Paraplegic rescued from burning car

By Nancy Conzelman
Manchester Herald

If David Ebdon hadn't gotten out of his college class 5 minutes early Monday, Richard Mauro might not be alive today.

Ebdon, a 39-year-old resident who lives at 76 South Hawthorne St., was driving on Interstate 84 near exit 60 Monday night when he saw Mauro trapped in his burning car, Bob Bycholski, deputy fire chief of the Town of Manchester Fire Department, said today.

Mauro, a 39-year-old South Windsor resident who is a paraplegic, was treated at the scene by Manchester Fire Department paramedics for a few bumps after Ebdon dragged him from the car. Ebdon, a nursing technician at Manchester Memorial Hospital, said today he probably would not have been in the car had he not gotten out of a speech class at Greater Hartford Community College in Hartford area.

Ebdon said that when he passed Mauro's car around 8 p.m., he noticed a look of terror on the driver's face that was out of proportion to the problem of an overheated engine.

When Ebdon approached the car, he asked Mauro if he could walk. He said Mauro replied, "I can't." Please see RESCUE, Page 10

Administrative ruling favors union at Colt

HARTFORD (AP) — An administrative law judge ordered the Colt Firearms Division to rehire 800 strikers and pay them lost wages, a ruling that could deliver as much as $40 million to striking workers who have picketed for 3 1/2 years.

The decision by Judge Marvin Roth, although not final, sent a wave of joy and vindication through the striking members of the United Auto Workers, who have fought bitterly against Colt.

About Town

Health checks scheduled

The Community Health Care Services, Inc. of Columbia will hold office hours at Town Hall on Oct. 4 from 10 to 11 a.m.

All Coventry residents are eligible to receive blood pressure checks, urine tests, throat cultures, and health information.

Day care providers to meet

The Family Day Care Providers Association will meet on Sept. 19 at 7:15 p.m. at St. Mary's Church, 41 Park St.

A discussion on future workshops is scheduled. Also, Kathy Wilby will speak about recently attending a day care conference in San Francisco.

Registered day care providers are welcome. The cost of the meeting is $1 for non-members of the association.

YWCA workshop set

The Manchester YWCA will hold nutrition, exercise, and stress management workshop on Thursday from 6 to 10 p.m.

The "Vitality for Life" workshop will be held at the Manchester YWCA, 78 N. Main St. The cost of the workshop is $25 for members and $30 for non-members.

Instructor Doreen Lonky will discuss food diets, growing older, and getting what you want during the workshop.

For more information, call 647-1437.

Cammeyer rejoins authority

Donna Cammeyer, a Democrat, has been reappointed to the Parking Authority, Town Manager Richard J. Sartor announced.

Her term will expire in July 1994.

Class of 1934 plans reunion

Manchester High School's Class of 1934 will hold its 55th class reunion on Oct. 13 from 12 to 5 p.m.

A presentation of American in Paris is scheduled. Reservations should be made by Oct. 1. For more information, call Ursula S. Matson at 649-1666.

Groups help sick kids

Funds raised by Brotherhood in Action of Manchester at its second annual Community Breakfast helped pay for a Disney World vacation for three young cancer patients this summer, according to officials at the University of Connecticut Health Center.

Brotherhood in Action — composed of members from UNICO, the Masonic Chapters of Manchester, B'nai B'rith, and the Knights of Columbus — raised $4,000 during the spring breakfast. Another breakfast is planned for March.

The fund-raising efforts are specifically directed toward sending children with life threatening illnesses to Disney World. The trips are arranged through Special Wishes, Inc., an organization that works to make the special requests of seriously ill children come true.

Pollen Count

NEW HAVEN (AP) — The ragweed-pollen count for Connecticut on Tuesday was 92 and the mold-spore level was low, reported the Hospital of Saint Raphael.

Leocadia Snarski

Leocadia (Kilm) Snarski, 68, of 64 Woodland St., died Monday (Sept. 11, 1989) at home after a long illness. She was the wife of Ludwik Snarski.

She was born in Szpazkow, Poland, Dec. 1, 1920, and had been a Manchester resident since 1962. Prior to retiring, she was employed by the Manchester Modes Co. She was a member of St. Bridget Church.

Besides her husband, she is survived by four sons, Joseph Snarski, Rick Snarski, Tony Snarski, and Stanley Snarski, all of Manchester; two daughters, Theresa Snarski of Manchester and Ewa Lesinski of West Hartford; her mother, Josephine K. Kilm in Poland; three brothers, Stanley Kilm, Emil Kilm, and Misiek Kilm, all in Poland; a sister, Maria Piskorska in Poland; and four grandchildren.

The funeral will be held Thursday at 9:15 a.m. at the Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St., with a Mass of Christian burial at 10 a.m. in St. Bridget Church.

Deaths Elsewhere

Jose San Roman

MIAMI (AP) — Jose Alfredo Peral San Roman, the commander of the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba, was found dead at his home Sunday, an apparent suicide at age 58.

San Roman led the 1,500-man brigade of Cuban exiles in the abortive assault on their island homeland in April 1961. Defeated by Cuban troops, more than 1,000 of them were imprisoned nearly two years.

The invasion cost almost 100 lives and the more than 1,000 prisoners were held until December 1962 when they were freed in exchange for food and medicine.

San Roman reportedly had a history of depression in the years that followed.

Paul Gann

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Paul Gann, who helped lead the Proposition 13 tax revolt in the 1970s and fought a losing battle for criminal penalties for those who knowingly spread AIDS, died Monday from the effects of the disease. He was 77.

The self-proclaimed "people's advocate" died of pneumonia "complicated by a problem with the AIDS virus," said Ted Costa, his longtime political aide.

Gann had said he contracted AIDS from blood received during open-heart surgery in 1982, before blood screening for the AIDS virus had been developed.

Watson W. Wise

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Watson W. Wise, a Texas oilman and philanthropist who was appointed a United Nations delegate by President Eisenhower, died Saturday at age 89.

A native of Ohio, Wise graduated from Yale and moved in 1925 to Texas, where he started Wise Operating, Wise Drilling Inc. and Waburn Oil Co. He later wrote three books about his world travels.

Police Roundup

Attempted burglary thwarted

A Manchester man was charged with attempted burglary Saturday after a Cambridge Street woman reported that he and a 15-year-old tried to break into her pickup truck, police said.

Kevin G. Ross, 18, of 27 Ashland St., was arrested at 6 a.m. Saturday on Ashland Street after a woman reported seeing Ross and the minor walk past her home at 56 Cambridge St., turn around and walk over to her pickup truck, which was parked in the driveway, police said.

The two tried to get into the truck, but the woman yelled at them to leave, police said.

Police stopped a car driven by Ross on Ashland Street and found pliers, wire cutters, a screwdriver, a pair of black gloves and a flash light, police said.

Ross was also charged with possession of burglary tools, police said. He was released on a $500 non-surety bond and is scheduled to appear in Manchester Superior Court Wednesday.

The minor's case was referred to juvenile court, police said.

Break-in nets charges

Two Manchester residents were arrested and one charged with third-degree burglary Saturday after breaking into a Chapel Road business and taking a camera, police said.

Bruce J. Currier, 16, of 58 Oxford St., was arrested at 5:44 p.m. at Pressure Blast Manufacturing Co. Inc. at 41 Chapel Road after police were called to investigate an alarm, police said.

Employees at a neighboring business told police they heard voices inside the building, police said. Police saw Currier climbing out a window carrying a camera bag, police said.

Currier told police the minor was still inside, but police found the building empty after searching with a state police dog, police said. The minor's parents later brought him to police headquarters, police said.

Currier was released on $1,000 non-surety bond and is scheduled to appear in Manchester Superior Court Wednesday, police said.

The minor's case was referred to juvenile court, police said.

Two injured in accident

Two Manchester men were injured Friday after the motorcycle they were riding went out of control on Fern Street and skidded under the front of a car, police said.

The driver, Patrick C. Gleason, 18, of 15 Tolland Stage Road, and passenger, Jeffrey Levitt, 19, of 35 Bigelow St., were treated at Manchester Memorial Hospital and released. Patrick's accident occurred at 8:15 p.m. on Fern Street, police said.

As Gleason rounded a corner at the intersection of Fern Street and Gleason's street, the right foot peg dragged on the ground, Gleason said. The motorcycle fell on its side, skidded 38 feet and came to rest under the front of a car that had stopped, Gleason said. The car driver was not injured, police said.

Police said Gleason was going too fast to negotiate the corner.

He was issued a misdemeanor for reckless operation of a motorcycle without insurance, operating under suspension and operating an unregistered motorcycle.

Thoughts

Robert Fulghum repeats the old story about a troubled man who paid a visit to his rabbi. "Rabbi," he said, wringing his hands, "I am a failure. I seem unable to do the right thing even half the time." The rabbi knew that this must be an exaggeration, but he did not argue. After a thoughtful silence, the rabbi answered: "Ah, my son, I give you this wisdom. Go and look on page 930 of the New York Times Almanac for the year 1970, and perhaps you will find peace of mind."

The man went and did as he had been instructed. On page 930 he found a listing of the lifetime batting average of all the greatest baseball players:

- Ty Cobb .367
- Rogers Hornsby .358
- Joe Jackson .356
- Ted Williams .344

First he checked to make sure that he had correctly followed the rabbi's instructions. Then he stared at the page. And then he went back and told the rabbi what he had seen.

"Ty Cobb — .367 — that's it?" he asked incredulously.

"Exactly," said the rabbi. Ty Cobb hit .367. He did a little better than one out of three. He failed more than half the time. So what can you expect?"

The greatest baseball players, like the greatest performers in any area of life, do not succeed all the time. What makes them "successful" is that they have the persistence to keep trying. And they allow themselves the grace of falling short.

District residents agree to purchase fire midi-pumper

By Alex Girelli
Manchester Herald

The Eighth District Fire Department will get its new midi-pumper as the result of a 27 to 18 vote by district voters Monday night to approve $245,000 for the purchase.

Many of the 45 voters who attended the special district meeting were firefighters, and there were firefighters on both sides of the vote. Thomas Tomkunas of 33 Woodland St., a firefighter, spoke in opposition to the appropriation, saying the $245,000 figure is "unrealistic" for a mid-sized pumper without portable equipment.

He asked what it will cost to equip the truck. The equipment was eliminated from the purchase proposal as a means of avoiding the contract price down to about $243,000 from the $303,750 originally asked by Hyman Mack Sales and Service and Salsbury Fire Apparatus Co. At a brief special meeting after the district meeting, the three directors, by a 4 to 0 vote, agreed to purchase the truck.

Tripp said that while the appropriation is for $245,000, which is $70,000 more than the $175,000 already in the district budget, the true added cost is more like $24,000, because there is $21,000 in the budget for apparatus and another $25,000 for training.

Directors Thomas Ferguson, Willard Marvin, and Lorraine Boutin did not attend. The directors plan to sign the contract at their Sept. 18 meeting. It will take about 11 months to build the truck.

In addition to approving the $245,000, the district voters authorized the directors to use a variety of methods of financing the purchase. The $175,000 that was already in the budget for the truck is expected to come from the proceeds of sale of district land on Tolland Turnpike bought as an firehouse site, but no longer needed because the district now owns a firehouse that was formerly the town's.

Coventry contemplates need for volunteer patrol of lake

By Jacqueline Bennett
Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — Following a summary of what many residents have called successful enforcement of the restricted use of Coventry Lake, town officials are now reviewing the merits of adding a volunteer patrol next year.

"If we get some gang-buster volunteers, that could defuse the purpose of having a lake patrol," Town Council member Rose Fowler said.

Fowler says she is concerned such volunteers themselves might end up driving too fast and not obeying the laws they are supposed to be enforcing.

"She added she is apprehensive about the safety aspect of having volunteers with limited training in high powered boats chasing other boats."

Police Chief Frank Trzaskos said Friday he too has some reservations. But he added, "If that's what the town wants, I don't have a problem with it."

Trzaskos said a volunteer patrol would probably be under the auspices of the town Parks and Recreation Commission. He said since the volunteers would not be police officers, there could be problems with enforcing laws.

"They would lose authority, they could run into problems trying to

Racist charge viewed as serious

By Nancy Concolman
Manchester Herald

A town employee accused of broadcasting a racial remark to a black woman has been informed the town considers it a "serious incident" which, if repeated, is grounds for his termination, Assistant Town Manager Steven Werber said today.

Mark Sevez, 37, of Wetherfield, an eight-year town building official, was charged last week with broadcasting equipment in his car, according to Thomas O'Marra, a spokesman for the Eighth Utilities District Fire Department, which Sevez broadcast a racist remark while both were driving on Tolland Turnpike Sept. 1. Cave is director of the Manchester Senior Citizens' Center.

Werber said as a result of the incident, the town will reinstate a program for town employees designed to decrease racial hostilities.

Cave told police Sept. 1 that while driving west on Tolland Turnpike, he moved from the left lane into the right to avoid cones that were diverting traffic to the right lane.

Sevez passed on the right when Cave's car and then cut in front of her as she moved into the right lane. Cave told police. Shortly after, Sevez passed Cave at the intersection of Burnham Street and Chapel Road and reportedly broadcast the racist remark, according to police reports.

It was legal for Sevez to have his broadcasting equipment in his car, according to Thomas O'Marra, a spokesman for the Eighth Utilities District Fire Department, which Sevez broadcast a racist remark to town zoning enforcement officer.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a daughter, Maureen O'Sullivan of Manchester.

The funeral is scheduled for 8 a.m. Thursday at St. Bridget Church.

Resident found dead

By Nancy Concolman
Manchester Herald

Police are investigating the death of a Manchester man found Monday in his garage with his car on top of him, police said.

John O'Sullivan, 58, of 37 Edward St., was found at around 12:45 p.m., police and fire officials said. A jack holding the car up was down, but police and fire officials said they don't know if it was broken.

Officials could not say whether Sullivan was dead when they arrived.

Eighth Utilities District Fire Department spokesman Thomas O'Marra said apparently there was nobody in O'Sullivan's house when the incident occurred. But police records show that Sullivan's wife, Anita, called police at 12:44 p.m.

Detestives at the Manchester Police Department are investigating the incident. An autopsy is scheduled for today at the state medical examiner's office in Farmington, police said.

O'Sullivan, a Manchester resident for the past 24 years, owned the local distributor for Pequot Beverage and had been employed by C&M Warehouse and the Springfield Sugar Co. He was a member of Teamsters Local No. 671.

O'Sullivan was also a member of St. Bridget Church, the Irish-American Home Society of Glastonbury and the British-American Club.

Association calls for toy boycott

NEW YORK (AP) — Call it "Nightmare on Elm Street" Part 6: The Rev. Donald Wildmon says Freddy Krueger.

Wildmon's American Family Association, which has sponsored boycotts of TV programs it considers offensive, on Monday urged a boycott of a doll based on the ghoulish movie character that sports blades instead of fingernails and slays his victims in their dreams.

The Tupelo, Miss.-based group also urged a boycott of stores that stock the doll and a boycott of all silver toys made by Matchbox Toys (USA) Ltd. Matchbox announced last week the doll would be available for Halloween sales.

The doll has a string that, when pulled, causes it to spout such phrases as "Pleasant dreams," "Watch out, Freddy's back," or the character's trademark, "diabolical laugh."

"This doll is the product of a sick mind. The fact that a major toy manufacturer would promote this doll is tragic," said Wildmon, executive director of the group and a United Methodist minister.

Earlier this year, his group protested PepsiCo Inc.'s use of rock star Madonna in TV commercials for Pepsi-Cola because of her performance in a separate video for her song "Like a Prayer." It showed a burning cross and other images that might offend some Christians.

Pepsi in April withdrew its commercial featuring Madonna, saying consumers were confusing the music video with its ad, which contained no religious imagery.

The group, formerly known as the National Federation for Decency, also has urged boycotts of companies that advertise on NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live." Last year, CBS cut 372 seconds from an episode of "Nighty Night" after Wildmon said the scene gave the impression that the cartoon hero was snorting cocaine. CBS said he was sniffing flowers.

Allen Wildmon, the group's associate director and Donald Wildmon's brother, said the group is asking supporters to contact local stores and encourage them to refuse to carry the Freddy Krueger doll.

"We hope to keep this doll from being marketed," he said.

The American Family Association journal claims a circulation of about 380,000, including nearly 180,000 churches and pastors.

Freddy Krueger, the main character in the "Nightmare on Elm Street" horror films, has developed a cult following and has generated some $300 million in domestic and foreign box office receipts and videocassette sales.

The latest sequel, "A Nightmare on Elm Street 5: The Dream Child," was released this summer.

A spokeswoman for Matchbox Toys said no one at the company was immediately available to comment on the call for a boycott.

Reagan keeps up with news

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Former President Reagan, recovering from skull surgery, should be able to return home in a few days and in the meantime is working on paperwork and keeping up with the news, a spokesman said.

"Physicians managing President Reagan's care are hopeful that if the present rate of progress continues, President Reagan will be able to return to California at the end of the week," Reagan spokesman Mark Weinberg said Monday.

He said no specific date has been set for Reagan, 78, to be released from the Mayo Clinic's St. Marys Hospital.

Mayo doctors Fridav drilled a hole in the former president's skull to remove a buildup of blood. Weinberg said the problem stemmed from a July 4 accident in which Reagan was thrown from a horse and hit his head.

On Monday morning, Reagan read newspapers, watched morning television news programs and did routine paperwork, Weinberg said.

Later, Reagan spoke with Gen. Colin Powell, chairman-designate of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who had telephoned over the weekend to extend his good wishes, Weinberg said.

Reagan has spoken several times by phone with his son Ron, and has been looking through the hundreds of cards and messages he has received, Weinberg said.

Democrats hope to snatch victory from jaws of defeat

Democrats are hoping to snatch victory from the jaws of defeat today in special elections to fill the House seats vacated by former House Speaker Jim Wright and Majority Whip Tony Coelho.

New York Mayor Edward Koch is trying to salvage his political career with a come-from-behind victory over David Dinkins, who could become the city's first black mayor.

And in Detroit, Mayor Coleman Young is expected to brush back a swarm of challengers who want to keep him from capturing a record fifth term in November.

The votes in Michigan, New York, Texas and California are among elections held around the country today, including mayors' races in Buffalo, N.Y., New Haven, Conn., and Minneapolis and St. Paul, Minn.

In the two congressional races, Democrats are banking in the support of the leaders they are trying to succeed.

Although Wright and Coelho resigned because of alleged ethics violations, both remain popular and have been central figures in the campaigns to fill their seats.

Wright has campaigned for Democrat Pete Green, a Fort Worth lawyer and former aide to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas. Green faces Republican Bob Lammie, a television media commentator, who has countered with endorsements from President Bush and former Dallas Cowboys coach Tom Landry.

Lammie said he initially worried that Wright's endorsement would be a major factor in the race, but now believes "it hasn't been quite as much as we anticipated."

Still, he conceded that he's "swimming upstream" as a Republican in a district with a long history of sending Democrats to Congress.

In California's San Joaquin Valley, Gov. DeSoto has endorsed Democratic state Assemblyman Gary Condit in a low-key race against Republican Clare Berryhill, a former assemblyman and state agriculture chief.

Berryhill and Condit are considered the leading candidates among the six running. Unless one candidate gets more than 50 percent of the vote, there will be a runoff.

The New York City race, once considered a lost cause for Koch, has turned into a cliffhanger between the trash mayor and his soft-spoken challenger.

Illinois repeals AIDS testing law

CHICAGO (AP) — The governor reluctantly signed legislation to repeal the nation's only premarital AIDS-testing requirement, acknowledging that in 117 years only 52 AIDS cases were found among the 250,000 tests.

"We're talking about tens of thousands who changed marriage plans or went out of state," said the Illinois State Medical Society's research for us," said Rep. Grace Mary Stern, a sponsor of the repeal.

The cost of an AIDS test — ranging from $20 to $150 per person — was blamed for a sharp drop in the number of marriage licenses issued in Illinois, from nearly 100,000 in 1987 to fewer than 80,000 last year.

Couples along the state line reported the sharpest declines, while counties in neighboring states experienced sharp increases. For example, Wisconsin's Kenosha County issued 1,142 marriage licenses to Illinoisans in 1988, compared with 67 a year earlier.

Thompson said the repeal decision was difficult but necessary since the program turned up only 52 cases of 250,000 tests.

"It's pretty clear people were going to neighboring states," Thompson said. "What we were doing was in fact alienating people."

"We were simply penalizing the citizens of Illinois and requiring them to do some unproductive medical research for us," said Rep. Grace Mary Stern, a sponsor of the repeal.

There is "no contemplation" of sending U.S. servicemen to fight drugs wars in Colombia, Peru or Bolivia, even as escorts to local missions, Bush said on Monday.

The president's midday school address, to be broadcast from the library in the White House living quarters, was to be carried live by all four networks, said presidential press secretary Martin Fitzwater.

Additionally, Fitzwater said 70,000 schools with satellite reception capability were asked to make

"The president will urge children to talk to their parents about drugs, to improve communications. He'll discuss their future in terms of saying drugs will slam the door on your future," he said.

"It will be an inspirational discussion," Fitzwater added. "His final message will be to the students can make a difference."

White House Communications Director David Demarest said that, in preparing the address, "there was a fair amount of consideration of who the message was directed to. It is not heavily laden with particular field information."

"It is more of an effort to communicate to the kids why drugs or doing drugs is a mistake and why it's important for kids to try and help other kids, for them to intervene in someone else's life," Demarest added.

Bush's television address today comes as the administration insists its week-old drug policy does not include a U.S. combat role in Latin America.

Bush tells children to talk with parents about drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush is enlisting school children in his war on drugs in a televised appeal aimed at urging young people not to "slam the door" on their futures.

Bush's television address today comes as the administration insists its week-old drug policy does not include a U.S. combat role in Latin America.

There is "no contemplation" of sending U.S. servicemen to fight drugs wars in Colombia, Peru or Bolivia, even as escorts to local missions, Bush said on Monday.

The president's midday school address, to be broadcast from the library in the White House living quarters, was to be carried live by all four networks, said presidential press secretary Martin Fitzwater.

Additionally, Fitzwater said 70,000 schools with satellite reception capability were asked to make the broadcast available to students.

"The president will urge children to talk to their parents about drugs, to improve communications. He'll discuss their future in terms of saying drugs will slam the door on your future," he said.

"It will be an inspirational discussion," Fitzwater added. "His final message will be to the students can make a difference."

White House Communications Director David Demarest said that, in preparing the address, "there was a fair amount of consideration of who the message was directed to. It is not heavily laden with particular field information."

"It is more of an effort to communicate to the kids why drugs or doing drugs is a mistake and why it's important for kids to try and help other kids, for them to intervene in someone else's life," Demarest added.

Refugees fill special camps; border town readies itself

PASSAU, West Germany (AP) — The mass exodus of East Germans continued unabated today and resettlement camps around this border town braced for more refugees after word that another 16,000 had arrived in Hungary.

A day after Hungary began letting East Germans pass freely into Austria, officials in Bavaria said more than 8,500 East Germans had arrived at three separate crossings and more were coming in this morning.

Chief federal government spokesman Hans Klein took to task East Germany's Communist government expressed anger at West Germany and Hungary for arranging the mass exodus, but announced no immediate retaliation. The country's leader, Erich Honecker, was reported Monday to be in worsening condition after gallbladder surgery last month.

East Germany's state-owned ADN news agency accused West Germany of "luring away and misleading citizens of our land" through an "unrestrained slander campaign."

It said Hungary had "unilaterally suspended" agreements between the two countries regarding movement of people across borders.

It was not known how long the exodus of East Germans out of Hungary would last or would be permitted. News reports said the East German woman said after getting off a bus Monday night.

"I would never have imagined the warmth and generosity that we have received here," a young East German woman said after getting off a bus Monday night.

Hungary's action marks the first time a Warsaw Pact country has aided a mass exodus of refugees from an allied Communist nation.

In Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass condemned Western media for what it called a "tendentious campaign" to spur illegal East German emigration.

In Washington, State Department deputy spokesman Richard Boucher praised Hungary for boldly opening its western border in defiance of a Warsaw Pact ally.

"We also commend Austria for its help and support and we admire the efforts of West Germany to offer a home to fellow Germans seeking freedom," Boucher said.

The exodus came after weeks of talks between the two Germans failed. On Sunday night the Hungarian government formally announced it would allow all East Germans to leave for West Germany.

Bakker witnesses describe air-conditioned tree house

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — With testimony in Jim Bakker's fraud trial sounding like a script from "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous," witnesses described the PTL founder's lavish home as a $5,000,000 tree and a two-story, air-conditioned tree house.

Using a wooden pointer and enlarged photographs of Bakker's homes, interior decorator James Taggart on Monday described the decorating work he did for the evangelist.

Taggart's testimony came three days after he was sentenced to more than 17 years in prison and fined $500,000 on tax evasion convictions.

Taggart and his brother David were convicted of evading $225,000 in income taxes on money they received from PTL. Prosecutors have said they might fight a reduction in the Taggarts' sentences in exchange for testimony against Bakker.

James Taggart, 35, said Bakker ordered him to give his Highland Beach, Fla., condominium "a very glamorous look." The tree house and renovated condo in 1982 cost $500,000.

Taggart said he sought to give the octagonal unit the "biblical presence" Bakker liked: plenty of mirrors, and motorized drapes with invisible seams.

Taggart said he decorated the condo for Christmas 1982 with a tree that cost $5,000 and featured hand-blown glass ornaments.

He said he used a special hoist to bring seamless, 25-foot cornices into the condominium. Draperies, bedspreads and headboards were added to a bedroom at a cost of $40,000. The master bedroom drapes could be opened and closed with a switch, he said.

Bakker is on trial in U.S. District Court on 24 counts of fraud and conspiracy. He could receive a 20-year sentence if convicted. Prosecutors say he used nearly $4 million in ministry funds to finance a lavish lifestyle.

The Bakkers had a tendency to grow very bored with what they had. Taggart testified about Bakker and his wife, Tammy, who is not charged. "It was not unusual to see something completely replaced more than once," he said.

"The Bakkers' five-level PTL, S.C., parsonage underwent extensive redecoration," Taggart said. The master bedroom was changed completely at least twice during the living room three times, he said.

In all, 23 witnesses testified Monday, most describing the Bakkers' lifestyle.

Don Hardister, the Bakkers' former bodyguard, testified that the couple's son, Jamie, had a two-story tree house at Tega Cay that at one time was air conditioned.

Prosecutors say he used nearly $4 million in ministry funds to finance a lavish lifestyle.

Taggart said he decorated the condo for Christmas 1982 with a tree that cost $5,000 and featured hand-blown glass ornaments.

Man padlocks his aunt in house 'for own good'

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Police planned no charges against a man who padlocked and nailed his 80-year-old aunt in her apartment because the man did it for what he thought was her own good, police said.

"We did find out from other members of the family that it was done for her protection," Lt. Stephen McCartney said Monday. "Our feeling right now is that no crime was committed."

The woman was found in her West End neighborhood apartment Thursday night by police who had been called by neighbors. Officers found the front door padlocked from the outside and the back door padlocked with a dead-bolt and nailed shut.

A neighbor kicked in the rear door to free her, police said. The initial investigation was slow because the woman spoke only Spanish, officers said.

Police originally thought the woman, whose name was not released, had been imprisoned by her son, but it was her nephew, who took care of her but had to leave to

Let's be frank on call boy

The understatement of the month has come from U.S. Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., who (recently) told a press conference, "I think I have had much better judgment in my public life."

Rep. Frank was talking, as most people probably know by now, of his incredible decision to hire a male prostitute in Washington, D.C., to do "chores and errands" for $20,000 a year.

We obviously don't have to look all the way to Japan for sex scandals in government. Rep. Frank has shown that it is possible for even a good congressman to make some colossal errors of judgment, mistakes of the kind that lead to grave embarrassment or even blackmail.

Rep. Frank's story is that he hired one Steve Gobic, a.k.a. Fred Davis, for sex through an ad for a male escort service. Once, then, we are asked to believe, Rep. Frank was so consumed with concern for this man that he decided to try to "rehabilitate" him. He gave him a steady job (paid for with Rep. Frank's personal funds) in which he would run errands, drive Rep. Frank's car, do housework, and so on, and live in the apartment when Rep. Frank was away. We presume that one additional duty has been left off that list.

This 18-month relationship ended abruptly two years ago, says Rep. Frank, when he found his friend using his apartment for still more prostitution.

Let us leave Rep. Frank's then-undisclosed homosexuality out of it. Consider his sexual orientation to be irrelevant.

What Rep. Frank did in 1985 was hire a prostitute — once for a sex act, then to work for him full time. It wouldn't have mattered one whit if the prostitute were of the opposite sex; the offense would be equally serious. What congressman, after all the scandals that have hit Washington over the years — Wayne Hayes and Wilbur Mills come to mind — does such a thing under any circumstances and expects no trouble?

Rep. Frank and some Democrats blame the Republicans for spreading these stories to disgrace the opposition, particularly since Rep. Frank was the one who said flippantly that he could name a half dozen Republican homosexuals if he chose to. And maybe Republicans are doing what Rep. Frank says. But the fact is, he is the one who hired a prostitute and has to answer for it.

"I hired him out of a charitable impulse," said Rep. Frank. "I misjudged his character."

It does seem to us that some "impulse" was involved here, although hardly a charitable one. Rep. Frank isn't misjudging the character of someone in a position of trust.

Pete Rose is no loss to baseball

For several weeks now, I've been worrying about what I was going to write over and over again about Pete Rose. I had to get serious about worrying again.

I'm very good at the art of worrying. I learned at the knee of my paternal grandmother. Given credit for life experience, this lady would have had a Ph.D. in Pessimism. She quit this world six years ago, God rest her soul, but she enjoyed 88 years of studious worrying and taught her disciples well.

But make no mistake about it. Despite Rose's disclaimers and his lawyer's double talk, Giannetti did what had to be done. He banished a manager who, all the evidence indicates, bet on games in which his own team played. There is no room in baseball for such a man, if the integrity of the game is to be preserved.

It was sad that Rose had to be banished; it was even sadder that he seemed to have no sense of how grievously he had wounded and disgraced the game he professed to love so much.

That, in the end, is the great tragedy of Pete Rose. A man whom millions of fans admired and millions of kids idolized betrayed their trust. And, when confronted with what he had done, he saw it as no more serious than mugging a groundskeeper or going hitless in a game.

Yes, he said, he had made mistakes. No, he didn't intend to get help for his gambling problem. Yes, he saw no reason why he couldn't be back in the game next year. It was all as if he had pulled a hamstring and had been forced to sit out a few games.

The measure of Pete Rose the baseball player is written for all to see in the awesome statistics he compiled in his 24-year career. The measure of Pete Rose the man was equally evident for all to see when on the very night he was banished from the game for the rest of his life, he was hawking autographed baseballs and Pete Rose T-shirts on one of the home-shopping television networks.

As great as he was on the diamond, baseball is well rid of Pete Rose.

Labor Day a New Year

By Ben Wattenburg

New Year's Day doesn't mark the beginning of the new year, Labor Day does. People come back from the beach, or from the mountains, or to their senses, and start afresh.

It's foolish to have new year's resolutions around New Year's Day. We need resolutions for the new year just after Labor Day. So we will get them, now, here.

All the silly ways to make predictions will be used in the present exercise, in discriminate. False prediction methodologies include a) the future will resemble the past; b) straight-line extrapolation; c) new machines that are coming, and d) watching key personalities.

Using such methods explains why we still use the horse and buggy, why we ran completely out of oil, why we commute to work in strap-on helicopters, and why in 1979 everyone knew that Reagan and Gorbachev would be the big players in the 1980s.

Here's what will happen:

- On Labor Day 1990, President Bush will be prudently negotiating to get our hostages back.
- After one more hot-summer, a new scientific theory will emerge: "global cooling," creating the well-known "refrigerator effect" substances will be used to burn their carbon dioxide into the air.
- Damn! Someone else will come up with my two favorite inventions. One is an inflatable suitcase that is activated by a CO2 pellet. When the bag is inflated, you may halt a cab, Cabs screen to a halt, expecting a fare to the airport. The other invention is a foldable tennis racket that can be packed in a flat, standard-size suitcase. The tennis racket can also be used to defend yourself from cab drivers foiled by your inflatable bag.

- A blue-ribbon committee will announce that America is too deeply in debt, that we're mortgaging the future of our children, and we'll have to pay the piper, probably by the year 2050, if not later. (Their formulation does not include the education, roads, medicines, and defense of the republic that our children will have received from deficit financing.)
- People will begin talking in computer language, probably WordPerfect. Thursty: "Please. Pl my subscription" (Cancel) Or: "T3, P3, I'm drowning" (Help, Help) Or: "Democrats move to the Shift-F6" (Center) Or: "Alt. F4 that kick" (Block)
- Mayor Koch will still be the mayor of New York.
- Readers' choice: Jesse Jackson (will) will not be running for mayor of Washington. No choice: Jesse Jackson will be running for president.
- The '90s will have begun. This is so even though the '90s do not officially begin until Jan. 1, 1991, which has something to do with when the year zero was. The '90s begin when people say "Well, we're in the '90s now."

What, me worry? Of course

Did CIA know of missiles?

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — A secret Senate investigation has uncovered the possibility that the Central Intelligence Agency knew far more than it admits about the 1985 shipment of American missiles to Iran.

A former CIA desk officer told two Senate committees this summer that the CIA knew about an Iran-contra investigating committee in 1987 implied the CIA was a latecomer to the operation, not learning about it until November 1985.

The information raises the possibility that the Iran-contra committee in Congress were duped when they tried to piece together the details of the operation to swap arms for American hostages. It also raises the specter of perjury by anyone who knowingly misled the committee to believe that the CIA was not involved until November, after two missile shipments had already been made.

Our sources say those questions are now being secretly investigated by the Senate Intelligence Committee.

As we reported earlier, the Iran-contra issue was reportedly reopened this summer when two Senate committees, working with the General Accounting Office, began probing the question of what federal agencies knew about the illegal arms shipments. Sources told our associate Stewart Harris that the FBI had developed information about the September shipment and took it to the CIA, only to be told off because it was a "White House operation."

All of that occurred shortly after the September shipment — early October at the latest — the former CIA desk officer has told the Senate committees.

In contrast, the Iran-contra report compiled by the Congressional investigating committee says that then-CIA William Casey didn't find out about the arms-for-hostages deal until Nov. 14, 1985, in a meeting with former National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane.

National Security Council consultant Michael Ledeen told the Iran-contra committee that before Nov. 14, the NSC had left the CIA in the dark because the White House was afraid the CIA might leak the information.

Thomas E. Hubbard, director of the state Office for Economic Development, said Monday the Chicago site was closed because it could accommodate U.S. Memories specifications, including lower housing costs than sites around Route 128.

He said the nine state selected to offer bids were among the 12 finalists who bid for the Sematech consortium that eventually went to Austin, Texas. Kane spearheaded the creation and site selection of Sematech.

Friday is the deadline for offering the proposal. Other state in-bids to bid are Texas, California, Arizona, Oregon, Colorado, North Carolina, New York, and Missouri.

BUSINESS

Outlook is bright for defense firms despite budget cuts

BOSTON (AP) — Despite anticipated cuts in U.S. military spending, the outlook for New England defense contractors is bright, according to Sen. Warren B. Rudman, R-N.H., and Bank of Boston President Ira Seganian.

Seganian and Rudman, a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, gave optimistic assessments Monday at a Boston seminar on economic policy attended by 50 businessmen.

Stepanian said the economic growth of New England in the 1970s showed the region's business was flexible and able to seize new opportunities.

"I regard this as encouraging, for it suggests that even with a leveling or fall-off in defense spending, this region's major defense contractors can adapt successfully to new circumstances," Stepanian said.

But the provost of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, John M. Deutch, said he did not share Rudman's and Stepanian's optimistic view. Deutch said the Defense Department is suffering from incompetent middle management and researchers.

"If one does not take steps to assume a more competent set of individuals, it will not be possible to carry out defense programs effectively," said Deutch, a former member of an academic advisory board to the secretary of defense.

Herbert Roth Jr., former chairman of LFE Corporation, a defense contractor, agreed with Roth and suggested that bright defense industry employees branch into other related fields, such as software and computer technology.

According to the Bank of Boston, New England receives about 12 percent of the nation's defense contracts, although it contains only about 5 percent of the U.S. population. Of the six New England states, Massachusetts is the leader in defense.

Rudman contended that defense contractors can turn their experience with research and development of advanced technology to maintain steady profits even with expected cuts by the Defense Department.

Companies in the region currently assist in the development of programs like the B-2 bomber, Advanced Tactical Fighter and the Midgeman and MX missile systems, said Rudman.

The seminar was part of a series sponsored by the Bank of Boston and three Boston-based newspapers, The Boston Globe, The Boston Herald and the Christian Science Monitor. The seminars, now in their 12th year, focus on national defense policy and how it affects New England.

Massachusetts offers Chicopee as site for chip-making plant

BOSTON (AP) — Massachusetts is offering up nearly 60 acres at the former Westover Air Force Base in Chicopee in its bid to lure U.S. Memories, a new, well-financed memory chip maker that plans to employ 3,000 people by 1993.

Massachusetts was one of nine states invited to bid for the company, launched to revive the nation's memory chip industry now dominated by the Japanese.

Thomas E. Hubbard, director of the state Office for Economic Development, said Monday the Chicopee site was closed because it could accommodate U.S. Memories specifications, including lower housing costs than sites around Route 128.

Lawyer wins order to stop broker calls

BOSTON (AP) — A Newton lawyer, fed up with unsolicited sales calls, has won a court order telling Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner & Smith Inc. and its 12,000 brokers to leave him alone.

The order, which Merrill Lynch has appealed, was issued June 2 in Middlesex Superior Court by Judge Robert J. Halsey and was reported today in The Boston Globe.

The decision permanently enjoined the nation's largest brokerage house from telephoning Alan J. Schlesinger at his office.

It's been something that has bothered a lot of people, but they don't have the sense they can do something about it," Schlesinger said.

But, William Fitzpatrick, general counsel for Securities Industry Association, which represents brokerage houses, said, "It sounds like much ado about nothing."

"Being a fellow lawyer, I guess he doesn't have enough brains to hang up. It sounds like he's using an atom bomb to deal with a 'nat."

Schlesinger — 61 that for years he would get a couple of unsolicited calls a month from stockbrokers, and that Merrill Lynch was the most persistent with three or four calls a year.

He said he wrote to Merrill Lynch in December 1984 asking that it order its sales representatives not to call him.

He wrote again one year later, citing another call, and this time demanding $1,000 damages for harassment and threatened to sue if the calls did not agree to stop the calls.

The calls continued, and the last straw came in May 1988 when Schlesinger returned a call from an unknown woman in New York, and found she was a Merrill Lynch broker with an investment proposal.

"I just thought it was so totally inappropriate to make someone call you back long distance to try to sell you stock," Schlesinger told the Globe. "At that point, I said I am going to get their attention."

He sued and now wonders whether the court ruling could lead to expansion of privacy rights.

Fred Yager, a Merrill Lynch vice president, thinks the company will win the appeal.

Merrill Lynch said that after Schlesinger won the court order, it sent a memo to Boston area offices asking that brokers not call him.

In Brief . . .

Drexel pleads guilty

NEW YORK (AP) — Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. has pleaded guilty to six felonies and began paying more than $650 million as punishment for unprecedented securities law violations.

The plea in federal court Monday had been expected since Drexel and the government reached an agreement on the charges in January but had been delayed by challenges by Drexel's indicted bond trader Michael Milken.

Drexel pleaded guilty to four counts of securities fraud and two counts of mail fraud and agreed to pay a record total of $650 million plus interest and civil insider trading fines to resolve charges dating to 1984.

Two firms sued

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal regulators are suing two commodity options firms, charging they misled customers on the risks involved in investments that ran up millions of dollars in losses over five years while the firms took hefty sales commissions.

Siegel Trading Company Inc., based in Chicago, and International Trading Group Ltd., with headquarters in San Mateo, Calif., were sued separately by the Commodity Futures Trading Commission on Monday in federal court for the central district of California.

Merger announced

ATLANTA (AP) — BellSouth Corp. and LIN Broadband Corp. say they are merging their cellular operations to become a "powerhouse" company with a half-million customers and dominance in some of the industry's top markets.

The non-cash deal announced by the two companies Monday comes just a few months after New York-based LIN rejected an unsolicited $5.85 billion buyout offer from McCaw Cellular Communications Inc., the current No. 1 in cellular customers.

Withdrawals down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Net deposit withdrawals at the nation's thrift institutions fell to a nine-month low of $183 billion in July, the government said.

The outflow, reported Monday, was the smallest since October and followed a $4.6 billion withdrawal in June. The Office of Thrift Supervision attributed the decrease

Stock prices lower

Sporadic selling pushed stock prices lower Monday in the quietest trading in 10 weeks, extending last week's pullback from record highs. The Dow Jones industrial average closed with a 5.13 loss at 2,704.41.

The dollar closed mostly lower amid profit-taking on domestic markets after rising in overseas trading.

Bond prices rose in light trading.

Copper futures prices rose sharply; precious metals futures fell; energy futures were mixed; grains and soybeans were mixed; and livestock and meat futures were mixed.

Jobless rate up

BOSTON (AP) — New England's unemployment rate stood at 4 percent in July, compared to 3.3 percent recorded one year earlier, according to Anthony J. Ferrara, regional chief of the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Nationally, the jobless rate was 5.3 percent, a drop of 0.2 percent over a year earlier. All six New England states posted higher unemployment rates for July compared to 1988.

Ferrara said New Hampshire's 3.2 percent unemployment was along with Virginia, the second lowest in the nation. The highest rate in the region was 4.6 percent in Massachusetts.

Death benefit hiked

CINCINNATI (AP) — A woman who sued her husband's employer for additional life insurance benefits after he died in a 1986 motorcycle accident has lost her appeal in federal court.

A three-judge panel of the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled 2-1 Monday that $20,000 in death benefits paid by the Paul Revere Life Insurance Co. to Rebecca Messer constituted the company's obligation.

Mr. Messer's husband, David Messer, was fired from his job as a grounds and maintenance supervisor at a Columbus company on June 10, 1986 — weeks before the July 2, 1986, fatal accident in Columbus.

Police on guard after strike hits North Haven firm

By Larry Rosenblatt The Associated Press

NORTH HAVEN — Police officers dressed in riot gear were sent to maintain order after more than 200 workers at Circuit-Wise Inc. walked off the job and set up picket lines.

Union officials accused the police department of helping the company try to intimidate the strikers, but a police official said standard procedures were being followed.

At least seven officers wearing riot helmets kept a path clear Monday afternoon for cars entering and leaving the plant's main gate, as a police command post was set up in a trailer across the street.

Sgt. Thomas Mele said about 25 officers were sent to the plant to keep the peace after members of Local 299 of the United Electrical Radio & Machine Workers of America began picketing Monday morning.

Circuit-Wise makes circuit boards for Ford Motor Co.

One worker was arrested at noon on charges of breach of peace and interference with a police officer after going onto the company's property and allegedly pushing an officer when told to leave, police said.

At least a half dozen members of a private security company were stationed throughout the parking lot, and a videocamera operated by the firm was trained on the picket line from a security booth.

Billy Holden, a union organizer, called the show of force by North Haven police unusual. "This is incredible. I think they are trying to intimidate people," he said.

But North Haven Police Capt. W.J. Cummings said the department was following standard strike procedures.

"During the first days of a strike we don't know what to expect," he said.

If conditions warrant it during the coming days, he said, the police presence would be reduced and the riot gear eliminated.

walk. I can't get out of the car. I think it's going to blow." Eblon said he dragged Mataro about 80 feet or so and then collapsed on him. Later a passer-by helped him drag Mataro further from the car.

Town of Manchester firefighters and paramedics and East Hartford firefighters responded soon after.

Bycholski said Mataro had been driving on I-84 when his engine light came on. When he pulled over near the West Middle Turnpike exit and popped his hood, flames and smoke shot out of the engine compartment and smoke filled the passenger compartment.

Bycholski said Mataro had been trying to flag down drivers when Eblon stopped. Mataro could not be reached for comment today.

Fire Chief John C. Rivosa said there was a possibility Mataro might have been killed if he hadn't been dragged from the car.

Trade

$27.72 billion in the second quarter. The other segment of the current account, unilateral transfer payments, which cover U.S. foreign aid payments and pensions to Americans living overseas, fell by 11.4 percent to $3.1 billion in the spring.

The current account deficit reflects the sum of the deficits in services, merchandise trade and unilateral transfers.

For the first six months of the year, the current account deficit ran at an annual rate of $122.76 billion, down only slightly from the 1988 deficit of $126.55 billion. The 1988 deficit reflected a 12 percent improvement from an all-time high of $143.7 billion in 1987.

Many economists predict the current account deficit will show little improvement this year and will actually begin to worsen again in 1990. They base this pessimism on the fact that the U.S. dollar has risen sharply in value against other currencies.

That increase is expected to cut into the growth of U.S. exports since a stronger dollar makes American goods more expensive on overseas markets.

Because the current account covers both merchandise trade and investment flows, it provides a measure of the amount of money the United States must raise abroad to finance its economy.

At the start of this decade, the United States was running surpluses in its current account because earnings from American investments abroad were enough to offset potential deficits in merchandise trade.

But as Americans transferred bil-

ions of dollars into foreign hands to pay for imported cars and televisions, the investment cushion shrank rapidly and disappeared altogether in 1985, when the United States became a net debtor for the first time in 71 years.

Simply put, that means foreigners now own more in U.S. assets than Americans own overseas. At the end of 1988, that net debtor position stood at $532.5 billion, up 41 percent from 1987.

The trade performance so far this year suggests that the country's net debtor position is now approaching $560 billion.

Many economists worry America's standard of living will deteriorate in coming years as the country is forced to transfer more and more of its wealth into foreign hands to service its foreign debts.

Experts at the Institute for International Economics said Monday the effort to lower America's trade deficit by stabilizing the dollar at lower levels failed because the Bush administration did not make the effort to a high priority with major industrial countries, known as the Group of Seven.

"The G-7 process is in shambles," Bergen said. "The financial markets now view the G-7 process as having lost all of its credibility, they have violated their own target zones (for the dollar's value) and have made no serious or concerted effort to preserve them."

He placed major blame for the breakdown on Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady, who Bergen said had not been as forceful in pushing coordination as his predecessor, Treasury, James A. Baker III.

limits established by the state commission, the spokesman said. This will not compromise the hospital's services. "We are confident that we can provide the community with high quality care," he added.

Although the hospital's request will not necessitate a detailed budget review, the hospital has requested a partial review in anticipation of receiving an additional rate increase, the spokesman said. The increase is needed to pay for the hospital's new management information system which is currently being installed.

To acquire a partial review, a hospital must have a special exception, the spokesman said, and Manchester is based on that need. He said the commission approved an increase last year and there is no reason why they should not this year.

Manchester Memorial expects to hear from the commission by Friday, the spokesman said.

Mentally retarded sue in dispute over care

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Eight mentally retarded and disabled people who live with aging relatives have filed suit against the state, claiming the Department of Mental Retardation is denying them the residential care offered to others.

The lawsuit, assigned Monday to U.S. District Judge Jose A. Cabranes, seeks a court order to force the state to admit them into state-run group homes.

The suit names as plaintiffs eight mentally retarded and disabled people, ages 22 to 61, who have been on a waiting list between one and 12 years while seeking admission to group homes for the retarded.

The plaintiffs live with relatives, ages 55 to 77, who are growing too old or disabled to continue to provide care for their retarded children, according to the suit.

James A. Trowbridge, a University of Bridgeport law school professor and legal clinic lawyer who is representing the eight, said Monday that the court is seeking

Meanwhile, the chairman of the commission is shocked about the rate increases requested by hospital's statewide. "I am shocked at these huge increases which would burden health care consumers and insurance companies with $540 million in additional charges next year," said commission Chairman Gardner E. Wright Jr.

Wright says hospital patients and insurance companies will be forced to pay about $540 million more in hospital bills next year if Connecticut's 34 general hospitals get the 18 percent rate increases they are seeking.

The figures released Monday showed that requested budget increases differed at each hospital. The highest was 42.7 percent at Waterbury Hospital, Wright said.

Wright said the requests would be reviewed during the next 10 days.

The 1989 math average was 473, compared with 472 a year ago, Trozzi said Monday, noting that that national average is 476. The verbal average remained at 435 in Connecticut, while the national average was 427.

Average female test scores dropped in Connecticut, Trozzi said, from 431 last year to 427 this year on the verbal test, and from 454 to 451 on the math test.

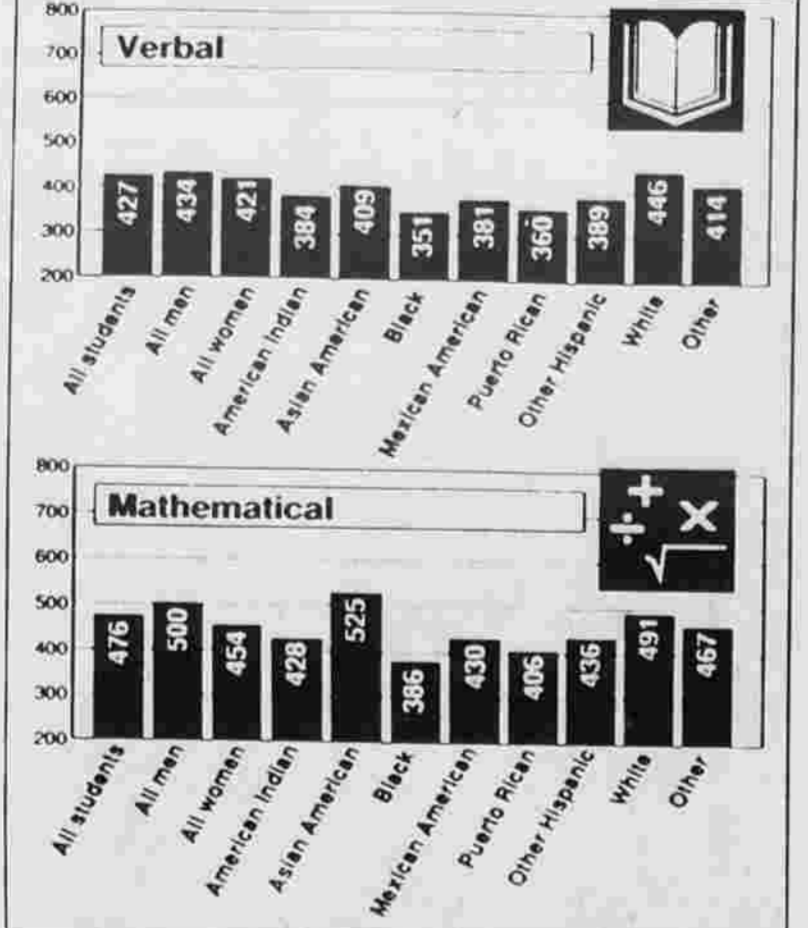

Male averages were 444 for the verbal test, up a point from last year; and 496 on the math test, up four points from 1989.

tion, N.J., is the predominant college entrance exam in 22 states. The two-part multiple-choice test is scored on a scale of 200-800, with a combined 1600 being a perfect score.

The ACT, taken by 855,171 high school students during the last school year, is administered by American College Testing of Iowa City, Iowa. The organization announced that beginning October, students will receive 12 scores instead of the current five, including seven subscores in specific content areas of English, math and reading.

Robert G. Cameron, executive director of research and development for the College Board, said he was disappointed by the erosion in average verbal scores. He attributed the decline in part to an increase in recent years in the number of test-takers whose first language is not English.

The latest results also were certain to fuel the perennial debate over whether the tests are valid predictors of college success, and whether, as critics insist, the tests are biased against females and minorities.

Critics led by the Cambridge, Mass.-based "FairTest" say SAT questions tend to cover subjects that male and affluent test-takers are more likely to be familiar with.

College Board president Donald M. Stewart attributed the continued lag in SAT averages among women and minority students to inequities in educational opportunities.

"College Board research reveals a strong relationship between the strength of a student's high school preparation and his or her test scores," Stewart said.

HARTFORD (AP) — College-bound high school seniors scored about the same on the Scholastic Aptitude Test this year as they did last year, but Education Commissioner Gerald N. Trozzi said he is concerned about a slight dip in female scores.

engaged in dozens of unfair labor practices during the strike.

The company has until Oct. 5 to appeal his decision to the National Labor Relations Board in Washington. The decision was dated Thursday and released Monday by the labor board's Hartford office.

About 1,050 workers walked off the job at Colt plants in Hartford and West Hartford Jan. 24, 1986, after working 10 months without a contract.

The division, which was put up for sale by New York-based Colt Industries in April, has managed to keep the plants operating, replacing workers hired during the strike and about 200 union members who crossed picket lines.

Michael G. Dunn, a spokesman for Colt Industries in New York, said Colt's lawyers would have to study the complicated ruling before deciding whether to appeal.

"We're still looking at it and seeing what it all means," Dunn said.

If neither side appeals, the five-member labor board will adopt Roth's decision, said John Sauter, assistant regional director for the labor board in Hartford.

Roth's decision came more than a year after a six-month hearing on 28 complaints issued by the labor board's Hartford office against Colt.

The Hartford office had also issued two complaints against the union.

Roth dismissed Colt's allegations that its negotiators had been threatened by the union, but did find that union members were guilty of strike misconduct by threatening people and property during picket-

Picture not pretty, but Giants prevail

By David Ginsburg
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — If it were a painting, Giants coach Bill Parcells might have stuck New York's 27-24 victory over the Washington Redskins in a closet.

"It wasn't a Rembrandt, I'll tell you that. We were struggling," Parcells said after watching the Giants and Redskins combine for three interceptions and four fumbles Monday night.

After blowing a 14-0 lead, the Giants battled back from a 24-21 deficit in the closing minutes to beat their NFC East rivals on Raul Allegre's 52-yard field goal as time expired.

Despite the turnovers, the teams combined to put on quite an offensive show. Washington quarterback Mark Rypien threw for 349 yards, with six seconds left, New York turned to Allegre, who ended it with a kick that just crept over the crossbar.

All told, Washington had 457 total net yards and the Giants accumulated 390.

"We were having trouble stopping them, that's quite obvious, and they had trouble stopping us," Parcells said. "It wasn't a typical Giants-Redskins game."

Typical in the result, too. New York has now beaten Washington in six of the last seven non-strike games.

"We just had so many plays in there where we turned the ball over or had the ball in our hands and couldn't get it done," Redskins coach Joe Gibbs said. "It was a bitter loss."

Former Atlanta Falcon Gerald Riggs, in his first regular season game with the Redskins, gained 111 yards but fumbled twice, each time as Washington was driving for an apparent score.

Also, Earnest Byner, acquired from Cleveland during the offseason, dropped a sure touchdown pass on the goal line that forced Washington to settle for a field goal.

Still, the Redskins could derive some satisfaction from their rally for a 21-10 fourth-quarter deficit to take the lead. A 6-yard scoring pass from Rypien to Art Monk made it 21-17, and 54 seconds later Monte Coleman took an interception into the end zone from 24 yards out.

In a game in which the offenses did a better job of stopping themselves than the opposing defenses did, the Giants won the game with two flawless fourth-quarter drives.

Down 24-21, New York got the tying field goal on a 54-yard march that was highlighted by a 44-yard pass from Simms to Odessa Turner.

Then, after forcing Washington to punt, Simms directed the Giants on a beat-the-clock possession that covered 36 yards in 44 seconds. With six seconds left, New York turned to Allegre, who ended it with a kick that just crept over the crossbar.

"I felt good as soon as I hit it," said Allegre, who earlier missed a 42-yarder. "I looked like it was going straight and I felt it had the distance."

Although Rypien had the better numbers, Simms got the victory. Fighting against a defense that sacked him four times, the 11-year veteran did everything he had to do straight opening day triumph over the Redskins.

"Simms is a Pro Bowl quarterback," Coleman said. "He has the ability to bring his team back when they're behind. As usual, he did what he had to do."

Simms sussed the Giants to a two-touchdown lead in the first half by throwing scoring passes of 30 yards to Turner and 62 yards to rookie Dave Meggett.

Washington cut the gap to 14-10 on a 24-yard field goal by Chip Lohmiller and a 48-yard Rypien-to-Allegre touchdown pass.

"I didn't think we had the game won," Coleman said after his touchdown return. "Simms is a Pro Bowl quarterback. You know he always has the ability to bring a team back."

And he did.

Three plays after the Washington touchdown, with the Giants facing first down and 21 on their own 34, Simms dropped back, stepped up into the pocket and lofted the ball deep downfield. Waiting at the other end was the 6-foot-3 Turner, who last year caught eight passes for 103 yards against the Redskins before being lost for the season with a knee injury.

Turner, who earlier caught a 30-yard touchdown pass from Simms by wrestling the ball away from Washington's Darrell Green, was sandwiched by two shorter defenders, Todd Bowles and Brian Davis. Turner leaped, grabbed the ball and fell to the ground at the Washington 22. Six plays later, Raul Allegre kicked a 52-yard field goal to tie the game 24-24.

Then, for the first time in the fourth quarter, the New York defense held Washington on the next series.

Raul Mojsiejenko's punt pined New York back at its own 15, but Greg Manusky was detected as interference, was sitting helplessly on the bench as Allegre's kick ended the game.

"I enjoyed my play but we came up one play short," Coleman said. "Make that two plays, and an extra bit of us we receiver when it mattered most."

In six plays, Simms had moved the Giants to the Washington 35 with six seconds showing on the clock. Allegre, who had missed a 42-yard field goal at the end of the first half, came on to try a 52-yarder. It wasn't a total onslaught for Giants coach Bill Parcells.

"I felt good as soon as I hit it," Allegre said of a kick that barely got over the crossbar. "I looked like it was going straight and I felt I had the distance."

Coleman, who for a short time was the man who made the difference, was sitting helplessly on the bench as Allegre's kick ended the game.

Turner leaped, grabbed the ball and fell to the ground at the Washington 22. Six plays later, Raul Allegre kicked a 52-yard field goal to tie the game 24-24.

Then, for the first time in the fourth quarter, the New York defense held Washington on the next series.

Raul Mojsiejenko's punt pined New York back at its own 15, but Greg Manusky was detected as interference, was sitting helplessly on the bench as Allegre's kick ended the game.

"I enjoyed my play but we came up one play short," Coleman said. "Make that two plays, and an extra bit of us we receiver when it mattered most."

Vincent succeeds Giamatti

By Ronald Blum
The Associated Press

MILWAUKEE — Fay Vincent, the former movie studio head who came to baseball last year as Bartlett Giamatti's deputy, will be elected commissioner on Thursday, The Associated Press has learned.

Vincent most probably will be elected to a four-year term, until April 1, 1994, said a source familiar with the owners' plans, who spoke on the condition that he not be identified.

"It will be smooth, simple. No opposition," the source said on Monday.

A quarterly joint meeting of American League and National League owners is scheduled for Thursday at Milwaukee. Baseball's nine-man executive committee, which has been running the sport since Giamatti's death on Sept. 1, is scheduled to meet today at Milwaukee and the owners from each league will meet separately on Wednesday.

A commissioner can be elected only during a joint meeting of the leagues and must receive three-quarters of the votes, including at least five from each league.

Vincent, 51, is the former chairman and chief executive officer of Columbia Pictures Industries Inc. He joined Columbia in 1978 after David Begelman, the former chairman, was found to have forged checks.

Los Angeles Dodgers president Peter O'Malley and New York Mets president Fred Wilpon both praised Vincent on Monday but declined to predict what the owners would do.

"Although a lot of us have known him only nine months, he has impressed us more and more as we've gotten to know him," said O'Malley, who is on the executive council. "He's a very able, proven executive. He seems to be very frank, very honest, very open."

Wilpon, who owns 50 percent of the Mets, said he first was introduced to Vincent by Giamatti several years ago at a Mets game.

"I'm certainly very much in support of Fay Vincent as a person and as one who had the qualifications and qualities a commissioner should have," Wilpon said. "He's a very impressive guy and has an impressive background. He's intuitive, has very high integrity. He's thoughtful and very bright. He's a nice person. Someone it's very hard to find a person who's both good and nice."

Vincent, who lives in Greenwich, Conn., managed to keep a low profile in movie industry, concentrating on the financial end of the business. Unlike Giamatti, a former president of Yale University, and Peter Ueberroth, head of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, Vincent has never been in the public spotlight.

That doesn't bother Wilpon.

"The job itself will make him a much more public person because of the nature of the job," the Mets owner said.

The executive council, meeting by conference call the day after Giamatti's death, named Vincent acting commissioner, an informal title that doesn't exist under the Major League Agreement. The executive council consists of four owners from each league and the league presidents. One AL spot is vacant following the resignation of Seattle Mariners owner George Argyros.

Argyros has agreed to sell the Mariners to a group headed by Indianapolis businessman Jeff Smulyan and Michael Browning.

Mets take Phils' measure but are not near top rung

By Ralph Bernstein
The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — The Mets just snapped a two-game losing streak to pull back into third place, but manager Dave Johnson knows his team has not lived up to expectations.

Monday's 5-2 win over the Philadelphia Phillies was sparked by Kevin McReynolds' four RBIs, three of which came on a three-run first inning home run.

But Johnson knows the Mets trail the NL East-leading Chicago Cubs by 4 1/2 games and runner-up St. Louis by one game with 18 to play. Fourth-place Montreal is only one game behind New York.

Of the Mets' 18 remaining games, 12 are on the road.

"We've had very little two-out scoring this season. It was a morale booster to get three runs (in the first) with two outs."

McReynolds' RBI single in the seventh also came with two outs. Phillies starter Bruce Ruffin, 5-9, took the loss, giving up five hits and four runs while striking out two in two innings. Only one of the runs was earned.

"Plus Ruffin's pitches were up and he didn't have real good stuff," Leyva said. "We're just coming out every day and trying to do our best. We're not trying to be spoilers. It doesn't matter who we're playing. We're trying to find out about the Phillies."

Dave Johnson said Dwight Gooden would be available starting tonight for some relief work out of the bullpen. Gooden has been in rehab since July 1.

Johnson led a team meeting before Monday's game against the Phillies. His version of what he said: "I told them not to hang their heads. It's not the end of the world. We just didn't get the job done."

"I told them that I know it can be frustrating, especially not living up to expectations."

"Despite Johnson's discouraging words, McReynolds delivered the offense.

Crispino to do the Celtics

BOSTON — Mike Crispino, WLVI-TV sports director and principle sports anchor, has been named play-by-play announcer for the 1989-90 Boston Celtics' season on Channel 56.

Crispino, a native of Manchester, joins veteran sports announcer and former Celtic Bob Cousy for the season's 44 road games.

Crispino was the winner of the 1989 Massachusetts Associated Press Award for "Outstanding SportsCast." He joined Channel 56 in August of 1988.

Winch to conduct clinics

Manchester Community College head soccer coach Bob Winch will conduct a series of coaching clinics on three consecutive Fridays, starting this Friday, this fall.

The clinics will be designed for both the beginning and advanced youth coaches. Each session will concentrate on a different topic (skill) during the hour and a half clinic from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m.

For more information, call the college at 647-6060.

Burks out rest of year

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox, their chance at defending the American League East title slipping away, will be without center fielder Bill Burks for the remainder of the season.

Burks separated his right shoulder in a collision with left fielder Mike Greenwell in Oakland last week. It was his first major injury since July 1.

"My next game will be in spring training," he said Monday night. "I thought I'd be able to come back but look, I can't even lift my arm."

Burks, who was sidelined from June 14 until Aug. 1 after injuring his left shoulder while diving for a ball against the Detroit Tigers, was hitting .303 with 12 homers, 61 RBIs and 21 stolen bases. He also was on a 15-game hitting streak at the time of his latest injury.

The Red Sox, losers of their last six games, are 10 games back of Toronto in the American League East. They play tonight in Seattle.

Rangers' Sundberg to retire

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Jim Sundberg, a 16-year veteran who ranks second all-time in games caught, announced that he will retire at the end of this season because of nagging injuries.

Sundberg, 38, has a career fielding percentage of .993, third among catchers with 1,000 or more games on Aug. 8, he moved past Al Lopez into second place on the all-time games-caught list with 1,928, trailing only Bob Boone of the Kansas City Royals, who's caught 2,171.

Tettleton, Bradley keep O's in chase

By Tim Liotta
The Associated Press

BALTIMORE — Two ingredients in addition to Ed Ricketts — that the Baltimore Orioles may be contributing if they hope to challenge Toronto to the end finally came to life — Mickey Tettleton and Phil Bradley.

Tettleton hit a home run and Bradley had four hits to support Ricketts' home run and three RBIs Monday night as the Orioles defeated the Chicago White Sox 6-3.

The victory, the Orioles' sixth in nine games, pulled Baltimore within two games of the Blue Jays in the American League East, and made Jeff Ballard the first AL pitcher to defeat every other team.

In the other games played in the AL on Monday, Seattle beat Boston 2-1 and Kansas City defeated Minnesota 6-1.

"This was crucial," Orioles manager Frank Robinson said. "To have lost would have been disastrous. If we fell behind four games in the loss column, it would have hurt a lot at this late date."

Torborg had to lift starter Steve Rosenberg, 4-12, after 1-1/3 innings.

"They were tearing off on him," Torborg said. "I had a gut feeling he wouldn't get any more outs tonight."

Each of the nine Chicago starters got one hit off Ballard, the league's winingest left-handed pitcher who improved his record to 17-7 with his sixth victory in his last seven decisions.

Robinson pulled Ballard with one out and nobody on in the seventh inning.

Mark Williamson pitched 1-2/3 shutout innings and then Greg Olson pitched the ninth for his 25th save, adding to his record total for American League rookies.

"I'm tired," Ballard said. "The last couple of games, around the sixth, seventh innings, my arm started getting tired. I had a couple of long innings there, the fourth and fifth innings, when we scored all those runs."

Royals 6, Twins 1: Larry McWilliams, by injuries in Sunday's win.

In the third quarter, the Patriots had just one tail-back available, Reggie Dupard, who scored the winning touchdown on a 4-yard run with 1:55 left in the game.

In the third quarter, Marvin Allen left the game with a sprained right shoulder and John Stephens sprained his left ankle. Neither returned. Allen had his arm in a sling Monday. Berry said he has recovered from off-season surgery in which a joint in his right arm was fused.

Scholz gives the Patriots depth to help offset the loss of Tippett, but they could use more bodies in the offensive line.

Center Trevor Matich, who can play both offensive and defensive line, was scheduled to return after the Patriots waived him last week to make room for free agent linebacker Eric Naposki.

Despite all the injuries, the Patriots played very offensively and defensively against the Jets.

Berry said Dupard's performance was "pretty timely" and the work of the defenders, who gave up just 49 rushing yards, was "surprising."

"I felt they would play well," he said. "It showed great character. They really played like champions. They really played like champions. They really played like champions. They really played like champions."

Flames not so friendly after two losses on ice

By Ronald Blum
The Associated Press

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — After losing two games and displaying little brotherly love during their "Friendship Tour" of Czechoslovakia, the Calgary Flames are bringing hard-hitting NHL hockey to the Soviet Union for the first time.

The Stanley Cup champion Flames dropped their second straight game to the Czechoslovak national team Monday night, falling behind 2-0 in the opening eight minutes on the way to a 4-1 loss.

Though NHL and Eastern European officials had expected the unprecedented two-week tour to be more of a cultural exchange than a fierce competition, the Flames and Czechoslovaks relegated friendship to the bench Monday as they traded elbows and high sticks for the second straight.

"It was a nice game but the Canadians were overdoing it," said a Czechoslovak policeman watching the game. He likened the violence on the ice.

As Calgary left wing Gary Roberts acknowledged, "It was a friendship tour for the first two shifts on the ice, and it hasn't been since that."

The Flames, the first NHL team to visit Eastern Europe, continue the tour with four games against Soviet teams. The Washington Capitals, now training and playing in Sweden, follow the Flames into the Soviet Union on Thursday.

Czechoslovakia, which rallied from a two-goal deficit to defeat the Flames 4-2 on Sunday, gained an early two-goal lead Monday. Tomas Holik scored with 3:16 gone in the game and Vladimir Ruzicka doubled the score four minutes later.

Defense lawyer Martin Weinberg argued that the government had failed to protect the law by claiming Pete Rose's track winnings, or whether it was merely an innocent favor for a long-time friend.

The 12-member jury in U.S. District Court also has to decide whether Gioiosa's judgment was so clouded by his use of steroids and he couldn't tell right from wrong in the 1980s, when he failed to report income and was cited as a middleman in cocaine deals.

The jurors deliberated for 47 1/2 hours on Monday in Gioiosa's drug and tax evasion trial. They were dismissed for the day without reaching a verdict. They resumed deliberations today.

The jury got the case against defense lawyer Martin Weinberg. It is deciding whether Thomas Gioiosa is entitled to break the law by claiming Pete Rose's track winnings, or whether it was merely an innocent favor for a long-time friend.

There's no proof that Pete Rose cheated the government at all in this case, and no proof of any conspiracy," Weinberg said. "Instead, what the government attempted to do is architect a tax case against Pete Rose on the basis of Tommy and Pete Rose being close friends for eight years."

Gioiosa, 31, of New Bedford, Mass., could be sentenced to up to 38 years in jail and fined $2 million if convicted on all five counts.

Rose, who hasn't been charged with any crime, is under investigation by a federal grand jury in Cincinnati.

DARLING DOES IT — The Mets' Ron Darling delivers a pitch during Monday night's game in Philadelphia against the Phillies. Darling gave up five hits in leading the Mets to a 5-2 victory.

Surging Pirates playing the role of spoiler

By Ben Walker

Injuries spoiled the Pittsburgh Pirates early in the year. Now they're spoiling the season for other teams in the National League East.

"We're not saying 'Hey, let's try to ruin this for everybody,'" Manager Jim Leyland said Monday night after Pittsburgh won in St. Louis 3-1 for its third straight victory.

The Pirates won two straight games in New York before sending the Cardinals to their third consecutive loss. Second-place St. Louis dropped 3 1/2 games behind Chicago, giving the Cubs their largest lead since Aug. 18.

"We're very disappointed we're not in it, and we're trying to win as many games as we can," said Leyland, whose team is 16 1/2 games behind. "I'm probably jealous that we're not there."

In other games Monday, the Cubs beat Montreal 4-3, New York defeated Philadelphia 5-2, San Francisco stopped Atlanta 3-2, San Diego downed Houston 7-3 and Los Angeles beat Cincinnati 8-2.

Neal Heaton, 4-7, gave up one run on two hits in six innings. He had been 1-7 with a 4.32 earned-run average as a starter but went 2-0 with a 1.96 ERA as a reliever.

"We're finally healthy and we're trying to get something going for next year," Heaton said. "We've got no pressure. Just having fun."

Rookie Stan Belinda allowed one hit in two innings and 41-year-old Doug Bair finished with his first major-league save since Aug. 8, 1986, when he was with Minnesota.

The Cardinals have scored just four runs in their three losses.

"We give up 10 runs in three games and go from a half-game back to 3 1/2 back," Manager Whitey Herzog said. "You can't expect shutouts every time. You have to score."

Rick Horton, 0-2, is winless in seven starts since being promoted from Class AAA Louisville on July 27. He shut out Pittsburgh on three hits for six innings before the Pirates scored three times in the seventh, John Cangello's sacrifice fly off Frank DiPino made it 3-1.

Pedro Guerrero got his career-high 10th RBI in the Cardinals' fourth with a sacrifice fly.

FOCUS/Advice

Father doesn't want son to hear slurs

Dear Abby: I am a 29-year-old married man with a fine, bright, 8-year-old son. My wife and I have a wonderful marriage, and for the most part I have fantastic in-laws. The one negative aspect of my in-laws is the way they refer to certain ethnic groups...

Dear Abby

wife to join you in keeping her parents in line.

DEAR ABBY: I have some questions that need to be answered concerning several situations. I already have a couple of my neighbors upset with me...

DEAR OPEN: Ask your "fantastic" in-laws to please keep their ethnic slurs to themselves in the presence of your son because you are trying to teach the boy to judge people by their character...

IT MAY BE TODAY

ACHING JOINTS PROBABLY CAN'T PREDICT WEATHER BUT IT IS CLEAR THAT SOME PEOPLE CAN FEEL CHANGING TEMPERATURE AND HUMIDITY. WEATHER SUFFERERS INCLUDE PEOPLE WITH RHEUMATISM, WHO FEEL SHARP PAINS WHEN TEMPERATURES FALL...

Side effects disturb man

DEAR DR. GOTT: I took Ser-Ap-Es for 10 years to control high blood pressure. Then I found out the drug can cause Parkinson's disease and depression. Please comment.

DEAR READER: Ser-Ap-Es is a drug that has been used for many years to treat hypertension and hydrochlorothiazide. Unfortunately, each of these ingredients has dangerous side effects. Reserpine, in particular, commonly causes depression, slow pulse, dizziness, headache, and nightmares...

Program makes computers easy to understand, friendly

By Larry Bischoff, The Associated Press

Compubug

Those who think they'll never understand personal computing should get goosy about it. GUI, to be precise.

A GUI is a Graphical User Interface program. It allows the client organized and logical computer to deal with a messy and erratic human.

The beauty of the GUI is that it can command movement works more or less the same way for any applications program...

Costs range from $50 to $400. Read the magazine, which discusses GUIs in cover-story depth...

Spas bring therapeutic relief

By the Editors of Consumer Reports

Consumer Reports

Physical therapists have long considered whirlpools an invaluable treatment. Now hydrotherapy has come to the masses in the form of portable bathtubs...

While home spas don't provide much in the way of therapeutic benefits over and above the effects of just taking a warm bath or shower, they can make users feel relaxed and invigorated.

Recently, Consumer Reports' testers evaluated both kinds of bathtub spas.

Our Language

The slang bet up describes someone excited or upset. To stay cool this summer, try not to become bet up.

Something factious shows conflict or dissension among members of a group. There should be no conflict about how to start spelling factious—that's a fact.

A false appearance or pretense is a guise. If you can't tell you how to pronounce guise, just ask some other guys.

ANSWER: The expression is actually not one whit (with an h). Since the 15th century, whit has been used to mean "bit" or "injust part."

ACHING FEET — Miss America contestant Christine McCubbins, Miss Alaska, rubs her sore feet during a break in a long pageant rehearsal Sunday in Atlantic City, N.J. The pageant will be held Saturday.

PEOPLE

Pacino returns to public eye

NEW YORK (AP) — After six years of what he calls "the clandestine thing," Al Pacino is returning to public view.

Out of sight since filming "Scarface" in 1983, Pacino stars in the upcoming romantic thriller, "Sea of Love," with Elin Barkin, and plays a surprisingly lighthearted cameo as the bad guy in Warren Beatty's "Dick Tracy."

Pacino, 49, said he relished his time in disguise. "There's a feeling that you experience when you put on glasses and a moustache and you blend in," he told the magazine. "I felt so free. I was excited."

Curtis has ideal life

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Jamie Lee Curtis says motherhood, a happy marriage and a satisfying career have given her "the life I have always wanted."

But getting there wasn't easy, she says in Red Book magazine's October issue. Among the difficulties, she recalled, was having famous parents.

When she was in seventh grade, her father was arrested for marijuana possession and her schoolmates taunted her with the words: "You're father's Tony Curtis and your mother's Janet Leigh, your father just got busted but your mother still is free."

Curis, 30, is married to actor Christopher Guest, with whom she has an adopted daughter. "I have a family I love and the kind of work I like to do," she said. "Everyday I tell myself, 'I did it!'"

French actress likes Streep

NEW YORK (AP) — Isabelle Adjani thinks one actress has cornered the market on English-speaking roles that require foreign accents.

Meryl Streep is the most effective customs and immigration officer," the French actress says in Vanity Fair's October issue. "She stands there and says, 'You can't come in — I'll do the accent.'"

Adjani's latest film, "Camille Claudel," was the biggest film in France last year and opens in this country in December.

The 31-year-old actress won a César, the French equivalent of the Oscar, for portraying Claudel, the mistress, muse and competitor of French sculptor Rodin. Claudel was a formidable sculptress and artist herself, but her stern Catholic family had her committed to an insane asylum for the last 30 years of her life.

Pavarotti no longer welcome

CHICAGO (AP) — The Lyric Opera of Chicago role originally assigned to operatic superstar Luciano Pavarotti this fall has been split between his fellow Italian Giuseppe Giacomini and Icelandic tenor Kristjan Johannsson.

Pavarotti was scheduled to perform the role of painter and revolutionary Mario Cavaradossi in the Lyric's season premiere of Giacomo Puccini's "Tosca" on Sunday opposite soprano Eva Marton Wagner. But he cancelled his Chicago appearances, pleading illness.

Lyric General Manager Ardis Krainik said Monday that Pavarotti, who has cancelled 26 of 41 scheduled lyric appearances in recent years, would no longer be welcomed by the company.

Customers have jet lag

SEATTLE (AP) — What was supposed to have been a fly-by of the new Boeing 737-500 for its customer-orientation fly-behind.

The new jet, flanked in light formation by a 737-300 and a 737-400, was scheduled Monday to fly in front of the guests waiting at the Museum of Flight at Boeing Field. But the jets flew over the building and behind the spectators.
