred at Bennett Junior High School, Iling Junior High School and Manchester High School. There are 131 less students at Manchester High School, Kennedy said.

The remaining decrease of 33 students occurs in the Regional Occupational Training Center, two programs for students with

GOP director asks study on strong mayor

By Alex Girelli

Republican Town Director Theunis Werkhoven says he will propose that the town study the possibility of adopting a strong mayor form of government, partly because of citizen support.

"I think we will have to take a hard look at that," Werkhoven said at a meeting of the Republican Town Committee Wednesday.

He added today he favors a strong mayor form over the council-manager form because it gives people more say in government. He also said he has heard from many citizens who favor the change.

after Weiss announced his retirement had given people the impression he was launching a campaign.

A strong mayor form of government is one in which a popularly elected mayor is the chief administrator of the town government.

But Oseila said that he feels confidentiality and bipartisanship should mark the search for a successor to Weiss.

One town committee member, Peter Cotten, asked what the Republican Party would do if the Democrats, who are in the majority on the Board of Directors, make the decision in caucus. Mayor Peter P. DiRosa and Director Stephen Casano, both Democrats, have said they are opposed to any investigation of a strong mayor form of government.

Democratic Director Barbara Weinberg said the idea deserves study only if citizens call for it.

Oseila said he could not speak for the party, but he himself, would protest.

ACCIDENT VICTIM — One of the victims of two separate accidents which injured at least five people is taken on a stretcher from the car he was driving.

Two of the victims were flown by Lifestar to Hartford Hospital.

Two automobile accidents Wednesday injured at least five people, two of whom were flown by Lifestar helicopter to Hartford Hospital. The driver of a vehicle involved in one of the accidents was charged with drunken driving.

A three-vehicle accident injured at least four people about 11 p.m. on Adams Street, police said. More than 40 firefighters from the Eighth District Fire Department responded to the accident, which occurred outside 318 Adams St.

Police said they arrested James Napolitano, 24, of 140 Spruce St., on charges of driving while intoxicated, second-degree assault with a motor vehicle while intoxicated, and evading responsibility.

He apparently fled the scene of the accident on foot, police said. Police said they found him later being treated for injuries at Rockville Hospital, but declined to give further information regarding the accident.

With Napolitano in his vehicle at the time of accident was Shamus Kershaw, 18, 38 North Elm St., and his brother, Seth Kershaw, 17, of the same address.

In one of the other vehicles was Linda M. Bellanca, 24, 139 City Ave., and Amy P. Gravelle, 36D School St., Rockville.

Jackie Piechow, 21, 604 Rye St., South Windsor, was in the third vehicle.

Firefighters were forced to use the "jaws of life" or a hydraulic spreading and cutting tool to remove Gravelle, who was trapped in her vehicle. It took almost one hour from the time of the accident to the time the victims were rushed to the hospital.

Gravelle was flown by Lifestar to Hartford Hospital and was listed today in critical condition, a hospital spokesman said. Shamus Kershaw was treated for RECORD DAY — The Lifestar helicopter lands in Manchester in one of three separate trips Wednesday, setting a record for the town. Two of the calls were for accidents.

Battaglio said the helicopter, which has been in operation for three years, is unable to respond to about 9 percent of its calls each year. Of that 9 percent, 6 percent have been because the helicopter has been on another call and 3 percent have been due to mechanical maintenance.

The helicopter was initially intended to respond to three to four calls daily. But lately, it is not unusual for it to respond to six or seven calls, Battaglio said.

About 60 percent of its calls are for routine medical problems or organ transports and the other 40 percent are calls to the scenes of accidents or major trauma.

"The Lifestar was designed to be at the ready and on call constantly, 24-hours a day," Battaglio said. "But in some situations, such as yesterday, there just isn't enough time."

In July, the hospital applied for an additional Lifestar unit to be available as a backup and for other purposes, Battaglio said. The hospital has not yet received an answer from the state.

Lifestar gets too many calls

Because Hartford Hospital's Lifestar helicopter was busy responding to three calls in Manchester over a 12-hour period on Wednesday, it was unable to respond to one of four other calls it received that day, hospital officials said today.

James Battaglio, vice president of public information at Hartford Hospital, said Wednesday's missed call demonstrates why the hospital has requested state approval of a second Lifestar unit.

"There is obviously a critical need for another helicopter," Battaglio said. "We shouldn't be missing calls. Many of those situations are life or death."

Battaglio said he did not know the nature of the call that was missed on Wednesday.

It was the first time that Lifestar has been called three times to Manchester in one day. The first trip was a routine medical call but the second and third calls involved major accidents.

CANCUN, Mexico (AP) — The most intense hurricane on record surged into the Gulf of Mexico today after battering the Yucatan Peninsula with 160 mph winds that leveled slums, pummeled palm resorts and forced tens of thousands to flee.

Hurricane Gilbert, which has left nearly one in four Jamaicans homeless, slackened somewhat as it made landfall but was expected to strengthen over open water as it moved toward the U.S. Gulf Coast with sustained winds of 120 mph.

The storm, about 450 miles wide, struck the Yucatan coast about dawn Wednesday, thrashing at beaches with 25-foot waves, uprooting trees, knocking out electricity and water supplies and severing telephone lines.

Mexican officials reported only two minor injuries.

At 6 a.m. EDT, the center of the storm was near latitude 22 north and longitude 91.5 west about 465 miles southeast of Brownsville, Texas, according to the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla.

The storm, blamed for at least 19 deaths in Jamaica and five in the Dominican Republic, was moving west-northwest at 15 mph and dumping up to 10 inches of rain. It was expected to turn gradually more northward today.

Hurricane center director Robert Stebbins said the hurricane was expected to make landfall about midday

Friday and that its sustained winds would today "certainly increase to 130, 140 miles per hour."

Brownsville was deemed the most likely target, with a 21 percent probability of being hit, though a hurricane watch was in effect along the entire Texas coast as well as the northeastern Mexican coast from Tampico.

The hurricane center said Gilbert was the most intense storm on record in terms of barometric pressure, which was measured at 26.31 inches, breaking the 26.35 inches recorded for the 1935 hurricane that devastated the Florida Keys.
