Correction

A sports column published Thursday incorrectly identified the last East Catholic boy to earn All-State honors in cross country. It was Kevin Ciaglio, in 1986.

Thoughts

I invite you to think about beauty. There was a time when people spoke objectively about beauty—a beautiful building, a beautiful painting, a beautiful symphony. Then came the days of "beautiful-looking me" (perhaps even adding "so who cares about you.") What would happen if we recovered a deep longing for beauty within ourselves? Imagine awakening one day to discover beauty in everything—every face, each tree, this moment, tomorrow's task. The age of beauty as a mere contrast with ugly would be ended in order that an age of unimaginable unity might begin!

In Brief . . .

Mom held in baby's death

NEW MILFORD (AP) — The mother of a 5-month-old baby girl was arrested and charged with murder early today, just hours after the baby's body was found floating in the Housatic River, police said.

After a search from the New Milford High School to downtown and the length of the river, the infant's body was discovered along the edge of the river near the Nestle's factory on Boardman Road.

The search for the baby began shortly after 8 p.m. Thursday, when the child's mother said her child was missing.

Dawn March, 18, was arrested about 3:10 a.m. today and charged in the death of Shawna March. She was being held on $200,000 bond pending arraignment in Salisbury Superior Court today.

Boy, 12, dies in trailer fire

NEW HAVEN (AP) — A 12-year-old New Haven boy died after he got trapped inside a storage trailer where some gasoline had spilled and ignited, police said.

New Haven police Lt. James V. Sorrentino said Jason Reddick was pronounced dead Thursday after being trapped inside a trailer used to store items sold at a weekly flea market in the city's Hill section.

Reddick, his twin brother and a 9-year-old friend were playing around 5:30 p.m. Thursday when they found a hole in the roof of the trailer. Sorrentino said Reddick and the 9-year-old boy climbed inside the trailer and found a can of gasoline, he said.

Sorrentino said the boys spilled some gasoline as they tried to hand the gas can to Reddick's brother who was standing on the roof. Reddick then ignited a lighter to illuminate the inside of trailer and started the fire.

Three Democrats hold an open caucus

By Alex Grell
Manchester Herald

Only three Democratic town directors showed up Thursday night to hold a caucus on the matters scheduled to be heard by the Board of Directors, who sat in on part of the discussion.

The entire audience for the caucus consisted of three newspaper reporters and Josh Howroyd, a Democratic candidate for the Board of Directors, who sat in on part of the discussion.

The caucus, which lasted about 45 minutes, was held in one corner of Democratic campaign headquarters at the Mr. Amazing Plaza on East Middle Turnpike. Elsewhere in the room party members plied voters with Cummings supervising the operation.

Cummings did not participate in the directors' caucus, but he, the directors and other party members held a caucus after the press was excluded.

Democratic directors have been conducting public business in private meetings since the election of Mayor Peter P. DiRosa as Chairman of the Board of Directors and Town Chairman Theodore R. Cummings.

DiRosa has said the Democrats would hold the caucus in public view to illustrate that nothing sinister takes place. Republicans said prior to Thursday that the open caucus would be a highly orchestrated smokescreen.

At the end of the session DiRosa observed that it was a quiet agenda and the board should be able to handle it in one meeting.

In the discussion Thursday Fogarty said he would have a lot of questions to ask about a proposal to grant temporary rights of way to Anthony Botticello to construct drains and grade town property to gain access from Olcott Street to Botticello property. Fogarty said he could see the advantage to Botticello but not to the town.

Cassano said he will ask for a administration report on the possibility of building a sidewalk on Oak Grove Street from Meadow Lane to Porter Street. He said the idea was suggested by a teacher at newly re-opened Highland Park School.

When the three discussed a two-year extension of a town lease to the Manchester Country Club on the town-owned golf course land, DiRosa said action had been postponed because of a suit against the town over the lease. He said the suit had now been dropped.

Fogarty questioned a proposed appropriation to buy two police cruisers, saying such purchases should be planned at budget time. DiRosa said the cruisers were among cruisers requested in the current budget and that the directors put off a decision on them.

HARTFORD (AP) — Gun merchants should be required to sell trigger locks for each gun sold and gun owners should be held responsible for accidental shootings by children, the mother of a boy who was shot and killed this summer by a playmate busan.

Susan Kenney of Naugatuck testified Thursday before a legislative committee studying a series of gun issues and focusing now on the issue of children and guns.

Her 12-year-old son, David Joseph Kenney, was shot and killed on June 22 by an 11-year-old friend whose father had three loaded guns in their house.

"I had hopes and dreams for that little boy. They're gone now — gone because of someone else's recklessness and stupidity," said Kenney, her voice trembling and her eyes filled with tears.

"Nothing can bring D.J. back, but we've got to do this for other children," she said, showing the committee a framed picture of her son. "There's a lot of laws I want to have changed and, damn, I'm going to do it."

"I'm begging, I'm pleading. Please, do something now," she said.

Kenney repeatedly emphasized that she opposed bans on guns, noting that her husband is a hunter and gun owner.

The committee is made up of members of the General Assembly's Public Safety Committee, concerned citizens and lobbyists on both sides of the gun control issue.

An update on violations produces pleas for Bolton government unity

By James F. Henry
Manchester Herald

BOLTON — First Selectman Robert Morra appeared at the Board of Education meeting Thursday and asked for an update on safety and code violations within the Center School, which houses grades 5 through 8.

Morra was told that all safety violations had either been dealt with, or were in the process of being dealt with, and some minor, inexpensive code violations were also being corrected.

Morra's appearance led to a pledge for improved communication between selectmen and the Board of Education.

The meeting was held in the library at the Center School, with about 40 people in the audience.

"Are there things that really need immediate attention? If so, we (the selectmen) would like to see these things done, in an orderly fashion," Morra told the board.

Morra said it was his impression that the school board eventually plans to abandon Center School and near the building. The trailer will be used for storing wood that is currently stored inside. One of the criticisms in the report is that there is not enough usable space in the Industrial Arts area. The board hopes removing the wood will help solve that problem.

Morra said he was pleased that the violations were being corrected and then took the opportunity to urge better communications between town boards. He said many town boards don't know what the others are doing, and he indicated he hopes that will change by officials attending other board's meetings.

Morra also invited the Board of Education to appear before the selectmen if board members ever have questions, or would like clarification on an issue the selectmen are considering.

Marshall agreed, saying, "We want to work together. We all live in this community. We are not two separate governments. We are all the government working together for the good of all, so we'll keep the line of communication open as much as possible."

Random drug test overruled by judge

NEW HAVEN (AP) — A federal judge has cleared the way for an ousted rookie firefighter who tested positive for cocaine to seek reinstatement, ruling that a random drug test he received in 1986 was conducted unlawfully.

U.S. District Judge Jose Cabranes held Thursday that firefighter trainee Patrick King was the victim of an unlawful search because he was administered a random drug test without any kind of advance notice he might be tested.

Advance general notice that random drug tests may be given are essential to protecting the employees' privacy interests, Cabranes said.

Cabranes did not spell out what kind of warning must be given.

"It is not for the federal courts to prescribe in detail how public employers provide that general notice," he said.

A village volunteer fire department cannot be expected to publish written guidelines and establish elaborate procedures, but even small government units reasonably can be required to provide some kind of advance general notice," he said.

King said he was forced to resign from New Haven's fire department training academy in September 1986 after a random drug test showed he had used cocaine.

King, who is now 29, did not contest the drug finding but did challenge the legality of the test itself.

His training class had been the first to undergo such random testing.

Records detail opposition to new state lottery game

HARTFORD (AP) — The state's former lottery chief opposed extending the Lotto game because it was designed by the same vendor whose lottery-machine malfunctioned, forcing a 24-hour shutdown of the system, documents released in response to a freedom-of-information complaint show.

J. Blaine Lewis, who was eventually fired for refusing to expand the game, told state officials during a closed disciplinary hearing in May that he felt he could be blamed if problems plagued the new Lotto game, a transcript of the hearing reveals.

The transcript was released recently by the Lottery Division after the Journal Inquirer of Manchester charged that William V. Hickey, the state gaming director, had violated the right-to-know law by barring the public from the May 24 meeting. Lewis had invited reporters to the meeting.

The division did not admit to wrongdoing but agreed to release the transcript in return for dropping of the complaint.

"In the past our games have been initiated in the lottery unit and have been responsible for our enviable sales record," Lewis said at the hearing.

But, he said, the game he was refusing to implement "has been designed by the same on-line vendor which caused all of our recent problems."

He also said the vendor, General Instrument Corp. of Maryland, had launched a public-relations blitz to "replace our very successful existing game."

The state Gaming Policy Board approved the changes Lewis opposed on Monday.

Lewis, who was fired by the Gaming Policy Board two days after the Journal Inquirer filed a lawsuit containing the firing.

Both Hickey and Lewis have declined to comment on the firing.

The 25-page transcript provides Lewis' first detailed explanation for refusing Hickey's May 15 order to expand the Lotto game.

Lewis has said publicly that adding four numbers to the Lotto game, in which players pick and try to match six of 40 numbers, was unnecessary because the current game has been successful.

The board's Thursday night meeting was attended by over 30 residents, many of whom were members of the new The Neglected Taxpayers group.

The meeting's agenda did not allow time for public comment, however, because of the unexpected high turnout. Marshall said he allowed a maximum of 20 minutes for members of the audience to speak.

TNT member Betty Martin said, "We feel that the Board of Education has been elected to serve all of the people. And we feel that sometimes we have not been heard, and that the Board of Education has been representing the school administration's, and not the people's wishes."

Martin also said, "We want to put it on the record that we are friends of education, but we are very concerned about rising taxes. We would request that the school board make an attempt to increase the budget for the schools for the coming year."

School board eyes space in the Loomis House

By Jacqueline Bennett
Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — The Board of Education has joined the list of groups seeking use of the Loomis House.

The board wants space in the building for school offices and voted unanimously Thursday to seek use of the building from the Town Council.

Other town agencies and organizations also are seeking use of the building.

The Loomis House, located on Route 44, was donated to the town.

School Board Vice Chairman Judy Halvorsen said her husband, Peter Halvorsen, a member of the Town Council, and Council Chairman Joan Lewis, have indicated the council would be willing to consider the proposal.

During the meeting at Coventry High School, Halvorsen said Lewis suggested a representative of the board attend the council's next regular meeting on Oct. 2.

The proposal to use the Loomis House for school offices is the idea of the new superintendent, Michael Malinowski. He said current office conditions at the schools are cramped and that the career resources center for Coventry High School students is in a corridor.

Malinowski had also asked for $4,000 for Lawrence Associates to do specifications for the proposal.

"I think it's premature to talk about $4,000. The council still has to say if they are willing to explore the proposal," said board member Patrick Flaherty.

If the council approves a request from the board to submit a proposal, the proposal could be submitted to a special council meeting on Oct. 10. That meeting is being held to hear proposals for use of the house.

"I hope you do make a proposal but I am concerned for our proposal too," said Judy LeDoy, coordinator of the Preservation of the Loomis Property Committee.

Campaign '89 Cummings assails GOP over class

By Nancy Condelman
Manchester Herald

Democratic Town Committee Chairman Theodore R. Cummings said local Republicans acted irresponsibly in criticizing Democratic Board of Directors candidate and college professor Mary Ann Handley for teaching a course that includes a session on local election issues.

Cummings said the Republicans' charge of a conflict of interest is an example of an "irresponsible" campaign.

At a Wednesday press conference, Republican State Central Committeeman Carl Zinsner said Handley's involvement in the course, which is being offered at the Manchester Senior Citizens' Center, represents a conflict of interest.

Handley is a history professor at Manchester Community College. The course, which includes a session on issues in the fall election, is being offered through the college's Older Adults Association.

Handley invited Republican Town Committee Chairman John L. Garisde Jr. to participate in the Oct. 25 session more than a week ago and Garisde accepted. Cummings also agreed to participate.

But on Monday, Garisde said, he told Handley he would not participate. He joined Zinsner Wednesday at a news conference questioning whether Handley should teach the course during her campaign.

Garisde said Thursday he supports the concept of teaching senior citizens about their local government, but now "it's the right time to do it."

Zinsner on Wednesday questioned whether Handley would include in the session discussion on the botched 1987 reevaluation and fine levied against the town last year by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for illegally filling about four acres of wetlands while expanding the town's sewage treatment plant.

"The things I'm going to talk about are the things we were criticized for," Cummings said. "That shows our ability to handle as best we can the difficult (problems) that are thrust on us from the outside."

Campaign Notes . . .

Muns to head Osella's effort
Republican state Rep. Paul Muns will serve as chairman of the re-election campaign committee of Republican Town Director Ronald Osella. Muns, a Manchester resident, represents the 9th Assembly District which includes parts of Manchester, East Hartford, and Glastonbury.

Osella has also appointed Ellen Donadio as treasurer, Thomas Ferguson as chairman, Lou Kocis as lawn sign coordinator, Patricia Cotter, advertising coordinator, and Mary Wilhide, campaign adviser.

"We are fortunate to have a director like Ron who has fought hard to keep our town meetings open to the public by working through the Freedom of Information Act. The people of Manchester have a strong advocate in Ron Osella," Muns said.

Osella filed a complaint with the Freedom of Information Commission over gatherings of Democratic directors in which the Democratic town chairman participated. The FOI Commission ruled the gatherings violated the Freedom of Information Act.

"I have a great team working with me in this campaign," Osella said. "With open and honest campaigning for open an honest government, I am confident the people of Manchester will return me to the Board of Directors."

Bogli names her managers
Terry Bogli, a Democratic candidate for re-election to the Board of Education, has named Betty Kramer and Jo-Ann Moriarty as her election campaign managers. Kramer was co-chairman of Bogli's last campaign and has been campaign manager for the last three campaigns of state Rep. John Thompson, D-Manchester. She is a member of and past president of the local chapter of the League of Women Voters and a member of the executive committee of the Democratic Town Committee.

Moriarty, a member of the Board of Education, is not seeking re-election. She is Manchester's representative to the Connecticut Association of Boards of Education and is on the Advisory Board of the Regional Occupational Training Center. She has served on numerous PTA committees.

Other workers in the Bogli campaign will Richard Bragdon, treasurer, Lee Bogli, Michael Darby, Pat Ladd, and Bette Thompson.

Public to speak Tuesday on Bolton education plans

By James F. Henry
Manchester Herald

BOLTON — Board of Education Chairman James Marshall has announced the board will hold a special meeting at the high school Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. to give residents an opportunity to talk with the board about the future of town schools.

Marshall said the meeting will be unique because the board's usual meetings are held at the high school but the board does not respond at the meeting.

Marshall said it is his goal "to gather as much data, and use the community as much as possible" in determining the fate of the schools in town.

Marshall also said, "This is not the Board of Education's school system. It belongs to the citizens of the town of Bolton. We need your input."

The board's Thursday night meeting was attended by over 30 residents, many of whom were members of the new The Neglected Taxpayers group.

The meeting's agenda did not allow time for public comment, however, because of the unexpected high turnout. Marshall said he allowed a maximum of 20 minutes for members of the audience to speak.

TNT member Betty Martin said, "We feel that the Board of Education has been elected to serve all of the people. And we feel that sometimes we have not been heard, and that the Board of Education has been representing the school administration's, and not the people's wishes."

Martin also said, "We want to put it on the record that we are friends of education, but we are very concerned about rising taxes. We would request that the school board make an attempt to increase the budget for the schools for the coming year."

Philippine troops on alert

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — "Troops and police were put on alert today and a wave of panic-selling hit the country's two stock exchanges after President Corazon Aquino banned the burial of Ferdinand Marcos in the Philippines.

Mrs. Aquino ordered Philippine flags flown at half-staff until Sunday on all government buildings in respect for the 72-year-old former president, who died Thursday in Hawaii.

But Mrs. Aquino ruled out allowing either Marcos' remains or members of his immediate family from returning home because it "could lead to some destabilization activities." A senior official had suggested the government might allow Marcos' ashes to be flown here, but Mrs. Aquino said later that was not under consideration.

Also today, a senior official said Marcos' death may encourage former associates to help efforts to recover the fortune allegedly stolen from the government during the late president's rule.

Security was reinforced today at all radio and television stations, electric power plants, telephone exchanges and other essential installations in the Manila area.

Marcos' supporters planned rallies and Roman Catholic Masses in Manila and other cities. But military Chief of Staff Renato de Villa said the situation was calm nationwide and "we have not seen anything that is abnormal in the country."

Marcos loyalists have been blamed for some of the six armed attempts to topple Mrs. Aquino since she took power on Feb. 25, 1986, after a popular uprising ended Marcos' 20-year rule.

But rallies by Marcos followers have dwindled steadily over the past three years. Most of the recent crowds have numbered only a few hundred.

In a news conference today, Mrs. Aquino said the return of Marcos' remains might trigger clashes between pro-and anti-Marcos groups. She said officials would consider the ban if conditions here improve, but gave no timetable.

"We believe that allowing the remains of the late president to be brought back here would cause some instability and would discourage very much investors and tourists from coming here," she said. But Mrs. Aquino said recent opinion polls by the government showed public almost equally divided on the issue of Marcos' burial. "So it really is a very divisive issue," she said.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said the Federal Aviation Administration would seek to prevent any flight from carrying Marcos' body from the United States to the Philippines.

Following a meeting today of the Cabinet Crisis Committee, National Security Adviser Rafael Hito said the government may send a representative to the funeral if Marcos is buried in Hawaii.

Asked if the government was offering the return of Marcos' ashes as one official had indicated, Mrs. Aquino said, "No, there is absolutely no truth to that. I did not even discuss the matter of his cremation."

The Philippine government alleges that Marcos and his associates embezzled up to $10 billion before he was ousted. But efforts to recover any money have been delayed by legal problems.

Bush gains-tax plan goes to Senate after House win

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fight over President Bush's cut in the capital gains tax moves quickly to the Senate and into electoral politics following the president's hard-fought victory in the House.

A high-profile Democratic effort to derail the tax break, which party leaders called a giveaway to the rich, was beaten 239-190 on Thursday. The Democratic alternative contained a tax increase on the wealthy, and 64 Democrats defected to the president's side.

Senate Finance Committee Chairman Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said Bush's House victory "was unexpected" but that he would try to buck Bush with an alternative of his own when his committee meets next week.

Bentsen, a longtime supporter of special tax treatment for capital gains earnings, says the nation can't afford to give away many more tax breaks with federal deficits running at $130 billion a year.

However, others in the Senate were certain to push for the capital gains cut.

The Bentsen plan would restore universally deductible individual Retirement Accounts, an idea the House Democrats' proposal also embraced. But his plan doesn't include their proposal to raise income taxes on the wealthy, who now pay a lower marginal rate than the upper middle class.

Setting a lower tax rate for capital gains, which Bush promised in his presidential campaign, would reverse what was considered a major achievement of the 1986 tax overhaul supported by President Reagan — taxing earned and unearned income at the same rate.

The Bush plan approved Thursday as part of a huge, 2,000-page budget bill would reduce the maximum tax rate on capital gains from 33 percent to 19.6 percent for the next 17 months. After that, the rate would rise to 28 percent, but taxes would not be paid on earnings attributable to inflation.

New England Journal of Medicine by Dr. Thomas Poole. Dr. Hans Luthel and colleagues at Uppsala University in Sweden, involved making detailed measurements of insulin and sugar in 30 patients over three years. It is the first to provide definitive evidence that the diuretic interfere with insulin use and increase blood fats, the authors said.

The study was praised by Dr. James A. Schoenberg, head of the preventive medicine department at Rush Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago and a former president of the American Heart Association.

"I think it's a major study, because it gives us additional evidence for what many of us have suspected for a long time," he said.

Schoenberg said patients taking diuretics should not insist that they be taken off the drugs. "We don't want panic," he said. "But everybody ought to ask how their doctors view the data" in the study.

The study was of a diuretic called hydrochlorothiazide. It is widely sold in generic form under that name, and it is also contained in such brand name products as Dyazide, the best-selling diuretic.

Dyazide's manufacturer, SmithKline Beecham Pharmaceuticals in Philadelphia, issued a statement emphasizing that Dyazide contains an additional drug that could ameliorate some of the effects noted in the study.

The statement also said long-term studies found that the effects cited in the new study do not last more than a year.

Selling education agenda next task

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — President Bush and the nation's governors, after sealing a "social compact" to rebuild American education, now face a more daunting task: marshaling educators' and public support for rigorous standards and radical new ways of running schools.

Still to come from the governors and the White House in the months ahead are the specifics of the first national education goals aimed at reducing the steep dropout rate, shaping students up in math and science, reducing adult illiteracy and getting more young children physically and mentally fit to begin their education.

But as they headed home Thursday from their two-day summit at the University of Virginia, the president and state executives agreed that the success of their strategy rests on galvanizing public support for what Bush termed "an America of tougher standards."

There were no promissory notes signed, but Bush did commit himself to the principle of targeting any future funding increases toward needy preschoolers, for both Head Start, health and nutrition programs.

Bush, standing in the sunshine on the lawn outside the Thomas Jefferson-designed Rotunda, pledged his "determination to follow up in every way possible. We just cannot let it sit here and end here, and I promise you that I won't."

Earlier, in a keynote address, Bush declared, "A social compact begins today in Charlottesville, Virginia, a compact between parents, teachers, principals, superintendents, state legislators, governors and the administration."

"Educational reform is an urgent responsibility for every parent, every student, every community. And those who do not advance the cause of education, hinder it," he cautioned.

Former Education Secretary William Bennett was rebuked by White House chief of staff John Sununu for his comment that the governors' summit debates were full of "pap and ... stuff that rhymes with pap," displaying "a total absence of any knowledge" about the schools.

White House press secretary Martin Flitwater said Sununu spoke for Bush when he told Bennett, not the federal drug policy chief, "Thanks for your comments, they weren't helpful."

Gov. Terry Branstad of Iowa, Republican chairman of the National Governors' Conference, said the administration officials was that "Mr. Bennett went overboard" and "was somewhat flip in his remarks."

For the governors, some of whom have spent much of the 1980s battling to improve their schools, Bush's message was music to the ears.

California Gov. George Deukmejian lamented that now, "you don't find many parents who even go to open house in the school their children are attending. It's a call to them ... to get involved."

Fleeing criminals break into prison

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — Two suspected burglars got to San Quentin a lot faster than most after unwittingly breaking into the state prison while running from the police.

"It's more than funny; it's a scream," Dick Zimmermann, a police spokesman said.

The strange chain of events began when three men tried to break into a parked pickup truck Wednesday afternoon. The truck's owner arrived on the scene, began to chase the men and then hailed a police car.

Two of the three fugitives climbed a fence onto prison property, said prison Lt. Paul Williams. The third man was still missing Thursday night.

Two outsiders were caught on prison grounds Wednesday, a 16-year-old boy and Stephen Lee, 18, of Oakland. Both were booked for investigation of auto burglary and trespassing on a state prison.

"Nothing like this has ever happened here before," said Lt. Cal White at San Quentin. "People just don't break into prison every day."

schools than recognize them," Bocchini said. He said that the goal of the program is to show that the good schools are doing so other schools can emulate them.

Next year the award will recognize elementary schools. Bocchini said that because of this elite status, administrators expect there will be visitors from other schools coming to see how East Catholic operates.

The Rev. William Charbonneau, school president, Principal Peg Siegmund, and Alan Greer, an English teacher, were sent to Washington D.C. to receive the award. Bocchini said they have not returned yet, but will be back at school on Monday. Bocchini said Greer was selected by random drawing, so it would be as fair as possible. He said the school was allowed to send three people and it was thought that a faculty member should go. It took more than 10 months to apply for the award and have the application considered, said Bocchini. He said there were between 60 and 70 pages of forms to be filled out, giving statistics about where East Catholic graduates go, leaving the school, a statement of the school's mission, and programs to help poorly motivated students.

After the initial application was reviewed, a review team visited the school to talk with students, alumni, teachers and parents. Caldwell identified him as Ernest James Colbert.

Passenger William Roby of Bowie, Md., who was sitting toward the front of the train, said he heard a "big thump." Then, I could tell the train came off the tracks. I started bracing myself.

"Lacklily the train wasn't going very fast," said Roby, who was traveling with a group to New Orleans to see Sunday's professional football game between Washington and New Orleans.

Jacobson said the speed limit for the train was 79 mph at the crossing, but he did not know how fast the train was traveling.

Bocchini said that the students were not aware that the school had applied for the award until the two-person review team came in January. Bocchini said the team was there for 3 1/2 days.

Bocchini said "any school that goes through this program must feel pretty good about their school." He said there was no limit to the number of awards that could be granted. "They encourage schools that feel good about themselves to apply."

Bocchini said receiving the award affirmed what the school's staff already believed.

He said that East Catholic felt that it had a very good chance to win an award, but added that it was Siegmund who encouraged the school to apply, and got the administrators motivated.

Bocchini said every high school or middle school in the country received notification of the award program and 600 to 700 applied.

East Catholic has about 800 students, the largest Catholic school in the Hartford archdiocese, Bocchini said.

Northwest Catholic High School of West Hartford was selected. The award was stated by former President Ronald Reagan. The school will not be eligible again until 1993.

Other state winners were Greenwich High School, Joel Barlow High School in West Redding, Memorial Middle School in Middlebury, Shelton Intermediate School, Hadam-Killingsworth Middle School and Newington High School.

and the only clue it had been a firetruck was its color: red.

State police spokeswoman Lucy Caldwell said firefighters Mark Miller, 23, and Matt Smith, 22, both of Callet, died at the scene.

Fauquier County Sheriff's Deputy R.R. Crawford said 150 or more people on the train were injured.

Many did not require hospitalization and were treated at the scene or at a nearby school, while dozens were transported to nearby Prince William Hospital in Prince William County and Fauquier Hospital in Warrenton.

One firefighter and two passengers were in critical condition at Washington, D.C., Hospital Center, a spokeswoman said. Caldwell identified the firefighter as Michael Kirk.

described him as a man of God. U.S. District Court Judge Robert Potter clashed with defense attorneys Wednesday over the number of Bakker's witnesses. Prosecutors contend Bakker oversold partnerships and diverted $37 million of the money to himself.

Bakker faces 120 years in prison and fines of more than $5 million if found guilty on all charges. Jurors heard Thursday from satisfied partners.

Sharon Crech, a school teacher from Rock Hill, S.C., described her stay at Heritage Grand Hotel as "the next best thing to being... close to Jesus."

Lola Pinney testified she recently changed her will to leave her entire estate to the Bakkers.

Since the defense began its case Sept. 20, defense attorneys also have shown the jury videotapes of seven PTL programs.

The neighbor, who did not want to be identified, said Bickley's daughter Elizabeth, of 19 Foley St., Manchester, left for Arizona Wednesday night and telephoned Thursday night. A son John, who lives in Houston, Texas, also went to Arizona to visit his mother.

"We're just so happy that she was not injured more seriously," the neighbor said. "It's a miracle."

"Everybody really loves Florence," she said. "She's a nice lady."

The neighbor said she knew Bickley and Marchand had met while they worked at The Travelers Cos. in Hartford, and since they had retired had spent much time traveling together. "It must be extremely difficult because the friend she was with was a very close, dear friend."

Marchand's sister-in-law, Judith Marchand of Meriden, and her nephew, Patrick Marchand, also of Meriden, described her as an adventuresome woman who loved traveling and the outdoors.

The dead crew members were identified as pilot William Welch, 47, of Sedona, Ariz., and co-pilot Keith Crosson, 43, of Kailua Kona, Hawaii.

Federal investigators were at the crash site Thursday, NTSB team and representatives of the plane's manufacturers were expected to spend four or five days at the site.

The investigation will be "quite more difficult" by the lack of a cockpit voice recorder or flight data recorder, Lauber said. The devices are not required for the DCJ16.

COURT SOLUTIONS

Sometimes a lawsuit is the best approach. Legal disputes in our community must be resolved quickly. When you are the victim and have suffered bodily injury or lost property, you are entitled to recover your losses. A judge is merely a neutral third person who resolves a dispute. People who do go to court seek only what they are entitled to. When the wrongdoer is not quick to replace your losses, don't fear the lawsuit. Fearing the lawsuit can make you a victim twice.

AL East battle is going down to the wire

By Ben Walker
The Associated Press

TORONTO — Once again, the American League East is the place to be.

For the seventh time in 11 seasons, the division title will be decided on the final weekend. This time, the SkyDome is the site.

Toronto, leading by one game, is trying to defy its own history, while Baltimore hopes one of the greatest hitters in baseball history will be enough to win it.

Seven months of work, down to three games — and maybe a fourth if a playoff is necessary Monday at Baltimore.

Both teams have been in this spot during the decade. In 1982, the Orioles went into the final weekend trailing Milwaukee by three games. Baltimore won the first three of the series, but lost on the final day to Don Sutton and the Brewers.

In 1987, Toronto dropped its last seven games and the division to Detroit. The Blue Jays blew the final three in Tiger Stadium.

In 1988, with a 3-1 lead in the AL playoffs, Toronto lost out to Kansas City.

"We don't talk about that, but it never goes away," Toronto's Lloyd Moseby said. "You're always aware that happened, but you don't dwell on it."

Each team won two of three going into this weekend. Baltimore did it at Milwaukee, while Toronto did it at Detroit, although the Blue Jays blew a two-run lead in the ninth inning of their one loss.

Both clubs were off Thursday. Jeff Ballard, 18-8, will start the series tonight for Baltimore and Todd Stottlemyre, 7-7, will pitch for Toronto.

If Toronto wins two of three, the Blue Jays win the division. If the Orioles win two of three, the teams would be tied with 88 victories and would settle the title in a one-game playoff. If the Orioles sweep the weekend series, they would win the division.

"I'd rather be in Toronto's position, but I'll take where we are because I know about five other clubs that would like to be where we are."

The Orioles went into the season determined not to dwell on their recent past. Robinson also got a good feeling in spring training, despite the fact that Baltimore had lost 107 games — 101 under Robinson — the year before.

Robinson said he was an integral part of an assistant coach at East Catholic a few years back, second-year Hornet coach Bob Tigno was succinct about his game plan.

"The game plan was to run it down their face," Tigno said. "We're a running team. I didn't think they could stop us."

The Hornets workhorses were junior Jason Arnold (15 carries for 136 yards, 1 TD) and senior James Acosta (13 carries, 131 yards, two TDs). The Indian defense was virtually helpless against the relentless first three games. (East Hartford is a good team. Any team coached by Bob Tigno does a job. And, we didn't do it.)

A key for Manchester occurred with 2:21 left before intermission with the Indians trailing, 18-14. What could have been a four-point halftime deficit turned into a 12-point deficit (26-14) after Leonard made his only mistake of the night.

On a third down play from his own 33, Leonard's pass was intercepted by Acosta. Two plays later, See HORNETS, page 13

Managers Jim Masi, center, is surrounded by Indian defenders, including Jon Golas (87) during Thursday night's game. Masi rushed for 62 yards for the Hornets.

Hornet defenders include Joe Leonard (21), Jim Gonzales (73) and Dan Resto (43). The Hornets won, 34-28.

Hornets grind out win over MHS

Leonard again stands out in 34-28 setback

By Jim Tierney
Manchester Herald

EAST HARTFORD — The vaunted defense of the East Hartford High School football team will be glad it doesn't have to deal with Manchester High's versatile senior quarterback Ars Leonard anymore.

Despite Leonard's eye-catching statistics (six carries for 170 yards and two touchdowns, 8-for-14 passing for 128 yards and one TD), the Hornets held off a late Indian rally and posted a 34-28 CCC East Division victory Thursday night.

The Hornets' high-powered wishbone offense churned out 426 rushing yards.

Leonard also ran 30 yards for an apparent TD in the second quarter, but his fumble on the Hornet 1-yard line was pounced on by Indian senior Steve Joyner for the score.

Manchester is now 1-2 and will host Forni High of Enfield next Saturday at 1:30 p.m. East Hartford is 3-0.

Reminiscent of the wishbone attack he was an integral part of as an assistant coach at East Catholic a few years back, second-year Hornet coach Bob Tigno was succinct about his game plan.

"The game plan was to run it down their face," Tigno said. "We're a running team. I didn't think they could stop us."

AL Roundup

By The Associated Press

The Boston Red Sox and Milwaukee Brewers are out of the pennant race but there's still something to play for — third place.

And that race is just as tight as this weekend's Toronto-Baltimore battle for the American League East championship.

The Red Sox drew first blood and took a one-game lead over Milwaukee with a 12-6 victory Thursday night in the opener of a four-game series.

Ghabrial moving to the forefront

By Jim Tierney
Manchester Herald

One year ago, Dave Ghabrial was the No. 4 runner on the successful Manchester High boys' cross country team which placed third in both the Class LL state meet and State Open.

Ghabrial possessed an abundance of talent, but he could never quite pierce the Indians' top three which included two All-State performers in Craig Hempstead and Todd Liscomb.

With that trio lost to graduation, Ghabrial, now a senior, is the No. 1 Indian runner along with being co-captain.

Ghabrial, who never had trouble with workouts in the past, now finds himself in a very different situation as the leader of a young squad.

"At the beginning (of the season), I wanted to get them (the younger kids) going a little bit and have them gain confidence for the season," Ghabrial, 17, said. "Now, I'm trying to go out and get some real, hard workouts in."

Though he finished a respectable 25th in the LL meet and 53rd in the Open a year ago, Ghabrial has already firmly established himself among the elite runners in the state. Ghabrial began his season in suspicious fashion by winning the Varsity 1 race at the Windham Invitational with a time of 16:31 for the 3.1-mile course.

That was an improvement of over two minutes from last year as a sophomore at the same invitational.

Was Manchester coach George Sutor surprised with Ghabrial's Windham race?

"I'm not," he said. "He's actually a little bit behind. He doesn't have the depth (on the team) he was able to run with last year. I think he's finding the workouts very easy."

To prepare himself for his senior year, Ghabrial logged approximately 500 miles over the summer. His training mates were Liscomb, Hempstead and another former All-Stater, 1987 MHS grad Shan Brophy.

"We all got together at 6 every night," Ghabrial explained. "It was a lot better because at the beginning of the summer I was running by myself and I found it tough to get motivated."

Since his Windham victory, Ghabrial placed third at the Guilford Invitational behind two runners from state powerhouse Xavier High of Middletown. On Tuesday, he won Manchester's first triannual meet of the year at Wickham Park against Rockville and Forni.

In that race, Ghabrial dropped 32 seconds off his time from last year on Manchester's home course without being pushed.

Ghabrial's personal records in outdoor track for the 1600 and 3200 are 4:35 and 10:10, respectively. These are times he hopes to trim considerably in the spring.

Never a frontrunner before in his high school career, Ghabrial admits he's still learning about strategy and hopes to peak in four weeks in time for the state meets.

"There is no real dominant runner in the state," Ghabrial said. "I really haven't run against a lot of tough runners so far. When I go against them, I'm going to go out at that pace. I'm not used to that pace right now."

As far as the State Open?

"Top 15 is my goal," Ghabrial said. The top 25 finishers in the Open earn All-State honors.

Sutor sees Ghabrial just getting better and better.

"Dave is going to be a very good college runner," Sutor said. "He's a good athlete. The more confident he gets, the better he's going to run. Every season, he's gotten better and better. Now, he has to accept that he's good."

Sutor agrees with Ghabrial's assessment of his State Open goal.

"Realistically, we're shooting for the top 15. He's real hard working. He's a great kid, an ideal kid to have on the team."

Sutor added, "He has a chance to make his mark in the state."

That will be a chance Ghabrial will not let slip by.

In Brief . . .

Whalers trim their roster

HARTFORD — The Hartford Whalers assigned 21 players to their American Hockey League affiliate in Binghamton and drew up their projected list for Monday's NHL waiver draft.

There were no surprises among the players sent to Binghamton. The Whalers protected 18 skaters and two goalies for the waiver draft, exposing defenseman Norm Maciver and AI Tur and forwards Jim Thomson and Bob Bodak, who was in the group that was assigned to Binghamton.

The Whalers roster currently stands at 33. Head coach Rick Ley plans on carrying 22 or 23 when the regular season opens.

Bruins lose Ken Linseman

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Bruins lost and gained a center in the same day, removing Ken Linseman from the lineup for arm surgery and acquiring Bobby Gould from the Washington Capitals.

According to a spokesman for the National Hockey League club, Linseman will be sidelined from two to four weeks because of surgery to correct a blood-flow problem in his left arm.

Linseman, 31, left the team in Atlanta Tuesday because of severe swelling in his arm. Thursday, he was examined at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston by Dr. Robert Leffert, an arm specialist.

With Linseman out, the Bruins moved quickly to pick up Gould, a 32-year-old veteran in his 13th season. Gould scored the winning goal Wednesday as the Caps edged the Bruins 3-2 in a pre-season game in Atlanta.

Report slams Griffith Joyner

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — A secret East German report on the 1988 Seoul Olympics alleges there is evidence that triple gold medalist Torberg Grifflith Joyner used performance-enhancing drugs, the West German magazine Stern said in Thursday's issue.

The Hamburg published magazine said in the East German report contends that Griffith Joyner's thigh muscles expanded by two inches in one year.

"Such growth is possible only with a helping substance," Stern quoted the report as saying.

One week ago, Stern published allegations by sprinter Darrell Robinson that he bought growth hormones from Griffith Joyner.

Clippers sign Edwards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jay Edwards, a second-round draft choice from Indiana, has agreed to contract terms with the Los Angeles Clippers. The NBA team said Thursday.

Edwards, a 6-foot-5 guard who left Indiana after two seasons, was the sixth player taken in the second round and the 33rd player selected overall in this summer's draft.

Red Sox 12, Brewers 6

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — The Boston Red Sox dominated the Milwaukee Brewers in a 12-6 victory on Tuesday at the Civic Center stadium.

At 5-foot-10 and 165 pounds, Kehler played as a freshman, but figured he wasn't big enough to make the varsity and decided to stick with playing baseball at Yale.

A year later, Kehler is the starting quarterback and the leading rusher in Yale's winnable offense, and the Elis are 2-0 going into Saturday's rematch at the bowl against UConn, 2-1.

The Huskies, led again this year by record-setting quarterback Matt DeGemaro, have dominated the series in recent years, winning five of the last six games in a rivalry that Yale once led 30-3. The Elis now lead 31-8.

UConn has sandwiched wins over Central Connecticut (27-9) and New Hampshire (20-10) around a last-second loss to SMU (31-30).

Yale opened with a 12-3 victory over Brown and stayed unbeaten with a 33-17 comeback victory over Lehigh last week. Kehler led the Elis offense in both games, running for 112 yards against Brown and for 186 yards and three touchdowns against Lehigh.

Cozza, entering his 25th year at Yale, gives the Huskies the edge in size, speed and experience.

"I think we're going to have to do it by scheme," Cozza said this week.

The scheme will depend heavily on Kehler, who had pretty much given up on football last year when Cozza called him.

Yale is set for Huskies

By Peter Viles The Associated Press

Yale didn't add much to its illustrious football history last Sept. 24 when Connecticut routed the Elis, 41-0 — as bad a loss as Yale had ever suffered in 75 years of playing in the Yale Bowl.

But what happened the next day may become the stuff of Yale legend.

Yale coach Carm Cozza lost his top three quarterbacks to injury in the UConn game, so on Sunday he called sophomore Darin Kehler and asked him to come out for the team.

At 5-foot-10 and 165 pounds, Kehler played as a freshman, but figured he wasn't big enough to make the varsity and decided to stick with playing baseball at Yale.

A year later, Kehler is the starting quarterback and the leading rusher in Yale's winnable offense, and the Elis are 2-0 going into Saturday's rematch at the bowl against UConn, 2-1.

The Huskies, led again this year by record-setting quarterback Matt DeGemaro, have dominated the series in recent years, winning five of the last six games in a rivalry that Yale once led 30-3. The Elis now lead 31-8.

UConn has sandwiched wins over Central Connecticut (27-9) and New Hampshire (20-10) around a last-second loss to SMU (31-30).

Yale opened with a 12-3 victory over Brown and stayed unbeaten with a 33-17 comeback victory over Lehigh last week. Kehler led the Elis offense in both games, running for 112 yards against Brown and for 186 yards and three touchdowns against Lehigh.

Cozza, entering his 25th year at Yale, gives the Huskies the edge in size, speed and experience.

"I think we're going to have to do it by scheme," Cozza said this week.

The scheme will depend heavily on Kehler, who had pretty much given up on football last year when Cozza called him.

"We really had no choice," Cozza said. "We were down to one hobnobbing quarterback. We were in trouble."

"I just laid it on the line and told him that was, I didn't know what he could or could do, but we were in a predicament," Cozza said.

Kehler answered the call and ended up playing in the Elis' last seven games, sharing the quarterback spot with Mark Brubaker. This year the job is Kehler's alone, and he is making the most of it.

"He's a good player, and he's got great, quick feet," said UConn coach Tom Jackman. "He's making it happen."

In addition, said Cozza, "he's bright as all get-out."

On the other side of the ball, UConn's DeGemaro, a 6-foot-2, 208-pound junior, has been making it happen since he was a freshman.

TEXAS 3; California 1, Kansas City 0; Seattle 6, Cleveland 2. The Orioles and Blue Jays begin a three-game series tonight at Toronto.

Nick Eassey extended a career high with his 30th homer and Rick Cerone hit a two-run shot for Boston while Kevin Romine had three singles and three RBIs as the Red Sox won for the 11th time in 13 games.

Boston's Mike Boddicker, 15-11, allowed nine hits, including a two-run homer by Robin Yount, and four runs in five innings. The 15 victories are the most since he won 20 games for Baltimore in 1983. Mike Smithson gave up a two-run homer to Joey Meyer.

The Red Sox tagged Don August for seven runs on five hits and four walks in less than three innings. Bill Krueger allowed five runs and seven hits in two innings.

"This is not the easiest place to pitch," Milwaukee manager Tom Trebilcock said. "To get third place we have to beat them three out of four. I'd have liked to have beaten them four out of four. But we're not thinking about third place, we're thinking about winning every game."

Milwaukee's Paul Molitor extended his hitting streak to 18 games — a double and two singles. Yount's 10th homer gave him 101 RBIs, the third time in his career he has gone over the 100 mark.

Athletes 5, Rangers 3. Dave Stewart, making his final start before the playoffs, pitched five shutout innings for his 21st victory, matching his career high set last season. The right-hander, who is scheduled to start the first game of the American League playoffs on Tuesday, gave up four hits.

Angels 2, Royals 0: Bert Blyleven capped a fabulous comeback season with a seven-hitter for his league-leading fifth shutout as California ended a six-game losing streak.

Blyleven, 17-5 after going 10-17 with Minnesota a year ago, walked eight times and Dave Valle also doubled home two runs.

With the score tied 2-2, Henry Cotto drew a one-out walk off reliever Steve Olin and stole second. Olin walked Daniel Coles and David butted for Jim Presley. Orono relieved but Davis' double spoiled the strategy.

Managers 6, Indians 2: Pinch hitter Alvin Davis greeted Cleveland reliever Jesse Orono with a tie-breaking two-run double in the eighth inning and Dave Valle also doubled home two runs.

Celtics out to control the airwaves

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics already have a hold on the hearts of this city's basketball fans, and now the organization is looking for control over their eyes and ears as well.

Within the last two weeks, the Boston Celtics Limited Partnership announced plans to buy a local television station, WFXT, and an all-news radio station, WEEI.

A minority-owned group, Diamond Communications Inc., also filed a letter of intent Thursday to buy the radio station, but Celtics spokesman Jeffrey Twiss said, "We intend to buy (WEEI) and they intend to sell it to us."

Radio station officials were not available for comment. The Celtics have a contract with another television station to broadcast road games, but the agreement is set to expire next year; the radio station already carries Celtics games.

"It's a logical area for us to go into," Alan Cohen, a co-owner of the Celtics, said Thursday. "They are major sources of revenue for us."

The Tribune Co. in Chicago owns the local WGN television and radio stations, plus the Chicago Cubs.

But observers say it is more unusual for a sports team to go out and purchase broadcasting interests.

High School Roundup

ACTION IN FRONT — The ball bounces loose in front of the Bolton goal, as it did most of the second half in Thursday's game with Coventry High in Bolton. Bulldog goalkeeper Mo Griffin, rear, keeps a sharp eye on the ball along with teammate Tara Hoff (18). Also in the play are Bolton's Lisa Williams, left, and Coventry's Niki Archambault. The Bulldogs won, 2-1.

Stephens out of game with Bills

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — The New England Patriots, plagued with early season injuries, said their running back, John Stephens, will miss Sunday's NFL game in Buffalo and could be sidelined for a month with a strained ankle ligament.

While Patriots general manager Steve Wulf said "Stephens, trainer Ron O'Neill gave me no specifics Thursday, general manager Patrick Sullivan said, "The uncertainty of his recovery has kept the team out of the game. I can't say when he'll be back, but he could miss the next three weeks."

However, head coach Raymond Berry said, "He (Stephens) is going to be out some time. The severity of the ankle — they'd called it a sprain, but that means it's serious. When I hear the term, I know automatically it's a big deal."

The "six-dollar word" is interosseous, the left ligament, which along with the tibia and femur, makes up the anterior ligament is strained, Sullivan said. The injury to the interosseous ligament is the most painful.

Stephens first injured his left ankle in the second half of the season-opening victory over the New York Jets.

He has not played or practiced since the Sept. 17 loss to the Dolphins, in which he was limited action.

However the uncertainty of his recovery has kept the Patriots, 1-2, from putting him on the injured reserve list.

As a rookie last season, the Patriots' draft choice rushed for 1,168 yards and earned a spot in the Pro Bowl.

Bolton scores two early to beat Coventry girls

BOLTON — By the time Coventry High decided to get going, it was too late. Host Bolton High scored twice in the first half against a disorganized Patriots defense and then held on for dear life to annex a 2-1 win Thursday afternoon in Charter Oak Conference girls' soccer action.

The win was the first ever for Bolton against Coventry in Mike Landolph's five-year tenure as Bolton head coach. It comes on the heels of Landolph's first success against HAM High only two days prior. Bolton has won four of five starts this year. Coventry suffered its first defeat in a home game in a 2-1 win Thursday afternoon in Charter Oak Conference girls' soccer action.

Focus/Advice Graduation note fails to impress

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing a sample of the card I designed as a thank-you note for those people who were kind enough to send my son money for his high school graduation. As you can see, it's a printed postcard with the following message: "Thank you for your thoughtfulness and your gift of money. Yours truly, John Paul Jones" (not his real name.)

Abby, I realize that this is not the usual kind of thank-you note, but why must one be "usual"?

Actually, I was very proud that I had been so innovative. Knowing my son, I had relied on him to write his own thank-you notes, they would never get done. So what would be better, this or no thank-you at all? I even typed the addresses on stick-on labels, so all he had to do was sign the card with his initials. After all his "thank-yous" were sent off, I received one of the cards back with the following typewritten message: "This is really shabby — keep your thank!" I have no idea who sent it, so I can't even apologize to the person who thought my

Red plaques are untreatable

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 30-year-old female. I've had diabetes since I was 7. At the age of 17, I developed red spots on my lower legs that were diagnosed as necrobiosis lipoidica. A dermatologist treated me with cortisone injections that didn't provide much improvement.

A dozen doctors, one of whom is a diabetic specialist, says nothing can be done, yet I'm tired of blue jeans and knee socks in the summer to avoid people staring at the unsightly spots. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER: Necrobiosis lipoidica diabetorum is an uncommon skin disorder seen in diabetics. It consists of oval, red plaques on the front surface of the lower legs. These lesions are painless and harmless, but they readily ulcerate, if injured, and can become infected. The cause is unknown, but the skin changes may be due to microangiopathy, poor circulation caused by blocked blood vessels in various body organs. To my knowledge, the condition is untreatable but may improve if the diabetes is brought under strict control.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Diabetes Mellitus." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland 44101-3699. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband's urologist diagnosed him with a malignant prostatic tumor. The doctor did a needle biopsy and IVP test. No other blood work, X-rays or CAT scans were done. What is the proper procedure?

DEAR READER: I believe your husband's urologist followed standard practice by obtaining tissue (biopsy) for analysis and performing an IVP (kidney X-ray) to check for urinary obstruction. Some specialists might have investigated further with a blood count, chemical screening analysis (to examine other substances in the blood), and a chest X-ray and bone scan (to see if the tumor had spread).

The urologist may feel confident that he diagnosed your husband's problem at an early stage; therefore, the doctor may choose to wait before obtaining further tests, and see if your husband develops any symptoms to suggest the tumor has spread. Ordinarily, prostatic cancer is slow-growing and will not cause problems for many months or years.

Because you are obviously concerned about your husband's condition, I urge you to have a conference with the doctor. You can discuss the specialist's about further tests and the danger signals to look for in the future. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "The Prostate Gland." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland 44101-3699. Be sure to mention the title.

Dear Abby

son's thank-you card was offensive.

Now I'm concerned that more than just one person thought his card was offensive, and I wonder if my husband and I should send an apology to everyone we sent the thank-you cards to. What is your advice?

JOHN PAUL'S MOTHER DEAR MOTHER: Sorry, but I do not share your enthusiasm for the "quite nice" thank-you postcard you designed for your son. He's old enough to write a proper thank-you note for each and every gift he received, which is what he should have done. By making it easy for him to evade this responsibility, you are encouraging laziness.

Do not compound your gaffe by sending apologies from you and your husband.

It's smart to get protection against long-term disabilities

Could you hold out if your regular income stopped for a prolonged period because of illness or injury?

The odds are high that you and your family might quickly become financially devastated. That's especially so if the illness or injury is job-related and workers compensation doesn't pay. Even if you are able to save 10 percent of your annual income every year, one year out of work could wipe out 10 years of savings.

Less than 40 percent of all companies provide full benefits for long-term disability. Most people have life and health insurance, but long-term disability coverage to protect their most valuable asset, earning ability is usually overlooked, according to Prof. Gary Stone, vice president of academic affairs at the American College in Bryn Mawr, Pa.

Yet, studies indicate that an employee is three times more likely to become disabled for an extended period prior to reaching 65 than to die before that age.

More than 75,000 Americans become totally disabled each year and that number is increasing. Actuaries after the conservative estimate that one of every eight workers can expect to have some type of disability keeping him or her out of work for more than three months.

Stone, who supervises instruction of future Chartered Financial Consultants and Chartered Life Underwriters, cautions against relying solely on Social Security to cope with such a crisis. Payout on disability claims usually begin only after a five-month waiting period and are generally too low to support a family. That's why many people earning $25,000 or more annually should consider long-term disability coverage.

The most comprehensive coverage now being offered includes monthly checks — all non-taxable — until the age of 65 or retirement. Some plans also offer premiums with a policy that covers up to 180 days.

Most of the major life insurers now offer long-term disability coverage. When investigating such coverage, the best sources to turn to are probably a qualified financial planner, a broker, or the agent who handles your life insurance.

PEOPLE

King to marry again

NEW YORK (AP) — Talk-show host Larry King is about to be married for the third time, but he doesn't consider himself a two-time loser — it's the losers are those who marry only once, he says.

"We are shocked when people marry several times, but if society would admit it, the truth is that most couples who've been married 50 years probably met other people and were afraid to move on," King, 55, writes in the Sept. 29-Oct. 1 issue of USA Weekend.

Runic and John Paul have met four times, but this is Runic's first official visit to Rome as spiritual head of the state Church of England. He is also the leader of 70 million Anglicans worldwide, including 2.5 million U.S. Episcopalians.

The pope leads 850 million Roman Catholics.

In Rome, Runic is expected to discuss the nature of the Anglican Communion and explain how its system of dispersed authority gives a measure of equality among church leaders.

The Anglican church does not have the Vatican's central directing authority, although its priests look to Canterbury for guidance.

The Anglican Reform allows members such as the U.S. Episcopalians to ordain women priests and, this year in the Boston diocese, the first Anglican woman bishop.

"There's no doubt about it, and the pope himself has said so, that the ordination of women and especially the consecration of a woman as bishop, constitute very considerable difficulties for us and also the Orthodox church," Hume said.

Anglicans and Catholics have discussed for many years how their churches might draw closer together.

Runic caused a stir last week by telling an Italian journalist that the Church of England might recognize papal authority in a united church, a view that had already been stated by the commission.

Evangelicals in the Church of England, who base their teaching strictly on the Bible and oppose unity with Rome, reacted indignantly.

Pope, archbishop huddle on uniting their two churches

ROME (AP) — Britain's archbishop of Canterbury today began his celebration of Rosh Hashana, the Jewish new year, with prayers, pictures and light security.

The beginning of the Hebrew year will not be marked by blowing the traditional ram's horn, or shofar, in Israel's 8,000 synagogues because the holiday falls on the Jewish Sabbath, when it is forbidden to sound the horn.

Instead, the shofar will be blown on the second day of the new year festival Sunday.

The new year 5750 was interlarded by some religious scholars as the "year of miracles" because 50 stands for the letter "h" in Hebrew. The scholars linked the "h" to the word "hush," or miracle.

But some newspapers interpreted the new year as the root of the word "hushan," or sleep, suggesting weakness over the 21 month Palestinian uprising against Israeli occupations of the territories.

At least 575 Arabs have been killed by Israeli troops and civilians during the revolt. Forty Israeli soldiers have been slain.

To prevent the uprising from interfering in the holiday, the army blocked travel into Israel by residents of the Gaza Strip until dawn morning and increased searches of Palestinians entering from the West Bank.

Overnight, police in Israel's Galilee rounded up 105 Palestinian residents of the territories from spending the night in Israel.

The army also increased patrols along the Lebanese and Jordanian borders and police were reinforced throughout the country to head off possible guerrilla attacks.

Rosh Hashana begins tonight

SOUNDS NEW YEAR — A rabbi wearing a prayer shawl blows the shofar at special prayers at the Walling Wall Center in Jerusalem. The prayers precede the Jewish New Year, Rosh Hashana, which begins at sundown today.

"We want not only to ensure a feeling of safety but to let the people of Israel celebrate as they choose," Police commissioner David Krass said on Israel radio.

Rosh Hashana is celebrated on the first and second day of the Jewish month of Tishrei. It marks the beginning of the "10 days of awe," when Jews reflect on their deeds of the past year and repent for their sins.

The period culminates in the fast of Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, which comes on Oct. 9.

Tonight, the start of the holiday, Jewish families gather for traditional dinners, eating apples dipped in honey to signify a "sweet new year."

Police said the line-ups occurred at least once a week for at least a year. The women also allegedly beat the children to clean their faces with toothbrushes and eat dog food, police said.

Authorities were investigating motives for the allegations. The assumption would be money or narcotics changed hands," Cain said.

"I think they have symbolic burned their bras or stopped wearing them," Pucopie Cadotte said she was horrified by all this.

"It was a catastrophe to let bosoms sag that more than a band, as women strove for flat chests.

But it surged back gloriously in the 1950s, when women wore bras like Jane Russell and later Jayne Mansfield, inspiring her well-endowed look for an artificial uplift.

Bra manufacturers fell all over themselves to give breasts "bexy" shapes that sometimes looked like cannon shells rather than bosoms.

In France, sex kitten Brigitte Bardot showed her perky bosom in "And God Created Women" did a lot for the bra. And, like many other stars, she bought hers at Cadotte.

But concerns for a shapely bosom were deflated to an all-time low after 1968, when militant women's libbers symbolically burned their bras or stopped wearing them.

One hundred years of uplifting experiences

By Suzy Patterson The Associated Press

PARIS — It was as revolutionary as the storming of the Bastille, as beautifully engineered as the Eiffel Tower. That great French achievement — the brassiere — is 100 years old this year.

As the Eiffel Tower was the brains of an interpreting French lady named Hermine Cadolle was constructing the first bra called "soutien-gorge" in France, literally "throat support," a euphemism for bosom uplift.

While her invention has become a wardrobe fixture, her descendants are still serving up "couture" bras and other lingerie in the quietly exclusive house of Cadolle on the Rue Cambon in Paris just off the fashionable Rue du Faubourg Saint-Honore.

"My great-great-grandmother was very liberated," said Pucopie Cadolle, 43, an ebullient blonde who carries on the family's custom lingerie trade with her mother, Alice.

Elegant women had long suffered the constraints of stiff bandeaux or bodices culminating in the sculped naughty Nineties torso-cincher called the "waspie."

As a working woman — she was widowed at a very young age — Hermine was distressed by the currently fashionable straight jacket.

So she came up with a frilly two-part garment — the first beribboned "bra" it was attached to the corset by net, but freed the abdomen, and soon became an overnight separate item.

Suspended from its two shoulder straps, this revolutionary contraption was called the "bi-en-etre," or well-being, although rooted in the French word for arm (bras), the term brassiere is the English usage.

The French still call the garment a soutien-gorge. The soustien-gorge was a boon to women who were fainting dead away as their whaleboned corsets socked them in the sternum and literally knocked the air out of them.

Hermine patented her invention, but it was soon copied widely.

By the 1920s, the bra had had its ups and downs.

With the boyish looks of Chanel after World War I, the bra was reduced to little more than a band, as women strove for flat chests.

But it surged back gloriously in the 1950s, when women wore bras like Jane Russell and later Jayne Mansfield, inspiring her well-endowed look for an artificial uplift.

Police say moms sold kids for sex

OTSEGO, Mich. (AP) — Two women have been charged with snuffing out their six children in the home they shared and allowing men to take their pick for sex, police said.

Amette Sanford, 34, of South Haven, was charged last week with four counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct. Carolyn Wilson, 42, of Bangor, was charged with one count of first-degree child abuse and four counts of criminal sexual conduct. They are not accused of sexually abusing the children themselves.

Investigators say they believe at least seven men visited the women's house frequently in 1987 and 1988 to choose their victims among the line-up. They said the children were then sexually assaulted in their bedrooms.

"The kids would just look at each other as if to say 'Oh God, not again,'" Detective Patrick O'Reilly said.

The women have denied the allegations, police said.

The children, five girls and one boy, have been taken to foster homes since May 1988, after one of the girls came to school with bruises and told school officials of the alleged abuse. Five of the children are 8 to 13 years old; the sixth is a developmentally disabled 18-year-old girl.

After interviewing the girl at school, sheriff's Lt. Rick Cain said he pointed the Allegan County Probate Court to seek the children removed.

Police didn't seek arrest warrants for the women until two weeks ago when they believed the children were prepared to testify. "We didn't feel a year ago they were prepared to testify or could testify," Cain said.

Police said the line-ups occurred at least once a week for at least a year. The women also allegedly beat the children to clean their faces with toothbrushes and eat dog food, police said.

Authorities were investigating motives for the allegations. The assumption would be money or narcotics changed hands," Cain said.

"I think they have symbolic burned their bras or stopped wearing them," Pucopie Cadotte said she was horrified by all this.

Smart Money

Bruce Williams

For example, if your car is totaled, your insurance company will pay the value of the car, minus the deductible. Assume a $500 deductible. If the car is worth $8,000, they will give you $7,500.

No suppose you owe $10,000, which is not unusual in an upside-down deal. You will have to come up with an additional $2,500 and have to go out to borrow it and then what do they drive?

Not! Buying a car with no money down is almost never a good way to go. In addition, now that the tax advantages have been wiped out, it becomes even less desirable.

Listen to your folks and remember, a good idea is worth, should there be an accident where the car is totaled, as it's been around for a long time. It's just an old bad idea.

DEAR BRUCE: I am considering (establishing) scholarships for high-school students who excel in their grades. I would like to know what procedures to follow both while I am alive and after I have passed on. This information is extremely important to me.

Some car deals a bad idea

DEAR BRUCE: I see all sorts of deals advertised in the paper where I can buy a new car with no money down. What do you think of these?

I have always been told that it is important to make a down-sized down payment. But the three dealers that I talked to today say not to worry about it, no money down is the way of the '80s and only old-fashioned people come in to put down large down payments.

The most comprehensive coverage now being offered includes monthly checks — all non-taxable — until the age of 65 or retirement. Some plans also offer premiums with a policy that covers up to 180 days.

Red plaques are untreatable

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 30-year-old female. I've had diabetes since I was 7. At the age of 17, I developed red spots on my lower legs that were diagnosed as necrobiosis lipoidica. A dermatologist treated me with cortisone injections that didn't provide much improvement.

BIG COKE BUST

Worth is put at $20 billion LOS ANGELES (AP) - Federal drug agents seized 20 tons of cocaine with a street value of $20 billion Friday at a warehouse in a quiet section of the city, and officials called it the biggest drug haul in history. Three men were arrested and about $10 million in cash was seized at the warehouse on an upscale, tree-lined street in a mostly residential community of Sylmar near the San Gabriel Mountain foothills, said John M. Zienter, the Drug Enforcement Administration's agent in charge for Los Angeles. "I've been on this job for 25 years, and I've never seen so much dope in one place," Zienter said at a late morning news conference. "I couldn't believe it."

RESIGNS - Brian Lensink has quit effective Jan. 31, 1990.

Controversial chief of DMR plans to quit

HARTFORD (AP) - State Commissioner of Mental Retardation Brian R. Lensink, dogged by criticism of his management of the department, has submitted his resignation to Gov. William A. O'Neill. In a letter dated Wednesday but not released until Friday, Lensink told the governor his tenure was "the most successful four and a half years of my career," but acknowledged that controversy over his management had prompted his resignation. "I... believe that a personalized controversy over the commissioner can only be a disservice to people with mental retardation," he wrote. His resignation is effective Jan. 31, 1990. Lensink presided over the department as it moved into an era of increased dependence on small, privately managed group homes for the mentally retarded to take the place of large state-run institutions. Under Lensink, the number of mentally retarded people in group homes more than doubled, to 2,300, while the number placed in state institutions dropped by 24 percent, to 1,900. Lensink also doubled the state's offerings of vocational training programs for the mentally retarded. But his tenure was marked by sharp criticism from parents of mentally retarded people, tension with the union that represents most of the workers in group homes and institutions, and increasing tension between his department and the General Assembly. O'Neill, in a letter released by his office after he left for Europe on an economic development trip, said he was accepting the resignation regretfully, and praised Lensink for a "job well done." "It was not always easy," O'Neill wrote. "In dealing with courts, advocates, parents and employees - each
