Paper says Iran talks due to start

By Kerin Hope
The Associated Press

NICOSIA, Cyprus — An Iranian newspaper said today that indirect talks between Iran and the United States on the hostage crisis will begin within days, the official Islamic Republic News Agency reported.

The agency, monitored in Nicosia, quoted the English-language Tehran Times as saying in an editorial the talks would be conducted through a third country, probably Pakistan.

"Political observers believed that in the next few days we should expect certain moves towards mediation of course unofficially," IRNA quoted the editorial as saying.

It predicted the mediator would be Pakistan's foreign minister, Sahabzada Yaqub Khan, because both Iran and the United States have good relations with Pakistan. No other details were given. The newspaper, which is close to Iran's President-elect Hashemi Rafsanjani, also quoted an aide as expressing surprise that the United States had rejected a proposal that $2 billion in frozen Iranian assets in U.S. banks be returned in exchange for Tehran's help in freeing American hostages in Lebanon.

Rafsanjani is considered a pragmatist who is anxious to rebuild ties with the West in order to secure funds and technology to help boost the flagging economy.

But the leading hard-liner in the hierarchy, Interior Minister Ali Akbar Mohtashemi, has shown his opposition to any softening of Iran's position on the hostages, urging Shiite militants to remain poised to strike against the United States.

The 16 Western hostages are believed held by Shiite Moslem extremist groups under the umbrella of the pro-Iranian Hezbollah, or Party of God.

The unnamed aide was quoted as saying Iran was reacting to a

CRASH SITE — Rescue workers search the wreckage for victims Wednesday after a passenger train derailed near Los Mochis, Mexico, plunging from a bridge into a river.

99 die in train derailment

LOS MOCHIS, Mexico (AP) — Rescue workers today searched the muddy banks of the San Rafael River for more victims of a train crash that killed at least 99 people and scattered rail cars across the track and into the ravine below.

The train plunged off a bridge and fell about 25 into the river early Wednesday while en route from the coastal resort of Mazatlan to the northern city of Mexicali, on the border with California, Calif.

Passenger cars were jumbled along the tracks like straws. Some lay on their side in the river.

Heavy rains Wednesday hampered efforts to reach victims, and the search was suspended during the night, but the sky cleared this morning and police, firefighters and Red Cross workers returned to the scene.

Helicopters landed rescue workers nearby and casualties were taken out on railroad handcars.

Officials said at least 107 people were injured, including 30 seriously, and that the death toll was expected to rise.

Torrential rains over the last week were blamed for the crash.

"The cause was quite clear. The heavy rains loosened the rails and the rails just gave way," said Roberto Martinez Maestre, a spokesman for the state government based in Mexico City, 730 miles from the crash site.

Rail and rescue officials could provide no immediate breakdown on the nationalities of the victims. Eleven victims identified Wednesday night were all Mexican.

Enrollment in Bolton increases

By Rick Santos
Manchester Herald

BOLTON — An unexpected enrollment increase in the fifth grade has forced the Board of Education to consider hiring another part-time or full-time teacher.

Forty-nine students are enrolled for the two fifth-grade classes, said Gretchen Wiedie, administrative assistant to School Superintendent Richard E. Fickman. "We tend to have classes of under 20," she said, so the size of these classes would be somewhat large.

The Board of Education will discuss the problem tonight at a 7:30 meeting at Bolton Center School.

One solution would be to hire a full-time teacher for the grade, Wiedie said today. An alternative would be to hire a part-time teacher who would circulate between the two classes teaching sections of students.

The problem was created by three new fifth-graders registering in the last two weeks, said Ed Fickman, Bolton Center School Principal Ann Rash. Although three students does not sound like a lot, many, she said, they are if one considers that the entire class had only 46 students.

"New boys are right on the edge," of needing a third classroom, Rash said. The principal said she warned school officials of the potential need for another teacher when she made her budget proposal in October. But she said, "you can never anticipate a plus or minus five."

She said she cannot submit a budget requesting three teachers because enrollments may increase. If students withdraw, "you have three sections of 15."

She said the class in question fit tightly into two classes last year, but two students left the school system at the end of the year.

Enrollment and population figures show the number of students entering the school system is on the increase. The past few kindergarten in the town had four sections of about 15 students, Wiedie said.

'Benefit' questioned in cholesterol claim

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — General Mills Inc. says its new cereal is nothing more than a breakfast food that can reduce cholesterol, but Procter & Gamble Co. thinks it should be tested as a drug if it's going to make health claims.

The Minneapolis-based cereal counter medicines, wants the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to order General Mills to pull the cereal, Benefit, off the market. It contends cereals should come under the same federal testing as drugs before health benefits such as reduced cholesterol can be advertised.

General Mills disagrees.

"It's a cereal that's made from grain. It's consumed like a cereal. It's no different from any other cereal that's on the market, placed under the same umbrella and has the ability to lower cholesterol," General Mills spokesman Craig Shustart said Wednesday.

The FDA is reviewing Procter & Gamble's June 8 request and expected to respond soon, said Chris Leacos, press officer for the agency.

Benefit contains oat bran, rice and psyllium, a grain grown mainly in India. The outer husk of psyllium contains soluble fiber, which General Mills says has been shown to reduce cholesterol. According to General Mills, which is based in the Minneapolis suburb of Golden Valley, tests conducted in 1987 on men with average and above-average cholesterol levels found that Benefit reduced cholesterol levels an average of 9 percent when 2 ounces were eaten daily as part of a low-fat diet.

Benefit accounted for about two-thirds of the reduction, the company said.

The Benefit package touts the cereal's claims of reducing cholesterol, a fatty substance that can build up in artery walls. The deposits can narrow blood

Adopt a pet: Ron is waiting

By Barbara Richmond Manchester Herald

A male Pomeranian, named Ron, is this week's featured pet at the Manchester dog pound. Ron is a frisky, but quiet, small dog. He's about 1 year old, Dog Warden Richard Rand said.

Ron

Sandy and Muffin

Ron was found roaming on Pond Lane on Aug. 1. He's black and white. According to the dog chart in Rand's office, a Pomeranian is described as a miniature copy of a Baltic sled dog.

In addition to Ron there were two other new dogs at the pound, as of Tuesday. There was a 4-month-old male black Labrador retriever. He was picked up on Jarvis Road on Aug. 2.

There was also a male poodle. He's about 2 years old and was found on Florence Street on Aug. 7.

Judy, last week's featured pet, was claimed, again, by his owner. He had been at the pound once before and was claimed by his owner at that time.

The dog pound is located on town property off Olcott Street near the landfill area. The dog warden is at the pound weekdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

There is a $5 fee to adopt a dog and the new owner must have the dog licensed. Before being licensed the dog must have a rabies shot.

Gripes resurface over runoff from Buckland mall site

By Nancy Connelman Manchester Herald

The developers of the Buckland mall could face fines of up to $3,000 a day if a local environmental group's recent allegations that runoff from the building site is polluting area waterways prove to be true.

The state Department of Environmental Protection plans to inspect the site after the next moderate or heavy rainfall to determine if developers are complying with a DEP consent order requiring strict erosion control measures, said Grace Dodier, assistant attorney general for the DEP.

Dodier said today Manchester attorney Anthony Pagano, who represents the Manchester Environmental Coalition, complained that runoff from the mall site is still polluting Boggy Stow Pond off Tolland Street and a pond off Tolland Turnpike.

Coalition head Michael Dworakowski said members have told him both ponds are very cloudy. The coalition in March filed a lawsuit against the mall developers charging that the project will pollute natural resources. The coalition is seeking a permanent injunction to stop work on the project. The suit is pending in Hartford Superior Court.

Fund-raising plan for hall under way

By Alex Girelli Manchester Herald

Representatives of the Cheney Hall Foundation and the Little Theatre of Manchester will meet Aug. 23 to discuss plans for a drive to collect contributions toward renovation of Cheney Hall.

So far about $28,000 has been pledged toward the $200,000 renovation. The foundation will have to have pledges before it can borrow money to finance renovations to the interior of the hall.

A meeting of the foundation members will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Cheney Hall. State officials can be arranged within a few days to resolve problems of access to the hall for people with physical disabilities.

A meeting between the foundation and state officials was to have been held July 31, but because of a breakdown in communication, some of the officials were not there.

One problem that will have to be solved involved a requirement for a lift from the auditorium floor to the stage level.

Motel room a litter box for kids

WALLINGFORD (AP) — Three young children were discovered Wednesday night sitting in a filthy motel room littered with spoiled food, pornographic magazines and drug paraphernalia while their father was smoking cocaine, police said.

The children, two girls, 3 and 9, and a 5-year-old boy, were taken by a state Department of Children and Youth Services case worker and were expected to be placed with other family members, said Detective Sgt. Hanley said the police became aware of the children's plight during an investigation of drug use in the area.

They were each being held on $3,000 bond pending arraignment in Meriden Superior Court today.

Police, executing a search warrant at the Toll House Motel, arrested the parents of the children, Frank Gavrih and Cheryl Gavrih, both 31, and charged them with possession of cocaine, possession of drug paraphernalia and three counts of risk of injury to a minor.

Day care lures workers to hospital

By Diane Rosell Manchester Herald

When 4-year-old Sanjay Patel said his favorite thing about the day-care center at Manchester Memorial Hospital was being able to have lunch with his mommy, staff smiled proudly.

Hospital officials opened the Child Day-Care Center for a tour Wednesday to introduce employees, board members, medical staff and other friends. The center, which is open only to hospital staff, opened on July 10.

Andrew Beck, director of public relations at the hospital, said officials noticed an increasing need for a day-care center. He said hospital officials felt they could attract more workers if they offered the center.

There has definitely been a demand for health care workers, Beck said. Beck said it has been difficult for hospitals to attract workers because many choose to work in other fields. He said the hospital hoped to retain employees who wouldn't otherwise be able to stay and to recruit more workers.

Parents who work at the hospital greet the day-care center as an advantage. Tina DiCiccio, who works as a budget and account manager, said the center is very convenient.

"I only have to make one stop, and even then I'm already at work," she said. DiCiccio has had her 2-year-old daughter into work unexpectedly may use the center as space allows.

It is licensed for 22 children from 4 weeks through 6 years. The children are separated into three groups — infants, toddlers, and preschoolers.

Ann Bonney, director of child-care services at the hospital, said she rotates the staff so that each gets to know all of the children. Each of her staff has either a degree in child development or early childhood education.

Bonney said the day-care center provides a healthy environment for the children through activities, learning sessions and exploration.

"We have themes each week," she said. "For instance, this week we're 'our bodies,' and next week will be 'shapes and colors.'"

The day-care center was designed to enhance parent-child relationships, provide readiness programs to help prepare for school, to allow for self-expression through activities and provide a warm, secure environment.

Rhonda Gibbs, head teacher at the center, said she likes working with all the kids; the little ones because she can see a lot of growth and development and the older kids because she can talk to them.

"This program is different because it allows for a gradual separation," she said. "Parents can come down and visit when needed, and the kids know they're not far away."

State sends bills for taxes on art to 50 residents

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — When Connecticut residents buy from retailers outside the state and have their purchases shipped to Connecticut, they still owe the state sales tax.

Tax Commissioner Timothy F. Bannon, who's been sounding that theme for months now, is taking the battle to the world of fine art.

On Wednesday he announced that his agency had sent bills to 50 Connecticut people who recently bought $20 million in art in New York but paid no taxes on it.

One was a $10 million painting shipped to a home in Sharon on which $200,000 in sales tax is owed. 7.5 percent of the purchase price, Bannon said tax confidentiality laws prohibited him from identifying the buyer.

He told reporters that in all, $1.5 million is owed by the 50 residents and that so far, $313,000 has been paid.

A person who buys an item out of state and has it shipped to Connecticut avoids the tax in the state where the purchase is made, but is still liable for the Connecticut sales and use tax, which, as of July 1, is 6 percent.

Bannon said the Connecticut art purchases were primarily tracked down through agreements the state has with New York that include notifying Connecticut tax officials when big-ticket purchases are made in New York.

He said his office works under the assumption that the purchases were made innocently and that there was no intentional effort to avoid Connecticut taxes.

"Nobody's being called a criminal," Bannon said. "But I am not going to apologize for sending them a bill. Our experience has been that people, once notified, comply."

James Wojdyl, owner of the David Jones Gallery and the City Frame Co. in Hartford, said potential buyers frequently tell him that "We're going to New York, we can save the tax."

"We hear that constantly," said Wojdyl, who joined Bannon at the news conference.

He said the practice puts Connecticut art dealers at an 8 percent disadvantage with competitors in other states. He said that when customers bring up the issue, he often discounts a work by 8 percent and then collects the legitimate tax on the discounted price.

Public radio drops music broadcast

HARTFORD (AP) — Public radio stations in Vermont, Connecticut and western Massachusetts are dropping Morning Pro Musica, the eclectic classical music program made famous by its mellow-voiced host, Robert J. Lurtsema.

As of Sept. 4, the five-hour show, which runs seven mornings a week, will no longer be broadcast on WPRB in Norwich, Conn.; WPKT in Middlefield, Conn.; WFCR in Amherst, Mass.; WYPR in Windsor, Vt.; WYPS in Rutland, Vt.; and WRYT in Rutland, Vt., a spokeswoman for WGBH in Boston which produces the show, said Wednesday.

The spokeswoman, Lynn DuVal, said the show will continue to be broadcast on WGBH and eight other public radio stations in Massachusetts, Maine and New York.

Lurtsema, who took over the show in 1971, plays an unpredictable mix of music that ranges from medieval to baroque to contemporary classical.

He begins at 7 a.m. with bird songs and punctuates the music with bits of musical wisdom, interviews with performers and his own distinctive reading of the day's news, delivered in an unmistakably deep, gruff, hoarse voice.

The show is expected to be a victim of its own success, which has helped give small public radio stations around New England steady audiences.

A spokeswoman for Connecticut Public Radio said the network was dropping the show to free up time for a new, locally produced classical music program with hourly news broadcasts.

"It's a Boston-based show, and it takes up about 25 hours per week (of air time)," said the spokeswoman.

spokeswoman, Susan Oleniewski. "We've found that our members really want more local programming."

She didn't know how much Connecticut Public Radio paid to air Morning Pro Musica, but said money was not a factor in the decision.

WFCR in Amherst, Mass., will begin producing its own program of classical music, said general manager Joan Rubel.

"We owe a debt of gratitude to Morning Pro Musica," she said. "It helped us and a lot of other stations get established. But at the same time, it's time to move on."

Merita Rivers, radio manager for WGBH in Boston, said the station had mixed emotions about losing its Morning Pro Musica listeners in western New England.

"We've watched the stations grow in large part on the strength of Morning Pro Musica," she said. "It's offered a strong service for beginning stations first getting on their feet."

On one hand, I feel proud of what Robert's been able to do in the region. I think it's a tremendous contribution to public radio. On the other hand, we're sorry that the relationship will be discontinued.

Word of the show's cancellation in Connecticut brought a disappointed response from Tolle Miller, a manager of Reader's Feast, a cafe and bookstore in Hartford.

STAMFORD — A civil lawsuit pending in Stamford Superior Court is a patriot's nightmare.

Two well-known defense contractors are squabbling over a contract for a top-secret program, which has at stake not only millions of dollars but the next generation of Navy fighter jets.

Norden is seeking damages in excess of $15,000 and "other relief" the court sees fit. "Under Connecticut law, plaintiffs can only specify whether they are seeking more or less than $15,000, not a set amount."

It is estimated by some industry analysts that Norden spent about $300 million developing the A-12 radar system. The company has posted consecutive annual losses since 1986 because of costs associated with A-12 and other projects. Company president Edwin D. Decker said Tuesday he doesn't expect to see a profit until after 1990.

General Dynamics says that it can't defend itself from the lawsuit without disclosing classified information. It says for that reason, the suit should be tossed out.

"The allegations in Norden's complaint cannot be proven, nor can they be admitted or denied, without illegal and improper disclosure of highly sensitive information that has been classified by the Navy for reasons of national security," says the General Dynamics' brief filed on July 14.

The brief further argues that since the time of the Civil War, any lawsuit can be dismissed with the utmost secrecy.

O'Neill defends salary cap

HARTFORD (AP) — Gov. William A. O'Neill's move to cap state managers' pay raises at 3.5 percent this year was fiscally, not politically, motivated, according to one of his top aides.

At a meeting Wednesday of leaders of the 2,300 mid-level state government bureaucrats, Charles M. McCollam Jr., O'Neill's executive aide, rejected suggestions by some at a sometimes heated meeting that the governor was acting politically when he singled out non-unionized state managers for limited raises.

He said the "drastic action" in June expected to save the state $6 million, was based on "the fiscal situation at the time" and noted that all appointed officials under O'Neill's authority had their salaries frozen. At least the managers were getting a 0.5 percent raise, he said, although he acknowledged that most had been counting on more.

That's not the way some of the managers looked at it. The managers had asked to meet with a representative of the governor to discuss the issue.

"A lot of people think that the administration looked around and picked the most vulnerable people, i.e. those who are not unionized," said Steve Hitchcock, a manager in the Department of Environmental Protection. The move, he added, appeared to have "a great deal to do with politics."

Some of the managers, led by Thomas DeLiemer of the Department of Human Resources, are talking about suing the O'Neill administration over the pay-raise issue. Howard said such suits are "the farthest thing from my mind at the moment."

DeLiemer said after Wednesday's meeting that the idea of a suit is "still very much alive and pressing."

State managers are barred by state law from forming or joining unions. Their salaries range from about $24,000 to $85,000.

Maintenance, told McCollam that "not only is it a question of money, it's a question of credibility. All the managers are saying, 'How can we believe anything they tell us now?'"

Henry Howard, head of the managers' association, said he was encouraged that the governor's office was willing to open a dialogue with the group and discuss their differences, even though no promises were made.

Chase adds 4 more stations

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Outlet Communications Inc., which earlier this week reported a drop in revenues, has reached an agreement to sell two radio stations and two television stations to Chase Communications Inc. of Hartford for $120 million.

The stations sold to Chase are WXIN-TV, Indianapolis and WATL-TV, Atlanta, both UHF independent stations; and WTOP-AM and WASH-FM, two Washington, D.C., radio stations.

"We had discussions over a four-week period," Outlet President David E. Henderson said Wednesday. "Once we got into it, it went very quickly."

The transaction leaves Outlet with two television stations — WJAR in Providence, R.I., and WCHM in Columbus, Ohio, both NBC affiliates — and Henderson said the company will consider options regarding those stations.

Henderson said the profits from the sale of the stations will go toward offsetting the company's debt, which he placed near $100 million.

"This will reduce the debt, and put us in a strong cash flow position in the future," he said. "After we find out what the net proceeds will be, (the sale could) reduce the debt about $80 million after that."

He characterized the UHF stations as cash drains, and said the company will be more profitable after the transaction.

Company officials distributed the strategic plan developed with First Boston Corp., Henderson said in a statement released Wednesday. "We will continue to review options with respect to the operations of our two remaining television stations."

The sale depends on completion of a definitive sales agreement and approval by both companies' board of directors and the Federal Communications Commission.

Henderson said the profits from the sale of the stations will go toward offsetting the company's debt, which he placed near $100 million.

"This will reduce the debt, and put us in a strong cash flow position in the future," he said. "After we find out what the net proceeds will be, (the sale could) reduce the debt about $80 million after that."

Kitchen use investigated

WATERFORD (AP) — A Seaside Regional Center worker is under investigation for allegedly using the state home's kitchen for her own business, including catering a weekend party for 1,300 people, state officials have said.

Richard Donahue, a spokesman for the center, a group home for the mentally retarded, said the woman, who did not identify, is accused of using the kitchen without permission. But, he said, she is not accused of taking food.

Virginia Allen, a spokeswoman for the state Department of Mental Retardation, said Tuesday the kitchen employee has been suspended with pay pending the results of an internal investigation.

The allegations come at a time when expenditures in state services are being cut. State Auditor Leo V. Donahue said he was concerned because the incident was not reported as soon as the allegations came to light, as required by law.

"That should have been reported to us," Donahue said. "I don't know if, down there at Seaside, they're not aware of that statute."

Agreement allows unionist to return

GROTON (AP) — An agreement has been worked out to allow the business manager of the boilermakers local at Electric Boat, ousted earlier in the week from Metal Trades Council President Joseph W. Messier's inner circle, to be reinstated in the interests of labor solidarity.

Messier, following a series of meetings Wednesday with other labor leaders, said he is willing to reverse his decision and reinstate Kenneth J. DeLaCruz to his staff in exchange for an agreement by DeLaCruz to attend meetings over the next 15 days to try to resolve philosophical differences among the unions.

DeLaCruz led Boilerworkers Local 614, the largest trade union in the MTC, in an independent labor action last month against Electric Boat, for which he was criticized and eventually dismissed by Messier.

"If having unity means I have to adjust my position, I think I'm big enough to do that," Messier said late Wednesday afternoon. "But I won't adjust at all costs."

Messier was angered that DeLaCruz had led the boilermakers in an independent action against new EB guidelines intended to calm the shipyard, which is still simmering from last year's prolonged strike, and dismissed him Monday.

"They've got to recognize they can't serve two masters," Messier said Tuesday. "He's not going to work for me and be leading his people off in a different direction."

Messier said the independent action signals a divided labor force and undermines the MTC's ability to negotiate with the company.

The action protested new guidelines issued by EB which curb some behavior in the shipyard and banned T-shirts so union members were wearing that were critical of strike-breakers. When it issued the guidelines, EB also sent a stern letter of warning to the workers.

The company said it was acting to stop harassment and intimidation in the workplace, but the boilermakers, led by DeLaCruz, complained to the National Labor Relations Board, saying EB was illegally restricting union activity.

The complaint was filed July 28 without the involvement of the MTC, a move that angered Messier, who was out of town at the time.

2 dozen plants are identified as worst polluters

By H. Josef Hebert
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Two dozen plants accounted for a third of all the highly hazardous industrial chemical releases reported in the United States in 1987, a national conservation group says in an analysis of government figures.

The National Wildlife Federation analysis released today showed that 500 plants in 44 states disposed about 7.5 billion pounds of toxic waste through burial or release into the air, water or public sewage system.

The two dozen plants in 13 states released 3.5 billion pounds of toxic waste in 1987, the report said. The material included chemicals and metals, some 39 of which are considered carcinogenic.

The emissions are legal, but legislation pending before Congress would curb many of the releases by setting tighter standards for toxic industrial waste.

Seven of the 12 biggest producers of toxic wastes use burial for disposal, while five inject wastes deep into the ground. The report defends that method of disposal, but environmentalists disagree.

Increasingly, such disposal methods "threaten the nation's ground water which supplies drinking water for almost 30 percent of Americans," the federation said.

"Which community will see disease outbreaks from polluted surface and ground water? What species of fish or wildlife will be threatened by acute or chronic toxicity? No one knows," said federation president Jay Hair.

In a preface to the report, Hair said its purpose is to "emphasize the scope of toxic (release) problems."

He cautioned that the figures themselves provide no accurate way to predict health or environmental effects, but he said they make clear "we are dumping a wide variety of chemicals into our environment at too high a level."

No. 1 on the top 50 list is the ALCOA plant in Point Comfort, Texas, which reported 465 million pounds of toxic wastes in 1987, almost all of it buried at the facility.

A dozen facilities each reported more than 100 million pounds of wastes were released, while 118 plants reported disposing at least 10 million pounds, the study said. Each facility reported at least 2.6 million pounds of toxic releases.

The Environmental Protection Agency made the raw data available last month after receiving reports from more than 18,000 facilities.

The 400-page federation analysis said the 7.5 billion pounds of toxic material released by the 500 facilities was about 70 percent of the total 10.3 billion pounds reported in 1987, the latest year for which figures were available.

ALCOA has three other plants among the top 15 on the list of those releasing the largest amounts of toxic material, including its Rockdale, Texas, plant, which was No. 3 with 329 million pounds of wastes, most buried on plant grounds.

The National Steel Corp. Great Lakes Division plant at Escore, Mich., was the second biggest disposer of toxic wastes at 423 million pounds, almost all buried a few miles away.

The buried wastes at the two Texas ALCOA plants, as well as the National Steel Corp. plant in Michigan, consisted largely of aluminum oxide, a chemical that can damage the respiratory system and may contribute to brain damage.

According to the study, five companies each reported more than 30 million pounds of toxic emissions released into the air in 1987, part of the roughly 2.6 billion pounds of such wastes sent airborne by all companies reporting to the EPA.

Amex Magnesium, owned by Amex Inc. in Rowley, Utah, released the most material into the air — 68 million pounds of toxics, mostly chlorine.

Kennecott Utah Copper, the mining company owned by British Petroleum, accounts for the largest amount of toxic metal waste, most of it copper but also arsenic, chrome, barium and zinc compounds. Most of the 158 million pounds of wastes are buried at Kennecott's site.

The three companies that released the largest amount of toxic chemicals into water are in Louisiana.

Two Agricor Chemical Co. plants in Uncle Sam and Donaldsonville, La., were ranked No. 1 and No. 3, disposing 59 million pounds and 44 million pounds of chemicals, respectively, mostly phosphoric acid.

The Arcadian Corp. of Geismar, La., ranked second with 34 million pounds of mostly phosphoric and sulfuric acid.

Children's group proposes safeguards on '900' calls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Children are racking up huge telephone charges without parental permission on the promise of talking to Mighty Mouse, Woody Woodpecker and other cartoon characters, a children's advocacy group says.

AT&T should be required to provide consumer safeguards for use of the special-charge 900 numbers, Action for Children's Television said Wednesday in a petition filed with the Federal Trade Commission.

The advocacy group contends that sponsors of the phone services have found a way to target children 12 and under with advertisements urging them to dial a 900 number.

Andrew West, product marketing manager for 900 numbers at AT&T, said the company was being unfairly singled out because other companies also offer the service, usually after AT&T has rejected them because of its guidelines.

"We are the only ones that have a standard," she said.

At a cost of $2 for the first minute and 45 cents for each additional minute, children are told they can "speak to" the character. The petition said the children listen to a recorded message that often asks the caller to call again for a new story or a continuation of the present one.

In return, AT&T's West said she agrees in principle with itemizing the bills, but that is up to local companies. However, Matamoros said, "We are not going to lay down our arms after 10 years of promises to change the law."

Most of the Contras live in squatter at jungle camps inside Honduras along the rugged mountains near the Nicaragua border. Most of the troops trekked into the safe havens since 1981 in their fight to depose the leftist Sandinista government.

Richard Hibel, attorney for the Marcoses, claims the travel ban is unnecessary because Mrs. Marcos is prohibited from leaving the country under terms of $5 million bail paid after her indictment in New York last October.

Hibel said that when Marcos dies, he would ask a New York federal judge to allow Mrs. Marcos to accompany his body to the Philippines for burial as long as she returns to face prosecution.

But Greenberg said there was no guarantee she would return. The government claims the Marcoses have billions of dollars in assets and the loss of $5 million is not enough to prevent Mrs. Marcos from fleeing.

The Marcoses are under U.S. indictment on criminal racketeering charges for allegedly stealing more than $100 million from the Philippine treasury and stashing it in the United States.

The 71-year-old former Philippine president has been separated from the case because of respiratory, heart and kidney problems that have kept him hospitalized for the past seven months. He remained in critical condition Wednesday.

Collusion probed at colleges

BOSTON (AP) — For years, many elite colleges and universities have cooperated to figure out amounts of financial aid they should give to students, but now federal antitrust investigators are looking into the practice.

Justice Department officials Wednesday acknowledged an investigation was under way, but refused to disclose details.

"Antitrust division investigations are not a matter of public record," agency spokesman David Runkel said.

Financial aid for college students totaled some $28 billion last year, said Kathleen Broder, head of College Scholarship Services, which provides information services in New York.

She noted that colleges began working together in the 1950s. She said an Air Force C-141 Starliner medical evacuation plane was sent from West Germany carrying a 28-member medical team and search and rescue, weather and communications personnel. The C-141 is scheduled to arrive today.

Washington (AP) — President Bush is expected to nominate former White House national security adviser Gen. Colin Powell as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, administration sources say.

Powell, 62, would become the youngest man, and the first black, to become the nation's top military officer.

The four-star Army general, who now heads the U.S. Army Forces Command at Fort McPherson, Ga., would take over the prestigious position from Adm. William J. Crowe Jr., who is due to retire Sept. 30.

A senior administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the White House was expected to make the announcement today.

The position requires Senate confirmation.

Gen. P.X. Kelley, who worked with Powell in the Pentagon before retiring as Commandant of the Marine Corps, once described him as "a very extraordinary guy."

"He can handle stress extremely well. He never gets rattled. He was always a cool head," Kelley said.

Searchers still hopeful of finding Leland, group

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — The United States sent a fleet of rescue and military aircraft to Ethiopia to help in the third day of a search for a plane carrying U.S. Rep. Mickey Leland and 13 others.

Officials said they remained optimistic because a master bush pilot was at the controls when the plane disappeared in bad weather Monday shortly after leaving this camp for a refugee camp near the Ethiopian-Sudanese border.

President Bush called Leland's disappearance a matter "of great concern to us" and said Ethiopia is "going to get all the cooperation we can give them."

Marcos challenges ban on traveling

HONOLULU (AP) — Imelda Marcos told a judge she was obsessed with taking her ailing husband, Ferdinand, home to the Philippines, but a Justice Department attorney said if she is allowed to leave, "we'd never get her back."

Theodore S. Greenberg, acting chief of the department's criminal fraud division, testified Wednesday that the Philippines does not have an extradition treaty with the United States and that Marcos loyalists might revolt if the former Philippine first lady went home and was not allowed to stay.

Mrs. Marcos, 60, is challenging a travel ban imposed in June by the Immigration and Naturalization Service prohibiting her from leaving the United States. The hearing continues today before William Robie, the chief U.S. immigration judge.

The Marcoses are under U.S. indictment on criminal racketeering charges for allegedly stealing more than $100 million from the Philippine treasury and stashing it in the United States.

The 71-year-old former Philippine president has been separated from the case because of respiratory, heart and kidney problems that have kept him hospitalized for the past seven months. He remained in critical condition Wednesday.

Richard Hibel, attorney for the Marcoses, claims the travel ban is unnecessary because Mrs. Marcos is prohibited from leaving the country under terms of $5 million bail paid after her indictment in New York last October.

Eased transplant rules urged

REP. MICKEY LELAND ... plane missing

BOSTON (AP) — Doctors should be allowed to ignore the usual standards of brain death in babies born without most of their brains so their organs can be used immediately for transplants, a report concluded today.

These infants, known as anencephalic babies, cannot survive, and physicians would like to salvage their hearts, livers and other organs for other sick babies. But these organs usually cannot be used, because they are damaged by lack of oxygen before the babies are pronounced dead.

"Our proposal asserts that the anencephalic infant is not alive," wrote Dr. Robert D. Truog of Harvard Medical School and bioethicist John C. Fletcher of the University of Virginia.

Their report was one of three papers in the New England Journal of Medicine exploring the ethical and practical issues involved in using these baby's organs for transplants.

In the same issue, Drs. Donald N. Medearis Jr. of Massachusetts General Hospital and Lewis B. Holmes of Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston countered that current standards requiring complete brain death should be retained.

"Anencephalic infants are alive, and the length of their lives cannot be predicted accurately," they wrote.

They cautioned that making an exception for anencephalic infants might eventually lead to taking organs from people with other profound medical conditions, such as other babies with severe head malformations or adults in persistent vegetative states.

Anencephalic babies are born with brain stems, which control breathing and some bodily functions, but the rest of their brains are missing. In current practice, doctors must wait until all brain stem activity stops before declaring the babies dead.

"I think there is a moral obligation to reconsider the issue," Truog said in an interview. "There are children who die because these organs are not being used. We need to ask ourselves whether on balance we are not doing a greater harm by not using these organs."

But Medearis and Holmes said that these babies would never be a major source of organs. They estimated that fewer than 200 anencephalic babies are born alive in the United States annually, and organs from some cannot be used because of other birth defects or difficulties matching organs with potential recipients.

In one approach to the situation, doctors at Loma Linda University Medical Center in California experimented with putting anencephalic babies in intensive care to try to keep their organs healthy until they died.

In a separate report in the journal, they said that sick infants were put on respirators immediately after birth, while six others were put on respirators only after death appeared imminent.

Kellogg Co. made a similar claim in 1984 when it linked consumption of All-Bran, a high-fiber cereal, with reduction of cancer risks. The FDA could have declared the cereal a drug, forcing Kellogg to undergo lengthy procedures for drug approval. But FDA Commissioner Dr. Frank Young said such action, which could have entailed seizing All-Bran, would have been ridiculous. Instead, the agency decided to come up with a regulation that would allow health claims on labels — a process that is still under way. bad things sometimes happen to good people. "I don't know what happened at Allison's facility last Friday, but at most day-care centers, noon to about 3 p.m. is nap time. "I can see why somebody wouldn't realize somebody was missing," Wanat said. Another Manchester-area day-care provider said she felt some sympathy for Allison. "For a woman like herself (Allison) to not realize a child was missing was quite devastating," said Kimberly Peterson, director of ABC Day Care Center at 358 Hartford Road. "You have to have eyes on all sides of your head."

Levin said Skinner's death and similar incidents at day-care facilities will always result in some criticism of the business. "It makes it difficult for every provider," she said. "People are always looking to say it's not good, it's not right."

But Donna Jolly spokeswoman for DHR, said she doesn't think such incidents give day care as a whole a bad reputation. Day-care providers now are more professional, she said. Many take courses in early childhood development and business.

"They consider themselves professionals and they consider it a business," Jolly said. Of the four local day-care facility directors interviewed, all said none of the parents of the children they care for have mentioned the Bloomfield

Bolton

Although more Bolton residents will be entering high school during the next decade, enrollment is expected to decrease at that level because the town of Willington, which does not have a high school, has stopped sending students to Bolton High School. About 100 Willington students had been enrolled in the high school, she said. At the board's last meeting on July 13, members talked about recruiting students from the town of Columbia to come to school in Bolton. Members discussed getting the new students on a tuition basis.

Also to be discussed tonight is whether or not the board should approve the teacher evaluation program.

The evaluation program was approved by the board last summer as a pilot program for the 1988-89 school year, Wiedie said. Now the program with minor revisions is coming back to the board for permanent approval.

The board is also scheduled to discuss a contract with the bus company. The old company was bought last September and started last year, Wiedie said. The new company honored Bolton's contract with the National Railways for the 1988-89 school year, she said, but now the company wants to renegotiate the contract.

Train

The train had gone about 250 miles when the accident occurred at about 4 a.m. Police said they did not know how fast the train was going at the time of the accident, or how many people were on board. Most people on the train were apparently asleep, and the majority of the victims drowned, said Javier Lopez, the Red Cross duty officer in Los Mochis, 60 miles northeast of the crash scene. In Mexico City, President Carlos Salinas de Gortari expressed his condolences to relatives and said in a statement he had ordered National Railways — which includes the Pacific route — to pay compensation and burial costs.

Legion bats silenced by New London

Manchester has rematch against Waterbury today

By Jim Tierney
Manchester Herald

MIDDLETOWN — What plugged the Manchester Legion Post 102 baseball contingent last summer during the State Legion Tournament — a lack of hitting — reared its fateful head once again in a winner's bracket clash with New London Wednesday afternoon at Palmer Field Stadium. New London righthander Scott Santoro, who tossed the full nine innings, baffled the Manchester lineup with nothing more than good location on his talling fastball. Never able to solve Santoro, Post 102 totaled 16 of its 27 outs on either pop ups or fly balls. Santoro spun a four-hitter as New London defeated Manchester, 6-2. Manchester (29-9) is still alive in the double elimination tourney and will face Waterbury, a 6-5 winner over Fairfield, in a loser's bracket game this afternoon at 1 p.m. at Palmer Field Stadium. Rob Stanford will get the starting nod for Manchester. Post 102 beat Waterbury, 2-1, in its opener on Tuesday. A Manchester victory would earn it a spot in the 4 p.m. game on Saturday, New London (40-12) earned a bye and will not play again until Friday night.

"We should've been up there looking for his fastball. He was just sticking them in where we were popping them up. I think a lot of guys were taking uppercuts and not rolling their top wrist."

— Keith DiVeso

Manchester scored both of its runs in the third to slice the lead to 3-2. Santoro, who threw seven straight balls to open the inning, issued back-to-back walks to Jimmy Penders and Marcus Mataya. After Covey failed to sacrifice the runners, Dom Laurinits (two hits) ripped an RBI-single to left field. The ball got by left fielder Geoff Fletcher, allowing Mataya to come around with the second run. "It was too good to turn down," Burnstein said. "Basically, he wanted to take care of his family. He's not married, but he wanted it for his parents. Basically, it's a very good deal. He'll miss Boston and the Celtics ... he thought the fans were fantastic." Shaw, who is working at a basketball camp in Saco, Maine, was in negotiations with the Celtics "my No. 1 choice." "It is one of the best organizations," Shaw said early Wednesday. "I'd like to stay there. That's all I can say." His mother, Barbara Shaw, told The Boston Globe that telephone from Richmond that "the Laurinits was thrown out at third base attempting to make Fletcher's error really hurt. Santoro then no-hit Manchester until a two-out single by Laurinits in the eighth. A Covey wild pitch and a successful squeeze by Casey O'Neill accounted for two more New London runs in the fifth. Chris Podszwa, a perfect 4-for-4 outing. "It's a business decision, that's the bottom line," Armato said. "He views it as a challenge. He's ready to throw himself 100 percent into the situation." Chinese police arrest another student leader

BEIJING (AP) — Police in the southern city of Guangzhou confirmed today they have arrested yet another of the country's most-wanted student leaders from the spring pro-democracy protests. Guangzhou officials also reported executing 18 people for theft or robbery, but said the crimes were not connected with the pro-democracy protests.

In other developments: The Communist Party expelled China's leading computer entrepreneur, Wan Runnan, for having supported the student protests. The company he founded and headed, the Stone Group Co., also dismissed him as board chairman and president, the official Xinhua News Agency reported. Wan, 43, fled China after the June 30 crackdown on the protesters. He founded Stone in 1984 and built it into China's leading computer manufacturer and private corporate success story.

Xinhua said Wan "plotted, fanned and directly joined in the recent ... counter-revolutionary rebellion." Two other dissidents, academics Yan Jiaqi and Bao Zunxin, were expelled from the party and private corporate success story. Police followed the Hong Kong resident to a Guangzhou film studio, where he gave the passport to a youth. Police questioned the youth and confessed that he was hiding Zheng, according to the newspaper account. Zheng reportedly hoped to use the fake passport to escape.

trick. What was left now? If diamonds were 3-2, it would do declare no good to guess the diamond, since East would ruff in and cash the jack of spades to beat the hand. The only chance for declarer would be to find East with four diamonds. If East did have four, he would be more likely to hold the queen. So, in dummy's own hearts and South cue-bid the spade ace, he simply asked for aces and bid six. No doubt he hoped that South held three clubs, so that a spade could be shed from dummy on South's club ace. When the spade 10 was led, declarer's first chance was that West had bid away from the king. But dummy's queen drew the king from East. Now a 2-2 heart split would still leave declarer positioned to make the slam just by guessing who held the diamond queen. But king of hearts and a heart to the ace left East holding a good heart

Abby's letter campaign successful

Dear Abby
 Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Your Operation Dear Abby 7 A M e r i c a Re-members campaign has made a fifth-grade class in Solon, Ohio, very proud of their country and the servicemen and women who are helping preserve the peace. We sent holiday greetings all over the world, and one extraordinary helicopter pilot, Lt. Arnel Cook, aboard the USS Nimitz, wrote us a thank-you note and sent us a two-hour videotape explaining what the crew on the Nimitz does, and why they are so proud to be serving their country. He narrated this educational masterpiece and even set it to music. How exciting it was for our class to be at sea with the Nimitz!

You may be interested to learn what happened when a Mississippi girl wrote to a lonely sailor on that ship. Read on.

DEAR ABBY: While I was aboard the USS Nimitz, which was deployed to the Pacific and Indian oceans, I was feeling depressed because the holiday season was approaching, and I was far from friends and family.

I heard an announcement over the loudspeaker saying there was more than 500 pounds of mail in the public affairs office that had just arrived from Operation Dear Abby. I decided to go and find out what they were talking about.

After waiting in line for about 30 minutes, I then walked into the office and saw letters stacked everywhere. I picked one from Rebecca Winterstein of Florence, Miss. (It was in an attractive envelope and had a nice scent.) I was choosing that letter when I changed my mind. I was supposed to be in Mississippi to meet her. It was love at first sight, and the rest is history.

We were married on May 16 in Anniston, Ala., where I was attending school, and are looking forward to a lifetime of happiness together. Thanks, Abby!

Stars toast Anderson

DANBURY (AP) — Metropolitan Opera star Kuznevsy Norman and violinist Isaac Stern will pay homage this weekend to Marian Anderson, the black contralto who once was banned from performing in Washington.

Fifty years ago, the Daughters of the American Revolution refused to let Anderson sing at Washington's Constitution Hall and first lady Eleanor Roosevelt resigned from the organization in protest.

Within days, Anderson was invited to sing on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial and her concert attracted a racially mixed audience of 75,000.

Anderson went on to become the first black singer to perform in a leading role at the Metropolitan Opera. She sang at the inaugurations of President Roosevelt and Kennedy and before kings and queens.

Rap group reunites
 NEW YORK (AP) — Chuck D., the leader of the rap group Public Enemy, says the band has reunited after firing one member for his anti-Semitic remarks and is ready to fight the power in an upcoming album.

The group announced at the end of June that it was taking a break after firing its "minister of information," Professor Griff, for anti-Semitic remarks made in a newspaper interview.

Public Enemy's follow-up to their smash album "It Takes a Nation of Millions to Hold Us Back" will be titled "Fear of a Black Planet." Their current single, "Fight the Power," is on the soundtrack of the Spike Lee film "Do the Right Thing."

Reagans to take physicals
 ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Former President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, will have their annual physicals at the Mayo Clinic later this year, said a Reagen spokesman.

Wendie Weinstock, a retired Mayo Clinic physician, said she and her 83-year-old wife would arrive at the famed hospital.

The Reagans, who live in Bel-Air, Calif., have a long relationship with Mayo physicians, stemming in part from a friendship between Dr. Oliver Beachler, a retired Mayo Clinic surgeon, and Mrs. Reagan's late stepfather, Dr. Loyal Davis.

Franklin offers her help
 DETROIT — Soul singer Aretha Franklin is offering to sing in a benefit in a last-ditch effort to restore music programs in Motown's public schools.

Superintendent John Porter said Franklin offered to do a benefit to help raise $1.25 million for Detroit's middle and elementary schools' instrumental music programs.

The classes were eliminated in June when the deficit-riddled school board approved $50 million in cuts to balance its budget. School officials earlier set a Monday deadline to raise the money but extended the date until Aug. 21.

TV host is 'burnt out'
 NEW YORK (AP) — Cristina Ferrare says she worked so hard during her last pregnancy that she could "hardly wait to go into labor so I could rest."

Ferrare was working as a host of three television shows while pregnant with her fourth child, her second daughter with entertainment executive Tony Thomopoulos. She had two children with her ex-husband, automaker John DeLorean.

"I could hardly wait to go into labor so I could rest," she said in an interview in the September issue of Good Housekeeping magazine. "A month after the baby arrived, I went back to work and discovered I was simply burnt out."

QUESTION: Where can I look for good, quick advice about writing better?

ANSWER: There are dozens of new guides, but for my money the best is still Strunk and White's "The Elements of Style." This slim paperback provides excellent advice for beginning writers as well as seasoned pros. Two examples: "Work from a suitable design;" and "Write with nouns and verbs."

Air conditioning a blessing during hot summer months

By Peter Bohr

What bothers you the most about summertime? No parking spaces at the beach? Warm watermelon? Unsanitary bikini lines?

How about hopping in a car so hot you could bake a pizza on the front seat, and then finding that the air conditioner won't work?

Automatic air conditioners are fairly complex systems. They require the ability of the stuff to absorb or give away. I asked my friends Alan Slocum and Ken Schmitz at Sherman's Mobile Air Conditioning in Riverside, Calif., for some hot tips on keeping cool in our cars this summer.

"Buy a 1973 Chevrolet," said Alan.

"That's fine, but since there are only so many old Chevys to go around, what about those of us who have a newer car?"

"Buy a white car with a tan interior, not a dark car," said Ken. "And don't buy a car with one of those plexiglass sunroofs or T-tops. You can never get them very cool inside."

Another obvious tip is to keep your car's a-c well-serviced. The a-c's lifeline is its serpentine belt and that flows through the system carrying off the hot air from the condenser. If the belt is loose, it will keep the system well lubricated and ready to go when summer comes.

When you get into a blistering hot closed car, first open the windows to equalize the air temperature inside with that outside. Turn on the a-c, and after a few minutes when it starts kicking out cool air, then shut the windows.

reach 150 degrees," explained Alan. "The best a-c built will only lower the temperature by about 60 degrees. So under those conditions it will still be a toasty 90 degrees inside even if the a-c works perfectly."

The best solution then, is to park in the shade. If that's not possible, the guys suggest that tinted windows — the kind that make your car look like a Mafia staff vehicle — or those funny folding sunvisors that fit across the windshield will keep the interior cooler. And if you're stuck in traffic, the best bet is to have your stereo ripped off, leaving the windows open.

Buying a car takes research

Second of a series
 By the Editors of Consumer Reports

If you know the dealer's cost of the new car you want to buy, you'll have a valuable edge in price negotiations. The prices shown on window stickers are, of course, list prices. The stickers give no clue to the dealer's costs. That's a critical information if you're to negotiate successfully.

Precise information is available from, among other sources, the Consumer Reports Auto Price Service, Box 8905, Dept. TD, Novi, Mich. 48050. The Auto Price Service provides printouts for any make, model and trim line you specify. The cost is $11 for one car; $20 for two cars; $27 for three cars; and $7 for each additional printout after three.

Using the dealer price information, you can prepare a worksheet that describes exactly the car you want, its dealer cost and list price. The worksheet can save a lot of time and needless chitchat — and, most of all, money — when you go out to buy.

The worksheet should include the complete name of the car and should list the name of each option you want, its dealer cost and list price. At the bottom, she is unable to do so, request referral to an internist, a physician skilled in diagnosis, for a second opinion. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Medical Specialist." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to: P.O. Box 9189, Cleveland, Ohio 44101-3989. Be sure to mention the title.

Vascular disease causes cold feet

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a problem with cold feet. Three or four blankets, socks and the like don't help. I don't drink coffee or alcohol, don't smoke, walk regularly, yet my feet sting and burn like I've been in the cold too long. I'm on gout medication and high blood pressure medication but can't stand the pain from the cold feet.

DEAR READER: Cold, stinging feet can be the first sign of a blood circulation problem or neuropathy (nerve malfunction) in your lower extremities. Circulatory deficiencies are often caused by age-related arteriosclerotic buildup in blood vessels. When insufficient blood reaches the feet, they can feel prickly and cold. Neuropathy is a common consequence of metabolic diseases, such as anemia and diabetes. I suspect that vascular disease is the cause of your problem, because you are on medication for high blood pressure. However, you should ask your doctor about this.

While you're at it, question your doctor about anemia, diabetes, kidney disease, Lyme disease (an infection caused by a tick bite), and other ailments that are associated with the symptoms you describe. Finally, ask your doctor to consider the possibility that one or more of your medicines may be contributing to the problem. For example, by reducing circulation at the same time they lower blood pressure, many anti-hypertensive drugs can cause cold, prickly feet.

I believe your doctor is the logical person to sort out the possible causes of your complaint. If he or she is unable to do so, request referral to an internist, a physician skilled in diagnosis, for a second opinion. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Medical Specialist." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to: P.O. Box 9189, Cleveland, Ohio 44101-3989. Be sure to mention the title.

U.S., Panama soldiers face off over arrests

FORT AMADOR, Panama (AP) — U.S. forces blockaded the entrance to Fort Amador after Panamanian forces arrested two American soldiers, and the standoff ended three hours later when both sides exchanged arrested troops.

U.S. military officials blamed Wednesday's confrontation, the second in as many days, on the arrests of the American soldiers and strongly protested the action.

The Panamanian Defense Forces in turn condemned the blockade, during which Panamanian troops trained anti-aircraft weapons on U.S. helicopters circling overhead.

The Defense Forces under strongman Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega accused the United States of "trying to humiliate us in our own home" and said Panama would not respond to provocation.

Fort Amador is at the southern entrance to the Panama Canal and includes barracks for Panamanian troops, the Southern Command offices, a U.S. naval station and a golf course used by American personnel. Noriega, commander of the Defense Forces and Panama's de facto ruler, has offices at the fort.

Sources said Noriega was not at Wednesday's confrontation, the latest of several between U.S. and Panamanian forces. American troops have held exercises that amounted to shows of force several times during the past few months, parking ar-

U.S. naval forces helped deter any action by Colombia, and on Nov. 18, 1903, Panama granted use, occupation and control of the Canal Zone to the U.S. by treaty. In 1978, a new treaty was ratified which provided for a gradual canal takeover by Panama and the withdrawal of U.S. troops by 1999. In 1984, the first democratic elections in 16 years were held, and Anjo Barletta, backed by National Defense Force chief Manuel Noriega, became president. Barletta resigned in Sept. 1985, and first vice president Eric Delvalle took office. Delvalle was ousted from power by Noriega in Feb. 1988 after attempting to fire him as National Defense Force chief. Noriega's military government recently held elections in that country, which were declared null and void amid accusations of election tampering and interference.

more personnel carriers across the street from Noriega's office.

Sources said Noriega was not at Fort Amador on Wednesday when the confrontation occurred.

The incident began when a U.S. military policeman was arrested in the Panama City neighborhood of El Chorrillo, near the general staff headquarters of the Panamanian Defense Forces, U.S. Army Col. Ronald Scomeyers said.

That soldier was taken to a Panamanian installation at Fort Amador, where another U.S. military policeman was arrested when he tried to get his fellow soldier released.

Panamanian military sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, confirmed Scomeyers' account but neither they nor Lopez gave a reason for the initial arrest.

U.S. troops then arrested two Panamanian military policemen at the gates to the fort and an Army detachment that included five armored personnel carriers blocked the entrance. Helicopters circled overhead, with Panamanian soldiers training anti-aircraft guns on them.

Civilians, including reporters, were allowed across the line during the blockade, but not Panamanian soldiers.

Finally, after three hours, reporters watched as U.S. and Panamanian officers met and exchanged prisoners, after which the U.S. troops withdrew.

U.S. Southern Command officials strongly protested the actions of members of the Panamanian Defense Forces who arbitrarily arrested two U.S. military policemen," said a statement issued by the Command.

The arrests also were seen as possible retaliation for the arrest of 29 Panamanians on Tuesday by U.S. troops. The Southern Command said the Panamanians, who were released after 75 minutes, had entered a military area without permission.

The Southern Command statement said it "reinforced" its forces at Fort Amador during the incident because U.S. forces are responsible for internal security

Army brat is cadet captain

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — For the first time in West Point's 177-year history, the captain of the Corps of Cadets is a woman.

Kristin Baker, a self-proclaimed "Army brat" from Burke, Va., confidently marched onto the U.S. Military Academy grounds Wednesday afternoon after leading a regiment of new cadets on a 13-mile march from Lake Frederick.

The 5-foot-4-inch, 112-pound Baker told the panting plebes to get some chow and then waited into a horde of reporters and photographers.

"Now, my first objective is 'Ring Weekend,' then the first football game, then graduation on the 31st of May. Beyond that, I really don't know," she said.

Commanding a brigade of more than 4,400 cadets will be Baker's primary concern for the coming academic year, which starts today.

Women, admitted as cadets since 1976, make up 10 percent of the cadets at West Point.

Baker, 21, is majoring in human factors psychology — the study of the interaction between man and machines. She said she has not decided what she wants to do once commissioned as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army.

Surprise at a Norwegian jamboree

U.S. Boy Scouts unprepared for all those Girl Scouts

By Doug Mellgren
The Associated Press.

ASKER, Norway - Their motto is "Be Prepared," but some Boy Scouts say they were not ready for what they found at a rainy camp-out in Norway.

"When we have a Boy Scout Jamboree in the states, it's strictly boys. We were taken a little off guard," said Charlie Hart, scoutmaster of an American troop for the children of U.S. soldiers based in West Germany.

Eight Soviet boys also were among the 2,500 visitors from 26 nations at the Norwegian National Jamboree.

The Associated Press

"This is the first time we have had Soviets at a Norwegian Jamboree, and may be the first time anywhere, since the Soviets don't have scouting," said camp spokesman Per-Olav Lie.

He said the boys, members of the Soviet Communist Party Youth Organization, were sponsored by the Lions Club in Moss, Norway.

Norway formed scout troops there in 1978, said Anne Marie Kristensen, a spokeswoman at the week-long jamboree, which ends Sunday.

Organizers said that no thefts, vandalism or use of alcohol were reported so far at "the biggest summer event in the world
