MARINERS SINK BOSOX

AL Roundup

BOSTON (AP) — Jeffrey Leonard broke a tie with his career-high 22nd homer as the Seattle Mariners played long ball to beat Boston 7-2 Friday night, dropping the Red Sox four games out in the American League East.

Leonard broke a 2-2 tie against Mike Smithson in the sixth and Dave Valle hit his seventh homer in the seventh. Alvin Davis hit a two-run homer in the first as the Mariners won for the third time in four games since ending a 12-game losing streak.

Smithson, 7-13, was reached for seven hits in 6-2-3 innings, including the 17th, 18th homers and 19th homers he has allowed this season as the Red Sox lost for only the second time in 12 games.

Scott Bankhead, 12-6, allowed eight hits in 6-2-3 innings before Mike Jackson came on for his seventh save.

Harold Reynolds began the game with the first of his four singles, and one out later Davis hit a towering drive through a stiff cross-wind into the Seattle bullpen in right for his 16th homer.

The Red Sox capitalized on a break for a run in the first. Left fielder Greg Briley slipped coming in for Jody Reed's line drive and the ball sailed past him for a triple. Reed scored on a single by Ellis Burks. Boston tied the score in the fifth on a walk and two-out singles by Danny Heep and Dwight Evans. Leonard put the Mariners in front to stay by hitting an 8-1 pitch off the light tower in left. Valle hit Smithson's first pitch to him into the screen in left for his homer.

Jay Buhner had a two-run double and Valle added a sacrifice fly in the eighth.

Yankees 11, Angels 5. At New York, Mel Hall hit a two-run homer in a seven-run second inning — New York's biggest this season — and Randy Velarde drove in three runs Friday night as the Yankees beat the California Angels 11-5.

Velarde doubled in the first two runs of the inning and scored the third on Steve Sax's single off Terry Clark, 6-2, as the Yankees won two games in a row for the first time since July 29-30 and the first time ever under new manager Bucky Dent. The loss was California's fourth in its last five games.

Rich Monteleone relieved Clark after Sax's single but gave up an RBI double to Alvaro Espinoza, an RBI single to Don Mattingly, Hall's 11th homer and an infield single to Jesse Barfield. Mike Fetters made his major-league debut by getting the final two outs of the inning.

Velarde hit his first homer in the third and the Yankees scored three times in the fourth on Barfield's RBI single, a throwing error by center fielder Devon White and two wild pitches by Fetters.

Wall Terrell, 3-4, allowed five runs and nine hits in six innings. Lee Guetterman provided three innings of one-hit relief for his 11th save.

California took a 1-0 lead on Johnny Ray's RBI single in the first and Ray hit his fifth homer, a two-run shot in the third, to make it 7-3. The Angels added two runs in the sixth when Wally Joyner led off with his 15th homer and Jack Howell had an RBI single.

Bush maps drug war tonight at 9

WASHINGTON — President Bush, jussing an anti-drug battle cry, tonight will urge a crackdown on drug users and ask Americans to join a $7.8 billion war on narcotics whose funding source he has yet to reveal.

For his first nationally televised address to the nation, scheduled for 9 p.m. EDT, Bush will talk about drugs in what White House Press Secretary Martin Fitzwater called "a personal message from himself to the American people that talks about the collective need of society to pull together to solve this problem."

Bush will "talk considerably about users and the need to crack down on them and who they are and why this is such a pervasive problem in our society," Fitzwater said Monday.

Bush today planned to discuss his drug plan with Cabinet members and members of Congress.

Just back from a three-week vacation in Kennebunkport, Maine, Bush rehearsed his speech Monday afternoon and went over last-minute refinements of the text. He got tips on delivery and style from his campaign media adviser, Roger Ailes.

All four major television networks — ABC, CBS, NBC and CNN — plan to broadcast the speech, which will be carried from the Oval Office.

The speech will outline the national drug strategy put together over several months by his drug policy coordinator, William Bennett, with assistance from advisers across the government. The strategy has been billed as a coordinated effort to link the drug-fighting programs by various government agencies in a more cohesive way than has been seen in the past.

Some details have been revealed, but officials have not disclosed where Bush will siphon off money from an already squeezed federal budget. Sources have said it will come from various categories in next year's budget rather than cutting back

More U.S. military aid arrives in Colombia, page 9

In one or two places, Bush's package for 1990 will be close to $2 billion above the current anti-drug spending levels.

In his televised address, the president will dwell more on a general outline of his strategy than on its cost specifics. The White House planned to release those figures to the media today. Bush will urge Americans "to think about what drugs are doing

Drug war fights tide of history

WASHINGTON — President Bush's war on illegal drugs, which he launches tonight with a speech to the nation, will pit him against the powerful forces of history and nature. Both have caused his predecessors' efforts to fizzle in failure.

But the president's aides say that, somehow, this time will be different.

Nevertheless, psychopharmacologist Ronald K. Siegel at the University of California at Los Angeles says wars against drugs

U.S. hunting liquor tax delinquents

WASHINGTON — The government is cracking down on fraternal groups, taverns, convenience store owners and other small businesses that are behind — one by 50 years — on paying a federal tax on liquor retailers.

The tax was increased by 463 percent last year, from $54 to $250 for each establishment. Accompanying the increase was a vigorous enforcement effort by the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

The Elks Lodge 109 in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., was stumped to get a bill 10 months ago for $9,776.98 from ATF representing unpaid taxes and penalties back to 1940, when the lodge got its liquor license.

The lodge, which is celebrating its 100th anniversary, said it had never heard of the tax.

"Our attitude, quite frankly, was that if you had notified us, we would have been more than happy to pay," said lodge attorney Peter Paul Olzewski. "How could you possibly have a tax that goes back ad infinitum without a statute of limitations?"

Olzewski said the Elks recently settled with ATF for less than one-tenth the amount of the original demand.

About 600,000 beer, wine and distilled spirits dealers that sell directly to the public must pay the "special occupational tax."

The tax has been around for 123 years, but the government admits that a lot of retailers have never heard of it. Responsibility for collections shifted to ATF in 1986 from the Internal Revenue Service.

"Sixty percent of the retailers have known about it and paid it," said ATF spokesman Jack Killorin.

Killorin said it was uncertain how many deadbeats there are. He said the government expects to collect between $25 million and $30 million from the program this year in current and back taxes and penalties.

"The difficulty arises in identifying and notifying those parties for whom retail liquor sales is an ancillary or secondary part of their operation — a lodge or country club, a bait or tackle shop operator," Killorin said.

Since the crackdown began, ATF has been exchanging taxpayer information with the states, with the idea of making retailers aware of their obligations before their liability mounts.

"We knew that (when) it went to $250, we had to pull out all the stops because the accumulation was going to be dramatic," Killorin said.

"We know by the calls we're getting that the tax is upsetting

Manchester Herald

HEBRON — You would never know he has cancer.

At 15, Mike Vigeant of Manchester is making plans to be an architect when he gets older and believes if he keeps up with his drawing, he's going to be a good one. He was one of 54 children who attended Camp Rising Sun last month.

Camp Rising Sun is a privately funded camp for children in Connecticut who have cancer. It provides a positive setting for children to have fun, learn new skills and develop self confidence through activities. The camp is a part of the American Cancer Society's Connecticut division.

"Our philosophy is to provide a positive upbeat approach through fun and interaction," said Jane Bemis, director of services and rehabilitation for the American Cancer Society's Connecticut division. "We leave the illness

Thoughts

It is not too common for us, any of us, to talk about our relationship with God to anyone. It might even be rare for us to talk to God himself about it. How often do we ask how we are "getting along" with Him? We pray, but how often is it a one-way relationship?

We are not comfortable talking about our relationships with others. We prefer to think of them as private, none else's business and most of all, we privately talk about God to others. What about our relationship with God? Do we work as hard at loving God and thanking Him for loving us as we do with our human relationships? How much time do we spend on our relationship with God? Would a human relationship survive given the same amount of time? As we go along life's highway do we try to discover God in people, places and events? Do we hear His voice and do we walk with Him? Let's think about it and maybe even talk to someone about Him.

Police Roundup

Drunken driving alleged

A Manchester man was arrested today on Center Street at 2:02 a.m. and charged with operating under the influence of alcohol, possession of less than 4 ounces of marijuana, and possession of drug paraphernalia.

James J. O'Neill, 27, of 18 Lincoln St., kept driving for one-half mile eastbound on Center Street after police signaled to him to stop on a charge of speeding, police said.

Police said the officer smelled alcohol on O'Neill and administered five sobriety tests, which O'Neill failed. The officer then searched O'Neill's car and found a metal clip used for marijuana and a small bag of marijuana, according to the police report.

O'Neill said the substance was not his, police said. O'Neill is being held on $250 cash bond and is scheduled for court on Sept. 5.

Beer fight prompts arrest

A Manchester woman was arrested on Sunday at 2:45 p.m. for breach of peace after she attacked her twin sister with a knife in the apartment they share on Adams Street, police said.

Gladys Smith, 60, of 382 Adams St., and her sister Elizabeth Andrews, 60, both intoxicated Sunday morning when they got into an argument over beer, police said.

Andrews told police that Smith began to throw butcher knives at her, but she ducked and was not injured. Smith denied the incident and called her niece to post bond.

OSHA to investigate accident

By Rick Santos
Manchester Herald

Federal officials will investigate an industrial accident on Bidwell Street Friday night that sent a Massachusetts man to the hospital with head injuries.

John Stanton Jr., Hartford area director of the U.S. Department of Labor's Division of Occupational Safety and Health Administration, said this morning that his office did not know about the accident but will look into the case. Companies do not have to report accidents to OSHA unless five or more people are injured or there is a fatality, he said.

The victim in Friday night's accident, Dale Hazard, was released from Hartford Hospital on Sunday, a spokeswoman here said today. He was transferred from Manchester Memorial Hospital to Hartford Hospital late Friday night to be examined for possible brain damage, according to a spokeswoman at Manchester Memorial. He had been rushed to Manchester Memorial Hospital, where he was treated for a concussion.

Hazard, who was working for the Worcester, Mass.-based Angelo Scola construction company, slipped and fell into its 12-foot ditch while he was climbing out of it Friday, said a Manchester Fire Department spokesman. The fire department was in charge of the rescue operation.

When he fell, he landed with his stomach against a piece of a cast iron pipe, which is 18 inches diameter, according to the department. He was straddling the pipe with his head and feet on opposite sides.

The victim had been drilling a hole in the foundation of a bridge so a new gasoline pipeline could be installed. The line is being extended for new customers of the Connecticut Natural Gas Co., said Ron Charier, a construction inspector for the town engineering department.

The increase came despite problems the owners had substantiating some construction expenses. The Bridgeport Post and the Telegram reported Monday.

The apartment project, known as Twin Towers, is not part of congressional investigations into influence-peddling at the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

But documents released in connection with the HUD scandal show that Cohn and his associate, Thomas Bolan, appealed to HUD Secretary Samuel Pierce Jr. in 1982 to increase the mortgage to finance additional renovation work at Twin Towers.

Investors in Twin Towers Associates included cosmetics executive Estee Lauder and her husband, Joseph H. Lauder, whose name had been on the Republican mayoral nomination campaign.

Investors in Twin Towers Associates included cosmetics executive Estee Lauder and her husband, Joseph H. Lauder, whose name had been on the Republican mayoral nomination campaign.

The second slot among the Democrats will be filled by Stephen T. Cassano, also an incumbent. The other positions will be filled in order by Josh Howroyd, incumbent Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr., Joyce Epstein, and Mary Ann Handley, an incumbent.

The second slot among the Republicans went to Ronald Oseila, an incumbent.

The other slots, in order, went to Ellen Burns Landers, Wallace J. Irish Jr., J. Russell Smyth, and Susan Buckno.

The lottery for determining ballot positions was first used in a Manchester election in 1987. Before that, candidates were on the ballot in alphabetical order.

Workers had the first position among Republicans in the 1987 election. Oseila was in the third position. Geoffrey Nash, a Republican director who is not seeking re-election, was in the sixth and last position.

Some political observers feel the position on the ballot affects the vote count. Others disagree. Voters can vote for all six director candidates, and the nine highest vote-getters are elected.

In the race for three positions on the Board of Education with terms that end in 1992, the first listed Democratic candidate will be Malcolm Barlow and the second will be Terry Bogli, an incumbent. The Republicans in order will be Eugene Sierakowski and Thomas Sheridan.

For the three positions with terms ending in 1993, the Democrats in order will be Susan Perkins, an incumbent, and Craig Lappen. The Republicans in order will be Jan Horn and John Tucci, an incumbent.

Help asked for mall work; stop sign is KO'd by police

By Rick Santos
Manchester Herald

The Department of Public Works is requesting that the Board of Directors authorize the hiring of a temporary clerk to assist the building department with the additional work created by the mall under construction in Buckland.

The directors, who are meeting at 7:30 tonight in the Lincoln Center hearing room, have also received notice from Police Chief Robert Laman that a proposed stop sign will not be installed at the intersection of Greenwood, Lynch and Cliffside drives. The sign was requested by Republican Director Theunis Werkhoven for the safety of children crossing Greenwood Drive and walking on Lynch Drive on their way to the Buckley School.

Concerning the clerical help for the building department, Public Works Director Peter Lezis is asking directors to approve a position that would initially pay $9 per hour for a 35-hour work week plus benefits. The person would help prepare building permits, correspondence, and certificates of occupancy for the tenants of the mall. This work Lezis said, "cannot be handled with existing clerical staff."

The department is also requesting an additional $1,200 for furnishings and equipment for the new clerk.

At 1 p.m. the department's Tae Kwondo instructor, Master Kwang Sung Hwang of Hwang's School of Tae Kwondo, will demonstrate the art and answer any questions about Tae Kwondo.

There will also be presentations by the instructors of the department's aerobics, theatre, and ferris wheel programs.

Information concerning upcoming trips and this winter's ski program will be available at the celebration.

The event, which will be held Sept. 17 if it rains, is the first in a series commemorating the department's new offices and the return to Center Springs Park. Other events scheduled include a seniors, children, and grandchild picnic on Saturday, Sept. 23; the Fair at the Park - Four Seasons Art Contest on Saturday, Sept. 30; and Skifest 1989 on Saturday, Oct. 7. For more information, call the department at 647-3084.

DeMatteo, a Twin Towers general partner and contractor in the renovation project, said the $1.7 million mortgage increase was justified because HUD provided inaccurate plans for the renovation work. He estimated that he lost nearly $3 million because of the dispute over the work.

DeMatteo, a New Canaan resident, said he had no choice but to hire lawyers to fight his case. He said he selected Cohn's firm "because they were good lawyers and they also had a Washington office."

The 10-year-old building was set up for sale in 1979 by HUD after the agency foreclosed on its owners. The federal agency said the two seven-story buildings required "a positive rehabilitation program," including major repairs on two elevators, the boiler system and renovation of the apartments.

The buildings were sold for $1.04 million to a limited partnership called Twin Tower Associates based in Connecticut.

Public welcome to park event

By Rick Santos
Manchester Herald

The Manchester Parks and Recreation Department is inviting all those interested to come Saturday, Sept. 16 and see the department's new offices in Center Springs Park.

After a ribbon cutting ceremony, conducted by local government officials at noon, the parks and recreation staff will lead a tour of the new facility.

For children there will be a mini-carnival with a special appearance by Jerko the Clown. There will also be face painting, balloon sculpturing, and other games and contests.

At 1 p.m. the department's Tae Kwondo instructor, Master Kwang Sung Hwang of Hwang's School of Tae Kwondo, will demonstrate the art and answer any questions about Tae Kwondo.

There will also be presentations by the instructors of the department's aerobics, theatre, and ferris wheel programs.

Information concerning upcoming trips and this winter's ski program will be available at the celebration.

The event, which will be held Sept. 17 if it rains, is the first in a series commemorating the department's new offices and the return to Center Springs Park. Other events scheduled include a seniors, children, and grandchild picnic on Saturday, Sept. 23; the Fair at the Park - Four Seasons Art Contest on Saturday, Sept. 30; and Skifest 1989 on Saturday, Oct. 7. For more information, call the department at 647-3084.

DeMatteo, a Twin Towers general partner and contractor in the renovation project, said the $1.7 million mortgage increase was justified because HUD provided inaccurate plans for the renovation work. He estimated that he lost nearly $3 million because of the dispute over the work.

The 10-year-old building was set up for sale in 1979 by HUD after the agency foreclosed on its owners. The federal agency said the two seven-story buildings required "a positive rehabilitation program," including major repairs on two elevators, the boiler system and renovation of the apartments.

The buildings were sold for $1.04 million to a limited partnership called Twin Tower Associates based in Connecticut.

Town munch-out to begin Friday

By Nancy Concelman
Manchester Herald

Forget the diet. It's Feast Fest time. The Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce and local restaurants are preparing a banquet of food, fun and more food to be laid out Friday through Sunday in the parking lot at Main and Forest streets.

Feast Fest hours are 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday. The annual Waiters' Race, sponsored by the Manchester Herald, will be held at 3:30 p.m. Thursday to kick off Feast Fest weekend. Runners will begin in the Herald parking lot off Bissell Street and head south on Main Street.

This year's fest will feature 17 booths and 52 different foods and beverages, including old favorites like pizza, clam chowder and baby back ribs and more unusual dishes like mussels, Bavarian Gypsy Loaf and Mississippi Mud Pie.

From noon to 1 p.m. Friday, fest goers will get a taste of Hawaii at WHCN radio's Live Lunch Luau, which will be hosted by the station's morning team, Picozzi and the Horn, and broadcast live on 106 FM.

During the luau, fest goers may dine on lunch specials for $1.06. Some booths will feature Hawaiian specialties, including the Network Tavern's Polynesian meatballs with spicy mustard and Royal Ice Cream's Hawaiian sundae, scoops of pineapple-orange ice cream and coconut ice cream in a waffle cone.

"If you're there between 12 and 1 on Friday you're going to eat well," chamber President Anne Flint said.

There will be places and faces visitors will recognize from feasts past and newcomers to the annual munch-out, like Manchester Memorial Hospital, which will serve Heaven Sent Chicken Salad and Grand Marnier Mousse in a Chocolate Cup. Prices range from 60 cents to $3.60. Tickets are 60 cents apiece.

Waiters set to juggle tasks during annual Herald race

Waiters and waitresses from Manchester and Coventry are sharpening their skills this week to prepare for the annual Manchester Herald Waiters' Race on Thursday.

The race will begin at the Herald at 16 Brainard Place at 3:30 p.m. and end at the Feast Fest site on Main Street. The entrants must carry a glass of wine as they run for prizes. During their route, they must scramble an egg, don a chef's hat, put on a Feast Fest Apron, catch a helium-filled balloon, pick up a place setting, and add a necktie and boutonniere to their outfit. The first runner to have all the collected items, set a place at a Feast Fest table, and still have wine in his or her glass, wins.

First and second-prize winners will receive $100 and $50 gift certificates, respectively and will be guests on the radio station 106 WHCN's Morning Drive Show with Picozzi and the Horn on Friday. They will also be official WHCN waiters on Friday, from noon to 1 p.m. during the WHCN Live Lunch Luau, sponsored by Cox Cable Greater Hartford, Inc.

"If you're there between 12 and 1 on Friday you're going to eat well," chamber President Anne Flint said. Entertainment for the fest is sponsored by Cox Cable of Greater Hartford and will include performances by The Cartells, country singer Teresa, folk guitarist Gary Gidman, rock and roll band Tangent and Johnny Prytko's Good Time Band.

Food, friends and entertainment. What more could Manchester ask for? "We're looking for three beautiful days," Flint said.

The legacy of Rep. McKinney's secret life takes its toll

By Dean Golembeski
The Associated Press

WESTPORT — When U.S. Rep. Stewart B. McKinney died two years ago of AIDS, he left behind a legacy of a secret life and a legacy of unanswered questions about the origin of his disease.

It was said that McKinney was gay, and newspapers reported he had many homosexual lovers, although his family denied the stories. But earlier this month, a Georgia man who had maintained his silence since the Connecticut congressman's death, finally stepped forward to confirm the rumors and confess that he had been McKinney's live-in lover for five years.

With McKinney's secret at last made public, those who knew the nine-term Republican congressman discussed the impact his tragic death in May 1987 had on their lives and the evolution of gay-lesbian politics since that time.

"Stewart's death had more to do with my coming out than anything else," said U.S. Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., who disclosed in May 1987 that he is a homosexual.

"When the controversy broke after his death, that determined I had to come out," said Frank, explaining he didn't want his death overshadowed with questions of "Was he or wasn't he?" and "Die he or didn't he?"

"Coming out is the smartest thing I ever did," Frank said. "I'm a U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds, D-Mass., and I'm the only member of Congress who've publicly admitted being homosexual, although insiders say there are dozens more who are gay or lesbian."

Arnold Denson, McKinney's lover, said he knows of at least 20 other members of Congress who are members of what he called "the club." Like most

Arnold Denson, McKinney's lover, said he knows of at least 20 other members of Congress who are members of what he called "the club." Like most others, McKinney kept his homosexuality secret from the public and his family, Denson said.

Denson abided by McKinney's desire to keep the secret until becoming involved in a dispute over McKinney's will. Denson believes McKinney's widow, Lucie, is trying to deny him an inheritance of about $500,000 willed to him by the late congressman. Denson and the McKinney family are currently battling over the late congressman's will in Westport Probate Court.

Mrs. McKinney and her family have vigorously denied that the late congressman was gay. Mrs. McKinney has submitted bills totaling more than $400,000 against her husband's estate, which if he or she dies.

Since admitting to being McKinney's lover about two weeks ago, Denson has left his job as a real estate salesman and is keeping a low profile. He declined to answer questions about why the late congressman kept his sexuality secret, other than to say McKinney was protecting his family.

"Coming out didn't hurt my career," Frank said. "It put some limits on it. I will never be in the leadership. But many other say that Frank and Studds are the exceptions. They say gay and lesbian politicians seeking or holding public office are primarily out of fear of having their careers ended. "They live a life of secrecy and downright lies," said Robert Bray, communications director for the Human Rights Campaign Fund. The Washington-based group is the nation's largest gay-lesbian political action committee and lobbying organization.

There's no evidence that we've seen that endorsing gays and lesbians, or being gay or lesbian is a political liability," Bray said. "In McKinney's case, Bray said the congressman was living an 'open secret.' He said many within the gay and lesbian community know which members of Congress are homosexual, "but none talk about it."

Frank said he knew McKinney was gay, and he said McKinney knew he knew it. But Frank said, "The two never talked to each other about their homosexuality."

"Stewart McKinney was an exceptional politician. A politician's politician," Bray said. "But he had one big, huge secret. The irony was it really wasn't secret in Washington. We were saddened and angry that the congressman wouldn't live up to his potential as a gay man and human being because he kept clandestine a very important part of his life."

William Ratchford, a close political friend of McKinney who served in Congress and the Connecticut General Assembly with McKinney, said he never suspected McKinney was gay. Ratchford speculated that McKinney kept his homosexuality secret in order to hold onto his 4th Congressional District seat.

"I really believe that there are not many districts like Studds' and Frank's that would result in convicting Crafts. The juror, Warren Maskel, walked out after 17 days of deliberations, forcing a mistrial. The first trial began in mid-March 1988 and ended with some of Mrs. Maskel's body parts using a commercial wood chipper he had rented for $15,000.

Maskel has since filed a lawsuit against Flanagan seeking $15,000 in damages. Flanagan accused Maskel of violating his oath and lacking courage to make a decision. In the first trial, Flanagan used pieces of flesh and fingers he used to be that of the victim to support the state's case. The state also presented witnesses who identified to see Crafts using a wood chipper at the location in Southbury, where the pieces of shredded body were found.

Crafts has been held on $750,000 bond since his arrest in January 1987.

Second 'wood chipper' trial to start

NORWALK (AP) — A New-Jersey airline pilot who narrowly avoided a conviction on a charge of killing his wife and disposing of her body using a wood chipper will be back in court this week to defend his innocence in his second murder trial.

State Attorney Walter Flanagan said he doesn't expect to offer any new evidence or present any new witnesses in the murder trial of 51-year-old Richard Crafts.

In fact, Flanagan said he expects the second trial, which will begin in an Norwalk Superior Court Wednesday, to be identical to the first trial, at least as far as the points he will make.

But while the prosecution will present similar arguments, there will be some changes in the case. For one thing, the trial will be held in Norwalk instead of New London or Danbury because court officials believed publicity surrounding the case would make it impossible to select a fair jury in those areas.

Crafts also will have a different attorney in public defender Gerard Smith, who has used the services of a consultant to pick the jury for the second trial. Smith said the consultant assisted in picking jurors that the defense thought would be impartial in hearing the evidence.

The first trial was held in New London Superior Court and ended in a mistrial when one juror refused to vote with 11 others in convicting Crafts. The juror, Warren Maskel, walked out after 17 days of deliberations, forcing a mistrial. The first trial began in mid-March 1988 and ended with some of Mrs. Maskel's body parts using a commercial wood chipper he had rented for $15,000.

Crafts killed his 39-year-old wife, Hella, a flight attendant, at their Newtown home on or about Nov. 18, 1986. Prosecutors say Crafts then disposed of some of Mrs. Crafts' body parts using a commercial wood chipper he had rented for $15,000.

The prosecution said a possible motive was that the couple were having marital problems. A New Milford detective testified that he had been hired by Mrs. Crafts to tail her husband, and the detective learned Crafts was having an affair with a New Jersey woman. Mrs. Crafts allegedly confronted her husband with the evidence.

Crafts has been held on $750,000 bond since his arrest in January 1987.

Seven held for protest, hammering sub

HARTFORD (AP) — Seven disarmament activists accused of trespassing on Navy property in New London, where some of them beat on a nuclear submarine with hammers are scheduled to appear today in Hartford federal court, an FBI spokesman said.

Terry Shumard, speaking for FBI Special Agent Stan Klein, said at about 4 a.m. Monday, three women and four men near the USS Pennsylvania, a nuclear submarine moored at the Naval Underwater Systems Center and awaiting commissioning Saturday.

Some of the people were in a canoe, some were in the water and some on the USS Pennsylvania, Shumard said. He said the group was beating on the submarine with hammers.

All seven were detained by naval security and at 9:30 a.m. were charged with trespassing on government property and trespassing on a government reservation, Shumard said.

Shumard identified those arrested as: Jacqueline Allen, 24, of Voluntown; Kathleen Boylan, 46, of Northport, N.Y.; Arthur Laslin, 35, of New Haven; Elmer Maas, 54, of New York; and New Haven; Sister Anne Montgomery, 62, of New York; James Reale, 28, of New Haven; and Baltimore; and Homer White, 26, of New Haven and Chapel Hill, N.C.

CROWD CONTROL — A line of Virginia state troopers watch students pass by as police began to enforce a curfew on the resort strip Sunday after two days of rioting that caused property damage in the millions of dollars.

Quiet follows 2 days of riots

By D.W. Pogue
The Associated Press

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. — Labor Day weekend ended quietly after two nights of clashes between police and black youths along the oceanfront strip.

Atlantic Avenue, jammed by an estimated 100,000 young people 48 hours earlier, was nearly deserted early today with many shops boarded up.

Students from predominantly black East Coast colleges made up much of the weekend crowd in town for the annual Greekfest that marks the end of summer.

By Monday afternoon most of the students had left. Police in riot gear remained on every corner, however, and arrested several people Monday night for minor offenses.

During the weekend, at least 269 people were arrested, half area residents, and hundreds of summonses issued, authorities said. At least 43 people were injured, including 30 police officers and 13 youths. Property damage was in the millions of dollars, said Mayor Meyera E. Oberdorfer.

At the start of the weekend, businessmen in the town of 250,000 year-round residents had hoped for a large turnout to offset a slow summer. The turnout was greater than expected, but early Sunday dreams of a prosperous weekend evaporated.

City officials ordered police to clear Atlantic Avenue, the major thoroughfare that was packed from sidewalk to sidewalk for about 30 blocks.

As a wedge of officers moved down the street, they were pelted with bottles. Ahead of police groups of youths began breaking into storefront windows and looting shops.

At least 100 businesses were looted before order was restored shortly before dawn Sunday. At the request of city leaders, a military police unit of the Virginia National Guard was called out by Gov. Gerald L. Baliles.

On Sunday night, city police officers from neighboring localities, at least 200 state troopers and about 150 Guardsmen cleared an estimated 45,000 people from Atlantic Avenue. The beach section was closed and those on the beachfront were told to return to their rooms or face arrest.

"It appears to be a case of too many people in a confined space," Oberdorfer said. "It appears to be a case of critical mass of people building up an rapid mood changes in a huge crowd."

The theme of this year's pageant, televised by NBC-TV, is "A Moment in Time."

The new Miss America will succeed Gretchen Elizabeth Carlson of Minnesota. The winner receives a $35,000 scholarship and fees from personal appearances during her reign.

After they check into hotels, they will begin hours of rehearsals, interviews, photograph sessions and cocktail parties.

Although preliminary competitions for the 69-year-old Miss America Pageant do not begin until Sept. 12, the contestants will spend the week rehearsing an elaborate television production, said pageant director Leonard Horn.

This year, each contestant was required to submit an essay on an issue of her choice. The winner will be able to promote her issue during her yearlong reign.

Traditionally, Miss America travels the country on behalf of pageant sponsors. But giving Miss America a voice on her own issue will only enhance her status, Horn said.

"It is not just a scholarship pageant," he said. "This program fosters personal growth and achievement, and scholarship is not an end in itself, it's a means to an end."

A panel of representatives will choose the top 10 finalists. A celebrity panel of judges will choose the new Miss America on the final night — Sept. 16. This year's celebrity judges are developer Donald Trump, actor

Powerful storm heading north

Forecasters keep watch on Hurricane Gabrielle

By Michael Warron
The Associated Press

MIAMI — The Caribbean's easternmost islands reported large swells and heavy rains as Gabrielle, the most powerful hurricane in the Atlantic this year, tossed gale-force winds in a 400-mile-wide spiral, forecasters said.

Meanwhile, Tropical Storm Felix was upgraded to a hurricane when its maximum sustained winds reached 75 mph, but it stalled in the middle of the Atlantic and posed no threat to land, the National Hurricane Center reported.

With top winds of 130 mph, Gabrielle's center was expected to pass north of Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands today, thrusting hurricane-force winds of at least 74 mph as far as 100 miles northward.

"It's a very large storm," hurricane specialist Jim Gross said today. "We don't have anything that looks like it would deflect it right now."

As of 6 a.m. EDT, Gabrielle was centered near 20.5 north latitude and 97 west longitude, about 360 miles east of the northeastern Leeward Islands, and was moving northwest at 13 mph.

Forecasters expected the Atlantic season's fourth hurricane to strengthen still further and continue that course through Wednesday morning, but said preparations for the visitors should be made Saturday and by Sunday, "his blood pressure was down to an alarmingly low level," said Roger Poyson, a family spokesman.

Druger said the pressure was stabilized with medications by early Monday.

Marcos, who has been in critical condition since late May, suffers from heart failure, kidney failure and respiratory failure. He remains on a respirator and has daily kidney dialysis, according to other relatives and friends gathered at the hospital Monday night as Marcos underwent dialysis that had been postponed Sunday while doctors battled to restore his blood pressure, Poyson said.

Marcos and his family have lived in Hawaii since they fled the Philippines during a popular growth in February 1986 that of the most destructive hurricanes, forecasters said.

Gabrielle formed Thursday near the Cape Verde Islands, its growth has been typical of some of the most destructive hurricanes, forecasters said.

The storm is actually a long way away from any potential impact," said Bob Sheets, director of the National Hurricane Center, who nevertheless warned people in U.S. coastal areas to be on alert for the storm.

Tropical storm force winds of at least 39 mph were spotted 250 miles northeast of Gabrielle's center on Monday and 150 miles in the opposite direction.

EPA veto saves Colorado community

DECKERS, Colo. — A riverside community that would be flooded for a Denver reservoir if plans go ahead for a 615-foot-high dam retracted with disbelief when an Environmental Protection Agency review blasted the project.

"I kind of halfway sat there stunned," said Fannie Roth, 79, who has been battling the Two Forks project for 17 years.

"It was hoping it was true — it numbed me that it really, really was not going to be built," Roth said in an interview in the home she built among the pines above the South Fork of the South Platte River.

If Two Forks were built, her home "would be under approximately 300 feet of water — if they ever had the water to fill it," Roth said.

Lee DeHlans, an EPA deputy regional administrator from Atlanta who was assigned to review the project, announced Aug. 29 that the agency would press on with a veto process begun last March by EPA administrator William Reilly. A two-month public hearing period is the next step, followed by a final decision by EPA administrators in Washington, D.C.

DeHlans said his five-month review concluded that the Denver metropolitan area's future water needs did not warrant the environmental toll of the proposed $400 million to $1 billion project.

The dam would be located 25 miles southwest of Denver near the confluence of the South Platte River and its North Fork. Besides flooding Deckers, the project would inundate scenic Fitzwater said the speech would be "an expression of the magnitude of the problem, what it takes to deal with it, what can we expect, how long it will take."

Among the details that have emerged is that Bush will earmark some $250 million in economic and military aid to the three main cocaine producers, Colombia, Bolivia and Peru. The final figure could go higher, administration sources have said.

Bush already is sending $65 million worth of helicopters and military aid to Colombia to help President Virgilio Barco wage his war against the powerful drug lords.

are hopeless and misguided because the desire for mind-altering substances is healthy and natural, and animals do so as well as people.

While animals in the wild seek out plants containing psychoactive chemicals and go to great lengths to continue getting them, some animals in his laboratory studies, including rats and the morphine, Siegel writes in a new book, "Intoxication."

"When cats were used as subjects it was often necessary for the handlers to use tricky and forceful techniques to get the cats to eat the plants," Siegel writes. "Resistant cats would scratch their claws on the experimenter, jump on his lap, and even lick his hand while waiting for the morphine."

However, William J. Bennett, the director of national drug control policy, says "real progress" is already being made in the battle to get casual users of drugs to stop doing so, as reflected by the 1988 National Household Survey on Drug Abuse.

The survey found a 37 percent decrease from a 1985 survey in the number of people who said they had used marijuana, cocaine or other illicit drugs in the previous month. The survey also indicated that the number of people who said they had used an illegal drug in the previous year fell by 25 percent over the three years.

"People who have been saying, 'All is lost, we can't win, let's legalize,' have never been more wrong," said Bennett, who developed the national drug strategy for Bush.

Since the early years of this century, the United States has struggled to control the distribution and use of mind-altering

Joey Barile, 18, of Coventry, said he loves being a counselor in training because it gives him the opportunity to work with the younger campers.

"Helping with arts and crafts is my favorite, but I also like to show kids how to swim and boat."

"You can't do what you tell yourself you can do," he said. "If you say you can't do something, then it already won't happen."

Johnson said the campers are on a rotating schedule of activities which includes fishing, computer programming, track and field, boating, arts and crafts, and swimming. The camp also has a magic show, a talent night and a casino night.

Vigant said he is really excited about talent night. He said he and two buddies are going to sing "Goodnight Sweetheart."

"You know the song from the movie 'Three Men and a Cradle'?" he said.

Johnson said the kids may be different because they're just an eye or an arm, but he said for that one week in August at least, "We're all the same."

people. It is not our desire to move in and foreclose and put someone out of business. But it's very important that people get in touch with ATF so they can work something out — maybe a payment plan — and get them up to speed," he said.

Rep. Paul Kanjorski, D-Pa., said the crackdown was having a dramatic unfair impact.

"Across Pennsylvania, and indeed the nation, fraternal lodges, non-profit organizations and small businesses are being blindsided with fines and bills for a tax they never knew existed," Kanjorski said.

He has been seeking coal-leagues support for a bill permitting ATF to go only as far back as 1985 to collect the tax.

Kanjorski's bill is the National Licensed Beverage Association, which represents up to 300,000 bars and taverns and is focusing its lobbying efforts more on last year's tax increase than on the enforcement crackdown.

Stratton joins hall of fame

By Earl Yost
Special to the Herald

Long before the "Irish Connection" was established when Ireland-born runners were dominating the Thanksgiving Road Race in Manchester, a young man reared in Milltown, Ireland was making a name for himself on the local sports scene. Jack Stratton.

Stratton, who excelled in baseball and football, and was also outstanding in six other sports, will join the late Mickey Kakavack, Al Obuchowski and Bill Masse as 1989 inductees in the Manchester Sports Hall of Fame.

The induction dinner will be September 22 at the Army and Navy Club.

The 80-year-old Stratton, with the late Tom Kelley were the "brains" behind the success of the Manchester Cubs when semi-pro football was at a fever pitch in the state in the 1930s. Kelley, coaching the team and Stratton was the quarterback who also handled the punting duties. The 1936 team captured the Connecticut championship.

Born in County Armagh on Nov. 6, 1902, Stratton came to the United States and Manchester in 1913. "I remember the year well," Stratton said, "because we were here when the high school burned down."

The Stratton family included five boys and two girls.

Except for the late Bill Madden, there have been fewer more versatile athletes in the history of Manchester. For Stratton could be found the year around playing besides baseball or football, basketball, soccer, ice hockey, roller polo, track or boxing.

Stratton, a solid six-footer who weighed 180 pounds, was much in demand on the baseball field. He started out as a catcher in the West Side League at the West Side Oval and also performed with the Herald Sons of Italy and House's former local clubs as well as the Savitt Gems in Hartford, the state's best.

"We made money with Savitt's playing at Bulkeley Stadium when the tickets cost a quarter but after the price was upped to 35 cents the crowds fell off, we lost money and the team folded in 1935," he recalled.

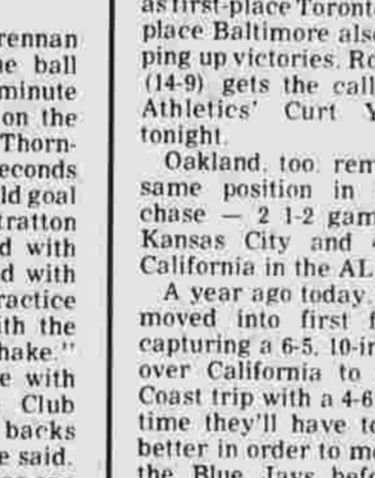

"Teams were always looking for a good catcher and as a result I played all over the state. And," he added, "we had a number of good catches around like Woody Walleit and Punk Lamprecht."

Stratton quarterbacked the Charter Oaks Pirates and umpired baseball games before joining the Cubs with thousands of residents flocking to Mount Nebo each Sunday to watch the games. The annual town series against the North End Cloverleafs or Majoros attracting an average of 5,000 fans.

As could be expected, a man so versatile as Stratton and involved in so many sports, he encountered hundreds of big moments but the thrill that stands out happened in football.

"We were playing at the Charter Oak Lots against the North Ends. The score was tied when I kicked a field goal that referee Bill Brennan disallowed. We got the ball back with less than one minute to play with the ball on the 50-yard line with Red Thornton holding, and 26 seconds left. I place-kicked the field goal to win the game," Stratton recalled. "I drooped with my left foot and punted with my right. I'd often practiced against Tom Stone with the soccer team."

Stratton was a goalie with the British American Club soccer team. "The barke made me look good," he said.

In hockey, Stratton was a defenseman. He recalled the team's success in the local leagues that played weekends at Center Springs Pond A. defenseman, he recalled the team's success in the local leagues that played weekends at Center Springs Pond A.

Bsox 'hanging in there'

By Dave Carpenter
The Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — They claim they're not caught up in scoreboard watching, but the Boston Red Sox couldn't help taking a few peeks on Labor Day. Baseball wisdom holds that a team needs to mark the holiday within five games of first place to have a chance at a pennant. Boston remains precisely that, thanks to a strong performance by John Dussan and an infrequent hitting outburst at the Oakland Coliseum Monday night in an 8-5 win over Oakland.

"It's good to win that first game (of a nine-game West Coast trip) and take a little pressure off," said Dossan, 19, after reaching his precision goal of double-figure victories. "We're hanging in there, still within striking distance."

Oakland took an early 3-0 lead on Monday and then snaked a few glances at the out-of-town scores as first place Toronto and second place Baltimore also were wrapping up victories. Roger Clemens (14-9) gets the cog against the Athletics' Curt Young (4-0) tonight.

Oakland, too, remained in the same position in the pennant chase — 2 1/2 games ahead of Kansas City and 4 1/2 up over California in the AL West.

A year ago today, the Red Sox moved into first for good by capturing a 6-5, 10-inning victory over California to end a West Coast trip with a 4-6 record. This time they'll have to fare much better in order to move closer to the Blue Jays before a three-game series in Toronto Sept. 18-20.

"We've got to play really well on one of the next few days," said Lee Smith, who put down Oakland's three-run uprising in the ninth.

They'll apparently have to do it without designated hitter Jim Rice, who was examined Monday by Dr. Rick Bost, the orthopedic surgeon. There was no word on whether Rice's swollen, long-suffering elbow, Manager Joe Morgan was pessimistic.

"It doesn't look too good," Rice returned to the season. Morgan said the team's best bet was to get it out of Boston.

Yankees show they still have life

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Mattingly is happy that the New York Yankees haven't given up, but he's not sure they'll win the season.

Mattingly said Monday after his sixth inning home run carried the Yankees to a 2-1 victory over California, New York's season-high fifth straight win and the Angels' fifth straight setback.

Mattingly's homer, his 18th, broke a 1-1 tie and made a winner of Clay Parker, 44, who didn't even know he was starting until shortly before the game.

"Bucky (Dent) told me about an hour and 15 minutes before game time," said Parker, pressed into service when scheduled starter Chuck Cary tore a finger on his left hand.

"I doesn't matter much whether I start, go long relief or matching 17th victory. "I anticipate he'll be ready for the Yankees" at home this weekend. Moore admitted feeling sluggish but said he didn't think he was that far off.

"I made good pitches early and didn't get anybody out, and later on I got behind in the count," he said. "I still got into the seventh and kept us in the game, even though it was pretty ugly."

DePon was nearly sharp enough to get his second career complete game before his legs tired in the ninth.

"That's exactly what he prevented the Red Sox from doing.

Dream match boosts Connors into quarterfinals at the Open

By Hal Bock
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Back in his favorite tennis setting, Jimmy Connors put aside the issues of age and stamina, replacing them with some old-time verve and nerve to advance to the quarterfinals of the U.S. Open.

He did it with a 6-2, 6-3, 6-1 romp over Stefan Edberg Monday night, a victory so thorough that one of the games Edberg won was on a default when Connors got into one of his old-fashioned debates with the chairreferee. He was fined $2,250 for his rudeness, but it was probably worth every penny to produce this unlikely triumph.

"I went out and played the kind of match everybody dreams of playing, hitting the ball that way and just making things happen."

It was the kind of match he isn't supposed to be capable of playing anymore, not at age 37, not two days after he was so severely crippled by cramps that he needed intravenous fluids.

But this is the Open, his favorite tennis playground, a tournament he has won five times on three different surfaces.

"I love this place," Connors said. "The atmosphere, the people. You open the gates and they come in, everybody's pushing and shoving. They're animals."

"But I put myself in that group. That's the way I've always played, like an animal my whole life. To be put in a cage with these people is a lot of fun."

Against Edberg, a finalist in the French and Wimbledon tournaments and seeded No. 3 in the Open, Connors played brilliant short relief. I know it sounds corny, but so long as I can help the team, it's all right," said Parker, who allowed only six hits before getting eighth-inning relief from Lee Gueterman.

Dave Righetti pitched a one-hit ninth for his 21st save as the Yankees completed a four-game sweep of the Angels.

California got half of its six hits and scored its lone run off Parker in the sixth inning when Chili Davis' single scored Max Venable.

"We're just not swinging the bats well. If you don't, you don't deserve to win these kinds of ball games," Angels manager Doug Rader said.

California shortstop Kent Anderson helped the Yankees tie the score when he committed two fielding errors in the third inning. Bob Geren reached on the first out and scored on the second, which came when Steve Sax hit what appeared to be an inning-ending double play ball.

"You can't blame Andy. The case is that we're not scoring enough runs, not with any degree of consistency," Rader said.

In the last three games of the Yankee series, the Angels scored only four runs, losing 2-1 twice and 5-2.

Jim Abbott, 11-10, allowed only four hits, but one of them was Mattingly's straight set.

"He got behind in the count and I thought he might come in with a fastball. I set up just to hit a cutter or a fastball and it was a fastball," Mattingly said.

New York threatened in the eighth when Sax singled, was sacrificed to second and then worked a double steal with Mattingly after the first baseman had been walked intentionally.

"To still be able to play that kind of tennis in the Open and reach the quarter, to play like that and beat him, it was an excellent feeling," Connors said.

Parker left the game in the eighth when Devon White's hard

Present takes priority as Cubs best the Mets

By Ben Wolker
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — In a pennant race it pays to play for the present. The Chicago Cubs did that in their 11th game Monday night. He picked Les Lancaster, even though the righthander was scheduled to start Tuesday night. Lancaster finished by giving up only one hit in four scoreless innings and the Cubs beat the New York Mets 7-2.

"I wasn't going to worry about tomorrow," Zim said. "It was a situation where we had a chance to win today and I wanted him in there. I have no idea who's going to pitch tomorrow and I really don't care right now."

The Cubs stayed 1 1/2 games ahead of St. Louis in the National League East. Montreal, 4 1/2 losers to the Cardinals, fell four games back while the Mets dropped 4 1/2 back after their fourth straight loss and ninth in 12 games.

"Tonight was the story of the whole season. We couldn't get the key hit," Kevin McReynolds said. The Mets loaded the bases three times in five innings against Sutcliffe, but wasted each opportunity. Fliker David Cone, a .256 hitter, grounded to a double play to the end of the second. Barry Lyons grounded out to finish the third and McReynolds flied out to end the fourth.

"It wasn't pretty, but when I needed the outs I got them," said Sutcliffe, 14-11. Lancaster allowed only one runner, struck out two and earned his sixth save.

"I was shocked I came in so early," Lancaster said. "I thought I might come in around the seventh and give them one inning, but I guess I was doing so well they left me in."

Cone, 12-7, lost for only the second time in 11 decisions. He also dropped his second straight start at home after going since July 4, 1988 — a span of 18 starts — without a loss.

Cone struck out 11 in eight innings. But he gave up five runs on eight hits and three walks. "Everything that could go wrong for him did," Manager Davey Johnson said. "He finished strong, but was too late."

The Mets, the best home team in baseball at 45-24, hoped to get off to a good start in front of 46,949 fans. Cone got the Cubs cheering when he struck out Jerome Walton on three pitches to start the game, but Ryan Sandberg struck Johnson said. "We needed to start strong. We needed to start strong. We needed to start strong."

Never-say-die Giant reserves scratch out a win over Cincy

NL Roundup

By Dick Brinster
The Associated Press

Roger Craig delivered no motivational speech to the San Francisco Giants. In fact, he had given up.

With the Giants trailing the Cincinnati Reds 8-6 after six innings, the San Francisco manager began sending his starters to the showers and putting the scrubs in to play out the inning.

But a funny thing happened on the way to defeat. Guys named Speier and Botte and Larry Litton and Nixon and Riles simply refused to lose. They rejected of clutch hit after clutch hit in a comeback never to be forgotten, and beat the Reds 9-8.

"What a team contrast," said Terry Kennedy, who used 25 players. "I got a lot of guys in the game because I wanted to give them a chance to play. Did they ever play?"

The comeback began as a distant rumble, given life in the seventh by the last of the regulars, Will Clark and Terry Kennedy. Cincinnati's Tim Lincecum was cruising with a two-run homer when Clark hit his first home run and Kennedy's fifth.

"I've been around for 11 years and I've never seen a game like that," Kennedy said. "Usually when it's the sixth or seventh inning and it's 8-6, it's almost automatic. When Will hit the home run, it was almost incidental."

That's what winning pitcher Ernie Camacho figured. "When we were down 8-4, Chris Speier said, 'We're going to win this game,'" said Camacho, who struck out the side in the eighth and added a game-winning single in the ninth.

"I thought the first one was going out of Fulton County — not the stadium, the county," Atlanta manager Russ Nixon said. "The Cardinals 4, Expos 1; Pedro Guerrero, batting 400 against Montreal and 419 with runners in scoring position, hit a game-tying single and shoddy defense led to the rest of the runs as surging St. Louis beat slumping Montreal."

The Cardinals, backing Jose DeLeon, 15-11, have won eight of 11 overall. The Expos have lost five of their last seven and 20 of 31. Dodger 7, Astros 6; Houston's Mike Scott failed in a bid to become the first 19-game winner. His wild pitch in the seventh inning allowed the go-ahead run to score after the tying run came home on a bunt single by Alfredo Griffin.

The loss snapped Scott's seven-game winning streak over the Dodgers in the Astrodom dating back to Aug. 15, 1986. Scott's record dropped to 18-8. Pirates 7, Phillies 5; Bobby Bonilla and Jay Bell drove in two runs apiece and Pittsburgh rallied twice in sending Philadelphia to its fifth straight loss.

Bonilla, Gary Redus and Donn Blaridello had two doubles apiece for the Pirates. Bill Landrum got his 22nd save.

away from that tarp. "A replay of the 1985 World Series certainly isn't a certainty, but the Cardinals and Royals are within reach of first place their respective divisions. St. Louis is in second place, its games behind Chicago in the National League East, and second-place Kansas City is 1 1/2 games behind Oakland Cardinals and Kansas City Royals. Coleman is hopeful that he'll be given a second chance, he could make a difference.

As long as Don Denkinger isn't vomiting," Coleman quipped. "And as long as I stay

Home runs flying all over in wins by O's, Blue Jays

By The Associated Press

The Baltimore Orioles suddenly remembered how to hit home runs. In their first game since Toronto's Fred McGriff never forg.

McGriff broke a scoreless tie with his league-leading 36th homer — a two-run shot in the sixth inning and the Blue Jays defeated the Chicago White Sox 5-2 Monday night to maintain a one-game lead over Baltimore in the American League East.

Meanwhile, the Orioles, who hadn't homered in their last six games, got a two-run blast from Cal Ripken in the third inning and a three-run homer from Tim Lincecum in the bottom of the ninth to beat Cleveland 4-2.

"This was the biggest thrill of my career," said Hulett, who after playing most of the season in 1987 and in the majors with the White Sox, languished in the minors last two seasons. He was called up late last month by the Orioles, who had signed him as a free agent last November.

"I just about gave up," he said. "I didn't look like there was a chance to get back to the big leagues. It's been a long year. This is the payoff for being patient."

Cleveland reliever Rod Nichols had retired 15 batters in a row before Hulett settled matters with a smash into left field. In 13 games since being recalled, Hulett has had two homers and nine RBIs.

Cleveland, which led 3-0 in the first inning against Dave Johnson, tied the score 4-4 in the eighth inning when pinch hitter Mike York singled home Cory Snyder. The Cardinals' Mark Williamson for his fourth hit.

Cleveland starter Greg Swinson yielded to the Cardinals' bullpen in left field. In 13 games since being recalled, Hulett has had two homers and nine RBIs.

"I like to think I have an edge on the White Sox when I pitch, but it's nothing I can explain," Key said. "I just wanted to take us into the eighth inning, but I got a little me out, and then walked me on a tough pitch the next time. I wasn't looking for any particular pitch in the sixth, but it was out over the among others, little-known short-stop Buddy Biancalana. "The pivotal call by umpire Don Denkinger that opened the door for a Kansas City rally in the ninth inning of Game 6, TV replays showed that Cardinals reliever Todd Worrell clearly beat the Royals' Jorge Orta to the bag, but Denkinger ruled safe and the Cardinals began to unravel.

"It was the key turning point in the series," Worrell said. "It wasn't too good."

"The Game 7 blowout. The Royals scored six runs in the fifth, an inning punctuated by the

The victory earned Connors a quarterfinal date with sixth-seeded Andre Agassi, who took out Jim Grabb 6-1, 7-5, 6-3.

Also moving to the men's quarters were ninth-seeded Tim Mayotte, who defeated No. 7 Michael Chang 7-5, 6-1, 14-6, 6-3, and top-seeded Ivan Lendl, who survived a grueling 3-hour, 45-minute duel with No. 16 Andrei Chesnokov, finally winning 6-3, 4-6, 14-6, 6-3.

On the women's side defending champion Steffi Graf overcame a slow start, winning the last 10 games in a 6-4, 6-0 rout of Rosalyn Fairbank to reach the quarters.

Also advancing were No. 8 Helena Sukova, who defeated Larissa Savchenko 4-6, 6-1, 6-2, No. 3 Gabriela Sabatini, who beat No. 15 Conchita Martinez 6-1, 6-1, and Arantxa Sanchez Vicario, a 6-2, 6-2 winner over Barbara Paulus.

While Connors played Ederberg in a half-empty stadium, her grandstand was packed to watch the struggle between Lendl and Chesnokov.

The match turned in the final set when after battling to deuce seven times, Chesnokov held serve for a 3-2 lead. However, it was the last game the Soviet player would win.

"He wasn't missing," said Lendl, who survived 71 unforced errors. "I look at it now, there were a lot of moments when I could have gone down. I decided if you're going to hit a lot of balls and work for it."

"I've been working on my serve and come a long way with it. I'm more of a weapon now. Before, it was not a weakness or a strength. Now, it has turned into a strength."

Agassi made saves were the key as well in repeating his Wimbledon wipout of Chang, the French Open champion and youngest Grand Slam event winner in history.

"I can take his serve, and feel like we're starting better than equal, which is good. If we're both going to be in the back court," Mayotte said.

Graf struggled through a slow start against Fairbank and was broken in the first game. She battled back, winning the last in games and continuing her grandstand was packed to watch the struggle between Lendl and Chesnokov.

Johnson's marks erased. BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — Ben Johnson's world records will be erased from track records under an anti-doping ruling approved today by the International Amateur Athletic Federation.

On a vote that followed almost 2 1/2 hours of debate, the IAAF's ruling Congress decided to remove any world records held by admitted drug users. The revision takes effect with the next annual records list, due out Jan. 1, 1990.

Almost three dozen speakers took part in the debate and critics said the measure would discriminate against Johnson, the world record holder in the 100 meters and indoor 60 meters and the only holder of a world mark who has confessed to drug use at the time the records were set.

Strawberry Silk triumphs. RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) — Strawberry Silk, with an open lane from gate to wire, captured the $2 million All American Futurity, the richest sprint in quarter horse racing, on Monday.

The victory was the ninth in 11 starts this season for the gray filly and was worth $1 million to owner Jacqueline Spencer of Alto, N.M.

The futurity win also was the second in a row for the jockey-trainer combination of Rocky Martin and Jack Brooks and fifth for the two since 1978.

Strawberry Silk also led a sweep of the top five places by Illinois. Mions High, a 16-1 shot, ran second, beaten 1/4 lengths. While Effortless Dream finished third, Effortless Dream's staminatee, Reckless Dash, was fourth.

Lynn socks 300th homer. DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Tigers outfielder Fred Lynn joined former Boston Red Sox teammates Jim Rice and Dwight Evans on the list of major leaguers who have hit 300 or more career home runs Monday.

Lynn's No. 300, a solo shot off the facing of the upper deck in right field, came off Kansas City's Bret Saberhagen in the seventh inning of Detroit's 5-1 victory over the Royals.

Giants lose Joe Morris for the season

By The Associated Press

Super Bowl heroes, Pro Bowlers and No. 1 draft picks were once again making news. This time, they are losing their jobs.

Wide receivers Kris Collinsworth and Steve Watson, running back Paul Palmer, linebacker Bob Brudzinski and punter Brian Hansen all received pink slips Monday as NFL teams cut down to the 47-man roster limits for the start of the season.

"Quite frankly, this is probably one of the saddest days in Bengals history," Cincinnati quarterback Boomer Esiason said upon learning that Collinsworth, the team's 6'11" kicker since 1980, had been let go.

"There comes a time when cold, hard, tough decisions have to be made, and you make them," Coach Sam Wyche said.

Brudzinski was released by Miami along with cornerback Don McNeal and safety Bud Brown. All were members of the Dolphins' last Super Bowl team five seasons ago.

The tough decisions involved the veterans that have contributed to any success the Dolphins have had in the past," Coach Don Shula said. "They're guys that have given us everything that they have to give in the practices and when they line up and play."

Kansas City City Palmer. His No. 1 draft pick in 1983 and runner-up to Vinny Testaverde in voting for the 1986 Heisman Trophy after rushing for 1,866 yards at Temple. He was the No. 2 receiver and receiver for the Chiefs last year and led the AFC in kickoff returns as a rookie.

"I didn't quite work out the way I wanted it to. I have to say that," Palmer said. "I can't really say it hasn't gone well. It just hasn't gone as well as I hoped it would. In most cases, when opportunity permitted, I think I ran fairly well."

Joe Morris, who ran for 1,516 yards in leading the New York Giants' drive to the NFL title in 1986, and All-Pro linebacker Colorado coach Bill McCartney are lost for the season each a victim of the league's new injured-reserve rules.

McCartney's career rushing leader with 5,296 yards, broke a bone in his right foot in Saturday night's 13-10 exhibition loss to Pittsburgh and was placed on injured reserve before the team got down to its limit of 47 players.

Tippett, the malnourished of the Patriot defense, was placed on injured reserve before the team got down to its limit of 47 players.

Younger players — rookies and first-year free agents — could also return if they clear waivers on a six-man developmental squad established by the NFL before the 1989 season or practice with the team unless they go through waivers.

Other name players released were linebacker

Barry Krauss of Cleveland, an 11-year veteran picked up as a "Plan B" free agent this year; Hansen, a Pro Bowler for New Orleans in 1984; Matt Bonin, who caught 71 passes for the Indianapolis Colts in 1986; and Roy Alexander, who caught 54 passes as a starter last year for Dallas.

Veteran kicker Chuck Nelson, who missed seven of nine field goal attempts in exhibition games, was one of 14 players cut by the Minnesota Vikings.

Coach Jerry Burns was especially upset with Nelson's performance in the Vikings' 17-10 victory Friday night over the Cincinnati Bengals. Nelson missed field goals of 34 and 33 yards and cost the team a delay-of-game penalty.

The Giants cut wide receivers Stacy Robinson and Phil McConey, both of whom have been cut before and brought back. McConey returned from Green Bay in 1986 in time to catch a touchdown pass in the Super Bowl.

Green Bay, starting almost from scratch, released quarterback Randy Wright and wide receivers Phillip Epps and Walter Stanley, a combination that started most of the team's games the past three years.

Detroit cut three players who started at least part of last season — quarterback Rusty Hiller, wide receiver Pete Mandley and defensive back Devon Mitchell.

Monday and under the new rules will be ineligible to play or practice with the team the remainder of the season.

The victory was the ninth in 11 starts this season for the gray filly and was worth $1 million to owner Jacqueline Spencer of Alto, N.M.

Lynn socks 300th homer. DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Tigers outfielder Fred Lynn joined former Boston Red Sox teammates Jim Rice and Dwight Evans on the list of major leaguers who have hit 300 or more career home runs Monday.

Lynn's No. 300, a solo shot off the facing of the upper deck in right field, came off Kansas City's Bret Saberhagen in the seventh inning of Detroit's 5-1 victory over the Royals.

Revenue sharing proposed. NEW YORK (AP) — Revenue sharing, proposed by baseball owners since the first pro teams were formed, may be offered to players during this winter's collective-bargaining negotiations. The Associated Press has learned.

But at the end, George's edge in experience paid off. The junior quarterback threw two touchdown passes in the final six minutes Monday night to rally the 22nd-ranked Illini to a 14-13 upset of fifth-ranked Southern Cal in a college football season opener.

Marinovich, a redshirt freshman pressed into starting when senior Pat O'Hara injured a knee in a scrimmage last week, had two more chances to pull out the victory as Illinois went ahead with 2:08 left to play.

But he threw an interception on Southern's next possession, then was unable to move the team when the Trojans got the ball at their own 20 with 54 seconds left.

"I didn't win; that's a sign of how well I played," said Marinovich, who set a national prep record by passing for 9,125 yards during his career at Cupertino High School in Mission Viejo, Calif.

"We didn't put the ball into the end zone," Marinovich said. "We have to improve, score some points."

Vince Coleman looking forward to repeat of I-70 series

By R.B. Follstrom
The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Four years later, Vince Coleman can laugh about the man-eating tar.

But the mention of it also makes him wistful about the World Series he missed, the so-called I-70 Series between the St. Louis Cardinals and Kansas City Royals. Coleman is hopeful that he'll be given a second chance, he could make a difference.

As long as Don Denkinger isn't vomiting," Coleman quipped. "And as long as I stay records in their respective leagues. "The odds are about a thousand to one," Cardinals manager Whitey Herzog, who managed the Royals from 1975 through 1979, said. "They're in a three-team race, and we're in a four-team race."

"And before you get to the playoffs, you've got to win the series," Coleman said. "It's improbable. But it's not impossible. And should it come to pass, it would undoubtedly trigger some memories."

— The mechanized tarapalin that somehow caught Coleman, the rookie base-stealing champion, rolling that over his leg and knocking him out for the series.

"My first year in the big leagues, and here I am not being able to play," Coleman said. "I couldn't do nothing but cheerlead, and we lose on top of that!"

So an I-70 series is improbable. But it's not impossible. And should it come to pass, it would undoubtedly trigger some memories.

Maradona delays decision

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — Soccer star Diego Maradona returned to Italy on Monday, a month later than expected but remained evasive whether he planned to rejoin his Italian team, Napoli.

He said he hoped to meet with Napoli's president, Corrado Ferlaino, as soon as possible to discuss his future.

The 28-year-old Maradona said he expected difficult times with Neapolitan fans following a feat of wills with his club because of his decision to extend a vacation in Argentina.

"I don't expect a warm welcome in Naples," Maradona commented before driving along with Coppola in a white Mercedes, to the southern port city.

The player did not comment on reports that French industrialist Bernard Tapie, owner of Olympique Marseille, offered Maradona $5 million to play for the French team.

Napoli pays Maradona a reported $1.5 million a year, not including bonuses.

Trine Solberg is barred

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Javelin champion Trine Solberg of Norway has been barred from competition for two years because of a positive doping test after she won a European Cup meet in Brussels last month. The Norwegian Athletics Association announced Monday.

Solberg, 23, flatly denied using drugs to improve her performance and broke into tears at the end of a press conference Monday.

"I want to appeal this. I don't want to accept punishment for something I'm not guilty of," she said.

The Norwegian woman's record holder, who placed fifth in the 1984 Summer Olympic Games, is barred beginning with the World Cup final in Barcelona Sept. 8-10. The Federation said at the press conference.

Bjorn Borg gets married

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Former Swedish tennis star Bjorn Borg married Italian pop singer Lorenza Berté at city hall Monday.

The five-minute ceremony was preceded by a brawl between the couple's private security guards and reporters and photographers who were barred from the ceremony. An Italian weekly magazine had been given exclusive rights to the story.

Borg, 32, a five-time Wimbledon champion, had been living with the dark-haired 38-year-old singer in Milan since last year. Their romance occasionally was stormy, according to reports in the Italian and Swedish media.

Last February Borg was hospitalized in Milan and had his stomach pumped in what had been reported as a possible suicide attempt. The player denied trying to kill himself.

Drazen Petrovic injured

PORTLAND Ore. (AP) — A minor back injury has brought Portland Trail Blazers guard Drazen Petrovic back to Portland from his native Yugoslavia sooner than planned, a doctor for the NBA team said.

Petrovic began to suffer pain in his lower back last week while working out with Cibona, his former club team in Yugoslavia.

Alarmed by a Yugoslav diagnosis by a Yugoslav doctor, Petrovic was cut short in his stay there and returned to Portland over the weekend.

He was examined by Dr. Robert Cook, the Blazers' team physician, on Sunday.

'Rip' Sewell dies at 82

PLANT CITY, Fla. (AP) — Truett Banks "Rip" Sewell, the former Pittsburgh Pirates pitcher who delighted fans with his "pepus" pitch and was instrumental in forming Sewell's personality, has died at age 82.

Sewell, who inspired others when he remained active despite losing both legs late in life, suffered from kidney failure and pneumonia in his final days. He died Sunday at South Florida Baptist Hospital, where he had been admitted Aug. 23. He will be buried Wednesday.

The right-hander broke into the major leagues with Detroit in 1952 but didn't stay on the big-league level until 1958, when he joined the Pirates and remained on the club's roster through 1969. He had a 143-97 career record, including a National League-leading 21 victories in 1945.

Sorry, folks, wine makes lousy medicine

DEAR ABBY: You were way off base in your response to "Mom," who needed a glass of wine in the evening to relax after a stressful day. The lady is not necessarily a candidate for Alcoholics Anonymous.

Two glasses of wine a day actually helps save lives. Moderate use of alcoholic beverages, especially wine, which is the most moderate of them all, is beneficial to the cardiovascular system. It increases the level of "good" cholesterol in the blood, which in turn blocks the formation of "bad" cholesterol to arterial walls and other leads.

Doctors consider wine so beneficial that it is now on the menu of over half the hospitals nationwide. It is part of the evening routine at many rest homes because it relaxes people, contributes to social interaction, improves sleep patterns and generally cheers folks up. Until very recently, it was regularly prescribed by doctors as a mild sedative.

In addition, researchers at the University of California at Berkeley have recently discovered that red wine contains the largest percentage of "quercetin," the most potent anti-cancer agent known in any food including broccoli and zucchini. In short, wine is good for you. Do you have the guts to try the truth?

DEAR ABBY: My elderly mother died last week after being in an extended-care facility for some time. She was able to go to the dining room for her meals until the last three months. It was there that she saw the other residents.

Instead of having the usual family floral piece at her funeral, we placed a bouquet of flowers on each of the tables in the dining room in her memory.

Not only did it brighten the room, it brought smiles to many faces.

Diana Rigg will host 'Mystery!'

By Jerry Buck Associated Press LOS ANGELES — Diana Rigg started her acting career in Shakespeare, but she will be forever known as the exotically beautiful, black-leather-clad counteress on the British series "The Avengers." Rigg recently completed a miniseries for the BBC called "Mother Love" that may show up on "Mystery!" It's a decidedly different role from Emma Peel.

She plays the mother, David McCallum ("Man From U.N.C.L.E.") is the father and the son is James Wilby who stars in a new production of "A Tale of Two Cities" for PBS at the start of the new season. Thursday, Oct. 12. The show is an anthology of the best English mysteries.

"I don't think there will be a major difference other than the question of our personalities," she said on a visit to this country to promote the show and tape her appearances at WGBH in Boston. "Mystery!" is noted for Edward Gurey's Gothic steel engraving for the title sequence, and Gurey has designed a new black and white set for the host that has a one-dimensional look.

"I'm not playing a part. I am myself. I suppose it will evolve, but it's always dangerous to speak up in front of I don't want to see my job introduced each show. For those who know the characters it's an affirmation and for those who don't it's an explanation." Plus, we'll also take a wider approach to the subject at hand. For example, we'll talk about the rules of law as they developed in England for the "Rumpole of the Bailey" series. I like the idea of giving a tinge of information. Rigg recently completed a miniseries for the BBC called "Mother Love" that may show up on "Mystery!" It's a decidedly different role from Emma Peel.

"It's the story of a woman who brings up her son by herself after her divorce," she said. "She loves her son passionately and believes he's never seen his father in the years since the divorce. But the father and son carry on a deception, and when the mother finds out, murder and mayhem ensue."

Financing cost dips for hall
Manager's plan would cut bonds

By Alex G'relli
Manchester Herald

Town Manager Richard Sartor has proposed reducing the bond issue for the town's expansion by $27,600, a move which could save the town more than $3 million in long-term financing costs from the original cost of the project.

A decision will have to be made by the Board of Directors today if the town voters are to decide at the November election whether to approve a bond issue to finance construction of additional space for town government offices. Thursday is the last day to propose questions to be considered by the municipality by ballot.

In a memorandum to town directors Tuesday, Sartor proposed reducing the bond issue from $15.4 million to $12.7 million and using $27,600 from other sources to fund the proposal. Sartor's proposal does not reduce the up-front cost of the project, but reduces the amount that will have to be bonded and hence the long-term financing cost.

The project originally was estimated to cost $16.5 million, a figure which would have required about $30 million to fund the cost of long-term borrowing. That $16.5 million cost was later reduced to $15.4 million after the size of the project was scaled back by about 9,000 square feet.

Under Sartor's proposal for a $12.7 million bond issue, the cost to finance the project with long-term bonds would be $26,747,350, or $3,252,650 less than it would have cost to finance the $15.4 million proposal.

That $26,747,350 figure is the amount it would take to pay the principal and interest on the bonds over a 25-year period.

The directors are scheduled to meet at 5 p.m. in the hearing room of the Municipal Building today to take up the matter. They postponed action Tuesday night after a public hearing at which seven people voiced opinions, three of them in favor of moving forward now and four opposed to the current plans.

A resolution calling for a Nov. 7 vote on a bond issue not to exceed $15,427,600 dollars had been prepared for director action Tuesday.

700 believed dead in blast at Iraqi plant

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — An explosion and fire wrecked part of a top-secret Iraqi missile plant last month, killing at least 700 people and wounding up to 1,800, a disident Iraqi source and British news reports said today.

There was no confirmation of their reports from officials in Baghdad, the Iraqi capital. Iraq's state-controlled media has made no mention of a major explosion in the area.

But Western diplomats reached Baghdad by telephone in Baghdad confirmed there was an explosion at the heavily guarded facility more than two weeks ago. The diplomats, speaking on condition of anonymity, said they could give no details.

Such an explosion would be the worst disaster of its kind reported in Iraq. There was no word on its cause and no immediate indication of sabotage.

London's Independent daily, quoting unidentified diplomatic sources, said the explosion killed 700 people when it engulfed the plant south of Baghdad on Aug. 17. The British Broadcasting Corp. reported that Egypt's Defense Ministry confirmed there was a big explosion at the facility with many casualties.

The Iraqis, with Egyptian help, are believed to be developing a modified version of Argentina's medium-range, Condor 2 surface-to-surface missile, known as the Badr 2000, at the huge plant between Al-Hillah and Ad-Dwanayeh, 40 miles south of Baghdad.

The complex, protected by an elite military force, reportedly covered 870 square miles, indicating it included a missile testing range. Sources said it is run by Iraq's Ministry for Military Industries.

An official of the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan, an outlawed Kurdish movement fighting the Baghdad government, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview that sources inside Iraq and Middle East sources, said today the conflagration killed 700 people when it engulfed the plant south of Baghdad on Aug. 17.
