RED SOX SWEEP TIGERS

AL Roundup

BOSTON (AP) — Mike Smithson allowed one run in seven innings and Ellis Burks and Jody Reed hit solo homers Friday, leading the Boston Red Sox past the Detroit Tigers 4-2 in the first game of a doubleheader.

IN CONTROL — Boston Red Sox starting pitcher Mike Smithson throws against Detroit in the seventh inning of the first game of a doubleheader Friday night at Fenway Park. Smithson allowed a run on three hits in seven innings and picked up the win as Boston won, 4-2. The Red Sox also won the second game, 11-3.

In the second game, the Red Sox posted an easy 11-3 victory. Despite the pair of victories, the Red Sox picked up only half a game on first-place Baltimore, who knocked off the New York Yankees, 3-1. Smithson, 7-12, gave up three hits, walked none, and struck out three. Greg Harris pitched one inning. Lee Smith got one out in the ninth and Rob Murphy finished for his seventh save.

Cubs nip Braves in 12 innings

CHICAGO (AP) — Ryne Sandberg's run-scoring single with one out in the 12th inning Friday gave Chicago a 4-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves, snapping the Cubs' six-game losing streak. Catcher Rich Wrona, recalled up earlier in the day to replace the injured Damon Berryhill, led off the 12th with a single to left. Domingo Ramos sacrificed and

Voyager 2 continues discovery

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Voyager 2 found Neptune's moon Triton a world in which volcanoes blast nitrogen ice 20 miles skyward and where giant craters once overflowed with ocean-size floods of frozen lava, scientists believe.

The discovery announced Sunday makes Triton only the third object in the universe known to have active volcanoes. "It's one of the most interesting and provocative worlds in the solar system," says Charles Kohlhaas, Voyager spacecraft mission design manager at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Vocational education director's big job is to 'get the word out'

Manchester High School's new director of vocational education says one of his greatest challenges when school opens Tuesday is to let students know vocational programs are for all students. "The staff comes shooting up like gas out of a gun barrel," said University of Arizona planetary scientist Bradford Smith, leader of Voyager's photographic imaging team.

Thoughts

Augustine of Hippo was an answer to his mother Monica's prayers. He died on this day in the year 430 having become a bishop in the northern African city of Hippo and a defender of the faith by his masterful writings. Yet his definitive contributions to the faith were a long while in coming. While he was always a brilliant student and a spell-binding speaker, he had little time for religion. He led a dissolute life, fathered a child outside of marriage, and never attended worship. But when he was teaching in Milan, Italy, he chanced to hear the sermons of Ambrose and at the age of 33 was baptized. His mother never gave up praying for him and his service to humanity proved greater than she could have dreamed. He describes his conversation in these classic words from his Confessions: "So was I speaking and weeping in the most bitter contrition of my heart, when I heard from a neighboring house a voice, as of boy or girl chanting, and oft repeating, 'Take up and read'... I arose; interpreting it to be no other than a command from God to open the book and read the first chapter I should find... in silence I read that section of Romans on which my eyes fell: 'Not in reveling and drunkenness, not in debauchery and lewdness... put on the Lord Jesus Christ and make no provision for the flesh to gratify its desires. I did not desire to read further... a light of serenity flooded my heart and all the darkness of doubt vanished away.'"

State's broadcasters 'zap' New York

By Steve Felco

HARTFORD — Connecticut broadcasters are preparing to wage a $1 million campaign to recapture thousands of television viewers who tune into New York, on Boston and drop out of the Connecticut stations' audience. The Connecticut Broadcasters Association has kicked off the "Out of the Market Campaign," a project aimed at encouraging Connecticut people to watch their own hometown television stations. "We can't take this sitting down anymore," said Mike Watt, chairman of the CBA project and vice president of station operations for WTIC-TV, Channel 61 in Hartford. Watt said there are a number of reasons why Connecticut viewers are watching out-of-state stations. Penetration by cable television is one of the highest in the country. Watt said. Even the smallest cable operations provide viewers with at least 30 channels to choose from, including New York and Boston stations.

Market share effects a station's ability to attract advertising and is central in determining rates for advertising — a station's main source of revenue.

The campaign, which includes slogan like "Zap New York" and "Get Connected to Connecticut," involves Channels 3, 8, 20, 30, 61 and the Connecticut Public Television network.

Al Bova, president of the CBA and vice president and general manager of WVIT-TV, Channel 30, said there are a number of reasons why state people should be watching Connecticut television. "It provides as much entertainment value as the New York, Providence or Boston stations and it better reflects the lifestyle of Connecticut residents by providing information that is important to their lives."

Bova said the local operations are where Connecticut people can get local news, weather, sports and local public service events as well as local advertising for businesses.

The campaign is beginning with a full-page advertisement in the September issue of Connecticut Magazine. It will also include use of large posters on the Metro-North Commuter Railroad and radio and television spots that will air over CBA member stations.

"New York stations' can't compete in the area of news," Primo said. "It's a very easy battle to win if they would do a better job in news as opposed to concentrating on syndicated programming."

Pan Am Flight 103 was on its way from London to New York when it originated in Frankfurt, West Germany. Elizabeth, 30, and a friend, Bill Mack of Evanston, Ill., whose body is among several that has yet to be positively identified, were aboard the ill-fated flight. They were returning from a London holiday.

The warehouse had a musty smell, just like Elizabeth's things — it was almost like the smell of death," said Marek who joined five other Americans in Great Britain last week to meet with government officials investigating the bombing.

They also met with the families from the United Kingdom who lost loved ones in the crash. Two-hundred fifty-nine passengers were killed when the bomb exploded, and 11 Lockerbie residents died when the plane slammed into ground. Eight of the victims were Connecticut residents, many of them college students on their way home for the holidays.

The families in the United Kingdom have formed their own support group, a counterpart to the American organization.

This was Marek's second trip to Lockerbie — her first came days after the crash, when she attended a memorial service for the victims. But last week, Marek was able to see for the first time the spot where Elizabeth's body was found two days after the crash. A fence now rings the area surrounding the site.

Marek said the most emotional part was when she went in the warehouse and saw rows of cardboard boxes stacked neatly. Someone's battered gray suitcase remains unidentified. Marek was able to identify a coat worn by Elizabeth.

Marek, a mother of six, received a box of Elizabeth's personal effects in June but has yet to rummage through it.

Junior Transport Minister Michael Portillo, who rebuffed their call for an immediate public inquiry into the gaps in airline security that allowed the bomb to be placed on board.

"We want to make sure this never happens again," Marek said. "We want them to catch the person who did this and stop it from happening again."

No major impact seen in Main St. rebuilding project

By Nancy Connelman
Manchester Herald

The state Council on Environmental Quality concurs with an environmental assessment of the Main Street reconstruction project that says work will not significantly affect the physical environment downtown, a council spokeswoman said today.

The council ruled that the environmental assessment, rapped by project opponents as biased and incomplete, meets requirements of the Connecticut Environmental Protection Act in its evaluation of the effects of the project on air, noise and downtown's appearance, said Ramsay Stewart, a research assistant with CEQ.

The assessment was done by the project engineers, Fuss & O'Neill Inc. of Manchester, under orders from the Federal Highway Administration.

The Council on Environmental Quality, an advisory agency that reviews all findings of no significant impact for state projects, said the Main Street assessment did not discuss treatment of trees, and questioned the safety of proposed "bumpouts" extensions of the curb into the street.

Opponents of the project as proposed have asked that bumpouts and a proposed access road that would run to the east of Main Street.

Opponents have also argued that the $15 million project, estimated to take two years to complete, will put some downtown merchants out of business and harm other businesses because it will require removal of parking spaces.

Steward said the council has no authority over economic impact questions and could not rule on the council believes that the Main Street project will affect downtown's economy.

"It was the council's general feeling that the project will have significant impacts, but they're not environmental," Steward said. CEQ will submit its comments to the state Department of Transportation and Office of Policy and Management, Steward said.

The council's study of the assessment is a standard procedure, Steward said, but the council will also act on citizen complaints. CEQ has not received any complaints on the Main Street assessment, she said.

Attorney blasts acquittal in Los Macheteros case

The Associated Press

U.S. District Attorney Daniel Lopez-Romo says he is afraid the verdict was "historic" and sends a "message of powerful content to the United States government."

"It was tried by their court... but by Puerto Ricans, and they lost," he said. "It is a monumental decision."

"I think it sends a message that Puerto Ricans, deep in their hearts' favor independence, Maldonado said."

Maldonado has been sentenced to five years in prison, but remains free pending his appeal. A bullet fired by Ojeda Rios struck the agent's eye.

"Some people might think (Ojeda's) action is legitimate," Lopez Romo said in a telephone interview Sunday. He said his main worry is the security of federal agents who usually carry out arrest orders.

"I feel satisfied, all evidence was submitted," Lopez Romo said. "The jury paid more attention to the human factor than to the judicial aspects of the case."

After a 12-member jury in Puerto Rico issued their verdict Saturday night, District Judge Carmen Consuelo Vargas de Cerezo said she could not free Ojeda Rios since he was still wanted in Connecticut for his alleged part in the $7 million robbery of a Wells Fargo depot in West Hartford in 1983.

The five-week trial, in which Ojeda Rios defended himself in Spanish, had ended Thursday. The jury dropped all eight charges, which included assault with a deadly weapon and preventing federal agents from carrying out an arrest.

After the acquittal, Ojeda Rios told hundreds of well-wishers the verdict was "historic" and sends a "message of powerful content to the United States government."

"I was tried by their court... but by Puerto Ricans, and they lost," he said. "It is a monumental decision."

"I think it sends a message that Puerto Ricans, deep in their hearts' favor independence, Maldonado said."

Maldonado has been sentenced to five years in prison, but remains free pending his appeal. A bullet fired by Ojeda Rios struck the agent's eye.

"Some people might think (Ojeda's) action is legitimate," Lopez Romo said in a telephone interview Sunday. He said his main worry is the security of federal agents who usually carry out arrest orders.

"I feel satisfied, all evidence was submitted," Lopez Romo said. "The jury paid more attention to the human factor than to the judicial aspects of the case."

After a 12-member jury in Puerto Rico issued their verdict Saturday night, District Judge Carmen Consuelo Vargas de Cerezo said she could not free Ojeda Rios since he was still wanted in Connecticut for his alleged part in the $7 million robbery of a Wells Fargo depot in West Hartford in 1983.

The five-week trial, in which Ojeda Rios defended himself in Spanish, had ended Thursday. The jury dropped all eight charges, which included assault with a deadly weapon and preventing federal agents from carrying out an arrest.

News conference postponed

A news conference that was to have been held this morning by Wallace J. Irish Jr., Republican candidate for the town Board of Directors, was postponed.

Irish had called the conference to give his view on what should be done about the Manchester Country Club's quest of a new long terms lease on the town-owned golf course the club operates.

Irish said today that after discussing the matter with his campaign committee he had decided to pull off the news conference in order to avoid diverting attention from the Annulli Manchester Classic, a pro-am tournament being held by the Manchester Country Club today.

Proceeds from the annual event go the American Diabetes Association.

The club and the town are negotiating over a new lease and over plans to add 18 more holes to the 18-hole course as a means of meeting increased public demand for golfing facilities.

But Irish has said the town director are moving too slowly to resolve the problem.

He said also said the club, which he thinks should be renamed the Golf Club of Manchester, should be responsible for financing the construction of any additional holes.

Irish said he has not chosen a date to hold the news conference.

Man charged in fatal crash

A local man was arrested Thursday and charged with negligent homicide in connection with a July 14 accident that killed a former town employee, police said.

Alan H. Parkerson, 28, of 1190 B-2 W. Middle Turnpike, turned himself in to Manchester police Thursday and was arrested on a warrant charging him with the death of Herman T. Passacantelli, 64, of 172 New Bolton Road, police said.

Passacantelli was killed July 14 when his car collided with Parkerson's at the intersection of East Center and Woodbridge streets, police said.

Parkerson attempted to turn left from East Center Street to Woodbridge Street while Passacantelli was traveling west on East Center Street, police said.

Parkerson was also charged with a restricted turn violation. He is being held on non-surety bond and is scheduled to appear in Manchester Superior Court Wednesday.

Search to resume

DANIELSON (AP) — State police divers and fire officials were to resume searching today for a young man who may have drowned when his boat overturned on the Fox Mile River, officials said.

State police trooper Lawrence Grob said police received a call of an overturned boat about 4 p.m. Sunday. Divers scoured the river for about four hours, but called off the search when it got too dark, Grob said.

Grob said a witness told police he saw a boat overturn and an unidentified victim, described as a young male, go into the water.

State woman killed

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A Connecticut woman was killed in an Indiana traffic accident that led to charges of drunken driving, police said.

Patsy R. Surber, 56, of Newington, Conn., and Lois M. Irish, 74, of Indianapolis, were killed when the car in which they were riding was hit head-on by a truck that veered into the eastbound lane of an Indianapolis street at about 10 p.m. Friday, Marion County sheriffs police said.

The driver of the car, Mary Owens, 50, of Newington, was in stable condition at Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis, where she underwent surgery.

The driver of the truck involved in the collision, Thomas Walker, 28, of Danville, was taken to Wishard Hospital for treatment and was charged with public intoxication and operating a motor vehicle while having a blood alcohol content of more than .10 percent, police said.

Accredited by PR society

Darcy R. Otis of Manchester, director of public relations at Decker Rickard, has been accredited by the Public Relations Society of America.

The society accredits members who have qualified for and passed written and oral exams on basic public relations knowledge and the ability to apply that knowledge in practice.

Decker Rickard in 1985 and became manager of the agency's public relations department in 1988. She was promoted to director this year.

Before joining the agency, she held a number of positions in Connecticut mass media organizations, including publicist for Connecticut Public Broadcasting, assignment editor at NBC affiliate WTVT-TV-30 and midday news director at WPOP-Newsradio 14.

Otis is a graduate of the University of Connecticut.

Safe Rides begins Friday

Manchester Safe Rides begins its sixth year of operation Friday. Safe Rides provides free and confidential transportation home to any young person whose driving ability is impaired or who is a passenger in a car whose driver is under the influence of alcohol.

The service is open to any Manchester youth under the age of 21 on Friday and Saturday nights from 8:30 p.m. to 2 a.m. by phoning 646-2150.

Israel news update set

An update of current Israeli events will be presented at the 8:30 p.m. 87th Charter Oak Lodge breakfast Sept. 10 at Temple Beth Shalom, 400 East Middle Turnpike.

Ed Rosenblatt, vice chair of the Israel Task Force for the Community Relations Council of the Greater Hartford Jewish Federation, will present the update. Rosenblatt serves on the boards of the Anti Defamation League and the Connecticut American Jewish Congress.

He chaired the Israel Symposium held at the Greater Hartford Jewish Community Center in the spring and recently attended the Solidarity conference.

The public is invited to the breakfast and discussion from 8:30 to 11 a.m. The cost is $2 per person, including breakfast.

Apartment proposal probed

NORWICH (AP) — A federal investigation is under way into a vacant mill that state and local officials considered unsuitable for housing but was nearly turned into 200 apartments after developers allegedly said they could get federal subsidies through connections in Washington, D.C.

Before the project fell through — just as the influence-peddling scandal at the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development came to light — it won the support of Gov. William A. O'Neill and U.S. Sen. Christopher J. Dodd, D-Conn. Known as the Beachery, the project is now under investigation by HUD's inspector general's office.

John J. Sullivan, Norwich's housing authority director, said the site was a "loamy location" for housing because it was surrounded by a canal, river and railroad. State officials also said the mill, which years ago was used to bleach and finish cloth, was unsuitable for housing.

New York developer Eric Richardson of the Wilder Richman Development Corp. started pushing for the project at the mill two years ago. He allegedly told officials he could get millions of dollars in federal rental subsidies to help turn the closed plant into apartments for the elderly and poor families.

Under that program, HUD provided rental subsidies to developers who spruced up — or moderately rehabilitated — apartment buildings. Eligible tenants would pay 30 percent of their income toward rent and HUD would pay the remainder.

The program encouraged rehabilitation of apartments because developers were assured of income to help them pay off their construction loans. It was also an arrangement guaranteed to last 15 years.

Under federal regulations, local housing authorities were supposed to first request the HUD subsidies based on a need for low-income housing. After receiving subsidies, they were to advertise for developers to submit proposals for specific projects.

Richardson's approach to the project was the reverse of the usual procedure.

Richardson was joined in the partnership by Judith Siegel, president of Landex Corp., a development company in Warwick, R.I.

Siegel was cited in the investigation as one of the well-connected developers. Developers paid her $80,000 in fees to arrange subsidies for housing projects in several states, according to the HUD inspector general's report.

On the Norwich project, developers planned to pay consulting fees of $1,000 a unit, according to state records; the estimates for fees ranged from $150,000 to $250,000 as the number of subsidized units changed in the developer's proposals.

But a splinter group of anti-abortion activists, led by James Mabe of the National Right to Life Committee, scheduled their own counter-demonstration. Connecticut leaders of the NRLC and other anti-abortion groups discouraged Mabe's efforts, but a small group of abortion opponents still showed up at the rally.

As the pro-choice crowd sang folk songs and listened to a series of speakers, anti-abortion activists marched silently in a circle around the green. There were occasional shouting matches, but no physical confrontations.

"They have every right to voice their opinions," said Carla Gault, manager of the Norwich Planned Parenthood office. "We only become concerned when they become verbally abusive to us. Some of the civil rights movement."

Abortion activists face off

NORWALK (AP) — Pro-choice activists easily outnumbered anti-abortion activists on the Norwich Green in what was intended as the first in a series of pro-choice events sponsored by Planned Parenthood and the National Organization for Women.

Police estimated that about 400 pro-choice activists and about 50 anti-abortion activists attended Saturday's rally. Extra police crews were on hand in case the demonstrators clashed, but the only confrontations were verbal.

Planned Parenthood and NOW organized the event as part of their effort to build public support for a woman's right to an abortion in Connecticut.

Contras ready return in spite of peace accord

YMALES, Honduras (AP) — Thousands of armed Contra soldiers are preparing to defy a regional peace accord and march back into Nicaragua despite a lack of U.S. support.

"We will wait in the mountains for the changes that (President Daniel) Ortega has promised," said Contra chief of staff Israel Galeano, known as Commander Franklin.

"We aren't going to launch offensive operations because we don't have enough supplies, but we will defend ourselves if attacked," he said Saturday in an interview with The Associated Press.

Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government has promised democratic reforms and set an election for Feb. 25, 1990, in accordance with an agreement signed by Central American presidents on Aug. 7 in Tela, Honduras.

The accord also called for disbanding the Nicaraguan Resistance army by Dec. 8, with a United Nations team to observe the process.

"By the time the U.N. gets here, we'll be gone," said Commander Henry, head of the rebel medical corps.

Most of the army fighting to oust the Sandinista government has been camped in Honduras along the Nicaraguan border since U.S. military aid was suspended a year-and-a-half ago.

The isolated camps are strung out along the narrow Ymales River valley 30 miles from the nearest paved road. Weakened by desertions and shortages of supplies and medicine, the army has by and large retained its integrity and spirit.

"We have too few bullets and too much morale," said Galeano. He and other field commanders say an intact fighting force will pressure the Sandinistas into fulfilling their democratic promises to a war-weary nation.

"What can the U.N. do? Ortega cheats," asked one soldier, who had taken the battle name "Danilo." "Look what happened in Panama," where Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega retains his grip on power despite U.S. and other international opposition.

"Battle-hardened commanders express contempt for 'politicians' of Nicaragua's Directorate in Miami.

"We've kicked out the desk soldiers. They lost touch with the fighters," said Commander Dimas, "one of a group of young field commanders who now make up the general staff.

U.S. officials say they fear that Contras who return to Nicaragua will be wiped out by the vastly larger Sandinista army, and contra commanders said they had been asked to wait at least until Dec. 8 before making a move.

"The gringos think everything in Central America runs on their money. They think that without their money and their supplies we'll just go away," said Dimas.

"Now we're thinking about this entirely from the point of view of our own interests," he said.

Non-lethal aid has continued, and U.S. officials point energetically to literacy and civics courses, barbering and cooking classes and even a course in public speaking as examples of the current U.S. effort.

But many Contras now see the aid as irrelevant and even damaging, because it made them seem a creature of the United States rather than an indigenous guerrilla force created by Sandinista oppression.

Withdrawal of the aid is viewed as immoral, and some said U.S. advisers didn't seem to realize they were in a war.

"They were always telling us, 'Oh no, don't attack that bridge, don't attack that factory. Congress will get mad,'" said Henry.

On Sunday, the Communist Party daily Pravda said the need for a Moldavian language law was obvious.

Said Pyotr Shornikov, a leader of Yedynost. "We are divided by a fundamental problem — our attitude toward democracy. They demand preference, we demand equality."

Both sides say their movements aim for broad economic reform of a republic once ruled by Leonid I. Brezhnev and termed by Shornikov "one of the epicenters of stagnation." But they say their opposite stands on the language law makes it difficult to cooperate.

"We read stories about apartheid in South Africa, where people are barred from any work except manual labor if their skin is the wrong color," Pyotr Zolozhnikov, a 45-year-old Russian worker, said by telephone from Tiraspol.

An estimated 250,000 to 300,000 people rallied Sunday in this capital, waving flags and banners boosting ethnic demands. Similar crowds are expected outside government buildings Tuesday to await the Supreme Soviet's decision.

Mikhail Ghimpu, acting chairman of the People's Front, recently said the language law is a matter of national survival.

"When a language disappears, a people disappears," he said. "We reached that point. Every day, everywhere, it's Russian." Although 45 percent of the republic's 4.2 million people are Moldavians, they make up only 43 percent of Kishinev's population. The law would make Moldavian, a dialect of the language spoken in neighboring Romania, the official language. It would also restore the Latin alphabet that the Soviet dictator Josef Stalin replaced with Cyrillic when the Soviet Union forcibly took the land from Romania in 1940.

Leaders of the People's Front see the adoption of the language law as vital to protecting Moldavian culture. They are one of many Soviet ethnic groups who have been agitating for more autonomy from the Kremlin.

More than 1 million residents in the Baltics linked hands last week in a giant chain to protest a Soviet-Nazi pact of 50 years ago that led to the Soviet annexation of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

Freedoms expressed in Chile

By Eduardo Gallardo

SANTIAGO, Chile — Political literature is booming as the bans and restrictions imposed by Chile's right-wing military government appear to be coming to an end.

Books ranging from Gabriel Garcia Marquez's latest to controversial political essays have become best-sellers, and literary experts believe the trend will continue because of the outgoing government of conservative President Gen. Augusto Pinochet.

After seizing power in a bloody 1973 coup, Pinochet decreed a total ban on political activities. Congress was closed, political parties disbanded and severe censorship imposed and the news media were enforced.

In the last few years, however, most bans have gradually disappeared as the nation has prepared to pick a successor to Pinochet. The vote in the presidential election since 1973, is scheduled for Dec. 14.

Political activity now is virtually free, bringing a boom to political literature.

Experts say the long period they lived without access to a variety of freely published information left Chileans ripe for the news of political literature.

"The public was thirsty for political information," said Ignacio Gonzalez, a journalist who authored "The Day Allende Died," one of the most successful books in Chile in 1988.

The novelized book is a vivid, well-researched account of events at the government house on Sept. 11, 1973, the day Pinochet toppled elected President Salvador Allende. Allende, a Marxist, died in the takeover.

Gonzalez' book sold 11,000 copies in three months, a notable figure in this small South American country where sales of 3,000 copies is considered a best-seller.

"I think people reacted with enthusiasm because of the attraction of the writing things that had been forbidden to them for so long," Gonzalez said in an interview.

Even more successful was "The Silent Revolution," a report on the achievements of the Pinochet government, by Joaquín Lavín, a conservative economist.

Published in December 1987, Lavín's book sold over 150,000 copies in 11 months, becoming the second-largest selling book in Chile's history. Lavín, a 19-year-old publisher, estimates his books have sold more than 30 million copies.

The young woman, Gina Feliciano, who witnessed the attack and called police, is under police protection. On Saturday, police arrested a 22-year-old man and charged him with threatening her on two occasions.

"That will be his immortality — the books he left."

She said her husband had been working on a biographical novel before he was hospitalized and she hoped it could be completed by someone else. She didn't disclose the subject.

King takes over at Social Security

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's new Social Security chief, Gwendolyn S. King, is taking charge with a mixture of grace and grit, stressing compassion for the public and vowing to smart like a "junkyard dog" if anyone tries to siphon trust fund reserves.

"When I say I want more responsive service, I don't want to just sit back and answer questions. I want to be out there on the front line figuring out how we can help people better," Mrs. King said in an interview.

Sworn in Aug. 1 as commissioner of the Social Security Administration, Mrs. King took commands an agency second in size only to the Defense Department. SSA provides monthly Social Security benefits to 38 million Americans and distributes Supplemental Security Income checks to another 4 million needy people who are aged, blind or disabled.

Mrs. King, a 48-year-old former congressional state and federal employee who breezed through Senate confirmation proceedings, said one of her first concerns was "how do you get your hands on the levers of an agency that has 65,000 employees."

She is working to improve service to retirees and other beneficiaries, protect Social Security reserves for future generations, and boost morale in a work force slashed by 20 percent during the Reagan years.

"Part of what I am doing is letting people at Social Security know that the important part of their job is doing it right, with accuracy and consideration, and with some compassion," she said. "I go ballistic when I hear that people have been rudely treated."

Social Security employees in recent years have complained that heavy staff reductions made it impossible for them to do their jobs right, but Mrs. King, who replaced Dorcas Hardy as SSA chief, said a modernization program will ease workloads.

A nationwide toll-free telephone network will be in full force by Oct. 1, allowing more people to take care of simple transactions by phone and giving office workers more time to handle complex problems, she said.

Congressional critics have complained that the new telephone lines, now serving more than 80 percent of the country, too often are busy and that employees sometimes provide inaccurate information.

Mrs. King said she wants to expand programs to find homeless and needy people who may not realize they are entitled to Social Security or SSI benefits.

She also wants to encourage employees to steer people who are not entitled to Social Security benefits toward other government assistance for which they might qualify, such as meals on wheels or public health services.

While the tight budget situation in Washington tempts some to talk about using the reserves for other purposes, Mrs. King said the "predominant sentiment" is to leave the trust funds untouched.

"One of the best communicators I've ever seen has been the junkyard dog, who, by simply baring his teeth and snarling, sends a message that everybody understands," Mrs. King said.

Herbert Mitgang, cultural correspondent for The New York Times, said Stone will be remembered as a literary pioneer.

"He brought history to millions of people who otherwise might not be interested in it," Mitgang said.

Five books were made into movies. "Last for Life" released in 1956, starred Kirk Douglas as Van Gogh. "The Agony and the Ecstasy" released in 1965, starred Charlton Heston as Michelangelo.

"He had a prodigious talent," Heston said Sunday. "We'll miss him, but I'm glad we still have his books."

Stone was born in San Francisco on July 14, 1903, to Charles and Pauline Tenenbaum. His parents divorced when he was 7 and he took his stepfather's surname when his mother remarried.

He began writing short stories at age 9. He said the following year, he was inspired to pursue a writing career after he read Jack London's largely autobiographical novel about a self-made writer, "Martin Eden."

Stone died of heart failure late Saturday at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center. His family said he had been receiving treatment for cancer there since July 24.

With the 1934 epic "Last for Life" about Van Gogh, Stone perfected the art form of telling history with a human focus. During the next half-century, he wrote a stream of best-selling biographical novels, including "The Agony and the Ecstasy," Doubleday & Co. Inc. "When I say I want more responsive service, I don't want to just sit back and answer questions. I want to be out there on the front line figuring out how we can help people better," Mrs. King said in an interview.

Sworn in Aug. 1 as commissioner of the Social Security Administration, Mrs. King took commands an agency second in size only to the Defense Department. SSA provides monthly Social Security benefits to 38 million Americans and distributes Supplemental Security Income checks to another 4 million needy people who are aged, blind or disabled.

Mrs. King, a 48-year-old former congressional state and federal employee who breezed through Senate confirmation proceedings, said one of her first concerns was "how do you get your hands on the levers of an agency that has 65,000 employees."

She is working to improve service to retirees and other beneficiaries, protect Social Security reserves for future generations, and boost morale in a work force slashed by 20 percent during the Reagan years.

"Part of what I am doing is letting people at Social Security know that the important part of their job is doing it right, with accuracy and consideration, and with some compassion," she said. "I go ballistic when I hear that people have been rudely treated."

Social Security employees in recent years have complained that heavy staff reductions made it impossible for them to do their jobs right, but Mrs. King, who replaced Dorcas Hardy as SSA chief, said a modernization program will ease workloads.

A nationwide toll-free telephone network will be in full force by Oct. 1, allowing more people to take care of simple transactions by phone and giving office workers more time to handle complex problems, she said.

Congressional critics have complained that the new telephone lines, now serving more than 80 percent of the country, too often are busy and that employees sometimes provide inaccurate information.

Mrs. King said she wants to expand programs to find homeless and needy people who may not realize they are entitled to Social Security or SSI benefits.

She also wants to encourage employees to steer people who are not entitled to Social Security benefits toward other government assistance for which they might qualify, such as meals on wheels or public health services.

While the tight budget situation in Washington tempts some to talk about using the reserves for other purposes, Mrs. King said the "predominant sentiment" is to leave the trust funds untouched.

"One of the best communicators I've ever seen has been the junkyard dog, who, by simply baring his teeth and snarling, sends a message that everybody understands," Mrs. King said.

King takes over at Social Security

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's new Social Security chief, Gwendolyn S. King, is taking charge with a mixture of grace and grit, stressing compassion for the public and vowing to smart like a "junkyard dog" if anyone tries to siphon trust fund reserves.

Looking up for Bolivia

Bolivia is a loser. It lost its Pacific coast to Chile, its oil fields to Paraguay and rubber-bearing territory to Brazil. After Peru, it is the world's No. 2 producer of coca, which accounts for a third of its revenue. It is the hemisphere's poorest country after Haiti. A nation of only 7 million people, it owes $4 billion to foreigners. Before the 1970s, more than 100 assorted coups and revolutions kept Bolivia off balance.

But on the political front, things may be looking up. This month Bolivia elected Jaime Paz Zamora president. A leftist nationalist, he says he has evolved from a Marxist to more of a social democrat. He succeeds his uncle, Victor Paz Estensoro, a conservative.

The election wasn't routine: Although the incumbent conservative National Revolutionary Movement got the highest plurality in May balloting, it was squeezed out in a congressional deal between Mr. Paz Zamora's third-place center-left Revolutionary Left Party and the most right-wing National Democratic Action Party, which placed second.

The two parties now sharing power don't overlap ideologically, a curiosity which bodes ill for stability, but the succession was the first in a quarter-century from one democratically elected Bolivian government to another. On a cautionary note, Mr. Paz Zamora's coalition partner is a former right-wing dictator well-known for his ties to cocaine traffickers and now in a better position to shield them.)

Mr. Paz Zamora's primary concerns are economic. His predecessor, by enforcing rigorous austerity, slashed stratospheric inflation of the mid-1980's from higher than 20,000 percent to close to 10 percent today. But as a result, unemployment has risen to over 20 percent.

What presents itself just may be a textbook case for debt forgiveness by foreign banks and governments. The United States wants Bolivia to eradicate its coca crops, currently covering more than 125,000 acres. Last year less than half of the U.S. goal of destroying 12,000 to 20,000 acres of coca a year was met, so what did Washington do? It cut foreign aid, crippling needed economic development. Mr. Paz Zamora must demand of his country's creditors substantial debt forgiveness. Much of Bolivia's debt came from indiscriminate borrowing, but the lenders were indiscriminate as well. Debt relief would aid in the rebuilding of Bolivia's economy away from its coca dependency, which could translate into a boon for this country's war on drugs.

LITTLE MILTON TERBROCK CHOOSES THE WRONG PLACE TO POP HIS BUBBLEGUM.

H. Ross Perot's 'Airport '89'

By Elaine Buckberg

Texas computer billionaire H. Ross Perot and his son Ross Jr. are building the world's first industrial airport, due to open in December. The Alliance Airport and International Center, north of Fort Worth, Texas, will handle no passengers — only cargo. Planes can taxi directly from the runway into the Perot's 4,200-acre industrial park. The Perots donated 414 acres and $14 million to construct the $250 million airport complex, to be owned by the city of Fort Worth.

Although most of the funding comes from local government, the Federal Aviation Administration is footing the bill for the runway, taxiways, lighting and navigational aids — the total of $34 million, not including the cost of air traffic control operations. It sounds like a great idea. With air freight getting cheaper, the airport will become the focus of a large industrial center — like the seaports of earlier centuries. The Perots, who own a total of more than 21,000 acres around the site, will make a killing as the land becomes valuable. But if the project is going to be so profitable, why is it necessary for the federal taxpayers to give to the Perots $34 million?

According to the FAA, Alliance qualifies for government subsidy as a "reliever" airport — that is, relieving overcrowding at the nearby Dallas-Fort Worth airport. Actually, the Perots hope to open a whole new market for air freight, not to draw business away from D/FW. Of the three tenants already committed to the industrial park, one currently operates out of D/FW. The alliance subsidy comes from

Good job, David!

To the Editor:

We would like to let you know how pleased we are with our latest newspaper delivery youguy. David Sharples. Our routine complaints about most previous delivery persons have all been erased by David's service. He is conscientious and places the paper, which he also has tri-folded, in the large box on our porch. (He has never missed it.) He even goes an extra mile to bring you the paper that he already placed in the box, when he notices you approaching the door. The paper is ALWAYS there and delivered around the same time each day. This kind of service deserves additional praise other than the weekly tip. This young man is a candidate for any award in excellence you bestow upon your carriers. There should be more David Sharples.

Bailout of S&Ls costly

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — The $160 billion thrift bailout has been approved by George Bush, the same guy who said, "Read my lips, no new taxes." You may still be trying to read his lips, but the savings and loan industry doesn't have to. It has his signature on the bottom of the law.

What happened here? One day Ronald Reagan and his minions were telling you that things could only get better if he deregulated the thrift industry and let it reach its full money-making potential. Today each American man, woman and child is looking at a $1,000 personal bill to pay the price of the free market run amok. We'll have to do it again. There ain't no such thing as a free market, and the one check in the mail is the one you'll be writing to the IRS. Eight years ago, no one would have imagined that the financial scandal of the century would begin at the corner savings and loan — a friendly place that handed out toasters and home mortgages.

Behind those familiar doors grew a bizarre industry that threw your life savings into wildly speculative deals. And then, one by one, as the deals fell through, the thrifts closed their doors until Reagan left the White House and Bush was left to mop up and clean up the mess.

Mike Berry, who is running the Alliance project for the Square Foot, told me, "That is a little naive, quite frankly." Even at $2, though, the Perot's profit on the industrial park land alone would be $300 million. That doesn't include the adjacent land they own or future price rises when the project actually gets going.

So the taxpayers' $34 million is really just pocket change. Still, it's not a bad gratuity. It puts to shame the amounts making headlines every day in the HUD scandal — also involving people using their influence to rip off the government, and also perfectly legal. How did the Perot's swing it? Apparently the influence of former House Speaker Jim Wright played a role. (Fort Worth was his district.) So did the legend of H. Ross Perot, the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. (FSLIC) rescuee. But few such buccaners make it without any help at all from the feds. The Perot's airport is a pet project of the FAA's regional office, which actually approached them with the idea originally. Despite the old Reaganite saw, when someone says, "I'm from the government, and I'm here to help you," he's probably telling the truth — at least if you're already rich.

'Slim pickins'

To the Editor:

As someone once said, "All I know is that I read in the papers." There must have been mighty slim pickins in the news this week with all the coverage that's been given to Siefert and Peterman — or is it politics the name of the game? It seems to me to be a crying shame to drag the names of two reputable businessmen in Manchester through the mud. Why can't the organizers give us something worthwhile, like what's going to happen to Hartford Road, which is another crying shame.

Media General - AP Poll

Half in poll sees another world war

NEW YORK (AP) — Fifty years after World War II erupted, a poll says that half of all Americans believe global war will consume the world again one day. A Media General-Associated Press poll has found.

A majority of those who expect another world war believe it will happen within two decades, the survey found. And if it does occur, most Americans fear it will escalate into an all-out nuclear conflagration.

Behind those familiar doors grew a bizarre industry that threw your life savings into wildly speculative deals. And then, one by one, as the deals fell through, the thrifts closed their doors until Reagan left the White House and Bush was left to mop up and clean up the mess.

More than a million German soldiers invaded Poland on Sept. 1, 1939, prodding France and Britain to declare war on Germany a few days later. World War II lasted until 1945, claiming the lives of an estimated 50 million people.

The United States joined the war in 1941 after the Japanese attacked the U.S. Pacific Fleet at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. Four years later, the U.S. Air Force hastened Japan's surrender by dropping atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki. It was so damn critical," Gray said. "We knew that Jim Wright (former Democratic Texas representative and Speaker of the House) had life and death power over this legislation. He was, in a sense, strong-arming me. He seemed to be far more interested in protecting his friends, who were running massively involved institutions, to prevent them from being closed down. He did seem to have only savings and loan operations."

The latest reports from Moscow described a disturbing development. The Communist Party structure is eroding. That might sound like good news, but behind the Eastern Bloc where change happens slowly, there can be too much of a good thing.

Minivan safety rules beefed up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Auto safety advocates say it's no longer a question of whether minivans and light trucks will have to pass the same safety regulations as passenger cars — but when.

"You look at auto safety in general and the issue of minivans stands out like a sore thumb," said Clarence Ditlow, director of the Center for Auto Safety, the non-profit agency founded by consumer advocate Ralph Nader. Ditlow says there has been enough public outcry and statistical information that the government can no longer ignore the regulation discrepancy between passenger cars and minivans.

Jeffrey Miller, acting administrator of the National Highway Transportation Safety Administration, says that regulations will be implemented within the next few years. But he says the reason is mostly to reassure the public, not because minivans are less safe.

Statistics from the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety show that the accident death rate per 10,000 vans last year was 1.4, an increase over the year before but only slightly higher than the 1.3 rate of large cars and much lower than the 3.0 rate of small cars.

But Albert Siechter, federal government affairs director for Chrysler Corp., which has 36 percent of the U.S. minivan market, says some of the safety measures required of cars don't make sense for vans.

For years, the Center for Auto Safety and others have tried unsuccessfully to extend government auto safety rules to minivans and light trucks.

Drugs

Mrs. de Griff, 32, had been the target of death threats against her, her husband and their three-year-old child since the government launched a nationwide crackdown on drug traffickers after a string of killings that included presidential candidate Sen. Luis Carlos Galan on Aug. 18.

Rodrigo Lara Bonilla, a predecessor of Mrs. de Griff, was killed by drug hitmen in 1984. Rumors of her resignation had circulated ever since a TV interview last week in which she said, "I wasn't prepared to work in times of war, such as now."

Last week, the traffickers declared war on the government after it began a crackdown in response to the assassinations of a magistrate, a police colonel and Sen. Galan over a two-hour period.

The statement appeared untimely, as the government was calling on Colombians to become "fighters for the moral" and help them defeat the cocaine traffickers.

She traveled to Washington on Friday where she was scheduled to confer with U.S. Attorney General Dick Thornburgh on extradition of arrested drug suspects. But she failed to show up at the meeting and no explanation was given by Colombian authorities.

Thornburgh said Sunday that Mrs. de Griff would be welcome in United States if she applied for refugee status to escape from political prosecution.

Private radio network Caracol said Mrs. de Griff had told President Barco she wanted to resign. Other news reports said she would be replaced temporarily by Communications Minister Carlos Lemos Simmonds.

Leaders of the Medellin cartel, in a widely publicized statement, said last week that they were fighting "a total and absolute war" against the government and its representatives.

The threat included private businesses, politicians, journalists and union leaders.

Two men arrested in a car park two blocks from one of the bank offices attacked Sunday were under interrogation, police officers said.

Police refused to say which organization was responsible for the attacks.

Other attacks in recent months were conducted by leftist guerrillas that sometimes cooperate with drug traffickers.

The newspaper El Tiempo reported Sunday that a court has struck down an arrest order for Medellin cartel boss Pablo Escobar that accused him of ordering the massacre of peasants at two ranches by right-wing death squads.

But El Tiempo said a three-judge panel reversed its ruling Aug. 15, deciding there was insufficient evidence against Escobar, who formed a trafficking organization in the mid-1970s and has repeatedly intimidated the judicial system with assassinations and threats.

Bakker trial opens

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Television evangelist Jim Bakker headed to court today to defend himself against charges he stole from his flock to support an opulent lifestyle.

Prosecutors say Bakker and other executives of the PTL television ministry diverted for their own benefit at least $4 million of the $158 million they raised for "lifetime partnerships" at the ministry's resort hotels.

Opening arguments were to begin today in U.S. District Court. If convicted of all 28 counts of fraud and conspiracy, Bakker could be sentenced to 120 years in prison and fined $5 million.

"I was a pastor, and a businessman I was not," said Bakker in testimony during a lawsuit last summer. Bakker, who says he is innocent, and his attorney, George T. Davis, have declined to discuss their defense strategy.

Bakker, 49, resigned from PTL in March 1987 after revelations about his sexual encounter with church secretary Jessica Hahn and a $285,000 payoff to buy her silence. Three months after Bakker resigned, PTL was put under bankruptcy protection.

In a sentencing hearing for former PTL Vice President Richard Dortch last week, prosecutors

Shortly after purchasing the home, the Helmsleys constructed a 4,433-square-foot addition that would be replaced temporarily by Communications Minister Carlos Lemos Simmonds.

Leaders of the Medellin cartel, in a widely publicized statement, said last week that they were fighting "a total and absolute war" against the government and its representatives.

The threat included private businesses, politicians, journalists and union leaders.

Two men arrested in a car park two blocks from one of the bank offices attacked Sunday were under interrogation, police officers said.

Police refused to say which organization was responsible for the attacks.

Other attacks in recent months were conducted by leftist guerrillas that sometimes cooperate with drug traffickers.

The newspaper El Tiempo reported Sunday that a court has struck down an arrest order for Medellin cartel boss Pablo Escobar that accused him of ordering the massacre of peasants at two ranches by right-wing death squads.

But El Tiempo said a three-judge panel reversed its ruling Aug. 15, deciding there was insufficient evidence against Escobar, who formed a trafficking organization in the mid-1970s and has repeatedly intimidated the judicial system with assassinations and threats.

"We give students an opportunity to explore their interests and talents," he said, "so they can make a better career decision for themselves."

Some of the technology courses offered at the high school include instruction in electronics, construction, manufacturing, graphic communications, automotive technology, drafting and design. Programs in the business curriculum are keyboarding and accounting. And the home economics courses include classes on restaurant food preparation, child development, human services, and fashion design.

Gagliardi said he often hears college students complain that they wish they had known courses like these existed while they were in high school. "Everybody tells you that you have to go to college, but nobody tells you what to do when you get there." These classes, he said, not only prepare students for many college courses, but also provide students with the chance of finding out which areas they do not want to study in college before they get there.

"So I've got to get the word out to the college-bound students that we offer programs that help them out in college," said the 1976 graduate of Central Connecticut State University with a bachelor of science degree in industrial arts.

"I myself, am a product of the program. When I was in high school, I got interested in printing," said Gagliardi, who received his master's in vocational education in 1980 from Central. One of his teachers at Berlin High School advised him to consider a career teaching vocational education. Having been a vocational education student has helped him relate with his students, he said.

Gagliardi said he is looking forward to working with the new high school's assistant principal. Quinby said she also is aware of the criticisms of the association's report and the recommendations from Dugger. Although she said one of her goals is to address the needs of the program, the report "really affirmed that what we're doing is right."

Burks makes Sox feel grand

By Dave O'Hara

BOSTON — In 19 seasons with the Boston Red Sox, Ted Williams hit 17 of his 521 career homers with the bases loaded.

In 23 years, Carl Yastrzemski hit 452 homers, including seven with the bases full.

Williams played 2,292 games and Yastrzemski an American League record 3,268. Both are enshrined in the Hall of Fame.

In less than three seasons—363 games—Ellis Burks has 49 homers and five of them are grand slams.

Burks, who will be 25 on Sept. 11, did it again Sunday, hitting a ball off a light tower beyond the 37-foot left-field wall at Fenway Park to rally the Red Sox to a 7-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

"I don't hit too many of them," said Burks, obviously unaware of the remarkable pace he's on "but when they help win a game they feel great."

Burks remembered with ease the other four times he left grand — two came against Cleveland, one against Baltimore and one against Texas.

"Like on my other grand slams, I was fortunate in getting the right pitch at the right time," he said.

Nick Esasky added a three-run homer and a first grand slam of the season.

Then, after Boston starter Wes Gardner was knocked out with a possible checkbone fracture by Mike Brumley's one-hop shot in the top of the fifth, Burks put the Red Sox ahead to stay in their half of the inning.

"I watched Marty (Barrett) walk on four straight fastballs, so I was looking fastball all the way," said Burks, who missed seven weeks because of left-shoulder surgery in mid-June.

"I got a fastball, and it wasn't that bad of a pitch," he added. "It was at my knees, but I got the bat out and hit it well. I knew it was gone."

Burks' hit followed an error by Rick Schu, a one-out walk to Rick Cerone and a two-out pass to Barrett.

"That's what happens when you make a mistake against the outfielders," DuBois said after the Tigers increased their error total to 11 through four games of the series. "I thought the error (on Schu) was a tough one. But I'm the one who threw the home run pitch, so it (loss) basically was my fault."

Joe Price, 2-5, replaced Gardner and escaped in the fifth as Mike Greenwell fielded a single to left and threw out Koussy Williams at the plate to end the inning.

Four games, with one left in the series tonight, Detroit has committed 11 errors. The Red Sox have capitalized for 14 unearned runs. They've scored 27.

Royals put a scare into A's

By Ben Walker

The next time Oakland plays Kansas City, the stakes figure to be a lot higher.

Both Welch pitched eight strong innings and Oakland avoided a three-game sweep at Royals Stadium, beating Kansas City 6-0 Sunday.

Oakland ended a three-game losing streak, one shy of its season high, and stayed one game ahead of California in the American League West. The Royals, who have won 11 of 13, fell 3½ games behind the Athletics.

"We're in a heck of a race. It'll be a dogfight to the end," Welch said.

Kansas City took three of four against the Angels before winning two out of three against Oakland.

"We put the feeling in their minds, that we'll have to be reckoned with," Kansas City manager John Wathan said. "We showed Oakland and California we're going to tough to beat down the stretch."

San Diego pitcher Mark Grant, right, and catcher Mark Parent celebrate after the Padres beat the Mets, 13-7, Sunday at Jack Murphy Stadium to complete a three-game sweep. The Mets have lost five straight.

As if the five-game losing streak wasn't bad enough, however, Johnson learned after the game that pitcher Bob Ojeda will miss at least his next two starts because of sprained ligaments in his left knee.

Ojeda, who lasted just three innings Sunday, was examined by the division lead instead of New York.

"We just wanted these games more than they did," Gwynn said after the Padres completed their first three-game sweep of New York since May 14, 1987. "We made the game. We hit the ball, and they didn't."

Samuel agreed that the fourth-place Mets, who dropped 20 games behind Chicago in the National League East, are definitely not playing well.

"I was late on the ball, but I saw it all the way," Samuel said. "I just did one thing wrong. I didn't catch it."

Despite trailing 4-0 after two innings, the Padres continued to play the division lead instead of New York.

AL Roundup

Kansas City does not face the Athletics again until the final weekend of the season, when they play a three-game series in Oakland.

Welch, 15-7, gave up five hits and extended his shutout streak to 24 innings. In his last outing he outdueled Nolan Ryan at Texas and went eight innings.

Welch won his fourth consecutive start and beat Kansas City for the first time in three career decisions.

"Welch is on a good roll right now, making a lot of quality pitches," Manager Tony La Russa said. "We've won this type of game several times, the one where it looks like you're starting to go backwards."

Dennis Ekersley pitched the fifth inning for Oakland. He and Welch sent Kansas City to its league-leading 15th shutout.

Tom Gordon, 1-6, lost for the first time in six decisions. The rookie right-hander allowed three runs in the second inning, then retired 16 straight batters before issuing two seventh-inning walks and Rickey Henderson's home run.

Mark Guthrie, 1-0, got his first major-league victory. He allowed three runs in 4 1/3 innings and Juan Berenguer got his third save.

Scott Bankhead, 11-6, lost for the only the second time in 11 decisions.

Blue Jays 5, Brewers 4: George Bell's two-run triple capped a five-run fifth inning and led Toronto over Milwaukee at the SkyDome. The Blue Jays won their sixth consecutive game and the Brewers' out their sixth straight.

Bell extended his hitting streak to a career-high 18 games when his two-out fly ball fell out of center fielder Robin Yount's glove.

Todd Stottlemyre, 5-5, went five innings for the victory and Duane Ward got his 10th save.

White Sox 9, Indians 3: Ron Karkovick hit the first grand slam of his career and the Red Sox won their 11th straight game. The Twins won their fifth consecutive game and moved over .500 for the first time since July 2.

Francisco pitchers have walked in a run this season.

San Francisco's lead over Houston was trimmed to four games in the West.

Cubs 3, Braves 2: Chicago tied the game with two hits in the ninth against Joe Beever when Larry Jackson singled home David McClelland, who had reached on a leadoff walk and was sacrificed to second.

Mitch Williams, 4-2, pitched two scoreless innings, striking out four.

Reds 1, Pirates 0: Tom Browning recorded his seventh consecutive win and Atlanta took the lead on an RBI single by Jeff Blauser in the seventh.

Chicago had taken a 1-0 lead in the fourth when Grace led off with a double and scored on a single by Dawson.

Expos 6, Giants 3: Andres Galarraga hit a grand slam and drove in five runs to match a career high.

Dave Anderson added two run-scoring singles in support of Galarraga's other RBI, coming in hits in seven innings, struck out five and walked two.

Cardinals 3, Astros 2: Ken Caminiti drove in three runs, two reached on a leadoff walk and was sacrificed to second.

Cubs put a halt to downward spiral

By Dick Brinster
The Associated Press

The Chicago Cubs, who have led the National League West for the last three weeks, have been slipping. The New York Mets, who were supposed to be leading it all season, have been sliding.

The Cubs, losers in seven of their previous eight games, won a little stretch Sunday when they came from behind in the ninth inning to beat Atlanta Braves before Andre Dawson's two-out single gave them a much-needed 2-1 victory in the 10th.

"The Mets weren't so fortunate. They didn't pitch. They didn't field. They didn't catch. They didn't play," Johnson said.

Roberto Alomar went 3-for-6 with a career-high five RBIs and Parent drove in four more as the Padres took advantage of the Mets' error by shortstop Kevin Elster and a wild pitch two outs later by reliever John Mitchell 9-1, led to San Diego's first run in the fifth.

Alomar reached base on Elster's error to start the inning. Mitchell then walked Gwynn and Jack Clark before Carmelo Martinez grounded into a third-to-home to first double play.

Garry Templeton was intentionally walked but Shawn Abner struck out on Mitchell's wild pitch, allowing Gwynn to score and Abner to reach first. Parent then followed with the pop-up that Samuel misplayed.

Alomar hit a two-run homer in the sixth, his fourth, and a two-run single in the seventh. However, his error at second base in the first inning helped the Mets take a 2-0 lead against Don Schulte. Kevin Reynolds had an RBI double in the inning.

New York made it 4-0 in the second on a two-run homer by Elster.

Abner doubled in a run in the second and Parent added a sacrifice fly. Alomar doubled in a run in the third and Templeton had an RBI groundout to tie the game at 4-4.

After the Padres went ahead 6-4, an error by left fielder Martinez and a two-run triple by pinch-hitter Mackey Sasser drew New York within a run.

Pat Clements, 2-1, was relieved by Mark Grant, who finished for his first save since joining the Padres last season despite allowing the triple to Sasser, the first batter he faced.

Milacki's outing, criticizing his own judgement.

"He pitched a great game," Milacki said. "I was an RBI triple in the seventh. 'I don't deserve to give up five runs. I got a little screw up in my foul ball. I called for too many fastballs."

The Giants had Rick Reichle, Mike Krukow and Don Robinson. Milacki said of the team's veteran pitching staff, "This is different. I'm actually one of the older guys."

Bob Milacki, 9-11, struggled early, allowing a two-run homer to Bob Green in the second, but held on for his third complete game. The rookie has won three of four starts, but said Milacki's second-inning homer may have actually hurt his performance.

"Yeah, I get scared when they score a lot of runs," said Milacki, staked to a 4-0 lead. "Usually, when they score a lot of runs, I give up a lot of runs. My concentration is much better in a closer game."

Melvin blamed himself for in over a year, a three-run shot, led the Orioles to an 8-5 victory over the New York Yankees.

When the Giants won the National League West in 1987, Melvin shared duties behind the plate with Bob Brenly. This year, he's filling in for the injured Mickey Tetletton.

The Giants had Rick Reichle, Mike Krukow and Don Robinson. Milacki said of the team's veteran pitching staff, "This is different. I'm actually one of the older guys."

Bob Milacki, 9-11, struggled early, allowing a two-run homer to Bob Green in the second, but held on for his third complete game. The rookie has won three of four starts, but said Milacki's second-inning homer may have actually hurt his performance.

"Yeah, I get scared when they score a lot of runs," said Milacki, staked to a 4-0 lead. "Usually, when they score a lot of runs, I give up a lot of runs. My concentration is much better in a closer game."

IN BRIEF

LeMond takes cycling title

CHAMBERY, France (AP) — Just like he had done in the recent Tour de France, Greg LeMond made a late burst and won the professional title in the weather-plagued World Cycling Championships on Sunday.

The American, who said he was ready to quit the race, grittily decided to continue and went on to win his second world cycling title. LeMond won with a charge over the final 300 meters as rain pelted the riders.

"I felt terrible all the way until two laps to go," LeMond said. "I was ready to quit, but I figured a lot of things can happen in the last two laps."

LeMond's spirit Sunday enabled him to edge the Soviet Union's Dmitri Koncheyev and Ireland's Sean Kelly by less than a second after he caught the leaders at the top of the hill in the final lap.

Utley gets first PGA win

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Stan Utley captured his first PGA Tour victory when he made a 16-foot birdie putt on the final hole Sunday for a 6-under-par 66 and a one-stroke victory in the $500,000 Hamilton County-Chatanooga Classic.

Utley, who made the field on a sponsor's exemption, birdied the last two holes for a 17-under-par 283 total and overcame Ray Stewart's 26-foot eagle putt at the par-5 17th that had given him the lead at 16-under on the way to a final-round 63.

His birdie putt on the final hole earned him the winner's share of $90,000.

King wins LPGA event

BUFORD, Ga. (AP) — U.S. Open champion Betsy King survived a lapse in the middle of her round and shot a 4-under-par 68 to capture the LPGA World Championship by three strokes Sunday, her sixth victory of the season.

The King, who used the $25,500 first prize to lift her record earnings to $699,457 this year, appeared on her way to running away to victory when she had an eagle and three birdies on the first seven holes.

But she then bogeyed Nos. 9, 11 and 12 to fall into a tie with Great Britain's Laura Davies with six holes to play.

King regained the lead with a birdie on No. 13, a hole Davis bogeyed. King then knocked in a 10-foot birdie putt on the 15th and coasted to her 20th career victory.

She had a 13-under-par 275 total for 72 holes on the hilly, 6,107-yard Pineles Resort course.

Killebrew deep in debt

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Since his last at-bat in 1975, Harmon Killebrew has learned a lot about life beyond the stadium.

The only Minnesota Twin in baseball's Hall of Fame has fallen into debt after being victimized by fraud, inexperience, poor advice and bad decisions, according to a story in Sunday's Star Tribune.

Killebrew, 53, owes at least a total of $700,000 to four banks, former Twins owner Calvin Griffith and former player Reggie Jackson, the newspaper said. He also said he owed $220,000 on his Oregon dream house when he stopped making the $2,500-a-month payments and the mortgage company foreclosed, according to the newspaper.

Cordero is fined $1,000

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Angel Cordero Jr., currently in a battle with Jose Santos for the Saratoga meet riding lead, was fined $1,000 Sunday by order of the stewards for "display of temper towards an official after the running of the fifth race on Saturday."

Cordero was disqualified from first when his mount, Foresta, was deemed to have interfered with the 15th runner during the stretch run. He was subsequently suspended by the stewards for 10 calendar days, Aug. 31 through Sept. 9.

Chang beaten in title match

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Jay Berger defeated top-seeded Michael Chang 6-4, 6-3, 6-3 Sunday to win the Wilmington Tennis Classic.

"This is the best I've ever been playing heading into the U.S. Open," Berger said. Berger, of Plantation, Fla., won the first five games of the match, but Chang rallied to win 10 of the next 11 games to force a third set.

With the third set tied 3-3, Berger won his service game, then broke Chang and went on to capture the $12,000 first prize. Chang earned $8,000.

DiTka not very happy with his Bears

By The Associated Press

Will Mike DiTka's words be as prophetic as Dallas Green's?

Early in the baseball season, Green said of his New York Yankees, "We stink." Not only was he proved right, he also lost his job as manager.

The NFL exhibition season is upon us and DiTka summed up the Chicago Bears' 22-17 loss to the Kansas City Chiefs on Sunday by saying, "We stink."

"Turnovers and penalties stymied the Bears, although they never trailed until Ron Jaworski's left. DiTka wouldn't have been satisfied with the Bears' performance even had they won.

"We couldn't do the basic things, we had countless penalties, we couldn't make a 27-yard field goal," he said. "We're not as good as we think we are. We stink."

"No more is it going to be their way; it's going to be my way. A lot of those guys aren't going to be around (Monday). That's two weeks in a row. You put the quarterback out there and he has to take his life in his own hands. We weren't flat mentally, we just stunk."

In Saturday games, it was Phoenix 21, Cleveland 7; Houston 28, Los Angeles Raiders 21; Denver 24, Dallas 21 in overtime; New York Giants 21, New York Jets 17; Los Angeles Rams 24, Minnesota 14; Green Bay 27, Buffalo 24; Indianapolis 30, Tampa Bay 6; Philadelphia 38, Pittsburgh 14; and New England 23, Atlanta 7.

Tonight, Cincinnati plays New Orleans.

If DiTka was upset with the Bears, Jaworski, who completed all six passes in the final touchdown drive for 60 yards, was ecstatic about the Chiefs.

"The offensive line did a good job and the receivers made it easy for me," said Jaworski, who had a 100-yard reception for the starting quarterback.

It was the first victory after two setbacks for Marty Schottenheimer, Kansas City's new coach.

Cardinals 21, Browns 7: Phoenix snapped a seven-game losing streak — the last five games of 1988 and the first two in 1989 — with a 21-7 victory Sunday. "None of it counts, but a lot of people in our locker room don't understand that," said defensive end Freddie Lee Nunn, who returned a first-half fumble for a touchdown. "This game was super important to us."

Gary Hogeboom, who had thrown five interceptions and no touchdowns in the Cardinals' first two exhibition games, completed nine of 13 passes for 128 yards and two touchdowns in the first half.

Broncos 24, Cowboys 21: Wynon Henderson's leaping interception set up David Treadwell's 19-yard field goal in the first half as Denver handed Dallas its first loss in three games.

Rookie Steve Walsh threw two second-half touchdowns passes for Dallas, including an 11-yarder to fullback Timmy Newsum that gave the Cowboys a 21-14 lead with 4:06 left.

Giants 21, Jets 17: George Adams scored the go-ahead touchdown from inches out on fourth down and rookie A.J. Green returned an interception 65 yards for a touchdown as the Giants remained unbeaten.

Adams gave the Giants a 14-10 lead with 10:57 to play. Greene stepped in front of Kyle Mackey's pass to Titus Dixon on the next series and scored with 6:29 left. Giants' quarterback Phil Simms played the first half and completed 11 of 16 passes for 163 yards.

Patriots 23, Falcons 7: New England's Andre Tippett recovered an Atlanta fumble in the end zone for a touchdown and Greg Davis kicked three field goals for the Patriots.

Atlanta gained only 70 yards and made just four first downs in the first half, which was played in steady rain with occasional thunder and lightning. Play was suspended for 17½ minutes in the third period because of the lightning.

NO GAIN — Kansas City Chiefs running back Herman Head (44) is stopped for no gain by the Bears' Dave Duerson (22) during the first quarter of their NFL exhibition game Sunday night in Chicago.

Mediocrity in AFC West imitates baseball

By Dove Goldberg
The Associated Press

Stenbrennerish tendencies, bought the team last year. He's stuck paying $11 million to Brian Bosworth, a linebacker with rainbow-colored hair, a big mouth and a sore shoulder and knee whose main accomplishment in two years has been to alienate most of his teammates.

The Raiders are considered strong at owner, where Al Davis is one of the few who knows X's on X's.

The strongest position on four of the teams may be public relations director, the Raiders are an exception — they don't have one.

Because the division has to put someone in the playoffs, the guys in Las Vegas have actually rated Seattle as Otis Wilson and Bob Golden.

He forgot, however, to get an offensive line and a secondary; his best running back, Bo Jackson, is Marcus Allen, is unsigned. And Davis himself is over-extended — he's on the committee overseeing the NFL's new international league, and is trying to decide whether to stay in Los Angeles or move to Irwindale, Oakland or Sacramento.

The Raiders also have a coach whose name no one can remember (see sidebar).

"I like Kansas City." Art Still, a defensive end who played there for a decade and is now plying his trade in Buffalo, said one day in late July.

"Why not?"

Still, 6-foot-7 and 260 pounds, probably could have done better in the NFL. Coach Marty Schottenheimer had out there last week against the Giants. Jeff Rutledge (Jeff Rutledge???) was 8-for-8 for 66 yards and three touchdowns as the Chiefs lost 45-7.

Yes, Deron Cherry was hurt and Albert Lewis hadn't signed yet, a couple of good excuses. Moreover, coach Marty Schottenheimer made the playoffs four straight years in Cleveland and new general manager Carl Peterson dresses well and generally builds good teams.

But his quarterback building blocks are 35-year-old Steve Weber and 38-year-old Ron Jaworski.

Now San Diego and Denver have quarterbacks.

San Diego traded last week for Jim McMahon, who was so glad to be rid of Mike DiTka that he stayed up all night to study for the exhibition game against his old team, the Bears.

The Chargers have some good defensive players like Lee Williams, Leslie O'Neal and Billy Ray Smith.

Experience pays off in win for David Frost

By Rick Warner
The Associated Press

YES — David Frost reacts as his putt for par drops on the second playoff hole, giving him the championship in the World Series of Golf on Sunday.

I grew up playing a lot of golf on the golf course. You have to have a way of thinking. This is not a golf course that you play aggressive all the time. You have to take all your ammunition, but you have to think all the time."

The victory was worth $180,000 to Frost and pushed him over the $2 million mark in career earnings in the PGA Tour. He followed rounds of 70, 68, and 69 with a closing 69 to finish regulation at 4-under-par 281.

On a day when Firestone broke par in a would-be comeback party in the final round — it came down to Frost and Crenshaw.

Crenshaw, who led after the first and second rounds, took the lead with a six-foot birdie putt at the 16th hole, but PGA champion Payne Stewart also birdied the hole to pull even with Crenshaw at 4-under.

Frost then rolled in an 18-foot uphill birdie putt at the 17th, with Stewart dropping out of contention with back-to-back bogeys on the final two holes.

Greg Norman, who was near the top of the leaderboard all day, also saw his shot at a playoff go out the window with a bogey on the closing hole.

Frost and Crenshaw each saved par on the finishing hole with chip shots to three feet and both parred the first playoff hole, with Crenshaw just missing a four-foot stroke putt that he said "burned the right edge" of the hole.

Paton wins U.S. Amateur

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — Chris Paton, a Clemson senior who is 300 pounds, beat Dan Aykroyd, a 200-pounder, to win the U.S. Amateur Golf Championship. Paton, 22, said he was "in a long time."

"I've played as good this week as I've played in a long time," said Paton, 22, who won a 2-over-par through his final 10 holes over the difficult Merion Golf Club course.

Johnson takes decathlon

DUISBURG, West Germany (AP) — Dave Johnson of the United States clinched the gold medal in a thrilling decathlon finish at the World University Games Sunday in Duisburg. Johnson trailed Mikhail Medved of the Soviet Union by 11 points before the 1,500-meter race, but he won the final event, the 200-meter sprint.

"It's the hardest I've ever worked in my life. I was scared to death. I knew I had to run at my best or even better to win," said the 26-year-old from Montclair, Calif.

Johnson posted a time of 4 minutes, 32.72 seconds in the 1,500. That gave him 727 points for a winning total of 8,216, 154 more than Medved.

The Soviet could only manage a 4:56 in the race, won 562 points, and ended up second with a total of 8,062.

Lendl wins final warmup

JERICHO, N.Y. (AP) — Ivan Lendl rallied to fight off Michael Panatta of Sweden Sunday and win the Hamlet Challenge cup tennis tournament, his final warmup before the U.S. Open, which begins Monday.

Lendl, the top seed at both the Hamlet and the U.S. Open, defeated Panatta 4-6, 6-2, 6-4 on the hard courts at Hamlet East.

"I'd have preferred an easier match, but Michael played very well and I had no choice," said Lendl, who has been in the last seven U.S. Open finals, winning in 1985-86-87.

Lendl, who won this tournament in 1984-85-86, earned $40,000. Panatta received $20,000.

Rappoport wants Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — Boxing manager Dennis Rappoport says he has held telephone conversations with some New York Yankees stockholders about purchasing the team but added that principal owner George Steinbrenner has refused to meet with him.

"I'm prepared to make a deal, to close a deal," Rappoport told the Associated Press on Sunday. "All I need is to have the door open. I would like to present him an offer he could not refuse."

Rappoport, manager of former heavyweight contender Gerry Cooney and former WBA and WBC heavyweight champion Tim Witherspoon, said Steinbrenner must buy completely out of the picture if he sells.

Barrett wins first tourney

CRANSTON, R.I. (AP) — LPGA rookie Tina Barrett put together a medical history-free victory over Nancy Brown in the $100,000 Mitsubishi Motors Ocean State Open. The 23-year-old Barrett finished with a 6.219-par 210 after three trips around the 6,219-par Alpine Country Club course.

Brown trailed Barrett for a 71 and 212 net total. Maggie Will, Jill Bries and Missie Bertoni tied for third another shot back. Will had a final-round 68. Bertoni 70 and Bries 72.

Chicago wins decathlon

CHICAGO (AP) — Dave Johnson of the United States clinched the gold medal in a thrilling decathlon finish at the World University Games Sunday in Duisburg. Johnson trailed Mikhail Medved of the Soviet Union by 11 points before the 1,500-meter race, but he won the final event, the 200-meter sprint.

"It's the hardest I've ever worked in my life. I was scared to death. I knew I had to run at my best or even better to win," said the 26-year-old from Montclair, Calif.

Johnson posted a time of 4 minutes, 32.72 seconds in the 1,500. That gave him 727 points for a winning total of 8,216, 154 more than Medved.

The Soviet could only manage a 4:56 in the race, won 562 points, and ended up second with a total of 8,062.

Lendl wins final warmup

JERICHO, N.Y. (AP) — Ivan Lendl rallied to fight off Michael Panatta of Sweden Sunday and win the Hamlet Challenge cup tennis tournament, his final warmup before the U.S. Open, which begins Monday.

Lendl, the top seed at both the Hamlet and the U.S. Open, defeated Panatta 4-6, 6-2, 6-4 on the hard courts at Hamlet East.

"I'd have preferred an easier match, but Michael played very well and I had no choice," said Lendl, who has been in the last seven U.S. Open finals, winning in 1985-86-87.

Lendl, who won this tournament in 1984-85-86, earned $40,000. Panatta received $20,000.

Rappoport wants Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — Boxing manager Dennis Rappoport says he has held telephone conversations with some New York Yankees stockholders about purchasing the team but added that principal owner George Steinbrenner has refused to meet with him.

"I'm prepared to make a deal, to close a deal," Rappoport told the Associated Press on Sunday. "All I need is to have the door open. I would like to present him an offer he could not refuse."

Rappoport, manager of former heavyweight contender Gerry Cooney and former WBA and WBC heavyweight champion Tim Witherspoon, said Steinbrenner must buy completely out of the picture if he sells.

Barrett wins first tourney

CRANSTON, R.I. (AP) — LPGA rookie Tina Barrett put together a medical history-free victory over Nancy Brown in the $100,000 Mitsubishi Motors Ocean State Open. The 23-year-old Barrett finished with a 6.219-par 210 after three trips around the 6,219-par Alpine Country Club course.

Brown trailed Barrett for a 71 and 212 net total. Maggie Will, Jill Bries and Missie Bertoni tied for third another shot back. Will had a final-round 68. Bertoni 70 and Bries 72.
