GIVING COMFORT — The Revs. James Meek, Kim-Eric Williams, Cynthia Goode and Anne J. Wridler place their hands on a man in an ecumenical service of healing and prayer Tuesday night at Concordia Lutheran Church.

The healing service was held for AIDS patients, their family members and friends in conjunction with AIDS Awareness Week in Manchester.

'God is there' at AIDS gathering

Four area ministers who placed their hands on the bowed heads of Manchester AIDS victims, their families and friends Tuesday night said their gesture was a "reconciling act" to make up for the clergy's negative attitude toward the fatal disease in the past. "There have been so many bad things that the church in the past has said about AIDS that we think we should begin to say something positive about what we have to offer," said the Rev. Cynthia A. Goode of South United Methodist Church, who participated in an ecumenical service of healing and prayer at Concordia Lutheran Church Tuesday night. "We see this as more of a reconciling gesture than a judging one." More than 50 people gathered for the service, which was held in conjunction with similar ceremonies being conducted by churches across the state as part of AIDS Awareness Month. Mayor Peter P. DiRosa

AIDS Awareness

Jr. also has declared this week as AIDS Awareness Week in Manchester. About 16 people came forward during the healing ceremony, knelt before the four ministers, bent their heads forward, were anointed with olive oil and blessed. The ministers said that although some of those who came forward were AIDS patients, most were family members and friends of patients, as well as family members of some who have died. According to statistics from the Manchester Area Network on AIDS, at least 100 Manchester residents out of about 10 people reported to have the fatal disease have died. The four ministers of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches — which sponsored the service — said that they were "not fearful" of touching the AIDS victims and said they hope the gesture will convey to people that the churches are willing to "support and accept" victims of the disease. Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome is an infectious, fatal disease which currently has no cure or preventive vaccine. It is caused by an HIV virus, which infects and damages cells of the immune system, leaving the body vulnerable to life-threatening illnesses. It is spread primarily through sexual contact or sharing needles used to inject illegal drugs. Primary victims have been homosexuals or drug addicts, although the disease has been diagnosed among heterosexuals. The Rev. Kim-Eric Williams of Concordia Lutheran Church said that because AIDS most often affects homosexuals and drug addicts, churches in the past have been unwilling to acknowledge that the disease will affect a much larger population. "All the congregations have gay members," Williams said. "Let's put that on

Deadlock ends on school aides' pact

By Andrew J. Davis
Manchester Herald

A settlement has been reached in the lengthy contract negotiations between the Manchester Board of Education and the union representing more than 100 teacher's aides, three school board members said today. Susan Perkins, Terry A. Bogli and Anne J. Gauvin, members of the Board of Education, said the settlement was reached Tuesday during a mediation session with the Manchester Federation of Paraprofessionals. A mediator from the state Mediation and Arbitration Board was called in after the two sides deadlocked. The teacher's aides, also known as paraprofessionals, had sought a 63 percent wage hike in the first year and a 10 percent in the second year of a proposed two-year pact, union president Elaine Anselmo has said. School officials had offered a 5 percent wage increase for one year. The paraprofessionals have been without a contract since the end of June. None of the school board members would release information on the settlement. Bogli said such an announcement would have to come from the school administration. School Superintendent James P. Kennedy and Assistant Superintendent Wilson E. Deakin Jr. could not be reached for comment. Officers of the Manchester Federation of Paraprofessionals also could not be reached for comment this morning. A spokesman for the state Mediation and Arbitration Board would not release information, saying it was the board's policy not to speak on such matters. Deakin has said that the school board thought the 63 percent increase to be too high.

"We did reach an agreement and it's a good one," Bogli said. The agreement has to be voted on by both the school board and the 101 members of the paraprofessionals' union. Perkins and Bogli were unsure when the votes would take place. The average yearly salary of paraprofessionals is currently $6,555 to $9,755 after five years, Anselmo has said. Paraprofessionals work an average of 35 hours a week, she has said. Deakin has said that the school board thought the 63 percent increase to be too high.

Drought, trade stall economy

Growth of 2.2% is slowest rate since late 1986

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy grew at a modest 2.2 percent annual rate from July through September, the weakest performance in almost two years, the government reported today. The Commerce Department blamed the weak growth rate on the impact of the summer drought, a deterioration in the country's trade performance and a drop in government purchases of defense equipment. The changes left the gross national product, the broadest measure of the economy's health, rising at the slowest pace since a 1.4 percent increase in the fourth quarter of 1986.

The GNP advance was down from increases of 3.4 percent in the first quarter and 3 percent in the second quarter of this year. With the slower growth came an easing in inflationary pressures as a price index tied to the GNP rose at an annual rate of 4.4 percent from July through September, down from 5.5 percent in the second quarter. The 2.2 percent GNP growth rate was sharply lower than had been expected. Many private analysts had been looking for growth of around 3.2 percent in the third quarter, even higher than the second quarter. The weaker-than-anticipated showing threw in doubt the ability of the economy to meet the Reagan administration's projection of 3.5 percent growth for the fourth quarter. Reaching that level will require an increase of 3.4 percent in the fourth quarter. Given the fact that many analysts believe the economy has begun to slow, a rebound in growth in the final three months of the year is not considered likely. The government said growth in both the second and third quarters was depressed by the drought. Without the loss of farm output, the economy would have paced ahead at a 4.3 percent in the second quarter and 2.9 percent in the third quarter. Also depressing growth in the third quarter was the first quarterly deterioration in the country's trade performance in a year. The deficit between imports and exports widened at an annual rate of $2.7 billion in the third quarter. This setback was blamed on the

Response 'too late,' says Duke

By Donna Cossola
The Associated Press

Michael Dukakis admitted that "perhaps I responded too late" to rival George Bush's attacks as the Democratic nominee shrugged off a double-digit deficit in new polls. The Republican contender renewed his charge that Dukakis lacks the necessary experience to govern the nation. With less than two weeks remaining until Election Day, Dukakis insisted in a late-night television interview Tuesday that there was still time for him to overtake front-runner Bush.

But when asked shortly after the program about polls showing him trailing by 13 and 14 percentage points, the Democratic nominee simply replied, "Forging ahead." In the 90-minute interview on ABC's "Nightline," questioner Ted Koppel asked Dukakis what Bush had done to "mail your hide to the wall thus far." The Democratic nominee failed to challenge Koppel's assessment of the White House race before answering the question. "Two things," Dukakis said. "The Bush campaign made a very careful and deliberate decision way back in the spring to run a tough, attacking, negative campaign. And they've been doing it ever since and perhaps I responded too late, perhaps I should have been out there attacking or countering back from the beginning." He also criticized Republican advertising and charged Bush with running a campaign "loaded with distortion and misrepresentation and falsehoods." Earlier Tuesday, Bush defended his campaign ads against the Dukakis attacks. "Because he was trying to run away from his record, I have factually pointed out where he stands on the record," Bush said during a campaign stop in Akron, Ohio. "And I am not going to be deterred. I am going to keep doing that honestly, factually."

The vice president, targeting a must-win Dukakis state, told an audience in Lima, Ohio, that the election is a referendum on peace and prosperity and that Dukakis is too inexperienced to be president. "We cannot gamble America's future on a president who hasn't had one single day's experience in national defense matters or foreign affairs," Bush said. Bush was delivering a speech on economics today in Detroit before traveling to South Dakota and Montana. Republican vice presidential candidate Dan Quayle was in Florida, campaigning for Senate candidate Connie Mack III and touring Miami's Little Havana community. Dukakis was meeting with Hispanic leaders in Denver before

Bozzuto is ready to back Lieberman

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

Former Republican state Sen. Richard C. Bozzuto, a long-time critic of Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., is reportedly ready to endorse Weicker's Democratic challenger, Joseph I. Lieberman. Bozzuto, a Watertown insurance executive who made bids in the past for governor and U.S. Senate, is to send a letter next week to Connecticut Republicans, urging them to support Lieberman, according to WVIT, Channel 30, which reported the development Tuesday. Maria Romash, Lieberman's campaign press secretary, said Bozzuto's support "shows that Joe has appeal to a broad segment of Republicans."

But Jay Malcynsky, Weicker's campaign manager, said: "To announce that there's a small minority of Republicans who are not pleased with Lowell Weicker is not exactly big news." Meanwhile, Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis is expected back in Connecticut next week, with stops planned in Waterbury, Bridgeport and possibly Naugatuck. State Democratic Chairman John F. Droney Jr. and Marianna Kovach, Dukakis' Connecticut press secretary, said the visit had been penciled in for Nov. 3, but that that date was not final.

The swing into Connecticut will be the Massachusetts governor's third this month. Connecticut is one of about 18 states targeted by the Dukakis campaign as crucial to an Election Day victory. Although Connecticut has just eight electoral votes, it is important because its results will be reported on television networks hours before the polls close on the West Coast. Dukakis was in the state on Oct. 3 and Oct. 20. Republican George Bush was in Waterbury on Monday and made two stops in the state last month. "We want Michael Dukakis to meet as many Connecticut voters as possible in a personal way," Koval said. "It gets people excited in the last week of a campaign, talking to them about the things that are important in their lives." Also Tuesday, a group of Connecticut religious leaders from various denominations endorsed Dukakis, saying he would "work for the betterment of all humanity in the United States." "He cares about the homeless, the deprived and the unemployed," said the Rev. Thelma Gilbert, president of the Hartford Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance. "We agree with Governor Dukakis that we should not be satisfied with the status quo. The status quo in the last seven years has created only more homeless and poor."

Last month, Bush met with Hartford Archbishop John F. Whealon, who had discontinued his affiliation with the Democrats because of the party's sanctioning of abortion. Also in the Senate race, Lieberman hit Weicker on environmental issues and brought in Sen. George J. Mitchell, D-Maine, to help. Lieberman said Weicker voted against a bill that would have given additional aid to victims of

Police Roundup

Fall from cliff is fatal

VERNON — A man died early today after he apparently fell from a cliff at Valley Falls Park, police said today.

Police said they are holding the man's identification pending the notification of kin. Police declined to say whether the man was a Vernon resident.

Sgt. Roger Barker said police were called to the scene at around 3:30 a.m. by a friend of a woman who was apparently with him during the time of the incident. Barker said the fall was apparently accidental but is still under investigation.

Three arrested at cemetery

Police said they arrested three men at East Cemetery Tuesday on a variety of charges.

Police said they were patrolling the cemetery because of recent reports of vandalism there and because of reports of a large group of people holding open cans of beer. A case of 20 unopened bottles of beer was spotted a few feet away, police said.

Mark A. Johndrow, 20, of 13 Union St. was arrested after police searched him and found a clear plastic baggie containing a small amount of marijuana, police said. Johndrow was charged with possession of marijuana less than four ounces, possession of drug paraphernalia, and possession of an alcoholic beverage as a minor, police said. He was released on a $100 cash bond.

Theodore Poalin, 21, of 15 Mill St. was charged with supplying alcohol to a minor, police said. He was released on a $100 cash bond.

A third man who appeared on the scene, Glenn R. Albert, 18, of 143 Benton St., was charged with carrying a dangerous weapon after police found a BB pistol stuck in his pants, police said. He was released on a $250 non-surety bond.

All three are expected to appear in Manchester Superior Court on Oct. 31.

Thoughts

A Sukkah, the little hut in which we dwell on the feast of Tabernacles, is supposed to have four walls. But if one collapses, it is still fit for use. Life can be the same way. We must learn to look at the three walls that are standing rather than at the one which has fallen. Some of us, having sustained a grievous loss, cannot erase the loss from our minds. We keep talking about it, bemoaning it, weeping over it.

Harold Russell, the handless veteran of World War II, told his story in a book ironically titled "Victory in My Hands." One sentence in that book deserves to be held before every Jew: "It's not what you have lost, but what you have left that counts."

When God showed Job a three walled Sukkah, He was saying to him, stop thinking only of the pains you suffer, you also have pleasures to enjoy. Stop counting and recounting your losses, and begin counting your blessings. Sure you have lost a wall of your Sukkah but there are three walls remaining. Make the most of those three walls. You will be held accountable for what you do with those remaining walls.

Buckno, Thompson exchange criticism

By Andrew Yurkovsky Manchester Herald

What has been a colorless campaign for the 13th Assembly District seat came to life Tuesday as Republican challenger Susan Buckno, attacked Democratic Rep. John W. Thompson for votes she characterized as outside the political mainstream.

Thompson, a first-term legislator and former mayor of Manchester, fought back during the debate before the Manchester Rotary Club, claiming that Buckno distorted his record.

"I have to stand the heat that is generated in the kitchen... but I do mind the serious misstatements of my positions," he said.

Thompson also charged that Buckno has been lax in attending meetings of the Human Relations Commission, to which she was appointed earlier this year.

The debate, held after a meeting of the Rotary Club at the Manchester Country Club, was the first since will be the only one between Thompson and Buckno. A total of about 70 people showed up, including families and supporters of both candidates.

Buckno, a real estate agent, is a member of the Rotary Club. Thompson is a self-employed business consultant.

Buckno launched her attack on Thompson by claiming that he has not put forward any proposals for the next legislative session. She held up a blank sheet of paper she said represented Thompson's proposals.

Buckno, a political newcomer, outlined her experience in civic and business organizations and concluded, "It's not the experience of a political hack that I have."

Thompson responded dryly, "Mrs. Buckno really knows how to let a man down easy."

Buckno criticized Thompson for a vote against an amendment that would have allowed victims and their survivors to have a hearing with the commissioner of corrections whenever the commissioner sought to give credit to prisoners toward early release for meritorious behavior.

"I would vote for that, you would vote for that," she said. "He didn't vote for that."

She criticized him for voting against an amendment that would have provided state reimbursement to school districts for the total tuition for out-of-district students participating in Project Concern, a voluntary busing program. Unlike Thompson, she said, she would have voted for an amendment that would have prohibited those convicted of driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs from being licensed to drive a school bus for a year.

Thompson responded that hearings for victims were unnecessary every time the commissioner considered a case of meritorious behavior. He said that victims have the right to a hearing before an actual release is allowed.

He said that he voted against the amendment for school bus drivers on the advice of the chairman of the Judiciary Committee, who said that the existing law already accomplished the same purpose.

After the debate, Thompson said that he did not recall his vote on the Project Concern reimbursement. But during the debate, he made it clear that he opposed mandatory school busing. Buckno has criticized him for not voting for an amendment that would have prohibited interdistrict busing.

"It's a bogus issue," he said, his voice rising. "It's trash. It's garbage. It doesn't belong in this campaign."

Thompson, citing his perfect attendance record in the Legislature, said that Buckno, who was appointed to the Human Relations Commission this year, had missed three commission meetings and had been late to one of them.

He asked people in the audience if they were willing to elect a public servant who has an "absentee rate of 50 percent."

Buckno said after the debate that she had been on vacation during those meetings.

On capital punishment, Buckno said she favored it, but Thompson said that he opposed it because of his religious beliefs.

He asked whether some of the University of Connecticut's fiscal autonomy should be taken away in light of mispending of funds at the university's Health Center. Zinsser said the state should take back some of that control. Meotti said that while the state should examine what happened in the Health Center spending case, the university needs some spending flexibility.

"We don't want to squelch some of the creative things we can do, he said.

Asked about protection of groundwater supplies, Zinsser cited Manchester's efforts at regulations to protect the town's aquifer by restricting the industries that can locate above it. He said he hopes towns can act to protect groundwater.

Meotti, co-chairman of the General Assembly's Ground Water Protection Task Force, said that groundwater supplies cross town lines and thus towns will have to be required by the state to take protection measures.

Asked if he was guilty of negative campaigning in his debates and advertisements, Zinsser said every one of his attacks on Meotti's voting record is "based on facts."

Meotti said he has been in the heat many times, but he said, "I am going to run on who I am."

One of the people in the audience submitted a written question that said Zinsser could not remember in a previous debate why he voted against lemon laws, laws to protect consumers from faulty products.

Zinsser said he has not researched his vote on lemon laws but would do so if the questioner would come to him about it. He said he recalled that he voted against a lemon law on used cars because it would apply only to dealers and most used cars are sold by private parties.

One newspaper reporter asked twice what specific areas in state spending the candidates would reduce in order to avoid a further state deficit.

Zinsser repeated his contention that the state should have a constitutional provision for a balanced budget and that across-the-board cuts might be needed.

Meotti again disagreed with both moves, saying that spending priorities should be on education, on services to the mentally ill, and on tougher law enforcement.

Zinsser said that with all those priorities, there is not much left to cut.

The plan received preliminary approval in July, but issues such as the effective starting date and how the savings should be spent were not resolved.

Southern New England Telephone Co. estimated last summer that the 25-cent charge would deter almost half of the calls to directory assistance.

SNET projected that directory assistance calls would decrease from 161 million per year to about 94 million.

SNET estimated that the reduction in the number of calls will save $15.8 million, which will be refunded to consumers in the 88-cent per month decrease in rates.

The plan, which takes effect Jan. 1, will make Connecticut the 49th state to stop unlimited free calls to directory assistance.

Only Tennessee does not charge for the calls. Some states, including Massachusetts, do not charge residential customers.

GLORY BE — John Tsokalas, a firefighter with the Town of Manchester Fire Department, raises Old Glory in front of the firehouse. Tsokalas said the flag is usually up by 6:30 a.m. unless it rains.

When There's Work To Be Done... Jack Thompson Is There!

During the past two years, Jack Thompson emerged as an effective and influential state representative.

Governor William O'Neill says, "Jack Thompson knows how government works and he does his homework. As a result, the people of Manchester get a good share of state funds and services."

Speaker of the House Irving Stalberg says, "I don't think any first-term legislator has ever accomplished more than Jack. He's a very strong voice for Manchester."

It's no surprise that Jack's becoming a leader at the State Capitol. As Manchester's Mayor from 1971-75, he was an exceptional municipal official. He held top posts in the Capitol Region Council of Governments and the Connecticut Conference of Municipalities.

SOUTH WINDSOR — A body found in a field off Main Street Sunday has been identified as that of a 15-year-old black male reported missing in Hartford since Oct. 8, police said today. The body of Kevin Hicks, of 32 Edgewood St., was identified Tuesday by the state medical examiner in Farmington through a comparison of dental records, police said. The autopsy also revealed that Hicks was shot twice in the head, police said. The youth's body, which was found in an area off Main Street known as the meadows, was partially decomposed and could have been in the field for three days to two weeks, according to police. Police said the clothing found on the youth's body was "similar" to that described in a Hartford Police Department missing persons flyer about Hicks. The 15-year-old was reported missing on Oct. 8 by his mother, Cynthia Hicks, police said. Police, who are investigating the death as a homicide, said they have not yet determined a motive.

OSHA looks at chance disability led to death

SOUTH WINDSOR (AP) — The federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration is investigating whether the death of a worker who fell while carrying a bucket of highly toxic acid may have been caused by the man's leg disability. Timothy J. Cunningham, 29, was carrying a 2.5 gallon bucket of hydrofluoric acid at Metals Testing Co. Oct. 18 when he fell, spilling the corrosive acid on himself and inhaling the fumes. Cunningham was treated at the scene and taken to St. Francis Hospital and Medical Center, where he died. Friends of Cunningham said that he had a noticeable limp stemming from congenital problems with his legs and that his right leg would frequently "give out," causing him to fall. "When he walked, it appeared that his right hip would go out a lot more than his left," said Brandy Beaupre, whose family owns the house in Hartford where Cunningham had lived for years. "His leg, whatever was wrong, it would give out. When he fell, he would just get up and say, 'No problem.'" Everyone who knew him was aware of the problem, Beaupre said. Brenda Gordon, industrial hygiene supervisor for OSHA, said the investigation is focusing on whether proper protective equipment was being used and on the company's training procedures. "To you and I, it's common sense that it's not a good work practice for someone with that problem to be carrying acid," Gordon said. "But we haven't had a chance to investigate this. We have to verify that that was the case." There are no specific regulations that would have prohibited Cunningham from doing the job, Gordon said.

Mentally retarded put in danger, expert says

HARTFORD (AP) — The Connecticut Department of Mental Retardation is defending itself against criticism by a nationally known expert that the state has put mentally retarded people in danger and violated their rights. The charges were contained in a report released Tuesday by a federal magistrate and written by Nancy K. Ray, who was retained by a panel of monitors overseeing the settlement of a 1978 class-action suit aimed at getting mentally retarded people out of institutions. Ray's report concludes that: Helmets, mitts and other physical restraints are excessively used at the Mansfield Training School for the mentally retarded. She also said the state hasn't monitored the use of restraints as required by the settlement. Abusive and neglectful situations have persisted because the state's system for managing the cases of its mentally retarded clients is inadequate. Investigations into abuse and neglect are, in some cases, incomplete, too slow or simply never done. The report also said the state has inadequately investigated the deaths of some mentally retarded people. The Department of Mental Retardation, in its response to Ray's report, said she ignores significant components of the state's system to ensure quality of services and dwells on abuse, restraint and injuries. "Its primary purpose is the shock the conscience," the state said of Ray's report in a legal brief. The department also asks that the monitors be required to retain an impartial expert, who has not served in any capacity for the parties. David Shaw, a Hartford attorney representing plaintiffs in the class-action suit, called the state's criticism "grasping at straws to try to tell the public there isn't a problem and trying to discredit" Ray. A conference on the matter is scheduled for today before U.S. Magistrate F. Owen Eagan in Hartford.

Grant funds sought for river access

Protection officials have said the access project is probably eligible for part of the grant. Construction of a parking lot for access to the park, a set of concrete stairs from the Union Street Bridge to the river, a concrete walkway along the river under the bridge and stairs up the other side of the river would cost an estimated $83,200. Three residents attended the hearing and participated in discussions with the committee on how the grant should be spent. Committee members disagreed over whether priority should be given to securing easements to link gaps in the trail or to developing key areas along the trail, including Laurel Lake and Union Pond, where 25 acres of town-owned land could be turned into a park. Several committee members said connecting the trails would maintain the continuity and integrity of the linear park. Committee Chairman Barbara B. Weinberg asked Douglas Smith, chairman of the Hockanum River Linear Park Commission, to submit a list of easements needed for linking the trail. Smith said about six areas are key, including a link from Union Pond to what is informally known as "Gorge Park," which is less than a mile west of Union Pond, near the former Eighth Utilities District sewage treatment plant. Smith also gave high priority to areas near the Adams Mill restaurant and off New State Road. The committee will begin to set priorities for easements and for development of areas along the trail at its next meeting, Nov. 9. Committee member Joel Jandenda said that turning the 25 acres near Union Pond into a park could increase public awareness of the rest of the trail and facilities such as the Union Pond boat launch. Committee member William O'Neill asked Weinberg if the directors would consider using town funds for the project. "I could not support asking the board for $83,000," Weinberg said. "The budget process now is extremely tight." Committee members agreed that the project would be cheaper if built during the Union Street Bridge reconstruction, which probably won't begin until spring, according to town Planning Director Mark Pellegrini. In an Oct. 5 letter to Pellegrini, town Budget Officer Robert Huettis said a stairway alternative has been included in the bid proposal for the bridge, but the stairs would not be covered under a state transportation grant.

Challenges nothing new to Buckno

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Manchester Herald
Campaign '88:
13th Assembly District

CHALLENGER — Republican Susan Buckno, who is taking on Democratic Rep. John W. Thompson for the 13th Assembly District seat, thinks her business and civic experience make her the best of the two candidates.

Susan Buckno is not afraid to take on a challenge. And her Republican campaign for the 13th Assembly District seat, which is now held by Democratic Rep. John Thompson, may be the toughest one yet. While she is a political newcomer who has never sought elected office, her opponent, who is finishing his first term in the state House of Representatives, is a former mayor of Manchester with six years' experience on the town Board of Directors. But challenges are nothing new to Buckno. She was the first female member of the Manchester Rotary Club and the first woman management trainee for the company she joined after graduating from college. She belongs to several service organizations in Manchester and believes that service is what being a representative is all about. The 13th Assembly District comprises five voting districts in Manchester's South End: Districts 4, 6, 8, 11 and 12. Buckno, 41, a Pennsylvania native, has lived in Manchester for the past six years. She was named to her first political appointment, on the Human Relations Commission, just this year. She is a real estate agent at Sentry Real Estate Service on Center Street. Buckno is involved in a wide range of community activities, from the Martin School PTA to the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce. That kind of involvement, she said, is qualification enough to be a representative. "I think all these things together indicate that I'm a person that's interested in the community, what's best for the community and gives me a perspective on what is needed in the community," she said. She said that Thompson is out of touch with his constituents and more interested in voting the party line than in representing the people. She blasted Thompson during a debate Tuesday night, listing bills and amendments she said he should have voted for. But in interviews before Tuesday's debate, she had been hesitant to knock her opponent, and any criticism she did offer was "off the record." Thompson, for his part, has treaded carefully when evaluating his opponent's lack of political experience. "It's much easier for us who have had local government experience to come in and participate," he said in an interview last month. Theodore R. Cummings, the Democratic town chairman, was more direct. He called Buckno "cloned and shallow." As for Buckno's criticism of Thompson's constituent work, Cummings said, "Jack Thompson was representing this community before his opponents were wet behind the ears." One thing that Buckno does criticize Thompson for is the projected $121 million state deficit. "I live on a budget in my household, and I never spend more than my budget," she said. "Secondly, I probably would not have voted myself a salary increase, which he did." She added, "I work in the business community. Bringing a deficit to the state is not a successful effort." She proposes that a tax-credit program for business that provides scholarships be expanded, and that partnerships be set up between businesses, schools and labor groups to provide job training on up-to-date equipment. She also says that a grant program be established, with financial assistance from businesses, to reduce the number of high school drop-outs. She thinks that the death penalty should be imposed for drug-related killings and that continuing drug offenders and drug racketeers should get life imprisonment. On day care, she thinks that businesses should be encouraged to provide it, possibly through tax incentives. She says she wants to look into whether victims of child abuse are fairly represented in the courts. Those in the business community and civic organizations who know Buckno say she is a hard worker. Buckno has been a member of the Ambassadors Club, the good-will arm of the Chamber of Commerce, for about two years. "From the chamber's perspective, whenever she commits to something, she follows through," said Anne Flint, the chamber's president. Joyce Talbot, president of the Martin School PTA, had similar praise for Buckno, who is on the PTA's executive board. "She's worked many years on the fine arts program, and she's an excellent worker," Talbot said. Buckno was the first woman to join Manchester's Rotary Club last year. David Woodbury, the membership president, said that her actions as a Rotarian are exemplary. He said that an indication of the respect she is accorded is the fact that she is asked to say grace at Rotary dinner meetings. "She has a nice way with words," he said. One of the things she likes best about campaigning, Buckno said, is going door to door. While canvassing the neighborhood of Bank and West streets on a recent morning, she passed out fliers and asked residents about their concerns. If they said they didn't have any, she offered her own. One woman told Buckno that the United States could use a woman president. Buckno responded, "We should have a woman state representative." Buckno, in fact, sees herself as something of a trailblazer. Back in the late 1960s, she said, she became the first management trainee for Sears, Roebuck and Co. in the company's eastern district. The list of civic groups Buckno is involved in is a long one for a working mother. But she said a high energy level and good organization make it possible for her to handle her job and her other responsibilities. That high energy level is exemplified by the way she responded to a foot injury a year ago, she says. The doctor told her to stay off the foot, but Buckno, who swims daily and "speed walks," was unwilling to give up her active lifestyle. Because of her stubbornness, the pain from the foot injury persists, Buckno said. One of the first things Buckno does when she starts her day is to make a list of things to get done. She said she usually finishes the list, but by the end of the day, five more things get added. Buckno is a native of Allentown, Pa. She graduated in 1968 from Moravian College in Bethlehem, Pa., with a bachelor's degree in sociology. She worked as a personnel and operations manager for Sears from 1968 to 1975. Buckno, her husband, Raymond, and their two children live at 326 Timrod Road.

State OKs 'mining' at aging landfill

THOMPSON (AP) — First Selectman Donald Williams said his town was facing a solid waste crisis. The town's aging landfill was running out of room, and the cost of shipping the trash out of town was prohibitively high. The solution Williams found was deceptively simple: dig up portions of the landfill, sift out the big chunks of garbage for recycling, and use the resulting space to bury new garbage. State environmental officials have approved the landfill "mining" technique. "It's the type of idea that seems so obvious once you think of it," Williams said. "The problem is to think of it." Thompson officials learned of the technique from a New York-based company that is conducting a similar experiment near Naples, Fla. John England, an environmental analyst at the Department of Environmental Protection, said the project will be the first of its kind in Connecticut. It is expected to begin within two weeks. Under the project, garbage-laden soil will be dug up and screened for large objects, some of which should be suitable for recycling. The soil will then be used as cover soil for new garbage buried in the resulting hole. The alternative technique is necessary in the small town in Connecticut's northeast corner because the DEP is reluctant to approve an expansion of the already full landfill, England said. "It's a small, older landfill up in an area with a lot of streams," he said. "And basically, we don't want to see it any bigger because it could affect those streams." He said the mining will take place in about one or two acres of the eight-acre landfill, in an older section of the dump where the trash was burned years ago and is now mostly decomposed. The soil in those older sections looks almost like garden soil, he said. When solid material such as tires, wood and pieces of metal is removed, the soil can be reused to cover newly buried trash, he said. "By digging this hole and maybe processing about 20,000 cubic yards of material, they stand to gain about 10,000 cubic yards of cover soil," England said. "For a small town like Thompson, this could give them another year of landfill use, which is pretty important to them." Williams said the town began looking into the mining option because "Thompson, like a number of other towns in Connecticut, is facing a solid waste crisis." Williams said the town is rapidly running out of room in its landfill for the 7,000 tons of solid waste it must dispose of each year. Williams checked nearby towns to see how much it would cost to ship the trash out of town. His estimate: $25,000 per year. Mining will cost the town about $17,000, Williams said. He estimated that mining could give Thompson even longer than an extra year of landfill use — possibly 18 months to three years. In the meantime, he said, Thompson officials will continue to work with the Northeastern Connecticut Resource Recovery Authority to develop a long-range plan. "It's really smart shopping as far as solid waste goes," he said.

In three terms as your State Senator Carl Zinsser made a difference.

- 1983 Introduced and fought successfully for the passage of the Childrens Trust Fund - a program to help prevent child abuse.
- 1985 As Chairman of the Energy and Public Utilities Committees was instrumental in passing of legislation to lower utilities bills.
- 1986 Created a $25,000,000 trust fund to help low income people pay for heating bills.

For six years Carl Zinsser could be counted on to work for you.

In 1989 Connecticut will need leaders that can be counted on to make the right decisions and the hard choices. Credibility is the key. Zinsser is the man.

Carl Zinsser supports:

- Passage of a balanced budget amendment for Connecticut.
- Passage of a stronger Death Penalty bill.
- Legislation to prevent the state from busing school children across town lines involuntarily (Forced Busing).
- State Funds to help low income citizens pay heating bills.
- Property Tax Reform

Dukakis loses case

BOSTON (AP) — A federal appeals court has rejected Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis' attempt to use his power as governor to block a Massachusetts National Guard training mission in Central America.

The 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals issued a one-sentence order Tuesday affirming a May 6 decision by U.S. District Judge Robert Keeton, who upheld federal supremacy over the National Guard.

In his presidential campaign, Dukakis has denounced the administration for its "failed and illegal" policy of supporting Nicaraguan rebels, and he said several Guard troops in the region was an attempt to intimidate Nicaragua.

Voter turnout may slip

WASHINGTON (AP) — The turnout in the presidential election is expected to be one of the lowest in this century, continuing a trend of declining voter participation in a nation that prides itself as a beacon of Western democracy, say political analysts.

Public interest groups are warning that only 50 percent or less of the eligible voters will go to the polls on Nov. 8, about the same as the record low 49 percent turnout in the 1924 presidential election.

The declining turnout, down from a record high 79 percent in 1896, puts the United States at the bottom of the voter participation list in the world's democratic systems.

South Africa votes

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Black, white, Asian and mixed-race voters cast ballots under heavy guard today in segregated municipal elections, with the ruling party of President P.W. Botha expected to lose ground to right-wing opponents.

The balloting for 7,500 town council seats marked the first time all four major race groups in South Africa vote on the same day, but a low black turnout was expected.

Korean students riot

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Chanting anti-government and anti-U.S. slogans, radical students today threw firebombs and rocks at three government buildings and a U.S. cultural center, police and news reports said.

Ten Marines killed as copters collide

YUMA, Ariz. (AP) — Two Marine Corps helicopters crashed in a desert gunnery range during a training exercise, and the 10 people aboard were killed, officials said today.

It was the second crash involving military helicopters this week.

The aircraft were being used in a "troop insertion exercise" with crews using night-vision goggles when the crash occurred, said Army Maj. Linda Dumoulin, a Pentagon duty officer.

Four people were on a CH-46 helicopter and six on a UH-1H copter. Both helicopters are designed to carry more troops but were not transporting full teams for the exercise, which Dumoulin said was part of a weapons-instructor's course.

The Army National Guard copter smashed into the rocky foothills of the Laguna Mountains and burst into flames after striking the 500,000 kilowatt power line.

'Mafia' kills doctor

LOCRI, Italy (AP) — A 4-year-old girl has died four days after the surgery that left her in a coma and also apparently led to the Mafia-style murder of her surgeon, Italian media reported.

Caterina Giampaolo, who died Tuesday, was the daughter of Antonio Giampaolo, a reputed local Mafia boss and fugitive who was sentenced to 27 years in prison in 1986 for kidnaping.

The dead girl's uncle, Vincenzo Giorgi, 25, is being held for questioning by police in connection with the murder of her surgeon.

Eastern gets jet back

MIAMI (AP) — U.S. Customs released a $14 million Eastern jetliner after the airline put up a line of credit for a $896,000 fine levied after 56 pounds of cocaine was found on board.

The airline said it would appeal the fine, along with $13 million in fines for drugs discovered on other Eastern aircraft.

Soviets aid whales

ABOARD THE ADMIRAL MAKAROV (AP) — Two Soviet icebreakers flying U.S. and Russian flags worked through the night to smash through an ice ridge blocking the path to freedom for two whales trapped in ice off Alaska for nearly three weeks.

Rescuers, meanwhile, said Tuesday they succeeded in moving the California gray whales around a shoal that had stymied progress for three days.

As darkness fell, the mammals were only about two miles from the water opened by the Soviet ships.

Rescuers planned to use a tractor-like device propelled by pontoon augers today to cut the relatively thin ice remaining between the whales and the icebreakers' farthest advance.

The whales will probably be free by late afternoon if things go as well as they did Tuesday, said rescue coordinator Ron Morris of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Morris, Rear Adm. Sigmund Petersen of NOAA and Capt. Jim McClintock of the U.S. Coast Guard flew to the icebreaker Admiral Makarov around noon as it waited about 25 miles northeast of Barrow.

After a perfunctory briefing, the icebreaker's skipper said he was ready to begin work immediately.

"We shall commence just now," said Sergei Fedorovich Reshetov. "In five minutes, our engines will be ready."

The 440-foot icebreaker, an American flag flying above its frost-encrusted superstructure, quickly cruised through thin ice to the pressure ridge that is the last significant barrier to freedom. In just a few hours, the ship had butted almost three-fourths of the way through the ridge, a jumble of ice blocks as big as small houses.

Klan ordered to pay $1 million

ATLANTA (AP) — A state lawmaker vowed to seek wages, guns and even Confederate flags from 11 Klansmen to collect his share of a $1 million award to civil rights marchers pelted with rocks in nearly all-white Forsyth County.

A federal jury found the Ku Klux Klansmen and two white supremacist groups responsible for disrupting the Jan. 17, 1987, march north of Atlanta, and awarded $948,650 in damages to 49 demonstrators who filed suit.

Another defense attorney, Jane Plaginos, said the plaintiffs had no proof for any injury that would mandate such severe damages.

"They did not prove anybody was hurt, literally or lost wages, anything. They did not prove anything," she said.

She said that within 30 days she would ask U.S. District Judge Charles A. Moyer Jr. to dismiss or lower the damages.

The jury reached its verdict Oct. 5, agreeing that the violence amounted to a violation of the marchers' civil right. Moyer ordered the verdict sealed until Tuesday to give those who brought the lawsuit time to decide whether to join City Councilman Hosea Williams, who wanted to drop it.

Williams, who helped organize the march and was among those who filed the lawsuit, urged toward the end of the trial that the suit be dropped because it would impoverish the families of KKK members.

Williams said he has forgiven the Klan "and other white supremacists for brutalizing us" during the march.

There had been 57 plaintiffs. Williams and three others dropped out during the trial and four others dropped out Tuesday. The jury awarded $50 to each plaintiff in compensatory damages. The rest was in punitive damages. The lawsuit had sought $1.5 million.

One defendant was found not liable.

Ed Stephens, grand dragon of the Invisible Empire Knights, was ordered to pay $30,000 but he said the marchers may have a hard time collecting it.

"If the $30,000 holds up, and I don't feel that it will hold up, they would play the devil getting it," Stephens said. "I don't have anything such as that."

Stephens, an electrician, said he rents his home.

The march was a forerunner to a larger demonstration a week later in which an estimated 24,000 people turned out. State, local, county and federal troops were called out to protect the marchers and prevent violence.

In February 1987, an all-white federal jury in Alabama awarded a black woman, Beulah Mae Donald, $7 million from the United Klans of America and six members or former members of the group after her son, Michael Donald, was beaten, strangled and hanged in a tree in 1981 at age 19.

Attorney Morris Dees, who represented marchers in the Georgia case, was also an attorney for the family in the Alabama case. He has a law office in Ala.-based Southern Poverty Law Center, which operates a group called Klanwatch.

Urban youths face growing problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key problems among children in America's cities, including drug abuse, pregnancy and school dropouts, have grown worse over the past five years, according to a report released today by the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

These problems, plus inadequate health care for children in low-income families and a lack of affordable child care, worsened in 80 percent of the cities that cited them, the study said.

The report surveyed officials in 32 cities in 22 states and the District of Columbia. It was financed by the Foundation for Child Development and published by the U.S. Conference of City Human Services Officials, an affiliate of the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

J. Thomas Cochran, executive director of the mayor's group and the affiliate, said the report was intended to "lead us toward critically needed investments in our children's future and, consequently, in our country's future."

The study also said poverty was a high-priority problem facing children in urban areas.

It estimated that 28.5 percent of the more than 18.5 million children living in central cities live in poverty, compared with a 10 percent poverty rate for all U.S. children.

Drug fights effects of intestinal cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — New drugs in the medical war against cancer and cardiovascular disease are now available or on the way.

The Food and Drug Administration announced Tuesday that a new drug to treat the crippling effects of intestinal cancer can now be marketed in the United States.

In addition, the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association said 47 companies are now working on a total of 87 new drugs to treat the cardiovascular diseases of high blood pressure, stroke and heart disease.

The new cancer drug is a protein compound called ectoprotein acetate that is designed to stop the severe, unremitting diarrhea that often takes the lives of patients suffering from intestinal cancer.

FDA Commissioner Frank E. Young said the new drug "can dramatically improve life for these cancer patients, permitting many to pursue their normal lives for years, rather than be weakened and continually hospitalized."

The new drug, marketed by Sandoz Pharmaceuticals under

New guidelines recommend Caesarian birth reduction

WASHINGTON (AP) — Guidelines issued today by the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists say women who have had babies delivered by Caesarian section should be encouraged to have later children by normal, vaginal birth.

Dr. Mary Jo O'Sullivan, a member of an ACOG panel that developed the guidelines, said a pregnant woman who has had an earlier child by Caesarian section "should be encouraged to attempt labor in her current pregnancy" instead of routinely undergoing a second surgical delivery.

Dr. O'Sullivan said if the new

Aquifer decisions difficult

The refusal of the Zoning Board of Appeals Monday to allow expansion of an auto body shop located on land over an underground water supply illustrates the tough decisions zoning officials are going to have to make in the future when aquifer protection regulations are approved.

It will be hard enough down the line to force new businesses and industries from locating above the aquifer, giving up gains in economic development and sources of taxation.

But it will be even more difficult to tell existing businesses, particularly businesses that have a good reputation, that they cannot grow.

When Bob's Auto Body Shop on New State Road asked for a special exception to expand its operation, town officials recommended the firm be required to hook up to a storm drain in Adams Street as a means of avoiding accidental chemical spills that could work into the underground water source.

But most of the members of the Zoning Board of Appeals apparently felt that measure was not adequate to guarantee that storing 35 to 50 more cars on a parking lot would not pose too great a pollution risk.

More hard decisions, like the one made Monday, are still to come.

Hospital should run ambulances

Because the Ambulance Service of Manchester is for sale, Manchester Memorial Hospital should buy it to round out its medical service to the community, particularly in emergency medicine.

Manchester's emergency medical service now involves the town's police department, the town's fire department, the Eighth District's fire department, and the privately owned ambulance service.

It is working well despite the need to coordinate administratively and medically among the contributing units.

But there is no assurance that a new private owner of the ambulance service would work as well as the present one. And if the entire emergency medical service can become a public, non-profit operation, its administration would obviously become simpler.

For a number of reasons, some of them political, the hospital did not take over the entire emergency medical service operation when it was instituted, despite the fact that many Manchester residents would have preferred that setup.

And there were some difficulties fitting the private ambulance service into the EMS equation.

Having the ambulance service operated by the hospital will get the system closer to the plan originally envisioned.

Lieberman still looking for the big issue

There is still time to inject sense and substance into the campaign for the U.S. Senate in this state, although voters may wonder by now whether they are supposed to elect a member of that circle or a kind of truant officer.

The attendance argument we've heard for so long is really something of a red herring — a distraction which masks how little difference exists on issues between Joe Lieberman, the Democrat who wants the job, and Lowell Weicker, the Republican who has it.

Lieberman says Weicker's voting performance is atrocious and Weicker, showing that the negative attack is getting to him, says his challenger's skirts aren't altogether clean.

But this race is like any other between a challenger and an incumbent. The guy knocking on the door must make the case for ousting the one inside. Because Lieberman is so similar in philosophy and social consciousness to Weicker, the Democrat has apparently found it hard to come up with the big issue on which he can offer voters clear choice. He is going after the popular veteran's habits instead.

So Lieberman's attack has centered on Weicker's missing some 300 votes over six years. Weicker only recently has fired back that Joe's stewardship as a state senator back in the early 1970s wasn't always so hot, either.

Is it working for Lieberman? Last week's shocker poll by the University of Connecticut's Institute for Social Inquiry, done for the Hartford Courant, may tell us. The sampling showed them neck and neck. I thought it was flawed by failing to establish that I though it contacted would vote, but the Institute discounted that factor.

Can a rap on voting performance affect a campaign importantly? Ask Julie Belaga, the Westport Republican who ran against Gov. Bill

8th choice easy: Vote for Prague

To the Editor:

As the election season slips into its final weeks, the choices between candidates for some offices become luminously clear. One such choice that has become easily apparent to us has been in the race for state representative in the 8th Assembly District. We will cast our votes on Nov. 8 for our current representative, Edith Prague, and hope that others in the district will do so as well.

Edith has distinguished herself during her time in the Legislature as not only an effective voice for Eastern Connecticut, but as a representative whose feelings and concerns go beyond the bounds of the 8th District and truly make her a spokesman for our entire state. She has shown this in her efforts to improve our state's educational system and provide appropriate funding for our schools, in her consistent advocacy of programs to benefit the elderly, and most notably, in her unflinching efforts to enact legislation that will stiffen the penalties for drunken driving and reduce the carnage that too often abounds on the highways of Connecticut.

It is worthy of note that in this latter effort Edith has shown herself to be a woman willing to take a stand not only on a tough issue itself, but on an issue that has pitted her against powerful, self-serving interests to whom a lesser person would have knuckled under and given up the fight, thereby making all of us the losers. Edith has persisted and, re-elected, stands an excellent chance of finally seeing her efforts in this regard lead to appropriate legislation that will distinguish Connecticut among all states.

Within the 8th District, Edith has been active not only on the issues cited above, but has been a readily available legislator, willing to meet with a multitude of boards and agencies in the towns of her district to assist them in a variety of locally-based issues. These issues have involved libraries, fire departments, pollution control and use of lakes, as well as a number of issues involving individual constituents. In all cases, Edith has exhibited an awareness of the issues involved and has been quick to provide answers to assist the people of her district. We have personally found her readily accessible and helpful day or night.

The 8th District has been well served by having Edith Prague as our representative and, indeed, our entire state is the better for her presence in the Legislature. We urge the rest of the voters in the 8th District to join us on Nov. 8 in casting a vote for continuing excellence in government by re-electing Edith Prague to office.

Square dancers helped the town

To the Board of Directors:
A group of Manchester residents who were taking square dance lessons in Vernon approached Jim Herdic, who was at the time Manchester recreation director, about starting a square dance club in town. Mr. Herdic was very enthused. That was in 1956.

U.S. works to soften trade rule

WASHINGTON — U.S. officials are going to bat for big business, urging Canada to relax its tough new standard protecting workers from hazardous chemicals on the job. The meddler has angered labor unions on both sides of the border who say that the United States has no right to intervene in Canadian affairs, especially when the safety of workers is on the line.

By its actions, the United States may have fueled opposition to the controversial free trade agreement between the two countries — an agreement that has some Canadians worried about the "Ag Seminar" of Canada.

The issue that caught the attention of U.S. trade officials was a new Canadian program to warn workers about hazardous chemicals they encounter on the job. It is similar to a "right to know" program in the United States, but it imposes more strict disclosure rules on Canadian businesses.

The United States attempted to soften the Canadian rule, claiming it was too much trouble and expense for American companies doing business in Canada. Last July, the office of U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter sent a cable to Canadian officials via the U.S. embassy in Ottawa. The associate Scott Stebbins obtained a copy of that cable. It asks the Canadians to delay the implementation of the regulations, scheduled to go into effect Oct. 31, and to hold talks on the American concerns.

The talks were held in August, but the Canadians refused to delay the effective date.

The hold request by the trade office didn't sit well with U.S. labor leaders. "The U.S. government is essentially acting as an agent of U.S. industry," said Peg Seminario, associate director of occupational safety and health for the AFL-CIO.

At the heart of the U.S. concern is the proposed free trade agreement. In the cable, the trade office stated that the new Canadian program would pose an obstacle to free trade. By tying the regulations to the issue of free trade, the United States may have aggravated what is already an emotionally charged issue in Canada. The free trade agreement faces a referendum in Canada in November and many Canadians see it as a step toward U.S. domination of their market.

The new Canadian hazardous chemicals rule does not mesh with U.S. and European standards, so manufacturers would have to relabel all containers exported to Canada, U.S. officials said.

But that isn't the only problem. Manufacturers don't have to disclose hazardous ingredients in a product if the formula is a trade secret, but a company can't simply make that claim and skirt the law. The Canadian program requires manufacturers to prove that the formula should be kept confidential. Companies must pay the government for the cost of documenting that a formula is a legitimate trade secret. Under the U.S. program, companies don't have to prove a trade secret to be legitimate unless someone challenges the claim.

U.S. trade officials warned in the cable that some American manufacturers may choose not to export products to Canada because of the expense of protecting secret formulas — especially fragrance and flavor secrets.

But labor officials say Canada is a profitable market for U.S. goods and that manufacturers shouldn't mind having to pay to protect their trade secrets.

The U.S. trade office told us it was not trying to weaken the Canadian rules, and that it is worried about worker safety. "All we're trying to do is bring it into conformity with our labeling," a spokesman said.

But Canadian labor leaders say that standardizing labels shouldn't be used as an excuse to put off laws protecting workers. The Canadian counterpart to the AFL-CIO, the Canadian Labour Congress, wants a promise from the Canadian government that the regulations will stay intact in spite of American pressure.

Damper on trade

Business leaders in the United States are feeling some euphoria about the potential for increased trade with the Soviet Union because of glasnost. But that euphoria is not shared by the intelligence community. A secret Central Intelligence Agency report has pinpointed several KGB agents who are members of a Soviet-American trade council. The same report also charged that the Soviet chamber of commerce is a center for industrial espionage. The Pentagon is angry about joint ventures with Soviets to determine if the businesses have military applications.

A bicycle to help 'can lady' make rounds

DEAR MR. ROSS: There's a lady in our town we call the "can lady" because she goes to public places almost daily to get aluminum cans out of the trash.

She rides an old bicycle and is out in any kind of weather making her rounds. One has to admire her grit and determination to make her own way. I once asked her about it, and she told me this is the way she pays her bills.

If you feel this is a worthy cause, I would like to see her get a new lady's bike complete with a big basket in the front to hold her cans.

I'm a part-time school custodian and that is how I came to know about her. If you decide to grant my request, you might have the bike sent to our local high school, and the principal could award her with it. I'm sure you've heard this from many others, but you'll not find one who is more deserving.

Many causes of neuropathy

DEAR DR. GOTT: I was told I had peripheral neuropathy due to alcohol. I was advised to stop drinking (which I did) and take Elavil. After two months I noticed a change in my back and lower leg pain. Am I on the right track?

DEAR READER: Alcohol abuse is a common cause of peripheral neuropathy, a malfunction of nerves in the arms and legs, marked by numbness, tingling and weakness. You are certainly on the right track.

Stopping alcohol is an important step for you to take. If you were drinking heavily, you may have become vitamin-deficient as a consequence of the alcohol abuse; make sure that you take a vitamin supplement because a deficiency can produce neuropathy.

There are other causes of neuropathy; these include diabetes and neurological diseases. Therefore, I think that you should check with your doctor for examination and testing.

I should add that Elavil, an anti-depressant, has been reported to cause peripheral neuropathy. In addition, alcoholics must be very cautious about taking mind-altering substances; it's too easy to substitute one form of drug abuse for another. I'd discuss this situation with your doctor. You need further testing and, in my opinion, you ought to consider stopping the Elavil.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am in my late 20s and taking Lasix for fluid retention/circulation problems. Sometimes I will gain 6 pounds in fluid overnight. It's most noticeable in the morning and after exercise. This has been going on for seven years. What is the problem?

DEAR READER: Fluid retention has many causes: heart and kidney diseases, hormone imbalance, excessive salt intake, certain medicines (such as birth-control pills) and chronic obesity, to name a few.

I don't know why your problem is worse after exercise. Also, I'm not sure why a woman in her 20s would have "circulatory problems." Clearly you need a medical examination to determine the cause of your symptoms and make sure that you don't have an undiagnosed underlying disease. I think that you should see your family doctor to get to the root of the problem.

Thanks A Million
Percy Ross

DEAR MR. ROSS: This is not a request for money. This is a request for your resources to save a 29-year-old young man. We have funded numerous ventures to get him on the right path. Nothing we do seems to work.

At stake is his well-being, as well as my wife's and my health. Drugs and drinking are NOT the problem. The problem is lack of desire and ambition to succeed. Can you help?

MR. D.S.,

DEAR MR. S.: I can no more give you a young man who had surgery for larynx cancer — resulting in speech difficulties. AT&T told me that the special handset costs $80 plus telephone installation.

This man lives alone on minimal Social Security. He had his telephone disconnected when his wife died a few years ago — he couldn't talk well enough to use it.

The real kicker is — he is still making payments on his wife's final hospital bill.

DEAR MS. C.: I don't know if this what AT&T had in mind when they started the slogan, "Reach out and touch someone" — but it sure rings true in this case. For your friend's physical safety, as well as psychological well-being, my check for adaptive phone equipment and installation is on the way.

DEAR MR. ROSS: I'm requesting a special speaking handset for an 80-year-old man who had surgery for larynx cancer — resulting in speech difficulties. AT&T told me that the special handset costs $80 plus telephone installation.

This man lives alone on minimal Social Security. He had his telephone disconnected when his wife died a few years ago — he couldn't talk well enough to use it.

Plan would add historic zone

By Nancy Conclaman
Manchester Herald

A Hartford developer who plans to convert a historic mill in town into residences wants to create a General Historic Zone with guidelines for developing historic areas in town not included in the Cheney Historic District.

Victor MacFarlane of Hartford submitted a petition Thursday for an addition to town zoning regulations that would allow him to convert the Bezzini's Old Colony Furniture building, formerly the Hilliard Mill, off Hilliard Street, into residences. Senior Planner Stuart Popper said today.

MacFarlane, president of MacFarlane Properties Corp., has not submitted plans for the conversion, he said.

Richard and Joseph Bezzini, who own the furniture business, could not be reached for comment this morning.

MacFarlane's proposed regulations will likely require modification before they go to a public hearing before the Planning and Zoning Commission, Popper said.

The proposed regulations are designed to protect and preserve the historical and architectural qualities of historic places, according to the application. Requirements governing lot size, lighting, landscaping, parking and other aspects of development are included in the proposed regulations.

Uses permitted under MacFarlane's proposal include residential offices, research complexes and retail developments. Specific fact that imports, which had fallen in the second quarter, shot up by 12.4 percent, swamping a 10.1 percent rise in exports.

Government spending dropped at a rate of $2.7 billion in the third quarter, after having risen by $7.4 billion in the second quarter. The turnaround was blamed on a big decline in defense purchases.

Before today's report, many economists had been looking for the economy to turn in its best growth performance since 1984, the last presidential election year.

In that year, the GNP had shot up by 6.4 percent, a giant increase that many believed helped President Reagan win re-election.

George Bush has been campaigning on a prosperity theme this year, citing the fact that the country is now enjoying a peacetime record six straight years of economic growth.

The various changes left the GNP, after adjusting for inflation, rising at a rate of $22.1 billion in the third quarter to a new level of $4,007 trillion.

Consumer spending, which has propelled growth throughout the recovery, continued to provide much of the momentum in the third quarter, rising at a rate of 3.5 percent, up from a 3 percent increase in the second quarter.

Business investment, which has been surging this year as industry rushed to expand production facilities, continued to provide much of the momentum in the third quarter, rising at a rate of 15 percent, down from a 15 percent jump in the second quarter.

Residential construction, which has been weak this year, rose a modest 1.3 percent in the third quarter.

Mitchell said Lieberman, during his years as attorney general, had developed a "vigorous, effective, aggressive" record on environmental issues, although he said he could not cite specifics in that record. He called environmental protection "a global problem...of enormous magnitude."

Mitchell refused to criticize Weicker, his colleague, saying when asked about aspects of Weicker's record. "I'm here for Joe Lieberman."

On the presidential race, Mitchell said Bush was ahead in his home state of Maine, where Bush also has a home. He said the Democrats have carried Maine only three times in the last 125 years.

He said Dukakis is "closing the gap" between him and Bush and is "running very close or ahead in pivotal states such as California, Illinois, Michigan and New York."

"If he can do well in those and perhaps win one or two other large industrial states in the North, he stands a very good chance," Mitchell said.

Also Tuesday, Lieberman's campaign released a list of speeches Weicker has made and the amount of the honoraria he collected for each. The four-page list showed a total of $235,000 in speaking fees earned by Weicker between 1981 and 1987.

In the same period, Lieberman received one speaking fee — $500 for a speech he gave at Fairfield University on Nov. 10, 1987.

The ministers said that area clergy agree that they have a responsibility to pray for the healing of AIDS victims, but said they are still divided on how to educate their members about the disease.

"Different denominations have different approaches to education," said the Rev. Anne J. Winder of St. Mary's Episcopal Church. "But the message we all agree on is that how you got the disease is irrelevant. God is there to heal you."

That healing power, and the common spirituality of the people who gathered, made Tuesday night's service one of the most successful events which MACC has sponsored recently, said the group's executive director, Nancy Carr. "There was a very strong feeling that we should continue healing things like this," she said today.

MACC will schedule a service like this at least twice a year, she said. If there seems to be a need from the community, they could be held as often as once a month, she said.

Also attending the services were the Rev. James Meek of Community Baptist Church, low Health Director Ronald Kraatz, Deputy Mayor Steven Cassano, and Lynn Gustafson, head nurse for the Manchester Board of Education.

CIAC ruling again shows bad judgment

The Connecticut Interscholastic Athletic Conference, governing body of all interscholastic sports in the state, shot itself in the foot — again — last week when it ruled Middletown High School had to forfeit two football games because an ineligible player was used. The player, a little-used reserve, did not make an impact in the game.

The CIAC's lack of compassion and understanding in this matter, as in previous ones, may lead to schools' continuing to protect themselves without notifying the CIAC of its actions. If this occurs, the CIAC will have no one to blame but itself.

Middletown, No. 1 on the gridiron until last Saturday's 21-6 loss to No. 2 Stratford, used a reserve back in its first two games. Middletown was comfortably ahead, 43-0, both times. But that unidentified reserve back, because of a mistake in the Middletown guidance office, had repeated a class. Credit for the second class was negated, costing him his eligibility.

Middletown reported it immediately to the CIAC and, well, you know the rest.

Middletown Coach John Skubel was upset. "The punishment was unjust, one that does not suit the circumstance of the crime," he said.

"You try to teach kids to respect the rules and be honest; do things the right way. The board (CIAC Board of Control) is out of touch with compassion. What's the sense in reporting something when you get the same penalty as a school that knowingly does things wrong and gets away with it?" Skubel said.

That's a good question. The Board of Control is composed of high school principals. Eight voted in this case and, while it was not unanimous, the vote did go against Middletown.

It doesn't make sense. Probation? Of course. Forfeiture? No way. The football season is too short and each game is too important.

Fifteen yards on the guidance office. The CIAC? How far is it to Kansas?

Gregg Jefferies' high school coach was disappointed in his student's play for the New York Mets against the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League Championship Series. It seems Mr. Jefferies didn't know to lay down a sacrifice bunt.

Whose fault is that? That's something Jefferies should have accounted somewhere along the line. In Little League or high school, but somewhere.

A Major League baseball player, who is not a renowned slugger, who can't bunt.

Unbelievable? Maybe not. Frank Galasso, who was Manchester Little League president for four years and associated with the program for 25 years before stepping down, sees a change. "The quality of play in Little League is down. There are no Bill Masses," he said, referring to the Manchester native who has signed a contract with the New York Yankees.

"There are some good players, but the days when you used to see the fields filled all the time are gone. You don't see that any more."

Why are players like Jefferies not as proficient as in the past? Galasso may have an answer: "I would like to see coaches hold more practices. Some just want to play the game. I'd like to see more like Corky Coughlin and Bob Boland who really teach baseball."

But there's another change: "I see parents coming to watch the games again instead of just dropping their kids off. Something is coming back in baseball. I can sense it. For awhile I thought it was dying out."

Maybe Jefferies, and those like him, will then know how to bunt.

La Russa named top AL manager

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Tony La Russa got two of the three championships he was looking for this season. Now the Oakland Athletics' skipper has picked up a bonus title: American League Manager of the Year.

La Russa outplayed Boston manager Joe Morgan in close balloting to win the award announced Tuesday by the Baseball Writers Association of America. He received 103 points to 89 for Morgan and 37 for Sparky Anderson of the Detroit Tigers.

The 44-year-old La Russa also won the award five years ago when he led the Chicago White Sox to 99 victories and the AL West title.

"This is an award for the organization," said La Russa. "I'm pleased for myself, but what the writers are saying is that the Oakland A's did a good job."

La Russa got 15 first-place votes, six more than Morgan, in balloting by a committee made up of two writers from each AL city. The other managers receiving first-place votes were Anderson, with three, and Milwaukee's Tom Trebelhorn, with one.

La Russa piloted the Athletics to an Oakland-record 104 victories, the divisional crown and a four-game sweep of the Red Sox for the AL pennant. The A's lost the World Series in five games to the underdog Los Angeles Dodgers.

MHS girls claim title again

Continuing its dominance in the Central Connecticut Conference East Division, the Manchester High girls' soccer team notched its fifth consecutive league title in as many years with a 7-0 victory over visiting Hartford Public Tuesday afternoon at Memorial Field.

The win keeps the Indians unbeaten at 12-0 in the CCC East and 13-0 overall while Public falls to 6-12 in the CCC East and 0-12-1 overall. The Indians will be at Enfield High Friday afternoon at 3:30 p.m.

"Our club is really pleased for Amy Gates, Heather Lavery, Paula Hollis and Judy Langer," Manchester Coach Joe Erardi said. "These are our seniors and this club is their club. They will leave us as three-time league champs."

Freshman Patty Hornbostel added the final goal of the match at 7:30 of the second half from 30 yards out.

Indians clinch at least a tie for third CCC East title

HARTFORD — Getting back to basics. That was the formula for Manchester High as the Indians scored two goals from in close to top Hartford Public, 2-0 Tuesday to clinch at least a tie for the Central Connecticut Conference's East Division boys' soccer championship.

Manchester, 10-1-1 in the CCC East, has two games left against conference opponents and can do no worse than share the title. The Indians, 10-2-1 overall, can clinch it outright Friday when it hosts Enfield High at 3:30 p.m. at Memorial Field.

"It feels good to have at least a share," Manchester Coach Bill McCarthy said, noting this will be the Indians' third CCC East title in the league's five-year existence.

Manchester previously won the league in 1984 and '85. Two opportunistic goals, by Kevin Boyle 15:30 into the first half and Corey Craft 17:20 deep into the second half, were the difference for the Indians. Boyle scored on a rebound after Owl goalie Bounto Chantavong juggled a shot by Jeremy Dieterle and lost control. And Craft, after a Dieterle direct rickshot off the crossbar, headed home the rebound.

"When we're playing well, those are the types of goals we will get," McCarthy said. "We manufacture goals by applying pressure on the defense."

Manchester, coming off a tie and an upset loss to South Windsor, put the pieces back together. "We had a lot of people playing well which is a good sign. They passed the ball well and played more as a team than in the last couple of games. That is what we emphasized in practice. We have to play as a team and they did," McCarthy said.

Public falls to 6-5-1 in the CCC East and 7-5-1 overall with the loss.

Right wing Ted Miller, who set the pace early, and defender Dan Kelsey, back in the lineup after sitting out with an injury, had strong games for Manchester.

Indian goalie Jeff Bernier came up with six saves to earn the shutout.

Football hero now fighting for his life

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — Gillard Handy was one of Saturday's heroes, having scored a touchdown in Arkansas-Pine Bluff's 31-7 homecoming victory over Lane College of Tennessee.

Hours later, the wide receiver was in a coma, clinging for his life.

The 21-year-old sophomore from New Orleans was attacked early Sunday outside a local nightclub. Police said he was struck in the back of the head with an automobile jack when he went to the aid of a teammate who was being beaten by a half-dozen assailants.

Handy underwent several hours of brain surgery to remove a blood clot and afterward was being kept alive with the aid of life-support systems at Jefferson Regional Medical Center. He was still in critical condition in the hospital's intensive care unit Tuesday after undergoing a second round of surgery, a hospital spokesman said.

The incident occurred in a parking lot near a club called Monroe's, where a group of UAPB football players had gathered to celebrate the homecoming victory, which had snapped a three-game losing streak.

UAPB wide receiver Doinr Nelson, 18, said he and his friend, James Allen, 18, had been in the club 15 to 20 minutes and were leaving when a man grabbed Allen. A fight began when Nelson protested and others jumped on Nelson. Allen ran back into the club for help.

"There were a lot of them who came out," Nelson said, most of them UAPB football players. Handy was one of them.

The assailants ran and Handy chased them, catching up with them about halfway down the block.

Nelson said that while Handy was arguing with one of the men, another jumped him. Handy fell to the ground. Nelson said he saw a man with a car jack in his hand.

"Handy was trying to help me," said Nelson, a close friend of Handy's. "He felt as though he had to protect me. He didn't do anything. He was just out there and got hit."

"There have been no arrests and descriptions of the suspects are incomplete," police said.

"His condition couldn't get any worse," Dr. P.B. Simpson, the neurosurgeon who performed the initial operation, said. "He suffered an acute...hematoma as a result of a severe head injury. He has been in critical condition ever since he has been in the hospital. He cannot respond to messages at all."

"After you remove the clot," Simpson said, "the brain is swollen and angry. The prognosis is very poor."

The 6-foot-3, 195-pound Handy had become the Lions' second-leading receiver this year with 23 catches for 294 yards.

"You really don't have a reaction," said UAPB coach Archie Cooley, who also coached Jerry Rice, now with the San Francisco 49ers, when both were at Mississippi Valley. "We're going to take a positive mind to see if Gillard can make it."

"He's tough enough to pull it out. There's someone larger than us in control. Now it's in the hands of the Lord."

NFL stiffens its drug policy

By Dave Goldberg
The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Beginning next season, NFL players testing positively for steroids a second time will be subject to the same suspensions now handed down to players who use cocaine and other illegal substances.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle told NFL owners at their fall meeting Tuesday that the policy will apply to players who tested positively for steroids during training camp this year — a figure he estimated at 6 percent of the roster tested.

So far this year, 20 players have been suspended for second violations of the NFL's substance abuse program — 10 for 30 days, or four games, and one, Tony Collins of the Indianapolis Colts, for the season as a third-time violator.

"Our legal staff feels we know more about it," Rozelle said in explaining his decision on steroids. Asked if that meant he thought it could withstand a court challenge, he replied:

"That's part of it. Steroids are bad for the players. We know they can affect life after football. Rozelle also said he thinks the suspensions are having an effect, noting that the majority came in preseason and in the first six weeks of the regular season, with only one, Mike Bell of Kansas City, who was disciplined last week, suspended since the early rash.

"I think the suspensions are having an important impact on players who might be tempted to do something with drugs," he said. "Because there has been a slack period, I would hopefully assume there will be fewer cases the rest of the season."

Still, Rozelle urged the teams to make sure they have contacts both with drug treatment facilities in their areas and with doctors who specialize in addiction rather than just relying on team doctors.

Changes turn things around for Coventry soccer

COVENTRY — When Coventry High boys' soccer coach Bob Plaster looks back at the 1988 campaign, he can point to Game 7 as the turning point. That's when Plaster jettisoned Plan A, and went to Plan B.

Plan B is working just fine, thank you.

"We had one shot the second half against Bolton (Oct. 4) so I said 'hey, it's time to make some changes,'" Plaster recalled, following the Patriots' fourth consecutive win Tuesday, a 2-1 win over Bolton in Charter Oak Conference action.

The win clinches a postseason berth for the 7-4 Patriots.

"The first time we played we played better on our field than they did. Today Coventry was tougher on its field," Bolton Coach Ray Boyd said. The Bulldogs fell to 6-4-1 with the loss.

Jack Ayer opened the scoring for Coventry with his 15th of the campaign at the 6:45 mark of the first half. Cliff Doonan, with his 10th of the year, tied it 1-1 at the second half assisted by Steve Klesman.

Paul Strycharz, one of the shuffler Patriot performers who started the year on the defensive side, tallied the game-winner with just under six minutes left. He broke free from a Bulldog defender, turned, and rifled a 16-yarder into the top corner of the cage. It was his fourth of the campaign.

(The changes) have made a difference. We're controlling the ball on offense now. Before it was always shoved back at the defense. Ayer up front is handling the ball, making runs and distributing the ball well. Now we feel we can score and that's lifted our confidence overall," Plaster said.

While Coventry's offense has been revitalized, the defense has not. Ayer up front is handling the ball, making runs and distributing the ball well. Now we feel we can score and that's lifted our confidence overall," Plaster said.

also had a strong game for the Patriots.

"It was a game where the momentum swung four or five times. Ayer dominated matters offensively for Coventry. He missed a couple wide," Boyd said. "We had our opportunities but didn't capitalize. But Coventry had the better of play today," Boyd said.

Both teams resume play Friday with Bolton visiting RHAM High in Hebron and Coventry traveling to Middletown to take on Vinal Tech.

Cheney upended

ROCKY HILL — Things started bad and got worse for the Cheney Tech boys' soccer team Tuesday afternoon.

The homecoming Terriers scored six first-half goals en route to a 6-0 rout of the Beavers. Rocky Hill is now 9-1-3 while Cheney fell to 3-10. The Beavers will host the Indians Academy Friday at 3:30 p.m.

Maurizio Rossetto registered a three-goal hat trick for Rocky Hill while Jay Cassarino added a pair. Single goals were added by Michael Ferro, Jeff Dill, Carmel Magro and Greg Schwieghofer.

"We made them look a lot better than they are," Cheney Coach Paul Soucy said. "We didn't play well."

Seven Infante played well for Cheney.

LEDYARD — The visiting East

Catholic High girls' soccer team put up a fight against a powerful Ledyard team but succumbed, 2-0, in a non-conference match Tuesday afternoon.

East is now 1-3-3 and will be at South Catholic in Hartford Friday at 3:30 p.m. Ledyard moves to 10-1-2.

"We played a very good Ledyard team," Eagle Coach Ron Palmer said. "We made two mistakes and that was the difference."

Amy Cockley scored at the 15-minute mark of the first half. Beth Maquire took advantage of an Eagle defensive miscue and tallied three minutes before intermission.

Palmer cited the play of Lynn Gentilcore, Stephanie Ogrodnick, Allison Mullen and Phyllis McDevitt.

Girls Swimming

MHS edges EC

The Manchester High girls' swimming team edged cross-town rival East Catholic, 85-77, Tuesday night at the Indians' pool. The Indians' record is now 8-1 while East falls to 0-10.

Manchester, which took eight out of the 11 events, will host Enfield Friday at 3:30 p.m. while East will be at Windsor Locks High Friday at 3:30 p.m.

Double winners for Manchester were Lauren Hickey in the 200 and 500-yard freestyle events and Katelyn Lindstrom in the 200 individual medley and the 100 breaststroke. Sonya Gulliksen took the 50 free while Kerri Lindland won the diving.

For East, Kerry Luoma won the 100 butterfly, Stacey Luoma garnered the 100 free and Lynn Krawczyk came home first in the 100 backstroke.

GOING UP — Bolton's Steve Klesman (2) goes up with Coventry's Paul Strycharz in front of Bolton goalie David Boles during Tuesday's game in Coventry. Bolton's Jim Grover (25) eyes the play. The Patriots won, 2-1, to qualify for the state tournament.

Gretzky finding no success against his former teammates

By Ken Ruppoppert
The Associated Press

Wayne Gretzky's second game against the Bruins and he didn't want it as tough as the first. But the result was still the same.

"They're a good hockey club," Gretzky said after his Los Angeles Kings lost a 5-4 decision to the Oilers Tuesday night. "To lose is another thing, but at least we played well. You can't get down on a loss."

For the second time, Gretzky failed to score a goal against his former team. In last week's 8-6 loss in Edmonton, Gretzky managed two assists. Tuesday night, he only had one and he'd like to see all the hoopla surrounding his big summer trade to Los Angeles die down so he can finally concentrate on playing the game.

"We'd like to, but people like you keep bringing it up," he told reporters after Tuesday night's loss.

Gretzky said he was nervous last Wednesday night in the first game against his former team, whom he had led to four Stanley Cups.

NHL Roundup

Tuesday night's game was "no comparison," he said.

Gretzky's only point came 6:12 into the final period when he shot on net and Steve Duchesne put in the rebound to give the Kings a 3-2 lead at that point.

But the Oilers came back and finally took the lead on a goal by Esa Tikkanen with 11:58 left.

Craig Simpson scored with less than two minutes left for the Oilers with what became the winning goal when Dave Taylor scored at the buzzer for the Kings.

Leafs 4, Islanders 3

Toronto, surprise team of the NHL's early season, scored four goals on four shots in the second period — including two by Ed Olczyk — to beat the Islanders. The Maple Leafs now are unbeaten in five games and have won five straight on the road. They have more points (19) than any team in the league. Last year, they finished with the No. 16 record and just managed to make the playoffs on the last weekend of the season.

Kelly Brudley, the Islanders' goalie, was the victim of the Maple Leafs' perfect record shooting in the second period. It gave Toronto a 4-3 lead and goalie Ken Wreggett protected the one-goal margin during a scoreless third period.

Canadiens 1, Bruins 1

Shayne Corson scored on a power play at 2:26 of the second period to give Montreal the tie and end Boston's three-game winning streak.

Boston goalie Reggie Lemelin preserved the tie when he made a point-blank save on Bobby Smith at 4:06 of overtime. Smith was all alone at the right corner of the crease when he took Mike Keane's pass from the left side.

but Lemelin knocked the puck away.

The Bruins, whose goal was scored by Craig Janney at 17:20 of the first period, outshot the Canadiens 25-10 in the first two periods. But Montreal held the edge 11-7 in the third period and 3-1 in overtime.

Penguins 6, Flames 1

Mario Lemieux had two goals and three assists and Steve Guenette stopped 43 shots to lead Pittsburgh over Calgary.

Lemieux leads the NHL with 15 goals and 31 points in eight games.

Guenette has a 4-0-0 record and has allowed only nine goals in four games.

Sabres 7, Devils 4

Pierre Turgeon scored twice and Dave Andreychuk snapped a tie with his second goal of the game as Buffalo beat New Jersey and continued to master the Devils.

The victory raised the Sabres' record against New Jersey to 14-2-3 since the Devils moved from Colorado for the 1982 NHL season.

Blackhawks 7, Nordiques 4

Dan Vinnette scored twice and Denis Savard added a goal and three assists to lead Chicago over Quebec.

The Blackhawks, who entered the game with a 1-7-1 record, the worst in the league, ended a five-game losing streak. They led 4-1 after the opening period, and although Quebec scored twice in the middle session, Steve Larmer set up Rick Vaive on the power play early in the third to apply the brakes to the Nordiques' surge.

Capitals 4, Canucks 3

Mike Ridley scored on a power play 2:55 into overtime to boost Washington over Vancouver. Washington broke a three-game losing streak and extended the Capitals' unbeaten streak over the Canucks to 13 games spanning five seasons.

Brian Bagnall is a starting striker with Division III Clarkson College. Jen Faber is starting fullback for Division III Eastern Connecticut State University.

"Jen is a fine defensive player," Eastern Coach Beth Regan said about Faber, the only freshman starter on defense outside of keeper. "She is learning the system and contributing as a solid starter. She has the ability to mark a player out of the match. She has good offensive skills in the backfield and does a very good job overtopping."

Eastern, after 13 games, was 10-3 and ranked No. 11 nationally. Atwell has appeared in 11 games off the bench for the 13-4-1 Huskies, who were tied for No. 7 nationally with the University of California-Santa Barbara in the latest Division I poll. Playing middlefield, Atwell has one goal and one assist for three points. Webb, a defender, has appeared in one game.

Rachel Odell is starting for Division II Bryant College and is the team's leading scorer, with three goals and three assists for nine points in 12 games. She's started in every game for Bryant, 4-4-2.

Odell joined another Manchester High product, Sandy Wilson, on the Bryant roster. Wilson is senior captain and is the leading scorer from her middlefield slot with five goals and four assists for 14 points. "Sandy is the leader type. She's a bright kid who the team looks up to," said John Gillooly, director of sports information for Bryant.

A fifth '88 MHS graduate, Amy Barrera, is a medical student at Keene State College in New Hampshire, where she is rehabilitating her knee with the hopes of playing in 1989.

more fullback with New Hampshire College, the No. 4 team in the country in Division II and No. 1 in New England. She started all 16 games for the Lady Penmen as a freshman and has started all 16 games this year. The team was 12-2-2 before its season finale Tuesday with Keene State.

One other recent graduate, Sarah Nicholson, is spending her junior year at Brown University abroad studying in Europe. The 1986 MHS graduate was a reserve with the Bears for two years before taking this year off. She's expected to play her senior year, Erardi said.

"It's nice to see them play on the college level," Erardi said. "I'm thrilled for them. If they enjoyed their high school setting and go on to play in college, that's what it is all about," he said.

"A lot of college coaches are seeking Manchester kids," Erardi said.

And, as exhibited, for good reason.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Whalers back in action

HARTFORD — The Hartford Whalers, idle since their 8-6 shootout win over Philadelphia last Saturday, resume National Hockey League action tonight against the host Buffalo Sabres in an Adams Division battle. The Whalers, 3-4 overall, are winless in four Adams Division outings.

Following Wednesday's game, the Whalers have a home-and-home series with the New Jersey Devils with the teams meeting Friday night at the Brendan Byrne Arena before jousting again Saturday evening at the Civic Center.

Tom Penders honored

MILFORD — Tom Penders, former UConn basketball and baseball star and the new head basketball coach at the University of Texas, will head six former players to be inducted into the Connecticut Fastpitch Softball Hall of Fame at Saint's Manor in Milford on Nov. 20.

Penders played 15 years with the Raybestos Cardinals of Stratford. Also named are Tony Cecere of South Windsor, who played 16 years with the East Hartford Dovesets, Richard Jensen, John Gribbin, Phil Scarfo and Danny Tammaro.

Patriots sign kicker

FOXBORO, Mass. — The New England Patriots have signed free agent Jason Staurovsky to replace beleaguered placekicker Teddy Garcia, a source close to the team said Tuesday. Staurovsky played for the Phoenix Cardinals during the 1987 players' strike and was cut by the Patriots in training camp.

It was also announced that running back Craig James, 27, underwent surgery on both shoulders Tuesday and will miss the rest of the season.

Ryan wants change

NEW YORK (AP) — Nolan Ryan, baseball's all-time strikeout leader, was among nine players to file free agency, bringing to 14 the total of players that have filed since last Friday.

Ryan, who was 12-11 with a 3.52 earned run average for Houston last season, led the National League with 228 strikeouts in 220 innings for a career total of 4,775.

Prominent lawyer hired

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Lions defensive lineman Reggie Rogers has hired prominent defense attorney Elbert Hatchett to help him in his involuntary manslaughter case, another lawyer representing Rogers said.

Hatchett met for two hours with Rogers' parents and fiancée to review the Oct. 20 crash in which three teenagers died and Rogers and an 18-year-old female companion were injured, attorney Harold Curry said.

Authorities say Rogers, who suffered a fractured neck, a partially amputated thumb and other injuries in the crash, was drunk when he ran a red light and slammed into the other car.

Graf coasts to victory

BRIGHTON, England (AP) — Steffi Graf of West Germany coasted past Iva Budarova of Czechoslovakia 6-3, 6-2 in first-round play at the $250,000 Midland Group championships, her first competitive action since she won the gold medal at the Seoul Olympic Games.

Graf, the 19-year-old top seed, completed the match in just 45 minutes.

In another opening-round match, second-seeded Pam Shriver beat Monique Javer of Britain 6-4, 6-0.

Fired-up McEnroe wins

PARIS (AP) — Unseeded John McEnroe, playing fired-up tennis after a penalty point cost him a game, downed third-seeded Henri Leconte 7-5, 6-1 at the $1.1 million Paris Open.

McEnroe had a penalty point assessed after two misconduct code violations, and that allowed Leconte to tie the first set 5-5. But McEnroe channeled his anger and took eight of the next nine games to win the first-round match.

Alysheba tops Breeders' field

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Alysheba, looking to become the leading thoroughbred money-winner of all time, heads a field of 11 3-year-olds and up pre-entered for the $3 million Breeders' Cup Classic Nov. 5 at Churchill Downs.

The winner's share of $1.35 million would push Alysheba, with lifetime earnings of $5,325,242, past John Henry's career total of $6,597,947.

Alysheba's main challenge may come from Forty Niner, the runner-up in this year's Kentucky Derby and winner of the Travers Stakes.

Others pre-entered Tuesday in the Classic field were Seeking the Gold, Personal Flag, Cutlass Reality, Waquoit, Cryptoclearance, Bet Twice, Lively One, Slew City Slew and Precisionist.

A total of 87 horses were pre-entered in the seven races that will make up the fifth running of the $10 million Breeders' Cup Day. Post positions will be drawn Nov. 2 at Churchill Downs.

NBC-TV will broadcast each race live — beginning with the $1 million Sprint at 2:14 p.m. EST and ending with the Classic at 5:36 p.m. — as part of its four hours of coverage.

'Wimpy' Lassiter dies

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — Luther "Wimpy" Lassiter, who won international acclaim and six world billiards championships, died Tuesday. He was 69.

Lassiter, who was considered by many to be one of the greatest nine-ball players of all time, was found about 2:30 p.m. by a nephew in his weathered, brown-frame home in Elizabeth City, the town where he grew up.

Lassiter, who had been in failing health, apparently collapsed in the bathroom that morning, not far from the pool table where he still played every day, said James Todd, a family friend.

Czyz outlasts Stewart

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Bobby Czyz preserved his early lead despite being floored in the eighth round and gained a 10-round split decision over Leslie Stewart in a fight between former light heavyweight champions Tuesday night.

Czyz, a former International Boxing Federation 175-pound title-holder, built an early advantage with inside counter punching.

Though Stewart, from Port of Spain, Trinidad, pressed his advantage in the final rounds, Czyz triumphed 96-93, according to judge Joseph Pasquale. Czyz was judged a 96-95 winner by judge Mike Savage. Judge Lynne Carter scored Stewart a 95-94 victory.

Czyz, who weighed 174 pounds, improved his record to 33-3 with 23 knockouts. Stewart, who weighed 172½, fell to 25-4 with 18 knockouts.

Renovations at Wrigley

CHICAGO (AP) — Wrigley Field, a 72-year-old Chicago landmark, will undergo a $14 million renovation, including addition of 65 box seats, a new press box, upper deck concession stands and additional seating, the Chicago Cubs announced Tuesday.

The park was the last in the major leagues to install lights, and the first home night games in the history of the field were played this summer.

CBS hires Hubie Brown

NEW YORK (AP) — Hubie Brown, former coach of the New York Knicks and Atlanta Hawks, will be CBS' top analyst on NBA telecasts this season, the network announced Tuesday.

Brown replaces Billy Cunningham, who left CBS so he could remain involved with the management of the new NBA franchise in Miami.

Brown, who has worked as a CBS commentator on college and pro basketball since 1982, will team with play-by-play announcer Dick Stockton.

"The average NBA viewer has become so much more sophisticated," said Ted Shaker, executive producer of CBS Sports. "That calls for more sophisticated coverage from CBS, and Hubie Brown fits that role to a tee."

Chiefs' Maas sidelined

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Nose tackle Bill Maas probably will be out at least four weeks because of torn ligaments in his left knee, the Kansas City Chiefs said Tuesday.

Maas, a two-time Pro Bowl starter, was hurt in the third quarter of Sunday's 7-6 loss to the Detroit Lions. Gary Baldinger replaced him for the rest of the game, making three tackles with one assist, and probably will start Sunday against the Raiders in Los Angeles.

Maas, who faced arthroscopic surgery Tuesday, was off to his best start in five seasons. He ranked sixth on the team in tackles with 52 and he led the team in sacks with four.

Packers waive Zendejas

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Green Bay Packers waived erratic place-kicker Max Zendejas and brought in four other kickers for tryouts Tuesday.

Zendejas made only 9-of-16 field goal attempts this season and missed a 24-yarder Sunday with 11 seconds left in a 20-17 loss to the Washington Redskins.

Coach Lindy Infante had little to say Tuesday as he emerged from a 90-minute tryout session with the other four kickers on a cold, blustery day in Green Bay.

Dean Darvey, Tim Vesting, Dale Dawson and Pat Broussard were the four kickers given tryouts Tuesday.

SHOT ON GOAL — Coventry's Paul Strycharz (20) launches a shot before Bolton's Jon Wiedie can stop it in Tuesday's COC match at Coventry. Strycharz got the game-winner with six minutes left as the Patriots topped the Bulldogs, 2-1.

Rozelle Rule to be challenged

By David Ginsburg
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The National Football League Players Association plans to take the league to court over NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle's drug testing policy.

An NFLPA source said Tuesday that the union will soon file a class action suit that would challenge the so-called Rozelle Rule, saying the commissioner's current drug testing policy is in violation of the 1982 Collective Bargaining Agreement.

The contract expired on Aug. 31, 1987, but is still honored because both sides could not come to terms on a new agreement.

The NFLPA maintains that while the 1982 contract does not allow for random testing, the league has been conducting such tests on some players.

The league has said that a player is tested only when there is using a banned substance. One such case, for example, would be a previous positive test.

The union will challenge the commissioner's program in a number of areas.

"The only thing holding up the suit is a few loose ends with the union's law firm," said the source. "The NFLPA is not looking to make a big splash with this yet, but it seems the cat is already out of the bag."

The San Jose Mercury ran an article Sunday that said the suit is subject to the approval of union members, and it is unlikely that the players will stay from the opinion of NFLPA executive director Gene Upshaw.

"We don't deny what was written in the article," said NFLPA assistant executive director Doug Allen.

Upshaw would not return phone calls to his office.

The union is planning to seek an injunction that would prevent Rozelle from further instituting the drug policy until the courts can determine whether it is in violation of the 1982 contract.

"The Rozelle Rule is legally vulnerable," said the source. "The union will challenge the commissioner's program in a number of areas."

Under the current policy, several of the game's biggest stars have served 30-day suspensions for violation of the league's substance act. Former Pro Bowl performer Lawrence Taylor of the New York Giants and Dexter Manley of the Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins are among those players who were cited and given 30-day suspensions.

The city in which the suit will be filed has not yet been revealed.

New Beef Tips Champignon not really a healthy choice

TYSON GOURMET SELECTION BEEF TIPS CHAMPIGNON, $3.39 for a 10.5-oz. frozen plate of marinated beef tips with mushroom and wine sauce, browned potatoes and broccoli with cheese sauce.

Bonnie: At first glance, Tyson's new Beef Tips Champignon meal seems like a fairly healthy selection. It's moderate in calories (370), only 37 percent of which come from fat; reasonably moderate in sodium (870 milligrams) for a frozen dinner, and not overladen with added chemicals. The only thing that bothers me is the type of fat they used to cook their potatoes: a combination of highly saturated beef fat and palm oil in addition to some less saturated oils. The probable reason? Even though these saturated fats are thought to raise blood cholesterol levels, they are often less expensive to use than unsaturated ones.

Carolyn: If you think finding a sensitive single man is difficult, try finding a frozen dinner with tender beef. Even Armour — a company known for its meat — has had trouble with some of its frozen meals. So when the world's best-known maker of chicken comes out with a beef dinner, I don't expect much.

That's why Tyson's Beef Tips Champignon is such a pleasant surprise. The beef is tender and the sauces tasty and complicated enough to be worth its rather steep price.

MICROMAGIC MICROWAVE TATER STICKS, $3.39 per 4-oz. box of 4-1/2 frozen hash brown potato sticks.

Carolyn: A few years ago no food manufacturer would have dared to market microwave hash brown potatoes. Microwave technology being what it was, the most they could have hoped to produce would have been hash brown patties. But the invention of those aluminum foil reflector boxes has opened up the world of fried foods to homes without deep fryers. These hash brown sticks come out of the microwave crispy on the outside and moist on the inside. Best of all they're shaped in such a way that you might be able to get away with eating them with your fingers.

Bonnie: A 5-ounce baked potato with its skin intact is low fat, low cal, low sodium and an excellent source of fiber and vitamin C. It's also a good source of niacin, vitamin B6, potassium, iron and various trace minerals.

In contrast, a 4-ounce portion of MicroMagic Microwave Tater Sticks is extremely high in sodium (620 milligrams), calories (290) and fat (61 percent). They are, in fact, prepared using highly saturated fats such as beef tallow and palm oil, along with some other more acceptable fats. If you can't stomach the idea of a plain baked potato and want a fried version with less saturated fat and much less sodium, I'd suggest MicroMagic's Microwave French Fries.

SUNSHINE BAVARIAN FINGERS, $1.89 per 16-oz. package.

Carolyn: Sunshine waited years before introducing this variation on their famous Vienna Fingers and the time was apparently put to good use. There

Supermarket Sampler
Carolyn Wyman
& Bonnie Tandy Leblang

are flashier cookies on the market and ones with more cream filling, but few with such a pleasing chocolate cookie taste.

Bonnie: Chocolate happens to be listed just above salt in the ingredient list of this new cookie. This means there's more chocolate in these cookies than salt. Considering this is billed as a "real chocolate" cookie, this is the least I would have expected.

Salt aside, the ingredients appear acceptable but for the artificial flavor and sodium metabisulfite. Artificial flavors are cheaper and often more distinct than natural ones. Unfortunately most have not been properly tested or identified on the label. Sodium metabisulfite is one of a family of preservatives known as sulfites. They are the only additive currently approved by the FDA known to have caused deaths. As a result, they have been banned from use in salad bars and on fresh vegetables.

The small amount in these cookies is probably harmless, but it's worth watching if you're asthmatic or prone to allergies.

NABISCO CHUNKY CHIPS AHOY! $2.89 per 12.5-oz. bag.

Bonnie: Other than a splash of artificial flavor, the ingredients in Chunky Chips Ahoy! are ones you might use at home. Nabisco's choice of fats is particularly good considering what other manufacturers use. Nabisco uses polyunsaturated fats (the good type) which are partially hydrogenated (making them less good). Both Duncan Hines Chocolate Chip Cookies and Keebler Chips Deluxe Cookies use the less desirable, more saturated palm oil.

If you're not going to make your own, then these are not bad.

Carolyn: I'm not sure I'd love cookies as much as I do if they didn't function as a medium for candy and nuts. There's no doubt that the more candy a cookie contains, the more I like it. So when Chips Ahoy! executives decided to put out a chocolate chip cookie with chocolate chunks, they were definitely on the right track. If only they had actually followed through on the promise. These don't have chunks, just bigger chips and not enough of them. Until they learn the difference, Keebler Chips Deluxe and LU Chips Chocolat will give you more candy per bite.

Notes and Nibbles

Pasta is perfect

Contrary to its reputation, pasta is actually a healthful, and not particularly fattening food. In a new booklet from Hershey Foods, you'll see high-carbohydrate, low-calorie recipes. And none of them contains a drop of chocolate — the Hershey Foods Corporation owns a number of pasta lines.

For your copy of the booklet with eight slimmed-down recipes, write to: Hershey Pasta Recipes, P.O. Box 815, Dept. FFT, Hershey, Pa., 17033-0815.

For chocolate lovers

"Chocolate!" a new recipe booklet which includes truffles and chocolate-orange ice cream, is being distributed from the Milk Promotion Services. To order a copy, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to "Chocolate!" Milk Promotion Services Inc., 381 Governor's Highway, South Windsor, Conn. 06074.

Catch the wave

If you're cookin' with a microwave oven these days, then you won't want to miss the all-new "Campbell's Microwave Cooking Cookbook." It features more than 100 recipes and 30 color photographs. Send a check for $1.25 to: Campbell's Microwave Cooking, P.O. Box 964, Bensalem, Pa. 19020.

Holiday recipes offered

It's not too early to think about your holiday baking, and the Glace Fruit Processors want to offer a few suggestions. They have a full-color, 16-page recipe booklet with traditional European dishes like Dundee cake, and up-to-the-minute treats like a white chocolate cheese cake. Write to: Sweeten Your Holidays, c/o Golin/Harris Communications Inc., 500 N. Michigan Ave., Suite 200PK, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

CORRECTION

In the Arthur Drug advertisement in today's Downtown Harvest Festival Tabloid, the sale dates are incorrect. The sale dates should be Oct. 26 thru Nov. 5.

Bibles & Books

You've Always Wanted to Read Through the Bible.

If you've ever tried reading through the entire Bible you know it's easy to get started, but sometimes tough to follow through to the end.

The One Year Bible is designed to make your Bible reading easy and enjoyable. There's no need for bookmarks or reading guides. The One Year Bible is already divided into 365 daily readings for you. Each day includes a portion from the Old Testament, the New Testament, Psalms, and Proverbs. For example, January 1 starts with Genesis 1, Matthew 1, Psalm 1, and Proverbs 1. January 2 picks up where you left off the day before. This arrangement gives freshness and diversity to each day's reading. The One Year Bible format allows you to begin reading on any date and finish reading the entire Bible a year later.

The One Year Bible from Tyndale House Publishers is available in The Living Bible, New International Version, King James Version, and Catholic editions. Softcover, $11.95. Hardcover, $17.95. (Catholic editions add $1.00). The One Year New Testament, Living and NIV, is available in mass paper ($5.95) and mass cloth ($10.95). To become familiar with the whole Bible is a goal many hope to achieve. You can do it this year. It only takes ten minutes a day.

REAL ANSWERS FOR REAL LIFE

"A great step forward in helping Christians apply the Bible's life-changing message in their own lives."
— Billy Graham

The new Life Application Bible™ does more to help you experience the power and presence of God in your life than any Bible ever published. Life Application Notes on every page show you how to apply every passage of Scripture to your life today. There has never been a Bible in all of history like the new Life Application Bible™!

Even greenhorn investors can be bullish here.

Don't feel sheepish about asking questions. That's what INVEST Representatives are here for — to give you answers.

The stock market. It's a fascinating subject, isn't it? But do you worry that it's over your head, so you just back away from it?

The Savings Bank of Manchester says, "Relax." We're ready to help make investing understandable to you — and to make available to you a whole array of investment options right here at the bank (stocks being one of them), through INVEST, an independent service of ISFA Corporation.

The INVEST Centers are located in our Main Office and at the Burnside Avenue office in East Hartford. INVEST trained, licensed representatives staff the Center. These people can offer you investment research, counseling and portfolio management. They'll help you buy, if you like, securities, mutual fund shares, unit trusts and still other investments. They may advise you to set up an account to work as a self-directed IRA. Or they may help you decide, after talking it over, that the stock market is not your cup of tea at all. That you're better off putting your money into bank CDs.

The point is, these representatives are accessible. Interested. Enthusiastic. They enjoy answering questions — any and all questions — about the stock market and about the bank. They won't pressure you. And there's no obligation on your part.

So get bullish. Use the telephone. Call 647-0333, the special INVEST phone number at SBM's Main Office or call our East Hartford INVEST office at 289-7747, and make an appointment with one of the INVEST team. We bet you'll enjoy it.
