Moriartys will sell dealership to Morande Ford

By Nancy Concalman
Manchester Herald
The 56-year-old Moriarty Bros. Inc. of 315 W. Center St. plans to sell its Ford Lincoln-Mercury and Mazda dealerships to Morande Ford Inc. of Berlin at the beginning of December for an undisclosed amount, company Treasurer Maurice Moriarty said today.

The sale, Moriarty said, is the result of a settlement of the estate of his father, Matthew Moriarty Sr., who died in 1985. Moriarty's estate had maintained a controlling interest in the business and property, Maurice Moriarty said.

Employees were notified of the sale Monday, Moriarty said. Sales at Moriarty Bros. have been "excellent," Moriarty said. Moriarty Bros. is a medium-sized dealership that sells an average of 1,100 new cars and 500 used cars a year, Moriarty said. The company ranks among the top 20 dealerships in New England.

In addition to the Ford dealership the Morande brothers bought in 1979, the company owns a Hyundai dealership and the Webster Square Car Wash in Berlin, Moriarty said. The company recently sold a Ford dealership in Barre, Vt., he said.

It's really a matter of estate settlement more than anything else," Moriarty said. Neither Robert Morande nor Moriarty would reveal the sale price. Morande said his company plans to operate the dealerships and repair center at the same location and will expand and rebuild the existing facilities. Morande's brother William will run the Manchester business, Robert Morande said.

Moriarty said he and his brother are undecided about their future plans. Morande plans to retain Moriarty's 65 employees and will probably hire more people in the future, he said.

Bolton hires team to upgrade courses

By Rick Santos
Manchester Herald
BOLTON — School administrators, facing an Oct. 1 deadline to submit a report on improvements needed at the high school, have recruited two consultants to devise a system-wide curriculum for the schools.

The curriculum at Bolton High School, as well as the school's facilities and methods of measuring student performance must be improved on the school could lose its accreditation from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges. A visiting committee of the association came to the school in the spring and released a report citing the deficiencies.

A list of recommendations for how the high school will address these concerns will be presented by Principal Joseph Fleming to the school board at its next meeting on Sept. 28. School Superintendent Richard Packman said. He said the report, which must be in the hands of the accreditation association by Oct. 1, will then be forwarded.

Mark Shibles, an education professor at the University of Connecticut and former dean at the school, has been hired to develop a curriculum proposal for the high school, said Board of Education Chairman James Marshall.

Meanwhile, the board's curriculum committee, chaired by board member Pamela Sawyer, has hired another consultant, Howard Jacobs of Southern Connecticut State University in New Haven. Jacobs will be commissioned to develop a system-wide curriculum for all the schools, Packman said. His organizational plan will be implemented in a five-year period as recommended by the accreditation association.

Validity of vote is upheld in 8th; truck buy OK'd

By Alex Grelli Manchester Herald

Directors of the Eighth Utilities District decided Thursday night to go forward with the purchase of a new pumper truck despite the fact that no voter check-off list was used Monday when the district voters approved an appropriation for the purchase.

Landers said he felt the board should be guided by LaBelle's advice that the appropriation must be approved by the voters.

Tripp said that when the voters approved the bylaw change at the May 24 annual district meeting, it was indicated that the voting list supplied by the office of town register of voters would be used because the check-off list was not used.

At the meeting Monday, the district voters decided by a 27 to 18 vote to make the $245,000 appropriation. Many of those who voted were district firefighters.

But in a letter to Landers, LaBelle said the bylaws only require that the list be used to check eligibility of district voters if a question is raised. While questions have been raised because the check-off list was not used, no one has challenged the right of anyone who voted to do so.

The decision to proceed with the pumper purchase at a cost of about $245,000 was made at special meeting of the district directors in the district office at 32 Main St. by a vote of 3 to 2. Directors Samuel Argente and Joseph Tripp voted no.

BOLTON — High school students will no longer be singing "Smoking in the boys room" or any other room for that matter, as the Board of Education has decided to prohibit students from smoking on school grounds.

Pierce backs out of testifying about HUD troubles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Housing Secretary Samuel Pierce's abrupt cancellation of plans to testify today in the House investigation of his scandal-plagued agency shows "he's got something to hide," one Republican says.

Pierce said late Thursday he has not had time to prepare his testimony, and accused the subcommittee of unfairly denying his request for an extension.

"I will not voluntarily appear," Pierce said in a statement. "I have fully and completely cooperated with the subcommittee right up until today, but its refusal to allow me an additional two weeks preparation time, when numerous other witnesses have been granted even longer postponements, simply is unfair." He said he would be willing to appear at a later time.

The panel's chairman, Rep. Thomas Lantos, D-Calif., said he would hold the hearing nonetheless and seek to subpoena Pierce if he failed to show.

"Should he not appear, I will consider his failure to do so a breach of faith with the subcommittee and a deceitful and misleading act," said Lantos. The panel is investigating alleged fraud, influence-peddling and mismanagement during the eight years Pierce headed the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

A Republican member, Rep. Christopher Shays of Connecticut, said Pierce's announcement was "outrageous" because he previously had been granted a month's extension.

"It tells me he's got something to hide," Shays said in a telephone interview. "If he doesn't show up we are going to subpoena Mr. Pierce for a series of hearings. We obviously can't trust him."

Pierce's attorney, Paul Perito, said in an interview, "Mr. Pierce wants to tell his entire story. However, he needs to be adequately prepared to do so."

Pierce's announcement was the latest twist in an investigation that already has seen two former top Pierce aides at HUD assert their Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination and refuse to testify before the subcommittee.

The panel is investigating allegations that prominent Republicans and former HUD officials won favored treatment from the agency during Pierce's eight years as secretary and that poor management left HUD unable to account for hundreds of millions of dollars.

Pierce appeared voluntarily in May and said he took no direct role in HUD funding decisions. But his sworn testimony was challenged by a former HUD official who said Pierce personally ordered her to fund a $15-million Durham, N.C., project that was opposed by several agencies.

The project was supported by Charles Markham, then the city's mayor and a former law partner of Pierce's. The developer also hired as a consultant Lou Kiichin, who was southeastern political director of the Reagan and Bush presidential campaigns.

Pierce also has been criticized for lifting restrictions on a HUD lender who defaulted. Pierce made the decision after being lobbied by former HUD Secretary Carla Hills, now the Bush administration's trade representative. The company, DRG Funding Corp., is the target of an FBI investigation.

Those and other accounts of Pierce's actions at HUD had left the subcommittee eager to question him. Several members have stopped just short of accusing Pierce of committing perjury in May when he said he was not a

EB to cut workforce without any layoffs

GROTON (AP) — The move to eliminate 100 jobs at the Electric Boat shipyard is continuing, but a spokesman says there won't be any large layoffs of salaried workers at the submarine manufacturer.

"There are a lot of dynamics," said spokesman Neil D. Ruenzel Thursday. "In addition, Ruenzel said, EB has attempted to reassign workers whose salaries make up a portion of the company's overhead into positions charged to the U.S. Navy, EB's only customer.

Ruenzel did not rule out layoffs as means to meet planned reductions, but he would not reveal numbers of positions or workers eliminated to date.

EB's plan to cut 200 salaried jobs was disclosed two months ago in a letter to workers from General Manager James E. Turner Jr.

Ruenzel said that 100 of the 200 positions were unfilled at the time of the disclosure, meaning that 100 filled positions remained to be dealt with.

Besides reducing the salaried workforce, which totals close to 8,000 employees, EB has cut back on data processing, employee training, administrative costs and travel expenses and employee overtime, Ruenzel said.

In his letter, Turner said the actions are needed to keep the company competitive as it anticipates more competition for fewer submarine contracts and a shrinking federal military budget. He also pointed to an apparent slowdown in construction, referring to "substantial reductions in progress payments for our construction work in progress."

Electric Boat produces nuclear powered submarines for the U.S. Navy including the Trident series.

NEW HELICOPTER — Sikorsky Aircraft of Stratford rolled out the first of 24 medium range recovery helicopters Thursday it is building for the Coast Guard. The Jayhawk is designed to carry a crew of four and six passengers. They will cost $10.5 million each and the first will be delivered next spring.

United could become top worker-owned firm

CHICAGO (AP) — UAL Corp.'s directors have approved a buyout by a group of pilots and top executives that would make the parent of United Airlines the largest employee-owned company in the nation.

UAL announced Thursday night that it had signed a $300-a-share, or $6.75 billion, agreement with the labor-management group.

The plan could end a 6-week takeover battle at the nation's second-largest airline.

California investor Marvin Davis, who started the battle and eventually bid $6.19 billion, or $275 a share, for UAL, declined to comment immediately on the announcement. His spokesman, Jim Fingersh, said Davis would respond later today.

A source close to the UAL takeover battle said Davis may still pursue his bid, despite the agreement with the management-labor group.

"I would not assume that this means it's over," said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The agreement was announced after the employee group made a presentation to a special committee of the UAL board and revealed the financing for the bid.

Frederick Dubinsky, a spokesman for United's unit of the Air Line Pilots Association, which has been expected to raise major objections although in the past it has been concerned about foreign carriers buying into U.S. airlines.

With inclusion of financing costs, the deal would total $7.2 billion. Citibank and the Chase Manhattan Bank have committed $3 billion to finance the buyout and will obtain commitments for an additional $4.2 billion, officials said.

The buyout attempt is led by Wolf and the 6,500 United pilots represented by ALPA. The group had hoped to win support from United's other unions.

The Association of Flight Attendants, representing about 12,700 United workers, met with management Tuesday and "has begun negotiations toward possible participation" in the employee buyout effort, said spokeswoman Carol Holmes.

But the International Association of Machinists, representing 25,000 of United's 70,000 employees, has refused to back the proposal, saying it would leave UAL heavily in debt and could threaten the job security of union members.

In the past two years more than 300 companies have been purchased by their employees. Avis Inc., with 11,000 employees, is the nation's largest company owned by its employees.

Uniroyal in joint venture

MIDDLEBURY (AP) — Uniroyal Chemical Co. says it has formed a joint venture with Hahn Jung, a wholly owned subsidiary of Han Nong Corp., of Korea, for the production and marketing of rubber chemicals.

The joint venture, announced Tuesday, is to be called Unikor with each partner owning 50 percent.

The agreement calls for Uniroyal to supply technology and for Unikor to start producing anti-degradant chemicals early in 1990, with an option to expand to other rubber chemicals in the future.

Unikor will build a plant in Bamcoo, Korea where Hahn Jung has a manufacturing plant.

Uniroyal is a worldwide producer of specialty chemicals and high performance polymers.

Trade deficit narrows

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. trade deficit narrowed for the second straight month in July, to $7.85 billion, the smallest gap in nearly five years, the government said today.

The Commerce Department reported the July deficit represented a 5.3 percent decrease from a revised June deficit of $8.01 billion.

The narrowing gap came from a 2.5 percent decrease in imports to $38.32 billion and a 1.8 percent decrease in exports to $30.74 billion. The trade deficit is the difference between imports and exports.

The overall July deficit of $7.58 billion was the smallest since a $6.79 billion imbalance in December 1984. Economists had been expecting the deficit to widen as imports fueled by oil purchases rose while the higher dollar cut exports by making them more expensive overseas.

America's foreign oil bill rose 2.9 percent to $4.3 billion in July. The amount of imported oil rose to 8.14 million barrels a day from 7.93 million in June and the price per barrel fell to $17.12 from $17.67 in June.

The decrease in exports included such manufactured goods as automobiles, machinery and materials while shipments of airplanes increased.

In addition to oil, increased imports included clothing and footwear and general industrial machinery. Decreases included automobiles and trucks and electrical and specialized industrial machinery.

MASS GRAVE — Archeologists work recently at a mass burial site uncovered last month near Lysyaya Gora, in the Soviet Union. The site is believed to contain the remains of some of the estimated 20 million victims of Joseph Stalin's years of terror.

Colombia readies extraditions

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Four bombs exploded at banks in Bogota early today as Colombia prepared to extradite two cocaine traffickers to the United States to face drug charges, police said.

No one was injured in the blasts, which occurred about 12:30 a.m., a Bogota police spokesman said. All four banks were damaged, said the spokesman, who asked to remain anonymous.

No one claimed responsibility for the explosions, but suspicion fell on the nation's cocaine traffickers, who have relied on bombings to try to persuade the government not to extradite drug lords to the United States to stand trial.

Until now, the traffickers had concentrated their attacks on Medellin, a city 150 miles northwest of Bogota that is the headquarters for Colombia's biggest cocaine cartel.

The government announced Thursday that it had arrested two members of the Medellin cartel wanted in the United States and said they were being held in a maximum security prison pending extradition.

It also decreed a state of emergency in the cities of Puerto Boyaca and Pacho in midwestern Colombia just east of Medellin.

The region is considered a stronghold for drug-linked death squads and processing labs, and the decree allows President Virgilio Barco to put army troops on alert and send military advisers to "help" the mayors of the two cities.

Last week, Barco used special emergency powers to replace the mayors of those cities with military officers, but he suspended the order after widespread criticism that it was unconstitutional.

The government identified the men to be extradited to the United States as Bernardo Pelaez Roldan and Guillermo Bueno Delgado.

The two were paraded before reporters at the National Security Department.

Doubling of Polish food aid called stopgap by Sen. Leahy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush is doubling food aid to Poland to $100 million next year "to support the process of change" there, but the Democratic author of a rival plan calls it a merely a stopgap effort.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said Bush's plan does not go nearly far enough to help Poland meet its long-term needs.

Bush announced the food aid increase for fiscal 1990 on Thursday, just hours after Leahy unveiled his own $2.5 billion "Food for Peace" package.

The president's plan calls for shipments to Poland of beef, pork, corn, butter, plant oil, sunflower oil, cotton and rice. The new $50 million infusion was in addition to $50 million in food Bush announced in early August for the new fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

It is on top of $8.4 million in emergency food assistance Bush ordered for the current fiscal year. Most of the food shipments will come from U.S. surpluses.

Poland has been affected by severe food shortages and increasing prices.

Bush had been under mounting pressure from Congress to do more to aid Poland's new Solidarity-led government, not only from Democrats but from Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas.

Dole called Bush's decision Thursday "a good investment in democracy and political reform for Poland."

"The president's original proposal was made at a time when Poland, while taking some important steps in political reform, still had a communist-dominated government," Dole said.

"It is crucially important to me to signal our intent to do more for a democratic government than we had for a communist regime," said Dole, who visited Poland last month with his wife, Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole.

However, Leahy called Bush's plan "a welcome but stopgap effort that fails to give Poland the long-term help it needs to restructure its agricultural economy and to sustain the world's newest democracy."

The Democrat's $2.5 billion rival program includes forgiveness of Poland's $2 billion agricultural debt, $150 million in food shipments, $100 million in foreign aid and a series of trade concessions and increasing assistance.

Bush called his Polish food aid package "one element of our continuing effort, working with our allies and others, to support the

Hungarian foreign minister says nation committed to reform

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Hungary's commitment to reform, as demonstrated by opening its borders to East Germans fleeing to the West, is more important than an appearance of Communist bloc unity, a deputy foreign minister said in a report published today.

About 500 more East Germans arrived in West Germany after passing through Austria overnight, authorities said today.

A West German border police spokesman, Klaus Papenfuss, said 273 of the new arrivals registered with camps set up near Passau and the rest continued by train to other refugee centers set up in the central part of the country.

Today's arrivals boosted the total to 14,000 since the exodus began at midnight Sunday when Hungarian opened its border to Austria to East Germans.

Papenfuss said in a statement that seven more busloads of East Germans were expected to arrive today.

The East Germans are automatically granted citizenship in West Germany and have been given assistance finding housing and jobs.

The majority of the refugees are young, skilled workers, many with children, who have expressed dissatisfaction with the lack of reform and freedom in their Communist homeland.

Hungary's decision to open its border with Austria ended a weeks-long standoff that began when East Germans flooded the West German Embassy in Budapest, seeking passage to the West.

Laszlo Kovacs, a Hungarian deputy foreign minister, told his country's state-run MTI news agency that the newspaper Magyar Hirlap that Budapest will not sacrifice "measures held to be important by us in the light of a possible disagreement with one of our allies."

Kovacs said the decision "is in accordance with international norms and regulations on human rights, thereby proving the consistency of Hungarian policies, the commitment of the country's leadership in accomplishing the reform process."

Asked if Hungary felt a "triangle" of East-bloc allies forming against the reformist state, Kovacs replied, "It is true that Hungary's relations with these countries have become tense."

He referred to ties with Czechoslovakia and Romania, as well as East Germany.

Hungary and Poland have led the Soviet bloc in carrying out social and political reforms, but East Germany, Romania and Czechoslovakia have resisted.

Hungary has alienated Czechoslovakia by denouncing the 1968 Warsaw Pact invasion of that country and by pulling out of a controversial Danube dam project, Romania is angry with Hungary over Budapest's decision to give refuge to 20,000 Romanians of Hungarian descent who have fled illegally.

Kovacs said the strains with the three countries "are unusual and call for concern," but he did not elaborate.

Exxon disputes claims beaches remain fouled

VALDEZ, Alaska (AP) — Cleanup workers and state officials say there's still plenty of oil fouling the shores of Prince William Sound, but Exxon insists the beaches are nearly free of oil as a summer-long effort ends.

Exxon officials pronounced the 1,100 miles of oil-stained shoreline "environmentally stable" Thursday and proclaimed their 25-week cleanup of the nation's worst oil spill a job well done.

Exxon Corp. Chairman Lawrence Rawl said in Juneau that the affected shores of the sound and Gulf of Alaska farther south "are certainly what most people would call clean."

But Dennis Kelso, the state's environmental commissioner, was not pleased with what he saw when he toured shorelines on two islands south of Valdez on Thursday.

"This beach is not environmentally stable," he said as he poked a stick into thickly oiled rocks on Knight Island. "If we had wildlife here, they'd be pretty heavily oiled."

Exxon officials said they expect to declare the summer cleanup complete today, 25 weeks after the tanker Exxon Valdez cracked open on a reef and spilled nearly 11 million gallons of crude oil. The com-

Panel's approval of gains-tax cut is test for Foley

WASHINGTON (AP) — House tax-writers' narrow approval of a capital gains tax cut sought by President Bush sets the stage for the first major leadership test of new House Speaker Thomas S. Foley Jr. and his top Democratic deputies.

Over vehement objections from Foley and other party leaders, six Democrats on the House Ways and Means Committee joined 13 Republicans in a 19-17 vote Thursday to cut the tax.

Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., called his panel's action "a financial disaster" and "ultimate expression of 'feel good' economics" that could unravel the rate-equalizing, loophole-closing tax reforms of 1986.

Committee Chairman Martin Fitzwater said, "We are pleased by the vote and we will be working hard to sustain it on the floor."

The plan approved by the committee would reduce the tax rate of 33 percent to 19.6 percent for the next 27 months. The tax rate then would rise to 28 percent but would be "indexed" to tax only increases exceeding the annual inflation rate to 15 percent without indexing.

The net effect to taxpayers is similar to Bush's campaign proposal to reduce the capital gains tax rate to 15 percent without indexing.

The Ways and Means budget bill also lowers the premiums for catastrophic health insurance for the elderly and finances a massive increase in child-care subsidies for low-income families. The 1990 fiscal year begins Oct. 1.

The six Democrats, led by Rep. Ed Jenkins of Florida and J.J. Pickle of Texas, resisted weeks of entreaties from Foley and House Democratic Leader Richard Gephardt of Missouri that the proposal is little more than a giveaway to the rich.

"The notion that wealthy Americans need another tax break at the expense of working people is ludicrous," Gephardt said. "Who's going to pay...? The answer is the ordinary, middle-income working American, that's who."

Because the wealthy own most capital assets — such as stocks, bonds and real estate — they would benefit the most from the tax break. The Joint Committee on Taxation estimated that 80 percent of the $4 billion to $5 billion in benefits will go to taxpayers with incomes above $100,000 a year.

Supporters contend a capital gains tax cut would help the economy by encouraging investment.

Cutting the capital gains rate would bring in more tax money for the next three years, by providing incentives to sell such assets, according to government estimates.

However, after that the reduction would cost the Treasury $2.8 billion to $5 billion a year, according to the Joint Committee on Taxation.

Rostenkowski expressed bitter frustration that one-fourth of his committee's Democrats sided with the 13 Republicans to give them a majority on more than a half-dozen votes aimed at whittling down the capital gains amendment sponsored by Jenkins and Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas.

"If the evident divisions within the committee are any indication, the House is in for a painful fight," said Rostenkowski.

Democrats voting with Jenkins and Pickle for the tax cut were Reps. Mike Andrews of Texas, Beryl Anthony of Arkansas, Andrew Jacobs of Indiana and Ronnie Flippo of Alabama.

Republicans predicted they would pick up as many as 70 of the House's 255 Democrats when the legislation moves to the House floor late this month.

Other Democrats said it will take a carefully orchestrated campaign for a positive counterproposal to stop the momentum from giving Bush what he wants.

"There has to be a response from our party's perspective other than just being against," said Rep. Brian J. Donnelly, D-Mass. "This will be Foley's first real major decision."

Gephardt said the Democrats were looking at a variety of alternatives to partially restore tax deductions on contributions to Individual Retirement Accounts.

The changes in the Medicare catastrophic health insurance plan and new child benefits were informally approved earlier.

Over five years, lower-income families would receive an additional $14 billion in tax credits and $2 billion in state-administered grants aimed at improving child care for working parents.

The major part of the increase would come from liberalizing the earned-income credit, which benefits lower-income working families with children. The credit would be worth more to larger families; it could range up to $1,790 a year for those with three or more children. A new credit of up to $430 a year would help families with children under the age of 6.

Granddaughter plays role based on her grandmother

HYDE PARK, Vt. (AP) — When Mary Martin was rehearsing the role of Maria von Trapp for the Broadway play "The Sound of Music," she came to Elizabeth, 35, taking a break from rehearsals this week. "I grew up listening to the album with my cousins, and we'd all take parts," said Elizabeth, 35, taking a break from rehearsals this week. "I used the felts to practice in."

The blond, blue-eyed von Trapp, who has sung professionally at the Trapp Family Lodge in Stowe for three years, also shares the local stage with her 8-year-old cousin Kirsten von Trapp, cast as another of Maria's children.

"I've seen the movie five-zillion times," said Kirsten, squirming in-patiently during rehearsal and tugging at her hot-pink T-shirt and mini-skirt. "Until I was seven, I thought it was just about tunc."

Music, which first brought Maria, Baron Georg von Trapp and his 10 children together as a family during the war, continues to be a shared bond between the younger von Trapp generation — as does the family legacy.

Six of Maria's children remain in Vermont where the family moved after the escape and their subsequent world-wide tours as the Trapp Family Singers, with two others buried in Stowe and two living in other states. Elizabeth said the youngsters would gather around her father, Werner von Trapp, one of the children who fled Austria a half century ago, and learn folk songs.

"Acting is a whole new challenge," said Elizabeth, standing before a hand-painted set of the Austrian mountains in the Hyde Park Opera House. "I am so excited. I think my grandmother was that way. She was excited about life. She wasn't discouraged about the problems she encountered."

Today Elizabeth records her own folk songs and designs Austrian clothing for sale at the lodge gift shop. She designed some of the costumes for the local production.

"Being a von Trapp, people are in awe of you and they treat you differently," she said. "When you grow up with it, you live with that everyday. People say, 'So, you are one of THE von Trapps.'"

"Everyone remembers our story. It's universal. I've met people all over the world who went through the same thing, but we had a story written about it," she added.

Elizabeth likened the current flood of refugees from communist bloc nations into Austria to her family's situation years ago.

"It's happening right now, although the direction people are going has changed," she said. "Isn't it ironic that here I am in a little Vermont playing the part, and yet the exact same thing is happening there?"

Elizabeth has warm feelings for her grandmother, who she recalls as "frivolous, with a strong personality and a mind of her own."

"If she felt strongly about something, she'd speak out," Elizabeth said. "There was a charm about her that I really appreciated. She had a great sense of humor, and a great way of telling stories. She'd have us rolling on the floor."

She remembers that her grandmother, who gave up her plans to become a nun to marry the baron, always wore a silver cross on a chain around her neck, and until her death, she wore it every day in final years dressed in Austrian costume.

She said Maria lived in private quarters in the lodge surrounded by books, music and walk lined with family photographs.

Maria von Trapp attended the Hyde Park annual performance six years ago to watch Elizabeth perform a bit-part as a nun. After the performance, the baroness took a bow for the crowd and drew a standing ovation.

"Everybody is interested in the von Trapps — they are news," said the play's director Steven Hall. "People visit the lodge, and then come back year after year to see the show."

Koch's loss feeds Jackson speculation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Political analyst Ed Koch's defeat in New York's mayoral primary as "sweet revenge" for Jose Jackson and speculating whether it will spur the two-time presidential candidate into a race for mayor of the nation's capital.

"He really does need to get his hands on an office somewhere," said Robert Beckel, manager of Walter Mondale's 1984 presidential campaign, a role in which he had frequent and often frustrating dealings with Jackson.

Ann Lewis, a close Jackson adviser in the 1988 presidential campaign, said black politicians such as David Dinkins, the winner of the Democratic mayoral primary in New York, were "encouraged and, in some cases, empowered" by Jackson's presidential bids.

Their success, she added, raises more and more "the suggestion that he should be doing the same. For all the reasons he encourages them and voters to put their energies into the immediate political process are the same reasons why he might be encouraged to do the same."

Jackson is described by associates as strongly interested in running for mayor of Washington even if it requires challenging the incumbent Marion Barry, an old friend from the days both were active in the civil rights movement.

Barry has been found repeatedly to deny rumors of cocaine use. A federal grand jury is investigating

Barry's alleged ties to a convicted drug dealer.

Democratic Party Chairman Ronald H. Brown, another Jackson associate, was less willing to read too much about Jackson into the New York election results.

"I think it is really, truly, purely a David Dinkins victory," said the party chairman.

Asked if the results would have any impact on Jackson's future, Brown replied, "I don't see it." He pointed out that he took the same view when a Jackson-backed candidate was defeated in the race for mayor of Chicago earlier in the year.

"I think we tend to maybe overplay those things when they happen," he said.

But there could be little doubt that the defeat of Koch, who said during the 1988 New York presidential primary campaign that Jewish voters would "have to be crazy" to support Koch, was satisfying to the former presidential candidate.

"It settled the score he had with Koch," said Beckel.

"It is sweet revenge," said Bill Schneider, a political analyst at the American Enterprise Institute who has written extensively on Democratic Party affairs. "One of his (Jackson's) top priorities was getting rid of Ed Koch."

Schneider called Jackson "the spokesman for movement politics of the left."

It was not a personal victory (for Jackson), he went on. "It was a victory for his model of politics," in which the Democratic Party is led by the left. "The question is, is this a winning strategy even in New York?"

Dinkins still faces Republican Rudolph Giuliani in the November general election.

"I don't want to call it revenge," said Lewis, who went on to say that Koch's defeat "clearly has its roots in that (1988) New York primary."

She said the mayor "never recovered" in the eyes of a substantial number of the city's white voters. Exit polls indicated Dinkins received up to a third of the white vote against Koch and 96 percent of the black vote.

Oil spills already a record

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — The number of major oil spills this year is not unusual despite the Exxon Valdez grounding and four other tanker accidents during the first six months of 1989, according to an industry watchdog study.

There have been 79 tanker spills of more than 10,000 gallons of oil in United States waters since 1978, an average of more than six each year, according to Richard Golob, publisher of Golob's Oil Pollution Bulletin.

Seven of the spills involved more than 1 million gallons, Golob said.

Between 1978 and 1988, the volume of oil spilled each year ranged from 92,000 gallons in 1983 to 10 million gallons in 1979.

And during the first six months of 1989, more than 11.7 million gallons spilled, including about 10.9 million alone from the Exxon Valdez, Golob said.

A separate study by the Center for Study of Responsive Law, a public interest group, published Wednesday in USA Today said that 68 percent of all spills were caused by mechanical failure, 20 percent were caused by human error, 4 percent by weather, and even though we had a record three major spills in one 12-hour period in June which once again reinforced the perception that major oil spills take place frequently, the statistics still show that major spills are still "probable events," Golob said Wednesday.

The study also reports that more oil was spilled during the first six months of 1989 than in any of the last 10 years, he said.

Since 1978, the Gulf Coast suffered 37 tanker spills, the Atlantic Coast 29 and the Pacific Coast 13.

Two major tanker spills occurred during the weekend of June 23, one at the mouth of Narragansett Bay off Rhode Island near Claymont, Del.

A separate study by the Center for Study of Responsive Law, a public interest group, published Wednesday in USA Today said that 68 percent of all spills were caused by mechanical failure, 20 percent were caused by human error, 4 percent by weather, and even though we had a record three major spills in one 12-hour period in June which once again reinforced the perception that major oil spills take place frequently, the statistics still show that major spills are still "probable events," Golob said Wednesday.

The study also reports that more oil was spilled during the first six months of 1989 than in any of the last 10 years, he said.

Since 1978, the Gulf Coast suffered 37 tanker spills, the Atlantic Coast 29 and the Pacific Coast 13.

Cleaner has way to fight graffiti

Try a little sweetness, he suggests

LONDON (AP) — The battle against graffiti can be won with a little sweetness, a master cleaner says.

"Walls can be protected from spray-can scrawls with a simple sugar solution," said Glyn Howard, head of a British cleaning company.

"After that, the efforts of any graffiti artist can be hosed off in a moment with hot water," he told officials Wednesday at a conference on battling vandalism.

Among his clients are 15 train stations of state-run British Rail whose woes are only the tip of a tidal wave of vandalism problem across Britain.

"It is hundreds of millions of pounds a year," police chief Philip Vester told the conference organized by a construction industry group called the Building Centre.

"We put questions to 12,000 households for a crime survey and discovered that crimes were five times more numerous than had been reported, while vandalism was 12 times greater than we thought."

"People don't report all crimes to the police, but they hardly ever report vandalism because they think nothing can or will be done about it," said Vester, deputy director of a government crime prevention center.

For his part, Howard showed one way of fighting back. He demonstrated his secret to architects and city hall officials by having one of his workers hose away red and black paint from a treated wall.

The paint peeled away under the jet of water.

Howard said he is the first person in Britain to employ the patented solution invented by a Swedish scientist, Professor Sigfrid Svensson of Lund University.

The carbohydrate derivative, which costs roughly $8 a square yard, is non-toxic, colorless and odorless, he said.

"So if you drink it by mistake, it won't poison you as it contains carbohydrates of the type which is part of your everyday diet, and it won't hurt your skin or give you a headache when you put it on," Howard said.

British stations and trains are regularly vandalized, mostly with aerosol sprays.

However, the problem extends well beyond eyesores. Last month, a speeding express was derailed near London by a concrete tie placed across the track, wrecking the locomotive. The 100 passengers escaped with slight injuries.

The London Underground spends nearly $1.5 million annually removing graffiti.

There are no statistics on what vandalism costs the country.

Among Vester's suggestions to combat vandalism: use damage-resistant materials in construction, put prickly plants at the bottom of walls, cover walls with creepers, make sure there is nothing around a building to climb on, and clear up damage and graffiti quickly.

"The vandal wants his work to be seen," he said.

Desmond Williams, an architect, said his firm designs or remodels schools and other buildings to resist vandalism.

"We reduce entrances, shut off alcoves which can be used as hiding places, eliminate anything providing handholds to reach roofs and put in lights triggered by sensors. Vandals don't like to have their profiles shown in a bright light," he said.

OPINION

Procedural confusion has price

Old habits die hard in the Eighth District. When the district directors set up a special meeting for Monday to resolve a problem that arose because bids for a district fire truck were much higher than expected and more money had to be appropriated for it, they did it the way they always have.

When the time came to cast a vote, the moderator for the meeting said, as he always does, that persons who vote must be district residents and must be voters of the Town of Manchester.

Everyone involved overlooked the fact that at the last annual meeting of the district, the voters decided that a voting checkoff list provided by the town registrar of voters' office should be used at district meetings.

Later a question was raised about whether the failure to use the list made the vote Monday invalid. The district's lawyer, John D. LaBelle Jr., has decided it was not. He cites the language of the newly amended bylaws to the effect that the checkoff list is the reference that has to be used to determine a voter's eligibility if it is challenged. He said the bylaws do not specifically require that persons be checked off as they enter the polling place.

His view is no doubt legally correct. But it seems the intent of the change was to institute the practice of using the checkoff list.

The district directors took steps Thursday night to unscramble the tangle for now. There is still the possibility, perhaps, of a challenge. However, it would be far better if the district leaders decide to use the checkoff system consistently in the future for all district meetings, even if the process seems cumbersome for a meeting that is expected to attract a small number of voters.

District leaders generally shy away from formality in conducting district business. They like the traditional openness of their governmental customs. But oversight like the one that occurred Monday cause confusion and create unnecessary tensions. There is plenty of need for debate and discussion among district officials on the merits of matters before them.

It is counterproductive to have to devote so much time and energy to procedural matters.

...NEIGHBORHOOD WATCH...

Is it really censoring?

By Vincent Carroll

For the seventh year in a row, People for the American Way has buffaloes the nation's press with its annual "censorship" charade.

In the most recent example, dutifully reported in newspapers throughout the land, the organization claims to list 172 assaults on "public school learning" that took place during the 1988-89 school year.

"That attacks took the form of challenges to instruction... as well as other forms of pressure on the school system," the group's press release observes.

Yet, why should we be shocked that there were 172 challenges to instruction or "other forms of pressure" on our schools? If anything, there should have been many more such incidents, given widely available evidence that public education is failing our children and that students in Asia and Europe have kept ahead of our kids in science, math, geography and other critical subjects.

Sadly, most parents would no more think of challenging the performance of public schools than they'd talk back to the pope. They defer to educational "experts" with bovine docility.

Nowhere in People for the American Way's 76-page report is any attempt made to assess separately the various parental challenges. They are simply assumed to be intrinsically outrageous, all thrown in the same dark kettle of "censorship."

But honestly: Is it reasonable to suppose teachers and administrators never make a mistake and choose the wrong book for classroom study? Do school librarians infallibly spend their limited budgets wisely? Do taxpayers have no right to object when they believe their money has gone to support offensive materials?

Would stocking shelves, say, with a complete bound collection of "Hastler" magazine fall within a school's unassailable right? People for the American Way surely doesn't think so, yet that is where its logic leads.

This note to say that dissident parents are always (or even usually) right. The "censorship" report describes both incidents in which seemingly eccentric or narrow-minded adults went off half-cocked, spying, "paganism," "obscenity" and other religious-right boghobgins in apparently harmless books. But such people have as much right to state their concerns as anyone else. School districts needn't capitulate to their demands. Most don't, in fact.

The report also describes several despicable actions by school authorities, including the suppression of unflattering articles in student newspapers and cancellation of scheduled appearances by controversial figures.

For the most part, however, People for the American Way merely catalogs an undifferentiated list of parental objections to various books, assignments and courses — leaving the clear impression that the organization worries less about censorship than over who decides how and what children are taught.

In effect, People for the American Way supports the right of school authorities to make decisions without fear of challenge. Any parent who objects to an official ruling, on whatever ground, is portrayed as a fanatic or censor. The organization's president, Arthur Krupp, goes so far as to describe parental challenges as a stem-cell disease that is "the scourge of our schools." Krupp's statement is the ravine of a demagogue or a hysterical. Either way, it is contemptible.

Proposal silences anti-nukers

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — Opponents of nuclear power may feel cocky after stalling plants in California, New Hampshire and Long Island. But a potential meltdown looms for them in Congress.

A bill goes to the House floor soon that would curtail chances for the public to speak out against nuclear plants before they are operational.

Now, more than ever, the public is urged to speak out. The bill would eliminate the public hearings that are now held before a new plant gets a license to go to full power.

Why should Congress even consider cutting off that public input? If you guessed campaign donations, you're wrong.

The operators and builders of nuclear power plants have been buying access to Congress for decades. In just the last eight years, they have pumped more than $25 million into the campaigns of senators and representatives, according to a campaign finance study by the U.S. Public Interest Research Group.

"Many of the nuclear corporations that use (campaign donations) to buy access to members of Congress are making those same members to deny the public access to important decision," PIRG attorney Bill McGovern told our associate Stewart Harris.

"It appears the real reason for these contributions is to buy votes," said PIRG's Executive Director Gene Karpinsky.

It should come as no surprise that on the average, representatives and senators who make decisions without fear of challenge. Any parent who objects to an official ruling, on whatever ground, is portrayed as a fanatic or censor. The organization's president, Arthur Krupp, goes so far as to describe parental challenges as a stem-cell disease that is "the scourge of our schools." Krupp's statement is the ravine of a demagogue or a hysterical. Either way, it is contemptible.

OUR FASCINATING EARTH by Phil Bert, Ph.D.

THE SHOCK WAS FELT THROUGHOUT HALF OF ENGLAND. THOUSANDS OF BUILDINGS WERE SEVERELY DAMAGED OR WRECKED AND FISHERIES APPEARED TO OPEN UP EVERYWHERE. YET IT SEEMED AS IF 'THE GODS WERE PLAYING SILENTLY' BECAUSE, DESPITE THE WIDESPREAD CHAOS, NOT A SINGLE PERSON WAS SERIOUSLY INJURED!

X-rays pinpoint lymph blockage

DEAR DR. GOTT: Can you provide information on lymphedema caused by a fall?

DEAR READER: In addition to blood circulation, one of us has a secondary system of fluid circulation called lymphatic system. Lymph fluid is the colorless watery liquid that fills blisters. Small amounts of it are normally present in all tissues. Lymph circulates back to the heart (and into the bloodstream) through a series of lymph channels, thin-walled tubes that are periodically interrupted by lymph nodes, balls of tissues acting as filters.

If the lymph channels are injured or the lymph nodes damaged (or removed during surgery), the lymph fluid accumulates in the part of the body supplies by these structures. Tissue swelling (edema) ensues. I assume you had a serious fall, which damaged the lymph channels, and now the lymph is pooling in a part of your body — probably an arm or a leg, the most common locations for this to occur. This affliction is not hazardous.

However, if you are bothered by the edema — if it is painful or quite pronounced, for instance — you should be examined by a doctor, such as a vascular surgeon, who specializes in circulatory problems. Using a sophisticated type of X-ray examination, called a lymphangiogram, the specialist may be able to pinpoint the lymph blockage and repair it surgically. Or the specialist may suggest non-surgical therapy, such as diuretic medicine and pressurized sleeves, to relieve your edema.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 62-year-old female with mitral-valve prolapse. My doctor has me on verapamil. A report about this product has me confused. What does it do to the calcium in the body? Will it affect my teeth, and eventually cause arthritis?

I'm happy to hear this medication helps cancer patients, but I want to know if it is harmful to those who take it for a heart condition.

DEAR READER: Verapamil, a calcium-channel blocker, is used to treat hypertension and heart disease. It affects the flow of calcium into cells, causing relaxation of certain muscles in the body, notably those lining arteries. Verapamil does not affect the level of calcium in the bloodstream, does not influence normal bones and teeth, and does not hasten arthritis or arteriosclerosis calcium-deposit inside arteries.

The medicine is routinely prescribed for the heart condition you describe, to be used under a doctor's supervision. It helps mitral-valve prolapse by reducing the tendency to cyclic attacks of rapid heart rate (tachycardia). Verapamil has no effect whatsoever on cancels and is never used for the treatment of malignancies.

More freedom

We heard open talk in Moscow this summer that Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev could be overthrown by a political revolt or military coup. Political reforms are raising hopes of economic reforms in the Soviet Union. That has resulted in more freedoms, but less food. People have more freedom to grumble, but more to grumble about. Hardliners are using the shortages to point out the failures of perestroika. The next logical step for Gorbachev is to replace more of those hardliners in the Kremlin with reformers.

Mint-editorial

Columbian President Virgilio Barco recently cast his country as the victim of the cocaine trade. He said cocaine users in America "have created the largest, most vicious criminal enterprise the world has ever known." Maybe Barco thinks Americans have short memories. Up until Colombia had got religion last month, the government there gave sanctuary to that vicious criminal enterprise by refusing to let the United States extradite suspected drug kingpins for trial. There is plenty of blame to go around.

FOCUS/Advice

Kids need sex education and libraries

DEAR ABBY: I live in Norfolk, Va., where our school systems are embroiled in a huge battle over changes in public school sex education.

I hope every opponent of the Family Life Education curriculum read the letter from the 14-year-old girl who wanted to know if she could get pregnant the "first time." It is obvious that the sex education program at this girl's school has failed to meet her needs.

And while I have your ear, Abby, I'd like to address another way schools are failing their students. Abby, you get many letters from school-age children, all spending 25 cents to ask you questions they could have answered free. All our 14-year-old friend need have done is walk to the nearest library. There she would have easy access to free information on every subject on earth.

Don't schools teach students how to use a library anymore? And Abby, why don't you ever plug our library system? It would make my day to see you answer someone's letter with, "Look it up." It might put you out of business, but if you could teach one young person how valuable our libraries are, you could certainly consider your job of educating the nation well done.

Shortly after Dad's death, my younger sister married, and now she has three children. Here's the problem: My sister constantly tries to make me feel guilty because my children — now teenagers — "have it made" for their college educations, while she and her husband will have to beg, borrow or scrape together the money to send their kids to college.

She says Dad should have made some arrangements for his future grandchildren. Is this evergreen?

U.S. stills leads in one category — the most obese

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States may be land of the free and home of the brave, but it is also the country of the fat.

A researcher on obesity says that 33 million adult Americans, about 20 percent of the adult population, are significantly obese, giving the United States one of the highest percentages of fat people in the world.

"It's clear that significant obesity appears to be more prevalent in the United States than elsewhere," Dr. George A. Bray, a professor of medicine at Louisiana State University, said Thursday.

"The greater the excess weight, the greater the risk of resulting health problems," he said.

Obesity is a public health concern only in Europe and North America, and the percentage of significantly overweight people is highest by far in the United States, Bray said.

The scientist said researchers don't know why there is a higher percentage of fat adults in America than elsewhere, though he suggests it could be because of the highly mechanized U.S. civilization that makes it easy to avoid walking or climbing stairs.

Bray says statistics suggest Americans are eating a better diet now — avoiding meats and other foods high in animal fats — but the number of significantly obese people "continues to creep up."

The effects of excess weight is showing up in health studies that show the obese are suffering more heart attacks, more high blood pressure, more diabetes and more gall bladder disease.

Being extremely fat, Bray said, is only slightly less of a health risk than smoking two packs of cigarettes a day.

Bray, president-elect of the North American Association for the Study of Obesity, said doctors consider significant obesity to be a weight about 30 percent above what would be ideal for a person's age, stature and gender.

Thus, a man whose ideal weight is 170 to 180 pounds becomes "significantly" obese if his weight balloons to 221 to 234. At that point, he becomes almost twice as likely to develop a life-shortening ailment, Bray said.

But numbers on the weight scale don't tell the full story.

"It's not just how fat you are, but where the fat is located, that will determine your risk," said Bray.

Researchers now believe that fat located within the abdominal cavity poses a greater health hazard than does fat located in the extremities or just under the skin.

"The reasons for this are not yet clear," said Bray. "The most widely accepted explanation is that when you've got more fat in your belly around your organs, it is that fat that is released when you eat fatty acids."

Because of its proximity, such fat is thought to go directly to the liver, where "it sets up risk factors that we associate with heart disease, diabetes, hypertension and gall bladder disease," he said.

Adult men, said Bray, seem most at risk of developing this unhealthy deposit of abdominal fat. Age also plays a factor, he added, because few children or young adults develop this type of fat deposit.

"For women, the visceral fat doesn't seem to increase until there is a lot of total fat," he said.

"Women are protected against visceral fat to some degree, for some reason."

Smoking affects visceral, or central, fat, Bray, and stopping smoking tends to cause this fat to disappear, even though the former smoker may gain fat in other areas.

the school systems' facilities and increasing its capacity to accommodate projected growth in the coming decade, Marshall said.

The board has been examining two proposals for the structural improvements. Both involve closing the Center School, which houses grades five through eight.

One plan is to move those students to the elementary school and build an addition to it. The other is to split the Center School students, so the students in grades five and six would move into the elementary school and the students in grades seven and eight would go to the high school.

Under the latter plan, a smaller addition would be built onto the elementary school and an addition would be built onto the high school. Both plans involve improving inadequate or non-existing facilities such as cafeterias and industrial arts classrooms in both schools.

Marshall said although the school population is expected to increase, the high school population will decrease as the turn of the century approaches. The decrease is anticipated because there are less children from Bolton in that age bracket than other groups and because the town of Willington this year has stopped sending students to Bolton High School.

Willington does not have a high school and is now sending its students to E.O. Smith High School in Mansfield. Although the Willington Board of Education has said it is sending students to E.O. Smith on a one-year trial basis and they may return to Bolton, school officials in Bolton have said they are not optimistic about a return.

Bolton is now trying to recruit high school students from the town of Columbia.

Columbia is requesting information about Bolton High School including accreditation, teacher-pupil ratios, school philosophy, and extracurricular activities.

Whether Bolton attracts the Columbia students or not, Marshall said, Shibles, who has worked on the curriculum in Bolton before, is eager to design a program for a smaller high school.

Oseila, who filed the complaint leading to the hearing and represented himself during proceedings, joked that he would not run for the board but pursue his law degree instead.

Town Director Theunis Werkhoven, current minority leader on the board, and candidate Susan Buckno promised a grassroots campaign.

Wholesale prices decline for third month in a row

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices fell for the third consecutive month in August as a big drop in energy costs pushed inflation down by 0.4 percent, the government said today.

The decline in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index followed a similar 0.4 percent plunge in July and a 0.1 percent dip in June. It was the first time wholesale prices have fallen for three consecutive months since early 1986.

The August price moderation was even better than had been expected and provided further evidence to support arguments that inflation should be well under control in the second half of the year.

The three-month string of declines in wholesale prices was particularly welcome because it came after a surge in prices earlier this year had triggered fears of a possible inflationary spiral.

Wholesale prices were surging ahead at an annual rate of 9.4 percent through May. However, with the monthly declines since that time, wholesale inflation is now running at a much more moderate annual rate of 4.4 percent through the first eight months of the year. In 1988, wholesale prices rose 4 percent.

A broadbased drop in energy costs was credited for the price decline in August.

Gasoline prices plunged 12.1 percent, the third consecutive monthly decline. Prices of natural gas were also down, dropping 5 percent, while prices of home heating oil fell 2.1 percent.

Team to keep an eye on is MHS girls soccer

Jim Tierney

As we still endure the heat and humidity of summer, the scholastic fall sports season began in earnest on Wednesday afternoon.

Sifting through the local girls' and boys' teams, the one contingent which immediately rises to the highest level is the Manchester High girls' soccer team.

Manchester, which compiled an 18-1 record in 1988, advanced to the Class L state tournament semifinals a year ago before finally bowing to Simsbury. With virtually the entire team returning, including All-New England senior stopperback Meg Berrie, the Bulldogs appear to be in line for another successful season.

Freshman forward Sharon Fish has already been tabbed by coach Joe Erardi as one of the best players to ever come through the program. Also, juniors Shelly Dieterle, Kathy Cumberbatch, sophomores Mary Moriarty, Patty Hornbostel, Jessica Marquez and goalie Melissa Daversa may become household names by the time the 1989 season is over.

In the past five seasons, Manchester has compiled an awesome record of 80-8-4 and has won all five CCC East titles. This afternoon's game at 5:30 at Memorial Field with non-conference foe Sheehan High of Wallingford is an early showdown between two of the best teams in the state.

Sheehan was the Class M runner-up last year. This game should shed some definite light on the Indians' past year of talent.

The Manchester boys' soccer team, which bowed to Cheshire in the Class L state championship game a year ago, lost 10 of 11 starters from its 16-3-1 1988 club. However, led by junior goalie Mike Milazzo and senior striker Corey Craft, the Indians may surprise some people this season.

Many times forgotten, the Bolton High boys' soccer team has achieved a distinct level of success in recent history. Coming off a fine 11-6-1 campaign, the Bulldogs appear to be in line for another successful season.

The Coventry High girls' team, usually a Class S powerhouse, will experience a rebuilding year according to Coach Chris D'Ambrosio while the Coventry boys experienced its worst turmoil in school history. Especially for a school without a football program, A more than three sophomores dot the Patriot boys' roster which barely has 20 players on the team. It's not likely that a junior varsity program will exist this year.

East Catholic boys' and girls' soccer both share several question marks for this season, especially a very young boys' squad.

On the gridiron, the Manchester High and East Catholic High football teams are both coming off disappointing 2-8 campaigns. Of the pair, the outlook appears brighter for the Indians due to the fact that their multi-talented quarterback Aris Leonard returns for his senior year. Though both Manchester and East are short on experience, the Eagles have fewer proven players in the skilled positions.

Concerning cross country, the Manchester High girls' and East Catholic boys' both return solid teams. The Manchester girls will contend for the LL state title. Also, the East boys have a solid shot at the MM title. The Manchester boys, third last year in both the LL and State Open meets, graduated several of its top runners, including All-Staters Craig Hempstead and Todd Liscomb, and will begin with an unproven squad.

Unlike Manchester, the East Catholic girls, usually one of the dominant girls' cross country teams in the state, graduated eight starters from last year. Junior All-Stater Nancy Byrne leads an underdeveloped squad. Byrne will challenge the elite runners in the state.

As the heat and humidity of summer finally wanes into the coolness of fall, keep an eye on the Manchester High girls' soccer team.

to the FOI Commission about what he called secret meetings held by the Republicans with the Republican town chairman and other Republican advisers present.

Oseila said he has not hired a lawyer to represent him in an appeal and hopes some lawyer will offer to do so as a public service. DiRosa has said he does not know what lawyer will represent him in the appeal he plans to take.

Oseila said that in an appeal, the court will be able to consider only evidence that was presented at the original Feb. 6 hearing, before the hearing officer, Deane G. Avery.

At the hearing before the full FOI Commission Wednesday, Oseila submitted a brief and so did DiRosa. Both also offered oral arguments.

Some of the materials in the brief and the oral arguments were challenged on the ground that they constituted new evidence not presented at the original hearing.

Vincent's challenge is simple

By Jim Like
The Associated Press

Like a jockey on a good horse, a person can sometimes ride a moment into history. Handed such a moment, Fay Vincent Jr.'s challenge may simply be staying afloat.

"Like Fay, I had been around baseball one way or another before I took over as commissioner," said Bowie Kuhn, one of Vincent's predecessors.

"We handled a lot of the legal work, so in that regard, I was already familiar with many of the problems and reasonably comfortable about assuming the duties. Fay was Bart's deputy commissioner, so he certainly knows where to find things," he said during a telephone conversation from his New York law office.

"But I'd be less than truthful," he added, "if I told you that the pressures weren't a lot more intense when you're the guy in the chair-making the decisions."

"My recommendations for Kuhn to remain a thick skin and a spirited sense of humor," Kuhn concluded. "At all times."

Vincent, it seems, spent a lifetime preparing for the one job he never sought, but which became his Wednesday, nearly two weeks to the day after his close friend, A. Bartlett Giamatti, died of a heart attack.

In much the same way Lyndon Johnson took the oath of office with a promise to continue the agenda of the assassinated John Kennedy, so did Vincent vow to remain true to the vision of the man from whose shadow he stepped Wednesday and against whom he will now be measured.

There are two answers. It's a good job in the abstract because it's a chance to influence something that is very precious and special in American life. ... And because Bart and I didn't get anywhere near as far as we wanted to get together.

Yet, Vincent is likely to find the going increasingly tougher — even as he is forced to go it alone.

Talk of a strike next season is hardening. Pete Rose, whom Giamatti and Vincent faced down together, will be gunning for reinstatement 11 months from now. And there is pressure to expand.

Vincent will be expected to be a visionary and a guardian at the same time, allowing into the game what is new and improved while preserving what is old and still worthy.

"It's never been an easy job," Kuhn said, chuckling. "The demands are terrific and the public scrutiny is intense, but nobody expects the job to be wanting in pressure. In that regard, I don't think Fay will be dismayed that so many tough issues await him."

"Besides, given the popularity Bart achieved, even in the short few months he held the job, the fact that physically, and I hope they have finally learned to support them."

All of the women told Noriko in a pre-sentiment report they had been emotionally scarred by the rapes.

Ken Simon, Fontaine's attorney, agreed the crimes were ugly. He said Fontaine's drinking should not excuse his behavior but that it contributed to his "Jekyll and Hyde" personality.

Fontaine pleaded guilty to the crimes under the state's Alford Doctrine, under which the accused does not admit to the crime but acknowledges the state has enough evidence to convict him. Fontaine committed the crimes after he was let out of jail after serving nine months of a 3 1/2-year term for purse snatching.

BOLTON — The two modular classrooms installed at the elementary school are ready for occupancy and the modular band room at the high school should be ready by Tuesday, said School Superintendent Richard Pickering.

The electrical wiring of the band room was not completed Thursday, Packman said, and Northeast Utilities, the company installing the wiring, told him it could not work today if rains.

Stirling quite confident on eve of his title defense

By Peter Viles
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — WBC Welterweight Champion Marlon Stirling wasn't in a talking mood the day before his title defense against Yungki Chung of Korea, and the T-shirt he wore to a ceremonial weigh-in said more than Stirling did.

"I have an attitude," the shirt announced.

The attitude Thursday was understated confidence.

After Stirling and Chung weighed in (both at 147) in front of a luncheon crowd of 200, Stirling turned to the challenger and smiled. "He's tough," Stirling said. "He's just not tough enough."

Talk of a strike next season is hardening. Pete Rose, whom Giamatti and Vincent faced down together, will be gunning for reinstatement 11 months from now. And there is pressure to expand.

Honeycomb kept the title, but Chang protested the low blow and held on to his position as ranking contender.

Stirling then took the title from Honeycomb with a 9th round knockout on Feb. 4 in Las Vegas.

Stirling, citing a bad shoulder, then pulled out of an April title defense against Mark Breland, setting up Friday's mandatory title defense against Chung.

But Stirling has spent much of his time leading up to the fight confronting his bitterest relationship with his hometown.

On Sunday, his hometown paper, The Hartford Courant, announced in a front-page headline, "Stirling no star in city: World champion lacks punch as hometown hero."

The story portrayed Stirling as an unwelcome celebrity in a celebrity-starved city, and predicted that half or more of the Hartford Civic Center's 10,000 seats would be empty Friday night. Just over 5,000 tickets have been sold.

Stirling's advisor, Mort Sharink, said Stirling was "brutalized" by the story, which he dismissed as unfair.

"I walked the streets with him," Sharink said. "To a man, the people in this town are excited about him."

Sharink attributes most of the ill will toward Stirling to jealousy from the city's small band of boxing enthusiasts.

"He made it," Sharink said. "They had him, and he got away, and now it eats 'em to the core."

But Sharink acknowledges that the sleepy-eyed Stirling has never been a media darling.

"He is headstrong, he's contentious, and he's independent," Sharink said.

Stirling is also quiet, bordering on shy, and spends little time courting the media, preferring instead to spend most of his spare time in his suburban South Windsor with his 13-year-old son.

"When he does talk to the press, he's often on the defensive."

He spent 90 minutes Thursday evening visiting Bellevue Square, the run-down housing project where he grew up. Surrounded by screaming kids, Stirling handed out 100 tickets in a few minutes and then hung around chatting with old friends.

Asked about his apparently chilly relationship with the rest of the city, Stirling gestured toward the downtown skyline and shook his head.

"That's the people in the offices," he said. "They don't know me. They don't know Hartford, and they don't know the North End. These people know me."

But even in the heart of the North End, "Moochie" has his detractors.

"At the Bellevue Square Boys' Club, a cinderblock gym where Stirling once trained, he's no longer welcome. John Scully, an affable middleweight whose claim to boxing fame is a losing effort in the Olympic Trials, is more popular with the kids in the cramped gym."

"Think about Marlon, he's always one step away from a confrontation," Scully said.

"I know Duke, a crusty old trainer who once taught Stirling, has banned the champ from the gym.

MHS, EC gridders set to launch years

The Manchester High and East Catholic High football teams kick off their respective seasons Saturday afternoon.

Both Manchester and East are coming off 2-8 campaigns a year ago. The Indians, under the direction of first-year coach Mike Masse, will host Windsor High. Stirling will play a non-league encounter at 1:30 p.m. at Memorial Field. East will host New London in a non-league game at 1:30 p.m. at Mount Nebo's Carlin Field.

Senior quarterback Aris Leonard will lead the Indians. Senior running back Tyrone Kimber will be the man to stop for Windsor. Manchester defeated Windsor in its 1988 opener, 7-6.

East Catholic, under second-year coach Leo Facchini, graduated 11 starters from last year including quarterback Marc Mangiafico. Senior Chris Mueller will handle the quarterback duties for the Eagles while junior fullback Adam Albricio is the key man in the backfield. New London, which is ranked among the state's preseason Top 10 teams, edged the Eagles, 7-6, in both teams' 1988 opener.

New London has lost the services of All-State running back Jamal Johnson due to graduation, but another "star" looms on the horizon. Kevin Durham, a transfer All-State running back from Arkansas, is expected to step in and contribute immediately.

Holtz in top form on eve of big game

By Harry Atkins
The Associated Press

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Lou Holtz, that master player of midweek games, has been in top form while preparing for Notre Dame's clash with Michigan.

The Fighting Irish, after an impressive 36-13 victory over Virginia in the Kickoff Classic two weeks ago, are ranked No. 1, a position Michigan held in the preseason poll. The Wolverines, who have yet to play a game, are ranked No. 2.

Of course, the Irish also are defending national champs and holding a 13-game winning streak, but that's just incidental to Holtz.

Michigan coach Bo Schembechler never has won the mythical national football championship. It's the lone void in an otherwise brilliant career. Schembechler, naturally, cries to downplay the fact, but Holtz won't let him — not until after the game Saturday, anyway.

"We didn't even mention Michigan until after our Kickoff Classic game with Virginia," Holtz said. "Bo has been talking to his players about Notre Dame since the '88 season ended."

Schembechler doesn't argue with that.

"It's the biggest opportunity we've ever had in Michigan Stadium, and I hope we can avoid first-game misadventure," he said. "Notre Dame has had a game and then two weeks to prepare. But we're going in figuring we've got a chance to win it."

In Schembechler's opinion, winning the national championship is an almost impossible task for Michigan or any other Big Ten team.

"It would be exciting," he said. "But it's farfetched for us, you look at what we'd have to do. In Schembechler's opinion, winning the Rose Bowl, at tailback with Jarrod Bunch at fullback, that's beat Notre Dame here, UCLA out there, Maryland here, then win all our Big Ten games — and we play everybody except Northwestern."

"We have Michigan State, Illinois and Iowa on the way, then we'd have to go to the Rose Bowl and win that. That's asking an awful lot of this team, and I don't know if we can."

Notre Dame and the Wolverines,

Notre Dame cornerback Todd Lyght indicated the Irish will do the same thing Saturday, especially in light of the success Notre Dame had in holding Virginia to just 95 yards passing with three interceptions.

"It's the same as a year ago," Lyght said. "Going into the season, we thought we (in the secondary) might have to be a little stranger on run support. But playing Virginia, there was no indication of that."

Holtz, however, continued to talk down his team.

"We're not a very good football team right now," Holtz said. "What I worry about is their running game. They have probably the best group of running backs in the country. They all run hard."

Michigan will start Leroy Hoard, the MVP of the Rose Bowl, at tailback with Jarrod Bunch at fullback. That means that tailback Tony Boles, who led the Wolverines with 1,408 yards last year, will be coming off the bench.

Schembechler said all three of his running backs would get plenty of action.

"This will be a significantly big game," Schembechler said. "But it's one of those hype games. On the basis of last year and the Virginia game, Notre Dame should be No. 1,

Padres now must catch the Giants

By The Associated Press

Twenty-four hours earlier, the San Diego Padres were probably thinking of putting some worry into the San Francisco Giants.

But all that has changed. The Padres, who beat Atlanta 3-2 Wednesday night, got late word that Cincinnati held a 7-5 lead over San Francisco. The streaking Padres were looking at only a four-game deficit in the National League West race, and with the same teams playing again Thursday, why it wasn't inconceivable that the margin would be down to three a day later. And then San Diego and San Francisco would play a crucial series at Candlestick Park.

Well, the series does open tonight, and it is critical — but only for the Padres.

The Giants, you see, came back to win Wednesday night game 8-7 by scoring three times in the bottom of the 13th. On Thursday, the Giants went 12 innings in beating the Reds 4-3 while last-place Atlanta battered the Padres 13-4.

Instead of trailing by four games, or even three, the Padres head to San Francisco six back and probably in need of a sweep to keep alive hopes of catching the Giants.

"It's been an uphill battle for a month. We've gone from 12 games back to five games back," said San Diego manager Jack McKeon said. "You've got to give those guys out there credit for battling back."

But with only 15 games remaining, San Diego will soon face the "magic number" countdown unless the Padres can cut into the San Francisco lead this week.

"I don't believe we have to sweep," McKeon said. "We're just thinking about tomorrow night. You have to win the first two before you can think about the sweep."

In other games Thursday, Houston trounced Los Angeles 11-3 and Pittsburgh downed St. Louis 4-3.

"We know we had to win, and we just didn't get the job done," Padres outfielder Tony Gwynn said. "It's burst our bubble. It seems like every time we lose, they win and stretch their lead out."

Tom Glavine, 14-8, pitched six innings in beating San Diego for the fourth time this season. Jeff Blauser and Oskabe McDowell had four hits apiece to pace a 15-hit Atlanta attack. Dale Murphy hit his 20th home run. Blauser hit 10th and Mark Lemke his first as a major leaguer.

Giants 4, Reds 3: Will Clark, who had three hits, scored the winning run in the bottom of the 12th inning on Bob Brently's single as San Francisco beat Cincinnati.

Clark, who tripled, doubled and singled, reached base on third baseman Luis Quinones' error to start the 12th. He stole second as Kevin Mullen, Allison Mullen, and Katie Carboneau, Bissy Depaula and Darcy Devaney also played well.

Lynn Genilliere and Tracy Williams played well in the middle field for East while Kelly Kane, Allison Mullen, and Katie Carboneau, Bissy Depaula and Darcy Devaney also played well.

East's next game is Saturday at 10:30 a.m. at Glassboro High School. Score: NY, 2; Del., 0-0-2.

East Catholic: Scoring: SW, Darryl, Steiner, 2; 0-0-0. Seaver, EC, Carver, 18, SW, Michele, Pfromm, 9.

Coventry in tie in season opener

COVENTRY — The Coventry High boys soccer team took a neutral position in its 1989 season opener Thursday as it drew with Woodstock Academy, 1-1, in non-conference play.

The Patriots next see action Saturday at 10 a.m. as they travel to Lyman Memorial.

The teams traded first half goals with Woodstock scoring first, converting on a corner kick.

Mike Baranski's corner flew into the box which Jared Morse deflected home.

Coventry drew even with 2:10 left in the opening half on a three-way play. Steve Poulin set things into motion with a cross from the right side.

Bob Tohill one-timed it to freshman Jeremy Haynes, and he found the back of the net from 12 yards out.

The teams played through a scoreless second half and a five-minute overtime.

Each team was credited with a dozen shots. Coventry keeper Bob Johnson, who had 10 saves, prevented the tie with three minutes left in regulation as he came off his line and stopped a bid by Morse on a breakaway.

"At times we moved the ball nicely," Coventry coach Bob Plaster said. "But we also had spurs where we let them take over. We weren't playing aggressively enough at times."

Plaster added his team has to show a little more patience on offense. "We gave up possession sooner than I would have liked," Randy Leece at sweeperback, Poulin at stopper and Pat Bradley at midfield and right wing played well for Coventry.

Rangers dent Royals' division hopes

By Doug Tucker
The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Mike Jeffcoat seems to be pitching himself into the Texas Rangers' future while Tom Gordon pitches himself right out of rookie of the year contention.

Jeffcoat, a journeyman left-hander who was called up from Class AAA Oklahoma City at the end of May, went eight strong innings against Kansas City Thursday night as the Texas Rangers dented the Royals' division title hopes with a 10-3 rout.

The 30-year-old Jeffcoat, 8-5, has established himself as an integral part of the Rangers' rotation.

Gordon, meanwhile, is wondering where his sharp curveball went. A month ago, he was 16-4 with a breaking pitch people were comparing to Bert Blyleven's. But the 21-year-old right hander took his fourth consecutive loss, dropping his record to 16-8 and his level of confidence is way below 500.

The loss was only the second in 10 games for the Royals, but it dropped them 3 1/2 games behind idle Oakland in the American League West. In other games, Minnesota beat Toronto 2-0 and Cleveland defeated Detroit 4-0.

Elsewhere Sunday, it is Indianapolis at the Los Angeles Rams, Dallas at Atlanta, the Los Angeles Raiders at Kansas City, Miami at New England, New Orleans at Green Bay, Philadelphia at Washington, San Francisco at Tampa Bay, Detroit at the New York Giants, Minnesota at Chicago, Phoenix at Seattle and Houston at San Diego.

The Monday night game has Denver at Buffalo. Eric Dickerson returns to the scene of so many of his big games as the Colts play at Anaheim Stadium. The Rams traded Dickerson just after the 1987 players' strike.

"I'm not going to play any differently," Dickerson said. "They'll probably make a bigger deal out of it than I will. I just want to win the game."

And rush for more than 100 yards, of course.

Either, according to Coach Mike Archer. "You're ranked No. 6 or No. 7, you've got to go out and prove it, starting in September," Archer said.

"All I can say, based on that, is that we didn't deserve to be No. 7. We may not deserve to be No. 21. We're 0-1. We haven't won a game, and there are a lot of teams out there who have won football games."

"We need this game pretty badly ourselves. We're just like them. We're backed up in a corner, just like they are. We're playing for just as much as they are."

Playing for No. 1 are Notre Dame, ranked at the top, and No. 2 Michigan. In other games involving ranked teams, No. 3 Miami, Fla., is home to California. Utah is at No. 4 Nebraska, No. 5 Auburn enters dangerous Southern Mississippi. No. 6 Oklahoma is at Arizona, seventh-ranked Clemson goes to Virginia Tech, No. 8 Colorado is at home against No. 10 Illinois, and No. 9 Arkansas opens its season at home.

LSU was ranked seventh before the loss to the Aggies. Now 21st, the Tigers might not belong there.

Ex-colonel urges assassinations

By Jay Sharbutl
The Active Press

NEW YORK—How to fight Colombia's drug lords? One suggestion on Fox Broadcasting's "The Reporters" Saturday: Try something like the Viet Cong leaders that went on during the Vietnam War. "If you can't win a war, you can't win a war," said the ex-colonel. "If you can't win a war, you can't win a war." The complex, up-from-the-ranks soldier now lives in Australia, is an advocate of nuclear arms, and on Saturday's show he urges killing the South American drug lords. ## Indians' image hurt in films

By Bob Thomas
The Associated Press
HOLLYWOOD — "The only good Indian is a dead Indian." Such dialogue, so odious by today's standards, was common in Western movies a few decades ago. It stemmed from a remark attributed to Gen. Philip H. Sheridan when he was introduced to a Comanche chief in 1869.

'The Big Picture' spoofs Hollywood movie industry

By John Horn
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — The Hollywood impresario in "The Big Picture" crochets in the office to unwind, and think of a telephone busy signal as a movie deal gone bad. Yet as wacky as their world may be, it mirrors the frenzied deal-making industry the movie attempts to spoof.

Everything that happens in this movie has a basis in reality," said director Christopher Guest, who also co-wrote the story with producer Michael Varhol. Guest, Varhol and Michael McKean wrote the screenplay. But bringing "The Big Picture" to the big screen was no small task. It took six years for Guest, an alumnus of TV's "Saturday Night Live" and the co-star and co-writer of the spoof rock documentary "This Is Spinal Tap," to get the movie released. It also was his debut as a director.

Originally developed for Paramount Pictures, the film's script was bought by David Puttnam before he was named president and chief executive officer of Columbia Pictures. Although his successor at Columbia, Dawn Steel, abandoned a number of films she inherited, "The Big Picture" was not one of them. "When I was first working on the script, I was not interested in pitching this to studios to get a script deal; they were invariably queasy about the idea, about whether people would be interested in the subject," Guest said. "I think part of it is, 'Let's keep the mystery where it is. I don't want these people snooping around here to 'such.' The fact is, it's like every other business in many senses: There's a large element of arbitrariness, which is one of the keys to the film I wanted to do."

During production of the $5 million film, Guest said studio muckleshooters left him alone. "Not one word was said to us," he said. "In fact, it's been even more difficult, subsequently with my next movie," which Guest is making for independent New Vision Pictures. Pre-production on "The Big Picture" began in late 1987, and the finished film sat on the shelf from the beginning of this year until now. The movie's release is limited, too, and if it fails to attract a good box office, it may not make it beyond Los Angeles, New York and Austin, Texas.

Early reviews have been mixed. Bob Thomas of The Associated Press said the movie "proves annoyingly flat, like a series of shaggy-dog stories without punchlines," and its characters are cliches. He compared the effort to "Once in a Lifetime," the 1933 scathing spoof of early Hollywood by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, and concluded that "The Big Picture" doesn't succeed at satire. "It's so difficult to make movies," Guest said in an interview. "It's absolutely shocking. People say that it's hard. But no, you really don't know; you just don't even have a clue."

Guest, the husband of actress Jamie Lee Curtis, has appeared in "The Princess Bride," "Little Shop of Horrors," "The Long Riders" and "Griffinduck." But he's not entirely pleased with all he did in his first time behind the camera. "It's not perfect," he said. "But there's something going on there. For a first movie, I'm glad I did this. Now it's time for something else."

"The Big Picture" stars Kevin Bacon as an eager, young filmmaker who abandons his lofty goals for a shot at Hollywood success. In the process, he betrays his best friend (McKean) and lover (Emily Longstrech), loses it all, has a comeback and manages to reconcile with his lover and friend. Though many might think the movie's satire is excessive, Guest believes his Hollywood backdrop to be tame. "Actors reading the script would say, 'My God, this has happened to me a million times, it happens to me every day,'" he said. "I've seen the most amazing things happen in meetings where if I were to show you what happened, you would say, 'Absolutely not. Please don't insult my intelligence with stories like that.'"
