Chinese army kills more civilians

Professor is pained by killings

By Rick Santos
Manchester Herald

The tragedy in China Sunday hit home for a professor at Manchester Community College. Wellington Lee, a native of China and a Manchester resident, said today he hopes the world will take some action against the Chinese government which oversaw the killing of hundreds of student demonstrators and sympathizers in Beijing.

"We cannot tolerate a country using its army to kill its own people," he said.

Lee, 54, a computer science professor who has been teaching at the college for 20 years, went to New York Sunday to demonstrate for the cause of the Chinese students. He and about 2,000 others outside the Chinese Consulate called for the overthrow of Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping and the Communist Party, he said.

Lee, a native of the Chinese province of Hunan, was in Beijing last June and has gone back to China 13 times to lecture about the computer industry, he said. Lee has not heard from his relatives since Sunday's killings, he said, but he is comforted somewhat because Hunan is about 600 miles south of Beijing.

The professor said he has mixed feelings about China. "Of course I love my motherland, but I am very disappointed. The government is using the army to get what it wants," he said.

Lee said he hopes the nations of the world unite to pressure the Chinese government to stop the killings and grant more freedoms. He added he is troubled by the government's attitude.

"The government of China doesn't know what's going on in the whole world, and they don't care," he said.

He said the government is supposed to be the "people's government" they're supposed to serve the people.

But instead he said, the government is serving those in power.

All the students want are basic human rights. They want freedom," he said.

The problems have caused Lee to reconsider whether he should

MOURNING SLAIN STUDENT — Relatives gather today to mourn the death of a Beijing University student killed during the last two days of violence in China. Soldiers opened fire on civilians in the capital today, and there were reports of fighting between military units sent to quell pro-democracy protests.

But some units may be joining students' cause

By Jim Abrams
The Associated Press

BEIJING — Soldiers swept through Beijing today shooting at enraged civilians, and there were reports of fighting between military units sent to quell the unarmed pro-democracy protests.

The army, which killed hundreds of people in a crackdown on the protests over the weekend, reportedly shot and killed at least three civilians today.

In Washington, President Bush condemned Chinese authorities for the "bloody and violent" crackdown. He said he was ordering a suspension of American military sales and commercial export of weapons to China.

One Chinese military source said soldiers fought each other around the Nanyuan military air base on the southern outskirts of the city today. He said the fighting was serious.

But residents living near the restricted base said they had seen a steady stream of planes landing and taking off but had not seen or heard fighting.

Artillery shelling also was heard in a far northwestern suburb.

Asked whether soldiers were fighting each other, one Western diplomat said: "It's more than that. There is solid evidence." He would not elaborate. Chinese sources said the People's Liberation Army is deeply split over the government's May 20 decision to declare martial law and send troops to Beijing. The 38th Army, based around Beijing, reportedly refused to advance on the city.

The source said the 38th was ordered to take over from the 27th Army, which is responsible for the carnage over the weekend. It is not clear whether the army is obeying the order.

Although there have been no accurate tallies, more than 1,000 people are widely believed to have been killed and thousands injured since the army moved to retake Tiananmen Square from student-led protesters.

Philippine Vice Consul Corazon Fatratara told a Manila radio station from Beijing today that the diplomatic community estimates 3,000 protesters have been killed by the army.

Protests against the crackdown were reported in several provincial cities as the government praised the military attacks as a patriotic effort to put down rioters trying to overthrow the communist system.

A Chinese journalist said one man's body was ripped apart with machine gunfire from his chin to his stomach this morning and three others were shot and wounded when 17 truckloads of troops attacked a crowd at a major intersection west of Tiananmen Square.

Chinese witnesses said a girl was shot in the chest around noon when troops charged up a narrow residential street near the square.

Two more people died in gunfire from troops who rushed up a central Beijing street in the late afternoon, other Chinese witnesses said.

A U.S. Embassy official also said soldiers fired indiscriminately from 50 to 100 military trucks that hurled down a normally quiet street flanked by a park and foreign embassies. In the evening, about 30 tanks took up positions outside an apartment

Bush halts sales of weapons

By Tom Raum
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush today condemned the Chinese crackdown on pro-democracy demonstrators and said he was ordering an immediate suspension of government military sales and commercial export of weapons.

"We deplore the decision to use force," Bush told reporters in a hastily convened news conference. He called on Chinese authorities to "to avoid violence and to return to their previous policy of restraint."

Bush said, "I do not want to see a total break in this relationship" with China. Nonetheless, in announcing sanctions that included a freeze in contacts between U.S. and Chinese military officials, he said: "We cannot condone the violent attacks and cannot ignore the consequences for our relationship with China."

After reading a statement from the White House briefing room he took questions and said he would not withdraw the U.S. ambassador from Beijing, as some have proposed.

He said he also would order U.S. officials to give a "sympathetic review" to any request by Chinese students for an extension of their stay in the United States and would offer assistance through the international Red Cross.

Bush said the demonstrators who were swept from China's Tiananmen Square by overwhelming military forces over the weekend were "advocating basic human rights, including freedom of expression, freedom of the press and freedom of association."

He added, "Throughout the world we stand with those who seek greater freedom and democracy."

Even so, he said he was attempting to forge a careful response to the situation in China, and said he had rejected advice from some who recommended the withdrawal of the U.S. ambassador.

He said the ambassador had been active in monitoring events in Beijing and provided an important resource for

Osella opposes hike in manager's pension

By Nancy Conzelman
Manchester Herald

Republican Director Ronald Osella said Town Manager Robert B. Weiss should not get a retirement pension increase because of the manager's role in the troubled 1987 revaluation.

Osella joins Theunis "Terry" Werkhoven, Republican minority leader on the board, in opposing the increase. Three Democrats on the nine-member board have publicly supported the proposal.

The third Republican on the board, Geoffrey Naab, could not be reached for comment today. But Carl Zinsser, a member of the Republican Town Committee, said today that Naab told a meeting of the executive board of the party last month that he would oppose the raise.

Osella, who has said he was leaning against the manager's request for a pension increase, made his opposition clear in a June 3 memo to James F. Fogarty, secretary of the Board of Directors.

Osella said in his memo that the board should stick by its decision last May not to grant Weiss a $4,000 salary increase because of the revaluation. The revaluation was scrapped after hundreds of residents appealed their assessments and questions were raised about whether 1986 market values should have been used.

Weiss' pay increase also was withheld because of the manager's role in the illegal expansion of the town's sewage treatment plant last year.

The board's prior unanimous decision not to raise Mr. Weiss' pay by $4,000 was based solely on unsatisfactory employee performance during 1987-88, not his significant achievements over

Thoughts

The idea of marriage comes from the Creator God. Marriage is a life-long union for husband and wife. The promise "for better or worse, in sickness and in health" is not a half-hearted offer but a commitment lived out in the experiences that follow which are sometimes better and sometimes worse. Imagine a husband who has enjoyed the benefits of marriage with his wife. They traveled so many hours, days and years together in the adventure of married life. Imagine the husband leaving the marriage with his wife because a paraplegic. What kind of man and marriage was this? We have marriages. Marriage has the blessing of God and the commitment for the two in being one flesh because this was God's idea "from the beginning."

Police Roundup

Man faces burglary charges

A Manchester man was arrested Saturday and charged with burglary and larceny. Police Spokesman Gary J. Wood said today.

Brad Thomas, 19, of 492 W. Middle Turnpike, was arrested at 2:30 p.m. at 1166 W. Middle Turnpike after police responded to a call of a burglary in progress, police said.

Thomas had appeared in Bristol Superior Court Friday on burglary charges but was released after the charges were dropped, a court clerk said.

Manchester police found him in the 1166 W. Middle Turnpike apartment carrying a screw driver and jewelry in his pocket, police said. Thomas told police it was his sister's apartment and at first refused to give his name, police said. He later gave two false names, police said.

Police saw a screw driver sticking out of his back pocket and rolled coins on a table in the apartment and open drawers, police said.

Thomas fought and kicked police while being arrested for third-degree burglary, police said. Police searched Thomas and found stolen rings and jewelry in his pockets, police said. He was also wearing stolen jewelry, police said.

Thomas asked to go to the bathroom and resisted police who accompanied him, police said. While in the police car, he was charged with larceny in progress, fourth- and fifth-degree larceny, fourth-degree mischief and interfering with an officer, police said.

He was scheduled to appear in Manchester Superior Court today.

Man charged in burglary

A Manchester man was arrested Friday and charged in connection with a burglary May 23 at a Hartford Road restaurant, police said.

Derrick Taylor, 19, of 610 Center St., was arrested on a warrant at 11 p.m. at the Manchester Parkade and charged with third-degree burglary and sixth-degree larceny, police said.

He was charged with breaking and entering into The Patio restaurant at 250 Hartford Road and stealing food and liquor, police said.

Taylor was held on $10,000 bond and was scheduled to appear in Manchester Superior Court today, police said.

Man charged in break-in

A Manchester man was arrested Saturday and charged with burglary after breaking into a Charles Drive apartment while the apartment resident was locked in a bedroom on the second floor, police said.

Police arrested Anthony J. Barrett, 31, of 113 Chestnut St., at 5:43 a.m. Saturday at 307 Chestnut Drive after the apartment resident called police and told them a man was pounding on the door, police said. The resident later called to tell police the man had forced his way in, police said.

Information as to whether the resident locked herself in the bedroom was not available today. Police arrived at the scene and found a lock on the back door broken, police said. Barrett answered an officer's knock at the front door, police said.

Barrett was charged with third-degree burglary, third-degree criminal mischief and first-degree criminal trespass, police said.

Driver charged after crash

An East Hartford man injured in an accident Tuesday on Spencer Street was charged with possession of alcohol by a minor, police said.

Terrance Davenport, 20, of 140 Silver Lane, East Hartford, was treated at Manchester Memorial Hospital and released, hospital officials said Friday. The accident occurred at 10:56 a.m. Tuesday, police said.

Davenport, who was driving a car, and William B. Barrett, 29, of 81A Charter Oak St., Manchester, and about 500 of them may be eligible for the pre-trial release program.

Larson sweats over parental-leave bill

By Peter Viles
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — If Democrats in the House of Representatives wanted to make Senate President Pro Tem John Larson sweat, they're doing a good job. Languishing in the House is Larson's major political investment of the session, a bill that would give workers up to 24 weeks of unpaid leave to spend with their families.

The bill breezed through the Senate in April but since then it has sat untouched in the House.

With just three working days left, the House will only have time to debate the bill once, so Larson, D-East Hartford, will have to accept any changes the House makes in it if the House passes the bill at all.

Earlier this session, a factor working against the bill was Larson's unpopularity among House Democrats, who blamed him for the collapse of negotiations over the tax increase package.

"John Larson ought to be shot," was the way Rep. Dean Markham, D-East Hartford, expressed House sentiment at the time.

But Larson eventually gave in on the tax package, accepting a half-percent increase in the state sales tax. Now the biggest factor working against the bill is time.

As written, the measure would eventually force businesses with more than 25 employees to provide up to six months of unpaid leave for workers to bond with newborn children or to stay with ailing family members.

If passed, it would be one of the most sweeping parental leave plans in the nation. Not surprisingly, Connecticut businesses have lobbied against the bill. They say they will face two financial burdens if it passes: paying benefits to employees on leave and paying for replacement workers, who may need training.

Some Republicans would like to kill the bill by sending it back to committee. Others have already drafted more than two dozen amendments to water down the bill and a lengthy debate is expected.

House Speaker Richard Blumenthal said the 88 House Democrats will meet in private one last time, probably today, to discuss the parental leave bill and several other bills awaiting House action.

He said it is likely the House will amend the bill slightly, cutting the leave period to 16 weeks and excepting companies with less than 50 employees.

House passes prison-overcrowding bill

HARTFORD (AP) — The

House of Representatives, wrestling unhappily with the issue of prison overcrowding, has passed legislation that could free up as many as 500 prison beds by letting some untried inmates out of jail.

The bill, strongly backed by the O'Neill administration, passed Friday. The accident occurred at 10:56 a.m. Tuesday, police said.

Davenport, who was driving a car, and William B. Barrett, 29, of 81A Charter Oak St., Manchester, and about 500 of them may be eligible for the pre-trial release program.

But he said those beds, if made available, would be filled within months.

The O'Neill administration is fighting a severe crowding problem in state prisons, also pushing a separate bill that would allow the state to bypass some bed laws and environmental laws when constructing and expanding prisons.

Republicans offered numerous unsuccessful amendments to the bill Saturday, including one that would have added a 50 percent surcharge to all fines levied against criminals and another that would have forced prisoners to pay for the cost of their own incarceration.

Two Republican amendments, however, did pass: one that would allow youthful offenders to be tried as adults for the crime of aggravated sexual assault and another eliminating the requirement that 1 percent of prison construction budgets be spent on artistic flourishes such as curved windows and elaborate woodwork.

Rep. Ruth Farnbach, R-Windsor, said cutting the art requirement will save the state as much as $10 million in the next 10 years as the state embarks on an ambitious program of prison construction and expansion.

Much of the day's debate — and dissatisfaction — focused on who should be eligible for the state's controversial home release program.

The release into the program of Steven Asherman, who had served three years of a manslaughter sentence for the stabbing death of a friend, has caused public outcry over the program, and the O'Neill administration has since urged that violent criminals not be eligible.

The bill passed Saturday writes these restrictions into law but several lawmakers distrusted whether the restrictions would actually keep violent criminals in jail for their full terms.

"We're trying to set up the rules about who should be released," Rep. William Wollenberg, R-Farmington, said. "We think we know who should be let out. Well, we don't."

Such decisions should be left to prison officials, Wollenberg said. He pointed out that, under the bill, some drug offenders are eligible for the release program, but people convicted of misconduct with a motor vehicle are not.

But Wollenberg said he would vote for the bill because his constituents want reassurance that violent criminals such as Asherman won't be eligible for early release in the future.

"It sounds good," Wollenberg said of the bill. "I know what the community is saying — Asherman."

With just 3 days left, lobbyist bill near death

HARTFORD (AP) — A bill aimed at reducing the influence of money on the legislative process appears doomed with just three days left in the 1989 session.

The bill, which would bar lobbyists from making campaign contributions to legislators or legislative candidates while the General Assembly is in session, cleared the Senate, but has been languishing in the calendar in the House for a month.

Rep. Jonathan Pelto, D-Mansfield, opposes the bill and said at week's end that the House would likely strip it of an amendment tacked on by the Senate, sending the bill back to the upper chamber. Such a move would impact the measure because of the crush of other business with only 72 hours left to get it passed.

Jeffrey B. Garfield, executive director of the state Elections Enforcement Commission, who has been pushing the bill for the past few years, says he's convinced the House would just as soon see it die.

The fact that it's been put off until the final three days and appears likely to be bounced back to the Senate "says it all," he said. If the Senate re-adopts the amendment, the bill would be sent to a committee of House and Senate members to work out a compromise. That would eat up even more time.

But Pelto said the Senate version is too broad, that it would prohibit lobbyists from contributing to any political action committee during the legislative session, including committees that don't support legislative candidates.

He also says the bill is sham because lobbyists could make all the contributions they want just before and after legislative sessions.

Under the proposed amendments, the architecture of the new buildings would have to be compatible with that of existing historic buildings. The amendments also include provisions for

Club for veterans turns 70 this week

The Army and Navy Club at 1090 Main St., a place where retired military men have come to play cards, shoot pool or share conversation over the years, will be 70 years old this week.

The club's 70th anniversary committee has planned a variety of special events for club members and their guests to celebrate the anniversary.

Town Director James "Dutch" Fogarty, a club member for more than 30 years and a member of the club's board of governors, said the club is home to about 1,400 servicemen and their families.

Although mainly a men's club, more and more women are being invited to club events. "I guess we're getting more liberal," Fogarty said.

The anniversary celebration will begin tonight with a setback tournament for members and guests. The cost is $10 per man. A chicken dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m.

Wednesday night will feature a barbeque and country western music by Slim Cox and his band. Chicken will be served at 6:30 p.m. and tickets are $10 per couple. The event is open to members and guests.

The anniversary celebration will end with an anniversary ball Saturday. There will be a prime rib dinner at 6:30 p.m. and dancing from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Tickets are $20 per couple, and the event is open to members and guests.

WALESA VOTES — Solidarity leader Lech Wałęsa casts his vote in Gdansk Sunday during Poland's first democratic elections since World War II. At right is Wałęsa's son, Bogdan, 19.

Polish vote gives Solidarity control of nation's Senate

By John Doniszewski
The Associated Press

WARSAW, Poland — Partial unofficial returns today in Poland's first democratic election since World War II indicated a strong Solidarity victory in the new Senate and the possible rejection of top communist officials in the lower house of Parliament.

However, the early returns tabulated by the Solidarity Citizens Committee still represented a tiny fraction of the more than 16 million votes cast Sunday, and a final official count was not expected until Wednesday.

There were no reports of a Communist Party candidate getting into the 100-member Senate, raising the possibility of a Solidarity sweep in the first freely elected legislative chamber in the East bloc.

The state-controlled media were maintaining a complete silence on voting results from Sunday's election, only reporting turnout figures. Members of the Communist Party and Solidarity kept counting the votes today.

On Sunday, a government spokesman pledged to "accept every result" of the balloting, which communist authorities agreed to in historic April accords that reinstated the Solidarity union after a seven-year ban.

The economy is a shambles, and the communists badly needed the opposition's cooperation if it is to be revived. The election for the Senate and the existing lower house, the Sejm, was carried out in an atmosphere of calm and exhilaration for many people happy

Union wins in U.S.

CHICAGO (AP) — More than 14,000 Poles casting absentee ballots in three U.S. cities for elections in their homeland gave over 85 percent of the 5,000-plus support to Solidarity candidates, and many predicted a similar result in Poland.

"The outcome of yesterday's election shows that the government... doesn't have any support at all," Maciej Wierzyński, producer of a Polish-language television program, said Sunday.

But Ryszard Krystosiak, a spokesman for the Polish embassy in Washington, said projecting a victory in Poland for the opposition, led by the Solidarity trade union, based on the outcome from the United States was unwise.

"To draw that conclusion on these results is premature," Krystosiak said in a telephone interview.

As government and opposition candidates in Poland wrapped up their campaigns for the elections Sunday, Polish nationals in the United States flocked to consult in

800 missing in Soviet blast

Gorbachev blames 'incompetence' for train disaster

By Andrew Kottel
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — As many as 800 people were killed when gas leaking from a pipeline filled a mountain valley, exploded and engulfed two passing trains in flames, a newspaper editor in the area said today.

Tass said 800 of the more than 1,200 people aboard the passenger trains, including many children bound for summer camp, were missing after Sunday's explosion in the Ural Mountains along the Trans-Siberian Railway.

Military units are searching the adjacent forest and mountains in the hope that some of the passengers managed to escape the tornado of fire, "the official news agency said.

President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, who visited the remote site Sunday, told the new Soviet parliament "a few hundred people" had been killed. He said incompetence and a lack of discipline might have contributed to the accident.

Gemady K. Dmitrin, editor of Evening Chelyabinsk, said his newspaper has a list of 500 and 400 people dead. He said that list was preliminary.

Dmitrin said children under age 8 did not have train tickets and therefore were not included in the count Tass gave for the number of people aboard.

Asked about the death toll given by Dmitrin, Dr. Vladimir Ruchki, a local Health Ministry spokesman said, "It's about right."

He said more than 600 people were hospitalized. Tass said more than 500 people were hospitalized and that 85 percent suffered severe burns.

The blast threw 14 cars off the track, and the ensuing fire enveloped the cars and created a off-mile-long blaze, the government daily Ivestia reported. The total number of railroad cars was not known.

"The picture I saw was terrifying, catastrophic," Dmitrin said, reading from a correspondent's first-person account published in his paper.

"The forest was practically burned to ashes by the fire. Only blackened trunks of trees could be seen. But most tragic, cars were blackened, twisted and even now exude a suffocating stench."

In Moscow, speaking to Congress, Gorbachev called for a minute of silence and the 2,250 deputies stood to mourn the victims.

Gorbachev then recessed the session for a national day of mourning.

The 58-year-old Soviet leader, in remarks from the Kremlin's Palace of Congresses broadcast live on radio and television, said the 113-mile-long pipeline burst a half mile from the blast.

He said the liquefied petroleum gas poured down a slope toward the tracks for three hours. Despite the leak, pumps were turned on to compensate for the pressure loss.

Everything started to accumulate, and when this mass reached the level of electrical train contacts, a spark ignited this condensed cloud," Gorbachev told the deputies.

The two passenger trains were turned in opposite directions — had made unscheduled stops near each other between the city of Ufa and the town of 150 miles southeast of Moscow. One train was on a siding, and the other was on the main tracks, the Soviet president indicated.

SEABROOK ARREST — An unidentified man is carried away by police Sunday afternoon during a protest against operation of the nuclear power plant in Seabrook, N.H.

Protesters renew Seabrook protest

By Michael Mokrzycki
The Associated Press

SEABROOK, N.H. — Anti-nuclear activists blocked gas at the Seabrook nuclear power plant today, capping a weekend of protests that brought the arrest total to more than 650.

About 40 people were arrested as they sat in the road in front of two gates and kept workers on the 7 a.m. shift from entering the plant on time. They were quickly led to a van, many of them dragged by officers, and taken to the Seabrook police station.

The arrests came a day after non-violent demonstrations that resulted in 627 arrests, the second largest number of arrests in one day in 13 years of demonstrations.

The protesters made Seabrook a symbol of the nation's anti-nuclear movement. The largest sit-in was in May 1977, when 1,414 people were arrested.

There was also a rally on Saturday, which attracted an estimated 4,000 people.

"I think this truly marks the beginning of a new era of resistance to the Seabrook project. We will be back at this plant as they continue to attempt to license it," said Roy Morrison, shortly after he was arrested Sunday on a criminal trespass charge.

After today's arrests, a handful of protesters continued to mill outside the gates, but spokeswoman Dianne Dunfee said she did not believe there would be more demonstrations today. She said protests could continue later at the Seabrook police station.

"The picture, 'L'Estaque, l'embarcadere' ("The Wharf at L'Estaque") was taken late Thursday morning or early that afternoon from a display room, museum Director Jean-Hubert Martin said.

It was not known exactly how the thief got out of the museum, which occupies two floors of a modernist building erected in 1977. Martin said security procedures were being reviewed.

The 14-by-19 inch painting was the first fauvist painting acquired by the National Museum of Modern Art in 1946. Painted in 1906, it shows a scene at the small Mediterranean port of L'Estaque near Marseille.

Sunspot activity increasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration is warning that rapidly increasing sunspot activity could threaten radio transmissions, satellites and even electrical systems by the end of the year.

The current sunspot cycle began in 1988 and is expected to peak by the end of this year or the beginning of 1990, according to Joseph Hirman of NOAA's Space Environment Service Center in Boulder, Colo.

Increasing solar activity has precipitated a power blackout in Canada in March, interfered with communications and disrupted a satellite launch with a valve in a safety-related system, but plant spokesmen predicted the first atomic reactor in Seabrook's 100 tons of uranium fuel would start by late this week.

Sri Lanka floods kill 200

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — Air force helicopters dropped food parcels today to thousands of villagers stranded by mudslides and floods that killed at least 200 people during the weekend, officials said.

More than 100,000 people left homeless by the monsoon-triggered devastation sought shelter in schools, churches and Buddhist temples, police and relief workers reported.

At least eight inches of rain fell Saturday, causing deluges of earth and water in valleys that wind through the southwest corner of the island — from Kegalle in the central hills, south to Ratnapura and down to Galle on the Indian Ocean coast.

The nation has been battered by six years of ethnic warfare. More than 9,000 people have died in the north and east during an 18-month period of guerrilla fighting from the Tamil minority, while another 3,500 have been killed by Sinhalese extremists attacking the government and its supporters in central and southern Sri Lanka.

NATION & WORLD

Gingrich is next target

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House ethics committee soon will begin reviewing a complaint against Republican Whip Newt Gingrich, an omen that the chamber's ethics problems are not a bad dream that will vanish with the departure of Speaker Jim Wright and Majority Whip Tony Coelho.

Ethics committee members could begin as early as Thursday, at their next meeting, to review a Democratic member's complaint that Gingrich, R-Ga., violated rules on outside income and receipt of gifts.

The allegations against Gingrich, revolving around a partnership proposal to promote a book he co-authored, are not the only reasons ethics cloud will hover over the House while Democrats try to divert attention from their leaders' conduct.

Still pending are Justice Department investigations of House members' personnel practices. Justice Department internal probes leak about those investigations, the conviction of a Republican lawmaker for having sex with a minor and more public hearings by a House task force considering changes in ethics rules.

Citibank lowers prime rate

NEW YORK (AP) — Citibank lowered its prime lending rate half a percentage point to 11 percent today, becoming the first major bank to respond to the decline of interest rates on financial markets.

Citibank is the nation's largest banking company. Other major banks did not immediately announce changes in their prime rates. Today's decline was the first drop in the other interest rates, including those on consumer loans — since Feb. 2, 1988.

The last change in the prime rate came on Feb. 24 of this year, when it rose to 11.5 percent from 11 percent.

The prime rate tends to follow changes in other interest rates, and today's drop reflected a downturn in market interest rates in recent weeks.

Fauvist painting stolen

PARIS (AP) — A Georges Braque painting worth an estimated $3 million has been stolen from the National Museum of Modern Art at the Pompidou Center, museum officials said Sunday.

Chicago has wealthiest, poorest suburbs

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago metropolitan area has the nation's wealthiest and poorest suburbs, according to a survey.

The Los Angeles and St. Louis areas had most of the nation's 15 poorest suburbs, with per capita annual income in Kenilworth was just $4,943, the study said.

"The nature of suburbs is changing dramatically," said deVise. "The future of American politics now lies in the suburbs."

After Kenilworth, the wealthiest suburb was Bloomfield Hills, Mich., near Detroit. Per capita income there was $29,820.

Hewlett-Woodbury, N.Y., was the third wealthiest at $29,300 per capita annual income. Ladue, Mo., near St. Louis was fourth at $25,962, and Mission Hills, Kan., a suburb of Kansas City, was fifth at $25,136.

Besides Hewlett-Woodbury, five of the wealthiest 15 suburbs are in the New York City area, the study showed.

The Los Angeles suburbs of Cudahy and Bell Gardens were the second and third most impoverished suburbs, with per capita annual income of $3,170 and $3,337, respectively.

Alorton, Ill. and East St. Louis, Ill., both near St. Louis, were the fourth and fifth poorest suburbs, the study showed. Per capita income in Alorton was $5,795, while in East St. Louis it was $5,973.

Illinois also had the ninth poorest in Centerville and No. 11 in Venice — both St. Louis suburbs — as well as Robbins, No. 14, outside Chicago.

The study also ranks suburbs in terms of social status, using the percentage of college graduates and the number of executives of various industries as measured by listings in the 1983-1989 "Who's Who in America" directory.

Again, Kenilworth was at the top with 77.5 percent of its residents 25 years and older having college degrees. Kenilworth was third in "Who's Who" biographies, and fifth in both communications executives and manufacturing executives, the study said.

Bronville, N.Y., a suburb of New York, ranked first in total "Who's Who" biographies and in communications executives. Oyster Bay, N.Y., near New York City, topped the list with the greatest proportion of financial executives, and Bloomfield Hills had the highest percentage of manufacturing executives.

For 10 years, financial disclosure forms have been required of federal officials, focusing considerable attention on Congress and the Cabinet. The judges, in contrast, have received less scrutiny.

The disclosure forms understate judges' wealth by valuing some assets and income in wide numerical ranges and by exempting some holdings, such as homes the largest single asset for most Americans.

Public opinion helped defeat the 51 percent raise for the judiciary and Congress on Feb. 7 — a day Circuit Judge Frank Coffin refers to as "Black Tuesday."

Since then, Bush recommended a 25 percent raise for judges, with some new restrictions on their earnings. The judges, who say inflation has eroded 30 percent of their buying power since 1983, are seeking a 30 percent raise with no strings attached.

The big squeeze on judges' buying power came between 1969 and 1975, a period of high inflation during which they got no raises. Many of those eligible for the increases are in full or semi-retirement, while three-fourths of the active judges have been appointed since nearly annual cost-of-living raises began 14 years ago.

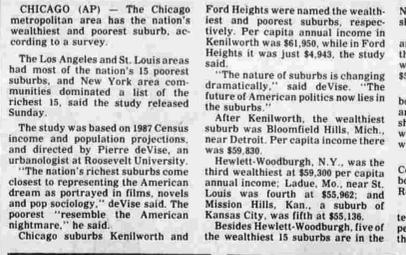

No judge has quit since the raise was scuttled, and there is no shortage of people eager to don the black robes.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, who helped select about a third of his state's 56 federal judges, said the pay hasn't made it hard for him to find applicants.

"Around 30 people will ask to be considered," Gramm said. "I'm not alarmed. There are good people out there."

A driving force in the judges' campaign is their discontent over how much some lawyers in their courtrooms are paid.

"When young people out of law school are making much more than I am, I don't feel that $8,500 is adequate compensation," said Judge Howard Turrentine of San Diego, a millionaire who complained that he is paid less than 30 of 32 former law clerks.

PRESIDENT ALI KHOMEINI named as successor

AYATOLLAH KHOMEINI dead at age 66

A former American hostage said the death of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini means the "nightmare is over" for Iran.

"On a personal level, I said years ago I probably have a drink when Khomeini died," said retired Col. Charles W. Scott, another former hostage who lives in Jonestown, Ga. "But now I'm totally ambivalent."

"It doesn't change a thing, Khomeini was a symbol of the Islamic fundamentalist revolution and that's all."

"Obviously, I'm not one of his big boosters. But I don't 'serve any purpose' to find satisfaction in Khomeini's passing," said Paul Lewis, of Champaign, Ill., a Marine guard when the embassy was seized.

Another former hostage, Kevin Hermenig, 29, of Mosine, Wis., was less restrained in his reaction.

"It is probably the best news that has happened to the world in a decade," he said. "Iran can now move on to a post-Khomeini era."

Rosalind Carter, the wife of the former president, said she and her husband continue to feel some bitterness about Khomeini, but not enough to create joy at his death.

"I don't really have a firm reaction to it. Like, I could never say, 'Oh, I'm glad he's dead.' I don't have to judge him. God will do that."

The millionaires include the well-known and the more obscure. Gerhard Gesell, who presided over the trial of Oliver North, has extensive farm holdings and is worth at least $1 million, perhaps more than $1.3 million.

Possibly the wealthiest, Circuit Judge Richard Cudahy of Chicago, is the scion of a Milwaukee meatpacking family and is worth at least $8.4 million.

Police and Interior Ministry forces are being used to quell the rioting, the official news agency said.

Ethnic riots in U.S.S.R.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Congress today appealed for an end to bloodshed in Uzbekistan, where one deputy said thousands of homes were set ablaze in ethnic rioting that claimed at least two lives.

Tass said authorities imposed a curfew in several areas of the Central Asian republic after two days of rioting between Uzbeks and the minority Turk-Meskhetis. It said there were deaths, but did not give a number.

The deputy from the region, Rakhmatullayev Akhmetov, said he had been told two people had died and "thousands and thousands of homes are burning" in his home city of Ferganah, a horrid scene, he said.

"Basically, Amoco's not done the best job. And we've had to jump on them some," he said. "Part of the problem was high water. I don't think they've had to do this in a while, but they didn't do a very good job."

Calls to Amoco's offices for comment over the weekend went unanswered.

Many federal judges enjoy large incomes from outside sources

By Michael J. Sniffen
and Richard L. Vernaci
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — About half America's federal judges earn more from investments and other outside sources than they would gain from the pay increase mandated by President Bush.

The study, based on a comprehensive analysis of their government records shows.

Most federal judges have six-figure investment portfolios, according to an Associated Press review of 933 financial disclosure forms filed by the justices in 1988.

The AP study of disclosure reports found:

— In all, between 41 percent and 64 percent of the judges already make more money from all outside sources than they would get from Bush's raise, which would range from $22,375 for Chief Justice William Rehnquist.

— At least 62 of the judges are millionaires, perhaps as many as 176.

— Only five judges reported no household income other than their salaries.

— At least 83 judges, and perhaps as many as 238, said they make more money from outside income than from salary.

"Nonehtheless, many judges are dissatisfied.

"In a way, we're sort of like second-class citizens," said James Latchum of Delaware, complaining about the defeat of the 51 percent raise earlier this year and some restrictions on judges' outside income.

The 70-year-old judge is very likely a millionaire who in 1987 made between $31,107 and $93,600 on assets valued between $920,000 and $1.5 million.

For its study, AP examined 1987 reports. The report is complete set available. Most material in these reports are provided within wide numerical ranges rather than in exact dollar amounts.

The millionaires include the well-known and the more obscure. Gerhard Gesell, who presided over the trial of Oliver North, has extensive farm holdings and is worth at least $1 million, perhaps more than $1.3 million.

Possibly the wealthiest, Circuit Judge Richard Cudahy of Chicago, is the scion of a Milwaukee meatpacking family and is worth at least $8.4 million.

Oil spill is contained

CRAG, Colo. (AP) — A 13,000-gallon oil spill that fouled the Yampa River in northwestern Colorado has been contained, said an environmental official who criticized the weekend cleanup effort by the oil company.

The spill occurred Friday, when a pipeline carrying light crude oil running beneath the river burst. Amoco Pipeline Co. shut off the line after Craig police reported the pipe break.

Amoco crews tried to contain the spill Saturday but weren't successful until Sunday.

"They didn't really put up the booms correctly, which was a factor in causing the oil to anchor) cable to snap," said Jeff Kny, a spokesman in Denver for the environmental Protection Agency. "They haven't had a lot of experience, or they put it up incorrectly."

Fawn Hall admits cocaine use

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fawn Hall, Oliver North's former secretary, has told drug investigators she was a "weekend" cocaine user while she worked at the National Security Council and the Pentagon and had access to sensitive government documents, according to a published report.

The Washington Post reported in its Sunday edition that Hall told a Drug Enforcement Administration agent of her cocaine use during the agency's investigation of drug use and sales at exclusive nightclubs in the city's Georgetown area.

Hall, who testified at congressional hearings about her role in disposing of documents in the Iran-Contra affair, told the agent she used cocaine on weekends in 1985-87 and provided investigators with names of some alleged drug dealers, according to unpublished sources cited by the Post.

The former White House aide revealed her drug use to DEA agents during an interview in the Washington office of her attorney, Plato Cacheris, on Aug. 7, 1987, two months after her Iran-Contra testimony, the source ces told the newspaper.

"I am not confirming any part of the story," said Cacheris, reached at his home Saturday night.

Hall is not a target of the DEA probe but is a potential grand jury witness in the ongoing investigation, the Post reported.

There were no allegations Hall sold drugs or used them at the White House, the sources told the Post.

Hall now lives in California where she is pursuing an acting career.

Tax hikes won't hurt the wealthy

"I can assure you of this. A sales tax (increase) in the Senate will go nowhere. We do not want to be in the position of imposing a regressive tax on the people who can least afford to pay it."

— John Larson, president pro tem of the Senate, April 24

Although the truth of Larson's April comments persists, he and his Democratic colleagues in the General Assembly have approved a package of tax increases, including an 8 percent sales tax, that will hurt most those who can least afford to pay.

Sales and excise taxes take 13 percent of the income of families who earn less than $10,000 a year and only 2.6 percent of income from families who earn $80,000 or more, according to a national study by the Tax Foundation.

The state's heavy reliance on the sales tax, which accounts for 40 percent of its revenues, continues to make budget projections only as reliable as a lucky statistician's best guess. Since federal tax reform in 1986, the sales tax rate is the nation's highest and no longer deductible. State consumers bear the full brunt of the tax.

The increase in the sales tax is being joined this year by a host of other use taxes on cable television and business services.

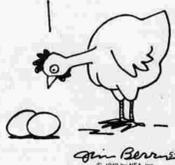

The taxes on the necessities of life come in bites and nibbles. Individually they are small enough. Hartford's lawmakers apparently hope, that taxpayers will not notice their overall enormity. But nearly $1 billion in new taxes will have been passed by the General Assembly by the time it adjourns next week.

The wealthy have walked away relatively unscathed. The poor and those on fixed incomes cannot tolerate many more of these "painless" tax increases.

Problem persists with grain odors

To the Editor:

The Central Connecticut Cooperative Farmers Association on April Place continues to blow off a nuisance odor continuously throughout the year, with grain dust emanating from the building at various times.

The DEP has been notified on numerous occasions, for the past year by the residents in the area of the odor and dust. The DEP has not been conclusive in any statement that defines the operation and area from which the dust and odor emanate.

By request of Karl Wegener from the Connecticut Council on Environmental Quality, I attended the council meeting on Wednesday, May 17, and gave a complete dissertation on behalf of the residents who came to my council session in 1988. The odor and dust is not a new problem. It has been around for at least 20 years. To the best of my knowledge, not one director has ever given his time and effective effort to help those homeowners that have asked for assistance and guidance.

I have visited the plant at least on three occasions, reviewing the entire operation. I have been to the top of the building where exhaust ducts are located to discharge the steam and vapor from the grain pellet manufacturing process. Mr. Hirth, believe it or not, the odor is emanating from those stacks — and don't blame the odor on the Lydall paper mill operation and the brook that meanders adjacent to your property.

I have done considerable research work for the town of Manchester, and I have reported the responsible parties calling for a budget freeze, a position so preposterous that even his fellow Republicans in the state Senate won't buy it.

The Democrats in the budget adopted by the House on May 23 demonstrated our commitment to reducing the size of government without hurting the public. The budget plan represents an 8.4 percent increase, well below the double-digit increases seen during the years of Republican control of the General Assembly. In fact, this year's budget is 10 million less than what is projected to be needed to maintain current services.

The Legislature's Appropriations Committee's agonizing cuts make up over $120 million of that figure. We see the budget as the first year of a two-year plan to curb state spending growth at 15 percent or less, an average of 7.5 percent or less per year. This budget includes funds for an in-depth study to assess state government and recommend ways to improve efficiency and reduce costs.

Despite our drive to cut spending, we also recognize that state government is

New challenges awaiting Bush

By Susanne M. Schafar

WASHINGTON — In Washington, the applause never lasts for long.

President Bush, fresh from his triumphant debut on the stage of international foreign policy at the NATO summit, has come home to face demands for action in response to the twin challenges posed by the violence in China and the shifting balance of power in Tehran.

The question is, will Bush respond with the gusto he showed in forging a compromise among the intractable North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies?

Or will he adopt a more cautious approach? Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger observed on Sunday that Bush, can't afford "emotional outbursts" in reaction to such events as the bloodletting in China.

Over the weekend, Bush appeared to take that advice, refusing to comment in public on the rash of international events. His spokesman, Martin Flitower, said Bush would "consider all the options and choose an appropriate course when the time is right."

At home, the man who ran for the presidency touting his foreign policy expertise was buffeted by members of his own party, who demanded a tough, retaliatory response to the Chinese brutalities.

"It's folly," sniffed Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who demanded an immediate cutoff of U.S. military aid to those who'd attacked their own people. "We need to stand with these young people who are trying to achieve freedom."

Somewhat, it seemed so much easier when Bush dealt with the NATO leaders in Brussels last week. With them, he shared a common celebration of their democratic values and the 40th anniversary of their pact against fascism.

There, America's new president grabbed the international stage with his sweeping proposals for cuts in conventional weapons and the compromise on short-range nuclear weapons.

But in Iran, in the wake of the Khomenei's rule, Bush must deal with a nation that deeply embarrassed his Oval Office predecessors and stymied U.S. foreign policy as it held Americans hostage.

And China's explosion of violence over the weekend provided a stark display of the difficulty a major superpower faces in attempting to influence another foreign nation.

For weeks, the United States had appealed for calm and respect for the expressions of democracy in China. Secretary of State James A. Baker III repeated those admonitions yet again on Saturday, even as the bullets began to fly in Tiananmen Square.

After hearing a live report of the massacre from a reporter on the scene with the sounds of ambulances and the wailing of the wounded, Baker's statement took a sharper tone. He called the situation "extremely deplorable" and said the developments would arouse the concern of the U.S. government around the world.

The White House issued a statement in Bush's name, saying he "deeply deplored the decision" to use force against peaceful demonstrators and the consequent loss of life. "It is our capacity, and our responsibility," said the statement, "to maintain our leadership of the movement for democracy and human rights around the world."

During Bush's trip to China earlier this year, he was hailed as an "old friend" of the country, where he'd served as one of the first U.S. envoys to the state since 1949.

But now he trades cautiously, because a lot is at stake. Does the United States turn on the 10-year relationship that has blossomed since formal ties were reached in 1979? Do the friendly relations, the $13.7 billion two-way trade now waver and die?

If Bush chooses, a number of actions is possible. He could recall U.S. Ambassador James Lilley for consultations to show its disapproval. He could suspend the transfer of high-technology items or revoke the recently renewed most-favored-nation trading status that has helped China become the United States' 14th largest trading partner.

Currently, U.S. firms have been investing in China to the tune of $3 billion annually. Secretary of State James A. Baker III repeated those admonitions yet again on Saturday, even as the bullets began to fly in Tiananmen Square.

After hearing a live report of the massacre from a reporter on the scene with the sounds of ambulances and the wailing of the wounded, Baker's statement took a sharper tone. He called the situation "extremely deplorable" and said the developments would arouse the concern of the U.S. government around the world.

The White House issued a statement in Bush's name, saying he "deeply deplored the decision" to use force against peaceful demonstrators and the consequent loss of life. "It is our capacity, and our responsibility," said the statement, "to maintain our leadership of the movement for democracy and human rights around the world."

During Bush's trip to China earlier this year, he was hailed as an "old friend" of the country, where he'd served as one of the first U.S. envoys to the state since 1949.

But now he trades cautiously, because a lot is at stake. Does the United States turn on the

Terrorist rationale is twisted

DAMASCUS, Syria — The Palestinian terrorist believed to have blown up Pan Am flight 103 says he is a civilized man who wouldn't kill a planeload of American civilians. But Ahmed Jibril's nice-guy image is only skin-deep. In an interview with us, Jibril said that if his enemy, Israel, harms him or his followers, he would not hesitate to retaliate against Americans.

One would have to crawl inside Jibril's mind to track that twisted rationale. It is easier just to accept the version of reality subscribed to by many Islamic fundamentalists — that the United States is to blame for all the ills of the world, and there is no such thing as an innocent American.

Jibril is a portly, 52-year-old man, thinning on top with a salt and pepper mustache. He is the secretary general of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command. But he looks more like a cordial Mafia don.

In a four-hour interview with us in Damascus, Jibril was often genial, except when he talked about America: "I will tell you that if our organization is subjected to any extraordinary Israeli action, we will be sure that you — the Americans — are accomplices also. The Bush administration would be an accomplice too, and we would have our own reaction."

Asked why Jibril's men caught two U.S. Embassy officials from Damascus snooping around the perimeter of his most sensitive command base, about 25 miles from the city. They were taking pictures and had maps, compasses and binoculars. "Jibril's men 'detained' the two diplomats for eight hours before letting them go. Later, Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk Charaa collected what any intelligence on Sunday that the U.S. rep. to influence the course of events in China "is very limited."

But Solars, who appeared with Helms on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation," said he believed that "much more is at stake... What is involved... our capacity, and our responsibility, to maintain our leadership of the movement for democracy and human rights around the world."

And if we appear to be indifferent or insensitive to the human rights of one-fifth of the human race, then I think it'll be very difficult for us to plausibly contend that we are in fact a democracy and human rights ally of the world."

mean to help the citizens of Connecticut. That is why we believed it prudent and fair to add back $17 million for local education, $10 million in revenue sharing to the towns, $8 million for group homes and shelters, $2.1 million to restore ConnPACE, the prescription drug subsidy program for eligible senior citizens and $1 million for protective services for children and youths.

The budget also includes money to create an affordable nursing home care program for the elderly, to fund private insurance funds. It includes money for a stepped-up war against crime and drugs, and drug treatment facilities.

We restored funds to higher education to assure adequate staffing, books and supplies. Manchester Community College will be able to maintain its level of excellence in our state.

We looked at who needed essential services and acted. We looked at spiraling state costs and acted to halt growth. Now we will look to the future, and take a hard look at efficiency in government, and will act in the best interests of all the people.

We did our best to be fair and responsible in a very difficult time for our state, and will continue to do so.

Second thoughts about second marriage

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 25-year-old, self-supporting woman, divorced for three years. I was 18 when I married my childhood sweetheart, but as you have often said, "You can't change anybody but yourself," so I ended the marriage when I realized I couldn't change him. Fortunately, we had no children.

I am now seeing a very special man. He's 29 and has never been married. Of course there's a problem or I wouldn't be writing to you. He wants to marry me, but before introducing me to his parents, he asked me not to mention the fact that I had been married.

Abby, I don't think divorce is anything to be ashamed of, but of course, I respected his wishes. I feel very uncomfortable. I care a great deal for this man, but he has gone down in my estimation because of his request.

Am I wrong? And what should I do about it? Also, what is your opinion of him?
UNCOMFORTABLE

DEAR UNCOMFORTABLE: You

OUR FASCINATING EARTH by Philip Schiff, P.H.D.

A crackdown is in the making on automobiles fueled by gasoline, as actions to comply with federal clean-air regulations. At the same time, representatives of the Administration are meeting with car makers in the hope of producing an automobile with less dangerous emissions.

The talk has dealt primarily with methanol fuels, which replace a percentage of the gasoline burned with grain-derived alcohol. The reduction in pollution, it is reasoned, would be significant.

Under serious research is another alternative fuel, which is already being employed in some test projects — that may prove to be the future of the target of these developments is natural gas, which already is powering about 300,000 vehicles worldwide. Natural gas is gaining acceptance as a motor fuel in Italy, Canada and the Soviet Union. There are 30,000 vehicles in the U.S. so powered, most of them fleet trucks on local routes.

What's so good about natural gas? It pollutes less, producing only about 10 percent of the carbon monoxide, 20 percent of the hydrocarbons, and one-third of the nitrous oxide of gasoline. It costs less, at least at the pump, about half the price of gasoline for an equivalent amount of driving.

It's plentiful supply and is domestically produced, and the distribution network is already in place, eliminating environmental and political dangers. It is being tested in New York, where Brooklyn Union Gas Co. has equipped a fleet of vehicles — and

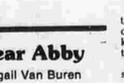

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 11-year-old son has cluster migraines. He's had a CT, EEG, MRI and had his blood checked. All results were negative. He's been on many medications, but nothing stops the pain. His weight has been steadily dropping. His older brother had a brain tumor two years ago. What other tests can be done to rule out malignancy?

DEAR READER: In my opinion, your son has had more than enough tests to rule out malignancy. The magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) would have been sufficient, by enabling the specialists to examine detailed pictures of your son's brain. The computed tomographic (CT) scan and the electroencephalogram (EEG) or brain-wave test were used to rule out other conditions that can cause headaches.

I'm afraid that your son will need to learn ways to cope with cluster migraines, a common and uncomfortable affliction. He should be under the care of a neurologist, a medical doctor specializing in disorders of the nervous system, who can suggest ways to help your son. For example, some forms of migraine are triggered by stress or food additives, such as nitrates. Avoiding these situations may help your son's migraines. In addition, the judicious use of pain-relieving medicine, drugs to constrict blood vessels, and beta-blockers may help prevent or improve your son's condition. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Headaches." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91399, Cleveland, Ohio 44101-3399. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: You once wrote that pimples on a backside are a result of sitting. I believe that foam cushions in older cars deteriorate and give of some kind of gas that is irritating to the skin by the cleaning process. I have had a rash from old brassieres that contain foam latex in the support area under the breast. What's your opinion?

DEAR READER: You are correct. Sometimes people are highly allergic to the substances used in the manufacture of latex, a product that is a common ingredient in cushions and elasticated garments. These people may develop highly irritating skin reactions when exposed to latex, especially if the skin is moist, as is the case in hot weather or during prolonged sitting in a warm automobile. The best treatment is avoidance of material to which a person knows he or she is sensitive.

Will cars of the future run on cheap, clean natural gas?

QUESTION: Do I want to power my car with this fuel?

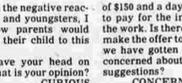

ANSWER: Not right now, and probably not for a few years. While it's entirely possible to convert an automobile to burn the fuel today, the problem comes in finding filling stations. Ultimately, proponents see home-based systems to existing natural gas heating lines, resulting in a virtual gas station in every garage.

QUESTION: Will existing engines need enormous modifications to burn natural gas?

ANSWER: No, surprisingly. Some adjustments need to be made, and a gas and air mixer must be installed. Curiously, a switch is usually put into the modified vehicles enabling them to burn gasoline if necessary.

QUESTION: The idea of carrying a tank of pressurized, inflammable gas in my car scares me. Isn't it dangerous?

ANSWER: Not if test results are any indication. Pressurized natural gas tanks have been thrown into fires, shot with high-powered pistols and been placed in cars dropped from 100 feet that hit the ground at 90 miles per hour. None has ruptured. And

Real-life role for Lowe

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Rob Lowe, accused in a lawsuit of inducing an underage girl into having sex in an Atlanta hotel room and videotaping the action, portrays a character who makes a pornographic videotape in his next movie.

People magazine reported this week that Lowe plays a psychopath who secretly tapes a character who makes a pornographic videotape in his next movie.

"When this thing supposedly happened with Rob, he had not read my script, so it is sheer coincidence," said screenwriter David Knopf. He added that no changes are planned. Shooting is scheduled to start this month.

The mother of the teenage girl who allegedly took part in a pornographic videotape with Lowe filed a civil lawsuit on May 12 seeking unspecified damages from the actor. The girl was 16 at the time of the alleged incident.

News reports have said the girl, who turned 17 in April, apparently filed suit during last summer's Democratic National Convention.

Lowe has declined to comment on the lawsuit.

'Heart-and soul' friendship

NEW YORK (AP) — Madonna and Sandra Bernhard caused a commotion with a bump-and-grinder routine last week at a club in New York City. But they said saying the world's rain forests is more important than questions about their seemingly flirtatious pique.

"Don't believe those stories you heard about us," Madonna said in this week's People magazine.

"Believe them," responded Bernhard. "Madonna and I have a heart-and-soul friendship," she added. "You can't have a political statement. It's to say to the world, Get past the judgments. Accept people for what they are. The rain forest is dying. What do you care more about, the rain forest or our sexuality?"

The two appeared at a recent "Don't Bungle the Jungle" benefit at the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

King back in Mississippi

VICKSBURG, Miss. (AP) — B.B. King reminisced during his return to his native state with a BBC crew preparing a documentary on the bluesman's life.

"When I would play a gospel song people would pat me on the back... when I played blues song they would give me a tip," King said with the British Broadcasting Corp. crew Saturday at the Delta Point River Restaurant to tape an interview that will be included in an hour-long program of the documentary series "Omnibus."

King and the crew had planned to meet privately at the restaurant, but word of his appearance spread quickly.

"Less than five months after moving into the governor's residence, Bayh had maintenance workers set up a pole and backboard to enable him to practice shooting.

"It's part of our heritage and it's one of the positive things we have to offer the country — physical fitness," Bayh said. "I have a special love for basketball was chronicled in the movie 'Hoosiers.' Some high school games regularly draw tens of thousands of fans."

"I like to play basketball, shoot basketballs and shoot two-on-two," said Bayh, at 33 the nation's youngest governor. "I don't like the ball game. No one has confused me with Michael Jordan yet."

Romance was a surprise

NEW YORK (AP) — TV stars Delta Burke and Gerald McRaney spent a reported $25,000 on a storybook wedding in May, but neither was seeking romance when they met at a publicists' luncheon in March 1987, according to People magazine.

"I figured I'd turn into the crazy woman down the street with all the dogs and a star of newspapers so deep you can't find the body for days. And then I met him, and it's so weird, but right off the bat you know," Burke, 34 of the CBS show "Designing Women," said in this week's issue.

McRaney, 42, of the old CBS show "Simon & Schuster" was separated but still married to his second wife when he met Burke.

complex for diplomats. The American and other embassies began sheltering foreign students studying at Chinese universities. Tank and troop convoys moved throughout the night and day, and helicopters dropped off supplies at Tiananmen Square for the thousands of soldiers occupying the area since they drove out protesters early Sunday.

Burned-out hulks of buses and military vehicles littered streets, which protesters by the thousands refused to quit. Public transportation was at a standstill and most downtown shops closed.

No Chinese leader has come forth to take responsibility for the decision to turn the military on civilians, filling hospitals with the dead and dying, and it was not known how much opposition to the move exists in the government. Chinese sources said senior leader Deng Xiaoping, 84, ordered the attack to halt seven weeks of student protests for a free China and an end to official corruption. They said Deng was in a military hospital being treated for prostate cancer.

Premier Li Peng, who ordered martial law in Beijing, has not appeared in public or commented on the violence. He and old guard ideologues, many in their 80s, are believed to support the attack.

The massacre has discredited the government, army and Communist Party and many enraged citizens are calling for revolution.

Before the massive weekend attack, hundreds of thousands of people had thwarted troop movements into the city.

In eastern Beijing, soldiers left off several trucks of automatic rifle fire today as seven military trucks moved on an intersection where crowds had set several army vehicles ablaze.

Thousands of students today blocked intersections in Shanghai, the country's largest city, and in the southern provincial capital of Changsha, sources said. They said thousands of students in the northeastern cities of Shenyang and Changchun marched Sunday in mourning.

The people's defiance was symbolized in Tiananmen Square this morning when a man wearing a white shirt ran in front of a tank column and momentarily brought it to a halt.

Lee has been in the United States since 1966, first as an associate professor at the State University of New York. He has served as a volunteer interpreter for Chinese groups visiting Connecticut.

Born in 1938, he also worked as a consultant for Xerox. In 1984 he was invited to the White House when the Chinese leader was visiting the United States.

"The United States... I don't want to see a total break in this relationship and I will stand against a total break. When you see these kids struggling for democracy and freedom, this would be a bad time for the United States to withdraw."

Bush was asked about events in Iran, where radical leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini died over the weekend. He said "we're not sure yet" what will happen with the government in the Islamic nation although he said President Ali Khamenei appears to be in charge.

"There's a way for the relationship with the United States to improve and that's for the release of the American hostages" being held in Lebanon, he said.

Bush, back from a 10-day overseas trip that dwelled on unity in Western Europe, called congressional leaders to the White House for a briefing likely to be overshadowed by the weekend's dramatic events in Beijing and Tehran.

Last week's NATO summit and the president's widely acclaimed arms-control initiatives were billed as topping the agenda for today's bipartisan leadership meeting. But the talks were almost certain to be sidetracked by discussions of the bloody military crackdown in China and the death of Khomeini.

the 23 years... "Osella said in the memo. The directors are scheduled to vote on the increase Tuesday after a public hearing. The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln Center hearing room.

Democratic Deputy Mayor Stephen T. Cassano, who supports the increase, said last month Weiss deserves it for his positive accomplishments during his 23 years as town manager. Weiss plans to retire at the end of this month.

Cassano is among three board Democrats who support the increase. Of the seven directors polled last month, Cassano, Fogarty and Mary Ann Handley said they would vote for it even without unanimous support from the board.

Democratic Kenneth N. Tedford said early last month the request probably would not be approved without unanimous support. Tedford refused to comment on the issue this morning.

Democrats Barbara B. Weinberg and Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr. said last month they hadn't decided how to vote.

DiRosa said this morning he still hasn't made up his mind, but the Democrats are scheduled to caucus tonight to determine where they stand on the issue.

Weinberg could not be reached for comment this morning. Osella, a major in the U.S. Army Reserve, is on active duty this week and also could not be reached for comment today.

"Retrospective adjustment of employee salaries for private purposes upon retirement is unheard of in both the private and public sectors," Osella wrote. "Making an exception would set a precedent and poor example for other municipal employees who are approaching retirement."

LOCAL & STATE

Andover numbers houses

ANDOVER — New house numbers for the enhanced 911 emergency service were mailed to residents Friday and Saturday. The house numbering committee will be available to answer any questions regarding the new numbers on Thursday and June 15 at 8 p.m. at the Town Office Building. Residents who cannot attend the meetings may call Patrick Carron, 742-6539.

Republicans rap spending

Citing $547 million in new state spending and $900 million in new increases proposed by Democrats before the state budget was approved last week, state Rep. J. Peter Fuscus, R-Marlborough, and state Rep. Paul R. Munns, R-Manchester, voted against both the spending package and the new tax package.

In news releases, the two criticized the budget for being too high. Fuscus said, "The budget is too high and the tax increases that will be needed to pay for that budget will penalize our workers and small businesses and threaten Connecticut's jobs and economic growth."

Munns said, "The Democrats have not made a real effort to reduce the spending increases called for by the governor last February nor have they listened to alternatives put forth by the Republicans to help avoid the need for tax increases that this budget will require."

Munns represents the 8th Assembly District, which includes Bolton, Andover and one voting district in Manchester.

Prague opposes crime bill

State Rep. Edith G. Prague, D-Columbia, opposed an amendment put forth on the House floor May 19 by Republicans which she said would shift financial burdens now placed upon convicted criminals onto state government.

Under the amendment, when a prison inmate who has been transferred to a halfway house subsequently injures another person or causes property damage, the victim would be able to recover damages from the state instead of the criminal. Prague said in a news release that under the bill the innocent citizens and criminals who kill each other could sue the state for compensation.

Prague represents the 8th Assembly District, which includes Coventry.

Senate passes bus bill

A bill providing for safer transportation of school children has been approved by the state Senate.

Sen. Michael P. Meotti, D-Glastonbury, who sponsored the bill, said it would require the bill provides for phasing out the use of non-standard vehicles, such as vans. He said the bill also allows for transporting large numbers of students, strengthens licensing procedures for drivers of all vehicles used to transport school children, and ensures the thorough screening of school bus driver applicants.

A relaxed atmosphere permitted visitors to stroll through the gardens and spend time chatting with friends, sitting and viewing the performances, or nibbling on hors d'oeuvres throughout the evening.

Some people who attended the event hadn't come last year. They decided it was a worthwhile way to spend a Saturday.

"My son talked us into it," said Mrs. George Darby of 41 Rooney St. "It's very, very nice, and what weather. It's nice to see so many people out."

She attended with her husband and her husband's brother and wife.

An exhibition of Victorian dances by the Vintage Dance Society of Bloomfield captured the attention of most of Saturday's browsers.

Women dressed in lacy, high-collared dresses with their hair arranged in buns and men dressed in crisp white suits and bow ties ashy and twirled across a small stage as they danced the most popular steps of the Victorian era.

The gardens were probably not the typical setting for a Victorian dance, but a Sunday afternoon tea with friends, sitting and viewing the performances, or nibbling on hors d'oeuvres throughout the evening.

It was certainly a step back in time, as the group performed dances such as the Spanish Waltz and Bohemian National Polka while an occasional noisy automobile roared along Porter Street.

The group returned to the stage later in the program to the delight of the audience, and performed a few dances from the Ragtime era, including the Turkey Trot and Tango.

Eight people killed, 500 hurt in stampede to view Khomeini

By Alex Erly The Associated Press

TEHRAN, Iran — Millions of mourners today flooded into a square where Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's body lay, causing a stampede that the official news agency said killed eight people and injured at least 500.

The Islamic Republic News Agency said scores of people were knocked unconscious in the crush as temperatures soared to 100 degrees.

State television showed victims being carried out of the square in front of the Mosalla mosque as crowds scrambled to get closer to the air-conditioned cubicle where Khomeini's shrouded body lay in a glass-covered bier.

The revolutionary patriarch's characteristic black turban was on his chest.

Wailing men, women and children screamed and pounded on the ambulance as it moved slowly through the crowd.

Boasting on their breasts and heads in a traditional Shiite Moslem sign of mourning, they considered above the constitution and had no specified duties. He was considered the earthly representative of the prophet Mohammed and the recipient of divine guidance.

"We have been orphaned: Our father is dead!" several women screamed. The government declared a 40-day mourning period.

The official Islamic Republic News Agency said the crowds blocked the streets leading to the mosque and President Khomeini had to be flown to a helicopter.

'Robbins' receives 6 Tonys; 'Heidi Chronicles' best play

By Marv Campbell The Associated Press

NEW YORK — "Jerome Robbins' Broadway" dominated the Tonys with six awards, and Wendy Wasserstein's Pulitzer Prize-winning "The Heidi Chronicles" won best play.

Wasserstein, whose play is about a girl of the 1980s becoming a woman of the 1980s, lifted her Tony aloft Sunday night and said, "For women playwrights, I think this is great for all of us."

Robbins, receiving a Tony as best director for "The Heidi Chronicles," said, "I suppose as director I have to thank the choreographer."

He was ineligible in the choreography category because the dances are re-creations of 15 mensural numbers from nine hit shows of previous seasons.

That award went to "Black and Blue," which won three Tonys.

In addition to director, "Jerome Robbins' Broadway" won Tony Awards for best musical, actor in a musical, Jason Alexander, featured actor — Doug Wies, featured actress — Debbie Shapiro, and best lighting design.

Robbins, who has been choreographing for the New York City Ballet in recent years, decided to notate his Broadway dances for the Lincoln Center library, then decided they could be re-created on stage.

Pauline Collins, remembered as a saucy maid in PBS-TV's "Upstairs, Downstairs," won the best dramatic actress award for "Shirley Valentine," a one-woman play.

"I don't believe the generosity of this theatrical community," the British actress said.

St. James' winning "is proof that miracles can happen at any time, even when you're in a bit on a like, like me and the Philip."

She referred to Philip Bosco, a relaxed atmosphere permitted visitors to stroll through the gardens and spend time chatting with friends, sitting and viewing the performances, or nibbling on hors d'oeuvres throughout the evening.

Bosco, who has acted in 99 plays, 61 of them in New York.

Bosco called his competition — Mikhail Baryshnikov, Bill Irwin and Victor Garber — "two bona fide geniuses and a superb actor who's never been in a play that hasn't been a success."

To Garber, one of two tenors in "Lend Me a Tenor," Bosco said: "I'd like to share this with Victor. It will, of course, be at my house in Teaneck, New Jersey. You're absolutely welcome to come any time to see it."

Garber was mentioned again, by Boyd Gaines, accepting the best featured actor Tony for his role as a doctor and longtime friend of the heroine of "The Heidi Chronicles." Gaines said, "I'd like to thank Victor Garber for not taking this part."

Frankie Manning and Fayard Nicholas for "Black and Blue," a featured guest at a dinner without a host in Neil Simon's farce "Rumors."

"Our Town" was judged best revival of the Broadway season just ended.

"Yesterday I bet my producer, Manny Azenberg, $1 million that I would lose tonight," she said.

"Perhaps I can borrow from Neil Simon."

She added that she's the 12th Tony winner from a Simon play. Jerry Zaks, acclaimed best play director for "Lend Me a Tenor," said: "I'd like to dedicate this to the memory of my father. His spirit inhabits everything I do and he would have loved this."

Ruth Brown, a rhythm and blues recording star in the 1950s, won the Tony as best actress in a musical for "Black and Blue."

MHS girls don't come up short

By Jim Tierney Manchester Herald

Despite a lack of numbers competing in the state Class LL Girls' Track and Field Championship, Manchester High's girls' team placed second in the 100-meter dash at Saturday's state Class LL Championship.

Manchester crowned two LL state champions in senior Karen Obue and sophomore Kerr Lindland, who earned state titles in the 100-meter and 400-meter, respectively.

Cruz, the two-time defending LL long jump champ, was upset in her specialty. Both Cruz and Norine Nadeau of Norwich Free Academy leaped 16 feet, 10 inches. However, in a three-leap jumpoff to decide the winner, Nadeau edged Cruz by half an inch on her third effort.

Cruz's difficulties continued. In the 100, she apparently slipped in her blocks at the start and took second behind Weaver's Dionne Wilson. Wilson also won the 200 and 400. In the 200, Cruz stood up immediately after the starting gun sounded because she thought there had been a false start. There was no false start and she finished fifth.

"In the 100 she felt her blocks slip which caused her to have a little slower start," Bernstein said. "In the 200, she stopped running because she thought it was a false start. The long jump went to a third jumpoff and she lost by half an inch."

Cruz, Obue, Lindland, DeJoannis and the 4 X 100 relay team qualified for the State Open Championships on Wednesday at 4 p.m. at East Hartford High School. The top six individuals and four relays advanced to the Open.

"You don't get tired when you play that many innings and win," Cammitt said. "It's when you lose that you're fatigued. I did feel some mental fatigue. I was going down swinging at some stupid pitches I was getting under the ball a lot."

At least the Astros didn't have to sleep in the trainer's room.

Saturday's game saw familiar faces in strange places.

After Ramirez singled in the tying run in the sixth, managers Art Howe of the Astros and Tom LaSorda of the Los Angeles Dodgers shuffled players like baseball cards, trying to find a winning combination.

Howe wound up using one starting pitcher, Jim Deshaies, to pinch hit. Another starter, Jim Clancy, got the win with five scoreless innings. In all, the Astros used 21 players.

The Dodgers wound up using nine pitchers — including their ace, Orel Hershiser, for seven innings in relief. Another starter, Fernando Valenzuela, wound up at first base while the regular first baseman, Eddie Murray, was playing third and the regular third baseman, Jeff Hamilton was pitching.

The only Dodger who didn't play was Tim Belcher, who started Sunday's game. Scott, Bob Forsch, who started Sunday, and outfielder Kevin Bass were the only Astros who got the night off.

Hamilton, whose fastball was clocked at 91 mph, pitched the final two innings and retired the side in order in the 21st before allowing the winning run on the 22nd on Ramirez' RBI single. Bill Doran slid in under Mike Scioscia's tag for the winning run.

Hamilton became the second non-pitcher in 26 years to get a decision. St. Louis' Jose Quiroga lost in the 19th inning to Atlanta last year.

"I was excited about getting to pitch but had to do it in the ninth when you lose," Hamilton said. "I'm mad about losing but I still can't believe it was there. I've always wanted to pitch."

It was a long night for hitters. Dodger center fielder John Sheely went hitting for one out of the record for utility set by Charles Plack of the Boston Braves, who was 6-for-11 in the longest game every played — a 1-1 28-inning tie with Brooklyn on May 1, 1920.

These guys have the feeling they are going to win a lot of games."

Unfortunately for the Dodgers, there's no rest for the weary — they play a two-night doubleheader tonight in Atlanta.

Davis, Gerald Young, Ken Caminiti and Rafael Ramirez were the only Houston regulars who played all 25 innings.

Indians third in state Class LL championship meet

By Jim Tierney Manchester Herald

Despite a lack of numbers competing in the state Class LL Girls' Track and Field Championship, Manchester High's girls' team placed second in the 100-meter dash at Saturday's state Class LL Championship.

Manchester crowned two LL state champions in senior Karen Obue and sophomore Kerr Lindland, who earned state titles in the 100-meter and 400-meter, respectively.

Cruz, the two-time defending LL long jump champ, was upset in her specialty. Both Cruz and Norine Nadeau of Norwich Free Academy leaped 16 feet, 10 inches. However, in a three-leap jumpoff to decide the winner, Nadeau edged Cruz by half an inch on her third effort.

Cruz's difficulties continued. In the 100, she apparently slipped in her blocks at the start and took second behind Weaver's Dionne Wilson. Wilson also won the 200 and 400. In the 200, Cruz stood up immediately after the starting gun sounded because she thought there had been a false start. There was no false start and she finished fifth.

"In the 100 she felt her blocks slip which caused her to have a little slower start," Bernstein said. "In the 200, she stopped running because she thought it was a false start. The long jump went to a third jumpoff and she lost by half an inch."
