Fading of passion killed flag amendment

By Mike Robinson
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Senate concern about freedom of speech and a cooling of the summer's political passions combined to defeat the proposed constitutional amendment to ban flag burning, lawmakers say.

"I don't know that public interest has faded; I think that public interest has changed," Sen. John C. Danforth, R-Mo., said Thursday after the proposed amendment failed in the Senate.

Opponents of the measure said Americans are having second thoughts about the notion of changing the Constitution.

White House lobbying appeared minimalist despite a strong public campaign that last summer took President Bush to the foot of the two Jima Memorial.

The measure did win a bare majority in the Senate, 51-48, but fell 15 votes short of the required two-thirds of senators present and voting.

Eleven Republicans joined 37 Democrats to oppose the measure. Thirty-three Republicans and 18 Democrats voted for the proposal, which would have authorized the state and federal governments to outlaw flag desecration.

Following the vote, White House spokeswoman Alice Glen said Bush was "disappointed" and believes such an amendment represents "the only real protection for the flag." She said a bill sent to the president last week to ban flag-burning by statute "would not survive constitutional scrutiny."

Critics of the amendment, in contrast, said the bill would satisfy concern in the country about flag-burning.

"I think when the statute passed, it made it much easier to focus on the Constitution," said Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt. "But this amendment should fall anyway because of the danger it poses to the Bill of Rights."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., a strong supporter of the amendment, said reporters that the public was confused in this.

"They were led to believe a statute would do the job and produce results," he said. "Now we don't know what we've got if anything."

Supporters of the amendment claimed it was the only sure way to prevent a recurrence of the Supreme Court decision in June that overturned the conviction of Texas flag-burner Gregory Lee Johnson on grounds his right to free speech was violated.

"We all lose with this action," said Miles Eplin, national commander of the American Legion, after the vote. "Today, I feel like my friends have been let down, as well as those from other generations who died believing that our nation would always remember their sacrifices and respect the foremost symbol of all they hold dear."

Critics said there would be a political price to pay at election time for opposing the measure. At the same time, though, they seemed increasingly emboldened to attack the amendment as a threat to the Constitution.

"We face no sudden or uncontrollable burst of flag destruction," Majority Leader George J. Mitchell, D-Maine, declared. "...Yet we are being asked to believe that the flag which neither Hitler nor Stalin could defeat is now threatened by a single misguided person who most Americans never heard of and don't care about."

Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., took the Senate floor on Thursday morning to make one last appeal for approval of the measure. He painted a colorful panorama of flag history from the first American flag to the Stars and Stripes that was too bogged down in technicalities.

"The need for this amendment will not be found in a textbook or a treatise on constitutional law," Dole said.

Bolton quarry loses court zoning battle

BOLTON — The long-running "battle is over" at the Bolton Notch Quarry.

The owner of the quarry has lost a court fight to overturn a Zoning Commission stop-work order and his attorney says he will apply for a permit to work within commission guidelines.

The turn of events began Tuesday when the state Appellate Court declined to hear an appeal of a Vernon Superior Court ruling that upheld a cease and desist order filed by the Zoning Commission.

Lawyer's attorney, Mark K. Brasse, also of Glastonbury, said today that "Our formal, public position is that we are applying for a permit, and the battle is over."

Town Zoning agent Stephen Lowrey said Thursday that the cease and desist order is still in effect but the Zoning Commission will not enforce it as long as Lawler has stated his intent to work within town guidelines that quarrying be done only on property that is zoned industrial.

In September, the Vernon Superior Court upheld the cease and desist order filed by the Zoning Commission because conditions of a permit issued to the quarry were not being met, Lawler appealed.

Hot issue in Bolton isn't a political one

By James F. Henry
Manchester Herald

BOLTON — Most people don't enjoy being in hot water, but employees and visitors to Community Hall love it.

They can thank Helen Kemp, the selectmen's secretary.

Until recently, the pipes in the Community Hall only produced cold water.

Kemp, who has been on the job since last December decided to do something about the problem.

Kemp convinced selectmen to hold a tag sale to get rid of "old town junk," including typewriters, odds and ends, and even an old outhouse. The approximately $700 raised went toward the fund for installing equipment to have running hot water in the building.

The new pipes were installed by M + M Plumbing of Bolton, and the work was actually done by about Labor Day. Kemp said the project cost about $650, and the rest of the money raised will go into other small improvements to the building, such as putting a timer on the light by the Town Clerk's office.

Getting hot water into the building was not as simple as adding a hot water tank, however, Kemp said that because of distances involved, there had to be a special heating device installed just under the front entrance to the building. Otherwise, Kemp said it would have taken about five minutes of constant running water to get hot water up to the sinks, which are in the rooms right off the front entrance.

Thoughts

This is the weekend of the Peace Sabbath, a time of community prayer. During this National Peace with Justice Week we have returned to our roots, looked at ourselves and asked some difficult questions. We cannot do this without prayer and trust in the unstoppable love of God. So let us end this week with a new understanding of the presence of God in our lives.

"Our journey has led us to this moment and to the truth that as God's children, we bring to the ongoing and wondrous Creative act, which is life in all its fullness. Amen."

Dr. Henry C. Lee testified during the so-called wood chipper trial Thursday that the blood was type-O and also identified more than a dozen items found along the lake by police in January 1987.

The testimony in Norwalk Superior Court came during the trial of Richard Craft, who is charged with murder in the November 1986 disappearance of his wife, Helle Crafts. He is accused of killing his wife and disposing of her body using a chain saw and wood chipper.

Among the items identified by Lee were several pieces of blue-green cotton cloth with blood stains on them. The Crafts' nanny, Dawn Marie Thomas, had previously testified Helle Crafts owned a dressing gown of that color. He said the blood was human but couldn't determine its type.

Lee also identified clumps of hair which he said were from the head of a white person and had been cut with a traumatic action, a piece of rope which had a blood stain on it, a piece of toe nail with pinkish nail polish; a fingernail with tissue attached and pinkish polish on the nail; and a piece of lacry material with blood stains on it that he said resembles female underwear.

The forensic expert also identified 65 pieces of bone with a total weight of three-quarters of an ounce. He said the normal female has a total bone weight of 10 pounds. Lee said he performed a test on three of the bone fragments which had blood on them and found type-H antigenic substance which he said indicates it came from a person with type-O blood. A doctor who had treated Helle Crafts testified earlier that she had type-O blood.

Democrats defend tax hikes

BRISTOL (AP) — Democratic leaders defended this year's record tax increases before an audience of newspaper executives, but a leading party strategist conceded that voter resentment of the new taxes will hurt the Democrats at the polls next year.

"The Democratic Party will suffer electoral losses because of this year's State Rep. Jonathan Pelto, D-Storrs, told the Connecticut Daily Newspapers Association on Thursday.

But Pelto, the political director of the state Democratic Party, hatched to add, "That's inappropriate."

He made the comments during a panel discussion that included Republican leaders, who charged that the tax increases were unnecessarily high.

Anthony Milano, the O'Neill administration's chief budget officer, also defended the tax increases, and assured the newspaper executives that Gov. William A. O'Neill will seek re-election.

Dagmar O'Neill's statements that he will run unless his health limits him, there is continued speculation in Hartford that the governor will retire next year.

Milano also denied Republican charges that O'Neill padded the tax increases with enough extra revenue to build a surplus in the current fiscal year. Milano said state officials continue to have difficulty accurately predicting state revenues, noting that estimates of this year's possible surplus have varied from $33 million to $70 million.

"It's always very easy to criticize," Milano said. "We had to raise taxes significantly if we were to keep the commitments we had made."

House Minority leader Robert Jackle of Stratford disagreed, asserting that the budget passed by the Democrats this year had less to do with the state's spending needs than with special-interest politics.

Jackle flatly dismissed the suggestion of state Rep. Miles Rapoport, D-West Hartford, that the state adopt an income tax more equitably distribute the state tax burden.

"The government is able to spend money as quickly as we take it in," Jackle said. "An income tax would be an additional source of income that the government would be able to spend."

Consumer counsel makes offer

HARTFORD (AP) — State Consumer Counsel James Mehan says he plans to make a counter-offer to Cablevision of Connecticut's proposal to refund nearly $500,000 to customers in Fairfield County for failing to provide the Madison Square Garden network for nine months.

Mehan said Thursday he doesn't like the proposal and would make a counter-offer to the state Department of Public Utility Control. In addition to the refund, his offer would require the cable company to provide equipment and a $100,000 grant to broadcast high school sports in the Bridgeport and Stamford areas.

"That half a million dollars is a minimum of what Cablevision should pay," Mehan said.

Mehan's office filed a complaint with the utility department after Cablevision dropped the MSG network last September in a contract dispute. The decision upset fans of the New York Yankees, Knicks and Rangers, whose games are broadcast on MSG.

State housing starts decline to 7-year low

HARTFORD (AP) — The state housing market is continuing its decline, with 9,245 housing units authorized through the third quarter — the lowest total since 1982, state housing officials said.

State Housing Commissioner John F. Papandrea said Thursday the units authorized through the third quarter of 1989 represented a 38.4 percent decrease from the 14,998 recorded during the same period last year.

The total through the third quarter was the lowest since 1982 when 7,281 units were recorded, Papandrea said.

Papandrea said the 898 housing starts recorded in September was down 21 percent from August's 1,136 starts and down 44.2 percent from the 1,610 recorded during the same period a year ago.

Papandrea said every Connecticut county recorded a decrease in housing starts during the third quarter.

Brady seeks ban on assault rifles

HARTFORD (AP) — Sarah Brady, wife of former presidential Press Secretary James Brady, who was critically wounded in the assassination attempt on President Reagan, says access to assault weapons is too easy.

"She was in Connecticut Thursday calling for a ban on over-the-counter sales of assault rifles, which she calls 'drug guns.' She also endorsed Florida-style legislation that holds adult gun owners liable if a child is shot with a negligently stored firearm."

But Pelto, the political director of the state Democratic Party, hatched to add, "That's inappropriate."

East Hartford landlord guilty of code violations

HARTFORD (AP) — A one-time congressional candidate on the George Wallace Party ticket was sentenced Thursday to 30 days in prison and fined $2,500 for failing to correct state fire safety code violations.

A Manchester Superior Court jury Thursday found Charles J. Burke, an East Hartford landlord, guilty of five counts of failing to correct violations in his rooming houses at 217 and 219 Burnside Ave. and 26 Sisson St.

After the guilty findings, Superior Court Judge Terrence A. Sullivan sentenced Burke to 30 days in prison.

Burke was found guilty of five of the individual rooms at the Burnside properties for failing to provide self-closing doors at Sisson Street.

Burke admitted during the three-day trial that he delayed installing a fire-alarm system in the Burnside properties for two years, even though he knew it was required.

Burke said he had a fire alarm system in the Burnside properties for two years, even though he knew it was required.

Board-parents partnership is important to Terry Bogli

By Rick Santos
Manchester Herald

"The partnership between the board and parents is one that is of the utmost importance," said Terry Bogli, an incumbent member of the Board of Education seeking re-election next month.

Bogli, a Democrat concluding her first term as a board member, says she thinks parents and their ideas are crucial to the education system. Most recently the board is weighing the concerns of parents regarding the special focus program planned for the Nathan Hale elementary school in September 1990.

The special school program also happens to be one of the projects toward which Bogli, as chairwoman of the board's long-range planning committee, is directing much of her attention, she said.

The committee's special focus subcommittee designed a survey to find out what parents want from a special school program, Bogli said. About 23 percent (700) of the surveys were returned, and the programs parents recommended the most were a reading-writing, discovery/hands-on science, computer technology, and foreign language.

Based on the survey and the subcommittee's visits to other focus programs, Bogli said, the long-range planning committee is recommending a foreign language special focus and a computer technology focus.

Although choosing foreign language and computer technology as the focuses is not an original plan, Bogli said there is something about the Manchester program that is unique.

TERRY BOGLI ... seeking another term

"The communities that we visited have looked at special focus as a means to de-segregate," but a mixture of the races is not the motivation behind the local program, she said.

At Nathan Hale, the program is being proposed to encourage a student population that includes a blend of socio-economic classes, she said.

"As far as we know it's never been done before," she said. The way the program works to affect the student population is a certain amount of students from areas of town not within the Nathan Hale district will be enrolled at the school. These students added to those from the school's neighborhood, the most economically disadvantaged in Manchester, will create a school population with a more diversified background.

None of Bogli's opponents in the upcoming election said anything negative about the special focus program or her work to implement it.

Republican candidate Thomas Sheridan said, "It is something I'm totally behind — in theory. It's very hard to disagree, a lot of times, with theory."

About Bogli's qualifications, he said, "I think she's a very dedicated person."

Also in Bogli's long-range plans is her committee's efforts to solve space problems caused by a growing elementary school population. School Superintendent James Kennedy has announced repeatedly at board meetings that additional elementary space will be needed by the fall of 1992.

A large school population is not new ground for Bogli, a lifelong resident of Manchester and graduate of one of Manchester High School's larger classes in 1964.

After high school, Bogli, 43, went to Framingham, Mass., where she attended Dean Junior College and earned a liberal arts degree in 1966.

"If one person consumed 170 pounds of rice a year, that would be a little over 14 pounds of rice a month or just under a half a pound of rice a day," said Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., chairman of the Senate Government Affairs subcommittee on government oversight and management.

"There would be little room in a person's diet for anything else but rice," he said.

PTA fund raising, arbitration stir debate among candidates

By Rick Santos
Manchester Herald

Debate was sparked among candidates for the Board of Education and Board of Directors when audience members at a candidates' forum Thursday night asked questions concerning PTA fund raising and binding arbitration for negotiating teacher salaries.

About 60 people, including about 25 elementary school students, attended the event held in the Bowers Elementary School gymnasium.

Bowers' PTA co-president Joan Linton told the candidates she had been told Manchester schools no longer want donations from the PTAs to be used to buy supplies and equipment, including computers and copy machines. If the PTAs ceased fund raising, she asked, could they be guaranteed the purchases would still be made.

However, incumbent Democratic Board of Education candidate Susan Perkins said she did not think it should be the responsibility of the PTAs to raise money for purchasing school supplies.

Fellow Democrat and school board candidate Craig Lappen supported Perkins. As former townwide president of PTA, he said he knows school principals have come to rely on the funding, but he thinks it is improper because "it creates inequities within the schools." Not all school PTAs raise the same amount of dollars, which are donated to that specific PTA's school.

Lappen and incumbent Democratic candidate for the Board of Directors Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr. said the PTAs should channel their efforts into lobbying the school board and directors to spend more on education, instead of raising funds themselves.

The binding arbitration system of negotiating teacher salaries also produced lively debate.

Incumbent Republican Board of Education candidate John Tucci said the system is not fair because teachers have gotten annual salary increases of 10 percent while the private sector averages about 5 percent.

This contradicts the guidelines for arbitration that say the increases should be comparable with the private sector in a given geographic area, Tucci said.

Lappen said this assumption is incorrect. It is not the increases, but the total salaries, that should be comparable. And 10 percent increases were justified because teachers were underpaid.

However, Republican candidate for the school board Eugene Sierakowski said the system is flawed because it does not account for benefit and insurance packages, for which teachers receive total compensation unlike many private sector professionals.

School board candidates Jan Horn, a Republican, and Terry Bogli, an incumbent Democrat, said binding arbitration needs to be modified, but it is an effective bargaining technique.

"There would be little room in a person's diet for anything else but rice," he said.

NATION & WORLD

Black market alive and well in South Korea

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. military personnel in South Korea buy six times as much Chivas Regal Scotch as the much larger U.S. force in Europe — but instead of drinking it, they're selling it on the Korean black market, a study says.

SPAM, Aqua Net hair spray and rice are among other favorite selling in huge quantities at U.S. military commissaries in South Korea, apparently bound for the black market, the General Accounting Office said Thursday.

Such sales far exceed what would normally be consumed by the 70,000 authorized buyers stationed there, and U.S. taxpayers are footing part of the bill, GAO witnesses said at a Senate hearing. The GAO is Congress' investigative arm.

The Defense Department exports duty-free goods to bases in Korea and other countries for sale at cut-rate prices in the commissaries and exchanges.

In 1988, commissaries in South Korea sold 1.1 million cans of SPAM, or almost 12 pounds per person per year; 34 pounds or 316 American cheese slices for every man, woman and child, and 170 pounds of rice for every consumer.

Tembler preceded Chinese quake

BEIJING (AP) — Victims of a series of deadly earthquakes in rural northern China said today they owed their lives to an initial temblor that sent them fleeing from their homes before a second brought the dwellings crashing down.

At least 29 people died and more than 10,000 homes were reported destroyed by the quakes, the region's worst in 13 years.

The official China Daily said more than 150 people were injured, many seriously, in the quakes that hit Shanxi and Hebei provinces late Wednesday and early Thursday.

The temblors, centered about 135 miles west of Beijing, measured up to 6.1 on the Richter scale and were felt in the capital.

"This was the worst quake we've ever had," Liu Rongzhen, a peasant farmer in Xicalitan Village, told a Western reporter, "I was asleep in the house when the first quake woke me up. It rocked the walls and we went outside."

With the second quake the first quake woke me up. It rocked the walls and we went outside.

Earthquakes in China

Two plain wooden caskets with straw covers were set up in their home, which was open to the sky with the walls only partly standing.

A neighbor wailed as she viewed the caskets, at the head of which biscuits were placed in an apparent religious offering.

Many people spent Thursday night huddled around campfires and sleeping in makeshift straw tents. Temperatures dipped to near freezing on the treeless brown plain and people were wrapped in heavy greatcoats.

One woman was seen cleaning her now roofless home around the tent she had set up inside.

Gorbachev replaces newspaper editor

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda told its readers today that a confidant of Mikhail S. Gorbachev is replacing its conservative editor, who had resisted letting the Communist Party daily fully embrace the new openness sweeping the Soviet press.

In a front-page report, Pravda said Viktor G. Afanasiev had resigned and been replaced by Ivan T. Frolov, an advisor to Gorbachev for the last year and a former editor of the party's theoretical monthly journal Kommunist.

The move appears to assure that the voice of the Communist Party will now reflect more clearly the views of Gorbachev and his reform-minded allies.

Pravda is the country's most authoritative newspaper, but its circulation has lagged under Gorbachev as readers turn to livelier more informative newspapers. Its editor sits in on closed meetings of the ruling Politburo.

The removal of Afanasiev, a 66-year-old throwback to the rule of Leonid I. Brezhnev, marks a further attempt by the Soviet president to clean house of conservatives. Last month three were retired from the Politburo.

The change at Pravda's helm also capped a turbulent week in the Soviet press that first saw Gorbachev rebuke trailblazing editors as taking glasnost too far, threatening to strip their jobs.

Some Soviet observers interpreted his criticism one week ago of the editors who are the most outspoken practitioners of glasnost as a way of softening the blow of Afanasiev's removal for party conservatives.

They interpreted Gorbachev's tactics as taking the middle course at a time of rising tension over the poor state of the economy and ethnic unrest.

VIKTOR G. AFANASIEV ... resigns

The departure of Afanasiev was announced by the official news agency Tass Thursday and also reported on state-run television in its nightly news report. Pravda said the Politburo had on Thursday accepted Afanasiev's request that he be transferred to "scientific work."

Frolov, 60, is credited with formulating Gorbachev's foreign policy that places priority on fostering values common to all mankind, rather than encouraging class struggle.

Afanasiev took over the party newspaper in 1976, during what is now considered as a period of stagnation when Pravda was accused of making more often than disclosing the truth.

Under his tutelage, the paper's circulation fell as it lagged behind other papers that more frankly cover national and international affairs.

Inquiry is ordered into police misconduct

LONDON (AP) — The government ordered an inquiry into alleged police misconduct after a judge freed three people who had spent at least 14 years in prison, wrongly convicted of an Irish Republican Army bombing.

In his ruling Thursday, Lord Lane, the country's second-ranking judicial official, said police involved in investigations of the fatal pub bombing that led to the 1975 convictions "must have lied."

One other man cleared by the appeals court ruling was taken to Belfast, where his attorneys sought an appeal to overturn the verdict.

The ruling ended years of work by relatives, former government officials, church leaders and journalists to overturn the verdict. The sentence had been upheld in 1977 even though IRA members made detailed confessions in the case.

The appeals court threw out the convictions of Gerard Conlon, 35, Patrick Armstrong, 39, and Paul Hill, 35, all of Belfast, and Carole Richardson, 32, of London. They were jailed for the bombing of a pub in Guildford, Surrey southwest of London on Oct. 5, 1974. Five people were killed in the blast.

All four defendants had been sentenced to life in prison.

Coventry OKs reval, bridge job

COVENTRY — Voters approved funding for both a property revaluation project and repairs to Depot Road Bridge in a referendum Thursday.

The vote to approve the revaluation was 449-108 and the bridge repair got the OK in a vote of 188-68.

Total voter turnout was 256 out of the town's 5,121 registered voters, according to Town Clerk Ruth Benoit. She said that represents about a 5 percent voter turnout. Property owners were also eligible to vote.

The town will spend $375,000 for property revaluation, which Town Manager John Elleser said will more likely result in increased property taxes. The project is likely to start in February, he said.

The state mandates revaluation every 10 years to bring property values in line with current market levels.

Repairs to Depot Road Bridge, located part in town and part in Mansfield will cost the town $135,000. Mansfield, the road town, will pay the greater portion of the overall $390,000 cost. A state grant will also help pay for the repairs.

Benoit said after the polls closed at 8 p.m. at the Town Office Building, she was not surprised at the low turnout.

According to Benoit under the Town Charter the appropriation of money for the bridge is for a referendum vote in the charter.

However she noted the charter requires that the town must increase the amount that requires a referendum to $300,000, met much opposition from taxpayers.

Newspaper says Frank had sex in House gym

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Times reported today that the House ethics committee has evidence of sexual misconduct by Rep. Barney Frank and several other members of Congress in the gym in a sub-basement of the Rayburn House Office Building.

The newspaper, which said it could not ascertain the names of any of the other congressmen, said the learned of the evidence from several congressmen close to the ethics investigation. These sources were not named.

The Times said Frank, D-Mass., had declined comment through a spokesman, as had members of the ethics panel and a committee which regulates rules of the House gym.

The Times quoted a male prostitute, Stephen Gobie, as saying he and Frank performed sex acts "on a couple of occasions" after hours in the private House gymnasium. The newspaper said it had confirmed that Frank had brought "a number of young men" to the gym, which generally is off-limits to the public and to staff.

The paper said the ethics panel had found that several congressmen had taken male and female guests into the gym "for illicit sexual activity."

The ethics committee has been investigating Frank's conduct since Gobie revealed his 1985-1987 relationship with the congressman to the Times. The panel is expected to discuss the Frank case sometime next week and hopes to conclude its investigation by the end of the year.

According to Rep. Julian Dixon, D-Calif., the panel's chairman.

Rates for skin cancer seem to be leveling off

CHICAGO (AP) — After decades of soaring rates of skin cancer — largely because of sunbathing — Americans finally may be wising up to the dangers of the bronzed look, a medical researcher says.

Rates of malignant melanoma, the most deadly form of skin cancer, appeared to start leveling off in 1988, after 27 years of steep rises, said Dr. Andrew Glass of Kaiser Permanente's Center for Health Research in Portland, Ore.

"It's going to take some more time to follow that along," Glass said in a telephone interview Thursday. But early figures from the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md., appear to indicate a similar leveling off, he said.

Glass' remarks came after he reported on a long-term tracking of 300,000 members of the Kaiser Permanente prepaid health plan in the Portland, Ore., and Vancouver, Wash., areas.

Researchers found that from 1960 to 1987, annual cases of a type of skin cancer called squamous cell carcinoma increased 2.6 times in men and 3.1 times in women.

Squamous cell carcinoma is one of the commonest skin cancers, occurring in thousands of people each year. Usually starting as a scaly patch on the lip, ear or hand, it grows, spreads and even causes death if untreated.

Priest helps to test new nuclear bombs

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Many priests are called upon at the hour of death, but the Rev. Bob Nelson may be the only priest with his finger on the button of the bombs that could one day obliterate mankind.

As a nuclear test controller at the Nevada Test Site, his job is to safely detonate the most powerful and horrifying weapons. As an ordained Episcopal priest, he prays those weapons will never be used.

Actually, Nelson says, it isn't buttons that set off the bombs.

"It's all done by computers now," he explained in a recent interview.

But with priests generally among the protesters at the underground test site where he works, Nelson says he is forced daily to reconcile the differences between his occupation and his calling.

He admits to being "the only priest I know who fires nuclear weapons." Nelson, a 48-year-old father of two children, became a priest two years ago and, as he explains it, almost against his will.

"With my family, work and other commitments, I thought becoming a priest was something that just couldn't happen," Nelson said.

But he finally heeded a bishop's advice that a true calling would not go away.

"The way God works, he just doesn't follow

All-potato meal served up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The lowly spud never had it so good.

Visitors from Idaho, California, Washington state, Michigan and faraway Chile were gathered up and served at a gourmet, seven-course luncheon Thursday by the Watergate's renowned French chef, Jean-Louis Palladin.

They were shredded, diced, pureed, baked, fried, simmered, glazed and dunked in rich cream sauces by Jean-Louis and his staff. Then they were escorted out of the kitchen by tuxedo-clad waiters under the bright glare of camera lights, to the oohs and aahs of a half-dozen diners.

The all-potato menu was prepared for the benefit of a Japanese television crew that is touring the United States filming a half-hour history of the potato chip, which was supposed to have been invented in Saratoga Springs, N.Y., in 1853.

To give the visiting Japanese an idea of the potato's versatility, Jean-Louis was asked to prepare a cream soup featuring nothing but potato dishes. He happily obliged. "I was raised all my life with potatoes," he said.

Jean-Louis began with tiny potato pancakes containing smoked salmon and topped with caviar, followed by a cream soup of purple Chilean potatoes with Idaho potato dumplings and purple potato chips. Next came Icelandic langoustines wrapped in fried, shredded potatoes in a ginger sauce.

His piece de resistance, especially created for the lunch, was a rizzotto of finely diced white rose potatoes from California and poached Maine scallops in squid ink.

Parking lot should be forgotten

The Bolton Board of Education wants the Board of Selectmen to give it $12,000 to enlarge the student parking lot at Bolton High School and the selectmen have initially turned down the request because the selectmen do not feel the need has been proven.

Plans to enlarge the lot have been set aside because the money for the work has been eliminated from several successive budgets.

One reason for the proposed expansion is that students had been parking their cars along the shoulder of Brandy Road. However since "no parking" signs have been erected along the road, the shoulders have been kept clear and the parking lot has had a small number of empty spaces, leading the selectmen to believe that the problem is not so serious as originally assumed.

The proposed expansion may be a good idea, but it is hardly the highest education priority, given Bolton's financial situation.

Some students probably have no choice but to drive themselves to school, in order to drive from their part-time jobs. But most drive their own cars because they want to. They could find other ways to get to school, like sharing rides, or riding the underutilized school buses.

The sum involved is rather small, but Bolton has to make the best possible use of every education dollar. Unless a very real need for more parking space at the school can be demonstrated, it would be better to use that money for something more vital to providing good education.

Cuomo pushes Democrats

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, the potential front-runner for his party's presidential nomination in 1992, is angry at many of his fellow Democrats — especially those in Congress — for working too harmoniously with George Bush.

In a blunt speech delivered recently to California Democrats, Cuomo said it's time for the honeymoon with Bush to end, and for Democrats to begin formulating and implementing their own agenda. The New York governor delivered this message at a packed $500-a-plate fund-raiser that netted a record $600,000 for the California state party.

Contending that many Democrats "have acquiesced" to what he called Bush's "budgetary gimmickry," Cuomo exhorted his fellow Democrats to shed their "political timidity."

"If we choose to be silent because we believe what the Republicans believe, then we should stop thinking about their political timidity," Cuomo said. "I'm not even a leader of the Democratic Party."

Later, in other interviews, Cuomo insisted that he was not calling for a tougher Democratic approach to Bush in order to lay the groundwork for his own potential bid to unseat the president in three years.

"People are going to write about the presidency," Cuomo said. "I can't stop that. I wish I could. The important thing is that I'm not the messenger. What's relevant is not the messenger. I'm not talking about myself. I'm talking about ideas."

But it was clear from Cuomo's reception at the fund-raiser that many in the audience do see him as the party's standard-bearer in 1992. His reception in California will be critical to any 1992 presidential primary from June — where it will cheer him. Or he can redefine the old standard of presidential boldness by continuing to speak softly and carry a big tennis racket.

Cuomo said that Democrats, especially those on Capitol Hill, should now push the president to commit more money to combating drug abuse, child care, homelessness and AIDS, or else Bush "will be revealed as an uncovered, conservative Republican."

Even while delivering his rabble-rousing speech, Cuomo downplayed his presidential ambitions as well as his place in the Democratic Party's hierarchy. "I'm not even thinking about it," was his answer to the predictable question about his presidential ambitions that opened a press conference. After the speech he tackled all further questions on the subject with a wave of his hand, adding, "I'm not even a leader of the Democratic Party."

Trump hedges his bets

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — Donald Trump is a big casino magnate, but he doesn't gamble when it comes to politics.

Trump's heart and wallet were behind George Bush in the 1988 presidential race, but he also hedged his bets by giving money to Bush's most bitter rivals for the Republican nomination, Robert Dole and Jack Kemp.

He can afford to be generous with presidential candidates of all stripe: Federal campaign contribution laws put a $1,000 limit on individual donations — a pittance to a guy like Trump.

Trump has bestowed his largesse on such conservative Republicans as Sens. Orrin Hatch of Utah, Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania and Connie Mack of Florida. But high-profile Democrats, including Sen. Alan Cranston of California and Rep. Charles Rangel of New York, have taken his money too. Even Rep. Joseph Kennedy, D-Mass., who is carrying the liberal Kennedy torch, is on the Trump gift list.

It isn't unusual for a billionaire to cross political lines to make friends in Washington, but Trump, as he did with the deal, has made political giving an art in the 1988 presidential race he proved that big business has plenty of mistresses.

Trump claimed all along that he was a Bush backer, but early in the GOP primary he gave $100,000 each to Dole and Kemp, who, at the time, were not high on Bush's list of chums. Trump's wife, Ivana, gave $500 to Sen. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., and $100,000 to Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn.

When the odds narrowed, Trump brought out the big bucks for Bush, donating $100,000 to the national Republican Party, plus smaller amounts to other GOP organizations. Yet he also gave $80,000 to the Brooklyn Democratic federal campaign account, $10,000 to the New York State Democratic Committee and at least $15,000 to the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee.

Trump's aides told us that he was unavailable to talk about his campaign donations. But in the past he has told our associate Scott Steck that in the early days of the presidential campaign, he was unsure whether Bush would win the nomination. He said he could have backed a Democrat if Bush had been knocked out of the race.

Trump focuses his support on politicians who could be helpful in his future state business ventures — particularly his real estate empire in New York and his casino holdings in Atlantic City. He is in good terms with New Jersey Gov. Thomas Kean, a Republican, and is friendly with New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, a Democrat.

This habit of covering all the possible political angles makes Trump's business philosophy. He spells it out in his bestselling book "Trump: The Art of the Deal."

"People think I'm a gambler. I've never gambled anything in my life. To them, I'm someone who plays slot machines. I prefer to invest in real estate."

Barbara Brylbe is royally imperious as the dowager Lady Bracknell. The diminutive actress looks so properly Victorian as the queen for whom the era was named. Brylbe is the most effective when delivering her lines in the lower registers.

The most joyful part of the production is the pairing of Mark Lamos and Mary Layne as the smitten swain John Worthing and the delicious object of his affection the heiress Victoria Fairfax. Lamos and Layne are at Wildean, pas de deux, circling and sweeping around the stage in perfect harmony of intent. They play each scene with a passion that makes the thin ice of Oscar's play seem sturdy enough to support the Leningrad exodus. Lamos plays Wilde for all it is worth, flip and charming, contrite and con-fused, with all the proper moves without falling into the too easy trap of tennis-anyone slapstick. Layne is equal at all times, meeting him measure for measure in their hilariously unrequited passion all the more engaging when Layne ends some of the exchanges in a sassy little buzz of words.

The Hartford Stage Company production is a perfectly delightful dessert.

The play runs from Sept. 30, Nov. 4.

The Energy Department is in a pickle trying to find a state that will be the dump for the nation's nuclear waste. We suggest shipping it to Panama. What could it hurt? Panama is already a socialist state, and if he's gloved in the dark, maybe U.S. officials could catch him.

CONDUCTOR

— Robert Ashens, director of music at St. Mary's Episcopal Church, conducts a practice session at the Bushnell Memorial Hall in Hartford. He makes his debut there tonight as resident director of the Connecticut Opera Company.

St. Mary's director of music debuts at the Bushnell tonight

By Nancy Pappas Special to the Herald

"I have to say, he really sat on me," said Ashens. "He wanted me to see that every gesture has to make sense to the musicians, that it has to really mean something. Most of the class was absolutely terrified by him. I was completely fascinated."

Later, Marijosius would take Ashens along as an assistant conductor on various jobs. But initially, the elder was an unrelenting critic. "It really set me down tremendously," Ashens recalled.

Even before completing his undergraduate work at Hart, Ashens was offered a position on that school's faculty. Since that first "fod in the door," Ashens has never had a problem securing work in the highly competitive musical world. In fact, great quantities of work seem to march in his direction.

Even before taking over as the opera company's resident director, he was giving the informal, 25-minute speeches which precede each performance. He heads up the Connecticut Opera Express, which takes opera performances into the schools. He is also the director of the Opera Theater of Connecticut, which performs in Clinton each summer, and on the faculty of Gordon College, north of Boston.

The average work day for Ashens starts between 6:30 and 7 a.m., at his home in Cromwell, and ends about 11 p.m., said Ashens. For most of the year, he puts in seven-day work weeks. Last year alone, he drove 70,000 miles and flew countless more, he said.

In fact, frequently the traveling time is the most relaxing time in the week, said Ashens. "I love to just get in my car and head out," he said. "On the highway, with some piece and quiet, you can really think, have some private time." That peace and quiet may soon be shattered, however, as Ashens has decided to buy a car phone. "But I'm not giving anyone the number!" he exclaimed.

Some have asked why a conductor of Ashens' stature continues to work as a church choirmaster. "I feel that I will probably always want to do some church work," said Ashens. "I am an Episcopalian, so to be working in my own church is very important to me. And Drew Smith (the priest at St. Mary's) is a very charismatic leader. It's a real pleasure to be a part of this group."

The affection is mutual, according to many members of his choirs, young and old. Many are planning to attend one of the three performances of "La Boheme," which will be at the Bushnell tonight, Friday and Saturday at 8. They will be watching as Ashens, in a tuxedo rather than his long, Anglican cassock, raises his baton and meets yet another career challenge.

And no one will be surprised if a pair of running shoes peek out from beneath Ashens' tuxedo. For Ashens, it seems, the words "musician" and "super-active" are practically synonymous.

Matchbox won't sell Freddy doll

NEW YORK (AP) — Matchbox is a very positive and socially responsible one, and we completely support them for their decision," Wildman said in disclosing the toy company's action.

Matchbox, better known for tiny toy cars, confirmed that it decided to drop its plans — at least temporarily — for marketing a doll version of the movie friend who has blades for finger nails and kills his victims in their dreams.

"Matchbox will not advertise or promote the doll in any way," said a spokeswoman for Matchbox Toys (USA) Ltd.

The doll, announced last month, had been expected to be a hot seller ahead of Halloween.

But Matchbox has not decided on the doll's ultimate fate.

East Seals Society honors Swenson

Elise "Bliz" Swenson, was presented Thursday night with the 1989 Board Volunteer of the Year Award presented by the executive board and staff of the Eastern Seal Society of Connecticut.

The award was given in appreciation of her efforts in behalf of the Eastern Seal Society, an in behalf of people with disabilities throughout Connecticut.

The award was presented at the 54th annual dinner meeting of the society held at the Hemlocks Recreation Center in Hefron.

Swenson serves on the External Affairs and Development Committee and has held many board positions in the past. Her work with the Manchester Area Telephone and Anti-Cancer Society last year provided many camp scholarships for area people with disabilities to attend year-round sessions at Camp Hemlock.

Swenson plans to attend the National Eastern Seal annual meeting in Nashville, Tenn. Nov. 15 to Nov. 19th as a Connecticut delegate.

Eighth responded to almost 800 calls

The Eighth Utilities District Fire Department ranked 57th among 207 volunteer fire departments in the total number of calls to which it responded last year, according to the magazine Firehouse.

The survey showed the district department responded to 794 calls.

The department ranked 17th among 204 departments in fire calls with 426 calls, 20th among 188 departments in engine company runs with 524 runs, 58th among 146 departments in emergency medical service runs with 356, 39th among 86 departments in ladder company calls with 111, and 51st among 146 departments reporting in hazardous material calls with 11 such calls.

Copies of the survey results, published in the October issue of Firehouse were distributed to the press by John Mace, chief of the Eighth District Department, which serves most of the northern section of Manchester.

Impeachment charges voted against judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today approved impeachment charges against U.S. District Judge Alice L. Hastings of Miami, ousting him from the federal bench for conspiring to obtain a $150,000 payoff.

Hastings' fate was sealed on the first of 17 articles of impeachment, when the Senate voted 69-26 to convict him of conspiracy, more than the two-thirds margin required.

Hastings, the first black federal district judge in Florida, was removed from the bench even though he had been acquitted in 1983 in a criminal trial.

He said after the vote that he intends to run for governor of Florida and resume the practice of law.

"I have no choice but to accept their judgment," Hastings said in a statement that criticized the proceedings as unjust.

"In my opinion their judgment is void of the wisdom of the forefathers teachings regarding impeachment," Hastings said. He said the case "gives new meaning to double jeopardy and renders a severe blow to the cornerstone of justice — the jury system."

The Senate later voted to convict Hastings on subsequent charges that included perjury. The vote on the first perjury count was 68-27.

After an hour of back-to-back roll calls, Hastings stood convicted on five articles and acquitted on one, a perjury allegation. The vote was 48-47 in favor of conviction, short of the two-thirds needed.

Hastings was the sixth federal official removed as a result of impeachment.

"Normally at 5 o'clock in the afternoon this area would be bumper-to-bumper," Crawford said. Initially, authorities had estimated 253 people were buried under the debris. That was based on the assumption that cars stretched bumper-to-bumper on the crushed level of the double-deck highway.

"They are going lower, much lower in fact," said Lisa Covington, a spokeswoman for the state Office of Emergency Services.

No new official estimate of fatalities was made. Searchers have found 52 cars in the lower section of the freeway, but there may be more still buried in the rubble, California Highway Patrol Sgt. John Silva said.

On the railing of the freeway's flattened upper deck, markers of fluorescent green, pink and orange spray paint mapped the carnage of crushed cars and shattered bodies.

"This is a nightmare. I have to get my medicine for my asthma and for my stomach," said Barbara Jones, 54.

Mayor Art Agnos met with about 1,000 residents Thursday afternoon and said those with homes damaged enough to be classified as risky could be escorted in for 15 minutes to retrieve belongings.

Hundreds lined up for passes. "Everything is snail-paced. It's just a mess. I'm just frustrated. I can't find out any information," said Vincent Vanski, 35, who waited more than two hours.

Throughout the district, sirens wailed, portable generators hummed and heavy equipment, brought in to finish the destruction of the earthquake left unfinished, groaned.

Tourists also paraded past the barricades, armed with video cameras. Agnos said the city's $5.9 million reserve fund has been depleted.

"On paper," he said, "the city is broke."

Gov. George Deukmejian said he would not hesitate to propose temporarily raising state sales taxes if more money is needed to rebuild.

Deukmejian said there is precedent for such a temporary tax hike, adding that gasoline taxes some states have been increased to pay for road repairs from natural disasters.

"It's very major destruction. The high costs involved are going to take a major effort to restore."

In Watsonville, 65 miles south of San Francisco, 56 people were treated at a community clinic Thursday, mostly for bruises and frayed nerves from the aftershocks, said city spokeswoman Lorraine Washington.

There were few skilled performers returning to Facchini in his first year, yet fans persisted to believe football would always rule at East. In his first game at New London in 1988, the Eagles carried with them the longest winning streak in the state. New London won, 7-6, and the Eagle losing began.

Facchini has had little to praise about his team the last season-and-a-half. Yet, through it all, Facchini has maintained his patience and resolution. The few skilled performers Facchini had on his inexperienced squad a year ago were lost to graduation, particularly quarterback Marc Mangano.

This season, East is infiltrated with younger and even more inexperienced players than in 1988. If anyone thought East's success on the football field would continue automatically, they were sadly mistaken. If anyone feels Facchini hasn't lived up to his end of the bargain, for without her enthusiasm and devotion in the pursuit of attaining her goal, this project would not have been realized.

"We'll probably be putting it up a little bit more which will give him (Leonard) the chance to run or throw," he said.

Manchester is coming off a 46-28 loss to Windham while Rockville shut out Hartford Public, 28-0, last week.

East is coming off its finest effort of the season. The Eagles totaled 281 rushing yards in a 22-12 loss to Hillhouse High of New Haven last week. Three Eagle running backs gained at least 70 yards apiece. ND is 2-1 in the ACC and is coming off a 27-0 loss to Fairfield Prep.

"We try to emphasize the positives," East coach Leo Facchini said. "We had some real good things happen last week. I'm hoping that is a prelude of things to come."

ND owns a 26-14 victory over highly regarded St. Joseph's of Trumbull.

"We're looking at last week's film, trying to correct our mistakes," Facchini said. "I'm hoping that is a prelude of things to come."

Todd Saucier and Kevin Sadowsky are questionable for the ND game.

NEW YORK — Mike Richter is glad to get the first one under his belt. Kevin Dineen, however, can't say the same thing.

Taking the first penalty shot of his NHL career, Dineen blew it Thursday night and with it blew away any chance for a Hartford Whalers victory.

The second-period miss occurred on the way to a 7-3 loss at the hands of the New York Rangers.

"I probably should have at least hit the net," an embarrassed Dineen said.

Dineen was given the shot after he was hauled down on a breakaway by David Shaw at the 15:30 mark of the second period.

The Whalers' right wing had a rookie goaltender in Richter at his mercy, but shot the puck high over the net.

"I was trying to go upstairs with it, because that's what he gave me," Dineen said. "I did have a hole, but he came out so far I should have decided him."

Richter, making his regular-season NHL debut after a loss in last year's playoffs, "came out as far as I could to take the net away from him. He went up and over. We were fortunate, he hit the net."

"Nobody wants to cancel the series unless it's unavoidable," he said. "It's a matter of waiting things out."

Sheridan expressed the lone dissent to the decision to go on.

Patience guides Facchini and East football

For Leo Facchini, his short tenure as East Catholic football coach has been a trying, humbling experience where the negatives hold an overwhelming advantage over the positives.

Midway through his second season as the Eagle mentor, Facchini has a combined record of 2-13. East is currently winless at 0-5.

Facchini stands firm in his commitment to regain success for East football.

Facchini has not had a semblance of the "horses" former Eagle coach Jude Kelly utilized at his helm; talent which garnered East back-to-back state championships in 1986 and 1987. In 1987, the Eagles went a perfect 11-0 and were voted the No. 1 high school football team in the state.

Facchini took over the next year after Kelly departed for Southington High School. Not only did both All-State running backs Jason Talbot and Aaron Albrigo graduate from that sparkling 187 squad, but also the brunt of the massive offensive line which triggered the overpowering wishbone attack.

There were few skilled performers returning to Facchini in his first year, yet fans persisted to believe football would always rule at East. As the second half of the scholastic football season begins, Manchester High and East Catholic have a combined record of 1-9.

And, there's no time for a breather, either.

Manchester faces, perhaps, its strongest opponent of the season Saturday afternoon at 1:30 when it hosts unbeaten Rockville High in a CCC East matchup at Memorial Field. The Indians, who have lost three straight, are 0-3 in the CCC East while Rockville is 2-0 and 5-0 overall.

NEW YORK — Mike Richter is glad to get the first one under his belt. Kevin Dineen, however, can't say the same thing.

Taking the first penalty shot of his NHL career, Dineen blew it Thursday night and with it blew away any chance for a Hartford Whalers victory.

The second-period miss occurred on the way to a 7-3 loss at the hands of the New York Rangers.

"I probably should have at least hit the net," an embarrassed Dineen said.

Dineen was given the shot after he was hauled down on a breakaway by David Shaw at the 15:30 mark of the second period.

The Whalers' right wing had a rookie goaltender in Richter at his mercy, but shot the puck high over the net.

"I was trying to go upstairs with it, because that's what he gave me," Dineen said. "I did have a hole, but he came out so far I should have decided him."

Richter, making his regular-season NHL debut after a loss in last year's playoffs, "came out as far as I could to take the net away from him. He went up and over. We were fortunate, he hit the net."

"Nobody wants to cancel the series unless it's unavoidable," he said. "It's a matter of waiting things out."

Sheridan expressed the lone dissent to the decision to go on.

"What would I do if it were my team?" he said. "I probably Kemp's work has not gone unnoticed. A letter published in the Herald on Thursday, written by Walter Treschuk, 29 Carter St., commended Kemp for her work. Treschuk's letter said that in a tongue-in-cheek manner, the intent was legitimate.

Kemp said Tuesday that she had taken down the proclamation, saying she did not want the hot water to be dedicated to her. She said she just wanted hot water.

Manchester faces, perhaps, its strongest opponent of the season Saturday afternoon at 1:30 when it hosts unbeaten Rockville High in a CCC East matchup at Memorial Field. The Indians, who have lost three straight, are 0-3 in the CCC East while Rockville is 2-0 and 5-0 overall.

The Rams are currently the top-ranked team in the state in the LL division.

East Catholic (0-5) will entertain Notre Dame of West Haven (3-2) in an All Connecticut Conference matchup Saturday afternoon at Carlin Field at 1:30.

"Here we go again, there's no breaks in the CCC East," first-year Manchester coach Mike Masse said.

"They (Rockville) are very strong on both sides of the ball."

Halfback Sean Perry leads the Ram offense along with Neema Shakhal. The defense, however, may be Rockville's strongest suit. The Rams have allowed just 12 points this season.

"I think their defense has come of age," Masse said. "Defensively, they're putting a lot of pressure on opponents. They run a true run-and-shoot (offense). Our pass defense did a good job against Ferni. They're looking to exploit that."

Masse hinted the Indians may put the ball up a few more times this week, especially since those situations cater to the talents of quarterback Kris Leonard.

"We'll probably be putting it up a little bit more which will give him (Leonard) the chance to run or throw," he said.

Manchester is coming off a 46-28 loss to Windham while Rockville shut out Hartford Public, 28-0, last week.

East is coming off its finest effort of the season. The Eagles totaled 281 rushing yards in a 22-12 loss to Hillhouse High of New Haven last week. Three Eagle running backs gained at least 70 yards apiece. ND is 2-1 in the ACC and is coming off a 27-0 loss to Fairfield Prep.

"We try to emphasize the positives," East coach Leo Facchini said. "We had some real good things happen last week. I'm hoping that is a prelude of things to come."

ND owns a 26-14 victory over highly regarded St. Joseph's of Trumbull.

"We're looking at last week's film, trying to correct our mistakes," Facchini said. "I'm hoping that is a prelude of things to come."

Todd Saucier and Kevin Sadowsky are questionable for the ND game.

NEW YORK — Mike Richter is glad to get the first one under his belt. Kevin Dineen, however, can't say the same thing.

Taking the first penalty shot of his NHL career, Dineen blew it Thursday night and with it blew away any chance for a Hartford Whalers victory.

Holtz begins gamesmanship early for battle with USC

By The Associated Press

The Notre Dame-Southern Cal game isn't until Saturday. The gamesmanship has already begun. Coach Lou Holtz of No. 1 Notre Dame wants more than a victory on Saturday when ninth-ranked Southern Cal visits South Bend. He'd like a little respect.

Holtz felt that USC coach Larry Smith was lacking in some, uh, respects following last year's game in which the Trojans outgained the Irish 356 yards to 253 but lost where it counts — on the scoreboard, 27-10.

Since I've been here, especially since we've been winning at Notre Dame, it seems like the opposing team very seldom gives us much credit. If (Smith) feels that way, that's his business," said linebacker Ned Bolcar, adding that Holtz reminded his troops of what Smith allegedly said.

Smith was as surprised by that as he was by Notre Dame's decisive victory a year ago. "I don't know where that came from, and I don't know if somebody's trying to make a war out of it," he said. "I think I said we won the stat battle but we didn't win the game. Anybody that looked at the game statistically, we had the best stats. But the only stat that's important — we all know what that is — is the score. I think Notre Dame is cleverer to win the game. I said that."

Notre Dame went on to capture the national championship and Holtz said the Irish "are as good as we were last year, and he didn't have a lot of respect after the game last year." Smith has plenty of respect this time. "This Notre Dame team may be the best in 20 years," he said. "By far this Notre Dame team is the best college team I've ever seen. To beat them, we'll have to play the best game our school has ever seen in which the Trojans outgained the Irish 356 yards to 253 but lost where it counts — on the scoreboard, 27-10."

Saturday's schedule lists three other games between members of the Top 25 — No. 6 Tennessee vs. No. 10 Alabama at Birmingham, No. 11 Auburn at No. 14 Florida State and No. 22 Arizona at No. 15 Washington State.

Rounding out the Top Ten, third-ranked Colorado entertains Kansas, No. 4 Nebraska visits Oklahoma State, No. 5 Michigan is at Iowa and Texas is at No. 7 Arkansas. Second-ranked Miami and No. 8 Pitt are idle, as is No. 17 Penn State.

Elsewhere, No. 12 North Carolina State is at Clemson, No. 13 Illinois is at Michigan State, Southern Methodist is at No. 16 Houston, Cincinnati is at No. 18 West Virginia, No. 19 Air Force is at Texas Christian, Texas-El Paso is at No. 20 Brigham Young, No. 23 Texas A&M is at Baylor, Western Carolina is at No. 24 South Carolina and No. 25 Oklahoma is at Iowa State.

Notre Dame-Southern Cal is the greatest intercollegiate rivalry in college football. The Irish have outscored USC 174-78 in winning the last six meetings and lead the series 33-23-4.

The Trojans are only 2-4 against top-ranked Notre Dame teams, including last year's loss, but USC ended Notre Dame's longest winning streak at 21 games with a 14-14 tie in 1948 and snapped a 26-game Irish unbeaten streak in 1931. Notre Dame carries an 18-game winning streak into Saturday's game.

Alabama struggled last week in beating unranked Southwestern Louisiana 24-17 and Coach Bill Curry believes his players were looking ahead to Tennessee, Alabama and Tennessee are the only unbeaten teams (5-0) in the Southeastern Conference, the first time since 1973 both sides have come in with perfect records.

"It was like poison gas over our people," Curry said of last week's struggle.

Alabama holds a 37-27-7 lead in "Dixie's Great Football War," which finds Tennessee without starting tailback Reggie Cobb, who was kicked off the team last week, reportedly for drug-related reasons.

"I think their team will rally around the troubles they have had and have an outstanding game plan," Curry said. "It will be an outstanding football game."

Tennessee's Johnny Majors predicts that "with the SEC lead on the line it should be a classic setting in Birmingham. This is one of college football's great historic rivalries. You can always count on both teams being mentally ready to play."

BLASTS OUT — Tim Simpson blasts out of a trap during second-round play Thursday in the Walt Disney Golf Classic in Lake Buena Vista, Fla. Simpson had a 67 for a two-day total of 134 and a two-shot lead.

In Brief . . .

Simpson leads Disney golf
LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Tim Simpson shot a 67 and took a two-stroke lead midway through the Disney Classic golf tournament.

Roger Maltbie, who carried a personal best 9-under-63 after learning that his home survived Tuesday's earthquake in California, was tied with Dave Rummel and Ted Schulz at 10-under 134, two shots behind Simpson.

Bob Gilder, Kenny Knox and Fred Couples were another stroke back, all after second-round 65s.

Both Tway, who tied a tournament record with a 61 in the first round, fell way back to a 77 and was six strokes off the pace.

Helms wants Reds' job
CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds interim manager Tom Helms says he's clinging to hope he can keep his job for the 1990 season despite a report it has been offered to former New York Yankees manager Dallas Green.

"Dallas is a good man. He would be a good man for the job," Helms said in a report published Thursday in The Cincinnati Enquirer. "All I can say is I worked hard and would like to have the job."

Reds general manager Bob Quinn, in San Francisco for the World Series, said he plans to meet with Helms on Tuesday for an interview. Helms is among a dozen candidates for the job, he said.

Wooten undergoes neck surgery
FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — New England offensive guard Ron Wooten, sidelined since the start of the season, underwent neck surgery and is expected to return playing for the Patriots next year.

Dr. Bertram Zarins, the Patriots' team physician, predicted Wooten would recover fully from Wednesday's surgery that removed a herniated disc from his neck. He said he expected Wooten to return for next year.

The surgery was performed at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston.

Wooten, who played all eight of his NFL seasons with the Patriots before this year, suffered a ruptured cervical disc during the team's first pre-season game Aug. 12 against the New York Giants. He has been on injured reserve since then.

Wooten, 30, can begin working out in six to eight weeks, Zarins said.

Jones leads Tokyo golf
TOKYO (AP) — Australia's Brian Jones shot a course-record-tying 8-under-par 64 and took a two-stroke lead after the opening round of the Bridgestone Golf tournament.

STUTTGART, West Germany (AP) — Igor Korobchinski of the Soviet Union won the gold medal in the men's all-around competition at the World Gymnastics Championships, scoring a perfect 10 in the vault to add his first world title to the European all-around title he won in May.

The silver medal went to another Soviet, Valery Mogulini, who had a perfect score on the pommel horse. A fall off the horizontal bar on his last rotation cost Olympic champion Vladimir Artemov a medal and prevented a Soviet sweep. Li Jing of China took the bronze while Artemov dropped to sixth.

At the Oakland Coliseum, the big, bad, bragging Athletics quietly got ready to practice.

"We're not in the mood to play baseball," Dave Stewart said, "but we're professionals and we will."

A week ago, on the eve of the World Series, the teams couldn't wait to play. Now, after the earthquake that killed hundreds, they were in no rush to resume.

On the sleeve of every Athletics and Giants uniform was a bright patch of the Bay Bridge. Those were seven on before the quake that collapsed the bridge, along with the spirit of the series.

The World Series was set back until at least Tuesday evening with Oakland ahead 2-0. Whether play resumes will depend on if the Bay area has been able to pick up the pieces by then.

"Nobody wants to play right now," Oakland's Mark McGwire said. "I know I wouldn't play if they asked us today."

"This is my job. This is what I do," San Francisco's Will Clark said. "But it's not the best of circumstances to go back out there."

Still, the teams did their best, each playing simulated games. Both seasons were relatively tame, unlike the lively practices that usually take

Gamble doesn't work for Coventry girls

COVENTRY — A calculated gamble — playing in the rain to avoid having to play four games in one week — didn't work out for Coventry High as visiting RHAM High took home a 1-0 victory over the Patriots Thursday afternoon in COC East Division girls' soccer action.

The win by the Sachems, their fourth in a row, scrambles the COC East standings considerably. Coventry, which had a chance to take over the division lead, and Bacon Academy share the top spot, each with nine points with the Patriots at 4-3-1 (two points for a win, one for a tie) and Bacon at 3-1-3.

Bolton (4-2) and RHAM (3-3-2) make it extremely tight at the top, each with eight points.

"We're on the bubble," Coventry coach Chris D'Ambrósio said as far as the conference and state tournaments goes. He admits playing in the rain wasn't the wisest, but the one thing he'd do again.

"I didn't want to play four games in one week," he said. Coventry is at Bacon Academy in Colchester on Monday, has a Thursday home date with Bolton and a make-up game next Friday at home against Lyman Memorial.

RHAM, 4-4-2 overall, got its lone goal at the 24:09 mark of the second half from Jen Hermann. A centering pass was kicked around several times in the goal area, before Hermann was able to roll it home.

Coventry outplayed RHAM, 14-8. Dawn Belling and Jen Wajda played well for the Patriots, now 5-4-2 overall.

His wife, Melanie, left Wednesday and returned to their home at Farmington, Mich.

Mark McGwire said it was difficult for him to go on.

"To be truthful, it's not going to be exciting," the A's first baseman said. "We'll play the game, but it won't be the same. Nobody wants to play in rain. I wouldn't play if they asked me, today. We're not in the mood to play baseball."

McGwire and others also agreed with the decision to keep the World Series in the Bay area.

"I don't know if it's in good taste, but if not here nowhere," said Dave Stewart of the A's, the winning pitcher in Game 1.

"I don't think that was a real alternative," the Giants' Brett Butler said of suggestions that the Series be shifted to San Diego or Los Angeles.

Will Clark said continuation of the Series might help people's spirits during the recovery period.

"The fans here have supported these two teams," the Giants first baseman said. "They catch a glimpse of the World Series and want to take it away from them wouldn't be fair."

He also agreed that the games should go on, no matter what.

"This is my job," he said. "This is what I do. It's not the best of circumstances to go out there, but maybe this will somehow pull the Bay area together."

"I want to help out the community and I think playing will help," A's outfielder Dave Henderson said. "Playing baseball could help put a smile on everybody's face."

"I think it's 50-50 as to whether the Series should be played," said A's catcher Terry Steinbach, who hit a three-run homer in Game 2.

"Some people think it will be a lift," he said. "Some people think it will be a lift."

Some players said they had reservations about the safety of Candlestick Park.

"It's a very hard decision to say if it's safe," San Francisco's Matt Williams said. "I feel OK here, but who knows?"

"If it was a fair, maybe I wouldn't want to come to Candlestick Park," says Uribe of the Giants said. "As a player, I'm going to play."

San Francisco manager Roger Craig agreed with the majority of

UConn facing mighty task against Maine

By The Associated Press

Connecticut will try to stop Maine's double-barrel attack of runner Carl Smith and pitcher Mike Buck with its own balanced offense Saturday. If the Huskies succeed, their many Yankee Conference rivals will be grateful.

If they fail, the unbeaten Black Bears would continue on what is looking more and more like an unstoppable march to the league title.

Navy and Boston College have been anything but unstoppable. Both take 1-4 records into their confrontation in Newton, Mass., although Boston College, fresh from a 35-14 victory over Wesleyan Temple, has the momentum.

Those two games plus the bids by Cornell and Yale to remain unbeaten in the Ivy League race highlight Saturday's college football action involving New England teams.

With Smith running for 245 yards and four touchdowns and Buck completing 14 of 19 passes, Maine improved its record to 7-0 overall and 5-0 in the Yankee Conference with a 47-21 victory at Rhode Island last Saturday.

Maine has the advantage this week being at home against Connecticut (4-2, 2-1).

But the Huskies, a 39-33 overtime winner over Massachusetts last Saturday, have their own offensive weapons. Kevin Wesley rushed for 272 yards, yards and three touchdowns against Massachusetts, while Matt DeGennaro completed 15 of 23 passes. Wesley had rushed for just six yards in four games while recovering from an injury.

"You know you have to defend against DeGennaro," Maine coach Tom Lichtenberg said. "But now, with Wesley, our thinking's a little different. This could really shape up as a battle of the tailbacks and of two fine offensive lines."

Maine is the only unbeaten team in Yankee Conference games and there's not much time left for other teams to catch the Black Bears.

"It's going to be tough to win the league with two losses," Connecticut Coach Tom Jackson said. "I'm hoping we can go up and steal one from them and bring them back to the field."

Second-place Villanova, 3-1 in the league, has a non-conference game at William & Mary. Boston University, tied for third with Connecticut at 2-1, is home against Rhode Island Saturday.

Delaware, the defending Yankee Conference champion and the pre-season favorite to repeat, takes a 2-2 league mark to Massachusetts, Richmond, 0-4 in the conference, visits New Hampshire.

For perhaps the first time this season, Boston College enters a game with great confidence.

"You can't tell the difference in the kids after they win," Eagles coach Jack Bicknell said. "There's more joking. The atmosphere is a lot looser. A win can do a lot for morale."

Although Navy has been outscored 118-53, Bicknell is concerned about its wishbone offense.

"It's very difficult to prepare for," he said. "You have to wait until you're playing the game to really adjust to it and, even then, it takes a while."

The Ivy League race figures to get closer Saturday as Cornell (1-0, 3-1) should coast over Brown (0-3, 0-5) and Yale (2-0, 4-1) should handle Columbia (0-3, 0-5). Princeton leads the league with a 3-0 record and Pennsylvania is tied for second at 2-0. In non-conference games, Fordham is at Princeton and Bucknell at Pennsylvania.

In the other Ivy League game, Harvard tries to break a four-game losing streak when it plays host to Dartmouth. Both are 1-4 overall.

Holy Cross, 1-0 in the Colonial League, will try to rebound from a 45-0 loss to Army, its first of the season. The Crusaders are home against Colgate, 3-3 after losing its last two games to Yale and New Hampshire.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I was diagnosed with Meniere's disease and was told that, until I lost 75 percent of my hearing, there would be no treatment available. I haven't lost any hearing, just my balance. I've been told by another specialist a salt-free diet is recommended and have additionally read articles indicating vitamin B helps. What's your opinion?

DEAR READER: Meniere's disease is an ailment of unknown cause affecting the inner ear. It is characterized by severe vertigo (an uncontrollable sense of spinning), hearing loss and tinnitus (noises within the ear).

Treatment of mild-to-moderate Meniere's disease includes medicine (such as spiropramide or cyclizine) to control vertigo. In severe cases, labyrinthectomy may have to be considered. This is a delicate operation during which the nerves to the inner ear are severed; the procedure is used only as a last resort, when the vertigo is constant and hearing is markedly impaired. There is no specific treatment for the tinnitus and hearing loss of Meniere's disease.

Some doctors recommend dietary salt restriction and the use of B vitamins for the condition, but I'm unaware of any scientific study supporting this treatment.

'Lad' should be kicked out of nest

Dear Abby: My 33-year-old grandson (I'll call him "John") was divorced two years ago, so he came to live with me for free. I am a widow, living on a small pension and my Social Security.

John is a sweet and lovable lad, but he is a little on the lazy side. He refuses to carry out the trash, clear the table after his meals or make his own bed. He is immaculate about himself, taking two or three showers a day. I do all his laundry and even shine his shoes, and I must say he is a fine looking young man and a spiffy dresser.

He makes good money, but he spends it all on clothes and going out. His parents live in the city, but he doesn't get along very well with them and prefers to live with me.

I am not in the best of health and am getting a little weary. I love this lad, but my health is not too good and looking after him is quite a chore. What do you suggest?

Even with catastrophic coverage in place, Medicare did not cover the biggest catastrophic cost — long term nursing home care. Scores of long-term care policies have come onto the market in the past year, some of them first-rate in their provisions.

For the most part, medigap policies are sound, but if you're in the Medicare program, you do need some kind of medigap coverage, says Robin Talbert of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP).

But be cautious: "A lot of celebrities have been making sales pitches and scaring people into buying too much medigap insurance, or paying more than they need to pay. It's better to talk to somebody you trust, somebody who knows your situation and can help you decide on the kind of coverage you need. You might even ask your physician."

Facial hairs can be removed

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm in menopause and now am starting to have facial hair. Would the use of facial-hair remover make the hair grow faster or thicker?

DEAR READER: As women age and the influence of female hormones lessens, certain body changes take place. These often include osteoporosis and the appearance of facial hair, which can be cosmetically embarrassing.

Depilatories (chemical hair removers) may remove the situation; they are safe when used according to the manufacturers' directions. Depilatories do not make hair grow faster or thicker. Hot wax and tweezing are also safe alternatives. You can obtain further advice from a licensed cosmetologist in your community.

Dear Abby

Now for my problem: Theresa's parents aren't the best in the world. Her father drinks quite a bit, and her mother is a heavy drinker and a "tranny" quote my mother. Now my mother says Theresa is the same as her mother, and I enough to know a nice girl from a tramp. I'm still living at home, but I'd move if I could support myself. I'm working, but don't make enough to be on my own.

In case you're wondering if Theresa feels the same about me, the answer is yes.

I guess what I really want to know is this: Is it fair to judge a person by the way her parents act? In my heart I know it isn't, but I just need to hear it from you.

IN LOVE IN OKLAHOMA
DEAR IN LOVE: The answer that's in your heart is in my head. No, it isn't fair. Everyone should be judged by his or her own behavior.

DEAR ABBY: I just read your letter "From Wahos, Neb," in which you explain the flower-over-the-car signal.

As a native-born Hawaiian, here's the true meaning of flower placement: If a girl wears a flower over her left ear, it means she is spoken for. (Same side as her heart — which is the reason why wedding rings are worn on the left hand.) If the flower is worn over the right ear, it means the girl is available or unattached.

A flower worn on the back of the head means "Follow me." A flower on top of the head means "Married, but will fool around."

buying more coverage than you now have. Some companies may try to fill the catastrophic care gap as they have the long-term care gap. Or they may demonstrate that policies are already available to do just that.

Here are some wise buying tips from the BBB and your AARP:

Don't succumb to aggressive tactics. "Never make your decision while the agent is in your home," advises Talbert. "Take time to read the policy and other material and make your decisions."

Be sure you clearly understand any limitations or exclusions in the policy, and the conditions of renewal.

Pay cash, or pay years in advance. Find out how long the insurance company has been in business, and obtain a financial report. Make sure the company and agent are licensed to sell in your state. (Ask your state insurance commissioner.)

It is illegal for anyone to knowingly sell you a policy that duplicates another Medicare coverage or a private health insurance policy you already have. On your part, it's throwing money away to pay for duplicate coverage.

It's always a good precaution to check with the BBB and your Better Business Bureau, even if you're not suspicious of a sales pitch.

DEAR BRUCE: What is better, getting fired or quitting? There's no question about it, I am leaving my job. My boss and I get along about as well as two alley cats on a back fence. I know I can't get him to fire me. If I quit, that means I won't be fired, so it looks better on my resume, but I can't collect unemployment for several weeks.

DEAR ABBY: I have always tried to be a good parent, but enough is enough. My 27-year-old son hasn't lived at home for the last four years and has taken to giving our address rather than his own when he applies for credit, a driver's license and jobs.

The reason for this is his own credit is shot, his name was revoked in another state. I guess what it comes down to is that he is not a very nice person.

Now when he doesn't pay his bills, instead of the creditors calling him, they call us and, since we are the state, we are responsible. He lives in our home, we are responsible. Even if we had the money to pay his bills, I don't see why I should be responsible for a "ne'er-do-well" in his late 20s, who has not lived here for several years and almost never communicates with us, unless he has had to come here for his shortcoming?

DEAR N.S.: There are exceptions, but essentially you have no responsibility in this matter. You should notify the creditors with his correct address and his phone number. Tell them he has used your address without your permission and has not lived with you for several years.

Downpour causes flooding, outages

By Rick Santos
 Manchester Herald

Friday's torrential record-setting rain caused heavy flooding and power outages in Manchester, Bolton and Coventry as well as vehicle breakdowns throughout the area, public safety officials said.

The National Weather Service reported that the rainfall for Friday was almost equal to the amount expected for the entire month and the 3.2-inch total set a record for rainfall for the date. Flash flooding was reported throughout the state.

Bolton Fire Chief James Preuss said the department received reports of about 10 or 12 flooded basements.

"A lot of these were because people lost power, and their sump pumps didn't work," he said.

About 1,100 Northeast Utilities customers in Manchester lost power from about 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. Friday, said company spokesman John Gustavsen. Northeast Utilities could not locate a problem with lines and is investigating the possibility of an underground cable fault.

In Bolton, about three or four of the flooded basements were on Hebron Road, and the depth of the water ranged from two to six inches, Preuss said.

School Road was under water, he said, adding this is not unusual during heavy rains, he said.
