Israelis kidnap Moslem

By Mohammed Salam
The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Israeli commandos today kidnapped a Shiite Moslem leader who is considered Iran's closest ally and whose sources say was linked to the abduction of U.S. Lt. Col. William R. Higgins.

Police said Sheik Abdul Karim Obeid, 33, was kidnapped from his second-floor apartment in the village of Jibchit, 21 miles north of the border with Israel. A curious neighbor was killed by the commandos, police said.

Obeid is reputed to be the spiritual guide of Hezbollah, or Party of God, in south Lebanon. However, he has repeatedly denied links with the pro-Iranian group, which is affiliated with factions holding most of the 17 foreign hostages in Lebanon. Nine Americans are among the hostages.

Security sources in south Lebanon, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Higgins was briefly held at Obeid's apartment after his abduction in south Lebanon on Feb. 17, 1988.

One source said the late leader of the mainstream Shiite Moslem Amal militia in south Lebanon, Daoud Daoud, sent "a group of his followers to obtain Higgins' release from Obeid's apartment, but the force was encircled by Hezbollah gunmen, stripped of its weapons and sent back."

The source said Higgins' kidnapers, the Organization of the Oppressed on Earth, later took the American marine out of Jibchit to another village in south Lebanon and then to the slums of south Beirut.

Daoud and Mahmoud Faqih, another Amal leader, were assassinated by unknown gunmen in south Beirut's seaside suburb of Ouzal on Sept. 22, 1988. Amal

GOP picks slate for elections

By Alex Girelli
Manchester Herald

Republicans can beat the Democrats in the Nov. 7 election if they work together as a team, former state Sen. Carl A. Zinsner told members of the Manchester Republican Town Committee Thursday after they had endorsed a full slate.

"If you have anything bad to say about any of these candidates, save it for Nov. 8," said Zinsner, a member of the Republican State Central Committee.

The votes to endorse the slate proposed by the nominating committee were unanimous.

Almost all the candidates in their acceptance speeches echoed the theme that it is time for a change and that the party has the best chance it has had in years to take control from the Democratic Party.

Republican Town Chairman John Garaide said, "It's up to us to get our message out to the people of Manchester and prove that now is the time for a change. Let's do it. Let's win it all."

Garaide said, "We will not submit to the Democratic hierarchy that has already tried to set the tone of the campaign by using the description 'doom and gloom.'"

Zinsner said it was not the Republican Party that was responsible for the failed tax revaluation that cost the town $800,000 or for locating an addition to the sewer plant on wetlands. The town was fined $150,000 for the wetlands.

House votes gut defense package

By Lawrence L. Knutson
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The White House is counting on the Senate to rescue President Bush's defense priorities from a House vote gutting or cutting back virtually every major strategic weapons program.

In two days of votes on a $295-billion defense authorization bill, the House ignored White House and Pentagon lobbying and turned Bush's defense priorities on their head.

It restored funds for conventional aircraft discarded by the Pentagon while suspending most production of the radar-evading stealth bomber. It cut money for the Star Wars missile defense system, stripped funds intended to make the MX missile a mobile weapon and eliminated all of the $100 million provided for the Midgetman missile.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said the House had "shredded" Bush's defense priorities to produce "a Michael Dukakis defense bill."

The Senate, meanwhile, only narrowly turned aside a strong bid to freeze research and development of the Star Wars strategic defense initiative. It tabled the amendment offered by Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., 59-47.

But that action may result in the chamber retaining needed leverage to resist House cuts on that and other weapons systems.

The Senate will need all the leverage it can muster when representatives of the two bodies meet in conference to resolve the many differences between the two bills.

Senators are to continue their consideration of the measure next week.

"We are watching the strategic position of the administration unwind step by step on the floor of the House," said Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

"It is important that we not emasculate this program," Nunn said as the vote neared on an amendment to cut Star Wars by $56 million in addition to the $400 million trimmed earlier by the Senate panel.

If the Senate does not come out with a reasonable budget on all strategic programs, then we are going to be going to conference in a hopeless situation," he said.

The House adopted its version of the bill, 261-162.

Ferguson decides to keep works job

By Alex Girelli
Manchester Herald

Thomas H. Ferguson, whose appointment as public works commissioner of the Eighth Utilities District has sparked criticism, said today he will stay on.

Ferguson, who said earlier this week he might resign, said he decided to keep the post after giving it "a lot of thought."

He was named to the post July 17 over former commissioner Samuel Longest, a heavy equipment operator who had held the post for 12 years.

Critics have charged that district President Thomas E. Landers moved for Ferguson's appointment because Longest had supported Landers' opponent in the district elections.

Ferguson said, "The president, who was elected by popular vote, called on me to fill the position and the Board of Directors approved his choice."

Ferguson, a real estate salesman, said Landers felt he needed an administration he could trust.

"As for Sam (Longest), I respect the years he put in on the job and I feel badly that this has come out this way. I certainly hope he'll be there in an advisory capacity," Ferguson said.

When the appointments for commissioner posts were made at the July 17 meeting, Landers' list of recommended appointments did not include Longest.

He named Ferguson, a newly-elected director instead.

The directors voted 4 to 2, with one director absent, to approve the appointments. Longest and

Electric Boat moves to ban inciteful language, behavior

GROTON (AP) — Dozens of Electric Boat employees have shown up at work in black T-shirts depicting a dagger and bearing a derogatory message about workers who crossed picket lines during last year's strike, but come next week those shirts won't be permitted.

Effective Monday, new management rules will ban T-shirts and buttons that have "threatening and inciteful" language. They will also ban certain behaviors, such as making catcalls, attempting to isolate workers and using the word scab and vulgar and offensive adjectives.

The complaints came from strike breakers, new hires and other employees, Ruenzel said.

The 8,400 members of EB's blue-collar workforce will not receive a copy of the new guidelines. But employees were sent a letter dated July 27, reminding them that abuse or harassment of other workers is grounds for formal disciplinary action and possible dismissal.

The letter, signed by Donald G. Norman, EB's vice president for human resources, makes specific reference to the ban on clothing and buttons considered inciteful.

Rapist was product of early-release plan

By Maureen Leavitt
Manchester Herald

Convicted rapist Robert S. Fontaine was the product of a state prison system crowded beyond capacity.

Four months after he was let out of prison thanks to the state's early release program, the 25-year-old Manchester man was back behind bars, this time charged with the rape of three women.

Fontaine, of 82 Hollister St., was released from prison on Sept. 1, 1988 after serving nine months of a 3½-year jail term for stealing a purse from an elderly woman.

On Tuesday he pleaded guilty under the state's Alford Doctrine to three counts of first-degree sexual assault. He also pleaded guilty to first-degree robbery, first-degree attempted escape, first-degree reckless endangerment and first-degree assault on a police officer. He faces a maximum prison sentence of 10½ years.

Fontaine is one of thousands of prisoners released through the program since it began in 1982. While state corrections officials say only a small percentage of those released are repeat offenders, critics of the system aren't so sure.

State Rep. James R. McCavanagh, D-Manchester, said more has to be done to rehabilitate criminals before they are released.

"We have to help deal with that, so when they do come out, they don't come back to society as prepared offenders," McCavanagh said.

William Flower, spokesman for the state Department of Corrections, said cases such as Fontaine's are bound to occur, given the number of inmates involved in the release program.

"These are people who have gotten into trouble before," Flower said. "The good news is that they do not happen in big numbers."

When the supervised home release program began in Connecticut in 1982, it was designed to prepare inmates nearing the end of their prison term to be reintroduced into society.

Today, the state Department of Corrections admits it relies on the program as a stop-gap measure to relieve the severe overcrowding affecting the state's correctional facilities.

Flower admits the state is allowing far too many inmates back into society before they are ready. The way the program operates now, inmates believe they are entitled to be released, Flower said.

Thoughts

As he was questioned about his own importance, John the Baptist pointed to someone other than himself. "I baptize with water," John replied, "but among you stands one you do not know. He is the one who comes after me, the things of whose sandals I am not worthy to untie."
As he was questioned about his own fame, John the Baptist freely confessed who he was not. "I am the voice of one calling in the desert," make straight the way for the Lord."
John the Baptist freely witnessed to those needing to hear the transforming message of the Christ, who would change their lives forever.
John knew what we must know. To bring the greatest glory to God we must die to ourselves.

SOLEMN PROCESSION — Rabbi Leon Wind of Temple Beth Shalom, Manchester, leads pallbearers carrying the casket of Phillip Harrison out of the Weinstein Mortuary in Hartford Thursday.

Harrison treasured humanity over success as businessman

By Nancy Conzelmann
Manchester Herald

Temple Beth Shalom on East Middle Turnpike stands as a monument to former downtown business owner Phillip Harrison, who died Tuesday and left behind a legacy of love and dedication. Rabbi Leon Wind told friends and family at Harrison's funeral Thursday.
About 100 people gathered at the Weinstein Mortuary at 440 Farmington Ave. in Hartford for the service, including Harrison's family, friends, Main Street business people and those who served with him in town organizations and on boards and commissions.
Harrison, who had cancer, died Tuesday at the age of 72.
He owned Harrison's Stations at 946 Main St., was a member of the Manchester Board of Directors, a former president of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce and a member of numerous town organizations, including the Democratic Town Committee, Economic Development Commission and Service Corps for Retired Executives.
Wind said he met Harrison 43 years ago when Harrison moved to Manchester from New Haven to take over his father's greeting card and gift store, which later became Harrison's Stations.
Harrison joined the temple and was elected president of the synagogue in 1969, when Temple Beth Shalom was trying in vain to move from cramped quarters on Myrtle and Linden streets.
As president, Harrison spearheaded the effort to get the new synagogue at 400 E. Middle Turnpike built. Wind said.
"With a rare enthusiasm and devotion he began the arduous task of erecting a new building," Wind said.
When Harrison's term as president ended three years later, the new synagogue had been built.
"His great legacy to the Manchester Jewish community," Wind said, "is that the synagogue is only part of a larger legacy Harrison left behind, one of love, affection and devotion to his family, and commitment to his business and the community as a whole. Wind said.
But the synagogue is only part of a larger legacy Harrison left behind, one of love, affection and devotion to his family, and commitment to his business and the community as a whole. Wind said.
As great as he was as a friend and a community leader, he was 100 times greater as a husband and a father. Susan Rashid of Houston, Tex., one of Harrison's twin daughters, told those who gathered to pay their respects Thursday.
Rashid said her father loved to write letters and she read part of a letter he had recently sent her. In it he told her what counted most in life — "not wealth or power but humanity."
"Great athletes are revealed to have clay feet and outstanding financiers have gone astray; but (humanity) will still hopefully shape a better world," Harrison wrote.

1990 revaluation zips along with no snafus

By Nancy Conzelmann
Manchester Herald

Thanks to the cooperation of local property owners, the 1990 revaluation is moving right along with 55 percent of the property inspections completed. Town Assessor Michael A. Bekech said today.
Appraisers for KVS Systems of Amherst, N.Y., the company conducting the revaluation, are conducting interior and exterior inspections of residential, industrial and commercial properties to determine values for the Oct. 1, 1990 Grand List.
They have completed exterior inspections of 8,055 residential properties and 6,009 interior inspections, according to a report from the Assessor's office prepared for the Board of Directors. The total number of residential properties to be inspected is 15,444.
That adds up to a rate of entry of 74.6 percent, which means appraisers have gotten into those residences on the first try, without having to set up an appointment, Bekech said.
"That is actually far better than the average," Bekech said. "We've gotten an excellent reception from the public."

Coventry Republicans deny Sullivan's endorsement bid

By Jacqueline Bennett
Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — Town Council member James Sullivan lost his bid for endorsement by the Republican Town Committee Thursday as a surprisingly large turnout endorsed candidates for the November election.
"What you're seeing here tonight is a caucus dominated by the rank and file, not the party faithful," said Richard Ashley, who was elected chairman of the caucus by the Republican Town Committee at the meeting held at the Town Office Building.
Ashley said he had no explanation as to why Sullivan was not re-nominated, but he said the vote was close among the nearly 50 committee members who attended.
Sullivan's wife, Ellen Sullivan, an incumbent seeking re-election to the Board of Education, was endorsed by the Republican Town Committee.
Following the caucus, James Sullivan said he would not comment on what took place as he and his wife quickly left.
Sullivan has at times opposed the Democratic endorsement to the Town Council. He is the only Republican on the council or on the Board of Education who has opposed two budgets that would have meant tax rate increases for the town.
Town Council member Mark Soltys and his wife, Patricia Soltys, a member of the Board of Education, did not seek re-election because they are moving out of town.
A motion from Joyce Carrilli-Bellard that voting take place by secret paper ballots was supported unanimously.
The endorsed slate includes some nominees put forth by the nominating committee and some others.
For the Town Council, the endorsed candidates are Harvey Barrette, a private building contractor, Joyce Carrilli-Bellard, housewife; Blanche Strater, who works in real estate in East Hartford; Roland Green, retired from Prudential Insurance; and Steven Clarke, a part-time professor of chemistry at Eastern Connecticut State University.
Bellard and Strater have served on previous councils and Strater is currently a member of the town Planning and Zoning Commission.
Nominees for the council who were not endorsed include James Sullivan and Lawrence Carrilli-Bellard, both endorsed by the nominating committee, and Elizabeth Dimela, currently an alternate member of the Planning and Zoning Commission. Candidates as alternates for the Board of Education are incumbent Gary Elliot and Frederick Pogmore. Candidates for the Board of Tax Review are incumbent R. James Cook and Edward P. Strater.
Sullivan, who is Green's daughter, has served on the board.
Nominees for the board who lost their bids for endorsement are Tom Sohr, recommended by the nominating committee, and challengers Constance Lathrop and Wendy McMahon.
Strater, chairman of the "Republican Town Committee," said the overflow of candidates was a complete surprise to her. She said until Thursday night the party had not had enough candidates for a full slate.
Ashley said what happened is good.
"Whenever you have an influx of new people with new enthusiasm, that's good," he said.
Candidates for the Zoning Board of Appeals are Elizabeth Dimela, currently an alternate member of the Planning and Zoning Commission. Candidates as alternates for the Board of Tax Review are incumbent R. James Cook and Edward P. Strater.

Structural problems on bridge are too expensive to fix now

By Nancy Conzelmann
Manchester Herald

A recent state inspection of the Prospect Street bridge over Hop Brook revealed structural problems that could jeopardize the safety of travelers, but no town and state funding is available now to fix it.
For now, the town will have to settle for temporary safety measures because no local funds are available for bridge repairs and the state's Local Bridge Program fund for 1989 has been exhausted, town Public Works Director Peter P. Lozis Jr. said in July 25 memo to Town Manager Richard J. Lozis.
The state Department of Transportation's annual inspection of a couple of weeks ago revealed that the parapet on the western side of the bridge is deteriorating and probably could not withstand the impact of a vehicle. Engineering Services Director William Camosci said today.
The parapet is made of clay tile that is plastered over. The tile has extensive deterioration, Lozis said in his memo. Structural steel reinforcing the beams on the west side is also deteriorating, and steel is exposed on a number of other beams, Lozis said.
The town has put barriers in front of the parapet to protect vehicles and give the town time to hire a bridge engineer to plan repairs. Camosci said. The barriers reduce the width of the bridge by about 3 feet.
The state may cover 50 percent of the repair project using Local Bridge Program funds, but the town probably wouldn't receive money until next year, when the state is expected to appropriate $7.5 million for that program.
Lozis recommended that the town hire a consulting engineer who specializes in bridge repair to inspect the bridge, prepare contract documents for repair and apply for state funding.
Camosci said a car hit the parapet several years ago and damaged it. Repairs were made but the parapet is weakening, he said. Last year's inspection by the DOT revealed no significant problems with the parapet, he said.

Gaming board skeptical of projections

NEWINGTON — Members of the state Gaming Policy Board may think that estimates of how much the state can expect from lotteries and other legal gambling are too rosy, but the head of the office that made the estimates calls them "realistic, attainable."

On Thursday, all three members of the board expressed concern about the estimate by Albert S. Acayan on lotteries, jai alai, dog racing and off-track betting.

Acayan, the chief of administration in the Division of Special Revenue, stood by the numbers but acknowledged "we are being optimistic for this current fiscal year."

His office expects that state-run gaming will generate $283.7 million in revenues for the state in the year that began July 1. That compares with the $266.7 million brought in in 1988-89, which was $7 million less than Acayan's office had projected.

"I'm a little bit concerned about being optimistic" in light of the 1988-89 revenues, said gaming board member Roland H. Lange after Acayan presented his report.

"We missed (the estimate) by $17 million," said board member Nelson C. Brown, shaking his head.

Acayan also noted that his estimate was $20 million below that used by Gov. William A. O'Neill to help balance the 1989-90 budget and about $10 million less than the estimate adopted by the General Assembly.

Board Chairman Bruce D. Cowen said the board would "stay tuned" for Acayan's monthly reports and said the board could do little more than wish Acayan luck.

Acayan blamed most of last year's shortfall on lagging lottery revenues, which he said were $3 million less than had been predicted.

"This year, he noted, the agency has begun to hold Sunday draw-

Lawyer could return to face charges

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (AP) — A New Britain Conn. attorney, who disappeared in September, may soon return to Connecticut to face allegations that he swindled more than $1 million from clients, authorities said.

William M. Buzanoski, 44, was arrested by two investigators from the Florida State's Attorney's office around 4 p.m. Wednesday as he stepped out of his car, according to news reports.

He acted like he was somewhat surprised, but there was no resistance," said Joseph Coram, an investigator with the Florida State's Attorney's office.

Buzanoski, who left behind two wives when he disappeared, had been living in Florida under his own name since April and working as a bartender at a popular Panama City restaurant, the newspaper reported.

Buzanoski is charged in Florida with being a fugitive from justice. He faces several charges of first-degree larceny in Connecticut.

He was being held without bond at the Correction Corp. of America, a private prison in Panama City, said Officer Max Gauthier.

Gauthier said Buzanoski had signed papers waiving extradition to Connecticut Thursday in Dade County Court.

Connecticut Chief State's Attorney John J. Kelly was out of town and could not be reached for comment Thursday night on whether Buzanoski would be returned to Connecticut.

Dozens of complaints from Buzanoski's former clients detail bogus investment schemes. Josephine Lewandowski of New Britain told the committee that Buzanoski had convinced her she could earn 18 percent interest with investments in a bogus Bahamas investment. She gave Buzanoski $77,500, according to committee documents and was forced to move to government-subsidized housing following the loss of the money.

Lewandowski said she had hired Buzanoski to write a will and that he mentioned the investment to her before her financial records.

A New Britain couple, Jan and Jadwiga Kaluz, lost $85,000 through a similar scheme, authorities said.

Buzanoski came from attorneys who hired the attorney for their work that was never completed.

Abortion decision prompts Cohen to quit

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — This week's decision by Mount Sinai Hospital to cease performing abortions has prompted state Rep. Naomi K. Cohen to resign from the hospital's board of trustees.

Cohen, a Bloomfield Democrat, said Thursday the decision moves the hospital in "the wrong direction" and that it would hurt poor women, denying them full access to safe abortions.

Mount Sinai officials said they would no longer perform abortions for two reasons: they lose about $1 million a year doing them and their growing affiliation with St. Francis Hospital and Medical Center, which, as a Catholic institution, bars abortions.

Hospital spokeswoman Susan Lewis said there would be no comment on Cohen's resignation from the 54-member board of trustees.

In a letter to Mount Sinai President Robert B. Bruner, Cohen said the hospital for years had done a good job in providing health care to the poor of Hartford's North End, where the hospital is located.

"How ironic it is to efforts to cure financial problems and keep Mount Sinai open that serve a low-income patient population is being the net effect of reducing services to poor women," she said in her letter to Bruner. "These women, she said, have had 'barriers put in their way again as they seek safe, legal medical abortions.'"

"It's the wrong direction for the hospital to choose and unfortunate that we are not focused on patient care but rather on profit margins," said Cohen.

She also noted that the 2,000 abortions performed each year at Mount Sinai represent 10 percent of all abortions performed in the state each year. Cutting off those services, she added, "is unacceptable. Connecticut women cannot tolerate the loss of options for medical services."

But as the evening wore on, it appeared a compromise reached earlier in the week had unraveled, leaving the nominating convention in shambles and party leaders searching for an acceptable candidate.

The Democratic nominee will face Mayor Joseph J. Santopietro, a Republican, in the November election. Santopietro was first elected to the post in 1986, defeating the heavily favored Bergrin.

A third candidate could also be on the ballot: George Flaherty, a history teacher and political novice who failed in his bid to win the Democratic nomination. He said he would run as an independent, rather than in the Democratic primary.

Fist fight, surprises mark mayoral races

There was a fist-fight in Bridgeport, a deal collapsed in Waterbury and a hard-fought race was won by a political newcomer in New Haven as Democrats in the three Connecticut cities turned out to endorse mayoral candidates.

A fist-fight erupted in the packed banquet hall of the Days Inn Hotel when, at one point, Democrats Michael M. Rizzitelli and Mario Testi, Bucci's cousin and a former state lawmaker, exchanged punches.

Bucci's challengers, who still may file petition drives, include state Rep. Jacqueline M. Cocco and Robert T. Keeley Jr.; Charles B. Thibault, the party's nominee in 1983; Joseph Galina, a lawyer; Leonard L. Crone, a

NU buyout plan would require rate increases

By Michael Makrzycki
The Associated Press

CONCORD, N.H. — A Connecticut utility's new $1.9 billion bid for Public Service Company of New Hampshire — now including its lead share of the Seabrook nuclear power plant — won conditional approval from state officials but got a cool reception from some key creditors.

Gov. Judd Gregg, who disclosed the deal with NU on Thursday, acknowledged that it would require new legislation. But he and NU officials maintained that it would not circumvent the state law against charges for utility construction work in progress.

The new proposal by the Berlin, Conn.-based NU, New England's largest utility, calls for rate increases of 5.5 percent a year for seven years if Seabrook operates commercially, with another 1.1 percent a year for five of those seven years if the reactor never runs and power must be bought elsewhere.

Gregg described the rate increases as about the same as the expected rate of inflation. He said the state reserves the right to take a better offer if one is made earlier this year for five of those seven years if the reactor never runs and power must be bought elsewhere.

offer to take over Public Service, but not its 35 percent Seabrook share. NU valued that bid at $2.2 billion cash, plus $800 million in equity for the Seabrook share, which would have been spun off into a separate company owned by Public Service's unsecured creditors.

"But we hit one major roadblock — creditors were simply uninterested in owning Seabrook," NU's chairman, William Ellis, said in a separate news conference in Concord shortly after Gregg's.

NU now owns 44 percent of Seabrook, and Ellis said NU officials "had to think long and hard" about proposing to become work in progress.

"Seabrook is not operating. Although we believe it will reach commercial operation, there is still a certain amount of risk," Ellis said.

Robert Busch, NU's chief financial officer, predicted Seabrook will start commercial operation next May. The $1.9 billion plant was completed three years ago but still lacks a commercial license because of evacuation planning obstacles.

Ellis said NU proposes taking over management of Seabrook once the plant gets a commercial license. He predicted that prospect would strengthen Seabrook's chances of getting licensed because NU already successfully operates four of New England's eight nuclear power reactors.

Rafsanjani begins forming a cabinet

By Alex Efty
The Associated Press

TEHRAN, Iran — Hashemi Rafsanjani, all but assured of victory in today's presidential election, has begun forming a cabinet that includes economists and technocrats to help guide this troubled nation into the post-Khomeini era, sources say.

Only a few dozen people were seen at polling stations in Tehran after they opened at 7 a.m. Streets filled later as thousands of people headed for the Tehran University campus for weekly Muslim prayer sessions and to vote at polling stations there.

Balls were to close at 5 p.m., but officials said they may allow ballots to be cast until midnight.

Rafsanjani voted at a special booth in the courtyard of the modest residence that belonged to the late Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini in the north Tehran suburb of Jamaran.

Rafsanjani cast two votes in separate boxes — one for the presidential ballot, the other for a referendum on whether to in-

CASTS BALLOT — Hashemi Rafsanjani votes today in Iran's presidential election. Rafsanjani, the expected winner, has already begun putting together a cabinet.

Elks say no to admitting women

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The all-male Elks organization voted Thursday to remain all-male but approved a proposal that could make it easier for non-white men to join the fraternal order.

Votes on the proposals were made during a closed business meeting on the final day of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks 123th annual convention.

Members voted by raising their hands and an exact count wasn't made, said Donald Dapelo, the newly installed Grand Exalted Ruler.

"I wouldn't say it was close, not at all," Dapelo said of the vote against admitting women. "I'd say it was overwhelmingly defeated."

Approved was a proposal to eliminate the Elks' "blackball" rule. That policy allowed any three members of an Elks lodge to reject, or "blackball," a prospective member. Some said the rule made it difficult for blacks to join the Elks.

Under the new policy, a two-thirds majority of a lodge's membership could approve a new member.

An estimated 12,000 people attended the convention.

Members of the Elks donate their time and money to everything from rodeos to pancake breakfasts, and local chapters run such projects as providing college scholarships and funding hot-lunch programs for senior citizens.

Atlantic City corruption is charged

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The seaside resort that once looked to Mayor James L. Usry to end a legacy of corruption has seen him and others charged in conspiracies that include bribes, illegal gifts and extortion.

The City Council president and zoning board chairman also were among those arrested on corruption charges Thursday after an 18th-month state investigation. A fourth person has not yet been named.

"We've been the laughingstock of the country for a long time," said Republican Assemblywoman Dolores Cooper, who lost the last non-partisan mayoral election to Usry. "This sets us back another decade."

Usry, president of the National Conference of Black Mayors, was elected Atlantic City mayor five years ago as a reformist candi-

Vietnam recalled with trading cards

NEW YORK (AP) — This pack of cards doesn't come with a stick of gum, and the "VIETNAM" emblazoned in red across its wrapper is a clear sign it won't be the right Gooden or Jose Canseco.

Inside are "Vietnam Fact Cards," part of a 68-card set developed by Canadian collector Dino Friesella, making it possible to swap two Khe Sams for a Ho Chi Minh Trail or flip Richard Nixon and LBJ cards.

"The time to make a decision on whether the war was right or wrong is long past. We thought if we just stuck with the facts — major incidents, major players — it would stir up conversation," said Friesella, whose Dart Flip Cards Inc. produced the set.

"It struck a real nerve with collectors."

Friesella didn't produce the cards as a joke or a novelty, instead, he said from his Quebec home, he hoped they would be used as an educational tool to teach youngsters about Vietnam.

"We know it's impossible to tell the story of Vietnam on the back of 68 cards, but the only way you'll start to know about it is if you can read about it," said Friesella.

Nixon and Henry Kissinger share children 8 to 14, although many have since been scooped up by collectors, he said.

The cards are 2-by-4 inches; they come a half-dozen to a pack, wrapped like baseball cards but without gum. The complete set costs $5.99. Friesella and partner Stewart Sergeant, who developed the idea about 2 1/2 years ago, printed more than 45,000 sets.

The front of most cards feature color depictions of different Vietnam events: The Battle of Xuan Loc or The Ho Chi Minh Trail. Or they depict key figures of the era: Nixon and Henry Kissinger share a card, presidents Lyndon Johnson and John F. Kennedy each have their own.

They do have one thing in common: They are baseball cards. The back is filled with information — not RBIs and home runs, but facts about whatever's on the front. The cards begin in 1945 and run through 1975.

"We had about 400 source books and hundreds of hours of tape we went through, pulling out facts and figures," said Friesella.

One of his greatest fears was angering Vietnam vets who might see the cards as trivializing the war.

Elks say no to admitting women

Some cited the resignation from the Jonesboro, Ark., chapter of a federal judicial nominee whose opponents criticized the Elks as racist and sexist. The nominee, Stephen Reasoner, became a federal judge last year despite the criticism.

Dapelo said there should be no reason for men in the public eye to worry about their membership in a fraternal organization such as Elks.

He also said that sexism was not behind the rejection of female membership in the Elks.

"I think perhaps it could also be considered that the Elks are interested in protecting the rights of women to have their own organization just like we have," Dapelo said. "And there are twice as many of those, so I am told."

Admitting women would not necessarily stop a decline in membership, he said.

"It's a fact that we don't see too many of our members standing in line to join those ladies' organizations either."

"All fraternal organizations do not admit women. If they did they would no longer be fraternal organizations. Some service organizations such as the Kiwanis did admit women a few years ago," said Nicholas M. Saines, public relations director for the Elks.

In 1987, a St. George, Utah, woman who was rejected for Elks membership filed a sex discrimination lawsuit, which still is pending.

Exxon clarification sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Exxon executives and the U.S. Coast Guard are being asked to clear up a growing mystery over whether Exxon will resume its oil cleanup in Alaska next spring.

Concern about Exxon's plans arose this week after disclosure of an internal company memorandum that implied Exxon will not commit itself to further cleanup efforts next spring.

The memo also said current activity to clean oil from an estimated 700 miles of shoreline along southern Alaska resulting from the Exxon Valdez spill will stop Sept. 15 because of oncoming cold weather.

Among the witnesses summoned to testify today before the House Interior subcommittee on water, power and offshore energy resources were Vice Admiral Clyde Lusk of the U.S. Coast Guard; William Stevens, president of Exxon USA; and Alaska environmental officials.

The Coast Guard has overall federal authority over the cleanup effort and subcommittee members are looking for an assurance that it will force Exxon to pursue the cleanup into 1990 if necessary.

Most environmentalists believe the cleanup will be far from completed by mid-September, although Exxon officials have said they continue to expect to "stabilize" the contaminated areas by that time.

Exxon said earlier this week it expects the cost of the cleanup from the March 24 tanker spill in Prince William Sound to soar to as much as $1.25 billion, making it likely the most expensive industrial accident in U.S. history.

The cleanup of the many miles of shoreline has become much more difficult than many had anticipated, as areas of beaches have been partially swept of oil by streams of high-pressure heated water only to become soiled by days later.

Showdown over bailout expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats and Republicans are heading for a showdown on the Senate floor over a compromise landmark savings and loan bailout bill that would balance the federal budget deficit.

A House-Senate conference committee, finishing its work with two marathon sessions lasting late into the evening, decided Thursday night to reject Bush's complex plan to exclude $50 billion in rescue spending from the deficit.

The agreement sends the legislation to the full House and Senate for votes next week. However, the Bush administration has raised objections and senators warned that Republicans could block the plan in the Senate.

Nearly six months ago, Bush asked Congress for emergency action to close or rescue hundreds of failed, but still-operating, savings institutions. Under the compromise, the government's largest-ever bailout would involve spending $166 billion, including interest, over the next 10 years — the vast majority of it from taxpayers.

The bill includes a number of provisions to prevent a recurrence of what analysts call the worst financial crisis since the Depression. It requires S&L owners to risk more of their own capital to absorb losses before government deposit insurance kicks in. S&Ls would have to devote more of their assets to financing housing and disclose how well they serve minorities and the poor. They also would be prevented from using deposits to invest in high-risk, high-risk junk bonds.

Report says Bloch took payments

By Ruth Sidel
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The U.S. diplomat suspected of spying for the Soviet Union told the FBI he worked with the Soviets for "many years" and was paid "a lot of money," The New York Times reported today.

Meanwhile, officials in Washington disclosed Thursday that Felix S. Bloch received State Department merit raises of more than $13,000 while he was the No. 2 officer in the American embassy in Vienna.

The raises are given to diplomats whose work is "well above average," said a U.S. official who declined to give a name.

The Times quoted an unnamed official as saying Bloch made the view with the FBI on June 22, the day he was placed on administrative leave from his State Department job. He has not been charged with any crime but remains under heavy FBI surveillance.

Bloch refused to discuss his motives or to give details on any spying activities, the Times said. Three administration sources familiar with the Bloch case said in Washington Thursday night that they had not been told of such admissions.

But a congressional source told The Associated Press the FBI believes Bloch was recruited by the KGB, the Soviet intelligence service, while he was serving at the U.S. Embassy in East Berlin 14 years ago.

The Times said the FBI had received information that prompted major interest in a recent trip Bloch was making to Europe and planned a surveillance operation. The agency notified foreign intelligence services and congressional committees, and somehow the information got out, the paper said. As previously reported, U.S. eavesdropping picked up a Soviet agent telling Bloch, "A bad virus is going around and we believe you are now infected."

The FBI interviewed Bloch, who told agents he had worked with the KGB for "many years" and that they "paid me a lot of money," the Times said. The FBI also got permission to search his home but found nothing incriminating, the paper said.

Government sources say Bloch was videotaped in Paris handing a briefcase to a Soviet agent earlier this year. The contents of the briefcase remain unknown.

In Moscow, Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady I. Gerasimov denied any Soviet connection with Bloch. Gerasimov said Thursday he made inquiries about Bloch's activities. "The name of Bloch was not familiar. We have no connection with him," he said.

Bloch's merit raises included an increase of $4,500 for fiscal 1983-84, $4,000 for 1984-85 and $4,800 for 1985-86, said an official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

But Bloch's raise was the lowest of three merit pay grades in the Senior Foreign Service, with the highest reaching about $9,000 a year, the official said.

The pay increases were given to Bloch while he was in Vienna, where he was posted from 1980 to 1987. Former U.S. ambassador to Austria Helene Von Damm, who has been publicly critical of Bloch, was among those who recommended the raises, said the official.

After 30 years with the State Department, Bloch reached one of the most senior gradings in the foreign service and makes about $89,000 annually, officials said.

Merit raises in the Senior Foreign Service are sometimes given to diplomats who are eligible for more senior postings but cannot get them because of a shortage of vacant slots.

Bloch continues to draw his paycheck and benefits, although his diplomatic passport and credentials have been revoked, the department says.

Agents are engaged in what is expected to be a lengthy search for the specific evidence that would be required to charge Bloch under the Espionage Act, including what secrets, if any, were compromised.

An FBI team has arrived in Vienna to assist in the investigation there, according to Friday's edition of the Neue Kronen Zeitung.

the Midgetman. Republicans were prompted by anger at an earlier vote cutting $302 million from the $1.1 billion the administration had asked for the rail lines needed to make the MX a mobile and less vulnerable weapon. Joining them were many liberal members.

Aspin appealed to members not to reject Midgetman "on a motion of spite."

But on a head-count vote of 176-90 the House approved the change, removing all the money for the single-warhead missile.

The House also revived money for the Navy's F-14J jet fighter and the Marine Corps' Y-22 Osprey vertical takeoff assault transport — two programs Bush planned to eliminate as low priority items in a tight-money budget.

Summing up the result, Aspin told reporters that in effect, "Mike (Dukakis) won the election. No Midgetman. No rail MX ... Big cuts in SDI, and slow up the B-2 (stealth) bomber."

But the House slashed $1.8 billion from the president's $4.9 billion Star Wars request.

With no dissenting votes, the committee endorsed candidates for all town offices on the ballot, but one of the endorsements was for incumbent Town Clerk Edward Tomkies, a Democrat.

Candidates for the Board of Directors are incumbents Ronald Orella and Theunis Werkhoven, Wallace J. Iria, Elias Bar, Jr., Landers, J. Russell Smyth, and Susan Buckno.

Candidates for a Board of Education term that starts this year are Thomas Sheridan and Eugene Sierkowski. For the term beginning next year, the candidates are John Tucci, an incumbent, and Jan Hora.

Laura Pirtel, vice chairman of the Fair Rent Commission, was endorsed to run for the post of town treasurer.

Selectman candidates are incumbent Paul Damiano and Mary Sears. Candidates for constable are incumbent Louis C. Kocis Jr., Joseph L. Swanson Jr., James Taylor, and Kevin MacKenzie.

About 50 town committee members attended the meeting in the hearing room of Lincoln Center at which the endorsements were made.

In her acceptance speech, Buckno said the party has an excellent opportunity this year. "Here we are, let's do it, let's go for it."

Irish said, "We can offer Manchester a change, and I think the time's right for it."

Landers said she is optimistic about this year.

"If we can take what the incumbents have done and build on it, we can win," she said.

Landers' opponent, Gordon Lassow, in the presidential election and joined in an effort to question the validity of the election on the ground that more votes were cast than the number of people checked off on a voting list.

While Ferguson had said he was considering the possibility of resigning from the public works post, he also said he saw nothing in the duties of the job that would prevent him from doing it well.

On Tuesday, Landers said he would stick by his decision and that as far as he knew, Ferguson would retain the post.

DC-10 lands safely without its nose wheel

TORONTO (AP) — A Canadian Airlines DC-10 with 254 people aboard lost a nose wheel after it left Rio de Janeiro but landed safely today at Pearson International Airport in Toronto, airport officials said.

Airport spokesman Bruce Reid said the flight crew was aware of the problem and the pilot confirmed the control tower to inform the wheel was missing. Fire crews and ambulances were sent to the scene before the pilot was given permission to land at 7:30 a.m., said Reid.

He said one of the two wheels in the jet's left front section was missing. He did not explain how it was lost. No one was injured in the landing.

In the past nine days, two DC-10s have crashed, one in Sioux City, Iowa, on July 19 and the other Thursday in Tripoli, Libya.

soundedly defeated by Bush in the 1988 presidential election after a campaign in which the Republican candidate's campaign promises in writing its version of the defense bill.

The House's military spending plan suspends production of the B-2 stealth bomber, priced at about $530 million each, until the Pentagon scales back its $70 billion, 132-plane program, widely viewed as unaffordable in an era of soaring budget deficits.

The bill also requires the administration to show that the stealth can successfully evade radar detection and penetrate Soviet airspace before production resumes.

Bush and Defense Secretary Dick Cheney had lobbied hard for stealth, Star Wars and the other strategic programs.

But the House slashed $1.8 billion from the president's $4.9 billion Star Wars request.

Release

"It should not be an expectation of inmates," he said.

Flower supports the supervised home release program, but for what it was intended — for inmates who are prepared to return to society.

Not every inmate is eligible for the release program. After the program was instituted in 1982, those inmates who had committed any capital offenses, including murders and most felonies, were exempt from the program.

Last December, Gov. William A. O'Neill expanded that list through an executive order to include criminals who committed crimes that resulted in the death of a victim — such as drunk drivers charged with manslaughter — and also first-degree felonies, such as sexual assault, assault, and robbery.

Those eligible to be released must meet certain guidelines in order to be considered for the program, according to Hans T. Feldman, chief of parole services for the Department of Corrections.

To be eligible, inmates must be within 30 months of the estimated completion of their sentence, and they must have completed a minimum of 10 percent of that sentence.

In addition, inmates must not have committed serious disorderly actions while in prison, and they must not have made escape attempts.

Inmates are examined as to their criminal record, their family stability, and the risk they might pose to the community.

When inmates are released, they must check in with their parole officers. They also must receive permission to use a motor vehicle, secure a driver's license, and they must not use or possess drugs or weapons.

The failure rate for inmates participating in the home release program is about 11.5 percent, Flower said. That doesn't necessarily mean the inmates committed crimes, however. Flower said inmates might also have violated the terms of the release.

The overcrowding problem is spiraling upward.

Connecticut's prison population increased by 11 percent in January alone, Flower said. The department had anticipated an increase of between 12 and 14 percent for 1989. The actual increase for 1988 was 35 percent, and the expected increase for 1989 is 40 percent, Flower said.

In June, the House of Representatives passed a bill which would call for the release of up to 500 incarcerated individuals awaiting trial on misdemeanor and minor felony charges.

Those released will be monitored with electronic wristbands, Flower said. He said the program will lessen the impact of overcrowding, as 30 percent of the prison population constitute those inmates awaiting trials.

"It will be like getting a 500-bed facility," Flower said. "I think it will help our crowding situation, which is the ball we have to keep our eye on with the emergency release of sentenced inmates hanging over our head."

Three new prisons and four more dormitories, scheduled to be completed by 1992, will provide 4,000 more beds. But Flower promises those beds will be filled immediately.

blamed the killings on Hezbollah. The two had led a four-day crackdown by Amal on Hezbollah in south Lebanon in April 1988.

On Feb. 21, 1988, Obeid was quoted by Beirut radio stations as saying he believed the kidnapers had managed to smuggle Higgins out of the south. Obeid, speaking to worshippers at a mosque in Jibchit, also claimed that Higgins was in charge of the I. N. peacekeeping forces' "sapping operations."

Higgins, 44, of Danville, Ky., a decorated Vietnam veteran, headed an observer group attached to the U.N. peacekeeping force in Lebanon at the time of his abduction. He was kidnaped near Daud's base in the southern part of Tyre.

Obeid negotiated the safe withdrawal of Hezbollah gunmen and allied Iranian Revolutionary Guards from Jibchit, when the village of 18,000 residents was besieged by Amal after the kidnapers moved Higgins to another hideout.

Higgins' kidnaping was believed to be a major factor behind Amal's crackdown in the south, which left 82 dead and 150 wounded.

A police spokesman said an Israeli helicopter ended a commando force about two miles west of Jibchit at 1 a.m.

He said a force of about 12 commandos "walked into Jibchit, encircled Sheikh Obeid's three-story building on the eastern edge of the village."

The spokesman, who cannot be named in line with police rules, said "someone with the Israeli spoke Arabic. They knocked on the door and someone from the Sheikh's family opened."

The Israelis quickly moved in pointing silencer-equipped pistols at the good old Murphys and Smith did the job and we won the game."

The victory enabled the Red Sox to climb back to .500 at home with a 24-24 record at Fenway Park. And they moved to within 4 1/2 games of first place Baltimore.

more in the AL East despite a 47-48 record.

"We've been able to put on a little bit of a move, especially with Baltimore being a little bit on the skids," Murphy said. "This could be our run right here."

Tom Gordon, 114, lost for the first time since May 28, when he was a mainstay in the bullpen. He allowed five runs on eight hits and four walks in 5 1/3 innings. Reliever Steve Farr was tagged for two unearned runs after an error in the seventh.

Kevin Romine, a journeyman outfielder who almost quit because of a bus driver between Boston and Pawtucket, led the Red Sox 10-hit attack with his first homer of the season and a double.

Romine is paying dividends once again on his fifth recall from the International League in five years.

"Biting third and hitting a home run was the furthest thing from my mind a few weeks ago," Romine said. "I was just hoping I'd get called up again."

With his two hits against Gordon, Romine hit his 30th home run to 339 since he was recalled June 8 to replace disabled Ellis Burks.

"With so many people hurt, it's tough on our pitchers," Kansas City manager John Wathan said. "They get the feeling they have to be perfect because they know we're not going to score many runs. Gordon's first two starts out of the bullpen were excellent, but tonight he had trouble with his arm. He walked two batters in the first inning and paid for it right away."

One of the features of renovated Moriarty Field is its 8-foot high outfield fence.

It was said it would be somewhat more difficult to hit home runs out of the ballpark on Spring Street.

Don't tell that to the East Hartford Jets. They zipped three into the dark over the barrier and survived an erratic pitching performance from unbeatens ace Tim Kiro to hit Moriarty Brothers' eight-game winning streak, 5-2, Thursday night in Greater Hartford Twilight League play.

Jim O'Connor and Delroy Farkinson launched back-to-back solo shots over the left and center field fences in the sixth inning to snap a 2-1 tie for the Jets, who moved back into a tie for second place in the league at 14-4, good for 28 points. East Hartford lost a win against league-leading Newington as a protest was upheld, subject to its completion on Tuesday.

The MB's 15-8 heading into a makeup clash against Society for Savings tonight at 6 at Trinity College in Hartford, hurt themselves with some fundamental mistakes.

With the score at 2-1 all runs in the fourth and fifth to tie it up.

The MB's also couldn't execute a bunt in the bottom of the sixth after the first two runners reached safely. Jim Schiavone, who didn't get the bunt down, then grounded into a double play. Bob Rescotti grounded out to end the frame.
