HOSTAGE AID IS OFFERED

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The spiritual adviser of the group believed to sponsor hostage-holders said Friday he would help free Western captives if the West did the same for Arab prisoners in Israel.

"Let us get to an agreement together so that each side would use his own means and influence to end the crisis of the hostages, all hostages, and resolve the problem of Arab prisoners," said Sheik Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah, who advises the pro-Iranian Hezbollah.

"I am ready to help free the Western hostages provided Western countries help release Lebanese and Palestinian prisoners in Israel."

He spoke at the Bir el-Abed Mosque in the Shiite Muslim slums of south Beirut during ceremonies commemorating the most revered Shiite saint, Imam Hussein bin Ali, grandson of the prophet Mohammed.

Eight Americans and eight other Western hostages are held in Lebanon, most of them by radical Shiite groups believed associated with Hez-zbollah, whose name means Party of God.

In Washington, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said: "It's an interesting statement. We don't have any comment on it. ... We hope it signals their desire to release the hostages."

"We would like to lower our voices a little and let these issues play out for a few days and see what happens," he said of the Bush administration's position.

Fadlallah's statement seemed to corroborate an offer made earlier this month by the captors of Joseph Cicippio after they suspended a death sentence against the American hostage.

They said they would free Cicippio if Israel released 450 Arab prisoners and allowed 55 Palestinian deportees to return to the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Shiites held Ashoura parades Friday, trampling Israeli and American flags inscribed "Death to Israel, Death to America."

Possible closing of school worries Bolton selectman

By Rick Santos
Manchester Herald

BOLTON — A member of the Board of Selectmen is "very apprehensive" about the possibility that the school board will include abandoning Bolton Center School in its plans for adding space at the primary and secondary school levels.

Board members and school officials said additions will be necessary because of increases in the younger school-aged population and the lack of facilities at the Center School.

The boards will host a joint meeting to discuss the issue at 8 p.m. Aug. 24 at Bolton High School. The Board of Education, which had said it is in favor of a plan to close Bolton Center School and build an addition to the high school, is now suggesting the alternative of expanding both the high school and the elementary school also be examined by the town.

If the most recent plan was undertaken, said school board Chairman James H. Marshall Friday, the addition to the elementary school would be "no where as extensive as the original plan." He added, "we have not abandoned the other (original) proposal."

Marshall said the school board, that the town hire architects to estimate the cost of their most recent proposal of expanding the elementary school and the high school. The Manchester firm Lawrence Associates has already drawn plans for the elementary school addition.

"The board wants all the data on the table, so it can make an intelligent decision," Marshall said.

The first batch of information the board needs, he said, is a recommendation from an outside consultant concerning how the school system should structure its curriculum. Marshall said the board is considering hiring a former education dean from the University of Connecticut to examine Bolton's academic needs.

The chairman lauded the abilities of Mark Shibles, who is now a education professor at UConn. "I think this is a tremendous opportunity for us to have a man of his credentials to be willing to work for us."

Also necessary for the school board to choose a plan for school expansion is a survey of the townspeople to determine their opinion of proposed school changes, Marshall said.

He said he hopes the school board will have the information necessary for its decision by December.

Japanese lays trade woes at U.S. door

TOKYO (AP) — Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama said Friday the Americans are to blame for friction over trade because they don't understand Japan, speak its language or try hard enough to penetrate the Japanese market.

Many business leaders in the United States, however, believe that Americans cannot penetrate the market because the Japanese system won't let them.

Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu said he would visit Washington next month to meet with President Bush and reaffirm relations with the United States as the foundation of Japan's foreign policy.

He pledged to push political and tax reform as a way of preventing the kind of scandals and unpopular policies that brought down his two predecessors and cost his governing Liberal Democrats an upper house election.

Nakayama, a physician appointed Wednesday after Kaifu took office, said "U.S. efforts are lacking" and Japan's distribution system should not be held responsible for tensions over trade.

"While I am, of course, aware of the various opinions emanating from the U.S. side in regard to Japan's distribution system, the distribution systems of the United States and Japan differ as the countries themselves differ," he said.

He said "Japan must speak its mind" to bring the United States around to its way of thinking.

Americans, including members of Congress, often complain that Japan's complex distribution system, in which longstanding relationships and delivery practices take precedence over efficiency and cost-cutting, are a major barrier to U.S. goods.

Japan's trade surplus with the United States was $55 billion last year, according to U.S. government figures.

The foreign minister said Americans have made considerable progress in improving their understanding of the Japanese market, but depend too much on Japanese who speak English rather than learning the language themselves.

"How many Americans working in Japan can speak perfect Japanese?" he said.

Nakayama was a member of a Liberal Democratic Party committee that negotiated in Washington on trade issues. Referring to that experience, he said:

"Americans then appeared to understand Japan, but in fact did not. That's why it is so necessary to talk at length with the United States. If that is not done, the United States can be expected of them, will come up with various unilateral moves."

In an interview with Kyodo News Service, Nakayama was quoted as saying he expected the Soviet Union to offer to return a group of small islands of northern Japan in exchange for Japanese technology and investment.

Soviet soldiers have occupied the islands since the end of World War II, and the dispute over them has kept the two nations from signing a peace treaty.

"As international relations change, the Soviet government authorities change and their way of thinking will change as well to adapt to international circumstances," Nakayama was quoted as saying.

Kaifu succeeded Soneku Uno, who resigned after only two months in office to take responsibility for the governing party's election defeat last month. The Liberal Democrats lost their majority in the upper house of Parliament for the first time since the party was formed in 1955.

Uno took over from Noboru Takeshita, who resigned June 20 to take responsibility for the Recruit Co. influence-buying scandal, which reached the top ranks of politics, the bureaucracy and business. Uno also was plagued by allegations that he had kept paid mistresses.

Hopes dampened in search for missing congressman

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Rescuers looking for Rep. Mickey Leland's plane turned their search back toward southwestern Ethiopia on Friday, their hopes dampened after finding no trace of the aircraft in areas where satellites picked up apparent distress signals.

"There's some disappointment that the signals turned out to be spurious," said U.S. Embassy spokesman James Haley of the signals recorded Thursday by U.S. weather satellites.

"We have aircraft out and we will continue the search," Haley added. "We feel there is still a good possibility we will find them."

But as darkness fell on the fourth day of the hunt and search planes returned to their bases, officials privately acknowledged growing unease over the fate of Leland, D-Texas, and his party.

Leland and 15 other people were aboard the twin-engine U-2 plane when it disappeared Monday on a flight from Addis Ababa to the Fugardo refugee camp, 480 miles to the southwest near the Sudanese border. Leland, chairman of the House Select Committee on Hunger, was one of nine Americans aboard the flight.

State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said the group had some box lunches, one or two cases of soft drinks, and 35 gallons of water.

Cold weather — with temperatures that can drop to freezing at night — were a troubling factor. Heavy clouds, rain and low visibility persisted Friday and prevented the aerial search from continuing past sundown, as has been the case since it began Tuesday.

In Washington, Leland spokeswoman Alma Newsom criticized the handling of the operation and said it appeared the "sense of urgency from the top has not filtered considerably as it went down."

She said there was a "general acknowledgment that more facilities were needed, that more aircraft were needed... that particularly more personnel were needed."

The Defense Department has 160 personnel on the ground in Ethiopia. Twelve Ethiopian helicopters have been joined in the search by Air Force cargo planes, a U-2 reconnaissance craft and at least four helicopters.

Ms. Tutwiler said film from the U-2 plane was being processed and that the plane, capable of taking high-resolution photographs over a broad area, would be making more flights.

The first three days of the search were concentrated in rugged, remote highlands of southwestern Ethiopia, not far from the Fugardo camp.

Late Thursday, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration in Washington said its weather satellites had picked up two apparent distress signals in other areas.

One signal was pinpointed as emanating from an area about 85 miles southeast of the capital, the other from about 100 miles north of Addis Ababa.

Word reached Addis Ababa too late in the day to launch an aerial search of the areas, but foot patrols were dispatched Thursday night and planes went back into the air at dawn Friday.

Two U.S. Air Force C-130 Hercules cargo planes, equipped to detect emergency signals from downed aircraft, flew over the areas without hearing anything, and ground parties reported no sightings. Two Ethiopian air force helicopters also came up blank.

Asked how the satellites could have recorded false signals, Haley replied, "I just don't know. I've been trying to get an answer to that myself."

Officials at the embassy and the weather service's Washington headquarters cautioned earlier, however, that the satellite-detected signals might not be from the Leland party's plane. They also noted the signals were far off the plane's intended flight path.

By midday Friday, the C-130s were back flying parallel routes along a 200-mile portion of the missing plane's presumed path.

U.S. authorities on Friday increased their count of those traveling with Leland from 15 to 18. Haley said there were eight other Americans aboard.

Voyager finds 2 new rings

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Voyager 2 space probe on Friday discovered two partial rings of debris orbiting the planet Neptune, quite different than the complete rings that encircle Saturn and Uranus, NASA announced.

The "ring arcs" at Neptune are arc-shaped partial circles. One extends one-eighth of the way around Neptune's equator, and the other only one-thirty-sixth of the way.

That makes them about 30,000 miles and 4,000 miles long, respectively, said an announcement by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

"Voyager scientists said the ring arcs may be comprised of debris associated with nearby moons, or may be remnants of moons that have been torn apart or ground down through collisions," NASA said.

Scientists don't yet know if they are made up of dust, pebbles or boulders, or if the debris consists primarily of rock or ice, said Brad Smith, a University of Arizona planetary scientist who heads the Voyager imaging team.

"The arcs were found in photographs returned by the spacecraft early this morning," NASA said.

Smith said researchers don't know if the two partial rings detected by Voyager are among the three to six rings arcs that scientists previously believed they detected from Earth.

On Friday, Voyager 2 was 2.72 billion miles from Earth and 11.3 million miles from Neptune, speeding at 42,196 mph toward its close encounter with the giant gaseous planet at midnight EDT on Aug. 24.

The probe already has discovered four previously unknown moons orbiting Neptune in addition to Triton and Nereid, which were discovered from Earth. Voyager project scientist Ed Stone has said Voyager may discover 50 to 100 partial rings orbiting Neptune.

The 30,000-mile-long arc was detected just outside the orbit of moon 1989 N3, which orbits about 23,300 miles above Neptune's cloudtops. The 6,000-mile-long arc seems to trail about 50,000 miles behind moon 1989 N3, which orbits about 17,000 miles above Neptune's cloudtops, NASA said.

Those two moons are among the four recently discovered by Voyager 2.

Panama detains military policemen

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Gen. Manuel Noriega's Defense Forces detained four vehicles full of U.S. military police Friday but later freed them after discussions between officers of both countries.

The U.S. Southern Command heads the Voyager imaging team. The incident, the latest of several confrontations between Panamanians and American troops, occurred in an area known as Curundu near the Panama Canal.

Panama's Maj. Carlos Saldana told reporters the incident started when "American troops went through in civilian clothes, with their weapons, riding in private vehicles in violation" of the Panama Canal treaties.

Part-time teacher approved

By Rick Santos
Manchester Herald
BOLTON — A part-time fifth-grade teacher will be hired for the upcoming school year to handle an increased enrollment in the fifth grade.
The Board of Education approved the hiring at a meeting Thursday after School Superintendent Richard E. Packman recommended the step. Presently there are 49 fifth-graders registered for the upcoming school year, and Packman said he learned Thursday that another student, whose family is moving back to Bolton, is supposed to register next week.
The increased enrollment is not something that surprised Bolton Center School Principal Ann Rash. She said Thursday the grade was about the same size last year, and she warned school officials when she submitted her budget proposal in October that a third teacher might be necessary.
Although Rash said she knew the class was "right on the edge" of needing a third teacher, she said she cannot request three teachers just because enrollment figures may increase. If there were three teachers for an amount of students that is just beyond the limit of needing only two, she said, and a few students withdrew, there would be three very small sections.
Rash said she cannot afford the luxury of taking this risk.
At the meeting in the office of the elementary school, Packman said the advantage of hiring a part-time teacher is that "it leaves flexibility." If additional students enter the grade, officials can change the position to full time, he said.
This could not be done without the approval of a third grade teaching position that has been filled.
The training for third- and fifth-grade teachers is the same, school officials said.
School officials said there are no limits to the salary range for the new position.

Irish wants spending curb

A Republican candidate for the town board of directors wants nominees from both political parties to voluntarily limit campaign spending and the amount of contributions they receive.
Wallace J. Irish Jr. said Friday he'll ask candidates to set a ceiling for campaign spending, but added that he doesn't know what the amount should be.
He said he is not concerned about his ability to raise enough money for a campaign.
"I think something is going to be needed to control political spending," Irish said. "Are we buying an election or convincing people to vote for us?"
Irish said Republican Town Committee Chairman John I. Garside Jr. plans to discuss his proposal with the five other Republican candidates. Democratic Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr. said the idea had merit, Irish said.

Gunshots riddle home of witness in assault case

EAST HAVEN (AP) — A gunman fired 10 shots through the front of the home of a woman whose testimony helped send her brother-in-law to prison last week for repeatedly raping and beating a 4-year-old girl, authorities said.
No one was injured.
Carmel Staples and her husband, William, were in bed watching television when bullets began flying through the picture window of their suburban raised-ranch home shortly before 11:30 Thursday night, Mrs. Staples said.
Because of the timing of the attack, police said it was likely the gunman was only trying to scare Mrs. Staples or her husband.
But Mrs. Staples, who had been the target of a threat after the trial of her brother-in-law, said she is often up and around late at night and it was lucky no one was killed.
"We could have been splattered," she said Friday afternoon.

One bullet pierced a framed print hanging on the wall opposite the living room picture window and traveled through the kitchen and out the window screen above the sink. Another bullet left a trail through the portion of the table cloth hanging over the dining room table, and three slugs were pulled from an antique living room couch next to the front window.
Five bullet holes were found in the picture window and five just below it, Mrs. Staples said. Authorities said the slugs they recovered were from a .22-caliber weapon, probably an automatic.

Police said they were investigating the possibility the shooting was related to Carmel Staples' role in the prosecution of her brother-in-law, Eugene Russell, and Staples' sister, Concetta Russell.
Deputy Police Chief William U. Hubbard said Mrs. Staples was threatened after the trial of Eugene Russell, leading police to suspect the shooting might be related to the Russell case. But Hubbard said no proof of a connection had been established by late Friday, although he said police had several leads.

Eugene Russell was convicted of first- and second-degree sexual assault, first-degree assault and three counts of injury to a minor. At his sentencing in New Haven Superior Court on Aug. 2, Russell denied abusing the girl and told the court a "manipulative aunt" was responsible for the youngster's "off-the-wall story."
He was sentenced to 50 years in prison.
Concetta Russell, who had testified on her husband's behalf, is awaiting trial on three counts of conspiracy to commit sexual assault and two counts of risk of injury to a minor, police said.
Assistant State's Attorney Elio Vitale said the trial would likely be this fall, although no date has been set. He would not say whether Mrs. Staples was to be a witness in that case.

Mrs. Staples also declined to comment about the upcoming trial of her sister, and would not say who she believed might be behind the attack.
The gunfire at the Staples' home erupted shortly after a car pulled up in front, police said. The vehicle was described by a witness as tan, possibly a Saab.
Mrs. Staples said she heard the car drive up but "assumed it wasn't anybody for us." Immediately afterward, she heard what sounded like a series of large firecrackers going off.
"I thought it was like those M-80 bombs," she said.
When her husband went down the hall to investigate, he shouted out, "Oh my God, they shot up the window," she said.

State man held in murders

NEW LONDON (AP) — A former Ledyard High School football star has been charged with first-degree murder in connection with the execution-style slayings of two people in Anaheim, Calif., Anaheim police said.
Charles Oscar Sabbath, 25, was one of two people charged in the slayings of a couple whose decomposing bodies were found in Groton and Ledyard in the spring of 1990. The Day reported.

The bodies of Ricardo Van Stubbs, 26, and his girlfriend, Suzanne E. Rivera, 23, were found lying on a bed in their apartment by police responding to a report of a possible dead body, Barry said. The shooting probably occurred about a week and a half before the bodies were found, he said.
Stubbs died of a single gunshot wound, and Rivera died of multiple gunshot wounds, he said. Barry said a handgun was used. The apartment was ransacked and police are searching for items missing from the apartment, including firearms and video equipment, according to The Orange County Register, a newspaper in Santa Ana, Calif.

Sabbath has no prior record in Anaheim, Barry said. He was arrested on larceny and burglary charges in two separate incidents in Groton and Ledyard in the spring of 1990. The Day reported.

AIDS affects area hospitals

HARTFORD (AP) — The escalating number of AIDS cases is threatening to put such a strain on Connecticut hospitals that it could harm care to other patients, national and local experts said.
A report published in Thursday's issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association echoes the sentiments of local hospital officials who say the drain on health services will be great because sufferers of the disease tend to be poor and underequipped.
Dr. Brian Cooper, chief of epidemiology at Hartford Hospital, said the hospital would have to set aside 57 beds a day, or one-third of all medical beds for AIDS by the year 2000, if current projects are correct.
By the year 2000, he hospital estimates, it will be admitting 1,300 AIDS patients a year, he said.

Cooper said that would require a major transfer of personnel and resources, while revenues would shrink.
Hartford Hospital, which has treated more than 1,000 people with AIDS since 1982, had 250 AIDS admissions in 1988 and expects that number to rise to 300 this year, Cooper said.
He said Hartford Hospital manages to collect only 20 percent of the average $50,000 lifetime cost of treating an AIDS patient.
The JAMA study found that a small number of hospitals have inherited large numbers of patients with AIDS, an affliction in which a virus attacks the body's immune system and is most often spread through sexual contact and by sharing intravenous needles.
Less than 5 percent of U.S. hospitals treated 50 percent of the nation's AIDS cases, said the study, which analyzed 1987 data from 278 hospitals in 29 states. Public hospitals in the Northeast treated an average of 164 patients in 1987, the largest number in the nation, the study said.

Caring for AIDS patients has been a money loser for all hospitals because so many patients do not have health insurance or government assistance funds to cover the full costs of treatment, the study said.

Frederick W. Palomba, 61, former mayor of Waterbury

WATERBURY (AP) — Former Mayor Frederick W. Palomba collapsed and died while at work Friday. He was 61.

Details of his death were not available, but Palomba had a history of heart problems and resigned as mayor in 1968 three months after suffering a heart attack.

Palomba, a Republican, was first elected mayor in 1965 and re-elected in 1967.

He also served for many years as Selective Service director in Connecticut. He worked as an insurance investigator at the time of his death. The Waterbury American reported.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Positive GOP campaign vowed

By Alex Girelli
Manchester Herald

The Republican Party will conduct a positive campaign in the Manchester election, Republican Town Chairman John Garaside said Thursday.

Garaside charged that the Democratic Party has tried to depict the Republicans as negative campaigners.

As an example he cited reports that the presence of Ellen Burns Landers on the Republican ticket for the Board of Directors is hurting the GOP chances in the election because she is the wife of District President Thomas E. Lander, who is in the midst of a political controversy in the Eighth Utilities District.

The reports cited both Republican and Democratic leaders, without naming them, as saying that opposition within the district to Thomas Landers would work against Ellen Landers and thus the Republican slate.

"She's going to run on her record and not on her husband's," Garaside said.

"She's going to represent the town as a whole and not the Eighth District," Garaside said.

When the Republican slate, including Landers, was endorsed by the Republican Town Committee July 27, the endorsements at a press conference Aug. 1 that the ouster of Longest, a principal in the negotiations that led to the agreement, may affect sentiment toward the agreement.

In another comment on the agreement, Garaside said that when it was announced Aug. 4 that the town had transferred ownership of a town firehouse to Tolland Turnpike to the district, the Republican directors were not informed of the transfer and were not invited to the meeting at which it took place.

He said Republican Town Director Geoffrey Naab was an early advocate of re-establishing talks between the town and the district after earlier attempts of agreement failed.

It's a losing battle.

In the aging process, sagging skin and organs, varicose veins, arthritis, and failing hearts all result partly from the losing battle against gravity.

Our eyes still shed the tears
We recall the pain like yesterday
Although it's been one year
Now to your grave we wander
Flowers we place with care
No one knows the pain inside
As we turn and leave you there

BATTLING THE BLAZE — A firefighter shoots a jet of water towards the top of a 14-story building in Mexico City Friday. One woman died and a dozen other people were injured. The cause of the fire hasn't been determined.

Shelling kills six in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Shells exploded in the streets Friday and smoke billowed from the wooded slopes southeast of Beirut as Syrian and Christian gunmen duelled with howitzers and rocket launchers.

The shelling killed six people and wounded 36. Authorities said the barrage shattered a nine-hour overnight lull that followed 15 hours of fierce fighting.

A spokesman for the Christian army commander, Gen. Michel Aoun, said the Syrians started the shooting Friday by targeting Aoun's residence at the presidential palace in suburban Baabda. No casualties were reported at the palace.

Aoun has lived in the bunker three stories under the palace since the confrontation began March 8 between his Christian units and Syrian troops.

By police count, 822 people have been killed and 1,510 wounded.

In Washington, the State Department singled out Syria for criticism, a departure from its usual policy of calling for restraint by all sides.

Spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said, "The United States condemns the indiscriminate slaughter of innocent people and the renewed use of heavy caliber weapons, such as the 240mm mortar, which are in the Syrian arsenal."

"We again call upon Syria, an active participant in the fighting, the Lebanese armed forces, as well as the various Lebanese factions, for an immediate cease-fire."

The Aoun spokesman, who refused to be identified, said the Syrian barrage also targeted Beirut's eastern suburbs of Hadath and Baabda and the Metn region north of the city.

Polish general strike halts transit, ship, factory work

WARSAW (AP) — Tens of thousands of bus drivers, shipbuilders, dockhands and factory workers in Gdansk province stopped work for an hour Friday to demand higher pay and a halt to communist party influence on factory management.

It was Solidarity's first general strike since it regained legal status in April and was hailed as "exceptionally" successful by veteran organizer Bogdan Borusewicz.

Solidarity estimated more than 200,000 workers took part, many of whom signed up as members in the independent union whose slow growth since its legalization has disappointed activists.

"Even those enterprises where Solidarity is weak went on strike," Borusewicz said.

"We were really surprised how successful it was," said union spokeswoman Barbara Madajczyk-Krasowska. "For example 2,000 people took part in a rally and joined the strike at the Navy Shipyard."

"In many places people were joining Solidarity during the strike and organizations started applying for registration right after it," she said. "Although we are still getting reports, we estimate that at least 200,000 people took part."

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, addressing workers in Gdynia, referred to the parliamentary election of Interior Minister Czeslaw Kiszczak as prime minister

Aug. 2, and said: "Let's not allow the monopoly of generals to be reborn. ... There has to be a government crisis, mainly due to social dissatisfaction."

Walesa has said Solidarity legislators will oppose Kiszczak's Cabinet if it comes before parliament and will try to put together a tentative deal under which American philanthropist Barbara Piasecka-Johnson would invest in the state-owned yard to rescue it from bankruptcy.

The communist-linked trade union federation OPZZ said its unions approved of Solidarity's economic demands and it supported the protest.

Solidarity chapters in the northwestern port of Szczecin, the southern city of Katowice and the southwestern city of Wroclaw set similar protests for next week.

Solidarity has demanded:

- Increasing pay compensation for recent price increases of up to 300 percent for food.
- Ending state monopolies in the purchase and distribution of agricultural products.
- Stopping the financing of political or union organizations by enterprises, such as factory-level communist party groups.

City buses and trams also stopped. Factories displayed banners to show they were participating.

Solidarity's birthplace, the Lenin Shipyard, supported the demands but did not take part. Workers there said did not want to strike for fear of upsetting a tentative deal under which American philanthropist Barbara Piasecka-Johnson would invest in the state-owned yard to rescue it from bankruptcy.

Organizers said the strike included the province's main cities of Gdansk, Sopot and Gdynia along the Baltic Coast, as well as small inland towns. The province has 1.5 million people.

The protest, announced by wailing sirens and whistles at noon, idled the Northern and Repair shipyards in Gdansk and the Paris Commune shipyard in Gdynia, as well as all the ports in both cities, Solidarity said.

CLIENT IS BOSS

The client is always the boss. Legal counsel merely advises. The client makes the decision. In a divorce or litigated dispute, sometimes the stress is high, pressure to settle is great and decisions are difficult. But the attorney who does his homework and advises the client correctly and holds the course is the true professional. When the attorney won't buckle and holds out for fair and proper settlement, or demands the court trial, a better result can be anticipated.

A prayer for public worship

By George Plagenz

I was there to give the invocation at the Business Show dinner. My prayer went like this:

"We ask thy blessing, O God, on all those of us who carry on the business of the workday world. May honesty and integrity be our watchword — and may a sincere desire to improve the quality of human life motivate us in our endeavors."

"Above all, may everything we do be well done, fit for thine eye to see. May this be the reward we seek — that we have pleased thee with our work."

We were a mixture that night of Protestants (of all stripes), Catholics and Jews — maybe even atheists and agnostics. None of the 250 guests walked out during or after my prayer.

I mention this incident because we are told that in any gathering of people of different beliefs, some are going to be offended by prayer. (Could anybody be offended by something that holds up the idea of the just worker and sound workmanship?) For this reason, among others, there are those who find prayer in the public schools inappropriate and an abridgment of constitutional rights.

Others express different fears about prayer in the classroom. They see the bogeyman of governmental interference and "burranny" — state-written prayers — insinuating their ideas into our children's impressionable minds.

It is mostly the American Civil Liberties Union that considers this a real danger.

When I arrived in Massachusetts, I (in my role as clergyman) would frequently give the prayer that opened the daily sessions of the state Legislature on Beacon Hill. No one in that governmental body ever tried to tell me what to say.

The trouble, from my point of view, was quite the reverse. Nobody seemed to care what I was praying. I always had the feeling nobody was listening.

But if I don't share the fears of those who feel that religious freedom is at stake in the school prayer issue, neither do I believe with those on the other side who think the way to raise a crime-free, drug-free generation is to open each school day with a prayer.

So why am I in favor of school prayer? One reason is that a good home life today is not enough. Those who says that religion should be taught in the home and at church but should be kept out of the schools are forgetting this fact.

After children reach a certain age, some psychologists now say, what they have learned at home will be about 30 percent determinative of their behavior. The remaining 70 percent they see around them in the outside world (good and bad) will affect their lives to a much greater degree.

This means we must somehow bring more of the qualities that have a beneficial influence on a child's life into school and society. It means that the values expressed in the home must find residence outside the home as well.

Looking at it from another perspective, it may be one of the jobs of the schools to "bolster" the moral foundations laid down in the home.

Those of us who are parents have often heard our children come home from school and say, "My teacher said . . ."

What the teacher had said was something we had been telling our children since grade one. But it had no impact until it was reinforced by their teacher.

Since a youngster may be inclined to regard as unimportant whatever is omitted under the influence of the home by leaving out any mention of religion.

Military ignores its obligation

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — "Military procurement" gets a new definition with the U.S. Army in Korea — prostitution. We recently reported that the Army, by unwittingly allowing bogus GI marriages to prostitutes, is the largest importer of Korean hookers to the United States.

The Army isn't happy. The top brass doesn't want to be saddled with that reputation. In an eight-page response to our query, the Army points itself as an overwhelmed police force doing the best that it can. But the best isn't good enough.

Federal investigators and regional vice police assure us that in recent years, Korean hookers arriving as GI brides have become the most pervasive form of organized prostitution.

In June, an undercover sting operation arrested 80 Korean prostitutes working out of New York massage parlors. James Goldman, organized crime investigator for the Immigration and Naturalization Service, assured us that all of these hookers entered the United States by marrying American soldiers.

Former diplomats, who served in South Korea, told our associate Jim Lynch that some soldiers marry as many as four Koreans during their tour of duty. There are also reports by law-enforcement officials that the GIs are paid as much as $10,000 by black-market passport brokers to marry Korean prostitutes.

What does the Army say? "This command has no records of any GIs being punished for accepting money for marrying a Korean prostitute," an Army spokesman in Korea explained.

Is the Army investigating any sham marriages? "We are not aware of any investigations into alleged marriage payoffs that are ongoing or completed in this command," is the official response.

And here is a disturbing footnote from the Army: "The fact that a GI accepts money to marry a Korean prostitute (or another woman) may not be itself a punishable offense." Just exactly what does a GI have to do to commit a "punishable offense?"

The bottom line, according to the Army's official response, is, "There are limits to the military's authority in just about every aspect of this issue."

While the Army shirks responsibility, local law-enforcement officials around the country have to cope with the fallout from the Army's indifference. Houses for Korean prostitutes are sprouting at a dizzying pace. The sights inside these houses are not pretty — dozens of women huddled together, sleeping on the floors, forced to undergo cosmetic surgery to round their eyes and inflate their breasts.

Harris County, Texas, which includes Houston, was the first major area to notice the infiltration of Korean prostitutes, thanks to the Army's nearby Fort Hood.

The Harris County attorney wrote to the White House urging that the Bush administration put someone in the Pentagon who is "committed to solving this tragic problem by cutting off the Korean prostitute pipeline which plagues our communities."

Summer past recalled by race incident

By Sarah Overstreet

I had the oddest sense of deja vu as I listened to the radio report a few nights ago. It was coupled with a stunned disbelief — a feeling of "this can't be happening," as if I had just driven my old Camaro over the time line and into the Twilight Zone.

In what I considered graciously even tones, an adult church worker was recounting the horrible experience of taking her group of teen-agers for a swim. They were all working temporarily on church-sponsored social welfare projects in the small town of Saluda, S.C., and were going to cool off in the town pool. Only they didn't end up swimming. The poolkeepers refused to let three of the kids in because they were black.

After the dust from the brouhaha settled, town apologists pointed out that the Saluda Swim and Tennis Club, owned by the Jaycees, had always been maintained "as a private-membership club, as any city has country clubs." Yet the club quickly decided to admit blacks when its whites-only rule was challenged.

Things didn't go so well when I witnessed virtually the same story 20 years ago. Near the small southwestern Missouri town where I went to high school was a rural swim club. It was so much nicer than the public pools in the large city nearby that the city kids were happy to pay the extra money it cost to go there. The pool itself was huge, filled with playground equipment we could swing, slide and plummet off when we weren't lying on the surrounding grass listening to our transistor radios. It was definitely teen heaven, circa 1967.

I didn't understand why we had to buy memberships to the club. They only cost a dollar for the whole season, and sometimes we had to wait in long lines while the gatekeepers checked them. We paid another fee every time we went in anyway, so I didn't understand why they didn't just do away with the silly cards and charge us a nickel or so extra each time.

I didn't find out why we had to go through the membership charade until a few weeks after the swim club suddenly closed. By that time, some of us had started college and weren't paying much attention to our old hangout, but the gossip eventually reached those of us who had hung out on our two-piece suits and transistors.

A nice lady from the big city nearby had taken a busload of boys from a local boys' ranch to the swim club. Most of the boys got through the line and were issued membership cards, but then the gatekeeper suddenly announced, "We have no more memberships available. Sorry." The memberships had run out just as the first black child reached the front of the line.

The nice lady had what my mother would have called a hissy fit, right there on the grounds. She then called the city council, wrote to the newspaper and raised such a ruckus that the nearby city fathers demanded the club either open up, or close up. The owners decided that rather than admit blacks, they would close. After an unsuccessful run as a trout farm, the swim club closed for good. No child has been turned away from a recreational facility in the city because of color since.

Years later, I discovered by accident who the nice lady having the hissy fit was. Harriet Baldwin was a doctor's wife who moved here from the South and couldn't believe her new home in the North could hold such despicable ideals. As she recounted the story to me years later, her speech still marked by a Southern accent, she sounded for all the world like the South Carolina Methodist youth leader describing the recent incident.

This ammorally pernick is today among Bush's appointees. In a Machiavellian "some of my best friends are colored" move, right-wing Attorney General Dick Thornburgh urged Lucas' appointment, not for the content of his mind, but solely because of the color of his skin. After horrified blacks reviewed Lucas' awesome lack of qualifications, they threw up their hands.

This was carrying affirmative action too far! (Now that I think of it, the Republicans may have diabolically concocted this scheme to make affirmative action disreputable. Nominate the most objectionable black candidates they can find. If this happens enough times, blacks will eventually see the dangers of affirmative action — an absolutely ingenious strategy.)

Initially, the Rev. Jesse Jackson and Rep. John Conyers Jr., D-Mich., were among the tiny group of prominent black leaders supporting Lucas. But when a bewildered Lucas revealed before the Senate Judiciary subcommittee (a) that he knew virtually nothing about this area of the law, and (b) that the five recent Supreme Court decisions did not endanger civil rights, both Jackson and Conyers quickly reversed gears.

In Thomas' case, the irony is exquisite. Bush has nominated Thomas, the former chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, to the same court where the Tory-minded

Black backlash is progress

By Chuck Stone

Two black nominees by President Bush have incurred the wrath of the black community and the opposition of all civil rights organizations.

What's most interesting about this, however, is that we have quietly come so far in race relations that nobody has deigned to point out the historic significance of black opposition to William Lucas' nomination to be assistant attorney general for civil rights and Clarence Thomas' nomination to the U.S. Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia.

It has never happened before. The hazy days when the black community automatically rallied around any black appointment are gone. Ethnic unity has flown the coop. And Ronald Reagan deserves a pat on the back for his distorted restructuring of the political landscape of America's pluralism.

During his eight years in office, Reagan had about as much use for blacks as the Peoples Republic of China has for democracy: little and none. By making ideology the litmus test for all executive and judicial appointments, Reagan reduced government to a welfare state for the rich and the reactionary.

The current expose of the massive wrongdoings at the Department of Housing and Urban Development is a natural evolution of Reagan's disdain for good government. It does not matter that former HUD Secretary Samuel Pierce is black. He shared his conservative colleagues' insensitivities. Keep blacks in their place, rip off the people and enrich the Republicans.

Now's as good a time as any to tell her: Harriet, you've always been one of my heroes. What you did had more of an impact on my young life than anything else I can think of.

Ten Years After is together after 14-year musical hiatus

By Mary Campbell
The Associated Press

Ten-year hiatus after they broke off and 20 years after they played at Woodstock. Ten Years After is back together. A Chrysalis album, "About Time," will be released in August, 15 years after the band's last one, and a seven-week fall U.S. tour is planned. The quartet, one of the major groups to emerge from the 1960s blues revival in England, known for its fast and furious blend of blues and medium-heavy rock, has not mellowed.

Guitarist-vocalist Alvin Lee has been performing, while bassist Leo Lyons, keyboardist Chick Churchill and drummer Rick Lee have stayed in music, producing, engineering and managing.

In an interview with Alvin Lee and Lyons in New York, Lee said that the band didn't so much split as wind down. "We had some degree of success and we all got nice houses and families. There was a bit of pressure to stay at home."

He said that before Ten Years After split, "Critics said I was a fast, tasteless guitar player. That was bothering me a bit. I shouldn't have let it, now I realize."

So he put together the seven-piece group In Flight. "Critics said I was wonderful and I was playing better than ever. I missed the roar of the crowd and the loudness after a while. That band wasn't capable of playing heavy rock. I went back to playing from my blues and rock roots." He formed Ten Years. Later for a year, then Alvin Lee and Company, which played some Ten Years After favorites.

"When we played together last summer, suddenly it sounded like Ten Years After, right from the first note. It was obvious Ten Years After had its own sound," Lee said.

Reception at the festivals was so enthusiastic, Lyons said, that the four decided to stay together. Lee and Lyons, each working with other people, wrote 40 songs. The band recorded 15 and put 11 on "About Time."

In July, Ten Years After played before 80,000 in East Berlin. Asked about Woodstock, which took place 20 years ago on a farm in Bethel, N.Y., on Aug. 15, 16 and 17, Lyons says, "It's all a bit hazy now, in the honest."

"We were set to go on, and a thunderstorm appeared, Lee said. "Nobody could play for two or three hours. Sparks were flying on the stage. I thought it could be the music by far. God's light show."

"In a way it was fortunate. I went for a walk around the lake and joined in with the audience. Nobody knew I was one of the musicians. Half a million people can't all run under trees. They sat there and started singing. People were playing on mud slides. It was a wonderful thing to see that happening. Everybody was making the best out of the ridiculous situation. I think it brought the best out of everybody."

"People were offering food and drink. It was very idealistic, very nice. I think had it not been for the storm, probably I would never have seen much."

Neither can remember what Ten Years After played, except for "I'm Going Home," the high-energy rocker used in the "Woodstock" movie and, they think, the jazzy "I Can't Keep From Crying Sometimes" and "Love Like a Man."

"We were the first on after the storm," Lee recalled. "Everybody was worried. Sparks were still flying off the stage and it was very wet. Somebody had to do it. I think how many of our records would have sold if we'd been electrocuted."

"It was definitely the movie that made Woodstock the memorable thing it was," Lee said. "Toronto was probably as good a festival as Woodstock. It got forgotten."

Neighbors pray for relief from the hallelujahs

By Chris Janis
The New Haven Register

Almost daily this summer, the electronically amplified voice of the Rev. Elgie Samuel Green has rumbled through the open doors of his little church on Market Street in New Haven and into open windows of his neighbors.

Green is drowned out Vanessa Ouellette's television programs. It's awakened Kathy Ruggiero's 8-month-old baby. It's made Amos Banks stop inviting people over.

Joe Carmichael can't even find peace in the bathroom. "I hear every word he's saying. And my bathroom is in the back of the house."

Green is pastor of the Straight Way Church of Our Lord Jesus Christ of the Apostolic Faith Inc. on Market Street in the city's Fair Haven section.

On Sunday mornings and afternoons, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday nights and Saturday, he and his tiny Pentecostal congregation of about 15 praise God the only way they know how: with fervor, clapping hands and tambourines.

But, according to Market Street residents, the services are upsetting their lives and fraying their nerves. They say that for most of the summer Green has kept the doors and windows of the church open and the noise is often unbearable.

"How would you like this stuffed down your throat every night?" Banks said as he stood across the street as musical prayer services were being held at the one-story brick church. "He yells so much I don't know whether to give him oxygen or let him drop dead."

"When I'm in my living room watching TV I have to shut the windows because the noise outdoes the set," said Ouellette, who lives across the street from the church. "It's very disruptive."

Green conducts his services from a pulpit and microphone in the middle of a small, unadorned hall. During prayer services on a recent weekday night, he did not use amplification but his voice could be heard four houses away. About 10 parishioners sat in pews singing and shaking tambourines.

"We're not making noise here; we are just serving the Lord," said Green before the service. "How can these few people make that much noise? We cannot stop people from complaining, but we can pray for them to come in and praise the Lord with us. We love them."

Green's is one of dozens of Pentecostal churches in the city. The movement stresses direct inspiration by the Holy Spirit. Its revival services are often spontaneous, spirited and emotional. The congregations are often found worshipping in storefronts in the Hill and Fair Haven neighborhoods.

Each summer, according to Zoning Enforcement Officer Frank Gargiulo, city departments receive complaints about the small but enthusiastic churches in residential neighborhoods that hold almost nightly services while keeping windows and doors open because of high temperatures.

Neighbors within a four-house radius of Green's church have complained to city officials about services, but Gargiulo said there is nothing in city ordinances that addresses noise emanating from churches.

"It's not the first time I've heard complaints," said Gargiulo, a former Fair Haven alderman. "It is a difficult problem to get a handle on."

A request by the church for a zoning variance that would permit an 8-by-40-foot addition was approved in May. According to city documents, Green wants to expand the church to make room for 150 people.

The City Plan Department had recommended that the Board of Zoning Appeals deny Green's request because of the neighborhood and the proposal was not in harmony with the zoning laws.

Ruggiero, who lives next door to the church, said she plans to appeal the ruling.

"I want to stop him," she said. "Or I want him to soundproof the building or get air conditioning and shut the doors. It's just very, very noisy. And parking is a problem, too."

Here's the Answer

QUESTION: I plan to finish my attic soon. I intended to use gypsum board for the walls, since I had heard it was cheaper than most other wall materials. I now have been told I should use plasterboard instead. Is that information correct?

ANSWER: There may have been a slight difference in plasterboard and gypsum board many years ago, but the terms have meant the same thing for a long time. If you have never used gypsum board in the past — and your query indicates this is so — be sure to have your dealer supply you with a brochure on how to handle the material.

QUESTION: We are getting a squeak from the steps going from our first floor to the second. A

Books helpful to handy men

By Andy Lang
The Associated Press

Years ago, when I first became interested in doing-it-myself, I read every book I could find that would help me discover the shortcuts to getting good results. I soon learned two things: that there are no shortcuts more valuable than patience and the active experience of tackling things that previously seemed unapproachable; and that I would have no money left to buy any do-it-yourself materials if I bought all the do-it-yourself books on the market.

Three recent books are targeted towards the handyman specialist. For those who like to make the most of their furniture, there's "The Weekend Refinisher" by Bruce Johnson. For the woodworker, there's "Carpentry: Tools, Shelves, Walls, Doors" by Black & Decker. And for those who like to work with stone, there's "Building With Stone" by Charles McHaven.

Johnson makes this observation: "Busy schedules are a fact of life, but they are not going to deter those who would rather do a refinishing project themselves than have it done by someone else." Mail from readers over the years makes it plain this very definitely is so.

Thousands of pieces of furniture are refinished every year by do-it-yourselfers simply because the furniture needs refinishing. But there must be 10 times as many that get refinished just because somebody wants to refinish a piece of furniture. In short, wood finishing has become more of a hobby than a necessity. The ideal situation, of course, is when a hobby is utilized to produce needed and practical results, no matter what the endeavor.

"The Weekend Refinisher" does a fine job of advising you how to restore furniture, whether it needs just a cleaning or major construction. Solutions to problems are presented clearly in down-to-earth language and with some humor. Johnson does not hesitate to tell of his own uncertainty at times.

"I once spent four weeks with a rosewood piano that had been stored in a leaky garage," he says, "only one week of which I used to do the actual work. The first three weeks I spent staring at the piano, trying to decide where to start."

"Carpentry: Tools, Shelves, Walls, Doors" features striking color photographs along with a limited but effective amount of textual matter. It's a book that gives visual pleasure as well as spreads knowledge. If you work with wood and want clear information about basic carpentry, this book is for you. You'll be astounded at the brilliant color and clarity of the photographs.

"Building With Stone" tells you how to do what the title says. It gives detailed instructions for constructing walls, fireplaces, chimneys, bridges, walkways, wells, buttresses, and many other things, even a house or barn. The writing makes it clear the author has a great fondness for stone as a material per se as well as something which can be used for building.

Hetels of building a stone arch as part of a de-moderating restoration of a 70-year-old building and adds: "That arch will long outlive me since the building is a National Historic Landmark. It should be intact for many generations. That's what building with stone is all about: time. Time is needed to put together the oldest and most durable of materials and have the structure stand for as long as anything stands in this world."

For the refinisher, the carpenter and the stoneworker, amateur or pro, these books hit the mark.

"The Weekend Refinisher" is published by Ballantine Books. "Carpentry: Tools, Shelves, Walls, Doors" by Black & Decker and Cy DeCose, Minneapolis, Minn.; and "Building With Stone" by Garden Way and Storey Communications, Pawall, Vt.

Sheet gives garden answers

By Earl Aranson
The Associated Press

Gardeners usually have questions about almost everything they plant. This is not out of line because each vegetable planted may have its own cultural needs, pests and diseases. The University of Missouri Extension Service Center has a good idea — a guide sheet titled "Vegetable Gardening Questions and Answers," a collection of most-asked questions and answers.

Here are a few:
 ■ Asparagus: How soon after planting can asparagus be cut? Wait until the bed is well-established. If it has started well, a few spears may be cut the second year, and for several weeks the third year. A full crop should not normally be harvested until the fourth year.

■ Beans: Do pole beans or bush beans provide the more efficient use of garden space? Bush beans can be spaced closer and will produce a greater quantity at any one time than similar planting of pole beans. However, pole beans will continue to produce so that a more constant supply is available. In limited space, pole beans may shade neighboring crops too

Weeders Guide

Slow growth results in these characteristics: Crowding, low fertility, late planting or not weather all stunt and reduce quality.

■ Pepper: Why do peppers flower but not set fruit? Peppers are sensitive to high temperatures, low humidity and drying winds. Under these conditions, plants of many varieties do not set fruit well and flowers drop. Well-developed plants set in the garden often flower and set ample fruit before these extreme conditions of midsummer arrive.

■ Rhubarb: How can rhubarb be kept from seeding? Should flower stalks be removed? All rhubarb will eventually flower. However, poor growing conditions, drought, and late weather stimulate flowering. Cut the flower stalks as soon as they are noticed to prevent weeding.

■ Tomatoes: Can tomatoes be seeded directly into the garden or must plants be started indoors? Tomato seeds may be planted directly into the garden, but several weeks can be gained, usually in earlier harvest, if vigorous plants are moved into the garden after soil has warmed up.

'Social insurance' highest social welfare expenditure in the U.S.

Tax Adviser

QUESTION: Is there any way that I can check on the Social Security benefits I will receive when I retire?

W.P. SANTA ROSA, CALIF.

ANSWER: The Social Security Administration will provide you with a free earnings report that can be used for your retirement planning. Ask for Form SSA-7004 at your local Social Security office — or call toll-free, 800-827-2600, and ask for the form to be mailed to you. When you receive it, answer the questions, sign and mail it to the address on the form.

QUESTION: Somewhat I always have too much income tax taken out of my paycheck and, consequently, I receive a large refund every year. I would really rather have more money every week instead of waiting Uncle Sam keep the money all year interest free. What can I do?

S.S. SACRAMENTO, CALIF.

ANSWER: If you had a large refund the last time you filed your income tax return and want to have less income tax withheld from your pay, ask your employer for Form W-4. Employee's Withholding Allowance Certificate. Complete the form, claiming any additional allowances you are entitled to, and return it to your employer. Your employer will adjust your withholding taxes accordingly.

QUESTION: My wife and I will be cashing some U.S. Savings Bonds based on the earnings you have credited to your Social Security number so far. It's a good idea to check up on your earnings every three years.

J.A., BIRMINGHAM, MICH.

ANSWER: Interest you receive on U.S. Savings Bonds is taxable income, but only for federal income tax purposes. U.S. Savings Bonds interest is exempt from state and local income taxes. You will receive Form 1099-INT from the government at the end of the year indicating the amount of interest that you received this year on your U.S. Savings Bonds. Do not include this amount as income on your state or local income tax return.

Using the home as an office

Federal tax breaks can be sizeable

By Changing Times
A Kiplinger Magazine

Are you one of the growing number of Americans whose home is also your office? Then, you can probably get some sizable tax breaks. First, though, you must jump through some hoops that Congress placed in your path.

First of all, you have to be in business to make a profit. The IRS assumes you're trying to make a profit if your income exceeds your deductible expenses in three out of the last five years.

Another roadblock standing between you and home-office deductions is exclusivity. To qualify for the write-offs, your home office has to be used exclusively and regularly for your business. You could use a room as your business office for 12 hours a day, seven days a week. But let the kids use it to watch TV on Saturdays and you forfeit all rights to home-office deductions. It's OK to use a portion of a room if the business part is clearly isolated from the rest.

There are two exceptions to the exclusive-use test.

■ You use your home for a day-care center for children, mentally or physically disabled individuals or the elderly. Your business must comply with local licensing regulations.

■ You run a retail or wholesale business solely out of your home. Space used to store inventory can count as part of a home office even if the rest of the area is used for other activities.

The IRS doesn't say how much you must use the office to pass the regular-use test. That's decided case by case. If you use a room for a couple of hours a week, you'd probably fail. But a couple of hours a day, several days a week should be enough, says Changing Times magazine.

Your next challenge is to pass any one of these three tests:
 ■ Principal place of business. The home office must be the principal site for the business.
 ■ Place to meet clients, customers or patients. If your main office is elsewhere, you can still qualify if you regularly use the home office to meet with clients, as you might if you're an accountant, lawyer, or beautician.
 ■ If you don't pass either of the previous tests, you can still qualify if the home office is in a separate structure, such as a converted barn or detached garage. Remember, you have to pass one of the three tests and use the space regularly and exclusively for the business.

Changing Times

You've cleared the hurdles. Now you can deduct the entire cost of direct expenses, such as repairs that benefit only the business part of your home. Then there are indirect expenses. These are normally non-deductible expenses that benefit both the business and personal parts of your home — such as rent, or depreciation if you own your home, and utility bills. You have to know the business's share of the space because you can deduct only a proportionate share of indirect expenses. Use a ratio based on the number of rooms or the square footage. If your office is one of seven nearly equal-size rooms, for example, your business is one-seventh of the house, so 14.3 percent of the indirect expenses are deductible.

When totting up your home-office deductions, indirect expenses include the proportionate cost of such things as electricity, trash removal, insurance and security, plus repairs to things that affect the business.

You can deduct all the costs of a separate telephone line installed for the business and all business long-distance calls made on your personal line — whether or not you qualify for home-office deductions. But if you have only one phone line, you can't deduct any part of the cost of basic service.

Another reward for passing the home-office tests is you get to deduct part of your mortgage interest and property taxes as business expenses. These are normally deductions on your personal tax return. But shifting the home-office percentage to the business side of the ledger lets you reduce the amount of income subject to Social Security (FICA) taxes.

If your office is in a rented home or apartment, you can deduct the appropriate percentage of your rent. However, you can't claim a percentage of your mortgage payment. You must depreciate the share of the house allocable to the business. For more information, see IRS publication 584, "Depreciation."

You're not home free yet. To benefit from all these hard-won deductions, your home-based business has to produce plenty of income and there's a special order in which you must claim the deductions against business income.

First, subtract the expenses you can deduct regardless of where you operate your business — for office help, supplies and equipment, for example.

If you still show a profit, subtract the home-office share of mortgage interest and property taxes. (If you don't have enough profit to offset all the interest and taxes, any excess can be shifted back to your personal return.)

If there's profit left, you deduct the home-office share of other personal expenses — for heat, lights, insurance, rent and so forth.

Still have profit? OK, you can deduct your depreciation.

If at any point along the line you run out of profit to offset, your right to deductions stops (except for excess mortgage interest and property taxes). The unused deductions aren't lost forever, however. You can carry them forward to future years when you have sufficient income so the write-offs won't trigger a loss.

FOCUS / Advice

Bicyclists should share road

DEAR ABBY: You recently published a letter from a bicycle rider thanking automobile drivers for their courtesy. I got the impression that she thought some of these drivers were not very courteous. Therefore, I would like to send a letter of thanks to bicycle riders who are also on "vehicles," and, therefore, are subject to the same laws as the drivers of motor vehicles.

Thank you for ignoring stop signs and running red lights. Thank you for riding side by side at 10 miles an hour in a 45-mph zone, making it impossible to pass you. Thank you for scaring the socks off me by barreling out of side streets in front of me, assuming (I assume) that I can stop in time. My special thanks to those of you who, when I tap my horn to let you know I am approaching, give me the finger!

I must and do obey the law. I suggest that you do likewise. That way, we will all get along in better harmony and be a good deal safer.

GEORGE M. GILKERSON, DENTON, TEXAS

DEAR GEORGE: You make some good points. I hope you're not just spinning your wheels, and some bicycle riders will take heed.

DEAR ABBY: Last week my brand-new car was stolen from a nightclub parking lot and vandalized. Although my car was subsequently recovered and can be repaired, my coat and purse (inconveniences in a nightclub and, therefore, stashed under the seat) are gone forever. At first I thought I was a victim of circumstances. In retrospect, there were precautions I might have taken to have prevented the theft. Perhaps if I list them, they'll save others from this very unpleasant experience.

Never park beside a van or any large vehicle that obstructs a view of your car from the street or the entrance to the building. While I parked in a lighted parking lot by the nightclub, I parked beside a large van which probably contained the person or persons who stole my car.

Dear Abby

Be sure no one is loitering in the vehicles parked near you. If you have credit cards, keep them with you at all times. Leave coats, purses and wallets at home, unless they are on your person. Putting purses or wallets under the seat "out of sight" is unsafe — it's the first place a thief will look after he has broken into your car. Also, don't put them in the trunk. Someone may be watching.

Be sure to remove all unnecessary items from the car unless they are to be used that night — this means workout clothes, briefcase and cassettes for the car stereo.

Investigate exactly what coverage your insurance company provides in the event that your car is stolen and vandalized. You may be in for a rude awakening as to what is and what is not covered. I will lose more than $300 in deductibles and non-reimbursable items because someone stole my car!

Everything you'll need to know about planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address, plus check or money order for $2.25 to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Injections cure male disease

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband has been diagnosed with Peyronie's disease. Can you provide information to help us understand this condition?

DEAR READER: Peyronie's disease, a chronic ailment of adult males, refers to the formation of a scar tissue in the covering of the erectile tissue of the penis. In its mildest form, it causes the erection to be crooked. Severe forms are associated with painful erections and inability to have sexual relations. No one knows the basis of the disorder. Treatment should be administered only by qualified practitioners, preferably urologists, and consists of corticosteroid injections, ultrasound therapy or surgery to release the bands of scarring.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 63-year-old female with a cystic mass at the base of my thumb. My orthopedic surgeon advises surgery, yet I hate to think of this procedure if there is another option. Should I have a second opinion, live with it or have the surgery done?

DEAR READER: Without knowing the nature of your "cystic mass" — whether, for example, it is large, small, painful or gets in the way — I cannot answer your question. In general, painless, small cysts on the hand do not require removal. Remember, when considering surgery for a benign condition, you always have the option of doing nothing. There's a tendency in our civilized world to have anything, even innocuous conditions, fixed. This is not always the best approach.

For instance, every surgical procedure has complications. For simple surgery, these complications may be infinitesimal. However, they can occur; something can go wrong or infection may set in. Such a consequence can turn a routine operation into a major problem. Therefore, I recommend the following: If your cyst doesn't bother you (and if there is no chance it is malignant) leave it alone or consider obtaining a second opinion. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "An Informed Approach to Surgery." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91389, Cleveland, Ohio 44101-3389. Be sure to mention the title.

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My tongue is so sensitive I cannot brush my teeth with toothpaste. My mouth is dry and my taste buds have disappeared. Specialists can't help me. Can you?

DEAR READER: You appear to be suffering from glossitis, tongue inflammation. This can be caused by bacterial or yeast infection, injury from physical agents (such as spicy food or astringent mouthwashes) or vitamin deficiencies (notably, B-12). Also, Sjogren's syndrome, a chronic disorder characterized by dry mouth and eyes, can produce glossitis. I assume your doctor has checked you for these conditions. If not, he or she should do so immediately. Your next step is to obtain a consultation from your dentist. See if such a specialist in mouth disease can provide the solution to your problem.

Exercise safe during pregnancy

By George D. Malkasian, President, The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

During the last 25 years or so, attitude toward exercise during pregnancy have changed, and mostly for the better. Today moderate exercise of many kinds is considered safe for a healthy woman throughout her entire pregnancy.

If you are going to exercise when you are pregnant, follow some basic guidelines to help protect both your health and that of your baby.

First, discuss your exercise habits with your doctor when you have your first pregnancy visit. While most women who had a regular exercise program before pregnancy are safe in continuing it, some pregnancy-related medical conditions such as hypertension or carrying more than one baby may make exercise risky.

Second, listen to your body. Pregnancy is not the time to set records but to adjust your workout to fit your changing body.

General guidelines for exercise are doubly important during pregnancy. A balanced diet including 300 extra calories is a must. When exercising, drink plenty of water and never exercise to the point of exhaustion. If at any time you feel faint, in pain, or develop bleeding, stop immediately and call your doctor. Your heart rate (number of heart beats per minute) should not go over 140, and you shouldn't exercise strenuously — reaching your maximum heart rate — longer than 15 minutes at a time.

In general, the best types of exercise during pregnancy are walking, swimming, low-impact "prenatal" aerobics, and stationary bicycling. Other sports such as jogging, tennis or racquetball are safe as long as the activity level is lowered.

What will exercise do for you? Right now there is no good evidence to show that it will shorten labor or make it less painful, or affect the baby's health. But exercise does improve circulation, helps your mental well-being, and can relieve fatigue. Many also feel that a regular exercise program during pregnancy makes it easier to get back into shape once the baby is born.

All of us have read of professional athletes who have run marathons or won medals during pregnancy. But for the majority of women, exercise during pregnancy is not a goal but a means for fun, well-being, and a more comfortable nine months.

Single, free copies of "Exercise and Fitness: A Guide for Women" (APW4) are available by sending a stamped, self-addressed, business-sized envelope along with the name of the booklet to: The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, Resource Center, 409, 12th Street, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20024-2188.

Resort turns to for help or takes recourse. When you need this verb, it's fortunate that you can resort to resort.

To remove from or eject out. This clue should help out: remove the a from oust and you're left with out.

QUESTION: When my sister gets home from a trip, she says she's "returned back." Is that right?

ANSWER: Many people use return back, but that back is unnecessary. Return means "to come back," which makes back redundant when used after the verb. Use either return or come back, but not return back. Return to this rule as often as you need it.

Talking with 'Weird Al'
'I think I'm filling a void in the world'

By Frank Sanello

After a decade of parodying pop music, 'Weird Al' Yankovic has taken on the movies.

'WEIRD' AL new movie

QUESTION: Were you surprised to learn that Orion, which is releasing 'UHF', refused to screen the film for a sign that the studio thinks the critics will hate the film.

ANSWER: I was shocked to hear that, especially since all the test screenings have gone through the roof.

QUESTION: Was it hard to get 'UHF' financed, since you've never starred in a film before?

ANSWER: It was a tough sell, which surprised me. I knew I'd never proved myself in Hollywood, but I had sold a few million record albums.

QUESTION: Working in a mallroom must have been a humbling experience, since you could have had the more prestigious job of an architect.

QUESTION: What kind of songs are easy to parody?

ANSWER: The more serious the song, the better target it makes.

QUESTION: Do you think you would have been happy if you had become an architect?

ANSWER: I would have been miserable. I went straight from college with a degree in architecture to working in a mallroom at a radio syndication company, because I was completely burned out on architecture.

QUESTION: No, it was a fairly nice job because Dr. Demento syndicated his show from there, and I was big fan. Even though I was sorting mail and taking out the trash, I still felt on the fringe of the entertainment world.

QUESTION: What kind of songs are easy to parody?

QUESTION: The entire free world is dying to know. How did you come by the nickname 'Weird Al'?

ANSWER: It's something I got in college while doing a campus-radio show. I programmed all sorts of strange, novelty comedy music. The name 'Weird Al' seemed appropriate, and it just stuck.

QUESTION: Do you think you would have been happy if you had become an architect?

ANSWER: I have no desire to do that. Enough people in the world are already doing that.

QUESTION: How did you come by the nickname 'Weird Al'?

ANSWER: It's something I got in college while doing a campus-radio show. I programmed all sorts of strange, novelty comedy music. The name 'Weird Al' seemed appropriate, and it just stuck.

New Hanks movie is a summer dog

By Turner and Hooch

Filmeter Robert DiMatteo

Hanks is one of the most likeable and gifted comic actors working in movies, but who is picking his roles?

LOCK UP (R) In the wake of the brouhaha over the sadomasochistic strain in some of the later photographs of Robert Mapplethorpe's work, along comes the new Sylvester Stallone picture.

PARENTHOOD (PG-13) The title tells all. This latest Ron Howard-directed comedy looks at the frustrations of American family life in the late '80s.

THE ITALIAN STALLION plays Frank Leone, the only man who ever escaped from a prison run by a psychopathic warden.

WINGS OF DESIRE (not rated) Orion, German director Wim Wenders' film is a metaphorical fable about an angel.

THROUGH IT ALL the outstanding case finds truth in even the most contrived situation.

Oppression rules teen book Author tells of life in Latin America

By Brent Lovmon
The Associated Press

GUILFORD — It's an unusual story for a young person's book, but one that Colombian-born author Lily Becerra de Jenkins says needs telling: the terror of living under dictatorship in Latin America.

Her book, "The Honorable Prison," 1989 winner of the Scott O'Dell Award for historical fiction for children and young adults, is narrated by Maria Maldonado, a teen-ager whose father is an outspoken critic of a right-wing general who ruled Colombia during the 1950s.

Because of his writing, the family is sent into internal exile in a small Andean town, where they live under house arrest on a desolate army base.

As Anne Frank did in her diary about hiding from Nazis in Holland during World War II, Jenkins concentrates on the daily tensions of living in close quarters and on the toll taken by uncertainty, terror and near-starvation.

"For me, it's enormously flattering if I can instill in the young adults of America a political consciousness of some sort," said Jenkins, who teaches short story writing at Fairfield University, during a recent interview at her Guilford home.

The children of America — because, of course, we live in the free world — didn't even know the meaning of tyranny.

Jenkins, whose house is decorated with colorful artwork and haunting masks from Latin America, says her book, aimed at readers 12 and older, is partially autobiographical.

She grew up in Colombia during the time of "la violencia." Her father, lawyer and journalist Luis Becerra Lopez, was imprisoned and sent into exile during the 1950s for criticizing Colombian dictator Gen. Gustavo Rojas Pinilla.

She came to the United States 22 years ago with her American-born husband, whom she met in Bogota when he was working as an engineer for an American oil company.

Jenkins, whose short stories have appeared in The New Yorker and other literary magazines, praises American journalists as among the finest in the world, but says their dispatches from Latin America often fail to convey the human toll taken by political oppression.

"Newspapers from time to time perhaps should be more preoccupied with the less sensational aspects of events," she said. "To turn everything into a shocking, unique event, that seems to be an obsession with America, and by doing that, I think human dimensions are mistreated and forgotten."

The mother of five grown children, Jenkins didn't start out to write a children's book. "The Honorable Prison" first appeared as the short story "Tyranny" in The New Yorker and was included in the 1975 volume of "Best American Short Stories."

"Tyranny" ended as a frightened Maria and her family, escorted by government soldiers, arrived at the "honorable prison," their tile-roofed cottage in the Andes.

According to Jenkins, she expanded the story into a novel because people kept asking her what happened to the family.

It was her publisher's idea to market the book as one aimed at young readers, perhaps because she is a teen-ager.

"The first reaction was, 'Why? Why young adults? I am not writing for children,'" she said. But the enthusiastic reviews she received and the stacks of fan mail from young people convinced her that the publisher made the right decision.

One teen-age girl from New York wrote to thank Jenkins for providing her with the only "inside view of life under a dictatorship." The girl promised to make the book required reading for her own students if she becomes a teacher.

"I often think that had my book been one of the adult novels, (it) would not receive the attention it has received," Jenkins said.

Springfield set for a comeback

By Marv Campbell
The Associated Press

Another rock comeback seems to be happening.

Dusty Springfield, Britain's leading girl singer in the mid-1960s, sings "Nothing Has Been Proved" in the new film, "Scandal!" Capitol released it as a single and she made a performance video. On the strength of that, she's making an album for EMI.

She was in a folk trio, the Springfields, from 1959 to 1963, then had a string of solo hits, the biggest of which was "You Don't Have To Say You Love Me" in 1966. Most recently, she has helped an animal rescue facility in Southern California.

A year ago, the Pet Shop Boys — Neil Tennant and Chris Lowe — were looking for a woman singer for "What Have I Done To Deserve This?" a duet about the end of an adult affair. They wanted, Tennant has written, "a voice suggesting both experience and vulnerability, warm but also a tough take-it-or-leave-it attitude."

Their manager's assistant suggested Springfield. The record became a hit in England and America.

The duo called on her again to sing "Nothing Has Been Proved" in the film about England's 1963 Profumo scandal. "I didn't approach this as a record," she says. "I don't think it was supposed to be a record. What works in a film doesn't necessarily work outside it."

"They told me it has been a most-asked record at radio stations. I sat with my mouth open, amazed."

The Pet Shop Boys came into her life "out of nowhere," she says.

"The first time they called I was in Los Angeles. I lived there 12 years and never really liked it. It doesn't rain enough, I'm English. I was used to the flowers getting watered for me."

"The second time I was in Amsterdam. I moved there about nine months ago. I wanted to be closer to England than that are done at home, or literally 'to the tooth.'" any writers and producers, including Phil Collins. He had put one of her songs, "Just Don't Know What To Do With Myself," in the movie "Buster."

She says: "My last record was eight years ago. It didn't make any noise at all. My last important LP by music standards was 20 years ago."

"I don't know why I was successful the first time around. Maybe there was a space in the industry that I filled. You have to wait for the next available slot and you don't know when it's going to come. All you can do is be available for it."

"Worrying about it as I used to, can eat you up. All that does is give you a headache and sleepless nights."

Of English women singers of the '60s, she says, "I had the longest string of hits of any. It doesn't just stop. It sort of trails off. I didn't want to go through that second- or third-level career. I got out of England because I saw that coming."

She came to the United States and signed with American management. "They put me in the niche of slick nightclub singers. I didn't want to be that person. I'm not very slick. I'm spontaneous. And it was no longer hot to play those places."

"I found that so depressing, the gray life. If that's my future, no thank you!"

She did play New Orleans and Lake Tahoe, but not Las Vegas. "They don't know who you are. They talk. My ego couldn't take that."

"For a couple of years I kept quoting, 'Is that all there is?' A part of me had written me off. The other part was the way I started out, knowing there was more to life. It might take a long walk. And it did. Luckily, I had made a lot of money. I lived off that."

Springfield says her interest in animals was "a very sustaining force in my life. I got involved with a refuge for abandoned and abused exotic animals. Some are circus trained and some are tragically ill."

"People think it's smart to get a tiger cub. They grow up. They're not meant to be petted. No zoo will want it. It's not a West End girl. I don't think they can take care of themselves. Some are psychologically damaged."

She sang some benefit concerts for the way station. About singing, she says: "I lost interest in the everyday stuff. I wanted the big occasions. I didn't want the daily drudgery."

Languages invade English

NEW YORK (AP) — Graffiti seem to have become part of the American way of life, but the word isn't American at all.

It's Italian, and it means "scratching." As Tad Tuleja explains in his "Foreignisms," a fascinating dictionary of some 1,000 words and phrases from 29 foreign languages that are used in English.

"The original graffiti, centuries old, were scratched into, not written on, clay walls."

Over the centuries, says Tuleja, English has received many "foreign infusions," and today is "far from the language of the Angles." English was invaded by many who spoke other languages: the Romans, the Franks, the Norse, the French — and picked up words and phrases from each.

When the English themselves became invaders, their language picked up additional varieties from these foreign contacts. And the process still is under way, due to the mix of immigration and geopolitics, of electronic journalism and ethnicity."

Among the trove of words to be found in "Foreignisms" (Macmillan) are:

- "ai dente. Italian: chewy. The traditional American fondness for overcooked food is giving way to a European taste for rumber fare. Hence the current rage for chewy pasta, less-than-soggy zucchini, and other foods that are done al dente, or literally 'to the tooth.'"
- "chutznah. Yiddish: gall, arrogance, audacity, nerve...the quality shown by the man who murders his mother and father, then asks the judge to forgive a poor orphan."
- "dimeso. Spanish: money. This word probably entered Spain as the Arabic dinar, which in turn came from the Latin denarius, an ancient Roman silver coin."
- "holi poloi. Greek: the masses. Like the elitists who see him as a spiritual father, Plato uses this term contemptuously... It has the same sense as English 'mob' or 'rabble.'"

Social Security

QUESTION: If I continue to work past 65 and don't get Social Security benefits, am I still entitled to Medicare?

ANSWER: If you are eligible for Social Security retirement benefits, even though you are not collecting them, you can get Medicare protection to help with hospital and doctor's bills. But Medicare is not automatic. Be sure to stop by your Social Security office a couple of months before your 65th birthday to sign up.

QUESTION: Why do some people get larger SSI checks just because of where they live?

ANSWER: Under SSI, or the Supplemental Security Income program, the highest monthly amount payable from the federal government is $368. However, some states provide a state supplement to the basic federal payment. States are encouraged to make these supplemental payments because of higher living costs in some areas of the country. Although Social Security administrators the supplement the amount is determined by the state and paid for out of state funds.

QUESTION: My husband and I are planning a 3-month train trip to the western states. It occurred to me the system, hospitals are paid fixed amounts based on the principal diagnosis for each Medicare hospital stay. Show her stay be unusually long in the hospital will receive additional payment. If her hospital is a participating hospital under this system, it will accept the Medicare payment in full and will not bill your mother for anything other than for noncovered items and services such as a television in her room and the services of private duty nurses.

QUESTION: I was married recently and I paid $100 to the Social Security Record Service to process my request for a new Social Security card showing my new marital status. I have my concealed check but I have not yet received my new Social Security card. Can you tell me what happened?

ANSWER: Your situation is all too common. The Social Security Record Service is in no way connected with Social Security. It's one of several outfits that screen public records of recent marriages and then offers to perform, for a fee, a service that Social Security offers free of charge. The name of the organization may sound official but that's misleading. Now that's perfectly legal, but you could have saved time and money if you had gone straight to a Social Security office yourself.

Zsa Zsa is sued

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — First, Zsa Zsa Gabor and her Shih Tzu dogs were kicked off an airplane. Then, she was arrested in Beverly Hills and charged with slapping a policeman.

Now, Miss Gabor is being sued by her pool maintenance company. "She claimed that some of the repairs were not authorized even though she gave authorization," said Laura Lett, co-owner of Carl's Pool Service in Greenacres City. "She was not too nice over the phone."

Ms. Lett filed a lawsuit in small claims court May 30 alleging Miss Gabor owes the company $393.84 for maintenance and repairs to the pool at her home in West Palm Beach. "They did not sue me," said Miss Gabor, reached at her home in Los Angeles on Thursday. "If I get one more stupid remark, I'm going to move from that house."

A deputy with the Los Angeles County sheriff's office tried to serve Miss Gabor with a copy of the lawsuit in June at her home in Los Angeles, but the deputy was told Miss Gabor was in Europe.

Gregory moves resort

FORT WALTON BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Dick Gregory's diet resort, under investigation by Florida authorities who have received complaints that clients were cheated, will be moved to Alabama, employees say.

A representative of a Cottonwood, Ala., spa Thursday confirmed that the comedian and civil rights activist has negotiated to lease or buy that facility, but an assistant to Gregory declined to comment.

"I don't have anything to say about the Fort Walton Beach facility," Reginald Toran said in a telephone interview from Shreveport, La. "I have no information about that facility."

The state attorney's office, the Florida Department of Professional Regulation and the Oklahoma County Sheriff's Department are looking into complaints from former clients who allege Dick Gregory's Diet & Health Resort failed to deliver on promises of luxurious accommodations, special rates and professional services.

Gregory suspended two employees last month after they allegedly told clients they were medical doctors although neither was licensed to practice medicine.

BUSINESS

Street shows pack thinking another time

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite the brains and technology that manipulate today's investment strategies, the financial markets have once again demonstrated their pack-like behavior.

At first it seemed as if encouraging signals about the economy would propel the stock market to a total recovery from the cataclysmic plunge of October 1987.

Indeed, so much attention was riveted on the undulating Dow Jones average — the last major stock index that hadn't decisively pierced its pre-crash high — that the index's half-hourly moves Friday were followed like rounds of a boxing match.

But for reasons that perhaps could be best described as a sudden change of heart by the buyers, bond prices reversed themselves after a healthy lull, and stocks blindly followed, sending the Dow average and other indexes lower.

Sophisticated strategists who had put themselves on a limb by gambling that prices would rise had to scramble to sell, their earlier thinking rendered useless by the mass transformation of buyers into sellers.

Some economists found what seemed to be a logical explanation for the sudden shift in psychology by reassessing the government reports on inflation and consumer spending released Friday.

The report on a 0.4 percent drop in wholesale prices in July, for example, initially suggested investors shouldn't worry about inflation — a good reason to buy stocks and bonds. But it was viewed later as a sign that interest rates could decline precipitously and inflation could surge anew — a good reason to sell.

The market gyrations coincidentally came the same week the big savings and loan bailout was launched, marking the biggest bailout ever by the U.S. government.

Stock and bond investors largely ignored the signing of the legislation by President Bush, even though critics said the $25 billion rescue of the nation's broke savings & loans could ripple through the economy in the form of unaffordable mortgages, lower property values and lower interest rates for certificates of deposit.

In other business and economic news this past week: —United Airlines was targeted in a $5.4 billion takeover attempt by investor Marvin Davis, who sought unsuccessfully to buy Northwest Airlines earlier this year. "Two other big airlines, fearing they might be next in line for a takeover, strengthened their defenses: USAir Group Inc. sold a stake to investor Warren Buffett, and American Airlines toughened its "poison pill" shareholder rights plan.

A sudden surge in picket-line crossings undermined the strength of a 5-month-old strike against Eastern Airlines. Although union activists said the majority of strikers remained committed, the crossovers raised questions about how much longer the walkout could be effective.

—Debs dragged a discount retailer and two bankrupt department stores into Chapter 11 bankruptcy proceedings. Dart Drug Stores Inc.'s move stemmed partly from its high-yield "junk bond" obligations and the costs of a major remodeling.

EB wants to know why 20% of its workers quit

GROTON (AP) — Electric Boat shipyard, still plagued by the umbrella union for about 8,400 production workers in about ten years' strike, has hired a Stamford consulting firm to help it figure out why it has lost about 20 percent of its blue-collar workforce.

The consulting firm, Right Associates of Stamford, has sent out questionnaires to more than 600 former shipyard workers asking them why they quit. The company is also interviewing current employees to find out why they might be unhappy.

"What we are trying to find out is essentially what are people's motivations for leaving," Neil D. Ruenzel, a shipyard spokesman, said Friday. "It's an attrition analysis. It's designed to get an objective analysis of the situation and from that we will develop appropriate action plans."

Nearly 2,000 workers have left the shipyard since last year's three-month strike, an attrition rate that has posed a problem for the shipyard, sole producer of the Navy's Trident nuclear-powered submarine.

"Our problem is similar to most manufacturing sites in New England in that it is rather difficult to find production workers," Ruenzel said. "Yes, we would like to hire more. We have jobs available."

Tensions have persisted since settlement of the strike.

The Metal Trades Council, the umbrella union for about 8,400 production workers in about ten years' strike, failed to win the yearly wage increases it sought. Instead, it settled for a four-year contract that calls for lump-sum bonuses in the first three years and a 3 percent raise in 1991.

The shipyard recently accused the union of failing to stop discriminating against strikers who crossed the picket line during the strike and of not encouraging cooperation among workers.

The shipyard also adopted rules to prohibit behavior it considers "threatening and inciteful," and banned T-shirts worn by some workers that declared, "When the scabs are gone, the wounds will heal."

The union countered by filing a complaint with the National Labor Relations Board claiming that the new rules constituted an illegal restriction on union activity.

The consultant's survey asks respondents to rate 30 possible reasons for quitting on a scale of one to five, from least important to very important.

Possible reasons include personality conflict, disillusionment with the union, health, and lack of appreciation or choice.

Several of the choices relate to the strike and ask about the union, the lump-sum payments, harassment from co-workers, and cost of living and benefits. Donald Norman, the shipyard's vice president for human resources, said wages aren't the only issue affecting attrition.

"I can tell you that among both hourly and salaried workers, there are reasons other than money for people leaving," he said.

Joseph W. Messier, president of the Metal Trades Council, said, "Money's not the only issue, but it goes a long way and it's a big ingredient."

Ruenzel said the shipyard, sole maker of the Trident nuclear-powered submarine for the U.S. Navy, is currently understaffed and is seeking to hire more production workers.

In another shipyard matter, EB General Manager James W. Turner Jr. denied a rumor that the company plans to close its Groton yard and move to Charleston, S.C.

Turner made the denial in the latest issue of the company newsletter, in an article entitled "Rumor Control." He acknowledged the expansion of the company's unique construction testing, launch and sea trial support capabilities.

Wall Street flirts with high

NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Street fliried with an all-time high before retreating Friday as the nation's financial markets reacted to news that inflation weakened and retail spending grew in July.

Interest rates firmed before finishing higher, and the dollar rose sharply in foreign exchange, while on Wall Street the Dow Jones average of 3,069 industrial stocks briefly topped but later closed below the record high of 3,124.24 set Aug. 25, 1987.

The Dow industrials finished down 28.64 points from Thursday, at 3,082.99. Several of the brokers leaving the New York Stock Exchange said although they were paying attention to the Dow's performance, the failure to set a little high Friday had little significance.

"I think most of us are sophisticated enough to know that records are only good for the media, for the newspapers and television. It doesn't mean anything to the pros," said one commission house broker, who asked not to be named.

Although some broader market indicators have been at record levels for days or weeks, the Dow Jones industrials' approach to the record is considered the final sign of Wall Street's recovery since the Oct. 19, 1987, crash, when the Dow fell 598 points.

The crash of 1987 caused a lot of people to worry whether something dark and dangerous was going to happen to the economy," said Greg Smith, chief investment strategist for Prudential-Bache Securities Inc.

The likelihood of an economic crisis continued to diminish Friday as the Labor Department said wholesale prices slumped 0.4 percent in July, the biggest drop in three years.

But the rally sharply reversed itself in afternoon trading, with bond prices tumbling and yield rising from Thursday's close. By late Friday, the yield was about 8.15 percent on the 30-year bond.

Economists said the reversal stemmed partly from reports speculating that the Federal Reserve would not in fact push key interest rates lower.

Meanwhile, the U.S. dollar rose sharply against major foreign currencies after the release of the economic figures in Washington. In Tokyo, for example, the dollar rose 1.05 Japanese yen to close at 140.10 yen, and traded later in London at 141.50 yen.

Coleco cuts down

AVON (AP) — Coleco Industries Inc. is continuing to reduce its staff and pare down operations as the toy company's bankruptcy case nears completion, the toy company said.

The number of employees at the company's Avon offices has been shrinking since Hasbro Inc. the Rhode Island toy company, purchased most of Coleco's products July 12 for $85 million.

About 40 workers now remain in Avon, Chairman Morton E. Handel said Thursday. That number will be reduced to about 25 in the next few weeks once remaining paperwork involved with the sale to Hasbro has been completed, he said.

The sale left Coleco with a few minor products, some real estate and cash to be used to repay some of the $548.3 million the company owes its creditors.

Last week President J. Brian Clarke left the company, Clarke and Handel will receive consulting contracts with Hasbro, a Hasbro spokesman said.

UTC to start waste study

WINDSOR LOCKS (AP) — "This division has made a commitment to be a good neighbor and correct a problem that may have been caused by old practices," said Claudia Chamberlain, a spokeswoman for Hamilton Standard.

The problem at Hamilton Standard, subsidiary of Hartford-based United Technologies Corp., was discovered in August 1986 when the company made a filing with the EPA under the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act. The company was required to file with the EPA because it sought to continue as a storage area for hazardous wastes, Keough said.

Further study indicated that a pollution problem existed. As a result, on Sept. 25, 1988, the EPA ordered Hamilton Standard to clean up surface storage areas, a pond used to generate hydroelectric power and landfill areas, Keough said. Following that order, the EPA and Hamilton Standard engaged in lengthy and technical negotiations that led to a consent order requiring the study, Keough said.

Hamilton Standard has been at its current site for more than 30 years, and Keough said the extent of the pollution problem is unknown. He said that's why the study is being undertaken — not only to determine the extent of pollution but also to determine what type of pollutants are involved.

Still, Keough predicted, "They're going to end up doing a lot of corrective action, that's for sure."

Chamberlain said the pollution problem didn't result from any wrongdoing. She said Hamilton Standard has followed government regulations, but that the regulations have changed over the recent years and become more restrictive. Hamilton Standard now ships most of its hazardous wastes to off-site facilities.

Keough said Hamilton Standard is now one of several New England companies taking corrective actions under the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act. The law is similar to the Superfund legislation, except that all costs are borne by the company instead of the federal government, Keough said.

Although the EPA is not responsible for the day-to-day workings of the study, it will oversee the Hamilton Standard study, Keough said. In addition to reviewing the study, the EPA will help determine what corrective steps will have to be taken to clean the area.

"The whole thing is leading to a comprehensive clean-up plan," Keough said.

The study began this week, the EPA said.

The study began this week, the EPA said.

Seabrook deadlines are due

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — New deadlines for buyout bids and reorganization plans will be set next week for Public Service Company of New Hampshire and parties involved in its bankruptcy protection in January 1988 under the burden of its 36 percent ownership of the Seabrook nuclear plant. However, the parties have been unable to agree on a reorganization plan.

The new timetable calls for an amended plan from Public Service and buyout offers to be submitted by Sept. 15. Disclosure statements are due Sept. 22, the same day as a hearing is scheduled to discuss a confirmation date.

Disclosure statements — re-organized financial information for Redbook Florist Services, a flowers-by-wire company based in Paragould, Ark. Coko will serve northern Connecticut, Vermont and western and central Massachusetts.

Coko attended Holy Apostles College and graduated with degrees in psychology and religious studies.

WARNING

IMPORT CARS ARE KNOWN TO BREAK UP FAMILIES.

It's unfortunate what import cars can do to a family. Because if six of you want to ride together, chances are you won't be able to. You see, most import cars have room for no more than five. (And even five is a tight squeeze.)
 Buick Lesabre, fortunately, is known to keep families together. There's plenty of room for six adults.

(Not to mention all the room for kids.)
 Everyone rides in comfort. Besides the spacious interior, there's a big 3.5 liter, V-6, fuel injected engine. And advanced Dynaride suspension. The pairing of which is not available on any import.
 Even the trunk has room to spare. Good news for families going places. Especially together.

Nelson sees Europeans after U.S. talent

By Frank Baker
The Associated Press

HENNIKER, N.H. — The signing of Danny Ferry and Brian Shaw by an Italian team signals a bidding war between European clubs and the NBA for top American players. In the view of Don Nelson of the Golden State Warriors, who is general manager and coach of the Warriors, said Friday he expects European teams will become more aggressive in their pursuit of top young American players.

"Anyone can go over there now," Nelson said.

"As the arenas in Europe get bigger, the interest will grow. They'll be bidding on all the top players. And it won't just be teams in Rome." His view is not shared, at least not publicly, by the NBA.

"The only way they would be able to compete is if they're prepared to make unprudent business decisions," Russ Granik, executive vice president of the league, said.

"It will be a long, long time before European teams can produce the kind of revenues to pay these kinds of salaries on a regular basis."

Ferry, the No. 1 draft pick of the Los Angeles Clippers, and Shaw, who had been with the Boston Celtics, signed $1 million contracts with the Italian club of home. Ferry, according to sources close to the negotiations, may have received as much as $2 million.

"(Shaw's) good, but he's not worth a million bucks," Nelson, a former Celtics player, said at the Warriors' camp at New England College in Henniker. "He can be replaced."

"It wouldn't have been a smart basketball move to give him $1 million."

Shaw reportedly has an option to return to the Celtics after one year, and Nelson expects him to do that.

Shaw, 6-foot-6, was a number one pick in 1988 out of the University of California-Santa Barbara. He became the Celtic starting point guard midway through last season and averaged 8.6 points, 5.8 assists and 4.6 rebounds. He also was the only Celtic to play in all 82 games.

But he only made the NBA minimum of $75,000 last year. Shaw had asked for $550,000 and, by the time the Celtics agreed to the request, Shaw had raised his asking price to $700,000 per year. The Celtics balked at the request and Shaw signed with the Italian team on Wednesday.

Nelson said the loss of Shaw should not be devastating to the Celtics. He said he expects Celtics president Red Auerbach to make a deal to fill the void.

"The key to the Celtics isn't replacing Shaw. He can be replaced. It's (Larry) Bird," Nelson said. "If Bird is back, and healthy, they'll be terrific. If he's not, they'll be mediocre."

"I've always been a fan of his, but who knows how much he has left."

"A lot of people were happy to see what happened to the Celtics last year. I was't one of them," Nelson said of the team's problems. "It's like they say, once a Celtic always a Celtic."

ITALY BOUND — Former Boston Celtic guard Brian Shaw, a first-round draft pick a year ago, signed with the Italian basketball team Messaggero Roma earlier this week. Golden State coach Don Nelson sees European clubs in hot pursuit of American talent.

Unexpected fate attracts Ferry

The Associated Press

DURHAM, N.C. — Having seen how the NBA works on draft day, Danny Ferry knew that being picked by the Los Angeles Clippers didn't mean that he would end up there. But he certainly didn't expect to be playing in Italy.

Ferry saw his father, Washington Bullets general manager Bob Ferry, draft Mike Turpin out of Kentucky. Turpin eventually was traded to Cleveland and Ferry thought his would be a similar fate.

Instead of another NBA team, he will be playing in Italy for at least one year and far ahead of his own schedule.

"I didn't expect it to be until the end of my career," Ferry said at a news conference at Duke University Friday. "But I think the way Italian basketball has moved and the opportunity that has been given to me, it's something I can do now."

Ferry was the second player chosen in last year's NBA draft, but NBA teams were not the only ones interested in him. So, too, was Italian basketball, a new team playing out of Rome. And it was the Italians who won out, even before the Clippers could put an offer on the table.

Reid moves into PGA lead

By Bob Green
The Associated Press

HAWTHORN WOODS, Ill. — Mike Reid moved into the lead by himself Friday after old heroes Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus faded away from a fast pace in the P.G.A. National Championship.

The soft-spoken Reid, called "Radar" by his fellow pros because of his accurate shot-making, waited out a lengthy storm delay before completing a Sunday par 67 that gave him a two-shot lead over Craig Stadler and Leonard Thompson.

The 59-year-old Palmer, playing with a special lifetime exemption, was stung by a double bogey and struggled to a 74 that left him nine strokes behind Reid.

Palmer's 2-over-par effort Friday went with an opening 68 — a round that prompted a mass exercise in nostalgia — to give him a 142 total, seven shots off the early lead.

Nicklaus, 49, had to birdie the final hole for a par 72, and he completed 36 holes at 146, seven strokes behind Reid.

Play was delayed one hour, 48 minutes by an afternoon thunderstorm and raised the probability that second-round play would not be completed before darkness.

With only a handful of players still on the course, Reid's 11-under-par 133 put him two shots ahead of Stadler and Thompson, tied at 135.

Thompson scored an eagle three in his round of 69 and Stadler one-putted 12 times for a 64, eight under par and the best round of the tournament.

Tom Watson, 39, needing only this title to complete a rare career sweep of all the Grand Slam events, had a late 69 that put him at 138, three off the pace.

"The round turned into a scoring match," said Palmer, the oldest player in the tournament on the Kemper Lakes Golf Club course, "and I didn't score very well."

"The ball just didn't go into the hole."

"Another adventure," said Nicklaus, who also had a first round 68. "I had to work on every shot. I don't have a clue where it's going."

"But at 4 under, I'm not that far back."

Ed Fiori, Chris Perry and Dave Rummells shared third at 137. Fiori shot a second-round 67, Rummells 69 and Perry 70.

Palmer and Nicklaus, who attracted most of the first-round attention, remained the principal attractions Friday.

Palmer, perhaps the most popular player the game has ever known, was 1-under for the day and 5 for the tournament when he faced a 30-foot birdie putt on the 11th hole.

"I thought it was about time for another birdie, just to keep pace," he said. So he made a run at it, missed, then missed again.

"The three-putt sent me on a slide, that included a missed 5-foot putt on the next hole and the double bogey from a plugged lie in a bunker on the next."

Nicklaus was in and out of trouble all day.

"I just played terrible," said the man who owns a record 18 major professional titles.

Dravecky helps friend

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—San Francisco Giants pitcher Dave Dravecky, who made a remarkable comeback from cancer surgery, also made a pitch for a seven-year-old boy suffering from leukemia. Alex Vlahas of Hillsborough, Calif., sat in the stands Thursday as his friend tossed eight strong innings in his first major league appearance since surgery on his pitching arm 10 months ago. Dravecky won the game, 4-3. His performance also helped raise tens of thousands of dollars for Alex, who desperately needs a bone marrow transplant to beat leukemia.

Late Model race draws crowd

Several southern New England Pro stock drivers will be heading for Sunday's Pro Stock Late Model Open at the Oxford Plains Speedway in Maine. The Pro Stocks are getting equal billing with the NASCAR Busch Grand National North Tour, for the first time, in that track's Maine Dodge Dealer's Twin 100's. In previous years it was the NASCAR Modified Tour. But, that division was dropped for the lack of entries, according to track owner Mike Liberty.

Liberty, it seems, is looking for large numbers of cars and has posted bonus money for several drivers from all of the New England tracks. Among them are the Riverside Speedway in Agawam, Mass., and the Seaboard Speedway, also in Massachusetts. Other venues included in the bonus offering are the Mondnock, Claremont, Riverside (Groton, N.H.), Star, Lee, also in New Hampshire, Beach Ridge, Speedway 95 and the Oxford Speedway night late model, the latter three are in Maine. The first driver to finish from those tracks will get anywhere from $500 to $1,000 bonus depending on how many cars from those tracks show up.

Leading the charge from the Connecticut Valley and southeastern and western Massachusetts are Wes Boser of Agawam, Mass., Joey Curullo and Dan Dieme, both of Warwick, R.I., Roger Godin of Worcester, Mass., Jeff Ziedema of Spencer, Mass., Rick Martin of Westport, Mass., and Dave Caruso of Northbridge, Mass., among several others. Those drivers will be chasing some $20,000 in prize money making it one of the best payoffs of the season for that division. Some 36 cars will start in that race which is billed as a return of the "Oxford Open."

The oval racing scene will be quiet at the Stafford Manhatten Beach, Calif. (AP) — Gabriela Sabatini, Zina Garrison and Pam Shriver all scored straight-set victories Friday in the quarterfinals of the Virginia Slims of Los Angeles. Sabatini, the second seed, overpowered eighth-seeded Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden 6-2, 6-4. Garrison, seeded third, whipped 12th-seeded Nathalie Tauziat of France 6-4, 6-2, and Shriver, seeded fourth, topped No. 5 Mary Joe Fernandez 6-3, 6-4. Top-seeded Martina Navratilova was scheduled to face seventh-seeded Hana Mandlikova in the other quarterfinal Friday night. Sabatini will face Shriver and Garrison will meet the winner of the Navratilova-Mandlikova match in Saturday's semifinals.

Barkley big underdog against Nunn

The odds makers give Barkley a 25-1 chance of regaining a piece of the 168-pound championship Monday night.

The 26-year-old Nunn, who has a 23-0 record, with 20 knockouts, is an 11-1 favorite to retain the International Boxing Federation title in the scheduled fight at the Lawlor Events Center. The bout will be televised by HBO at about 7:30 p.m. PDT.

In his last defense, Nunn knocked out Sumka Kalamabay at 1:28 of the first round with one punch. Barkley lost a 15-round decision to Kalamabay in a bid for the World Boxing Association 12-round split decision to Roberto Duran on Feb. 24.

Motorsports

Speedway on Friday night as that track goes with the annual Redmen TNT Tractor Pull that night as well as Saturday night. Post time is at 7 p.m., both nights.

Rick Martin has come back to his winning ways at Seaboard after taking the Pro Stock main three last weekend. Martin shoots for another one there this Saturday night at the so-called "Cement Palace."

Riverside Speedway in Agawam, Mass., schedules the mid-season Bud Classic for all divisions Saturday night. Bud Rogier of Rhode Island's Mike Stefanik will be among the missing and will be competing in the NASCAR Modified Tour race at the Star Speedway in Epping, N.H. That means that New Britain's Stan Greger and Jerry Marquis of Enfield, Ct. will have the quarter-mile to themselves. Post time is at 6:30 p.m. on Saturday night.

Low Modesto, based in Stoughton, Mass., writes a weekly syndicated column about racing in New England.

Top seeds advance in Slims

Sabatini, the second seed, overpowered eighth-seeded Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden 6-2, 6-4. Garrison, seeded third, whipped 12th-seeded Nathalie Tauziat of France 6-4, 6-2, and Shriver, seeded fourth, topped No. 5 Mary Joe Fernandez 6-3, 6-4.

"I felt like one of those days," Garrison said. "Even in practice, I had to do extra just to get myself up. I think today was one of those days we were both a little bit slow on everything."

The Shriver-Fernandez match lasted 71 minutes and ended when Shriver served an ace.

"I was going for the ace. I was going for the line," Shriver said of her final serve. "This is probably the best service match outdoors that I've played in two years. But she returns very well."

"I felt the rhythm today. It's probably the best match I've played all year. She's the type of player that never wavers, but I felt I was reading her reasonably well. I'm excited. Today I feel like a player, again, and not a spectator."

Toronto's Stellick resigns

TORONTO (AP) — Gord Stellick, the National Hockey League's youngest general manager, quit the Toronto Maple Leafs Friday, and blamed interference by owner Harold Ballard.

"I thought public floggings were illegal in Canada," the 26-year-old Stellick said. "You pick up the paper and you realize you've worked hard for the last 16 months and it isn't going to happen. You realize you can hang tough but you realize it's best for everyone if you go."

Stellick handed Ballard his resignation along with the company credit cards, keys to a company car, keys to Maple Leaf Gardens and keys to the Maple Leaf office and dressing room.

Stellick said Ballard started a campaign to undermine him last December when he fired head coach John Brophy, a Ballard favorite, against the owner's wishes.

Theories differ on pitchers' arm injuries

By Hillel Itelle
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — In baseball, injuries to pitchers are as inevitable as the weather — and just as hard to predict. They can start with just a twitch in the shoulder, a slight pain in the elbow. Maybe some tightness after working in cold weather.

A young pitcher can develop arm problems and never recover, like Cincinnati's Wayne Simpson, 14-3 as a rookie in 1970, but just 36-31 lifetime. Or Karl Spooner of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who in 1954 pitched shutouts in his first two major-league starts and was out of baseball two years later.

Injuries can strike suddenly. Line drives shortened the careers of Herb Score, a brilliant young pitcher for Cleveland in the 1950s, and Dizzy Dean, the colorful star of the St. Louis "Gas House Gang" of the 1930s. An off-season skiing accident thwarted Boston's Jim Lonborg, who had just won the American League Cy Young Award in 1967.

Every pitcher prays a sore arm is just a sore arm. Take Dwight Gooden, 24, who this season became the third-youngest pitcher in modern history to win 100 games.

On a rainy night in June, Gooden was relieved after working six shutout innings against the Chicago Cubs. Just a little stiffness, the New York Mets' right-hander insisted, maybe the wind or something bothered him.

Manager Davey Johnson assured reporters that pulling his ace was simply a precautionary measure. Better safe than sorry.

By the start of July, however, Gooden was on the disabled list. Doctors had spotted a slight muscle tear in his right shoulder and said he could miss 3-4 weeks. More than a month later, Gooden still isn't back and won't be anytime soon.

"Throwing a lot of innings doesn't necessarily cause damage. It's pitching while tired that creates the potential for abuse," stated Craig Wright, a statistician who collaborated on "The Diamond Appraisal," a book which examines why young pitchers suddenly develop arm problems.

"One of the most overlooked facts is that the damage will not necessarily show for many, many years. I think this is true for Gooden. You're just now seeing the actual injury, but I saw the drop in his effectiveness come quite a while ago."

"He was pitching very, very hard as a teen-ager. He was pitching very deep in his starts."

Wright, however, did not anticipate the troubles of Boston's Roger Clemens, who just turned 27. When the right-hander was shelled by the Detroit Tigers on Aug. 4 of last season, no one gave it a second thought. After all, Clemens had always struggled against Detroit, and he was still 15-4, a good bet to win his third straight Cy Young Award.

In his next start, Clemens was beaten 3-2, tagged for a home run by Milwaukee's Joey Meyer in the ninth inning. No problem, could happen to anybody. But when Detroit rocked him again five days later, people started to ask questions.

The team physician examined Clemens and found a "slight muscle strain in his left side." The pitcher confessed he had injured himself two weeks earlier moving furniture at home. Since then, Clemens has been a 500-pitcher and is now plagued by a slight muscle tear in his right elbow.

"There's a lot of denial that goes on," said former Yankees pitcher Jim Bouton, author of the controversial best seller "Ball Four" and a victim himself of arm problems.

"Some guy in AAA is waiting to replace you. You're constantly fighting for opportunities to stay in the rotation."

A bad arm can taint the happiest memories. In 1970, rookie Mark "The Bird" Fidrych won 19 games for the Detroit Tigers and electrified crowds with his enthusiasm, even talking to the ball on the mound.

But soon the right-hander was muttering to himself. When arm problems began early next season, the pitcher received letters from chiropractors, osteopaths, and acupuncturists. One hypnotist insisted Fidrych was subconsciously repressing his delivery.

"The Bird" was out of the majors at age 26, the victim of a damaged rotator cuff.

"You fear that every shoulder pain is the rotator cuff or an elbow problem is tendonitis," Bouton explained. "I was always rotating my arm over my head. I woke up in the morning to see how it felt. You can't work without your tools."

Others adjust — Jerry Koosman, Gary Nolan, Frank Tanana — all hard-throwing rookies who overcame injuries by adapting their styles.

"Mentally, I had to convince myself I was no longer going to be a power pitcher," said Tanana, a left-hander with Detroit. "I was going to learn to pitch to spots and use my breaking balls to set up my fastball. I had become a finesse pitcher."

"It was tough because I was only in my mid-20s, but I was prepared to make the change in order to prolong my career."

WHEN WILL HE BACK? — New York Mets' pitcher Dwight Gooden, shown in a file photo, hasn't pitched in a game since early July due to soreness in his throwing arm. The 24-year-old Gooden is the third youngest pitcher ever to record 100 career wins. Many theories exist concerning arm trouble with pitchers.

Bouton, a big winner for the Yankees in 1963 and 1964, took a unique approach after bi-cep problems nearly finished him the next season. Desperate to keep pitching, Bouton resurrected the knuckleball he had used as a teen-ager and hung on literally by his fingertips, a few more years.

"I felt like a Volkswagen at the Indianapolis 500," Bouton said. "Pitching is like taking an automobile and racing it at 110 mph all the time. Soon or later the engine starts to wear down, parts start to fail."

How can arm problems be prevented? "Everybody's got a theory. Wright suggests that pitchers under 25, whose arms are still developing, should not be worked too hard. Bouton recommends throwing every other day, keep the muscles relaxed.

Jockey Snyder closes in on 6,000th win

By Mary Foster
The Associated Press

SHREVEPORT, La. — The 6,000th victory is out there for Larry Snyder, five victories away. He is scheduled for six mounts Saturday at Louisiana Downs.

The closer I get the harder jockeys are to come by," the 47-year-old jockey said Friday.

In the 29 years since he rode Pipestone to a first place finish at River Downs in Ohio, Snyder has come by an average of almost 216 wins a year in better than 32,000 races for more than $42 million in earnings.

"It's hard for me to believe. When I was just a kid starting out I couldn't even imagine that I would win this many or ride this long. It's been a lot of things — good horses, good tracks and, of course, luck," Snyder said.

Only five other jockeys have won 6,000 races — Bill Shoemaker, Laffie Pincay, Johnny Longden, Angel Cordero and Jorge Velasquez, who won his 6,000th Aug. 3, at Arlington Park in Chicago.

"These days I ride from February through October. The rest of the time I do a lot of fishing and hunting and take it easy," Snyder said of his schedule.

A resident of Hot Springs, Ark., since 1960, Snyder said his 6,000th victory will be nice but not his favorite. That distinction belongs to his victory in the Arkansas Derby aboard Danial on April 22.

"Since that's where my home is it was a special one. It's the first time I ever won that one and it kind of made me the hometown hero," he said.

The wait for the milestone victory was starting to wear on Snyder by the end of the week.

"I've had five seconds this week," he said of his finishes, "but no first. I don't know if that's true — hunting and take it easy." Snyder said of his

Sports in Brief

Mack Lobell Int'l favorite

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — The father-son combination of Giancarlo and Lorenzo Baldi, who entered Hollyhurst as Italy's representative in the $50,000 International Trot, say they have figured out a way to beat Mack Lobell.

Mack Lobell is the prohibitive favorite to win a second straight International at Yonkers Raceway Saturday night.

"Carrying it out is another thing," said Lorenzo of the strategy. The 29-year-old will drive the 7-year-old brown horse from the rail in the field of eight for the 1 1/4-mile race on the half-mile track.

"I have to get Hollyhurst to the top early. If that happens, Mack Lobell can be beaten. If Mack Lobell gets to the front, it's all over," the younger Baldi said.

Toronto's Stellick resigns

TORONTO (AP) — Gord Stellick, the National Hockey League's youngest general manager, quit the Toronto Maple Leafs Friday, and blamed interference by owner Harold Ballard.

"I thought public floggings were illegal in Canada," the 32-year-old Stellick said. "You pick up the paper and you realize you've worked hard for the last 16 months and it ain't going to happen. You realize you can hang tough but you realize it's best for everyone if you go."

Stellick handed Ballard his resignation along with the company credit cards, keys to the Maple Leafs' office and dressing room.

Stellick said Ballard started a campaign to undermine him last December when he fired head coach John Brophy, a Ballard favorite, against the owner's wishes.

Judge bars Giamatti

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A federal judge on Friday barred Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti from conducting next week's disciplinary hearing against Cincinnati Reds manager Pete Rose.

U.S. District Judge John D. Holschuh's order that Giamatti not hold his hearing, scheduled for Thursday, until the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decides whether the case belongs in a federal court or state court in Cincinnati.

By issuing the stay, Holschuh apparently also postponed Monday's scheduled hearing on Rose's request for a preliminary injunction against Giamatti, who wants to hear Rose's response to allegations he bet on his own team.

If Giamatti finds that Rose did bet on the Reds, he could be banned for life.

Rose contends the commissioner has prejudged him and that a fair hearing would be impossible.

Proper Evidence wins

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Proper Evidence, carrying 116 pounds and Chris Anley, stormed through the stretch to take the lead and draw away to a 2 1/4-length victory Friday in the $121,800 Ballerina Stakes for older fillies and mares at Saratoga.

Apoststar, 119 and Angel Cordero Jr., coupled in the wagering with Topcount as the favored entry, was rumbled, a nose ahead of Lake Valley.

Proper Evidence, a Florida-bred four-year-old daughter of Shift Sentence-Catcha, was shipped in from Woodbine in Ontario, Canada for this engagement.

Proper Evidence broke late, then rallied strongly on the turn to move from eighth to second nearing the stretch. Once into the stretch, she assumed command and went the rest of the way untouchable.

The win was the fourth in 14 starts this year for Proper Evidence, who went seven furlongs on the fast track in 1:22 1/2 to earn $73,000 and returned $87.20, $12.80 and $5.00. Apoststar paid $2.40 and $2.10 and Lake Valley $3.20 for show.

ARRIVES AT COURT — Thomas P. Gioiosa, left, a former housemate of Cincinnati Reds' manager Pete Rose, walks into federal court in Cincinnati on Friday for a hearing on his mental competency. Gioiosa, 31, was ordered to undergo mental examinations. He is also waiting trial on drug and tax charges.

Gioiosa ordered mental tests

By John Nolan
The Associated Press

CINCINNATI — Thomas P. Gioiosa, a former handyman for Pete Rose who is awaiting trial on federal cocaine distribution and tax charges, was ordered Friday to undergo two mental examinations next week.

U.S. District Judge S. Arthur Spiegel, presiding at a hearing on Gioiosa's mental competency, agreed with defense lawyer Martin Pinales' plan to have Gioiosa examined by a Harvard University psychiatrist on Monday.

Spiegel ordered the 31-year-old Gioiosa of New Bedford, Mass., to then return to Cincinnati for examination by a psychiatrist to be chosen by federal prosecutors.

The judge also granted Pinales' request to obtain tapes from Paul G. Janszen, a former Rose associate who accuses the Cincinnati manager of betting on his own team. Pinales said he needs the tapes to prepare Gioiosa's defense.

Pinales did not say what he thinks is on those tapes. But, he said, "The tapes may not be genuine."

Gioiosa's trial, originally scheduled for last month, was delayed until Aug. 24 after Gioiosa switched lawyers. On April 6, Gioiosa was charged in a five-count indictment of distributing cocaine, evading federal income taxes, and falsely claiming another person's income on his own taxes. Janszen has told prosecutors that Gioiosa and Rose conspired to hide race track winnings.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Kathleen Brinkman accused Pinales of trying to further delay his trial before Spiegel. Pinales said, however, he plans to have Gioiosa ready for trial. Pinales told the court Gioiosa is mentally competent.

Gioiosa did not comment in court or to reporters.

Coe-Ovett matchup rekindled

By Mike Collett
The Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, England — When Sebastian Coe and Steve Ovett were at their peak a few years ago, promoters offered them tens of thousands of dollars to race against each other.

The public begged them to meet, newspaper headlines screamed for a confrontation between Britain's two track stars. But the answer from the world's top two middle distance men was always the same: No.

This weekend, the race that never took place is finally about to happen. But there is no promoter waiting to hand each man a big paycheck.

Instead, Coe, 32 next month and Ovett, 33, have paid $3.00 for the privilege of racing each other at the 100th Amateur Athletic Association Championships at the Alexander Stadium.

Assuming both qualify in their heats Saturday, they will meet in the 1,500 meters final on Sunday.

It will be their first meeting in Britain since they padded around a muddy field as boys in the English Schools Cross Country Championships in 1972 when Ovett was second and Coe 10th.

Since then they have met only five times with Coe leading the head-to-head series 3-2. In those five races, at the 1975 European Championships and the Olympic Games of 1980 and 1984 they won a combined total of three Olympic golds, two Olympic silvers, one Olympic bronze, one European bronze and one European silver medal.

Between 1979 and 1981 Coe set eight individual world records, and his 800 meters mark of 1 minute 41.73 seconds.

Toran an All-Pro to his teammates

By Denise Betick
The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Los Angeles Raiders safety Stacey Toran, who died last weekend in an automobile accident, was eulogized Friday as an All-Pro player who never had a chance to earn the title.

"We knew, his teammates knew — we all knew he was All-Pro," said assistant coach Willie Brown, a member of the NFL Hall of Fame.

Toran, 27, died on Aug. 5 when his car struck a tree near his Los Angeles home. An autopsy report released Thursday showed Toran's blood-alcohol was more than three times the legal limit.

More than 300 family members and friends sat in folding chairs and lined the wooden benches inside the gymnasium at Broad Ripple High School, where Toran had played basketball in the late 1970s and early 1980s.

Fellow Raiders Greg Bell and Greg Townsend served as pallbearers.

Flowers surrounded the open silver casket, which rested near a makeshift altar under the scoreboard.

"This is the toughest thing in the world for me to do, to talk about someone so kind," said Brown, wiping tears from his eyes.

Brown said Toran was a strong but kind man who talked often about his family and home in Indiana.

Toran's mother, Cynthia Toran Patterson, sobbed uncontrollably throughout much of the 1½-hour service, during which representatives of Indiana Gov. Evan Bayh and Indianapolis Mayor William Hudnut offered condolences.

Cliff Sedor, Toran's football, basketball and track coach in seventh and eighth grades, said he remembered him as a great competitor and that Toran's family should be proud of him.

"If my two boys turn out to be half a good as Stacey Toran, I will be a very happy man," Sedor said.

Toran, a native of Indianapolis, played wide receiver and defensive back on Broad Ripple's football team. As a senior during the 1979-80 school year, he was captain of the school's basketball and football teams.

Toran went on to play cornerback at Notre Dame, where he was defensive co-captain his senior year.

The Raiders drafted Toran in the sixth round in 1984. He was a starting strong safety who was expected to be a pillar of the team's defense this season.

Other survivors include his father, I.V. Toran, a sister and six brothers.

Reed quits as Nets' coach

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Willis Reed stepped down as head coach of the New Jersey Nets on Friday to become a club vice president, the NBA team announced.

Reed becomes vice president of basketball and business development, which will oversee the team personnel and marketing aspects of the Nets, team spokesman John Mertz said.

Reed has agreed to take the new post under a five-year contract.

Nets General Manager Harry Wetman will lead the search for a new coach, Mertz said.

Irish begin on wrong foot

By Jim Litke
The Associated Press

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Before ever setting foot on Notre Dame's pastoral campus, Lou Holtz understood that shaking down the thunder was more than a full-time job. One national championship certainly doesn't do it.

The point was never driven home more clearly, though, than during an incident this spring.

That's when the unassuming, 52-year-old redhead, coming off his unbeaten championship season, walked into a local radio station to tape a promotional ad for a charity with one of his legendary predecessors, Ara Parseghian, in tow.

"Thanks for coming, Coach Faust," the station's program director greeted Holtz.

Holtz, rarely at a loss for words, said nothing. But on departing a half-hour later, he sought out their host, thanked him and mollified towards Parseghian.

"By the way," Holtz said, his impish grin widening, "have you had a chance to meet Frank Leahy?"

So it goes at Notre Dame.

Though South Bend is traditionally the center of the college football universe, it remains, paradoxically, one of the few places where Holtz, one of the most visible men in the nation as he tries to conjure a repeat performance, could be mistaken for Gerry Faust, whose departure in defeat three seasons earlier cleared the path for Holtz.

And where Parseghian, now a successful local businessman, but once the coach of a national champion Irish squad, could be passed off as Leahy, the late, great Notre Dame leader who claimed five such titles before turning author to tell his story in "Shake Down The Thunder."

Indeed, even as Holtz set out in earnest last week to become the first team to defend the national championship since Alabama a decade ago, he received a much less humorous reminder of the unique status football enjoys at uncompromising Notre Dame.

That's when Holtz announced that the university's Office of Student Affairs, which operates independently of the athletic department, had suspended All-American linebacker Michael Stonebreaker for his senior year and refused to allow running back Tony Brooks to reenter school for disciplinary reasons.

The dismissals stemmed from separate traffic accidents last February in which Stonebreaker was charged with driving under the influence and Brooks with leaving the scene of an accident after a hit-and-run sideswipe that involved no injuries.

Serious as the infractions were, the dismissals would have been treated as heretical at every other football factory in the country.

"Am I down?" Holtz asked reporters, then answered his own question. "Yes."

"Do I feel remorse? Yes. Am I bitter at this university? Yes. Am I bitter at this university? No. This university has done so many great things and turned around so many great people. I know they have a philosophy here in how they operate. I trust that philosophy."

To make Wednesday's news worse, a third member of last year's unbeaten Fighting Irish squad, George Williams, the left tackle on the dominating three-man defensive front, was ruled academically ineligible. On top of that, Holtz said fullback Braxton Banks will miss the upcoming season because of a knee that failed to respond adequately after surgery.

Before last week's events, Notre Dame returned 16 starters from last year's 12-0 season — capped by the Fiesta Bowl victory over unbeaten and then-No. 3 West Virginia — and most of the questions Holtz faced about repeating centered on Notre Dame's tough schedule.

Wes Gardner arrested for assaulting wife

BALTIMORE (AP) — Wes Gardner of the Boston Red Sox was arrested Friday and charged with assaulting his wife in their Baltimore hotel room, police said.

Gardner, a 28-year-old right-hander who is scheduled to start Saturday night against the Orioles, was taken into custody at 2:45 a.m. after his wife told police he had thrown her against a wall during an argument, police spokesman Dennis Hill said.

Officers went to the couple's hotel room and found Joy Gardner, 26, waiting in the lobby. Hill said she had a bump over her left eye but refused medical treatment.

Gardner offered no resistance to arrest, Hill said. He was released on $2,500 bail and his trial date was set for Sept. 12.

The Brewers left runners on base every inning from the second through the seventh.

Yankees 11, Twins 3: In Minneapolis, Steve Balboni, who entered the game in a 5-for-35 slump, hit a pair of two-run homers and the New York Yankees had a season-high 18 hits Friday night in beating the Minnesota Twins 11-3.

Bob Geren also homered for the Yankees and drove in three runs. Roberto Kelly and Steve Sax had four hits apiece for the Yankees.

Royals 6, Blue Jays 2: At Kansas City, Mo., Bret Saberhagen, who's had more trouble with Toronto than any other opponent, pitched a six-hitter Friday night to win for the 10th time in 11 decisions, leading Kansas City over Toronto 6-2.

Saberhagen, 195, was 1-7 against the Blue Jays before he beat them 2-1 with a three-hitter at Toronto on Aug. 1.

He struck out nine Friday and walked none in beating the Blue Jays for the first time in seven starts at Royals Stadium. It was ninth complete game, tying him with California's Chuck Finley for the American League lead. He had a shutout until Fred McGriff's two-out home run in the ninth, his 31st of the season.

Mike Flanagan, 6-8, gave up 10 hits and four runs in seven-plus innings. He allowed the leadoff batter to reach base in the first five innings but was helped by four Toronto double plays.

Willie Wilson and Kevin Seitzer singled to start the third and Flanagan hit Brett to load the bases. Bo Jackson's groundout gave Kansas City the lead.

Yankees activate Rich Gossage

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The New York Yankees activated reliever Rich Gossage Friday and sent pitcher Tim Laryana to Albany of the Class AA Eastern League.

The Yankees purchased Laryana from Albany on August 2. He did not get into a game with New York. With Albany, Laryana is 6-2 with a 1.84 ERA and 13 saves.

The Yankees claimed Gossage on waivers from the San Francisco Giants, who released him when they signed Bob Kipper on Aug. 4.

In Viola's three starts for New York, the Mets have scored just five runs.

Terry, 8-10, ended his three-game losing streak and beat the Cardinals' 13 hits.

St. Louis made it 3-0 in the ninth when Coleman doubled, moved to third on Smith's bloop single and scored on Guerrero's single.

Cubs 9, Phillies 2: In Chicago, Greg Maddux allowed four hits in seven innings to win for the eighth time in nine starts. Maddux, 14-8, struck out two and walked two before Steve Wilson and Calvin Schiraldi finished with combined two-hit relief.

Sansberg has hit six home runs in his last five games and 10 in his last 15. He tied a club record set by Pedro Guerrero, batting .423 with runners in scoring position.

Expos 4, Pirates 1: In Montreal, Mark Langston pitched a six-hitter and the Montreal Expos snapped a season-high seven-game losing streak Friday night by defeating the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-1.

The victory kept the second-place Expos 2½ games behind Chicago in the National League East.

Braves 6, Padres 5: At San Diego, Former Olympian Andy Benes lost his major-league debut for the San Diego on Friday, allowing three homers and six runs in six innings as the Atlanta Braves beat the Padres 6-5 in the first game of a doubleheader.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Roger Clemens, limited to 11 pitches in his previous start, allowed three hits in seven innings Friday as the Boston Red Sox beat the Baltimore Orioles 6-4 in the first game of a doubleheader.

Clemens, 12-8, struck out eight, walked five, allowed two runs and threw 123 pitches. He had missed a start because of a sore elbow and left last Sunday's game against Cleveland for the same reason.

Baltimore came back to take the nightcap, 4-1. Rookie Keith Harnisch gained his second major league win by tossing a three-hitter. He retired the final 17 Red Sox batters.

Baltimore lost for the 17th time in 22 games as Boston closed to within 1½ games of first in the American League East. Over that span, Baltimore starters have given up 82 runs in 119 1-3 innings, a 6.18 earned-run average.

Bob Milacki, 6-10, lost for the third time in four decisions. He gave up six hits and six runs in 5 1-3 innings.

Larry Sheets' RBI single gave Baltimore the lead in the first, and Stan Jefferson, recalled Wednesday from Rochester of the Class AAA International League, made it 2-0 in the second with his first AL home run. His last homer was Aug. 2, 1988, for San Diego off Atlanta's John Smoltz.

Nick Esasky tied the score 2-2 in the fifth with his 21st home run of the season. He has homered in his last three games against the Orioles.

Boston scored four runs in the sixth. Jody Reed doubled with one out and scored on Ellis Burks' single. Danny Heep singled and Dwight Evans hit a two-run triple past a diving Jefferson in right field.

Esasky greeted Mark Williamson with a run-scoring single, giving him his third consecutive three-RBI game against the Orioles.

In the ninth, Joe Orsulak hit an RBI double and Cal Ripken a sacrifice fly off Lee Smith, who finished the combined four-hitter.

Indiana 5, Brewers 0. At Cleveland, Joe Carter surpassed 500 career RBIs with a two-run home run and John Farrell pitched a six-hitter for his first career shutout, leading the Cleveland Indians past the Milwaukee Brewers 5-0 in the first game of a doubleheader on Friday.

Farrell, 7-11, allowed six singles, walked three and struck out a season-high 10 for his fourth complete game of the season. He had pitched nine shutout innings against the Brewers on Aug. 26, 1987 — ending Paul Molitor's 39-game hitting streak in the process — but got no decision that time as the Indians lost 1-0 in 10 innings.

Rookie Jaime Navarro, 3-5, walked Jerry Browne leading off the first inning, and one out later Carter hit Navarro's first pitch for his 22nd home run, giving Carter 75 RBIs this year and 501 in his career. Navarro has allowed two homers in 60 2-3 innings, both by Carter.

The Indians added two unearned runs in the third. With runners at first and third and two outs, Cory Snyder hit a slow bouncer to third that Molitor
