MHS GIRLS WIN

Second shutout of the season

By Jim Tierney
Manchester Herald

In an early season showdown between two of the top scholastic girls' soccer teams in Connecticut — Manchester High and Shelton High of Wallingford — one side was dominant in every aspect of the match.

"Sheehan's a quality team. We just dismantled them," ninth-year Manchester coach Joe Erardi said after his Indians' 4-0 shutout win in a non-league encounter Friday afternoon at Memorial Field.

The Indian midfield of sophomores Mary Moriarty and Patty Hombostel, along with Dieterle maneuvered the ball skillfully throughout while the front line of Cumberbach, sophomore Jessica Marquez and impressive freshman Sharon Fish was an ever-present danger.

Manchester is now 2-0 and will travel to Enfield to take on Fermi High in CCC East action Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. Sheehan evens off at 1-1.

"They (Manchester) have the toughest bunch of girls I've ever seen," Sheehan coach Brian Murphy said. Sheehan was the Class M runnerup a year ago and was coming off an 8-0 whitewashing of Shelton in its season opener. Sheehan lost only four players from last year.

"They knocked us all over the field," Murphy continued. "That coupled with the amount of ability they have is going to make them very tough to beat."

A mere 1:33 into the match, Cumberbach took a pass from Fish and rocketed a 15-yarder into the upper left corner of the net. At 15:39 of the first half, Dieterle twisted and turned between defenders and unleashed a rising 20-yarder which tucked beautifully under the crossbar above the outstretched arms of Sheehan goalie Joan Richardson for a 2-0 lead.

"Those were quality shots," Erardi said of the Indians' first two scores. "Kathy's shot set the tone for the game."

Manchester junior goalie Amy Shumaker, who is filling in for injured sophomore Melissa Daverna, who is expected back next week, repelled some dangerous shots by Sheehan. Though outshot, 22-6, the visiting Titans kept Indian defenders on their toes with the presence of junior forward Lisa Perez.

Shumaker stopped two solid scoring opportunities by Perez in each half.

"Joe's backs never let my front players breathe," Murphy explained. "They don't have any weak players. Every girl can play and they all have confidence. It was obvious today we lacked confidence."

Bertr finished off the first-half scoring at 23:59. Off a corner kick by Cumberbach, Bertr one-timed a 12-yarder into the left corner. At the 24-minute mark of the second half, Manchester intensified its offensive effort and struck for the final time one minute later. Off another corner, Bertr scored.

"We have hammered out a wage, pension and benefit package that is one of the most progressive in the industry," said George O. Carlson, president of the Connecticut Union of Telephone Workers which represents 10,000 SNET workers. Members of the union include operators, installers, service technicians and clerical workers.

The new 42-month contract, which still must be ratified by the union's membership by Oct. 4, calls for basic wage increases totalling 9.5 percent over the life of the contract, said Beverly Levy, a SNET spokeswoman, after the agreement was reached late Saturday.

The new contract also includes a cost of living allowance, an annual success-sharing award based on corporate performance, pension increases, an improved health care plan and family and work initiatives, "which reflect changing lifestyles," Levy said.

Family initiatives include extended leaves, a dependent care referral service, adoption subsidies and creation of a family care fund which will support community programs that further dependent care services for employees.

"Our bargaining process was very constructive and led us to what we believe is the fairest possible contract," said Jean LaVecchia, an assistant vice-president at SNET and the head of the company's bargaining team.

"We've put together a contract for our members that recognizes the outstanding job we're doing, and lets us share in the company's success which we helped to create," Carlson said. "I'm very pleased with the outcome."

MY BALL — Manchester High's Jessica Marquez (9) effectively shields Sheehan High's Jen Pagan (8) from the ball during soccer action Friday afternoon at Memorial Field. Manchester's Shelly Dieterle (partially hidden) trails the play. Manchester scored three goals in the first half and went on to a 4-0 shutout win in a non-league encounter over the Titans, who were Class M runnerup a year ago.

UConn clinic focuses on fatigue

FARMINGTON (AP) — Droopy-eyed and weak, millions of people visit their doctors every year with a common complaint: They are tired.

A group of doctors at the University of Connecticut Health Center discovered that relatively little study has focused on chronic fatigue, despite recent interest in the chronic fatigue syndrome, the so-called "yuppie disease."

"They decided to help bridge the research gap by establishing a clinic for patients whose major complaint is chronic fatigue."

After seeing more than 300 patients over the past three years, the doctors believe many of the chronically fatigued are suffering from depression, not chronic fatigue, and can be treated with anti-depressants and therapy.

"There is a great tragedy of saying that chronic fatigue is viral without a shred of evidence," said Dr. Thomas Lane, the clinic's director. "Depression and panic disorder are easily treatable."

Contrary to the beliefs of many of their patients, the doctors believe that few of those seen at the clinic are suffering from chronic fatigue syndrome.

The Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta defined the syndrome as an illness just last year. The CDC says those with the syndrome have a number of other symptoms besides unending tiredness, including headache, sore throat, fever, weakness, lymph node pain, muscle and joint pain, memory loss and difficulty concentrating.

Both the cause and the cure for the syndrome are unknown, but many doctors believe the root is viral. Several studies have attempted to link chronic fatigue to the Epstein-Barr virus, which is related to herpes.

The mystery surrounding persistent fatigue prompted a factual discussion between Lane and his colleagues, Dr. Dale Matthews and Dr. Peter Manu in 1985.

"We compared notes and thought it might be one patient in 10 whose main complaint was chronic fatigue, so we went to the literature and found it was the fourth most common complaint for seeing a doctor."

Hurricane Hugo slams Puerto Rico

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — The region's mightiest hurricane in a decade lashed Puerto Rico today after battering the U.S. Virgin Islands and other tourist havens, leaving at least nine people dead and thousands homeless.

The National Weather Service said Hurricane Hugo was packing 130 mph winds and a 10-foot tidal surge when it hit the eastern tip of Puerto Rico this morning. Forecasters expected up to 15 inches of rain and flooding and mudslides all over the island.

"We're getting ravaged," said ham radio operator Fernando Garcia in San Juan. "We're getting all kinds of winds, rain — very, very hard."

"The wind is howling outside very, very fast ... Part of my aluminum siding is gone, my next door neighbor's aluminum siding is gone, all the trees around are shedding all their leaves and branches. And it looks worse, and it should be getting worse before it gets better," Garcia said.

Telephone communications with the United States were spotty.

On Sunday, Hugo plowed west-northwest through the eastern Caribbean, slamming into the U.S. Virgin Islands with 100 mph winds and rains that reportedly caused heavy flooding.

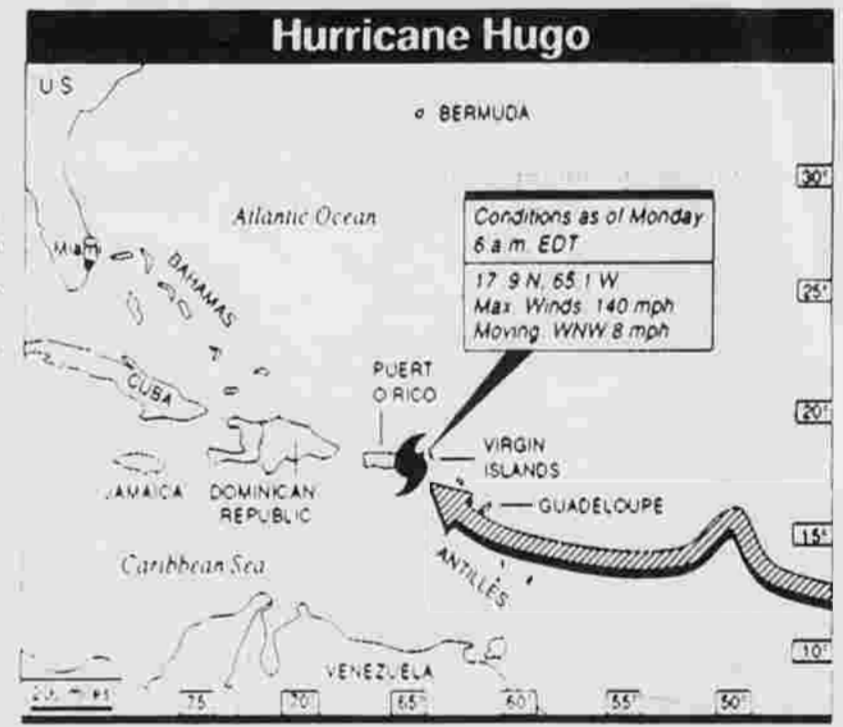

The French island of Guadeloupe appeared hit hardest through this morning, with five people reported killed, 80 injured and more than 10,000 homeless, relief officials said.

Corrugated steel roofs were torn off, power lines ripped free and crops were destroyed. The airport's control tower was knocked out of commission, permitting only visual landings by relief planes.

Two people were killed in Antigua and one in Montserrat, according to Beacon Radio in Anguilla. Police said a man was electrocuted in Puerto Rico when he touched a power line while removing a TV antenna from his roof in preparing for the storm.

At 9 a.m. EDT, Hugo's center was near latitude 18.4 degrees north and longitude 65.6 west on the eastern tip of Puerto Rico, said the National Weather Service.

Pentagon support thrown behind anti-drug battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, seeking to strike a new posture of Pentagon cooperation in President Bush's anti-drug battle, plans to boost his department's role in interdiction, surveillance and communication, aides say.

Cheney's planned announcement today was intended to "set a tone" for the agency instead of outlining a new wish list for the nation's battle against illicit drugs, said a senior Defense Department official.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff are working out the details of the program, which will include beefed-up border radar, additional ships and planes for surveillance along the eastern and southern coasts, and improved coordination among agencies involved in the drug battle, sources said.

"We've evolved ... There are still limits to our role, but the secretary recognizes that the international drug trade is a national security problem and we have an interdiction responsibility," said the official.

Cheney's message will be directed not only at Congress — which has been pressing the Pentagon to do more — but also inward, at military leaders who have expressed reluctance about using their ever-dwindling resources to enter a domestic war against civilian drug-smugglers.

The senior official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said their wary attitude is understandable given suggestions from Capitol Hill that the military be used to seal U.S. borders against drug-smugglers, or even shoot down unidentified aircraft that are entering U.S. airspace.

"They've got every right to be leery ... The secretary has emphasized that we are not a law enforcement agency," the official said.

The official said Cheney has convinced some military doubters of the need for a new approach, primarily because of the size of the crack cocaine epidemic and because the White House has demanded a new emphasis on the issue.

Cheney doesn't intend for the department to take a "go it alone" stance, but plans to fulfill its directive to take a lead role in coordinating the drug fight among the various agencies, the official said.

"DOD can't solve society's drug problems on its own," said the official.

Cheney plans to attack the problem of competing interests in the drug war by improving ways of sharing intelligence information among the agencies.

"The whole approach in the past has been, how many kilos, how big a bust has been made."

SNET package will raise wages, improve insurance

Accreditation review for police in October

By Nancy Concealman
Manchester Herald

After two years of preparation, the Manchester Police Department is ready for inspection by representatives from law enforcement agencies nationwide who will determine whether the department meets standards for accreditation.

If the department passes this inspection, it will be one of three police departments in the state to be accredited by the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies, a private, Fairfax, Va.-based agency.

State police and the Glastonbury Police Department are also accredited. Accreditation is voluntary and only about 100 police departments of about 15,000 nationwide have been accredited.

The four inspectors will begin examining the Manchester department's policies, procedures, management and support services Oct. 2, Police Chief Robert D. Lannan said in a press release issued today. They inspectors will be in town for one week.

The assessment includes a public information session at which residents and department employees

Frank says he patronized prostitutes occasionally

NEW YORK (AP) — Rep. Barney Frank says Stephen Goble "wasn't the first prostitute I had used" even though he believed it was wrong to patronize them.

In an interview with Newsweek magazine, the Massachusetts Democrat also denied claims that he acknowledged his homosexuality because he was afraid Goble would blackmail him.

"He wasn't the first prostitute I had used," Frank said. "I just couldn't live that way anymore. I was tired of looking over my shoulder. I met Herb (Moses, Frank's companion) about that time."

"I knew it was wrong for me to be hiring prostitutes from time to time," Frank said. "Goble wasn't the only one. I knew it was wrong, but I couldn't sit home." The interview is published in the Sept. 25 issue of Newsweek, which is on newsstands

Woman held on drug charges

An Ashford woman was arrested in Manchester Friday after police say they found cocaine and drug paraphernalia in her car after they stopped her vehicle for not having an emissions sticker.

Linda A. Schilling, 26, of 7D Perryhill Estates in Ashford was arrested on charges of possession of cocaine, possession of drug paraphernalia, misuse of insurance, and operating an unregistered vehicle, police said.

Police said Schilling could not produce an insurance or registration card after being stopped by police on West Middle Turnpike for not having an emissions sticker. She was taken into custody when police ran a motor vehicle check and discovered she had two outstanding warrants, police said.

During a car search, police said they found a vinyl containing a white powdery substance and a small straw with the same substance. Both substances tested positive for cocaine.

Two razor blades were also found as well as a plastic bag with white powder. Schilling said the plastic bag contained baking soda used to "cut" the cocaine, police said.

Schilling is being held on $1,000 bond.

Thoughts

The great Swiss theologian Karl Barth once said that Christians are called to go through life with the Bible in one hand and the newspaper in the other.

He was right. We live our faith in the world, if the Bible had nothing to say to us about where we live and how we interact with other world, then it would be better forgotten. In fact, it is a painfully relevant and realistic book with uncomfortable insights and challenges for daily living. If we probe its depths, we will be uncomfortable. Our assumptions will be questioned and our motives will be doubted.

A cartoon in Christianity Today pictures two men talking to each other. "I'm torn," says one, "between the immediate needs of the poor and homelessness, and the future needs of my family." Then he asks his friend, "How do you respond when your church preaches on your responsibility to the poor?"

"I charge churches," says the friend smiling. "It is important to remember that Jesus preached about more people than he reached. The Bible is filled with hard sayings which trouble us, not because they are difficult to understand, but because they are easy to understand and difficult to live.

The goal is not to smooth over the rough places, but to lift them up and let the Bible challenge us, so that together we will aim higher, walk straighter, think more clearly, and live our lives with more integrity and authenticity.

Damato heads DiRosa effort

Raymond F. Damato has been named treasurer and general manager of the committee to re-elect Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr. for town director.

Damato, of 24 Homestead St., is the owner and operator of Damato Enterprises, a local contractor and developer. He is on the finance committee for U.S. Rep. Barbara Kennelly and a member of the Senator Circle for U.S. Sen. Christopher Dodd.

Damato served as chairman and treasurer in the last three elections for state Rep. James R. McAvanagh. He is a director of the Savings Bank of Manchester and formerly a director of the Eighth Utilities District.

Damato also is a member of the Chesney National Historic District Commission, the Elks, the National Association of Homebuilders, the Hundred Club of Connecticut and the East Hartford Italian-American Club. He is also a member of Manchester UNICO National.

Coordinators for DiRosa's campaign are William DiRosa and Kevin O'Brien. Sharon O'Connell is deputy treasurer.

More campaign workers will be announced later.

Local GOP to get help

Local Republicans will get some outside help in their effort to topple the Democratic majority this year. The help will come from a Republican State Central Committee member, Republican Town Committee Chairman John J. Garside Jr. said today.

Mark Rivers, who is also press secretary for House Republicans, will work as a volunteer, helping to prepare advertisements and press releases for the campaign preceding the Nov. 7 election, Garside said.

Rivers helped with George Bush's presidential campaign last year and also worked on Susan Busckno's campaign for state representative, Garside said.

Busckno, who lost last year to Democratic Rep. John W. Thompson, is a candidate for the town Board of Directors this year.

Glastonbury bans roosters

GLASTONBURY (AP) — Residents of a suburban neighborhood who complained about a noisy rooster will win their battle for quiet mornings. "Sam" the rooster has been banned from the town.

Residents in this once-rural suburb complained that the 2-year-old rooster was creating a public disturbance. They won the first skirmish, and the rooster's owner, Pat McNamee, was ordered to pay a $63 fine.

Ms. McNamee — who said she moved here from Greenwich to originally said she would buy a rooster — would challenge the fine in Superior Court. She has given up the fight and has agreed to move her rooster out of town. Under a settlement she reached with the town's fire marshal's office, the rooster must go.

She said the rooster squabble has soured her opinion of the town. "This was supposed to be a dream house, and it turned into a nightmare," she said. "Glastonbury is turning into 'supperville.' I watched Greenwich go the same way."

Fire investigators question if company followed the law

OLD SAYBROOK (AP) — The owners of an Old Saybrook company that was destroyed by fire Friday may not have been in compliance with state law governing the storage of hazardous materials, a spokesman for the state fire marshal's office said.

"It does not appear the company was in compliance with the law," said state fire marshal's spokesman Adam Bertoni on Saturday.

He said the company, Pyc & Hogan Machine Co., could face heavy fines if it is found that hazardous materials were stored and used at the site and were not reported to the town's fire marshal's office.

Old Saybrook Fire Marshal Coleman C. Bushnell said information on any sort of hazardous substances in the building would not be available until his investigation is completed sometime today.

The general alarm fire, which drew fire companies from seven towns Friday, destroyed the 32-year-old manufacturing plant, which makes aircraft parts for the government and private companies. No one was injured.

Everyone within a square mile of the fire was evacuated for several hours because of the heavy smoke, and three Amtrak trains were delayed because tracks ran close to the fire.

While the building was wrecked, the business will continue, according to Barbara Woods, a purchasing agent and the daughter of owner Donald Woods. The company has found a temporary location around the corner from the factory, she said.

To what degree production can resume immediately depends on how much machinery can be salvaged from the fire, she said. The business was insured.

The 70 or so employees, who described themselves as a close-knit group, showed up voluntarily Saturday to help with the clean-up efforts during a steady rain. Many said they would be retrieving personal tool kits, which contain specialized tools that are difficult to replace.

Wendell Patterson, the second-shift foreman, said he sneaked into the building early in the morning to retrieve personal tool kits, which contain specialized tools that are difficult to replace.

While the intense, smoky fire apparently started when a magnesium chip ignited on a lathe, state officials said Saturday that the magnesium did not burn in any appreciable quantity.

"If that magnesium had ignited, we would have had some serious problems," said Matthew Williamson, a field inspector with the state Department of Environmental Protection's Oil and Chemical Spills section.

There were five drums of chemicals, two of them hazardous, inside the building, and 25 drums and two tanks outside, Williamson said.

State homicide rate up 18%

HARTFORD (AP) — The homicide rate in Connecticut has risen more than 18 percent over the past three years, although the state's population has increased only about 1.6 percent over the same period of time, according to state police figures.

"We're definitely seeing an increase in violent deaths," said Sgt. Scott O'Mara, a state police spokesman. "With New York City approving 2,000 homicides a year, our numbers remain small, but our percentage increase is significant."

In 1986, there were 148 homicides in 1987 there were 156 and in 1988 175, state police figures show.

Recent cases have ranged from a Hartford developer who fatally shot his wife, son and daughter before prisoners note papers had burned to a crisp, but the tools themselves survived. He said he will probably save the box for sentimental reasons.

"You've got 65 people here who are part of a family," Woods said. "Most of the employees work long hours together and have become friends, she said. "This is their life."

Officials were concerned that castings of magnesium, a flammable metal stored in the building, could explode if they ignited and came in contact with water.

While the intense, smoky fire apparently started when a magnesium chip ignited on a lathe, state officials said Saturday that the magnesium did not burn in any appreciable quantity.

"If that magnesium had ignited, we would have had some serious problems," said Matthew Williamson, a field inspector with the state Department of Environmental Protection's Oil and Chemical Spills section.

There were five drums of chemicals, two of them hazardous, inside the building, and 25 drums and two tanks outside, Williamson said.

Encouraging trend seen by Morrison

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — U.S. Rep. Bruce A. Morrison, who'd like to challenge Gov. William A. O'Neill for the 1990 gubernatorial nomination, says victories by progressive candidates in last week's primaries show that voters want a change in state leadership.

He said the evidence is in the wins by liberals like Elizabeth C. Brown in Waterbury, Donald J. DeFranzo in New Britain and John C. Daniels in New Haven.

But state Democratic Chairman John F. Dronsey Jr., a staunch ally of the governor's, said the primaries were decided on local issues and should have no real impact on next year's statewide elections.

"I don't think they affected him at all," Dronsey said. "The governor was not involved in any of these elections. We had no stake in the outcome of any of them."

"The problem with primaries is that they're usually between two people you're friendly with," Dronsey said. "But Morrison, who's expected to make a move on creating an exploratory committee shortly, said the progressive victories sent a clear message to him anyway."

"They reinforced my impression that people around the state of Connecticut are looking for a change of leadership, new and aggressive leadership, to confront our problems at a grass-roots level," Morrison said.

These "progressives," he said, are in the area of crime and drugs, housing, education and the environment.

"My focus is on an interest in change, in someone who will make it a central theme of government to relieve the burden of those problems, the four-term congressman said."

Just a few weeks before the New Haven primary, Morrison abandoned his previous stance of neutrality and endorsed Daniels over John DeStefano Jr., a former top aide to retiring Mayor Biagio DiIorio who had won the so-called machine endorsement for the Democratic mayoral nomination.

Both Morrison and Daniels denied it, but there was widespread speculation that the two had made a deal in which Daniels would support Morrison if he chooses to challenge O'Neill.

Even state Republican Chairman Richard Foley said the primaries last Tuesday spelled good news for Morrison.

"In many respects, Bruce Morrison was a pretty big winner," Foley said the day after the primaries. "Look at Daniels... certainly Liz Brown has more philosophical kinship with Morrison than the governor and there's DeFranzo who does too."

Three years ago, when O'Neill was facing a challenge from Toby Moffett, he could look around at the larger cities — New Haven, Bridgeport, Hartford, Stamford and, to a lesser degree, Waterbury — and expect strong backing from the local Democratic machines.

Widening on schedule at Mianus River Bridge

GREENWICH (AP) — Widening of the Mianus River Bridge, which lost a 100-foot section three summers ago, plunging three people to their deaths, is continuing on schedule and should be completed by Dec. 1, a state Department of Transportation engineer said.

Reconstruction of the entire deck, a four-year project, began in September 1988. Removal of concrete barriers preceded the widening.

The renovation is eliminating the bridge's pin-and-langer assemblies, the large metal fasteners that broke and caused the June 1983 collapse of the 100-foot section of the structure.

Three people died and three others were seriously injured in the collapse. In 1986, the state paid survivors and the estates of those killed a total of $7.8 million in out of court settlements.

Sixteen feet of roadway is being added to each side of the bridge, DOT engineer Mark Rolfe said Friday.

During the next construction season, beginning about April 1, workers will replace the deck and steel in the northbound lanes, Rolfe said. Five lanes of traffic will be maintained, with a reversible center lane used as workers progress from the northbound to southbound lanes, he said.

The project will enter the home stretch in the spring of 1992, Rolfe said, as a permanent concrete barrier is poured in the center, new lanes are painted and new guardrails put up.

Sewer line, fire truck on agenda

A public hearing will be held by the directors of the Eighth Utilities District at 7:30 p.m. today on the installation of a sanitary sewer to serve Irving Street and some nearby streets.

GET THAT DRAGON! — Colleen Neville, 8, of Weymouth, Mass., holds on tightly to her lance as she rides a practice jousting horse toward a dragon target at the King Richard's Fair in South Carver, Mass., last week.

The project, at an estimated cost of $400,000, has been discussed a number of times by the directors and has been delayed for several reasons as directors sought input from residents affected and searched for ways to reduce the cost.

Besides holding the hearing, the directors, who will be meeting at 7 p.m. plan to sign a contract for a new mini-pumper for use by the district fire department.

At a special meeting Monday, the district voters approved an appropriation of $245,000 for the purchase of a pumper. A question was raised about whether the vote was valid because the voter checkoff list was not used to determine the eligibility of voters.

Some critics of the purchase have said the bid for the truck should be rejected and new specifications drawn because the cost is too high.

Director Joseph Tripp said Friday he will urge at tonight's meeting that the sale of district land on Tolland Turnpike be speeded up.

The district plans to use proceeds from that sale to pay part of the cost of the pumper. The district and the town have agreed to combine adjacent parcels at Tolland Turnpike near Buckland Street and sell them as one parcel, sharing the proceeds.

The town is awaiting permission from the state to dispose of the land. It was originally bought for highway purposes and the highway use restriction must be lifted before the town can sell it.

O'Neill is hoping for action out of Bush's education summit

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Gov. William A. O'Neill says the federal government has spent enough time studying public education and now it's time for action, backed up with increased federal funding, to keep American students globally competitive.

President Bush, who said during last year's campaign that he wanted to be the "education president," has invited the nation's governors to an "education summit" Sept. 27-28 in Charlottesville, Va.

"I believe this summit has to result in something much more than mere discussion on how to improve education," O'Neill said. "The federal government has studied the issue. It has issued reports on what needs to be done."

Bolton OKs purchase of school van

BOLTON — The School Superintendent has received the approval of the school board to lease a mini school bus for transporting students who live in places where buses have difficulty maneuvering.

Presently there are two vans that make double runs in the morning and afternoon to areas where full-sized buses cannot turn around or travel safely. The vans are full to capacity.

The board suggested Packman consider leasing a second mini bus, so the other van does not have to make double runs and so any future increases in the amount of students living in hard-to-reach places would be accommodated.

Leaky was the guest speaker at the fourth annual luncheon to benefit the Friends of Conservation, a group started by Greenwich residents Geoffrey and Jorie Butler Kent.

The luncheon also featured an auction and animal presentation. A polo match scheduled to end the day was cancelled because of rain.

Leakey calls for an end to ivory trade

GREENWICH (AP) — The only way to stop poachers from killing elephants for their tusks is to take the fashion statement out of ivory, Kenya's leading wildlife official said.

A piece of paper which says you shall not trade in elephant ivory is about worth the paper it's written on, Richard Leakey said Sunday at the Greenwich Polo Club, where he attended a benefit for Friends of Conservation, a worldwide charity dedicated to preserving wildlife and endangered habitat.

'Sweetheart deal' involving HUD is being probed

BRIDGEPORT (AP) — Federal authorities are investigating a sale involving two Bridgeport housing complexes that two congressmen described as a "sweetheart deal," according to a published report.

The Bridgeport Post-Telegram reported Sunday that the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development's Inspector General for Investigations, currently investigating alleged fraud, waste and mismanagement in housing programs, has taken possession of a number of documents concerning the sale by HUD of Evergreen Apartments and Park Towers in Bridgeport and five apartment complexes in New York and New Jersey.

The January 1983 sale was made to First American Housing Preservation Corp., a company headed by local developer John F. O'Connell. Profits from the subsequent sale of the seven properties by investors in First American Housing Preservation Corp. have been estimated at as much as $16.5 million, according to published reports.

HUD officials in Hartford and New York have termed the 1983 sale — which involved "bundling" seven housing projects, including Evergreen and Park Towers, and disposing of them in one negotiated sale — "highly unusual."

The apartment complexes were among hundreds around the country that were taken over by the federal government during the late 1970s and early 1980s after the previous owners defaulted on HUD-guaranteed loans.

Questions about the proposed sale to First American Housing Preservation during negotiations resulted in a report compiled by the agency's Inspector General for Audit.

The July 19, 1982 report, obtained by the Post-Telegram, was highly critical of terms of the proposed sale. The report is signed by Assistant Inspector General Donald Kirkendall.

NATION & WORLD East Germany seizing passports of would-be refugees

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — East German refugees seized Czechoslovak and East German authorities are seizing passports to stop them from getting into Hungary in their westward trek, forcing many to find illegal ways to flee.

In some cases, the refugees have been forced off East German and Czechoslovak trains and returned home. "It's far, far less than that," he said. "It's less than a few million dollars."

In West Germany, officials said Sunday that more than 16,000 East German arrivals since Hungary triggered the exodus by throwing open its borders to the West one week ago.

East German officials have said that despite the drain they would not restrict travel for citizens wishing to visit Hungary — travel visas had been easy to obtain — but more and more people are telling us that their visas are being taken from them," Wagner said Sunday.

Some have told me that state security had come to their apartments to take the visas," and a growing number are forced to swim the Danube River or find other illegal means of coming to Hungary, he said in an interview.

A 25-year-old man from East Berlin said he and 15 others entered Hungary Saturday on foot after crawling into three cars and crashing through several Czechoslovak border barriers at the Rakva crossing, about 85 miles northwest of Budapest.

He said police in Bratislava, Czechoslovakia, took away their travel documents and at one point they were held at gunpoint until they promised they would not head toward the Hungarian border.

The most direct route for East Germans seeking to take advantage of Hungary's free passage to Austria is through Czechoslovakia, which is sandwiched between East Germany and Hungary.

Czechoslovakia and East Germany have eschewed the political and economic reforms sweeping the Soviet bloc that inspired Budapest's decision to open its border. Hungary's role in allowing East German citizens to flee to West Germany has been condemned by the hard-line Warsaw Pact allies.

Admiral turned energy boss finds himself bailing water

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six months after stepping down from a department post, James D. Watkins is spending as much time bailing water as setting the nuclear course.

The latest crisis was a threat last week that the Rocky Flats weapons plant near Denver would be shut down because of acknowledged illegal storage of waste from plutonium processing. The plant is a critical link in the nuclear arms production chain.

Rockwell International Corp., which operates the plant under a government contract, decided over the weekend to delay a decision on closing the plant so officials can work on a plan to bring the plant's waste storage into compliance.

Also last week, Watkins faced a court order — eventually withdrawn — to appear before a federal judge in Ohio to help resolve a dispute over a $78 million settlement of a lawsuit by neighbors of a weapons plant near Cincinnati that Watkins acknowledges is violating environmental regulations.

U.S. District Judge S. Arthur Spiegel backed down after Watkins refused to testify, but the judge said he saw "confusion and indecision at the highest level" of the department.

Before that it was Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus closing his state's borders to shipment of radioactive waste from Rocky Flats, a move that could force Watkins to halt production at the Colorado plant as early as next March. Andrus acted after the department failed to open a waste repository in New Mexico as scheduled.

"I have been overwhelmed by the breadth and depth of the problems" in the weapons program, Watkins told an advisory group, adding that no one in the Bush administration, including the president, realized how long it would take to fix it.

"I don't think either of us had a feet" for the complexity of the problems, he said, nor the significant demand of a departing nuclear boss that Watkins attributed to the Reagan administration's attempts to abolish the department.

GOP to counter Democrats' plan on drug spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House will focus this week on protecting the nation's waters against oil spills, while a House subcommittee considers President Bush's bill to improve America's air quality.

Meanwhile, Republicans say they may propose a new strategy to pay for the war on drugs. Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole said Sunday the GOP could make a counter-offer to the Democrats' proposed $2.2 billion addition to President Bush's overall $7.9 billion anti-drug plan.

The oil spill legislation will be on the House floor Thursday, just a week after Exxon finished its summer cleanup of the Exxon Valdez accident off Prince William Sound, Alaska.

The cleanup of the nation's worst oil spill ended with a dispute over the extent of environmental recovery, and the legislation to prevent future accidents is just as controversial.

The shape of the legislation is still under negotiation. Two competing bills would establish new shipping rules and make those involved in oil transportation pay cleanup costs.

But still unsettled is the most crucial issue: whether the federal government will be allowed to preempt state laws, including statutes in 17 states, that have no limits on liability for those responsible for spills.

The two bills would allow pre-emption, but environmental groups and the National Governors' Association are trying to convince their House supporters to let tougher state laws remain in effect.

Rep. George Miller, D-Calif., and Gerry Studds, D-Mass., are preparing an amendment to establish minimum federal liability requirements, but permit states to enact tougher laws.

Meanwhile, members of the House Energy and Commerce environment subcommittee have finished listening to each other's opening statements and are ready to consider amendments to Bush's clean air bill.

Battles are expected over the extent of auto emission requirements, sharing the cost of acid rain reduction and strict limits on utility growth after the year 2000.

With just two weeks left before a new fiscal year begins, Congress is racing to complete legislation.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Virginia Lt. Gov. L. Douglas Wilder, trying to become the nation's first black elected governor, says his bid for office should be viewed as an "arbitrary progression" rather than a referendum on his race.

Sitting in his campaign headquarters in suburban McLean, Va., Wilder insisted that he was not a black man running for office, but a man who would send a message "more important" than trumpeting the success of a black man from Richmond, capital of the old Confederacy.

At the same time, it was clear during a recent interview that Wilder is aware of the historical significance of his spot at the head of the Democratic ticket in a state capital where blacks were for so long barred from the political and social corridors of power.

He talked of how a close friend, State Sen. Madison Marye, a white man with a rich Southern drawl, quipped that "my grandfather was a Confederate army captain ... and your granddaddy was a slave."

Still, he shies away from emphasizing race. "The important thing is that it sends a message that says you don't have to be connected politically, you don't have to be born to money," Wilder said.

TANKERS COLLIDE — An oil tanker burns in the North Sea off England Sunday after it was hit by another tanker early Sunday. The Fiona, at anchor when the collision happened, spilled 300,000 gallons of oil. The other ship also was damaged.

Rocket hits U.S. Embassy in Bogota

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — A homemade rocket hit the U.S. Embassy but did not explode, and six bombs went off in the capital and the cocaine trafficking center of Cali, authorities said.

A security guard was killed in one of the Cali bombings on Sunday and another guard was hurt in a blast in Bogota, police said.

Newspapers on Sunday quoted the governing party's top presidential contender as urging that no more lives be lost.

Less controversial provisions would toughen license requirements for ship captains and pilots, set standards for qualifications of crewmen on foreign tankers, establish studies of tanker navigation safety standards, expand federal authority to assume command of cleanups and expedite establishment of local contingency plans.

An oil industry-financed fund would pay for cleanups and compensate those who suffered losses when claims exceeded an innocent spiller's liability.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The television industry saluted the movies "Roe vs. Wade" and "Day One" with Emmy awards in bold recognition of daring, sometimes opinionated programming.

CHEERS FOR CARLA — Actress Rhea Perlman holds her Emmy for best supporting actress in a comedy series Sunday night at the annual Emmy awards. "This really puts you in a good mood," she said. Imported cars dominate list for both best, worst mileage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Imported cars dominate both the best and the worst categories in the annual survey of automobile gas mileage released today by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Overall, automakers made little gain in gasoline mileage in the 1990 model year, although the number of cars — mostly expensive super-luxury imports — that trigger the federal "gas guzzler" tax dropped from 40 car types to 30.

"There is no significant difference in the fuel economy of the top 10 1990 models compared to the top 10 1989 models, overall fleet average fuel economy of all cars and light trucks ... is projected to be about the same," said the EPA in a statement.

Fuel economy has gained renewed attention in Congress because of concern over auto's role in causing global warming and air pollution.

Automobile emissions, especially carbon dioxide releases, are a direct contributor to urban smog, which has caused more than 100 metropolitan areas to fail federal air quality standards with the Japanese also a major cause of the so-called "greenhouse effect" which scientists say is expected to cause a warming of the earth in coming decades.

According to the EPA survey, the mileage leaders were largely foreign-made with the Japanese dominating that end of the list.

In his daylong trip, Rabin, 67, a former prime minister and wartime hero, aimed to try to bridge differences between Israeli and Arab hard-liners over a 10-point Egyptian proposal for holding elections in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

His mission signals the first significant movement in weeks in U.S.-backed peace efforts which have faltered because both main adversaries — Israel and the PLO — have dismissed each others' peace initiatives.

Although approved by the Israeli Cabinet, Rabin's trip immediately triggered controversy between the two rival parties in government, who are divided over Mubarak's plan.

Internal differences also surfaced within the right-wing Likud bloc, led by Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

Likud ministers issued a statement Sunday saying the party "must not accept any additions or changes" in the government's peace plan introduced in April.

The Mubarak plan will lead to a Palestinian state and everything we oppose," added hard-line Industry Minister Ariel Sharon, speaking at Ben Gurion Airport near Tel Aviv after returning from the United States.

Sharon also urged an emergency session of the decision-making Inner Council, which he said has been postponing meetings of Israel's top leaders on the proposals he failed to reach any conclusions.

But Foreign Minister Moshe Arens of Likud welcomed Mubarak's efforts, saying on Israel Television, "we regard President Mubarak's efforts to achieve peace in the Middle East as positive."

Likud's main objections to Mubarak's plan are demands that Israel accept the principle of trading territory for peace and agree to let 140,000 Palestinians in Israeli-annexed East Jerusalem vote when elections are held in the occupied territories.

Leaders of the left-leaning Labor Party, meanwhile, say they support both principles and consider Mubarak's plan to be an opener for peace talks.

"For the first time an opportunity has arisen to obtain a Palestinian side to negotiations," Labor leader and Vice Premier Shimon Peres said on Israel radio.

Rabin discusses Egyptian proposal

JERUSALEM (AP) — Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin, the bulwark of Israel's tough posture against Palestinian protesters, shifted gears today and headed to Cairo for talks with Egypt's President Hosni Mubarak.

Goodbye, and thanks Moriartys

For more than half a century, Moriarty Brothers has been a Manchester landmark and the family that operated the automobile dealership has had a strong sense of responsibility to the community.

The late 1933 Moriarty Sr., who founded the business in 1933 with his brother Maurice, was active in community affairs, and his son, Matthew Moriarty Jr., followed his father's path. The younger Moriarty served as mayor for a term. His wife, Jo-An Moriarty, served on the Board of Education.

And while members of the Moriarty family served the family as individuals, the business itself was supporting charities and civic organizations, and backing numerous athletic teams.

The town's baseball field at Mount Nebo is named for Matt Moriarty Sr. and his family.

At the end of the year, Moriarty Bros. will disappear from the scene and a new family, the Morandes, will take over the Lincoln Mercury and Mazda dealership.

Obviously the Morande family members will not be able to plunge into Manchester's affairs immediately. But the business has developed a tradition of supporting good community causes. We hope the new owners continue it.

NEW ORLEANS — Kevin McClain was dirty, sullen, withdrawn, on drugs and about to be fired when he broke into a police car to steal guns. The judge gave him a choice: five years in a cell or a few months in "boot camp."

McClain chose regimented days of classes, drills, humiliation and abuse.

"He went in strictly as a little old-timey wild boy. He came out as a disciplined young man," said his grandfather, George Otis Hinton.

"All he studies now is work," said his grandmother, Lesterine Hinton. "And he's always buging us on us telling us, 'I love you.'"

"I feel like I'm alive now," said McClain, of Shevport, one of 618 men and women sent to the shock incarceration program at Hunt Correctional Center since it opened 2 1/2 years ago, and one of 296 graduates.

Red dye back in news

By Robert Walters

WASHINGTON — Just when you thought all of the world's serious disputes were being contained, if not resolved, along comes the brouhaha over the color of cherries in canned fruit cocktail.

This one certainly doesn't constitute a major global crisis, but it is (as columnists are wont to say) a metaphor for an era in which consumer convenience and commercial interests ceaselessly conflict with health concerns and environmental values.

At issue are a trio of related laws, sponsored by former Rep. James D. Delaney, D-N.Y., collectively known as the Delaney clause and enacted in 1954, 1958 and 1960. They apply to three potential sources of chemical contamination of food — agricultural pesticides, food additives and coloring agents.

Manufacturers of these products must conduct extensive animal-feeding tests, then submit the results of the laboratory work to the Food and Drug Administration. After examining the data to determine if there is any evidence that the additives induce cancer or other adverse health effects, the FDA decides whether they can be a lawfully marketed.

When the Delaney clause went into effect, there were hundreds of red, orange, yellow, green and blue food dyes used in soft drinks, baked goods, candies, biscuits, jellies, syrups, puddings, sausage casings, fish pastes and other foods and beverages.

All were allowed to remain on the market provisionally, until they could be tested for toxic or carcinogenic properties. With all except one of those safety tests concluded, the last artificial coloring agent to remain on the provisional list is the water-insoluble form of FD&C Red No. 3.

Laboratory evidence suggests that when Red No. 3 is consumed in large doses, it interferes with normal thyroid hormone production. The overstimulation of the thyroid gland, in turn, promotes the formation of cancerous tumors.

"FDA scientists have concluded that Red No. 3 causes cancer," says Rep. Theodore S. Weiss, D-N.Y., citing studies of tumors formed in rats. "Yet the industry has used every trick in the book to prevent the law from being implemented."

Indeed, the agricultural interests who believe the coloring agent is important to marketing their products have been granted more than 30 extensions by the FDA in recent decades, ostensibly to conduct conclusive studies of its potential health effects.

Most recently, they proposed a new study that would require three to five years to complete, thus preventing any FDA ban during that period of a dye recently described by one congressional proponent as "a vital marketing tool for the elimination of a cancer-causing agent."

Red No. 3 is used to add color to strawberry ice cream, baked goods, candy and various other foods, but its ability to turn maraschino cherries a bright red that neither fades nor stains the other ingredients in fruit cup has become the focus of the fierce debate over the dye's future.

Most of the cherries used in fruit cocktail are too treated to be sold fresh, so they are bleached and chemically colored with Red No. 3. If not dyed, they oxidize and turn an unappealing brown when put into the fruit cocktail mixture.

Canners and growers say market research shows that fruit cup sales decline by about 20 percent if the cherries are either undyed or omitted entirely, a prospect that undermines the products of peaches, pears and assorted other ingredients in the mixture.

Also involved, on both sides of the dispute, are those who have no financial or other direct interest in the future commercial success of fruit cocktail.

Strident critics of the Delaney clause, for example, insist that there is little or no correlation between large doses of any substance fed to rats and moderate doses consumed by people.

But respected medical authorities are far more convincing when they note that the sacrifice of brilliantly dyed cherries in fruit cups is a small price to pay, at a time when health hazards abound, for the elimination of a cancer-causing agent.

Binding arbitration fair

To the Editor:

I would like to make a short personal comment in reference to the article written in the September 7, 1989 edition of the Hartford Courant. The article was under the heading "Binding Arbitration for Teachers Under Attack."

Binding arbitration is the fairest decision that could ever be made in any management, labor dispute. Without dissent among the rank and file teachers, the end result of binding arbitration, the end result would be a strike and picketing. This would especially cause much need in this our education system since it is our children who will get hurt in the end.

I think we should examine the reasons as to why our state politicians, as well as some labor administrators, are against "binding arbitration" — and make no mistake about it, they are definitely against it! These are the people who support politicians who are responsible for stating that binding arbitration is extremely inflationary to the taxpayers. Hogwash! If they are fair and honest with many of their demands, the problems wouldn't have to go to arbitration in the first place. Binding arbitration is a thorn in the side of management and it ties their hands over one-sided total control. It also prevents management from being too powerful in decision-making that could be totally unfair by the labor standards point of view. If labor has any friend in the world, it is in binding arbitration because it results in a fair and equitable decision.

I honestly feel that if the employees and employers of Colt Firearms Company had binding arbitration they would all be back to work today with no strike time lost. To reiterate, let's not lose this fair and honest procedure of binding arbitration when making labor and management decisions. Also, as voters, let us not forget the state and local politicians who are attempting to take binding arbitration away from our educators.

Reader wants another police banner

DEAR ABBY: How can we get another "Please Call Police" banner? A few years ago you printed an address in your column for those banners for motorists to put on their cars to let them know we had car trouble and needed help on the road. We recently sold our car, forgetting that the banner was in the glove compartment, so now it's gone.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

We are a couple of senior citizens, and last year we were on the freeway in Salt Lake City when our car suddenly broke down, so we attached the "Please Call Police" banner to the inside of our rear window and within 15 minutes the police were there to help us. When they arrived, one of them said, "We have had over 30 calls about you. So you see, Abby, those banners really work."

How do we get a replacement? Maybe other people would like to order one, so if you want to print this, it's OK to use my name.

Throat clearing annoys woman

DEAR DR. GOTT: What makes people constantly clear their throats? My husband has this annoying habit and won't see a doctor about it. He was recently in the hospital for a possible lung infiltrate, but he never discussed the throat. Could there be a connection?

DEAR READER: Certainly, lung inflammation or irritation can produce small amounts of mucus, which make a person feel that something is stuck in the throat. Constant throat clearing and/or a dry, hacking cough can indicate a lung problem, such as a "smoker's cough" in people who use cigarettes.

However, throat-clearing is most commonly caused by a postnasal drip, mucus produced in the upper nose or sinuses that drains down the back of the throat, causing a "frog-in-the-throat" sensation. Postnasal drip results from upper-airway irritation, such as that caused by allergies or air pollution.

DEAR BRUCE: We may buy a new car, but, more than likely, we will buy a car that is a year or two old. What do you think of the extended warranties that are offered on used cars?

I don't see how companies can afford to give a 60,000- or 70,000-mile guarantee on a used car. Yet my dealer assures me that he has an insurance company that will do so.

If I were able to buy that kind of insurance, it would probably tip the scales in favor of the used car. Do you have any experience in this area?

The Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) is adopting new rules to protect you from this kind of solicited.

"Cold-call" rules apply to unsolicited sales pitches made by brokers involving unlisted "pink sheet" stocks. The rules are aimed at stocks selling for $5, a share or less, offered by companies with $2 million or less in tangible assets.

Georgeia and Arizona have adopted their own "cold-call" regulations, and similar laws are in effect in other states. Max Cleland, Georgia's secretary of state, describes the penny stock situation as "a national disgrace filled with liars, cheats and swindlers."

While these new regulations may help reduce the epidemic of penny stock swindles, you must be your own first line of defense. The WPFFast target for con artists. Second, such a rule is easier and cheaper to enforce than are difficult-to-prove fraud statutes.

While penny stocks are far from the safest investments even in the best of circumstances, the new rules are not aimed at honest brokers dealing in these highly speculative issues. Instead, they're designed to weed out those brokers who make a change investment a sure failure.

If you want to buy stock, talk to an established broker. Doing business with someone whose reputation you cannot possibly know is flirting with disaster.

He even told me that he had called that number and "this man" answered the phone. SEC, states start moving against penny-stock ripoffs

The Securities and Exchange Commission and several states have moved against penny-stock ripoffs, artists who are estimated to be defrauding Americans out of several hundred million dollars each year.

"Cold-call" rules are designed to make it easier to prosecute high-pressure sellers of penny stocks, and to make investors know how serious the risks are in such stock ventures.

"Typical of the way these scams work: An acquaintance of mine one night received a telephone call from a man claiming to represent a brokerage. He said I could invest $2,000 to $5,000 if you were certain of quickly making many times that amount," said the salesman.

My friend said he never made investment decisions over the phone with unknown brokers, especially during the dinner hour. If the broker would like to send me some information, he said, that would be fine.

A few days later, a slick sales pamphlet arrived. It flowery language attempted to disguise the fact that it provided almost no solid information about the brokerage.

A day or two after that, the salesman phoned again. "I have an exciting opportunity for you," he said. He began to describe a "sure winner."

"I think we should buy 10,000 shares at 7 cents per share," the salesman concluded. My actual balance politely declined. The salesman grew abusive and accused him of wasting the salesman's time. My friend finally hung up.

Newman full of regrets

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Newman, the blue-eyed actor, race car driver, hustler and salad-dressing maker, is full of regrets at age 64 despite his accomplishments.

"I look like I'm having a lot of fun, and I am," Newman said in October's Esquire Magazine.

"But I should be having more fun than I'm having. In work, I'm not happy because it will never be good enough. I'll never be a proper father or a great lover or an extraordinary boxer or a capable skier or an astronaut. Those are all the things I'm missing."

Nugent likes hunting

ROMULUS, Mich. (AP) — Rock star and avid hunter Ted Nugent had an anti-drug message as he embused about the thrill of bagging deer with bow and arrow.

If you want to get high, come out with me and whack one of them," he told the 40 people attending a police-sponsored hunting safety seminar Saturday. "If only Elvis Presley was a hunter he would be alive today."

Officer Tom Ellis invited Nugent to talk at the seminar after meeting the "Motor City Madman" at an archery range this spring. Seminar participants weren't told Nugent's appearance beforehand.

Sabres down the Whalers

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Alexander Mogilny scored one goal and an assist in his debut with the Buffalo Sabres to help defeat the Hartford Whalers 7-4 in an NHL exhibition game.

Sunday's game was the former Soviet hockey star's first start with the Sabres since he defected from the Soviet Union to Buffalo in early May. Buffalo, 2-0 in pre-season play, stayed ahead of Hartford throughout the game leading 3-1 after the first period and 7-2 heading into the third.

Rick Vaive, Scott Amiel, Richie Dunn, Mike Foglio, Dave Snuggard, and John Tucker also scored for Buffalo.

Christian Ruata, who centered for both Moigny and Vaive, had three assists.

Bob Bodak, Terry Yake, Pat Verbeek and Jim Thomson all scored for Hartford, 1-1-1.

Buffalo outshot Hartford 47-20.

"Unfortunately yardage doesn't always add up to a win. We've got a lot of new people, we're learning a new system and we're getting better each week."

The Gagliano touchdown pass gave the Lions a 7-3 halftime lead and made the game reminiscent of last year's contest here. Detroit led 10-7 at the half in that one, and Giants linebacker Harry Carson threw some chairs in an emotional appeal to teammates.

No chairs were thrown this year, but Parcels and defensive coordinator Bill Belichick expressed some displeasure.

Marino sets NFL mark against Patriots

NFL Roundup

By The Associated Press

It took Johnny Unitas 121 games to throw 200 touchdown passes and fellow Hall of Famer Fran Tarkenton needed 137 games. But if records are made to be broken, this one was meant to be obliterated as Dan Marino did it in only his 89th NFL game.

Marino, who has often struggled against New England, threw three first-half touchdowns passes Sunday — 15 yards to Mark Clayton, 16 and 10 yards to Jim Jensen — leading the Miami Dolphins to a 24-10 victory over the Patriots.

The Patriots self-destructed with two botched punt plays — an overthrown pass off a fake punt and a poor snap — which twice gave Miami the ball inside New England's 30-yard line and led to 10 points and a 24-0 halftime advantage.

"We got field position early and kept moving the ball well," Marino said. "When we got ahead they had to throw on nearly every down."

Elsewhere, it was San Francisco 20, Tampa Bay 16; Cincinnati 41, Pittsburgh 10; Philadelphia 42, Washington 37; Chicago 38, Minnesota 24, Detroit 14; Phoenix 34, Seattle 24; New York Giants 24, Detroit 14; Los Angeles Rams 31, Indianapolis 17; Houston 34, San Diego 27; Kansas City 24, Los Angeles Raiders 19; Atlanta 27, Dallas 21.

Tonight, Denver visits Buffalo.

Clayton, who began practicing with the Dolphins last Tuesday after ending his holdout, caught Marino's first touchdown pass just 3:29 into the contest on Miami's initial possession.

"We played together for six years," Clayton said. "He knows what I think and I know what he thinks."

Marino threw three interceptions to go with his three scoring passes as the Dolphins ended a 10-game losing streak against AFC East rivals and a seven-game slide against the Patriots, whom they last beat on Dec. 16, 1985. Overall, he was 17 of 28 for 226 yards and three touchdowns. Patriots cornerback Raymond Clayborn said, "That's how he set the record. He can throw it over anyone when he's hot."

The Dolphins extended their NFL record to 14 straight games without allowing a sack while their defense got New England's Tony Easton seven times.

49ers 20, Bills 16: Joe Montana's 57-yard touchdown with 40 seconds left ended a frustrating day for San Francisco. Montana and the 49ers' offense was mostly ineffective for three quarters and came to life when Tampa Bay went ahead 9-6 on Donald Igwebuike's third field goal.

Montana completed four of seven passes for 53 yards on the game-winning drive and after a holding penalty against Tampa Bay's Donnie Elder nullified a third-down incompletion and gave the 49ers a first down at the 4.

Montana was 25 of 38 for 266 yards and Rice had eight receptions for 122 yards.

Bengals 41, Steelers 10: Eddie Brown, fresh from a contract holdout-sink offense, Brown, fresh from a contract holdout, snagged a 27-yard touchdown pass from Boomer Easonon on his first catch of the year and led Bengal's offense to a 41-10 victory.

Bengals handed the Steelers their second straight blowout behind a 520-yard offensive.

The Bengals' offense, No. 1 in the NFL last year, had sputtered without Brown in the preseason and in an opening loss to Chicago.

Eagles 42, Redskins 37: Wes Hopkins ran 77 yards with a lateral after a fumble recovery, setting up Randall Cunningham's fifth touchdown pass of the game and third to Kevin Jackson with 52 seconds left.

Philadelphia, which trailed 20-0 less than 10 minutes into the game and was down 37-28 after Washington scored with 3:08 left on Mark Rypien's 32-yard pass to Art Monk, scored twice in the final 1:48 — a 2-yard pass upset more than I'm frustrated," Oakland manager Tony La Russa said.

Royals 7, Orioles 0: Saberhagen tied Mike Scott for the major-league lead in the 10th inning as Toronto completed a three-game losing streak.

Saberhagen, 20-6: He is 18-3 since May 4 and has allowed only one earned run in 48 innings.

Angels 6, White Sox 3: Parrish, who began the game in an 11-for-71 slump, scored with 3:08 left on Mark Rypien's 32-yard pass to Art Monk, scored twice in the final 1:48 — a 2-yard pass

"No, I'm glad to go to Cleveland?" No," Ricky Henderson said Sunday after the Red Sox completed sweep of the West Division-leading Oakland Athletics with a 7-6 victory.

"But I'm glad we're going some, where else and getting out of here," said Henderson, who had one hit Sunday along with his major-league-leading 113th walk and 66th stolen base.

The Athletics, swept for only the second time this season, were plagued by seven errors, sloppy fielding and missed opportunities throughout the series.

"We made some mental mistakes and we walked a few guys and our offense didn't get it going here," Henderson said.

"We swept the big fellas," said Red Sox manager Joe Morgan, whose team captured the season series, 7-5, while also emerging from an eight-game losing streak.

"Now we'll do it again starting in Toronto and get them a little taste of the Red Sox open a three-game lead over the East Division-leading Blue Jays Monday night."

"We got what we deserved here, but we're in first place, so evidently we've played pretty darn good all year long," said manager Tony LaRussa, whose team's lead in the West was reduced to 2½ games

Wethersfield hands the Indians a tough loss

A young Manchester High boys' soccer team learned a hard lesson Wednesday morning against visiting Wethersfield High.

The Indians came back from a two goal deficit to draw even with the visitors in the 11th minute of the game. Wethersfield's Jamie Recene scored the game-winner 14 seconds after the equalizer to escape with a 3-2 victory in CCC interconference play.

"I was pleased the way we fought back," said Manchester coach Bill McCarthy, "Wethersfield is a tough physical. You have to really prepare for them. This was a good education for us."

The officials were kept busy throughout as they dished out four yellow cards and one red (ejection) card to a Wethersfield player.

"I thought our kids kept their composure overall," McCarthy said. "Wethersfield's Jamie Recene scored twice in the first half. Our defense was a little loose early, we marked poorly," McCarthy said. "But we came back."

Peter Gianisimo, with 20 minutes left, and Corey Calk, with 9:52 left, drew the 1-1 Indians even.

But Wethersfield's Brian Hickey found himself all alone just outside the box, and he drilled home the game-winner with 9:38 in play to move his club to 2-0.

Every one is disappointed (losing), McCarthy said. "But I was pleased the way the team supported each other, especially with so many young kids."

Book argues for new bureaucracy for long-term care

WASHINGTON (AP) — Private insurance companies never will be able to protect most Americans against the staggering cost of long-term care at home or in nursing homes, says a leading expert on social insurance.

Private insurers so far have sold about 1 million long-term care policies providing limited coverage to less than 2 percent of the age 50-and-up population that represents most of the potential market, Ball said.

Ball predicted pressure for a better and broader solution will grow along with public concern about the rising cost of long-term care — the bill for one year in a nursing home averaged $25,000 in 1988 — and the limits of current government coverage.

This coverage would be augmented through supplementary private insurance plans, individual savings and an improved Medicaid program for the poor.

Only a plan that anticipates the needs of society as a whole and spreads the risk as broadly as possible can meet the need at a cost that is bearable for each of us, Ball said. "Private insurance cannot possibly do the job alone."

The council will hear a second set of reports on Oct. 10, from committees that proposed ways for the house. Proposals were first presented in June, but the council wanted more information like updated cost estimates.

Included among the three proposals are the police facility, a proposal to use the site for an art museum or town offices and one to lease it to the town Historical Society for $1.

Town Manager John Elteser argued that bringing the issue to a Special Town Meeting would be a trend to do the same thing for any issue before the council. "It would be losing total fiscal and legislative control of the community," said Elteser.

Lewis said Schwebel determined the council is a legislative body and therefore has the authority to reject the proposal.

Councilman Peter Halverson said an effort was already under way to determine a use for the 19th century Loomis House on Route 44 that was donated to the town in January.

Murder suspect's brother also faces charges in case

WATERBURY (AP) — A Waterbury funeral director has a novel idea for busy people on the go: a funeral home with a drive-through window.

"The time has come for funeral homes to provide more convenient, accessible services," said the funeral director, James Sanders.

As Sanders envisions it, the coffin will be displayed in a drive-through window during the day and moved inside the funeral home for a more traditional wake in the evening.

The drive-through will come complete with a slot where visitors paying their respects may leave cards.

Sanders said that while drive-in viewing windows are fairly common on the West Coast, there are none in New England.
