Police and fire officials are still trying to determine why the Eighth Utilities District Fire Department's platform tower truck rolled into three automobiles Saturday sending a local couple to the hospital, police said. The 20-year-old Center Street woman said she was in a car with a 18-year-old friend when a car containing four girls cut in front of the car and forced them to stop, police said. The four girls exited the car and approached the woman in the passenger seat and began assaulting her, police said. The woman also was dragged from the car, police said. Her friend eventually was able to pull the woman inside the car, police said. The woman also was registered to the teen-ager, police said. The teen-ager was released on $250 bond and is scheduled to appear in court July 31.

Thoughts

John 1:1 says, "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God and the Word was God." As John begins his gospel to tell us about Jesus, it is no accident that he uses the first three words which begin Genesis, the first book of the Bible. "In the beginning" is repeated for us as our reminder of who Jesus claims to be through the Gospel of John: The Divine Son, already existing with God in the closest association as the world began. He is the divine Word that comes to us to proclaim the Father's purpose for mankind. "John intends that the whole of his gospel be read in the context of this verse," says Dr. F. P. Bruce. The principality became vacant when Jacob Lades III announced in the spring that he would resign in July to take a job as a superintendent of schools in Montville, a town about 7 miles north of New London along the Thames River. The search committee for the Manchester High School position includes parents, Manchester Education Association representatives, Board of Education members, and school officials.

Principal field is down to 11

By Rick Santos
Manchester Herald

A search committee has chosen 11 semifinalists from a field of more than 80 candidates for the Manchester High School principal position, the chairwoman of the search committee said Tuesday. Susan Perkins said the names of the 11 semifinalists and three backups would not be released nor would any candidates names be released during the selection process. However, she did say that one of the 11 semifinalists is someone already working in the Manchester school system. Other semifinalists chosen by the eight-member committee are from Connecticut and other parts of the country, Perkins said. "If things fall together, we expect to interview all of the candidates sometime during the first week of August," she said. After the interviews, the committee expects to have the search narrowed to about three finalists by the end of August, Perkins said. School Superintendent James P. Kennedy consulted with the remaining applicants and visit their schools to watch them work. All of the candidates currently work in school administration, she said. Perkins will choose the principal, and the Board of Education must decide whether or not to approve the hiring. The position would be filled by Oct. 1, she said. "We're moving with cautious speed," Perkins said. Although Perkins said she is confident one of the present candidates will be hired, she said. "Unless we find exactly what we're looking for, we'll go out and look again. It's a very important position to fill in our school system." The search committee was concerned earlier this summer about the availability of qualified applicants because the summer did not begin until June, she said. Members thought many candidates would already have had commitments to work elsewhere. "It's interesting to know that we've had a wide variety to choose from," Perkins said. To be considered for the position, an applicant must have secondary teaching experience, a master's degree in education, and certification or the ability to be certified, as a Connecticut school administrator. Some of the other qualifications include a knowledge of administrative practices applicable to secondary schools, an understanding of modern curriculum trends with the will to make changes when they are needed, the ability to command the respect of the staff, and the ability to communicate and work with student, parent, and school governing groups. A doctorate degree and experience as a school administrator are desired but not required. The starting salary for the position will range from $57,050 to $72,940 depending upon the candidates' education and experience, school officials have said. Until the post is filled, Wilson E. Deakin, the assistant superintendent for personnel and administration, will act as principal. The principality became vacant when Jacob Lades III announced in the spring that he would resign in July to take a job as a superintendent of schools in Montville, a town about 7 miles north of New London along the Thames River. The search committee for the Manchester High School position includes parents, Manchester Education Association representatives, Board of Education members, and school officials.

PICKING CANDIDATES — Deborah Walsh, chairwoman of the Coventry Democratic Town Committee, talks to prospective candidates for town office during a meeting in the Town Office Building Tuesday. The committee picked its slate of candidates for November's election Tuesday.

Democrats pick candidates for Coventry town elections

By Jacqueline Bennett
Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — The Democratic Town Committee endorsed a full slate of candidates at a caucus Tuesday night to run in the November election. "We want to carry on our commitment to move forward," Town Council member Peter Halvorson told about 40 committee members who attended. Incumbents who chose not to run for re-election are council members Rose Fowler, Elizabeth Paterson and Richard Paton and Board of Education Chairman Lawrence Mickel. "It's time for me to do other things. I have served and I feel I have done a lot," said Fowler. Paterson, Paton and Mickel did not attend the caucus, but they have said they would like to put more time into their personal lives, their families, and work. Judy Halvorson welcomed the new faces. "I think it's important to have some new blood coming in. Incumbents are also important for continuity," she said. New candidates for the Town Council are Lawrence Golden, a Hartford attorney, Carol Hazekamp, a hospital sales representative for Shekling Corp., and Fred Johnson, a hydrologist for United Technology Corp. Lewis is a real estate administrator for a Vernon law firm and Peter Halvorson is a professor of geography at the University of Connecticut. Hazekamp said, "I want to be a fresh voice for new residents in town." Lewis says important goals for the next council will be to continue to work to update the town Master Plan of Development and implementing a Solid Waste Management and Recycling Program in Coventry. Other incumbents on the Board of Education running again include Patrick Flaherty, a research officer for Connecticut National Bank and Kathleen Ryan, a teacher at Howell Cheney Regional Technical School in Manchester. The new candidate, Paul Manzone, is a guidance director for Windham Regional Technical School. Judy Halvorson is an elementary school teacher in Chaplin. Ryan and Flaherty said it is an exciting time to serve on the board with a new superintendent of schools and a business manager soon to be hired. "This is a time of great transition. It is important to keep continuity so it is important the Democrats win," Flaherty said. Candidates for the Board of Tax Review are incumbents Richard Giggiey and Stanley McMillen. Running for the Zoning Board of Appeals are three incumbents, Francher Demers, Joseph Fowler, and John Hazekamp. Running as alternates for the Zoning Board of Appeals are two new candidates, Donald Ferry and William McDougall. Halvorson was appointed to the council to fill a vacancy. He noted this is the first time he will be running for an elected office, adding humorously, "I plan to ride Judy's coattails with her name recognition to the greatest degree possible."

Democrats will name slate tonight

Democratic Town Chairman Theodore R. Cummings said he thinks the Democratic Town Committee will approve the slate of candidates tonight to be presented by the party's nominating committee and that there will be no party primary. Cummings said Tuesday the party's nominating committee has done its job "quietly and thoroughly." He added he expects the town committee to approve its recommendations. The major offices to be filled in the November election are posts on the Board of Directors and the Board of Education. Four incumbent Democratic town directors are seeking re-election and are expected to win town committee endorsement. They are Mayor Peter F. DiRosa Jr., Stephen T. Cassano, James F. Fogarty, and Mary Ann Handley. Two others who have said publicly that they want the nomination are Josh M. Howroyd and Joyce G. Epstein. The town committee can nominate six candidates for the school board, unless the choices are challenged they become the party-endorsed candidates. Incumbent Board of Education members who are seeking re-election are Susan Perkins and Terry A. Bogl. Three others who have said they want the nomination are Malcolm Barlow, Joseph Negri and Craig Lappen. Only four can be nominated to the party. The Democratic Town Committee will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the hearing room in Lincoln Center to make the endorsements.

Consent decree finally completed for sewer plant

By Nancy Concelmon
Manchester Herald

The town has completed work on a consent decree with the federal government that outlines fines and penalties against the town for the illegal expansion of the sewage treatment plant last year. The decree also officially allows work on the plant to proceed. Assistant Town Manager Steven R. Werber said last month the town was also required to submit plans for restoration of some of the filled wetlands, which had to be approved by all of the agencies involved. Last month the U.S. Justice Department reiterated threats to sue the town if work on the decree wasn't completed by the end of this month. "The ball's in our court," he said. But because of summer vacations, Twardy said the decree probably won't be made final until the end of the summer. He said he hopes to have it signed by Labor Day. "The light is certainly at the end of the tunnel," Twardy said. Federal, state and local parties have been working on the consent decree for nearly a year. Local and federal officials blamed the delay on language disputes that took a long time to resolve because of the number of parties involved. In addition to the town and federal governments, project engineer Metcalf & Eddy Inc. of Wakefield, Mass., the federal Environmental Protection Agency, Corps and project contractor Fred Brunell & Sons Inc. of Avon had to review and approve the decree.

Planned downtown site may house bank branch

By Rick Santos
Manchester Herald

Developer Tom Tomko of Manchester has applied for a building permit to construct a single-story brick structure at the vacant lot next to Grampy's convenience store on Main Street. The 6,500-square-foot building, proposed for 732 Main St. between Myrtle Street and Gorman Place, would be leased for retail stores or offices or both. Building Inspector Leo Belval said the building is being proposed to be built on one of the few vacant lots on Main Street in the downtown area. The application, which was submitted July 20, is being reviewed right now. Belval said the permit should be approved or denied in the next three weeks. "I wouldn't anticipate any problems," the inspector said. "Everything seems to be in order." The building permit application seems to indicate the structure would not clash with its environment, he said. "It certainly blends in with the rest of Main Street. It's in keeping with whatever master plan is in existence."

OPINION

Congress must focus on debts

Richard Nixon said recently that Congress should concentrate more on the issues instead of spending so much time on ethical problems. Coming from Nixon, that is almost laughable, but viewed in light of a report on the soaring foreign debt, he makes a good point.

The United States is now the largest debtor nation in the world. The Commerce Department said the debt jumped to $532.5 billion at the end of 1988. This does not worry the Bush administration, which contends that foreign investment has been good for the country because the foreign capital has helped rejuvenate aging industries.

But this capital goes to finance the nation's overvalued, and this cannot go on indefinitely. Most of the foreign money has gone into interest-bearing investments such as Treasury bills, which could be withdrawn at any moment. And because Americans save so little of their income, there is no domestic source of credit to cover that possibility.

—Brunswick Times Record, Brunswick, Maine

Bush reforms for campaigns shortsighted

Democrats have dismissed President Bush's campaign-finance reforms as thinly disguised measures to promote the fortunes of the Republican Party. If that sounds familiar, it should. During the past two years, the Democrats have proposed campaign-finance reforms that the Republicans have rejected as partisan subterfuge.

There are several reasons why Democrats oppose these changes. Most important, Political Action Committees tend to hedge their bets by favoring incumbents, and there are more incumbent Democrats than Republicans in Congress. And so-called ideological PACs, the ones that Bush would permit, tend to favor Republicans.

But there's a good, non-partisan reason for questioning Bush's approach to PACs — it probably won't work. PACs are nothing if not resourceful, and the Bush plan leaves much room for the banned PACs to reorganize themselves under ideological banners and continue to pollute the electoral process.

Governor Dempsey recalled

By Bob Conrad

Who will tour the veterans' hospital at holiday seasons or swim at the shore with blind children, as he loved to do?

Who will pull the outrageous blame year after year with youngsters at state institutions about staying up all night to take them a cake?

The kids at the Oak Hill School for the Blind were beginning to run out of gas in their singing Christmas carols. Then someone chirped up with "I've Been Working on the Railroad." The song didn't do much for the Nativity, but it was a hymn of faith in Governor Dempsey.

Dempsey considers his crusade to save passenger service on the New Haven Railroad as one of the major accomplishments of his administration.

Dempsey was a plus for the big government because he saw it as necessary to meet the needs of people. Ironically, the bigger government became the fainter grew the lines of authority and the power of the governor's office slipped with each advance.

State government today is a monster of some 250 departments, boards, commissions and committees. Dempsey contends that the public is willing to pay for the services the state offers. The public has proven him correct, at least up to now. Connecticut's programs lead the nation.

The Dempsey Decade had tax dilemmas for bookends. He walked into the first when he took over as governor in January 1981. He had to go before his first General Assembly that year, acknowledge its needs, and say "Brother can you spare $120 million?" The state needed that in new taxes.

Problems arose for Dempsey, coming and going, because of an old failing many politicians share. They do not like to remind the public that all of the nice things government is doing cost money.

Last year, in what was to be his final appearance before a legislature as governor, Dempsey had to ask for new tax money to the tune of $666 million. Dempsey was caught by his own good graces in 1989 because he had campaigned vigorously in 1986 on a promise to hold the line on taxes in 1987. It was downhill from then on. The state wound up $150 million in the red at June 30, 1989.

The Dempsey Decade will end next January when Irish-born John Noel Dempsey leaves public office for the first time in 35 years. He will have to find a job, Dempsey acknowledges quickly, because his state retirement benefits only come to $60 per week. His salary as governor is $35,000. He insists that he has no "plum" waiting for him in private business.

The only child of immigrant parents, Dempsey never forgot his humble origin nor did he ever try to go high hat as his political star ascended. The assessment of the political pros was that in "Mon-O-War," as State Chairman John Bailey calls him, could have had the job for as long as the personal magic worked.

What legacy does he hope to leave? "I just hope that wherever sits in this chair will continue some of the programs we started," Dempsey says.

Ethnics become well established

By Vincent Carroll

Now scroll forward to 1986. By then the top-paid corporate executive in America is an Italian-American named Lee Iacocca, and 4 are Jewish. No. 4 is Irish-American. Only at No. 5 does the first WASP land on the list.

In the 1980s, Epicopolians headed one-third of the top 500 corporations in America, though they represented just 3 percent of the population. By the mid-1980s, Catholic CEOs (often of Irish, Eastern or Southern European stock) easily outnumbered Episcopalians; Jews, too, had stormed the heights of corporate success.

And so it goes throughout the professions. When an "ethnic" Massachusetts Democrat ran for president in 1980, his background now considered a liability. When another ethnic Democrat from the same state ran in 1988, he fairly trumpeted his family's recent immigrant past.

What could be more "establishment" than the Council on Foreign Relations, the Rockefeller Foundation, Exeter, the Trilateral Commission, the Pulitzer Board or Yale? Yet by the late 1980s, all those institutions had either been led by non-WASPs or named by them. The same is true of white male ethnics, women and sprinkling of blacks and Hispanics. The Council on Foreign Relations board was typical: By '86, it included three women, five Jews, two blacks, two Greek-Americans and one Italian-American — fully half of the total.

Critics will complain the progress of white ethnics, which is true. Yet he also notes that blacks and Hispanics have begun the same march toward elite status and in a few arenas, such as the military, for blacks, already achieved it. Twenty years from now — you can count on it — another writer will be able to chronicle yet another transformation of America's power elite.

Speaking out is punished

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — South Africa is buzzing with speculation about the recent prison tete-a-tete between President P.W. Botha and Nelson Mandela. The black leader, in prison for more than 25 years, hosted the kingpin of the white apartheid establishment, and it could be the beginning of a healing.

Both could make the rounds of South African prisons for a long time and still not heal all the wounds. For every Nelson Mandela, there are a dozen Veliwa Mhlawuli.

Mhlawuli is a black journalist who cared enough about black children to worry about their future. Because he spoke out in South Africa, she was shot in the face, arrested and jailed without a trial.

The 25-year-old mother of two works for a community newspaper in Cape Town called "Grassroots." She made the mistake of openly talking about the hardships of children in South Africa. Mhlawuli has lived through the nightmares of apartheid and shared her experiences in a British television documentary on human rights and children.

Clips from the documentary, "Suffer the Children," directed by Nicholas Claxton, were picked up by the South African Broadcasting Corp. Mhlawuli described in detail seeing children tear-gassed to death while South African police stood by now she faces charges of terrorism and furthering the aims of the African National Congress.

The documentary, Mhlawuli said she used to be afraid that her children would grow up to become victims of violence. But after seeing two children, a 4-year-old and a 3-month-old, gassed to death, she just says that you are lucky your children are still alive.

Mhlawuli related her stories on television without emotion. Claxton told our reporter Ken Rogerson. But your budget. Stop drinking or smoking and save the money instead. Reduce your visits to expensive restaurants. You even might start by accumulating the change you empty from your purse or pockets each night.

Financial institutions have introduced new products and systems to help forty young people to save. One or more of them may work for you.

U.S. Savings Bonds are among the soundest investments you can make. Unsurpassed in their security, savings bonds now offer competitive interest rates when held to maturity.

One of their most attractive features is that they are usually purchased through a payroll savings plan where they are deducted from your pay checks in the form of a savings bond. You never see the cash, so you have no chance to spend it.

Child wants to meet his real father

DEAR ABBY: At what age should an illegitimate child meet his natural father? My 11-year-old son (I'll call him Nicky) has been asking questions about his "real" father since he was put two and together at the age of 4.

I have told Nicky that I loved his natural father very much but we were not able to marry because he was stationed 2,000 miles away. What the boy doesn't know is that his natural father never answered any of my letters.

Two years ago, I married a very fine man who has been a wonderful father to Nicky, but he keeps wanting to meet his "real" father. I know where he is and could arrange it, but I'm afraid he would be a big disappointment to the boy. Perhaps Nicky would accept his stepfather better if he didn't have this false image of his "real" father.

What do you think?

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ANGUISHED: First, please don't refer to your son as an "illegitimate" child. There are no "illegitimate" children — only illegitimate parents.

It is to your credit that you did not had mouth Nicky's natural father even though you had just cause to do so.

Don't try to correct the "false image" Nicky has of his natural father in an effort to make his stepfather more acceptable.

Does Nicky's natural father want to see his son? If so, by all means bring them together and let the boy make his own judgments. (Eleven-year-olds are far more perceptive than you think.)

If, on the other hand, Nicky's father has no desire to see his son, you must tell Nicky the truth.

DEAR ABBY: Here is a thought about infants and air travel. It is common as the plane begins its descent, for several babies to start screaming. This is from low pressure in the middle ear; many babies cannot easily clear their Eustachian tubes to balance the painful pressure differences. Swallowing or sucking helps clear these tubes; a bottle or pacifier, given as the plane nears the destination, would save babies severe pain, as well as spare the nerves of nearby passengers.

My wife says you've published this idea before. My last two plane trips, not to shrieking infants, tells me it is time to publish it again.

THOMAS F. LOWRY, M.D., WOODACRE, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: I am involved with a man I don't know very much about. I have reason to believe that he has had a sex-change operation, but I can't be sure. Are people who have had sex-change operation registered anywhere? If so, where? Thank you for any help you can give me.

ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Sex-change surgery is a private matter; those who have undergone that type of surgery are not "registered" anywhere. The best way to learn the facts about a man is to ask him. And if you can't believe what he tells you, I advise you to cool the relationship.

Oliver's widow withdraws

LONDON (AP) — Joan Plowright, the widow of Laurence Olivier, has withdrawn from a production at the National Theatre and the play has been canceled.

The actress was to have taken the title role in "Celestina" by Spanish playwright Fernando de Rojas, which was to open Nov. 8.

Due to the death of Lord Olivier, Joan Plowright feels unable to start rehearsals in mid-September and notify the National that she had canceled the production for the time being.

The company said in a statement Tuesday.

Oliver died July 11 at age 82.

Garner won't seek office

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Democratic politician has urged James Garner to run for governor, saying he shares a trait with another actor who once held the job.

"Everybody knows him," state Sen. Herschel Rosenfeld said, adding that his approach to Garner was rebuffed.

"He said 'I'm making $6 million a year, what do I need that for?' or words to that effect," Rosenfeld said Monday. "He's nearly as liquid as an investment in a brokerage account, without the expenses."

Employee stock plans are especially attractive because your contributions are usually deducted regularly from your pay. You have no opportunity to save your money. When the company matches part of your contributions, the investment benefits you. This is nearly as liquid as an investment in a brokerage account, without the expenses.

Credit unions often offer alluring interest rates on savings accounts. Usually not as liquid as a bank savings account, credit union accounts do give you access to your money. Your account can be built up through payroll deductions.

Checking account deductions can be made through your bank or your broker. A specified amount can be placed in a savings account or one of the many funds now available. If you choose the savings account, make sure you move the money regularly into CDs or other safe, higher yield investments. Higher yields mean more money you lost in the tick downward. In the long run, you'll end up saving more this way.

Employee stock-option investments offer shares in your company, in a range of companies, or even in a single company, usually in shares of its own stock.

You can invest a portion of your income before taxes, with dividends and interest untaxed until you begin withdrawing the money.

McMahon wants divorce

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Johnny Carson's sidekick, Ed McMahon, has filed for divorce from Victoria V. McMahon, his wife of 13 years.

McMahon cited "irreconcilable differences" in his divorce filing Tuesday.

His executive assistant, Madeline Kelly, said he is seeking custody of the couple's 3½-year-old adopted daughter, Katherine. No disposition has been made for the couple's Beverly Hills home, she said.

McMahon, 66, and Victoria, 44, separated July 15. He has four grown children by a previous marriage.

Group won't go on again

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Officials are dead set against an encore performance by the Grateful Dead because of drug use by the rock group's faithful fans, the Deadheads.

Drug use at an July 15 concert strained Hamilton County's law enforcement capabilities, said county Commissioner Steven C. Dillingier, who attended the show.

We were held almost helpless because we were outnumbered," he said, adding that there would have been a "tremendous economic impact" on the county if hundreds of drug users had been arrested, jailed and tried. There were only 14 arrests.

Meese likes arms idea

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Former Attorney General Edwin Meese said the Reagan administration's arms sales to Iran were a good idea, but he wouldn't necessarily recommend such action.

The nation's former top law enforcement officer spoke Monday to about 150 students at a special Stanford University summer program on government and speech, one that he attended about 46 years ago.

Meese, 69, said he had warmly supported the decision to sell arms to Iran, but added that "in retrospect, the idea was a good one. I think the way it was put together was imperfect."

Our Language

Someone on a picnic is a picniker. It's tricky word to spell — remembering the K in picniker is no picnic.

Abba-ga-ga give up or denies. You may not use this verb often, but don't give up on abnegate.

QUESTION: Now that we're buying a new home, we've been wondering about the word mortgage. What can you tell us?

ANSWER: Our mortgage comes from an Old French term meaning "dead pledge" (it's the same word you find in mortally and mortuary). You pledge property as security for a loan; once you've paid back the loan that pledge is considered "dead," and you can start living it up.

Do you have a question or comment about our language? Write to Jeffrey McQuinn, in care of the Manchester Herald, P.O. Box 591, Manchester 06040.

Treating savings as expense a good way to build account

Pay yourself first. Treat savings as an expense, and include it in your budget as another bill due every pay period. You and you make a savings account.

That's advice I have been giving for decades, and it's starting to pay off. Many people have found it builds financial security in a way they never thought was possible.

If you have trouble budgeting savings, there are some measures that can get you started. You may elect to cut out some luxury items to make room in your budget. Stop drinking or smoking and save the money instead. Reduce your visits to expensive restaurants. You even might start by accumulating the change you empty from your purse or pockets each night.

Financial institutions have introduced new products and systems to help forty young people to save. One or more of them may work for you.

U.S. Savings Bonds are among the soundest investments you can make. Unsurpassed in their security, savings bonds now offer competitive interest rates when held to maturity.

One of their most attractive features is that they are usually purchased through a payroll savings plan where they are deducted from your pay checks in the form of a savings bond. You never see the cash, so you have no chance to spend it.

Sylvia Porter

Interest isn't taxable until you cash the bonds and, beginning next year, bonds used to pay your children's college expenses are tax-free if your income is less than $20,000 per year.

Solid no-load mutual funds offer unusual flexibility in both investment options and ways of making regular payments. Some offer plans in which you send a check for an unspecified amount each month. Others involve payroll deduction or automatic deductions from checking accounts in fixed amounts.

You can key your monthly contribution either to a fixed amount or to a fixed percentage of your income. If you choose the latter, you'll have to put in your monthly $50 plus whatever amount you lost in the tick downward. In the long run, you'll end up saving more this way.

Employee stock-option investments offer shares in your company, in a range of companies, or even in a single company, usually in shares of its own stock.

You can invest a portion of your income before taxes, with dividends and interest untaxed until you begin withdrawing the money.

Oath not violated by some doctors

DEAR DR. GOTT: I read your column on ethics in the medical profession. As I remember it, the Hippocratic Oath enjoins physicians never to induce abortion. Would you tell me if the oath has been amended and/or the injunction against abortion deleted?

DEAR READER: The Hippocratic Oath, a traditional and ethical guide for doctors, contains the clause "nor will I give a woman a pessary to produce abortion." To the extent that this archaic wording seems to prohibit abortion by any means, it has been largely ignored by many modern practitioners. However, today's abortions are not performed by using pessaries (devices to prevent conception or to support the uterus). Therefore, the Hippocratic pledge is not being technically broken by physicians who perform abortions. Of course, this point is arguable. In any case, most abortionists consider the woman's wishes to be paramount.

I sense from your question that you would like to see a new oath drafted that would be more relevant to today's medical practice. I would be glad to help you in this regard. I am an emotionally charged subject that has become a legal issue. This is unfortunate, in my opinion, because I believe that decisions about the individuality of that I suspect you are going to be made, possibly subconsciously.

You've got a good job. You are going to school and you can pay your bills. Why not let mom move to San Diego and go down and visit her. If you find a better job down there and the school situation is decent, the Hippocratic Oath has been neither amended nor deleted.

Daughter shouldn't move back

DEAR BRUCE: I am 24 years old and have been on my own for the last four years. My mother is moving from Santa Barbara to San Diego. I recently accepted a new job earning more money than ever before. But to tell you the truth, I am not in love with the job, since there is a good deal of pressure.

I can afford my rent and am going back to school. My mom and I get along well and she would like me to move down to San Diego. What do you think?

Smart Money

Bruce Williams

H.M. SANTA BARBARA, CALIF.

DEAR H.M.: Did you ever see anyone try to put a champagne cork back in a bottle? Once you are out of the nest, chances are that you are going to find it very difficult to move back in again — and give up the individuality that I suspect you have come to treasure, possibly subconsciously.

You've got a good job. You are going to school and you can pay your bills. Why not let mom move to San Diego and go down and visit her. If you find a better job down there and the school situation is decent, the Hippocratic Oath has been neither amended nor deleted.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm tired of the urge to have intercourse. What would be the results if I were castrated?

DEAR READER: By removing the major source of male-hormone production, castration causes a loss of sex drive and sexual performance. This seems to be a pretty radical and permanent approach to your problem. Why not talk to your doctor about other options? For example, if you are bothered by sexual urges, counseling (with or without the use of medicine) could help you better to deal with the situation.

Rather than considering surgery for your problem, I think you would be better off seeking a less drastic approach. Undergoing castration for the reason you mention is somewhat like having your stomach removed to prevent hunger. I believe your doctor could refer you for more appropriate therapy.

DEAR BRUCE: I live in a sub-division in Florida where there are many covenants, restrictions and conditions on our deed. As a matter of fact, there is a sign as you enter our subdivision, "Deed Restricted Community."

Now imagine my surprise when I walked outside last night and saw my neighbor putting up a 6-foot fence. Now our deed restrictions clearly say that privacy fences are restricted to a height of 4 feet.

When I told the neighbor this, he just laughed and said to me, "Is that what I have to do? I don't think I'll do it." I told him that I would be glad to add insult to injury, but he put the rough side out toward me.

Something rotten in 8th

To the Editor:
Mr. Landers' tenure is fraught with strangeness. On election night his winning vote was higher in number than the legal check off list recorded. Now, at the peak of growth and building in the district, he has appointed as sewer commissioner Mr. Ferguson who had been a board member less than one day, had attended one board meeting, and is now in charge of the vast below ground sewer development. As the saying goes "There is something rotten in Denmark." Unfortunately it will be the people in the district who will have to pay for it. Let's correct this mistake now.

House launches budget attack on stealth bomber

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic-controlled House is launching a budget-attack on the stealth bomber, saying the radar-evading aircraft is too expensive.

Deep cuts by the House in the stealth program would set up an eventual conflict with the Senate, which voted 98-1 Tuesday to back the $500 million B-2 bomber if it meets flight test and radar-evading standards.

The Senate amendment trimmed President Bush's $2.1

billion stealth request by a relatively modest $300 million, a reduction already embodied in the Senate Armed Services Committee.

A third amendment, which House Speaker Thomas Foley said will likely prevail, calls on the administration to propose a cheaper program than the Bush administration's $70 billion plan to build 132 stealth bombers. It would limit the number of planes built to two bombers in 1990 and 1991 instead of the eight sought by the administration.

The House was to consider amendments to eliminate the MX mobile missile and the competing single-warhead Midgetman missile, both of which are supported by the White House.

Rep. John Rowland, R-Conn., said lobbying by the White House, the Defense Dept. and Northrop Corp., manufacturer of the stealth, has diminished chances that the program will be cut.

PAVILIONS AT BUCKLAND HILLS. The mall is scheduled to open in spring of 1990.

WORK PROGRESSES — Work continues Wednesday on the exterior of the Pavilions at Buckland Hills. The mall is scheduled to open in spring of 1990.

Mail

Overhead are "pavilions" made of light beige fabric that mimics the gauzy material used to shade the tobacco fields that once occupied the mall site.

"What we try to do with our malls is make them unique to the area," Quakinhush said.

Above each of the courts are glass skylights shaped like pyramids. There are five courts plus the main food court on the second level, to be called "The Green."

The 10 food vendors are located at the perimeter of The Green. At the center will be tables, umbrellas and plants, Quakinhush said.

Off the food court will be a "substation" for the Manchester Police Department, Quakinhush said. The developers will donate the space to the department and will not charge rent, he said.

Gary Frost, community relations officer with the Manchester Police Department, said today initial plans call for a temporary holding facility.

The main areas on the second floor will be connected by walkways over the lower level. The bridges, as Quakinhush calls them, will feature small balconies for people-watchers.

Outside the building, workers continue to shape the landscape, using ground-up red rock to flatten the parking lot and roads surrounding the building. With the installation of water, sewer and other utilities nearly complete, grading work has begun and paving will soon follow.

In addition, roads surrounding the development, including Tolland Turnpike, Buckland and Deming streets, are being widened and upgraded according to State Traffic Commission Requirements.

The $15 million worth of infrastructure improvements is the most expensive part of the project, Quakinhush said, even with a seven-year tax break granted to the developers by the town. The tax abatement will yield $5 million for road and utility improvements.

Quakinhush admits that he may be biased toward the Pavilions project because it's one of his, but he believes it's one of Hornet's finest.

"Maybe the expectation here is greater than in other parts of the country," he said.

News

"The [broadcasting] techniques are beginning to over-whelm the old standards."

Ed Turner, executive vice president of the Cable News Network, said that CNN doesn't do "theater in radio. We don't do drama with actors."

Said Turner: "There's enough real drama that we don't have to re-create it. ... It is the function of the reporter on the story to tell the tale, to relate the events in narrative fashion, rather than to use some form of dramatic re-enactment to try to sustain viewer interest."

Yet sustaining viewer interest, especially in a tightly competitive television environment, has become crucial.

NBC News' "Yesterday, Today & Tomorrow" will use two simulated re-creations, not what got news.

Grossman said NBC's "Today" show has already started manipulating stories without other broadcast technologies, adding "mood music" to some news reports for added emotional appeal.

"When you start mucking up reality, even though it may be justified in a particular instance, it really creates a very dangerous pattern," Grossman said.

Defenders of re-enactments liken them to artists' courtroom sketches and animated simulations of lunar landings.

But as Donaldson pointed out in the case of the ABC simulation about Bloch, people "weren't watching an artist who did see it, who said, 'I was there.'"

Ernie Leiser, the former executive producer of Walter Cronkite's news, said such re-enactments depend on how re-enactments are used.

"If it is made clear that it is a simulation, and if it's done because you don't have pictures, and it clarifies the story you're trying to tell, I see nothing wrong with it in principle," he said.

Common Ground, a women's book store at 200 W. Center St., closed June 30 due to a 10% increase in rent, its owner, Laurie Rollins, said.

The bookstore sold material on such issues as traditional relationships, gay relationships, contraception, venereal diseases and premenstrual syndrome. The store also carried erotic merchandise as well as literature by contemporary authors such as Edith Wharton and George Eliot and a large selection of books for children and parenting, Rollins said.

She said she tried to relocate but was unable to find a suitable space. But she said she plans to reopen soon in the Manchester area.

DC-9 makes emergency landing

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A Continental Airlines DC-9 suffered partial hydraulic failure Tuesday and ditched in an emergency landing at Newark International Airport. None of the 49 people aboard the flight were injured, officials said.

A flight indicating a hydraulic problem lit up in the cockpit of Flight 354 about 20 minutes before its scheduled landing at Newark Tuesday evening, spokesman Ned Walker said in a telephone interview from Continental's headquarters in Houston. The flight was coming from Chicago.

The plane appeared to have suffered a loss of one of its hydraulic systems, and a partial loss of the other, Walker said. But unlike the DC-10 that crashed in Iowa last week, the DC-9 doesn't require hydraulics for maneuverability, he said.

Four of the DC-9's six tires blew out and the plane ditched in a skidded three-quarters of the way down the 9,000-ft runway shortly after 8 p.m. It ended up sitting perpendicular on the runway.

"The captain had full control of the aircraft at all times, full control of the landing gear and flaps," Walker said. Control of a DC-9's landing gear and flaps is improved by the hydraulic system, but they continue working if hydraulics are lost, he said.

The tires blew out because the captain, following established procedures, turned off an anti-skid system designed to prevent the wheels from locking up, Walker said.

Lynn Tierney, a spokeswoman for the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, said the plane ditched just before landing. About six fire trucks and ambulances were waiting at the runway.

Tom Broyles, a passenger from Houston, said his first thoughts were for the flight instructor who Airlines crash in Sioux City that killed 111 people.

"I've been flying about 40 years and this was the worst," he said. "While my head was down between my legs, I took the opportunity to say my prayers."

Walker said the 82 passengers were instructed to brace for the landing. They and the seven crew members disembarked on an emergency ladder.

Flutie's 'reward': job insecurity

By Howard Ulmon
The Associated Press

SMITHFIELD, R.I. — Ah, the life of the pro quarterback. In the limelight in control of the offense.

Insecure.

Doug Flutie won six of the nine games he started last year for New England. What did that get him? A demotion to second string with the Patriots.

Marc Wilson won 62 percent of the games he started last year for the Raiders in Oakland and Los Angeles. His reward? Continual battles for the starting spot.

Winning isn't everything. Not if you're a quarterback. Not if you want a steady job.

New Flutie and Wilson are teammates. Flutie is the backup to Tony Eason. Wilson is trying to make the Patriots as a free agent after sitting out last season.

For all their accomplishments, questions remain after all these years.

Is Flutie tall enough or skillful enough to be a successful starter year after year in the NFL? And could Wilson, who endured constant duels with Jim Plunkett for the starting role, win the big game?

"It was never a settled situation and that was always disturbing for me," Wilson said. "When you play with a high-profile team that has a lot of talent, unless you're the Super Bowl, they always doubt whether you're a winner or not. We won two Super Bowls while I was there. The day you don't care is the day you're starting to go downhill."

Flutie, with his third pro team in five years, is happy to be in his home area but would be happier as a starter.

Wilson, with his third pro team in two years, is happy for another chance to play. "The day you're drafted, you don't care if you're starting to go downhill."

Richard Wood, New England's

Rookie year learning one for Masse

When you're accustomed to such numbers as 29, 356, 53, 42 and 430, then 263 just doesn't cut it.

Not if you ask Manchester's Bill Masse, now taller for the Prince William (Va.) Cannons in the Carolina League.

One of three A league teams in the New York Yankees farm system.

"As far as the Yankees are concerned, they're happy with what I've been doing," Masse said in a telephone conversation from his apartment in Woodbridge, Va. "I've played well in the outfield and hit for power (nine home runs). I've played pretty much like a guy in his first year should play. That's what they've told me."

"But I'm not happy. I'm not used to hitting .263. It's been discouraging. But I'm not giving up. I don't plan on making a career out of minor league baseball. I'll keep plugging until I make it," added Masse, who turned 23 on July 6.

Masse, former East Catholic High standout, went on to a terrific college career that was capped by a senior year at Wake Forest University where he was named to three prestigious postseason All-America lists. He batted .299 and .306, third best each time, in his last two seasons in the highly respected Cape Cod League. He hit .400 as a freshman at Davidson College and .333 as a sophomore before transferring to Wake Forest where he batted .422 as a senior with 24 home runs, 77 RBIs, 85 runs scored and 35 stolen bases in 88 attempts.

"I'm not used to failure," Masse said. "In minor league ball there is a lot of failure. There's a saying in baseball that the game can bring you to your knees and when you're in the minor leagues, it really does."

"That's because in the minor leagues there are so many hard times. I feel I can be doing so much better," he adds.

Masse was drafted in June of 1988 in the Major League amateur draft, taken in the seventh round by the Yankees. He didn't report immediately, however, instead opting to join the U.S. baseball team that represented the country at the Summer Olympics in Seoul, South Korea. The U.S. won the gold medal. Masse's first for any Olympian from Manchester. He eventually signed with the Yankees in October.

He had a good spring training camp (12-for-20) and thought he was headed for Albany in the Double A Eastern League. Instead he was shipped to Prince William.

Prince William went to the first half of the season in the Northern Division of the Carolina League. The league is divided into two four-team divisions. The Cannons were in first place at 18-12 in the second half going into a Monday night game with the Kingston (N.C.) Indians. Masse made the Northern Division All-Star team for the first half of the year, going 1-for-3 with an RBI in the All-Star game, played at Durham, N.C.

The bus rides, Masse will tell you, are something else. "You don't want to know," he said with a laugh. "We've traveled on the worst buses ever made. Last week we traveled to Winston-Salem (N.C.) and the air conditioning was broken and I had to be about 98 degrees inside. That's happened two or three times. And last Friday the transmission went and the bus was bucking and jerking so bad like a bronco, you couldn't sleep." Bus rides are as long as five or six hours.

Adjusting to the umpires is another matter. "The pitching in the league is excellent. The highest average in the league (Sunday) was .309 so no one is learning up the league. (But) the umpiring is just terrible."

"Everyone has been trying to figure out why this is a pitcher's league and it's because you go up to the plate and you're in the hole at 0-2 and you haven't seen a strike, yet. The strike zones are unreal."

Mark Weidenmaier began the year as the Prince William manager. He was fired. Masse didn't get along with him. "I got into a couple of shoving matches with him the start of the year. He got fired because he was a jerk," Masse said. Stump Merrill is now the team's skipper, one whom Masse can talk things over with.

He (Merrill) said the other day it didn't matter if I was hitting .260 or .300, there's nowhere to go. Albany is doing so well (72-23 with a 24 game lead in the Eastern League) and (the Yankees) don't want to break up the team."

Masse has another month to the regular season. Then there's a two-week break before heading to the Instructional League in Florida.

"I'm playing every day. This has been a learning process. I could write a 1,000 page novel on my first year in the minors. We have a little more than a month to go and I hope to finish up strong."

Len Auster is sports editor of the Manchester Herald.

"But I'm not happy. I'm not used to hitting .263. It's been discouraging. But I'm not giving up. I don't plan on making a career out of minor league baseball. I'll keep plugging until I make it," added Masse, who turned 23 on July 6.

Masse, former East Catholic High standout, went on to a terrific college career that was capped by a senior year at Wake Forest University where he was named to three prestigious postseason All-America lists. He batted .299 and .306, third best each time, in his last two seasons in the highly respected Cape Cod League. He hit .400 as a freshman at Davidson College and .333 as a sophomore before transferring to Wake Forest where he batted .422 as a senior with 24 home runs, 77 RBIs, 85 runs scored and 35 stolen bases in 88 attempts.

"I'm not used to failure," Masse said. "In minor league ball there is a lot of failure. There's a saying in baseball that the game can bring you to your knees and when you're in the minor leagues, it really does."

"That's because in the minor leagues there are so many hard times. I feel I can be doing so much better," he adds.

Masse was drafted in June of 1988 in the Major League amateur draft, taken in the seventh round by the Yankees. He didn't report immediately, however, instead opting to join the U.S. baseball team that represented the country at the Summer Olympics in Seoul, South Korea. The U.S. won the gold medal. Masse's first for any Olympian from Manchester. He eventually signed with the Yankees in October.

He had a good spring training camp (12-for-20) and thought he was headed for Albany in the Double A Eastern League. Instead he was shipped to Prince William.

Prince William went to the first half of the season in the Northern Division of the Carolina League. The league is divided into two four-team divisions. The Cannons were in first place at 18-12 in the second half going into a Monday night game with the Kingston (N.C.) Indians. Masse made the Northern Division All-Star team for the first half of the year, going 1-for-3 with an RBI in the All-Star game, played at Durham, N.C.

The bus rides, Masse will tell you, are something else. "You don't want to know," he said with a laugh. "We've traveled on the worst buses ever made. Last week we traveled to Winston-Salem (N.C.) and the air conditioning was broken and I had to be about 98 degrees inside. That's happened two or three times. And last Friday the transmission went and the bus was bucking and jerking so bad like a bronco, you couldn't sleep." Bus rides are as long as five or six hours.

Adjusting to the umpires is another matter. "The pitching in the league is excellent. The highest average in the league (Sunday) was .309 so no one is learning up the league. (But) the umpiring is just terrible."

"Everyone has been trying to figure out why this is a pitcher's league and it's because you go up to the plate and you're in the hole at 0-2 and you haven't seen a strike, yet. The strike zones are unreal."

Mark Weidenmaier began the year as the Prince William manager. He was fired. Masse didn't get along with him. "I got into a couple of shoving matches with him the start of the year. He got fired because he was a jerk," Masse said. Stump Merrill is now the team's skipper, one whom Masse can talk things over with.

He (Merrill) said the other day it didn't matter if I was hitting .260 or .300, there's nowhere to go. Albany is doing so well (72-23 with a 24 game lead in the Eastern League) and (the Yankees) don't want to break up the team."

Masse has another month to the regular season. Then there's a two-week break before heading to the Instructional League in Florida.

"I'm playing every day. This has been a learning process. I could write a 1,000 page novel on my first year in the minors. We have a little more than a month to go and I hope to finish up strong."

MB's roll along behind Bidwell

After getting off to a wobbly start, Moriarty Brothers has righted the ship nicely. The MB's ran their winning streak to seven straight Tuesday night with a 5-0 blanking of Society for Savings in Greater Hartford. The Twilight League play behind Dave Bidwell's three-hitter at Moriarty Field.

Moriarty's defending regular season and Jack Rose playoff champion, has climbed into fourth place in the 10-team Twilight League with 24 points. The MB's have back-to-back important games coming up as they visit third-place Katz Sports (12-2) tonight at 7 at Ceppa Field in Meriden before returning to Moriarty Field for a date Thursday at 7:30 p.m. against second-place East Hartford (14-4).

"We're moving pretty good right now," MB manager Gene Johnson said, "but who knows." He added Bidwell struck out seven and walked only one in going the distance for his 101st career Twilight League win.

The MB's scored the only run in the first inning. Greg Turner singled and scored on Tony Galluccio's RBI triple. Society hurler Steve Cannata then held the MB's in check until the fifth inning when the local entry ended its final four-sallies.

Mike Johnson, back for a visit from his home in Rhode Island, was started in the lineup and plated the second run with an RBI single. Turner singled in another run in the fifth and he eventually scored on an unusual play.

With Turner at third base, the pitcher, catcher and first baseman converged on a foul pop. The catch was made, and Turner took full advantage of the unanticipated plate to score.

Galluccio knocked in two runs and Turner had two hits and two runs scored for the MB's.

Indians feel the pain as Yanks finally win

Hawkins, 12-9, has not allowed an earned run in three of his last four games. He pitched back-to-back shutouts July 5 and 13 and allowed one unearned run Tuesday.

"It's not the most critical time of year, but we needed to get started sometime," Hawkins said. "We needed somebody to step forward. I love being in that situation and hope I can uphold my end of the bargain."

Hawkins hasn't yielded an earned run in 12 2/3 innings against the Indians.

"We broke through and got one (unearned) run, but that was a big point in the game right there," Hawkins said. "That had much effect on us as it did on them. We got the man out and it gave me a boost."

Sax led off the game with a single, and second baseman Steve Green followed with a sacrifice bunt and scored on Mattingly's groundout.

In the third, Roberto Kelly singled, went to third on a double by Sax and scored as Sax was tagged out in a rebound on Alvaro Espinoza's grounder.

CLEVELAND — Greg Swindell chose to ignore the pain in his elbow, and it cost him.

"I shouldn't have been out there trying to pitch with it. I jeopardized myself and my team," the Cleveland left-hander said Tuesday night after the New York Yankees finished him in the fifth inning and beat the Indians 5-1.

Swindell, 33-5, said his left elbow has been bothering him for three weeks now. In his last outing Thursday at Kansas City, he pitched seven shutout innings before the pain forced him to sit.

"The way it felt all week I shouldn't have taken a chance," he said. "I should have let someone else go out there and hold them."

"I'm unsure if the arm will force him to miss his next start. He lost 32-33 innings, allowing four runs on six hits in his second-shortest appearance of the year."

"I don't think it's anything bad, but here we go again."

Bodicker said that in a hot break time you just want to stay aggressive."

"I'd rather be knocked out being aggressive than be knocked out not-picking," he said after his second shutout and second complete game in 21 starts this season.

"This game was just what the doctor ordered to put us on the move."

Rebounding from a poor start this year, Bodicker extended nine hits, all singles, and extended his scoreless streak to 24 innings. He struck out six and walked two.

White Sox batted his average to .330 while warming up in a bid for a fifth consecutive batting title. Bodicker entertained no lofty goals. He still is 35 innings shy of Orel Hersher's scoreless record set last year.

"When you're going through a good stretch, you don't worry about this," Bodicker said. "You just want to stay aggressive."

Flutie's 'reward': job insecurity

SECOND STRING — New England Patriot quarterback Doug Flutie, who led his team to six wins in nine starts last season, has been "rewarded" in training camp by being demoted to second string.

Now, still only 32, the tall, mobile quarterbackback with a strong arm and impressive statistics is giving football another shot. Probably his last.

Flutie's future is more promising. He had a 6-3 record, but Eason took over as the starter for the last two games in 1988 after an arm injury subsided.

Until Flutie puts a couple of strong seasons together, questions about whether the 1984 Heisman Trophy winner can succeed in the NFL will linger.

"You read it every week in the paper," he said. "Let them write what they want to write and talk about what they want to talk about. I don't care. They'll say it until the day I retire and then they'll say I told you so, no matter what I do."

The college hero who was supposed to be the savior of the USFL when he joined the New Jersey Generals in 1985 seems more content with his status than he was last year, when he was hoping simply to make the Patriots' roster, or the two years before that during his stormy stay with the Chicago Bears.

Now his roster spot seems secure. The media attention has decreased. But its doubtful the little giant from Boston College, whose wild scrambles and last-season heroics thrilled a nation of football fans, ever will be considered just another player.

"People in this area still seem to have a real interest in anything I do," Doug Flutie does," he said. "You want people to be concerned about what happens to you. The day you don't care is the day you're starting to go downhill."

Flutie, with his third pro team in five years, is happy to be in his home area but would be happier as a starter.

Wilson, with his third pro team in two years, is happy for another chance to play. "The day you're drafted, you don't care if you're starting to go downhill."

Langston says he's not trying for strikeouts

By Dick Brinster
The Associated Press

National League batters should be relieved to know that Mark Langston doesn't try for strikeouts.

"I'm not concentrating on getting strikeouts. I'm just thinking about getting ahead of hitters and not getting behind them," Langston said after fanning 10 while pitching a five-inning lead in the Montreal Expos' 2-1 victory Tuesday night over the Philadelphia Phillies. "If the strikeouts come, that's extra."

They've been coming in bunches lately for the three-time American League strikeout king who has been terrorizing the NL since his acquisition from the Seattle Mariners on May 25. The 28-year-old left-hander, who has fanned 23 in his last two starts, has 102 strikeouts in 94 1/3 innings.

Langston reached double figures in strikeouts in Montreal for the fifth time. He did it once before for the Mariners, fanning 10 in a game on May 25. The pitcher who actually prefers to work in close games.

"It's not that I don't like the high-scoring games, but in close ones you tend to concentrate more and make more of your pitches count," he said after leading the Expos to their sixth straight victory. "It's better for me in tight games because of the way I am to pitch."

San Diego's Ed Whitson, 14-6, tied a career-high for victories. Garry Templeton singled home two runs and Shawn Abery hit a three-run homer as the Padres broke a four-game losing streak. Templeton's single capped the three-run fourth inning after Cincinnati had taken a 2-0 lead in the second against Whalens. He pitched seven innings, allowed 10

Belcher and Rick Rhoden, 0-3 and just off the disabled list, were locked in a scoreless duel until the sixth inning.

Kal Daniels walked with one out and stole second with two down. Franklin Stubbs was intentionally walked and Jeff Hamilton and Mike Scioscia followed with RBI singles.

The Dodgers added four runs in the ninth on RBI singles by Lenny Harris, and Jose Gonzalez and a two-run double by pinch-hitter Mickey Hatcher.

Belcher pitched his way out of base-loaded jams in the third and seventh innings.

Giants 5, Braves 4: A grounder that glanced off the glove of losing pitcher Derek Lilliquist helped San Francisco's Kirt Marwaring after the latter tried scoring from first base during the second inning of their game Tuesday night in Atlanta. The Giants won, 5-4.

Marwaring scored to make it 3-2 as LaCoss bounced into a double play.

Lilliquist threw in two runs for the Braves.

Samuelsson out 6 months

HARTFORD — Hartford Whalers defenseman Ulf Samuelsson tore the anterior cruciate ligament in his left knee doing exercises in Sweden on July 16 and he is scheduled to undergo major knee surgery in the next couple of days, according to Whalers' team doctor Vincent Turco.

Turco said Samuelsson will be sidelined six months "optimistically."

Samuelsson, 25, returned to Hartford last Thursday to be checked by Turco. He has decided to have the surgery in Sweden before returning here for rehabilitation. Samuelsson, who has missed only 15 games because of injury or illness while anchoring the defense the past four years, would miss 50 games.

Samuelsson averaged 21 minutes, 39 seconds a game last year, highest on the Whalers.

Dixon, Smith to be eligible

STORRS — University of Connecticut basketball recruits Phil Dixon and Martie Smith said Tuesday they have met the NCAA's standards and test requirements for freshman eligibility. Although there are still questions about Smith's high school transcript, UConn coach Jim Calhoun said he would accept any players sidelined by Proposition 48.

To be eligible under Prop 48 rules, an incoming freshman must have a 2.0 grade point average and at least a 700 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test or a 15 on the American College Test.

UConn head coach Jim Calhoun was away on a recruiting trip. Assistant coach Glen Miller said UConn hasn't yet received official notification of the players' test scores.

Dixon and Smith said they received their test scores last week. Smith, a 6-foot-7 forward from Grand Rapids, Mich., took the ACT three times and said he scored a 17 on his last exam.

Dixon, a high-scoring 6-foot-5 guard from Toronto, said he scored an 840 on the SAT exam. He spent the last couple of weeks at UConn's Center for Academic Programs despite not knowing whether he would be able to play basketball this season.

UConn's recruiting class also includes forwards Scott Barrell of Hamden and Toronto Walker of Oak Hill Academy in Virginia.

Golf lessons are offered

GLASTONBURY — Minnehaug Golf Course is now offering golf lessons for juniors, beginners and adults. A beginner's program will be offered Aug. 14 from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. and an advanced program will be offered on consecutive Fridays beginning Aug. 18.

For more information, call 584-5679.

Burks joins Pawtucket

BOSTON (AP) — Ellis Burks will join Boston's Triple-A team in Pawtucket on Wednesday to begin a 29-day rehabilitation program after shoulder surgery.

Burks underwent surgery on his right shoulder on June 20. He is batting .280 with seven home runs and 32 RBIs for the Red Sox.

Burks will join two disabled teammates at Pawtucket, second baseman Marty Barrett and Sam Horn, who also are on rehabilitation assignments.

Francis faces charges

RUSSELL VILLAGE NEW (AP) — Tight end Russ Francis of the New England Patriots faces an Aug. 1 Justice Court arraignment on charges of carrying a concealed pistol and driving a motorcycle while drunk.

Francis, 36, was stopped July 2 by a Nevada Highway Patrol trooper at nearby Sand Harbor, a popular Lake Tahoe beach. He also faces charges of not wearing a helmet, driving an unregistered motorcycle, having no proof of insurance and driving with a suspended license.

All the charges except the weapons charge are misdemeanors. The charge of carrying the loaded 9mm pistol is a gross misdemeanor. Francis reportedly has a gun permit from California and Massachusetts but no Nevada permit.

Mack pleads not guilty

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Browns fullback Kevin Mack pleaded innocent to a drug charge Tuesday, and his attorney said Mack's cocaine rehabilitation would be completed in time for the team's exhibition opener.

"Kevin Mack is not a drug trafficker," Gerald S. Gold, Mack's defense attorney, said outside court after Mack's arraignment.

Mack, 26, who was arrested with two others June 28 at a street corner known as a drug dealing site, is allowed to remain free on $2,500 bond by Cuyahoga Common Pleas Court Judge William E. Aurelius.

Mets release Mazzilli

NEW YORK (AP) — Veteran utilityman Lee Mazzilli was released outright by the New York Mets Tuesday. The expected move was made after the catchers Gary Carter and Barry Lincecum were taken off the disabled list and Jeff King hit his first big-league home run in the ninth and Bill Landrum pitched the ninth to save his job.

One of the Mets' first decisions may be to put running back Tony Dorsett in the game plan more often.

Phoenix Cardinals: The Cardinals signed second baseman Fred Lynn to the major leagues with the Mets in 1976, and was traded to the Texas Rangers in 1982. After stints with the Yankees and Pirates, Mazzilli returned to the Mets as a free agent in 1988.

Power punching wins out in ring

Gold medals handed out at U.S. Olympic Festival

By Owen Confield
The Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY — The name of the game in amateur boxing isn't how heavy you hit, it's how often. Most of the time, at least.

Tuesday night, Javier Alvarez of San Antonio lost to the harder-hitting John Bray 3-2 at 201 pounds and became one of three national champions to lose in the finals of the U.S. Olympic Festival.

"This time the rat-a-tat didn't work," said Bray, 19, who had lost to Alvarez 5-0 in the finals of the U.S. amateurs.

"I lost to him 5-0 the last time, beat him 3-2 this time, and I'll beat him 5-0 the next time," said Bray, of Van Nuys, Calif.

Tony Gonzales, the U.S. amateur champion at 119 pounds, lost 4-1 to Eddie Cook of St. Louis, and 156-pound national champion Chris Byrd lost to his close friend Paul Vaden on a night when all the gold medal bouts were contested.

Gold medals were awarded in closed other sports Tuesday, including archery, bowling, slow pitch softball and equestrian show jumping.

Denise Parker, 15, of South Jordan, Utah, rallied to win the women's archery gold medal. Ed Elison, 61, oldest competitor at 51, held on for the men's championship by two points.

"I am physically in better shape now than ever before and Denise has something to do with that," Elison said. "We help each other in archery continuously and I feel this has made us both better archers."

Brody Roberts of Humble, Texas, became the eighth rider to win double golds in equestrian competition. Robert's two clean riding rounds on Footnote, together with two clean team rounds, equaled a festival record set in 1986 by Silas "Jeepers" Ragsdale.

Robertson's South team also had two gold medals. Ed Elison, 61, specialist who had lost by decisions in three earlier matches against Greg Vaden, "I'm the one who's wearing the gold."

Vaden, a 21-year-old from Puyallup, Wash., had lost to Byrd 3-2 in the finals of the U.S. amateur.

"I love this guy," Vaden said, "but for nine minutes in the ring, you couldn't say we're enemies, but we're competitors."

Four other U.S. amateur champions came away with gold medals — Frank Pena at 125 pounds, Raul Marquez at 147 pounds, Brian Lonon at 112 pounds and Ray Lathan at 165 pounds.

The other boxing gold medalists were Eric Griffin of Houston at 106, Tongo McClain of Racine, Wis., at 132, Skipper Kelly of Colorado Springs at 139, Terry McGroom of Chicago at 178, and Larry Donald of Cincinnati at 201-plus.

Kelp, the Vietnamese-born 18-year-old who fled from South Vietnam with his mother and sisters at the age of 2½ to join his father, a U.S. soldier, won a 4-1 decision over ex-sparring partner Victor McKinnis. McKinnis is an Army fighter from Fort Collins, Colo.

Kelp said the fight was strange and lacked action because he knows McKinnis so well.

"We just sparred so many times. It was a crazy feeling," Kelp said. "When we got into the ring, we were both real hesitant."

The gold medalists have the inside track at making the U.S. team that will compete in the world championships Sept. 17-30 in Moscow. They advance to the World Championship Box-Off in Concord, Calif., Aug. 3-4, where they'll face a "most worthy" opponent chosen from the festival box-off rounds. The gold medalists must lose twice in order to fail to make the world championship team.

Hill no longer with the Giants

Boggs with the Giants

By The Associated Press

Kenny Hill didn't have an interception with the New York Giants last season. Now he doesn't have a job with them, either.

Hill, a starting strong safety for the Giants' 1988 Super Bowl team and for most of the past four seasons, was released Tuesday.

He became the second well-known veteran to part company with the Giants in recent days. Last week, the Giants lost another member of their Super Bowl team when nose tackle Jim Burt retired.

Coach Bill Parcells said the decision to "release" Hill was tough. Hill was one of eight unsigned veterans.

"It's not a matter of his contract at all," Parcells said. "It's not a matter of economics at all. It's a matter of commitment in a different direction."

"I felt personally about Kenny the way I felt about Jim Burt. I have a strong personal relationship with him. It's not that he's too hurt or too old."

Adrian White, Greg Cox and Tom Flynn will battle to replace Hill, who last season was fourth on the team with 74 tackles.

Tom Toner, an adviser to the 31-year-old Hill, said Hill feels he can play another two seasons despite being hampered by chronically bad ankles.

The Los Angeles Raiders chose Hill from Yale in the 1980 draft and traded him in 1984 to the Giants for a seventh-round pick.

Meanwhile, All-Pro linebacker Lawrence Taylor took his physical and participated in an afternoon workout after sitting out the first day of camp Monday.

Other news from training camp sites:

New York Jets: The Jets reached contract agreement with the second-round draft choice Dennis Byrd, leaving only first-round pick Jeff Lageman unsigned.

A defensive end from Tulsa, he is expected to provide a pass rush from what was Mark Gastineau's position.

Lagemaier, a linebacker from Virginia, and five veterans — three-time Pro Bowl receiver Al Tonon, receiver Wesley Walker, running back Johnny Rector, defensive lineman Keith Arthur and tackle Reggie McElroy — continued their holdouts.

Denver Broncos: Quarterback John Elway will get to call his own plays and will be lined up on him after only one game.

"I'd say his fastball was outstanding," manager Bobb Valentine said. "They didn't even put his fastball in play. Nobody got around on his fastball."

But that was with little consolation to the native of Maracibo, Venezuela, who was called up from Tulsa last Friday when Charlie Hough went on the 15-day disabled list with soreness in his right shoulder.

Alvarez gave up a leadoff single to Junior Felix, consecutive home runs to Tony Fernandez and Kelly Gruber and two walks before Valentine came to get him.

The 35.75 fans gave Alvarez a prolonged ovation and Valentine patted him on the back and told him not to get down.

Kings, Robinson reach accord

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Free agent defenseman Larry Robinson and the Los Angeles Kings have reached an agreement in principle on a contract, leaving it up to the Montreal Canadiens to either match the offer or let Robinson go.

Robinson, 38, has played with the Canadiens for 17 seasons. He became a free agent on July 1 if the Canadiens choose not to match Tuesday's offer, the Kings will not have to compensate him.

"I'm ecstatic assuming Montreal doesn't match it," Kings owner Bruce McNall said Tuesday. "Larry Robinson has probably been the best defenseman of our age. He is a guy who not only plays for the next couple of years, but he is also our only younger player enormously as well."

Montreal general manager Serge Savard indicated that the Canadiens may not match the offer. "The chances are slim that we will keep Larry in Montreal," Savard said. "If a deal with Los Angeles makes him happy, then I'm happy for him."

Newspaper reports said the Kings and Robinson agreed on a two-year contract with an option for a third year that would be worth a total of $1.5 million.

"After meeting with Bruce McNall and confirming that our

Rookie still in Rangers' future

By Arnie Stapleton
The Associated Press

ARLINGTON, Texas — Despite the brevity of his major-league career, manager Bobb Valentine said Tuesday he still sees 19-year-old Wilson Alvarez as an anchor of the Texas Rangers' pitching staff.

On Tuesday, barely a day after Alvarez pitched in his first game, the Rangers announced that Alvarez had been signed to a two-year contract with an option for a third year that would be worth a total of $1.5 million.

"After meeting with Bruce McNall and confirming that our future is now, Larry most definitely fits our needs," Kings general manager Rogie Vachon said in a statement. "He is a player of the highest caliber and his record speaks for itself throughout the league."

A two-time Norris Trophy winner as the NHL's best defenseman, Robinson has been in Los Angeles since Monday to visit and meet with the Kings.

Robinson, 6-foot-3 and 220 pounds, has 197 goals and 686 assists in 1,292 regular-season games. He has played an All-Star six times and been on six Stanley Cup championship teams since beginning his NHL career in 1972.

Alvarez, at 19 years and 4 months, is 123 days younger than Seattle's Ken Griffey Jr., who is once again the youngest player in the big leagues.

Alvarez, sitting solemnly and alone in the Rangers clubhouse a half-hour after the game, accepted teammates' pats on the back with half-smiles and an occasional shrug.

Alvarez avoided the media, telling team officials he didn't want to talk to reporters because his English was limited.

But in an interview with the Associated Press, Alvarez spoke in Spanish and said he wasn't discouraged by his shaky debut.

He said he was nervous at first, "but I saw that I can pitch here in the majors. This game will help me."

Former hoop player Ross sues Creighton University

By Jim Lilke
The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Kevin Ross left Creighton University after four years on a basketball scholarship, unable to handle an elementary school job. After seven years spent suffering the consequences, he is suing the university for failing to educate him.

"Educating him was what they planned to do with him," Marty Schwartz, Ross' lawyer, said Tuesday. "They planned to have him play basketball."

"Our hope was that Kevin would take advantage of the help that was being offered," university spokesman Steve Kline said in a telephone interview from Omaha. "He did not."

"The only thing that motivated Kevin was basketball and the thinking... was that if basketball could be used to get him to go to class, get a degree and go into the world and lead a useful life, then the whole thing was worth it."

Ross, who lives in Chicago, was out of town Tuesday and could not be reached for comment, according to Schwartz.

The lawsuit, alleging breach of contract and filed Monday in Cook County circuit court, was the latest chapter in what has become one of the most celebrated instances of an athlete suing up his eligibility.

Ross' case first gained national attention in 1982, when he enrolls in a private elementary school in Chicago to supplement his education.

"We're not out to punch holes in the entire recruiting system," Schwartz said. "What we're saying is that they were negligent in recruiting him because he was so far below the minimum skills most schools apply and Creighton is above-average as an academic institution. It's a matter of degree."

If the case proceeds, the lawsuit could have implications for many former college ballplayers.

One athletic department official compared the litigation to recently toughened academic standards enacted by the National Collegiate Athletic Association. He said it could mean fewer scholarships for inner-city student-athletes.

Collins said Tuesday that testing done on Ross before he entered Westside Prep revealed he was reading at only a second-grade level and it would have been demeaning to keep the then-24-year-old Ross in class with young children.

The lawsuit seeks unspecified damages beyond the statutory minimum of $15,000.

"We're not out to punch holes in the entire recruiting system," Schwartz said. "What we're saying is that they were negligent in recruiting him because he was so far below the minimum skills most schools apply and Creighton is above-average as an academic institution. It's a matter of degree."

Pirates give Mets no respect

By Ronald Blum
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Pittsburgh trails first-place Montreal in the games and the Pirates don't have much hope of catching up.

Though they haven't spoken about it, they do have an alternate goal.

"You can't look at the standings or who's in first," third baseman Bobby Bonilla said. "The only thing you can look at is respectability, to reach 500."

Bonilla's RBI single in the eighth inning snapped a 2-2 tie as the Pirates beat the New York Mets 4-2 Tuesday night. Pittsburgh is 42-58 after reaching a season low of 16 games under .500 by losing the opener of Sunday's doubleheader against Los Angeles.

"Nobody's ever talked about it," Bonilla said of the 500 goal. "But I'm sure everybody's thinking about it."

Barry Bonds walked with one out in the eighth off Rick Aguilera, 6-4, who relieved Bob Ojeda at the start of the inning. Jose Lind singled for his second hit in 39 at-bats and Andy Van Slyke tied out, bringing up Bonilla.

After fouling off a 3-2 pitch, he grounded a single to the left of diving second baseman Gregg Jefferies.

"I was just trying to get the ball in play," Bonilla said. "Good things happen when you put the ball in play. I wanted to hit a ground ball or a line drive. I just didn't want to pop up."

Aguilera has allowed runs in six of his last 10 appearances.

"Aggie's been wild lately compared to earlier," Mets manager Davey Johnson said. "I don't anticipate he's got problems. He's throwing the ball fine. His location is not good. I don't care how fast he throws, if he gets behind on counts and does not get the location, I don't care who he is, he can't win."

Doug Drabek, 8-7, won on his 27th birthday and snapped the Mets six-game winning streak.

He allowed six hits and one error in the first seven innings. Darryl Strawberry, who filed to right to end the seventh with runners on first and second, was his final batter.

"I was able to get it in just far enough where he could get the meaty part of the bat on it," Drabek said.

"I thought obviously, that was the biggest out of the game," Pirates manager Jim Leyland said.

New York had come back from a 2-0 deficit to the Glenn Wilson's RBI double and Mike LaVallee's run-scoring single gave the Pirates the lead in the second.

The Mets tied it in the sixth on Strawberry's RBI double and Mackey Sasser's sacrifice fly.

Jeff King hit his first big-league homer in the ninth and Bill Landrum pitched the ninth to save his job.

With the loss, the Mets fell 4½ games behind first-place Montreal, which beat Philadelphia 2-0.

Are the Orioles reliving 1988 one more time?

By Ben Walker
The Associated Press

One victory short of last year's total, the Baltimore Orioles are playing like it's 1988 again.

The Orioles lost their sixth straight game Tuesday night and lead grew even smaller, falling to the Minnesota Twins 9-3.

"We're hurting ourselves three ways. We're not pitching well, we're not fielding well and we're not hitting well," Manager Frank Robinson said. "We're just not doing anything."

Baltimore's losing streak is its longest of the season. Its lead, 7½ games last week, was cut to 4½ by Toronto and the rest of the division is catching up.

The Orioles have lost the first five games of a 14-game road trip. Their longest in 14 years. They have been outscored 30-10 in the six losses.

Pussycat Tigers mired in a woeful campaign

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Detroit Tigers, World Series champions of 1984 and contending team throughout the 1980s, aren't thriving in 1989.

The team that finished one game out of the American League East lead last year is mired in last this time around. Even after a 7-2 victory at Milwaukee Tuesday night, the Tigers have a 34-63 record and trail division-leading Baltimore by 19 games.

Manager Sparky Anderson says a season-long string of injuries is a big factor in the team's changing fortunes.

"Nobody could predict 17 players on the disabled list," said Anderson, who has already used

14 different starting pitchers this year. "We've lost everybody."

"At times, we had games in Anaheim that we had only two guys we could use in our bullpen. We had games won and lost them because we didn't have anybody available."

"I've never seen a year with this many injuries in my life," Anderson said. "I expect to see more with the Tigers in the dean of American League managers."

Only the Los Angeles Dodgers' Tommy Lasorda has a longer tenure, having managed the Dodgers since 1972.

Anderson, who managed the Cincinnati Reds from 1970-78,

May, said his resolve is as strong as ever.

"This is my 20th year. I've had 19 marvellous years," he said. "I've been on five World Series teams. You can't have life good all the time."

"How about the poor guys out there who have had to suffer over the years with bad clubs year after year? I always felt bad for them, but I understand now how they really felt."

However, things could be worse, Anderson said.

"Losing is an aggravation, but it isn't life or death," he said. "You must never lose sight of what's important."

BOSTON (AP) - Boston reliever Lee Smith was fined an undisclosed amount Tuesday for missing a trip to Cooperstown, N.Y., for the Hall of Fame exhibition game.

Smith, who is earning $1.4 million this year, was believed to be fined only a small sum, possibly around $50 for missing the team's 8 a.m. flight Monday.

FOOD

Cook foods in microwave before putting on grill

Dad's domain may be the grill in the back yard, but you can teach him a microwave trick that will be the key to his kingdom.

Cook microwave meats, poultry and vegetables until they're half done before putting them on the grill. Then you'll get charcoaled and beautifully browned results instead of foods that are burnt on the outside and raw in the center.

For best results, microwave the food just before putting it on the grill so that it will stay hot and cook continuously. As in usual microwave cooking, arrange foods in a microwave-safe dish with the thicker part toward the outside of the dish and the thin or bony areas in the center. Cover with waxed paper.

Precook chicken, cornish game hens, turkey and roasts 4 to 10 minutes per pound on high power, turning top to bottom midway through cooking. Use the same timing for spareribs, but pour a cup of water over them first. Microwaving them this way removes half the fat and tenderizes them. After microwaving, pour off water or accumulated juices so that when you place the meat or poultry on the grill you won't put out the fire.

Steaks, shish kebabs and hamburger patties do not need pre-cooking. However, if you want to be fuel-efficient, grill extras while the coals are lit and hot. Undercook them slightly, cool and freeze. Frozen grilled foods can be defrosted and reheated on the microwave oven at a later date and they will taste like they were just grilled.

Remove freezer wrappings and microwave on 75% (medium-high) power until defrosted and desired serving temperature.

To cook fresh corn on the cob, remove husk and silk. Wash and place the ears of corn in a microwave safe dish and cover it with plastic wrap. Microwave on high for 2 minutes per ear. Butter and wrap each ear in aluminum foil. Grill for about 10 minutes.

Summer squashes, such as zucchini and yellow crookneck, grill best when cut in half lengthwise. Place squash halves cut-side down in a dish and cover it with plastic wrap. Microwave on high for 2 minutes per pound. Drain accumulated liquid and baste squash with an oil-based salad dressing before grilling to desired doneness.

Hot and spicy barbecued spareribs
3 to 3 1/2 cups country-style spareribs.
1 cup water
4 tablespoons margarine
1 cup ketchup
1/2 cup red wine vinegar
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 teaspoons dry mustard
1 teaspoon liquid smoke
1/2 to 1 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
2 to 4 dashes hot pepper sauce

Arrange spareribs in a single layer in a 2 quart rectangular glass casserole. Pour water over spareribs and cover with waxed paper. Turn ribs over mid-way through cooking. Microwave on high power for 15 minutes. Pour off water and accumulated juices.
To make barbecue sauce, place margarine in a 4 cup glass measure. Microwave on high 40 to 60 seconds, or until melted. Add ketchup, vinegar, Worcestershire sauce, brown sugar, onion, mustard, liquid smoke, cayenne pepper, garlic powder and hot pepper. Microwave on high for 10-12 minutes, or until mixture begins to boil.

Grill ribs over a medium fire for 20 to 30 minutes. Place squash halves cut-side down in a dish and cover it with plastic wrap. Microwave on high for 2 minutes per pound. Drain accumulated liquid and remaining sauce into a jar and refrigerate for later use. Yields 4 servings, and 2 cups of barbecue sauce.

Tangy lemon grilled chicken
3 tablespoons olive oil
3 tablespoons red wine vinegar
1 teaspoon dried oregano leaves
1/2 teaspoon coarse ground pepper
1 cut up chicken, or chicken pieces, approximately 2 1/2 to 3 pounds

Trim excess fat from meat. Cut meat into 1 inch pieces. Place in a plastic bag set in a bowl. Add oil, wine, onion, garlic, Worcestershire sauce and salt to the meat in the bag. Combine well. Close bag and refrigerate overnight.
Cut potatoes into 1 inch pieces. Combine potatoes and water in a 2 quart casserole and cover with a lid or plastic wrap. Microwave on high for 8 minutes. Break corn in half. Add corn and broccoli to potatoes. Cover. Microwave on high for 4 to 5 minutes, or until vegetables are just tender. Let stand, covered, for 5 minutes.

Thread meat and vegetables alternately on skewers with corn placed near the center of the kabob and skewer running lengthwise through corn. Place skewers on grill above hot fire. Brush on marinade mixture. Grill for about 13 minutes, or until meat is desired doneness. Turn skewers occasionally and brushing with additional marinade. Yields 4 servings.

Barbecued corn on the cob
1 to 6 ears fresh corn
chili pepper
Remove silks and silk from desired number of ears of fresh corn. Rinse in cool water and put them in a 2 quart rectangular glass dish. Cover with plastic wrap. Microwave on high for 2 to 2 1/2 minutes per ear.

For each ear of corn use a 12-inch piece of aluminum foil. Place one ear in the center of each piece of foil. Butter each ear of corn and sprinkle with chili pepper, salt and pepper. Bring sides of foil together over the ear of corn, and fold it in several times until it is flat against the corn. Twist each end into a ponytail to hold the foil together.

Place wrapped corn on the outdoor grill for about 10 minutes.

Beef shish kababs
1 1/2 pounds sirloin steak, cut in 1 inch pieces
1/2 cup oil
1/2 cup red wine
1 small onion, sliced
1 clove garlic, minced
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon salt
3 medium potatoes, scrubbed
1/2 cup water
2 medium ears corn, husked
12 spears broccoli (about 8 ounces)

Soft pretzels now contain oat bran

By Bonnie Tandy Leblong and Carolyn Wyman

SUPERPRETZEL OAT BRAN SOFT PRETZELS, $2.99-2.19 per 15-oz. box of six frozen baked pretzels.

Carolyn: Whoever decided to categorize pretzels as a snack must have been a registered dietician. The only really tasty thing about the little ones sold in stores is the salt. The giant soft pretzels sold in convenience food stores and by city street vendors taste more like bread than anything else.

Not content with this degree of wholesomeness, the people who made these big pretzels for the microwave decided to make them even better for you by adding oat bran. While they do have some what darker taste than regular pretzels, the kind of people who buy (and presumably like) pretzels are probably not going to mind.

Bonnie: Just when I thought there wasn't anything else to grill out bran into, here I come a manufacturer with a heat-and-

RITZ BISCUITS SANDWICHES WITH PEANUT BUTTER, $2.39 per 10.5-oz. box.

Ritz Biscuits Sandwiches are also high in fat compared to other crackers. In fact, in terms of fat, these are not almost as bad as eating potato chips.

Bonnie: Six of these new Ritz Biscuits crackers sandwiched with peanut butter have the same amounts of calories and sodium

Meals on Wheels

The following are the meals to be served to Meals on Wheels clients for the week of July 31 through Aug. 4. The hot noon meal is listed first and the cool evening meal second.

Monday: Tomato juice, Manhattan chicken salad, potato salad, beef, green peas and red peppers, tossed salad, fresh fruit cup.
Tuesday: Minestrone soup, oven fried fish, hash brown

Barbecue-style beef tortillas

1 pound beef flank steak
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped celery
1 tablespoon water
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon chili powder
1/2 teaspoon dried basil, crushed

Partially freeze beef. Very thinly slice across the grain into bite-size strips. In microwave safe 2-quart casserole, mix together onion, celery, 1 tablespoon water, vinegar, dry mustard, chili powder, basil, salt and garlic powder. Stir in beef, covered, on 100 percent power, 10 minutes, stirring once.

Carolee: I'm already choking on the price. No bag of leaves is worth $1.30 even if they are fresh. This culinary hucksterism is obviously aimed at those status-seeking consumers of fresh refrigerated pasta and gourmet coffees. But don't you be suckered in.

FORCED MARCH - Women rounded up by District of Columbia police Tuesday from an area frequented by prostitutes were ordered to walk out of town to Virginia, a mile and a half away. Police officials are investigating.

Police roundup criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) - District of Columbia police said they were investigating a week-long incident in which some officers rounded up 24 women from downtown street frequented by prostitutes and ordered them to march to Virginia, 1.4 miles away, on Tuesday and forced to walk down the left lane of 14th Street, across the business district and over the Mall, grumbling all the way. They said they were taking us to Virginia, that a woman who identified herself as a prostitute named Toni, "said we'd go to jail if we stopped."

Nuclear gas customers shorted

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Energy Department said Tuesday it had suspended shipments of tritium to commercial customers from the Oak Ridge National Laboratory in Tennessee because of European customer complaints of short weights. The department said headquarters staffers, Oak Ridge employees and staff members of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, whose export licenses govern overseas shipments, are reviewing measurement and loading operations at Oak Ridge. Tritium, a radioactive gas, is a major component of many nuclear weapons, but it also has commercial, research and medical uses. An atom of tritium is simply a hydrogen atom with two neutrons instead of none. Tritium is used in luminous signs, such as aircraft exit signs, and for runway markers in remote areas like Alaska. Half of any original amount decays in 12.5 years.

Chemical landfill forces relocation of residents

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) - Rose Douglas' son played with a yellowish resin near their mobile home and ate vegetables grown from her garden. On Tuesday, the federal government confirmed what she had feared for most of the 9 1/2 years she'd lived at the Forest Glen trailer park: The site is heavily polluted with carcinogenic chemical wastes. Like the situation in nearby Love Canal 10 years ago, the government said the site poses "a significant risk to human health." It is offering to pay to relocate temporarily some 51 families under a voluntary program. Echoing the comments of many of the 130 or so people living on the 11-acre site, Douglas wants out. But she wants the government to pay for a permanent move. "It's that bad that they have to temporarily relocate us, why not just buy us out?" she asked. A Federal Environmental Protection Agency spokesman, Richard Salkie, said the contamination is so pervasive he thinks every resident eventually will have to leave for good. "Any further remedial action could not be performed without totally disrupting the trailers that are on the site," he said. "It's that bad that they have to temporarily relocate us, why not just buy us out?" she asked.
