STORM THREATENS SERIES

The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Candlestick Park was up to its old tricks Friday as rain headed toward the Bay area, troubled World Series.

The National Weather Service forecast showers all weekend and predicted the storm might last into early next week. Game 3 is still tentatively set for Tuesday, following a week delay because of a devastating Whenever the series resumes, Dave Stewart will start again for Oakland and Mike Moore will follow. They won the first two games, helping hold San Francisco to one run on nine hits.

"We always try to keep guys regular, It makes more sense than to adjust four guys," Athletics manager Tony La Rusa said, announcing his plans, "Bob Welch will be ready to pitch Thursday, but I'm not looking beyond the games we know we have to play."

Don Robinson is scheduled to start Game 3 for the Giants and Scott Garrelts will be next.

Both teams tried to focus as much as possible on baseball Friday. Each team held workouts at its ballpark, and the sessions were a little more lively than those a day earlier, the first time they came back to the field after Tuesday's earthquake. Rickey Henderson returned to the Athletics after missing Thursday's practice, saying he didn't know about it. "They tried to get in touch with me and I tried to get in touch with them. We just missed," he said. La Russa said there would be no fine. "The man didn't blow off the workout. He just didn't get the message," he said. At Candlestick, after almost two weeks of clear skies and calm conditions, wind swirled the infield dirt. Clouds and cooler temperatures made it more uncomfortable. "How in the world are we ever going to get ready at this rate?" Will Clark asked during a tame round of bat-

Even with bad weather moving in, both teams said they would stay in the area, rather going to Arizona to train. Immediately after their workout, the Giants went to visit one of San Francisco's shelters, still full in the aftermath of the area's worst earthquake since 1906. Most players left the San Francisco clubhouse loaded with autographed pictures, pennants, balls and bats. "It's a way of trying to put something back into the community," pitcher Kelly Downs said. "We're all trying to do our part to help." Before both teams practice, they met with Don Fehr, head of the Major League Baseball Players' Association. He updated them on the construction at Candlestick Park and the precautions being taken. While the Giants practiced, several workers in hard hats climbed on scaffolding to the overhang. That was in Section 53 in the upper deck in right-center field, where the quake caused a six-inch crack in the concrete. It will not be certain until Monday whether Candlestick will definitely be ready. That's when city officials will decide whether to certify the stadium as safe, although it is expected to get approval.

Some work - mostly cosmetic - remains to be done during the weekend. Sunday's NFL game between the 49ers and New England scheduled at Candlestick has been moved 35 miles south to Stanford Stadium.

Half a game costly to MHS

By Len Auster

Manchester Herald The Manchester High boys' soccer team got to play only half a game on Tuesday, and it was a costly 40 minutes to the Indians. It was originally stated the game against Windham High in Willimantic was suspended and would be replayed on Nov. 3, but according to National Federation and Connecticut Interscholastic Athletic Conference rules, a regular season game that has at least a half played counts as a full game.

Thus it goes into the record book as a 2-1 Windham victory; a costly loss for the Indians. They were tied for first place in the CCC East Division with Hartford Public, each 7-1-1, going into that game. in the CCC East played this week.

"There was standing water all over the field. We should have never played," Manchester coach Bill McCarthy said late Tuesday night. The Indians host Hartford Public on Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. at Memorial Field. But now they are one game down in the loss column to the Owls, and need a win to pull back even. McCarthy said neithe he nor Windham coach Gary Dopslaff were aware of the rule - until it was too late. "No one knew the rule," said McCarthy, who noted official word from the CIAC didn't come until McCarthy said he was angry at first, and so, too,

Mapplethorpe exhibit draws large crowd

HARTFORD (AP) - The controversial photographs of Robert Mapplethorpe opened to an overflow crowd and a small protest in Hartford and Wadsworth Atheneum Director Patrick McCaughey says he has no second thoughts about booking a show that includes sexually McCaughey said he was happy to show the photos because an art museum "mustn't just lie back and sit like a tabby cat." He said the turnout challenged "the outsider's view of Hartford - that it's the insurance capital, that it's staid." A group of about religious activists, who picketed in front of the museum Saturday in protest of the show, disagreed. Demonstrators carried signs that read, "Promote True Art, Not Obscenity," and "Federally Funded Gay Pornography." Mary Ann Pressamarita, who has helped defeat gay rights bills in the Legislature and fought topless bars, said the exhibit contained "a lot of beautiful pictures" along with "absolute pornography." The collection includes photos of homosexual acts as well as more conventional nudes, celebrity portraits and still lifes of flowers. Despite the protests against the exhibition, the line of patrons attending its opening in Hartford extended out the door. Officials said 2,000 people paid to see the show, more than four times the usual Saturday attendance. "The overall quality was superb," Kathy Cemino said as she left the museum, "There was really nothing obscene about it. The flowers are really beautiful." Conservatives in Congress, led by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., were angered to learn that the Mapplethorpe exhibit at Washington' Corcoran Gallery of Art originally was funded in part by the National Endowment for the Arts. #### Revaluation Problem

1. In a unanimous, bipartisan vote, the Board of Directors decided that instead of hiring outside assistance, the state-mandated revaluation of property could be done for less by the town Assessor's office.

2. Despite repeated assurances from the Town Administration, the job wasn't done properly. Property owners said the new assessments were unfair ... and they were right.

3. The Administration didn't level with us . . . but no matter, we know that the buck stops

4. So the town had to do the job again. Yes, it cost more and the additional money came from another unanimous vote of Republican and Democrat members of the Board of Directors. 5. And now there's a new Assessor and a whole new team at Town Hall.

So you be the judge as to how the Democrats handled the tough problem of revaluation

Sierakowski seeks end to 'stigma' for non-college bound

By Diane Rosell Manchester Herald

The Board of Education should work with area business groups to find out what jobs are available for non-college-bound students and the curriculum should also reflect these needs, said Republican Eugene Sierakowski, who is running for a seat on the Board of Education in this year's election. "There's too much emphasis on college. Equal consideration should be given to those who choose not to go," he said. "We need to demystify the non-college stigma and work on giving these students skills."

Sierakowski's view is shared by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges. The accredidation agency concluded in a Manchester High School should offer more services for non-college-building the firehouse now at the Deming and Tolland Street location. However, it would be a good idea to hold the meeting after the election.

An agreement between the town and the Eighth Utilities District calls on the town to begin immediately to acquire land and start building a firehouse in the North End. The new firehouse would replace one the town has transferred to the district under the terms of the agreement, which was designed to put an end to festering disputes over fire and sewer jurisdiction. That agreement won tacit support of the people who would be served by the new firehouse. The town has a moral obligation to provide them with adequate fire protection service. But the Democrats canceled the planned meeting on the firehouse after receiving a letter signed by five people supporting the project. A sixth person also is said to support the project. The small number of signatures raises some doubt about whether many residents of Bryan Farms and other areas to be served by the firehouse are deeply concerned. No convincing evidence has been offered to the effect that the firehouse is not needed or that the location chosen is not the right one.

And it is disturbing that questions about the plan were not raised until the election campaign

Giants get win over Chargers

By Dennis Georgatos The Associated Press

SAN DIEGO - Even though New York Giants pass-rushing specialist Lawrence Taylor didn't have any sacks, interceptions or fumble recoveries, he still managed to neutralize the San Diego Chargers' offense.

San Diego, preoccupied with Taylor's presence, devised a blocking scheme that was intended specifically to stop the Giants' linebacker. The Chargers won that battle, but also stopped themselves in the process, and lost Sunday's game, 20-13.

SAN FRANCISCO - Life in the Bay area goes on and San Francisco Mayor Art Agnos wants the World Series to be part of it starting Friday. Just minutes before the start of Game 3 between San Francisco and Oakland last Tuesday, a powerful earthquake hit nothern California, causing death and destruction for

The people of the region, however, have made a remarkable recovery in a short period of time. "Cable cars are running. The opera is performing. Conventions are starting. The 49ers are playing, Agnos said. "It's time to go on. "We even had our first protest demonstration, a sure sign that we are regaining our equilibrium." During a news conference at the it. Francis Hotel on Sunday, Agnos and Commissioner Fay Vincent said the World Series would resume on Game 5, will be played over the weekend at Candlestick Park. If needed, Monday would be an off day and the Series could end in Game 6 on Tuesday, Oct. 31, or in Same 7 on Wednesday, Nov. 1, in he Oakland Coliseum. Oakland eads the best-of-7 Series 2-0. Last Wednesday, Vincent tentatively scheduled the Series to area. The final decision was made

So now, this Series, which had already been delayed by the longest layoff ever, will go 11 days between games. All games will be played at their original starting times. Agnos cited three reasons for waiting until Friday: Candlestick Park must be certified as safe, the Bay area must find whether it can handle the expected traffic problems, and sufficient security must be assigned. "It's been just five days since the second largest earthquake of the century struck the San Francisco Bay area," Agnos said. "For most San Franciscans, the shock and the grief have just begun to wear off and we are turning to the work of putting people's lives back together again." There are still hundreds of homeless here and in surrounding com-

Agnos said the city survived in "astonishingly good shape" and life is returning to normal. The mayor said he did not have the time to think about the World Series until this weekend. He met with Vincent Saturday night and early Sunday. "I've been assured that Candlestick could withstand another major earthquake," Agnos said. "I will study reports on the stadium.

"I have to have an ironclad assurance from the top structural engineers that this facility is safe for people to use." Asked whether he had considered calling off the Series, Vincent said, "My judgment is that this community is better served by playing the World Series. But we did con-

the Series. Vincent said the chances of the World Series being cancelled or moved out of the Bay area are "totally unlikely." "The people of San Francisco waited 27 years for this World o-o Series," Vincent said.

DEAR MR. PEVSNER: I called upon Sidney D.

Rosoff, Esq. — my trusty new York legal eagle. His Rosoff, Esq. - my trusty new York legal eagle.

"Dear Abby: You will be pleased to learn that b amendment of the new York State Judiciary Law in 1987 effective Sept. 1, 1987, they deleted the provision that a juror had to be less than 76 years of age. (There were obviously others who felt the same as Mr. Pevsner - that 'the riper the fruit, the sweeter it is.')

"Mr. Pevsner can therefore refer the jury clerk to the provisions of Section 510 of the New York State Judiciary Law if the issue arises the next time he is called. We have been advised by the County Clerk's office that it is now their policy that those prospective jurors over age 70 who receive notice of jury service will be permitted to serve at their option." So, relax, Sam. You're still eligible for jury duty.

DEAR ABBY: I've never seen this discussed in your column, but I can't believe I'm the only one who has ever had this problem — woman or man. My husband and I had a very happy marriage. When he died, it was too soon — it always is — but I'm learning to live without him. No moping, no whining. I manage to lead a busy, pleasant family and social life. After a while, acquaintances and relatives began urging me to date. (There is no pressure from close friends, who simply include me in their plans.) I don't want to "date" and have said as much. Still, they give my telephone number to "likely prospects," so when I'm called, I make excuses. I have my hands full fielding approaches without this. I'm at a loss to know how to handle the situation. Any through the nation's charitable institutions. Reform lowered the top tax rates. Those who previously could receive the greatest tax benefits by donating to charity no longer had much incentive to do so. Charitable contributions dropped.

Tax benefits exist with charity gifts

It turns out, though, that there are provisions of the tax law that can provide big tax dividends when you make even large donations. The general rules governing charitable gifts, the Internal Revenue Service notes, were not changed substantially in the 1986 law. These, briefly, are the rules: Donations of cash and property to qualified charities are tax deductible. The word "qualified" is important because a non-profit organization doesn't qualify until the IRS says it does. If in doubt, check with your local IRS

 Cash donations are limited to 50 percent of your adjusted gross income. · Property donations are, with few exceptions, limited to 30 percent of your adjusted gross income. Cash contributions, being relatively simple, have resulted in few accounting problems over the years. But donation of property has caused headaches. IRS rules specify that a donation is deductible at its fair market value, this is not the price you paid for the old clothes you're new donating to the thrift shop, it's the price the thrift shop believes those second-hand items will bring arriving at an appraisal has been the source of controversy. On high-ticket items, the IRS may require an independent appraisal.

But this situation, which has been a problem to many, also can become a great advantage, points out Steve Gaerte of Geo. S. Olive & Co., a firm of certified public accountants based in Indianapolis. Say, for example, you have substantial stock holdings and, like many investors, you've done well in recent months. Your shares have appreciated substantially. If you sell them, you will face a big tax exposure. Assume, too, that you customarily make gifts to your college or to other favorite organizations. Now, remember, property donations are deductible at their fair market value. What you paid has nothing to do with it. This applies to used goods that have lost some of their value, it also applies to property that has appreciated and now is worth more.

"Which means that you can deduct the property you donate at its current, higher value, without being taxed for the capital gains on the property," explains Gaerte. This means, too, that if you bought shares for $25 and they're now worth $50, you can give them to a qualified charity and take a $50 deduction. If it's real estate that you are giving to the charitable institution, you can gain the benefits of the appreciated value for income tax purposes and reduce your property

It sounds easy. And for the most part, it is. "There are a couple of little traps," warns Gaerte. The first trap: "There may be some alternative minimum tax exposure, so you could end up giving back part of the benefit in untaxed appreciation in the form of increased alternative minimum tax.

"A second trap is that the property must have been held long-term — a minimum of a year — for the benefit to apply. So you should make sure you've owned the property or stock at least that long."

declarer-phobia, a fear of having to ond high diamond, will take care of deplay the hand. That's the only explana-tion for his failure to bid three no-trump when South jumped to three spades. Look at the bidding from South's point of view. If North had as South's point of view. If North had as little as A-Q-J-x-x of clubs and three little spades, a small slam in spades would be easy going. And that's why South asked for aces and bid six club, which West is forced to win with spades. What a miserable contract! the ace. A diamond lead from West There are many ways to go set in six would provide immediate access to panicking. But in this deal the cards but declarer has no choice but to play are right if declarer plays for what is needed to bring the contract home. For starters, declarer wins the king of bidding.

Californians say aid plan is too little

Tuesday, Oct. 24, 1989

By Steven Komarow The Associated Press

awmakers say a House plan to pour $2.85 billion into their earthquakedamaged state isn't nearly enough even though it's larger than the White House proposal. The House Appropriations Committee approved the aid package Monday and sent it to the full House for action today after rejecting the California delegation's request for

The spending committee rejected, 26-7, an amendment supported by the state delegation and instead favored a proposal by chairman Jamie L. Whitten, D-Miss., which essentially split the difference between the state and White House

The committee approved $1.1 bilion for the Federal Emergency Management Agency to repair the devastation and $1 billion for the Federal Highway Administration's emergency fund. Most of the deaths and the worst damage from last week's quake in the San Francisco Bay area was related to highways. In addition, $500 million would be given to the Small Business Adninistration for emergency loans, and $250 million to President Bush to spend at his discretion on other

The aid package, which could stil attached to a stopgap spending bill that must be passed before Thursday to avoid a government shutdown. Rep.
