Two teens charged in park fire

By Maureen Leavitt Manchester Herald

Police arrested two Manchester teen-agers today on charges they set fire to the landmark cedar log cabin in Wickham Park on March 26.

Police said they believe the teens are part of an arson ring whose members reportedly carry business cards with the name "Danger Inc."

Arrested were Matthew J. Irwin, 18, of 130 Birch St., and Vincent C. Murray, 17, of 106C Downey Drive, police said. They were charged with first-degree arson and first-degree criminal mischief. Police say Irwin and Vincent sprayed gasoline to the front of the cabin on Easter Sunday and ignited it.

There was no apparent motive for the arson, Manchester Police Lt. Orville L. Cleveland said. The cabin, built in 1927 as a summer cottage for the Wickham family, owners of the land now comprising the park, was destroyed in the blaze. Damage is estimated at between $75,000 and $90,000.

Cleveland said the two suspects are believed to be members of an arson ring known as Danger Inc. Information obtained by police indicates business cards were printed with the organization's name on it, Cleveland said.

Cleveland said that the two teen-agers also are suspects in other incidents in Manchester, Enfield and Coventry.

Sgt. Pat D'Amato of the detective division of the Enfield Police Department confirmed that the two are suspects in an arson in that town. He said police would be applying for arrest warrants next week based on information from Manchester police. The Enfield fire occurred on March 22 when gasoline was sprayed on a house and ignited while the family was inside, Cleveland said. No one was hurt.

Cleveland said he expects Coventry police will charge the two with a motor vehicle fire in that town on Feb. 1. "The information we have provided should be more than enough for charges," Cleveland said. Coventry officials could not be reached for comment.

Cleveland said the investigation of "Danger Inc." also involves investigations of area burglaries and the vandalism of a Manchester police car. The initials "D.I." were painted on the hood of the police car the same night of the Coventry car fire.

Police discovered stolen items in abandoned cars on Birch Street including an inactive homemade bomb which led to the two arrests, Cleveland said.

Officer John Wilson recently came up with a tip which proved valuable in the investigation of the arson, Cleveland said. In addition, Cleveland credited Detective Paul R. Lombardo with wrapping up the investigation. "Lombardo took the investigation and ran with it," Cleveland said.

Irwin was scheduled to be presented in court today on a $50,000 bond, police said. Vincent was released on a $5,000 non-surety bond, police said.

Wickham Park Director Jeffrey Maron has said plans are being considered to rebuild the cabin.

'Big Week' bigger for 2 seniors

By Nancy Concelman Manchester Herald

Evelyn Ellison of 92 Summer St. and Gerald Bowler of 52 Portland St. capped off the "Big Week" in a big way.

Bowler and Ellison were treated to a limousine ride through town Thursday after being named Mr. and Mrs. Senior Citizen, an honor bestowed on the seniors who work hard for their friends at the Manchester Senior Citizens' Center.

Joe Dinnico, activities specialist at the center, said the two were chosen by center staff "to try to get someone who has the true spirit of a volunteer," he said.

In conjunction with National Senior Citizens Month, Mayor Peter P. DiRosa designated this week Senior Citizens Week in Manchester. The event is referred to by local seniors as the "Big Week."

Bowler, a retired landscape architect, designed the landscaping outside the center at 549

E. Middle Turnpike and the Municipal Building at 41 Center St.

Bowler worked for the Waterbury Parks Department for 16 years before taking a job as groundskeeper at the University of Connecticut. He worked at UConn for 20 years before retiring.

He was on the committee that searched for a new location for the Senior Citizens' Center in 1975.

"I've been involved with the senior center since it was on Linden Street," he said today.

Bowler and his wife, Rita, have served on the decorating committee at the center. He also organizes books in the center library.

Ellison, chairman of the Hospitality Committee, plans open-house activities, distributes lunch tickets on Thursdays and acts as hostess at the center. She also handles attendance and registration for the exercise program.

She could not be reached for comment this morning.

No new clues as robber eludes cops

By Maureen Leavitt Manchester Herald

Police have released an artist's sketch of the man who held up the Savings Bank of Manchester Thursday and stole about $6,200, police said.

There are no new leads in the case, police said today.

The suspect has been described as a white man, 40 to 45 years old, with jet-black curly hair, between 5 feet 6 inches and 5 feet 9 inches with an average to stocky build.

The sketch is based on interviews with witnesses. The bandit fled through a side door of the bank on foot through a parking lot toward Lyness Street.

A state police search dog made four runs through the area but was unable to track the suspect, said Manchester Police Lt. Orville L. Cleveland.

In addition, a state police airplane scoured the area for about an hour but turned up no clues, Cleveland said.

The robbery occurred shortly before 11 a.m. when the robber gave a teller a note that said: "This is a robbery. Give me your 10s and 20s. No dye." A blue bandana wrapped around his hand was apparently concealing a gun as tellers told police they saw the barrel of a weapon.

Police spokesman Gary J. Wood said no dye was placed in the bag given to the robber. Banks sometimes use dye to mark currency that is turned over to robbers.

There were three tellers in the bank at the time of the robbery. Several customers were also in the bank but apparently they were unaware of what was happening, said police.

The bank is investigating why a teller's silent alarm failed to operate during the robbery. Wood said it is too early to speculate if the robbery is connected to two other bank robberies which occurred in the area a little over six months ago.

"We're not going to make any assumptions that they're connected. It's too early yet," Wood said.

Last Nov. 4, a masked man armed with a handgun got $11,000 from the Savings Bank of Manchester branch on Spencer Street.

On Dec. 23, a masked man with a handgun took $40,000 from the Manchester State Bank branch on Spencer Street.

No arrests have been made in either of those robberies.

'Tall, silent person' felt lost, so he'll return to Wobegon

By Charles Ferro The Associated Press

COPENHAGEN, Denmark — It's been two years since Garrison Keillor came to Denmark to lead the life of a "tall, silent person," leaving behind Buster the Showdog, Sheila the Christian Jungle Girl and other inhabitants of Lake Wobegon.

During that time, he returned to the United States and managed to put another book on the market. Now he's looking ahead to his autumn return to U.S. radio.

He announced Thursday that his new, two-hour "American Radio Company of the Air" will be produced by Minnesota Public Radio and distributed by American Public Radio. It will feature Keillor sketches, monologues and a mixture of American music.

Keillor still calls Minnesota home, even though he has a place in Manhattan, and makes frequent trips to his wife Ulla Skarved's native Denmark where they also have an apartment.

His new book, "We Are Still Married," is a potpourri of letters, poems and stories written during the Reagan years. His first book was about his fictional hometown, "Lake Wobegon Days." His next was "Leaving Home."

More than 4 million people tuned into American Public Radio's "A Prairie Home Companion." Keillor's hit radio show that celebrated the Norwegian bachelor farmers and others of the quiet, imaginary little town of Lake Wobegon — the town that time forgot. The show started in 1974 and Keillor gave the last broadcast in June 1987.

To the end, "A Prairie Home Companion" was Keillor's show, reflecting his

Hartford man faces charges in assault and kidnapping

A 31-year-old Hartford man lead police on a chase on Buckland Street late Wednesday night and was eventually apprehended and arrested on kidnapping and other charges for abducting his ex-girlfriend from her Buice Drive apartment, police said.

Francisco Santana, of 35 Victory St., was charged with second-degree kidnapping, first-degree criminal trespassing, third-degree assault and a number of motor vehicle charges including drunken driving, police said.

Police received a call from a clerk at an Exxon gas station at Tolland Turnpike and Pleasant Valley Road shortly before midnight that a man had hit a woman several times in the station parking lot, police said.

When police arrived, Santana drove away with the woman in a white Pontiac T-1000, and headed south on Buckland Street, police said.

Santana then turned around and headed south in the northbound lanes of Buckland Street, but his car stalled, police said. An officer caught up to the car but could not open the driver's door because it was locked, police said. Santana managed to start the car again. The woman was in the car screaming, police said.

The officer smashed the driver's window and grabbed Santana, but Santana started the car and pulled away, police said. He headed in the wrong direction once again on Buckland Street, police said.

Santana then drove over a median, blowing out two of the car's tires and the car stalled again, police said.

The woman told police she was at her apartment when Santana arrived there and forced her to drive him to Hartford, police said.

Santana was presented in court Thursday where his bond was reduced from $25,000 to $10,000. His next court appearance is scheduled for May 24.

PRIZE PROGRAM — Betty Mohan meets with a social studies class at Coventry Grammar School, where she is cook manager. She is the 1989 regional winner of the Louise Sublette Award for her "Meals Around the World" program at the school.

Her program is a recipe for success

Coventry cook wins her second regional award

By Jacqueline Bennett
Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — Betty Mohan, cook manager for Coventry Grammar School, took the students there around the world and won an award for it.

Mohan won her project, "Meals Around the World," the event was held at the school last year from October to June.

In 1988, Mohan also won the award for a "Miniature Meals" project for kindergartners.

"I love doing something different, trying new things. I do the World Meal project) was very popular. The children were really thrilled with it," Mohan said in an interview Wednesday.

The award is given for improving the success of the school food service program. The purpose of that, Mohan says, is to encourage children to eat hot lunches, try new foods and encourage good nutrition.

For the project, Mohan coordinated the countries being studied by grades 2 and 4 with the monthly cafeteria menu. Grade two studied Mexico, Japan and the state of Hawaii and grade four studied China, she said.

But Mohan decided to expand and do more, such as England,

France, Germany and the United States.

Mohan said it was a cooperative effort involving four staff members, teachers, parents, grandparents and the rest of the school staff.

"I used recipes from some parents and grandparents for different countries," said Mohan. She remembered a favorite with the youngsters was the Hawaiian luau.

"Some of the girls came in grass skirts and the boys wore Hawaiian shirts," she said.

The menu included island baked chicken, Hawaiian fruit punch, tropical rice, vegetable, papaya juice and fresh pineapple.

Another month, the children tried English fish and chips. Picaadilly slaw (coles slaw), scones and honey, and English trifle (cake). In March, in honor of St. Patrick's Day, there was corned beef and shamrock-shaped gelatin. There was also an Octoberfest, an annual event in Germany.

Some menus, which are sent home with each child monthly, were written in the language of a particular country.

In addition, the cafeteria, halls and teachers' display cases were decorated with ethnic artifacts, helping the children to learn about different customs.

Mohan said the number of pupils eating lunch at the school increased about 30 percent. She said there are 335 pupils at Coventry Grammar School and an average of 250 buy hot lunch.

But, due to the project, she estimated that increased by about 30 students.

Jena Richards, director of the lunch program in all town schools, praised Mohan.

"It is a real honor for our lunch program to have one of our managers win the regional competition," Richards said.

Mohan first won the state award in March before she won the regional honor. Along with it comes an all-expense paid trip to the national American School Food Service Association annual conference in Florida. There her project will be judged along with the other six regional winners during the week of July 2 to 7.

Mohan has worked for the school lunch program for 17 years and has been at Coventry Grammar School for 12 of those years. A Coventry resident, she and her husband have two young children and two grandchildren.

Deaths Elsewhere

Dorothy Ruth Pirone, Babe Ruth's daughter
DURHAM (AP) — Dorothy Ruth Pirone, the daughter of baseball great Babe Ruth, has died. She was 84 years old. Pirone lived in Durham for more than a dozen years, where she raised Arabian horses.

For most of her life, Pirone was led to believe that her mother was Ruth's first wife, Helen. But her first public appearance in 1922 at age 16 months surprised even the reporters who followed her father around the country. Rumors persisted that she was the child of an early, unknown love.

In 1980, she learned that her real mother was a woman she had grown up knowing and loving as a close family friend. Pirone said last year she held no bitterness toward her father for not revealing her true mother's identity.

Last year, Pirone wrote a book about her famous father, "My Dad, the Babe." It was co-authored by Chris Martens and was published on the 40th anniversary of her father's death, Aug. 16, 1988.

"I think I did it more for myself and to show my father was not the kind of person he was portrayed. I was very defensive of my father and I can't help it," she said in an interview last year.

Pirone died at home Thursday of natural causes, the family said, through a spokesman at the B.C. Bailey Funeral Home Inc., Wallingford.

Pirone, wife of the late Dominick L. Pirone, is survived by four daughters, one son and 12 grandchildren. She was predeceased by a second son.

The funeral and burial will be private.

Raymond Blackman
LONDON (AP) — Raymond Blackman, one of the world's leading experts on navies and a veteran editor of the military reference book "Jane's Fighting Ships," died Wednesday at age 78.

Blackman, who edited "Jane's Fighting Ships" from 1949 to 1973, joined the Royal Navy at age 16 and served for 10 years. After working as a journalist, he rejoined the Royal Navy at the outbreak of World War II in 1939, working in the mine design department at Portsmouth developing mines and anti-submarine weapons.

As editor of "Jane's Fighting Ships," Blackman was constantly in touch with more than 100 navies around the world and maintained a network of international contacts who helped confirm details when official information was lacking.

Blackman also was the author of "Modern World Book of Ships" in 1981, of successive editions of "The World's Warships" and of "Ships of the Royal Navy" in 1972.

Thoughts

How do you pray? Do you pray for those who have died? It has always been our custom to do so, but what do you feel when you pray for those who have died? Is it merely the pain of loss and bereavement you feel? That's certainly understandable, but if you pray for those who have died, we must also believe that they still live and that they live in joy in God's kingdom, whatever we imagine that to be. Let us pray for those who have died, and let us thank God in our prayers for the promise of eternal life.

Students protest measles policy

WATERBURY (AP) — About 150 students at Crosby High School staged a walkout to protest restrictions imposed on them because of a measles outbreak at the school.

Punishment, ranging from a warning to suspension, will depend on the past record of each student, Snyder said.

Snyder said the measles outbreak, the subsequent immunization clinics at the school and cancellation of many long-anticipated extracurricular events has thrown the school into turmoil.

"We're trying to function in a normal way, to concentrate," he said, "but unfortunately we're interrupted all day, and the school is in the newspaper and on the news."

Some of the students who walked out of school Thursday morning said people in the community had discriminated against them, including refusing to serve them at restaurants if they were wearing Crosby jackets.

"The public has certainly overreacted. A great number of the kids have been properly immunized," said Crosby Principal Van Snyder. "It's unfair for anyone to discriminate against them."

Senior students have been particularly concerned over the prom, scheduled for May 28, as it is in jeopardy because of the disease that three students have come down with.

But Snyder said the party at the Aqua Turf in Southington is still on. He discounted rumors that the banquet hall would refuse to host the prom. Students will have to show proof of inoculation, however.

Democrats admit surplus possible with tax increase

By Peter Viles
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Democratic leaders acknowledged that their plan to raise taxes by $900 million next year could lead to a one-time surplus, but denied Republican accusations that the plan is a deliberate ploy to avoid an election-year tax increase.

House Republican leader Robert Jaekle on Thursday assailed the Democratic tax plan, saying it would "over-tax" state residents by $200 million next year so the Democrats could avoid a politically risky tax increase in 1990.

"I've got to believe that the Democrats are now thinking about a strategy to over-tax the citizens of Connecticut so that when they run and the governor runs in 1990, they will have through overtaxation, generated a surplus," Jaekle said. "This is an intentional ploy."

Democratic leaders said a surplus could result from cautious estimates of revenue growth and a budget surplus in February. Democratic leaders, calls for $736 million in new taxes on soft drinks, mansions, business services and cable television bills. It would also apply the sales tax to meals costing less than $2 and clothing more than $50. Combined with new taxes put into effect April 1, the amount of new taxes would total $900 million.

On Thursday, Democratic leaders announced a plan to local property tax relief that would give some cities and towns the option of adding a 15 percent surcharge to property taxes on commercial and industrial property. The towns could use the surcharge to fund lower residential property taxes.

Democratic leaders cautioned that both packages are still subject to debate in private caucus meetings before they will be brought to the House and Senate.

Republican response to Wednesday's tax plan was predictable and indignant.

"What they did was basically ensure that Connecticut will go into a recession," said Senate Minority Leader Reginald Smith of New Hartford.

"It's an assortment of anti-saving, anti-investment, anti-job and anti-consumer taxes, all designed to accelerate unemployment in Connecticut," said Republican State Party Chairman Robert Poliner.

Rep. Richard Foley, R-Oxford, said the House chairman's significant cuts in Gov. William O'Neill's proposed $6.9 billion budget.

"The so-called moderate Democrats caved in," Foley said. "There are no significant cuts in that budget."

Democratic leaders have not released a written copy of their spending proposal. Estimates of the amount of cuts from O'Neill's budget range from $77 million to $150 million.

"It's amazing that, after the process we've been through in the past five months, that they would bring out what is essentially a piece of garbage," Foley said.

Jaekle, meanwhile, called reporters to his office Thursday for a news conference. He was greeted by the sight of a table covered with items that would be more expensive under the proposed taxes.

Spread across the table were hamburgers and french fries from a fast-food restaurant, new clothes, clothes from a dry-cleaners', architectural plans, soft drinks, and several other items.

"If you can wear it, eat it, drink it, smoke it or watch it, you'll pay a tax on it," Jaekle said. "I don't think he's going to let us in."

Democratic leaders are intentionally underestimating state revenue growth to create a surplus. In announcing the tax plan Thursday, Democratic leaders said they were projecting only a 4 percent growth in the state's existing revenues, down from 7 percent growth the O'Neill administration had projected in its budget proposal in February.

Democratic leaders, for their part, expressed little enthusiasm for the tax plan Thursday and acknowledged that it could lead to a budget surplus at the end of the 1989-90 fiscal year.

"No one likes it," said Rep. Richard Maltrey, D-West Hartford, who said he would like any package we come up with."

O'Neill aide David McQuade said the governor had lobbied some House Democrats to support a spending package, but has not pushed for the tax package. He doubted, however, that the governor would oppose the tax package.

"It's something that I believe he can live with," McQuade said. "I don't think he's going to have a quarrel with the bottom line."

Rep. William Cibeo, D-New London, the House chairman of the tax-writing Finance Committee, acknowledged that the tax package, as written, could lead to a one-time surplus of $78 million at the end of fiscal year 1989-90.

Cibeo defended the possible surplus on two counts. First, he said, the money is one-time revenue that will not re-appear in future years.

"It can't be regarded as something that will help us in the future," he said.

"Being a teacher myself, this award has a special significance for me," Prague said.

Prague represents the 4th Assembly District, which consists of Columbia, Coventry, Bozrah, Franklin and Lebanon.

Suspended chief files suit

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Suspended Hamden Police Chief John Ambrogio has filed suit in federal court to stop his removal from office, claiming his constitutional rights have been violated.

U.S. District Judge Jose Cabranes refused Thursday to order Ambrogio's immediate reinstatement but said his decision would have no bearing on a hearing June 13 on the chief's request for a preliminary injunction.

In denying a request for a temporary restraining order, Cabranes said Ambrogio and his attorneys had failed to show or even suggest that the chief would suffer irreparable harm during the suspension.

Mayor John Carusone suspended Ambrogio on Wednesday with full pay and all benefits, except use of a town car, pending the outcome of a hearing to determine whether he should be fired. Deputy Chief David Dixon became acting chief Thursday.

Rubin aids Soviet Jews

Dr. Martin Rubin of Manchester participated in a phonathon April 23 to raise money to resettle the approximately 400,000 Jews now being allowed to leave the Soviet Union.

He was supporting the Greater Hartford Jewish Federation's 60-day campaign, "The Passage to Freedom," to raise $900,000 for the increasing number of Soviet Jewish refugees. The increase is a result of the passage of the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1988.

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's reforms have opened the way for more emigration practices.

The three-hour phone-a-thon raised $48,300, bringing the campaign total to $548,300 since April 6. Since then, additional pledges have brought the campaign to over $635,000.

Water mains to be flushed

The town Water Division will be flushing water mains Monday through Friday from 7:15 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the following areas:

Highland Street from Gardner Street to town line, including Candlewood and Somerset.

Fern Street south to town line including Shallowbrook and Line Street.

South on Highland Street to town line and everything east from Gardner to town line. All Glastonbury customers and Lakewood Circle area.

There may be discoloration of water and reduced pressure during the flushing.

Student in German program

David Campbell, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell of 92 Oak Grove St., has been awarded a four-week, paid trip for study in West Germany.

Campbell, a student at Manchester High School, was one of more than 18,000 students who completed for the trip by participating in a nationwide German testing program administered by the American Association of Teachers of German. Sixty-five students were selected to receive the prize.

The study awards are funded by a grant from the West German Embassy in Washington.

Campbell and the other trip winners will leave New York City June 27 and return July 25. While in Germany they will live with families in Bavaria, attend classes in a secondary school and participate in excursions.

Campbell's German teacher at Manchester High School is Renate Lincoln.

Legislature at a glance

HARTFORD (AP) — Here, at a glance, is a summary of action taken in the General Assembly on Thursday.

The state Senate unanimously approved a bill limiting the use of seed-eating amur grass carp, used to clear vegetation that can choke ponds. The bill now goes to the House.

The Senate, by a 24-12 vote, moved to protect the policy-making power of Chief State's Attorney John J. Kelly by weakening a bill that would have made Kelly share his power with all 12 state's attorneys. The bill now goes to the House.

PERENNIAL PLANTERS — Jacqueline Britton, left, and Mary Ann Satryb, co-chairwomen of the Perennial Planters garden club of Manchester, plant flowers with club member Bonnie Lindland Wednesday. The club has been planting flowers at Munro Park on East Center Street for about 20 years. The pink, blue and white flowers came from Albasi Greenhouses.

Lottery chief on leave for insubordination

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — J. Blaine Lewis, the head of Connecticut's lottery who has been in and out of the dog house with his superiors for a year, is now on an indefinite leave of absence for insubordination.

Lewis' leave began Thursday after he apparently refused to carry out an order from William V. Hickey, the new head of the Division of Special Revenue.

Division spokesman Ed Harrigan said the length of the leave was not specified. He also said he could not discuss details of the alleged insubordination, "because it's a personnel matter."

O'Neill administration sources said the suspension from duty occurred when Lewis refused a request from Hickey to evaluate and implement changes in the state's Lotto game.

Lewis has consistently resisted altering the game in any way, saying when compared with other states on a per capita basis. But its returns have leveled off and officials have been toying with some changes.

Lewis, who has been with the gaming agency since 1973 and lottery chief since May 1989, could not be reached immediately for comment.

When Hickey took the helm at the special revenue division last month, he said that he favored making Lotto more difficult to win, so that jackpots would roll up faster. Currently, six numbers are drawn from a pool of 40 numbers. Hickey said he favored increasing the pool to 44.

Lewis' difficulties began a year ago when the state switched companies running the lottery games. Lewis had opposed the switch, saying it wasn't worth changing the entire system in order to discuss details of the alleged insubordination, "because it's a personnel matter."

During the week following the changeover, the million-dollar-a-day statewide lottery system was plagued by frequent shutdowns, one lasting 24 hours.

Lewis complained loudly and publicly and was ultimately slapped with what amounted to a gag order by then-Director Orlando P. Ragazzi. That order was not lifted until January.

AIDS learning hasn't affected sex on campus

STORRS (AP) — College students know more about preventing AIDS than they used to, but for the most part that knowledge hasn't changed their sexual behavior, according to a recently released University of Connecticut study.

Lewis has consistently resisted altering the game in any way, saying when compared with other states on a per capita basis. But its returns have leveled off and officials have been toying with some changes.

TO BE RESTORED — Owners of the Cheney Bros. bathhouse on Pleasant Street plan to restore the building to its original appearance and convert it to office use. Under the plans, the loading platform in the center of the building, added after the building was used as a bathhouse, will be removed.

Owners seek OK to renovate Cheney bathhouse for offices

By Alex Girelli
Manchester Herald

A plan to restore the former Cheney Bros. bathhouse on Pleasant Street to its original appearance and convert it to an office building will be considered by the Cheney National Historic District Commission June 1.

William FitzGerald, chairman of the commission, said owners of the building plan to remove a loading platform, which was added to front of the original building, and restore the front to the earlier facade. They plan to use old bricks from a nearby garage which would be demolished to make way for parking space.

The building is owned by Kenneth and William Spector of Manchester and Berdine S. Stolt.

FitzGerald said he is in favor of the plan and will recommend that the commission approve it. He said loss of the garage, which was built in the automobile age, is one of the necessary compromises in historic restoration.

FitzGerald said the owners plan to restore the modern windows from the side of the building and replace them with more antique ones, restoring the arches above them with bricks from the garage. The two front entrances, one originally for men and one for women when the building was a public bathhouse, will be retained across from the Ribbon Mill Apartments, is now vacant.

Substitutes don't teach, pupils say

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With no end to the walkout that has hobbled education in the nation's second-largest school system this week, substitute teacher Chris Farmer keeps smiling at striking teachers, but "They don't smile back."

And the juniors and seniors who showed up Thursday at his John Marshall High School classroom were a pretty listless bunch.

One girl thumbed through "Bridal Guide" magazine. A youth read "Coma," a paperback thriller. Three students sat with headphones in their ears. Several students answered questions from a stack of "Trivial Pursuit" game cards.

"It's pretty painful, really," Farmer said. "They're a good group of kids. They just aren't something to do."

The scene was typical of the 600 schools in the Los Angeles Unified School District, where 2,237 substitutes who crossed the picket lines for a special daily wage of $187 are coping with the workload of 22,000 striking teachers.

Student attendance has declined steadily since the strike began Monday. Of the 551,759 students enrolled this quarter, 283,650 were counted Thursday, down from 329,371 on Monday.

The first formal contract talks in months between the striking teachers union and the school district took place Thursday. Both sides agreed not to comment to reporters.

Farmer, tall and gangly with wire-rimmed glasses, is an erstwhile substitute teacher who doubles as a contract worker at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena. With no current contract at the job, he has worked every day since the strike by the United Teachers-Los Angeles union began.

Farmer was one of 22 substitute teachers supplementing 17 Marshall faculty members who worked Thursday despite the strike. The staff normally includes 139 teachers.

Studdahl is a granite stone building that has been used as a backdrop for countless movies, commercials and television shows, including "Wildcats," "Grease" and "Room 222."

Linaires pleaded guilty Thursday to a misdemeanor charge of unlawful use of a weapon and was sentenced by Circuit Judge Robert Eastone to one year conditional discharge, meaning he will serve no time in jail.

Linaires' lawyers disagreed. Public defender Kevin Smith said Congress and state legislators must draft laws to govern such cases.

Prosecutors, the hospital and Linaires' lawyers disagreed. Public defender Kevin Smith said Congress and state legislators must draft laws to govern such cases.

"The criminal courts are not where this should be dealt with," he said. "There should be an orderly way that a family dealing with a tragedy can end the suffering of a child or another loved one without being driven to an act of despair like Rudy Linaires was driven."

State's Attorney Cecil Partee repeated his pledge to form a panel of medical, legal and religious representatives to analyze the issues raised by the case and seek appropriate laws.

Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center had refused the family's requests to withdraw life support and welcomed prosecution for child abuse or murder because the youngster wasn't brain-dead.

Father freed of murder charge for pulling plug on son in coma

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The legal ordeal is over for a father who disconnected his comatose son from a respirator and held him until he died, but the act of desperation reveals a gap in laws dealing with euthanasia, experts said.

Linaires, a house painter from Cicero, had been charged with murder, but after the grand jury action, the state's attorney's office said it would not prosecute the charge.

Authorities say Linaires also had unhooked his son's life-support system during a December visit, but that staff members immediately reattached the boy's ventilator and did not notify police.

A grand jury refused Thursday to indict Rudy Linaires on a first-degree murder charge for the April 26 death of his 15-month-old son, Samuel.

Linaires, 23, pulled a .357-caliber Magnum handgun on hospital staff and kept them at bay while taking his son off a respirator and cradling the boy in his arms until the severely brain-damaged toddler died.

Linaires pleaded guilty Thursday to a misdemeanor charge of unlawful use of a weapon and was sentenced by Circuit Judge Robert Eastone to one year conditional discharge, meaning he will serve no time in jail.

Wright is hoping for quick hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Jim Wright, his support eroding among fellow Democrats, is hoping a long-shot legal move in his fight against ethics charges will rescue his political career.

But even as Wright expressed confidence he could defeat some of the charges against him in televised proceedings scheduled Tuesday, those who elected him speaker were growing more pessimistic about his chances of holding onto the post.

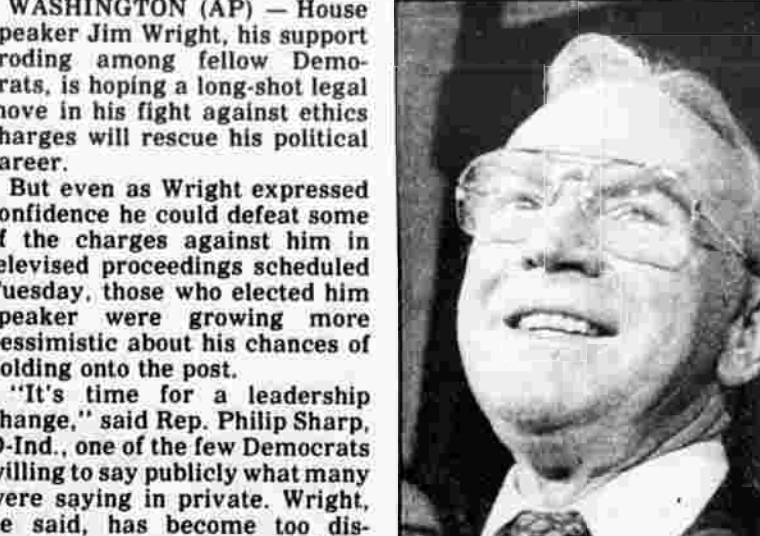

It's time for a leadership change," said Rep. Philip Sharp, D-Ind., one of the few Democrats willing to say publicly what many were saying in private. Wright, he said, has become too distracted by his ethics struggle to run the House's business.

Others questioned Wright's ability to lead the House. "We've got to quit railing on the speaker," said Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas. "The constant addition of problems has not been helpful. Some things have not gone to break extremely favorably."

Wright himself will not appear at the hearing. His lawyers will be allowed to argue their case for dismissing the charges, and ethics committee outside counsel Richard Peltan will defend the committee's action. The hearing will be televised on C-SPAN, the cable TV public affairs network.

Whatever the outcome, any remaining charges would then become the subject of a trial-like disciplinary hearing before the committee. Members would be asked to decide whether there is clear and convincing evidence of the alleged violations.

Also on Thursday, the ethics committee denied Wright access to advisory opinions on ethical questions which the panel has given other House members, saying that to release them would violate confidentiality of the members receiving the opinions except.

SPEAKER JIM WRIGHT... support is eroding

And ethics committee Chairman Julian Dixon, D-Calif., called the committee's interpretation of the rules "very well founded."

But Wright, appearing briefly before television cameras on Thursday, expressed optimism that he would prevail. "We welcome the opportunity for our case — and we believe it is very fair — to be heard before the full public view," he said.

Noriega says little on return to public

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega made his first public appearance since the nullified May 19 elections before a cheering crowd, but he had nothing to say about his country's crisis or his future plans.

Noriega was greeted with roars and chants by the more than 1,200 military, government and party workers who gathered Thursday night, but he gave no speech and made few comments to reporters.

"I'm fine," Panama's de facto ruler said repeatedly when asked how he had held up in the tension-filled weeks since May 7. When asked how much longer he could go on, he laughed and said, "That's a good question."

The elections were nullified by a government tribunal even as international observers said opposition candidate Guillermo Endara was leading Noriega's hand-picked candidate 3-1.

Noriega, commander of the Panamanian Defense Forces, has been accused of ordering the beatings of opposition candidates May 10.

At the rally, Noriega supporters watched a series of traditional music and dance mixed with anti-Noriega skits, poetry and a recitation of U.S. interventions in Panama.

"With Noriega to the Year 2000," signs declared. Members of the crowd said they were members of the government party or government workers, or both.

"We came voluntarily, we weren't forced," said one woman,

Missile talks uncertain

WASHINGTON (AP) — West Germany's defense minister is hopeful Bonn and Washington will soon resolve a dispute over short-range nuclear missiles but the allies entered a second round of talks with sharp differences and a critical NATO summit fast approaching.

Gerhard Stoltenberg met with Secretary of State James A. Baker III on Thursday, the opening day of his two-day visit to Washington, and was returning to the State Department today for "a longer discussion," a department spokesman said.

Stoltenberg described Thursday's talks as "very useful" and said he was hopeful an agreement could be reached by next week, when President Bush will leave for the meeting of the 16-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Brussels.

Sources close to the talks said the most positive outcome would be a "gentleman's agreement" on the missile dispute, which would be submitted to Bush and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl for approval.

Israeli shoot-out kills 4

HALHOUL, Occupied West Bank (AP) — An Israeli soldier and three Palestinians were killed today in the first firefight between troops and Arab villagers since the start of the 17-month uprising against Israel's occupation.

The troops opened fire on the Palestinians, who had allegedly killed a suspected Israeli collaborator in the past, authorities said.

Seven other soldiers were wounded, including a high-ranking Israeli officer in critical condition after he was wounded in the head, said an army spokeswoman who was not identified under military regulations.

Survivor recalls wreck

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — One week after a freight train careened out of control, killing four people and devastating a neighborhood, survivor Ramon Esqueda said he was still haunted by the wreckage.

"I was 20 feet from death," he said, speaking in Spanish.

Esqueda was standing just below the railroad tracks in his back yard, filling in a hole dug by his dogs, when the Southern Pacific freight train came roaring down steep Cajon Pass and slammed into 11 homes along the tracks. Two crewmen and two boys in a house died in the May 12 accident.

Pepper seriously ill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Claude D. Pepper's condition worsened overnight, his office said, and a personal friend and aide described the 88-year-old lawmaker today as "pretty weak" and in "very serious condition" at Walter Reed Army Medical Center.

"He's pretty weak but he's not in pain or anything," Bob Smith said in a telephone interview from the Florida Democrat's Washington home.

Pepper's office issued a statement saying, "Congressman Claude Pepper's condition has worsened overnight. He continues to rest comfortably...."

Ethiopians still fighting

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Scattered fighting was reported today between loyal and mutinous troops in northern Ethiopia in a rebellion the country's Marxist leader said had been crushed.

President Mengistu Haile Mariam told the nation on radio and television late Thursday that fighting in the northern-most province of Eritrea was "under full control."

But diplomatic sources in the capital said loyal and dissident units of Ethiopia's 2nd Army clashed today in and around the provincial capital Asmara, three days after the mutiny began.

BUSINESS

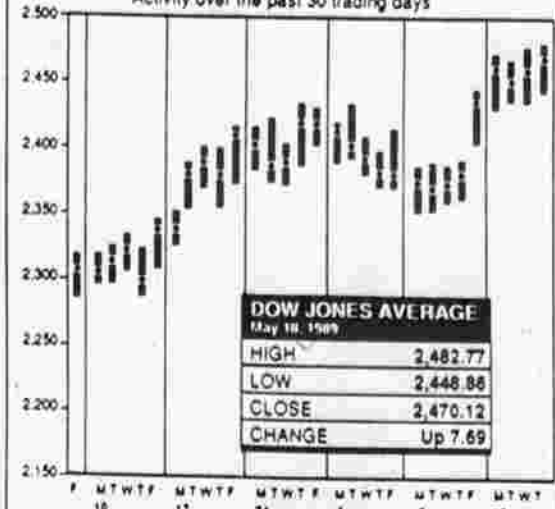

Slower growth forecast

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. trade association says worldwide growth rates for computers and other information technology are likely to fall between now and 1992.

The Computer and Business Equipment Manufacturers Association says it expects that the trend. Global revenues of the information technology industry in 1988 totaled $64.7 billion, up 11.2 percent from the previous year, the association says.

The figure includes computers and other electronic data processing equipment, $304 billion; office equipment, $65.1 billion; telecommunications equipment, $112.2 billion; as well as software and services, $126.4 billion.

MARKET REPORT

Mary Kay halts testing

DALLAS (AP) — Mary Kay Cosmetics says it has placed a moratorium on using laboratory animals to verify the safety of its products while it studies better methods of non-animal product testing.

The announcement came Wednesday by Mary Kay President Richard C. Bartlett at an industry workshop at the Johns Hopkins Center for Alternatives to Animal Testing in Baltimore.

"Our research shows that there is a great deal of consumer concern and confusion about the use of animals for safety testing for cosmetic toiletries, household products, all the way through medical research," Bartlett said.

Bartlett said he believed his Dallas-based company was the first cosmetics company that has used animal testing in the past to stop such testing. Mary Kay products are not sold in stores but through individual sales agents.

Xerox sees better earnings, denies it's a takeover target

DALLAS (AP) — A carefully worded statement by Xerox Corp. Chairman David T. Kearns issued at the company's annual meeting attempts to quell rumors that Xerox is a takeover target.

"The board of directors has no plan or intention for the company to be acquired," Kearns said in the statement. "The board believes that the best interests of our shareholders, customers and employees would be served by continuing to pursue our strategic direction as an independent company."

"We believe the most effective way of increasing the return to our shareholders is through improved financial returns which Kearns predicted would occur this year, with pre-tax income rising as much as $60 million.

Also, Kearns indicated that the Stamford, Conn.-based company has not been approached, and he noted that no one shareholder has as much as 5 percent of the company's stock.

Increased stock activity generated questions among employees and investors and had become a distraction prompting him to add the statement on takeover rumors to his previously prepared annual management statement, Kearns said.

Xerox stock has climbed as high as $68.75 per share since January as average daily volumes have ranged from 362,000 to 641,000 shares.

On Thursday, Xerox closed down 50 cents at $66.25 on 135,900 shares traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Kearns predicted Xerox would increase its pre-tax earnings by as much as $60 million this year and by $100 million to $120 million in 1990 and subsequent years.

In 1988, the company had pre-tax income of $1 billion, with a net income of $388 million, and per-share earnings of $3.59, both declines from previous years. Earlier this year, the company reported first quarter earnings of $158 million, a 4 percent increase.

"Assuming a reasonably stable economic environment, which I believe we have and barring any major catastrophe or dislocation in financial markets, our total corporate earnings should continue to grow in 1989," Kearns said.

The improvements would come because of restructuring undertaken earlier this year and realization of profits from its 50 series of copiers introduced last year, Kearns said.

Also at Thursday's meeting, the shareholders re-elected 14 members of the board, and turned aside several shareholder resolutions, including two from pension funds that the company sever all ties with South Africa and adopt the MacBride principles, which seek to assure equal employment opportunity for Catholics in Northern Ireland.

OPINION

No secrets about water

There is nothing mysterious or clandestine about testing the water at the Keeney Street School for lead content and no reason to criticize school officials for having undertaken the testing job without fanfare. If there is lead in the water at the school, it is for the same reason that there may be lead in the water supplied to homes in Manchester and elsewhere else standard plumbing practices of the recent past were in use.

The concern is about the lead content of solder, which was formerly used almost universally for water-supply piping. The problem is no secret.

Students at Keeney Street and at all other schools undoubtedly consume more water in their homes than they do while in school. There is no panic over household water supplies, and no reason to get overly concerned. (And never did standard plumbing practices of the recent past were in use.)

Nevertheless, it is a good idea to make the tests in schools to find out the scope of the problem generally. The job at Keeney Street will establish the testing procedures.

Since one parent has suggested there is some secrecy involved in the process, everyone concerned should take pains to learn the results of the tests when they are made public by school officials.

NRA ignores the brutal facts

By Robert Walters

ALLENTOWN, Pa. — In early March of this year, Jessica Ann Keeney was a carefree 7-year-old riding on the back of a snowmobile driven by a friend in a rural community of Kunkletown, about 20 miles north of here.

Suddenly a single shot rang out and Jessica's body tumbled into the snow. Neighbors quickly carried her to their home and summoned an ambulance, but nothing could be done to save the life of the mortally wounded youngster.

Two days later, law enforcement authorities in eastern Pennsylvania arrested Cameron Kocher, a 9-year-old neighbor of the dead girl, and charged him with criminal homicide.

According to police officers who investigated the case, the boy reloaded a high-powered .35-caliber rifle with a telescopic sight from his father's locked gun cabinet, loaded a single bullet into the chamber, opened a bedroom window and — for reasons still not fully understood — fatally shot the girl.

Police affidavits says Kocher "admitted having taken the gun from a cabinet because he wanted to look through the scope" but was "evasive" when asked about other events preceding the slaying. He is now awaiting trial.

Nobody knows how many firearms there are in this country, but estimates range from 150 million to 200 million. Every year, they are involved in 11,000 murders, 15,000 suicides, 1,800 accidental deaths, 75,000 assaults, 221,000 robberies, 90,000 rapes and 200,000 injuries.

These figures were compiled not by some do-good gun-control organization but by the International Association of Chiefs of Police, arguably the country's most prestigious law enforcement organization. Like other leading groups in the field, IACP is committed to reducing gun-related violence.

The same cannot be said for the National Rifle Association, which until recently parlayed a $60 million annual budget, a nationwide base of 2.8 million unquestioning members and an inflated position on weapons-related issues into an almost invincible political operation.

Item: The NRA opposed a proposed federal ban on "cop-killer" bullets single bullet into the chamber, opened a bedroom window and — for reasons still not fully understood — fatally shot the girl.

Item: The NRA opposed draft legislation that would have established a seven-day waiting period on gun purchases, giving dealers time to determine whether the buyer was a convicted felon, an illegal alien, a drug abuser or a mental patient.

Item: The NRA opposed a proposed federal ban on lightweight all-steel handgun barrels to be known as "plastic specials" that could be readily carried through airport metal detectors and smuggled aboard commercial airliners.

The legislation to ban weapons without any metal and thus capable of frustrating airport security measures would, the NRA told its members, affect dozens of handguns — perhaps all of them. In fact, only three models were to be barred.

Now, the NRA is opposed to pending federal legislation that would prohibit the domestic manufacture, importation and sale of military-style, semiautomatic assault weapons — the AK-47s and AR-15s, MAC-10s and TEC-9s, Uzis and Street Sweepers that can fire scores of rounds per minute.

(The Street Sweeper, which can unleash a dozen 12-gauge shotgun blasts in less than three seconds, advertises itself thusly: "Buy the machine designed to clean thoroughly on the first pass.")

Maintaining its longtime absolutist position, the NRA refuses to acknowledge that guns cause any harm whatever. In the current debate, that means ignoring the fact that semiautomatic rifles and pistols are drug dealers' weapons of choice.

Moreover, says the NRA, "less than 4 percent of all homicides involve rifles of any kind." Will that claim provide any solace to Jessica Ann Keeney's family?

Historic work goes forward

Things are going well in the Cheney Historic District. While conversions are in progress, there are rough spots here and there among the old mill buildings and accessory structures. That's inevitable on construction projects.

And there are some buildings for which no plans have been made. Some of them present a challenge because it isn't easy to determine an economic use for them, particularly because parking space is at a premium.

But on the whole, the restoration is moving forward attractively.

Developers have not always agreed with historic and zoning officials on details of what should be done, but most of the problems have been resolved by the process of compromise.

That's something that William FitzGerald, chairman of the Cheney National Historic Commission, says is the key to historic restoration.

The latest good sign is that the owners of the former Cheney Bros. bathhouse plan to restore it and convert it to office use.

Preservation of that unusual building will add to the appeal of the district.

Chairman, nominee related in the GOP

To the Editor:

On April 25 I gave a speech to the Republican State Central Committee, which is an interesting fact that you reprint for the benefit of all voters who are interested in the outcome of the Republican state chairman election.

On June 27 the State Central Committee will elect a chairman. Soon our party will begin the important task of selecting a candidate for governor. These two events are interrelated; thus, you should know before you vote for chairman how I think about this critical matter.

I begin my thinking process by remembering that the office of governor is one person for the office of governor. By its very nature, it is a very important position that has caused this party to stumble in at least three of the last four state elections.

There will probably be more than one person seeking the nomination but only one candidate will be nominated. Our nominee deserves the support of every Republican leader and the time is never too soon to remind ourselves of this basic fact: Without that support our nominee will not win.

The second point I remind myself of is the whole election process is determined by statute and that many of those statutes are in place because Democrats

VOA has wasted millions

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — Six years ago, Ronald Reagan announced a $1.3 billion plan to modernize the Voice of America radio system. Reagan said he was as excited by John F. Kennedy and Dwight Eisenhower were about the space program.

If VOA were in charge of the space program, it would still be launching monkeys into the stratosphere. Instead of putting the agency to good use, VOA has frittered away $1.3 billion on overstaffing, overinvesting and sheer incompetence, according to former VOA engineers, and our sources in Congress and in the inspector general's office that oversees VOA.

VOA has used its money to more than double its engineering staff and pad it with people who bring gold-plated ideas. As one official with the U.S. Information Agency said, "They ran off all the people who knew about engineering and brought in people who couldn't find their butt with both hands."

At this rate, the government radio broadcast that is supposed to tout the American life around the globe in 44 languages would spend less money if it simply paid its listeners to convert to democracy.

A lasting monument to VOA's new grandiose plan is a $10-million relay station. The selected site was a lake. It took three years to fill the lake with VOA equipment. A spokesman told us the site was the best of two offered by the Moroccan government.

VOA's bungles have become legend on Capitol Hill. In late 1987 VOA was planning a relay station in Israel to beam programming to the Soviet Union and Southwest Asia. A war-torn Congress decided VOA should not direct the construction and turned it over to another federal entity, the Lynch of International Broadcasting.

Sources told our associate Jim Lynch that VOA was planning a relay station in Israel to beam programming to the Soviet Union and Southwest Asia. A war-torn Congress decided VOA should not direct the construction and turned it over to another federal entity, the Lynch of International Broadcasting.

FOCUS/Advice

Bride aims for profit off bridesmaids

DEAR ABBY: I just learned that a friend for whom I agreed to be a bridesmaid tried to make a profit on the bridesmaids' dresses. Betty told me the dress cost $125, when she delivered it to me, I thought it looked rather cheap and poorly made, but I didn't say anything. I paid the $125 in good faith.

Another bridesmaid, Betty's roommate, called to tell me that she just found a sales slip listing the dress as $84, and she was so disgusted, she pulled out of the wedding party. That gave me the courage to call Betty and tell her I was pulling out, too, and why.

I had also planned a wedding shower for Betty, which I canceled. Betty became very defensive and said the store had made a mistake in marking the dresses, which was untrue. I checked with the store, and Betty is now frantically calling around trying to find other girls to be her bridesmaids. She told one girl the dresses cost $125, but she could have her's for $60.

Dear Abby
 Abigail Van Buren

Money is not the issue here, I told Betty that she was not the kind of person I wanted for my friend. She accused me of "overreacting" and making a big deal out of nothing. I would like your opinion and so would the other bridesmaids who dropped out.

EX-BRIDESMAIDS IN LONG BEACH

DEAR EX-BRIDESMAIDS: Overreacting? No way. I have heard of petty ripoffs, but I must say that this is a new low. (Any people ask me if I make up these letters.)

DEAR ABBY: After a recent death in our family, I suddenly realized that

I didn't have a will. I intend to make one as soon as possible, but I need to know if it's possible to write a will myself, or must I use a lawyer?

If I write my own will, is it necessary to have it notarized? Also, is there anything else I should know to make sure it holds up?

ROGER THE DODGER IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR ROGER: Each state has its own laws concerning wills, but in California a "holographic" will — one written in one's own handwriting — is legal, providing it is written on a plain piece of paper with no other writing on the paper. The writer must show a "donative" intent, stating clearly what he wants left to whom. The will must be signed and dated by the author.

A holographic will requires no witnesses.

DEAR ABBY: I want to comment on a problem I have never seen addressed in your column. I live in California and like large cities, the traffic is heavy and driving is dangerous.

However, in spite of that fact, I see people reading newspapers, business documents, letters and even books while they are driving! How can they read while they're driving, and at the same time concentrate on the traffic? The first time I noticed this, I thought it was an isolated fluke. But now, rarely a day goes by that I don't see at least one person reading something propped up on the steering wheel.

Abby, why do people engage in such dangerous practices?

Answer No. 1: Ellen and Steve have two young children, Daniel, age 10, and Seth, age 7. Each child will have $3,000 of unearned income in 1989 (through the courtesy of loving grandparents).

Net result: Social Security benefits no longer are tax-free. As a matter of fact, in this case, with $38,000 in other income, some $7,500 in additional income is now subject to tax. That really can be a back-breaker.

Even worse, suppose that because of higher interest rates, your earnings for 1989 go to $40,000 instead of $38,000. You would have an additional $1,000 subject to tax. Know what your tax rate would be on that? Forty-two percent. That's right, 42 percent!

Here's why: The tax on the $2,000 earned is $400 (at 20 percent) and there's another $1,000 that's taxed just because of the extra earnings. Some "break" for senior citizens!

Despite these insults to the pocketbook, there's more. The catastrophic Medical Tax is another $22.50 per $100 of tax. This tax on tax can be catastrophic in and of itself.

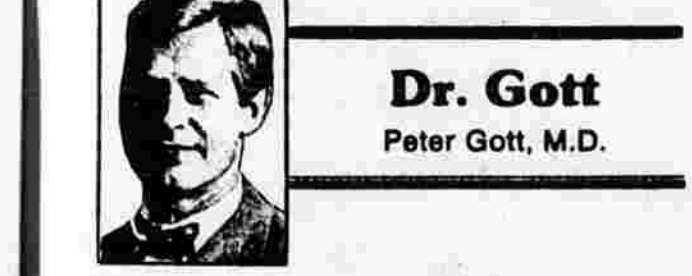

Tax Solution: Put a big chunk of your money into sale-tax-free municipals or a municipal bond trust. Whoo, you may be saying. Trust-whos are counted as part of the base on the taxation of Social Security benefits. You are 100 percent right. But there is a big exception.

Tax-frees will reduce the regular taxable income — and with enough tax-frees, could reduce it substantially. As a result, you might find that your $38,000 of unearned income — even without tax — would be non-taxable. That means there would be no tax due on the Social Security portion. Not only that, your taxable income would be hit only by a 15-percent rate.

Stress origins are in the mind

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is stress and how do you get it? Can it cause heart attacks and other ailments?

DEAR READER: Stress is a state of mind. It isn't something you get, like chicken pox.

In general, you feel stressed if they perceive that they are in danger or under extreme pressure — and are relatively powerless to do anything about it.

Typically, stress produces behavioral changes, such as nervousness, irritability, depression and insomnia. It also causes physical changes: increased heart rate, hypertension, peptic ulcers and bowel disturbances.

Stress can provide an excuse for people to use mind-altering drugs, notably alcohol.

Not all individuals are affected equally by stress; what is stressful for one person may be business-as-usual for another. Although we all have our stress threshold, this threshold varies from person to person.

Since stress is a PERCEPTION — not a disease — researchers have been unable to find a consistent relationship between stress and disease. Undoubtedly, emotional tension, by influencing many of the body's internal chemicals, can predispose some susceptible people to ill health.

For example, the untreated, stressed hypertensive patient is probably more likely to develop heart disease or stroke.

Stress is as much a part of our 20th century existence as is fast food. We need to learn more effective ways of coping with this condition. Remembering that stress is an ATTITUDE may help many of us to put it in proper perspective. In this way, we will not be governed by it but can learn to control it.

Consider this: If you have to ask what stress is, you are probably blessed by not having it.

Big tax bites face children and retirees under new laws

Two great myths that circulate in the new tax laws were being passed:

(1) The new legislation will greatly simplify our taxes.

(2) You would have to contend with only two tax rates — 15 percent and 28 percent.

If you are a taxpayer who believes either one, you also probably still believe in the tooth fairy.

To help you get the truth about the current tax law, I enlisted the help of tax attorney Eli J. Warsch, chief editorial consultant at Prentice-Hall. In addition to explaining some of the most odious traps that abound in the tax laws, Warsch — and show you how to avoid being taxed twice on the same income — will help you to keep this year's tax bill as low as possible.

Keep in mind: In several areas, you not only pay a tax — you'll pay a second tax on that same money. In addition, you'll pay phase-ins and phase-outs, you could wind up paying even more tax on the same income.

If you believe the conventional wisdom, you know there's a 15-percent tax on the first $30,000 of taxable income for married couples filing joint returns. Taxable income over that amount would be taxed at 28 percent. (For singles, the comparable rates are $15,000 and 28 percent for the excess.) But there's a catch. In fact, under current law, there are many such catches.

Example No. 1: Ellen and Steve, a young married couple, will have a taxable income of $74,000 for 1989. They will pay a total tax of $16,934.50. That's easy enough to figure out. They will pay a 22.6 percent tax on their total taxable income for the year.

Sylvia Porter

Jane are both over 65. Their combined Social Security benefits are $18,000 a year. In addition, they have $38,000 in dividend and interest income. So they have a total income of $56,000 a year.

Tax Horror Story No. 2: Half of their Social Security benefits are subject to tax. They take half of the benefit — that's $9,000 — add in the $38,000 income and subtract the $32,000 exclusion. That leaves a total income of $13,000.

Even worse, suppose that because of higher interest rates, your earnings for 1989 go to $40,000 instead of $38,000. You would have an additional $1,000 subject to tax. Know what your tax rate would be on that? Forty-two percent. That's right, 42 percent!

Here's why: The tax on the $2,000 earned is $400 (at 20 percent) and there's another $1,000 that's taxed just because of the extra earnings. Some "break" for senior citizens!

Despite these insults to the pocketbook, there's more. The catastrophic Medical Tax is another $22.50 per $100 of tax. This tax on tax can be catastrophic in and of itself.

Tax Solution: Put a big chunk of your money into sale-tax-free municipals or a municipal bond trust. Whoo, you may be saying. Trust-whos are counted as part of the base on the taxation of Social Security benefits. You are 100 percent right. But there is a big exception.

Not only that, your taxable income would be hit only by a 15-percent rate.

Republicans trying to get new people

To the Editor:

What is the reason the Republican Party in the town of Coventry is having trouble raising funds and attracting new members? Is it because our public image is not as good as it might be? Is it because our public image is not as good as it might be? Is it because our public image is not as good as it might be?

These problems are new but they are more numerous and more serious, and without a Republican governor — one who will not compromise with the CIA and other criminals running our communities and the lives of so many of their citizens — there will be no change.

Now, many pundits, particularly journalists, say O'Neil is done. He's not going to run. For them that's good news. They never liked O'Neil anyways and now they are prepared to take on the governor. But even a new Democrat governor will be nothing more than a change of name and face, not of thinking and direction.

The thousands of loyal Democrats who are lining their pockets by supporting the incumbent are not going to help him get elected.

Taking the pledge, then, is critical. The aspirants for governor should be required to take the pledge and all the rest of us who call ourselves GOP leaders should do so as well.

The third point I remind myself of is Connecticut needs much better govern-

Store is hindered by a rival

DEAR BRUCE: I own a small retail clothing store. About four months ago I started selling a new line of merchandise and it's doing reasonably well. But yesterday the salesman for the manufacturer told me that they would no longer sell to me because an account down the street, which they have been selling to for years, had not paid.

Can they refuse to sell me the clothes?

I.C., HOUSTON

DEAR I.C.: It is not unusual for a manufacturer to give a store exclusivity within a given geographical area. That would mean a portion of a city, a neighborhood, a city, or possibly even a county or a state, depending on the product.

What has happened here, in all likelihood, is that the competitor didn't realize you were carrying the clothing line they feel they have established in your area, and they were not prepared to compete.

If the manufacturer granted such exclusivity to your competitor, the competitor has the right to insist that the agreement be honored. I am sure that if the situation were reversed, you could appreciate their point of view.

Since you have only carried this line for a short time, it's unlikely you invested a great deal of money in advertising. If I were in that situation (and I have been in the past), I would find a different line of merchandise that did not agree to the competition. "punish" my competitor in the best possible way. Outrun the other store in the race for business.

Deforges Isn't worried

ATLANTA (AP) — Best-selling French author Robert Deforges says there is no chance a French court will rule in favor of Margaret Mitchell's heirs in their $750,000 plagiarism lawsuit against her.

"France is one country in the world where authors are protected in their right of free expression," The Atlantic Constitution quoted Ms. Deforges as saying Thursday. "For them, plagiarism does not exist. If you take an idea from someone else, that is all it is — an idea."

Ms. Deforges, 55, said Miss Mitchell's 1936 epic "Gone With the Wind" inspired her novel, "The Blue Bicycle." Miss Mitchell died in 1949. The Trust Co. of Georgia, executor of Miss Mitchell's estate, and Miss Mitchell's nephews, Joseph and Eugene Mitchell, are suing Ms. Deforges for "exploitation and infringement" of the novel.

Ms. Deforges' novel is the story of Lea, a French grape grower's daughter who serves as a courier for the French Resistance during World War II. The novel has sold millions of copies. The French court case was filed in Paris, a Georgia cotton grower's daughter who gets caught up in the Civil War.

Nussbaum out of hospital

NEW YORK (AP) — Hedda Nussbaum, the star of "Body Heat," was discharged Thursday from a hospital where she had been hospitalized in the death of her illegitimately adopted 8-year-old daughter, which was released from a psychiatric hospital and moved to an apartment.

One of Nussbaum's lawyers, Betty Levinson, said Thursday that Nussbaum was discharged several weeks ago and is in outpatient therapy. She attends weekly meetings of a support group for battered women, co-writer Pulitzer Prize-winning novel is the story of Scarlett O'Hara, a Georgia cotton grower's daughter who gets caught up in the Civil War.

Charges against Nussbaum, who made the star of "Body Heat," "Romancing the Stone" and "Peggy Sue Got Married" now lives with her husband, Jay Weiss, in a townhouse in the city's Greenwich Village. After a year of being unable to find a buyer for her old apartment, they decided to sell it and asked the cooperative board's permission.

Turner said in court papers she got no reply so a year later she renewed her request, naming her sister-in-law as a subtenant.

On May 1, the sister-in-law and her husband moved into Turner's apartment. On May 2, the board notified Turner she had violated co-op rules and threatened to terminate her apartment lease. Turner moved in court to block the eviction. A hearing scheduled for Thursday was adjourned until June 29.

Kosinski rides in a tank

JERUSALEM (AP) — American writer Jerry Kosinski rolled through the Israeli-occupied West Bank in a tank and said the Palestinian uprising will force a new political balance in the Middle East.

The "militarist" (Arabic for uprising) will have to run its course, and a new balance will have to emerge," Kosinski told The Associated Press after visiting a tank brigade Thursday in the West Bank. "This is history's balancing act. It is a powerful test for a powerful democracy like Israel."

The uprising against Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip erupted in December 1987 and has claimed at least 482 Palestinians and 17 Israeli lives.

During his visit, Kosinski sat in the driver's seat of a tank, then was driven around in the (voluntary to-and-fro eye movements) and his inability to see well without glasses (refractive errors). They sunburn easily and have a tendency to skin cancers.

Fancy stick work featured at MCC

By Nancy Poppo
Manchester Herald

Almost every child gets in trouble at some point for beating a rhythmic rita-tat on a dinner plate with a set of spoons.

That's one reason why everyone — from the musically naive to symphonic sophisticates — can enjoy and relate to the work of a truly skilled drummer.

In most cases, the fancy stick work is a showcase solo within a work of jazz or contemporary music.

But those attending this weekend's Manchester Symphony Orchestra and Chorale pops concert, tonight and Saturday evening at 8 at Manchester Community College, will have the opportunity to hear something quite rare.

Tom Goldstein, a New York City percussionist, will present two brief solo works written only for the snare drum.

Stuart Smith, the author of one of those pieces, thinks the audience will enjoy the music, and will not be put off by its unusual, contemporary nature.

"It's a sort of visceral connection we all have to someone sitting there and hitting something," said Smith, from his home in Baltimore. "It's just fun watching someone sit there and nail away at the snare drum."

Goldstein agreed, saying that he expected no coughing or squirming in the audience. "Just about everyone can enjoy and understand drumming," he said, in a telephone interview.

The pieces are part of a four-volume collection of drum solos called "The Noble Snare," commissioned by Smith, who directs the composition program at the University of Maryland at Baltimore. They were published by his wife, Manchester native Sylvia Helfrick Smith, who owns a contemporary music publishing firm.

It was the Smith-Helfrick connection which brought Manchester these drum works, which are hardly standard fare at a concert.

Marcos' condition is critical

HONOLULU (AP) — Deposed Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos was in very critical condition today following kidney, cardiac and pulmonary failure, hospital officials said.

His successor, Corason Aquino, said she would not permit Marcos to return to the Philippines to die despite an appeal from Marcos' wife, Imelda. The Philippine government has not decided whether to allow Marcos to be buried in his homeland.

Marcos, 71, suffered kidney failure Thursday morning and underwent surgery to prepare him for kidney dialysis, according to Gene Tiwanak, assistant administrator at St. Francis Medical Center.

"The prognosis is very poor and his condition is very critical," Tiwanak said Thursday.

Marcos' fever rose this morning. Mrs. Marcos told reporters as she left the hospital to go home and make telephone calls. She planned to return later.

Mrs. Marcos said she had failed to reach Mrs. Aquino by telephone. "We were hoping to make a last appeal to her, because of his very grave condition. We were hoping she would allow the president to go home."

When told by reporters that Mrs. Aquino had announced her decision to bar Marcos from returning, Mrs. Marcos said, "We are aware, but I am a believer and I am an optimist. I know miracles can happen."

Marcos was conscious before the operation and was lapsing in and out of consciousness later, said a hospital source who asked not to be identified.

Doctors characterized his condition as "touch and go," the source said.

The former president also suffered cardiac and pulmonary failure and had pneumonia and other severe infections, said Dr. Azucena Ignacio, an internist at St. Francis and one of Marcos' personal physicians.

Marcos was being treated with antibiotics and heart medication, Ignacio said. "Some medications are working, some are not," he said.

China

outside the Beijing region were brought in for "possible action" after the 38th Army, which protects the capital, said it was unwilling to suppress the protests. "They are very sympathetic," the source said.

Zhao, accompanied by Li, today visited some of the strikers in their damp and dirty squat camp in Tiananmen Square, boarding buses where they had sought shelter from a rainstorm.

"I came too late, too late. I should be criticized by you," strikers quoted Zhao as saying.

The protests are the largest in 40 years of communist rule. "The Chinese government will, with a responsible attitude, take measures to stop the chaos so as to restore social order," Li told a visiting Australian envoy. "We'll solve this problem. I'm fully confident of this," the official said.

The ban on demonstrations, and Li's statements, indicated senior leader Deng Xiaoping wants to quell the unrest before his position is further weakened.

Deng, 84, has been losing ground as more and more sectors of society have expressed support for the students. He reportedly wanted to crack down on the students when they began their protests in mid-April but was unable to because of their large numbers and strong public support.

The student campaign has evolved into a mass movement involving workers, soldiers, police, doctors, teachers and government employees.

Tens of thousands of people arrived by train from across China today to parade around Tiananmen. Many young people and workers marched along with truckloads of uniformed police and army and navy cadets.

diverse and sometimes cornball musical tastes and his affection for small-town life. After leaving the show, Keillor felt unsettled and at loose ends.

"The worst possible thing is when all your dreams come true. And mine did, including some I didn't realize I had. But I felt better about facing up to those things in Minnesota," he said in an interview.

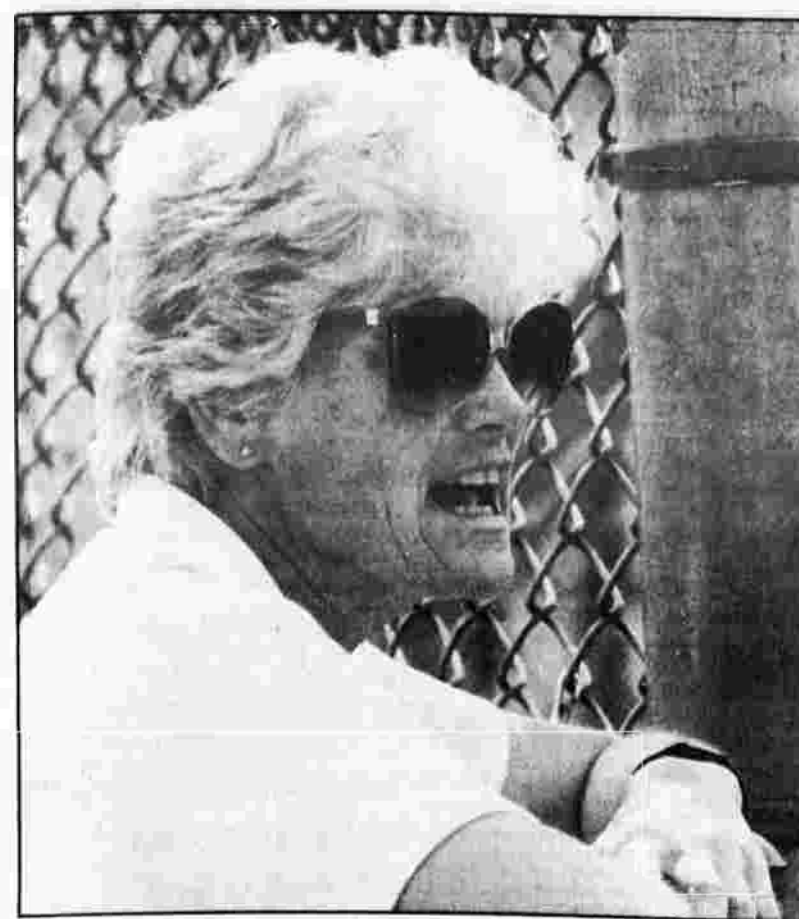

His old show was broadcast from St. Paul, but the 46-year-old Keillor staged it in Lake Wobegon, Minn., which became so familiar that some listeners thought it was a real town.

The monologues grew from a regional hit show into a national phenomenon running more than a decade. Keillor's best-selling "Lake Wobegon Days" was the radio version of his radio humor book that sold a whole lot of copies.

"If somebody I'd gone to school with, whom I didn't think was that smart to begin with, had written a book that sold a whole lot of copies... I would envy him. I know that," he said.

Keillor said he felt forced to give up his home when the local press took too much interest in his private life. "It bewildered me. I had no idea what they were aiming at," said Keillor. He felt hatred directed against him, which was entirely strange to him.

What bothered him most was that he couldn't see anything funny about it. "Usually I can think of something humorous about something, but I've never been able to write about that. It just seems so utterly grim."

Fagnant gets 200th win Manchester qualifies for state tournament

It was no ordinary win by the Manchester High girls' softball team Thursday afternoon. The Indians' 4-1 win over cross-town East Catholic at Fitzgerald Field qualified them for state tournament play, and also was the 200th victory for veteran coach Mary Fagnant dating back to when official records were first kept.

Fagnant's mark now reads 200-100 since 1974. "I feel good. I feel it (200 wins) is a definite accomplishment," she said.

"(But) I feel many coaches would be in this spot if they had the athletes I've had at Manchester High. There have been many outstanding female athletes at Manchester High and they've come out for softball."

Central Connecticut Interscholastic League. It won three Class LL regional titles (1981, '82 and '83), was state runner-up in 1982 and been a semifinalist on four other occasions. This is the 18th time Manchester has qualified for the state tournament in the 15 years it's been held.

Fagnant was named Connecticut High School Softball Coach of the Year in 1984 by the Connecticut High School Coaches Association.

East fell to 5-12 with the loss. Both clubs were back in action today with the Indians at East Hartford High in CCC East Division play and the Eagles hosting Ellington High at Robertson Park.

Dana Hensley hurled a three-hitter to up her mark to 5-2 for Manchester. She walked six and struck out three. Cheryl Constantine took the loss for East.

East scored three of its runs in the second inning. "Dana hit a streak of wildness and they scored three runs," Fagnant said. "But after that she faltered along until the sixth."

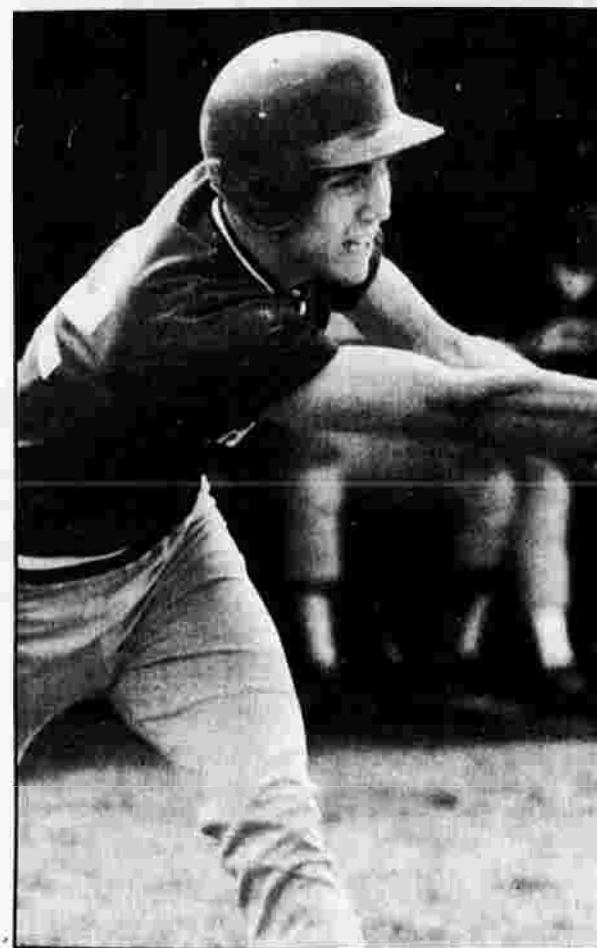

Manchester, which had 10 hits, chipped away. It scored a run in the first, two more in the second on a two-run single by Tina Stone, and took the lead for good in the fourth with two more runs on an RBI double by Pam Duquay and an RBI single by Beth Romanewicz.

The Indians scored two more in the fifth on a walk, Beth O'Brien single, RBI single by Mary Tsoklas and a bases-loaded walk to Stone.

Stone had three hits and 3 RBIs and O'Brien added two hits for Manchester.

First baseman Erin Twible, Stone at shortstop and Tsoklas at third base had strong defensive outings for the Indians.

Red Sox move into first despite a losing record

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The lopsided nature of the American League was on display Thursday night at Anaheim Stadium.

The team with the 19-19 record moved into first place. The team with the 26-14 record fell into second place.

"We're just shuffling along, glad to be in a good situation," Boston reliever Rob Murphy said after saving the Red Sox's 5-2 victory over the California Angels.

"The Red Sox jumped from third place into the AL East lead, one-half game ahead of Cleveland."

California, meanwhile, saw its five-game winning streak end. The loss, only their fourth in 20 games, dropped the Angels a game behind Oakland in the AL West.

"I'm not a good one to comment on the divisions. We haven't played all the teams in the East," said California manager Doug Rader, begging off the topic.

The Angels have manhandled the Boston Red Sox in recent games, showing a 17-5 record against the division.

"You have to play the cards you're dealt, and take advantage of it," said Murphy, whose save was the first for a Boston left-hander since Tom Bolton earned his only one of 1988 on Aug. 13.

Murphy threw 2 2/3 innings of one-hit ball — that being a bunt single in the ninth by Clint Davis — so Boston manager Joe Morgan resisted making a move to one of his traditional closers.

"That Murphy guy. Has anybody been hitting him?" Rader asked admiringly. "We didn't have anyone who could touch him."

Boston starter John Dopper was touched plenty of times, allowing nine hits in 6 1/3 innings. But four of the five double plays the Boston infield turned enabled Dopper to protect his early 3-0 lead as he improved to 5-2.

Marty Barrett, who homered only once in 612 at-bats in 1988, hit a solo shot with one out in the first. Mike Greenwell homered with two outs in the fourth, his seventh, for a 2-0 lead.

Boston made it 3-0 against Mike Witt, 3-4, in the fifth on Dwight Evans' double, his first of three hits, and Ed Romero's RBI single.

"The Angels cut the lead to 3-2 in the sixth when Johnny Mingo singled ahead of Devon White's fourth homer."

"When a team is hot like that, you figure, 'Here they come,'" Morgan said of the Angels. "But we fooled them."

"Dopper didn't have a good breaking ball but did a great job. It just goes to show what you can accomplish if you have a good sinker and keep it down."

Dopper was long gone by the time the Red Sox finally built a cushion with a two-run rally in the ninth.

Manchester triumvirate instills fear in opponents

By Jim Tierney
Manchester Herald

Keith DiYeso, Aris Leonard, Dom Laurinitis. Dom Laurinitis. Aris Leonard. Keith DiYeso. Any way you slice it, a solid hitter awaits.

These three instill fear into the hearts and minds of opposing pitchers. There is no easy way around this trio.

This highly respected and talented triumvirate of hitters has been the offensive backbone of the Manchester High baseball team the past two years.

Leonard, a junior who is the only left-handed batter among the three, led the club in batting with a .340 average last season, while Laurinitis and DiYeso, both seniors, followed with .333 and .315 averages, respectively.

This year, DiYeso, Laurinitis and Leonard have emerged into the strongest 1-2-3 punch in the Central Connecticut Conference East Division and, perhaps, one of the strongest group of hitters in the state.

DOM LAURINITIS
...coming on strong

"Together this is the strongest trio of hitters I've had," Manchester Coach Don Race, who took over the head coaching reins in 1981, said. "I don't think anybody could put three hitters up there like those three. They're three of the toughest hitters to get out. I have no doubts on that."

The D-L-L boys have guided Manchester to a fine 10-2 mark in the CCC East and 10-5 overall. The Indians are currently in second place in the league and were scheduled to meet first-place East Hartford in a showdown today at Kelley Field.

Through 15 games, DiYeso leads the Indians in hitting with a lofty .429 average (18-for-42) and has driven in nine runs. Leonard is hitting .350 (15-for-40) with seven RBIs while Laurinitis has come on as of late to up his average to .309. Laurinitis leads the club in RBIs with 11.

Almost inevitably, opposing pitchers have begun to pitch around one, two or all three. As a result, the trio has run into highs and lows this year. DiYeso stormed out of the starting gate and hit .667 (12-for-18) with six RBIs through six games.

Leonard, who is undoubtedly one of the finest defensive centerfielders in the state — a starting position for him since he was a ninth grader at the start of the season only to come on as of late. In a recent four-game stretch, Leonard went 7-for-14 through 15 games. DiYeso leads the Indians in hitting with a lofty .429 average (18-for-42) and has driven in nine runs. TOP SEED — Manchester's Matt Prignano is the top seed in the javelin for Saturday's Greater Manchester Invitational at Pete Wigren Track.

Battles expected at Invitational

By Jim Tierney
Manchester Herald

The Greater Manchester Track and Field Invitational is set to begin its eighth edition Saturday morning at Manchester High's Pete Wigren Track.

The massive competition, which starts at 8:45 a.m., will be divided into large school and small school divisions.

Both the Manchester High and East Catholic boys' and girls' teams will compete in the large school division.

The Manchester girls, who have a 5-1 dual meet record, are the defending large school champions while the Manchester boys, who are unbeaten in dual meet competition at 6-0, placed second last year. Both will be among the favorites this year. East Hartford is the boys' large school favorite. The meet is sponsored by the Journal Inquirer.

A total of 17 schools and approximately 800 athletes will participate.

"I think it will be a good meet," Manchester boys' coach and meet director George Sultors said. "East Hartford will score a lot of points and Windham will score a lot of points. We're going to need a lot of points from our distance boys' large school division."
