

Memorial Day '89 will spark memories of brave men, women

By Nancy Conzelmann
Manchester Herald

Those who turn out Monday for Manchester's Memorial Day parade will see Parade Marshal Ronald Osella looking snappy in his dress U.S. Army Reserve uniform, proudly leading marchers and waving at friends.

"It's a time for reflection on what our country stands for," Osella said. While Osella is quietly remembering veterans who have survived, those who have died and those who cannot be found to this day, World War II will be remembered in a quiet cemetery off Cider Mill Road in Andover as veteran William Kowalski tells his story.

Kowalski, 72, was among those who helped Gen. Douglas MacArthur keep his famous promise, "I shall return."

Kowalski was aboard the U.S. Navy ship that brought MacArthur back to the Philippines in 1945, three years after the Japanese victory over American and Filipino forces. The USS Nashville was MacArthur's flagship three times during the war. Kowalski said it was Kowalski's home for part of his eight-year Navy career.

A ship's tailor, Kowalski "sewed and pressed for 1200 men" and helped start the 18-piece USS Nashville Hillbilly Band, which later grew to a 52-piece group.

He and his crewmates helped lead the first American bombing raid over Tokyo in April 1942 by bringing planes within 400 feet of the Tokyo coast.

"We pulled the operation off," Kowalski said. "We sank two Japanese ships."

Kowalski will be one of many speakers, young and old, who will remind citizens in area towns and cities of the sacrifices made during the war.

MCC graduates urged to contribute

By Andrew Yurkovsky

When Manchester Community College President Jonathan M. Daube talked about the variety of students at the college during Thursday's graduation, he had in mind people like Mark and Sharon Glubosky of Stafford Springs and Richard and Jane Forsstell of Vernon.

The Gluboskys and the Forsstells were two of at least three husband-and-wife teams that graduated during the college's 25th commencement exercises, which were held at the Manchester Bicentennial Band Shell on the college grounds. A total of 345 students received degrees.

There were other family combinations, too.

Bolton High gets 'D' for deficiencies

By Andrew J. Davis
Manchester Herald

BOLTON — School officials have been warned that Bolton High School could lose its accreditation if improvements are not made in facilities, curriculum and pupil performance.

An accreditation report by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges, based in Winchester, Mass., was released Thursday at a meeting of the Board of Education at Bolton Center School. The school has been placed on "warning," the least severe of four possible sanctions.

School officials must complete a two-year follow-up report and a five-year report, and prove that the deficiencies are being corrected, if the school is to keep its accreditation, according to the report. Schools in the association are accredited every 10 years.

Jane D. Allison, assistant director for the association, said today that the school is not in danger of losing accreditation if it corrects problems identified in the report. A loss of accreditation would mean the school would have to reapply to be re-accredited and that it may be difficult for some students to get into an accredited college, she said.

School officials received the report last month but said they did not release it publicly because staff members had not had time to review it and because association bylaws state they have 60 days to make it public. The withheld report became a sore spot at town meetings when some people accused the school board of keeping it secret.

Association officials criticized the high school for not having an auditorium and for being inaccessible to those with physical disabilities. The report said that the building does not "adequately support the education program" and that there "are hazards and dangerous conditions in the facility which endanger the safety and health of the occupants of the building."

The report states there are major health and safety code violations in the industrial arts and science areas of the building. School officials, though, were praised for building the library-media center.

Curriculum also needs to be improved, according to the report. The school does not give enough attention to the non-college-bound student, does not provide updated and well-written curriculum guides for teachers, and does not have a well-organized plan to develop curriculum, according to the association.

At its meeting, the school board reviewed a plan to revise its curriculum development. School officials also plan to hire a curriculum coordinator.

The association also criticized the school for not providing enough "appropriate educational experiences for lower-achieving students." Also, the report said that community goals and expectations are not known well to staff and administration, that the school's method for assessing pupil performance is inadequate, and that consistent standards for measuring performance must be developed.

The report also said that Principal Joseph V. Fleming must work with staff and the school board to improve communication, but added there is

House passes $6.82 billion budget; Senate OKs tax plan

Senate's tax bill shatters records with $684 million

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — House Democratic leaders say they're not altering plans to vote on an increase in the sales tax to 8 percent, despite their Senate counterparts' preference for keeping it at 7.5 percent and taxing items that are now exempt.

The Senate proposal, contained in a potentially record-shattering $684 million tax package approved in the upper chamber Thursday, was headed for House action today.

Assistant House Majority Leader Jonathan Peltz, D-Mansfield, said Thursday night that the House would go ahead with the 8 percent sales tax plan because that is the only package on which the House Democratic leadership could attain consensus among the rank and file.

Votes on additional taxes and other revenue increases, totaling more than $103 million, are expected next week. There is also a proposal for a tax on the income of out-of-state commuters who work in Connecticut, designed to raise at least $11 million.

Tax package at a glance

- $44 million: A new tax on sole proprietorships and partnerships.
- $36 million: Disallow corporate deductions for income taxes paid to other states; minimum business tax of $300 for every shareholder or family members receiving more than $10,000 in annual compensation, up to $10,500 maximum for each corporation.
- $2 million: Impose a 20 percent excise tax on non-cigarette tobacco products.
- $33.5 million: Increase the real estate conveyance tax from 0.45 percent to 0.5 percent; the tax would be 1 percent on any amount over $800,000. Stock transfers of a controlling interest in commercial property would be taxed at 1 percent.
- $28 million: Increase fees for lawyers and other professional occupations.
- $1 million: A 5 percent tax on gas purchased from companies outside Connecticut.
- $500,000: Impose a 5 mil-per-kilowatt hour tax on private consumption of privately generated electricity.
- $332 million: Sales tax remains at 7.5 percent and is extended to the following items: business services, such as dry cleaning, car and other repairs, lobbying and landscaping, but not attorney or accounting services, business utility bills, including oil, but excluding manufacturing-related bills; telephone bills; clothing costing more than $50, instead of the current $75; meals costing less than $2; cable television bills.
- $105 million: Eliminate the 50 percent exclusion on capital gains, to raise $105 million.
- $57 million: Increase the interest and dividends tax by altering the current sliding scale, from the current 1-12 percent to 1-14 percent. Income brackets would also be compressed.
- $45 million: Increase the surcharge on the corporate tax from 15 percent to 20 percent.

The previous record for a single year, $302 million, was set in 1983, the last time the state faced deficits and shortfalls as it does today.

The Senate Democrats' tax bill was approved 22-14 after four hours' debate Thursday, loosely along party lines. All 13 Republicans opposed it.

Any changes by the House would send the bill back to the Senate. If the Senate rejects those changes, the tax bill would be sent to a House-Senate conference committee to work out a compromise.

Time is increasingly becoming a factor, with the 1989 General Assembly facing a mandatory June 1 adjournment. If there is no resolution of the tax and budget plan by then, a special session will be required.

Senate Majority Leader Cornelius P. O'Leary, D-Windsor Locks, called the taxes necessary and said Democrats had "done the best we can in spreading a difficult burden over many shoulders" and pointed out the state does not have a personal income tax.

But Sen. Thomas Scott, R-Milford, said that by passing such "massive and historic" taxes, the Senate was telling "Mr. and Mrs.

House vote 81-66 for spending plan; tax package next

By Peter Viles
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Weary after a 12-hour debate, Democrats in the House of Representatives passed a $6.82 billion budget early this morning and then prepared to come back again today to pass almost $700 million in tax increases to pay for it.

The House passed the budget at 2:08 a.m. Friday by a vote of 81-66. Five Democrats and every Republican present voted against the spending plan.

To balance the budget, Democrats acknowledged they will need an unprecedented tax increase of $697 million next year in addition to tax increases they imposed April 1. House leaders planned to pass the tax package Friday.

The House passed budget now goes to the Senate, which plans to vote on the spending plan some time next week. Changes in the spending plan are unlikely, but a serious disagreement still looms over the tax package.

The Senate on Thursday passed a $684 million tax package that keeps the state sales tax at 7.5 percent. House leaders plan to debate a tax package Friday that will raise about the same amount, but will do it partly by raising the sales tax to 8 percent.

The budget passed by the House calls for an 8 percent increase in state spending, or $548 million in new spending, but chops $120 million from Gov. William A. O'Neill's request for a $6.94 billion budget.

House Majority Leader Robert Frankel, D-Stratford, described the spending plan as a "responsible budget, one that meets our needs."

"Let's face it, the Democrats have not been able to come in under double-digit (percentage spending increases) before," Frankel said.

After months of searching unsuccessfully for deeper cuts in O'Neill's budget, Democrats proposed

Adopt a pet: Barbie Doll

By Barbara Richmond
Manchester Herald

A very, very friendly female shepherd collie cross is this week's featured pet at the Manchester dog pound. Dog Warden Richard Rand said she's one of the nicest in temperament he has ever had at the pound.

She's been named Barbie Doll, Barbie for short. She's about 2 years old, is black and tan and was found on Holl Street on May 8. Rand said Barbie is very good with the other dogs and with children. She's all set to go to a good home.

The two male doberman pinchers, left tied to the fence at the pound last week, were adopted Tuesday by a South Windsor woman. They were both males and also had nice dispositions.

The other female doberman mentioned in last week's column, was adopted by a Bolton family. The female shepherd cross, found on Center Street, was adopted by a Manchester family.

Chief of the shepherd cross, featured last week, was also adopted by a Bolton family. He was found roaming on Chestnut Street.

There were two new dogs at the pound, as of Tuesday. One is a quiet female English sheep dog. She's grey and white. She's about 2 years old. She was found on Forest Street on May 18.

The other new one is a male shepherd-bukey cross. He's about 1 year old, is white and beige, and was wearing a blue nylon harness when picked up May 22 on Adams Street.

The dog pound is located on town property off Olcott Street near the landfill area. Rand is at the pound weekdays from noon to 1 p.m. There is also someone at the pound from 6 to 9 a.m., Monday through Friday.

The phone number at the pound is 645-6642. Those wishing to get in touch with the dog warden can also call the police department, 646-4555, if there is no answer at the pound.

There is a $5 fee to adopt a dog and the new owner must have the dog licensed. Before being licensed the dog must have his rabies shot.

In connection with rabies shots, each year the veterinarians of the Connecticut Veterinary Medical Association donate their time to provide low-cost vaccinations for dogs and cats.

Kazuko Takatsukasa

TOKYO (AP) — Kazuko Takatsukasa, the elder sister of Emperor Akihito, died of heart failure at a Tokyo hospital early today, Imperial Palace officials said. She was 59.

Mrs. Takatsukasa was the third daughter of the late Emperor Hirohito, Japan's longest reigning monarch, who died Jan. 7. She served as Lord Custodian of the Great Shrine of Ise, a major Shinto shrine in western Japan, for 14 years. She resided in October, citing poor health.

MOSCOW (AP) — Georgy Tovstonogov, one of the Soviet Union's best-known producers, died Wednesday in a car accident at the age of 75.

Tovstonogov was chief producer at the Leningrad Gorky Academic Bolshoi Drama Theater since 1956.

Among his most famed productions was a stage adaptation of Fyodor Dostoyevsky's novel "The Idiot." He also wrote books on stage technique and theory.

He also served for many years as a member of the Supreme Soviet legislature and as secretary of the governing board of the theater workers union, Tass said.

FitzGerald raps Great Lawn plans

Two proposals to 'destroy' lawn

By Alex Girilli
Manchester Herald

William FitzGerald, chairman of the Cheney National Historic District Commission, took a strong stand Thursday against plans that would permit development on the Cheney Great Lawn.

"This plan here destroys the lawn," FitzGerald said at a meeting of a committee of the commission.

The committee is studying a proposal which would permit conversion of former Cheney family mansions to multiple housing and would permit construction of new multifamily units.

"FitzGerald said that unless owners of four mansions devise a plan that will keep development off the central core of the lawn north of Hartford Road, he would oppose the plan when it is considered by the Planning and Zoning Commission.

The PZC is scheduled to consider the plan June 5, but FitzGerald said he believes there is no possibility of resolving the problem by that time.

At the request of other committee members, he said he will try to set up a meeting next week at which the lawn development could be discussed with the owners of the mansions. Those owners are asking that about 25 acres of the lawn be changed to Residence AA Zone, a historic zone, and are seeking amendments in the Historic Zone regulations.

The Residence AA Zone allows for single-family residences. The Historic Zone allows multifamily residences and the amendments would require that the housing units be compatible with existing structures in the zone and that plans include open space.

Mark Pellegrini, town planning director, described some provisions the planning staff feels could be added to historic zone regulations.

The $10,000 from the operation budget will come from a surplus in that account. School officials had budgeted more than $74,000 for two modular classrooms at Bolton Elementary School and one at Bolton High School. But the school board voted to cut $68,756 from the classrooms from Arthur Industries of Terryville in the center of the lawn.

The board also voted to cut $6,000 for radios that would allow communication between school buses and schools because the bus company, Vancom of Norwich, has said it may install the radios, said Gretchen H. Wiedle, administrative assistant to Packman.

Bolton school board shaves money from salary account for teachers

By Andrew J. Davis
Manchester Herald

BOLTON — The Board of Education voted 4-3 Thursday to cut $55,000 from the $3.1 million school budget, taking most of the money from the accounts for teachers' salaries.

The board cut $38,000 in salaries, $6,000 for portable radios for school buses, and $10,000 from the operation budget. The board was forced to make the cuts after voters at the Annual Town Meeting May 15 approved the reduced budget recommended by the Board of Finance.

The school board met Thursday at Bolton Center School.

Democratic board member Barry E. Stearns, who made the recommendation on how to cut the budget, said he wanted to reduce the salary account because there is always a surplus in it. In the 1988-89 budget, school officials reported a $42,000 surplus in the account due to staff turnover.

"Seems like every year we have a surplus," Stearns said. School Superintendent Richard E. Packman objected to the move to reduce the $2.6 million account, saying he did not know how he would pay teachers if the money were needed. Packman will report to the board at its June 8 meeting on where staff reductions will be made if there is no turnover.

"It's a real risky move," he said. Republican Michael L. Parsons, the chairman of the board's personnel committee, sided with Packman. He said board members are trying to "shoot themselves in the foot."

"You better think about it," he said. "If you don't have any turnover, you're going to be laying off teachers. It's a stupid thing to do."

Police find no links between 2 robberies

There is no connection between a bank robbery that occurred Tuesday in Glastonbury and one which occurred five days earlier in Manchester, police are saying.

Manchester and Glastonbury police officers met Wednesday to compare notes on similarities between the two bank robberies but came up with no connections or suspects, said Gary Wood, Manchester Police Department spokesman.

On Tuesday, a man robbed the People's Bank on Welles Street in Glastonbury at about 1:30 p.m. after he handed a teller a note demanding money. Glastonbury police said the robber heist, in which the robber netted $6,200. The amount stolen in Glastonbury was unavailable.

The Manchester robber also handed a teller a note demanding money and was carrying a handgun, witnesses said. Wood said there are no other leads in the Manchester heist, in which the robber netted $6,200. The amount stolen in Glastonbury was unavailable.

Osella says format cuts off public time

By Andrew Yurkowski

Following its old format for one meeting a month, rather than the format for two meetings a month adopted in December 1987.

Under the old format, there were two opportunities for public comment, one on agenda items and one on any subject in the Board of Director's jurisdiction. The new format has two comment periods for any subject in the board's jurisdiction — one for the first meeting of the month and one for the second.

Osella says in the memo that the switch to the old format, which uses the old format, achieves the same purpose as an attempt by Democrats last year to allow only one comment period each month for non-agenda items. He said today he thought the switch to the old format was deliberate.

"It strikes me as peculiar that the switch to an improper single-meeting printed agenda in October 1988 just happened to coincide with your proposal to eliminate Item 17, the second opportunity for the public to speak to the entire board on any matter under our jurisdiction," Osella says in his memo to DiRosa.

DiRosa said that Osella's comment about the coincidence of the single-meeting agenda and the proposal on Item 17 was "the most absurd thing he's said in recent memory."

ROAD TO ROME — President Bush waves as he leaves the White House today for a flight to Rome, where he is scheduled to have an audience with the pope. He will also visit England, West Germany and Belgium for a NATO summit.

Weapons policy rift troubles Bush's trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush, saying the Western alliance faces "new challenges and unparalleled opportunities," set out early today on a four-nation European trip highlighted by a potentially contentious NATO summit.

With the North Atlantic Treaty Organization grappling over a major dispute about nuclear weapons policy, the Washington Times reported that Bush planned to use the summit as the stage for announcing a reduction of up to 10 percent in U.S. troop strength in Europe, "as many as 34,000 troops."

White House officials declined immediate comment. "Anything we have to say, we'll say in Europe," said spokesman Bill Harlow. The chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Sam Nunn, D-Ga., told CBS News that a 10 percent reduction "is the probable amount of reduction that would occur if the Soviet Union accepted the NATO proposal on conventional arms control which is now tabled."

A senior NATO official, asked by reporters in Brussels about the report, said "our delegations here on the spot have not been apprised of this." He spoke on condition of anonymity. In his departure remarks, Bush provided no hint of a significant American counter to recent Soviet arms proposals. He said, "The importance of the alliance and its democratic underpinnings is the message I now take to Europe."

Democrats prepare for a new speaker

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats, anticipating a historic resignation next week of Speaker Jim Wright, are making plans for quickly promoting Majority Leader Thomas S. Foley of Washington to the powerful speaker's post. But intrigue is brewing for filling in the rest of the party leadership slots as some Democrats worry that Rep. Tony Coelho, Foley's likely successor, could hurt the party because of questions about his own financial dealings.

Foley, talking with reporters Thursday in Seattle, said he spoke to Wright earlier in the day and the speaker "repeated his desire to have an opportunity to state his case, his side of the case, to the widest possible audience, and he's determined to take that opportunity at the first time that seems appropriate." "I assume that will be with either next week or shortly thereafter," Foley said. Leadership sources in the Capitol said arrangements would be made for Wright to make a resignation address to the House next Wednesday, but the speaker himself had not yet decided on his precise course of action.

Wright, D-Texas, remained secluded in his office Thursday, but he released a statement making clear he no longer was seeking any "plea bargain" with the House ethics committee. One of the most serious charges made by the ethics committee was that Wright's wife, Betty, was given a no-work job by Wright's friend and business partner, George Mallick. Japan, Brazil, India top trade violators

U.S. sets June talks to end unfair policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush, urging Japan, Brazil and India to open their markets to U.S. products, said today that negotiations aimed at ending unfair trade practices will begin with the three countries on June 16.

The administration singled out the three nations Thursday night for priority action under a 1988 trade law that calls for penalties against countries that are deemed to be especially protectionist. "Our goal is to open markets and to eliminate trade barriers. We oppose protectionism in any and all forms. Therefore, I urge the governments of Japan, India, and Brazil to work constructively with us to resolve these issues expeditiously," the president said in a statement announcing the negotiation date as he left on a trip to Europe.

The 1988 Omnibus Trade Act requires the administration to issue what amounts to a hit list that names the countries whose trade barriers are most harmful to American producers. The government then has 18 months to negotiate away the barriers. Failure of the talks could lead to tariffs of up to 100 percent on selected exports from the offending countries. Announcing the action, U.S. Trade Representative Carla A. Hills told reporters, "This exercise is not intended to be offensive. I hope there is no backlash."

However, Japanese Ambassador Nobuo Matsunaga issued a statement calling the decision to include his country "extremely regrettable." Hills also announced the United States would be watching closely 25 countries suspected of failing to protect U.S. copyrights and patents and said the Bush administration would reveal the status of the eight most flagrant ones in November.

The Japanese lobbied in recent weeks to stay off the list of top trade violators. They were less successful, however, than the Koreans, who made a number of trade concessions in recent days and did manage to avoid inclusion. "In light of the good faith efforts that have been made, the government of Japan and the Japanese people are greatly disappointed by the decision to purchase of U.S. copyrights and patents. There may well be some domestic backlash in Japan which will make the resolution of the various problems even more difficult."

Japan was cited for its refusal to buy U.S. supercomputers and satellites as well as its barriers to purchase of U.S. wood products. The United States ran a trade deficit of $32 billion last year with Japan, or 44 percent of the $118.8 billion U.S. trade imbalance. India was cited for barriers that bar foreign investment and the closing of its insurance market to foreign companies.

The administration cited Brazil for quotas on imports and licensing restrictions. Hills said the administration plans "to immediately commence negotiations on all of this that we have identified" but added that there was no certainty that they could succeed. "I have no assurance," she said, "I have only my own good will and I hope we can approach these negotiations with a constructive dialogue."

Besides citing Japan, Brazil and India for flagrant trade barriers, the administration placed eight countries on a "priority watch list" of nations that have failed to protect U.S. copyrights and patents. It declined, however, to target any countries for priority action on that issue. It did establish a lesser "watch list" of 17 other countries that have not established the safeguards against infringement on U.S. copyrights and patents.

The president also has directed Cabinet officials to open separate negotiations with the Japanese on eliminating "structural impediments" to sales of U.S. goods within their economy. The impediments range from pricing mechanisms to bid rigging. In his statement today, Bush said U.S. officials looked at "a large number of practices" that ultimately were not listed.

program which investigators say was riddled with favoritism. Pierce, who is now a New York lawyer, told congressional investigators Thursday that he wasn't directly involved in deciding which projects received grants under the program. He said a committee of his subordinates at the Department of Housing and Urban Development selected the winners, and his approval was a rubber stamp.

Pierce said he wasn't influenced by well-connected Republicans and former HUD officials who obtained a large portion of the multimillion-dollar subsidy projects, acting as consultants or developers. "Perhaps we should have watched the program closer than we did," Pierce said, in the closest he came to acknowledging any blame. "But we've got a whole department (to run) ..."

Arab leaders favor pullout
CASABLANCA, Morocco (AP) — Arab leaders today approved a resolution calling for the withdrawal of the Syrian army from Beirut within three months and elections there to choose a government of "national unity."

The resolution was approved at a closed five-hour meeting on the final day of the Arab League summit, which was marked by bitter discord over Syria's military presence in Lebanon. Syria has 40,000 troops in Lebanon under an Arab League peacekeeping mandate, and they have joined forces with Moslem militias fighting the mainly Christian troops of army Gen. Michel Aoun. The summit entered its final hours amid news reports Syria had reinforced its troops in Lebanon. Jerusalem's Yediot Ahrontz said an additional 40 Syrian tanks were moved into Lebanon, along with an undetermined number of troops.

Israel eyes Syrian buildup
JERUSALEM (AP) — Syria has reinforced its 40,000 troops in Lebanon with an armored tank brigade, and Syrian fighter planes flew over Christian positions today, Israeli and Lebanese media reported. Israel's Cabinet met in special session to discuss the troop moves, Israel radio said. An Israeli official, who requested anonymity, confirmed a special Cabinet session was convened Thursday night but refused to give details. Israeli officials said they were watching the situation closely but saw no reason to interfere as long as Israel's northern border was not affected. "As long as we don't feel directly threatened, there is no way Israel is going to intervene," said Foreign Ministry spokesman Alon Liel.

Pipeline explosion kills 3

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — A gasoline pipeline exploded and killed three people just days after residents were assured it had not been damaged by a runaway train that plowed through the same neighborhood two weeks ago.

"It looks like a bomb went off over Duffy Street," City Attorney James Penman said after the Thursday morning blast that sent flames 300 feet skyward and produced heat so intense that pets and corn stalks were singed two blocks away. Thirty-one people were injured in the explosion that also destroyed 10 homes and 15 cars. About 300 people were ordered to leave their homes for the night.

"It's like a nightmare," said Dolores Jones, whose house was destroyed by the fire. "I haven't slept since the train wreck. It's come back to haunt me."

Pierce says he didn't know

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Housing Secretary Samuel Pierce provoked anger and disbelief among members of a congressional panel that questioned him about a housing subsidy

OPINION

Decision needed on town hall

Before the town Board of Directors spends any more money to study proposals for providing new municipal office space, the directors should decide whether they and the voters of Manchester are ready to spend the considerable sum it will take to do the job right.

For years, the town has been taking a variety of stopgap measures to provide ways to find working room for municipal employees.

And for years it has been apparent that some more permanent solution is needed. But nothing was done at times when the town's fiscal picture was brighter than it is now. Vast commercial development now going on in the Buckland area holds promise of adding to the town's tax base in the future, perhaps making it easier to bear the cost of a new municipal building.

Enough study has been done already to permit the town to decide what course of action it should take. The real question is whether the taxpayers and voters are prepared to spend the necessary money. If money were not a problem, the solution would have been found long ago.

The about-$30,000 the town would have to spend for the studies it is considering now is not a large sum in comparison to the total cost of a new building, which could be in the neighborhood of $15 million.

And it will take time, even after a decision is made, to plan a new building or a sizable addition to the existing Municipal Building.

Nevertheless, the determination should be made as a matter of policy that the town is ready to bear that cost before more money is spent on studies.

Tough to prove fusion in a jar

There is reason for profound skepticism about Stanley Pons and Martin Fleischmann's claim they have created nuclear fusion in a jar.

Their claim of cold fusion may be a crackpot delusion or an incredible scientific breakthrough.

What is certain is that differing wings of the scientific establishment can disagree passionately. Reputations are at stake. Pons and Fleischmann are electrochemists.

Physicists have called them charlatans and in two days of meetings in Baltimore presented the results of experiment after experiment that failed to confirm the claim of cold fusion.

A national meeting of electrochemists in Los Angeles brought reports of 14 laboratories in six nations conducting experiments in which results indicate fusion may have occurred.

The meeting ended in polite skepticism. Despite a promise, Pons and Fleischmann failed to reveal details of their experiments at the meeting of their colleagues.

It's a pity they did not do so. If the two electrochemists are right, they have done what physicists who have spent millions have failed to achieve.

If Pons and Fleischmann are honestly mistaken or deliberately carrying on a deception, the truth will eventually prevail. An independent audit of the experiment at the government's Los Alamos laboratories is planned. If proven right, the stream of government grant money will be redirected away from traditional fusion research by physicists to the electrochemists.

Pons and Fleischmann created the storm of interest and controversy by disclosing their cold fusion experiments at a March press conference. Their failure to follow up with the details needed for other researchers to confirm their findings suggests that even in their own minds there may be uncertainty about what precisely they have done.

A gold mine of gobbledegook

By Bryan Brumley

WASHINGTON — The mushroom treatment is not the latest in French cuisine and Fort Fumble is not on the list of Defense Department installations to be closed down next year.

Both are examples of Pentagonese, that pinnacle of bureaucratic jargon used by the men and women responsible for America's national security.

Fort Fumble, the Fudge Factory and the Five-Sided Walling Wall are names used more or less affectionately by the 23,000 people who work daily in the 3.7 million square feet of office space in the Pentagon.

Both are examples of Pentagonese, that pinnacle of bureaucratic jargon used by the men and women responsible for America's national security. As in any bureaucracy, those who work in the Pentagon but haven't learned the lingo risk the mushroom treatment, defined by author Perry Smith as being kept in the dark and fed on manure. Or something equally tasty.

The retired Air Force major general, in his book "Assignment Pentagon," has compiled a glossary not only of Defense Department gobbledegook, but of the acronyms that the military uses. In Smith's words, as a "shortcut language" for defense issues.

BMEWS, for example, is not a verb meaning to stupefy, but is the nation's Ballistic Missile Early Warning System. GWEN is not a woman's name, but the Ground Wave Emergency Network.

MIRV and SAM are deadly Multiple Independently Targeted Re-entry Vehicles and Surface-to-Air Missiles. JSTAR is not a breakfast cereal but the Joint Surveillance Target Attack Radar System.

MAD is already familiar as Mutual Assured Destruction. MOA and MOU are not fruit from South Seas, but a Memorandum of Agreement and a Memorandum of Understanding.

POLs are not the folks elected to Congress, but Petroleum, Oil and Lubricants. SLIP is not a slipper or "to carry," but is the Surface Life Extension Program for aircraft carriers.

WARMAPS are not what you think, but Warmtime Manpower Planning Systems. And WYD is not an easy-listening station, but a combined English and Russian acronym for the Western Theater of Military Operations, the European front.

The glossary includes these other tidbits: Above my pay grade: perhaps the most commonly heard expression along the 13 1/2 miles of Pentagon corridor. It means, "Go ask someone more important."

Analysis paralysis: what happens when you stop excessively. Bears: big bosses. "Feeding the bears" means giving information to senior commanders.

Bedbug letter: An effusive, non-responsive answer to a complainer, similar to one from the president of a motel chain who never mentions the bedbugs in his letter of apology.

Bells and whistles: hyperbole to sell a weapons system. Blow wave: large financial requirements that appear on future rather than current budgets.

BFO: a blazing flash of the obvious. Elephants: another word for big bosses, as in, "Let's solve this before the elephants get involved."

Elevator speech: a short two- or three-minute briefing. Face time: time spent near big bosses in attempts to impress them with diligence and loyalty.

Gold plate: add lots of systems to a weapons platform. Pearl Harbor file: a complete record of an action so that when disaster strikes you can trace the course that led to the disaster.

Purple suiter: an officer who works in a joint command, as distinct from a purely Army (green), Air Force (blue) or Navy (white or black) command.

Scrub down: eliminate unneeded funds or a paper from a project. Tap dance: a slick briefing, usually lacking substance.

Lebanon's cause lost in the war

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

BEIRUT — There is a sinking feeling in this lawless city in a lost nation called Lebanon. If Christian and Moslem residents know the legend of Atlantis, they will see the parallel to a proud and advanced continent that sank into the sea. Beirut was once the financial flower of the Arab world. For years, it was rightly called the Paris of the Middle East. But the beginning of the end came in April 1975 with the outbreak of civil war. Syria was invited in as a peacekeeper and never left. It occupies two-thirds of Lebanon and has sided with the Druzes and Muslims against the Christians. As a sideline, the Syrians try to keep the pro-Franj Syrian Hezbollah from killing the more moderate Shiite Amal militia. Making sense of these combatants and their alliances is an exercise in shifting allegiances.

Michel Aoun is the self-declared prime minister and commander of the Christian forces. In March, emboldened by new help from Iraq, Aoun declared a "war of liberation" to rid Lebanon of Syrians. The Syrians and their Moslem allies returned the challenge with indiscriminate shelling.

We visited Beirut to see what price the civilians have paid, including the nine American hostages most likely held by Hezbollah in the southern suburbs of Beirut.

With a Syrian escort, we sped across the border on a military road, never showing a passport, and stopped in Antar to see the Syrian general in charge of security for the Bekka Valley of eastern Lebanon. He supplied a four-man security detail carrying semi-automatic weapons and draped with hundreds of rounds of ammunition. We later learned these soldiers were told that if they failed to bring us back safely, they would be executed. Syria has never contacted the Iranian-style hostage-taking in Beirut.

In a two-car convoy, we raced through a southern suburb of Beirut to the headquarters of the Syrian general in charge of security in the Moslem West Beirut. The headquarters overlook Beirut's still beautiful Mediterranean coast, marred in spots by mounds of rotting garbage.

We watched the funeral procession for Sheik Hassan Khalid, the 68-year-old grand mufti. His voice of moderation has been silenced by a remote-controlled car bomb with 330 pounds of TNT that killed 21 others.

In seven hours here, we saw not a single person who looked European or American. We learned there is a minimum bounty of $1 million from various pro-Franj groups for the capture of an American.

American journalists are not stationed here. Only a correspondent, Mike Silver, based in Jordan, enters Lebanon with any frequency, and he makes unusual precautions. Most Americans get their news of Lebanon from courageous Lebanese journalists working for the U.S. media.

Inside a building with shattered windows and a pockmarked facade, some journalists have stashed sandbags around their work areas. Two who haven't, apparently preferring the breeze in Beirut's sweltering summer heat, are Newsweek's bureau manager, Sana Issa, and the Washington Post's eloquent correspondent, Nora Boustany.

Riad Kaj, the United Press International correspondent, put sandbags around his precious transmission equipment — his link to the outside world. He cast about his spare office looking for a suitable gift for us to carry back to his colleagues in the Washington UPI bureau. He snatched a photo of a Marine (circa 1983) of a wall and inscribed it with a personal message.

Thousands of people have died here in battles, massacres and general conflagrations that make the corpses of old standby adjectives, "war-torn," seem trite and worn.

What plagues these isolated reporters more than the war itself is the question Issa posed rhetorically: Do Americans care about the carnage anywhere or have they written off Lebanon?

ATLANTA (AP) — Americans are learning more about AIDS but it may be years before they have the increased knowledge slows the spread of the disease, according to a federal study.

The one-year survey of public awareness by the Federal Center for Disease Control's National Center for Health Statistics showed an increase of people who know AIDS is spread through sexual intercourse and not from casual contact with infected persons.

But people can be infected with the AIDS virus for 10 years before symptoms appear, complicating detection of the disease, said Marie Cynamon of the NCHS Division of Health Interview Statistics near Bethesda, Md.

The study released Thursday was based on about 2,500 interviews a month from August 1987 to August 1988 and administered by the U.S. Census Bureau.

The CDC's Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report said that the percentage of parents who diagnosed AIDS with their children remained constant at about 60 percent but that those reporting their children had AIDS education in schools was up from 30 percent to 59 percent.

Many doctors say they'd keep secrets from patients' kin

CHICAGO (AP) — Many doctors say they would mislead a patient's family or withhold information if their errors had led to the patient's death, a study on deception in the medical profession shows.

The survey published today in the Journal of the American Medical Association said many doctors would engage in various forms of deception to help themselves or to protect patients.

The lead researcher said the results should not signal distrust in physicians.

"People who read the study superficially might think, 'My god, you can't trust your doctor anymore; they're deceptive,'" said Dr. Dennis H. Novack.

"I would challenge that," said Novack, an associate professor of community health at Brown University Program of Medicine in Providence, R.I.

More than two-thirds of doctors surveyed indicated a willingness to help patients get insurance benefits by misrepresenting a test, according to the study.

Doctors "appear to justify their decisions in terms of the consequences and to place a higher value on their patients' welfare and keeping patients' confidences than on truth-telling for its own sake," the researchers said.

But "under extreme circumstances, some physicians would consider deceiving to benefit themselves."

More than one-third of the doctors surveyed for the article indicated they would offer incom-

Yale-New Haven plans a $160 million update

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Yale-New Haven Hospital is proposing to construct a 10-story children's hospital building and eliminate all of its three- and four-bed inpatient rooms as part of a four-year, $160 million modernization project.

The hospital unveiled its plans Thursday, a day after trustees unanimously endorsed the project.

The proposal calls for only a small increase in the total number of authorized beds at Yale-New Haven, from 875 to 930, and would result in the need to raise rates by less than 5 percent, said C. Thomas Smith, the hospital's president.

Yale-New Haven hopes to present its proposal to the state Commission on Hospitals and Company finds market for new tick repellent

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — A company that specializes in sunscreen products is making the most of recent publicity about Lyme disease, an unpleasant condition spread by tiny ticks and growing more prevalent nationwide.

Lyme disease now has been diagnosed in at least 43 states. Eclipse Laboratories Inc. of Boca Raton anticipated the need for a tick repellent by 18 months and started shipping its Tick Guard on May 7.

"Timing is everything in life," said owner Steven Maneti. Prior to marketing Tick Guard, Eclipse Laboratories sold only sunscreen products. The idea for the tick repellent came to Maneti just before he moved the privately owned company's headquarters to Boca Raton from Greenwich, Conn.

"We had employees and neighbors who were contracting Lyme disease, so I asked our research and development to start working on a product that could repel or kill ticks," Maneti said.

The symptoms of Lyme disease, which is named for Lyme, Conn., where it surfaced in 1975, include rash, chills, fever, headache, dizziness, fatigue and a stiff neck.

To promote the product, Eclipse ran advertisements in Tick Guard earlier this month in The New York Times Sunday magazine and elsewhere in the Northeast.

WE REMEMBER

Our thoughts turn to those brave people of our armed forces who died while serving their country. In times of peace and times of war, these courageous men and women stood ready to defend the very freedom that we so cherish. On Memorial Day, we pay silent tribute to them all. Their deeds shall never be forgotten... they did not die in vain.

and across the nation that Memorial Day means more than picnics and parades.

The following is a list of Memorial Day weekend events:

Manchester
SATURDAY: Veterans' organizations will meet at 9 a.m. at St. Bridget Cemetery off Oakland Street and disperse to place flags on veterans' graves throughout town.

SUNDAY: A memorial service is scheduled for 10 a.m. at the Full Gospel Interdenominational Church at 245 Main St. The Rev. Philip S. Saunders will officiate. All veterans' organizations and auxiliaries will meet at the church at 9:30 a.m.

MONDAY: Parade participants will assemble at 9 a.m. at the Army and Navy Club on Main Street. The parade is scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m., led by Parade Marshal Ronald Oella, a major in the U.S. Army Reserve. The five divisions of marchers will walk up Main Street to the Vietnam War memorial at the corner of Main and East Center streets, where a small service will be held. Marchers will proceed east to Porter Street and stop for a ceremony at the Korean War memorial in Munro Park on Goodwin Street. The parade will move west on East Center Street, then south on Linden Street.

It will disband in Center Park, where a service will be held. Town Attorney John W. Cooney and Manchester High School student Gary Stoppiman will speak at the ceremony.

Andover
SUNDAY: Girl Scouts will place flowers on veterans' graves in town cemeteries.

MONDAY: The parade begins at 9 a.m. at Andover Elementary School on School Road, led by Parade Marshal Cindy Clark of the U.S. Air Force. Marchers will proceed down Route 316 to the World War II memorial off Route 6. A ceremony will be held at the memorial. Marchers will then return to the Cider Mill Road cemetery where Kowalski will speak.

Bolton
MONDAY: Parade participants will assemble at 9:30 a.m. at Bolton Elementary School on Notch Road. The parade will start at 10 a.m. and marchers will proceed to the Green Elementary school student Samanthi Reddy will read the poem "In Flinders Field." Her classmate Shireen Deen will read the Gettysburg Address. Bolton High School student Glen Dube will give the main speech.

Conventry
SUNDAY: American Legion and auxiliary members will place flags and flowers on veterans' graves in six town cemeteries.

MONDAY: Parade participants will assemble at 9:30 a.m. at George Hershey Robertson school on Cross Street. The parade will start at 10 a.m., led by Parade Marshal Richard Gray who was a U.S. Navy commander during the Vietnam War. Marchers will go to the Nathan Hale Cemetery for a service, then proceed down Lake and Main streets to the town garage. Sen. Rep. Edith G. Prague, D-Columbia, is the speaker.

mutual respect among Fleming, the students and some staff members.

Fleming said he was surprised by the remarks on pupil performance, but not the other two areas.

Fleming did not discuss plans for correcting deficiencies Thursday, but is scheduled to do that next month. He said school officials will work to correct deficiencies mentioned in the report.

School board members argued over the report at Thursday's meeting, with some saying it was accurate while others said it was not balanced.

"I thought it was right on," said Republican Thomas A. Manning. "I thought it was extraordinarily perceptive."

Democrat John T. Muro agreed with Manning, but he said he did not agree with some of the comments in the report.

Republican Michael L. Parsons said he thought the report was too critical. "I think the report is totally lopsided," he said.

School board Chairman James H. Marshall, a Republican, also agreed with Manning, but said he did not see it as a totally negative report. He said there were many commendations for the school, and the association said in the report that it hopes the comments will "stimulate the staff, administration and other responsible school officials to strive to make a good school even better."

Supply Co. in East Hartford.

The associate's degree won't mean any job changes, and the couple probably won't go on to a four-year college for a few years.

Mark said, "We're both very happy where we are." He said, "It's more a personal goal for us, getting our associate's degree."

Doungmanne Hemmavanh, 25, and her sister, Doungmalay, 24, both of 41 Garden St., Manchester, share more than the same college. They share an interest in the medical profession.

Doungmanne Hemmavanh finished her courses last summer and is now studying at the St. Francis Hospital School of Nursing in Hartford. She received an associate's degree in general studies Thursday.

"When I was in high school, I was taking a nursing assistant's course," she said. "And I grew to like nursing, so I decided to become a nurse."

Her sister, Doungmalay, received an associate's degree Thursday in the medical laboratory technician profession.

State Sen. John B. Larson, D-East Hartford, the president pro tem of the state Senate, was to give Thursday's commencement address. But he was unable to make it because of budget deliberations in the Legislature. Andrew C. McKirdy, executive director of the Board of Trustees of Regional Community Colleges, spoke instead.

"Senator Larson wanted to remind the members of the class of 1989 that you now belong to a very elite group of highly educated people," McKirdy said. "As two-year college graduates, you're better educated than 80 percent of the world's population."

"What you have increases the power you have to make choices, but also to help others win freedom for themselves; others in your town, your state, your country, your world. Don't be timid, use your knowledge to improve your own life and the lives of others."

The Rev. Louisa M. Martin, associate minister at St. John's Full Gospel Church in Hartford, also spoke about the responsibilities of education.

"In this world, where good is sometimes hidden underneath evil, and the pleasures lurk in the midst of pain, these men and women have come to know we must work if we are to learn and know," she said. "Lord, arouse within them a deep realization of being the educated and that on them rests the future work, thought, sentiment and goodness of the world."

Sen. James H. McLaughlin, R-Woodbury, ranking Republican, also voted down nine Republican amendments to the spending bill.

The GOP amendments started in earnest at about 10:30 p.m. Thursday when a series of eight hours of nit-picking questions that sometimes bordered on filibuster, minority Leader Robert Jaekle offered his proposal for a state budget freeze.

Sen. Philip S. Robertson, R-Cheshire, said the tax package was full of "the most regressive things you could possibly think of."

"You're forcing a recession on the state of Connecticut, on the employers of the state of Connecticut, and most importantly, the people of the state of Connecticut," Robertson said. "Because of that, we should all be ashamed."

But Sen. William A. DiBella, D-Hartford, co-chairman of the tax committee, said tax increases could not be avoided this year.

Stolberg, however supported the budget.

The Red Sox shocked the Mariners in just about every way possible in sweeping a three-game series. They came from behind to win the first game 6-5 with two in the ninth. They put down a two-out threat to hang on to a 6-5 victory in the second game. Then they combined pitching, hitting and a porous Seattle defense to romp in the finale.

While Smithson and the Red Sox were enjoying his first complete game of the year and the 41st in 188 career starts, the Mariners were stunned in their clubhouse.

It wasn't the lopsided defeat, their fourth in a row in their longest losing streak of the season. It was the club's dressing room announcement that left-handed ace Mark Langston had been traded to the Montreal Expos.

The Mariners hurried to catch a plane for Milwaukee and Langston made plans to join the Expos. The Red Sox, hit by a series of injuries, were happy to be back over .500, 22-21, and hoping to open up a bigger lead on a 12-game homestand.

"We have nine games left on this homestand and we want to put some distance between us and the others," said Greenwell, who had his first four-hit game of the year and drove in four runs, three with a double as the Red Sox scored five unearned runs in a decisive second inning.

ted most state services and settled for saving about $110 million through accounting maneuvers.

The biggest chunk of those savings, $55 million, would come from lowering the state's contribution to the state employee retirement system. Another $25 million would be saved by contributing less to the "teachers' retirement fund, and $25 million more would be saved by offering early retirement to some senior state employees.

The budget provides for 47,376 state employees, slightly more than O'Neill requested money for, but still less than the 47,620 funded in this year's budget.

What we have sought to do is what the business community does, and that is downsize, to interest and dividends taxes will bring in $162 million, and new and increased business taxes will generate $183 million.

In March, the Democrats passed a "mini" package of tax increases — the first tax increases in six years — that will bring in $163.5 million in the budget year beginning July 1.

In all, the Democrats are looking for more than $850 million in increased taxes, fees and revenues in the coming fiscal year.

They say the increases are needed to balance a 1989-90 budget of $6.1 billion. That budget is being voted on in the House Thursday. The Senate is set to act on the budget Tuesday.

Senate President Pro Tem John B. Larson, D-East Hartford, who missed making a commencement address at Manchester Community College because of the tax vote, said he was confident the differences between the two proposals could be worked out.

"Our position philosophically has been in favor of broadening the base of the sale tax, rather than increasing the rate" to 8 percent, Larson said.

Republicans and some Democrats, tried 22 amendments aimed at eliminating various elements of the Senate tax bill. All failed.

IN BRIEF

Fitzsimmons coach of year
PHOENIX (AP) - Cotton Fitzsimmons, the main architect in the Phoenix Sun's 27-game turnaround from a lottery team to a championship contender, was named the NBA's Coach of the Year on Thursday. "There's a lot of guys who certainly deserve this award more than me. I can assure you," Fitzsimmons said, "but I realize it usually goes to the coach of the team that improves the most. Fitzsimmons received 364 votes from a national panel of 85 media members who regularly cover the NBA - three from each competing city and 10 representatives of the national media.

Arizona in Tip-Off Classic
TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - Arizona will meet NCAA champion Michigan in the Basketball Hall of Fame Tip-Off Classic Nov. 25 at Springfield, Mass., officials said Thursday.

The Wildcats, who finished the regular season ranked No. 1 in the nation but lost to Nevada-Las Vegas in the West Region semifinals, Thursday was picked to replace Villanova, Bart Weisman, Tip-Off Classic Committee president, said.

Michigan and Villanova were scheduled to play Nov. 18, but ABC-TV signed a contract to televise the game and decided to move it to Nov. 25. Villanova already had made a commitment to play in the Maui Classic in Hawaii on Nov. 25 and had to drop out of the Tip-Off Classic.

May 26
1959 - Harvey Haddix of the Pittsburgh Pirates pitched 12 perfect innings before losing to the Milwaukee Braves 1-0 in the 18th on an error, a sacrifice and Joe Adcock's double.

1985 - Danny Sullivan missed almost certain disaster and held off Mario Andretti and the rest of the field in winning the Indianapolis 500. Sullivan took the lead for the last time on the 140th of 200 laps, only 41 laps after spinning his racer 360 degrees, narrowly avoiding the wall and Andretti, 1988 - The Edmonton Oilers, with Wayne Gretzky leading, won the Stanley Cup for the first time since 1978.

For the first time in 10 years, neither Evr nor Navratilova will present at a Grand Slam tournament. The draw for the $4 million event took place today with Graf the top seed and Sabatini the No. 2 seed. Without Navratilova and Evert around - and perhaps even if they were - Graf and Sabatini are expected to continue their rivalry in the women's final on June 10.

Bob Murdoch, a former NHL defenseman and coach, signed a three-year contract Thursday to coach the Jets, who failed to make playoffs this season for the first time since 1981.

Murdoch, 42, spent the 1988-89 season working at his family automobile business in Canada after being fired as head coach of the Chicago Blackhawks following their losing 1987-88 season.

Lewis to boycott meet
HOUSTON (AP) - Carl Lewis said Thursday that he and other track and field stars are boycotting the national outdoor track and field championships next month because The Athletics Congress is not compensating all athletes or taking a hard enough stance against drug abuse.

"The only way that we have to take a stand and to get the TAC to start listening to the voice of the athlete is to boycott competitions," Lewis told television station KRIV-TV. "I feel very unfortunate because this is my hometown and I want to compete here."

The competition is scheduled for June 15-17 at the University of Houston.

Blake leads Atlanta golf
MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) - Jay Don Blake, who ranks 199th on this season's PGA Tour money list, shot a 6-under-par 66 Thursday to take a one-shot lead in the opening round of the Atlanta Golf Classic.

"I felt good, never got impatient and felt like I played pretty well out there," Blake said after posting seven birdies and one bogey on the hilly, 7,015-yard Atlanta Country Club course. Mike Hulbert, who claimed his only PGA Tour victory in the St. Jude Classic three years ago, was alone in second with a 67.

Coe, Hill share the lead
CORNING, N.Y. (AP) - Dawn Coe and Cindy Hill shot 4-under-par 67s Thursday to share the first-round lead of the LPGA's Corning Classic.

Tracy Kerdyk, the leading rookie on the Ladies Professional Golf Association Tour, was one shot behind and Ayako Okamoto, Barb Mucha and Martha Nassiff trailed by two strokes.

The 72-hole tournament was delayed for 35 minutes Thursday when early morning fog blanketed the 8,006-yard, par-71 Corning Country Club course.

Coventry nine faces one-game season

COVENTRY - It's now a one-game season for the Coventry High baseball team. The Patriots put themselves into position to tie for the Charter Oak Conference East Division lead Thursday with a 2-0 shutout of Vinal Tech. Coventry is now 10-5 in the COC East. Patriots take a one-game season for a coin flip to see who moves on to Saturday's COC title game against Coventry and Coventry win against Palmer Field in Middletown.

Coventry, winners of four straight games in relief for Cheney and set to have the same COC East mark. "I just hope it doesn't rain (Friday)," Coventry Coach Bob Plaster said. "If we don't get to play, I think RHAM gets to go."

It was a scoreless duel until the top of the fifth inning where Steve Talaga walked and scored on a Bob Topfitt triple to left center field. Coventry added its second run in the sixth. Gary Owen doubled and Chris McCarthy singled him to third. Owen then scored on a wild pitch.

McCarthy upped his mark to 8-3 in hurling a three-hitter. He struck out seven and walked three. "For having no pitching experience before this game, he's doing a real nice job," Plaster said.

Vinal winds up 3-12 for the season. Coventry Vinal Tech 2-0, 6-2-3-2 Matt Snyder (D) and Neil Jones (D) WP - Randall, L.P. Courville (D-3)

WEEKEND

RELUCTANT BELLY DANCER — Eydthe Herbert, played by Connie Hinkley, is reluctant to leave her harem hideout with aviator Billy Buck

Gershwin at the Coachlight makes a fine musical escape

True fans of the musical theater will be enthralled by the George and Ira Gershwin show, "My One and Only," on stage at the Coachlight Dinner Theatre in Windsor.

After all, who could fault a score which offers such a colorful "How Long Has This Been Going On?" "Nice Work If You Can Get It," "Wonderful," and "The Man I Love?"

And no one who loves great hoofing could remain neutral about the tremendous dance scenes choreographed by director Connie Shaffer. The stylish tapping of Bernard J. Marsh alone is probably worth the price of admission.

Looking for striking costumes? You'll find those, too, put together by Alan Michael Smith. From elegant pre-Depression attire to some supposedly homemade nightgown outfits (parodies of the one worn by Chiquita Banana), these are, indeed, glad rags.

So if all of these elements work well together, who cares about a small matter like a plot? This show, like "Anything Goes" and many others of the era, has a most bizarre and mixed-up story line.

A feisty lady mechanic is in love with a barnstorming aviator, but he adores a champion swimmer who's being blackmailed by a Russian spy. In a score which offers such a colorful and refined swimmer's affectation, the aviator gets mixed up with a bootlegging minister and a tap-dancing philosopher, then stages a raid on a desert baram where his lady love is hanging out.

This creates situations which could try the patience of even the most quillible individual in an orchestra. Could you imagine, for example, how two reasonably intelligent individuals could crash on Staten Island, across from Perth Amboy, N.J., and yet believe themselves to be marooned on an exotic tropical isle?

But somehow, these peculiar permutations of plot don't present much of a problem, as long as the music sounds great and the dancing looks marvelous. The pivotal characters in all of this nonsense are the aviator, Billy, played by Jack Doyle, and the swimmer, Eydthe, done by Connie Kunkle. They are strong performers, without being extraordinarily engaging. Each has a few outstanding scenes, but even these pale by comparison with those of two secondary performers, Bernard J. Marsh and Jessica Sheridan. Sheridan is absolutely first-rate as the forthright female mechanic. Unlucky in love, but luckily blessed with a wonderful voice and a delightful sense of humor, Sheridan's characterization of Mickey is a pleasure. Most performers do the song, "The Man I Love," in a slow, somewhat wistful manner. Sheridan differs the number in an angry fashion, loading the lines with great irony and cynicism.

Equally engaging is Marsh, a tap-dancer who whose Broadway credits include "Ebbie" and "The Tap Dance Kid." But this man does far more than dance. His elegant, somewhat supercilious mannerisms and mellow voice make his characters — the barber and image consultant, Mr. Magis, and the rather notorious nightclubber, Rev. J.D. Montgomery — the highlights of the show.

Where Marsh and Sheridan play their characters to the hilt, but don't go overboard, Don Sitt pushes his blackmailing Russian spy into the realm of self-parody. Chorus dancers are, as usual, excellent in this production. The audience won't soon forget the "fish chorus" of four female dancers who "swim" in a production number meant to showcase Eydthe's talents.

The production of "My One and Only" makes a fine escape on a hot spring or summer evening. It continues through July 2.

'Arts in the Garden' is coming

A bouquet of artistic endeavors will be showcased at the "Arts in the Garden" festival, a community-wide celebration of the performing, visual and culinary arts, planned by the Manchester Arts Council for June 3.

It will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. in a trio of gardens and back yards at the corner of Porter Street and Westminster Road, where roses and rhododendrons, pansies and peonies flourish.

This is the second year for the event, which attracted 250 to 300 people last year. This year's event will be a three-day affair, with more than 400 spectators, according to Anne Miller, the arts council's president.

New to the event this year are members of the Wit and Wisdom Writers Club, who will recite poetry, and the Vintage Dance Society and Ragtime Dancers, statewide performing groups with Manchester members.

Returning performers include a string quartet and trombone players from the Manchester Symphony Orchestra; the Connecticut Concert Ballet, which will perform modern dance; the Silk City Chorus, doing barbershop-style songs; the Manchester Pipe Band; the Gilbert & Sullivan Players; the Little Theatre of Manchester; and the Manchester Symphony Chorus.

Miller said "Arts in the Garden" has pulled together dozens of artists, musicians and volunteers of all kinds.

"There's so much talent here in town," she said. "It's miraculous, really, for one town to have so much. And it's kind of a nice thing, the getting together of all this talent in one place on one evening."

Tickets cost $15 and are available from Miller Real Estate, 985 Main St. If space is available, tickets will be sold at the event. If it rains, the festival will be June 4.

The audience will be served with hors d'oeuvres and desserts, wine, beer, soda, punch and coffee, all donated by area restaurants, caterers and individuals.

Performances will be concentrated in three locations, which works by 15 to 20 visual artists will be displayed throughout the gardens. Two original pieces by local artists — a Keith Merrill sculpture and a painting by the late Rita Berkus — will be among the raffie prizes.

The winners will perform at a concert on June 4 at 7 p.m. at North United Methodist Church, 309 Parker St. Tickets, at $4 each, may be purchased at the door or reserved by calling 649-3696 mornings or 647-8729 evenings.

Memorial service Sunday

The Permanent Memorial Day Committee of Manchester is planning a special Memorial Day church service Sunday at 10 a.m. at Full Gospel Interdenominational Church, 745 Main St. Color guards will assemble outside the church at 9:30 a.m. Veterans, members of veterans' organizations, their families and friends are invited to attend the patriotic service.

Decoration Day at Mystic

On Monday, Mystic Seaport will recreate a Decoration Day of the 1870s. Beginning at 1 p.m. with a wreath ceremony, parade and memorial service, the event will show how residents of coastal New England towns spent a day honoring the fallen heroes of the Civil War.

The seaport is open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Regular seaport admission covers all Decoration Day activities and invites visitors to buy lobster dinners.

Lobster dinners are served during the three-day Lobster Festival, Saturday, Sunday and Monday. This week's entertainers are Jim McCarthy and Kevin Pearl. Admission and refreshments are free.

Coffeehouse set Saturday

The Manchester Grace Church of Christ will host its monthly coffeehouse on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at North United Methodist Church, 309 Parker St. This week's entertainers are Jim McCarthy and Kevin Pearl. Admission and refreshments are free.

Fiddling and footwork

La Bottine Souriante, a band from Quebec that features fine fiddling and percussive clogging, will perform traditional sea songs throughout the week at the French Canadian songs and tunes Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Sounding Board Coffeehouse. The coffeehouse is in the First Church of Christ Congregational, 12 S. Main St., West Hartford. Tickets at the door will be $11. Call 583-9641 for reservations.

Women's crafts show

A craft fair featuring women artisans is planned for Saturday from 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., in front of Common Ground Book Store, 200 W. Center St. If it rains, the fair will be June 3. Call 649-9388 or 524-9874 for more information.

They're full of hot air

Balloons Over Bristol, an annual event sponsored by the Bristol Jaycees, will be held this weekend at Bristol Eastern High School, Route 229. More than 60 colorful hot-air balloons from around the country will be launched Saturday and Sunday at 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. Admission is free. T-shirts and pins will be available. Admission is free, but donations will be a craft fair Saturday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. in the school's cafeteria.

South Windsor marks day

The Memorial Day parade in South Windsor begins at 10 a.m. in front of the South Windsor Town Hall, near Wapping Five Corners. It proceeds to Nevers Road Park via Sullivan Avenue and Sand Hill Road. The grand marshal will be Maureen E. Bourn, who is South Windsor's Teacher of the Year.

Headaches tied to food allergy. For almost two years I've had textbook migraines with no visual aura but pain in my upper jaw on one side. I take Fiorinal without medicine when I get them and walk to work weighing down. I now have permanent hot spots on my face, and when I get a headache, get painful and very red. Could the hot spots and headaches be allergic? We like to eat out often by dining and headaches. It's really frustrating.

Sitter lost her temper — and a customer

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 17-year-old girl who has been babysitting since I was 13. I've had a lot of problems with one family in particular: (I'll call them the Joneses, which is not their real name.)

One Friday night, Mrs. Jones called and said her husband would pick me up at 9 o'clock the next morning. I was all ready and waiting at the door at 9 a.m. when Mr. Jones drove up at 9:45! I got into his car and slammed the door hard, then looked straight out the window to let him know I was angry.

He said, "My, aren't you in a bad mood this morning. What's the matter, did you break up with your boyfriend?" I ignored his question and asked, "Do you know what time it is?" He looked at his watch and said, "It's 9:45."

I said, "You were supposed to be here at 9 and get up early to ready. I've been waiting for you for 45 minutes!" Well, Abby, that was three months ago, and the Joneses have been calling my younger sister to babysit ever since. They told her to tell me that if I ever wanted to babysit again, I would have to change my attitude.

Abby, for two years I've been bathing their kids and changing their diapers, and they dropped me because I reminded Mr. Jones that I kept me waiting for 45 minutes. I'd thought I was wrong for saying what I did?

BUSINESS

IN BRIEF

Bank unit joins chamber

The Chemical Bank unit has joined the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

Thomas Saunders Jr., president of the Chemical Bank Corp., is shown in a photograph. He is a middle-aged man with dark hair, wearing a suit and tie. He is standing in front of a building.

Thomas Saunders Jr. of 185 Pine St., Manchester, is president of the Chemical Bank Corp., a unit of the Chemical Banking Corp. head-quartered in New York City.

Chemical Bank Connecticut, an affiliate of the Chemical Banking Corp., has 40 employees in the state, four of them at the Hartford office, provides mid-sized companies in Connecticut and Massachusetts with services in commercial lending, cash management, international finance, and investment banking.

Chemical Banking Corp. is the nation's fourth largest bank holding company. It has been in business more than 125 years and has more than 15,000 employees.

Chemical Bank Connecticut has been in business for six years.

NEC develops video game

NEW YORK (AP) — A Japanese company says it has come up with a new video game that offers more color and sharper graphics than Nintendo — at about twice the price.

NEC Home Electronics, a U.S. subsidiary of Japanese computer and telecommunications giant NEC, announced Tuesday it would begin selling the new video game system in the fall.

The new game "allows us to provide the user over 10 times more color and 16 times bigger characters," said Keith Schaefer, senior vice president of NEC Home Electronics.

Existing-home sales fall

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales of existing homes fell by 1.2 percent in April, the fourth consecutive monthly decline, as rising mortgage rates continued to take their toll on the housing industry, a real estate trade group reported Thursday.

The National Association of Realtors said that existing single-family homes were sold at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.36 million units last month, the slowest annual rate in 14 months.

The April decline followed sales decreases of 2.3 percent in March, 2 percent in February, and 9.4 percent in January.

The weakness in sales this year has been blamed on rising home mortgage rates, reflecting efforts by the Federal Reserve to fight inflationary pressures by tightening the supply of credit.

Airline outlook is strong despite troubles

By Marc Gordon
The Associated Press

From labor troubles to terrorist threats to rising fuel prices to aging fleets, the nation's airlines face daunting challenges as their busiest season begins with the Memorial Day weekend.

Nonetheless, industry analysts and travel agents expect a strong summer for air travel as stable fares at home and a more valuable dollar abroad lure vacationers.

"I think it's going to be a record summer," said Louis Marckese, an analyst with the Philadelphia securities firm.

The airline industry has been turned on its head, with competition fiercer and takeover raiders swarming over profitable Northwest Airlines.

But the industry's biggest trauma this year, a bitter labor strike by Eastern Airlines, hasn't resulted in the mass inconvenience to travelers that originally was feared.

Instead, it's turned out to be a boon for Eastern's leading competitors, Delta Air Lines, American Airlines, Pan Am Corp. and USAir Group Inc.

Eastern's sister carrier Continental Airlines announced last month that it was raising its "MaxSaver" discount fares by up to 18 percent. But Continental, after a price leader, recently retracted the fare increase after other carriers failed to match its initiative.

That could signal an end, at least temporarily, to what had been a trend of rising fares. Air tariffs have increased as much as 20 percent this year over 1988, some analysts say.

"I don't think there are going to be vast increases in fares," said Andrew Weiss, who follows the industry for Prudential National Bank in Philadelphia.

The halt to the fare spiral has times over budget, the $6 billion plant has been the focus of the nation's anti-nuclear movement. Located on a marshland less than two miles from the state's most popular beach, near Interstate 85 and only 40 miles from Boston, Seabrook was the target of mass protests including one that resulted in 1,434 arrests in 1977, then a record.

Sixteen months ago, lead plant owner Public Service Company of New Hampshire was forced by the weight of its Seabrook debt to seek bankruptcy reorganization, still in progress.

Finished nearly three years ago, Seabrook has remained idle principally because of Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis' refusal to cooperate in emergency planning. Based on a study triggered by the Soviet nuclear disaster at Chernobyl in April 1986, Dukakis declared that all state evacuation of people around Seabrook could not be assured.

Seabrook gets its license to allow low-power testing

SEABROOK, N.H. (AP) — Two decades after the project was conceived, the Seabrook nuclear power plant received its low-power atomic testing license today.

"The people here feel it's really about time," stated plant executive Edward Brown told reporters Thursday after a favorable court ruling in Washington late in the day.

The start action cleared the way for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to formally issue the low-power testing license today.

The commission approved the move a week ago but delayed the paperwork to allow for appeals.

Now, Seabrook's first chain reaction could start within two weeks. Plant officials said today they expect to start preparations for the tests this weekend.

Health care issue is key in talks by AT&T, unions

WASHINGTON (AP) — With two days left before contracts affecting about 100,000 telephone workers expire, negotiators for AT&T and its unions find themselves sparring over the issue that has dominated the talks from the outset — health care.

American Telephone & Telegraph says its employers have to help pay more for health care, which cost the company $1 billion last year. But the unions, the Communications Workers of America and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, counter by saying the profitable company is demonstrating its greed.

"AT&T spends megabucks urging Americans to reach out and call our relatives to make sure they're OK, but the only reaching the company is doing is into its employees' pockets," IBEW President Jack Barry said Thursday as the unions accused AT&T of withholding data on its medical care costs.

But an AT&T spokesman said the company had produced most of the information requested by the unions and was in the process of compiling the rest.

The talks were continuing today and publicly both sides expressed hope of reaching a settlement before current contracts expire at 11:59 p.m. EDT Saturday.

Unions have yet to make a formal offer of their own — AT&T made its proposal Monday — but could do so today.

And, despite the public optimism, both sides are making extensive preparations for a strike. Union leaders have hinted they will not call a walkout immediately but likely would do so if an agreement is not reached.
