About Town

Church supper slated

The First Congregational Church of Coventry is having a roast turkey supper on Saturday, on Main Street, from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. The public is welcome. Donations of $5 for adults and $2 for children 6 to 12 years old will be accepted.

O-Anon support offered

A support group for the family and friends of compulsive overeaters meets every Friday at Manchester Memorial Hospital, 71 Haynes St., 7 p.m.

Ask for the meeting room at the information desk.

Britannia chapter to meet

The Britannia Chapter of the Daughters of the British Empire will meet Thursday at 45 Lehenon Road, Hebron, at 11 a.m.

At the meeting, final plans will be made for the Sunday project.

Preschool program offered

The Chestnut Hill Preschool has morning and afternoon preschool programs available for children 3 to 5 years old.

For more information about registration, call 649-8383.

Pot luck supper slated

The Army and Navy Auxiliary will hold its first meeting and a pot luck supper on Wednesday at the club house on Main Street, at 6:30 p.m. The business meeting will follow the supper.

Everyone is asked to bring food.

Scandia Lodge to meet

The Scandia Lodge, No. 23 Vasa Order of America, is holding a meeting on Thursday at the Emanuel Lutheran Church, 60 Church St., at 7:30 p.m.

The Beethoven Chorus will present a program under the direction of James McKay.

Harvest fair slated

The town of Hebron is having its annual Hebron Harvest Fair from Thursday to Sunday at the Lions Fairgrounds, Route 88, Hebron. The fair opens at 6 p.m. on Thursday and Friday, 9 a.m. on Saturday, and 10 a.m. on Sunday.

On Thursday, the Northeast finals of the True Value GMC Truck Country Showdown will be featured; the largest country music contest in the world. Also on Thursday is a tractor pull.

On Friday there will be a horse pull and on Saturday, a pony pull. The oxen will pull on Sunday. Many exhibits, crafts, and food booths will also be provided.

Ronald Syme

LONDON (AP) — Ronald Syme, an Oxford historian, died Monday at age 86. No cause of death was given.

Instead of focusing on the ideals and constitutional structure of the Roman emperors as his predecessors had, Syme disclosed the lust for power and money that motivated their careers, comparing them to European dictators in the 1930s. He introduced the theories in his first and most famous book, "The Roman Revolution," published in 1939.

Police Roundup

Worker injured after fall

A Manchester man was rushed to hospital by ambulance Tuesday morning after he fell off some scaffolding at the town sewage treatment plant, injuring his stomach.

Timothy Duntz, 25, of 27 Elvree St., was working for Brunoli and Sons Inc. of Avon when he fell about 6 1/2 feet down the scaffolding around 9 a.m. The company is expanding the town sewage treatment plant.

Police said Duntz's abdomen struck a clamp protruding from the scaffold. He was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital and was released today after being treated for serious cuts on his stomach, police said.

Duntz has been working for Brunoli and Sons, Inc. for about five years.

Assault prompts arrest

A Manchester man was arrested Monday on charges he assaulted his ex-wife and smashed her bedroom furniture while collecting his belongings, police said.

John Hanley Jr., of 22 Diane Drive, was arrested on charges of third-degree assault, third-degree criminal mischief, and breach of peace, according to police.

Hanley's ex-wife told police she arrived at her Woodbridge Street home at 2 p.m. to find Hanley and a friend in her bedroom, according to the report. Hanley, who was there to pick up his things, began throwing the contents of the dresser on the floor and smashing the drawers, police said.

Police said Hanley grabbed his ex-wife, who was screaming, and threw her on the floor. The woman said she could not call the police at that time because she was afraid Hanley would rip the phone off the wall, as he had before, police said.

Hanley left before police arrived but was found and arrested at his home.

Hanley was held on $1,000 bond but was released after his father posted bond, police said. He was scheduled for court on Tuesday.

"This is a war on drugs, not a war on the American taxpayer." — Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole, against the idea of a tax increase to fight drug use.

Thoughts

Jesus said, "Let the children come to me and do not stop them because the Kingdom of Heaven belongs to such as these." (Matt. 9:14) Jesus always had time for the children.

Our children are our most precious gifts. How do we treat these gifts from God? Whether we are parents, teachers, church leaders, businessmen and women or politicians, children are a vital part of our world.

We need to take the time to talk and listen to our children; at times to laugh with them; other times to cry with them; to teach them the ways of goodness, and, above all, to love them. Too many of today's children are abused, homeless, forgotten and unwanted.

It is our Christian responsibility and concern to reach out to God's children. We must offer them a value system; teach them right from wrong; share our Christian faith; and set a good example for them to follow. Children of all ages need adult guidance to help them build their tomorrows with wisdom and peace.

Selectmen OK Bolton school plan

By Rick Santos
Manchester Herald

BOLTON — The Board of Education has received the approval of selectmen to consider a second plan for upgrading and expanding the town's schools.

But selectmen gave their approval Tuesday night with the condition that the code violations in Bolton Center School are taken care of before anything else is done.

"We should be moving ahead right now on the code violations of the Center School," said Selectman Carl Preuss, a Republican. "We shouldn't be waiting for studies on school needs."

Other selectmen voiced the same sentiments. The school board is considering two major proposals for upgrading facilities and expanding the schools to accommodate the growing school-age population.

The original plan, which has already been detailed by architects, is to build additions with new facilities at the elementary school and house the Center school students, grades five through eight, in the elementary school.

The latest idea of the school board is to build a smaller addition onto the elementary school and add to the high school. With this plan, the elementary school will house kindergarten through sixth-grade students, and the high school will house grades seven through 12.

With either alternative, the school board plans to abandon the Center School. Selectmen have objected to this because the school board has not suggested how the town would use the building.

"It's going to have to be used for something — or blown up," asked Democratic Selectman James Veitch Tuesday.

Meeting set in Bolton

BOLTON — A special town meeting has been scheduled for Sept. 27 to decide whether the town will make funds available to pay for the construction of the bathrooms at Herrick Park and for removing asbestos from the elementary school.

The meeting, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the Community Hall, is necessary because the money needed for the projects, which is from the federal government, cannot be spent on such projects without a town meeting, said Selectman Carl Preuss.

The bathroom completion will cost $6,000 and the plans for the asbestos removal cost $7,800.

Town officials said the bathrooms should be completed in the next few weeks, and they will be usable during the winter.

The removal of the asbestos will probably not begin until summer vacation, so the harmful substance won't be exposed to the students, teachers, and staff who occupy the building during the school year, officials said.

But after Selectman James Veitch, a Democrat, said the plan could be helpful in emergency situations, and "if you're going to buy a truck, buy it complete," Preuss and other selectmen approved the purchase.

The board recommended unanimously to award a contract to the lowest bidder for the removal of three underground oil storage tanks.

Truck, sander, tanks purchased in Bolton

BOLTON — Selectmen have authorized the purchase of a truck for the Parks and Recreation Department, a road sander for the Highway Department, and replacements for three town-owned underground oil storage tanks.

After some debate Tuesday night as to whether the town needs a snow plow with the parks truck, the Board of Selectmen voted unanimously to spend $17,241 on a truck with a plow from Dillon Ford in Manchester.

Republican Selectman Carl Preuss said he is not sure the plow will be used often because the parks department is not responsible for removing snow from many areas.

Town officials said the bathrooms should be completed in the next few weeks, and they will be usable during the winter.

The removal of the asbestos will probably not begin until summer vacation, so the harmful substance won't be exposed to the students, teachers, and staff who occupy the building during the school year, officials said.

But after Selectman James Veitch, a Democrat, said the plan could be helpful in emergency situations, and "if you're going to buy a truck, buy it complete," Preuss and other selectmen approved the purchase.

The board recommended unanimously to award a contract to the lowest bidder for the removal of three underground oil storage tanks.

The bid of $88,263 came from Chem Tech Environmental Waste Management of West Mystic.

Helen Kemp, executive assistant to selectmen, said the company's references were good.

There were five other bids, one as high as $118,400 for the job of replacing tanks at the town garage, Bolton High School, and Bolton Center School.

Kemp said the town will be reimbursed for about 60 percent of the cost of replacing the school tanks through a state grant program.

The report was one of several made to the directors at the Century Pool of New Britain, the consultant firm that has recommended removal of the diving tanks through a state grant program.

The decision will impact Manchester because it will limit the ways to interchange from I-84 to I-291.

Sartor also reported that the town will ask for an extension of the state's Sept. 30 deadline for submitting a plan to enforce a regulation against dumping things in the landfill that are classified as recyclable materials.

Boye Spinelli, director of finance, said the town's tax revaluation is on schedule on

GOP raps stop sign denial as bias against Republicans

By Alex Girelli
Manchester Herald

A decision by Police Chief Robert D. Lannan against installing a stop sign on Greenwood Drive at Cliffside Drive came under fire by Republican members of the Board of Directors Tuesday, who said the suggestion may have been rejected because it came from a Republican director.

Theunis Werkhoven, a Republican director and minority leader on the board, had proposed the sign as a means of reducing speeds on Greenwood Drive and making it safer for school children to cross the street there.

In a report to Town Manager Richard Sartor, Lannan rejected the suggestion. He said that using a stop sign to reduce speeds is not a valid use of the signs.

In the report, Lannan said three 30-mph speed signs have been installed on the road as well as a steep grade sign and a curve sign.

He said a stop sign on Cliffside Drive would serve the children crossing for about an hour a day and motorists would have to stop at it for the remaining 23 hours.

Geoffrey Naab, a Republican director, who is not seeking re-election in November, said that while there may be good technical reasons why the sign should not be erected, "I suspect that any suggestion that comes from this side of the table is likely to be rejected."

Ronald Osella, another Republican director, asked if the same standards would apply to a sign erected on Bidwell Street at Wetherell Street, which was suggested by a Democratic director.

Lannan responded that the intersections involved are different. He said that under guidelines of the state Department of Transportation, you should not stop signs on collector streets to reduce speed. Greenwood Drive is considered a collector street, or one which collects traffic from other streets.

Coventry crying foul over costs for health care

By Jacqueline Bennett
Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — The skyrocketing cost of health insurance is prompting town officials to look elsewhere for coverage.

Town Manager John Elsesser told the Town Council Tuesday night that Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Connecticut plans to increase by 73 percent the cost of health-care insurance for town employees. The increase would be effective Nov. 1, according to Elsesser.

The news was greeted by gasps from council members during the meeting at the Town Office Building.

"It's time to do some shopping," said Councilman James Sullivan.

Council members agreed by consensus to have Elsesser ask the town insurance committee for a recommendation on whether to change insurance companies.

"We have to send them [Blue Cross/Blue Shield] a message," said council member Rose Fowler.

Elsesser said if the town decided to go to a different insurer, he will have to renegotiate contract terms for health care with the town's four unions. However, he said he believes employees will be sympathetic.

"People are mad at them [Blue Cross/Blue Shield]," Elsesser said.

Elsesser said the insurance increase is due to statewide trends and several major claims filed by the town last year. Of those, two major claims came from the Board of Education, including one for open heart surgery, Elsesser said.

Elsesser said the town budgeted $126,000 for health-care coverage for fiscal 1989-90. The Board of Education budgeted about $500,000 for overall health-care insurance costs, a portion of that for Blue Cross/Blue Shield.

"I had figured about a 25 percent increase," said Elsesser. The 73 percent increase leaves the town budget short about $30,000 for health insurance and the Board of Education possibly $100,000 short in its budget for health insurance, Elsesser said.

Elsesser said 40 percent of the 73 percent increase is accounted for by statewide trends like the increased cost of hospitalization. Elsesser said hospitalization costs are supposed to rise 30 percent next year.

Elsesser has a meeting scheduled with a representative from Blue Cross/Blue Shield next Tuesday.

He said it would be possible to change insurers before the Nov. 1 date when the increase goes into effect. Elsesser said two other insurance companies that offer coverage are Aetna and Cigna.

Fowler suggested self-insuring or a system under which the town would pay health care bills directly. But Elsesser said the open-endedness of self-insuring is too dangerous for a small town.

Ordinance to delay demolition projects

By Jacqueline Bennett
Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — People who want to demolish structures built before 1960 and larger than 500 square feet must get a permit under a Town Council vote.

The vote was 5-0 during the meeting at the Town Office Building which followed a public hearing on the proposed ordinance. Member Elizabeth Peterson was absent.

After applying for a permit the applicant has 10 days to post on the property a notice of intent to destroy. There is a subsequent waiting period of 60 days after the notice is posted.

The fee for the permit is $100 and is good for one year. Failure to obtain a permit carries a penalty of a minimum $200 fine.

In another matter, the council voted 5-0 to use some of its $162,000 in Local Capital Improvement Program funds for the resurfacing of Wrights Mill Road, Lakewood Road and Cassidy Hill.

Members also voted to use $10,000 of the LOCIP funds to replace the roof on the seasonal dining hall at Patriot's Park. Also approved was $12,000 in LOCIP funds for improvements and repairs to the lodge at Patriot's Park.

LOCIP projects are 100 percent reimbursable by the state. A $73,000 portion of the funds had already been designated by the council at an earlier meeting to go to other town projects. Following the vote on Tuesday, a $30,000 portion remains of the LOCIP monies.

Slater is nominated by GOP

By Jacqueline Bennett
Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — The Republican Town Committee Tuesday night endorsed Blanche Slater as the candidate to fill a vacancy on the Town Council left by the recent resignation of Mark Soltys.

Slater was endorsed during the meeting at the Town Office Building over Harvey Barrette, who was also nominated for the spot.

Slater is a candidate for the Town Council for the November election. She also serves on the town Planning and Zoning Commission and is chairwoman of the Republican Town Committee.

Barrette was endorsed to run for the Town Council by town committee at a July caucus. However he has said he plans to withdraw his name from the GOP ticket because the party failed to endorse Town Council incumbent James Sullivan.

Marion Bammario was also endorsed by Republicans as the candidate to fill a spot left vacant on the Board of Education by the recent resignation of Patricia Soltys. Bammario won over Lawrence Bates, who was also nominated.

At the July caucus, Bates failed to gain endorsement as a candidate in the November election.

The candidates' appointment must now be voted on by the Town Council and Board of Education, respectively. That is likely to be done later this month.

Mark and Patricia Soltys moved with their two children to Virginia.

The GOP also filled two empty spots on their Board of Education slate for the race in November. The slots were left empty by the withdrawal of two candidates, who also withdrew their candidacies after Sullivan was knocked off the ticket. Phillip Carpenter and incumbent Ellen Sullivan, James Sullivan's wife, both endorsed at the July caucus had withdrawn their names.

The spots were filled by Wendy McMahon and Constance Lathrop.

Bates was nominated but not endorsed.

Extra security is in place for 2nd wood-chipper trial

NORWALK (AP) — Court officials were uncertain what to expect at the start of today's second murder trial of Richard Crafts, but they boosted security in anticipation of large crowds attending the sensational proceedings.

Crafts, 51, of Newtown is accused of killing his wife in 1986 and then disposing of some body parts using a woodchipper. His first trial in New London ended in a mistrial in 1988 when one juror refused to join 11 others in issuing a guilty verdict.

In addition to the normal contingent of sheriffs, six sheriffs from other Fairfield County courts have been assigned to provide security for the Crafts trial.

Sheriffs say they will also limit the number of seats for spectators in the small courtroom. The Norwalk Superior Court is used both for civil and criminal cases.

The case was moved to Norwalk because of the poor physical condition and cramped quarters at the Stamford courthouse. Judge Martin Nigro also said he was concerned about security at the Stamford court in deciding to move the trial.

In preparation for the case, court officials also have taken 22 employee parking spots and reassigned for witnesses, jurors and additional sheriffs. The loss of the spaces will force employees to find parking off the court's grounds.

"It seems that anyone connected with the matter is also being accorded that status, and as a result, the courthouse is being turned upside down," I wonder who has the book rights?" grumbled Judge Harold Dean.

"Mr. Crafts is being treated as a celebrity by the media and our judiciary as well."

Danbury State's Attorney Walter Flanagan has said that he expects to see no new information in addition to that presented in Crafts' first trial. Officials said they expect the trial to last about three months, roughly the same length as the first trial.

In the first trial, witnesses testified that they saw Crafts using a commercial wood chipper in November 1986 at about the time the murder is believed to have occurred. Crafts' wife, Helle, has not been seen since November 1986 and her body has not been recovered. Helle was a 39-year-old flight attendant and mother of two children.

State police, searching in the area where Crafts was said to have used the wood chipper, recovered shredded bits of flesh. Forensic experts said they recovered bits of fingers, teeth and other body fragments.

Crafts has denied killing his wife, and defense attorneys during the first case implied that Mrs. Crafts might have fled the country. They noted she traveled extensively through her job and had the opportunity to leave.

A 12-member jury panel and four alternate jurors has been selected for the second trial. The jury in the first trial deliberated for 17 days, and the trial came to an end when one juror refused to continue deliberating and left the New London courthouse in July 1988. It was later divulged that 11 jurors had voted to convict Crafts, while the one juror who walked out had consistently supported Crafts' innocence.

Navy won't investigate sub incident

HARTFORD (AP) — The Navy does not plan to investigate how seven anti-nuclear activists were able to approach a moored Trident submarine unnoticed during a Labor Day demonstration, a spokesman said.

Lt. Cmdr. John Ward, a Navy spokesman, said, "There is no investigation planned at this time."

Ward, a spokesman for the Groton submarine base, which has authority over security at the Naval Underwater Systems Center in Groton, said Tuesday that security measures there were appropriate.

Jacqueline Allen, a 24-year-old peace activist from Voluntown, said she was able to swim unnoticed into a top-secret Navy research center and beat on a Trident-missile-firing submarine with a hammer before being arrested on Labor Day.

Allen discussed the attack on the Pennsylvania, which will be commissioned into the fleet Saturday, after an appearance in U.S. District Court in Hartford on Tuesday, where she and six other protesters were charged with trespassing on Navy property and destruction of government property.

They were ordered released by a federal magistrate after they signed written promises to appear in court to face the charges.

Allen said the protesters wanted to send a message to the Navy that "these weapons don't make us secure and you can't secure the weapons."

U.S. Sen. Christopher J. Dodd, D-Conn., said the incident raises "grave questions about security at the underwater systems center."

"From a political standpoint, you wouldn't want to equate an act of protest with an act of sabotage. From a security standpoint, however, the fact that protesters could actually climb up on a nuclear sub at a naval installation suggests the potential for far more serious mischief," Dodd said.

The attack was similar to one seven years ago when nine anti-nuclear activists broke into a shipyard located across the Thames River from the research center and vandalized the Trident submarine Florida.

The break-in at the Electric Boat shipyard in Groton in 1982 led to a congressional investigation and forced changes in security procedures at Electric Boat.

The Labor Day protesters swam and paddled in a blacked canoe to reach the Pennsylvania at its berth at the underwater systems center, one of a number of nuclear submarine facilities along this stretch of the Thames River, authorities and the protesters said.

Allen said she swam under the deck along the Pennsylvania, reached the sub about midnight near the conning tower, poured a baby bottle of her blood on the hull, scratched the word "death" in the paint and began pounding on the ship with a hammer. She said it was the banging of the hammer that caused the guards to notice her.

Security is beefed up at Enfield state prison

HARTFORD (AP) — The state minimum-security prison in Enfield, plagued by a rash of prisoner escapes last month, will soon receive more guards, lighting and a new electronic fence, state officials said.

William H. Carbone, undersecretary for management services and justice planning with the state Office of Policy and Management, said the prison would get "a fairly significant increase in manpower" almost immediately and upgraded equipment within the next few months.

The steps were being taken to halt escapes from the 750-bed Carl Robinson Correctional Institution.

Six prisoners escaped last month from the prison, which is surrounded by an 8-foot-high chain-link fence. Two of the men were recaptured, but the other four remain at large, correction officials said.

Carbone said the new security measures have been agreed upon by budget officials and the state Department of Correction.

Carbone declined to estimate the cost of the changes.

Commissioner of Correction Larry R. Meacham declined to comment on the proposed changes at the prison.

State Rep. William A. Kiner, D-Enfield, whose district includes the prison, said state budget officials told him the state Correction Department planned to add razor wire to the prison's fences, to install more and brighter lights, and to use more guards at fixed and on foot and in cars.

Moffett spent five terms in Congress representing Connecticut's 6th District before resigning from his job at a West Hartford television station, raising speculation that he may return to politics.

Moffett said, however, Tuesday that he was resigning to serve as a consultant on environmental and energy issues.

"I have no plans on the political front whatsoever," Moffett said. "But I'm too young to say never, never, never."

Friday is to be his last day on the air on WTVT-TV, Channel 30, where he has worked as a news anchor since 1986 after making an unsuccessful bid for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. His salary at the time of accepting that speculation.

More recently, he has been mentioned as a possible candidate for Congress from the 5th District. To do that, he would have to leave his family from their residence in Branford, which is in the 3rd District.

He said on the air that he was aware of the speculation about his possible political interests, but he said he had done nothing to fuel that speculation.

Identifying that he had told Bakker and another PTL official that "someone would go to jail" over the ministry's fund-raising practices.

Jurors might blame defense attorneys — who were heatedly questioning Nelson — for his collapse. Bender said in his motion.

Bender also filed a motion asking for a delay until Sept. 11 in the event that a mistrial isn't granted.

Bakker, who has been going through psychological testing to determine if he is competent to stand trial, is feeling better, a relative said.

"I say he's doing real well, but he's not really happy with some of the stuff... the humiliation," said Norm Bakker, Bakker's brother.

Tammy Faye Bakker, meanwhile, said Tuesday her husband was suffering from stress when he collapsed last week. She also charged that he has been mistreated by federal officials.

"After 2½ years of sheer mental torture, he was just stressed out," a sobbing Mrs. Bakker said in a taped statement broadcast from a Durham motel room on "The Jim and Tammy Show."

Bakker resigned from the PTL ministry in March 1987 in a sex and money scandal. His trial started Aug. 28 on charges that he used nearly $4 million in ministry funds to support a wish-list lifestyle. The trial was recessed Thursday when Bakker didn't come to court and his psychiatrist said he was hallucinating.

Bakker is charged with 24 counts of fraud and conspiracy and faces 120 years in prison and more than $5 million in fines.

State-run television said Tuesday night that low voter turnout would increase the chances of a hung Parliament, in which no party would have a majority. In that case, a coalition government would have to be formed or a new election called.

For the first time since 1953, political analysts predict the Nationalists could receive less than half the white vote. But as long as they poll more than 40 percent and retain 84 of their 123 seats, they will remain the governing party.

The right-wing Conservative Party has 22 of the white chamber's 160 elected seats, the anti-apartheid Democrats have 20 and one seat in the last Parliament was held by a now-defunct moderate party.

The government-run Radio South Africa said the elections would participate. Highway into Johannesburg from the black township of Soweto were nearly empty this morning.

"Our people for over a month now have actually been showing in various ways how these elections are irrelevant... We believe that is the real election," said Cyril Ramaphosa, general secretary of the National Union of Mineworkers.

"That is how our people are casting a vote against the system of apartheid." Hundreds of blacks and whites rallied Tuesday at universities nationwide and barricaded streets with flaming tires. Police arrested 500 people and witnesses said officers used tear gas, whips, rubber bullets and birdshot to break up demonstrations.

Police said armed officers would guard polling booths today. The government said 170,000 of more than 655,000 Indians and 1.7 million people of mixed race were eligible to vote for members of separate parliament chambers that are dominated by the white House of Assembly.

The Pretoria Weather Bureau predicted cold spring weather nationwide with rain in some areas. The heaviest rainfall in 20 years fell Tuesday in eastern Cape province. The polls opened at 7 a.m. and were to close at 9 p.m.

Angry blacks, however, have denounced the elections with demonstrations.

REFINERY FIRE — A Shell Oil refinery in Martinez, Calif., burns Tuesday night after an explosion touched off a major fire at the facility, sending flames more than a hundred feet into the air and a giant plume of smoke over the region. Two workers at the facility were injured. The fire was under control later in the evening.

Bakker's lawyer calls for mistrial

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Jim Bakker's lawyers say the jury may have been prejudiced last week when a witness collapsed, while Bakker's wife said the TV evangelist's own collapse a day later was due to stress and mental illness.

A hearing was scheduled today to determine if Bakker is mentally competent to stand trial on fraud and conspiracy charges, officials said.

Defense lawyer Harold Bender filed a motion just before the court closed Tuesday.

Defense attorneys said the U.S. District Court jury in Bakker's fraud and conspiracy trial was affected when a government witness fainted Thursday while undergoing cross examination.

Former PTL vice president Steve Nelson passed out after identifying that he had told Bakker and another PTL official that "someone would go to jail" over the ministry's fund-raising practices.

Jurors might blame defense attorneys — who were heatedly questioning Nelson — for his collapse. Bender said in his motion.

Bender also filed a motion asking for a delay until Sept. 11 in the event that a mistrial isn't granted.

Ruling party faces erosion of support in South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The government today held elections it called the most crucial since the Nationalists rode apartheid to power in 1948, and the disenfranchised black majority protested with a general strike.

In the voting, the long-governing National Party was expected to lose seats and possibly its majority in Parliament's dominant white chamber because of its plan to begin sharing some power with the country's 28 million blacks.

Hundreds of thousands of blacks stayed away from work on Tuesday in the biggest show of defiance in a month-long campaign to discredit the balloting.

Black activists said the two-day general strike would expand today, and that millions of blacks would participate. Highway into Johannesburg from the black township of Soweto were nearly empty this morning.

"Our people for over a month now have actually been showing in various ways how these elections are irrelevant... We believe that is the real election," said Cyril Ramaphosa, general secretary of the National Union of Mineworkers.

The 1993 campaign has been one of the most grueling and expensive, government-run television said Tuesday.

The Democratic Party, expected to finish third, wants the country's segregationist apartheid laws scrapped immediately.

"It is the watershed election of South Africa," it said. "It is generally expected that it will be the most crucial and decisive since 1948."

State-run television said Tuesday night that low voter turnout would increase the chances of a hung Parliament, in which no party would have a majority. In that case, a coalition government would have to be formed or a new election called.

Lower-grade enrollments will jump

HARTFORD (AP) — Elementary school enrollment will jump 21 percent statewide over the next nine years forcing many Connecticut towns to build new schools and lay off teachers, according to a state survey.

The state Board of Education will receive a study projecting that the increase in enrollment at elementary schools will put pressure on schools to add space or put more children in each classroom.

Several municipalities, including Hartford, Avon, Granby, Farmington, New Hartford, East field, Tolland and Chester, have already discussed building or have begun planning new schools or additions.

Coupled with the increase in enrollment at elementary schools are the high school students in Connecticut. High school enrollment is expected to drop by more than 7 percent over the next three years, continuing a steady decline that began in 1975.

Besides laying off teachers, some high schools have started to curtail elective courses.

Overall, statewide public school enrollment, which has been declining for 18 years, may reach its low point this fall before beginning to increase again next year.

"We are near the bottom," said the study's author, Peter M. Prowda, a researcher with the state Department of Education.

The report says, "Statewide public school enrollment in 1988 was 464,445, down 31 percent from a peak of 675,949 in 1971. Enrollment is expected to increase steadily for the next 14 years, reaching 592,000 students in 2002 before beginning a slow, steady decline."

In Brookfield, officials are talking about building a new middle school and converting the existing Whisconier Middle School to an elementary school to accommodate a growing population, said Superintendent Michael J. Perrone.

"We're very crowded," Perrone said. "We're putting classrooms on stages, taking what were supply rooms... and using them for classrooms."

Setting tax increases approved by the Democratic-controlled General Assembly and signed into law by the governor this past spring. For that same reason, he said, no current member of the legislature, Democrat or Republican, could win the governor's race next year.

Getting a member of Congress to run, like Kennedy or Morrison, who is removed from the Connecticut legislative process, would enhance the Democrats' chances of hanging on to the governor's office in 1990, he said.

Stolberg also said the O'Neill years had been marked by "a lack of leadership and a lack of innovation."

Elementary enrollment is expected to peak at 266,000 in 1997, up from the 1988 count of 219,529, but will decline by about 20,000 between 1997 and 2005.

High school enrollment had declined to 132,067 and is expected to decrease by another 9,800 more over three years. It is expected to grow starting in 1991, reaching 165,000 by 2005.

The number of high school seniors, which peaked at 44,714 in 1975, had fallen to 32,962 in 1988 and will reach a low point of 26,600 in 1992.

Debt plan must lead to reform

The second accord out of the chute for President Bush's plan to cut Third World debt was reached a few weeks ago with the Philippines, which owes a staggering $28 billion to the West. The first was with Mexico, and both accords are cited as successes for Washington's new policy — which they are. To persuade hundreds of banks to let debtor governments off is a daunting task, to say the least, and deserves a round of applause.

So we are cheered by the agreement with Manila, but at the same time suspect that it seems even less likely to lead to debt reduction than the Mexican accord. Under that agreement, bankers had three options: Cutting debt, cutting the interest rate on service payments, and lending more. Mexico prefers the first option, but if most bankers opt for the third option, the Mexican debt obviously will not shrink but grow. It seeks $4 billion in new loans, which officials say they will use to retire part of the Philippine debt for 50 cents on the dollar — the going rate for Philippine debt on the secondary market.

It should not be forgotten that, as with Mexico, Filipino negotiators dealt with hundreds of banks and dozens of governments, plus the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund — a diversity of interests that defies easy definition, not to mention conciliation. Indeed, the process of achieving the accords could prove as useful as the accords themselves.

In any case, the prospects for both countries will certainly be harmed if fundamental economic reforms are not used as the quid pro quo for future loans. But if they are, it is equally conceivable that their financial problems could ease even as their debt grows. Talks leading to debt reduction pacts must be used to impress debtors with the importance of reform.

Tickets are important

To the Editor:

In response and with respect to Mr. Lappen's letter Aug. 31, it would seem apparent to me that Mr. Lappen does not realize that over 80 persons die each year as a result of traffic accidents in this country. Imagine what the figure would be if the police stopped enforcing the motor vehicle laws. Issuing parking tickets might seem trivial to most people but just ask those persons who are handicapped and have to struggle to get to where they want to go. Heavy traffic laws are too lax to walk a few extra feet. Illegal parking causes hazards that aren't always apparent until an emergency arises and then the excuse of "I was only in the store for a minute" make it all right.

Granted it is always tragedy when people are killed or injured because of another's state of mind, but there is no way to truly predict the actions or thoughts of anyone.

The real culprit of most tragedies that the police deal with is the attitude of society. In this country the rights of individuals supersede the rights of the masses. It might not have been the intent of our forefathers but it is a reality we have to deal with.

The responsibility of living free of harm should not be dumped on the law enforcement community alone, each and every individual should take the responsibility to obey the laws.

To point the finger at police for working within the law to protect society and then blaming them for not preventing the unpredictable is truly a misjustice to those persons who willingly put their lives on the line each day to protect people they don't even know.

Hudson Street praised

To the Editor:

Manchester may be and look like a city, but there is one part of it that reminds me of a time that used to be — Hudson Street.

I would like to compliment the residents of Hudson Street for taking such pride in their street and homes.

It's too bad that some of this does not rub off to other sections of town.

It's a treat to ride down Hudson Street, especially this time of year.

Again, congratulations to Hudson Street.

The tax-backed art problem

By William A. Rusher

A number of defenders of the National Endowment for the Arts have tried to shroud the recent controversy by contending that "America will survive a $15,000 grant to some artist who photographed a crucifix immersed in a glass of his urine."

With all due respect, that isn't the issue. America will indeed survive this particular act of sacrilege. It would also survive the slaughter of an entire kindergarten class, but that would hardly justify the act, let alone excuse using tax money to present a prize to the killer.

Those who want to defend the use of taxpayers' dollars to finance exhibits of such "art" as the above-described Serrano photograph, or the homoerotic pictures of the late Robert Mapplethorpe, must put forward a more complex line of argumentation that goes roughly as follows:

1. It is altogether proper for Congress to appropriate tax dollars to encourage various kinds of art.
2. The members of Congress, however, have no particular expertise on the subject of what is and isn't art, so it is perfectly proper to leave this determination to carefully chosen panels of experts.
3. Once in a blue moon, one of these panels will make a mistake.

4. When this happens, it is better to overlook it than to abolish the panel system and let Jesse Helms try to specify, by statute, what is "art" and which kinds of it may and may not receive federal subsidies.

Thus put, the argument is considerably more plausible. But it is, I believe, mistaken nonetheless.

To accept it, we are required to assume that the artistic panels that recommended federal subsidies for the Mapplethorpe and Serrano exhibitions merely made a "mistake." But I am inclined to suspect that their mental processes were a bit more complex and deviant than that.

It is, of course, possible for a panel of experts simply to blunder. A friend of mine recently advised me to buy one of those, some years ago, authored a federal subsidy to a poet whose entire poem consisted of the single neologism "ligbht."

But the experts behind the Serrano and Mapplethorpe exhibitions cannot quite so plausibly. They must certainly have known that Serrano's "Piss Christ" and Mapplethorpe's graphic images of homosexual sodomitism would be profoundly offensive to many millions of people whose tax dollars would be spent to display them. My guess is that they just didn't give a damn.

In the first place, they were not duob

Mobutu's friend in Congress

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — President Mobutu Sese Seko of Zaire is the kind of guy who lines his pockets while his people starve. After 24 years with Mobutu as the light, Zaire has taken giant strides backward. But Mobutu knows how to make friends in high places.

Rep. Gus Savage, D-Ill., is one such friend. On a tip to Zaire last March, Savage met Mobutu and pronounced him to be a compassionate man. Maybe Savage was too blinded by the opinion that the Zairean's style to notice the death and disease around him. Or maybe Savage had other things on his mind.

The trip to Zaire has already been widely scrutinized for more titillating developments. A Peace Corps worker claims Savage got her in the back of a limousine during a bar-hopping night in the capital city of Kinshasa and fondled her, despite her protests.

If it is true (Savage denies the story), it wasn't the only time Savage showed a gross lack of judgment in Zaire. Zairian press accounts quoted Savage as saying this about Mobutu: "What struck me the most was the humane side of (Mobutu's) personality, one radiating warmth and showing concern for the happiness of his people." Savage reportedly told Mobutu he could count on Savage's support in Congress.

This is the same Gus Savage who, two years ago, co-sponsored an unsuccessful bill that would have slashed U.S. aid to Zaire because of Mobutu's repressive regime.

Why the change of heart? Savage refused to talk to us about it, so we examined his financial records. Behind many an ideological change is a check, and we found one. Savage got $1,500 in campaign contributions last year from Mobutu Sese Seko, who was with Savage in Zaire last March. Although not officially a lobbyist for Zaire, Diane is right: Mobutu and pushes Zaire's interests in Washington. He is the president of Amex International Inc., a shipping agent for Zaire, and he heads a Washington-based group called the Zaire-American Research Institute, which promotes closer ties between Zaire and the United States.

Diane told our associate Scott Slesk that money did not buy Savage's praise for Mobutu. He said Savage merely reacted to what he saw in Zaire and that the country's problems are exaggerated.

Those problems, as spelled out in a new 1989 bill to cut aid to Zaire, show that one would have to go a long way to exaggerate about the country. Half the children there die before the age of 5. Not one hospital has been built since Mobutu took over in 1965. The bill sponsored by Rep. Delia (D-Calif.), claims that sick Zairians have to bribe hospitals for medical care. The Zairian army fleeces people at roadblocks. Parents often have to bribe their children's way into schools. Human-rights groups claim prisoners are tortured, starved and executed without trial.

Savage isn't alone in the Mobutu fan club. This year, the U.S. government will give Zaire $50 million because, while Mobutu may be a corrupt and cooperative rogue, Zaire is the primary source of some minerals used by the U.S. defense industry. The Central Intelligence Agency helped put Mobutu where he is by a coup and has continued to help him fend off would-be assassins and rebels.

Adding Savage to the list of admirers may be a mixed blessing for Mobutu. The publicity surrounding the alleged sexual assault in the limo has shown an ugly side of Savage. The congressman thinks he is the victim of a white-controlled press. He abjured explosives at a reporter outside the House chamber. And during an interview with television reporters, Savage said: "I have no sexual peculiarities, as some of you may have. You may be a fagot or something."

Balance of power
Some opposition leaders in the Soviet Union are suggesting what amounts to a dismantling of the empire. They want to replace it with a federation of autonomous republics. They also want to break the government's control of property and return property rights to the people. Gorbachev met recently with leaders of three Baltic republics and is doing a balancing act for them. He agreed to help them gain economic autonomy by 1990, but at the same time he warned against runaway political autonomy. He urged the opposition leaders to restrain their demands, because too much political activity could lead to anarchy, and that would give hard-liners an excuse to bring in the Red Army and the KGB to impose order.

Each had a different point to make, but all agreed that an enhanced transportation system is crucial to the nation's future.

A difficult decision

This is why we didn't write an editorial

By Marie P. Grady

What is a conflict of interest? A dictionary describes it as a "situation in which the demands of one job adversely affect the demands of another."

The meaning of the words will no doubt be weighing heavily on the minds of the members of the town Ethics Commission when they decide whether Alfred W. Sieffert Sr., chairman of the Planning and Zoning Commission, was in conflict with Sieffert Sr. when he cast the deciding vote last month on a three-lot subdivision proposed by a developer who had recently done some work on the home Sieffert shares with his wife.

Sieffert, a Democrat who has been on the commission for more than 20 years, has produced canceled checks which he says show that he paid market value or above market value for the work done on his home. That, together with his record in office, provide proof there was no conflict, Sieffert says.

Some, both Democrat and Republican, agree with Sieffert. Some others are not so sure. The controversy has prompted editorials in two newspapers and put several people in the hot seat. One of those people is Sieffert. Not all newspapers ascribe to that philosophy, but that is not our concern.

Our decision not to write an editorial is a difficult one. Alfred Sieffert Sr. is a Democrat. Republicans, no doubt, will see our lack of comment as a snub to their party.

But our position would be no different if Sieffert were a Republican. His party affiliation is not a factor.

And if we did write an editorial, whether against Sieffert's position or in favor of it, there would be speculation as to how much of the editorial reflected our ideas and how much reflected the publisher's.

We believe it is our obligation to report the news as objectively as is humanly possible. We believe we have achieved this objective with the news coverage of the Sieffert case.

We have neither buried the story nor sensationalized it. We regret that we cannot help our readers decide who is right in this controversy. In this case, all we can do is give you the facts and let you decide.

We believe we would be doing you a disservice if we attempted to do otherwise.

There was plenty of warning about the scandal at HUD

By W. Dale Nelson

WASHINGTON — When a New York-based magazine for apartment builders wrote in July 1988 of influence-peddling in the Department of Housing and Urban Development, agency officials braced themselves for a scandal.

But the scandal didn't materialize until the following April when HUD's inspector general reported that developers and consultants were reaping millions of dollars and that there was a "widespread perception" of favoritism and abuse in the Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Program.

The allegations of fraud and influence-peddling at HUD are not new. In January 1988, Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Texas, chairman of the House Government Operations subcommittee on housing, alerted by reports of irregularities in Buffalo, asked Adams to review the way HUD distributed funds.

Pressed on the question at a subcommittee hearing the next month, Adams replied in writing that he had found that headquarters officials of HUD "did not document their discretionary allocation of decisions."

The Democrat-controlled House Banking Committee held nine oversight hearings on HUD programs during the first six years of the Reagan administration, while the Republican-controlled Senate Banking Committee held four. Yet the hearings failed to uncover the scope of the problem.

Multi-Housing News, a New York-based magazine for apartment, townhouse and condominium builders, got wind of what was going on and published an eight-page article in July 1988 headed, "Influence-Peddling Probed in Sec. 8 Mod Rehab." It named many of the same names that have surfaced since Adams' April 26 report.

Adams and Robert E. Nipp, director of press relations for HUD, braced themselves for a major news organization to pick up the story. None did.

"Nobody felt there was a Pulitzer Prize lurking at HUD," said Bill Monroe, editor of the Washington Journalism Review.

ALL SHOOK UP — Seattle's Ken Griffey Jr. is shaken up after sliding into second base after being tagged out by New York shortstop Alvaro Espinoza during second-inning play Tuesday night at the Kingdom. The Yankees won, 12-2.

Sanders in middle of Yankee victory

SEATTLE (AP) — Delon Sanders probably thought he'd be set to play in an NFL game next Sunday, but he is doing just fine as a major league outfielder. He hit a pair of doubles and a homer to pace New York's 17-hit, 12-2 victory Tuesday over the Seattle Mariners.

Sanders, who was Atlanta's No. 1 selection in the 1988 draft, has not come to terms with the National Football League team. He improved his negotiating position going through the week, including his second home run of the season.

"It's good and bad," Sanders said. "If I would have gone 6-for-4, it would be easier to decide what to do if terms are reached," he said.

Sanders is adapting to the differences in football and baseball. "I've produced every day in football, but I have learned that even stars like Don Mattingly don't produce every day in baseball."

The 6-foot-1, 195-pound All-American defensive back at Florida State said he would not necessarily leave the Yankees immediately if terms were reached with Atlanta.

"When terms are reached with the Falcons, I'm going to weigh each side of it," he said.

Tony Mandarich, the number two pick in the draft, reached terms with the Green Bay Packers Tuesday. That set a lead for talks between Steve Zucker, Sanders' football agent, and the Falcons.

Sanders hit a two-run shot in the fourth, and added an opposite-field double in the fifth inning. "With two strikes on me, I just try and put the ball in play. That's the patience I learned at Columbus," Sanders said.

He spent a week with the Yankees late in June and was sent to Columbus in the International League. The improvement in his play has been noticeable.

"When I was here before, I tried not to strike out. Now I try and hit the ball out of the ball," Sanders said.

High School Previews Scoring big concern for East

By Len Auster
Manchester Herald

Preventing goals has not been the problem for the East Catholic High boys' soccer team the last two seasons. Scoring them, however, has.

Two years ago the Eagles scored a minuscule 13 goals, producing a less-than-rewarding 2-14 campaign. The goals didn't come in an overwhelming last season — the Eagles were shut out eight times — but they did manage to dent the back of the twine 21 occasions and recorded a 9-8-1 mark. The stingy defense took East into two postseason games before it was eventually eliminated — on penalty kicks — by Bethel following a 0-0 tie after regulation and overtime.

Heading into the 1989 campaign, Lynn said, "Anthony Carter is the best player we've had in the last year of a five-year contract, was seeking a boost to $1 million. His contract calls for him to be paid $600,000 in base salary, plus the last $200,000 of a pro-rated signing bonus.

"Our strengths are in the goal area and midfield area from last year," Lynn said. "They are returning to us should be decent in those areas. Otherwise, we're young and inexperienced and need time to develop."

Filling the other voids is the task ahead. Midfield candidates include Jamie Fournier, Neal Daries and David Barnette. Those looking for playing time in the defensive end include seniors Mike Powell and Paul Haynes and juniors John Fisher and Jim Panagiotakos.

Palmer's defensive alignment should include seniors Allison Mulliken, Karen Schroeder and Katie Carboneau along the back line and senior captain Lynn Gentilcore at stopper. The midfield is unsettled with junior Betsy Deputa in the center and senior Cindy Larson on one side. The TRI-CAPTAINS — East Catholic High soccer tri-captains, from left, Mike Raffin, Kevin Powers and George Cook will lead the Eagles into the 1989 season, which opens next Wednesday at home against East Hartford High.

High head boys' soccer coach Bill McCarthy, was lost for the year with mono. He was elected Eagle captain. Main instead will be going with tri-captains, seniors Kevin Powers, Mike Raffin and Krasusky will also get a shot up front.

"Scoring, a lot of it has to do with confidence and patience which will come along with maturity. That's the key to a defense at sweepback with junior Scott Flood at stopper. Powers holds down center midfield with Cook one of his linemenats.

WORDS OF WISDOM — East Catholic High girls' soccer coach Ron Palmer talks strategy with his team during a preseason practice. The Eagles open their season next Thursday at home against South Windsor High.

Other midfield slot is open for the taking. The forward slots, too, could find some maneuvering. Senior co-captain Kelly Keane, who led the team a year ago with five goals, will hold down one striker slot. A trio of freshmen, Mindy Barry, Darcey Devanney and Jen Barnett, are vying for the other starting slot. The wings look like juniors Chris Allard and Aimee Bernalis.

"We'll have a solid backfield," Palmer said. "We have to find the right combination in the midfield. We do have a lot of young scorers. We'll have three freshmen up front, but I have no hesitation in using them."

IN BRIEF

Packers sign Mandarich

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Tony Mandarich, the Green Bay Packers' outpoken and often outrageous top draft choice, ended a 45-day holdout Tuesday and signed a four-year, $4.4 million contract that included a $2 million signing bonus.

Mandarich, the No. 2 overall selection in last April's draft from Michigan State, held out all of training camp.

A weightlifting fanatic, the 6-foot-5, 315-pound Mandarich at one time considered fighting heavyweight boxing champion Mike Tyson during his six-week holdout.

Trailing 2-1, the Cubs rallied in the ninth when Mark Grace lined a drive that barely eluded a diving Samuel. Grace went to third on a rally to right by Andrew Dawson and scored on Harold Williams. The rally threatened to ruin the night for Fernandez, 11-3, who pitched a six-inning, struck out six and walked none to win for the seventh time in eight decisions.

"You've got to hand it to Sid," Johnson said, mindful that the Cubs came into the game with a 3-1 lead.

Body missed most of training camp with a sprained neck, which he re-aggravated making his first tackle in last Friday's preseason game at Kansas City.

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Arrangements for a public memorial service for A. Bartlett Giamatti remained incomplete Tuesday. Yale University officials said.

Giamatti, the commissioner of major league baseball, died Friday after suffering a heart attack at his summer home on Martha's Vineyard in Massachusetts.

Yale officials said they did not know how soon an announcement would be made on the time and date of the memorial service.

Mets get rid of all the guesswork

NL Roundup

By Dick Bruster
The Associated Press

Mitch Williams is one of those "here-it-is-see-it-you-own-it" guys.

With the guesswork eliminated, New York's Tim Lincecum and Juan Samuel knew what was coming. And because they still had a little healthier today in the National League East.

Lincecum had been up to the plate in eight days, said Teufel, whose double to the center field wall off the fastballing Chicago relief ace started a ninth-inning rally that pulled the Mets within 3 1/2 games of the front-running Cubs. "He blew two to me. On the third one, I swung a little earlier."

Gregg Jefferies fled to center, sending pinch-runner Lou Thornton to third, and Samuel followed with a single to right off Williams. 4-3, to give the Mets a crucial 3-2 victory Tuesday night. It snapped a four-game losing streak and earned New York a split in the two-game series with the Cubs.

Most of the time, he's going to throw a fastball," Samuel said.

"You know what you're going to get off Williams," Mets manager Davey Johnson said. "Teufel's a good fastball hitter. Samuel's a good clutch hitter."

Still, the Mets were fortunate that center fielder Jerome Walton didn't catch Teufel's drive. "I tried to catch it any way I could," said Walton, whose hand threw led to New York's first run.

Williams blamed one not by himself. "It's hard to lose a game like this," he said. "We came back to tie the game, put them in line for a sweep and I screw it up. It's demoralizing."

The Mets remained in fourth place, one-half game behind Montreal, a 6-2 winner of St. Louis. The Cardinals are 1 1/2 behind the Cubs.

The Mets played no more meaningful game all season, especially after an embarrassing 7-3 loss to San Diego to end the Astros' series opener.

"We had to beat them," Johnson said. "We can't let them think they can beat us."

Teufel, pinch-hitting for training pitcher Sid Fernandez, saw the game as a do-or-die proposition.

"It wasn't that hard of a throw. I just guided it in there," Wilson said.

It kept the Los Angeles lead — built on RBI hits by Ben and Mike Marshall — at 2-0.

Wilson drove in Glenn Davis to cap a three-run eighth, giving the Astros only their fourth victory in 14 games. Davis and Craig Biggio drove in runs earlier in the inning.

Reds & Giants: Ken Griffey hit a three-run homer to cap a five-run third inning, and Cincinnati won by a few inches to snap San Francisco's five-game winning streak.

Padres 7, Braves 5: Tim Lincecum's pinch-hit RBI single in the 10th inning snapped a 5-5 tie as San Diego won for the 12th time in 13 games.

Diego won for a streak of 12th time in 13 games. Mark Davis pitched a scoreless 10th for his major league-leading 8th straight.

Atlanta starter John Smoltz allowed only two hits in two-run homers by Benito Santiago and Roberto Alomar — before being relieved in the seventh.

Only 1,528 saw the game at Atlanta.

Perez, 8-12, gave up six hits in 8 1/3 innings, struck out seven and walked one as Montreal won for the 11th time in 31 games. The loss ended a three-game winning streak for St. Louis.

Royals foul up in Motor City

AL Roundup

By The Associated Press

When the Kansas City Royals visit the Motor City, something happens to clog up their engines.

The Royals, with the second-best record in baseball, became defeated and turned into the hit they Detroit. Actually, they rarely hit Detroit, scoring only 21 runs while losing their last 12 games.

That includes Tuesday night's 10-2 setback that dropped Kansas City 2 1/2 games behind Oakland in the American League West. The Athletics beat Boston 13-1.

"I don't like to hurt the destiny of my club," Detroit manager Sparky Anderson said. "I'd rather let them settle it with Oakland and California. We're in last place. I don't want to hurt them."

The Tigers have a five-game winning streak for the first time since June 1988. Rookie Kevin Ritz pitched seven strong innings and Doug Strange's two-run double keyed a six-run first against Kansas City rookie Tom Gordon, 16-6.

Anderson said he had "no idea" why the Tigers handle the Royals so easily at home.

"I do know we're playing the best we've played all year in the last five days," he said.

Angels & Brewers 4: California, back home from a 4-11 road trip, snapped a five-game losing streak and Brian Downing and Chili Davis each homered and drove in three runs. The Angels have won six in a row at Anaheim Stadium, where they are 45-23. The second-best home record in baseball.

Kirk McCaskill, 15-8, went 5 2/3 innings for the victory, allowing eight hits and three runs. Willie Fraser worked 2 1/3 innings for his second save.

Blue Jays & White Sox 5: Dave Stieb pitched a three-hitter over seven scoreless innings and beat Chicago for the 18th time in 22 decisions as the Blue Jays remained one game ahead of Baltimore in the American League East. Manny Lee drove in two runs with a double and a single of Steve Rosenberg, and Mookie Wilson had a pair of singles and scored twice.

Ortola 3, Indians 1: Baltimore's Cal Ripken became the first shortstop in baseball history to hit two or more home runs in eight consecutive seasons and then doubled home the tie-breaking run in a 1981, winning the first tournament between the NHL and European clubs in Stockholm on their first visit, flew to Karlskrona in western Sweden to set up training camp after a brief stopover at Stockholm's Arlanda airport.

Don Beaupre, Washington's top goalie, did not make the trip because he is holding out for an improved contract, leaving the teams with only three goaltenders. Two of them, South African-born Olof Kolzig and Byron Dufne, were picked 1-2 by Washington in the 1988 Entry Draft and have never played professionally.

The Soviet trip will mark the first time an NHL club has visited the Soviet Union.

Chris, who seems to be in an equally strong mindset, drew Helena Sikova, and Gabriela Sabatini faced Aaron Krichakin in today's women's quarterfinals. The men's matches had a bigger margin against Aaron Krichakin in the afternoon and Boris Becker against Yannick Noah at career now behind her.

"You want to go out feeling that you played well," Navratilova said. "If you play well against somebody, it's easier to swallow. She put so much emotion into the match, there was no much left."

Navratilova has plenty left. I'm playing as good as I did when Anne Minter before the semifinals of the Canadian Open "that I was No. 1." A ranking she surrendered to Steffi Graf in April 1987. She didn't believe then, but when I played her, she said I convinced her.

"It's due to very hard work and a commitment on and off the court, physically and also emotionally," Navratilova said. "That's where I've been looking — I hadn't gotten into a good mindset."

IN BRIEF

Atwell on UConn roster

STORRS — Sophomore Jen Atwell, a Manchester High graduate, is a member of the University of Connecticut women's soccer team. Atwell earned her letter with the Lady Huskies a year ago, seeing action in 11 games. UConn, 1-0, makes its home debut Saturday at 2 p.m. at the Connecticut Soccer Stadium against Monmouth.

Liscomb wins fun run

Todd Liscomb was the overall winner of the Late Children's Museum fourth annual Family Fun Run held on Aug. 26. Liscomb's winning time for the 4.5 mile race was 22:31 with David Cunningham second in 22:33. Lucy Haggerty won the female division with a time of 28:49 with Peggy Chico second in 31:08.

Fd Gorecki took the 30-44 age group in 23:18 with Ron Michael second. David Kobay won the female division with a time of 28:49 with Peggy Chico second in 31:08.

Coventry run on Oct. 1

COVENTRY — The eighth annual Coventry Lions Vision Run/Fun Walk will be held Sunday, Oct. 1, with the start and finish at Coventry High School. For the first time, a non-5K fun walk will start at 10:30 a.m. The 10K race starts at 11 a.m. and the 5K race starts at noon. Both latter races are TAC sanctioned.

Entry fees for 66 with all proceeds go to club projects. For registration forms, contact John Bennett, 98 Talcott Hill Rd., Coventry, 06238, or call 743-9292.

Detrick to coach again

NEW LONDON — Bill Detrick, former Central Connecticut State University men's basketball coach, will return to the sidelines after a two-year absence as the interim coach at the Coast Guard Academy.

Detrick, 62, coached 29 years at CCSU and compiled a 488-289 record. He relinquished his post Dec. 18, 1987, citing health reasons.

Cavallaris acquire Kerr

PHOENIX (AP) — After denying for two weeks that a deal was imminent, the Phoenix Suns traded reserve guard Steve Kerr to the Cleveland Cavaliers for a second-round pick in the 1993 NBA draft.

The 6-foot-3, 170-pound Kerr, Phoenix's second-round pick out of Arizona in 1988, played in just 26 games because he was mostly injured. He averaged 2.1 points per game during his two-year career with the Suns.

Injured was looking for a backup to point guard Mark Price and rumors had been swirling since last month that the Cavaliers wanted Kerr to join their team. The Suns had denied all the speculation.

Lightning kills schoolboy

CAPE CORAL, Fla. (AP) — A high school football player was struck by lightning and killed moments after his coach called the team off the practice field because of a threatening thunderstorm.

Tony McKenna, 17, a middle linebacker and the defensive captain at Mariner High School, was walking off the practice field just before 6 p.m. EDT Tuesday when he was struck by a lightning bolt, police said.

Police officers began mouth-to-mouth resuscitation before he was taken to Cape Coral Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Coach Joe Roles said he had just called the team off the field because of thunder and lightning in the area when the accident occurred.

Notre Dame tops grid poll

NEW YORK (AP) — Notre Dame took over the No. 1 ranking with an impressive win in the Kickoff Classic, while opening losses dropped Southern California, Florida State and Louisiana State out of the Top 10 in The Associated Press' college football poll.

The Fighting Irish, who routed Virginia 36-13 last Thursday, received 31 first-place votes to 18 for Michigan in the first regular-season Top 25.

Michigan opens at home against Notre Dame on Sept. 16 in the first meeting of Nos. 1 and 2 since last Nov. 26, when top-ranked Notre Dame beat Southern Cal 27-16.

Miami was ranked No. 2, followed by four other teams that have yet to be named: Nebraska, Auburn, UCLA and Arkansas. Nebraska received six first-place votes and Miami got four. No other teams received first-place votes.

Canseco player of week

NEW YORK (AP) — Jose Canseco of the Oakland Athletics, who hit five home runs and drove in 14 runs last week, was named the American League player of the week. Canseco batted .520 with 13 hits in 25 at-bats. He had a slugging percentage of 1.169 and a .660 on-base percentage.

Olympians win in ring

LAKE TAHOE, Nev. (AP) — Olympic medalists Ray Mercer and Michael Carbajal both improved their professional records to 8-0 with victories at Harrah's Lake Tahoe.

Mercer, the 33-year-old fighter in the heavy-weight division at Seoul, stopped Dino Horsely at 1:58 of the first round of their scheduled eight-round fight. Carbajal, a silver medalist at Seoul in the 136-pound division, won a unanimous flyweight decision over Jose Luis Herrera in their eight-round flyweight bout.

Second wife makes many sacrifices

DEAR ABBY: My heart went out to "Upset" in Minnesota, who had saved his money to splurge on a nice Father's Day brunch, only to have his father show up with his new wife. No doubt "Upset" was looking forward to a father-and-son brunch.

I notice so many letters in your column contain problems created by the second wife who always wants to be "in the picture," so to speak. In most cases, the second marriage is a traumatic experience for the children, who deserve more consideration than they really get.

As a second wife, during the early years of our marriage, I encouraged my husband to attend his family's graduations, weddings, family reunions and special occasions without me. Though etiquette decrees that the spouse should be invited, there is nothing that says the spouse cannot decline, and I found it was very much appreciated when I did. I might add that the rewards I have received for insisting that my husband attend without me have far outweighed the small sacrifices I made.

Now, in my old age, I have the love and friendship of these children—and

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

their children. They are a part of my family.

A WELL-REWARDED SECOND WIFE
DEAR SECOND WIFE: Most second wives have two strikes against them when they marry a man with a first wife. One is that she usually has to try harder when they're No. 2.

I admire your sensitivity and insight. It paid off handsomely. Other "seconds" could learn from you.

DEAR ABBY: I had to chuckle when I read the letter from the reader who asked if it was appropriate to compliment a lady on her perfume. It reminded me of an experience I once had.

I'd been divorced for about a year when another woman persuaded me to go to a singles dance. A gentleman asked me to dance. I accepted. In the middle of the first number, he leaned over and whispered in my ear, "What's the name of that perfume you're wearing?" You smell just like my dead aunt." With that, he walked off the floor.

Another fellow asked me to dance. The band started off with a real fast number, and he split his pants when he attempted to do the splits. He backed off the floor, leaving me standing there.

It was quite a while before I attended another singles dance.

DEAR LOSER: Thanks for passing on your chuckle. Not every man who asks "Shall we dance?" turns out to be Val Brynner.

TWO-TIME LOSER
DEAR ABBY: Your advice to "Phenoix," who was upset about close friends who were always late, brought back a hilarious memory. (You asked, "If you want to get to the party on time, what do you do?") I was chronically late to everything, so when "Alan" and "Julie" invited me to dinner at 7 p.m., it was Julie's idea to tell me to be there at 6 p.m. Alan didn't like the idea, but Julie insisted. Little did they know that a dear friend had just sat me down and lectured me on the importance of punctuality!

I arrived at Alan and Julie's at 6:03 p.m. When Alan answered the door, he was laughing so hard he could barely get the door open. Julie, who had just stepped out of the shower, was running down the hallway to the bedroom trying to cover her backside with a less-than-adequate towel.

So, Abby, when you advise people to be "chronically late," an hour check me out. I'll have to be early to be sure that they'll arrive on time, tell them to shower early, or have a very large towel handy.

PETER PUNCTUAL
VISTA, CALIF.
DEAR PETER: You'll get no argument from me. But my sympathies are with Julie in Vista, whose embarrassment you so graphically detailed.

Don't put off writing thank-you notes, letters of sympathy, etc., because you never know what to expect. Get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send a check or money order for $4.99 to Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

"SHOOT THE BULL"

EXPRESSION MEANS TO TALK INFORMALLY, AND PROBABLY ROASTFULLY, ABOUT ANY NUMBER OF SUBJECTS.

IT TESTED DURING THE FIRST CENTURY IN THE BARBARIAN WARS. THE COWS AND BULLS WERE KEPT. YOUNG MEN WISHING TO TALK AMONG THEMSELVES SHOT OVER THE FENCE AND DROPPED SUCH GATHERINGS WERE CALLED "BULL SESSIONS." AN ALTERNATE EXPRESSION CURRENTLY IN USE IS "SHOOT THE BULL."

Disorder causes other problems

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is temporal arteritis? Can it be fatal if I don't get help? I'm taking prednisone for it now, but it is ruining my diabetes and blood pressure, making me dizzy and causing headaches. Please explain.

DEAR READER: On occasion, without warning or apparent reason, the normal human body becomes allergic to itself; otherwise healthy immune systems mistakenly identify normal tissue as "foreign." This sets into motion a complicated series of chemical reactions which, quite literally, begin to destroy this healthy tissue.

These diseases—including rheumatoid arthritis, polymyalgia, pernicious anemia and thyroid inflammation—are called autoimmune disorders. Temporal arteritis is such an affliction. It is seen as a chronic inflammation of the temporal arteries, the blood vessels lying over the temples, or temporal bones, of the skull. Most cases occur in patients over 50. The inflammation causes low-grade fever, headache, thickening of the arteries and—sometimes—visual difficulties.

The diagnosis is established by a biopsy, in which a small piece of an affected artery is removed and examined under a microscope for the telltale changes of inflammation and characteristic "giant cells" present in the arterial wall.

Treatment consists of prednisone (purified cortisone) to shut off the body's inappropriate immune reaction. The medicine is usually administered for up to two years, after which time it can be discontinued because the disease ordinarily becomes inactive.

Unfortunately, prednisone has side effects, including worsening of diabetes, fluid retention, bone brittleness, bleeding tendencies, changing facial characteristics, acne and susceptibility to infection. As you have discovered, prednisone can make your diabetes more difficult to control and your hypertension more severe. However, I'm afraid these are necessary trade-offs because you must take the medicine to reduce arterial inflammation before the temporal arteritis leads to visual difficulties or stroke.

Schedule an appointment with your doctor to discuss the pros and cons of prednisone and whether small doses, which would minimize side effects, would be advisable.

If you dream of owning your own home and have been looking for a way to make it possible, you've probably been shocked by the prices.

House prices, even for starter homes," have soared out of sight despite the current soft real estate market in many parts of the nation. Even two-income families are finding it difficult to save for a down payment because of the cost of living.

But these conditions are no barrier to getting started, according to H. J. "Steve" Bloch, author of "Inside Real Estate." Bloch has talked to scores of home buyers in every state and he says, if you're creative, you have at least a dozen reasonable and legitimate options. Bloch cites these alternatives:

- Buy a handyman's special. Anyone skilled enough to do most of the work on a "fixer upper" is in a good position to buy a house in a sorry shape. The buyers of rundown houses who devote spare time to an overhaul will wind up with a good house and will realize an excellent profit, enabling them to step up when they buy their next home.
- Bloch tells of a Des Moines couple who bought a handyman's special with the help of a mortgage broker, who also got them a mortgage that was privately insured against foreclosure. It cost an extra 2 percent because of their lack of savings and low income. Still, they sold the house after three years of hard work for a tidy profit of more than $50,000.

- Lease with an option to buy. For those who have no down payment available, a deal can be worked out with an owner stating that a portion of each month's rent can go toward an eventual down payment.
- Bloch, known to radio audiences for his syndicated real estate show, cites a student in Cleveland who bought a house from a retiree, with $75 of the monthly $500 rent going to the down payment. After three years, the student was able to come up with the rest of the down payment and make the purchase.
- Equity sharing. If a buyer can find a relative, friend or business associate to put up some money, the two can become "partners" in the house. Equity participation deals are also packaged by some companies. Several variations are possible on this arrangement: resident and investor sharing mortgage payments; resident paying rent to the investor for tax purposes, other similar deals.
- After a stipulated period, the property is sold and the investor gets the money back, plus a share of the profit. If the purchaser decides not to sell, he or she can buy out the partner.

Stereotypes frustrate woman

DEAR BRUCE: I am a married female with ten-year children and own a small service business. For some reason everyone seems to think that women are good record keepers. I am a good manager but a lousy record keeper.

Every time I try to hire a clerk to do the records, they seem to think that because I am female, I will be on their back all the time and the working conditions will be unpleasant. Nothing can be further from the truth. I am a good entrepreneur and I know how to deal with customers. My clients come to filing cabinets, computers and paying bills on time. I am functional literate.

How do I persuade prospective employees (usually female) that I will leave their turf to them and I will do what I do best?

P.T.
LYNN, MASS.
DEAR P.T.: You've raised an interesting point. We do assign certain qualities by gender, such as "women are good detail people."

While it may be that women have been assigned these tasks, and many have learned to be good at them, there is nothing inherent in your sex that makes you good at one task and deficient in another. It is difficult for me to understand why you have a problem conveying this to prospective employees.

There are two choices here: rethink the interview process or have someone else in your organization hold interviews for these types of jobs.

DEAR BRUCE: I saw an ad in my local newspaper that announced a sale by a very well-known rent-a-car company. The cars that they are selling are current models at well below the price that the same car would command in a new car dealer showroom.

We are considering buying a new car and every dollar we can save is important. If you've

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Talk show and "Wheel of Fortune" host Pat Sajak will marry a 24-year-old fashion model Lesly Brown in January.

Sajak, 42, and Brown met about a year ago at the opening of the nightclub Champions of Irvine in suburban Orange County. Sajak, spokesman Bob Burton said Tuesday, he said Sajak proposed to Brown on Saturday.

Last year, Ernest P. Worrell was showing up in advertisements, television shows and films in Europe, Asia, Canada and Australia.

Ernest, whose signature phrase is "Know what I mean, Vern?" is returning from a nine-month hiatus from commercials and he's sporting a new contract.

One executive in a large city, says Bloch, was able to persuade his parents to go in with him on a condo. The parents put up the money while the executive paid the monthly mortgage, maintenance and taxes. After five years, the parents will get their money back, plus 60 percent of the sale price; the son gets 40 percent.

FOOD

New Orleans famous for its various cooking styles

New Orleans is a city famous for its foods and a dining paradise for the gourmet. Reflecting French, Acadian and Creole styles of cooking, and taking advantage of the abundance of fresh fish and produce, the foods of New Orleans can only be described as superb.

A visit to the French Market, with its shops along the way or Beignets at the Cafe Du Monde, can be an interesting delight. The market offers the best of items such as fresh catfish and crawfish, peppers, and other spices, as well as fruits and vegetables worthy of selection by world class chefs and restaurants — of which New Orleans has an abundance.

"Spicy" is the word which best describes the various dishes of New Orleans. So, prepared the Louisiana cookbooks printed in New Orleans in 1885. Now, with a little help from the microwave and liberal dishes of hot pepper sauce, the good taste of a recipe from the past can be enjoyed in much less time.

The recipe in today's column all come from a delightful little cookbook called "Taste of Louisiana with a Microwave" by Jean K. Durkee, published by Taste of Louisiana via the Microwave, P.O. Box 30121, Lafayette, La. 70503.

The recipe for roux which follows is used as the thickening base for dishes such as stews, gumbo, Etouffees and sauces. It is not only thickener, but it also gives a different, quite unique and distinct flavor due to the browning of the flour.

NEW, with the microwave, many changes have been made. First of all, a beautiful dark brown roux can be microwaved in a 4-cup measuring cup in 7 minutes. With the addition of chopped vegetables microwaved 5 minutes more, the perfect roux will be ready in 12 minutes.

New entrees high in sodium

Lunch Buckets entrees, West- ern style chili with beans, hot chili with beans, chili mac, pasta 'n' chicken with vegetables, spaghetti 'n' meat sauce, macaroni 'n' beef, lasagna with meat & sauce, hearty beef stew and scalloped potatoes. Flavored with herbs (not just ground beef), whole vegetables (not just microscopic silvers) and hunks of tomato (rather than sauce).

The dark bean-based chili dishes were the best of the lot. The pasta-based dishes were spicier and not as much as comparable microwave cup dishes from Chef Boyardee. Dishes with light sauces (such as pasta 'n' chicken entree) were the least desirable. BHT in this cereal. There are safer substitutes. Otherwise, I hope this cereal is going to change a pace, try serving it with lowfat plain yogurt instead of milk.

Mix oil and flour together in a 4 cup measure. Microwave uncovered on high power for 5 to 7 minutes. Stir at 6 minutes — roux will be a light brown at this time and will need to cook 30 seconds to 1 minute longer to reach the dark brown color so important in making Louisiana gumbo and stews. The roux will be very hot, but usually the handle on your glass measure will stay cool enough to touch. Add onion, celery and bell pepper to the roux in the measuring cup. Stir and return to the microwave. Sauté on high power for 3 minutes.

Add garlic, parsley and green onion to roux, stir and return to microwave. Sauté on high power for 2 minutes. You should have about 3 1/2 cups of roux now. If any oil has risen to the top, pour this off. Slowly add enough hot tap water to bring roux to the 4 cup mark. Stir and you will have a smooth dark roux in only 12 minutes.

Place chicken, onion, celery, wine, water and seasonings in a 2 quart casserole. Cover and cook on high power for 20 minutes. Strain and reserve stock. Cut chicken from the bone when cooled enough to handle, and cut into bite size pieces.

Prepare roux as directed in recipe above. Place roux in a 5 quart casserole. Stir in hot water, stock and seasonings. Cover and cook on high power for 10 minutes. Add chicken and sausage. Cook on high for 10 minutes. Serve over hot cooked rice. Yields 10 to 12 servings.

2 1/2 pounds chicken, cooked (see recipe below)
1/2 cup celery, chopped
1/2 cup onion, sliced
2 cups hot water
3 cups chicken stock
2 teaspoons cayenne pepper
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper
2 cups cooked chicken (cut into bite size)
1 pound sausage, cut in 1 inch slices
Cook chicken recipe:
2 1/2 to 3 pounds chicken
1/2 onion, sliced
1 rib of celery and leaves, cut into pieces
2 cups hot water
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1/2 cup white wine
Place chicken, onion, celery, wine, water and seasonings in a 2 quart casserole. Cover and cook on

Finding alternatives

By James Jacoby

Many deals have a seductive twist to them, in that declarer can be drawn off the best course by an obvious line of play. Today it would be easy for declarer to count nine tricks and to see that there is a 10th trick if clubs split 3-3. So declarer might draw two rounds of trumps and then play the clubs. Even if clubs did not split, there would be some chance that the player short in clubs would not have a third trump, so declarer would be able to ruff the losing club in dummy. Although this is a reasonable play, though there is a reasonable play, there's no need to hurry, particularly when something else is available first.

After West cashes two spades and plays a club, declarer should win in his hand and play a diamond toward dummy's jack. East wins and returns a club, won by South. Now a diamond is played to dummy's ace, and a diamond is ruffed with the heart 10. Unfortunately declarer can still play jack of hearts and a heart to dummy's nine. Hearts do divide, and declarer can now ruff one more diamond and draw trumps. Because the last diamond is now good, he need not worry about the clubs. And if trumps did not divide? Then declarer would have no choice but to play the ace of clubs and hope that it would not be ruffed.
