SARTOR PONDERES OFFER

Salary last hurdle to naming manager

By Nancy Conzelmann
Manchester Herald

South Windsor Town Manager Richard J. Sartor has been offered the job as town manager of Manchester.

Money appeared to be the final hurdle to filling the Manchester job, which will become vacant in June with the retirement of longtime manager Robert B. Weiss.

Three sources, who declined to be identified, told the Manchester Herald on Friday that the town has made a salary offer to Sartor. The sources would not reveal the amount of money offered but said Sartor is discussing the offer with Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr.

DiRosa announced that a news conference is scheduled for Monday at 10 a.m. at Lincoln Center. DiRosa would not comment Friday on the manager search.

Sartor, 46, has been South Windsor's manager for nine years. He is a former deputy chief of the Manchester Police Department.

Sartor currently earns $69,550 a year in South Windsor.

Manchester officials said at the beginning of the search that the new manager should make at least $70,000 but no salary figure was ever set.

Members of the manager search committee met Friday with representatives from Korn Ferry International, the consulting firm aiding with the search, a source said.

The five-member search committee has been looking for a replacement for Weiss since October. Weiss will retire in June after 23 years as manager. Weiss makes $68,000 a year but last May was denied as raise that would have brought his pay to $72,000.

Sources said Thursday that Steven R. Werber, Manchester's assistant town manager, is second in line for the manager post and Enfield Town Manager Robert J. Mulready is a distant third.

South Windsor Town Council member Lincoln H. Streeter said he didn't know how much money Sartor would want to take the Manchester job but Streeter said Sartor is worth at least $80,000 a year.

"He's just an excellent administrator," Streeter said. "He garners respect."

"I think he's real good," said councilman Nancy E. Kerensky. "I think he's an excellent manager. If Manchester gets him, they'll be very pleased."

Two members of the South Windsor Town Council praised Sartor Friday for his ability to stay out of

Specter of a royal divorce haunts Buckingham Palace

By Graham Heathcote The Associated Press

LONDON — Letters to Princess Anne from a handsome aide have raised speculation of a royal divorce — an occurrence that has wrought constitutional upheavals and brought heartbreak to Queen Elizabeth II's family.

It remains open to question whether Anne's 15-year marriage to Capt. Mark Phillips is really on the rocks or is simply one of those long-distance unions not unusual in the British upper classes.

The queen's only daughter and Phillips, a commoner and former army captain who runs equestrian centers, lead virtually separate lives. They were apart for more than half the time last year. They have two children — Peter, 11, and Zara, 7.

News of the mysterious collection of letters to Anne, 38, from Royal Navy Cmdr. Timothy Laurence, a 34-year-old bachelor and equestrian at Buckingham Palace, gave new life to rumors which began in 1981 that her marriage is in trouble.

The four stolen letters were delivered last week to a mass circulation newspaper, The Sun, which did not publish them, but is investigating the theft.

With panting headlines, the tabloid press said Anne and Laurence are in love. As usual, the principal characters said little or nothing.

Anne carried on with a punishing schedule of routine royal engagements, Phillips, 40, went off to Spain to see about setting up a riding center there, and Laurence dropped out of sight.

Anne is seventh in line to the throne — behind her brothers Charles, Andrew and Edward, two young nephews and a baby niece — so her divorce would hardly bring a constitutional crisis.

It was not always so. Divorce has hung over the throne since the six-times married Henry VIII broke with the Roman Catholic Church in 1534 because the Vatican would not annul his marriage to Catherine of Aragon.

Each succeeding monarch is titular head of the Church of England, which frowns on divorce. Anne's great-uncle, Edward VIII, gave up the throne to marry a twice-divorced American, Wallis Simpson. In a celebrated broadcast on Dec. 11, 1936, he told the nation he could not go on as king without the support "of the woman I love."

As the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, the couple lived in exile, mainly in Paris. He died in 1972 and she in 1986.

In the next generation, the queen's only sister, Princess Margaret, gave up the man she loved because he was divorced. He was Royal Air Force Group Capt. Peter Townsend.

In the 1970s, Princess Margaret had a widely publicized relationship with a London socialite 17 years her junior, Roddy Llewellyn. Newspapers regularly photographed them heading off to Caribbean vacations.

which surpassed the previous record of $63 million set last October in California. "I had a phone call yesterday from somebody who said, 'Avevo lottery at O'Hare'" and I said "Oui," Ms. Roth said.

"I speak some French and knew that he was calling from Paris," she said. "From what I could gather from the conversation, he had been at O'Hare International Airport in Chicago and did not buy a ticket. Somebody on the plane was telling him about the lottery, so now he wanted to know what to do."

Ethics chief should quit, says Mercier

By Andrew J. Davis Manchester Herald

A member of the Ethics Commission has called for the resignation of Chairman William E. FitzGerald.

Commission member Jonathan L. Mercier, a Republican, called for the resignation of FitzGerald, a Democrat, 3 days after criticizing FitzGerald for submitting "incomplete" minutes of the commission's March 30 meeting.

The minutes do not fully reflect a 45-minute discussion about Democratic Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr. and put the mayor in "the best light," Mercier said.

At the March 30 meeting, the commission voted to take no action on whether Democratic Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr. should have abstained from votes on the Main Street reconstruction project because he owns a dry-cleaning business on the east.

Only one line appears in the minutes about the 45-minute discussion on DiRosa, said Mercier. DiRosa's case took up more than an hour of the 2 1/2-hour meeting, he said.

"You have one line out of five pages and it represents half the meeting.

That's the 45 minutes that ought to be reflected (in the minutes)," he said.

FitzGerald, Republican M. Adler Dobkin, Democrat Sol R. Cohen, and unaffiliated member Robert Franklin voted to take no action. Republican Mary Sears and Mercier voted against the majority.

"I'd like to see Judge FitzGerald resign as chairman," Mercier said. "I think he's trying to do Pete DiRosa a favor."

FitzGerald could not be reached for comment Friday night. Complete minutes are necessary because they help with background in future commission decisions, said Mercier. "It really sets us up as an Ethics Commission for applying inconsistent standards," he said.

Franklin should be named the commission's chairman, said Mercier. Since Franklin is unaffiliated, he would have no reason to favor a member of a political party, he said.

Franklin could not be reached for comment Friday night. Mercier said he has not decided whether he will push for FitzGerald's resignation. He said he will make a decision within a few days.

DiRosa said he has "no doubt" that Mercier is raising the issue about the minutes for political reasons. "I consider it to be a dead issue," he said.

preservation of open space in South Windsor.

Kupchnos and Streeter agreed that Sartor, the council and town administrators should share the blame for losing the competition with Manchester for a regional mall. The Pavilions at Buckland Hills is under construction in Manchester.

"I don't think we were aggressive enough in going after the Buckland mall situation," Streeter said. "I think he (Sartor) shares the frustration that all of us have concerning development," Kupchnos said.

Streeter said that if Sartor does become Manchester's next manager, he hopes the two towns will talk more. He said he would like to see the Manchester Board of Directors and South Windsor Town Council meet together annually.

"I would hope the lines of communication could be more open than they have been," Streeter said. "I regret the fact that he's (Sartor) going to Manchester," Brown added. "He's going to be extremely hard to replace."

Sartor joined the Manchester Police Department in 1969 and was promoted to sergeant in January 1972 and to lieutenant in 1973. He was named patrol captain in 1975.

Sartor, a graduate of Manchester High School, received his bachelor's degree in industrial administration from the University of Connecticut and his master's degree in public administration from the University of Hartford.

Mansfield children threatened

MANSFIELD (AP) — An anonymous female telephoned the Mansfield Middle School and said she would spray-paint the school wall "next on my list" Friday, just two weeks after officials in nearby Brooklyn received telephone threats against pupils.

The call in Mansfield came about 7:30 a.m., shortly after students had arrived at the middle school, said Mansfield Superintendent of Schools Gordon Schimmel.

He said the woman told a secretary that schools there and in neighboring Ashford were next on her list and that school officials should keep children out of school.

State and local police were called to patrol the school grounds, and entrances to schools in both towns were locked. The Brooklyn phone calls, received March 30 and 31 at the Town Hall and the home of the Brooklyn school bus coordinator, were also made by a woman. In those instances, the caller threatened to shoot children in the schoolyard and to kill students on a school bus.

On Monday, a drawing of an assault rifle and the words "You're Dead" were spray-painted on a school wall. Police had said the graffiti, which included the words, "You're Gonzo," appeared to be the work of juveniles and not the person who made the threats.

State police said there was no indication the calls in Brooklyn and Mansfield were related. The call in Mansfield, which is about 15 miles from Brooklyn, differed from the others in that there was no specific reference to violence, said Sgt. Scott O'Mara, a state police spokesman.

"Admittedly both callers were women, but beyond that there's no similarity," he said. "People are very sensitive in light of what happened in Brooklyn."

Schimmel said police helped load and unload students on buses and that outdoor recess was suspended. After-school activities were also cancelled, he said.

A letter was sent home to parents, which prompted a lot of phone calls, but parents generally responded calmly, Schimmel said.

Friday was the last day of school before a week-long vacation, so Schimmel said school officials and police would decide whether to continue taking precautions when students return April 24.

O'Mara said Friday had been scheduled to be the last day police would patrol Brooklyn schools, which were also recessing for a week's vacation. Police will decide later whether they should resume patrolling Brooklyn schools after vacation, he said.

CONFERENCE — State Rep. Miles Rapoport, D-West Hartford, left, and state Sen. William DiBella, D-Hartford, confer Friday as the Legislature's Finance Committee opens a public hearing on proposed income tax legislation in Hartford.

Income tax debated but it won't survive

HARTFORD (AP) — The Legislature's Finance Committee on Friday spent another long afternoon listening to debate over a state income tax, but the committee's co-chairman said flatly "you don't have to be a rocket scientist" to realize the tax won't pass.

More than 100 people requested an appearance before the committee to testify on tax proposals the committee is considering to balance the 1989-90 budget. An overwhelming majority stood in support of a state income tax.

But the committee's co-chairman, state Sen. William DiBella, said such a tax has little chance of passing and even less chance of surviving the promised veto of Gov. William A. O'Neill.

"You don't have to be a rocket scientist or a political analyst to see that," DiBella, D-Hartford, said.

DiBella's comments came Friday morning during a press briefing at which the Connecticut League of Women Voters and three Democratic members of the Finance Committee urged sweeping fiscal reform, including a state income tax and constitutional limits on future state tax increases.

The lawmakers — Miles Rapoport and Richard Mulready of West Hartford and Gert Langlois of Thompson — argued that the

Hawk's nest may stall road project until July

By Maureen Leavitt
Manchester Herald

Construction of a road which will lead to the Pavilions at Buckland Hills may have to be stalled until mid-June or early July because a state law protects a hawk's nest in the path of the road, according to a state biologist.

Rita M. Duclos, a biologist with the state Department of Environmental Protection, said Friday that construction in the area should be halted until the eggs are hatched and the young birds have grown the feathers needed to fly.

In addition, she said no one will be permitted to peek into the nest of two red-tailed hawks off Hale Road today as originally planned.

"The birds' behavior that's being exhibited is sufficient enough to warrant that there is an active nest there," Duclos said.

She said she and another biologist viewed the nest and the two birds tending it with a telescope Friday.

"It's our opinion that there is no need to disturb the birds any more than they have been," Duclos said.

The tree where the birds are nesting is one of several which stand in the path of a road being built by Homart Development Co., which will serve the Pavilions at Buckland Hills.

The trees were to have been cut down Thursday, but two Manchester residents, Ed and Richard Dezzo, became aware of the hawk's nest and filed a formal letter of protest with George E. Murphy, town tree warden.

A hearing on whether the tree can be cut down has been scheduled for Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Lincoln Center.

According to the statute, people are not allowed to catch, kill, or purchase wild birds, or take or destroy a nest or eggs of wild birds. Duclos said it would be unlawful for someone to move the nest. She said there is even some question about whether the nest can be moved after the birds hatch.

Officials from Homart had asked Stuart Mitchell, a Portland man who runs a rehabilitation center for birds of prey, to inspect the nest to see if eggs are in it.

Richard A. Moulton, a U.S. Fish and Wildlife agent in Hartford, had originally agreed to allow the nest to be inspected.

But Moulton consulted with Duclos, who in turn discussed the situation with Mitchell Friday, and they agreed that no one should climb the tree.

Duclos said the incubation period for hawks' eggs is about 30 days, and it would take about 45 days from the time the eggs hatched to when the birds could fly.

She predicted construction would have to be halted until mid-June to the beginning of July.

Eddy Huppe, a Homart representative, said Friday the company would comply with the statute.

"We're going to do whatever necessary to abide by these laws," Huppe said. "The birds got to live somewhere. We're going to do what we can to help the birds."

Duclos said the nest would be monitored to find out when the eggs hatch. She said it will be clear when the adult hawks frequently leave the nest that they are probably searching for food for their young.

Duclos has requested that conservation officers patrol the area to make sure no one disturbs the birds.

In a related matter, Conservation Commission Chairman Arthur Glaeser praised Homart for its efforts to preserve the nest.

"That's an indication of their willingness to cooperate with the community," Glaeser said at a commission meeting Thursday.

He said of Dezzo's success in stopping Homart from cutting down the tree: "It shows you what one citizen can do."

State parks won't be shut

HARTFORD (AP) — Gov. William A. O'Neill on Friday reversed the decision of his environmental commissioner to close 13 state parks this summer, vowing "all of our parks will be open."

In a statement released Friday, O'Neill said he had ordered Department of Environmental Protection Commissioner Leslie Carothers to meet with state budget officials to work out a plan to keep the state's entire park system open this summer.

"Given our fiscal situation, people will have to expect some changes in our parks and recreation areas," O'Neill said.

"Hours may be shortened, staffing may not reach the levels we want and some of the amenities that we take for granted may be missing. But all of our parks will be open, and that is the bottom line."

DEP spokesman Wanda Rickerby said state budget officials agreed Friday afternoon to add $171,000 to the DEP's budget to keep the parks staffed and open to vehicular traffic. She said other cutbacks at state parks announced earlier this week will remain in effect.

The parks that had been designated for closing were Penwood State Park in Bloomfield; Dennis Hill and Haystack Mountain state parks in Norfolk; Platt Hill State Park in Winchester; John Minetto State Park in Torrington; the American Shakespeare Theatre in Stratford; Stoddard Hill State Park in Ledyard; Devil's Hopyard State Park in East Haddam.

Also, Day Pond State Park in Colchester; the campground and the Patacook Recreation Area within the Cockaponset State Forest in Chester; the greenhouse at Harkness Memorial State Park in Waterford; and the Green Hills recreation area within the Pachaug State Forest in Voluntown.

Rickerby said the planned cutbacks at state parks include:

- Weekday camping will be prohibited until Memorial Day, except in Housatonic Meadows State Park in Sharon, Macedonia Brook State Park in Kent, and American Legion State Park in Barkhamsted.

- Lifeguard coverage at all state beaches will be reduced to one shift, lasting from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saltwater beaches will open at 8 a.m., and will operate without lifeguard coverage for two hours.

George F. Burrows, a founding member in 1920 of the American Civil Liberties Union, has died. He was 89.
Burrows, who died of a brain tumor Monday in a Waltham nursing home, was described as a talented oddball whose passions ranged from social justice to Sherlock Holmes.
He was a New Deal Democrat who served as an early president of the Community Church of Boston, the first church to demand a fair trial for immigrant anarchists Sacco and Vanzetti. He also raised money to help defend the nine black Scottsboro Boys in the notorious 1931 rape case.

"More different kinds of people liked him than anyone else I've ever known," Bean added.
Born in Somerville to a clan of strict Scottish fundamentalists, Burrows dropped out of Harvard College and worked as a department store clerk and an insurance adjuster.
During the Depression he was an official with the U.S. Works Progress Administration, where he hired musicians to perform in the schools and artists to paint murals on public buildings. In World War II he was a civilian employee of the U.S. Army in the Aleutian Islands, but never told his son what he did.

Researchers estimate there are 11 million overweight children between ages 6 and 17 in the U.S. — a 50% increase in 20 years. One group of obese adolescent girls actually ate several hundred fewer calories a day than a group of slim girls, but participated less in active sports and other strenuous activities. The conclusion: inactivity encourages obesity more than excessive food intake. Healthy children need less of the "food tuber" and more vigorous activity.

Bush, lawmakers hail deficit-cutting plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush and congressional leaders Friday announced a showpiece budget compromise to reduce the 1990 federal deficit to under $100 billion without raising taxes.
But the pact puts off most hard decisions and Democratic leaders suggested it could open the way to tax increases next year.
Bush, flanked by top lawmakers at a White House ceremony, boasted they had accomplished "the first such agreement reached ahead of schedule and not framed in the context of a crisis." He called it a "first management step" in the deficit-fighting journey.
The plan would enable Bush to say he is holding his "no new taxes" campaign pledge while trimming the budget deficit to $99.4 billion, just within the $100 billion target set by the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law.

Under the agreement, Bush would be forced to accept lower defense spending and more spending for domestic programs than he initially sought. In exchange, congressional leaders pledged to abide by Bush's anti-tax stance — at least for one year.
But even as the accord — hammered out the night before between administration and congressional negotiators — was announced with great fanfare, key participants conceded that it was only a skeleton that fell short of spelling out where specific programs should be cut to accomplish the savings it trumpeted.
"No one should be deluded into thinking that this is the end of a process," said Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine. "It is the beginning of a process. Very hard choices lie ahead."
And another leading Democrat, Senate Finance Committee Chairman Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, boycotted the Rose Garden session entirely, although he joined other congressional leaders in attending a preceding White House session with Bush.
"He declined to go out into the Rose Garden and have his picture taken because he doesn't like the agreement," said Bentsen spokesman Jack Devore.
Still, Bush, his top lieutenants and most congressional leaders were upbeat.
"It is a major step toward a balanced budget," said House Republican Whip Newt Gingrich, R-Ga.
Major elements of the agreement include:
■ Total deficit reductions of about $28 billion for the fiscal year that begins next Oct. 1. The projected 1990 deficit of $99.4 billion compares to a 1989 deficit estimated by the administration at $163.3 billion.
■ Defense outlays of $299.2 billion, down from $300.6 billion proposed by Bush in his Feb. 9 budget message to Congress.
■ A level of discretionary domestic spending of $181.3 billion, up from the $173.9 billion proposed by Bush, and spending in social programs in which benefits to individuals are mandated by law of $556.4 billion, up from Bush's proposal for $531.4 billion.
■ A decision to adhere, without specifying in what manner, to Bush's call for $5.3 billion in new tax revenue without enacting what the president considers a tax increase.
Lawmakers said that new-revenue measure could prove to be the most thorny to negotiate.

Families hunt for missing among bizarre cult victims

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — Families who traveled hundreds of miles from across Mexico viewed mutilated corpses on Friday to learn whether their missing loved ones were among the 13 victims of a cult's human sacrifices.
"From all over the country, families have been coming here. They're still coming," said Hector Olvera Garcia, an employee of a funeral home, El Rosario, where seven bodies were taken after being dug up at a ranch west of this border city.
Authorities found 12 bodies buried there Tuesday and forced one of the five suspects in custody to dig up the 13th victim on Thursday.
Investigators have used bulldozers and other heavy equipment to excavate more of the ranch, but did not find any more bodies, said Juan Benitez Ayala, chief of the Mexican Federal Judicial Police in Matamoros.
More than 60 people came in search of missing relatives, Olvera Garcia said. His clothes smelled of decomposing flesh after he showed the bodies to several people looking for relatives who had disappeared in recent months.
The worst fears of the family of Ernesto Rivas Diaz, 23, came true.
"It's something very sad," said Rivas Diaz's brother, Efraim, who was picking up a death certificate for the young man who was exhumed from a shallow grave at the Santa Elena Ranch 20 miles west of Matamoros.

VICTIM'S MOTHER — Maria del Rosiro Diaz, mother of one victim of the satanic cult murders at the Rancho Santa Elena in Mexico, talks about her son at a funeral home in Matamoros, Mexico, Friday afternoon.

Winery worker eludes cops after shooting rampage

GLEN ELLEN, Calif. (AP) — A jealous winery worker went on a shooting rampage Friday and killed five people, including a woman believed to be his wife, then fled with his three young daughters, authorities said.
Police helicopters searched the lush region of vineyards and wineries in California's wine country and authorities issued an all-points bulletin for Ramon Salcido, 24.
Investigators found the bodies of a woman, believed to be Salcido's mother-in-law, and two girls dead at the home of his in-laws and found another woman, believed to be his wife, dead at Salcido's home.
The fifth victim was shot to death near the Grand Cru Winery, where Salcido worked.
One investigator described the in-laws' house as "one of the most horrible crime scenes he had seen in his life, a violent, violent attack," said Sonoma County Sheriff Richard Michaelson. One body was found in a bedroom, a second in the kitchen and the third in a hall.
Salcido, 24, was believed to be armed with several weapons, Michaelson said.
The gunman first went to the ranch of a locally prominent man, Bob Kunde, and shot ranch worker Kenneth Butti in the right shoulder, Michaelson said. Butti, 33, was in fair condition at Santa Rosa Memorial Hospital.
Then Salcido went to the winery and shot a male co-worker to death before fleeing in his battered brown Ford sedan, Michaelson said. The body was found in a car near the winery.
He then went to his home in nearby Boyes Hot Springs, where the body believed to be his wife, Angela Elaine Richards, was found, Michaelson said. Salcido's three children, ages 2, 3 and 4, were reported missing.
Later, authorities found three bodies at the home of Salcido's father-in-law, Robert L. Richards, in Cotati, about five miles west of here, said sheriff's Lt. Gary Gasolin.

Convoy breaks into Kabul

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — A convoy bringing food and fuel to Kabul broke through a guerrilla blockade Friday, with Afghan soldiers and helicopter gunships providing cover as the trucks rolled down the Salang Highway.

Gunfire wounds protesters

JERUSALEM (AP) — Army gunfire Friday wounded more than 20 Palestinians in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip from entering the Al Aqsa Mosque, Islam's third holiest site.

In Jerusalem, police barred residents of the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip from entering the Al Aqsa Mosque, Islam's third holiest site.

Soviet tanks rattle Baltics

MOSCOW (AP) — Tanks and armored vehicles rumbled through three restive cities in the Baltics this week, frightening residents already shaken by a fatal clash between the military and demonstrators in Soviet Georgia, activists and journalists said Friday.

Military officials said it was only a training exercise, and the heavy armor did nothing more threatening than drive around. But the terrified and infuriated residents of Riga, Tallinn and Tartu, journalists said.

In addition, "a monstrous number of troops" appeared Monday and Tuesday in Tashkent, the capital of Uzbekistan in Soviet Central Asia, following a nationalist meeting Sunday, according to Moscow activist Viktor Reznikov. There were no tanks and no curfew, he added.

Residents of downtown Riga, the capital of Latvia, woke up Monday to the thunder of tank treads on the cobblestones, said Alex Grigoriev, editor of the Popular Front newspaper Atmoda, or Awakening. They looked out their windows to find 10-20 tanks and other armored vehicles rolling down the street at full speed, with guns aimed both forward and sideways — at them, Grigoriev said.

FAA, private pilot at fault

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration and the pilot of a small plane were equally to blame for a 1986 collision with an Aeromexico jetliner that killed 25 people, a federal jury decided Friday.

U.S. District Judge David V. Kenyon was to decide later in the day whether to uphold the jury's verdict, which absolved Aeromexico of any blame. The jury, which spent five months hearing testimony and deliberated for 48 hours over 10 days, found that the FAA and private pilot William Kramer were negligent and their negligence caused the crash in equal measure.

Court's ruling on pension taxes creates a billion-dollar headache

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A U.S. Supreme Court decision ordering states to tax federal and state pensions equally or not at all could mean a $600-a-year savings for the Michigan man who filed the lawsuit, but a billion-dollar headache for 21 states.

North 'frantic' for cash in 1984, jury told as testimony concludes

WASHINGTON (AP) — After 48 witnesses and nearly 11 weeks, testimony ended in the Oliver North trial Friday with a witness describing a "pretty frantic" North so strapped for cash in 1984 that he complained of not having enough for lunch or gasoline.

But, said Mary Dix, who controlled expense money at the National Security Council, all that stopped in 1985 — a time when North had in his office safe a huge revolving fund for expenses having to do with the Nicaraguan Contras.

After hearing her and four other rebuttal witnesses, the judge sent jurors home for a long weekend and told them to return Tuesday for final arguments expected to take most of two weeks. He said they would be sequestered as soon as they begin deliberations.

Mrs. Dix said North, in 1984, was after her to reimburse him for taxi fares and other expenses quickly.

"He would run by and his face was red and he was very upset with my staff if for some reason they didn't have money," she said. "He would say he didn't have enough cash to go home or he didn't have lunch money. He was pretty frantic that we turn them (the expense accounts) around as fast as we could because his credit cards were charged to the max."

Once, she said, he ran after her in a hallway yelling "Mary, Mary."

Her description of North, then earning $50,000 as a Marine lieutenant colonel, was at odds with North's own testimony. He said that since he was a midshipman at the U.S. Naval Academy, he had a family fund of as much as $15,000, stashed in a metal box bolted to the floor in a closet at home.

North is charged with profiting illegally from his Iran-Contra dealings, including an accusation that he diverted Contra traveler's checks to his own use. He is also accused of lying to Congress and the attorney general about his activities.

The jury, which had heard a succession of witnesses who included a congressman, an attorney general, a national security adviser, a Contra leader and a number of CIA agents in an eight-week period, also heard Friday from a used car salesman.

William Howell also contradicted a North account, in this case, in connection with how North came to buy a used car in October 1985 for $8,000 in cash. North said he went to the lot in Tyson's Corner, Va., to buy a station wagon, then saw a heavier vehicle and settled on that, paying $5,000 down and the balance four days later, all in cash from the box.

MAXIMIZING YOUR DECISIONS by VI KAVA, MST, CPA

I CAN'T PAY THE IRS Question: If I find it impossible to pay the federal government for the income taxes I owe, could I end up going to jail?

Answer: The USA has no debtor's prison; you will not go to jail. Some people feel that if they're unable to pay their taxes when due, they should also wait to file a tax return until their cash position improves. This could be costly because of the penalty system the IRS uses. There are three possible additions to your balance due if you file or pay late.

The "penalty for failure to file" is assessed if a tax return is not filed by the due date or the extension date if one was granted. This penalty is 5% per month or a fraction of a month is the return is late, up to a maximum of 25% of the balance of the tax due on the return. The second is the "penalty for late payment." This penalty is 1/2 of 1% of the unpaid tax for each month or part of a month that the tax remains unpaid, up to a maximum of 25%. The third assessment is for interest which is charged on any unpaid balance. The interest rate is adjusted quarterly to reflect the going bank rate of interest.

Even if you are unable to pay the taxes by the due date of the return, you should file your return to avoid the 5% per month failure to file penalty. When the IRS receives your tax return without the balance due attached, they will send you a bill. Upon receipt of this bill, you can contact them and ask about the possibility of installment payment.

It is in your best interest to answer all IRS correspondence in a timely manner. Vi Kava is the tax partner in the accounting firm of Kava & Kava, CPAs, 153 Main Street, Manchester, CT 06452-2528.

Officials blast Exxon cleanup

VALDEZ, Alaska (AP) — State and federal officials unleashed a fresh barrage of criticism against Exxon on Friday, blasting it for "entirely inadequate" efforts to clean up spilled crude oil and declaring, "This is a war."

Dennis Kelso, commissioner of the Department of Environmental Conservation, said his department has been left on standby three weeks after the 10.1 million-gallon spill. Officials are awaiting Exxon's plan to clean 3,000 shore sites.

"No plan has been submitted," Kelso said. "I do not think there is a written plan."

Gov. Steve Cowper and Coast Guard Commandant Paul Yost returned to survey the hundreds of miles of twisting, oily coastline. Yost set a Saturday deadline for Exxon to produce a cleanup plan for the spill, which officials said was not breaking up as fast as they had hoped.

Authorities said they probably would have to use high-pressure hot water spray to cleanse many beaches, a controversial technique because it kills organisms on and beneath the surface of the beach. "This is a war," Yost said.

"Don't look for a miracle on beach-cleaning," he said. "We need hundreds of people, maybe multi-hundreds, maybe multi-thousands." Cowper, who arrived Friday wearing faded jeans and rubber boots, said he was pleased Yost had taken over command of the cleanup. "We were not satisfied with the way the operation was being coordinated," he said. "I think it's obvious that we, the state and the Coast Guard, are not satisfied with the way Exxon has performed." Exxon had good intentions, he said, but "good intentions and good performance are two separate items." Cowper led loud denunciations of Exxon by state officials last week, threatening even to shut down the trans-Alaska oil pipeline. But officials had been more muted this week until Kelso's latest comments.

What makes Buckley run?

By William A. Rusher

If you know anybody who owns and edits a fortnightly magazine, writes three syndicated newspaper columns a week, tapes a weekly television program, lectures for pay about 30 times annually, and writes an average of two books a year, it's a safe bet that he is one of your busiest friends.

He nevertheless finds time to spend a couple of months every year skiing in Switzerland (while hobnobbing in Gstaad with the exiled royalty there), and generally manages to squeeze some transoceanic cruise on a private sailing vessel into his summer, he can only be William F. Buckley.

In Buckley's case, though, we have thus far touched only on what must be called his routine activities — his drab annual round, as it were. What does he do for excitement?

Well, in September 1987 he went two miles down into the North Atlantic in a French exploratory vessel, to prow the wreck of the Titanic. Last month he flew a plane-load of friends from New York to Louisville to watch the out-of-town tryout of his first play, based on his popular novel "Stained Glass."

And at the moment he is circumnavigating the globe in a supersonic Concorde, accompanied by 75 people who paid $40,000 apiece to go with him. He will tape television programs and give lectures en route, and the whole trip will take just over three weeks. About a dozen point-to-point world speed records will be broken in the process.

I know, I know: You want to know what Buckley does with his afternoons.

Chicago changes the racial guard

By Chuck Stone

After Richard M. Daley's decisive win as mayor of Chicago, one can only wonder how many of the city's proverbial nine lives the Rev. Jesse Jackson has left. The changing of Chicago's racial guard in City Hall also raises new questions about whether black mayors are mediocre and incompetent as their white predecessors.

Chicago's late Mayor Harold Washington was a dramatic exception. Before his unexpected death, the charismatic Washington had begun pulling that fractious city together — despite Jackson's divisive tactics.

But where black mayors have failed even more abysmally is their inability to stanch the hemorrhaging murders, drug wars and official corruption.

Of the 13 largest cities with the highest percentage increases of homicides over the last year, eight are governed by black mayors.

Washington, D.C., both the nation's capital and the murder capital, leads with a 55 percent increase in homicides. Under the administration of its black mayor, Marion Barry, who is under constant investigation related to drugs, record numbers of top-level officials have been sent to prison for corruption.

Second, third, fourth and fifth in homicide increases are, respectively, black-governed Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit and Atlanta. When black voters proudly began election black mayors, many of them felt as if they had conquered the world.

"For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" Black voters in Chicago just found out.

Foreign women seek advice

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — Feminist leaders from Europe, Africa and Asia have quietly stepped up visits to women's organizations in the United States to learn how to force reluctant governments to give them equal rights.

While it got only limited publicity, 49 U.S. women's organizations recently agreed to a common agenda they envision for Congress, and the word of that unusual consensus has reached their foreign sisters.

Almost without exception, foreign women's groups are fragmented, and the word of that unusual consensus has reached their foreign sisters.

One Italian woman told us of being hired in a management job where she was paid less than lower-level male workers. She asked for maternity leave and was fired. Her union refused to defend her, claiming she had taken the job as a "temporary employee."

She finally forced her company to settle by threatening a lawsuit, but has now been blackballed for other jobs in her field. At least she had a law that gave her grounds for a suit. In many Third World countries, there are no women's rights laws at all.

The foreign women visitors to the United States will see the women's lobby at work on Capitol Hill on issues ranging from tax and insurance inequalities to child care and cutting defense groups have been able to force government and private action on women's rights.

American feminist groups operate outside the realm of government control because they have dues, foundation grants and other private contributions to fund their work. That has made them force reluctant governments to give them equal rights.

Lately, the U.S. women's groups have gone missionary. Some are taking their message on the road to foreign countries.

Irene Natividad, the chairwoman of the National Women's Political Caucus, may soon speak with women leaders in Saudi Arabia and other Middle East countries via satellite on the subject of equality.

Falcon's downed

The Coast Guard is struggling to keep its Falcon jets in the air for aerial drug enforcement tasks. The House Committee on Government Operations has called the 7-year-old fleet "the faltering Falcons."

The 41 jets suffer from a lack of spare parts. Since last June, the planes have been unavailable for nearly half of their scheduled flying time.

Nine of the jets were taken out of commission to be fitted with new radar equipment and were supposed to be returned to the Coast Guard last November. But so far only three of those nine are back in service.

St. Mary's plans dance

St. Mary's Episcopal Church is planning a spring dance, sponsored by the Episcopal Church Women, on Friday. The dance will be at the Manchester Country Club. Hors d'oeuvres will be supplied, although guests may bring additional "bibbles" of their own. The dance is from 8 p.m. to midnight. Tickets are $10 per person. Call 643-6857 to reserve them.

Senior concerns expressed

The Senior Saints of St. George's Episcopal Church in Bolton will meet Wednesday at 10 a.m. with the Rev. Richard Hartman from Danielson, a member of the Episcopal Diocesan Commission on Aging. Hartman is seeking input in planning a major convocation on aging. All seniors are welcome to participate in this monthly group. For further information, call the Rev. John Holliger, 643-9203.

Films are shown

The film series, "Turn Your Heart Towards Home," is to be shown at Emanuel Lutheran Church beginning this Sunday. Each film will be shown at 9:45 a.m. from now through May 21, between the 9:30 and 11 a.m. worship services. The first one is "A Father Looks Back."

Dewey is topic

The ideas of John Dewey, one of the foremost American philosophers of this century, will be explored Sunday morning at the Unitarian Universalist Society. East. At 10:30 a.m. service, Dewey's ideas on religion without God will be discussed. Music will be presented by Colleen Langston of Manchester.

Concert is set

There will be a concert by the combined choirs of St. Peter's Episcopal Church of South Windsor and Concordia Lutheran Church of Manchester. The choirs will perform the requiem by the contemporary English composer, John Rutter, under the direction of David Almond and William Myers, on Sunday at 4 p.m. The concert will be at Concordia Lutheran. A chamber ensemble will accompany the singers. There will be a reception following the performance.

Thoughts

Lord, I've been thinking a lot about this fast track we're on trying to get ahead, trying to catch up with the traffic, with deadlines, with the Joneses. Sometimes, when I'm running as fast as I can, I wonder what I'm really running for. Sometimes, Lord, late at night when the house is still and the next deadline is hours off, I wonder if this fast track is leading me to You at all. You are the Way and the Truth and the Life. Our time together prayer time, is healing time, strengthening time, time to be loved into new life, life on the right track, a track that leads me at Your wise speed straight into Your eternal arms. Volunteers are backbone of MACC's activities

Editor's note: This column is prepared by the staff of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches.

By Nancy Carr Executive Director

What if all those wonderful volunteers decided to stay home and cosset themselves instead of working for others? For one thing, about 257 million committee meetings and $2 million pounds of minutes and agendas would disappear forever. No more bake sales, no more door-to-door solicitations, no more rummage sales. Sound great?

Unfortunately, we would also be saying goodbye to the soup kitchen, shelter and emergency pantry. Without volunteers we would be forced to close the doors to the hungry and the homeless. The clothing bank would be empty, the pantry shelves bare.

Without volunteers this column would not be typed. MACC's bills wouldn't get paid. The isolated elderly would not be remembered at Christmas, the good-as-new used toys which bring such joy to both parents and children of low-income families would garage the garbage can instead of the Christmas tree. Underprivileged children would wander the streets during the two weeks of Interfaith Day Camp.

Goodbye to the Furniture Bank and Feed a Friend surplus-food distribution. No more Farmer's Market or Honor Court. Without FISH volunteers there would be no transportation to the doctor or clinic by those unable to use Phone-A-Ride. No more fabulous community dinners for the isolated and homeless. Urgent calls for help would find the fuel bank empty, the human needs fund depleted, and no room at the inn.

In just our agency alone, those bright points of light touching here and there throughout MACC programs give time estimated by the Governor's Council on Volunteer Action at being $229,581. And that's just the tip of the gold mine. These are just the hours logged in service programs such as the shelter, soup kitchen, pantry, etc. It does not begin to count all the planning hours or volunteer hours in such programs as Seasonal Sharing. In addition to hours, there were volunteer in-kind donations recorded of food, clothing, furniture estimated at cash value of $22,289.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

Eugene Brewer

The majority of professed Christians have little or no comprehension of the plan of the Bible. There is a theme that ties all its parts together, which is God's eternal plan. Indeed his unrelenting unity strongly argues for a single source — God.

From sin's entry in Eden God promised a descendant of woman would destroy Satan's power (Genesis 3:15). The Biblical story proceeds with Noah and the flood and his descendants to Abraham. With this man of faith God made a covenant, promising numerous offspring, including many nations who would be blessed by a special seed (Genesis 12:1-3).

Weddings

Mrs. Stephen LeSaffre

LeSaffre-Sisco

Janet Elaine Sisco, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald M. Sisco of 85 Arcella Drive, and Stephen LeSaffre, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert LeSaffre of Wakefield, Mass., were married Nov. 28 at Our Lady of the Assumption Parish, Lynnfield, Mass.

The Rev. Gerald D. Perno officiated. Elizabeth Sweetnam was maid of honor.

Peter LeSaffre, brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were Brian Sisco, James A. Lynch III and Christopher Fay.

The reception was at The Kennwood, Lynnfield, Mass. The couple is making their home in Wakefield, Mass.

The bride is employed at First Medical Inc. of Boston, Mass. The bridegroom is sales manager at Daniels LeSaffre Motors Inc. of Melrose, Mass.

Wedding vows extend beyond contract between two people

NEW YORK (AP) — Do law and marriage go together as much as love and marriage? — not only between two people but between the couple and the larger society, says Cele Lalli.

"It's not unromantic to learn all you can about the laws that affect marriage," says Lalli, editor of Modern Bride magazine. "After all, we love with the head as well as the heart."

The current issue of the magazine highlights some of the differences between marriage law and marriage law.

For example, marriage is not an entirely private matter between two people. Marriage is a contract between two people and the government, since the legal status of the union can't be altered without the consent of the state. The landmark Supreme Court decision explains: "It is an institution in whose maintenance and purity the public is deeply interested. For it is the foundation of the family and society, without which there would be neither civilization nor progress."

Don't for a minute believe that a woman has to take her husband's name to ensure the legitimacy of their children. Assuming the husband's name is a custom in the United States, not a law. If a bride retains her maiden name, neither the child's legitimacy nor birth certificate will be affected since the mother's maiden name appears on this in all cases. However, some states may request clarification if the child is not to carry the father's name.

Not everything taken into the marriage becomes joint property. The Married Women's Property Acts assure a woman the right to own property and maintain financial independence without her husband's control. Sole ownership is, of course, relinquished as soon as any assets are placed in a jointly held account.

And, if you think that each partner is responsible for his half of taxes due on a joint return, you're wrong. The law states that each partner is responsible for the entire debt. Each partner also is responsible for the return's accuracy.

So, says Lalli, "discuss all the issues, legal and otherwise, that concern you" before you say "I do."

Diamond: A symbol of love

NEW YORK (AP) — The diamond was discovered in India more than 3,000 years ago and was described as a breath of eternity. Thus diamonds have long been symbolic of lasting love.

Just be sure that the diamond engagement or wedding ring you choose is of a style that is timeless — and of a quality that makes it a good investment.

"No two diamonds are alike," says Lloyd Jaffe, chairman of the American Diamond Industry Association, "and of course as with any commodity, the rarer the diamond, the more expensive the stone."

The price of a diamond is equally dependent on four factors, says Jaffe — Shape (cut), color, weight (carat) and degree of perfection (clarity).

FOCUS Former presidents face future

Pullout Section, Page 17

By W. Dale Nelson
The Associated Press

On the 34th floor of a hilltop office building in the Century City area of Los Angeles, a man stands at a window with binoculars in his hand, scanning a hillside 2½ miles away.

Yes, he decides, there it is. He has spotted his own house.

That's something any man who has moved into a new skyscraper office and a new home might do. But this is no ordinary citizen settling into new surroundings.

Until noon on Jan. 20, this man, Ronald Reagan, headed a government with 2.1 million employees and a nation of 247 million people. He commanded more than 23 million Americans in uniform, a Navy of 565 ships, a force of 100 B-1B bombers able to strike anywhere in the world.

Ambassadors represented him in 142 countries.

Now he commands no troops or ships or airplanes. He has no ambassadors anywhere. He has a staff of 12.

"In free governments," said Benjamin Franklin, "the rulers are the servants and the people their superiors and sovereigns. For the former therefore to return among the latter is not to degrade them but to promote them."

Now there are four former presidents back among the people — Reagan, Jimmy Carter, Gerald R. Ford and Richard M. Nixon — the most alive at one time since Martin Van Buren died in 1822, while Abraham Lincoln was in office. For them, the "promotion" was sometimes hard to swallow.

"It was deeply discouraging for me to contemplate the unpredictable years ahead," said Carter, back in Plains, Ga., after his defeat by Reagan in 1980.

Ford, recalling his own flight to California as a defeated president four years earlier, said that "halfway across the country, it was as if an invisible force had entered the plane.

The moment ceased.

Reagan, stepping down after completing the two terms to which the Constitution limits him, said his leave-taking was "a bittersweet experience."

"It is going to take a little while for the dust to settle," says William French Smith, Reagan's longtime friend and lawyer, who returned to California in 1985 after more than four years as attorney general.

"He's getting along fine outwardly; inwardly there's got to be a real transition adjustment. There is no way to avoid that."

Reagan has spoken little of his return to private life, but there have been revealing glimpses in public, and more private moments are etched in the memories of associates, some of whom spoke only on the condition that they not be identified.

On the helicopter flight from the Capitol to Andrews Air Force Base, the departing former president remarked on how quickly the inaugural crowd had dispersed.

"Then, flying over the White House, with two long moving vans drawn up in the south driveway, he asked his wife, 'Do you want to look down?' There's our little bungalow, dear," he said. Mrs. Reagan smiled through her tears. Actually, there were few tears, but there was no joking either.

"There wasn't any sense of the door closing, and no one said, 'Well, it's all over, or anything like that,'" says James Hooley, director of the president's advance team. "I think everybody just had their own thoughts."

A little more than an hour after Bush was sworn in, the Reagans took off for Los Angeles aboard the plane they had flown so often as Air Force One. Now it was SAM 27000, the correct radio designation since no sitting president was aboard.

Stuart Spencer, a California political consultant associated with Reagan since before he won the California governorship in 1966, was on the flight.

"We talked about things clear back from '65 on various high points," Spencer recalls. "Nostalgia is the word I would use, not sadness."

COPING WITH CHANGE — Former President Ronald Reagan is planning to write his memoirs in his retirement. Aides said he showed little emotion as he left the White House for the last time.

Susan Ford Vance, now married and raising a family in suburban Washington, was a 17-year-old college student registering for classes at the University of Kansas on the day Jimmy Carter was sworn in to replace her father in the White House.

"I had left about two weeks before my parents moved out, so I just sort of left like I was going away on a trip," she recalls.

A television tape was made, however, of her parents walking down the Capitol steps, getting in the helicopter and making the farewell flight around the city where Ford had served 28 years in Congress and the White House. A musician dubbed one of Mrs. Ford's favorite songs, "What I Did for Love," as background music.

"To this day, we still can't watch it," Ford's daughter says. "It's still a very emotional thing."

Reagan has signed a book deal worth up to $7 million and lined up a $50,000-per-page campaign she began in the White House. A drug treatment center bearing her name is planned for the San Fernando Valley.

of memoirs. "Where's the Rest of Me?" Reagan told the Los Angeles Herald Examiner he will write this one himself.

Reagan spends six hours a day at his penthouse office, which is decorated with many of the same items he had in the Oval Office — a miniature saddle, for instance, and pictures of his family. One visitor noticed a painting, still to be hung, of the Reagans' ranch north of Santa Barbara. Aides have denied rumors that the Reagans plan to sell the 688-acre hideaway.

His office has a view of the ocean on a clear day, but he can't see their pink brick house in Bel-Air from the window. The ex-president had to go into his wife's office down the hall to do that.

Mrs. Reagan is working on her memoirs, scheduled for publication this fall, and making appearances for the anti-drug campaign she began in the White House. A drug treatment center bearing her name is planned for the San Fernando Valley.

Urban Growth: Metropolitan areas ranked by growth between 1987 and 1995

Here's the Answer

QUESTION: We are going to finish our attic soon and get the use of a couple of extra bedrooms. It isn't very light up there now and we are considering having a dormer built on one side. The price of the project has scared us a little and we are wondering whether there is any alternative. We don't need a dormer for extra space, merely for extra light. Any suggestions?

ANSWER: Look into the possibility of obtaining the needed light with one or two skylights built into the roof. Some of the modern skylights are very attractive and add to overall appearance as well as furnishing extra light.

QUESTION: A clothes dryer and washer soon will be installed in our basement. It is going to be a tricky job to make a wall opening so the dryer can be vented to the outside. Can this be skipped and is there an alternative?

ANSWER: Don't even think about getting a clothes dryer for your basement if it is not going to be vented to the outside. The extra moisture it will spill into the house can cause all kinds of trouble. Hot air coming out of the dryer will find its way upstairs. One of several things it will do is force an air conditioner to work overtime. By all means, vent the dryer to the outside no matter how "tricky" the job is.

QUESTION: We soon will have some remodeling done to our house. We know about the necessity of getting a permit, but wonder what will happen if a permit is not obtained. We are afraid the building department will notify other town authorities and the assessment on our house will go up, increasing our taxes.

ANSWER: Yes, the information about your remodeling will be passed along to the proper authorities and you may get an extra assessment for tax purposes. But the results can be a lot worse if you try to skip the permit. There have been cases where house owners have had to dismantle a piece of new construction because they neglected the permit procedure. Many times the assessment is less than anticipated. Even if it isn't, you have the right to appeal the new assessment figure. But all that is beside the important point: doing the work without a permit is against the law.

QUESTION: We recently bought a house in the country for use as a vacation or second home. It has a very steep roof. Since it is due for reroofing, we wonder whether there is any special color that will tend to make the roof lines seem somewhat lower.

ANSWER: Just be sure to select shingles that are dark in color. A dark color makes a high roof seem less towering.

QUESTION: I know she'll deteriorate in time, but I would like to know whether it is better to store in metal or glass containers or anything else?

ANSWER: It will last longer in glass containers. Buy only as much as you will use immediately or within a few months.

How to cut remodeling costs

By Andy Long
The Associated Press

It costs a lot of money to remodel a kitchen or a bathroom. About $20,000 for a kitchen and $7,000 for a bathroom. These figures come from Remodeling Magazine, which says the amounts are calculated on the cost of a "total remodeling" of either of those much-needed rooms.

Before you throw up your hands and decide you will have to live with what you have, take heart. If you can afford to spend $500 to $1,000 for each room, there are ways to change the look and style of a room without total remodeling. These relatively small investments can pay big dividends in the future since real estate brokers say handsome kitchens and bathrooms sell houses more effectively than any other features.

Marilyn Lundy, New York interior designer, says the way to begin to change the appearance of a room is to choose a theme. It can be anything from traditional high-tech to Early American to various European styles. If you start with a new faucet, for example, its bright color will determine your choice of wallpaper or paint, both in color and style. Select new kitchen cabinets to coordinate with the faucet. A new coat of paint on the cabinets may be all that is needed to

Bulb program has taken root

By Earl Aronson
The Associated Press

The annual FlowerBulb Day signals the start of the fall bulb planting season around the world. In the United States, 117 neighborhoods in 77 cities in 24 states planted 100,000 flower bulbs this past fall as symbols of revitalization.

"Of all the partnerships which the Neighborhood Reinvestment Corp. has formed over the past 10 years, none has been more pleasurable than our partnership with the International FlowerBulb Center of Hillegom, Holland, to bring FlowerBulb Day to neighborhoods across America," said the corporation's executive director, William A. Whitehead.

Last year, he related, the Chattanooga (Tenn.) Community Neighborhood Housing Services spearheaded a Daffodil Project to beautify that city's St. Elmo section. With a grant from the corporation and advice from the FlowerBulb Information Center, 150 volunteers planted 25,000 daffodil bulbs along nearly two miles of St. Elmo Avenue, the neighborhood's "Paint Your Heart Out" refurbishing project.

"Five months later, the bulbs burst into bloom," Whitehead said, "delighting residents and increasing their pride in historic neighborhoods."

and make everything look modern with special products for the sink and bathtub.

If your bath is unusually small, consider replacing your shower curtains with new glass doors. This will automatically make the room seem larger. Consider a new mirror or medicine cabinet. Try adding a decorative wall sconce for extra lighting on both sides of the cabinet. Should you have harsh and unattractive ceiling lighting you can replace it with track lighting, pointing one of the lights toward the shower for a dramatic effect.

A window curtain in the bathroom can be replaced with a colored mini-blind. The blinds are widely available and easy to install. Paint the walls in a bright color that coordinates with the blinds for the illusion of greater space. New towel bars and decorative shelves will also add a fine touch for very little money.

Consider functionality as well as design. You can get a spray for the sink that is attractive and has a 5-foot-long retractable hose located within the faucet spout. Lundy says the idea of a theme is also excellent for the bathroom. Replacing dreary out-of-date faucets and sink handles with brightly colored ones or the smooth line of special-finish faucets will add new life to the room. Lundy points out that old-fashioned pedestal sinks are back in style. You can keep yours

Tax Adviser

By George Smith

QUESTION: My wife died in 1987. I have not remarried. My son, age 14, lives with me. Am I allowed to file a joint income tax return for 1988?

A. D.O. CINCINNATI

ANSWER: As long as you can claim your son as a dependent, you can file as a qualified widower for 1988 and use the same tax rates as "Married Filing Jointly." The same is true for 1989. If you can claim your son as a dependent and you have not remarried by Dec. 31, 1989, you can once again use these same tax rates.

QUESTION: On the advice of my tax preparer, I did not file the last year's income tax return on time because of missing information. My accountant not only gave me the wrong information, but he didn't apply for an extension to file my return. Now the Internal Revenue Service has hit me with a penalty and interest. This whole situation wasn't my fault and I'm really upset. How should I handle this?

A. L.A. SAN FRANCISCO

ANSWER: Very carefully. A recent Tax Court decision, in a similar case, reaffirmed the position of the IRS that a penalty should be assessed against the taxpayer for the late filing of his tax return. The court said that an individual's reliance on the advice of his accountant did not constitute reasonable cause for the untimely filing of his tax return. Thus, late filing penalties

What's up in mutual funds?

Three experts offer investment advice

Changing Times

What are experts who make their living buying or evaluating mutual funds telling investors today?

Changing Times magazine asked three such people to share their opinions and to recommend funds for 1989.

Kurt Brouwer, managing director, Brouwer & Janachowski: Brouwer, a San Francisco investment adviser who specializes in no-load mutual funds, wants funds to show less volatility than the market as a whole. So the first thing he looks at when evaluating a fund is how it does in a year when the market goes down, such as mid-1987 to mid-1988. If a mutual fund falls less than the overall market, Brouwer considers that to be a good omen.

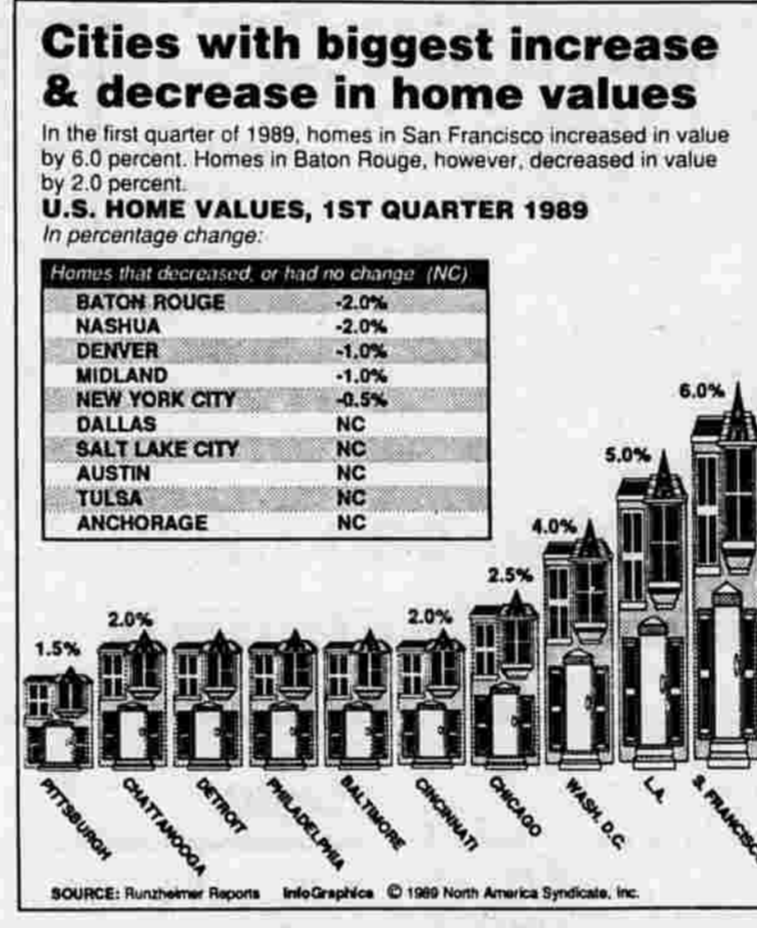

And when Brouwer picks a fund, he likes to stay with it. So he steers clear of overly specialized investments, such as sector funds. Brouwer says, "Once you've got a fund you like, check it once a quarter to make sure it's got the same sort of investments. The rest of the time, forget about it."

Brouwer's Picks:

- Evergreen Fund. "More than 210 companies in its portfolio have been taken over since 1971. Manager Steven Lieber is clearly great at finding undervalued small-company stocks."
- Vanguard Equity Income. "The trust contrarian fund I know of. It invests in a universe of 300 large stocks, many of them blue chips, but only buys them when they've fallen in price and are paying dividends 50 percent higher than the market average."

Michael Hirsch, chief investment officer, Republic National Bank of New York: Hirsch runs the FundTrust series of mutual funds, whose assets are shares of other mutual funds, and is convinced that owning just one fund is never enough. "The market is more like a roller coaster today than it was 10 years ago, and simply for safety I like to have more than one fund," he says. If Hirsch truly had his druthers, he'd buy 10 funds with a $10,000 bankroll, but he acknowledges that finding even that many top-quality funds is hard.

By investing only in stock (and bond) funds with above-average historical returns, Hirsch says he avoids the danger of a climb in one area being offset by a drop in

No snappy retort is needed

DEAR ABBY: After much deliberation, I have decided to write to you for help. I was born in Rhode Island and lived there until a few years ago when I moved to Maryland. The problem: I have a "New England" accent, and am constantly coming into contact with people who bring it up. It's one thing to comment on an accent and quite another to degrade it.

I work in a personnel office and must talk to many people. I cannot tell you what I go through! One person — an applicant from Guam — has called several times. The last time he asked to speak to the lady with the "foreign accent!"

One lady asked me where I was from because, she said, "It is obvious that you are not an American."

I have an accent. There is no doubt about that. I will go so far as to say that some people do not find a Midwestern accent very pleasant, but to call attention to it is rude.

One man asked me where I was from, and I said, "Rhode Island," he said, "Too bad." Nothing else. We now have another woman in our office who has an accent. She's from Alabama. Although she has not been called a foreigner, she has been told that she talks funny.

Please give me a snappy retort that will put these rude people in their place. Thank you.

A "FOREIGNER" FROM RHODE ISLAND

DEAR "FOREIGNER": You don't need a snappy retort. You need to change your attitude. When people comment about your accent, don't take it as a putdown. They are probably just being friendly and trying to engage you in conversation. However, if it really bothers you, enroll in a speech class.

DEAR ABBY: You reach more people in your column than anyone I can think of, so please publish this. Baby sitters who sit in a parent's home and earn more than $50 during a calendar quarter must pay Social Security tax and income tax on their earnings. If the parent who employs them chooses to claim a Child Care Credit on her tax return, why? Because in order to claim the Child Care Credit, the provider's identification and certification, which lists the baby sitter's name, address and Social Security number.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband is 47. About a year ago he fell on the ice and hurt his ribs. About once a month since then, his vision starts to "pulse" and afterward he gets a terrible headache. These attacks are coming more frequently and I'm worried. What should we do?

DEAR READER: From your description, I assume that your husband did not injure his head during the accident. This distinction is important because concussion (brain bruising) can cause headache and visual difficulties lasting many months.

If your husband simply injured his ribs he will have to find another explanation for his symptoms. Common possibilities include hypertension and migraine. He should be examined by a neurologist, a specialist in headaches, to establish a diagnosis so that treatment can be started.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband has all of a sudden expressed a desire to wear women's panties as a sexual gratification when making love. We are in our late 20s. What are your thoughts on this?

DEAR READER: I'd say that your husband has a problem but without more information I cannot judge how serious a problem. Fetishies (inanimate objects that arouse erotic feelings) can be trivial or may indicate deep-seated emotional disturbances. However, a little harmless kinky sex can add a lot of spice to a marriage. If the parent decides to claim the Child Care Credit, the baby sitter's pay should be increased enough to cover the resulting taxes (at least 32 percent) when federal, state and Social Security taxes are figured in.

When you consider that the Child Care Credit is only 20 percent to 30 percent (depending on your income) of the amount actually paid out for child care, wouldn't it be less expensive for everyone if the parent decided not to claim that credit?

A KENTUCKY TAXPAYER

DEAR TAXPAYER: Yes. And when many mothers on limited incomes realize that — they will probably forgo the "credit". Thanks for pointing it out.

DEAR ABBY: Your advice about washing hands after going to the bathroom was all wrong. It's more important to scrub them BEFORE.

Better yet, both before and after, but especially before. Your genitals may be the cleanest part of your body bacteriologically; your hands are the dirties.

When I was a straphanger commuter in New York City, the first thing I did after arriving to my office was to scrub away other people's germs.

Alcohol can harm your unborn baby

By Robert C. Park, M.D., President, The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

Starting with the moment you learn you are pregnant, your baby will change your life. You'll try to eat better, get plenty of sleep, give up smoking, stop taking any medicine not prescribed by your doctor, and give up alcohol.

You may wonder what harm an infrequent drink may do. Many doctors believe that a glass of wine on a special occasion would not damage the baby. But the medical facts are that when you drink, the alcohol passes through your system and into your baby's.

And no one knows at what level, if any, alcohol is safe for the baby. What is known is that large amounts of alcohol consumed on a steady basis does cause problems. During pregnancy, a heavy drinker may suffer a spontaneous abortion — miscarriage, or have a baby that did not grow properly in her uterus (twomb) and is underweight when born.

Children of women who abuse alcohol run a high risk of having "fetal alcohol syndrome" or FAS. FAS children can have facial deformities and heart problems, and may be slow in developing physically.

You may wonder if it is safer to have wine or beer than straight alcohol or a mixed drink. The fact is that an 8 ounce glass of wine, a

'Grapes of Wrath' turns 50
John Steinbeck wrote it in only 5 months

"The tractors came over the roads and into the fields, great crawlers moving like insects, having the incredible strength of insects. They crawled over the ground, laying the track and rolling on it and picking it up. Diesel tractors, purring while they stood idle, they thundered when they moved, and then settled down to a droning roar."

— John Steinbeck
"The Grapes of Wrath"

By Geneva Collins
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — "Finished this day and I hope it's good," John Steinbeck wrote in his journal in 1938.

The book he had just completed was "The Grapes of Wrath," a novel that would awaken the social conscience of Americans in a way that "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "The Jungle" and few other works of fiction have.

Viking Press, which published "The Grapes of Wrath" on April 14, 1939, is marking the 50th anniversary of the book with a commemorative edition containing an introduction by Studs Terkel. It is also publishing "Working Days," Journals Steinbeck kept during the research and writing of what critics consider his greatest work.

When he sat down to write his saga of the Joads, a Dust Bowl family migrating to California for a new life, Steinbeck, 36, had already attained celebrity with "Tortilla Flat," "Of Mice and Men" (which had been made into a long-running Broadway play) and four other novels.

But the author had already laid much groundwork, having studied the migrant farmers from Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas and Arkansas — derisively dubbed "Okies" — for a series of articles that appeared in The San Francisco News. He had bought an old bakery truck and equipped it with blankets, food and camping equipment and spent time in a migrant resettling camp. (Contrary to popular myth, he never made the trek from Oklahoma to California, as did his fictional Joads.)

Steinbeck had also written a 70,000-word precursor to "The Grapes of Wrath" that he destroyed, saying the novel was too vicious and "smart-alec," too much of a political tract. But it rid him of some of the venom he felt against the Associated Farmers Inc. and others he felt responsible for the workers' plight, and allowed him to write what he thought was a more rounded novel.

Indeed, the question most frequently debated about "The Grapes of Wrath," which won a Pulitzer Prize, is whether it is art or firebrand propaganda.

"Sure, cried the tenant farmers, but it's our land. We were born on it, and got killed on it, and we died on it. Even if it's no good it's still ours. That's what makes it ours. That makes ownership, not a paper with numbers on it."

Immediately after its release, newspaper editorials, legislators and farmers decried the novel as a distorted portrait of migrant life. The book was burned in several cities, including Salinas, Calif., Steinbeck's hometown, and was banned in many libraries and schools.

Eleanor Roosevelt defended the book in her weekly column, and in 1940 a congressional committee held hearings in Oklahoma to find out whether the squalid conditions and brutal treatment of the workers recounted in the novel were accurate. The committee's findings vindicated the author.

Upon Steinbeck's death in 1968, The New York Times wrote the following about the book: "The timorous and savagely reactionary among us were fretfully afraid that Steinbeck had gone too far in his novel's portrayal of the desperately distressed in America. Bless their hearts, they were dead right. He was out to rouse, not to soothe us into asking human beings to starve quietly and inconspicuously during those years of Depression and despair."

Terkel said he finds modern-day critics who call "The Grapes of Wrath" propaganda "pretty tiresome."

"You can say 'Moby Dick' is propaganda," the author and radio raconteur said in a telephone interview from his Chicago office.

Terkel, who toured the Midwest in 1967 when family farms were foreclosing one after another, and who witnessed the drought of 1988 played out on the six o'clock news, finds Steinbeck's words startlingly relevant today.

"It's as though we never experienced the Depression and hadn't learned anything from it," said Terkel, who planned to mark the anniversary by reading from the novel on his radio show, interspersed with selections from "Dustbowl Ballads" by Woody Guthrie.

It should be noted that while critics hashed out the literary merits of the book, the public snapped it up in droves. It was the best-selling book of 1939 and one of the top 10 best-sellers in 1940. It also produced a successful movie adaptation starring Henry Fonda that won director John Ford an Academy Award.

"The Grapes of Wrath" remains one of Viking's all-time best-sellers today and has sold some 14 million copies worldwide, said Viking spokesman Paul Slovak.

"In the evening a strange thing happened: the 20 families became one family, the children were the children of all. The loss of a home became one loss, and the golden time in the West was one dream."

In awarding Steinbeck the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1962, the Swedish Academy cited the "towering standard" the author set in "The Grapes of Wrath" more than two decades earlier, although he had produced more than a dozen novels and plays since that work.

DeMott, founder of The Steinbeck Quarterly and an English professor at Ohio University in Athens, Ohio, says in the preface of "Working Days" that Steinbeck's legacy was "his willingness to risk everything to write the best he could with what what gifts he had, and in doing so to reveal, unflinching, the enduring human spirit among the ruthless shapes of paradise."

Market sees no recession

By Chet Currier

NEW YORK — If you are willing to take the word of one veteran forecaster, you can be confident that the economy won't slip into a recession this year.

One of the best leading indicators we have of the economy, the stock market, is not forecasting a recession," said Jeffrey Applegate at Tucker, Anthony & L.L. Day Inc.

When stocks crashed in the fall of 1987, they note, the dire events they seemed to be portending never came to pass. That was by no means the first time that the market predicted a phantom event.

Nevertheless, analysts say, it would be very unusual for a real recession to catch stock investors completely by surprise.

Animal-rights issues going to shareholders

STAMFORD (AP) — After years of fruitless picketing outside the headquarters of U.S. Surgical Corp., to protest the company's use of dogs in product tests, animal-rights activists on animal experiments it may conduct, IBM has recommended defeat of the resolution.

The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals drafted a resolution for the McDonald's Corp. proxy ballot this year, but withdrew it after McDonald's agreed to assess farming practices used to produce its meat and eggs.

"It was gratifying this year to find McDonald's was willing to sit down and discuss the proposal," said Peter Lovenheim, an attorney from Rochester, N.Y., who represented ASPCA in its negotiations.

Lovenheim also was the stockholder who brought suit against Iroquois Brands in 1985 to force it to accept his own animal-rights resolution. Lovenheim, at that time, wanted to know whether the French farmers who supplied Iroquois Brands with goose liver were treating the fowl humanely.

"I would say it's a new way of doing business. It's a thoughtful and sophisticated way to encourage companies to seriously consider questions of humane treatment of animals in connection with their business," he said.

Report cheers Wall Street

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices rose a moderate 0.4 percent in March, the government said Friday in a report that buoyed spirits on Wall Street, where fears of spiraling inflation had risen in tandem with earlier steep price increases.

Analysts said that while last month's restrained gain in the Producer Price Index for finished goods should allay fears that inflation will skyrocket, it does indicate that price rises persist.

March's 0.4 percent gain, combined with steep gains of 1.0 percent in January and February, works out to a compound annual inflation rate of 10.2 percent for the first quarter of 1989.

That is the largest quarterly increase in eight years and represents a sharp escalation from the 1988 inflation rate of 4.0 percent.

Nevertheless, the stock market, cheered by the apparent easing in inflationary pressures, was up sharply by early afternoon, rising 35.38 points after four hours of trading to 1931.38.

The market appeared to shrug off Friday's merchandise trade report, which showed the deficit widening 20.9 percent in February to $10.5 billion.

Inventories up, sales down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Business inventories rose 0.5 percent in February while sales plunged 0.9 percent in their steepest decline in more than two years, the government said Friday.

The Commerce Department said inventories held on shelves and backlogs climbed to a seasonally adjusted $783.6 billion in February following a 0.8 percent increase in January.

Business sales, meanwhile, dropped to a seasonally adjusted $597.3 billion in February after rising 1.1 percent during the previous month. February's decline was the first dip since sales fell 0.2 percent in November 1987, the month after the stock market crash, and marked the steepest drop since a 3 percent decline in January 1987.

The report was consistent with a host of other government reports that have indicated economic growth is slowing as the record peacetime expansion extends into its seventh year.

February's business activity produced an increase in the ratio of inventories to sales to 1.31, meaning it would take 1.31 months to exhaust inventories at February's sales pace. The ratio stood at 1.48 in January.

Milken agrees to terms

NEW YORK (AP) — Junk bond tycoon Michael Milken agreed Friday to settle more than $600 million of his assets to guarantee payment if he is convicted of fraud and racketeering in the government's largest-ever securities trial.

The former Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. financier also was ordered to post $1 million bond and surrender his passport until an expected trial later this year culminating Wall Street's insider trading scandals.

U.S. District Judge Kimba Wood turned down a government request that Milken post an additional $250 million bail, saying the 42-year-old former broker was unlikely to flee the country before trial.

Milken has been the main target of the government's crackdown on white-collar crime. He is widely credited with reshaping corporate America in the 1980s through the sale of high-yield junk bonds from Drexel's Beverly Hills, Calif., office.

Seabrook tests OK; funding plan backed

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — A federal bankruptcy judge said Friday he will not block low-power testing of the Seabrook nuclear power plant. He also approved a settlement that ensures funding for the embattled $5.9 billion project at least until the end of this year.

In making the rulings during a hearing on the reorganization of lead Seabrook owner Public Service Company of New Hampshire, Judge James Yacos found that, based on the record before him, "it is likely that Seabrook is ultimately going to go into commercial operation."

Yacos' rulings also helped increase the likelihood by removing some financial uncertainty about the project.

A Seabrook foe disputed Yacos' prediction, saying he based it only on testimony from Public Service and its creditors. The creditors stand to fare far better in the utility's reorganization if the reactor operates, and none of them opposed prompt low-power testing of the plant funding deal.

"You've got a record made on that solely by parties who have an interest in taking an optimistic view of (Seabrook's prospects) — who by the way don't have a very good track record in their predictions," Robert Backus, lawyer for ratepayers' and anti-nuclear groups, told Yacos.

Seabrook, which was completed in July 1986 but remains stalled by evacuation-planning and financial problems, originally was planned for commercial operation in 1979.

Yacos replied, "I deal with what I hear in this court. It may or may not be reality, but that's what I deal with."

The judge acknowledged that there still are questions about how a Nuclear Regulatory Commission licensing board will rule on remaining Seabrook issues and how appeals of those rulings will fare.

"I, unfortunately, can't sit around and wait for all that to happen," Yacos said. He said further Seabrook delays only would hamper efforts to reach an agreement on a Public Service reorganization plan. Public Service's Seabrook investment represents more than two-thirds of its assets.

"This is simply another matter of leaning toward getting a plan before the court for confirmation," the judge said of his rulings.

'Propfan' does well in flight

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A 56-hour program of flight testing is the next step in the development of Allison Gas Turbine's "propfan," a revolutionary air-liner engine that marks the company's return to that market after a 20-year absence.

The propfan, which combines the speed of jets and the fuel efficiency of propellers, is jointly produced by Allison and Pratt & Whitney division of United Technologies Corp.

The engine was used in flight Thursday for the first time on a McDonnell Douglas plane over Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., Allison officials said.

During the 98-minute test the engine was mounted on the left side of an MD-80, similar to the DC-9 airliner. It flew at a maximum altitude of 15,000 feet and a top speed of 275 mph. A conventional Pratt & Whitney engine was mounted on the right side of the plane, but at times was throttled back to idle.

"In that instance, it was flying the whole airplane," said Allison spokesman William C. Campbell. "It did absolutely beautifully, better than the engineers could imagine."

General Electric Co. already has tested its own propfan engine aboard the same McDonnell Douglas plane.

Allison is working with McDonnell Douglas on developing the propfan for a line of airplanes to be marketed to airlines. Allison also is working with Messerschmitt-Bolkow-Blohm of West Germany on a commuter airplane that would be powered by propfan engines, officials said.

Allison, an Indianapolis-based division of General Motors, until now has concentrated on engines for military, helicopter and general aviation aircraft.

Andrew Gaze given funds

NEW YORK (AP) — Andrew Gaze, who in a six-month stay at Seton Hall helped the university to the NCAA basketball final, had $25,000 placed in a family fund by his club team in Australia, the New York Times reported today.

The Times quoted Bruce Ward, general manager of the Melbourne Tigers, as saying that the money was put into a trust fund over a period of six months in 1988, when the team became professional.

He said it had come from a fund of $362,000 established by sponsors for the Tigers, who are coached by Gaze's father, Lindsay.

The newspaper quoted an official of the NCAA as saying the payments raised questions about whether the rules on amateur status were violated. However, the organization has not started a formal investigation.

Seton Hall Coach P.J. Carlesimo told the Times that he was unaware of the money going into the fund and Gaze himself said the money was "more like expenses."

Gaze, 23, enrolled at Seton Hall last October and averaged 18.6 points per game for the Pirates on their run to the title game, which they lost 80-79 in overtime to Michigan.

His 3-point shooting plus his maturity and experience — he had played for the Australian team in the past two Olympics — was cited as a key factor in keeping the Pirates together and he was the MVP of the West regional.

Bergeron back with Nordiques

QUEBEC (AP) — Michel Bergeron returned to Quebec on Friday after two seasons with the New York Rangers, when he was named coach of the Nordiques.

"I have always had the Nordiques in my blood," said Bergeron, who coached Quebec from 1980 until 1987.

Bergeron, fired as coach of the New York Rangers on April 1 with two games left in the season, will replace Jean Perron, whose decision to resign was also announced at the news conference.

Perron, who succeeded Ron Lapointe as coach last December, will remain with the Nordiques as a scout handling young players.

"I'm not leaving with any bitterness. It's for the good of Jean Perron and the Quebec Nordiques," said Perron, who was sitting next to general manager Martin Madden.

When Bergeron was traded to the Rangers in 1987 for a first-round draft pick and $100,000, he said he welcomed the move.

Asked whether any problems that may have sparked his departure from Quebec City will resurface, he said: "Two years ago is in the past and I don't live in the past. I'm looking on the positive side."

Bergeron, 42, guided the Nordiques to the playoffs in each of his seven years with the team and was loved by fans for his fiery outbursts and for standing on the bench as he shouted at officials.

Bergeron said he decided to return to Quebec for family reasons and also because he is familiar with the franchise.

"I know the people, the manager and the organization. And when my girls found out, they gave each other a high five," said Bergeron, who has three children. "It's a great day in their lives."

Bergeron, who broke short a Florida vacation to attend the news conference, stressed the importance of a good training camp and a fast start next season.

"And from there, we're going to make the playoffs."

Gamble pays off for Celtics

NBA Roundup

By Howard Ulman
The Associated Press

BOSTON — Rookie guard Kevin Gamble, who had scored 50 points in his entire NBA career, had 20 points, 10 assists and seven rebounds as the Boston Celtics won their 14th consecutive home game with a 113-104 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers Friday night.

The victory improved Boston's record to 40-37 and gave it a two-game lead over Washington in the battle for the eighth and final Eastern Conference playoff berth. The Celtics also moved within two games of Philadelphia for the seventh spot. All three teams have five regular-season games left.

The victory improved Boston's record to 40-37 and gave it a two-game lead over Washington in the battle for the eighth and final Eastern Conference playoff berth. The Celtics also moved within two games of Philadelphia for the seventh spot. All three teams have five regular-season games left.

Kevin McHale led Boston with 25 points, Reggie Lewis had 24 and Robert Parish 21. But it was Gamble, getting a shot at his first pro start because Dennis Johnson was sidelined with a sprained ankle, who sparked the Celtics.

He had six points in a 16-0 run that gave Boston the lead for good. He had the last four points in the surge, making the score 76-73 with 3:19 left in the third quarter.

Then Gamble, signed Dec. 15 when Larry Bird went on the injured list after undergoing surgery on both heels, hit a foul-line jumper with 2:53 left in the game. It gave Boston its biggest lead, 107-94.

The Cavaliers, who won the season series with Boston 4-1, were led by Mark Price and Larry Nance with 21 points each. They suffered their third straight road loss as their record dropped to 55-23, second behind Central Division leader Detroit.

Boston led 34-26 after one quarter and 56-49 at halftime. But the Cavaliers started the third period with a 10-2 run that gave them a 59-58 edge. The Gamble-led surge propelled Boston to an 82-79 lead entering the fourth quarter.

The Celtics led 95-91 with 5:50 remaining. A 12-3 spurt capped by Gamble's jumper made the score 107-94 with 2:53 left. Boston led by at least six points the rest of the way.

CHIEF STUFFER — Boston's Robert Parish gets ready to block the shot of Cleveland's Brad Daugherty during the game Friday night at the Boston Garden. The Celtics won, 113-104.

On Detroit's next possession, Isiah Thomas threw a pass directly to Trent Tucker, who took a return pass from Mark Jackson for a layup that made it 102-99 with 39 seconds left.

After a scuffle between Ewing and Laimbeer was broken up, John Salley missed a jumper that was rebounded by Ewing, and his two free throws with 18 seconds to go sealed the outcome, which gave the Atlantic Division champions their 50th victory for the first time since 1981.

Mark Jackson added 21 points for the Knicks, who had lost five of their previous eight home games after winning 26 straight here.

Rick Mahorn scored 17 points for the Pistons, who won 22 of their previous 24 games and have beaten every team in the NBA this season except the Knicks.

Nets 123, Bulls 111: In East Rutherford, N.J., Chris Morris scored five straight points to ignite a 15-21 third-quarter run and the New Jersey Nets beat Chicago 123-111 Friday night, extending the Bulls' losing streak to a season-high five games.

New Jersey made 16 of 23 shots in the third quarter when it outscored Chicago 39-26, and the second half 28-42.

Of their first 11 and finished the fourth quarter as the Nets made a 3-point field goal with 5:04 left to put the Hornets back in the lead, 110-108.

Charles Barkley led the 76ers with 25 points and Mike Gminski added 21.

an error. Letter then walked Carmen Castillo to force in the tying run.

Leading 4-0 in the fifth, Frank Viola yielded a leadoff single to Gary Ward. Ward moved up on a grounder and a fly out and scored on Rickey Henderson's single. Viola, who has not won in three starts, got in trouble by walking Sax and Mattingly before allowing Balboni's homer deep into the left-field seats on a 1-2 pitch.

Entering the game, New York's designated hitters had combined for no homers, one RBI and a .097 average in nine games.

It was Balboni's fourth career grand slam, his last coming against Minnesota on Sept. 29, 1985, while with Kansas City.

Balboni entered the game with three hits in 24 at-bats, and after popping out with runners at first and second in the fourth, he was booted.

With one out in the second, Letter hit Gene Larkin with a pitch. Larkin took second on a grounder and scored on Brian Harper's single. Larkin, who was hit by a pitch 15 times last season, left the game with a bruised right forearm.

The Twins added two runs in the third when Castillo blooped a single to right with the bases loaded. Minnesota made it 4-0 in the fourth when center fielder Roberto Kelly dropped Gaetti's pop fly for an error, allowing a run to score.

Brewers 8, Indians 4: In Milwaukee, Robin Yount tripled home the go-ahead run in the seventh inning Friday night and the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Cleveland Indians 8-4 to end a three-game losing streak.

Paul Molitor, activated from the 15-day disabled list earlier in the day, hit a two-run homer in the Brewers' eighth. He had been out with a torn ligament in his right hand.

Yount, who led Milwaukee with 91 RBI last season, drove in his first run of the season after Gary Sheffield drew a one-out walk from Joe Skalski. Yount then scored on third baseman Brook Jacoby's throwing error for a 6-4 lead.

Mark Knudson, 1-0, was the winner and Dan Plesac got his second save. Skalski, 0-2, was ejected in the eighth after hitting Charlie O'Brien with a pitch.

Rangers 4, Tigers 2: In Detroit, Rick Leach drove in the go-ahead runs with a pinch single in the eighth inning Friday night as the Texas Rangers beat the Detroit Tigers 4-2 and extended their winning streak to six games, the longest in the majors.

Jamie Moyer, 2-0, allowed eight hits and struck out five in seven-plus innings. Moyer walked four, including Fred Lynn to start the eighth, and left Russell finished for his third save.

Blue Jays 3, Royals 0: At Toronto, Jimmy Key pitched a two-hitter and Nelson Lirio broke a tie with a two-out, two-run single in the seventh inning Friday as the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Kansas City Royals 3-0 in their home opener.

Key, 2-1, retired the first 11 batters before he bobbed the throw on George Brett's grounder to first in the fourth.

He struck out eight, walked none and had a no-hitter until Kevin Seitzer led off the seventh with a solid single to center.

Athletics 7, White Sox 4: At Chicago, Carney Lansford had four hits and scored three runs and Dave Stewart won his third game of the season as the Oakland Athletics beat Chicago 7-4 Friday, spoiling the White Sox' home opener.

Lansford had two singles and two doubles for his first 4-hit game since last July 4 at Cleveland.

Stewart, 3-0, scattered seven hits in 6 1/3 innings and struck out three in winning his ninth game without a loss in the past two Aprils. Rick Honeycutt went the final 2-2-3 innings, allowing a run on Matt Merullo's first major-league home run with two out in the ninth.

Stewart had trouble only with Harold Baines, who drove in three runs for the White Sox before the opening day crowd of 27,380.

Baines singled in a run in the third inning to tie the game at 1-1 and two more in the fifth to tie it at 3-3. But the Athletics broke open with four runs in the sixth, three unearned because of third baseman Ken Williams' error.

Jefferies, Cone lead Mets

NL Roundup

Gregg Jefferies' bases-clearing double highlighted a seven-run fifth inning and David Cone scattered seven hits as the New York Mets defeated St. Louis 5-4 Friday night, spoiling the Cardinals' home opener.

The Mets batted around in the fifth before chasing Joe Magrane, 1-2, to send the Cardinals to their third straight loss and knock them into last place in the National League East. The Mets are a half-game ahead of St. Louis.

Gary Carter, the 10th batter in the fifth, greeted reliever Kris Carpenter with a two-run double. Mookie Wilson and Keith Hernandez also drove in a run apiece in the fifth as New York snapped a 1-1 tie.

Wilson added his first home run, off Frank DiPino, in the sixth. The Mets collected 11 hits and Darryl Strawberry was the only starter without a hit.

Cone, 1-1, struck out two and walked two, giving up a sacrifice fly to Pedro Guerrero in the fifth, a homer to John Morris in the eighth and an RBI groundout to Jose Quiendo in the ninth.

Tim Lincecum started the Mets' fifth with an infield single and Magrane, who gave up eight hits and eight runs in 4 2/3 innings, walked Kevin Elster and Cone to load the bases. Wilson singled to drive in a run and Jefferies doubled down the first-base line to score three more.

After Magrane walked Kevin Reynolds intentionally, Hernandez followed with an RBI single to score Jefferies. Carter followed with his double to the gap in right-center.

The Cardinals took a 1-0 lead in the first on Guerrero's sacrifice fly.

The Cardinals took a 1-0 lead in the first on Guerrero's sacrifice fly.

four-run lead, then rallied to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-6 Friday night to break a four-game losing streak.

With the score tied 6-6, after the Pirates had tied it with four runs in the eighth, Nelson Santovenia drew a leadoff walk from Scott Medvin. Pinch-runner Otis Nixon stole second and moved to third on Medvin's wild pitch. Johnson, who led all major leaguers with 22 pinch-hits last season, doubled to right.

Joe Hesketh, 1-0, got the victory with relief help from Andy McGaffigan.

East nine escapes with its third win of year

HARTFORD — Coming from behind may be the secret formula for the East Catholic High baseball team, but it isn't doing much help for Coach Jim Penders' health.

"It's nice to come back again," said Penders following the Eagles' 4-3 come-from-behind win over South Catholic at Highland Park. "But it doesn't help my blood pressure. It is good for the kids and their confidence," he added.

East is now 3-0 for the season with an important All Connecticut Conference clash today at 11 a.m. at Eagle Field against St. Bernard. South slips to 0-2 with the loss.

South starter and loser Nick Zanio had East no-hit through five innings. He came apart in the sixth inning where East plated all of its runs.

Marc Mangiacosta started it off with a walk. Paul Dumais singled and the pair pulled off a double steal. Joe Gorman, hero of East's Wednesday win over cross-town Manchester, doubled inside the right field line to tie it at 2-2 and he came home on freshman Rob Penders' long double to left. Penders took third on an overthrow and came home on Jimmy Robinson's sacrifice fly to right.

South almost pulled it out in the bottom of the final inning. Miguel Santiago's catchable shot to right was missed, with a run coming in and runners winding up at second and third. Mike DeLillo then asked out. Reliever Kevin Greene, who earned a save, intentionally walked Zanio to load the bases. Marco Face lofted a shallow fly to right, which right fielder Mike Hickey corralled. He then pegged home to catcher Jimmy Penders, who slapped the tag on Chris Arace for the final out.

"We were extremely fortunate to win," Penders said. "It was nice to see Kevin Greene come in and be the stopper for us."

John Fisher, second of three Eagle pitchers, picked up the win. He worked 2 2/3 innings in which he allowed only two hits, walked one and hit a batter. He struck out none.

Coventry girls trounce Rocky Hill

ROCKY HILL — The Coventry High girls' softball team, coming off a 15-run setback to RHAM High, bounced back quickly Friday afternoon with a 19-0 rout of Rocky Hill High in Charter Oak Conference play. The game was called after five innings due to the mercy (15-run) rule.

Coventry is now 5-1 for the season while the Terriers are 1-2. Coventry's next game is Tuesday at 11 a.m. at home against Windham High.

The Patriots exploded for eight runs in the first inning to put this one away. Coventry had 15 hits, led by Jen Daniels' four safeties that included a pair of triples. Nektaria Gitis, Kelli McConnell and Chris Gagnon added two hits apiece.

"It was a good game to have after yesterday's loss (17-2) to RHAM," said Coventry Coach Rick Page. "The kids needed a game like this to get back on track."

Gagnon and Jenna Haynes combined on a two-bitter for Coventry.

Walks play role in Bolton defeat

EAST HAMPTON — The good news for the Bolton High girls' softball team Friday was homesteading East Hampton High mustered only two hits, and the Bulldog defense was superb with only one error.

SAFE — Manchester High's Tracy Hart slides safely across with a run as Fermi catcher Chris Kaplan holds onto a late throw during Friday's game.

But that wasn't the story as the host Bellingers parlayed 18 walks, and that one miscue, into a 7-5 victory in Charter Oak Conference play.

The loss was the third in a row for Bolton while the Bellingers are 2-0. Bolton is now idle until April 25 when it visits Cromwell.

"We should have won this one," Bolton Coach Jen Kohut said.

Bolton had a 3-0 lead before East Hampton scored five times in the fifth on eight walks. Bolton tied it in the sixth before four walks, and the lone Bolton miscue, plated the deciding runs in the bottom of the inning for the Bellingers.

Wendy Neil and Robin Mitchell shared the pitching chores for Bolton with the latter taking the loss.

Bolton had 10 hits. Dawn Bedard doubled and tripled, Jen Mannaiga singled twice and Neil slugged two doubles for the Bulldogs.

Manchester girls hold off Fermi

Manchester High girls' softball team jumped to an early lead, and then held on for a 9-7 win over Fermi High in CCC East Division play Friday afternoon at Fitzgerald Field.

Manchester is now 2-0 while the Falcons are 0-2. Manchester's next game is Monday at 11 a.m. at home against Windham High.

The Indians combined five singles by Pam Duguay, Erin Twible, Beth O'Brien, Beth Romane-wicz and Mary Tsokalas and three walks for seven runs in the bottom of the first to wipe out a 2-0 Fermi lead. Manchester added single runs in the second and fourth while Fermi plated two in the fourth and threatened with three in the seventh.

Dana Hensley relieved starting and winning pitcher Lisa Moriconi in the seventh and earned the save. She yielding an RBI infield hit but, with two runners aboard, got the final two outs on a fly and groundout.

"Lisa (Moriconi) pitched well and made some defense plays that were fantastic. She really helped herself defensively," Manchester Coach Mary Faigant said.

Concannon, Maura McPadden and Kendra Darby had two hits each for the Eagles.

Indians down visiting Fermi

GREENFIELD — Visiting Manchester High took advantage of five Fermi errors and used a two-run homer off the bat of senior Keith DiYesso to knock off the Falcons, 6-1, in CCC East Division action Friday afternoon.

Manchester is 1-0 in the league and 1-1 overall. The Indians will play at Windham Monday at 1 p.m. Fermi remains winless at 0-2 in the CCC East and 0-3 overall. Fermi has lost 29 in a row dating back to 1987.

Junior righthander Matt Hehn went the distance for Manchester to pick up the win. Hehn allowed five hits, walked two and struck out five. Ken Mahon took the loss for Fermi.

DiYesso blasted his two-run shot in the top of the first. Manchester upped its lead to 5-1 with two runs in the fifth and added an insurance marker in the sixth.

Steve Joyner had an RBI single in the second inning while Don Laurinits knocked in a run in a two-run fifth inning for the Indians.

Manchester Coach Don Race was impressed with Hehn's ability to get out of trouble. "He had pretty good stuff. He had the stuff needed at critical times. He left quite a few (7) on base," Race said. "He had enough to get by, but I think he's going to get better. This was his first start on the varsity level and this has to help his confidence."

Coventry High bats come alive in win

ROCKY HILL — With 13 hits in its first four games, Coventry High unloaded for 11 Friday afternoon en route to a 12-2 win over Rocky Hill High in Charter Oak Conference baseball play.

The Patriots are now 3-2 with their next game Monday at 11 a.m. at Canton High.

"The kids were all swinging and making contact," Coventry Coach Bob Plaster said.

D.J. Fijela led the way for Coventry, going 3-for-4 with a pair of doubles and two RBIs. Kevin Quintillano was 2-for-3. Paul Krukoski 2-for-4 and each drove in two runs and freshman Lee McPeak added a two-run double. Coventry scored five times in each the third and fourth innings.

Chris McCarthy worked the first six innings to pick up the win. He allowed all five Terrier hits while striking out one and walking one. "Chris threw strikes," Plaster said. "He kept himself out of trouble and they hit the ball and we made the plays." Sophomore centerfielder Rob Topfiff starred defensively with two stellar grabs for Coventry.

Cheney Tech nine tops Bellingers

EAST HAMPTON — It was a longer afternoon than expected, but it was worth it for Coach Bill Baccaro and his Cheney Tech baseball team as the Beavers tipped East Hampton, 5-4, Friday in CCC play.

Cheney is unbeaten at 4-0 while the Bellingers are winless at 0-3. Cheney's next game is Tuesday at 11 a.m. at home against Rocky Hill High.

Only one of the East Hampton runs was earned, and that was on a wild pitch. "We have a lot of young kids playing varsity ball for the first time. They'll get better, but they're a little nervous with the game on the line. We were fortunate we didn't give this one away," Baccaro said.

East Hampton scored twice in the fourth when a routine grounder was thrown away, and tied it in the sixth when another routine grounder was pegged wildly.

Cheney scored the deciding run in the seventh. Don Sauer drew a walk and then stole second base. Bob Bidwell lined sharply out to center and Jason Breakitt fanned in front of an intentional walk to winning pitcher Jeff Allen, who was already 2-for-2. That brought up Tom Murphy and he dumped a 1-2 offering into shallow center for an RBI single. It proved to be the game-winner.

Sauer drove in a run in Cheney's two-run fifth with a single. Bidwell brought home the other with an infield out on which the first baseman made a sensational stop.

Brett Lassen's sacrifice fly plated Allen for a temporary 4-3 Cheney lead in the top of the sixth.

The left-handed Allen (2-0) went the distance for Cheney. He scattered five hits, struck out 15 and issued four walks. Todd Rose collected two hits for Cheney, which had five different players drive in a run.

Petchark hurls no-hit gem

GREENFIELD, Mass. — Chief Petchark was the star for the Manchester Community College baseball team Friday afternoon.

Petchark tossed a no-hitter as MCC won its third in a row, 11-2, over Greenfield Community College. Petchark struck out seven. Both Greenfield runs were unearned as the Cougars committed three errors.

MCC moves to 4-9 while Greenfield falls to 1-5. MCC will host the University of New Haven junior varsity in a doubleheader Sunday starting at noon.

Dave Sino led the Cougars with two hits, two runs batted in and two stolen bases. Keith Hobby and Rafael Rodriguez also had two hits for MCC. Also hitting well for MCC were Troy Thornton, Ray Massa, Miguel Olmo and Mike Charter.

BOSOX SHOOT DOWN O'S

AL Roundup

BOSTON (AP) — John Dopsos pitched three-hit ball for 7 2-3 innings and Dwight Evans drove in three runs Friday night, hitting the Boston Red Sox over the Baltimore Orioles 7-4.

Dopsos, 2-0, struck out a career-high nine and walked four in his first American League start. Dopsos was 3-11 as a rookie last season with Montreal.

Evans hit an RBI double off the third-base bag during a two-run fourth inning and then singled home the tie-breaking run in the sixth. The Red Sox won for the fourth time in five games after losing their first four.

Dopsos was relieved after the Orioles scored twice in the eighth on a passed ball by Rich Gedman and an error by first baseman Nick Esasky. Bob Stanley finished for his first save.

Phil Bradley hit a solo home run, his second, in the Orioles' first and Craig Worthington had an RBI double in the fifth.

Dave Schmidt, 0-1, held Boston hitless for three innings before the Red Sox took a 2-1 lead in the fourth. Ellis Burks and Mike Greenwell opened with singles and, with one out, Evans' possible double-play grounder went off third base for a double. Esasky followed with an RBI groundout.

Greenwell led off the sixth with a single and took third as Rice extended his hitting streak to nine games with a line single to left. Evans poked a single to right that scored Greenwell and Rich Gedman had a sacrifice fly.

Greenwell, Rice and Evans each hit run-scoring singles in the seventh off Mark Thurmond.

Yankees 8, Twins 5: In New York, Don Slaught singled in two runs to snap a seventh-inning tie and Steve Balboni, booted earlier in the game, hit a grand slam as the New York Yankees rallied to beat the Minnesota Twins 8-5 Friday night.

It was the Yankees' second straight victory after dropping seven in a row.

Al Leiter, 1-1, struggled for New York, allowing five hits while walking nine and striking out 10. He threw 161 pitches, left after a leadoff walk in the ninth and Lee Gueterman finished for his second save.

With the score tied at 5, Don Mattingly opened the seventh with a single off reliever Mike Cook, 0-1, and moved to third on Balboni's opposite-field double to right. With the infield in, Slaught followed with a hard grounder into left field to score Mattingly and pinch-runner Stan Jefferson.

Steve Sax added an RBI single in the eighth for the Yankees' last run.

After Balboni put the Yankees ahead 5-4 with a grand slam in the fifth, the Twins came right back against Leiter.

Wally Backman walked with one out in the sixth and moved up when Gary Gassitt walked with two out. Kent Hrbek hit a grounder to third that appeared to be the final out of the inning, but Sax was late covering second for a possible force and Tom Brookens' late throw to first was in the dirt for
