Two women will share recreation post

By Jacqueline Bennett Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — The town ventured into the latest workplace concept, job-sharing, Monday when the new co-recreation directors began their duties.

Karen Dinnie and Irene Fredrickson were hired by Town Manager John Elleser to take over the recreation activities.

"Neither of us will concentrate in one area," she said. "We will share the responsibility of drawing up the recreation budget, Fredrickson said, and both will be equally accountable to Elleser."

Elleser told the council he JOB-SHARING — Irene Fredrickson, left, of Coventry, and Karen Dinnie, of Vernon, look over some program material in the Coventry Town Office Building. The two are sharing the job of Coventry recreation director.

Police Roundup

Woman injured in crash

A Rockville woman was injured in a car accident Tuesday at 2:30 p.m. when her car struck a curb and overturned on Adams Street, police said.

Elizabeth Arroyo, 19, of 155 East Main St., was traveling north on Adams Street when she lost control of her vehicle after going down a hill and around a curve. Police said the car spun around on the slippery pavement, crossed the southbound lanes, struck a curb and rolled over, police said.

Arroyo told police her Chevrolet slid on the pavement, and that she had not been driving fast. Police said they discovered one of her front tires had no tread and listed that as a contributing factor to the accident.

An ambulance took Arroyo to Rockville General Hospital, where she was treated for neck and head injuries and released the same day, according to a spokesperson from the hospital.

Police said they plan to issue an infraction complaint to Arroyo for traveling too fast and operating with unsafe tires.

Thoughts

I invite you to think about forgiveness. One of the prayers which my church offers at a marriage is as follows:

"Grant them grace, when they hurt each other, to recognize and acknowledge their fault, and to seek each other's forgiveness and yours. Amen."

Notice the wording — when, not if. Forgiveness is not an extra, not a frivolity. It is a supporting beam in the structure of our households.

There are no perfect persons and thus there is no perfect human relationship. But persons who are ready to forgive are usually persons who have known the blessedness of forgiveness. We should not be surprised when we are called upon to forgive another or to seek their forgiveness. And the closer the relationship, the greater the need for forgiveness.

Ask yourself and God how best to build in to your life the precious gift of forgiveness.

Area schools trade in receipts to market for new computers

By Rick Santos
Manchester Herald

What kinds of things do kids collect today? Baseball cards, marbles, dolls and sales receipts. Sales receipts?

Now that Stop & Shop has started a program under which schools can exchange receipts for computers, the sales slips have become a hot property — and the scramble to gather receipts is particularly intense because it takes a lot of the readily available slips to get a computer.

To get an Apple II-C computer, a school would need to cash in receipts with total costs adding up to $70,000, the minimum amount necessary to get any computer through the program sponsored by Stop & Shop and Apple, said Lisa Delfino, a spokeswoman for the grocer's Manchester store.

Delfino said the highest valued computer the food chain will purchase from the computer company for the program is the Apple II-G, which schools need $140,000 in receipts to acquire.

Although this sounds like a lot of receipts, she said, with more than 1,800 schools participating in New England, "Stop & Shop is assuming its costs will be $4 million."

But in return, the grocer expects to improve its image, Delfino said, and "of course we expect sales to increase."

There are 17 schools in Manchester, three in Coventry, and two in Bolton that are registered for the program, she said. When the schools register, the grocer provides them with an account. Each school has an adult who supervises account deposits, which the store collects in $50,000 bundles. Every time a deposit is made, the store sends the supervisor a statement verifying the transaction.

The program began Sept. 10, and the special pink sale receipts will be issued until March 10. During that time, schools can cash in the receipts and will have the merchandise in four to six weeks, Delfino said.

During the collection, she said, "the only thing they can't do is solicit on the grounds of the stores," because some schools are closer to the stores, like the Stop & Shop at the Manchester Parkade and the Wadell elementary school.

"We don't want a rivalry," Delfino said. "We want the program to be fair."

The adult organizing the Wadell program is Pam Broderick, co-president of the school's PTA. She said the school is not going to disburse the store's rates of soliciting, but pupils are going to try to take advantage of Wadell's proximity to Stop & Shop.

At Hill Junior High School, the program is being supervised by Ray Dorsey, director of the computer department.

The school, which already has Apples, also is shooting for the Apple II-C because it is compatible with the school's system, Dorsey said.

No decision due now on Main St.

The town Board of Directors probably won't vote on whether to go forward with the Main Street reconstruction until at least November because state and federal agencies have not determined whether the project will have a significant impact on the environment, officials said today.

The state Department of Transportation decided to accept a finding of no significant impact for the project last Thursday, but the environmental impact assessment, criticized by project opponents as a "whitewash," must be approved by the state Office of Policy and Management and Federal Highway Administration, said Milton Shaw, engineer of municipal systems with the DOT's Bureau of Highways.

Those agencies will also review transcripts of an Aug. 2 public hearing at which many opponents asked for the elimination of a proposed access road to run from Maple to Bissell streets.

Shaw said the town will ultimately decide whether to abandon the project, change the design or approve it as proposed.

Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr. said today no more public hearings on the project are required.

Osella is calling for study of town fire department

By Nancy Concolman
Manchester Herald

Calling the Town of Manchester Fire Department staffing, apparatus and station location planning "woefully inadequate," Republican Town Director Ronald Osella has proposed an operating efficiency study to identify strengths and weaknesses and set long-term goals for the department.

In a written statement issued Tuesday, Osella said the distribution of fire stations and decisions on staffing and equipment have been "driven more by political considerations and fire insurance rating schedules than by life safety and property loss analyses."

But Town of Manchester Fire Department Chief John C. Rivosa said today problems with staffing and apparatus are already obvious.

"To address that you also have to put the dollars down," he said.

Osella said a study similar to the evaluation of police department's organization conducted several years ago and a technical survey of the fire department's jurisdiction should be completed before money is spent to build a new station on Tolland Turnpike and relocate the School Street fire station.

The Board of Directors held a meeting Tuesday on relocation of the School Street firehouse to update residents on the search for a site.

Rivosa said at least four properties and several options are being considered, and he doesn't expect to settle on a location for at least a year.

Osella said he's been pushing for a South End station since 1985 but "any decision on a $1 million, two-bay station, new apparatus and additional firefighters is too important and expensive to rush into, regardless of any party's campaign promises."

Osella said he has "never been comfortable" with the Tolland Turnpike location and recommended that the town temporarily add a truck from the old station to the Lawton Road station until the study is completed.

Irish maintains that the existing Lawton Road and McKee Street stations are serving that area until the new Tolland Turnpike station is built and could continue to do so.

Rivosa argued that the existing stations are too far from the northeastern and western sections of town.

Bolton Special Town Meeting to act on asbestos removal

BOLTON — Residents will consider five items at a Special Town Meeting tonight, including transferring money from surplus cash for the removal of asbestos from the Bolton Elementary School.

The official warrant for the meeting, which is scheduled for 7 p.m. in the Community Hall, asks voters to appropriate $7,800 from cash surplus to a budget in the name of the Public Building Commission designated for removal of asbestos at the Bolton Elementary School.

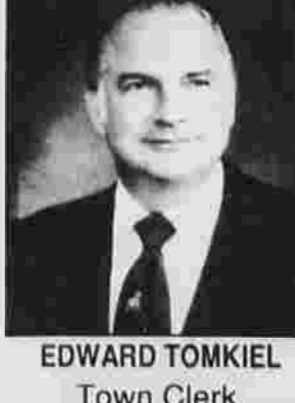

Applied Thermo Dynamics Associates, of Mansfield Center, has been hired to draw up plans for the project.

The warrant also asks voters to approve the appropriation of $9,925 from cash surplus to an existing account for purchasing a new rescue fire vehicle. At the Annual Town Meeting in May, $125,000 was appropriated for the truck, but that amount did not cover the bids received.

Voters will also consider authorizing the selection to receive more than $24,600 from the Department of Environmental Protection for a ripping fee grant. Another item asks voters to OK the allocation of $7,000 from the town's revenue sharing accounts to an account for park improvements. Voters also will be asked to take another $6,000 from revenue sharing to improve the Community Hall phone system.

NEW HAVEN (AP) — A Yale professor who is now one of the Bush administration's top drug fighters compared casual drug users to people who would knowingly transmit a deadly disease, and said they present "clear and present dangers to our society."

"It was far more encouraging than the last one, that said I was at rock bottom," O'Neill told reporters in a Capitol hallway as he headed to a conference.

The poll taken by the University of Connecticut, Sept. 12-20 and published Tuesday in The Hartford Courant, found 3 percent rated O'Neill's performance as excellent, 29 percent rated it good, 36 percent rated it fair and 29 percent rated it poor.

Interim hospital rates get OK from regulators

HARTFORD (AP) — State hospital regulators approved interim across-the-board 5.5 percent rate increases for the state's 34 general hospitals, even though the hospitals had requested increases averaging 18 percent.

Leftist guerrillas urge Colombia ends its war on cartels

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The leftist M-19 guerrilla movement is urging the government to end its war against the cocaine cartels, pardon drug traffickers and refuse to extradite them to the United States.

The governor seemed to have blinders on about this, Baldwin said. He said that while many attribute O'Neill's problems to this year's record tax increases, the governor's ratings were down before he and the legislature began talking seriously about the state's 1988-89 deficit.

Dallas crash blamed on pilots

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal safety officials are blaming the pilot and co-pilot, but not the third man in the cockpit, for a Delta Airlines crash at Dallas-Fort Worth airport that killed 14 people.

The board laid secondary blame on Delta for sloppy cockpit procedures and training and on the Federal Aviation Administration for failing to correct Delta's known deficiencies.

Bakker judge tells lawyers 'hurry up'

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — An elderly PTL contributor called Jim Bakker the most underpaid man in America, while a judge firing a series of character witnesses asked defense attorneys to wrap up their case.

Marjorie Greig, who bought 33 of the $1,000 "lifeline partnerships" at PTL, testified in Bakker's fraud trial that she would gladly give money to the ministry again. However, her testimony was later disallowed because she had attended earlier sessions of the trial.

"I'd do it all over again," the 74-year-old Ms. Greig said. "I'm interested in seeing that PTL is not taken away from us. Jim Bakker is one of the best people I've ever known."

Ms. Greig was one of four satisfied PTL partners to testify Tuesday. The PTL founder's attorneys have presented 34 witnesses — most of them faithful contributors or former Bakker employees.

U.S. District Judge Robert Potter called the number of character witnesses "ridiculous" and told defense attorney Harold Bender: "We'll go today," she said of Bakker.

Another fight over creationism evolving

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A renewed fight over the teaching of evolution and creationism in California will have a crucial test this week in a battle that has national implications.

The focal point is the upcoming adoption of a new science curriculum framework, a detailed statement of what should be taught in California and how it should be taught.

The framework doesn't mandate course content, which is determined by the state's 1,030 local school boards, but it sets standards and goals that historically have been nearly as effective as mandates.

In 1985, California education authorities drew national attention by successfully demanding that publishers devote more space to evolution. The revised textbooks are now being used in schools across the nation.

The new proposal would strengthen the teaching of evolution.

If adopted, it would be a "national victory for science over dogma," said Michael Hudson, western states director for the Washington-based People for the American Way, a 270,000-member advocacy group for civil and constitutional liberties issues.

The teaching of evolution is so entrenched in California that fundamentalist Christians who support creationist theory aren't trying to exclude it. They hope to persuade the state to recommend that students hear differing views on evolution.

"Material should be included in the textbooks by various scientists who say that evolution cannot be substantiated. If credible competing views are not discussed, and evolution is spoken of as a theory with no critical information provided, the textbooks will present evolution dogmatically," said the Rev. Louis Shelton, chairman of the Traditional Values Coalition, a coalition of 6,000 California churches.

But Bill Hong, the state superintendent of public instruction and the major force behind California's drive to strengthen the teaching of evolution, contends no credible scientific evidence refutes evolution.

Hong said evolution belongs in science classes because there is hard scientific evidence to back it, and creation theory belongs in philosophy or history classes because it is based on faith and is part of Western cultural heritage. Evolution teaches that the Earth is billions of years old and that life forms gradually began developing millions of years ago.

Creation-science is linked closely to a literal translation of the biblical book of Genesis, teaching that the Earth and most of its life forms came into existence suddenly more than 5,000 years ago.

The science subcommittee of the state Curriculum Commission will hold its final hearing on the proposed new framework Thursday, with a vote scheduled Friday. If approved, the state Board of Education will hold a hearing on it in October and vote in November.

"Material should be included in the textbooks by various scientists who say that evolution cannot be substantiated. If credible competing views are not discussed, and evolution is spoken of as a theory with no critical information provided, the textbooks will present evolution dogmatically," said the Rev. Louis Shelton, chairman of the Traditional Values Coalition, a coalition of 6,000 California churches.

Senate Star Wars vote leaves spending at current levels

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional negotiators will take on the defense budget with a strong vote from the Senate to keep next year's spending for Star Wars at about the same level as this year.

With two votes Tuesday night, senators rejected an attempt to restore $200 billion to the Strategic Defense Initiative and accepted a plan to spend about $4.1 billion on the space-based defense program.

That would leave spending on Star Wars — $3.7 billion for the program and $555 million in Energy Department and military construction money — about $900 billion short of what President Bush budgeted for the program in the 1990 fiscal year.

Members of the Senate Armed Services Committee, who are negotiating with House members on a final defense authorization bill, said the chamber's votes undermine chances that Star Wars spending will be higher than the $4.1 billion spent in fiscal 1989.

The House this year approved a defense blueprint that earmarks $3.1 billion for Star Wars.

"There isn't any question that SDI is extremely weak. It looks to me now that it will be under last year's level when we get out of conference," Sen. James Exon, D-Nebr., said shortly after the Senate action Tuesday night on the $28.8 billion military spending bill.

By 66-34, the Senate rejected an amendment that would have restored money to the Star Wars program to a level closer to the $4.5 billion approved by the chamber in its authorization bill passed in August.

Then, by voice vote, the Senate adopted a spending level of about $4.1 billion for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

"It's continuing the downward pressure," said Sen. Tim Wirth, D-Colo. "There's an increase in the effort to make it a research program, where it belongs."

Lawmakers said the Senate's announcement this week that it would separate Star Wars from negotiations on an effort to reduce strategic arms may have taken steam out of the drive to increase SDI spending.

"SDI has now been cut loose," Sen. John Warner of Virginia, ranking Republican on the Armed Services Committee.

But some members said that since Star Wars was also one of several items in an $8.5 billion amendment to the spending bill, the Senate vote was not a clear-cut referendum on the program.

"This was not pro-SDI or anti-SDI," said Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, a member of the Armed Services panel. "They put in Apache helicopters, the space program, sealfit."

Cheney says Soviets still pose a threat to Western security

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union is modernizing its armed forces and still poses "a major threat" to Western security despite President Mikhail Gorbachev's promised cutbacks and pledges of reform, says Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney.

Cheney, relating the Pentagon's eighth annual assessment of Soviet military strength today, sounded a note of caution amid the sweeping changes in the U.S.-Soviet relationship.

"While the United States encourages the evolution of a Soviet Union dedicated to democratic principles, we cannot react unilaterally to Soviet initiatives that are not yet implemented or to proposals which, if implemented, can easily be reversed," Cheney said in the study, "Soviet Military Power."

"It is ... clear that despite the dramatic changes occurring in the Soviet Union and the Soviet leadership's declaration of benign intentions toward Western democracies, Soviet military capabilities continue to constitute a major threat to our security," Cheney said in an introduction to the report.

The Soviet Union, the secretary asserted, "continues to upgrade its forces and improve its capabilities."

"Indeed, while some Soviet military units and equipment have been withdrawn from Eastern Europe, the Soviet Union will remain the world's largest military power, even if the General Secretary's promised unilateral reductions take place," Cheney said.

The annual study, which in its early editions under the Reagan administration was derided on Capitol Hill and outside government as a propaganda effort, has evolved into a more comparative summary of the U.S.-Soviet military balance. It even acknowledges that the West leads its arch rival in areas such as naval power.

But with a 159-page array of high-gloss text, pictures and graphs, the study portrays the Soviets as an extremely formidable foe facing a United States that "grapples" with such things as the selection of a mobile missile force.

Saying the likelihood for conflict between the superpowers "is as low as it has been at any time in the postwar era," the book discusses such developments as Gorbachev's announcement of significant cuts in conventional forces, reductions in the Soviet defense budget and weapons procurement, and the U.S.-Soviet arms control agreement on banning intermediate range missiles in Europe.

However, it also warns that Gorbachev's changes, if enacted, "may also prove hazardous to Western security."

Cheap, safe drug blocks AIDS growth in tests

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — An inexpensive drug used to treat bronchitis appeared to block production of the AIDS virus in test-tube experiments, researchers said.

The researchers cautioned against human use of the drug until the outcome of further study.

The drug is not a cure for acquired immune deficiency syndrome, scientists at Stanford University said Tuesday in announcing results of lab tests.

But they said it could slow down the virus' assault on the immune system, as well as prolong and improve the patient's quality of life when used with AZT or other drugs approved for treating AIDS.

Unlike Compound Q, a sometimes toxic protein distilled from a Chinese cucumber root, dextran sulfate from Japan or high-priced AZT, the drug under study at Stanford is readily available and relatively cheap and safe.

"I am really optimistic about this," said Dr. Leonore Herzenberg, a professor of genetics at Stanford,

Damage at school avoidable

A pipe burst at the Bentley school building on the evening of Sept. 18, and water flowed throughout part of the building for a long time before it could be shut off. The cost of the damage has not yet been determined, but it was far more extensive than it should have been.

When a pipe bursts in a building where there is no one in it, the problem can go undetected for a long time.

In the Bentley case, however, there was a custodian present and he apparently did not have a key to the place where a shut-off was located that would have stopped the water flow.

That problem arose because the custodian who was there is an employee of the Board of Education and the board does not have full control of the building. It leases parts of it from the town, and its lease does not include the room where the critical shut-off was located.

Forty minutes elapsed before a town-employed custodian with a key to the room arrived.

It is understandable that no one anticipated the problem of a burst pipe when the joint town and school responsibility for the building was worked out. There is no point now in pointing fingers.

But as School Superintendent James P. Kennedy observed, "We've learned some lessons from this."

Whenever there is divided responsibility for public buildings, officials involved must get together and work out a system under which whoever is on the scene has access to all the devices needed to minimize damage in an emergency.

Teach your dog

To the Editor:

When people live alone, they usually have a dog for protection. If you get a yourself a puppy, don't train it to go after anyone who comes to your home. Teach it to bark first so you know someone is coming.

That way you can put your dog in a room so it won't attack the person who is coming to your home, and we also know the dogs outside should be kept tied up. Don't let them run around.

I saw a television program on a girl whose face was all bitten up by a dog. Will her face ever be the same, or will she have scars on her face? It looked terrible, and the mother was allowed only $145 which wouldn't even pay the doctor who is taking care of it. If that was some movie actress or well-known rich person, the owner would be sued for damages. But some poor person couldn't do that; no they have to suffer.

Teach your dog not to be vicious if you want a dog.

"SAY! Aren't you MIDLIFE CRISISMAN?"

Dunleavy's 'in' nets a job

By Bob Conrad

Marty Dunleavy admits he was as excited as a kid who has just gotten Michael Jackson's autograph.

That was Dunleavy's reaction when Ron Brown, the Democratic national chairman, telephoned last week to say he was appointing Dunleavy to the rules committee of the Democratic National Committee.

It makes Dunleavy, a 33-year-old aide in New Haven, the first Connecticut member of the DNC to receive such recognition from the still-young Brown administration. It installs a Connecticut member on one of the real inside, key committees of the DNC.

Not bad for a guy who was elected only last December to the DNC and who attended his first meeting in February.

But Brown's reaching into Connecticut to tap Marty Dunleavy sends a couple of messages worth noting here.

One is that Ron Brown remembers, and he'll make his own moves with respect to the party in this state. He remembers that Dunleavy was with him well before he became a candidate for the national chair.

He remembers that top leadership here, from State Chairman John Dronney on down, only got behind his candidacy after others dropped out.

So Brown's naming Dunleavy was more than just rewarding someone who had supported him all the way for the party's top job. There was, by indirectness, a message for the party as well.

It must be said that Dunleavy was appointed because he is treasurer of the Democratic Municipal Officials of America, a group that is entitled to a seat, and not as a member of Connecticut's delegation to the DNC.

Secondly, and just as importantly to the party here, is the Dunleavy appointment recognized someone who steers a definite philosophical course, but always within regular party bounds.

Dunleavy is a liberal. He'll tell you that before you can ask, in case you never heard of the guy, as many have not. He insists on playing the game within the organization, not nip at it from the fringes.

He says, for example, he's "no friend of LEAP," the liberal Legislative Electoral Action Program, he is uncomfortable with coalitions that use the Democratic banner and work, in his view, so as to weaken the party.

"Sure I'm a liberal, but I am a party regular," says Dunleavy, adding that "I like being a politician." He says he has no interest in elective office outside of New Haven. As for his progress in the party, Dunleavy says, "I'll be patient. I'll wait my turn."

He calls himself a protégé of the late Vin Mauro, a power in New Haven — a man, turning it down at the last moment. Mauro died from injuries he sustained in a car accident.

Dunleavy belatedly backed State Sen. John Daniels for the Democratic nomination for mayor of New Haven in his recent primary. It was one more exercise in what Dunleavy loves — "the rough and tumble of street politics."

But for him it is always the politics of inclusion — within the organization. Democratic leaders are forever saying there's room under the tent for all. Dunleavy wants to hold them to that.

"The guy who strives to be inclusive wins," he says. Dunleavy says one of the party's all-time greats lived by that principle — the late state and national chairman, John Moran Bailey.

As a member of the DNC's rules committee, Dunleavy will have his chance to vote on the late state and national chairman, John Moran Bailey.

Milk ban is fought by U.S.

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — Europe knocked the American beef industry on its rump last winter with a ban on beef injected with growth hormones. Now Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter is pulling strings to stop a similar ban on American dairy products.

Yeutter wrote a private letter to Ray MacSharry, a commissioner of the European Community, the union of European nations. In it, Yeutter comes off as the cheerleader for Bovine Somatotropin, a man-made hormone that is injected into cows to boost their milk output.

MacSharry has suggested a temporary ban on BST in Europe, but the last thing Yeutter needs is another hormone ban.

The Food and Drug Administration is still testing BST, and it is only used on a limited number of cows as part of testing. The milk from those cows is marketed. Some U.S. supermarket chains have banned BST products and the jury is still out on its safety.

But Yeutter is doing his best to paint BST as the next best thing to the tractor. In fact, at a meeting in Vermont earlier this month, he said BST is to the dairy farmer what the tractor is to the grain farmer.

MacSharry has suggested a temporary ban on BST in Europe, but the last thing Yeutter needs is another hormone ban.

The Food and Drug Administration is still testing BST, and it is only used on a limited number of cows as part of testing. The milk from those cows is marketed. Some U.S. supermarket chains have banned BST products and the jury is still out on its safety.

Quayle calls for talks on bases

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Vice President Dan Quayle called today for talks on U.S. military bases, which many Filipinos want removed, and said the murder of two Americans would not "drive a wedge" between Washington and Manila.

Later, police fired tear gas to disperse about 700 leftists near the presidential palace who refused to end an anti-base rally. Officials said at least 10 police were injured as protesters hurled stones and homemade bombs.

At least 157 people were arrested today for joining anti-Quayle rallies.

On Tuesday, suspected Communist guerrillas ambushed and killed two American civilians who were working near a U.S. base north of the capital. In response, U.S. officials banned non-essential travel between bases by the 40,000 American troops, civilian employees and military dependents in the Philippines.

Quayle called the killings "cowardly murders" that would "only serve to strengthen" U.S. support for President Corason Aquino.

Later, he told U.S. troops and their families that he was convinced "a majority of the people in the Philippines want us to stay. Let me be direct: terrorists will not drive Americans from the Philippines."

The attack occurred shortly before Quayle arrived to discuss extending the leases of the six U.S. military installations, among the largest such bases outside the continental United States.

After a one-hour meeting with Mrs. Aquino early today, he said he delivered a letter from President Bush suggesting talks begin in December on the future of Clark Air Base, the Subic Bay naval base and four smaller installations.

The lease on the bases expires in September 1991, and opposition to them is mounting in the Philippines. Mrs. Aquino, who is to visit Washington in November, has offered new talks on the issue but refuses to say whether she will support an extension.

"I hope that the people of the Philippines understand and appreciate not only the special relationship, the sense of stability that the facilities offer, stability in the political sense, stability in the economic sense, stability in the sense of hopefully seeing expanded economic opportunities and development to the people of the Philippines," Quayle told reporters.

Raisins don't sing and dance, but spice up dessert

One of the most highly advertised foods on the market today is the raisin. We have seen them talk, dance, sing and do all sorts of unlikely things. In spite of faces, sunglasses, sneakers and musical voices, a raisin is a raisin, and a raisin is a dried grape.

Raisins are found in cereals and have been a favorite ingredient for cookies and other baked goods for generations.

Nutritionally, raisins are almost pure carbohydrate. A cup of raisins contains 124 gm of carbohydrates, and 460 calories. They also contain a good amount of iron, some calcium, and small amounts of other essential nutrients. Raisins are excellent for a quick energy boost, and are often included in "trail mixes" and other concentrated energy foods eaten by hikers, bikers, and athletes.

If the raisins in your package have become too dried, and you want to plump them up for use in cooking, the microwave can accomplish this in just seconds. Place one cup of raisins in a small bowl. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon of water. Cover with plastic wrap and microwave at high power for 40 seconds to 90 seconds, or until plumped and softened, stirring after half of the time. Let stand, covered, for 2 minutes. Drain any remaining water.

Granola

1 1/2 cups uncooked old-fashioned rolled oats
1/4 cup flaked coconut
1/2 cup sliced almonds
1/3 cup honey
2 tablespoons packed brown sugar
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 teaspoon molasses
1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 cup raisins
1/2 cup chopped dried apples

Combine oats, coconut and almonds in a medium bowl; set aside. Line a baking sheet with waxed paper; set aside.

In an 8-cup measure, combine remaining ingredients, except raisins and apples. Microwave at high power for 11-2 to 21-2 minutes, or until mixture boils, stirring once during the cooking time.

Pour the honey mixture over the oats, tossing to coat. Microwave at high power for 4 to 7 minutes, or until the mixture appears dry and begins to stiffen, stirring 2 or 3 times during cooking.

Stir in raisins and apples. Spread mixture on prepared baking sheet and let cool. Break into pieces and store in an airtight container. Yields 3 cups of granola.

Cranberry chutney

1 pound fresh or frozen cranberries
1 cup granulated sugar
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
1/2 cup golden raisins
2 1/2 teaspoons apple pie spice
3/4 cup water
1 cup peeled chopped pear
2/3 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/3 cup chopped green pepper

In a 3-quart casserole, combine cranberries, granulated sugar, brown sugar, raisins, and apple pie spice. Stir in water. Cover and microwave at high power for 10 to 14 minutes, or until cranberries begin to open, stirring once or twice. Stir in remaining ingredients. Microwave, uncovered, at high power for 22 to 30 minutes, or until mixture is of the desired consistency, stirring 2 or 3 times. Mixture can be stored in the refrigerator or ladled into 2 hot sterilized pint jars. Seal and process according to canning (conventional) methods. Serve as a relish with all meats. Yields 4 cups.

Apple bread pudding

3 eggs
2/3 cup packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups milk
4 cups chopped apples
3 cups unseasoned whole wheat and white croissants

Sauce:
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup butter
1/4 cup amaretto liqueur

In a large mixing bowl, blend eggs, brown sugar, cinnamon, salt, nutmeg and vanilla. Blend in milk. Stir in apples, croissants, and raisins. Mix well. Pour into a 2-quart casserole.

Place casserole on saucer in microwave. Microwave at high power for 5 minutes. Stir. Reduce power to 70% (medium-high) and microwave for 14 to 17 minutes, or until apples are tender and the mixture appears set, stirring twice, set aside.

In a small mixing bowl, combine all sauce ingredients. Microwave at high power for 2 to 3 minutes, or until bubbly, stirring once. Serve over warm pudding. Yields 6 to 8 servings.

Old-fashion rice pudding

1 can (12 ounces) evaporated milk
1/4 cup milk
1 tablespoon butter
1/3 cup sugar
1/3 cup raisins
2 eggs, beaten
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 cups cooked rice

Ground Nutmeg

In a 4-cup measure, combine evaporated milk, milk and butter. Microwave at high power for 2 1/2 to 3 minutes. In a 2-quart casserole, combine sugar, raisins, eggs, salt and vanilla. Mix well. Blend hot milk mixture into sugar mixture. Microwave at high power for 2 to 3 minutes, or until bubbly, stirring once. Serve over warm pudding. Yields 6 to 8 servings.

Butterscotch frosting

1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1 cup cream
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons butter

Blend sugars and cream in a 2-quart casserole. Microwave at high power for 5 to 6 minutes, or until sugar is dissolved and mixture is no longer granular, stirring after 3 or 4 minutes.

Immediately add butter and vanilla. Stir until butter melts. Cool thoroughly. Beat with an electric beater on high speed until spreading consistency. Thin with a little cream if necessary. Frost on 8 or 9 inch layer cake.

Raisin pie with sour cream topping

1 baked 9-inch pie shell
2/3 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup all purpose flour
2 cups nutmeg
2 cups raisins
1 cup water

slowly into egg mixture. Stir in rice. Microwave at high power for 3 minutes. Stir. Reduce power to 50% (medium). Microwave for 8 to 15 minutes, until mixture thickens, stirring 2 or 3 times. Sprinkle with ground nutmeg. Serve warm. Yields 6 to 8 servings.

Baked apples

4 cooking apples
2 tablespoons orange juice concentrate
1/4 cup apple juice
3 tablespoons raisins
1/2 to 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon

Core apples; peel and strip off apple skin 1/3 down and around the apple to allow steam to escape. Blend brown sugar, orange juice concentrate, apple juice, raisins, and cinnamon.

Place apples in a 9 inch round or 8 x 8 inch square baking dish leaving the center empty. Pour apple juice and brown sugar mixture around apples. Cover with plastic wrap. Microwave at high power for 6 to 7 minutes, or until almost tender, spooning sauce over the apples and rotating the dish a 1/2 turn after half of the cooking time. Let stand for 2 to 3 minutes.

Serve in individual dishes with the remaining sauce. Serves 4.

Topping:
1/2 cup whipped topping
1/4 cup dairy sour cream
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1/4 cup chopped walnuts

Be sure the raisins are fresh and plump. If not, follow directions given above to plump raisins.

In a medium size mixing bowl or 2-quart casserole combine all filling ingredients. Microwave at high power for 7 to 9 minutes, or until thickened and bubbly, stirring every two minutes. Let cool slightly. Pour into baked pie shell. Refrigerate until completely cool.

In a medium bowl combine whipped topping, sour cream and brown sugar. Spread or dollop topping on pie. Sprinkle with chopped nuts.

Applesauce spice cake

1/2 cup shortening
2 cups sugar
2 eggs
2 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon soda
11-2 teaspoons salt

3/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon cloves
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup raisins
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
11-2 cups applesauce
1/2 cup water

Cream shortening and sugar together. Beat in eggs. Add flour, soda, salt, baking powder, cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg, raisins, and nuts. Stir in applesauce and water. Place half of the batter into an 8-inch cake dish which has been lined with waxed paper.

Dear Abby: When I was 4 or 5 years old, I was sexually abused by my stepfather. I told my mother, but she wouldn't believe me. This went on until I was 9 years old. After that, he went to some kind of sanitarium. I never really knew what kind of place it was, but I do remember that he was locked up.

I am reading so much about child molestation now, but in those days it was all hush-hush. I'm married now and have grown children, but I have always had terrible hangups about sex and never could be the kind of partner I should have been. I thank God every day for the understanding, patient man who married me. I never told him how repulsed I was by the touch of a man — even a decent one such as himself.

You keep telling people who have been abused as children to tell someone — anyone. I wish I had! You always say in your column, "Get counseling and join a support group. It will do you a world of good."

One step too far
To do a complete job of counting the hand, sometimes you have to dip a little. West led the king of spades. East overtook with the ace and ruffed a spade. West played a third spade. Declarer ruffed in dummy with the 10 of diamonds. Next declarer played the queen and jack of diamonds. Everyone followed, so West had started with six spades and two diamonds. South cashed dummy's A-K of clubs, discarding a heart, and ruffed a club. West followed to the third club. At this point, it was known that West could not hold more than two hearts, so the right play in any event was to play East. The hand with greater length in hearts, for the queen. But declarer decided to really count out the hand. He played a diamond to dummy's king and ruffed dummy's last club with his ace of diamonds. When West played, showing that he originally held four clubs, it was a sure thing that play to dummy's king would be a broken romance? U.S. networks noisily begin season

By Jay Sharbut
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — For everything there is a season, particularly TV. For U.S. viewers, the season usually begins last week, full of ceaseless drumbeating, store tie-ins and the newest twist, clips of new shows on airline flights.

That is a far cry from the way they do things overseas.

An Associated Press survey of four nations — Great Britain, Japan, Mexico and Bahrain — shows that the new TV seasons in three of these countries make the U.S. version seem a September epic in bloom.

In the fourth, Mexico, there is no television season as such. New programs are introduced on a seemingly random basis, with the dominant entertainment form the "telenovela," the Mexican soap opera.

Few shows are from north of the border, although viewers can do watch U.S. entertainment and news programs on cable.

Depending on which networks they're watching, Japanese viewers get two new TV seasons each year. One starts in early October, the other on April 1.

They also face season-starting fanfare for the programs, most of which are domestically produced, few American shows air for long in prime time and usually are assigned to late-night slots. Examples of these include "Night Rider," "Airwolf" and "MacGyver."

As in the United States, new programs are played up in TV and newspaper ads. And Japanese networks sometimes assemble stars of with whom they're assisted with her expediency. (In Stereo)

In Brief . . .

Malone wants more money

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Karl Malone denies reports that he agreed to play the 1989-90 season for the Utah Jazz at his scheduled $1.45 million, saying he is seeking the fourth contract change of his five-year career.

In comments published Tuesday by the Deseret News, the 6-foot-9 star power forward said he wants to revamp the 10-year, $18 million deal he signed last November. Malone says he wants fewer years in the contract, and more money for the upcoming season.

Malone also said that contrary to published accounts, he is not working with an agent on the contract issue. Agent Leonard Armano represented him only in negotiations for a contract with L.A. Gear shoes, he said.

Malone said he expects to show up for training camp at Westminster College on Oct. 6, as scheduled.

Olympics on cable television

NEW YORK (AP) — The Olympics will air on cable television for the first time under a $50 million deal signed Tuesday between CBS Inc. and Turner Broadcasting System Inc. that covers the 1992 and 1994 Winter Games.

Under the deal, Turner Network Television will air approximately 50 hours of programming for each Olympic event. CBS, which paid $243 million for the 1992 Games at Albertville, France, and $300 million for the 1994 Games at Lillehammer, Norway, plans on airing about 120 hours of each Olympics.

"There's a lot of programming at the Winter Olympics that doesn't get on because of the limited amount of time," CBS Sports president Neal H. Pilon said. "We think it will help promote the prime-time programming. We don't think the dilution factor will be one of concern. We think there will be an audience for TNT programming."

TNT, begun last year as a mostly movies cable channel, will broadcast Olympics games from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. EST on weekdays and from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturdays and 7 p.m. on weekends with taped coverage. In addition, it will replay CBS' prime-time coverage beginning at 1 a.m. every night. CBS' schedule consists primarily of nightly prime-time shows and weekend afternoons.

Michigan's career at end?

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Phoenix Cardinals running back Stump Mitchell underwent reconstructive surgery on his left knee Tuesday, likely ending his nine-year NFL career.

Mitchell, who injured his left knee in Sunday's 35-7 loss to the New York Giants, had two torn ligaments repaired and torn cartilage removed during arthroscopic surgery at Good Samaritan Hospital.

Dr. Russell Chick, the Cardinals' orthopedic surgeon, said the surgery was successful but that Mitchell would need extensive rehabilitation.

Mitchell said Monday that if he had a torn knee ligament, it would take a year to recover and he would likely retire.

John McEnroe withdraws

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Top-seeded John McEnroe withdrew from the $425,000 Volvo of San Francisco tennis tournament with a knee injury Tuesday.

The announcement was made by tournament director Barry Mackay, who said the seriousness of McEnroe's injury was not immediately known, but that McEnroe was following the orders of Dr. Omar Pareed of Los Angeles, the U.S. Davis Cup physician.

McEnroe's withdrawal was the second major loss for the tournament. Last Friday, 20 minutes before the tournament draw was Sweden's Mats Wilander, who dropped out. The Association of Tennis Professionals, speaking for Wilander, cited "personal reasons" and did not elaborate.

McEnroe, 30, rejoined a knee that was hurt in early August during the U.S. Hardcourts at Indianapolis, which he won. Mackay said.

Judge rules against Celtics

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics are willing to pay Dino Radja $425,000 plus side benefits to play in their front court. But Radja may have to fulfill his contractual obligations in Yugoslavia, where he would earn $11,000.

U.S. District Judge Douglas P. Woodcock on Tuesday took some of the air out of Radja's hopes for an NBA career when he ruled against the Celtics' claims that Radja's contract with Jugoplastika could be compared to a college athletic scholarship and granted the Yugoslav star's request for a preliminary injunction barring the 6-foot-10 forward from playing in Boston.

Woodcock was also critical of Boston for ignoring what he said was a valid contract in Yugoslavia and for attempting to hire away Radja, comparing it to "poaching."

Money talks Cubbies

By Dave Goldberg
The Associated Press

To paraphrase the Beatles, money may not be able to buy you love. In the NFL, however, it can buy the closest thing — victories.

Just ask the Minnesota Vikings on the one hand, the Cleveland Browns, Philadelphia Eagles and New York Giants on the other.

The Vikings showed up at training camp July 31 as the consensus favorite to win the Super Bowl. They also showed up minus eight holdouts — at least in part because of their deserved reputation as one of the league's most penurious teams.

So three weeks into the season, the Vikings are 1-2, including Sunday's 27-14 loss at the hands of the Pittsburgh Steelers, who entered the game having scored 10 points and allowed 92.

Worse, both Vikings and ex-Vikings talk openly of their discontent with management, providing a reason, perhaps, why they tend to lose games they should win against teams like Pittsburgh and Green Bay. They lose enough such games to keep them from taking the NFC Central title away from the Chicago Bears.

This year, for example, wide receiver Anthony Carter and strong safety Joey Browner are playing at less than their potential and tight end Steve Griest was hurt. All are Pro Bowl players, all missed long stretches of training camp as holdouts.

"There's a heck of a long way between having great players and a great team," Coach Jerry Burns said last Sunday. "We certainly are not great. I don't know where we can beat at this point."

Mike Mullarkey, a former Viking (discontented veteran) said after catching a 15-yard touchdown pass from Pittsburgh Sunday: "Once I caught it, I wanted to spike it. I will replay CBS' prime-time coverage beginning at 1 a.m. every night. CBS' schedule consists primarily of nightly prime-time shows and weekend afternoons."

The Eagles, Browns and Giants do things the way Philadelphia, of course, handed Randall Cunningham a six-year, $18 million contract extension a week ago. That ensured he will be the quarterback of the '90s with Eagles rather than anyone else should, as expected, some free agency comes to the NFL in the next few years.

Cleveland did the same with Bernie Kosar, tying him up for the next five years, and the Rams are renegotiating with Jim Everett for a contract that will put him in their class.

All three teams are operating on the expectation of new rules for NFL contracts.

One is that there will be some form of free agency for all players when a collective bargaining agreement is reached with the players union. That agreement is in limbo while both sides wait for the courts to decide on the antitrust suit filed by the NFLPA after the players' lockout two years ago.

The other is that there will be more bidding for free agents under the current system. Cunningham or Kosar are worth far more than the Eagles and Browns would care as compensation, particularly since most NFL draft picks hold out more of training camp and are being paid more than long-time All-Pro. After a decade with no free agent offers, Wilbur Marshall said the last of Washington Redskins from the Bears in 1988. Ray Childers of the Houston Oilers and Bruce Smith of the Buffalo Bills got offer sheets this year that were matched by their old teams.

"It's a two-tier system," agent Leigh Steinberg, who represents a flock of quarterbacks, said. "If you have a star quality player, you want to get him tied up before someone else grabs him."

But it's not only stars.

The Giants took that philosophy one more step by resigning some of developing young talent — tackle Doug Riesenbaker and wide receivers Odessa Turner and Stephen Baker. All three are in their option years and all might have demanded more next season.

The Giants learned from experience.

Last season, tight end Mark Bavaro and linebacker Carl Banks held out for most of training camp after All-Pro seasons, then (see the Vikings' Jordan above) spent most of the season playing subpar with minor ailments.

Last year the Giants were one of the favorites to win the Super Bowl but finished 10-6 against a weak schedule, missing playoffs by losing to the New York Jets in the final game. This year, the Giants were picked 6-10 to finish third in the NFC East but are 3-4 behind New York — with Banks, Bavaro, Riesenbaker, Turner and Baker all contributing.

Maybe money can't buy you love, but it can buy wins.

In early May, the starting outfield of Dawson, Jerome Walton and Mitch Webster went on the disabled list in a span of five days.

"We knew that was going to be a tough time," Dawson said. "But we hung through it. We played as a team, not as individuals."

The Cubs neither led nor trailed by more than 3 1/2 games 3 1/2 all summer. On Aug. 7, Chicago took first place for good, beating co-leader Montreal 5-2 on a picture-perfect day.

Earlier this month, St. Louis made a charge at the Cubs. The Cardinals were within three outs of taking over first place on Sept. 8, but Chicago rallied to win the game in 10 innings.

"It seems like every time we needed to win bad, we would win two or three," Maddux said. "When we would not win, we would lose."

To win the division Tuesday night, the Cubs needed to cut their magic number from two. The Cardinals took care of that on Wednesday night, losing to Pittsburgh. At that time, the Cubs were giving away two runs in the sixth inning that led the Expos tie it 2-2.

"We knew this was a chance to win it," Sandberg said. "We knew we had to dig in right there," Sandberg said. "We knew this was a chance to win it."

With two into the eighth, Sandberg singled off Dennis Martinez, 16-7. Dwight Smith followed with a single and strong safety Joey Browner was playing at less than their potential and tight end Steve Griest was hurt. All are Pro Bowl players, all missed long stretches of training camp as holdouts.

The Eagles, Browns and Giants do things the way Philadelphia, of course, handed Randall Cunningham a six-year, $18 million contract extension a week ago. That ensured he will be the quarterback of the '90s with Eagles rather than anyone else should, as expected, some free agency comes to the NFL in the next few years.

Cleveland did the same with Bernie Kosar, tying him up for the next five years, and the Rams are renegotiating with Jim Everett for a contract that will put him in their class.

All three teams are operating on the expectation of new rules for NFL contracts.

One is that there will be some form of free agency for all players when a collective bargaining agreement is reached with the players union. That agreement is in limbo while both sides wait for the courts to decide on the antitrust suit filed by the NFLPA after the players' lockout two years ago.

The other is that there will be more bidding for free agents under the current system. Cunningham or Kosar are worth far more than the Eagles and Browns would care as compensation, particularly since most NFL draft picks hold out more of training camp and are being paid more than long-time All-Pro. After a decade with no free agent offers, Wilbur Marshall said the last of Washington Redskins from the Bears in 1988. Ray Childers of the Houston Oilers and Bruce Smith of the Buffalo Bills got offer sheets this year that were matched by their old teams.

"It's a two-tier system," agent Leigh Steinberg, who represents a flock of quarterbacks, said. "If you have a star quality player, you want to get him tied up before someone else grabs him."

But it's not only stars.

The Giants took that philosophy one more step by resigning some of developing young talent — tackle Doug Riesenbaker and wide receivers Odessa Turner and Stephen Baker. All three are in their option years and all might have demanded more next season.

The Giants learned from experience.

Last season, tight end Mark Bavaro and linebacker Carl Banks held out for most of training camp after All-Pro seasons, then (see the Vikings' Jordan above) spent most of the season playing subpar with minor ailments.

Last year the Giants were one of the favorites to win the Super Bowl but finished 10-6 against a weak schedule, missing playoffs by losing to the New York Jets in the final game. This year, the Giants were picked 6-10 to finish third in the NFC East but are 3-4 behind New York — with Banks, Bavaro, Riesenbaker, Turner and Baker all contributing.

To paraphrase the Beatles, money may not be able to buy you love. In the NFL, however, it can buy the closest thing — victories.

Just ask the Minnesota Vikings on the one hand, the Cleveland Browns, Philadelphia Eagles and New York Giants on the other.

The Vikings showed up at training camp July 31 as the consensus favorite to win the Super Bowl. They also showed up minus eight holdouts — at least in part because of their deserved reputation as one of the league's most penurious teams.

So three weeks into the season, the Vikings are 1-2, including Sunday's 27-14 loss at the hands of the Pittsburgh Steelers, who entered the game having scored 10 points and allowed 92.

Worse, both Vikings and ex-Vikings talk openly of their discontent with management, providing a reason, perhaps, why they tend to lose games they should win against teams like Pittsburgh and Green Bay. They lose enough such games to keep them from taking the NFC Central title away from the Chicago Bears.

This year, for example, wide receiver Anthony Carter and strong safety Joey Browner are playing at less than their potential and tight end Steve Griest was hurt. All are Pro Bowl players, all missed long stretches of training camp as holdouts.

"There's a heck of a long way between having great players and a great team," Coach Jerry Burns said last Sunday. "We certainly are not great. I don't know where we can beat at this point."

Mike Mullarkey, a former Viking (discontented veteran) said after catching a 15-yard touchdown pass from Pittsburgh Sunday: "Once I caught it, I wanted to spike it. I will replay CBS' prime-time coverage beginning at 1 a.m. every night. CBS' schedule consists primarily of nightly prime-time shows and weekend afternoons."
