AIRBORNE — Wind surfers get a lift from the heavy winds created by Hurricane Gilbert in Corpus Christi Bay Friday afternoon. Many residents flocked to the bay after it was known that Gilbert would hit farther to the south.

Gilbert howls into Texas, weaker but still dangerous

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Hurricane Gilbert slammed the Texas-Mexico coast with heavy rain, high waves and high wind Friday, and thousands of Gulf Coast residents fled inland or huddled in public shelters and boarded-up homes.

Heavy rain fell on this southernmost Texas city and wind gusts to 62 mph were measured at the airport and to 65 mph at Port Isabel. Up to 5 inches of rain was forecast, along with tides 7 to 11 feet above normal.

Low-lying coastal roads were closed by high water.

Gilbert, which for a time earlier this week was the most powerful storm on record in the Western Hemisphere, weakened somewhat but remained a dangerous storm, responsible for at least 66 deaths and billions of dollars in damage as it roared across the Caribbean and through the Gulf of Mexico.

The calm eye at the heart of the hurricane made landfall about 120 miles south of Brownsville at 4:35 p.m. CDT, in Tamaulipas state, said Mark Zimmer, meteorologist at the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla. It was moving west-northwest at about 12 mph, with maximum sustained winds of 120 mph.

The eye was passing over Santa Rosa and Santa Cruz, two small Mexican villages a few miles north of La Pesca, Mexico, which has a population of about 500, said Mark Zimmer, meteorologist at the National Hurricane Center.

"We presume it (the Mexican villages) are getting a good pounding from 120 mph winds," Zimmer said.

Thousands of people also evacuated in neighboring areas of northeastern Mexico, including the entire beach area of Matamoros, just across the border, which includes posh vacation homes, restaurants and small fishing villages, officials said.

To the south, about 300,000 people were homeless in Yucatap

State and 10,000 more were homeless in Campeche, on the west coast of the peninsula, the government news agency Notimex said.

Violent weather surrounding the hurricane spun off more than a half-dozen tornadoes over the Brownsville area Friday, blowing over at least two homes and slightly injuring one person. Gilbert's influence extended far across the Gulf and thunderstorms that were part of its circulation spawned tornadoes in Alabama.

The roof was ripped from a Brownsville apartment complex and windows were blown out. Police in nearby Harlingen said the windows of 20-30 cars in a parking lot were shattered by high wind or a tornado.

Despite the danger of flying debris, Robert Rios, 16, was skateboarding down Brownsville's International Boulevard when the storm neared its peak.

Shuttle launch set Sept. 29

WASHINGTON (AP) — NASA on Friday scheduled space shuttle Discovery for a Sept. 29 mid-morning launch on the first mission since the Challenger accident.

The launch was set for 9:59 a.m. EDT but could come any time in the following three hours, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

The announcement was made after a meeting at NASA headquarters between administrator

James C. Fletcher and Richard Truly, the head of the shuttle program. Truly briefed Fletcher on the flight readiness review held earlier in the week at Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

"I'm delighted to have reached this point," Truly said. "My hat is off to all members of the shuttle team whose tireless efforts have brought us here to the brink of America's return to manned space."

That two-day meeting in Florida evaluated all of Discovery's systems and cleared the shuttle for flight.

A launch date had been expected following completion of the review Wednesday. But Truly delayed any announcement because of the possibility Hurricane Gilbert could disrupt operations at the Johnson Space Center in Houston where shuttle flights are controlled once they are launched.

Eighth District set to strike up the band

By Alex Girelli
Manchester Herald

Manchester will have more than its share of firefighters this weekend when the Eighth Utilities Fire Department, in celebrating its 100th anniversary, hosts a state firefighters' convention today and a giant parade on Sunday.

The convention of the Connecticut State Firemen's Association today will be at Manchester High School with dealers displaying fire apparatus in the teachers' parking lot of the school. The convention begins at 10:30 a.m. The parade begins at noon Sunday. Marchers will form near Manchester High School, go south on Brookfield Street, west on East Center Street and north on Main Street to Robertson Park.

Almost 4,000 people, mostly firefighters from the 129 participating fire departments, will march in the parade. There will be more than 240 pieces of fire apparatus, and a few Dalmatians including Axe, the mascot of the Eighth District Fire Department.

But unlike the other mascots, Axe will not be eligible to win a trophy as the best-appearing Dalmatian in the parade, one of the more than 70 awards that will be given at Robertson Park after the parade. Axe is not eligible because he is a member of the host department.

The parade is expected to take from 3 to 3 1/2 hours to pass any given point along the route of march. Among the pieces of apparatus will be horse-drawn and hand-drawn firefighting rigs.

A reviewing stand will be located at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 138 Main St. Dignitaries in the leading division of the parade will stop at the stand and take positions there to review the parade.

The dignitaries include U.S. Sen. Lowell Weicker, U.S. Rep. Barbara Kennelly, state legislators from the Manchester area, Mayor Peter DiRosa and town directors, District President Thomas Landers and district directors.

Participating fire departments are coming from all over Connecticut and some are coming from Massachusetts, Vermont and New York.

St. James Festival blessed with good weather, crowds

By Nancy Concelman
Manchester Herald

Blue skies, crisp temperatures and the smell of a home-cooked spaghetti dinner drew hundreds to the ninth annual St. James Fall Festival early Friday night, and organizers said they expect a bigger crowd than the 8,000 they originally estimated for the three-day event.

"The weather is much better this year," said Terry Parla, chairman of the booths for the festival. "Yesterday was a good night."

The festival was held from 5 to 11 p.m. Thursday and Friday on the church grounds at 696 Main St. Saturday hours are 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Church member Arthur Kissman estimated that nearly 3,000 people came Thursday, about the same number as the first day last year. Kissman was one of the nearly 300 parishioners who helped with the festival. Parla said.

"In about 2 1/2 hours (Thursday) it was packed," Kissman said.

Thursday was also a good night for sales of the church's keepsake plates, which have a picture of the church on the front and a brief history on the back. Mary Rice, chairman of the plate sales committee, said about 44 plates were sold Thursday to church members and people interested in Manchester history.

"The land this church is on was given to the church by the Cheney Scheibenflug of School Street, who was collecting money."

Susan Roberts, a St. James parishioner, said she came up with the idea to sell the plates. The late Betty Jean Messier helped organize their distribution at the fair.

The festival features 30 booths, rides, crafts and a sit-down dinner. There was also a giant tag sale Friday.

The variety made it difficult for some people to pin down the highlight of the festival.

"I think it's great," said Akwan Shabazz of Jackson Street, who attended the fair for the first time Friday. "There's something for the wife, rides for the kids and food for me."

Shabazz's son, 7-year-old Darrell, said the games and rides were the best parts of the festival, especially the Scrambler ride.

His mother, Donna, stood by holding two plants she'd gotten at the plant sale.

"I like the tag sale and the plant sale," she said, adding that she recently started refinishing furniture and purchased a phonograph set.

"I got that at a real bargain price," she said.

Parishioners contributed furniture, appliances, antique sewing machines, doors, coffee filters, a wooden elephant and a variety of other items for the tag sale, but the books seemed to be the best sellers, said church member Sue Scheibenflug of School Street, who was collecting money.

Parla said items that aren't sold will be given to the Second-hand Rose thrift shop operated by the Manchester Association for Retarded Citizens.

If the tag sale didn't satisfy a shopper's appetite, there was a crafts booth nearby featuring pillows, knitted clothing, baskets and other items made by members of the church's crafts group.

Wooden decorations were selling well, said church member Rose Magee of Ansaldi Road. Thursday's fall weather also boosted sales of knitted items.

"Our big sellers last night were mittens and gloves," Magee said. "They were putting them right on the children."

Near the tables full of homemade crafts were tables full of people eating a homemade spaghetti dinner, which was sold out by around 6 p.m. Church member Catherine Anderson of Case Drive said 250 tickets were sold.

The smell of the food was one of the best parts of the festival, according to Lena DiMarco of Ridgefield Street, who said she's been coming to the event since it started.

"I like the arts and crafts, the smell of the food and meeting people you haven't seen all year," DiMarco said.

BARGAIN BIN — Mary Ceaser of 33 Goslee Drive and a friend, Bill Hagenow of East Hartford, look over jewelry Friday at the St. James Fall Festival tag sale. The festival continues today until 11 p.m.

Bleeding blamed in deaths of 40 ducks

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Manchester Herald

Forty ducks found dead in a private pond on Irving Street Friday morning died of intestinal bleeding, according to a preliminary autopsy.

But officials still don't know whether the deaths were caused by a disease or by a poison.

The quarter-acre pond off Irving Street is on the property of Homestead Park Village, an apartment complex owned by Manchester developer Raymond F. Damato. A resident of Homestead Park Village reported the incident to the state Department of Environmental Protection and the town health department after his wife saw the dead ducks early Friday morning.

Dr. Alex J. Bermudez, an assistant professor of pathological biology at the University of Connecticut, said Friday that a preliminary autopsy of two of the ducks showed that they had died of intestinal bleeding. He said it was safe to assume that intestinal bleeding caused the deaths of the other birds.

Bermudez said that one possible virus is known as "duck plague," which causes a large number of deaths in a small area. He said the disease "doesn't pose a great threat" and does not spread beyond a small geographic area.

Bermudez added that he did not know of any outbreaks of viruses now affecting bird populations. Bill Harrington, the livestock division chief of the state Department of Agriculture, said Friday that he also had not heard about any such recent outbreaks.

Bermudez said that he would have final autopsy results by Wednesday. An official from the state DEP said Friday morning that his agency would be investigating the deaths.

John Salcius, the town's sanitarian, said that he believed that the water in the pond was not the cause of the deaths because the fish in the pond were still alive. He said the water was dirty, but there were no signs that anything was dumped in it.

Damato agreed, noting that the domestic ducks in the pond also were still alive. He said he thought the wild ducks, which leave the pond in the evening, returned in the morning after eating something that was tainted.

A big day for the state at the 'Big E'

By Nancy Pappas
Manchester Herald

Seeing the hordes of people who took a day off to visit the Connecticut Building Friday, which was Connecticut Day at the Eastern States Exposition, it was a wonder there was anyone at all back in Connecticut "minding the store."

"Sure, I took a day off to be here," said Rose Kurcink of Willimantic. "I wouldn't miss it!"

"I come every year on Connecticut Day," said Peter Varhol of Plainville. Although he's a state employee, he said the state doesn't give workers a day off to attend the "Big E."

"You've got to take a personal day or a vacation day to do it. But it's worth it," he said.

"It's really important to be here," said Jim Dent of Bristol. "You're kind of voting with your feet for your state. I always come on Connecticut Day. I guess it's a kind of 'patriotic holiday' for me."

BY THE END of the day, about 95,000 visitors were expected to push their way through the crowded aisles in the Connecticut Building, a replica of the Old State House in Hartford. Even before the building opened for the day, at 10 a.m., there were throngs waiting at the doors, according to Judy Cecchini, who was working at the Connecticut Florists Association booth.

"This place has been packed all day," Cecchini said.

The odor of freshly cut apples drew people to the Connecticut Department of Agriculture booth, where workers handed out apple quarters throughout the day. At the opposite side of the room, Grote & Weigel were distributing miniature hot dogs on toothpicks.

But one of the most popular booths dispensed no food whatsoever. It was the Lego Systems Inc. booth, where four huge clowns made of Lego blocks cavorted with an equally large lion. They performed before a semi-circle of rapt faces, each made — of course — from Legos.

MOST OF THE people who stop by want to know how many Lego bricks are in this display, and how many hours it took to design and build, according to Monika Fett, the traffic coordinator for Lego Systems.

"Unfortunately, I only have figures for that tall clown," she said, motioning to a towering figure meant to be a grinning performer standing on his buddy's shoulders. That figure required 150,000 bricks, and took 1,174 man-hours to construct.

"We have seven professional model builders. That's all they do, all day, is to build with Lego bricks," said Fett. "Usually when people hear that they want to know where they can apply for the job," she said.

Carolyn Haddad of Windham, who visits the Connecticut Building every year, thought this year's exhibits were better than ever. "I think the Connecticut building is great this year. It makes me proud to be from Connecticut."

BUT MARGE SUNAPEE of Danielson was slightly disappointed. Calling herself an unofficial pie taster, she said she had tried blueberry pie at the New Hampshire building, apple pie at the Massachusetts building, and peach pie in the historic restoration called Storowton Village, nearby.

"It's a shame, there's no pie or anything like that to buy right here in the Connecticut booth," she said. "But I don't know if I could look at another piece of pie right now, anyway."

The Big E, which opened Wednesday, continues daily through Sept. 25.

School bus firm may lose license

NEW HAVEN (AP) — State officials say that Connecticut Chair Car Co., which transports about 10,000 school children, could lose its license to operate buses if it does not settle a payment dispute with an insurance company.

CNA Insurance Companies of Chicago had been expected to cancel the bus company's insurance coverage on Friday, leading the state Department of Motor Vehicles to revoke the license plates on the company's 100 buses, officials said.

But the state received information Thursday that CNA had offered an extension on the company's coverage through Oct. 19, according to John R. Linden of the state Department of Insurance. So the state will allow the bus company to operate until that time.

New Haven-based Connecticut Chair Car transports public and private school children in New Haven, Hamden and East Haven.

Linden said he believed the company was disputing a bill from CNA of about $50,000. He said a court hearing on the matter is scheduled for Oct. 19, but didn't know where the hearing was to be held.

"My understanding is that if (the money) is not paid by the 19th, then it's all over. The insurance will be canceled," Linden said.

Charles Cosenza Jr., general manager of the bus company, said Thursday, "Our insurance is totally under control. Everything is fine." Cosenza said he did not know about payments to CNA because he did not handle insurance matters.

Campaign Notebook

'A little party' planned

Manchester Democrats will open their campaign headquarters at 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 24, with state Attorney Joseph Lieberman, the party's candidate for the U.S. Senate, joining local candidates for what is described as "a little party" by Town Democratic Chairman Theodore R. Cummings.

The headquarters will be at 192 Main St. the same location as last year.

Cummings said the party's telephone campaign efforts will begin Sept. 26 from the headquarters. "We must get people to vote in order to win and that's exactly what we proposed to do at 192 Main St.," Cummings said.

Chamber backs Carberry

The campaign committee for Glenn Carberry, Republican candidate for the United States House of Representatives from the 2nd Congressional District, will hold a breakfast Tuesday to announce the endorsement of Carberry by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The breakfast will be at the Norwich Inn and Spa at 8 a.m.

Steve Caldeira, senior manager, political affairs for the U.S. Chamber's Eastern Division, will discuss chamber related activities and why the chamber has decided to endorse Carberry, a Norwich attorney who is opposing incumbent Democrat Samuel Gejdenson. Gejdenson is seeking his fifth term.

Prague nominated for award

State Rep. Edith Prague, D-Columbia, has been nominated by Remove Intoxicated Drivers for an annual National Legislative Leadership award, sponsored by the National Commission Against Drunk Drivers.

The winner of the award will be announced in December at a ceremony in Washington, D.C. Last year's winner was New York Gov. Mario Cuomo. RID Founder Doris Aiken said Prague has been "tireless" in pushing for legislation to provide an administrative drivers license suspension for drunk driving.

The Prague-sponsored bill was approved by the House this year, but a Senate amendment killed it before the General Assembly adjourned in May.

Prague, who represents the 8th Assembly District, which includes Coventry, has supported RID bills since 1982. She was instrumental in increasing the state drinking age to 21 and establishing .10 percent as the minimum blood alcohol level to determine if a driver is intoxicated, Aiken said. She also praised Prague for helping raise awareness of the problem through media events.

"As long as I am in office, one of my top priorities will be to do whatever I can to deter people from drinking and driving," Prague said.

Local News in Brief

6 are Merit semifinalists

Five Manchester high school students and one Coventry High School student have been named National Merit Scholarship semifinalists, according to the National Merit Scholarship Corporation of Evanston, Ill.

Maurice P. Moriarty, Birgit M. Sauer, and Wendy J. Smith have been selected from Manchester High School. Jeffrey M. Dill and Kevin J. Lynch of East Catholic High School also were named.

Michael C. Oswald of Coventry High School was his school's only semifinalist.

Over 15,000 high school seniors across the country have been chosen semifinalists, the corporation said. The semifinalists include less than one half of one percent of each state's seniors.

About 1.2 million students entered the competition in which compete for 6,000 scholarships. The scholarships total about $23 million.

Loans available for sewer lines

COVENTRY — State Sen. Marie Herbst, D-35th District, has announced that Coventry will receive a grant of $225,000 to provide deferred loans to low and moderate income families who cannot afford to connect to a newly installed municipal sewer line.

Herbst said the residents must hook up to a sewer line to satisfy a court abatement order to clean up Coventry Lake. The town has ordered the residents to connect to the line by November.

Herbst said a recent survey indicates that a high percentage of low and moderate income families are concentrated along the sewer line. "These families simply could not afford to connect to the line on their own," she said.

Campaign chief is named

Leslie Belcher ... heads campaign

Leslie Belcher has been selected to head the election campaign of Republican Susan Buckno, who is seeking the post of state representative from Manchester's 13th Assembly District.

Buckno is opposing Democratic incumbent John Thompson, who is seeking his second term.

Directors of the campaign will be Thomas H. Ferguson, Nathan Agostinelli, and Elsie Swenson, former 13th District representative who was defeated by Thompson in 1986.

Other members of the campaign committee and their assignments are as follows:

Mary Sears, treasurer; John Deeb, Jonathan Mercier, and John Foss, telephone coordinators; Patricia Cottle, mail coordinator; Mary Willhide, signs; Donna Mercier, door-to-door campaigning; Edith Muse, fund-raising letters; Patricia Cotten, advertising; Louis Spadaccini, letters; Peggy Kelly, events; Ginny Ingalls and Theunis Werkhoven, press releases.

Buckno hits budget votes

Susan Buckno, Republican candidate for state representative from Manchester's 13th Assembly District, has criticized her Democratic incumbent opponent, John W. Thompson, for supporting the current state budget, which she says has led to a $115 million deficit.

In her first attack of the campaign, Buckno said, Thompson is guilty not only of voting for the record $6.25 million budget — the largest in the state's history — but also of not having voted for amendments that would have reduced spending.

Thompson responded with a defense of both his budget vote and votes against amendments. And he said Buckno is assuming their will be a deficit when there may not be one.

In a news release, Buckno said "nearly all of the deficit can be traced to patterns of spend and spend and spend that Thompson has supported in the House."

She said Thompson voted for a budget that contained the largest increase in spending of any state in the nation. And she said he voted to take money out of the Rainy Day Fund. "That's wrong and Mr. Thompson knew it was wrong," she said.

And she charged that Thompson refused to support any measures that would have reduced the bottom line.

Buckno said the people of Manchester "will be able to count on me for a vote for responsible budgets and disciplined spending."

She said the latest figures from released by the state comptroller indicate a deficit of $115 million for the 1987-1988 fiscal year and a projected deficit of $120 million for the 1988-89 year.

Thompson said Gov. William O'Neill has already taken steps to reduce spending to prevent the deficit.

He said that for the 1987-88 budget Republicans, and the business community had over-estimated the revenue expected from the corporate tax and would have reduced taxes, which would have worsened the financial picture.

He said that in a $5 million to $6 million budget, an error of 1 to 2 percent brings a difference of from $50 million to $120 million.

"That's why we have the system under which the governor is now seeking to cut expenses," Thompson said.

Thompson said the question is, "Where would she cut back?"

He said there some extraordinary expense in the current budget like a 27th pay period, which he said is a cost of $54 to $55 million.

Thompson said the total increase in the budget for general fund, transportation fund, and educational excellence fund amounts to 11.6 percent of which 80 percent was for expenses "carved in stone," services the state was required to perform.

He said 2.3 percent of the increase was for new programs, expanded services, or policy commitments.

Thompson said the amendment Buckno refers to are those made in the last days of the session so that people can "point a finger" after the session.

He said a proposal to eliminate two new jails is an example.

Water main work today

The Town of Manchester Water Division will relocate a water main on Chambers Street today, interrupting service to some customers between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Customers on Chambers Street between Coventry Street and Horton Road, on Fleming Street from Woodland to Chambers streets and on Bolton Street from Lockwood to Chambers streets will be affected.

Bridge inspections slated

Routine inspections of five bridges by the state Department of Transportation, including the Route 30 bridge in Manchester, are scheduled to begin Monday.

Lanes on the roads being inspected may be closed between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

In Manchester, lanes on the Interstate 84 eastbound and westbound ramps will be closed Monday for inspection of the Route 30 bridge over I-84.

Lanes on Route 15 eastbound will be closed Monday through Friday for inspection of the Charter Oak Bridge in Hartford.

Chamber party set

The Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce has come up with a new way to welcome new members, beginning at 5 p.m. Monday.

A party will be held at New England Hobby Supply Inc. at 71 Hilliard St. featuring beverages, food and trains.

New members will be wearing engineer's hats and running the trains over 10,000 linear feet of track set up in the rear room of the store.

The idea of abandoning the traditional sit-down dinner for an evening of fun at the store, which is usually closed Mondays, came from Veronica Pastorelle, membership services director for the Chamber.

Chairman of the Board Steven Thornton and Chamber President Anne Flint will give short speeches at the party.

Head Start offers meals

The Head Start program of Manchester will participate in the federally funded Child Care Food Program.

The program allows Head Start to offer nutritious meals at no separate charge to the 100 children enrolled in Head Start classes at Verplanck and Robertson elementary schools.

The meals are provided to all children.

Thoughts

Whenever I hear or read of the magnitude of our universe it puts me in a state of bewilderment. To hear statements such as there are hundreds of millions of observable galaxies and of galaxies that are billions of light year away. The distance and numbers are really almost incomprehensible, can we really, with our finite minds come to grips with such magnitude. In the same sense, when I hear or read about eternity, it also puts me in a state of bewilderment. I read in a home Bible study course, eternity described this way "If the world were one massive stainless steel ball and a huge butterfly were to fly by once a year and brush its wings against it and when the ball had finally worn away to nothing — eternity has just begun". Can we really comprehend eternity? Yet as a Christian it is my hope. The Bible states in St. John 10:28, "And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my mind." It also states in II Corinthians, "This mortal shall put on immortality and this corruptible shall put on incorruption." Just to live and reign with Him for eternity — "Think about it!"

Montville to change disputed zoning law

MONTVILLE (AP) — A zoning regulation that stirred controversy last year because it prevented unrelated adults from living together will soon be removed from the books after 18 years.

Effective Oct. 1, the regulation will be changed to allow handicapped and mentally retarded persons to live with an unrelated family.

The action by the Planning and Zoning Commission immediately affects Pamela A. Matzdorf, a mildly retarded woman whom the town tried to force out of the home she shared with a grade school friend.

Matzdorf said Thursday she was happy the matter has been settled and she doesn't have to worry anymore.

The controversy began last year when former-town planner Michael J. Murphy tried to enforce the little-known zoning regulation passed in 1970 that prevented unrelated adults from living in the same house. He ordered five welfare recipients to move from various boarding-houses and threatened to have them arrested if they didn't.

The case finally centered on Matzdorf and Nancy Smith. Smith was living with friends while recovering from an injury.

Connecticut Legal Services Inc., a public advocacy group, took up their case and was later joined by the Connecticut Civil Liberties Union.

In the past year, lawyers for the two groups have been working to resolve the matter. They proposed the zoning changed adopted unanimously Tuesday.

The town also has agreed to pay some monetary damages to Matzdorf, Smith and the families with whom they live, said John J. McGrath, a lawyer with the Connecticut Legal Services. He declined to say how much the town would pay.

Parking Authority position is filled

Donna Cammeyer of 589 Spring St. has been named to Parking Authority to fill the unexpired term of Joseph Garman who has resigned after 25 years as a member. She was appointed by Town Manager Robert Weiss for the term that ends in July. Bernard Apter, chairman of the authority, said Garman has been named a member emeritus and asked to advise the authority from time to time. Since Garman sold his retail clothing business last year, he has not been available.

WOMEN SMOKERS

Women who smoke are 8 to 17 times more likely to develop cancer of the cervix (neck of the womb) than those who do not smoke. Researchers have found that the vaginal mucus of smokers contains high concentrations of nicotine and its derivatives. Bathed constantly by this mucus, the cervix is exposed to more cancer causing tobacco derivatives than any other part of the body.

In third trial, man convicted of girl's murder

HARTFORD (AP) — A 29-year-old Bristol man on trial for the third time in the 1981 beating death of a 15-year-old girl was convicted of murder Friday.

Michael Joly faces up to 60 years in prison when he is sentenced Oct. 27 in the death of Diane Mattei of Bristol, who was beaten and left bleeding in a wooded area of town. The beating left a gaping wound nearly 4 inches long in Mattei's skull, authorities said.

"We're very gratified at the verdict," said Assistant State's Attorney John H. Malone, who prosecuted at all three trials. "We're happy for the family, we're happy for the citizens of Bristol. Hopefully, the family can put this behind them ... begin to live their lives and complete the grieving process."

Malone said he would seek the maximum sentence for Joly because of the "brutality" of the case.

Joly is being held on $250,000 bond pending sentencing in Hartford Superior Court.

Special Public Defender Jon L. Schoenhorn, Joly's attorney, contended the case against Joly was circumstantial, and that even if Joly were involved in the girl's death, there was no evidence that he intended to kill her, an essential element in a murder charge.

Schoenhorn did not return a telephone call to his Hartford office on Friday seeking comment on the verdict.

Joly was convicted of murder in Mattei's death in 1984, but the verdict was set aside because of juror misconduct after it was disclosed that an unsupervised juror visited the crime scene. A second trial in 1986 ended with the jury deadlocked.

A third trial was scheduled to begin in March 1987, but was canceled after 13 jurors were picked because Joly was found incompetent to stand trial, Malone said.

Malone said key evidence in the trial centered on three telephone calls Joly allegedly made to Bristol police about an hour after the slaying. During the telephone conversations, Malone said Joly gave the exact condition of Mattei's body and its location.

Malone said that during a search of Joly's home about a week after the slaying, Joly told police that Mattei "deserved to die."

A police officer testified during Joly's trial that the defendant also said that Mattei "should burn."

Bridgeport man held in shooting of cops

NEW HAVEN (AP) — A Bridgeport man was arrested on Friday in connection with the Aug. 19 shooting of a state trooper and West Haven police detective, state police said.

Joseph F. Warga, 44, was arrested at 11:30 a.m. Friday at Yale-New Haven Hospital, state police said. He was charged with five counts of attempted murder, two counts of carrying a pistol without a permit, escape from custody, illegal possession of narcotics, and illegal possession of narcotics with intent to sell, police said.

Warga is accused of shooting Trooper John Kucan Jr., 24, and West Haven Police Det. Keith Sweeney, 35, state police said. He is also accused of shooting at several other police officers.

State police said Warga shot Kucan in the head as the trooper tried to arrest him for a motor vehicle violation. Kucan had pursued Warga into a wooded area in West Haven.

Warga fled the scene after the shooting and was confronted by Det. Sweeney, whom he shot in the leg, police said.

CANDIDATES DEBATE — Incumbent Republican U.S. Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., left, and his Democratic challenger, Attorney General Joseph I. Lieberman, speak during a debate in Stamford Friday. It was the first of three head-to-head debates scheduled between the two.

Weicker, Lieberman clash in first debate

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

STAMFORD — Republican Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. and Democratic challenger Joseph I. Lieberman exchanged sometimes heated words Friday in their first formal debate of the campaign, with Lieberman calling Weicker ineffective after 18 years in the Senate and Weicker countering that his seniority helps him get things done.

"He's been whining a lot about my campaign," Lieberman told the group of business leaders sponsoring the debate. But "that's what this whole campaign is about, what he's done."

"Lowell, if this were the Olympics, you'd get a 10 in the gymnastics competition for all the flip-flops you've done," said Lieberman, now state attorney general.

Weicker countered that it was his three terms in the Senate that makes him effective in getting money in times of crisis, such as when the Mianus River bridge collapsed on Interstate 95 five years ago, or when L'Ambiance Plaza collapsed in Bridgeport during construction last year.

Weicker said he is 16th in seniority in the Senate, while "if Joe Lieberman goes in, he's No. 100."

No Fonda tapes at sub base

GROTON (AP) — Actress Jane Fonda's exercise videotapes are no longer on sale at the Naval Submarine Base retail store because of two complaints over her anti-Vietnam War activities, a base spokesman says.

"It reflects the consumer concern and nothing more," Lt. Cmdr. Jack Ward said Thursday.

He added that the decision to remove the videotapes didn't reflect a Navy policy. Two or three copies of several different titles were removed, he said.

One of the complaints that led to the pulling of the tapes came from Gaetano A. Russo, a retired major general of the Connecticut National Guard who stirred up anti-Fonda protests after it was announced

"And I got news for you: I ain't leaving," Weicker said.

Lieberman said Weicker, frequently described as a maverick at odds with his own party, has been a "marginal," inconsistent senator people can't count on.

The Senate, Lieberman said, "isn't the 'Wheel of Fortune' where you have to fill in the blanks and guess about the end of the game."

Weicker said his record has been one of consistently fighting for the rights of the underprivileged, the disadvantaged and others protected by the Constitution.

"I don't have a free ride" at election time, said Weicker, noting that Democrats well outnumber Republicans in Connecticut. But his string of election victories, he said, "maybe has something to do with my performance."

He noted his history-making endorsement by the Connecticut State AFL-CIO and groups like the National Organization for Women as further evidence of widespread support.

Lieberman, who has stepped up his criticism of the incumbent over the past month, hammered Weicker for sending out a letter linking him to Jerry Falwell and others favoring organized prayer in school.

"You're not going to get away with it," Lieberman told Weicker, wagging his finger in the air.

Lieberman said he supports a moment of silence at the beginning of the school day, as state law now allows. He said he firmly opposes organized prayer in school.

Said Weicker: "The issue is not prayer in school. It's the ability of government to organize prayer in school."

"I don't want the government coming into that area of my life and the life of my children insofar as our faith is concerned," Weicker said.

"He complains about negative campaigning, but then he goes out with the most low-level campaigning that's represented in this letter," Lieberman said.

He ridiculed Weicker for trying to capitalize on Lieberman's being endorsed by conservative Republican William F. Buckley.

Buckley favors Lieberman not because he agrees with everything he says, Lieberman said, "but like tens of thousands of other Connecticut Republicans, he can't stand your form of political grandstanding."

The two candidates did agree on a couple of things.

They agreed that poor women have the right to abortions paid for by the government. And both said the bickering over the Pledge of Allegiance between Republican presidential candidate George Bush and Democratic nominee Michael Dukakis has trivialized the campaign.

"To hell with arguing about the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag," Weicker said. "Give some meaning to the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag."

"It's not a proper matter for debate. A great deal of time is being wasted," the senator said.

Lieberman said Bush's attacks on Dukakis on the issue had been "a cheap shot."

"To question his patriotism is ridiculous," said Lieberman.

After the hour-long debate sponsored by the Southwestern Area Commerce and Industry Association, Weicker criticized Lieberman for allegedly negative campaign commercials and for taking individual votes out of context.

"We can play the game that he wants to play," Weicker said, pointing to Lieberman's votes as a state senator in favor of higher taxes and spending and in favor of reducing penalties for drug sales.

"Do I think this represents the attitude of the attorney general? No. Do I think you can pick any vote out of context and make it appear so? Yes. Do," Weicker said.

Prison chief says killer back because he's a danger

HARTFORD (AP) — The state's correction commissioner says a former medical student convicted of killing a classmate was ordered returned to prison from a community-release program because he is a potential danger to society, despite appearing controlled and intelligent.

"I have learned from past experience that some of the more dangerous people I've had to make decisions on were extremely bright, extremely articulate," correction Commissioner Larry Meachum said Thursday of convicted killer Steven M. Asherman.

Asherman, 39, is appealing in Superior Court Meachum's decision, claiming he was unjustly returned to prison Aug. 24, almost eight months after he had been released into the community under supervision.

Citing state statutes, Meachum said he has the authority to revoke the community-release status of Asherman and other inmates if he determines that the inmates could be a risk to himself or to the public.

Asherman was released to a halfway house in January, and in April he was allowed to set up residence in a West Hartford apartment. During that time, he worked as a systems analyst for the Cigna Corp. in Bloomfield and was allowed to travel out of state on three occasions.

On July 19, the board denied parole to Asherman, saying his release was "incompatible with the welfare of society."

Asherman was convicted of manslaughter in 1979 for killing his medical school classmate, Michael Aranow, 27. Aranow's body was found with 108 stab wounds on July 30, 1978, on a hilltop at his family's estate in New Hartford.

Judge Samuel Freed is expected to make a decision in the next two weeks on whether Asherman was unjustly returned to prison.

OPINION

'I pledge allegiance ...'

By Chuck Stone

"Mrs. Dowdy, who's Richard Stans?" the first-grader asked his teacher.

My sister Anne was puzzled. Was it some cartoon character?

"No, we say his name every morning," the pupil insisted. "And to the republic ... for Richard Stans."

One of my University of Delaware colleagues said his 6-year-old daughter couldn't understand why her class said every morning that "this nation was invisible — 'cause we're not invisible."

A tender-age Pledge of Allegiance doesn't always communicate the noble sentiments the authors intended.

I think I was in the fourth grade when I awakened to the pain that "liberty and justice for all" did not include blacks. Yet, with robotic fidelity, I still enumerated the pledge's words. It was like my nocturnal recitation of "Now, I lay me down to sleep ... until one evening my mother promoted me into puberty with, "Our father, who art in heaven."

I was still too young to realize that pledges, like prayers, are no better than the person reciting them. That's why both are broken so frequently.

Except by people like George Bush. There's no reason to doubt the sincerity of the vice president's belief that the Pledge of Allegiance should be part of a school's pedagogical catechism or that school prayers do not corrupt America's cultural heritage. What disturbs many equally sincere Americans, however, is the element of coercion that they feel subverts the constitutional right to remain faithful to conscience.

Both the Republicans and Democrats are misrepresenting the pledge controversy.

Democrat Michael Dukakis relied on a 1943 Supreme Court decision, West Virginia Board of Education vs. Barnet, when he vetoed a Massachusetts Bill that required teachers to lead the class in the pledge. The 1943 Supreme Court decision made no reference to teachers refusing to lead the pledge, however, only to pupils refusing to recite it.

Republican Bush and his supporters relied on that juridical distinction when they attacked Dukakis. But they don't come into court with clean hands either.

Bush paladin L. Gordon Crovitz, a Wall Street Journal editorial page editor, spanked Dukakis for his gubernatorial exercise in conscience when he made no effort to enforce the law after his veto was overridden. Crovitz referred to the Barnet decision and noted that the Massachusetts Supreme Court and Dukakis' attorney general didn't know whether the Barnet case was "stare decisis" or binding as precedent. But Crovitz didn't know either!

Teachers are divided on the issue. One teacher in a small Massachusetts town had led her pupils in the Pledge of Allegiance every day. After the law was passed, she stopped the exercise. One of her colleagues noted that Russia forces everyone to pledge allegiance to the communist state.

That element of tyrannical compulsion completely eludes Bush and his myrmidons. But that's the gravamen of the issue. In summing it up, Justice Robert Jackson eloquently defined democracy's soul:

"If there is any one fixed star in our constitutional constellation, it is that no official, high or petty, can prescribe what shall be orthodox in politics, nationalism, religion or other matters of opinion, or force citizens to confess by word or act their faith therein."

Justice Hugo Black concurred with a historical truth that should be obvious to even Wall Street Journal editorial writers:

"Words uttered under coercion are proof of loyalty to nothing but self-interest. Love of country must spring from willing hearts and free minds, inspired by a fair administration of wise laws enacted by the people's elected representatives."

I think that friend of my sister's pupil, Richard Stans, might even buy that.

Cartel's influence is felt in America

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — In past columns, we have turned the spotlight on the murky world of the Medellin drug cartel, which has put the government of Colombia under a state of siege. Colombia has had more than its share of heroes who have tried to defy the cocaine kingpins and have paid with their lives. At this writing, 57 judges and 250 journalists have been murdered because they got in the cartel's way.

The lucrative cocaine trade has flooded Colombia with so much money that it has overwhelmed the economy. With fists full of dollars, the drug barons have conducted a campaign of bribery and intimidation, of payoffs and violence. They have approached authorities with offers that are hard to refuse — "ploma o plato," lead or silver, a bullet or a bribe.

Many of those who dared to stand up to the cartel have been murdered in cold blood. In some cases, hit squads have wiped out entire families, even dumping out their fish bowls and stomping on their pet goldfish.

With dramatic violence, the warning has been driven home to Colombian officials and journalists. From cabinet ministers to cops on the street, some have buckled under to the drug cartel. Hundreds of judges and police officers are now taking orders from the criminals they are supposed to prosecute.

One Colombian judge tearfully told U.S. authorities that the narco-gangsters had threatened to kill all her living predecessors and descendants.

Another judge recounted how he had turned down two bribes. Then the cartel thugs laid before him more money than he ever expected to see in a lifetime. He rejected that offer, too. The next message from the cartel was a photograph of his 9-year-old daughter, taken through the crosshairs of a gunsight as she was climbing the steps of her school. The judge resigned from the bench.

Colombian justice minister Rodrigo Bonilla fought back with uncommon courage. He was gunned down by a hit-and-run assassin who sped away on a motorcycle.

Now, this same pattern of corruption and violence is beginning to develop against the United States. The cartel is a prime suspect in the attempt to assassinate Secretary of State George Shultz by planting a bomb on the route of his motorcade in Bolivia on Aug. 8. This brazen assassination attempt amounts to a declaration of war by the Colombian drug lords. Apparently they now feel powerful enough to branch out from their campaign against the Colombian government and strike back at the United States for interfering with their operations.

The cartel, since it pays no taxes, can afford to spend millions on bribes. Already, dazzling amounts have been offered to American law enforcement officials.

One officer told us about a typical incident. A drug trafficker was stopped on the highway, a cache of cocaine and a briefcase containing $100,000 in cash were found in the car's trunk. The trafficker told the cop, "That isn't my briefcase. It must belong to you."

Gerald Arenberg, executive director of the National Association of Chiefs of Police, estimates that less than 10 percent of the nation's police can be bought. But it takes only a few corrupt lawmen and judges to corrode the system.

The cocaine cartel is passing out bribes today at the local level. Some U.S. neighborhoods are already under its control. It's just a matter of time before the cocaine kingpins — applying the methods that have forced Colombia and Panama to bend — undermine law enforcement and break down the government across the United States, unless they are checked.

That is not simply the job of the police. It is the responsibility of the people who still think cocaine is a "recreational" drug and who use it without regard to the carnage that comes with it. It is also the responsibility of people who think their lives are untouched by drugs. The Medellin cartel supplies 80 percent of the cocaine used in the United States, diverting billions of dollars out of the legitimate U.S. economy and sending execution squads to eliminate the opposition.

Open season on the givers

By Sarah Overstreet

A few weeks ago I was going into a grocery store, and a man outside the door was taking a dollar from a cute little blond boy named Brian. The man was standing near a table with a sign taped to it that read, "_____ Church. Help clean up ghettos and give youth a future."

The man was making Brian feel like king for a day. "It's people like you who make life worth living for all of us, Brian," he said. Next it was my turn. "Want to help out Christian missions and give our ghetto youth a future?"

The answer was, "Yes. I'd like to help give ghetto youth a future. But how do I know any of my money is going to any ghetto youth? By the looks of you, I'd get better odds giving it to the man behind the meat counter. I've never heard of your church, and I don't have time to check you out."

Of course, I didn't say anything like that. Instead, I said, "Not today." The man looked at me like I was unfit to shop in the same store with a Christian patriot like Brian.

Not that he was the first fellow to make me feel like a godless communist that week. The telephone solicitor from a local charitable organization beat him to it. He seemed downright disgusted I wouldn't pay $15 for a pack of six little jars of jelly. I figured jelly that expensive would probably be wasted on a Smucker's palate, and declined.

Instead, I called the president of the local charitable organization, a nice man I'd once interviewed when I was a newspaper reporter. He admitted he didn't know much about the jelly-selling campaign, only that his organization had turned it over to a professional telephone soliciting company. He didn't know how much the jellies cost to buy wholesale, nor did he know what percentage of the profit his organization would receive. And he didn't have an arrangement to look at the soliciting company's books after the campaign was over.

He was embarrassed. "I guess this sounds pretty silly," he said, and it did. "But all groups do it this way. It's just too much trouble to make all those calls ourselves, and we seem to make enough money doing it like this."

An unfortunate assumption. First, he didn't realize how many prospective donors his group was losing — now and forever — by allowing these calls to be made by professional solicitors who don't care what kind of image they're giving his organization. "You mean you couldn't buy four tickets to send disabled children to the circus? They don't get to go many places, and you ought to see their eyes light up. Well, how about two tickets?"

And second, he didn't know what a disgraceful racket a lot of those solicitations are. Recently, The Kansas City (Mo.) Star investigated 23 fundraising campaigns in the Kansas City area. On the average, only 11 percent of the money collected by the soliciting company actually went to the sponsoring charity. Some charities received as little as 4 percent of the profits.

In addition, many charities contacted by The Star said they made little or no attempt to verify expenses claimed by the solicitors. Some had no idea how much money was raised in their names — and how little they received — until The Star reporters told them.

How much of our donated money should we reasonably expect to be spent on fund-raising? Well, the Council of Better Business Bureaus says in most cases fund-raising costs should be 35 percent or less.

We all know many of these charities are worthwhile, and we want to donate. But it's open season on the giver. If enough of us ask for accounting before donating money to charities, the organizations will be forced to clean up their fund-raising campaigns. And we won't have to wonder if we've helped fund some crook's new Mercedes instead of medical research or ghetto youth.

Thursday — 8 p.m., O.A.

Friday — 1 p.m., O.A.

Unitarian Universalist

The new interim minister at the Unitarian Universalist Society, East, the Rev. Ward A. Knights, will preach his first Manchester sermon on Sunday at 10:30 a.m. Children's religious education and nursery care is provided.

Community Baptist

A new program, "The Care and Maintenance of a Good Marriage," will be offered beginning Sunday evening at 6 p.m. at Community Baptist Church. The video series was prepared by Dr. O. Dean Martin. It is suggested for spouses, couples planning marriage and single individuals anticipating marriage or remarriage.

Honor Court meetings an alternative to prison

Editor's note: This column is prepared by the staff at the Manchester Area Conference of Churches.

By Nancy Carr

"If you have appendicitis you go to the doctor, if your shoe needs repairing, you go to a shoemaker. If you have a toothache, you go to the dentist. If you have a drinking problem, you go to AA."

The man speaking at the Honor Court anniversary meeting Monday night laid it right on the line. "I loved drinking," he said as he recounted his drift into the alcoholic pits. "It was my whole life. It... nearly killed me."

Describing the loss of job, friends, family, self respect and the long road back to sobriety, he told the group (mostly men) it wasn't easy. But today he has "two beautiful sons, a house, a good job and most important — I have myself." "These men and women in AA by sharing their life, saved mine."

Come to AA meetings for a few months. Listen; get to know people. You've got nothing to lose and everything to gain.

A second speaker said bluntly, "I was a liar, a cheat and a thief while I was drinking. When I picked up my first drink, I drank because I wanted to. When I picked up the last drink, I drank because I had to." Long recovered, he works with AA to help others find the peace and happiness he has found. "I get on my knees every day asking God for help not to drink. Every night I thank God for having gotten through the day sober."

Honor Court, held every Monday at 7 p.m. at Manchester Superior Court, is sponsored by the men and women of Alcoholics Anonymous, MACC and the Family Relations Court. Most of those in attendance Monday were sentenced to 8 to 10 weeks of attending

MACC News

Honor Court as an alternative to fines or incarceration for minor infractions committed when drunk.

"You are only here to listen, to be introduced to the help AA can offer. The decision to reach out for help is yours."

The hope and support offered by members of AA to a growing population of men and women addicted to alcohol is one of the few bright signs in a bleak picture of alcohol abuse including not just individual illness and tragedy but the injury of drunk driving, family break up and violence, abused children, job and profit loss and welfare-medicaid increased costs.

Eighteen local churches support the alternative sentencing program for alcoholics by providing finger sandwiches and desserts for 50 persons, two and a half times a year; Center Congregational; Community Baptist; Our Saviour Lutheran, Vernon; South Congregational, East Hartford; Concordia Lutheran; Emanuel Lutheran; Wapping Community; Church of Christ; South Methodist; Second Congregational; Bolton Congregational; St. Bridget Rosary Society; Faith Lutheran; Trinity Covenant; Church of the Nazarene; North Methodist; Synagogue Society Action Committee; St. Maurice, Bolton.

Two Mother's Circles, Our Lady of Unity and St. Francis, provide food once a year.

Ginger Smith has coordinated the efforts of these churches and groups for the past nine years. Over the past few years, eight organizations have dropped out of the program, increasing the number of times the others must be scheduled.

St. Mary's Episcopal

A group of 29 people from various parishes in Bermuda, led by the Rev. A. Ewen Ratteray, are holding a retreat at St. Mary's Episcopal Church. They began with a three-day silent retreat, followed by a visit to Old Sturbridge Village in Sturbridge, Mass.

They will worship Sunday with St. Mary's members and will be honored at a reception. The visitors will go to Cathedral in the Pines, Rindge, N.H., on Monday and will fly back to Bermuda on Tuesday. Gladys Stringfellow has been the Manchester coordinator of this visit. Almost two years ago, 39 members of St. Mary's visited the town of Somerset, Bermuda and spent a week visiting various churches and cathedrals.

Other events planned for the coming week at St. Mary's include: 7:30 and 9:30 a.m., Holy Eucharist; 11 a.m., adult forum, speaker on the Episcopal Church Women Triennial; 6 p.m., acolyte meeting; 6:30 p.m., PRISM.

Monday — 7:30 p.m., evening prayer and vestry.

Tuesday — 4 p.m., Capella Choir; 7:30 p.m., Manchester Family Day Care Association.

Wednesday — 10 a.m., Holy Communion; 10:45 a.m., Bible study; 7:30 p.m., Senior Choir; adult education, "Begin with Goodbye," a six-week series on loss.

Thursday — 11 a.m., Ladies Guild; 4 p.m., Cherub Choir; 7 p.m., Bible study; 7:30 p.m., CROPWALK rally.

Friday — 1:30 p.m., Girls Friendly Sponsors; 8 p.m., A.A.

Saturday — 1:30 p.m., Alanon; 7:30 p.m., A.A.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

by Eugene Brewer

Solomon observed that "there is a friend who sticks closer than a brother." Proverbs 18:24. People are seeking friendships, but there are hindrances. Self-gratification and self-exaltation are poor ingredients for forming meaningful relationships. One professor of psychology says that friendship's first law is: You must learn to say 'no' to yourself before you try to make someone else say 'yes' to you.

People often mistakenly think that joint activity produces friendships — as is the arousing fellowship depicted in the television beer commercials. But such conviviality may be nothing more than temporary escape from awful isolation, masking the real persons involved.

To know and accept ourselves is essential to presenting ourselves genuinely to others. And genuineness is the only coin that passes in the realm of friendship. This involves vulnerability to hurt and disappointment, admittedly a risk. But the alternative is a dreary loneliness.

Walesa, Poland agree to talk about Solidarity

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity leader Lech Walesa and Interior Minister Czeslaw Kiszczak agreed at a six-hour meeting Friday that round-table debates on the future of Poland would begin in mid-October.

Those talks will include the future of the outlawed Solidarity labor federation and of trade union pluralism.

"Our positions got closer. I am satisfied," a tired-looking Walesa said after the meeting at a government guest house outside Warsaw broke up at about 9 p.m. (3 p.m. EDT).

"Some bitter things were traded," said mediator Andrzej Stelmachowski.

It was the second meeting between Walesa and communist authorities in two days, and was called to set terms for a broad round-table meeting of social groups on major Polish problems.

Walesa last month persuaded striking workers to end a wave of walkouts after obtaining from the government an agreement to meet. The labor unrest posed the most serious threat to Solidarity since it was crushed with the imposition of martial law in 1981.

Twenty-five people took part in Friday's meeting, among them other Solidarity leaders and representatives of the officially sanctioned trade union alliance OPZZ who were invited to the preparatory talks for the first time.

"During the talks, matters related to the organization of the round table were discussed," said a joint communique issued after the meeting and carried by the state news service PAP.

"The positions of the sides were brought closer," it said, adding that the talks touched on the state and public life, the national economy and "the shape of the Polish trade union movement."

"It was decided that the round-table debates would start in mid-October," the statement said.

"There is no freedom without Solidarity," Walesa told reporters waiting for him at a church complex after the session.

Stelmachowski, a law professor who has been the go-between in arranging the meetings, reported, "No definite decisions were taken, but there was some progress."

He said it would be too early to say that authorities have agreed to restore legal status to Solidarity.

"It seems to me that some chance for legalization is coming into view," he said. "But needless to say all that still requires some time and patience. ... When you are baking something in the kitchen, you cannot say much yet."

Authorities and official trade unions were represented by 13 people led by Kiszczak, Alternate Politburo member Stanislaw Ciosek and Romuald Sosnowski, deputy chairman of the official trade union alliance OPZZ, PAP said.

Duke pledges drug war; Bush raps defense stand

By The Associated Press

Michael Dukakis pledged Friday to double the number of federal drug agents over the next five years as he charged the Reagan administration with using a "nickel and dime" approach to the war on narcotics. George Bush ridiculed Dukakis' attempts to portray himself as a defense-minded candidate.

"You cannot fool the Soviet leadership by knocking America's defense for 10 years and then riding around in a tank for 10 minutes," the vice president said, referring to his Democratic rival's visit earlier in the week to a tank design facility in Michigan. "You can't fool the American people."

Bush played tough in his television commercials, as well, airing an advertisement in Dukakis' home state of Massachusetts that accused him of failing to clean up polluted Boston Harbor.

The vice president headed for Washington after a three-city tour of Ohio, while Dukakis was flying home to Massachusetts on Saturday night. Both men have set aside large parts of next week to prepare for their first debate of the fall presidential campaign, a 90-minute nationally televised session a week from Sunday in Winston-Salem, N.C.

Democrat Dukakis has spent much of the week trying to regain the momentum in the race for the White House, and his tough anti-crime speech in a visit to the Los Angeles Police Academy was part of that effort.

In what has become the standard made-for-television element of every campaign day, he observed officer Jerry Mulford demonstrate "cover and concealment" tactics at a simulated street scene. Mulford ducked behind wooden boxes and a brick wall and fired at various moving and pop-up targets. Normally, live ammunition is used in such exercises, but the Secret Service protecting Dukakis vetoed that idea.

Dukakis said he would assign the first 100 new drug agents to Southern California. And he said he would double the total number of agents nationally over the next five years.

"We are going to hire the state and local law enforcement officers the money to fight the war," he said. "We are not going to try to nickel and dime you to death, as this administration has done."

Aides said he was prepared to spend $50 million to hire new agents next year toward a five-year goal of 2,800 agents, although a fact sheet issued to reporters said the cost of the agents would be offset by seized drug profits.

Aides also said Dukakis was committed to hiring 800 additional federal prosecutors.

"We're going to send a message to drug kingpins," he said. "As far as Mike Dukakis is concerned, there's nowhere you can run; there's nowhere you can hide; there's nowhere you can hide; there will be no safe haven for dope peddlers and drug profits anywhere on this earth."

But while making an appearance at a Chula Vista, Calif., police station, Dukakis was greeted by pro-Bush demonstrators, some wearing striped mock prison uniforms and chanting, "Let me out, I'll kill again." The chant referred to the Massachusetts governor's furlough program.

IT WON'T BITE — Jesse Bigham of North Quincy, Mass., reacts when taking a close look at Bruce, the 2-ton, 25-foot shark from the movie "Jaws," while the model was on its way to the Museum of Science in Boston. It will be part of an exhibit called "The Science of Movie and Television Magic."

FOCUS

6 wayward women trek

By Nancy Concelman
Manchester Herald

They hiked over rocks and wet moors, through bogs, streams, torrential rain and blinding mist, but would do it again — with each others' help.

They are the Penine Wayward Women, a group of six area women who returned last month from a 130-mile hike from Manchester, England, to the Scottish border. They followed the Penine Way, an ancient trail that is known as the "backbone" of England.

"It was fun," Manchester resident Pamela West, of 131 Hartford Road, said. "It was a hard trail, but every single woman on the trip would help the other women."

West, Connie Finnegan of 38 Edgerton Road, Manchester, Helena Stidsen of Bolton, Patricia Skoog and Johane Garneau of Hartford and Enzina Stevenson of East Hartford decided a year ago to make the trip together. Although they trained for that full year, the hike was more difficult than any of them expected.

West said she got the idea for the hike when she visited England once and walked a short way on the Penine Way. West said she thought it was beautiful and presented the idea to Skoog, who asked some of her friends if they would be interested.

The six set out in the middle of August, but West said none of them really realized what they were getting themselves into.

"This was actually the second-hardest trail in England," West said.

West said she would hike in England again, but would take an easier route. On the way back from the trip, the women discussed a Colorado hiking trip.

But for the trip in England, the women were in unknown territory that was both dangerous and beautiful, according to Finnegan, who described the country as "never-never land."

"It was like going back in time," she said. "It's like a strange planet. Our role models were the sheep. They were the only things out there."

For Finnegan, the first and last days of the trip were indicative of the path the six women had chosen. The first day was a romp across the Yorkshire moors in 65-mph winds and torrential rain.

"The moors are steep and they're also boggy," Finnegan said. "It was the full initiation. It really told us what we were in for."

On the last day, the group climbed rocks along the edge of a waterfall and made a chain to cross swollen rivers.

From there, they crossed about four miles of bogs when a mist came in, rendering compasses and maps useless.

"We were out there and there was nothing else out there," she said. "We couldn't see. But we got our bearings and we trusted each other."

"I was terrified," Stidsen said. Finnegan said the mist suddenly cleared, a common occurrence on the moors, and the sun came out.

"It was like a miracle. We were all crying. We depended on each other and we made it," she said. "It was the most beautiful sight," Stidsen said. "Like we were being let out of there."

The group was also chased by bulls, climbed a limestone rock in the pouring rain and got Stevenson out of a bog, West said.

The rain and damp meant the women rarely had dry clothes to put on, despite the efforts of their hosts at bed and breakfasts where they stayed. Some of their gear wasn't waterproof, West said.

"We were actually bartering for plastic bags," West said, laughing. But, "It worked out really well," she added.

Reginald Pinto / Manchester Herald

WAYWARD WOMEN — Six area women who returned in August from a hiking trip from Manchester, England to the Scottish border find Manchester's terrain a little easier to traverse than the Penine Way in England. The Penine

Wayward Women are, from front to rear, Johane Garneau of Hartford, Helena Stidsen of Bolton, Patricia Skoog of Hartford, Connie Finnegan and Pamela West, both of Manchester, and Enzina Stevenson of East Hartford.

Stidsen said the greatest part of the hike was the camaraderie, and others agreed.

"We kind of went in as individuals, but something happened in the midst of it all. We were a unit," Stidsen said. "I learned to take care of myself. When I was able to do that I could be part of the group."

"Personally, I learned that I don't always have to lead. We depended on each other for that," West said. "The whole experience was a process. For a year we walked together. The process was more important than the end."

'Peace planting' may net grandmom prison term

By David Rocks
Associated Press

CHICAGO (AP) — Dorothy Eber says her children and grandchildren respect her strong views but they don't want to see her go to prison, even though that's where the 63-year-old activist may be headed.

"They wish it was somebody else doing it but me," the suburban Villa Park mother of four and grandmother of 11 said Thursday.

Eber faces six months and 3½ years in prison for her part in the Missouri Peace Planting, in which she and 13 others entered 10 missile sites and planted flowers or trees.

"It was the first time I saw a missile site and it was devastating," she said, recalling her first protest Aug. 15 out on the grassy plains.

After writing peace slogans with her own blood on the silo cover, Eber said she sat down and waited nearly two hours for police.

For her trouble, she was given a "ban and bar letter," which forbade her to enter missile sites again.

But she and some others went back — three times during the next two weeks.

And for that, Eber is scheduled to be tried Oct. 24 in Kansas City on four counts each of criminal trespass and damage of property less than $100.

"All I did was cut the padlock," she said. "It can't be worth more than 50 cents."

Eber, whose husband died two years ago, began her activism in the wake of the civil rights movement, when her youngest son started high school in 1967. She began tutoring children in an inner-city parish, and then started a program in which high school students from the suburbs came into the city to tutor.

But she felt her efforts were not changing very much, and that she needed to concentrate on changing the system itself.

Here's The Answer

QUESTION: I have taken up woodworking and find it interesting. Occasionally I run across something that puzzles me. While I can get answers at the lumber yard where I buy wood, I am starting to get self-conscious about it. They must be starting to think I am awfully stupid. For instance, when I see dowels in a container, I notice there are two kinds — one with smooth wood and one with spiral grooves in it. Please advise me. What's the difference?

ANSWER: The part about the lumber people thinking you are stupid is nonsense. They get all kinds of questions all the time. It takes time and lots of questions, answers and trials to get the hang of doing things yourself. Don't be so sensitive. You will never be good at anything unless you work at it. As for the dowels, they usually are glued in place. The glue has a tendency to get squeezed out. The grooves are to keep some of it in place.

QUESTION: I have some masonry work to do soon and expect to mix a lot of mortar. Is it necessary to get a power mixer or can I do the mixing by hand?

ANSWER: Difficult to answer unless the amount of mixing is known. For small and moderate amounts of mortar, mixing by hand is fine. For large amounts, you definitely need a power mixer. There's an in-between method. You can rent mixing equipment that does not depend on electricity to keep it going. Your own elbow grease is all that is needed, but it's a lot easier than "hand" mixing. Ask the advice of the dealer where you purchase the bricks or whatever you will be working on, but you must give him a good idea of how much mixing you will be doing.

QUESTION: I will be putting wooden posts in the ground to support a fence I will put up. I have read about the necessity of seeing that you go below the frost line, which I understand is the depth at which freezing takes place. But how deep is that? Nobody seems to say precisely.

ANSWER: With good reason. The frost line varies in different localities depending on how severe the winters are. If you have a friend in the business of handling concrete, ask him. If not, your local building authorities can tell you. It could be about 18 inches below ground level, but in colder areas it will be deeper.

Working with screwdrivers

By Andy Long
The Associated Press

Although it appears that one or two screwdrivers should be enough for a household without any confirmed do-it-yourselfers, even the unhandful of families needs several of them.

The reason is that a screwdriver which doesn't exactly fit the head of the screw can cause damage. If it is a little too large or too small, it can slip out of the screw slot and mar whatever you are working on. It also can chew up the slot, making the screw difficult to turn and perhaps forcing you to remove it and start over. To avoid this kind of trouble, it is necessary to use a screwdriver with a blade tip that fits the screw slot.

While it often is the most used tool in the house or workshop, a screwdriver also is the most abused. It does service as a pryer, lifter, poker, opener and for various other tasks for which it was not designed. Then when you want to tighten or loosen a screw, its battered tip cannot function properly and slips out of the slot even though it is the correct size.

You also will need what is called a Phillips screwdriver. Once used mostly for machine work, it now is necessary to have one around the house for the Phillips screws that will be encountered from time to time. Its star-shaped point fits screws with that type of slot. If you are fairly new to woodworking or do-it-yourselfing, you can save yourself occasional trouble if you remember a screw is tightened by turning it clockwise and loosened by turning it counterclockwise. This will stand you in good stead, especially when you want to remove a screw. Turn it counterclockwise. If you turn it clockwise—the wrong way—you may tighten the screw even more.

Hold the handle of a screwdriver in the palm of the hand and use the thumb and index finger of the other hand to steady the blade fairly near the tip. Slowly make a couple of turns until the screw has taken hold. You then can remove one hand from the bottom, sliding it up near the top or removing it from the screwdriver altogether.

When you are working with softwood, you can start a screw without drilling a pilot hole, although some woodworkers do it with any kind of wood. The hole should be smaller in diameter than the nail or screw being used.

After you have worked with different kinds of wood, you will begin to know instinctively when you can get by with just a starting hole, one made with an awl or similar tool. The important thing is you don't force the screw into wood that resists the operation. You will wind up with a lot of bent screws — or nails — and occasional damage to the wood. If you have to do quantity work with a screwdriver, you can use a screwdriver powered by electricity or one of the newer cordless types. The cordless usually are recharged by plugging them into an electrical outlet, but there are those which work without doing that. In fact, if you plan on doing a considerable amount of work with a screwdriver, go to a place well-stocked with hand and power drivers and see how many different kinds are available.

Besides the many blade tip sizes, there are screwdrivers with long handles, short handles, offset blades and those which fit into hand drills. You are asking for trouble if you hold the work in one hand while you tighten or loosen the screw with a screwdriver held in the other hand. It need slip only once for you to wind up with a slash somewhere on your body. For the same reason, don't try to turn the handle of a screwdriver with a pair of pliers. Screwdriver blade tips can be filed to make them square again, either by hand or with a grinder of some kind. But a good screwdriver will last indefinitely if it is used for the tightening and loosening of screws and not for prying and poking.

Imported insects are an aid

By Earl Aronson
The Associated Press

A world traveler, he is very cautious about having his suitcase X-rayed as he passes through customs security gates at airports. He doesn't want the bugs in his luggage to be damaged because it could disrupt his search for insects that eat the weeds that clog waterways and reservoirs.

"It's very interesting when we avoid X-ray," says Gary R. Buckingham, a U.S. Department of Agriculture scientist at the Biological Pest Control Laboratory in Gainesville, Fla. "Even though scientists have permission to import insects, it still takes a lot of explaining to customs agents."

The imported insects are proving to be weed-eaters. A successful one is an Argentina-born weevil (Neochetina eichhorniae) released in 1974 in Louisiana, which reduced water hyacinth infestation from 1.2 million acres to 358,000 acres.

The scientists have to be sure that the insects have an appetite only for the weeds they are supposed to eat.

Department of Agriculture scientists raise the insects and test the species. States and the Army Corps of Engineers put them to work to open clogged waterways for fishing, boating, shipping and pumping irrigation water. As natural enemies of aquatic weeds, insects can be more effective, cheaper and, in some cases, longer-lasting than chemical and mechanical practices, the researchers say.

Weeders Guide

Another kind of weed-eater being tested in California is grass carp fish stocked in hydrilla-clogged irrigation canals.

Cells of young plants — as well as the soil — are literally blown away in windstorms that sweep across the Great Plains farmlands, according to wind tunnel tests at Manhattan, Kan.

The loss of cells and other plant damage reduces crop yields, says Dr. Dean V. Armbrust of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, who ran 30-mph tests on newly emerging plants. He said wheat seedlings (14 days after they sprouted) were most vulnerable to the "sandblasting."

losses, delaying and reducing growth. Also, less leaf area is left to capture sunlight and photosynthesize sugars for nourishment.

Armbrust said farming practices that slow wind speed to 15 mph at ground level will protect both soil and plant. He tested sorghum, soybeans and wheat.

A flowering cherry tree from Japan that survives at minus 31 degrees F is being tested for viruses by the Department of Agriculture. Researchers say the tree will survive in some of the coldest areas of the United States.

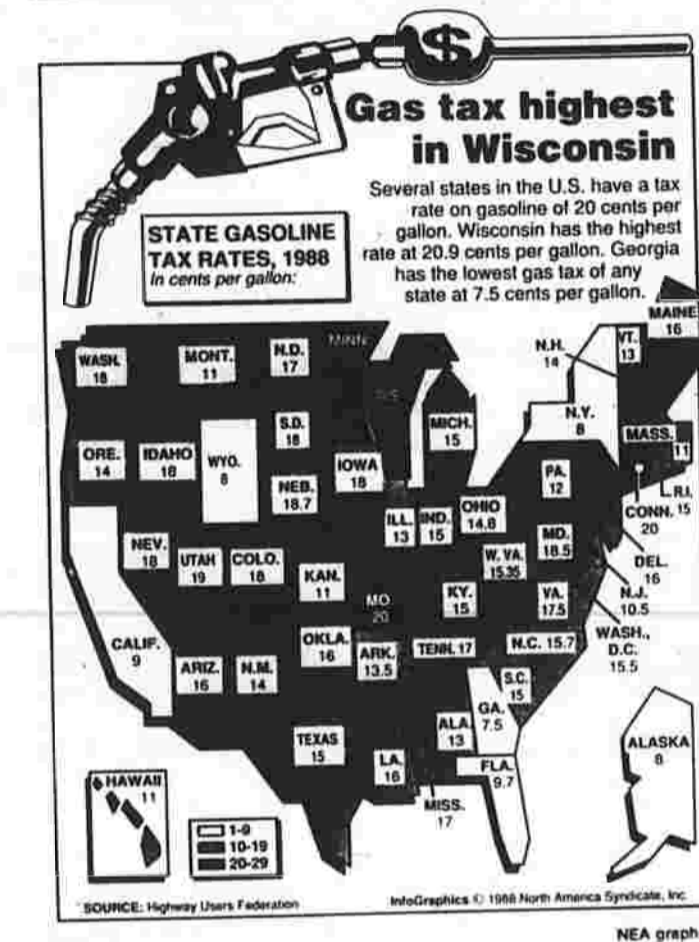

"We expect that places as far north as Minnesota will have, for the first time, an ornamental double-flowering cherry tree that is extremely hardy," said Roland M. Jefferson. "Double-flowering (25 to 50 petals) cherry trees in this country usually can withstand temperatures only above minus 10 F."

The quarantine period could take up to six years. Once released, budwood would be given to the National Arboretum in Washington.

Jefferson said the tree (Prunus sargentii), which resists most insects, is named Kushiro Yae. Kushiro is the Japanese city where it was discovered, while "yae" is Japanese for "double."

QUESTION: I am self-employed. Both my children are working at my place of business, helping out after school. They are high school students and I pay them a decent wage. Can they participate in my Keogh retirement plan even though they are only 16 and 17 years old?

ANSWER: There is no age discrimination in a Keogh plan. You may include the children. However, be certain that your children meet the minimum participation requirements of the plan.

QUESTION: Now that I'm separated from my husband, I have to take care of my personal business myself. I will be filing my own income tax return for this year. Is there any information I could read that might help me?

ANSWER: Yes, there is — and it's free at any IRS office. Ask for IRS Publication 504: Tax Information for Divorced or Separated Individuals.

QUESTION: Have you heard anything about what the new tax forms will be like for 1988? Is there much difference between 1987 forms and the 1988 forms? I'm getting anxious.

ANSWER: Many of the IRS forms for 1988 income tax returns have been mailed to most tax preparers. I have reviewed most of the forms for individual, partnership and corporation returns. A basic change in the 1988 Form 1040 as compared to 1987 is the section for claiming the standard deduction. Many taxpayers filed it incorrectly on their 1987 tax returns. Schedule SE for 1987 tax returns. Schedule SE for 1987 tax returns has been simplified and the limit on deductions for personal interest has been reduced to 40 percent from 65 percent in 1987.

QUESTION: Is there a minimum interest rate the government pays for savings bonds?

ANSWER: The guaranteed rate for series EE savings bonds is 6 percent. The rate cannot fall below this amount.

Tips on how to save money while you're making music

Sylvia Porter

It's fall and, across the nation, high school and college bands are marching again. Students, having returned to the classroom, are learning to make music on a variety of instruments. Meanwhile, families everywhere gather around the piano to sing their old favorites, as they do all year.

Since I last reported on this phenomenon in 1984, your annual expenditures for new musical instruments, sheet music and musical accessories have risen from $2.5 billion to $3.6 billion. On top of this, there's a lively, unmeasured market in second-hand instruments. And millions of dollars are spent on music software, portable keyboards and synthesizers.

All told, this is less than the $5.6 billion we spent annually on recorded music — compact discs, LPs and cassettes. But a hefty chunk of the music market is made up of Americans who want to make their own. From mouth organs to pipe organs, from guitars to bass viols, from trumpets to timpani, the sounds continue to grow. One in four of you owns at least one musical instrument and there are more than 57 million amateur musicians in America.

Almost half of all American households contain at least one amateur musician, according to a survey by the American Music Conference, underwritten by the National Association of Music Merchants.

Just to suggest the size of the market, there are 20.6 million amateurs in the U.S. playing the piano, almost 19 million guitar players and 1.7 million harmonica players.

How do we account for this remarkable commitment to music? The answer is simple: enjoyment and self-satisfaction. A survey of young adults by AMC says this group views music-making as a healthy and worthwhile activity. Young adults say they play to provide a sense of personal accomplishment, as a way of relaxing and a way to help relieve stress. Survey respondents also believe that communities should support music education in their schools.

"To varying degrees, they all agree that playing an instrument is something a person will always be glad he or she learned to do; that music-making brings families together, and that all children should be exposed to playing an instrument," the pollsters concluded.

Trends shaping the music industry's future include:

■ Use of computers for music sound production and composing.

The market for music software doubled from 1986 to 1987. ■ The popularity of portable keyboards with organ, synthesizer or electric piano characteristics. These products are inexpensive and widely available. They attract many of you who have no previous experience with instruments.

■ The interest in synthesizers, often by experienced musicians. ■ Acceptance by schools and private teachers of electric pianos, instruments that make a piano sound and "have at least some similarity to piano action."

■ Improvements in sound reinforcement equipment, or

Social Security

QUESTION: I recently received my "Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement" from Social Security. It's great! I did not realize there was that kind of coverage for survivors and disability benefits under Social Security. However, I have a question that was not answered on my statement. What amount will my spouse receive on my retirement account?

ANSWER: An eligible spouse of a retired worker under the Social Security program is entitled to 50 percent of the unreduced Social Security benefit. People retiring today can receive unreduced benefits at 65. However, the age of eligibility for unreduced Social Security retirement benefits will be increased gradually from 65 to 70 starting in the next century.

You noted that the retirement estimates do not include amounts for family members as the survivors and disability estimates do. The reason for this is that many spouses have or will have worked under Social Security themselves. The entitlement of these individuals to their own benefit significantly affects any spouse's benefits. We wanted to be able to provide statements which are as realistic as possible and could not, without delaying implementation of the new statement, find a mechanism for merging the pertinent information for both records. However, SSA is continuing to explore means of providing this information in the future.

QUESTION: My mother receives Social Security checks every month, but she is now 85 and incapable of handling her own money. Can I have checks sent to me so that I can handle her finances for her?

ANSWER: Yes, you can. You, or another person or institution, can apply to become a representative payee for your mother. Of course, you will have to supply evidence of her inability to handle her own money. As a representative payee, you will receive her checks directly so that you can use the money for her wellbeing and care. The money must be used to meet her needs... medical, support, and so forth. ## Problem needs discussion

DEAR DR. REINISCH: My husband is 60. Although he still "goes through the motions" (more or less), he rarely ejaculates. My impression is that often he is faking orgasm.

Kinsey Report
June M. Reinisch, Ph.D.

It is out of the question that he would discuss this with me or a counselor. Will you write about men and aging?

DEAR READER: The effects of aging vary greatly from one man to another, but can include a need for greater direct stimulation. Erections may be less firm, less semen may be ejaculated and the intensity of orgasmic contractions may be reduced.

Regardless of age, erection, orgasm and ejaculation are all separate events in sexual functioning — it is possible to have an orgasm without ejaculating or having an erection.

Masters and Johnson and other researchers have noted that older men may have a reduced need to ejaculate. Some are content with the closeness and pleasure of physical intimacy, but ejaculate only every other time, or less — each man finds the best pattern. Some men need more stimulation that an available in intercourse, and may ejaculate only from manual or oral stimulation.

Problems occur when men and their partners are not aware of these possible changes. If a man thinks lack of ejaculation during sex means something is wrong, he may focus on his performance, blocking his normal sexual responses. Uninformed partners often interpret this as a sign they are no longer attractive or loved.

Decreased ejaculation may also be a symptom of chronic disease or a side effect of medication. Your husband should have a medical examination to see whether this is involved, but he'll have to mention the decreased ejaculation in order for the physician to investigate as thoroughly as necessary.

There is also evidence that a wife's aging can affect her husband's sexual functioning. Around menopause, the drop in estrogen can decrease the amount of natural lubrication produced during arousal.

Husbands not aware of this think their wife no longer finds them attractive, or that they are poor lovers. At your next pelvic exam ask your physician whether you show evidence of low estrogen.

Everyone is sensitive about sexual attractiveness and lovemaking ability. These are difficult matters to discuss in ways that do not blame or fault the partner.

Therapists and counselors are trained to help partners learn to talk together in a non-threatening manner and arrive at joint decisions about meeting sexual needs. Counseling also consists of information, giving specific techniques and discussion of how others have successfully solved similar problems.

Research has shown that older couples who are happy with their lives feel that communication about all matters, including sex, is of vital importance. I urge you to find some way to talk with your husband about sex. It is possible that he is happy with his present sex life and that he fakes orgasms only so you are not disappointed.

You could hand him this column and say you want to talk about something similar. If he refuses, make it clear that you think having a sex problem is worthy of attention, that you intend to ask your physician for a checkup and that you may ask a counselor for information and advice. Encourage him to do the same.

A survey of more than 4,000 Americans age 60 and older reported that 4 percent of men in their 60s reported seldom or no orgasms and 11 percent reported having orgasms only some of the times they have sex with a partner. But 86 percent of these men reported having a high enjoyment of sex. You and your husband may need to learn to focus on the more important aspect of enjoyment, rather than on the rate of ejaculations.

AIDS fear is unfounded

DEAR DR. GOTT: Since I am supposed to be taking human progesterone in the form of suppositories, how likely is it that the AIDS virus could be transmitted this way?

Dr. Gott
Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR READER: The Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV), the cause of AIDS, is spread by intimate sexual contact and by blood, such as transfusions and contaminated needles in drug abusers. HIV is not spread by medicines, no matter how they are introduced into the body. You are completely safe using the hormone as prescribed.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My brother's teacher is narrow-minded, overly strict, self-righteous, negative and a "health nut" to boot. For snack time, these fifth graders are only allowed orange juice and fruits and vegetables. I agree they shouldn't eat candy, but I think all this acid in the morning would do more harm than good, especially for those kids who ate no breakfast.

DEAR READER: Your characterization of your brother's teacher is, I hope, based on schoolroom facts, not on dietary preferences. Juice, fruits and vegetables seem to me to be appropriate snack-food for fifth graders, especially if they skipped breakfast. Forget the acid business; it's a non-issue.

Most fifth graders are quite adept at getting all the carbohydrates they need at home; carbs are the preferred fodder for this age group. Therefore, I wouldn't object to the teacher insisting on a little nutritional variety. Because the teacher's snacks are clearly more healthful than traditional

Not everyone enjoys being called 'Honey'

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 43-year-old woman who has lost count of the time I've been called "Hon" or "Honey" by waitresses, clerks, salespersons, and any number of people who have spoken to me only on the telephone.

Once I asked a young co-worker not to call me "Hon," and she was extremely offended, informing me that it was "just a habit." I told her to break it.

When a waitress comes to my table in the middle of my dinner and asks, "How ya' doin', Hon?" her tip is reduced considerably. The waitress who asks, "Is everything all right, Ma'am?" does much better.

Currently, I work in a professional office where clients, whom I call Mr., Mrs., Sir, Ma'am, or by their names, occasionally call me "Honey" — but only once. They are told, either by me or by my superior, that I will not tolerate such familiarity. They may be annoyed momentarily, but they never have to be told twice, and I usually get an apology.

Pet names belong only between the closest friends and family. Please tell all those people who claim it's "just a habit," and have themselves coned into thinking it's cute or more informal, that it is nothing of the kind. It's extremely presumptuous and offensive, and they should not be surprised when someone is annoyed by it.

Nobody's Honey
IN FLAKHART, IND.

DEAR Nobody's Honey: I believe that most people who call co-workers, and strangers, "Hon," "Honey," "Dear" or other pet names do so with nary a thought that they are being presumptuous or offensive. (They're just being "friendly.") It is your right, of course, to nip it in the bud since such familiarity irritates you. However, I'll print your letter to let my readers know that not everyone appreciates pet names.

DEAR ABBY: May I reply to a reader's comment regarding the unprofessional behavior of some "office nurses"?

Most physicians' "office nurses" are medical assistants. Those who act in an unprofessional manner are usually hired off the street by physicians who do not want to pay for qualified, educated medical assistants.

The American Association of Medical Assistants (AAMA) has been in existence for more than 20 years and has been working for the education and certification of assistants. Certified medical assistants (CMA) are given similar education in handling delicate patient situations and law and ethics as registered nurses.

The medical assistant must complete two years of training, which includes 90 hours of internship in a physician's office. She must pass a nationwide certification exam that tests her knowledge in the administrative, clinical and general aspects of the medical office. CMAs must also earn continuing education credits in order to keep their certification.

I hope this explains why some "office nurses" behave in an unprofessional manner.

Gambling at home only costs you the software

By Larry Blisko
The Associated Press

Casino gambling is fun for casinos, mostly because they're the ones who walk away with the money. But personal computer owners can have some fun and keep most of their money by using their machines for simulated gambling — the only thing you have to lose is the software purchase price.

Applications Plus Inc., 15720 Harmony Way, Apple Valley, MN, 55124, is running a line of gambling simulations billed as a "play & learn to win" series. Last fall they brought out Beating The House At Blackjack and Video Vegas Poker (poker machine) simulaxuuuuuursional computers. Now they've added to the line with two new programs, Championship Poker and Strategic Craps.

The poker game comes with a suggested retail price of $34.95 and runs on Apple II-series, IBM-PC and compatibles and Macintosh computers. The craps game runs on the same set of machines and the suggested retail is $39.95.

The poker simulation is first rate. It was reviewed on a Tandy 1000 SX with the CM-5 RGB color monitor. The game being taught is Hold 'Em, a version of poker played at tables in Los Vegas and popular at friendly private games.

The basic rules of Hold 'Em are very simple: Every player gets two face-down cards. Five cards are dealt face-down in the center of the table. As rounds of betting progress, first three, then four and finally, all five of the center cards become visible. The winner is the player able to put together the highest-ranking five-card poker hand using any of the two "hole" cards originally dealt and the table cards.

What makes Hold 'Em exciting (and potentially very expensive) is that the common cards make a number of high hands in a game possible. Card sense and luck are absolutely required for success and the software reflects this, allowing you to learn the game and play it against a table of seven opponents, either on friendly rules or on the Las Vegas elimination tournament rules.

Besides easily identifiable cards, nice features of the software include the ability to customize the rules to reflect the rules of your local game and to set the amount of time between player actions. The last is important, since Las Vegas games tend to move quickly and a newcomer not used to the pace is apt to get an expensive education. The software allows you to start slow and work up to speed.

The computer opponents seem to have playing patterns just as human opponents would — watch out for No. 6 who likes to raise the stakes. A booklet explaining the odds in various poker situations is included.

The craps simulation explains the complicated betting that revolves around what is a very simple game. In craps, a pair of dice are rolled. If the roller turns up a total of 7 or 11, the roller wins. A 2, 3 or 12 loses. Any other number is the "point" and the person continues to roll the dice until they again show that "point" number (a win) or until a 7 appears (a loss).

'What's up, Doc?' Bug Bunny's voicemaker tells all

By Lee Mitgang
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Thufferin' thuccotash!

Mel, ah-say-Mel Blanc, the voice behind Bugs, Daffy, Tweety, Porky, Woody and almost every cartoon character from here to Cucamonga, is 80 years old and has just written an autobiography.

Blanc, in a warm-hearted and fascinating new book, "That's Not All Folks: My Life in the Golden Age of Cartoons and Radio" (Warner Books, $17.95) says Warner Bros. produced 1,003 cartoons, and he voiced 848 of them.

His favorite character? Reached by telephone at his Los Angeles home, Blanc answered in the voice of Brooklyn's most famous bunny: "Everybody knows who I am, doc. I don't cayuh where dey are or who dey are. Even up in Mars dey know about me. HEHEHEHEH!"

"Bugs: that's my favorite character. I even have him tattooed on my shirt."

The "Looney Tunes" and "Merrie Melodies" churned out by Warner Bros. in a dank office dubbed Termite Terrace by Blanc and his cartooning co-workers had their heyday from the 1930s to the mid-'50s. Their reruns are arguably still the funniest things on television. They parodied film stars from Humphrey Bogart to Katharine Hepburn, tweaked politicians and contained salty, hilarious characters that are a far cry from the phoney, unfunny goody-goodies and baddy-baddies that populate today's junk-food TV cartoon shows.

The box-office success this summer of "Who Framed Roger Rabbit," a mystery-fantasy in which cartoon characters must contend with the human world, proves that the public still eats up good animation.

Blanc, in fact, did the voices of Daffy Duck, Tweety Bird, Bugs Bunny and Sylvester the Cat in "Roger Rabbit," but he says he hasn't seen the film yet.

Cartoon connoisseurs will find plenty of tidbits to relish in Blanc's autobiography, co-written by Philip Bashe.

A few samples:
■ The theme music for Warner Bros. cartoons is a tune called "The Merry-Go-Round Broke Down."

■ Voice characterizations are done first, not the pictures, to the surprise of many.

■ A single six-minute Warner Bros. cartoon took four or five artists sketching about 16,000 pictures and 60 backgrounds.

■ Bugs Bunny in his earliest incarnation in the late '30s was called "Happy Rabbit." Blanc hated the name, and in 1940 he changed it to Bugs. He decided to give him a tough-guy Brooklyn accent, even though Blanc grew up in San Francisco and Portland, Ore., and has never set foot in Brooklyn.

■ The hardest voice characterization for Blanc was Yosemite Sam since it had to be done at a constant holler. Sylvester was the easiest because he sounded closest to Blanc's natural voice, except for the exaggerated lisp.

After the demise of Termite Terrace, Blanc went on to do more modern cartoon characters, from The Flintstones' Barney Rubble to the Frito Bandito.

Life is calmer but music is hot

By Richard De Atley
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — What's this? Fizzy fruit drinks in the hands of Van Halen band members?

Once the baddest of the bad, the boys who drove 'em mad, the terror of Holiday Inn managers from Maine to California, the lads have decidedly cooled their personal styles.

But they've managed to keep their music hot.

The musicians were in a reflective yet playful mood as they gathered recently for an interview at a local rehearsal studio.

Guitarist Eddie Van Halen, brother-drummer Alex, bassist Michael Anthony and lead vocalist Sammy Hagar actually seemed to be enjoying those non-alcoholic beverages that come in skinny little bottles.

The band has been around for 14 years now, and survived two years ago what many thought would be a fatal personnel change with the ebullient Hagar replacing David Lee Roth.

There also has been an effort to sober their personal lives, with Eddie agreeing to undergo alcohol treatment after a drunken driving arrest late last year ended in a no-contest plea. Brother Alex also has turned off the tap.

Of the two brothers, Alex is the more talkative, giving rapid explanations and analyses of touring and rock 'n' ing heavy metal, rock 'n' roll, call it what you want, from day one," he said when asked about the dim view taken of hard rock bands by such groups as the Parents Music Resource Committee.

"First they said, 'It's not going to last more than a week.' Then they said, 'It won't last more than a year.' Then they said, 'It won't last a decade.' Then they said, 'It won't last more than 25 years.' By the time they figure out how long it's going to last, they'll be dead," Alex said with a laugh.

Eddie is reticent, and even seems embarrassed when asked about his award-winning and often-emulated guitar style.

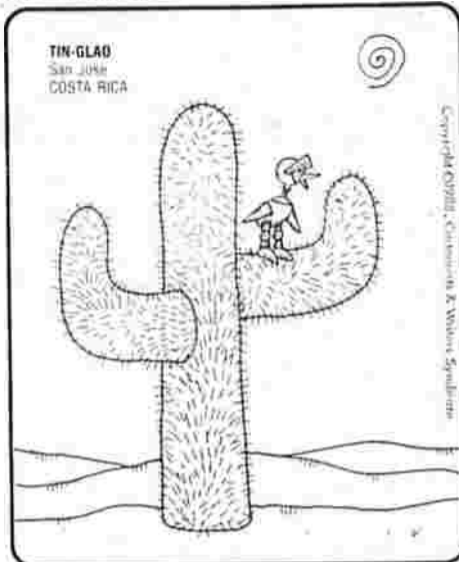

"I'm just glad I did something to give people to learn from," he said. "At first it bothered me. ... I would get ticked off. But I look at it differently now," he said. He referred to his wife, actress Valerie Bertinelli, as "My bodyguard."

Hagar, whose replacement of the attention-loving Roth in 1986 got off to a weird start with an obscenity-filled appearance at the Farm Aid concert, said settling into the band was nearly instantaneous.

He said he believes the band belongs in the company of such groups as U2, the Grateful Dead and Bruce Springsteen and the E Street Band.

"None of these bands have anything to do with each other, but they're all individuals and they are great in their own right at what they do. Van Halen fits in like that," he said.

Interviewing children

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Entertainer and author Art Linkletter says he loves to interview children and women over the age of 70.

"Children don't know what they're saying and old women don't care," he told about 450 people Thursday at a retirement center's seminar on "Growing Old: Making the Most of It."

Linkletter, 76, said children survive depressions, sorrows, successes, joys and failures for which "we've earned an honorary doctorate of life." But he said some experience a loss of identity and self-esteem when they grow old.

Cellist hospitalized

DALLAS (AP) — Janos Starker, one of the world's leading cellists, was in fair condition Friday after being hospitalized with chest pains.

Starker, 64, was to have had a reunion this weekend with the Dallas Symphony Orchestra, where he had played first cello. He was admitted Thursday to Baylor Medical Center.

Michener's writing habit

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (AP) — When James Michener sits down to write his Caribbean novel, he puts on music from Jamaica, Barbados and Mexico.

"I play them all the time to remind myself what the characters are listening to," he says. Michener, 81, says he should finish the novel late this year and has plans to retire.

Artists receive praise

PARIS (AP) — Actor Gerard Depardieu and pianist-conductor Daniel Barenboim were among those awarded the French Legion of Honor by President Francois Mitterrand.

At presidential Elysee Palace, Mitterrand on Thursday paid tribute to Depardieu as "a model actor who has left his stamp from year to year on French cinema."

Depardieu rose from an unemployed tough to one of France's best-known film stars. Among his many movies are "The Last Metro," "The Return of Martin Guerre" and "Under Satan's Sun."

Of Barenboim, Mitterrand said: "There is hardly a concert hall in the world where Daniel Barenboim has not brought his enormous skills and an indefinable quality that expresses the movements of the soul and the heart."

Reagan cautious about Gorbachev proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Friday he is ready to study Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's proposal for a mutual superpower base-closing in the Pacific, but said the United States should proceed cautiously.

Making clear that "I haven't had an opportunity to go into it in detail," Reagan told reporters he remains interested in doing "anything we can" to improve U.S.-Soviet relations.

But in an allusion to how people sometimes get cheated at card-playing, he said, "As I have frequently said to him (Gorbachev), 'Trust everybody, but cut the cards.'"

In a brief exchange with reporters at the conclusion of swearing-in ceremonies for Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady, Reagan did not elaborate on the U.S. government's reaction to Gorbachev's proposal that the Soviets close their key base at Cam Ranh Bay in Vietnam in exchange for a closure of U.S. bases in the Philippines.

But chief spokesman Marlin Fitzwater earlier had voiced skepticism about the proposal earlier, saying "were somewhat pessimistic."

In Moscow, Gorbachev said the Kremlin was prepared to shut down its naval base at Cam Ranh Bay if the U.S. relinquished its bases in the Philippines as part of a plan to strengthen security in the Asia-Pacific region.

Asked about this, Reagan replied, "I haven't had an opportunity to go into it in detail in what it is he's proposing, but I look forward to doing that because certainly we want to do anything we can to help bring about a better relationship between our two countries."

Fitzwater, answering questions during the daily White House news briefing, said the administration did not yet have "a definitive response" to Gorbachev's base-closing proposal.

"It just doesn't seem to make sense on the face of it," the spokesman said. "But, on the other hand, we want to give a full analysis to the speech to that proposal, and the context of what was said. ... I don't want to elaborate. We'll wait for a more detailed analysis."

Gulf role may change

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration may soon change its convoy escort procedures in the Persian Gulf in what would be the first major response to last month's ceasefire in the Iran-Iraq war, defense officials said Friday.

Under a new plan, U.S.-flag tankers plying the waterway would be kept within a "defensive zone" by American warships but would not be accompanied every step of the way by a Navy vessel as is now the case, the sources said.

That change in procedure would allow a slight reduction in the number of warships deployed to the Persian Gulf — probably one fewer ship — but would increase the flexibility of the task force commander and allow the Navy's ships to operate at a lesser alert level, the officials said.

Sweden votes Sunday

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The Social Democrats, who have dominated Sweden's government for 56 years, on Sunday face their first election challenge since Prime Minister Olof Palme was shot in 1986.

The governing party was expected to win the most votes, but it would take only a slight shift in voting patterns to break their majority hold on the 349-seat Riksdag, or parliament.

Polls showed the Social Democrats, who control 159 seats in the unicameral legislature, have lost crucial support to the environmentalist Greens, who now hold no seats in parliament.

The small, activist party has been spurred by recent polls showing up to 10 percent of voter support. It could tilt the balance of power by winning the minimum 4 percent of the national vote a party must have to sit in parliament.

Historic sites in danger

MAMMOTH HOT SPRINGS, Wyo. (AP) — Archaeologists work side by side with firefighters, trying to preserve historic sites at Yellowstone National Park that have been threatened not only by fire but by the bulldozers sent in to halt them.

Officials say they may never know just how many sites of old Indian settlements and traces of early white explorers have succumbed to the flames that have devastated nearly half the country's oldest national park.

"The problem in Yellowstone is that very, very little of the park has had an intense archaeological survey," said Sonya Capek, a park cultural resource specialist.

Dems offer pay plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats offered Friday to expand slightly an existing subminimum wage for full-time students to head off what they called a "hire 'em and fire 'em" 90-day training wage backed by Republicans.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., offered an amendment to his bill raising the minimum wage from its current $3.35 an hour to $4.55 an hour by 1991 that would allow employers to hire up to 12 students instead of the six now allowed for up to 20 hours a week at 85 percent of the minimum wage.

Only about 100,000 students are now earning the $2.85 subminimum wage, according to Labor Department officials, compared with 515,000 students in 1978. Kennedy said his proposal would allow employers to double the number of students at the subminimum wage on their payrolls.

Curfews set in Gaza

JERUSALEM (AP) — The army imposed curfews Friday on 180,000 Arabs living in Gaza Strip refugee camps to prevent violence after activists called a general strike to mark the 1982 massacre of hundreds of Palestinians in Lebanon.

In southern Lebanon, troops fatally shot three PLO guerrillas who the army said planned to attack Israeli settlements.

A Palestine Liberation Organization official told an Israeli daily the PLO wants to negotiate peace but would not abandon attacks against Israel.

Police questioned Israeli peace crusader Abie Nathan, who met this week with PLO chief Yasser Arafat in violation of Israeli law. Nathan, 61, was released on $3,000 bail.

727 checks ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration ordered airlines Friday to check takeoff warning alarms on all Boeing 727 jetliners because of questions raised in the investigation of a Delta Air Lines crash last month in Texas.

FAA officials said the directive to the airlines for a one-time check of the estimated 1,200 jetliners being operated in the United States was "purely precautionary." They insisted there is no evidence at this point to indicate the alarm, which warns of a false flap setting, malfunctioned in the Delta plane. Investigators have uncovered conflicting evidence as to whether the flaps were positioned properly.

Highlights of the week

By The Associated Press

The government said the U.S. merchandise trade deficit showed the biggest improvement in almost six years in July, shrinking to $9.53 billion from a revised June deficit of $13.22 billion. Another report showed a broader measure of U.S. trade, figured quarterly, narrowed sharply from April through June.

Other government economic reports evidenced a slowdown in growth. Industrial production rose a modest 0.2 percent in August, while retail sales declined 0.2 percent during the month. The industrial operating rate for August showed little change, and business inventories were reported up just 0.3 percent in July.

Agriculture Department officials held to an earlier prediction that consumer food prices would rise an average of only 3 percent to 5 percent this year, with about 1 percent of the rise attributed to the summer drought.

Sales of U.S.-made cars and trucks fell 9 percent in early September, but last year's incentives continued to color the year-to-year comparisons.

Nine personal computer makers declared their technical independence from International Business Machines Corp., with a new standard for how information will be passed around inside their machines. Analysts said the new "bus," or data pathway, killed for good the idea that IBM would control the standards for the next generation of PCs.

Kroger Co., one of the nation's largest grocery chains, said it was considering a $3.77 billion restructuring plan, which analysts said was designed to ward off a hostile takeover by Herbert and Robert Haft.

Management officials at Hospital Corp. of America said they planned a $3.3-billion buyout of the company, one of the world's biggest hospital chains.

Macmillan Inc. agreed to a $2.36 billion takeover by Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co., a private investment firm. But British publisher Robert Maxwell responded by raising his offer for Macmillan to $2.41 billion in cash.

Consumer-products giant Colgate-Palmolive Co. accepted a management-led buyout of its Kendall Health Care subsidiary in a deal that values the business at around $1.1 billion.

Playtex Holdings Inc. said it will split into two separate companies under a series of buyout transactions totaling about $1.3 billion. The deal would separate Playtex's family products businesses from its intimate apparel operations.

Ames Department Stores Inc. said it had agreed to buy Zayre Corp.'s 388-unit discount store division in a deal it valued at about $800 million.

Armtek Corp. accepted a sweetened $561.2 million buyout offer from its once-hostile suitor Mark IV Industries Inc., ending a brief battle for the auto parts maker.

American Brands Inc. rebuffed a buyout proposal from an investor group led by financier Bennett LeBow, who alternatively requested a chance to buy the company's tobacco businesses.

Harvard University said it is raising $30 million to start companies to commercialize medical research. Administrators said the plan would raise money needed to supplement Harvard Medical School's $350 million research budget.

The Senate voted overwhelmingly to confirm investment banker and former Sen. Nicholas F. Brady as Treasury secretary in time for a major international meeting in West Berlin.

Seabrook closer to license

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission on Friday eliminated a major hurdle in the Seabrook, N.H., power plant's prolonged quest for a low-power license, but commission concerns over the owners' financial stability continue to block licensing.

The NRC voted 4-0 for a rule "clarification" that will allow nuclear plants to receive low-power permits without an emergency siren system in place to alert neighbors within 10 miles of the reactor of an atomic emergency.

Massachusetts communities within Seabrook's 10-mile zone fought successfully to have the sirens removed. State officials led by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, the Democratic presidential nominee, believe those coastal towns, with their narrow roads and bulging summer populations, would not be able to quickly evacuate. The new rule takes effect in 30 days.

Dukakis blasted the ruling, saying it "defies logic and brings new meaning to the word irresponsible." He derided the commission as the "Not Responsible Commission" and said it "is experiencing a meltdown in its thinking process."

In New Hampshire, Seabrook officials said preparations for low-power testing will begin immediately in light of the NRC vote.

The lone regulatory obstacle remaining for Seabrook's low-power license is a petition filed by plant opponents charging that the reactor's owners are financially unfit to operate the plant.

That question was tentatively scheduled for a vote following the siren issue, but was postponed.

Max celebrated his birthday at a fabulous place.

Chances are, Max won't remember what a great time he had at The Family Birthing Center at Manchester Memorial Hospital. But his parents will never forget the wonderful experience.

From the moment they arrived, they enjoyed the special attention and personal care that are so hard to come by in some of the bigger hospitals. Throughout labor and delivery, Max's parents had the support of their own nurse in the privacy of their own birthing room, using the prepared child-birth methods they learned at the Center. After Max's arrival they celebrated with photo-taking, a champagne toast and hugs all around. All with the security and confidence that Max and Mom were getting the expert medical attention of Manchester Memorial's top-notch doctors and nursing staff.

After delivery, Mom was settled into her comfortable room where Max was welcome to "room-in" anytime. Dad even spent the night! The next day, Mom and Dad shared a special "Stork Club" gourmet dinner and got instructions on how to care for their little birthday boy.

If you see a "birth day" celebration in your future, The Family

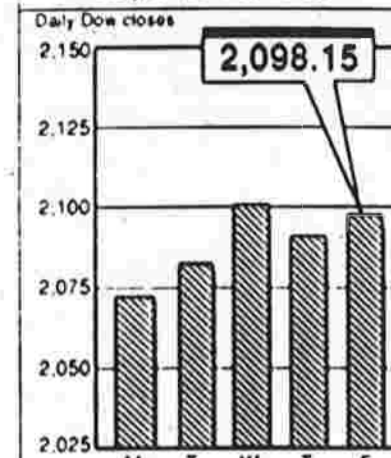

Birthing Center would be delighted to show you their facilities and offer you more information. After all, doesn't your baby deserve as warm a welcome as little Max? For more information on The Family Birthing Center or a free tour please call 643-1223.

Slowdown doesn't wow markets

By Chet Currier
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — In the effort to revive the sagging securities markets of Wall Street, the U.S. economy certainly has been doing its part.

Early this year, when stocks were weighed down by fears of a recession, the economy put on a burst of impressive growth.

Now, amid worries about inflation and tighter credit, business activity appears to be obliging by slowing down to a safer, more sustainable speed.

But the traders and money managers who make the markets go still seem unsatisfied. And that has left many observers wondering just what it is the markets want.

Consider the government's latest report on international trade, which read like a prescription specifically written to cure the markets' ills.

The Commerce Department figures, issued on Wednesday, showed a much larger than expected narrowing in the U.S. trade deficit, to $9.53 billion in July from $13.22 billion in June.

In the prevailing view of things on Wall Street, the deficit was headed in the right direction for the right reason — an 8.9 percent drop in imports, while exports continued to increase.

The implication was that the worldwide markets for goods produced in this country remained strong and that domestic demand was slowing enough at the same time to cool inflation worries.

The stock market did indeed rally on the news, but the advance had a half-hearted ring to it. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed Wednesday with a gain of 17.60 points.

By the next day, the market was back in the sluggish, drifting pattern that has predominated since mid-summer.

"The initial reports on the economy's health in August were unexpectedly weak," said Maury Harris, economist at PaineWebber Inc. "But one month is not a trend."

"The erratic course of monthly data suggests it is premature to conclude that the economy is registering the slowdown from above-average growth which is a prerequisite for lower interest rates."

Similarly, Donald Straszheim, economist at Merrill Lynch, said any conclusion about slower growth is

"probably premature."

The latest trend in data on unemployment claims, Straszheim observed, "suggests that employment growth will pick up in September and that the unemployment rate will decline."

Growth in the gross national product isn't likely to slow until late this year, he said, and even then it will probably be stronger than the Federal Reserve wants to see in its campaign to restrain inflation.

"Recent indicators have delayed the next tightening by the Fed," he conceded, "but the Fed is still likely to tighten further."

In the face of such restraining comments, the Dow Jones industrial average settled for a 29.34-point gain to 2,098.15 in the past week.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index rose 1.97 to 152.79; the NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market climbed 2.31 to 383.91; and the American Stock Exchange market value index was up .77 at 298.22.

Volume on the Big Board averaged 165.38 million shares a day, against 138.17 million the week before.

Korea in spotlight as Olympic Games open

By John Nelson
The Associated Press

SEOUL, South Korea — The world's most politically fired sports rivalry resumed at the Summer Olympics Saturday at an opening ceremonies designed to reflect the ancient Oriental philosophies of harmony and friendship.

More than 13,000 athletes and officials marched at the ceremonies, which began with a fleet of 500 boats sailing up the Han River, including a Yongko-san carrying the traditional dragon drum of ancient Korea.

In the 70,000-seat Olympic Stadium, whose swooping roofline evoked images of a Chosun Dynasty bowl, 1,500 Koreans in white, native dress marched in precision to 500-year-old folk music of the Flower Crown Dance.

Their performance was strongly influenced by the ages-old Oriental concept of Yin and Yang, the emblem on the Korean flag which represents opposing forces coming together in harmony and friendship. And so it was that the United States and Soviet Union returned to the Olympic arena at the same time, 12 years after their last meeting.

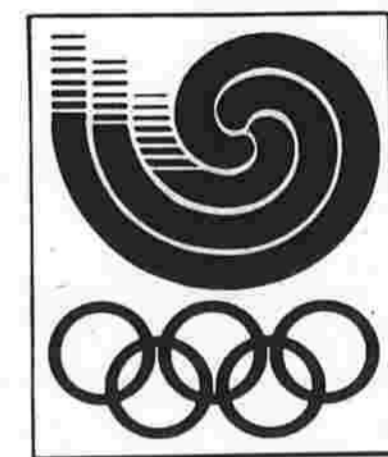

"I'm glad the sky is high and so blue," Yuk Hee-Jin, a 17-year-old Korean high school student, said as he entered the stadium. "I believe God is blessing my country for its years of hard work and preparation for this Olympic Games."

The United States and Soviet Union have not met in a Summer Games since 1976 in Montreal's Olympic Stadium, where a construction crane entrapped within its walls stood like prehistoric Tyrannosaurus Rex.

Through two subsequent Olympics, it was feared that a worldwide Games, too, had become a dinosaur, extinct in an ice age of conflicting ideologies. With Americans boycotting the 1980 Moscow Games and the Soviets boycotting the 1984 Los Angeles Olympics, 12 years passed.

Now the waiting is over. The real Games have begun again.

Marat Gramov, chairman of the Soviet Olympic Committee, said the world was on the verge of "a new way of thinking, getting both countries a good foundation for a better international Olympic movement."

While the Eastern-bloc Soviets and East Germans are expected to lead the medal standings, some real U.S. gold medal hopes include Ashford's track and field teammates Carl Lewis, Florence Griffith Joyner, Jackie Joyner-Kersey and Edwin Moses, swimmers Matt Biondi and Janet Evans, diver Greg Louganis, boxer Andrew Maynard, a men's basketball team led by Danny Manning and more than a score of other Americans in such sports as women's basketball, volleyball, gymnastics, water polo, yachting and equestrian.

Ashford was only the third woman to carry the U.S. flag at an opening ceremonies, and while she knew of the dissent over her selection, she was honored.

Of the 167 Olympic nations, a 161 accepted invitations to Seoul — a major embarrassment to North Korea, which tried to lead yet another boycott over the International Olympic Committee's refusal to let it cohost the Games.

NO PAIN, NO GAIN — U.S. heptathlete Jackie Joyner-Kersey smiles as she receives a massage after workout on the track Friday in Seoul. The Olympic Games open today.

Divers getting early plunge

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The opening ceremonies won't be the only chance for U.S. Olympians to carry the flag Saturday.

In the first event in which Americans will compete, Wendy Williams of Bridgeton, Mo., and Michele Mitchell of Boca Raton, Fla., will dive in the women's platform preliminaries.

"Michele and I would like to start off the Games and do something spectacular for the American team," Williams said. "I hope we're nervous enough to be sharp, but not enough to get to us."

"Anticipation is one of the worst words in the English vocabulary," Mitchell said. "You have to keep your mind off the 'what ifs.'"

Saturday's prelims are divided into two sessions of eight dives each, with the top 12 divers advancing to Sunday's finals. Unlike the U.S. trials, the points from the prelims will not carry over to the finals.

A pair of divers from China and 14-year-old Elena Miroshina of the Soviet Union are the favorites in the platform event, in which Mitchell won a silver medal in the 1984 Olympics.

Attrition name of game in boxing

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Attrition will be the name of the game in the Olympic boxing competition.

It's big and it's tough, even without the boycotting Cubans.

Three bouts in the 166-pound class and 17 in the 119-pound division Saturday night will kick off the 421-boxer, 409-bout tournament in 12 divisions.

Most competitors in the seven divisions from 106 through 147 pounds and a few boxers in the 156- and 165-pound classes will have to win six times to get a gold medal. No boxer will be able to become a champion with fewer than four victories.

Three opening-bout matchups between U.S. and South Korean boxers.

At 106, Michael Carbajal of Phoenix will meet Oh Kwang-Soo, the gold medal favorite, in the morning session Wednesday. Oh beat Carbajal 3-0 in a dual meet in Seoul last year.

The other two U.S.-Korean matchups later next week Romalis Ellis of Ellenwood, Ga., will box Lee Kang-Suk at 132 and Anthony Hembrick of the Army at Ft. Bragg, N.C., will meet Ha Jong-Ho at 165.

The first U.S. boxer to see action will be 112-pounder Arthur Johnson of Minneapolis, who will box Andrea Mannai of Italy Sunday. Mannai was a bronze medalist at the 1987 European Championships.

Kelcie Banks of Chicago, a world and Pan American Games champion at 125 pounds, will box Sunday night against Regilio Turr of Tanzania.

"We've got some tough bouts early," said Ken Adams, the U.S. head coach. "but I'm glad we've got them early. You know you're going to have a tough bout, but you'll feel fresh."

"We've talked about mental toughness. We know we're physically ready."

While Carbajal and Johnson drew tough opponents, the draw was kinder to the U.S. boxers in the three highest weights.

Andrew Maynard of the Army at Ft. Carson, Colo., will open his quest for the 178-pound title against Mikaele Masoe of American Samoa. He also is in a different bracket from Rene Suetovius of East Germany and Nourmagomed Chanavazov of the Soviet Union.

Ray Mercer of the Army at Germany, 27, the oldest member of the U.S. team, will box Rudolph Gavenciak of Czechoslovakia in the 201 class. Mercer could meet European champion Arnold Vanderlijde of the Netherlands, in the semifinals.

Riddick Bowe of Brooklyn, N.Y., will open his bid to succeed fellow American Tyrell Biggs as super heavyweight champion, when he meets Biko Botwamungu, a native of Zaire who boxes for Austria. Bowe drew in a different bracket from the two fighters who could be his toughest opponents — Lennox Lewis of Canada and Ulli Kaden of East Germany.

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) - Steve Pate and D.A. Weibring shot their second straight 68s Friday to share the second-round lead at the $600,000 Bank of Boston Classic. Pate and Weibring were at 6-under-par 136 after 36 holes after two trips around the Pleasant Valley Country Club, moving past first-round leaders David Frost and Ronnie Hammond. Frost, who shot a 70 after an opening-round 67, slipped into a third-place tie at 137 with Fuzzy Zoeller, who had a 69. Hammond struggled to a 73 and fell back into a six-way tie at 140. Wayne Levi, the 1980 champion, Mark Brooks and Mark Calcavecchia all shot 67s and were at 138.

Carter pleads guilty

CHICAGO (AP) - Philadelphia Eagles wide receiver Cris Carter pleaded guilty Friday to charges of mail fraud and obstruction of justice after agreeing to cooperate with prosecutors investigating illegal payments from sports agents to college athletes. Carter, 22, a second-year pro out of Ohio State, entered the plea during his arraignment before U.S. District Judge Brian Duff, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Howard Pearl. "As Cris told the court this morning, he pleaded guilty because he was in fact guilty," said Carter's defense attorney, David Bohan. Bohan said he had advised Carter to refuse comment on his case until it has been settled. Carter was released on a personal recognizance bond and the judge agreed to let him travel as necessary for Eagles' games, Bohan said.

Witt begins new role

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Olympic gold medal-winning figure skater Katarina Witt debuted Friday in a new starring role as a goodwill ambassador for UNICEF, and called on all athletes to shun South Africa until it abolishes its system of apartheid.

The 22-year-old East German is the latest athlete or entertainer to become a goodwill envoy for the U.N. Children's Fund, a tradition that began with actor-singer Danny Kaye in 1954. UNICEF executive director James P. Grant told reporters.

Durham back with Reds

NEW YORK (AP) — Leon Durham of the Cincinnati Reds has successfully completed the initial phase of an intensive drug rehabilitation program and has been placed on the club's active roster. Major League Baseball announced Friday. Durham, a first baseman, had been on the disabled list since July. The Commissioner's Office will continue to monitor his compliance with an aftercare program that includes testing.

Palmer leads senior field

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Arnold Palmer fired a 7-under-par 65, his best round of the year by four shots, and took a two-stroke lead after Friday's opening round of the Crestar PGA Seniors Golf Classic.

"There's no question that I rolled the ball well today. The big difference was I made a few," said the 59-year-old Palmer, who had not broken 70 in a first round on the Senior Tour this year and who had shot just four 69s over all.

Tied at 67 in the chase for the top prize of $48,750 were Don Massengale and Gene Littler, both 33-34, and Bobby Nichols, 34-33.

Martin wins pole position

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Mark Martin beat track-record laps by Alan Kulwicki and Bill Elliott on Friday to take the pole for Sunday's $450,485 NASCAR Delaware 500 at Dover Downs International Speedway.

Martin, of Batesville, Ark., ran a 148.075 mph lap in his Ford on the one-mile oval, just ahead of Kulwicki's 147.747 mph lap and Elliott's 146.855 mph lap, recorded in a backup car.

NL begins its search

NEW YORK (AP) — National League president and commissioner-elect Bart Giamatti announced Friday that he has named four National League executives as members of a search committee for a new NL president.

Los Angeles owner Peter O'Malley, Atlanta board chairman Bill Bartholomay, San Diego Padres president Charles Feeney and John Madigan, chairman of the board of the Chicago Cubs, were named to the committee. O'Malley will chair the group, which will recommend a new league president to the NL owners.

Giamatti officially will succeed Peter Ueberoth April 1, 1989. The new league president will take office the same day.

Players escape injury

NASHVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Members of the University of Kentucky football team escaped serious injury Friday when their chartered bus collided with a car near Brown County State Park, killing two people in the car, authorities said.

The crash occurred about 2:45 p.m. west of Nashville on Indiana 46, about a quarter-mile east of the west gate to the park.

Kentucky Coach Jerry Claiborne and his wife, Faye, were aboard the bus. When reached at his hotel room about two hours later, Claiborne said none of his players was hurt, but declined further comment.

Battle of L.A. tops schedule

By The Associated Press

Who says Los Angeles isn't big enough for two teams? With the Rams and Raiders set to face off at the Coliseum Sunday, nothing but kind words are being spoken.

"We're playing a fine football team, we're playing a well-coached team," Raiders coach Mike Shanahan said. "I think the players and coaching staff look at this as a game against a fine football team. That's it."

Rams coach John Robinson was equally respectful.

"It doesn't feel like a rivalry to me," Robinson said. "I'd love to have a division with the Rams, Raiders, Chargers, 49ers and Seahawks. It would be fantastic for us to play the Raiders twice each season, for both teams, but it doesn't happen."

In other games Sunday, Buffalo is at New England, Cincinnati at Pittsburgh, Denver at Kansas City, Green Bay at Miami, Houston at the New York Jets, Minnesota at Chicago, New Orleans at Detroit, Philadelphia at Washington, Phoenix at Tampa Bay, Seattle at San Diego, the New York Giants at Dallas and Atlanta is at San Francisco.

On Monday night, Indianapolis is at Cleveland.

This is the third time the teams have played each other since the Raiders moved from Oakland in 1982. The Raiders have won both meetings — 37-31 at the Coliseum in 1982 and 16-6 at Anaheim Stadium in 1985.

The Rams would seem to have the edge this year. They are 2-0 and face a Raiders team that lost five players to injury in last week's 38-35 loss against the Houston Oilers.

Houston (2-0) at New York Jets (1-1): The mood isn't quite as friendly between the Oilers and Jets. Houston's hard-hitting defense has been labeled "dirty" by Pittsburgh Steelers coach Chuck Noll and has also attracted the attention of the Jets.

"They seem to have that reputation," Jets quarterback Ken O'Brien said, "but I don't know. I haven't watched them. We are aware of them, but we can't be too concerned about how they play. We have to take care of our own business."

Oilers coach Jerry Glanville rejected the dirty label. "One guy has labeled us that and others are following," Glanville said. "I never thought I'd see the day when you'd call gang-tackling and a swarming defense dirty football. Whoever thinks that should get out of football and play tennis, where they have scores like 40-love."

Buffalo (2-0) at New England (1-1): The Bills are undefeated in two games but are hearing more about the '0' in quarterback Jim Kelly's touchdown pass column. Kelly completed 32 of 55 passes for 435 yards in the Bills' 13-10 victory over the Minnesota Vikings and last week's 9-6 win against Miami. But there is nothing recorded in the touchdown column.

NFL Roundup

"Our offense has been doing good. We just haven't been putting the ball in the end zone," Kelly said. "Last week we got it in twice, but they were both nullified."

New England, trounced 36-6 last week by Minnesota, is hoping to regain the defensive prowess displayed in its opening-week 28-3 victory over the New York Jets.

New York Giants (1-1) at Dallas (1-1): New York has only won twice at Irving since 1974, prompting the Giants to label Texas Stadium the "SHVV: Southwest House of Voodoo."

"We always seem to match up well against the Giants," said Dallas coach Tom Landry. "We normally have good success against them. It just shows you what a mental game this can be."

The Cowboys have won five out of six overall against the Giants, including victories of 16-14 and 33-24 last year.

Whalers make assignments, trim roster to 35

HARTFORD (AP) — The Hartford Whalers announced Friday that 24 players have been assigned to Binghamton of the American Hockey League as their NHL club geared up for the opening of the exhibition season.

The assignments trimmed the Whalers squad to 35 players.

The 24 players will continue training at Lake Placid, N.Y., with Binghamton Head Coach Claude Larose where the team has been conducting its pre-season training.

The players assigned to Binghamton included goaltenders Ross McKay and Sean Evoy, defenseman Mark LaForge, Corey Beaulieu, Wally Niewchias, John McLean, Reid Williams, Brian Chapman, Martin Burgers, Jim Cuhane and Darren Semple.

Also assigned to Binghamton were left wings Chris Brant, Wayne Bucsis, Chris Govedaris and Kerry Laviolette; centers Gary Callaga; auxo Korkko, Todd Krygier, Jean-Marc MacKenzie and Terry Yake; and right wings Todd Channell, Jody Hull, Brent Regan and David Rowbotham.

Those who are remaining with Hartford are goaltenders Mike Liut, Richard Brodeur, Kay Whitmore and Peter Sidorkiewicz; defensemen Joel Quenneville, Ulf Samuelson, Grant Jennings, Larry Trader, Scot Kleinendorst, Mike Vellucci, Dave Babych, Charlie Bourgeois, Sylvain Core, Al Tuer, Adam Burt, Jerry Pawlowski and Randy Ladouceur.

Centers Brent Peterson, Ron Francis, Carey Wilson, Ray Ferraro, Dean Evason and Dallas Gaume will also remain with Hartford as well as left wings Sylvain Turgeon, Dave Tippett, Torrie Robertson, John Anderson, Lindsay Carson and Tim Martin; and right wings Kevin Dineen, Stewart Gavin, Scott Young, Ed Kastelic, Paul MacDermid and Mark Reeds.

Whalers President and General Manager Emile Francis also announced that left wing Darin Fridgen has been assigned to the Indianapolis Ice of the International Hockey League and that left wing John Urbanic would return to Windsor University.

Centers John Devereaux, Joe Ferras and Mike Presti, left wing John Torchetti and defenseman Tim Hryniewicz, Tim Foley and Tad Merritt were not given any assignments, the Whalers said.

The Hartford Whalers will open their exhibition season on Sept. 17, against the Washington Capitals at the Hartford Civic Center.

Yanks vs. Sox means excitement

By Dave O'Hara
The Associated Press

BOSTON — The New York Yankees vs. the Boston Red Sox is automatic excitement. It's baseball's equivalent of those college football traditions like Harvard-Yale, Army-Navy, Southern Cal-Notre Dame, Oklahoma-Texas.

"It's a great rivalry," Yankees manager Lou Piniella said. "It's probably unparalleled."

"There's electricity in the crowd. It's almost like a playoff championship atmosphere, especially when it means something as it does now."

A New York-Boston series, such as the current four-game showdown at Fenway Park, also brings back haunting memories for countless Red Sox fans.

Older fans still cringe when they recall 1949, when the Red Sox went into Yankee Stadium at the end of the season needing to win just one of two games for the pennant. They lost both.

Younger fans recall 1978 as if it were yesterday. Just 10 years ago, after trailing by as much as 14½ games in July, the Yankees invaded Boston.

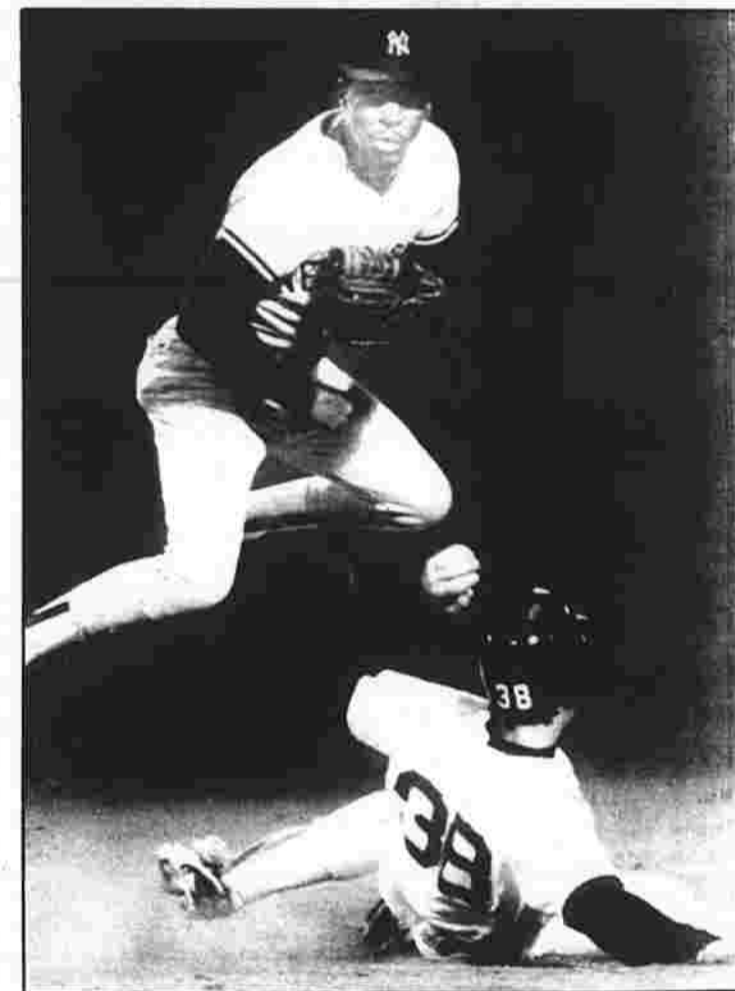

The Red Sox led the American League East by four games. When the Yankees left town, they were tied for the lead, sweeping the series with 15-3, 13-2, 7-0 and 7-4 victories.

The two teams finished the regular season tied for first place. That forced the only division playoff in baseball history. The Yankees, sparked by Bucky Dent's chip shot three-run homer into the left-field screen and Piniella's spectacular rally-killing catch in right field, won 5-4.

"As long as I've been around, the Yankees have been the big shots pretty much," says Red Sox manager Joe Morgan, who grew up only a few miles from Fenway Park. "They beat us to the wire more often than not and I guess it all starts there."

Only three Boston players — Jim Rice, Dwight Evans and Bob Stanley — are still around from that bitter disappointment a decade ago.

"I don't think it can happen again," Stanley said before the Yankees beat two-time Cy Young Award winner Roger Clemens and the Red Sox 5-3 Thursday night to move to within 3½ games of first-place Boston.

Stanley thinks the Red Sox have a better pitching staff than in 1978. However, he recognizes the fans' wariness, saying, "You can tell just by the way people are talking that everybody's worried again."

Stanley recalled that in the big series in 1978 the Yankees "came in fired up and we were just laying back."

Now, the Red Sox are loaded with many young players. In 1978, Mike Greenwell was a high school freshman in Florida. Ellis Burks was a freshman in high school in Texas. Jody Reed was a junior. "I didn't hear anything about what happened in 1978," Burks says.

"I was in algebra class," Greenwell said. "But let's face it, every Red Sox fan remembers '78."

"The thing is that it has no bearing on these games. Hopefully, we'll erase those memories."

The Red Sox did little to erase haunting memories in the series opener as Clemens, 16-11, was pounded for five runs on nine hits and four walks in 6 1-3 innings.

Red Sox

Jim Rice grounded into the 311th double play of his career in the fourth inning, tying the AL record held by former Boston star Carl Yastrzemski. The major league record for grounding into double plays is 328, held by Hall of Famer Hank Aaron.

Twins 5, White Sox 4

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Jim Dwyer and Gene Larkin hit consecutive home runs in the sixth inning and Kirby Puckett got a two-run double for his 1,000th career hit Friday night as the Minnesota Twins beat the Chicago White Sox 5-4.

Dwyer, who hit a grand slam in a 10-3 victory Thursday night, led off the sixth with his second homer, making it 4-4. Larkin followed with his seventh homer against Shawn Hillegas, 1-2.

Puckett doubled and scored on Dwyer's single in the first. Puckett became the fourth player to reach 1,000 hits before completing five years in the major leagues, joining Joe Medwick, Paul Waner and Earle Combs. Puckett, who leads the majors with 206 hits, will complete five years on May 7, 1980.

Bert Blyleven, 10-15, who allowed four runs on eight hits in the first two innings, went six innings and ended his four-game losing streak. Jeff Reardon went 1 2-3 innings for his 39th save.

The White Sox took a 1-0 lead in the first when Dave Gallagher singled and later scored on Mark Salas' single.

Chicago raked Blyleven for six hits and three runs in the second. Ozzie Guillen hit an RBI triple and Steve Lyons and Harold Baines had run-scoring singles.

Tigers 8, Orioles 7

DETROIT (AP) — Fred Lynn, traded from Baltimore to the Tigers last month, hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning Friday night that rallied Detroit over the Orioles 8-7 and kept its hopes alive in the American League East.

The Tigers' comeback came immediately after an 18-minute delay and enabled them to stay within five games of division-leading Boston, Detroit, which overcame an early 5-1 deficit, won for just the fifth time in 24 games.

Baltimore took a 7-6 lead in the top of ninth on Eddie Murray's fourth RBI of the game and then a thunderstorm delayed the start of the bottom of the ninth.

When play resumed, Luis Salazar singled off Mark Thurmond, 1-7, and Lynn followed with his 23rd home run of the season. Lynn, traded by Baltimore on Aug. 31, was playing against his former team for the first time since the deal.

Guillermo Hernandez, 6-5, got the victory. With one out in the Baltimore ninth, Brady Anderson doubled and continued to third when shortstop Luis Salazar failed to handle the relay. Anderson, who doubled twice and got four hits, scored when Murray was safe on Salazar's second error of the inning.

The Tigers tied it at 6 in the fifth when Lynn singled and scored on Dwayne Murphy's third home run, chasing Orioles starter Jeff Ballard.

Joe Orsulak singled in the Orioles' third and scored on Anderson's double for a 2-1 lead. Jack Morris then walked Cal Ripken before giving up a three-run homer on an 0-2 count to Murray, his 26th.

Morris left after Murray's homer. In his previous 81 innings, covering 10 starts, Morris had given up only one home run.

Blue Jays 4, Indians 3

TORONTO (AP) — Kelly Gruber doubled home the winning run in the 10th inning Friday night as the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Cleveland Indians 4-3 and hung onto their slim chances in the American League East.

The Blue Jays are 7½ games behind first place Boston, which beat New York 7-4.

Pinch hitter Pat Borders started the Toronto 10th with a single off Don Gordon, 2-4, and went to second on a walk to Rance Mulliniks. After Jesse Barfield popped out, Gruber lined his double to the alley in right center.

Tom Henke, 4-4, pitched the 10th.

Mets win behind Jefferies

NL Roundup

NEW YORK (AP) — Gregg Jefferies broke out of an 0-13 slump with three hits, including a game-winning single in the ninth inning, as the New York Mets beat the Montreal Expos 4-3 Friday night and continued their roll to the National League East title.

The victory maintained the Mets' 11-game lead over the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7-5 winners at Philadelphia, and reduced their magic number for clinching the division championship to six.

After pinch-hitter Keith Miller reached on shortstop Luis Rivera's error to open the ninth, Mookie Wilson sacrificed and pinch-hitter Tim Teufel grounded out before Jefferies lined a soft single to center off Joe Hesketh, 3-3, who came on to start the inning.

Jefferies, batting .397, made out in his first two at-bats, extending his slump, but then singled in the fifth and seventh. He is 7-for-11 against the Expos this year.

Randy Myers, 7-3, pitched 1 2-3 hitless innings, striking out three, as the Mets won for the eighth time in nine games and for the 18th time in their last 23.

New York went ahead 3-0 in the first on Darryl Strawberry's run-scoring single, Kevin McReynolds' RBI groundout and third baseman Tim Wallach's run-scoring throwing error.

Mets starter Bob Ojeda was injured in the seventh when he fell attempting to field Johnny Paredes' bunt. Ojeda was diagnosed as having tightness in his right hip and the Mets said his condition was not serious.

Ojeda gave up eight hits and tied a season-high with his fifth eight-strikeout game, his third straight and fourth in five starts.

Pirates 7, Phillies 5

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bobby Bonilla had three hits, drove in three runs and scored the tie-breaker on Sid Bream's eighth-inning single, leading the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 7-5 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Friday night.

Bonilla opened the Pirate eighth with a single, stole second, took third on shortstop Jackie Gutierrez's error and scored on Bream's line drive to left to break a 5-5 tie.

The Pirates added an insurance run in the ninth on an RBI single by Andy Van Slyke.

Reliever Jeff Robinson, 10-5, pitched two scoreless innings for the victory. Jim Gott closed out the last inning for his 30th save.

Greg Harris, 4-5 took the loss. Pittsburgh took a 1-0 lead in the first, when Van Slyke walked with two outs, moved to second on a wild pitch by Phillies starter Marvin Freeman and scored on Bonilla's single.

The Phillies scored three runs in the bottom of the first on a homer by Ron Jones. Phil Bradley opened with a double and moved to third on Bob Dernier's single before Jones hit his fifth homer of the season.

Pittsburgh came back with four runs in the fifth. With one out, Barry Bonds and Jose Lind walked. Van Slyke singled in Bonds, and Bonilla followed with a two-run triple. After Bream walked, Glenn Wilson singled for the fourth run of the inning.

The Phillies tied the score in the bottom of the seventh. Lance Parrish led off with a double, and scored on pinch-hitter Tommy Barrett's single. Bradley then doubled in Barrett, tying the score 5-5 and knocking out Pittsburgh starter John Smiley.

Cardinals 3, Cubs 0

CHICAGO (AP) — Jose DeLeon and Todd Worrell combined on a six-hitter and Willie McGee, playing for the first time in three weeks, tripled home a run Friday to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 3-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

DeLeon, 12-8, who won for the sixth straight time, allowed five hits, walked four and struck out three in 7 1-3 innings. He now has 189 strikeouts, second in the National League to Houston's Nolan Ryan, who has 224. Worrell finished up for his 31st save.

Cubs' rookie Mike Harkey, 0-2, allowed seven hits in eight innings as Chicago lost for the eighth time in nine games. He struck out four and walked four.

After stranding runners in the first two innings and having another thrown out trying to steal second in the third, St. Louis took a 1-0 lead with an unearned run in the fourth.

Giants 5, Astros 4

HOUSTON (AP) — Pinch-hitter Mike Aldrete's two-run single sparked a five-run sixth inning and led the San Francisco Giants to a 5-4 win over the Houston Astros Friday night.

Trailing 1-0, Aldrete hit for Kevin Mitchell with two outs and the bases loaded. He lofted a soft liner into shallow center that bounced off the glove of shortstop Rafael Ramirez, scoring Robby Thompson and Will Clark.

Thompson started things for the Giants in the sixth with a two-out walk, followed by Clark. Candy Maldonado was then hit by a pitch from Bob Knepper, 13-5, to load the bases and bring on reliever Larry Andersen.

Atlee Hammaker, 8-8, was the winner, giving up one run on two hits in five innings before leaving the game with a stiff left elbow. Hammaker struck out one and walked two, and snapped a personal three-game losing streak.

Houston took a 1-0 lead in the fourth on Buddy Bell's seventh homer of the season and the 201st of his career. The home run gave Bell and his father, Gus Bell, a combined total of 407 career home runs, tying them with Yogi Berra and Dale Berra for the most home runs by father-and-son major leaguers. Yogi hit 358, and Dale hit 49.

Gilbert forcing changes in slate

By Austin Wilson
The Associated Press

Nolan Ryan herded his livestock to safety and lashed down his farm equipment. Jerry Glanville took the Houston Oilers from the edge of Hurricane Gilbert to a rain storm in Memphis, Tenn., and 13th-ranked Alabama postponed its game at Texas A&M until Dec. 1 rather than risk a course change by the big storm.

"In talking with Coach Bill Curry and the best available sources, including those at Delta Airlines, we decided that it was not safe to take our team to College Station, Texas, this afternoon," Alabama athletic director Steve Sloan said. "There is a significant risk involved in getting our people in and out of College Station."

"As much as we would like to play, we cannot guarantee that the hurricane will not veer in our director and endanger the lives of our student-athletes and travel party."

Aggies coach and athletic director Jackie Sherrill talked with Alabama officials Friday after Sloan announced the postponement and could not persuade them to come to College Station.

"During my conversation with coach Bill Curry and athletic director Steve Sloan, they said it was their decision not to bring their traveling party due to advice from experts and the advice of Delta Airlines," Sherrill said in a prepared statement.

The game was rescheduled for Thursday, Dec. 1. ESPN, which was to show the game Saturday, will televise the rescheduled contest.

The New Orleans Saints stayed with their travel plans, but Lamar University headed for higher ground two days earlier than scheduled.

Earlier in the week, Gilbert lashed the Cayman Islands, Jamaica and the Yucatan Peninsula with winds of 175 mph, a 1,000-mile-wide storm blamed for 58 deaths in the Caribbean.

What had been fear along the hurricane-wary northern coast of the Gulf of Mexico became cautious concern Friday as Gilbert weakened a bit and headed toward the Mexican border.

Gilbert was still nothing to ignore — winds of 120 mph and predictions that it could dump up to 20 inches of rain near its center 350 miles south of Alvin, Texas, where Ryan has his ranch.

Ryan took an early flight home after pitching the Houston Astros to victory over Cincinnati Wednesday.

"In 1983, it took me six months to recover from the storm we had (Hurricane Alicia)," Ryan said. "You get a tremendous amount of wind damage with something like this."

The rest of the Astros returned home at about 3 a.m. Friday after their loss Thursday night in Cincinnati. Their equipment bags bulged with flashlight batteries and tape.

EC girls edged

SOUTH WINDSOR — Andrea Nowak scored the winning goal with 10 minutes left to give South Windsor a 3-2 win over East Catholic on Friday in non-conference girls' soccer action.

East, 0-1, is to play host Manchester High today at 10:30 a.m.

Bethany Bishop gave the Bobcats, 2-0, the early lead in the first half. East came back with two second-half goals from Kelly Keane to take the upper hand before Bishop tied it 12 minutes in and Nowak won it at the 30-minute mark.

Deanna Devanney and Janet Lombardo assisted on Keane's tallies.

Lynn Gentilcore defensively and Laura Gunsten in goal played well for the Eagles. "We had a few mental errors that allowed scores," East Coach Ron Palmer said. "The midfield was strong. With a few more games under our belt, we should do well."

South Windsor 3, East Catholic 2.

Volleyball

MHS triumphs

Manchester High girls' volleyball team opened its season with a five-set victory over Rockville High on Friday at Clarke Arena. Scores were 13-15, 15-12, 10-15, 15-7 and 15-0. Manchester also won the junior varsity contest, 5-15, 15-12 and 15-11.

Erin Twible served well. Lisa Moriconi set well, Lisa Cartier hit well and Truc Nguyen played well defensively for Manchester.

The Indians resume play Tuesday at Fermi High in Enfield.

East upended

The East Catholic High girls' volleyball team was swept in three sets, 15-3, 15-5 and 15-5, by visiting Ellington High Friday afternoon.

Krista Wisniewski and Jean Cardinale played well for East, 0-1, which is back in action Monday at home against Fitch High of Groton.

MHS swimmers look solid

By Jim Tierney
Manchester Herald

It should be another successful season for the Manchester High girls' swim team as it prepares for its season opener on Tuesday at Bulkeley High in Hartford.

Coming off a fine 9-2 campaign a year ago, Indian Coach Dave Frost feels confident in his squad's abilities despite the loss of 13 seniors from last year's team. "We have some holes, but overall we'll be solid," Frost said. "The diving is our strength event."

The Indians tri-captains will be seniors Sonya Gulliksen (butterfly, freestyle), Allison Kane (freestyle) and Kristin Perry (freestyle). Perhaps, the Indians' most versatile swimmer is sophomore Katelyn Lindstrom who was all-league as a freshman and set a school record in the breaststroke.

"She (Lindstrom) came back in great shape," Frost said. "She's very coachable. She'll easily break her school record in the breaststroke and she has a shot at two other records. She is versatile so I can put her where we need her for the betterment of the team."

Other key Indian performers will be seniors Frederique Gabard (backstroke), an exchange student from France, Gracie Phillips, juniors Elise Callahan (freestyle, backstroke), Kayley Marsh (breaststroke, freestyle), Jill White (freestyle) and sophomores Audra Gulliksen (free, breaststroke), Lauren Hickey (distance, freestyle, butterfly) and Karen White.

Manchester returns the top two divers in the CCC East in sophomore Kerri Lindland and junior Marcia Markstein.

Frost sees Windham as the clear favorite for the CCC East title. "Windham is definitely the favorite, no question about it," he said.

"Our goals are to be able to match last year's record and have every swimmer improve her times significantly."

Schedule: Sept. 29 Bulkeley A (3:45 p.m.), 23 Fermi A (3:45 p.m.), 27 Heli H, 30 Windsor Locks A (3:45 p.m.), Oct. 3 E.O. Smith A (3:30 p.m.), 12 Windsor H, 18 Concord A (3:30 p.m.), 21 Windham H, 25 East Catholic H (7 p.m.), 28 Enfield A (3:45 p.m.), 31 East Hartford A. Meets not noted begin at 3:30 p.m.

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox, spurred by Marty Barrett's tiebreaking double during a five-run fifth inning, stopped New York 7-4 Friday night and increased their American League East lead to 4½ games over the Yankees.

The Red Sox, trailing 2-0 just eight pitches into the game, rallied to win for the ninth time in 12 games. Boston also ended comparisons to the 1978 Boston massacre, the Yankees' four-game wipeout at Fenway Park in September in the midst of their miracle comeback.

New York took the opener in the four-game series, beating Boston ace Roger Clemens 5-3 Thursday night. The Yankees brought the tying run to the plate in the eighth and ninth innings Friday night, but this time the Red Sox hung tough.

Wes Gardner, 8-4, settled down to allow just three hits after the first inning and Dennis Lamp relieved with one out in the eighth. Lamp gave up a two-run double to Dave Winfield and, after walking Jack Clark, was replaced by Lee Smith.

Mike Pagliarulo, the hero in the Yankees' victory a night earlier, hit a fly ball to deep right field that Dwight Evans caught at the fence. Willie Randolph led off the ninth with a single and Ken Phelps with one out. Smith retired Rickey Henderson on a short fly ball and got Claudell Washington on a grounder for his 27th save.

With just 15 games remaining, Boston reduced its magic number over New York to 12 for clinching the division championship. The Yankees lost for the second time in nine games.

The Red Sox, who grounded into three double plays in the first four innings, broke a tie at 2 in the fifth against Steve Shields, 4-5. Shields got the first two batters before Wade Boggs broke an 0-for-8 slump by beating out a single into the hole at shortstop.

Barrett, without an extra base hit since Aug. 19, lined a double down the left-field line and Boggs scored when Henderson was slow in retrieving the ball in the corner. Dwight Evans singled off the left-field wall, scoring Barrett, and a hit by a pitch and an infield single by Ellis Burks loaded the bases.

Carlos Quintana made his major league debut and drew a pinch-walk, forcing home a run. After Dale Mohorcic replaced Shields, pinch hitter Todd Benzinger capped the rally with a two-run single.

Gardner, a reliever until pressed into a starting role because of injuries in late June, had a career-high eight strikeouts while walking two.

Henderson hit a 3-1 pitch for a single to start the game and Washington sent a 1-1 pitch off the top of the scoreboard in left for a double. Don Mattingly then lined the first pitch to him for an RBI single to right before Gardner settled down.

Despite the 2-0 lead, New York rookie Al Leiter, winless since May 24, failed to get through the second. A single by Mike Greenwell, a walk and a hit batsman loaded the bases and Shields replaced Leiter.

Greenwell scored as Larry Parrish grounded into a double play and Jody Reed tied the score at 2 with an RBI single to center.

East scoring drought lingers

Goal scoring was a problem a year ago and continues to be so for the East Catholic High boys' soccer team as it dropped its second straight 1-0 verdict Friday to South Windsor High at the Eagles' field.
