Police Roundup

Mother faces charges

A 22-year-old Manchester woman was arrested Saturday after she left her 3-year-old son alone in her apartment Saturday night, police said. Lisa A. Martinick of 128 Eldridge St. was charged with risk of injury in the incident, police said. A neighbor reported to police Saturday that the youngster had been left alone in Martinick's third-floor apartment, police said. When police arrived, they found the boy in the bedroom wrapped in three blankets, with no fan or window open, police said. The child was hot and sweaty, and the apartment smelled of urine, police said. The child had some sores on his body and diaper rash, police said.

Man arrested in car thefts

A 32-year-old South Windsor man was arrested Monday on a warrant charging him with the theft of a 1988 Toyota pickup truck. William E. Nugent III of 17 Pine Knob Drive was charged with second-degree larceny, third-degree larceny by possession, and possession of a stolen vehicle. Nugent had answered an ad for a 1984 Toyota Supra for sale in Manchester on Aug. 18, 1988, according to police reports. He had identified himself to the seller as Jim McDermott, the seller said. Nugent returned on Saturday for a test drive, and then said he wanted his mechanic to look at the car. The seller agreed and met Nugent at Oldies But Goodies, 223 Center St. Aug. 23, police said. Nugent took the keys to the car from the seller and drove off, police said. The Toyota was found last September stripped of its parts in Willington, police said.

Man arrested in car thefts

At the time he took the Toyota, Nugent left a 1979 Buick Wildcat in the parking lot which turned out to be stolen from Middletown, police said. Nugent turned himself into police Monday and was released on a $5,000 non-surety bond and is scheduled to appear in court July 31.

Thoughts

Matthew 2:13-17. "Then cometh Jesus from Galilee to Jordan unto John, to be baptized of him. But John forbade him, saying, I have need to be baptized of thee, and comest thou to me? And Jesus answering said unto him, Suffer it to be so now; for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness." When one reads and studies that scripture, you could not help but wonder what was going through the mind of John the Baptist. Imagine the moment, here is our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ asking someone to baptize him. John did not want to do it because he felt unworthy, but Christ wanted John and John did not want to refuse the Lord.

Agreement to protect coast water

By Christopher Callahan
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Congressional leaders joined seven coastal state governors in an agreement to work together to develop federal and state laws to protect coastal waters.

"What we're seeing here is a first," said Connecticut Gov. William A. O'Neill. "This is a cohesive movement forward."

Maryland Gov. William Donald Schaefer called Monday's conference devoted to coastal issues "an historic meeting of governors and legislative leaders."

Senate Majority Leader George J. Mitchell, D-Maine, said the meeting was "an opportunity to develop a working partnership."

The governors and legislators signed a broad statement of principles that ranged from regional research and monitoring efforts to wetlands protections.

"We think it's very significant that we got started," said Mitchell, who defended the lack of specifics in the agreement. He said the meeting was "an opportunity to develop a working partnership."

The agreement calls for the creation of a coastal protection agency and for the development of a coastal protection fund. It also calls for the creation of a coastal protection fund.

FHA backs plan to rebuild road; permit action due

By Nancy Concelman
Manchester Herald

The Federal Highway Administration is backing the state Department of Transportation's plan to rebuild roads that widen Route 6 because a new expressway would be safer, an administration official said Monday.

The administration opposes a proposal by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to widen and upgrade the existing Route 6 because statistics show that more accidents would occur on an upgraded route, Paul Toussaint, assistant division administrator at the FHA's Connecticut Division said Monday.

The corps has asked the FHA for its opinion on the DOT's plan to relocate Route 6 and turn it into an 11.8-mile expressway from Bolton Notch to Windham and the corps' alternative plan to widen the existing route from two to four lanes, which would eliminate the need to fill more than 77 acres of wetlands.

"An upgraded Route 6 won't handle the traffic that is projected for the future," Toussaint said.

Meanwhile, the corps is expected to decide within the next couple of weeks whether to approve a wetlands permit for construction of the expressway, more than a year after public hearings were held on the application for the permit, a corps spokesman said today. A decision was due last March.

In a June 30 letter to Col. Daniel M. Wilson of the corps, FHA Connecticut Division Administrator James J. Barakos said that over 20 years there would be 8,830 accidents on an upgraded Route 6 compared to 2,300 accidents on a new expressway. Barakos said 500 more fatalities and disabling injuries would occur on an upgraded road. Toussaint said those are state DOT estimates.

The DOT's plan for the road have been vigorously opposed by some residents who live in the towns it will pass through and environmentalists, who say it will destroy nature.

Earlier this year, the federal Environmental Protection Agency approved a new policy saying the agency will seek a national goal of "no net loss" of wetlands. The agency has the power to veto permits approved by the corps.

The DOT has proposed filling in about 77 acres of wetlands and recreating 60 acres of wetlands in another area.

DOT officials have said they aren't sure what effect the policy will have on the expressway project. Barakos and Toussaint said they didn't want to guess what effect approval of the corps' alternate plan would have on federal funding.

"We haven't been asked that," Toussaint said.

Employees donate sick time to aid friend ill with cancer

By Maureen LeVitt
Manchester Herald

Although employees usually donate hours anonymously, one of Smith's co-workers came forward and relinquished more than 40 hours to her friend.

Jerry L. Spaulding of Vernon has worked beside Smith for a number of years. Avery said just this week. Spaulding donated eight hours so that Smith could undergo a special test for which she needed the day off.

When Annette Smith was diagnosed as having breast cancer in November, she had enough to worry about without wondering how much time she would have to be absent from her job at Manchester Memorial Hospital.

Surgery to remove a tumor and six months of chemotherapy have required more sick and vacation time than Smith could ever have hoped to accrue.

But thanks to the generosity of hospital employees, who have donated more than 80 hours of vacation time, Smith can concentrate on recovering without losing pay for being out of work.

According to Amy Avery, assistant director of public relations at the hospital, the idea to donate vacation time to needy employees was suggested by the employees themselves.

For five months now, the program has helped four employees whose illnesses have left them with no sick or vacation time. During that period, about 70 employees have anonymously donated hours they have accrued. Avery said.

Smith, 52, of South Windsor, has worked at the hospital for 13 years and said she has many friends and supporters there. She works in the hospital's linen department where linen is supplied for the operation room.

Smith said her husband, Winfred, and her five children have been behind her. She has been very open with them about the disease.

"They've really been through it all too," Smith said of her family. "I think people should know. It's a part of my life. It's nothing I like though."

Soil-sifting equipment OK'd; 2 subdivisions get approval

Additional catch basins must be put in front of lot 3 and the driveway lengthened to 15 feet.

Kreiberg said some residents complained at a previous hearing of water problems in the area that Pelletier submit manufacturing specifications or other data acceptable to the town planner and that the equipment meet noise level standards of town regulations.

Another condition of the approval is that a sediment basin measuring 30 feet by 30 feet be installed and maintained at a depth of 2 feet. A 10-foot-outlet that is riprapped must be attached to the basin.

In another matter, the commission voted 6 to 0 to approve the nine-lot Haynes Woods subdivision on 32.34 acres on Broad Way owned by Archie and Rose Haynes. Hicks also abstained on that vote.

FIRE VICTIM — Emergency personnel attend to man injured Monday in refueling accident at Kelly Air Force Base in Texas. One person was killed.

B-52 catches fire, kills 1

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A B-52 bomber caught fire on the ground while being refueled at Kelly Air Force Base, killing one person and injuring 11 others, officials said.

The cause of late Monday's accident was under investigation, said Lt. Col. Ed Cooke, a spokesman at the base here. The bomber was "very heavily damaged" in the accident, he said.

Names of the victims were being withheld pending notification of family members. All were civilian employees.

Six remained hospitalized early today in Wilford Hall Medical Center at nearby Lack-

Thatcher undertakes major cabinet shakeup

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has catapulted the most junior member of her cabinet, John Major, into the prestigious office of foreign secretary, making him a prime contender to succeed her.

The appointment Monday of Major, the 46-year-old son of a trades artist, was the boldest move in Mrs. Thatcher's biggest cabinet shake-up since she took office in 1979.

Worried about her Conservative Party government's sliding popularity, said Kenneth Baker, who was moved from education secretary to become chairman of the Conservative Party.

The previous chairman, Peter Brooke, who presided over the party's drubbing by socialists in elections for the European Parliament last month, was appointed to the Cabinet as Northern Ireland secretary.

The job in the strife-torn province is largely removed from party politics on mainland Britain.

Mrs. Thatcher fired two key ministers: Transport Secretary Paul Channon, the richest man in the country, and the former head of the oil industry, Lord Carron, on the same day.

Channon, an heir to the vast Guinness family brewing fortune and a member of the House of Lords, was also accused by critics of a lackluster performance during current strikes on British Rail and the London subway.

Other Cabinet members, Defense Secretary George Younger and Trade and Industry Secretary Lord Young, said they were resigning to resume business careers.

Shuttle fuel valve may hold up flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The planned early August launch of space shuttle Columbia on a secret defense mission is likely to be delayed at least a day because of a problem with a fuel valve, NASA officials report.

Engineers were conducting tests today to determine if the valve was stuck or if they were receiving a false reading because of the same problem.

At the other time, shuttle managers were beginning a two-day review of the readiness of all aspects of the mission. They planned to set a firm launch date on Wednesday.

Columbia had been scheduled to lift off July 31 with a classified payload, but minor technical problems have forced delays. NASA said last week that Aug. 7 would be the earliest possible launch date.

The valve problem was detected early Monday during the brief launch pad test firing of all three of Columbia's auxiliary power units. Radio data indicated one of two hydrazine fuel valves leading to APU No. 2 was stuck open when it should have been closed.

The APUs provide power for movable control surfaces such as wing flaps, the speed brake and the rudder.

NASA at first said the faulty unit would be replaced, a procedure that would delay the launch two or three days. But officials said later they were not certain the valve was stuck open and they would run some checks to determine what was wrong.

They said the tests will add a day to Columbia's launch processing schedule.

Maker recalls drugs

By Deborah Messer
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — A generic medication used to control high blood pressure is being recalled because samples were mislabeled in a government inspection.

Par Pharmaceutical Inc. of Spring Valley, N.Y., also is suspending the sale of two other drugs pending an investigation.

The action marks the second time this summer a drug company has acknowledged marketing a formulation of a product that was different from that approved by the Food and Drug Administration.

Par Pharmaceutical pulled its generic version of the anti-hypertensive drug Maxidol off the market Monday after telling the FDA that an employee switched a sample of the drug requested by the FDA with a sample from another batch of the drug.

The company also said it was investigating a possible misrepresentation involving its generic Orphenaginic Forte, a muscle relaxant, and is considering an FDA request that it be recalled.

Par has suspended sales of the generic muscle relaxant as well as those of its generic Valproic Acid, an anti-convulsant, which is being investigated.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce investigations subcommittee, and Rep. Thomas Bliley, R-Va., ranking Republican on the panel, said the disclosure shows that FDA's generic drug regulation is "dangerously lax."

"The problem is we can no longer be reasonably confident that the FDA is able to detect the entry of unsafe or ineffective generic drugs into the nation's pharmacies," said Dingell, whose panel has been investigating the agency's generic drug division.

Par said it had "no reason to believe that there are any adverse health or safety implications involved" in any of the three drugs it's reviewing, and has promised to cooperate with the FDA.

TAKEN AWAY — A flat bed truck Monday removes part of the fuselage of the DC-10 that crashed last week in Sioux City, Iowa. The truck took it to a hangar where officials will further inspect it.

Key engine parts still sought

SIoux City, Iowa (AP) — Investigators ordered another aerial search for key parts of United Flight 232's rear engine and planned to visit the General Electric Co. plant where the engine was made.

The team from the National Transportation Safety Board said they expected to wrap their work this week at the Sioux Gateway Airport, where the DC-10 crashed-landed last Wednesday after its rear engine blew apart.

Meanwhile, United Capt. Al Haynes, the pilot credited with keeping the jetliner aloft after most control had been lost, was scheduled to be released from the hospital and meet with reporters for the first time today.

The death toll from the crash rose to 111 on Monday. Of the 296 people on board, 185 survived, including 10 of the 11 crew members. More than 30 people remain hospitalized.

The investigation into the accident has been hampered because the rear engine, one of three on DC-10, blew apart over farms in northwest Iowa.

On Monday, teams searched a 16-square-mile section of corn and soybean fields about 60 miles away from the crash site in hopes of finding missing pieces of the engine.

Officials also used aircraft from the Nebraska Air National Guard to take infrared photographs of the area and asked farmers working their

House examines ability of IRS to police itself

WASHINGTON (AP) — A year-long probe of alleged misconduct by senior officials of the Internal Revenue Service raises serious questions about the agency's ability to correct wrongdoing by its own leaders, House investigators say.

Is it possible for the IRS to police itself internally at the senior official level? That's an area that really needs to be looked at," investigator Len Bernard, of the House Government Operations subcommittee on consumer affairs, said in advance of his testimony before the panel today.

Bernard noted that one of eight misconduct cases he and other subcommittee aides have been probing involved senior officials up to the level of deputy assistant commissioner.

Most attention has been focused on allegations that a former boss of the criminal investigation division in Los Angeles was offered a bribe by Guess Inc., a jeans manufacturer, to get an investigation of its rival, Jordache Enterprises. The IRS cleared that official, Ronald Saravon, last year.

Subcommittee investigators have checked several cases in which IRS employees who called attention to misconduct inside the agency were subsequently demoted or forced out.

The subcommittee, chaired by Rep. Doug Barnard, D-Ga., has also received testimony from IRS employees and the General Accounting Office.

The IRS has declined comment on the allegations, citing laws or high-level officials, we will refer it to the Justice Department," Kern said.

In addition, IRS inspectors automatically refer to the Treasury Department's inspector general any allegation of criminal wrongdoing by any of the 2,000 IRS high-level officials and executives.

In 1987, 88 IRS employees were convicted of crimes, including embezzlement, selling narcotics and accepting bribes, following investigations by the agency's inspectors.

The most highly publicized case of IRS wrongdoing in recent years was in the Philadelphia district office, where 14 people, including fashion designer Albert Heppen, were convicted as a result of a bribery investigation.

Effort to reduce deficit on track

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government remains on track to post a reduction in the budget deficit in 1989 even though the usual June surplus was smaller than a year ago.

The Treasury Department said Monday that revenues last month were up 9.2 percent from June 1988 to $108.5 billion, while spending rose 11.6 percent to $106.5 billion.

That combined to produce a $2.0 billion surplus, down 14.7 percent from June 1988.

The June surplus provides a break in the monthly flow of red ink because corporations and individuals make quarterly tax payments in the month. In May, the government reported a deficit of $25.4 billion after a record $46.57 billion surplus in April.

Analysts attributed the smaller surplus to a hike in spending caused by calendar fluke. Military pay, veterans benefits and other core supplements usually are paid at the start of the month. But because July 1 fell on a weekend, those payments were shifted into June, cutting what

Probers eye safety issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Special investigators are trying to determine how so many people walked away from last week's DC-10 crash in Iowa, hoping to find ways for more people to survive airline crashes.

"We want to know how injuries occurred, how people got out. We'll try to get people to remember everything they can," Ted Lopatkiewicz of the National Transportation Safety Board said Monday.

Members of the group, led by NTSB investigators, are interviewing hospitalized passengers in Sioux City and will send questionnaires to other survivors, Lopatkiewicz said.

The charges are unrelated to the misrepresentation of the company's triamterene and hydrochlorothiazide, which is its generic version of Maxidol, said Barbara Manners, Par vice president and general counsel.

Vitarine Pharmaceuticals of Springfield, Mass., N.Y., said last month that its employees had substituted samples of FDA-approved Dyazide for its own generic version of the drug to win government approval for its product.

Officials say 185 passengers and crew members survived the flight. Flight 232, en route from Denver to Philadelphia via Chicago, crashed Wednesday while making an emergency landing in Sioux City. The NTSB has not determined the cause of the crash, but reports say an engine explosion apparently knocked out flight steering mechanisms.

Among issues to be studied by investigators is the fact that several infants were traveling at no charge in their parents' arms, a common practice on domestic flights and whether child-restraint seats should be required. United said at least one infant was among the 111 dead.

Alaska upset with Exxon plans

VALDEZ, Alaska (AP) — State officials angrily reacted to Exxon's plan to pull all its oil spill cleanup forces out of Alaska by mid-September, saying crews should stay until the area is clean.

Meanwhile, the oil giant indicated the cost of cleaning up the nation's largest oil spill would total about $1.25 billion and was a major factor behind a plunge in its second quarter earnings.

In an internal memo released Monday, a top company official said the Sept. 15 pullout date was not negotiable.

"It's not enough to declare victory and go home," Gov. Steve Cowper said Monday. "Virtually all of the cleanup work has to be done by the beginning of the year. Exxon promised Alaskans that the company would stay until the job was done. I expect them to fulfill that promise."

But Exxon spokesman Henry Beathard said there was nothing new in the memo.

"We've been saying all along we would operate until about Sept. 15 when we have to shut down because of the weather," he said. "None of that has changed."

Otto Harrison, Exxon's general manager in Valdez, said in a memo to company officials dated July 19 that no winter cleanup operations will be conducted because of safety and operational reasons and the company's only commitment for next spring is to survey the shorelines.

"These are not negotiable points," he wrote in the memo, a copy of which was provided to The Associated Press.

"Our discussions with federal or state agencies is for the purpose of keeping them informed and is not requesting approval," Harrison wrote.

The memo was dated the day before Exxon President Bill Stevens testified before a Senate subcommittee and reluctantly committed the company to resuming operations next year if more work needs to be done.

A spokesman for Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan said Exxon's obligation to clean up the mess does not end in September.

"The secretary has stated all along that Exxon is fully liable and responsible for that accident and they have an obligation to ensure full mitigation of damages and to restore the area," said Steve Provant, on-scene oil spill coordinator for the Alaska Department of Environmental Conservation, said his agency would not wash off beaches and cause problems during the winter.

He also said it might be possible for Exxon crews to work until Oct. 1. Provant said this winter the state plans to monitor beaches, map the damage, test waters and fly over the area.

An army of 11,000 people, 1,000 vessels and more than 70 aircraft has been trying to clean beaches stained after the Exxon Valdez rammed Bligh Reef on March 24 and spilled about 11 million gallons of crude.

In releasing its earnings, Exxon said a provision for spill costs reduced its net income by $850 million in the second quarter.

The company said the provision includes $600 million already spent on the cleanup plus estimated future costs, but does not include the cost of any lawsuits. In addition, the company said it had covered more than $400 million would go toward the cleanup.

Exxon reported an 87 percent drop in net income to $166 million from $1.2 billion a year earlier.

Cowper said he had a plan for scaling back, as winter approaches. But he said "demobilization does not mean disappearance."

Surveys by the state and the Coast Guard indicate only about one-third of the cleanup work either has been completed or is in progress, the governor said.

But Beathard said, "We believe six months of winter storms and tidal action will remove most, if not all, of what's remaining."

Kennedy proposes expanding federal help to AIDS victims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward Kennedy, saying government response to AIDS should be expanded, is proposing legislation to ensure that victims of the disease get quality care.

People with AIDS deserve an opportunity to live as fully as they possibly can," Kennedy said today.

He was to spend the morning visiting AIDS treatment clinics and meeting privately with patients.

"Those who persist in thinking that this epidemic does not concern them must take note of these figures," Kennedy said, noting that the number of Americans diagnosed with AIDS recently surpassed 100,000.

The Massachusetts Democrat has been in the forefront of congressional efforts to increase anti-discrimination protections for AIDS victims and make funds available for expensive treatment. He said stronger anti-discrimination safeguards were his top priority.

The Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, which Kennedy chairs, is considering million. He cited a police station, town hall, and schools and sidewalks among them.

Smith said that, with a new town manager, the town should be able to budget better.

Smith criticized a town tax abatement of $9.5 million to developers of the Pavilions at Buckland Hills, as well as the construction of the lodge in the park.

He also said Democratic Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr. had assured him that the housing for the elderly on North Street would not cost taxpayers any money, something Smith said proved to be untrue.

And Smith said the directors pay no attention to what citizens say at public hearings.

Cassano said he is looking forward to working with Richard Sartor, the new town manager and to new challenges.

"There are a lot of challenges left and I still enjoy the challenge," Cassano said.

Cassano said his activities with the National League of Cities has helped the town in the past and will in the future.

Mother

but the baby has taught the Fortin's four other children about the responsibilities of having a child.

"She's (the baby) the joy of our life and so is Cheryl," said Anne Fortin.

"It's like having another child of our own, almost," said Edward Fortin.

While Fortin has left school, another Manchester High School student is trying to stay in school.

The 18-year-old student, who would not give her name, is expecting to deliver her child within the next few weeks.

The student, a junior during the last school year, said Manchester school officials have let her take special parenting program that will be offered at Rockville High School next school year.

Manchester High School officials said they do not offer a similar program, school officials said.

In the Rockville program, she will finish up her senior year and will also learn how to be a parent.

"I don't like to be a parent taking care of the baby, except for my children about sex, Stearn said.

"They're really not prepared emotionally to have a baby, she said.

"He doesn't want to be part of it," she said. "There's nobody else there that's going to be taking care of the baby, except for me. I'm scared, but I have a lot of confidence I can make it."

Manchester school officials admit they are frustrated when it comes to the problem of teenage pregnancy.

Richard A. Cormier, director of pupil personnel services and special education, said some girls are going to get pregnant no matter how much information or help school officials give.

School officials cannot stop a teen-ager who may be in love and wants to have sex, said Cormier.

Though birth control, sexual diseases and pregnancy are discussed in high school and junior high, Cormier said the number of pregnancies does not seem to go down.

Cormier added that school officials do not have an accurate count on the number of pregnant teens since some do not tell school officials or have abortions.

"We are providing the information," Cormier said. "I'm not sure if it's paying off," he said.

Wright said the number of pregnant students does not seem to go down because many students do not heed the information given because they think they're not going to get pregnant.

Barbara Quinby, vice principal of Manchester High School, said she and the school nurse, Gerry Hoyt, and Wright try to keep pregnant students in school. The students' parents are informed, and a meeting is then set up between school officials, the parents and students, she said.

School officials also make sure the student has seen a doctor, she said.

Students take a health course in eighth grade where they learn about birth control, said Quinby.

Also, family planning is discussed in junior high home economics courses, sex education is a topic in 10th-grade biology and there is a parenting course for seniors, she said.

In addition to the courses taken in school, the students' parents are informed, and a meeting is then set up between school officials, the parents and students, she said.

School officials also make sure the student has seen a doctor, she said.

Parker, 17, has an infant boy named Scott. Though she is not married to her boyfriend, Parker says he has been supportive of the baby and that they may be married in the future.

Parker said she considers herself lucky since she's received the support of her family and her boyfriend's family. She said it is difficult for a pregnant teen-ager to make it in today's world without family support.

"I thought I was one of the lucky ones," she said. "I got support from both families."

Farker said she is trying hard to stay in school. Coventry High School officials have enrolled her in the Young Parents Program at Wintham Hospital, a program similar to the one in Rockville.

"I didn't want to quit at all," she said. "I wanted to finish and someday go to college."

Though Parker said she is not sorry about having Scott, she warns others not to follow in her footsteps. She has brought her baby to school to talk to other students about motherhood and its consequences.

"I always wished I could have waited, but I don't regret having him," Parker said. "I wouldn't advise anyone to go out and get pregnant. We (mothers) can't run away. It gets tiring. You have to do everything by him."

The Shoe fit perfectly on a horse

When you think of historic race horses of the past, mounts who have meant much to the game, you think immediately of Man O'War, Swaps, Secretariat, Count Fleet — and, of course, Shafer V.

Shafer V? A no-count $3000 claimer, a lifetime also-ran, candidate for a glue pot from the word go?

Of course. Oh, Shafer V never won the Kentucky Derby, Preakness or Belmont, she hardly ever got a colt, but on April 9, 1949, she won one of the most important races in the annals of the turf — Willie Shoemaker's first race.

No bells went off; the paces didn't rush to the winners' circle. As a matter of fact, the stewards called the trainer on the carpet. "What'd you put that boy on that horse for? He almost got him beat!" they accused. "Almost got him beat. He won by three lengths," shot back trainer George Reeves. "But he didn't persevere with him. He just sat still," grumbled the stewards. "Maybe that's the way to ride a horse," suggested George Reeves.

It certainly was. That was 40,000 races ago for that rider, $125,000,000 ago, 8,000 winners ago.

If I were a race horse today, I would be very melancholy. Willie Shoemaker is retiring. He is on his farewell tour. Horses are losing one of their best friends.

Racing is losing its greatest champion. Willie Shoemaker on a horse, is Babe Ruth at the bat. O. J. Simpson with the football, Hogan on a fairway, Jack Nicklaus on a green, Horowitz at the piano, Caruso at the Met. He was a work of art. Tracy playing a priest, Hepburn playing a schoolmarm.

Nobody ever rode a horse with the skill and grace of Bill Shoemaker. The worst roguer on the track turned into swans when he got on them. It wasn't a race, it was a romance. A love affair. Shoe didn't ride a horse, he joined him. Most riders treat horses as if they were guards in slave labor camps. Shoe treated them as if he were asking them to dance.

The figures are staggering. Some years, Shoe won 30 percent of his races, others a mere 28 or so. He won 485 races in 1953 or 29 percent of those he climbed on. He won more than 8,000 in his career but he finished second more than 6,000 and third more than 5,000. Those figures are as tall as DIMaggio's 56-game hitting streak or Bob Beaman's 29-foot 2-inch long jump.

They wrote poems about Earl Sande and the most races he ever won in a year was 122. They said Laverne Foyt sat a horse better than any man since Geromino but he won 143 races his best year. Of course, there was less racing those years. Earl Sande won 33 percent of his races one year — but when the modern era broke, Shoemaker rode against the Eddie Arcaras, Ted Atkinson, Johnny Longdens, Braulio Boezas, Hartacks. He beat the best of them. Crack Eastern riders used to come out in his early career to get in on the easy money in California. Shoemaker sent them home talking to themselves. "They ought to call that place 'Shoemaker Park,'" fumed one, jetting home from Hollywood to Aqueduct.

He rode in 26 Kentucky Derbies, 11 Preaknesses and 11 Belmonts. He won four Derbies, two Preaknesses and five Belmonts. It would have been more but Shoemaker had one flaw as a rider — loyalty. In those days (it's no longer true), it was customary for California owners to overestimate their stock, to ship some local favorite, usually a Cal-bred who could run in the sunshine and dry weather who would need a cab to get to the track. Shoemaker would ride their rocking horses. Shoe would sigh and agree.

I don't believe there has ever been a case of Bill Shoemaker lodging a foul claim against a competitor. Bill gives new meaning to the word "stoic." He could make a cigar store Indian look like a nervous wreck. It probably has to do with his own childhood. Born blue and premature, his crib a shoe box. Shoe was so silent and withdrawn they didn't know he could talk at all till he was 12. In 1921 in Fabens, Tex., there wasn't much to talk about. Shoemaker never did become what you would call loquacious. He was always one of those guys who would make you feel like you were babbling if you asked what time it was. He made Gary Cooper look noisy.

But he could communicate with horses. Most riders get horses to run out of fear. For Shoemaker they seemed to do it out of love. He was on a horse as soon as he could sit up. He went right from the shoe box to horseback.

He could all but talk to horses. Rain moves some horses up, post position moves others. But Shoemaker moved up every horse he ever got on. Seven-to-one shots went off at 7-5 when Shoe was on — because the better knew they were automatically become three-to-seven lengths better.

He thinks Spectacular Bid was the best horse he ever got aboard. Well, he's entitled to his opinion, but the vote here goes to the great golden chestnut Swaps. The image fixed in most minds is of the '55 Derby. Swaps was moving easily down the stretch when suddenly the powerful Nashua, the 6-5 favorite, with the confident Arcaro on his back began to take dead aim on the California upstart.

Nashua drew up alongside — and suddenly Swaps went into gear. "Swooosh went Swaps." Arcaro was later to say as his horse fell back beaten by a length and a half. So far as California racing was concerned, it was over. See THE SHOE, page 13

American All-Stars march on to account for their runs. Schultz, who collected two hits and drove in three runs, singled home Jimmy Knox in the bottom of the first to narrow the gap to 4-1.

Manchester tied the game at 4-4 with three runs in the second. Michelle Alberts, Brian Loomis and Chris Smith each scored a run in the frame. Schultz knocked in the tying run on a fielder's choice. Mike Carr was thrown out at third on the play, but not before Smith had scored.

In the third, Bolton regained the lead with two runs largely due to five walks issued by Schultz. Manchester retaliated again with five big runs in the bottom of the third. Bryan Jaworski and Jonathan Stanizzi opened the inning with back-to-back singles with the former scoring. Stanizzi came home on a wild pitch to tie the game at 6-6. After walks to Jeff Czaja and Brian Loomis, Cory Silver replaced Schultz on the mound.

Smith delivered an RBI-single to left field scoring Czaja with the go-ahead run. Schultz added an RBI when he doubled to deep left field to make it 9-6.

"I thought that was gone," Mase said of Schultz' double. "They stayed in the game, fought it out and won the game. I think we were a little flat going into the game. But we started catching the ball and doing the right things with it. They're doing very well."

Czaja was 2-for-2 for Manchester. Starring defensively for Manchester were Chris O'Hara and Alberts with 338 votes for election.

Bench got 84.4 percent and Yastrzemski 94.63. Only Ty Cobb, 98.2 percent, and Hank Aaron, 97.9, received higher percentages than Bench.

"Joe Morgan was the best second baseman I ever saw," said Bench, who played 11 seasons in Cincinnati's World Series championship teams in 1975 and 1976.

Morgan, a two-time MVP, played 22 years and hit .271 with 288 homers, 1,134 RBIs and 2,518 hits. He also had 689 stolen bases and walked 1,865 times.

Along with Bench, he was a field general of the "Big Red Machine" of the Cincinnati Reds of the Baltimore Orioles. Palmer had a 268-152 record, including four consecutive 20-victory seasons from 1975-1978. He had a lifetime earned-run average of 2.86 and 53 shutouts.

"I'd be surprised if Jim Palmer isn't elected the first time," Yastrzemski said.

In this year's balloting, right-hander Gaylord Perry, winner of 314 games, finished third with 304 votes and missed election by 32 votes.

Jim Bunning, who missed election by four votes in 1988, was 53 votes shy this time. Ferguson Jenkins was fifth with 234 votes.

"I'm sorry Perry and Ferguson Jenkins didn't make it," Yastrzemski said. "But I'm sure they will." Perry, 314-265, also had 3,334 strikeouts. The combination of 309 victories and 3,000 strikeouts will make it hard to keep him out.

The argument against Perry is his admitted use of the spitter, which might have cost him some votes the first time.

Jenkins was 294-226 with 3,192 strikeouts in 19 seasons. While a member of the Chicago Cubs, he was a 20-game winner for six consecutive seasons. Bunning was 224-184 with a 3.27 ERA, 2,885 strikeouts and no-hitters in both leagues. But his time is running out with only two years of eligibility left.

In 1991, Rollie Fingers, the career saves leader with 341, and seven-time AL batting champ Red Carew figure to make it on the first ballot.

SCORES — Manchester American All-Star Brian Loomis slides across the plate with a run in the second inning of Monday night's District Eight clash at Waddell Field. Bolton pitcher Max Schardt covers on the play. Loomis scored on a wild pitch. The Americans won, 9-7.

had decided to settle the definition issue, rather than sending it to the General Assembly to decide.

She said the definition being adopted was narrower than the traditional meaning of the word "crucial."

"Both parties agree that if 'especially cruel' has any meaning in the capital felony context, that meaning must include the intentional infliction of extreme pain or torture above and beyond that necessarily accompanying the underlying killing," she wrote.

"We agree."

In a strongly worded dissent, Associate Justice Robert D. Glass essentially agreed with Heiman that the statute was too vague and argued that the definition should be left up to the Legislature.

"This court should not ... take upon itself the burden of specifying the precise variety of conduct that may give rise to a capital sentence," Glass wrote. "That decision is a political decision best left to politicians."

The call came while Bloch's telephone was tapped by U.S. agents but before the FBI first tried to interview him on June 22, the network said.

Bloch is refusing through an attorney to be questioned by the FBI, but submitted to a brief interview by State Department security officers early in the investigation, according to a government source who, like others providing details on the case, spoke only on condition of anonymity.

Counterintelligence experts said even if Bloch were a spy, it was too soon to know what secrets he compromised.

But they said the damage could be far different than that inflicted in other recent spy cases, such as those of the John Walker ring in the Navy or National Security Agency technician Ronald Pelton. They were low-ranking American officials who compromised coding equipment and spying techniques that are very costly to replace.

Harvey really digs in in relief for Angels

AL Roundup

By The Associated Press

Bryan Harvey really shined in the first showdown between American League West leaders California and Oakland.

WINNING RUN — California's Jack Howell, right, is congratulated by third base coach Moose Stubing after his homer in the eighth inning that gave the Angels a 5-4 win over the Oakland A's Monday night.

Harvey came in to protect a 5-4 lead with two outs in the eighth inning Monday night, got Dave Henderson on a flyout, and then caught Jose Canseco, Tony Phillips and pinch-hitter Ron Hassey looking at third strike for balls in the ninth, gaining his 13th save.

Cowboys' camp won't be the same

By Denne H. Freeman
The Associated Press

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. — The Dallas Cowboys' training camp under Jimmy Johnson is going to be drastically different than it was for 29 years under Tom Landry.

That fact was dramatically underscored on the first day of practice Monday when the Cowboys worked in full pads and helmets and concluded the session with a "nutcracker" drill.

"Let's see what you got," Johnson shouted as the running backs crashed between the tackles. "Get the job done. I don't care how you get it done, but get it done."

In past years under Landry, the Cowboys worked slowly into contact after several days in shorts. Landry would stand in the middle of the field with a bullhorn directing the action.

Johnson was in the face of his players from the start, with praise and criticism. He alternately dashed from offense to defense, repeating the phrase "make the most of your opportunities."

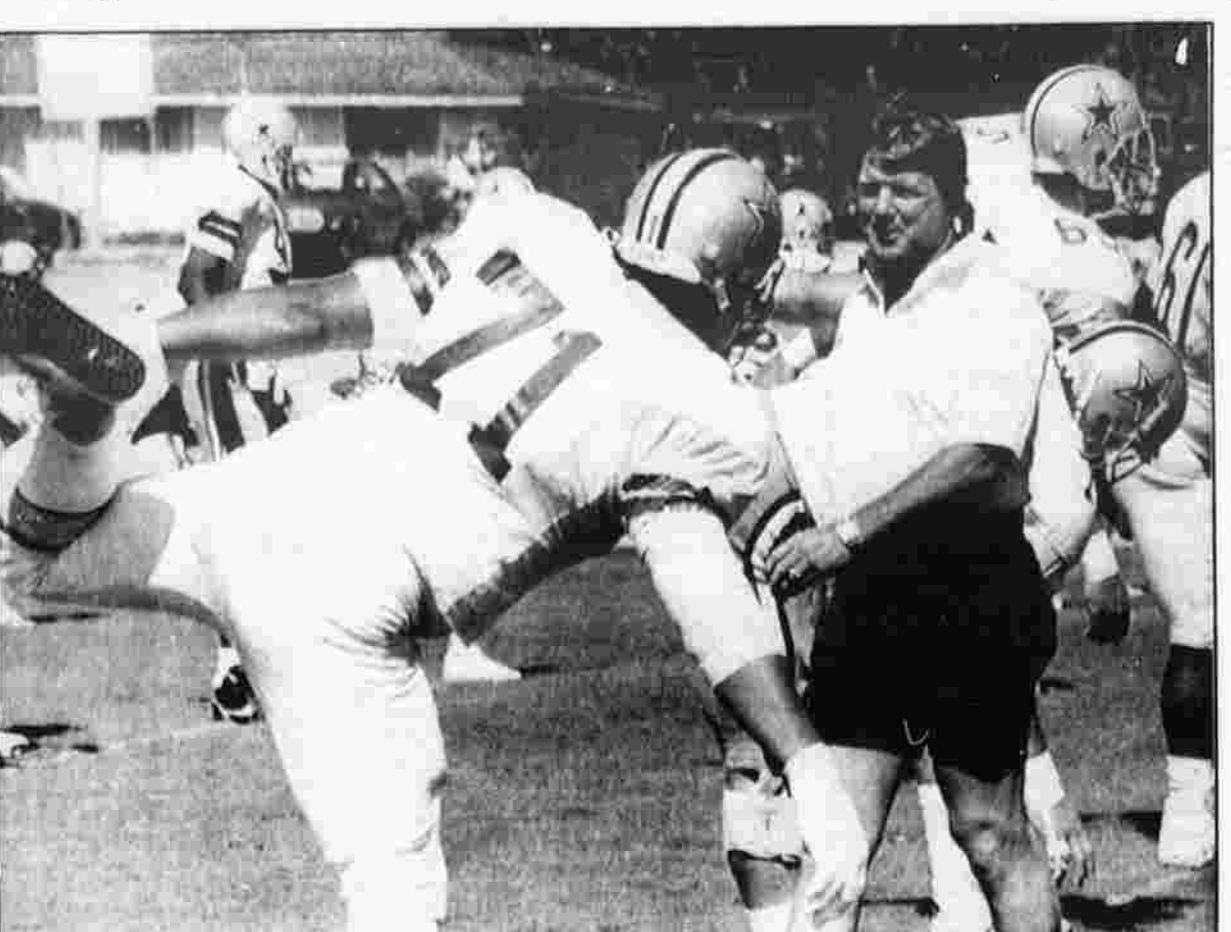

At one point, wide receiver Everett Gattuso dropped a pass, and Johnson was on him in a second.

"Everett, you're thinking more about getting hit than you are catching the football. Concentrate on the catch. Don't worry about the hit."

Johnson huddled the team around him after the hitting session.

"For every one of you, there is a sense of urgency," Johnson said. "For us as a team, we don't have time for you to screw up. Don't be satisfied unless you get the job done."

Johnson said it was "fun" to get on the field in pads after three mini-camps in shorts.

NEW BOSS — Dallas Cowboys head coach Jimmy Johnson talks with veteran tackle Mark Tuinei (71) during the first workout of summer camp at Thousand Oaks, Calif., Monday afternoon.

Players already know what awaits them: Call it "Camp Contact."

"It's going to be harder than hell," offensive guard Steve Walsh said. "It's going to be rough. We know what to expect because we went through it in mini-camp."

Wide receiver Michael Irvin, who played under Johnson at Miami, said Johnson "is going to pour it on us. Mr. J can be tough."

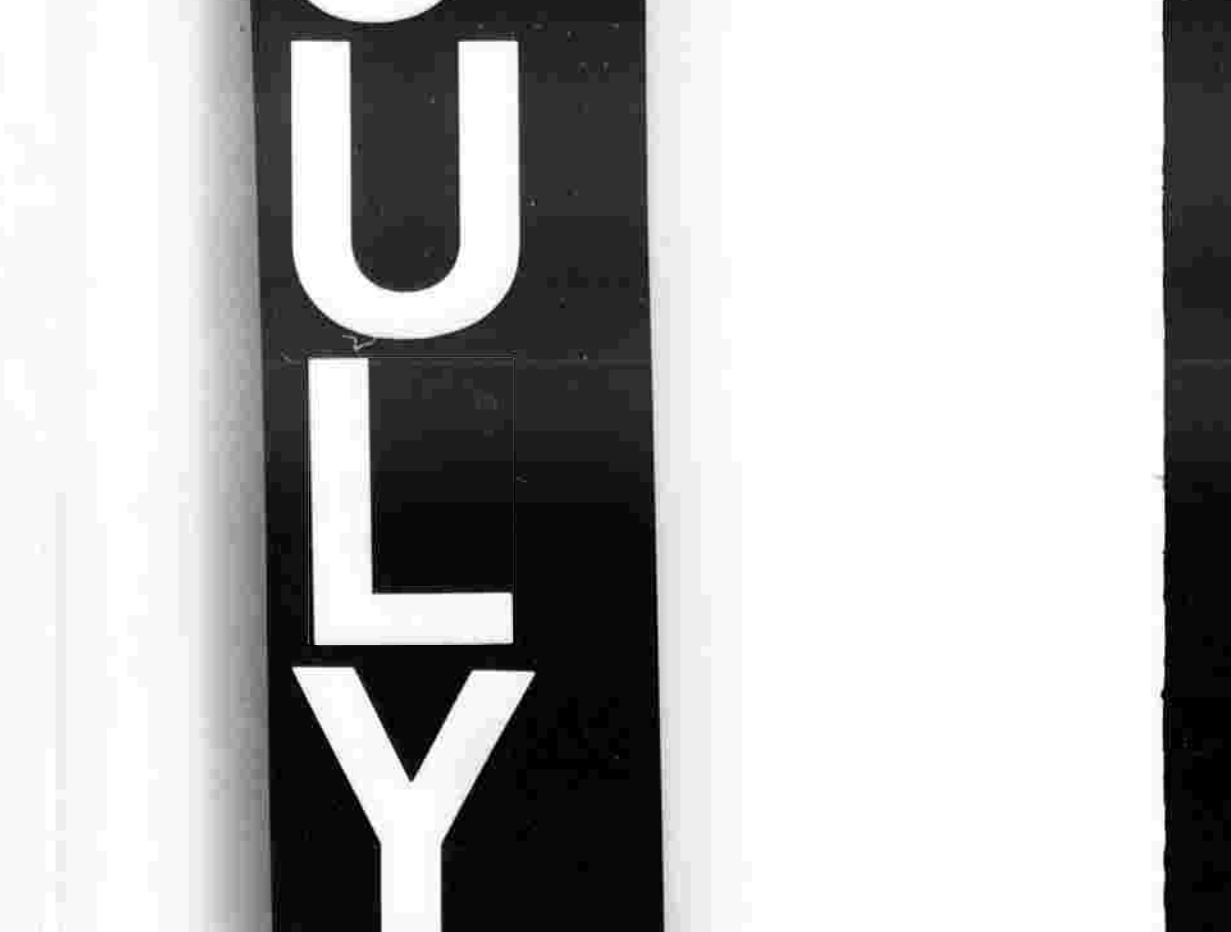

Owner Jerry Jones is expected to be in camp on Wednesday for the clash with the Raiders.

"Jerry didn't want to miss it," Johnson said. "Jones was still talking contact to quarterback Steve Walsh, the No. 1 pick in the NFL's supplemental draft."

Johnson said Walsh, whom he coached in college at Miami, wouldn't be in camp until he had a contract. Walsh is seeking a contract similar to the $11.87 million which top draft pick Troy Aikman received.

Husband won't stop seeing woman

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in our early 60s. About a year ago, I found out my husband was seeing a younger woman. He said there was nothing serious between them and he promised he wouldn't see her again, so I forgave him.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Since then, I learned that he had never stopped seeing her. In fact, he loaned her a large amount of money. He still insists that she loves me and this woman means nothing to him.

Should I confront the woman and tell her that I am aware of what is going on between them and demand that she stays out of our lives?

HURTING IN N.C.

OUR FASCINATING EARTH by Phil Bett, Ph.D.

DEAR ABBY: Now that it costs 25 cents to mail a letter, my husband and I have received many hand-delivered invitations and thank-you notes from people trying to save a little money on postage. We live in a small town, so it's easy to drive or walk over. I have always thought this was in rather poor taste, but at least the person who did the inviting and thanking did the delivering.

DEAR ABBY: A 14-year-old girl asked: "Can a girl get pregnant when she does it with a guy for the first time?" You correctly replied, "Yes," but you should have added: "She can also get syphilis, gonorrhea, herpes, and a host of other sexually transmitted diseases."

A JACKSONVILLE, FLA., PHYSICIAN

DEAR PHYSICIAN: Thank you for important addition.

DEAR ABBY: I agree with you. And if you accepted the thank-you note to deliver to your friend, then deliver it — if you should happen to run into her.

DISGUSTED IN TEXAS

Rapper tells it straight

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Rap performer Chuck D. of Public Enemy says rappers are king to some youths because they tell it like it is.

"You gotta understand, Public Enemy and rap music are dispatchers of information," he said Sunday at the Indiana Black Expo festival.

Chuck D. told an Expo audience that the country's social structure keeps blacks and whites apart, and rap music is shocking the white community because rappers have become heroes to some white children.

Princes Hemphill of the Chicago-based Coast to Coast Concerts said some investors are afraid of rap concerts because violence marred several performances.

Concerns also were voiced about violent rap lyrics and explicit sexual imagery in rap videos.

J.R. against new 'bad girl'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — J.R. Ewing will have a new "bad girl" to contend with this season: blond actress Kimberly Foster, who will play a vixen on "Dallas."

Foster said she screamed in delight when told she had the part on the CBS television show.

"It's scary going into a show that's been going for 12 years. It's kind of like I've been invited to a really big party where you don't know any of the guests," said Foster, who will be relatively new to prime-time audiences.

Other newcomers to the long-running series: Sasha Mitchell as a well-built man who may be J.R.'s son; and Elizabeth Taylor's son Michael Wilding as a powerful art gallery owner.

Book predicts coming collapse of housing prices

By John Cunniff
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — One of the popular participant sports of economic and financial researchers is terrorizing homeowners with tales about a coming price collapse.

Some reports arise out of Wall Street, which tends to think of housing as a competitor of stocks and bonds for the investor's dollar. Some originate in academe, some in the popular press and in publishing houses.

A few years ago a well publicized book forecast an imminent collapse in housing prices. It didn't happen, at least to an extent discernible in the usual statistics. But even after the dreariness had passed, the book sold.

The reason is obvious: The biggest investment of most people is the home in which they live. It is a roof over their head, a symbol of participation in economic growth, a savings account, a treasure, a pension. It is to be guarded.

The latest assault on the senses of homeowners, "The Baby Boom, The Baby Bust, and the Housing Market," carries the imprimatur of the National Bureau of Economic Research in Cambridge, Mass., highly esteemed by economists.

Authors Greg Mankiw and David Weil conclude that the real price of housing, inflation excluded, could decline by 3 percent a year over the next 20 years, for a total decline of as much as 47 percent by the year 2007.

They reason that demand will be falling off sharply, leaving a relative overcapacity, a reversal of the more customary situation in which there is growing demand and sometimes insufficient supply.

Why should demand fall? They say the baby boomers, born after World War II — 4.3 million babies were born at the peak in 1957 — will be replaced by the baby busters. At the trough of the baby bust in 1973 only 3.14 million babies were born.

The latest came the birth boom, followed in the late 1970s by rising housing sales. Now, say the authors, the birth bust will undermine housing demand in the 1990s and into the next century. The supply-demand ratio will be changed.

Will it happen? Obviously, the authors believe so. In the housing industry, however, it is being accepted as but another in a long series of threats, most of which have never developed full profiles.

A 47 percent decline in housing prices, points out critic Isaac Megolough, would produce what many would consider a dubious possibility if not an absurdity, that is a market of houses priced below the cost of production.

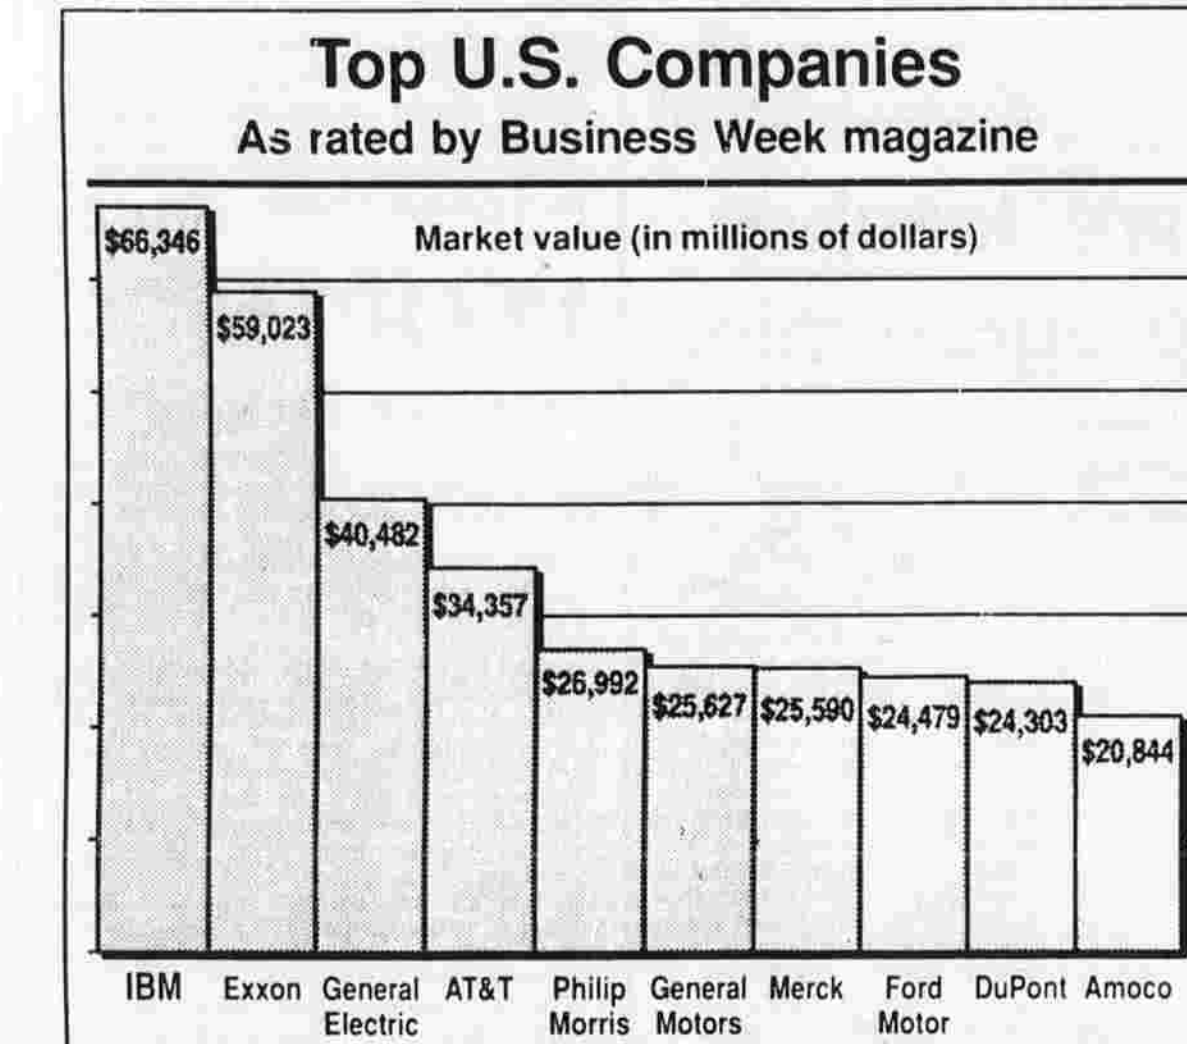

Megolough, senior housing policy analyst for Housing Economics, a National Association of Home Builders publication, would not deny that prices might fall for a time in some markets. But he and colleagues foresee no plunge. Gopal Ahluwalia, research director for the publication, points out that in some markets, as in Houston earlier in this decade, housing prices can fall when the entire economy falters. It happened in the Midwest too, in the "rust belt" days of the 1970s. But housing prices there have largely recovered.

Housing people like to say that housing prices are protected, to some immeasurable extent, because land cannot be reproduced on a large scale. In some communities, in fact, land is assessed higher than the houses on it.

In fact, there have always been slow periods in housing, followed and preceded by active periods. Price increases of the magnitude that occurred in the past 15 years aren't likely, as the Home Builders see it, but they view a collapse as far less likely.

A home of your own, says Ahluwalia, is still the very best hedge you can have against inflation.

Time, Warner merger uphed; media company will be largest

By Theresa Humphrey
The Associated Press

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Time Inc. took control of Warner Communications and began forming the world's largest media and entertainment concern after a court refused a final bid by Paramount Communications Inc. to block the merger.

A three-judge panel of the Delaware Supreme Court on Monday upheld a ruling that denied an injunction sought by Paramount to stop Time's $14 billion offer for Warner. The ruling affirmed the right of corporate directors to decide the course of their companies in the face of hostile bids.

After the ruling, Paramount abandoned its $200-a-share, $12.2

bilion hostile takeover offer for Time. Within hours, Time said it had received 100 million shares of Warner at the close of its tender offer, raising Time's stake to 58 percent.

"The name of the game is going to be growth, both in the U.S. and abroad," Nicholas J. Nicholas Jr., president of the new Time Warner Inc., said, according to The Wall Street Journal today.

"The basic operating premise is that we are going to build the company and grow the cash billion offer for Warner. The ruling affirmed the right of corporate directors to decide the course of their companies in the face of hostile bids.

After the ruling, Paramount abandoned its $200-a-share, $12.2

moves when they are in the best interests of Paramount Communications shareholders," Chairman Martin Davis said.

The Justice's ruling was widely expected and Time's stock dropped the largest amount in the Exchange during the court arguments that were televised live in Delaware.

"Time closed down $1 at $137.50 a share. The Justice's ruling was widely expected and Time's stock dropped the largest amount in the Exchange during the court arguments that were televised live in Delaware.

After more than two hours of arguments, the justices upheld a ruling that said the proposed Time-Warner merger was the result of long-range planning, and the Justice's ruling was widely expected and Time's stock dropped the largest amount in the Exchange during the court arguments that were televised live in Delaware.

Under its $70-a-share offer, Time was to purchase slightly more than half of Warner's stock and exchange cash and securities valued at $70 a share for the rest. Time said it would begin paying for the tendered shares on July 31.

The merger is expected to take several months to complete. The Chancery judge noted that Time and Warner first announced merger plans in March, three months before Paramount made its bid.

Faramount contended that Time effectively placed itself up for sale by announcing plans to merge with Warner and, therefore, should have been forced to consider Paramount's offer.

"We don't question that Time-Warner is a good deal," Paramount lawyer Melvin Cantor told the high court, but he contended Time shareholders should have been allowed to vote on whether Paramount was offering a better deal in the short term.

Michael Klein, an attorney for major Time shareholders, would make a board hostage "to anyone who walked in with a bid," regardless of a company's long-range plans.

Klein said the judge's decision tilted the balance in favor of Paramount's offer and would allow a long-term plan "to ward off potential takeover bids.

New technology is tested Could help lessen air pollution

By Tom Sharp

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Two experimental generating systems being developed in coal country could be the answers to President Bush's call for a 50-percent cut in sulfur dioxide emissions by the turn of the century.

The Tennessee Valley Authority is working on a process called Atmospheric Fluidized Bed Combustion, or AFBC, while the University of Tennessee State Institute is focusing on technology called magnetohydrodynamics, MHD.

AFBC works by mixing limestone into the coal that is burned as fuel. The calcium in the limestone mixes with sulfur in the coal to form calcium sulfate, a heavier material that settles and can be drained off the bottom.

MHD burns finely ground coal at very high temperatures, adds a conductive agent to the resulting tion control equipment on it," said Arnold Manaker, a TVA engineer. "It's like an automobile, and the still-hot gas can be run through a conventional boiler to generate more power."

"But it is cleaner. The pilot plant burns coal with 4 percent sulfur and has emissions equivalent to a regular plant using 1 percent sulfur coal, which costs nearly twice as much, he said.

AFBC is relatively expensive to install, however. Manaker said it would cost about $400 to $500 per kilowatt of generating capacity, compared to $100 to $200 per kilowatt for scrubbers, which inject a watery mixture of ground limestone and water into the exhaust gases to neutralize the acids.

Retrofiting with MHD would cost about $750 to $1,500 per kilowatt, said Muehlhauser.

TVA ran a 20 megawatt pilot plant using AFBC from 1985 until last year, testing it for 20,000 hours. In October, it opened a commercial-scale generator at its Shawnee plant near Paducah, Ky.

"It is not quite as efficient as a conventional plant with no pollution control equipment on it," said Arnold Manaker, a TVA engineer. "It's like an automobile, and the still-hot gas can be run through a conventional boiler to generate more power."
