GOP pick a surprise in Bolton

By Andrew J. Davis Manchester Herald

BOLTON — The Republican Town Committee has rejected an incumbent selection as its choice for first selectman and has endorsed a prominent party member whose father held the job for 12 years.

The committee on Tuesday passed over incumbent Republican Selectman Douglas T. Cheney for the first selectman candidacy and selected Robert R. Morris for the post instead.

Cheney and Raymond Soma, a former selectman, were named by the committee to run for seats as selectmen.

Republican party members will caucus Jan. 17 to nominate candidates. Manning said. Although the town committee has endorsed its slate of candidates, other nominations still can be made at the caucus, he said.

The water authority that serves the New Haven area has come up with a novel way to make drinking water in schools safer, but Manchester officials have no immediate plans to implement such a program here.

Morra is 46, deputy chief of the Bolton Fire Department, a selectman for about 10 years. "I don't think I can run for first selectman and win."

"I think I will seek the nomination," said Proulx, a selectman for about 10 years. "It (not getting the endorsement) surprised me, but that's politics, I guess."

The program was implemented in response to reports that excessive ingestion of lead can cause severe neurological problems and, in large concentrations, even death.

About Town

YWCA classes still open

The YWCA Nutmeg Branch at 78 N. Main St. has openings available in its Tuesday, Thursday and Friday classes starting Jan. 24. Each class meets once a week and includes crafts, games, music and other motor skills activities. To register, call 647-1437.

Other YWCA offerings include two-day and three-day programs for children ages 3 and 4. Registration for the 1989-90 school year will begin Jan. 25.

The YWCA Nutmeg Branch also is offering four winter classes for pre-schoolers ages 1 to 5. They are: Kiddie Dance (ages 4 and 5), Busy Bodies (ages 3 and 4), Head Over Heels (ages 3 and 4) and Head over Heels (ages 4 and 5). The classes run for eight weeks and start in January. Free winter course catalogues are available at the Nutmeg Branch office.

The YWCA also is offering two vacation day programs for children in grades kindergarten through 8 on Martin Luther King Day, Monday, and Staff Development Day, Friday, Jan. 20. Activities on Monday will include a 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. trip through the University of Connecticut animal barns and ice skating at the UConn annex at a cost of $13.50 for members and $15 for non-members.

On Jan. 20, activities include a tour, planetarium show, and hands-on science activities at the Bridgeport Museum of Arts, Science and Industry from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The cost is $16 for members and $18 for non-members.

Extended hours are available from 7 to 9 a.m. and 4 to 5:30 p.m. at an additional cost of $2 for members and $2.50 for non-members. For more information on all of the programs, call 647-1437.

Businesswomen to meet

The American Business Women's Association, Robin Chapter, will hold its monthly meeting on Tuesday at the Gallery, 141 New London Turnpike, Gloucester. Cocktails will be at 6:30 p.m. and dinner is at 7 p.m.

Ella Protzman, assistant director of training and volunteer services of the American Red Cross, will speak after dinner. The business meeting will be conducted by President Susan Ferguson of Manchester. For further information, call Mary Clemente, 669-9113.

Senior's health clinic set

An adult eye health screening program developed by the Connecticut Society to Prevent Blindness will be held Feb. 8 at the Manchester Senior Citizens Center. The screening will replace the glaucoma screening which has taken place in the past and is designed to check for symptoms of glaucoma, cataracts and diseases of the retina.

Dr. Richard Carlton and Dr. Harold Nix will be volunteering their time and expertise to make the program possible. The program is offered by the Manchester Health Department and is by appointment only. People who have not had an eye exam in the last year are encouraged to attend. Call 647-3173 for an appointment.

College cost tips offered

"Financing a College Education" will be the topic of discussion Sunday at 2:30 p.m. at the Manchester Country Club. Topics to be discussed include: Parent financial contribution to college expenses; Student financial contribution to college expenses; Sources of financial aid; Determining eligibility for financial aid; How colleges package financial aid; and Financial options other than financial aid.

Carol Chivaveri, a college financial aid officer, president of the Connecticut Association of Professional Financial Aid Administrators and also financial aid consultant to the Manchester Scholarship Foundation will be guest speaker. The Manchester Scholarship Foundation is sponsoring the event.

In addition, scholarship applications from the foundation are now available at the guidance offices of East Catholic High School, Hoveell Cheney Technical School, Manchester High School and at the Financial Aid Office of Manchester Community College.

College Notes

Elected into society

James Kilduff, son of James H. Kilduff of Andover, has been elected for membership into Tau Beta Pi, the national engineering honor society. Kilduff is a graduate student at the University of Michigan and he expects to graduate with a degree in environmental engineering in 1992. He is a 1979 graduate of RHAM High School.

Two attend Quinipiac

Two Manchester residents have entered Quinipiac College in Hamden this year. They are: Tracey L. Hanrahan, 472 Hilliard St., and Michael R. Heist, 31 Horace St.

Herbert Morrison
MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP) — Herbert Morrison, whose emotional description of the crash of the Hindenburg stirred millions 52 years ago, died Tuesday at age 83.

Morrison was a reporter for Chicago radio station WGN on May 6, 1937, when he described the explosion of the airship as it approached its landing in Lakehurst, N.J. Thirty-six of the 97 people aboard died.

Morrison became the eyes and ears of the world as the only broadcaster at the scene. Millions heard his tear-filled account of the explosion, the fire and people falling from the sky.

Morrison served in the Army Air Corps during World War II and later became the first news director at television station WTAE in Pittsburgh. He retired after developing a radio and television section for the university relations department at West Virginia University.

Karl Geiringer
SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Musicologist Karl Geiringer, whose books on composers such as Johann Sebastian Bach and Franz Joseph Haydn were translated into 11 languages, died Tuesday. He was 89.

Geiringer studied with Guido Adler, a founder of modern musicology, at the University of Vienna. Geiringer earned his doctorate there and later became curator of the archives of the Society of the Friends of Music, which houses major collections of the manuscripts of Haydn and Robert Schumann.

Geiringer, who came to the United States in 1939, was a member of the American Musicological Association and the American Musicological Society. He also worked for the British Broadcasting Co. and organized a collection of instruments owned by the Royal College of Music.

Composers and musicians worldwide used his books, which were translated into 11 languages. His books included "Instruments in the History of Western Music."

Geiringer was named professor emeritus at the University of California, Santa Barbara in 1973.

Lois M. Brock
Lois M. Brock, 66, of 41 Applegate Lane, East Hartford, formerly of Manchester, died Tuesday (Jan. 10, 1989) at home.

She was born in Glastonbury on Nov. 18, 1920, the daughter of the late William and Mildred (Howe) Brock. She had lived in Manchester most of her life before moving to East Hartford two years ago. Before retiring in 1986, she was employed by the Royal Ice Cream Co. of Manchester for many years. She was a member of Buckingham Congregational Church, Glastonbury.

She is survived by a sister, Norma Ferguson of Manchester; four nieces; a nephew; and six grandnieces and grandnephews.

The funeral will be Thursday at 11 a.m. at the Watkins Funeral Home, 142 E. Center St. Burial will be in Buckingham Cemetery, Glastonbury. There are no calling hours.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Diabetes Association, P.O. Box 10160, 40 South St., West Hartford 06110.

Police Roundup

Man charged in auto theft

Police said they arrested a Manchester man Tuesday night on a larceny charge after they discovered him driving what turned out to be a stolen vehicle.

Police said they spotted Verley L. Bigelow, 22, of 40 Olcott St., driving around the Manchester Parkade at a high rate of speed.

Upon checking the Massachusetts license plate of the 1985 blue Honda Accord Bigelow was operating, police said they found it had been stolen in Springfield earlier in the day.

Police said Bigelow drove the car to a curb on Broad Street, and jumped out. Bigelow was pursued on foot by police, who finally apprehended him in a nearby parking lot, according to the police report.

Bigelow was charged with first-degree larceny, operating without a license, reckless operation and engaging an officer in pursuit. He was held on $3,000 bond and is scheduled to appear in Manchester Superior Court today.

Tax elimination plan, housing issues worry board

By Nancy Concelmorn
Manchester Herald

A proposal to eliminate the local motor vehicle tax, providing communities with incentives to develop affordable housing and the high cost of towing and relocating gas lines during municipally funded road work are among the issues Manchester officials want state legislators to keep in mind.

Officials met with local legislators Tuesday before the Board of Directors' meeting to air their concerns over what legislators have said will be a tight fiscal year.

The state faces a $134 million budget deficit for the next fiscal year, which begins in July.

Hartford faces tripling in 1988 of AIDS cases

HARTFORD (AP) — The number of new AIDS cases in Hartford last year grew faster than in any other Connecticut city, tripling over the previous year, city officials said.

Seventy-five new cases of AIDS among Hartford residents were reported to health authorities last year, up from 25 in 1987, city Health Director Steven Uranga McKane said Tuesday. From 1981 to Nov. 30, 1988, 148 cases of acquired immune deficiency syndrome were reported in Hartford.

McKane called the trend alarming and said it illustrated the seriousness of the epidemic, especially at a time when the AIDS crisis may have dimmed in the public eye.

Proportionate to its population, Hartford now ranks about 50th of 109 among cities with the biggest AIDS caseloads, McKane said.

Mark Henrickson, the city's AIDS program director, described Hartford as a "third wave" city, hit by the brunt of the epidemic later than New York City or secondary cities that are either larger than Hartford or closer to New York, such as Boston and New Haven.

With 211 cases, New Haven last year still had a larger AIDS caseload than Hartford had. But for the first 11 months of 1988, 51 new cases were reported in New Haven, compared with Hartford's 12-month total of 75. The rate at which new cases were being reported in New Haven during the 11 months was comparable to the rate for all of 1987, when 60 cases were reported.

The Hartford Health Department's figures differed somewhat from statistics for the city compiled by the state Department of Health.

Clare Averbach, an AIDS epidemiologist for the state health department, said preliminary state figures showed 68 new cases in Hartford last year, compared with a total of 87 for 1987 through 1987. She did not have a figure for 1987 alone.

Averbach said that she could not explain the discrepancy between the city's and state's numbers, but that it might result from some Hartford cases being assigned to other localities. The state health department is the source for all AIDS data given to cities and towns.

State Sen. Michael P. Meotti, D-Glastonbury, and Reps. James R. McCavanaugh, D-Manchester, John W. Thompson, D-Manchester, Paul R. Munter, R-Glastonbury, and J. Peter Fuscuso, R-Marlborough, attended the informal meeting.

Legislators' opening comments focused on the effect federal and state budget deficits would have on the town. Fuscuso said the impact on Manchester "really has not been decided."

McCavanaugh said he did not know yet of any cuts that would affect Manchester. He praised Town Manager Robert B. Weiss for "his foresight that we are heading toward a tough year."

In December Weiss announced restrictions on hiring and spending for existing programs. Also under consideration is a proposal by Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr. and the Democratic directors to freeze spending on planned and future programs, deemed to be non-essential.

Weiss asked legislators to vote against a proposal to eliminate the local motor vehicle property tax. The State Property Tax Task Force in December recommended elimination of the tax because it is difficult for local assessors to collect. Manchester gains about $6 million in revenue from that tax, town Assessor Michael A. Bekech has said.

"It probably would mean about 8 mills more in Manchester's tax rate this year if that tax were eliminated," Weiss said.

Local legislators have said they would support elimination of the tax as long as the state guarantees each town equal or greater revenues.

Weiss also requested legislation that would force gas companies to pay for the relocation of gas lines during town-funded road work as they do for state-funded and federally funded projects.

Relocating gas lines for the replacement of the White Brook storm drainage system will cost the town more than $300,000, Weiss said.

Democratic Director Mary Ann Handley said the state should make the Housing Partnership Program more appealing to communities. The program aims to bring the state and towns together to create affordable housing.

"The connection between the local communities and the state has not been as successful as we would have liked," she said.

Republican Director Ronald Osella said the state needs to emphasize local autonomy to alleviate fears that a commitment to the housing partnership means towns will have to provide low-income housing built according to state standards.

"Really, what we want with affordable housing is to do our own thing," Osella said.

Handley and Democratic Director Kenneth N. Tedford served on a directors' subcommittee to study affordable housing needs and make proposals.

Kathryn Feidelson, associate director of the Connecticut Conference of Municipalities, presented CCM's priorities for the 1989 General Assembly at Tuesday's meeting.

Osella said that there is a contradiction between being a member of a union and being a professional.

"I frankly don't accept... that there is a contradiction between being a member of a union and being a professional," Democratic Director Mary Ann Handley, also a professor at Manchester Community College, said.

Naab and Osella said they voted against the contract in part because of the difficult position arbitration puts towns in.

"I've got to say no some time," Osella said, "because something basically flawed in the process of binding arbitration."

"You are penalizing all of our teachers because of the system," Democratic Director Barbara B. Weinberg said.

Blood drive, services set on King Day

By Nancy Poppos
Manchester Herald

From a blood drive to a religious service, many events have been scheduled in honor of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Day during the next few days. The first of these events is the eighth annual Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Commemorative Program and Supper, scheduled for 8 p.m. Thursday. Sponsored by the Manchester Intercultural Council, it will be in Cooper Hall of South United Methodist Church, 1226 Main St.

In honor of the 25th anniversary of the March on Washington and the famous "I Have a Dream" speech, there will be 25 men and women offering brief excerpts at the dinner from King's writings. Those planning to attend should bring a casserole, salad or dessert to feed eight people. For more information, call Gladys Stringfellow (649-9943) or Mary Jaworski (643-4938).

The town's official King commemoration will be Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Center Congregational Church. The program, called "Living the Dream: Let Freedom Ring," will be co-hosted by Frank J. Smith and Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr. The keynote speaker will be David G. Carter Sr., president of Eastern Connecticut State University.

For the first time this year, Manchester students will be reading their reflections, titled "The Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Remembered" at the official commemoration Monday. The student speakers will be Liz Ouelia and Amy Mirzas of Basset Junior High School; Kate Chabrun and Saheen Silvercloud of Illing Junior High School; and Suzanne Agosti and Tammy Harris of Manchester High School.

Music will be provided by the Manchester High School Jazz Ensemble, the Illing Singers and soloist Wayne Dixon.

At Concordia Lutheran Church, 40 Pitkin St., adults will examine King's success as a non-violent resister, at 9:15 a.m. Sunday. Church school and nursery care for children will be available at that time.

On Monday, a legal holiday, the Connecticut Martin Luther King Jr. Holiday Commission will sponsor a program at 11 a.m. in the Legislative Office Building at the State Capitol, Hartford. This free program will include cultural presentations and remarks by local and state officials. At 12:30 p.m., the event will conclude with the reading of the state's replica of the Liberty Bell.

Free copies of a full-color educational poster about King's life are available by calling the state Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities, 566-5356.

The Greater Hartford chapter of the American Red Cross is encouraging area residents to give blood in King's honor. In Manchester, a bloodmobile will be set up Tuesday from 2 to 7 p.m. at Concordia Lutheran Church, 40 Pitkin St.

PZC delays vote on Purdy request

The Planning and Zoning Commission is scheduled to act Jan. 23 on a request by the Purdy Corp. for special exception erosion control permits that would allow the company to build a 100,000-sq-ft foot addition to its existing plant at 586 Hilliard St.

The company has proposed housing expanded manufacturing operations in the addition, which would be built onto the south side of the existing facility, project architect Alan Lamson told commission members Monday.

The commission tabled a vote on the request at a meeting Monday. Senior Planner Stuart B. Popper said Tuesday. The permit is required because plans call for more than 60 parking spaces.

Because the addition would contain mostly machinery, the company will need to hire only 15 to 20 new employees, Lamson said.

The addition to the existing 73,700-square-foot plant would be built on 9.7 acres of land at 586-596 Hilliard St., 313 Adams St. and 375-377 Adams St. It would require 26 additional parking spaces.

Purdy officials would not comment on the expansion Tuesday.

Two neighbors complained at the hearing about a number of Canadian hemlock trees along the east side of the plant that have died. Single-family homes border Purdy on the east and apartments border on the northeast.

The trees served as a buffer between the plant and the residential property.

Lamson said the trees, required as a buffer under zoning regulations, died because the soil they're planted in is too dry. Purdy will probably ask the Zoning Board of Appeals for a variance that would allow it to use fencing and a different type of tree for a buffer, Lamson said.

Commission member William A. Bayer and Francis Blanchard of 23 Hoffman Road also raised concerns about the noise of air conditioners for the addition. Lamson said the company would agree to shield the air conditioners to keep them quiet.

Fire at Mystic Seaport

STONINGTON (AP) — Firefighters were called today to a fire on the second floor of the Mystic Seaport Store, but the extent of the damage at the retail complex wasn't immediately known, a seaport spokeswoman said. The seaport remained open and no injuries were reported, said Lisa Brownell, the spokeswoman.

The fire was located in a two-story wooden building that houses 12 stores and a museum, Brownell said. She said there appeared to be extensive water and smoke damage, but authorities hadn't determined the amount of damage or a cause for the fire.

The fire forced seaport officials to close the visitor reception center, which Brownell said was being used to store art work from the seaport museum.

Several members of the Board of Directors voiced approval of the proposal at their Tuesday night meeting. The plan will be reviewed at a future meeting.

Metropolitan's proposal for renovations, submitted to Sprague in October, is about half as expensive as previous proposals, which were based on renovation demands by the town. The town estimated that renovations would cost about $100,000.

But renovations proposed by Metropolitan would be less expensive, Sprague said. A large portion of the cost, the installation of an air-circulation system, has been reduced because Metropolitan has proposed heating only a portion of the range at a time, he said.

The range was closed by the town in February 1988 because of safety violations related to the ventilation system. Town Manager Robert B. Weiss said the Building Department has approved current plans.

Metropolitan contacted the town again in June 1988 with its latest proposal.

The Metropolitan Revolver League is a 51-year-old shooting club with 17 teams located throughout the state. Members of the club formed Metropolitan Shooters Inc. about two years ago with the intent of operating their own range.

Duchesneau's comments came Tuesday after she had learned that the name of Judith Willard, a member of the Republican Town Committee, was submitted to the party's nominating committee for first selection.

Duchesneau said she is puzzled as to why Gasper, who supported her when she took over, would now recommend someone else for the position.

Contacted Tuesday afternoon at her home, Gasper acknowledged that a name had been submitted to the committee for consideration for the position of first selectman.

"A small group decided to present another name," Gasper said, but she opted not to elaborate on the circumstances surrounding the submission until after the Republican caucus.

Attempts to reach Willard Tuesday and today were unsuccessful.

The Republican caucus will be tonight at 7:30 in the all-purpose room of Andover Elementary School.

Flaherty, 27, served on the Town Council in 1986-87 and is chairman of the council's finance committee.

Flaherty is an economic research analyst for Connecticut National Bank in Hartford, where he has worked since 1985. He grew up in Coventry, graduating from Coventry High School in 1979. He attended Harvard University and graduated in 1984.

Democrat Town Chairman Deborah Walsh said. He is an experienced, hard worker. Patrick is also a product of the Coventry school system and having recently, that is not so long ago, been through the system, hopefully, that will be valuable to the board."

Flaherty said Paul Manzoni, a member of the town Zoning Board of Appeals, was also interested in the position. The nominating committee, though, decided to endorse Flaherty in his position that night if the board voted to appoint him.

"I'm looking forward to serving on the board," he said. "I'm glad to be coming aboard just before budget proceedings where, hopefully, my skills will be an asset."

The Board of Education will probably vote on Flaherty's appointment at its next meeting, Jan. 26 at Coventry High School. Flaherty said he would assume his position that night if the board voted to appoint him.

Rec chief recommends club repair and run rifle range

By Nancy Concelman
Manchester Herald

Manchester's parks and recreation director is recommending that the town hire a Hartford shooting club to renovate and operate the town-owned rifle range at the Nike site.

Metropolitan Shooters of Hartford has said it will renovate the range using volunteer labor for $12,250, the cost of materials. Maintenance and utilities costs are estimated at $11,500 per year.

Metropolitan contacted the town again in June 1988 with its latest proposal.

Duchesneau's comments came Tuesday after she had learned that the name of Judith Willard, a member of the Republican Town Committee, was submitted to the party's nominating committee for first selection.

Duchesneau said she is puzzled as to why Gasper, who supported her when she took over, would now recommend someone else for the position.

Contacted Tuesday afternoon at her home, Gasper acknowledged that a name had been submitted to the committee for consideration for the position of first selectman.

"A small group decided to present another name," Gasper said, but she opted not to elaborate on the circumstances surrounding the submission until after the Republican caucus.

Attempts to reach Willard Tuesday and today were unsuccessful.

The Republican caucus will be tonight at 7:30 in the all-purpose room of Andover Elementary School.

Flaherty, 27, served on the Town Council in 1986-87 and is chairman of the council's finance committee.

Democrat Town Chairman Deborah Walsh said. He is an experienced, hard worker. Patrick is also a product of the Coventry school system and having recently, that is not so long ago, been through the system, hopefully, that will be valuable to the board."

Flaherty said Paul Manzoni, a member of the town Zoning Board of Appeals, was also interested in the position. The nominating committee, though, decided to endorse Flaherty in his position that night if the board voted to appoint him.

"I'm looking forward to serving on the board," he said. "I'm glad to be coming aboard just before budget proceedings where, hopefully, my skills will be an asset."

The Board of Education will probably vote on Flaherty's appointment at its next meeting, Jan. 26 at Coventry High School. Flaherty said he would assume his position that night if the board voted to appoint him.

Silo explosives were homemade

By Glastonbury (AP) —

Homemade firecrackers or explosives were probably used to blow up an abandoned Nike missile silo near the Manchester town line last month, an investigator says.

"There's evidence that people have set off homemade fireworks and explosives all through that area," Jack Killoran, the resident agent in charge of the investigation, said.

The silo site is owned by Northeast Utilities, which operates high-voltage power lines through it.

Killoran, noting that he was speculating, said the nature of the Dec. 30 explosion that shattered an 8-inch-thick seal of concrete over the silo points to teen-age suspects.

Killoran said one theory is that a small homemade device may have set off a second explosion that ignited petroleum fumes that could have been in the silo.

The blast also destroyed a massive steel elevator platform at the silo off Line Street. The information, they will meet with district staff members to discuss it.

DiRosa said the town will probably take steps to bill the property owners who are served by town sewers regardless of whether the agreement with the district over fire and sewer jurisdiction is implemented.

DiRosa said there is not a great deal of property involved, and he said it is unlikely any attempt will be made to collect back fees.

COVENTRY — Board of Education member John Fleming has resigned with nine months left to go in his term and the Democratic Town Committee has nominated a former member of the town Council to replace him.

Fleming resigned effective Jan. 1. Town Clerk Ruth Benoit said he had not specified his reason for leaving.

On Tuesday, the 25 members of the Democratic Town Committee unanimously endorsed the nomination of former council member Patrick Flaherty to fill the vacancy. Fleming's term was due to expire in November.

Politicians take sides to evict park squatter

HARTFORD (AP) — The politically charged issue of pay raises for legislators and other top elected state officials is back before the General Assembly this year.

How far it will get, given the state's fiscal problems, will be interesting to watch. Politicians don't like discussing, never mind raising, their salaries, especially near an election.

The bipartisan commission that recommends salaries for elected officials and judges has essentially dusted off its report from last year and is forwarding it almost intact to the General Assembly this year.

During the 1988 session, when lawmakers began to realize that the state's fiscal future wasn't quite so bright, the legislature set aside the commission's recommendations on the governor and other top elected officials and acted only on salaries for the General Assembly.

They approved a modest 2 percent raise to take effect with the 1989 legislative session. Pay raises can't take effect until after the next election for the affected office, so legislators could truthfully say they weren't really voting themselves a pay raise.

This year the fiscal problems are even worse, but some sort of action is expected on those executive branch salaries because delaying action again would put it off into 1990, an election year. Any raises approved couldn't take effect until 1991, after the 1990 gubernatorial and other state elections.

"Our view is that this should be recognized as a very, very small part of the state budget, very small in terms of dollars," said Commission Chairman George J. Ritter, who served as a state representative from 1985 to 1991.

"In any situation where you correct inequities, for such a small amount, you should certainly do that."

The General Assembly, he said, "should be very comfortable in taking this completely out of the political arena and voting on the merits of fair compensation for their successors, not themselves."

There will also be a recommendation for another pay raise for legislators, but its fate is uncertain.

Currently the governor earns $78,000 a year, which ranks 21st in the country. The highest is New York, with $130,000. The lowest is Arkansas with $35,000.

The Commission on Compensation of Elected Officials and Judges has recommended a $105,000 gubernatorial salary beginning in 1991 — a 35 percent increase — with $5,000 increases for each of the next three years. By 1994, the salary would be $120,000.

The commission held its first meeting of the new year on Monday, and reaffirmed that recommendation, which had been included in its 1988 report to the General Assembly.

The commission did alter its recommendations for treasurer, secretary of the state and comptroller. Last year, it had proposed a $90,000 salary for the treasurer, and $80,000 for the secretary of the state and comptroller.

This year, it proposes making them all the same, at $85,000, with $4,000 raises annually for a top in 1994 of $97,000. A study of all 50 states found that those officials generally make the same salary and Ritter said.

The commission suggests an $85,000 salary for the lieutenant governor, with $4,000 annual increases. The lieutenant governor now earns $55,000.

The final recommendation for the executive branch is for a $90,000 salary for the attorney general, up from the current $60,000, with $4,000 annual increases.

New mail boxes pose problem at Legislature

HARTFORD (AP) — Bill boxes outfitted with combination locks at the new Legislative Office Building are intended to frustrate would-be thieves, but they're also causing problems for their owners.

Many people say they are having trouble opening the locks.

"The supervisor of the bill room ought to be Willie Sutton," said one legislative official, who asked not to be named. "We need a safecracker."

The new 697 boxes, which cost about $10,000, are stuffed daily with legislative bills, schedules and records.

They replaced an older system formerly located in the basement of the Capitol, where bills were stuffed in pigeon holes assigned to each news organization, lobbyist and other groups. There were no locks and doors, and sometimes material was taken.

Commission gears up for pay-raise debate

HARTFORD (AP) — A 71-year-old woman facing eviction from her long-established home on an undeveloped state park has picked up support from Republican city aldermen, who say she should be provided better living quarters and allowed to stay.

But the squatter, Doris Gagnon, who said she would fight the eviction in court, scoffed at the proposed compromise, which would include making her an honorary park ranger.

She said she expects to win millions of dollars in compensation when the showdown reaches the courts.

"Why should I settle for this? They want to make me a park ranger? I'm laughing through my teeth, really," she told the New Haven Register. "They must think I have a screw loose."

A Republican alderman, Alfred Aherns, held out hope, however, that Gagnon would reconsider. "Perhaps once she thinks about it, she'll like it better," he said.

A Democratic leader on the Board of Aldermen attacked the proposal, saying the Republicans were acting irresponsibly by proposing that more tax dollars be spent on Gagnon. He claimed the woman has not been living full-time at the homestead as she claims and is using the outpost for "publicity purposes."

The Department of Environmental Protection, which is drafting plans to develop the park, decided Tuesday to initiate eviction proceedings after Gagnon refused to comply with a Monday deadline for leaving the state property, state officials said.

At the same time, a letter from the eight Republican members of the 15-member Board of Aldermen was sent to the DEP's commissioner, Leslie Carothers, proposing that some way be found to permit Gagnon to remain on the property.

Gagnon's home on the shore of Long Island Sound was demolished in 1971 to make way for the expansion and development of a still undeveloped state park. After losing a court battle to save her house, she established a series of ramshackle homesteads in the vicinity of her old property.

Milford health officials filed a complaint with the DEP citing unsanitary conditions at the homestead — a small camper and shack with no running water.

Flaherty said Paul Manzoni, a member of the town Zoning Board of Appeals, was also interested in the position. The nominating committee, though, decided to endorse Flaherty in his position that night if the board voted to appoint him.

Boeing 747 Forward Cargo Hold

BOMB LOCATION PINPOINTED — The bomb that destroyed Pan Am Flight 103 over Scotland was located in the front cargo hold in front of the wing, British Transport Secretary Paul Channon said Tuesday.

Channon also said the fact that Semtex plastic explosives were probably used to make the bomb pointed to a highly organized terrorist group planting the device. All 259 people on the plane and an undetermined number on the ground died.

Pilot questioned about shutdown

LONDON (AP) — A pilot was questioned again today by investigators trying to determine why his plane's apparently undamaged right engine was shut down before the jet crashed while the burning left engine remained in operation.

Capt. Kevin Hunt, whose back and legs were broken in Sunday's crash, was interviewed for 45 minutes at Leicester Royal Infirmary, said the hospital's deputy general manager, Carol Honshall.

Hunt, 43, answered preliminary questions on Tuesday.

The British Midland Airways jet plunged into an embankment a half-mile short of the runway at East Midlands Airport in central England, where it was trying to make an emergency landing.

Forty-four people died and 82 were injured.

Transport Secretary Paul Channon said Hunt had reported a fire in the right-hand, or starboard, engine of the new Boeing 737-400 shortly after it took off from London's Heathrow Airport for Belfast.

Britain's tabloid newspapers concluded today that Hunt had mistakenly shut down the right engine, believing it was on fire, instead of the left engine.

"Fatal Error" said the Daily Star. "Pilot Shut Off the Wrong Engine" said the Sun. "Error on the Flight Deck" said Today.

The British Airline Pilots Association called the newspaper reports "outrageous" and "with-out a shred of evidence." Aviation experts said it was highly unlikely the pilot could have confused the two engines, given the cockpit layout and the system of fuel checks between pilot and co-pilot.

Mrs. Honshall said that after his meeting with crash investigators, "Capt. Hunt is obviously a lot happier that they have all the relevant facts."

She said some of the "wilder headlines" had been kept from him but he had been made aware by friends and colleagues of the news reports.

Asked if Hunt had denied them, Mrs. Honshall said: "That is a comment I couldn't make." She said Hunt also was aware of Channon's statement to the House of Commons that investigators found evidence of a shut-down in flight of the right engine before impact, and evidence of a fire in the left engine.

Freddie Yetman, technical director of the pilot's association, said: "The official investigators need to talk to the crew to tie up some of their actions with the evidence they've found... There may be some discrepancies they want to clear up."

Shiite feud splits Lebanese families

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The fierce battle between rival Shiite Muslim factions for dominance of Lebanon's largest sect has split families and jeopardizes the strategic alliance between their masters, Iran and Syria.

Amid the carnage of Lebanon's 13-year civil war between Christians and Muslims and the country's myriad other militias, the Shiite conflict has fractured Lebanon's largest sect.

Shiite sources said the battle has pitted brother against brother, father against son as they side either with the fundamentalist Iranian-backed Hezbollah, or Party of God, or the secular, pro-Syrian Amal militia led by Lebanon's Justice Minister, Nabih Berri.

More than 500 people, many of them civilians, have been killed and about 1,500 wounded since the inter-Shiite rivalry broke into open warfare in April.

In Beirut's southern slums, a Shiite bastion devastated by the fighting, huge posters of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and Imam Musa Sadr, Amal's charismatic founder, who mysteriously disappeared in Libya in 1978, hang side by side, indicating a false unity among the 1 million Shiites.

The two sides have vied for years for control of the country's Shiite community, now one of Lebanon's most powerful sects.

Warhead flight recorder missing

Soviets may have snatched it after splashdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force can't find the flight data recorder from a nuclear test missile and the Pentagon says the Soviets may have snatched the device from where it splashed down in the western Pacific Ocean.

The recorder was aboard a Minuteman 2 missile test-fired from California at Kwajalein Atoll in the Marshall Islands on July 7, 1987, according to Army Maj. Bill O'Connell, a spokesman for the Defense Department.

The story was first reported Tuesday by the CBS Evening News and later confirmed by the Pentagon.

The flight data recorder was part of the dummy warhead on the missile, which did not carry any nuclear weapons on its launch from California. The Air Force periodically tests missiles by launching them from California at Kwajalein, 5,000 miles away.

"It is unlikely that the Soviets recovered it (the recorder) in the hours between splashdown and the first search, but that possibility cannot be ruled out," said O'Connell.

The Minuteman is one of the main components of America's land-based nuclear missile force. O'Connell said the recorder has failed to turn up in five searches of the area where the missile splashed down.

The recorder would contain valuable information about the missile, which did not carry any nuclear weapons on its launch from California. The Air Force periodically tests missiles by launching them from California at Kwajalein, 5,000 miles away.

"There are many possibilities that might account for the loss, including accidents during the handling of the recovered debris, poor record keeping, and problems in shipping," he said. "None of these possibilities has been ruled out and the investigation is continuing."

But he did confirm that Soviet personnel may have landed on Kwajalein, which is supposed to be uninhabited.

U.S. officials found "vodka bottles, cigarettes, bug spray and a few technical items of Soviet manufacture that could not have floated ashore and would have been unlikely to have been left ashore purposefully," he said.

CBS said a Soviet trawler was about 50 miles away during the splashdown, and a Soviet mini-submarine may have been used to snatch the warhead's flight recorder.

O'Connell refused to say if a Soviet sub had been detected in the area. "There have been a number of reports of Soviet submarine sightings and these reports are not being ignored," he said. "I cannot, however, confirm that there was Soviet submarine activity in or near Kwajalein."

The test shot came nine months after the Soviets ended a fishing agreement with Kiribati, the island nation next to the Marshalls, O'Connell noted. If the fishing agreement had still been in effect, the Soviets would have had support capabilities to try to take the payload by sub, he said.

Victim puts her rapist in jail

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A 65-year-old woman who was allowed to decide her rapist's prison term chose a 4½-year sentence that will put him behind bars immediately, then said of being allowed to pick the penalty: "Wasn't that something?"

"He was so kind," the victim said of Hennepin County Judge William Posten. "He said, 'It's your decision.' I liked that."

Posten on Monday gave the victim two choices in the prosecution of James Halvorson, 25. She could have the case go to trial and hope for a conviction, which could have meant a 108-month prison term, or she could accept the conditions of a plea agreement for a 54-month prison sentence effective immediately.

The woman chose immediate incarceration in lieu of a trial because Halvorson was free on bond and she feared being attacked again, said Assistant County Attorney Kevin Johnson.

"She knew he would be going straight to prison" and wouldn't be eligible for parole for three years, Johnson said Tuesday.

Halvorson was accused of breaking into the woman's home through a kitchen window in the early morning hours of June 16, according to a criminal complaint. The noise woke the woman and she went to investigate. A man dragged her from the kitchen to the bedroom, covered her with a blanket and raped her. He fell asleep after the attack and the woman ran to a neighbor's house to telephone police, Johnson said.

Halvorson's attorney, Earl Gray, said Halvorson was "drunk out of his mind" at the time. Halvorson had recently been convicted of drunken driving for a fourth time and had received a delayed jail sentence two days before the rape, authorities said.

The woman was haunted by the thought of a second attack and had moved in with family members, her home of 20 years put on sale, said Cindy Clarkson, a sexual assault counselor who worked with the victim.

"She was feeling pretty powerless," Clarkson said. "What the judge did was wonderful. Just wonderful. She just couldn't believe that someone in the system like a judge would take the time to listen to her and actually give her a choice."

Posten said he allowed the woman to choose the sentence because of her age, the viciousness of the assault and the court delays.

"After announcing her decision, she said, 'Wasn't that something?'"

"I knew it could be months before there'd be a trial," she told the (Minneapolis) Star Tribune. "The only thing I wanted to know is if he would be in jail during that time."

Mexican oil workers strike to protest arrest of leader

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Refinery operations across Mexico were crippled today as tens of thousands of striking oil workers protested the arrest of their union boss following a gunbattle in which a federal agent was slain.

The arrest of Joaquin Hernandez Galicia on gun-running charges Tuesday was widely seen as a surprise challenge to the powerful union by the new administration of President Carlos Salinas de Gortari.

The official Notimex news agency said soldiers had blown down the union boss' door with a bazooka shot during the morning raid on his home in the northeastern city of Ciudad Madero.

The allegedly corrupt Petroleum Workers Union of the Mexican Republic controls more than half the lucrative drilling contracts issued by the government. Mexico state Gov. Mario Ramon Beteta, had embezzled millions of dollars while serving as head of Pemex.

During Beteta's tenure, the union lost control of millions of dollars worth of contracts. Attorney General Enrique Alvarez del Castillo said a federal agent was killed in Tuesday's battle between security forces and Hernandez Galicia's bodyguards at the union boss' home. He said 17 other people, including former union Secretary-General Jose Sosa, were arrested on illegal weapons charges.

Carlos Torres, a spokesman with the attorney general's office, today said authorities had arrested 35 people in connection with the case, including former union Secretary-General Jose Sosa and 16 others on illegal weapons charges.

Salvador Barragon Camacho, the union's nominal leader as secretary-general, surrendered to authorities early today and was hospitalized after complaining of heart problems. He recently suffered a heart attack, Notimex said.

Alvarez said police confiscated 200 Uz2 submachine guns and 250,000 rounds of ammunition at Hernandez Galicia's house and denied charges that the raid was an attack on the union.

"It is the prosecution of crime committed by individuals," he said.

OPINION

Budget cuts a certainty for 1989-90

The reaction of most members of the Board of Education and of the town's Board of Directors to the 1989-90 budget proposed by the school administration gives a clear indication that Manchester residents will not get all the services they would like to have in the coming fiscal year.

Most elected officials who have commented on the $40 million budget recommendation have said it will have to be reduced because the state's fiscal situation will probably mean fewer state dollars for local schools and for other local services as well.

But the school budget, with its increase of nearly 18 percent, is not the only one that will have to be pared if the burden on town taxpayers is to be kept at a reasonable level. It is merely the first one to become public in the budget-making process. Because it is a big budget that affects many residents directly, attention is focused on it.

The Board of Directors, which has the final responsibility for deciding how much is spent for what municipal services, will have a far more difficult job in setting a budget this year than it has had in many years. And when the directors set a budget, they certainly will not please everyone.

Levels of service that some residents consider vital will probably not be included in the package.

The problem cannot be solved merely by increasing administrative efficiency or eliminating what are frequently called "frills."

Severe belt tightening will be needed.

One victory against fear of terrorism

Military action against shadowy bands of terrorists is often unavailing. Israel's eye-for-an-eye tactics against terrorists, bombing guerrilla camps for every outrage committed against Israeli schoolchildren, provides emotional satisfaction but does little to discourage further attacks.

Terrorists believe they are at war with the West. Retaliation is not likely to dissuade them.

So what can we do? We can try to protect ourselves by providing greater airport security, including sophisticated screening which can detect explosives like the ones which blew up Flight 103. We can continue to press forward diplomatically in the Middle East, to achieve peaceful settlements which eventually remove the grievances which lead to terrorism in the first place.

And we will have to be patient.

In that respect, Americans indeed have learned. There was none of the hysteria of the Achille Lauro kidnapping, after which thousands shunned Europe by the hundreds of thousands, based on ridiculously exaggerated perceptions of the danger. This time, flights between Europe and America continue normally.

And that is heartening news. By its very nature terrorism operates through fear. A terrorist cannot achieve his aim by ordinary military means, so he attacks innocent people, often women and children. Only by causing dread and panic can the effort succeed.

Flight 103, for all the horror it created among all civilized people, will not panic the public. And that, more than retaliation, is a victory over the terrorists.

Key to new regime is Stolberg

By Bob Conrad

Up to the opening of the General Assembly in Hartford last week, the key to whether a secret revolt over House leadership would work was Rep. Richard Balducci, its candidate for speaker.

He was the one person acceptable to a sufficient number of reviled-modern Democrats and, even more critically, all of the Republicans. Together, they had to produce the votes to deny Rep. Irving Stolberg a third term as speaker and install Balducci.

That done, the question now is whether the new regime can put the House together again and manage its way through a difficult session, and the key this time is Stolberg.

It's his option to accept reality, painful as that surely is, and be a good Democratic soldier, or to let his feelings take over, without cooperation and encourage his loyalists to do the same. How well the House can operate in this session may be in the balance.

Two days after the defeat that must have been unbearable for him, the deposed speaker gave disturbing signals that he won't step back graciously. He showed up at a Balducci press conference quite obviously to rain a little on the new leader's parade.

Minutes after Balducci made public his first appointments to leadership and committee posts, Stolberg held court a few feet away to pass judgment on them.

He said, for example, that naming Rep. Shaun McNally of Norwich as House chairman of planning and development was "a terrible appointment." McNally earlier was a Stolberg ally who turned up as a revolt ring-leader.

Incredibly, Stolberg said he and his people were undecided on whether to help the new leadership or go "underground" as the French did in World War II when the Nazi-led Vichy government was in power.

But the coup of last week was history by then and this was clearly Balducci's inning. It was, in my opinion, unworthy of Stolberg to take such gratuitous shots at what Balducci was doing or even to be there. The situation called for a lot more class by one of Stolberg's stature.

Unhappily, too, the incident could not help but send a message to Stolberg loyalists that the way to react to his outlier is to put personal feelings, anger, and the least — ahead of the good of the order.

The reason for replacing Stolberg stemmed, first of all, from his own conduct of the office of speaker. From all accounts by responsible legislators who tried to work with him during two terms, he brought his disdain, and himself, I think that "arrogance" is a bit heavy to describe his style, but certainly he was overly officious and sometimes insensitive to lesser lights around him. His ego was king-size, but politicians have to have it in full measure.

Secondly, this was a moment when House members in both parties rose up to defend that chamber's tradition of limiting speakers to two terms. In the days before annual sessions, the custom was one term. Stolberg was overreaching to try for three. Former Speaker Jim Kennedy of Hartford tried a decade ago and was denied in Democratic caucus by then-Rep. Eric Abate of Stamford.

Replacing Stolberg was the brainchild, chiefly, of Rep. Bob Gilligan of Wethersfield, who started working on it a year ago. His early-on ally was Rep. Richard Mulready of West Hartford.

Among other House Democrats on the inside were Reps. Anthony Palmerino of Hartford, Jim McAvanagh of Manchester, Dean Markham of East Hampton, John Mordaskey of Stafford, Vito Mazza of West Haven, McNally and, of course, Balducci, their man all along as the one whose esteem extended across party lines. Rep. Ron Smoko was considered as a possible alternate.

A month or so ago, Balducci quietly consulted trusted Republicans and got the go-ahead. The GOP caucus would support him, he was told, if 20 Democratic votes were assured. On the weekend before opening day, House Minority Leader Bob Jackle of Stratford informed Smoko that his caucus would not buy him.

The most amazing aspect of the whole piece is that all of the insiders kept their pledge of secrecy — even from Gov. Bill O'Neill and Democratic State Chairman John Dromey of West Hartford. Uncomfortable as that was for Balducci, he wanted the House Service in a very unhelpful spot. He had to be sure that the House and Senate budget committees to vastly increase the 1989-90 fiscal year budget for the repairs.

Socialists in Greece near fall

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — The socialist government of Greece, headed by anti-American demagogue Andreas Papandreu, is on the verge of collapse and may have had a hand in its demise.

The prime minister's problems are manifold. He, members of his family and high-level officials in his administration have been accused of involvement in an ever-expanding banking scandal, considered the biggest in Greece's history. The same cast of characters is entangled in a related effort involving the illegal sale of arms to Iran and Iraq.

Papandreu has also offended traditionalist Greeks by announcing he will divorce his 64-year-old American wife, Margaret, to marry his 34-year-old mistress, Dimitra Liani, who is also the one whose esteem extended across party lines. Rep. Ron Smoko was considered as a possible alternate.

Emergency to be lifted

COLUMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — President Ranasinghe Premadasa said today that the 5½-year state of emergency would be lifted at midnight, providing for the release of hundreds of political prisoners, a government spokesman said.

Premadasa, who took office nine days ago, had promised to end the emergency in an effort to chart a more careful course for this Indian Ocean island nation ravaged by ethnic violence since 1983.

The state of emergency has been extended on a month-by-month basis since May 1983. Premadasa had already vowed it would not be renewed on its next expiration date, Sunday.

Reparations plan rapped

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sponsors of a law to compensate Japanese-Americans who were forced to live in internment camps during World War II say it would take 60 years to make reparations under the spending plan proposed by President Reagan.

"Unless Congress appropriates the authorized maximum amount ... many of the eligible recipients may die before receiving their full compensation," Sen. Spark Matsunaga, D-Hawaii, said Tuesday.

Matsunaga and the other lawmakers who sponsored the 1988 law said they would press the House and Senate budget committees to vastly increase the 1989-90 fiscal year budget for the repairs.

Spionage is charged

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A former Navy enlisted man tried to sell submarine warfare secrets to the Soviets because he had been discharged for indecent exposure, according to authorities who said no damaging information was passed along.

Craig D. Kunkle, 39, was arrested Tuesday at a Williamsburg motel as he tried to turn over classified documents to two undercover FBI agents posing as Soviet officials, said Irvin B. Wells III, head of the FBI's Norfolk office.

Kunkle, a former chief petty officer, was charged with attempting to deliver classified information to a foreign government. If convicted, he could be sentenced to life in prison.

Kunkle, of Virginia Beach, was discharged from the Navy in October 1985 as non-judicial punishment for multiple acts of indecent exposure committed at the Barber's Point Naval Air Station in Hawaii, according to an FBI affidavit filed in U.S. District Court.

Gulliani undecided

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. Attorney Rudolph Gulliani, who made a name for himself prosecuting the biggest insider traders and mobsters, says he has not decided whether he'll enter the political arena when he leaves his job this month.

The high-profile prosecutor who also targeted corrupt politicians said one of his proudest achievements of his 5½-year tenure had been an improvement in the "ethical climate in business and politics."

"When I spoke of crime five or six years ago, most people thought of street crime and violent crime," he said. "We have now broadened those areas to business and politics."

Gulliani announced his resignation as U.S. Attorney for Manhattan at a packed news conference Tuesday. He said he will leave the post by the end of January.

Duke declines to attend

BOSTON (AP) — Former Democratic presidential candidate Gov. Michael Dukakis has declined an invitation to attend President-elect Bush's Inaugural Ball.

"We informed the Bush Inauguration Committee a month ago that we would not be using the tickets and they gave them to other parties," Dukakis spokesman James Dorsey said Tuesday.

Pressing business, including Dukakis' plan to present a controversial fiscal 1990 budget to the Legislature on Jan. 25, will keep the governor-at-home, Dorsey said.

"It comes at one of the busiest times of the year," he said.

Bush defeated Dukakis on Nov. 8 by a margin of 54 percent to 46 percent.

Mom robs bank with infant

ZION, Ill. (AP) — A teen-age mother unable to get a baby sitter kept her infant in the back seat while she robbed a bank at gunpoint and led police on a chase that ended with her car slamming into a roadblock, authorities said.

The 5-month-old child was apparently unharmed, his distraught father said.

"It was a very terrible day," said Shawn Richberg, 20, a Navy seaman apprentice who lives in this city about 45 miles north of Chicago. "I'm worried and lost and just don't know where to start or what to do."

When asked how his son, Shawn Maximilian, was doing, Richberg said: "He's fine. ... He's snoring. It was a big day for him."

Authorities said the infant's mother, 19-year-old Tammy L. Richberg, was charged with armed violence and armed robbery. She was ordered held at $1 million bail.

Once in custody, Mrs. Richberg told police she had robbed the same bank of $10,000 on Dec. 1 to pay bills. Police said she also had been charged with a felony theft in November for stealing from her former employer.

Richberg said she and her wife had no unusual financial problems — "Just the same as anybody."

More violence in Peru

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Shining Path rebels killed 11 policemen in a cocaine-producing jungle valley, and Lima police arrested 200 students in a protest instigated by the Maoist guerrilla group, authorities said.

The two weekend ambushes by the Shining Path in the Huallaga Valley, where about 60 percent of the world's coca crop is grown, also wounded 11 people, the government paper La Cronica reported Tuesday.

The deaths brought the insurgency toll since Saturday to 28 killed.

In Lima, dozens of heavily armed riot police swarmed to the San Marcos University campus on Tuesday, police said, arresting 200 students who were blocking nearby streets with rocks and bonfires and exploding dynamite charges.

The weekend deaths came amid a recent spurt of violence in the Shining Path insurgency, which has claimed 12,000 victims since fighting began in 1980. La Cronica said separate guerrillas columns hit the dense jungle opened fire on passing patrol vehicles with automatic weapons and hand grenades.

Judge rules against Army

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A federal judge's ruling upholding the right of a lesbian to re-enlist in the Army Reserve will have a widespread impact, her attorney says.

U.S. District Judge Myron Gordon ruled Tuesday that a regulation barring re-enlistment of homosexuals violated First Amendment rights of Miriam Ben-Sholom because it "unreasonably chills the right to freedom of speech."

Ben-Sholom also said it unfairly discriminates against people who have a homosexual orientation, whether they engage in homosexual activity or not.

New data supports 'black hole' theory

BOSTON (AP) — The discovery of a river of gas flowing toward the middle of the Milky Way supports the belief that an infinitely dense speck more massive than 1 million suns lies at the heart of the Earth's galaxy, astronomers say.

The speck is known as a black hole, collapsed stars with such intense gravitational pull that nothing can escape from it, not even light. While many astronomers believe that a massive black hole exists at the core of the Milky Way, this has still not been proven.

In research presented Tuesday, astronomers described their discovery of a 90-trillion-mile-long stream of gas that apparently is being sucked across the heavens into the black hole.

Although black holes cannot be seen, astronomers look for other evidence of their existence, such as the tug of their gravity on nearby celestial objects.

Paul Ho, who directed the research at the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics in Cambridge, noted that the galaxy's center is a gravitational well.

"We think that stars drift toward the center," he said. "It's a natural place for a massive black hole to form."

Ho's radio telescope observation was made with astronomers from the Max Planck Institute in Munich and the University of Cologne, both in West Germany, and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The report was presented at a meeting of the American Astronomical Society here.

Ortega overture

Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega is eager to settle his differences with the United States after George Bush takes office. Ortega is hard-line communist who has been a political agitator since he was a teen-ager. Bush is a hard-line anti-communist who once headed the Central Intelligence Agency. Yet it is possible the two men could resolve a decade of bad feelings between their countries. Nicaragua's economy is in a shambles. The inflation rate there last year soared over 2,000 percent. Ortega turned to Moscow for aid, but Mikhail Gorbachev has financial problems of his own. According to intercepted intelligence, Gorbachev told Ortega not to count on the Soviet Union to bail him out. So Ortega is preparing a peace overture for Bush. He will promise to use his influence to restore peace in Central America and adopt democratic reforms if the United States will get off his back. It's an offer Bush can hardly refuse.

Mini-editorial

The Navy really knows how to shop for bargains. It bought half its supply of a particular helicopter part for the bargain basement price of $3.1. The value of the part was estimated at $54. That's the story doesn't stop there. The other half of the supply cost the Navy $3,474 each. Joe Isuzu would be proud.

'Remarkable progress' cuts smokers to 29% in the U.S.

By Deborah Mesce, The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Anti-smoking campaigns have been most successful in getting white men to put out their cigarettes, and a new government report calls for more efforts aimed at women, children, minorities and high school dropouts who are not quitting as quickly.

The annual report, issued by Surgeon General C. Everett Koop on the 25th anniversary of the government's first such report, says the proportion of American smokers has declined from 49 percent of the population in 1965 to 29 percent in 1987.

"These changes represent nothing less than a revolution in behavior," Koop said in the report. "It marks the remarkable progress of the past 25 years, we can dare to envision a smoke-free society."

However, he said, smokers are disproportionately found in groups that are harder to reach, and this disparity may increase over time. Greater effort and resources will need to be devoted to achieve equivalent reductions in smoking among those whose behavior has survived strong, counter-pressure.

The 700-page report documents changes in the 25 years since the surgeon general's initial declaration that cigarette smoking leads to cancer and other serious diseases.

The most significant shift has come among men — half of whom smoked in 1965, according to the report. By 1987, less than a third were lighting up.

Women smokers declined from 32 percent to 27 percent over the period, the report said.

The figures also show a slow decline among blacks, 43 percent to 24 percent, and virtually no change among those who never graduated from high school, 37 percent to 36 percent.

Among high school seniors, daily cigarette smoking dropped from 29 percent in 1976 to 21 percent in 1980 and then leveled off in the 15-21 percent range for the seven years after that.

Since 1977, prevalence of smoking among high school senior girls has been greater than that among boys of that age.

Among the other findings of the report: "The quit ratio" does not take into account the length of a quitter's abstinence.

Smoking is responsible for more than one of every six deaths in the United States and "remains the single most important preventable cause of death in our society."

Between 1964 and 1987, some 789,000 smoking-related deaths were avoided or postponed as a result of decisions to quit smoking or not to start, which the report attributes to the anti-smoking campaign.

Four-fifths of smokers born since 1935 started smoking before age 21, and the proportion of people who begin smoking during adolescence has been increasing, particularly among women.

Nearly 45 percent of American adults who ever smoked have quit, though the "quit ratio" does not take into account the length of a quitter's abstinence.

The number of legal restrictions on children's access to tobacco products has decreased over the past 24 years, and "verifier compliance" with minimum-age-of-purchase laws is the exception rather than the rule.

Better racial relations possible, says survey

WASHINGTON (AP) — A vast majority of Americans support programs to help the chronically unemployed, according to a survey released today by a civil rights group.

The NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund also said it found further erosion in opposition to busing to achieve school integration.

The survey demonstrates that the public is primed for presidential action and leadership on race relations issues, said Clarence Jones, deputy director-counsel of the fund.

The survey found that 93 percent of whites and 95 percent of blacks favored special school programs beginning at age 8 to motivate poor youngsters to stay in school and not drop out.

Ninety percent of whites and 95 percent of blacks favored federal youth corps camps where poor young people could learn to read and write and attain other skills. Similar majority attitudes support business incentives to provide jobs in poor neighborhoods.

Among blacks, 79 percent said the best long-term way to combat crime was not "to spend large sums of money sending criminals to prison and keeping them there a long time" but to "spend the money on education, causes of crime, such as reducing poverty, keeping young people in school and motivating young people to succeed rather than become criminals." Among whites, 61 percent agreed.

The civil rights group said the poll was taken June 3 through Sept. 12 by Louis Harris and Associates and based on interviews with more than 3,000 people. The report was unclear as to the margin of error.

Drug tests Farewell

A breakdown by industry found the highest rate of positive test results — about 20 percent — among employees in wholesale and retail trade.

That industry also had the highest rate of positive test results among job applicants, 17 percent for wholesale trade and 24 percent for the retail sector. The lowest rate of positive test results among employees was in transportation, 5.6 percent, a statistic influenced by mandatory testing in many sectors of the industry. Nearly 10 percent of applicants for transportation jobs tested positive for drugs, the study found.

The rate of positive test results among applicants was lowest, at 5.5 percent, in communications and public utilities. Nearly 9 percent of workers in the industries who were checked tested positive for drugs.

Mining, communications and public utilities, and transportation establishments were most likely to have drug-testing programs, partly because of regulatory requirements, the study said. Least likely to have testing programs were retail, service and construction establishments.

Size was by far the largest determining factor in whether an establishment had drug-testing programs and some of the largest employee assistance programs. Of the nation's largest establishments, those with 1,000 or more employees or more, 43 percent had drug testing and 76 percent offered counseling or some other form of assistance. But only about 2 percent of the smallest establishments, those with fewer than 50 workers, had testing programs and 9 percent had employee assistance programs.

Of establishments with employees assistance programs, 90 percent are management-sponsored and 10 percent are run by unions or jointly by union and management.

On the Board of Finance, Republican incumbent, Robert Campbell was endorsed by the town committee along with former member Morris Silverstein and newcomer Robert Neill. Manning said, incumbent Clayton Adams did not seek re-election, he said.

The former radio announcer, movie actor and after-dinner speaker came to the White House with more television-related experience than any of his predecessors. His 1964 television speech for Barry Goldwater helped catapult Reagan into two terms as governor of California, where he continued to sharpen his television skills as well as gaining experience in government.

In his first major televised speech from the Oval Office, he outlined his tax reduction program on July 27, 1981, using charts and a pointer to make his case that the administration plan was more fair than that proposed by Democrats in Congress. He ended, as he would so often, "Thank you, God bless you, and good night."

But his statement from the Oval Office on Nov. 13, 1986, that the arms sent to Iran "could easily fit into a single cargo plane" and did not constitute a swap of arms for hostages, failed to go over in Congress. Reagan later had to admit mistakes had been made.

Sometimes he had surprises up his sleeve. His speech on March 23, 1983, announcing that he was ordering a study of what came to be known as the Strategic Defense Initiative, or Star Wars, was news to many of his key advisers.

His speech on the Challenger explosion on Jan. 28, 1986, was one of his shrewdest, only 11 paragraphs, and is often cited as an example of Reagan at his best. Speaking only a few hours after the disaster, he told the families of the crew members, "They wished to serve, and they did."

Nothing ends here, our hopes and our journeys continue.

William Johnson, contacted Monday at the electric-sign-making business he owns at 229 Wetherell St., acknowledged he was leaving soon but declined further comment on the trip. The trip has attracted national media attention he has been reluctant to talk about it.

Douglas Johnson Sr. sees the trip as a positive humanitarian gesture. "The trip itself, them trying to help, I approve of that part of it," he said.

His biggest fear in regard to the trip is the lengthy plane ride; his son will fly about 8,000 miles, round trip. "I've mentioned it to him quite a few times," the elder Johnson said, about the distance involved with the trip.

William's stepmother, Katherine Johnson, also very supportive of her stepson's venture. "As long as he wants to go I think he should," she said. "I think he would really enjoy going back. It will be a good experience for him, to see how things have changed and to help children."

Keeney memorial requested

"We'll never replace his knowledge," Fogarty said.
Water and Sewer Administrator Robert Young and other department employees on Monday also praised Keeney for his dedication to his work. Many co-workers attended Tuesday's funeral for the couple.

The cause of the head-on collision on Route 83 in Vernon Friday, which also injured one Manchester resident, is still under investigation, Vernon police Lt. Brian Smith said today. The Keeneys were not wearing seat belts, he said.

Keeney, 54, and his wife, 58, who lived at 48 Ferguson Road, were pronounced dead at the scene, police said. Their car had collided with a minivan driven by Jason Ligos, 26, of 16 Orchard St., Manchester.

Ligos, who was wearing a seat belt, was listed in stable condition at Hartford Hospital today, a hospital spokeswoman said.

What began as a laughter ended in a victory which will be dearly savored by the Manchester Indians in their Central Connecticut Conference East Division opener.

Visiting Rockville High, under first-year Coach John Reiser, a 1979 Manchester High graduate gallantly rallied from a 19-point deficit in the second quarter and sent the game into overtime, where the Indians finally prevailed, 65-64, Tuesday night at Clarke Arena.

Manchester evened its record at 3-3 and will be at Fernald High in Enfield for a CCC East clash Friday night at 7:30. Rockville falls to 1-1 in the league and 1-6 overall.

When senior Calvin Meggett (20 points) followed up a missed shot by Junior Erik Johnson giving Manchester its largest victory since game at 29-10 with 5:24 left in the second quarter, it appeared Rockville would turn the ball over eight times during the first quarter and shot 4-for-14 from the field.

Two free throws by Ram junior Chris Coleman (10 points) cut the deficit to 13 in the second period but Manchester led at halftime, 39-24.

The Rams effectively broke Manchester's pressure in the third quarter and outscored Manchester, 15-6, to trim the lead to six (45-39) after a free throw by junior Gilbert Eddy (team-high 18 points) a transfer from the Virgin Islands, Manchester led, 51-42, after three quarters.

Reagan's budget would mean loss of $150 million in Connecticut aid

BRIDGEPORT (AP) — Connecticut would be eligible for more money for educational, nutrition and drug education programs, but stands to lose more than $150 million in other federal aid, according to state officials' analysis of President Reagan's proposed $1.15 trillion budget.

In a report released Tuesday, Gov. William A. O'Neill's Washington, D.C. office said cuts in many programs would be the result of the proposed budget. Reagan's plan for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1 is just a blueprint for Congress and President-elect Bush.

"This is just a starting point," said Ann L. Sullivan, director of the state's Washington office. "We have a long, very involved, detailed process to go through." Connecticut would be eligible for $3.5 million more for education grants, $1 million more for the Women, Infants and Children program, and nearly $100 million more for drug education activities, under the Reagan plan.

Those gains are, however, more than offset by losses that could be sustained. Reagan's recommendations include the following changes: cutting funds to the low-income home energy assistance program by 20 percent. Connecticut would lose $24 million during the 1990 fiscal year. It now gets $29 million in federal funds for the program, down by 10 percent from last year.

eliminating mass-transit operating subsidies to cities. Connecticut funnels about $13.4 million to urban areas for mass transit, but James F. Byrne, Connecticut's deputy transportation commissioner, said Bridgeport and other cities would be insulated from the cut, if it is adopted.

terminating competitive grants for mass transportation. Connecticut received $51 million in the current year for the New York State program, but would lose $24 million under this program.

reducing federal aid for school breakfast and lunch programs and other child nutrition services by 15 percent. Connecticut would lose about $4.6 million.

Manchester needs OT to top pesky Rockville

UConn a no-show against St. John's

NEW YORK (AP) — It was not the best of performances for the University of Connecticut as Jayson Williams scored 18 points and grabbed 14 rebounds and St. John's started the second half with a 14-5 run Tuesday night as the Redmen beat the Huskies, 71-63, in a Big East basketball game.

St. John's played for the second game without starting freshman center Robert Wordman, who is nursing a sore right calf, and the Redmen won for the second time without him.

The Redmen, 9-4 overall and 2-2 in the conference, led just 32-30 at halftime. The decisive run was played by a tap-in by Williams with 13:15 to play and gave St. John's a 46-33 lead.

Freshman Malik Sealy added 17 points for St. John's, while another freshman, Billy Singleton, had 16, 14 in the second half, and Matt Brust 13.

The largest lead the Redmen would enjoy was 12 points, the last time at 61-49 with 4:18 to play. The Huskies, 8-3 and 1-2, got within 63-59 with 2:19 to play on a long jumper by John Gwynn, who scored all 13 of his points in the game's final five minutes. But St. John's was able to avoid Connecticut's pressure in the final minutes for easy layups and dunks.

"St. John's showed up with Big East intensity," UConn Coach Jim Calhoun said. "They showed up prepared to win a basketball game. We showed up prepared to play a game — maybe. The intensity they showed on defense in just coming after us, I think is the kind of intensity you need to win in this league."

Center Cliff Robinson led Connecticut with 22 points before fouling out with 5:29 to play, while Murray Williams added 13.

UConn, which counts on its defense and rebounding to win games, did neither well against the Redmen. "We've got to take it to the next level," Calhoun said. "What will it take? 'I don't know, maybe a stick of dynamite.' Calhoun answered.

This is the 17th consecutive win for St. John's over UConn, who have never won at Alumni Hall. St. John's outscored the Huskies 57-34.

Matters don't get any easier for Connecticut. They visit Seton Hall Saturday night at the Meadowlands before returning home to face Syracuse at the Hartford Civic Center on Sunday. They'll then road again for a Jan. 21 date with Georgetown at the Capital Centre in Landover Md.

REACHING OUT — Manchester's Cory Goldston reaches for the basketball in front of Rockville's Dave Harnock during Tuesday night's CCC East Division clash at Clarke Arena. The Indians had to go into overtime before subduing the Rams, 65-64.

'Bandit' can't stop a Whaler victory

WINNIPEG, Manitoba (AP) — The Bandit is back. Daniel Berthiaume, whose nickname is the Bandit, made his season debut with the Winnipeg Jets after spending the first half of the campaign either playing in Moncton, or not at all.

Unfortunately for the 22-year-old goaltender, his first start was a 2-1 loss Tuesday at the hands of the visiting Hartford Whalers.

Although he suffered the loss, Berthiaume played an excellent game against rookie Peter Sidorkiewicz in a battle of goaltenders.

"I feel pretty strong, but it's been a long time that I didn't play," Berthiaume said. "It was just challenging the shooter all the time."

Berthiaume was assigned to the Jets' American Hockey League farm team at the start of the season, but he refused to accept the demotion and was suspended by the club.

Eventually, he reported to the Hawks, but left the team upset that the Jets weren't ready to recall him and was suspended again.

Yanks send Rhoden to Houston Astros

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees traded right-hander Rick Rhoden Tuesday to the Houston Astros for three minor leaguers.

Rhoden was 12-12 in 30 starts with the Yankees in 1988 with a 4.20 earned-run average. He led the Yankees in starts and innings pitched and finished second on the team in complete games and strikeouts.

He has a lifetime record of 149-119. Rhoden was acquired by the Yankees from Pittsburgh in November 1986 along with pitchers Cecilio Guante and Pat Clements for pitchers

Doug Drabek, Brian Fisher and Logan Eastes. In 1988, Fisher led Tucson in 18 homers in his first season on the Class AAA level. Fisher has been assigned to the Yankees' 40-man roster while DeLeon and Hoak have been assigned to the Yankees' Class AA Albany roster. In 19 games with the Astros in 1988, Fisher had six hits in 19 at-bats with one home run.

DeLeon pitched in 23 games at Class A Ocala in 1988 with a 14-5 record and a 2.44 earned-run average. Hoak was 7-5 in 25 starts at Class A Asheville with a 4.04 ERA.

Rhoden, who made $90,000 last season, has also pitched for Los Angeles before being traded to the Pirates in April 1979 for Jerry Reuss.

Super Bowl matches top offenses

By Dave Carpenter
The Associated Press
SANTA CLARA, Calif. — It would have been a Saturday Night Live joke, according to San Francisco coach Bill Walsh, to suggest at midseason that Cincinnati and the 49ers would play in the Super Bowl.

Walsh's laughing now, especially the fans in Buffalo and Chicago. The Jan. 22 playoff game only turned out that way: it will pit the league's top two offenses, as you could find in the NFL this year.

Walsh told a large contingent of local and national reporters in San Francisco that Cincinnati and the 49ers would play in the Super Bowl.

Walsh called it "very creative but was cautious when asked whether he'd resort to the same fake-injury tactics Seattle used to slow it down in a Dec. 31 playoff game."

"We'll do whatever we have to do," he said. With the players off to Tuesday, 49ers coaches met to devise a game plan and review film of the 1982 Super Bowl. Quick huddles were also expected to be a topic, both in terms of strategy and the rules.

"We have to research it," Walsh said when asked whether he thinks it complies with the rules. "We do feel that in playing a game like this, it should be well within the spirit of the rules as well as the rules themselves. We're not looking to try to pass

FOOD

Microwave ruby fruit compote

One 8-ounce can whole cranberry sauce
2 tablespoons honey
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon

1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
3 fresh pears, pared, cored and quartered
2 medium oranges, peeled, sliced, and slices halved
1/4 cup seedless green grapes, halved

In a microwave-safe 1 1/2-quart casserole combine cranberry sauce, honey, lemon juice, cinnamon and ginger. Cook, covered, on 100 percent power (high) for 2 to 4 minutes or until boiling. Add pears, stirring gently to coat with cranberry mixture. Cook, covered, on high for 3 to 5 minutes or until pears are tender, stirring once. Add oranges and grapes. Cook, covered, for 1 to 1 1/2 minutes or until heated through. Spoon into sherbet dishes or compote. Serve warm or chilled. Makes 6 servings.

Nutrition information per serving: 111 cal., 1 g pro., 39 g carb., 0 g fat, 0 mg chol., 12 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 36 percent vit. C.

Orange-barbecued turkey

4 turkey breast tenderloin steaks, cut 1/2 to 3/4 inch thick (about 1 pound total)
1 teaspoon finely shredded orange peel
1/2 cup orange juice
1 tablespoon finely shredded orange peel

1 tablespoon cooking oil
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1/4 teaspoon lemon pepper
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder

Place the turkey steaks in a shallow dish. For the marinade, in a small bowl combine orange peel, orange juice, oil, Worcestershire, lemon pepper and garlic powder. Pour over turkey steaks; turn the steaks to coat with marinade. Let the turkey steaks stand at room temperature for 30 minutes.
Drain the turkey steaks well, reserving the marinade. Grill the turkey steaks over medium coals for 6 to 7 minutes on each side or until no pink remains. Brush frequently with marinade. Makes 4 servings.

Brussels sprouts Italian

One 10-ounce package (2 cups) frozen brussels sprouts
1 medium onion, cut into 12 wedges
2 tablespoons Italian salad dressing
1/2 cup cherry tomatoes, halved

Hold frozen brussels sprouts under cold running water to separate. Cut large sprouts in half. In a 1-quart casserole combine sprouts, onion wedges and salad dressing. Cook, covered, on 100 percent power (high) for 8 to 10 minutes or until tender, stirring once. Stir in cherry tomato halves. Cook, covered, on high for 20 to 30 seconds more or until tomatoes are heated through. Makes 4 servings.

Microwave spicy squash

1 pound of banana squash or butternut squash, peeled and cut into 1/2-inch cubes
2 tablespoons water
1/4 cup finely chopped onion

1 clove garlic, minced
1 tablespoon margarine or butter
1/4 cup salsa
1/4 cup shredded Cheddar cheese (3 ounces)
1/4 teaspoon pepper

In a microwave-safe 1 1/2-quart casserole combine squash cubes and water. Cook, covered, on 100 percent power (high) for 6 to 8 minutes or until tender, stirring once. Drain. In the casserole cook onion, garlic and margarine, uncovered, on high for 1 to 2 minutes or until onion is tender.
Stir salsa, half the cheese and pepper into onion mixture. Gently fold in squash. Cook, uncovered, on high for 2 to 3 minutes or until heated through. Top with remaining cheese. Let stand, covered, for 1 to 2 minutes or until cheese is melted. Makes 4 servings.

Nutrition information per serving: 141 cal., 5 g pro., 15 g carb., 8 g fat, 13 mg chol., 221 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 10 percent vit. A, 26 percent vit. C, 10 percent calcium, 16 percent phosphorus.

Saucy succotash

One 10-ounce package frozen baby lima beans
One 10-ounce package frozen whole kernel corn
1/4 cup plain low-fat yogurt
2 teaspoons cornstarch

One 4-ounce can chopped green chili peppers, drained
1/4 cup skim milk
Several dashes bottled hot pepper sauce
1/4 cup snipped parsley

In a large saucepan cook beans and corn according to package directions for the beans except omit salt. Drain and return to saucepan. Combine yogurt and cornstarch. Stir in chili peppers, milk and hot pepper sauce. Stir into bean mixture. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Cook and stir 2 minutes more. Stir in parsley. Makes 8 servings.

Wishing cookies

3/4 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 cup margarine or butter

1/4 cups sugar
1 egg
2 tablespoons molasses
1 tablespoon water
1/4 teaspoon finely shredded orange or lemon peel
Lace icing (recipe follows)

Stir together flour, baking soda, cinnamon, ginger and nutmeg. In a large mixer bowl beat margarine until softened. Add sugar and beat until fluffy. Add egg, molasses, water and peel. Beat well. Gradually add flour mixture, beating until well mixed. Cover and chill about 2 hours or until easy to handle.
On lightly floured surface roll dough 1/4-inch thick. Cut with cookie cutters. Place on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake in a 375-degree F oven about 8 minutes or until done. Remove and cool. With a decorating bag and writing tip, pipe on a design with Lace Icing. Makes about 100.

Lace Icing: Stir together 2 cups sifted powdered sugar, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla and enough light cream or milk (about 2 tablespoons) to make icing of piping consistency.

Nutrition information per cookie: 55 cal., 1 g pro., 8 g carb., 2 g fat, 3 mg chol., 23 mg sodium.

Tips on achieving browned foods

One of the questions most frequently asked by microwave owners and those contemplating the purchase of a microwave is, "How are foods browned when prepared in a microwave?"

Browning is a technique of preparation, and not a function of the microwave. There are many simple procedures which a microwave cook can use to achieve that lovely browned appearance on the food prepared in a microwave. In conventional cooking, browning occurs because of a high outside heat source which sears the surface of the center cooks. In microwave cooking, the only heat is inside the food itself. Roasts and whole chickens or turkeys will brown to a certain degree, but smaller cuts of meat or chicken pieces are cooked so quickly that the fat does not have time to brown.

When browning is desired, it can be achieved in three ways: by pre-searing the meat in a frying pan conventionally, and finishing quickly in a microwave; by using a browning agent or sauce; by using a microwave browning dish or grill.

Pre-searing is the same method used to brown a pot roast or chicken pieces before moist heat cooking by conventional procedures. A large Dutch oven or frying pan is used. Fat is put into the heated pan, the meat is coated with flour and seared until brown on the outside, then transferred to the microwave for complete cooking.

Microwave browning agents are available at local markets in both powdered and liquid forms. Other browning agents such as Kitchen Bouquet or Gravy Master, when diluted with water or combined with melted butter, may be brushed onto the surface of the meat. Melted butter and paprika make an excellent browning agent for poultry. Worcestershire sauce, soy or teriyaki sauce can also be used as browning agents for meats or poultry.

The third method for browning is the use of a microwave browning grill. Browning grills come in various sizes to fit different size microwaves. Several different types are available in local stores. Browning grills are made from a ceramic material with a metal oxide under the glaze on the bottom side of the grill or casserole. The microwave energy is attracted to the metal, which becomes very hot. Browning grills reach a temperature of 300 degrees F. to 600 degrees F. When foods are placed on the surface of the grills, browning occurs. Browning grills must be pre-heated. The amount of time required for pre-heating is determined by the type of food to be browned. Steaks, chops, and hamburgers can be beautifully browned on a browning grill. Be sure to read and follow the manufacturer's directions for use and care of the browning grill or casserole.

The following recipes are designed to be used with a browning grill or browning casserole.

Hamburger and french fries

1/2 pound ground beef
Salt and pepper
1 onion slice, cut about 1/4-inch thick
1 cup frozen french fries
1 hamburger bun, split and buttered

Preheat microwave browning grill for 8 minutes at high. Season ground beef with salt and pepper. Shape into patty, about 1/4-inch thick. Place meat patty and onion slice at one end of preheated grill. Place potatoes in a single layer on remaining grill surface. Microwave for about 3 minutes on high power. Turn patty, onion slice and potatoes. Move potatoes to one side so bun can be placed cut-side-down on grill. Microwave for 1/2 to 1 minute on high, or until desired doneness. Makes 1 serving.

Sweet and sour chicken

1 pound boneless chicken breast, cut into bite-sized pieces
2 tablespoons peanut oil
2 cups bite-size broccoli pieces
4 green onions, cut into 1-inch pieces
1 cup carrots, cut into 1/2-inch slices

Ready-to-bake cookies, brownies good

Supermarket Sampler

NESTLE'S TOLL HOUSE READY-TO-BAKE COOKIES AND BROWNIES. Chocolate chip, chocolate chip with nuts, double chocolate chip, oatmeal raisin cookies, and double chocolate chip brownies. $2.99 a 14-1-oz. box of frozen cookie dough or tray of frozen brownie batter.

BONNIE: Here are some convenience products I really like — with only a few reservations. Basically, these cookies and brownies are made from all natural ingredients. They're just like you might make at home, except for the fat.

I use butter, not partially hydrogenated soybean oil. Neither fat is a winner when it comes to blood cholesterol. Butter is high in cholesterol and partially hydrogenated fats are thought to raise blood cholesterol because they are saturated. I'd choose butter since it has a better flavor.

I also object to the use of the questionable additive BHA in the chocolate chip cookies with the nuts.

But if you have no major problems with calories or cholesterol and can afford the price tag, I'd recommend keeping these frozen for a quick and good-tasting snack.

refried beans — and others sold in supermarkets are full of sodium and highly saturated fat, they're not bad for occasional consumption. That's because they are an excellent source of fiber and a good source of vegetable protein and iron.

But if you plan to eat them often, it would be better to make them from scratch, using a smidgen of salt and some polyunsaturated oil instead of lard.

Bonnie Tandy Leblang is a registered dietitian. Carolyn Wyman is a junk food fanatic.

FOCUS/Advice

Teen makes judgment, retreats in style

DEAR ABBY: I've read, seen and heard many instances of the rudeness of the younger generation, but I'd like to relate an incident that restored my faith in young adults.

My teen-age daughter was very proud of her new leather "bomber" jacket she had bought with the money she had saved from baby sitting. While standing in the lunch line, she was approached by a high school senior who had spied the jacket. He had bought one just like it for his girlfriend — and her jacket was missing.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

He proceeded to question my daughter about the jacket she was wearing and eventually accused her of stealing his girlfriend's jacket. Only when my daughter was in tears in front of the packed lunchroom did the girlfriend appear wearing her "missing" jacket.

The senior of course apologized to my daughter and put them in the names of my grandchildren and let them use the proceeds for tax-free tuition?

A giant new tax break has just come on the scene that will probably slip by virtually unnoticed because it involves the extremely familiar E.E. U.S. Savings Bonds.

These bonds have now been made much more attractive to tens of millions of us. In brief, you can convert the taxable interest on the bonds into completely tax-free interest — thereby making an ordinary investment an extraordinary one.

Under a new tax-law provision, you can buy EE Bonds, let the interest on them accumulate, and then instead of cashing them in, you can use the money to pay such qualified education costs as tuition.

do you do with a 28-year-old man who rarely shows, never washes his hair and doesn't own a toothbrush?

You replied: A lady asked, "Nothing." Well I was married to a man just like that for 40 years. He was a good provider and a gentle person in all his actions. Even though I hinted often and spoke negatively about other men who never cleaned themselves up, he never got the hint, so I also tried to do "nothing."

DEAR TOO LATE: If your husband is still alive, I may not be too late. Get "Love and Sex After 60" (Harper and Row) by Dr. Robert N. Butler, former head of the National Institute on Aging (and Pulitzer Prize recipient for his book, "Why Survive: Growing Old in America"). But all the books in the world will not help you unless you look your man straight in the eye and tell him the truth: "I love you, but I can't make love with a clothpin on my nose."

INFORMAL DISCUSSION — Vice President-elect Dan Quayle talks with President-elect George Bush in the parking lot of the Old Executive Office Building in Washington Tuesday. Quayle was holding a conversation with Richard Armitage, assistant secretary of international security affairs, when Bush happened by en route to another appointment.

Quayle gets vacation pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dan Quayle asked the Republican National Committee to help pay the expenses of a family Christmas vacation in Vail, Colo., but a spokesman for the vice president-elect says the amount submitted was well below the $85,000 mentioned in a published report.

David Beckwith, Quayle's spokesman, said Tuesday evening that Quayle should receive $15,000 from the RNC. The Washington Post reported in today's editions that Quayle's office wanted as much as $85,000 and was granted $25,000.

"He never asked for a specific amount," said Beckwith. "The RNC came up with $25,000." But Beckwith said an unidentified aide planning the Vail trip had estimated the cost at $65,000, including a charter airplane, hotel and other expenses of the Quayle family, advance men, personal aides and others.

Starr to debut on PBS

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Beate Ringer Starr trades his yellow submarine for a blue train conductor's hat in a new children's television program.

"Shining Time Station" makes its debut on PBS later this month. To promote the program, Starr arrived here Tuesday on a train from Chicago with his wife, Barbara Bach, and his co-stars Brian O'Connell and Nicole Leitch.

In the program, Starr plays a 16-inch-tall conductor who narrates the train tales. "It's great to be 18 inches tall again," the full-sized Starr told reporters in Chicago on Monday as they watched a video version of his character, Mr. Conductor.

Fox signs new contract

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Family Ties" TV star Michael J. Fox has signed a multiyear contract to develop, produce and star in movie and TV projects for Paramount Pictures Corp., the studio said Tuesday.

Terms of the contract announced Tuesday weren't disclosed.

Michael is widely recognized as one of the industry's most dynamic and accomplished young actors and we have enormous faith in his potential as he enters a new phase of his already established and successful career, said Frank Mancuso, Paramount chairman and chief executive officer.

Akhito chooses clothes

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's new emperor, Akihito, likes to eat curry, choose his own clothes and wants to learn as much as possible about his countrymen, a newspaper reported today.

Asahi Shimbun said an imperial aide, answering written questions the nationwide newspaper submitted when Akihito was still crown prince, said the emperor also likes to watch news programs on television and reads newspapers before and after meals.

In response to the question of how he would share the pains and pleasure of the people, the aide wrote, "He appears set to know as much as possible about the people's livelihood and think of their troubles and joy."

Rink center for campaign

NEW YORK (AP) — First lady Nancy Reagan and Olympic skaters Brian Boitano and Joji Starbuck helped wage an anti-drug campaign with an international flavor at the Rockefeller Center skating rink.

The first lady on Tuesday told the group of 50 children, some from the United Nations International School, that they should feel good about themselves, "not just because you're standing on skates. Feel good because you've chosen to say no to drugs and alcohol."

Mary Lou Retton files suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former teen-age Olympic star Mary Lou Retton filed a two-bowling industry groups to court in a contract dispute related to the fact that she's not a kid anymore.

The gymnast and her family are suing the two trade groups in U.S. District Court for $200,000, alleging the organizations unfairly ended a four-year promotional agreement that began in 1985.

Last June, the trade groups notified Retton and her family that the agreement was being halted, the suit says, "on the ground that Mary Lou Retton, due to changes in her physical image caused by her maturing, was no longer a suitable spokesperson." The court papers did not elaborate.

Little-known rule can make savings-bond interest tax free

A giant new tax break has just come on the scene that will probably slip by virtually unnoticed because it involves the extremely familiar E.E. U.S. Savings Bonds.

These bonds have now been made much more attractive to tens of millions of us. In brief, you can convert the taxable interest on the bonds into completely tax-free interest — thereby making an ordinary investment an extraordinary one.

Under a new tax-law provision, you can buy EE Bonds, let the interest on them accumulate, and then instead of cashing them in, you can use the money to pay such qualified education costs as tuition.

In this way you have converted completely taxable interest into completely tax-free interest. Here's why: Under a little-noted part of the newest tax law, this interest can be treated as tax-free.

How do you cash in on this break and avoid the pitfalls? According to Eli J. Warach, chief financial consultant for Prentice Hall Professional Newsletters, taking advantage of the new tax break depends on your family situation, buying the bonds at the right time and using them in the right way.

Symptoms many for bladder woe

DEAR DR. GOTT: What are the symptoms of a dropped bladder?

DEAR READER: Prolapsed (dropped) bladder is a common condition in women as they age, especially if they have had multiple pregnancies. When this disorder arises, the bladder sags downward, causing a woman to lose her urine when she strains, coughs or sneezes. This is called stress incontinence and can be quite bothersome.

Occasionally, if the prolapse is severe enough, the bladder can actually protrude from the vagina. Many women put up with bladder prolapse because surgery is the only permanent cure. In this procedure, the bladder is re-suspended in a more normal position higher in the pelvis; usually, for technical reasons, the uterus is removed, too, but this is not essential.

Women for whom surgery is not an option can sometimes be helped by using a pessary, a plastic or rubber supporting ring that is placed in the vagina to hold up the bladder and the neighboring uterus. Some women who have mild bladder prolapse and experience minor incontinence are satisfied simply to wear pads.

Also, women with this condition are more susceptible to repeated urinary tract infection.

For more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Bladder and Urinary Tract Infections." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1, with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44181-3699. Be sure to mention the title.

Are time shares worth it?

DEAR PRUDENCE: I recently attended a time-share presentation in one of the warmer areas of our country — certainly warmer than it is here in Rochester. I think that you are absolutely wrong when you say all those bad things about time shares. I bought two weeks work and it only cost me $15,000. My annual fee is just $16 a week, and I can use my time share for two weeks a year as long as I live. With the high cost of hotels and motels, I think I have the bargain of a lifetime, and I really resent the fact that you are key saying that anyone who buys these things is a dummy.

I'm no dummy and I just bought one. I'm very very happy that I did, as are my wife and kids. We're all looking forward to going down to the sun and the beach in the worst weather. I think that you owe an apology to all of us who are smarter than you are when it comes to issues of this kind.

I would hope that your man enough to say that you've made a mistake.

QUESTION: A co-worker and I can't agree on the difference between discover and invent. What is the difference?

ANSWER: Invent creates something new, whereas discover finds something that already exists but has been unknown. (Now stop fighting with your co-worker and invent some work before your boss discovers how you spend your time.)

Storm brings slippery start for area motorists

By Moureen Leavitt Manchester Herald. Sleet and freezing rain created havoc for motorists today and local state authorities were urging drivers to use caution. As of 9:30 a.m., Manchester police reported two weather-related accidents with no injuries but several more were reported later in the morning.

The National Weather Service at Bradley International Airport reported a temperature of 22 degrees at 8 a.m. Frozen rain began falling in the Manchester area around 8:30 a.m. because ground temperatures were well below freezing but Manchester and Bolton canceled afternoon kindergarten sessions. Schools in New Britain and West Hartford closed today to avoid the predicted hazardous conditions.

A real 'handy man' leaves town service

By Moureen Leavitt Manchester Herald. After spending half his life working for the town of Manchester, Herman Passantelli has watched this "quiet little town" turn into a little city. "I can remember walking up the street and eight out of 10 people you knew well enough to at least nod your head," Passantelli said Wednesday. "It's not that little quiet town."

REMEMBER WHEN — Barbara Weinberg, a member of the Board of Directors, laughs as she reminisces with Herman Passantelli, 64, head of the town maintenance department, who has been with the town for 32 years. He will retire March 1.

Six found alive in quake rubble

MOSCOW (AP) — Six people who survived on canned vegetables, fruit and pickles for 35 days after the Armenian earthquake were pulled alive from the rubble of an apartment building in Leninakan, Tass reported today. The survivors were rescued Wednesday, Tass said, the 30th day after the Dec. 7 earthquake that killed an estimated 25,000 people in northwest Armenia.

The six men were found under the rubble in the basement of a nine-story apartment building which had collapsed on them, the official Soviet news agency said in a report from Yerevan, the capital of Armenia. They survived because there was plenty of canned food stored in the basement, Tass said. All were hospitalized in Yerevan but none are in danger, doctors told the news agency. Officials had ended the search for survivors weeks ago. One of the six, Alkazar Akopyan, had medical training and administered massages to the other two survivors said one of the men, Karim Sarkisyan, had a broken arm, but there were no immediate details on

Corruption charges killed in Enfield case

By Nancy Concelman Manchester Herald. Bribery and conspiracy charges against Manchester developer Neil H. Ellis and Leonard Seader were dismissed Wednesday by a Hartford Superior Court judge, who said the state failed to charge the two within the five-year statute of limitations. Superior Court Judge Barry R. Schaller said in his ruling that a five-year statute of limitations expired before Ellis and Seader were arrested in December 1986 and charged with conspiring to bribe the former chairman of the Enfield Planning and Zoning Commission. Ellis, president of First Hartford Realty Corp. of 685 Parker St. and co-owner of the Journal Inquirer newspaper, refused to comment on the decision today, saying he hadn't talked to his attorney, Jacob D. Zeldes of Bridgeport. Zeldes could not be reached for comment this morning. "He's advised me not to speak (publicly) from the beginning," Ellis said. Hubert Santos, the Hartford attorney representing Seader, also refused to comment this morning. Seader, vice president of First Hartford Realty and former chairman of the Board of Education, is on vacation until Monday and could not be reached for comment, according to a person who answered the telephone at First Hartford Realty this morning.
