"It is better to be hated for what you are than loved for what you are not." — Andre Gide

Police Roundup

Probe of burglary brings drug arrest

The investigation of a burglary in January led Thursday to the arrest of the break-in victim Thursday on charges he has been operating a drug factory at the home.

Richard Smith, 26, of 80 Devon Drive, was charged with possession of cocaine, possession of marijuana, operating a drug factory, and possession of drug paraphernalia, police said.

In addition, Daniel Shea, 27, of 57 Boulder Road, who was at the Devon Drive home when police began a search there Thursday night, was charged with possession of cocaine, possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia, police said.

According to reports, police began watching Smith's residence after they investigated the burglary he reported in January and noticed suspicious activity, including heavy, short-term traffic in the area, and drug-related items in his garbage.

Smith was released on a $5,000 surety bond while Shea was released on a $1,000 non-surety bond, police said.

Both men are scheduled to appear in Manchester Superior Court March 15.

Driver is charged

Police have charged a Manchester woman in connection with an accident last month at the Senior Citizens' Center that seriously injured a 67-year-old local man, police said.

RoseMarie J. Pierre, 64, of 128 Maple St., was charged with reckless driving in the accident which killed Lois F. Churlis between Pierre's car and her own Feb. 28, police said.

Churlis was walking with her husband, John, 71, in a parking lot at the rear of the center at 548 E. Middle Turnpike when she was struck by a Toyota Corolla driven by Pierre, police said.

Churlis was taken by Life Star Helicopter to Hartford Hospital with severe leg injuries. She is listed in stable condition, according to a hospital spokeswoman.

Before hitting Churlis, Pierre's car hit a car that was trying to make a left turn into the center's driveway, police said. Pierre decided to enter the lot and park before exchanging insurance information with the driver of the other car, police said.

Single-step renovation plan is favored for Cheney Hall

Architects for the restoration of historic Cheney Hall have been told by a committee from the Cheney Hall Foundation to proceed with plans for the complete renovation in a single step.

Work on the plans had been delayed while the foundation was trying to determine whether it should do all the work in one contract or divide it into phases.

It might be possible to seek bids on the job by mid-June, according to Edward J. Breen, an architect with Malmfield Associates of Glastonbury, which is designing the restoration.

The current estimate for completing the work is just under $1.67 million, including architectural and engineering fees. But the building committee of the foundation hopes to reduce that figure by eliminating some work.

Lockers and some partitions from theatrical dressing rooms in the basement of the hall were eliminated.

Fred Blish, a foundation member and a member of the Little Theatre of Manchester, suggested that some savings might be made in the cost of theatrical lighting because LTM already owns some lights.

When the hall is renovated, LTM will manage the hall and will stage its own performances there.

Committee members will meet March 23 with the mechanical engineers for the project. Bemis and Sigala of Hartford, to discuss stage lighting and other electrical and mechanical plans in a further effort to see if savings can be made.

Before the committee meeting in the Municipal Building, the Cheney Hall Foundation met at the Probate Court.

Donald Kuehl, vice chairman of the foundation, reported on a procedural change affecting state grants for the restoration. Historical Commission. From now on, Kuehl said, money from the grants will be paid in monthly installments and the foundation will be able to write checks against those funds to pay bills for the restoration.

Board rules 'no conflict,' but second vote is needed

The Ethics Commission voted on a conflict-of-interest case Thursday and then discovered it didn't have enough members present to make the ruling official.

The case involves engineer William O'Neill, a member of the Advisory Park and Recreation Commission and of a citizens' committee studying the Hockanum River Linear Park.

O'Neill asked for an opinion from the commission when the town decided to seek proposals from consulting firms for professional services in planning park improvements.

The commission voted 4-1 that O'Neill's firm could submit park proposals without him resigning from his position on the advisory commission or the citizens' committee studying the river park.

O'Neill must abstain from voting or acting with those groups when they discuss the park project.

After the vote, Ethics Commission member Jonathan Mercer discovered that commission rules require an affirmative vote of five members. Members Diane Connolly and Robert Franklin were not at the meeting at the Probate Court. The other members decided to continue the discussion until the absent members could hear the discussion.

In the meantime, the commission members said it would not be inappropriate if O'Neill submitted improvement proposals.

"He's perfectly safe in bidding. We have no formal opinion of the Ethics Commission," commission Chairman William FitzGerald said today.

However, if the commission officially voted that O'Neill would be in conflict of interest, commission members said he would have to resign from both the advisory and citizens' panels.

The commission will schedule another hearing on the case when the missing members are available, FitzGerald said.

O'Neill has said he has not been involved in the discussions by the citizens' committee over what should be done with the site.

City Council member M. Adler Dobkin said he felt O'Neill should not be disqualified, because of his expertise and knowledge of the river.

"The hours devoted to the town far outweigh the savings that would come from this," FitzGerald said.

Commission member Sol Cohen disagreed. He said he would agree that there was at least the appearance of a conflict of interest, and they wanted the commissioners to take part in the discussion.

Kraatz has asked for the commission's opinion because he has been contracted by the Manchester Mental Health Team to research housing for people with severe and prolonged mental illness.

In his role as health director, Kraatz works with all the mental health providers that serve Manchester. He said those organizations are aware of his role and have raised no concerns.

Before the commission met again, FitzGerald suggested that Kraatz do the work. The town has spent good money on Mr. Lawrence's Weiss said Tuesday.

Weiss said Lawrence would probably be able to complete needed information on proposals by the citizens' committee in two to three months because the firm has information from previous research.

"He's (Weiss) trying to dictate," Werkhoven said. Werkhoven argued that the probate court be offered to different architects in town, specifically those with experience renovating vintage buildings as recommended by the citizens' committee. He said committee member Eugene Sielakowski agrees.

"This is not a town with one architect," Werkhoven said. "Other architects should be involved."

Weiss said the time factor was important because the town hopes to have a proposal for a referendum ready by the November election.

Werkhoven said he agrees it's a referendum ready by the project, but the architect selection should be done properly. "We're always on the fast track and we should get off of it," Werkhoven said.

Three fly to seminar

The National Guard almost came to Manchester High School Thursday. The Guard was scheduled to give two teachers and an administrator a helicopter ride to a Guard seminar in Niantic, said Assistant Principal Barbara Quinby. But the ride was canceled after school officials learned that the Guard is not allowed to transport civilians unless the flight originates from a military station, she said.

The three, William DiYeso, assistant director of the Youth Services Bureau, Richard Ferranti, a cooperative education teacher, and Betty Johnson, a mathematics and computers teacher, instead took the helicopter ride today from a qualified site, Brainard Airport in Hartford.

Editor claims threat

TRUMBULL (AP) — A newspaper editor is alleging that a Milford school board member, upset over a column he wrote, threatened to shoot him if he wrote any more critical articles.

Christopher J. Carroll, 32, has filed a complaint with Trumbull police over the alleged threat by James T. Rose, police confirmed Thursday. He also asked the Milford Board of Education to censure Rose or ask him to resign.

Carroll said the threat was made over the telephone and came after he had written a column Feb. 2 in the Milford Mirror that speculated on Milford school candidates.

The Milford Mirror is one of eight weekly newspapers published by Homestead Publications, whose offices are in Trumbull. Carroll is executive editor.

Art fake, suit says

MYSTIC (AP) — The owner of an Arizona art gallery is suing a Mystic auction house after he paid more than $16,000 for a painting he thought was done by N.C. Wyeth and later discovered was a fake.

According to documents filed in New London Superior Court, Stuart Johnson of Tucson, Ariz., bought the painting from Mystic Fine Arts, Inc., in February 1988 that the auction house had "represented" as having been painted by N.C. Wyeth.

Wyeth, an American artist, was the father of famed painter Andrew Wyeth. Johnson, who bought the painting for his Settlers West Gallery, filed suit against both the auction house and one of its principals, Albert E. Goring, of Mystic.

Johnson said he had not seen the painting of a cowboy on a bucking horse, but bid over the telephone when he thought it for $16,610 in an auction.

Homeless fight ruling

OLD SAYBROOK (AP) — Homeless families being provided temporary shelter in local motels say they will seek to block efforts by the town to deny long-term emergency shelter.

Some said Thursday they plan to attend

SCIENCE WINNERS — Gillian Haley, left, stands with Adam VanDine, center, and Randy Grad during the Buckley School-PTA Science Fair Thursday. Haley won the fifth-grade competition, VanDine and Grad captured the third-grade and fourth-grade titles, respectively.

The Zoning Commission's next meeting to object to a ruling earlier this week that town ordinances don't allow "permanent residents" in motels.

"We'll be there because we want to let them know what's going on," said Vivian Harris, who has been staying with her five children in a room at the Americana Motor Inn since Jan. 15.

Three Old Saybrook motels participate in a state program to provide emergency shelter for families in New Haven and Middlesex counties for as long as 100 days, although only one has a large number of homeless occupants now. The Americana has a dozen families, the Baldwin Bridge Motel has one person and Saybrook Motor Inn has no clients.

Fire damages school

HARTFORD (AP) — A two-alarm fire extensively damaged a vacant school today, and a fire official said the cause of the blaze had not been determined.

The fire broke out at 5:30 a.m. at the three-story brick school located on Asylum Avenue in Hartford's West End, said fire department Lt. Thomas Jacobucci.

One firefighter was injured, apparently struck from frostbite, Jacobucci said.

Bolton OKs calendar

BOLTON — The 1989-90 school year will begin Aug. 30. The Board of Education unanimously approved the school calendar Thursday during a meeting at Bolton High School.

The school year for teachers will begin two days before students. Teachers are scheduled to attend an orientation on Aug. 28 and an in-service day on Aug. 29.

The school board only made one change to the calendar proposed by School Superintendent Richard E. Fagan. Instead of having its winter recess from its faculty.

Clarence Calder and Tim Wienland, professors in the education department at UConn, and Coventry teachers Terry Blitwinski, Joan Matson and Donna Meehan were at the meeting to answer questions about the program.

"The purpose of the program is to provide a professional setting for student teachers to train and work," said Meehan. Students would get experience teaching for 12 weeks.

It is a five-year program to be implemented in September 1990, but some parts of it would begin this fall.

The program is intended to change the way student teachers are trained by reducing the amount of time they spend in

DOT settles claim with road builder

WETHERSFIELD (AP) — A New Britain contractor whose efforts to build a new Route 7 have been delayed by lack of environmental permits will be paid $9.25 million by the state Department of Transportation as compensation for idle equipment and overhead costs.

DOT officials said Thursday they believe the settlement is the largest of its kind ever awarded in the state.

Arute Bros. filed a claim against the DOT after being prevented from going ahead with the project for nearly two years, beginning in April 1987. The DOT was awaiting permits from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the state Department of Environmental Protection.

The company said it sustained losses from idle equipment and other overhead costs while waiting to go forward with the $30.4 million project.

Two months later, however, Arute was charged with having deposited carbon fill in one of the protected wetlands without having the necessary approvals.

AFTER THE VOTE — John Tower reads a statement at the Pentagon Thursday after the Senate voted 53-47 to reject his nomination as secretary of defense. "It's a time for bitterness, rancor and anger to fade," he said.

Wounds are deep from Tower fight

WASHINGTON — The Democratic-controlled Senate is striving to put the rancorous debate over John Tower's failed nomination behind it, but many Republicans say the wounds are deep and will not easily heal.

This goes into the memory banks, said Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas, after the Senate scuttled Tower's bid to become defense secretary and prepared to begin the confirmation process anew for the replacement President Bush will soon select.

Tower's 53-47 rejection on Thursday, just 49 days into Bush's presidency, represented a major setback for his administration and opened the floodgates of speculation on who might be the next choice to run the Pentagon.

On various lists were: former defense secretaries Donald Rumsfeld and James Schlesinger; Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, a principal defender of Tower in the Senate debate; and former Rep. Jack Edwards, R-Ala.

Other names mentioned were Sen. John Warner, R-Va., a former Navy secretary; Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H.; former Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis; Frank Borman, onetime astronaut turned business executive; and Zbigniew Brzezinski, President Carter's national security adviser and a Bush supporter in the presidential campaign.

Brent Scowcroft, Bush's national security adviser, also was mentioned although he said he would stay in his current post.

The naming of a new candidate for defense secretary gains added urgency in light of evidence the Pentagon is close to bureaucratic

Bush could make new choice quickly

By Tom Rasm The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush is meeting with top advisers to find a new nominee for defense secretary following the Senate's rejection of John Tower, with presidential aides saying they expect a speedy decision.

Bush's staff began looking at "various candidates" immediately after the Senate vote Thursday, said White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater.

The president was to meet today with advisers on the issue, and aides said an announcement could come within days — possibly even later today or Saturday.

Among those likely to be considered are former Republican Rep. Jack Edwards of Alabama, National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft, former transportation secretary Drew Lewis and former defense secretary Donald Rumsfeld, administration sources said.

Speculation also focused on several Republican senators, including John Warner of Virginia, William Cohen of Maine and Warren Rudman of New Hampshire.

This is a decision we would like to make within the next several days and not one that could be put off for weeks or months, Fitzwater said.

Bush was in New York delivering anti-drug speeches on Thursday when the Senate voted 53-47 against Tower. In a statement, he said the process had been a "cruel ordeal" for Tower and suggested that some senators made up their minds "based on groundless rumor."

"Now, however, we owe it to the American people to come together and move forward," he said.

A new nomination may come before the end of the administration official said Thursday. The official, speaking on the condition of anonymity, hasn't stopped the talk. Among the other contenders, Edwards is popular among lawmakers of both parties. He is former senior Republican on the House defense appropriations subcommittee and his expertise on military matters is widely respected.

Fitzwater, however, insisted that Bush himself had not given serious thought to a replacement as long as Tower's nomination was before the Senate.

"He's had discussions with the chief of staff (John Sununu) and Brent Scowcroft in terms of what kind of candidates he's interested in... But I would hasten to point out there's some difference between that and actually having a list of candidates," Fitzwater said.

Scowcroft himself has been the subject of much speculation for the defense post. Some members of Congress have even suggested a job switch with Tower — since the national security adviser's post does not require Senate confirmation.

Scowcroft said Thursday he was not in the job hunt, but that

said a long informal list of candidates had been compiled even before the Tower vote.

The official noted that some of the names had been compiled late last year, before Tower was finally selected in December.

"We're not starting from scratch," the official said.

Bush himself had not given serious thought to a replacement as long as Tower's nomination was before the Senate.

"He's had discussions with the chief of staff (John Sununu) and Brent Scowcroft in terms of what kind of candidates he's interested in... But I would hasten to point out there's some difference between that and actually having a list of candidates," Fitzwater said.

Scowcroft himself has been the subject of much speculation for the defense post. Some members of Congress have even suggested a job switch with Tower — since the national security adviser's post does not require Senate confirmation.

Scowcroft said Thursday he was not in the job hunt, but that subject another candidate to the grueling experience Tower went through, seemed likely to pick someone either currently or recently in government who had been through the confirmation process, for a member of Congress.

However, the names of some business executives have also cropped up — including Donald Rice of the Rand Corp. and Frank Borman, former astronaut-turned-executive.

And, two who served in the administration of former President Jimmy Carter are also being mentioned as dark-horse possibilities: Zbigniew Brzezinski, who was Carter's national security adviser; and James Schlesinger, who was his energy secretary — after serving as Ford's first defense secretary.

Bush planned to spend the weekend in Camp David and invited members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and their wives. But Fitzwater said the get-together was mainly social and had nothing to do with finding a replacement for Tower.

Pentagon faces gridlock after rejection

By Norman Block The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon faces paralysis even if George Bush quickly finds a replacement nominee for John Tower as defense secretary, officials say.

Some of the officials argue President Bush will have to elevate the authority of Acting Defense Secretary William R. Taft IV, a Reagan holdover, or the department's attempt to project a business-as-usual posture will crumble.

The routine stuff is getting done, thanks to Will Taft," said one official. "But we're running out of time, now. You can't just focus on the routine stuff."

Said another senior official, who is also a Reagan holdover, "We're not going to let the deadline for budget decisions over here."

That same official said it would take several weeks before a replacement for Tower could be installed at the Pentagon.

The Senate voted 53-47 Thursday to reject Tower's nomination after questions were raised about his alleged alcohol abuse, indi-creet behavior toward women and ties to defense contractors.

In the meantime, say Pentagon officials, the Pentagon's internal budget deliberations are coming to a head and that the department will have to submit a plan to the White House by the end of the month for slashing almost $6.4 billion from its fiscal 1990 request.

What worries some officials even more is that without a secretary of defense, the selection and confirmation of key deputies throughout the department remains at an absolute standstill.

Bush has submitted only one other Pentagon nomination — that of former GM executive Donald J. Atwood to become deputy defense secretary — to the Senate. But that nomination now likely goes on hold pending selection of a new defense chief, and the dozens of under secretary and assistant secretaries that help run the department are still not on board, the officials said.

"We don't have any kind of team in the top bureaucratic positions," said one source. "And that means months of delays down the road in having people geared up to deal with budget and policy matters."

Moreover, the Pentagon has missed congressional deadlines for three reports on important military issues and does not have a secretary representing it during a special 90-day strategic military policy review ordered by Bush.

"We're still in the staff-work phase of that review but if you don't have a secretary by April, then you begin to have problems," said one official.

"The administration is talking about deciding things like the shape of our nuclear arsenal and there's no secretary of defense," said another source. "At least Tower had been working on that, pending confirmation."

Coventry votes for UConn connection

By Jacqueline Bennett Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — The Board of Education has approved use of the town schools as a professional development center for the University of Connecticut.

The board voted 8-0 Thursday night to approve the plan during a meeting at Coventry High School. Member Robert Christie arrived after the vote. Member Patricia Soltys was absent.

"The positives for us are it puts more people — minds, hands, bodies into our classrooms to work with our children," said Chairman Lawrence Mickel.

"It's an opportunity for professional growth for our teachers. And gives us access to UConn and university classes and increase their professional exposure.

The idea, according to Wienland, is to have the students learn their teaching methods less from book study and more from observing veteran teachers.

"For example, if you have a hot-shot in social studies, he's got it — a method. He knows it works. Our students can see it work."

The program is voluntary for teachers and will not cost the town anything this year. Next year, there may be a cost for a quarter- or half-time teacher coordinator for the program. Wienland will be the university coordinator.

Six teachers have agreed to participate. Those that do will receive a stipend from UConn.

Mickel also said the district might approve participation as a Continuing Education Unit for teachers. Under the Education Enhancement Act, every five years educators must accumulate units to renew their certification.

In other matters, the board discussed a five-year projection plan for anticipated capital projects as requested by Town Manager John Ellessner.

Local heroes: Village loses 3 favorite sons to IRA gunfire

By Marcus Ellison
The Associated Press

COAGH, Northern Ireland — On an unseasonably warm and sunny day this week, the official death toll in the Northern Ireland conflict went up by one stock car racer, one violin-maker and one nearly blind old-age pensioner.

Leslie Dallas, Austin Nelson and Ernie Rankin were chatting in the forefront of Dallas's garage in Coagh on Tuesday when an Irish Republican Army squad drove up in a red car and shot them dead.

Why? Because 40-year-old Dallas was running the garage as a front for a Protestant murder squad, said the IRA. Because the IRA are sectarian killers, said the police. Because of unexplained slayings, said the analysts.

Three Protestants killed in an obscure County Tyrone village may be mere statistical blips in the larger picture of the IRA's 16-year fight for a united Ireland, and the Protestants' equally dogged struggle to remain part of Britain.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oliver North angrily complained about having to answer "asinine" congressional questions, according to a witness in his trial charged with lying to Congress about the Iran-Contra affair.

Daniel L. Conrad, the liaison between North and conservative fund-raiser Carl "Spitz" Channel, said North made the comment in the fall of 1985 and then told Conrad the two had to stop meeting at North's office.

Conrad's name appeared on a log at the Old Executive Office Building each time he visited North and "he didn't want meetings to be so often," Conrad testified Thursday.

Conrad said North told him the National Security Council recently had received a letter from a congressional committee asking about NSC staff members' involvement in fund-raising and other activities for the Nicaraguan Contra rebels. At the time, Congress had banned U.S. aid to the Contras.

"He angrily went through the questions and he was irritated that he had to develop answers to these asinine questions," recalled Conrad.

Because of the political heat from the congressional inquiries, North then said that "we need to not meet so frequently in these offices," Conrad added.

He said the two then started meeting outside North's offices, chiefly at the hotel across the street from the White House, but that after congressional pressure waned, they began meeting again at North's office.

"These things run in cycles," said Conrad. "They would cool off and we would meet again in his offices."

Four of the 12 criminal charges against North are that he made false statements and obstructed Congress in 1985 by denying he had contacts with private fund-raising groups for the Contras. The question mentioned several groups, but not Channel's organization, the National Endowment for the Preservation of Liberty.

North is charged with making false statements to Congress by getting them Redeye missiles. Conrad recalled another meeting in North's office in December 1985 in which a newspaper account described the shooting down of a Soviet Hind helicopter in Nicaragua by a Redeye missile launched by the Contras.

"Col. North pointed to the clipping with some pride and said it was the first time a Soviet helicopter had been shot down in the war," recalled Conrad. "He made the point that the Redeyes only cost $8,000 apiece. In other words, we could do a great deal for the freedom fighters by getting them Redeye missiles."

But Coagh they were local heroes. Dallas as a driving champ, Nelson as a violin-maker and Rankin as the jocular old codger who played the role of village "character."

The garage stands on a corner of Hanover Square where generations of villagers have stopped to shoot the breeze, and the IRA admits that Nelson, 88, and Rankin, 71, were innocent bystanders who were killed "in the general confusion."

On the morning after the killings, Coagh (pronounced Coke) was wrapped in an overpowering sense of lives abruptly cut down.

A red carnation was jammed in the garage padlock. Bunches of daffodils lay on the asphalt by the bullet-pocked garage wall.

Such random death is depressing common in Northern Ireland, less schooled in the art of the cross-fire, or because they were shot dead.

Four hours later, Pauline gave birth to their sixth child. Death can have a grisly way of becoming a family event in Northern Ireland. Dallas, for instance, died in front of his children. They had just gotten off their school bus.

Then there was Barney Lavery, 67, driving home with his 13-year-old granddaughter Emma Donnelly when the IRA bomb went off outside a police station in Benburb and killed them.

Emma was junior camogie (women's hurling) player of the year. Lavery had been the number-caller at the bingo evening to raise funds for the Ancient Order of Hibernians.

On Jan. 18, Ian Catney, 26, was shot dead by Protestant gunmen behind the counter of his mother's gift shop in Belfast. On Feb. 9, Tony Fusco was gunned down while waiting for his daily ride to his job at a glass factory.

The killings in Coagh pushed the death toll since 1969 to 2,727. Sixty-nine percent of the dead were civilians.

Shuttle countdown begins

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The countdown began early today for a Monday launch of space shuttle Discovery on a flight its commander says will demonstrate "we're a space-faring nation again."

The launch will be the third for the shuttle program since the Challenger disaster more than three years ago, and the first of seven flights scheduled this year as NASA moves toward its target of safe, routine, once-a-month missions by 1992.

"The countdown started right on time," said NASA spokeswoman Lisa Malone. The ambitious 1989 schedule is getting a late start, with Discovery's flight delayed nearly four weeks so faulty or suspect engine parts could be replaced.

Chinese keep rein on Tibet

BEIJING (AP) — Chinese troops rounded up suspected separatists and kept a tight lid on Tibet today as the embattled region marked the 30th anniversary of a failed attempt to cast off Chinese rule.

Police and the military already had detained many Tibetans in house-to-house searches and planned to move swiftly to crush any demonstrations to commemorate the anniversary, according to Tibetan and foreign sources.

A Tibetan woman, contacted by telephone today, said the capital was calm and that the army occupied all roads.

Feds join Northrop lawsuit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Justice Department has joined a $60 million lawsuit against Northrop Corp. that alleges the defense contractor falsified tests, raising fears that many of the 1,704 nuclear missiles aboard U.S. bombers may be faulty.

Northrop has delivered a guidance system for a nuclear weapons system that very well may not work if used. That is the bottom line," said attorney Rob Kilborne.

Documents released Thursday by U.S. District Court Judge David Kenyon revealed that the federal government joined forces on Feb. 15 with two ex-Northrop employees, whom Kilborne represents, in a $60 million civil lawsuit brought against the aerospace concern in 1987.

The U.S. Attorney's Office, entering the case under terms of the federal False Claims Act, also charges Northrop with breach of contract and fraud.

Another campaign controversy

Manchester's paramedic program was started in controversy six years ago. No one seriously argued that an advanced life support system would not be a good thing. But there were those who argued that it should not be based in one fire department in a town which has two fire departments.

And there was concern about what relationship the town should have with a private ambulance service.

The paramedic unit was formed, nonetheless, and it succeeded. After some initial disagreement about what degree of response there should be to that kind of emergencies, the paramedic service was universally accepted. It never got to the point where it was taken for granted like so many other public services, however. Anyone who felt paramedics had saved his life, or increased the extent of his recovery from a sudden illness, became a champion of the cause.

Nevertheless, when a move was made in later years to form a second paramedic unit, there was controversy again. Some people said expansion was premature.

But the service is about to add what amounts to a second unit, even though it will be staffed by one paramedic rather than two. So when two emergency calls come in at the same time, the town will be able to answer them both.

And in the future, anyone who feels the single paramedic saved his life, while the other paramedics were busy elsewhere, will become a champion of the cause.

The second unit becomes possible because the town has provided a new vehicle. But even the ceremony at which that vehicle was dedicated to service was marked by controversy.

Democratic Deputy Mayor Stephen T. Cassano used the celebration to announce the choice of a location for a firehouse to replace one considered old and poorly located, a project linked with the Democrats campaign for re-election.

The rationale for linking the two is presumably that they both concern fire services. The fact that they are both basically Democratic initiatives must be incidental.

But Republican minority leader Theunis Werkhoven doesn't see it that way. He calls it a "grandstand political play." He says it was inappropriate to make the announcement at the dedication.

Werkhoven reacts a bit strongly, perhaps, but he is right. If nothing else, Cassano's campaign announcement upstaged the dedication.

No great matter: The paramedic service will survive this controversy, too.

Time for initiatives in state government

There is a critical need for new emphasis on the state government agenda regarding the rapid and unruly growth of state government and how to deal with this expansion in terms of costs and the management of a burgeoning bureaucracy.

An ever-increasing responsibility of government for services required by today's society, with all of its multiple and complex needs, has resulted in government characterized by haphazard planning and ineffective delivery of service. Duplication of effort, slovenly administration, and lack of government cost-effectiveness are but symptoms of these consequences.

To freeze programs, which begin to increase in cost as they move from initial starting points to the maturity required for their success, is to miss the point. Halting programs at the completion needed for their success is to squander money already invested and hence the ultimate waste. If, in the first place, a program is required, it subsequently has a natural growth in which salaries are increased and different levels of activity are attained.

There must be no apology for funding programs but instead a new attentiveness to effective management and efficient delivery of services. If govern-

Is growth of Islam a threat?

By Ben Wattenberg

The "Islam bomb" is thought to be nuclear. More likely, it is demographic.

Islam is on the front page again, flexing muscles the rest of the world didn't even know existed. Ayatollah Khomeini has decreed extra-territorial capital punishment for Salman Rushdie, an allegedly blasphemous author. Bookshelvers in America received death threats and quivered.

About the same time, in what is now called the Islamic Republic of Afghanistan, heroic mujahedeen whipped a Soviet army previously regarded as invincible. If you can trash the United States and bash the Soviets, you're in the big league.

There are almost a billion reasons to suggest that Islam's influence will grow. A report by the Population Reference Bureau sets out the global playing field. "The Demography of Islamic Nations" by John Weeks and Saad Gaddala.

In 1950, there were 375 million Moslems in the world. There are 983 million Moslems today. By the year 2020, bureau projections show almost 2 billion. In 1980 only 15 percent of the global population was Moslem; today it is 19 percent; in 2020 it will be 25 percent.

By far, the Islamic nations are the world's fastest growing. The number of children per woman is 1.7 in modern developed nations; 2.1 in Soviet bloc not-for-profit agencies more deliberately pinpoint their endeavors since the existence of their business depends on a specific market. But our state government does not presently take a sufficient view of itself with an eye to a specific market. But our state government does not presently take a sufficient view of itself with an eye to a specific market. But our state government does not presently take a sufficient view of itself with an eye to a specific market.

Moreover, in state government we are locked into a certain wage bureaucracy which private enterprise does not permit. The complaint commonly directed at state government by citizens is that the service is bad and individuals who are secure in a bureaucratic hierarchy are prone to arrogance. The result is that the clients are badly served in many cases.

But with private enterprise at a community level, with those already familiar with the problems at hand and unhindered by bureaucratic protocol, responsibility to clients tends to be more alert. Better service to clients is the result. I have concluded, therefore, that we should contract out more of our services. It is easier to buy services than to manage them. We are forced to walk a budgetary treadmill as we engage in budget making labors involving not one but three budgets. We work on the budget of the year we are in, we plan next year's budget, and at the same time state agencies are putting together a budget for two years down the road. The governor proposes a budget for 1990 halfway through 1989 in a process which had its inception in fiscal year 1988.

Another reform initiative must lead to a more aggressive pursuit of privatizing government services by not-for-profit and profit agencies. In the fields, for example, of job training, health and human services, government often duplicates and replicates its work. For instance, senior citizens are often served by a multiplicity of state agencies in which services overlap. Profit and

Tippling talk in Congress

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — Never has there been so much talk about tippling in the Senate.

It is a mistake to generalize about the Moslem world and be responsible for the assassination of Egypt's Anwar Sadat.

The estimated number of Moslems in United States ranges from under 12 million to more than 5 million, with the higher number most likely correct. What is uncontested is that the Moslem population — through immigration, high fertility and conversion — is growing much more rapidly than the American population as a whole. Most Moslems have moved outsize into the American middle class.

Unlike Europe, the United States has not experienced a sustained anti-Moslem backlash, even after the ayatollah took American hostages. But potential storm clouds are visible. U.S. News & World Report maintains that networks of Iranian terrorists are in America and speculates, "Some ordinary Moslems here, aroused over the perceived insult to Islam in the Rushdie book" might heed "Khomeini's call to arms." That could blow the cork.

None of this was predictable 20 years ago. It is hard to know what the next 20 years will bring. But as Islam grows rapidly around the world, we may well find out whether the Islam bomb comes equipped with a sizzling fuse.

Ben Wattenberg, a senior fellow at the American Enterprise Institute, is author of "The Birth Death." He is a syndicated columnist.

Emhart considering other buyout offers

By Mark Sevoy
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — The board of directors at Emhart Corp., which rejected an investment group's unsolicited $2.4 billion takeover bid, is considering a "limited number" of third-party offers to buy out the corporation, a spokesman said.

The board on Thursday rejected Topper Acquisition Corp.'s takeover bid.

Michael Claes, an Emhart spokesman, said the board has not made a decision on the alternative offers to Topper's bid. The board gave preliminary consideration to the other offers during meetings on Feb. 28 and March 8, a corporation official said.

"Emhart is exploring a full range of options and for this purpose has had discussions with a limited number of third parties," Claes said.

He declined to comment on how

500 losing jobs as Hi-G closes Hartford plant

HARTFORD (AP) — The Toledo, Ohio-based parent of Hi-G Co. is planning to close its electronics manufacturing operation in Hartford, putting 500 people out of work.

Officials from AP Industries Inc. said in a prepared statement that they intend to sell the Hartford plant and continue operating a smaller Hi-G facility in South Windsor. The company did not say when the Hartford plant would be closed.

"The company anticipates approximately 500 employees, of those who are currently employed by Hi-G, will be laid off as a result of these moves," the statement said.

Employees of the company said they received a release from their union earlier this week warning them about the closing, but said they had not heard anything official from management.

"We don't know what's going on," Rose Liptak, a group leader at the South Windsor plant, said. "We really have no information as of yet except for the letter the union sent."

Company officials in Toledo, Ohio, and Hartford declined to elaborate on their decision.

In the release, the company said its decisions were made primarily upon excess plant capacity and the savings produced by consolidating operations.

The production work from the company, which manufactures timers, relays and other electronic items, will be relocated to Darlington, S.C., the release said. It was not clear whether any of the layoffs would come from the plant in South Windsor or whether workers at either plant would be relocated.

Hartford Mayor Carrie Saxon Perry said late Thursday that she planned to call the management at 10 a.m.

"I'm going to tell them to stay," Perry said. "It might not do any good, but I think it's my responsibility as mayor to find out why they're leaving."

Officials from the International Union of Electronics, an affiliate of the AFL-CIO, sent a letter to employees earlier this week, telling them what was expected at the plant.

The union negotiating committee attempted to keep the company from moving by asking, if it could get any help through the governor's office, that U.S. senators and congressmen would stay in Hartford, Conn., the letter said.

"The company reply was that the corporation made its decision and finds it not feasible to do anything about keeping the company here. The company is definitely moving all production to Darlington, South Carolina," it said.

The letter said union officials would meet with company officials and negotiate severance pay, insurance and other benefits for the people who will be losing their jobs.

In 1983, the company went through a financial reorganization in an attempt to pay back debt and return to profitability. The company, founded in 1953, was sold to AP Industries in April 1987.

AP Industries' operation in Darlington, S.C., is called Nytronics Inc. Nytronics officials declined comment on the impending move.

many offers the corporation had received.

Peter L. Scott, chairman and chief executive officer, recommended Thursday that shareholders not tender any of their shares to Topper and suggested the bid may be tainted by insider trading.

"I have grave concerns about the abnormal trading activity that occurred in Emhart's stock before the announcement of the Topper offer," Scott said. "This trading raises disquieting questions as to whether the government's actions aimed at curbing insider trading on non-public information have been effective."

Topper, whose investors include oil heiress Getty and New York developers Lawrence and Zachary Fisher, made an offer of $58 a share on Feb. 24.

A spokesman for Topper, who asked that his name not be used, said the investment group would have no immediate comment on Emhart's action or the allegations of insider trading.

Chiles Larson, a spokesman for the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington, D.C., said it was the agency's policy not to comment on what it may or may not be investigating.

Emhart is a Farmington-based manufacturer of a wide range of consumer and industrial products including locks and fire alarms. Its stock was at $32.75 a share when Topper tendered its offer. The stock had risen almost $10 a share in the month prior to the offer amid takeover rumors.

Scott said the Farmington-based company's board has said its rejection on advice from its financial advisers, Wasserstein, Perella & Co. and Shearson Lehman Hutton Inc. Scott said the advisers determined the offer was "inadequate from a financial point of view."

In a letter to stockholders, Scott said the board also took into consideration the company's restructuring effort that began in 1986 and four recent acquisitions. He noted these efforts resulted in record earnings of $126.6 million in 1988, following earnings of $106.5 million in 1987.

Topper has filed a lawsuit in U.S. District Court in Richmond, Va., to force the sale, contending that the company's restructuring effort, commonly known as a "poison pill" or anti-takeover measure, is discriminatory. Emhart filed a countersuit.

Scott said the board is confident that Topper's lawsuit challenging Emhart's shareholders rights plan will fail. But as a precaution, the company said it would redeem the existing rights effective March 20 for 2 cents a share and issue new rights to shareholders on March 20.

P&W gets Yugoslav order

HARTFORD (AP) — Pratt & Whitney has received a jet engine order potentially worth $132 million from a Yugoslavian airline.

Jugoslovenski Aerotransport of Yugoslavia has ordered 11 PW4060 engines, including spares, worth $87 million to power up five McDonnell Douglas MD-11 jets.

PAT also is optioned to buy eight more engines, an order potentially worth $65 million. Deliveries of the McDonnell Douglas aircraft are scheduled to begin in 1991 and the airline plans to use the jets on routes between Yugoslavia and the United States.

Pratt & Whitney is a division of Hartford-based United Technologies Corp.

We borrowed billions more

WASHINGTON (AP) — Revised government figures show Americans borrowed $4.4 billion more last year than reported, reducing the annual rate of consumer debt to 7.9 percent.

The Federal Reserve Board said Thursday the January increase followed a revised increase of $4.3 billion in December and a gain of $4.7 billion in November.

The Fed said a 1.5 percent increase in the seasonally adjusted rate of credit growth was up slightly from a 1.8 percent in December but well below the 4.5 percent rate in November.

The Fed said a slower growth in auto loans and the category of debt that includes credit cards helped keep the increase from being greater, while loans for mobile homes increased after falling sharply in December.

Shoppers like convenience

NEW YORK (AP) — America's shoppers — pressed for time — are making more visits and spending more dollars in convenience stores than ever before, reports a marketing communications company.

Recent statistics indicate that 63 percent of the adult population patronizes a "C-stores" at least twice a month, according to the New York-based Howard Mariboro Group.

More than half of those shoppers spend some of their shopping dollars at a convenience store at least once each week, the study shows. Americans spent nearly $66 billion in such stores in 1987, the most recent year for which full annual figures are available.

What once were small outlets where a customer could make a late night stop for a quart of milk and a pack of cigarettes have evolved into almost full-service stores, reports the communications company.

Millstone 1 highest again

WATERFORD (AP) — Northeast Utilities officials say the Millstone 1 nuclear power plant's 1988 capacity factor of 85.7 percent was the highest for any boiling reactor in the world. This was the eighth time in 10 years the plant has had an annual capacity factor of 75 percent or greater, the company said Thursday.

Anything about keeping the plant in the world for all reactor types. Currently, there are more than 400 commercial nuclear power plants worldwide, more than 300 of which are outside the United States.

Millstone 1, owned and operated by Northeast Utilities, is a 660,000-kilowatt plant. Since entering commercial operation in 1970, it has generated more than 74 billion kilowatt-hours of electricity and spared the burning of more than 130 million barrels of oil, the company said.

Tax plan

pack - to raise $10 million. ■ a doubling of the tax on beer and wine and a 50 percent jump in the tax on liquor, to raise a total of $4 million. ■ a 15 percent surcharge on the corporations tax, to raise $35 million. ■ extending the sales tax on services provided by one business to another, to raise $20 million. That provision would only be in effect until the end of 1989 and then be repealed, under the bill. One service specifically excluded was advertising. ■ changes in dates for making estimated insurance company and capital gains tax payments, to raise a total of $4 million.

Sen. James H. McLaughlin, R-Woodbury, blamed the Democratic governor for the state's budget problems and said of the bill and the deficit, "I think the public is going to have a statement about that." ■ gubernatorial and legislative elections will be held in 1990.

Langolis said an income tax structure more elastic than the current system relies heavily on the 7.5 percent sales tax, which responds dramatically to ups and downs in the economy.

"It's fair," said Langolis of the proposed income tax, "and it provides the revenue growth the state needs."

Neither he nor Rapoport would predict how the bill would fare after a public hearing, for which a date has not been set. Langolis said the 22-18 vote to hold a hearing on an income tax represented another victory for "tax reform" proponents, who earlier thought they would settle for an "informational forum" on the issue, held last week.

The proposed income tax bill calls for a repeal of the tax on dividends, interest and capital gains and raises $732 million in 89-90. Couples filing jointly would pay the 8 percent tax on income over $100,000. Single people, or married people filing separately, would pay it on income over $50,000.

Sen. William A. DiBella, D-Hartford, committee co-chairman, said getting the income tax bill out of the committee "will be definitely an uphill battle."

He and his co-chairman, Rep.

Tax insurance, Democrats say

HARTFORD (AP) — Democrats at the Capitol disclosed today that they are considering slapping the 7.5 percent sales tax on non-health insurance policies to raise at least $450 million a year.

Rep. Richard T. Mulready, D-West Hartford, vice chairman of the tax-writing Finance Committee, said the proposal is still in the very early stages of consideration and would apply to auto, life, homeowners and all other types of insurance except health insurance.

If passed, the tax would take effect July 1 and go a long way toward balancing the proposed $6.4 billion budget for 1989.

The Finance Committee on Thursday approved $118 million in new taxes to take effect April 1 and help eliminate this year's estimated $247 million deficit. Mulready said that in 1987, the last year for which figures were available, those types of policies totaled $6 billion in Connecticut. At 7.5 percent, that would generate $450 million a year.

Income-tax bill set for hearing

HARTFORD (AP) — The income tax bill approved for public hearing by the General Assembly's tax committee would apply to couples earning more than $100,000 and single people, or married people filing separately, earning more than $50,000. The Finance Committee bill, approved Thursday, calls for a 10 percent tax on all income over those thresholds.

For example, if a couple earned a total of $110,000 a year, the 8 percent tax would only be applied to the amount over $100,000, or $10,000. The tax would be $800. Similarly, if a single person earned $55,000 a year, the tax would be applied to $5,000 and would come to $400.

Proponents say the bill would generate $732 million for the budget year beginning July 1. The bill also calls for a repeal of the capital gains, interest and dividends tax, and would treat income from those sources as regular income from salaries and wages.

Proponents say they may also want to include constitutional caps on other taxes. The date for the public hearing on the bill has not yet been set.

Jobless

William J. Cibes Jr., D-New London, both said they would vote for it. Asked if he thought O'Neill was likely to change his stance on the income tax, Cibes said: "The governor is known for keeping his commitments. But mountians have moved in the past, and they may move in the future."

"I'm telling you, it will crush Connecticut business," Rep. J. Peter Fuscas, R-Marlborough, called the alcohol tax increase "the cruelest tax of all" because if all the taxes the Democrats want become law, "it's going to drive every taxpayer in the state of Connecticut to drink."

present its budget to the Board of Finance by March 20.

Willington, which does not have a high school, planned to send 231 students to Bolton High, 20 to E.O. Smith and 84 to Bolton High, he said. The school year before its recent decision, said McKee. The numbers have not been revised, he said.

McKee said he would welcome a meeting, but said he did not know how the school board would react. Willington's school board is scheduled to meet Tuesday. Another reason for the decision to leave Bolton High now, said McKee, is Bolton's decision to cap the number of Willington students at 150 or have Willington share in any expansion or renovation costs. Because that decision could affect the freshmen before their graduation, his board thought it best not to send them to Bolton High, he said.

Willington school officials have said they will still consider sending students to Bolton once the contract expires. A Willington school board committee is studying where to send its students beginning with the 1990-91 school year.

The committee is scheduled to visit Bolton High next week. It is scheduled to make a recommendation to its school board in mid-May.

Passengers, agents confused as Eastern seeks protection

By Morcy Gordon The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Thousands of Eastern ticket holders, suddenly transformed into creditors, scrambled to get refunds or fly on other carriers.

The action by the nation's seventh-largest airline, announced Thursday on the sixth day of a punishing strike by Eastern's Machinists union in a dispute over wage concessions, was the fifth biggest Chapter 11 bankruptcy filing in history in terms of company assets.

In Miami, ticket agent Marion Gordon and two co-workers at Eastern's office could only respond to angry customers by saying they had no money for refunds.

"I am an old lady and I'm stranded on Miami Beach," said Rose Aoki of New York City. "I have no money for another ticket."

"You'll just have to wait and see," Gordon answered. Under the Chapter 11 filing, the bankruptcy court must approve ticket refunds, said Eastern spokeswoman Karen Ceremask, adding that she did not know how the process would work.

The 5,600 pilots are critical to Eastern's operations, and their support of the 8,500 machinists forced the airline to shut down virtually all its operations Monday and lay off some 9,500 non-union employees.

Eastern ticket agents as well as travel agencies, often getting little satisfaction as they learned they might have to wait on a long line of unsecured creditors for a refund or pay higher fares on other carriers.

But many service people, as well as travel agents, were as confused as the ticket holders about the effects of the action in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in New York, which temporarily freed the airline of the debt obligations.

"This has been one of those days that we all hope would never happen," said Phil Davidoff, president-elect of the 23,000-member American Society of Travel Agents.

The first Eastern Airlines shuttle to leave Boston for New York and Washington today with a new $12 one-way fare in effect had 82 people on board, said a spokesman for the Massachusetts Port Authority, which operates Logan International Airport. Phil Orlandella said previous shuttle flights since the machinists strike carried as few as seven passengers.

Landry was a Cowboy in a white hat

I always figured one of the reasons the Dallas Cowboys were "America's Team" was Tom Landry.

I mean, Tom was everything you expected a real cowboy to be. He had this prairie squint to his eyes like a guy looking for the dust clouds of an oncoming posse or the smoke signal of a redskin raid.

He was laconic, fair obliging, polite. Tom Landry never thought he was better than anyone else. He respected you. You had to respect him. I always thought that no other coach could have brought Roger Staubach back into the game of football and brought him along till he became one of the three or four best quarterbacks to play the game.

I remember when Staubach showed up at Cowboy camp in Thousand Oaks, a crew-cut lieutenant in a g. who had just spent four years in the Navy, playing mostly what amounted to touch football. And he was trying to beat out some of the registered stars of the game in the quarterback. Don Meredith, Craig Morton and Jerry Rhome.

I don't think any other coach would have given Roger the fair shake he got from Landry. But Landry gave everybody a fair shake. That's what Tom Landry was all about.

I remember all those years when Landry's teams seemed to come up a yard short a placekick shy. I particularly remember that standard TV shot. It showed Landry closing his eyes and looking heavenward in the standard aggrieved grimace of pain as he accepted yet another dose of undeserved misfortune.

It was the Landry look. The my-God-there-goes-another-one-look. But it was gone in an instant. Later, in the locker room, there would be Landry patiently and politely explaining what had happened without tantrums or outbursts or locked doors. Landry took their medicine.

Tom Landry was a Christian. It's a term that has come under a certain public obloquy because of the actions of a lot of people who seem to mix up religion with hypocrisy. But Tom Landry was not one of those inquisitorial types.

I never saw him inflict his views on anyone else or even condemn anyone else for behavior that was antithetical to his. If he sometimes seemed like a parson running a wild animal act, he did it with dignity.

When one of his players, frustrated because Landry wouldn't brawl in public print with him, called him "a plastic man," Landry just grinned. And kept going to church.

On the field, he was so unflappable, you would have thought he didn't care. The expression never changed. You couldn't tell by looking at Tom Landry whether he was behind or ahead, whether he was holding three acres or a busted straight.

He always wore the matching clothes of the middle-class office worker who got two pairs of pants with the jacket. I remember a Texas journalist once spotting him in the distance and saying, "It's either Tom Landry or an FBI agent."

He wore felt hats long after they were little brooms or feathers in them. Comedian Don Rickles once cracked, "There's 80,000 people in the stands and they're going crazy, the game is an uproar and there's Landry trying to square his hat!"

But that was Landry, too. He didn't show up in sneakers or running shoes — or jeans and a T-shirt with a picture of Schubert on it. Where Tom came from, the gentry dressed with care and the collar was starched or buttoned down and the necktie matched the socks.

He was meticulous. He always looked as if he had just taken a shower. Landry's eyes were never bloodshot and neither was his mind. His teams had a dash and style to them that the public liked. They didn't out-muscle you, they outwitted you. They were fun to watch. They brought in things like the "Hall Mary" pass and the "flex" defense — bend but don't break.

It was not that Tom couldn't recognize a great football player from a car window. He could. But he wanted to get a Cowboy-type player, not just another troglodyte with a 20-inch neck.

Landry's teams were in five Super Bowls. They won two of them and lost the three others by a total of 11 points.

Class is an overworked word. Landry had more than class. He had integrity. He cared about his players. It just wasn't his nature to gurgie over them.

The Cowboys were Landry's team, his creation. No one else ever had them. He must have felt about them the way Rodin felt about his sculptures. They kicked this man out into the street in Dallas. Some man who made his money in commerce has bought himself Tom Landry's statue, the way some butter-and-egg man might buy a Monet.

I guess it was not like Tom to insist on ownership in the franchise. Where Tom comes from, there was a difference, I guess, between owning the ranch and working the cows. Tom was, actually, a humble man. He never wanted to be anything but what he was, coach.

I really wouldn't want to be the new coach. Jimmy Johnson, by all accounts, isn't a humble man. He can't be. He just stood there while they fired America's Coach and gave him his team. It's as if the rustlers just shot John Wayne. I guess we'll all just have to get another team.

Coventry comes back in tourney Patriots whip Westbrook, move into S quarterfinals

By Tim Tierney Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — Nine days off was more than enough time for the Coventry High boys' basketball team to ponder their disturbing 45-61 loss to Portland in the first round of the Charter Oak Conference Tournament.

Heading into the Class S state tournament, Patriot Coach Ron Badstueber had never seen his club suffer back-to-back defeats this season. And Coventry wasn't about to break that trend now.

With inflated vengeance from the disappointing COC tourney, the fifth-seeded Patriots vented their frustrations on visiting 12th-seeded Westbrook High in a second-round rivalry encounter. Coincidentally, Westbrook knocked off Portland in the first round.

Behind the trio of seniors Jack Ayer, Mike Oswald and Lucas, who combined for 84 points, the Patriots (18-4) overcame a shaky first quarter and trounced the Knights, 97-64, to advance to the S quarterfinals against Ellington (20-4), a 100-63 winner over Coalinga, Saturday night at 7:30 at South Windsor High. Westbrook ends its season at 15-7. The Portland loss helped us, without any question," Badstueber said. "We were flat against Portland. The kids got angry. We thought we were a better team than Portland. And that woke them up. We've been in the quarters many times and we've lost some heartbreakers. Maybe if we have a real close game, it will go our way for once."

Ayer, in a matter-of-fact fashion, poured in his game-high 34 points after being limited to a bucket in the first quarter. Oswald added 23, 10 of which came in the final stanza.

Oswald, who was scoreless in the opening quarter, located his shot shooting touch in the second quarter and it carried him to a phenomenal 16-for-10 shooting performance, including seven 3-pointers. Oswald tallied 21 points after the intermission, including eight in a decisive 16-0 run at the start of the third quarter.

Oswald had a great night, great shooting," Badstueber said. "He's a super shooter. He wanted to see if he could score on these guys (Oswald or Ayer) open, they can kill you. Ozzie had a super night."

Siena leads winners at ECAC tournament

HARTFORD (AP) — Siena was considered nearly unbeatable in the ECAC North Atlantic Conference regular season and didn't do anything to alter that respect in the opening round of the postseason tournament.

Colgate did everything it could Thursday but still couldn't stop the Indians. The Red Raiders kept the game close, tying it at halftime, 28-28, before Siena, led by Steve McCoy's 15 points, pulled away for a 61-41 victory.

"Give Colgate credit. They did what they had to do to win this game. They slowed the game down and made key shots," Siena coach Mike Deane said. Deane said, however, that the slow-down strategy backfired at the end.

"What that did is give us the opportunity to conserve energy for the overtime and secure the win," he said. In other quarterfinal games, it was Boston University 86, Niagara 58; Northeastern 65, Maine 59; and Hartford 76, Canisius 57.

The tournament is being played without spectators at the Hartford Civic Center in an effort to prevent the spread of a measles outbreak on the Hartford and Siena campuses.

Hartford, 15-12, plays Siena, 22-4, in a semifinal game today while Boston University, 28-8, and Northeastern, 17-10, play in the other semifinal.

Levenson, 28-8, and Northeastern, 17-10, play in the other semifinal. Thompson and Al Jones each scored 14 points as Hartford defeated Canisius.

Canisius, 13-15, took a 9-2 lead before Hartford went on a 35-14 run to take a 37-23 halftime lead. Thompson scored 12 in the first half and sophomore guard Ron Moye came off the bench to make all five of his field goal attempts and score all 11

Knight enjoying Indiana's latest crown

By The Associated Press

Bob Knight has coached Indiana to three NCAA basketball championships, but his doubtful quest to please him more than the Big Ten crown the Hoosiers are wearing this season. The Hoosiers lost four of their first seven games, with three opponents scoring more than 100 points, a level reached only once previously in Knight's first 17 years. But Indiana came back to win 22 of its next 24 games, capped by Thursday night's 75-64 victory over Wisconsin that gave the Hoosiers a record 10th outright Big Ten championship and a berth in the NCAA tournament. "They came back to just give us all, everyone associated with Indiana basketball, one of the greatest treats I've ever seen a group of people give anyone," Knight said.

New Coach Bob Wenzel and won the Atlantic 10 tournament. Rutgers, 18-12, over a 7-22 campaign a year ago, rallied from a 13-point first-half deficit in earning its first NCAA bid since 1983. Middle Tenn. 82, Austin Peay 78: Kerry Hammonds made a close-in basket and free throw with six seconds left, lifting Middle Tennessee to the Ohio Valley Conference tournament crown. Hammonds' field goal tied the game and his free throw made it 80-79. Middle Tennessee shared the regular-season OVC title with Murray State.

No. 8 Michigan 88, Northwestern 79: Glen Rice scored 26 points, Sean Higgins got 12 of his 14 points in the second half and No. 8 Michigan survived a late scare. The Wolverines led 64-45 with less than 12 minutes left, but Northwestern twice got within six points. No. 18 UNLV 102, UC Irvine 82: Stacey Augmon, Greg Anthony and Anderson Hunt made consecutive 3-point shots during an electrifying display of transition basketball and Nevada-Las Vegas used a later 22-4 run to bury UC Irvine 102-82 in the quarterfinals of the Big West Conference tournament. Augmon, the conference Player of the Year, scored 27 points and Anthony had 24. Rod Palmer scored 23 points for UNLV.

Celebration time short in Big East

By Jim O'Connell
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Whether it's Pittsburgh or Villanova, the winner of the last of the quarterfinal games in the Big East tournament won't have much time to celebrate. Whoever team prevails in tonight's game scheduled for 9:30 p.m. EST has to come back the next afternoon for a semifinal meeting with the winner of the Georgetown-Boston College game. By the way, Georgetown, 23-4, is ranked third in the country, seeded No. 1 in the tournament and clinched the regular-season title earlier than any other team in the conference's 18-year history. "This league does help that way in that at least we know Georgetown will give us a game by the other team," Pittsburgh coach Paul Evans said. "In most leagues, the No. 1 seed only has to play their starters 20 minutes in that game. So it will definitely help us."

Providence could get a break—Derrick Coleman, the conference's leading rebounder at 17.2 and one nationally, has not practiced with the Orangemen since suffering a back injury against Georgetown last Sunday. "He couldn't practice all week. We'll just wait and see," Syracuse coach Jim Boheim said. "That's how Caliboun feels on the day the NCAA selections are announced." "Even people at the school don't realize the strides we've made in a conference this tough," he said. "It's a matter of survival as far as the NCAA goes. I'll have to sit and hope Ball State wins the Mid-American title and Wisconsin and Minnesota lose so there are less teams for us to compete with for the final berths."

Kentucky probe may be deeper

By The Associated Press

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — University of Kentucky officials do not agree with the contention of three basketball coaches that $20,000 given to two of them to supplement their pay was not in violation of NCAA rules, according to a published report. The university revealed in its response to 18 NCAA allegations against the basketball program that an internal investigation turned up the supplemental pay, which head coach Edie Sutton said was solicited from two Kentucky boosters. The Courier-Journal reported in today's editions.

Yet, she has emerged this season as one of the world's premier women's sprinters. The commissioner declined to identify the owners who asked for the expansion process to be delayed or when the request was made. Speaking in a spring training camp "I think Bart has it in hand. He's talking about a timetable in the 90s — early '90s. He is talking about the possibility of two teams in the National League as a first step," Ueberroth said. Ueberroth said he was not disappointed that expansion did not occur during his time in office. "I guess I would be disappointed if in Florida and there probably should be two teams here, but they can't figure out a way to put a team anywhere in the state. Why is that? The reason is if you put a team in Tampa Bay, (owner Jerry) Reinsdorf can't extract money from Chicago by threatening to move the White Sox."

Montreal clinches; Patrick race a mess

By Ken Rappaport
The Associated Press

It was a foregone conclusion the Montreal Canadiens would win the regular-season championship in the Adams Division. What is happening in the Patrick, however, even the Canadiens' guests. While the runaway Canadiens clinched the Adams title with a 5-2 victory over the Quebec Nordiques on Thursday night, the race in the Patrick continued to be a logjam. The Washington Capitals, taking advantage of a slump by the New York Rangers, moved into a first-place tie with a 7-2 victory at Boston. That left the Capitals and Rangers tied with 78 points, three in front of the third-place Pittsburgh Penguins. 10-3 losers at Calgary.

NHL Roundup

CANADENS 5, Nordiques 2: Chris Chelios, Russ Courtnall and Brian Skrudland scored third-period goals to lead the Canadiens. The victory gave the Canadiens 101 points in 70 games, tops in the league and 27 more than second-place Boston. "We're still in a tight fight for first place overall in the league, and that's very important," said Montreal coach Pat Burns, whose club is leading Calgary for the second time. "It's the main reason we can't sit back and just coast into the playoffs."

DECKED OUT — Washington's Calle Johansson slams Boston's Keith Crowder to the ice during their game Thursday night at Boston Garden. The Capitals snapped the Bruins' nine-game unbeaten streak, 7-2.

THE Cavaliers were still in contention at 111-112 with 1:09 remaining when 7-7 Warrior center Manute Bol missed a three-point shot with plenty of time left on the shot clock. "I've told Manute all season if he had the time to take it," Nelson said. "I'm not going to change now."

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Turgeon is expected back — HARTFORD — A face that has not been in the lineup since December, Sylvain Turgeon, is expected back Saturday night when the Hartford Whalers face the Montreal Canadiens at the Forum in Montreal. Turgeon suffered a separated left shoulder last Dec. 21 against Boston. Before then, he had 11 goals and 11 assists in 23 games. He's missed 34 games.

The Whalers are two points behind the third-place Buffalo Sabres in the Adams Division and eight points behind second-place Boston.

Montreal clinched the Adams Division championship Thursday night with its 5-2 win over Quebec.

Dokes getting title shot — LAS VEGAS (AP) — Michael Dokes figures heating Evander Holyfield can't be any tougher than licking a cocaine habit. At least with Holyfield, Dokes knows what he has in front of him. "I know, I feel and I believe I'm going to be victorious," Dokes said of Saturday's fight with the unbeaten two-time champion. "This will be the come-back of a lifetime. They'll be making movies about this."

Dokes, though, is a big underdog in the scheduled 12-round fight, which may be a test more of how far Holyfield has come in only his third heavyweight fight than how far Dokes has come back after squandering his title to cocaine addiction.

Saturday night, he will move up in class when he takes on Holyfield, whom most boxing observers consider the only challenger who stands a chance against Mike Tyson. The fight, which will be televised by Showtime, is expected to begin about 7:35 PST.

Bob Horner retires — MIAMI (AP) — There are other things in Bob Horner's life besides baseball. The injury-riddled slugger finally decided that those other things outweighed risking injury or permanent disability. So, he decided Thursday to retire from the game. "I've got children I want to raise and teach sports to," Horner said in a news conference Thursday at Bobby Maduro Miami Stadium. "The last thing they need is a crippled father."

Horner, 31, said he was retiring because his left shoulder, operated on last season, had not healed sufficiently and kept him from performing at his capabilities.

Horner was trying to make the Baltimore Orioles as a non-roster free agent not being offered a contract by the St. Louis Cardinals, for whom he played last season. The right-handed hitter who spent his best years with the Atlanta Braves hit 218 home runs in 10 major league seasons that seemed an unending stream of injuries.

Perryman gives testimony — CHICAGO (AP) — New England Patriots running back Robert Perryman says he was not threatened physically by two sports agents charged with racketeering, but said one of them did threaten to expose him for signing an illicit deal.

Perryman, a star on Michigan's 1986 Big Ten championship team, told a federal court Wednesday that sports agent Lloyd Bloom threatened him with possible incrimination if he refused to sign a contract agreement he signed earlier in violation of NCAA rules.

"He said he could go to (Michigan coach) Bo Schemmeler and incriminate my name," and the Big Ten championship could be invalid, and he could miss up the institution," said Perryman, the fourth NFL player to testify for the government in the agents' fraud trial.

Bloom tried to get Perryman to sign a new contract, the fourth NFL player to testify for Schemmeler discovered in the spring of 1987 that the player had agreed to be represented by the agents, Perryman testified.

Walters, 58, and Bloom, 29, partners in the New York-based World Sports & Entertainment Inc., are accused of mail fraud, extortion and racketeering.

Prosecutors contend the agents defrauded colleges and universities by signing athletes to representation contracts before their college eligibility had expired. The government also alleges that the athletes were threatened with physical violence when they tried to back out of the contracts.

UP FOR GRABS — Philadelphia's Mike Gminski, left, and Sacramento's Harold Pressley battle for a loose ball in their game Thursday night at the Spectrum. The 76ers won, 108-98.

18 as Philadelphia handed the slumping Kings their 12th loss in 14 games. Phil's Ken Smith's jumper brought the Kings to within 61-74 with 10:27 to play. But Derek Smith, picked up by the 76ers last month after being released by the Kings, sparked an 11-2 Philadelphia surge and a driving layup by Gerald Henderson gave the 76ers a 92-76 lead with 7:34 to play. The Kings never threatened again.

Derek Smith added 13 points and Mike Gminski had 14 for Philadelphia. Waymon Tisdale led the Kings with 28 points, while Danny Ainge and Kenny Smith had 18 apiece.

Spurs 112, Nets 88: Alvin Robertson had 13 of his 29 points during a third-quarter stretch that broke the game open for the Spurs.

The Spurs forced 32 turnovers, including 18 steals, six by Robertson. They lead the NBA with an average of 11.7 steals per game.

The Spurs pulled away from a 46-41 halftime lead by outscoring the Nets 24-12 during the first 8:58 of the third quarter for a 72-55 lead

FOCUS/Advice

Schoolchildren helping U.S. to clean up

DEAR ABBY: You need to know how much good you do with your column. I teach a class of special children, grades 1 through 5, at Skeen Elementary School in Leesburg, Fla. A letter in your column stimulated them to get involved. We call our program "Litter Perfect."

They want you to know what they (along with family and friends) have done about cleaning up their surroundings since Nov. 29, 1988. I am enclosing a letter from that class. I hope you have room for it.

DEAR ABBY: How does Surgeon General Everett Koop propose to care for all the elderly people who are living to be 100 because they quit smoking?
